B. GRIFFIN, N. P.

QUEBEC, October 11, 1817.

Extract from a letter to the Editor, "We have now twelve Potatoes, the produce of the farm of Mr. John Ferguson, of Kildrummy, in Chatham, weighing fifteen pounds. They are English whites, three years from the seed. The produce is thirty six bushels from two."

The Indian Sports.—On Saturday, and in the night of Sunday or morning of Monday, we were visited by a pretty severe thunder storm, with frequent flashes of vivid lightning. One of the claps of thunder was somewhat appalling. The lightning struck and rent a chimney belonging to the House of Mr. Peter Burney, on the Lorette road, to the great alarm of the family and neighbourhood. The bad weather of yesterday disappointed our racing sportsmen.

German Settlers.—On Saturday, arrived in the ship Zephyr, 180 Germans settlers, men, women, and children. They found immediate shelter in a house belonging to Mr. George Pozer, in an airy situation near the the gaol. Mr. P. meant to settle them on his seigniory of Aumay Gallion, on the river Chaudiere, where he has taken steps to provide mills and other buildings for their reception, and has made large provision of provision for them. They embarked indeed for this country, in consequence of encouragement held out to them by that gentleman, who has great credit for not only employing his money, as it must necessarily stay much to the advantage of the Province, the Germans being a quiet and industrious people. We hear that the men are to proceed immediately to the seat of their destination, but that the women and children will pass the winter in town. They excite much the curiosity of the public, by the grotesque appearance of their costume, in which they appear to be at least a century behind the fashions of the day. Their dress is, however, comfortable, which is more than can be said of that of our fine fashionable ladies.

Late advices from the Great Falls of the River Saint John, that may be relied on, say, that those falls will probably remain in our possession: the exploring line having reached the St. John's, some miles above that post. Mercury.

SAME MANNER CONVINCED. The author exerts his best ability to persuade Great Britain of the importance of recommencing and perpetuating a colonial system. For this purpose he would have the most vigorous measures adopted. He strenuously recommends the same policy that Mr. Crawford once ventured to broach in an official report, and which met with the virtuous indignation it merited. "Intermarriages between the Indians, says the author, is the subject that should occupy the attention of the British government. A premium of one thousand acres should be given to any man who married a native and had one children by her!!" A pretty picture indeed! But any thing and every thing is preferable to the intolerable spectacle of seeing the United States thrive by means of foreign emigration. Various schemes are proposed and with the greatest order recommended to Great Britain, in order to encourage the emigration of her surplus population to her colonies, and to divert it from this country. He dwells with delight on the advantages which Canada offers to emigrants of every description, and loses no opportunity to speak of the "deadly animosity" of Americans to every thing British. In his fervid zeal he proposes that the English government should actually send out her travelling agents all over the continent of Europe, for the very wise and humane purpose of persuading people of all nations, tongues and languages, to emigrate to the British provinces in preference to the United States. Rest content, Mr. Traveller, for, after all your visions, it will, in process of time, and that not very far distant, be as much our interest as you imagine it to be your's, that the present British provinces should be enriched by a numerous thriving population.

The West Indies next occupies the author's attention and among other things that he proposes for the purpose of adding to their value, is the notable project of hiring runaway slaves from the southern states in order to make them overseers. "It would be advisable (these are his words) to engage the services of these fugitive negroes, who absconded from the plantations in the Delaware and Chesapeake." As long as our laws permit masters to hold slaves in the southern states, it would be just as proper a form of speech to talk of fugitive horses, who absconded. Does the traveller mean those slaves that the gallant English fleet kidnapped at St. Mary's, and carried to Trinidad? O! tempora mutantur, nos mutamur in illis!

The last subject of the author's speculations, is the treaty of Ghent; which, he says, and we confess, the intimation is a little unexpected, "is essentially averse to Great-Britain, for that the rival nation (meaning the United States) enjoys all the credit and profit too." I am really glad to hear it, and hope it may so turn out. If so, I stand ready to acknowledge my error. At any rate, the profit is not yet experienced; it is not perceived in the loss of our West India trade; in the loss of our fisheries; nor, in the probable loss of our territory; but, as to the credit acquired, why, since the English allow us credit, it would betoken a most ungracious and churlish disposition in us, not to receive it. Not a word more, then of the causes for which we went to war as set forth in the president's proclamation, and pledged our national existence for prosecuting it, nor of the manner in which we at last came out of it: a champion of the British cause, denominates the treaty of peace a degrading treaty to her, an honorable one to us, and let us not forget it.

He concludes his last chapter in a review of the provisions of the treaty, which no things may justly be termed one of the most entertainers acts of diplomacy in which Great Britain ever engaged, and the peace connected with it, a peace which may prove the death-warrant of the British nation; one more pernicious than ever was made; and that even perpetual war with America should have been preferred. On an examination of the map, he observes, it will clearly be seen that Canada can never be easily safe, while the United States possess the frontiers founded on the treaty of 1783, and guaranteed by the degrading treaty of Ghent. He then proceeds to a particular consideration of the several important points of agreement on these frontiers, which the United States have secured to themselves. In speaking of which he discovers much ingenuity of observation, founded on an intimate geographical knowledge of the country. He scruples not to declare—yes, this stickler for law, and morality, and honor, he who charges the American people with being dishonest, grovelling and contemptible, neither great nor good, this man, ye gods, scruples not openly and in print to declare that it was ill-timed in the British plenipotentiaries to be guided by a regard for the law of nations; says a departure from the precepts of the civilian would have been justifiable; and condemns an adherence to the principles of justice and liberality, as misguided policy. Did this gentleman learn his ethics in the school of Machiaval, or of his disciples the French jacobins of the mountain? "Britain, he says, should not have consented to a peace till she had extorted the cession of a line of demarcation; or, if she had not obtained the whole line of coast along the lakes, at least, the principal posts such as Oswego, Sackett's Harbor, Detroit, and Buffalo, should have been insisted on peremptorily; while by express stipulation the United States should have been deprived altogether, of having a fleet on the lakes, or limited as to the number of force or ships."—Such language may do very well in the mouth of a conqueror towards his vanquished foe, and perhaps the United States, after being subjugated, might, to preserve their national existence, have been justified in submitting to them; but, as long as the leading events of the late war are fresh in our recollection; as long as the laurels that crowned our combats on the ocean, on the lakes, are yet green and unwithered; while the arms of the enemy were tarnished and degraded by the burning of Washington, or the defeat of the veterans of Wellington by the militia at New Orleans;—while such things are dear to our rude breasts, it ill becomes a national Statesman to talk in this style. I must tell this haughty Englishman, that to him we owe for these regrets and lamentations; that other reasons he alludes to had not been insisted upon, for he may most assuredly rely upon it, that Britain, in negotiating, would not have accepted terms, and articles that, so degrading and humiliating, it would, if possible, have made, that would have extended from one extremity of the United States to the other; all hearts, would have rallied round to a war for an object, and under circumstances, so unjust that would not have terminated, "without a loss to Great Britain of more than [illegible] provinces."

COMMUNICATION.

Mr. Printer,

Much has been said in the public prints relative to the Rules and Regulations of Police, made for the City of Montreal. The public and the generality of the Magistrates themselves, have, no doubt, felt not a little disturbed in their formal & comfort spirits of the fantastic effects of these Regulations, the time of their validity, &c. Moreover that may be, it is thought something should be said on this last point. Whoever reads this sheet, will instantly discover that neither envious nor malignity actuates me in this discussion. If I speak, wound the feelings of certain individuals by the reflections which must evidently arise from the facts which I shall recite, they have only themselves to blame; and the bitterness of the reflections which the following pieces will, inevitably produce, must be attributed to that inordinate greed of power which characterizes our present Magistracy.

Rules and Regulations of Police were published as made on the nineteenth day of April last, when there was no Court of General Quarter Sessions held, nor could there be any by law. Attached to these Rules and Regulations of Police, is copy of a Judgment of the tenth June, taken from the Registers of the Court of King's Bench, approving in express terms, Regulations made on the nineteenth of April. It may not be improper here to remark, that this Judgment of the Court of King's Bench, stands alone, and that the Rules and regulations of Police to which it refers, are not registered in that Court; that, according to principles of jurisprudence, and the interpretation of the laws, and even according to the dictates of common sense; to draw conclusions, you must take words or expressions for what they are. It is almost unnecessary to add, that we cannot interpret them in a sense different from that in which they are found to be written, nor to give them an inverse meaning.

Now let us see how these important documents have been acted upon.—The Auctioneers have been prosecuted for contravening these Regulations. The exceptions made to the actions were, that there were no Regulations of Police, or that there were none obligatory, which was the same thing:—That supposing the existence of these Regulations of Police, they appeared to have been made on the nineteenth day of April, at a time, or in a Court, where they could not be legally made, and consequently were not valid:—That if it could be said they were not made on the nineteenth of April, but that they were made at another time and in another Court; for instance, on the thirtieth day of April, during the sitting of the Court of General Quarter Sessions, they were never published as having been made in the Court of General Quarter Sessions, or in a Court wherein they could be legally established; and that their publication being essentially necessary to render them efficacious, and to insure their validity, the publication of them with their original defects, became a nullity and without effect. That besides they required another essential condition to render them valid; they were not approved by the Court of King's Bench—and that the judgment taken from the Registers of that Court approving Regulations of Police made on the nineteenth of April, could not serve to approve and confirm Regulations made at any other time and in another Court:—Finally, that supposing a perfect regularity in the previous proceedings, which did not exist, the publication of the Rules being irregular, they could not be supported in a Court of Justice; because the conditions which the law established as necessary to their legality, not having been fulfilled, the citizens of Montreal could not be subjected to the penalties imposed by these Regulations. I could give other reasons equally strong, why these Rules cannot be carried into execution. There are some of a very serious nature; but it is not here necessary to mention them. They are reserved for another occasion. The Lawyer who conducted the prosecutions produced, in opposition to the exceptions, a manuscript copy of the Judgment of the Court of King's Bench of the tenth of June, which was attached to a printed copy of the Regulations of Police. According to this Judgment of the tenth of June, the Regulations of Police made on the thirtieth day of April, were formerly approved and confirmed. But this copy was totally different from that which was published, and to which the Judgment of the Court of King's Bench approving Regulations made on the nineteenth, was affixed. Witnesses were brought up by the defendants to prove that the manuscript copy of the Judgment, produced in Court, had been subsequently altered, and that since the printing of these Regulations and of the copy of the Judgment, the word nineteenth, which was the subject of contest, had been erased or scratched, and the word thirtieth substituted. This alteration was so evident, as to leave no room for doubt on the subject. Besides the defendants produced the Regulations of Police as published along with a copy of the Judgment of the Court of King's Bench, approving Regulations made on the nineteenth and not on the thirtieth of April. They did even more; they produced an authentic copy of that Judgment, taken from the Registers of the Court of King's Bench, which was sufficient to remove all doubts. This Judgment approved Regulations of Police made on the nineteenth, and not those of the thirtieth of April.

It will be asked, no doubt, who could have been guilty of making the least alteration in the copy of a Judgment of the Court of King's Bench?

Every man who has the least regard or respect for the documents which tend to establish the proceedings of a Court of Justice, must also ask, who could have been guilty of so heinous an offence?

The Judges themselves, whenever they have exercised the power vested in them by their appointments, and when the acts springing from their authority are consigned to their registers, and when solemn documents establish them, the Judges themselves, cannot make the least alteration in them, without committing a crime. How individuals or public men, could in this country, lay, it might be said, sacrilegious hands on such documents, and erase, alter, change or mutilate them with impunity, is incomprehensible. What opinion would be formed elsewhere of the administration of Justice in this country, if it were known, that not only such an alteration was made in the copy of a Judgment taken from the Registers of a Court of King's Bench, without exciting the least indignation in another court, but that that very court knowingly made such a mutilated instrument serve as a basis for its decisions?

It will doubtless appear very extraordinary after such proceedings, that the documents could have been continued under these very Regulations of Police, which, supposing they had been made in a court having the power to do so, were never approved of; and even if they had been approved of, were not published as having been made in a Court having Jurisdiction, nor, as having had the approbation necessary to make them legal and consequently oblige the citizens to obey them. I shall say nothing of the inductions which were attempted to be drawn from the erratum published in your paper, after the publication of these Regulations. The principles on which these were supported do not appear worthy of refutation; and it would render one ridiculous to take the trouble to discuss them; besides the principal difficulty would remain; there is no judgment of the Court of King's Bench approving Regulations of Police made on the thirtieth of April, and this erratum is but a fresh error added to another under a pretext of correcting it.

I do not think it necessary either to expose an attempt on the part of the counsel who conducted these prosecutions to prove by witnesses that there were Regulations of Police made on the thirtieth day of April, and that it was those very Regulations which were presented to the Judges of the Court of King's Bench, as having been made on the nineteenth. I owe it to the honor of the Magistrates before whom these causes were carried, to say that they refused to admit such spurious proof.

But it will be asked, in conclusion, why were the defendants condemned? It would not have been done but under the supposition of the legality of Regulations which were never approved of, nor published; or, supposing them legally made, were never approved of or published in the manner prescribed by the act under which they were made—which is tantamount to their non existence. In fact, they have been condemned under Regulations of Police, wanting in the most essential conditions required by law to make them valid.

Another reflection arises from this statement.—If those who conducted this measure, either openly, or behind the curtain, and who must shew, and still pretend, that these Regulations are in force in spite of these essential failings, why did they think it necessary to alter the Copy of the Judgment of the Court of King's Bench, to prove, or to furnish an appearance of proof, that the Judgment in question approved Regulations of the thirtieth of April? We must naturally believe that those who committed this fault, were ignorant of it by some important considerations, and that the motives for being guilty of this imprudent act, which the loss of it, were to correct an error, which they observed was fatal to these Regulations.

If that proof were unnecessary, why have made it an object of the publication of an erratum in the newspapers wherein these Regulations were published, with the Judgment approving the Regulations of the nineteenth?

Will it be said that there was no necessity of adopting these more than astonishing measures—that they were adopted without any direct or real object? It would be too palpable an absurdity to attempt to comment on this point.

But there is another fact still more extraordinary.—These Rules and Regulations of Police, have lately been printed in the shape of a pamphlet, and it is said in the title page, by authority. The whole copy of the Judgment of the Court of King's Bench is contained in this pamphlet, and instead of the word nineteenth, which is found in the Registers of that Court, and in the authenticated copies produced before the Magistrates in the actions against the Auctioneers, the word thirtieth is there substituted, as if to persuade the public that there was a Judgment of the Court of King's Bench, approving Regulations of the thirtieth, when there is not a Judgment in existence.—Was this alteration also made by authority!!!

We cannot suppose this to be a premeditated trick. It would be insulting the authors of this publication: besides the artifice is too shallow to attribute it to design. I leave to others to solve this strange problem.

Not to leave any doubt on this important subject, I think it necessary to lay before the public, the copy of the Judgment of the Court of King's Bench, which I have already cited; it runs thus

REGULATIONS OF POLICE.

The Court having taken into consideration the Regulations of Police made in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace holden at Montreal, on the Nineteenth day of April last, do approve the same. By the Court.

(Signed) RIED, LEVESQUE, & MONK.
P. K. B.

I will now suppose, for an instant, that this document is submitted to a Lawyer, with Regulations made and passed on the thirtieth of April, to have his opinion on this question; whether a Judgment approving Rules and Regulations of the nineteenth, contains an approbation of Rules and Regulations of the thirtieth?—What man but—who must say, that there is no relation whatever between those two documents. Supposing then that these documents were produced to support an action before two Magistrates, unacquainted with all these proceedings. Can we suppose that these magistrates would pronounce a Judgment of condemnation on an action supported by such contradictory documents? No! no Court of Justice, that has any respect whatever for its decisions, would condemn upon such proof.

I would ask further, what man unactuated by the prejudices which these discussions have naturally given rise to, and in which such a lively interest has been manifested, can persuade himself that a Judgment approving Regulations of the nineteenth of April of the present year, do in reality approve Regulations made on the thirtieth. Would not it be as fair to say, that this Judgment approves Regulations which may be made in the next century, and that the magistrates who may sit at that time shall be obliged to judge in consequence?

The Magistrates before whom these important points have been discussed, ought to have considered themselves in all respects, as entire strangers to the preceding, or relative to these Regulations of Police. They ought not to have been influenced by any personal knowledge of facts which occurred out of their Court. They ought to have judged according to the sense, and meaning of the documents laid before them.

But why fatigue the public with a display of principles so self evident. Might I not be supposed to doubt of the understanding of my fellow citizens?

NEW YORK, October 6

Latest from England—By the arrival yesterday of the ship Independence, Capt Thomas, in 20 days from Greenock, we have Glasgow dates to the 23d, and London to the 20th of August, both inclusive.

Parliament, it is said, was to be further prorogued from the 25th of August to the 3d Nov.

Glasgow, Aug 23—The weather has for some days had the sharpness and clearness that are so delightful in Autumn. The luxurious crop is consequently ripening at an accelerated rate; and if there occurs no adverse alteration in the atmosphere, wheat in various places in the neighborhood of Glasgow will be reaped before the lapse of two weeks.

London, Aug 16—Letters were received this morning from Gibraltar dated the 24th July. The Spanish commandant had sent official notice into the fort, that all intercourse with Gibraltar was for the present prohibited by land and sea, as the effects of the plague now raging at Algiers and on the African coast, which is greatly decaded.

It is supposed there are at least 200 sail of merchant vessels on the east coast which cannot get into port in consequence of the prevalence of westerly wind for the last two months! a great proportion are reported to be laden with grain.

New oats were exhibited yesterday in Mark Lane. They were of an uncommonly fine quality.

The Duke of Wellington is expected at Paris on the 18th. Sanguine hopes were entertained at Paris, that the reorganization now on foot would result in the further reduction of the army of occupation.

At the Cheshire wool fair, a report had been made by the chairman, which stated, that pressing orders for woollen and worsted manufactures, had been received from Russia and many parts of the continent, and business had again revived extensively for America.

Yesterday the first stone of a naval pillar, to commemorate the victories of the immortal Nelson, was laid on Yarmouth Denes.

From the London Gazette, July 26.

This Gazette notifies, that the Duke of Northumberland has taken the oaths on his appointment as Lord Lieutenant of that County; that the Prince Regent has conferred the honor of Knighthood on W. H. Robinson, Commissary General in Canada; and permitted the 34th Foot to bear on their colours and appointments the word "Vittoria." It also contains the proceedings of the Chapter held for electing Lord Bathurst a Knight of the Garter.

A Bill has passed both Houses of Parliament, which removes the principal obstacle to the entry of the Roman Catholics in the Army and Navy. By this bill they are relieved from the necessity of taking the oaths, or subscribing to the declarations which were before an impediment to their advance, and thus situations of the highest rank are now open to them in the naval and military professions.

In the Times of this morning there is a long letter from a private correspondent, of which the following are extracts:—Courier.

"Paris, Aug. 11.—For some time there has been a great deal of conversation respecting a treaty concluded between the Courts of St. Petersburgh and Madrid, but of a very vague nature. Letters, however, from Vienna, dated July 26, are more particular, and in detail. It is confidently asserted there, that the Courts of St. Petersburgh and Madrid signed a treaty of alliance on the 7th May, by virtue of which Russia will furnish Spain with a squadron of five ships of the line, four frigates, and 16,000 troops, in order to reduce to submission the Spanish colonies in South America. On her part Spain will cede to Russia the Island of Minorca and the two Californias. It is added, that the squadron and the transports are all ready in the ports of Sebastopol, in Crimea, but that the Ottoman Port refuses to allow their passage through the Bosphorus, in spite of the pressing importunities of Count Stroganoff, ambassador of Russia to Constantinople.

"The negotiations at Carlsbad will commence immediately. The Congress will be composed of the following persons:—For England, Mr. Lamb; for Russia, the Count Capo d'Istria; for Austria, Prince Metternich; for Prussia, Prince Hardenberg; and for France, the Count de Caraman.—The principal objects which will occupy this Congress, will be the revolted colonies in America, and the disputes between Portugal and Spain, with which the ministers of the great powers at Paris are already occupied. The question of the diminution of the army of occupation in France will also be agitated at Carlsbad. It appears that some of the powers, and in first desired that the Congress should be held at Aix-la-Chapelle. The departure of Prince Metternich for Carlsbad is considered as very near. The last letters from Germany announce the arrival at Carlsbad, of the Count Capo d'Istria, as well as the young English diplomatist, Mr. Lamb. The same letters say, that should Prince Metternich delay to arrive at Carlsbad, and Prince Hardenberg should be obliged to set off before the arrival of the Austrian minister, for the purpose of attending his sovereign in the provinces of the Rhine, then M. de Bernstorff, minister of Prussia at Vienna, will then replace M. de Hardenberg. Count de Caraman did not leave Paris for Carlsbad till the 6th instant."

Lexington, Aug 16—Yesterday afternoon, we learn of the name of Benjamin Wood of the ship Mary Ann, bound to New York, with about 60 passengers and took into his boat about 20 passengers, whom he landed at Yarmouth, where they remained some time. And then returned into the boat, to proceed on board their ship; but owing to a strong wind and tide, the boat had gone under the bows of the ship and upset, whereby 11 persons, including the boat-man, were unfortunately drowned. Some of the passengers are, in consequence of this accident, about to relinquish the voyage.

PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE.

Royal Exchange, London, Wednesday Evening, Aug [illegible]

The reports of a Congress at Carlsbad and rumours of protocols and conferences between Great Britain, Russia and Spain are no longer listened to with attention. The contradictions given to them by government, through the medium of the ministerial papers and the friends of government, have succeeded in rooting them altogether at rest, but notwithstanding the pledges of government on the occasion, the funds fail to regain the confidence they lately possessed prior to the numbers in question being in circulation.—The funds declined yesterday (the 27th inst) and approached, which has continued to make against the rise.

LATEST FROM FRANCE.

By the Ship Rubicon, captain Holdridge from Havre-de Grace, we received papers to the 23d of August, from which we have selected the following article.

Translated for the New-York Daily Advertiser.

VIENNA, 9th Aug.

News from the Levant has caused here the greatest sensation. News of the violent death of the famous partizan Czerny Georges, formerly chief of the Servian insurrection against the Ottoman Port. This extraordinary man was a native of Albania, had served in the Austrian army a subaltern, by his family name of Petro-Petrovitch. His personal bravery had raised him to be chief of a warlike canton. He left his seat at Kanowa, a small town in Bosnia, to go to Belgrade for the final arrangement of the frontiers of his dominions. The commandant of this city who had spies upon all his actions, caused him to be arrested and tried. He was found guilty of treason to the Turkish government, decapitated, and his head sent to Constantinople, with those of two of his principal adherents. We are informed that strong fermentations exists in Servia; the tragical death of Georges cannot but augment it.

PARIS, Aug. 21.

Great preparations are making at the Hotel of Lord Wellington for a dinner to the Count De Beppin. [King of Prussia.]

The Marquis de Croix Mare home under the Regency, lately died at Fiennon, in the department D'Auxerre-Loire just as he was entering his hundreth year.

A Convention consisting of M. Le Count Capo-D'Istria, M. Lamb, M. Le Count De Caraman, the Prince of Metternich, and the Prince of Hardenburgh will soon take place at Carlsbad. It is believed that these diplomatic personages will occupy themselves with the Spanish Colonies, and with the discussions between Spain and Portugal. All the powers appear animated with desire of maintaining a general peace.

PROCLAMATION.

Fernandina, Sept. 20

The Inhabitants of the Island of Amelia are informed, that to-morrow the Mexican flag will be hoisted in the Fort, with the usual formalities, they are invited to return as soon as possible to their houses, or send persons of their confidence to take possession of the property existing in the houses, which are held sacred.

Proclamations for the organization of the place will immediately be issued.

Signed, AURY Commander-in-Chief.

COMMERCIAL IMPORTANCE.

Extract of a letter from St. Mary's dated the 20th inst.

"The Spanish forts have at last appeared once more on America, at which place they disappeared a few days ago—the flag of the Patriots is again in view for them. I am afraid, the Province is gone for ever from the Spaniards.

Commodore Aury arrived on the 17th inst with a ship and brig, (prizes) loaded with sugar and coffee. Another ship has just arrived said to be loaded with dry goods, wines &c.—A great deal of property, sugar, &c. had arrived here from Amelia, and been entered. There were some goods brought here by ship and boat in charge."

The Montreal Herald.

SATURDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 18, 1817.

Yesterday's Mail from the United States brought New York papers of the 10th inst. They give us advices from London and Paris to the 20th August inclusive; from these heads, some extracts are presented in our columns. The most prominent article in a political view, is the report of a general Congress to be held at Carlsbad (Germany) respecting the affairs of Spain in South America, in which, Russia it is said, will be an important actor. Some of the London Journals assert, that the Congress will assemble speedily; others affirm, that such a meeting was never contemplated; but the Paris papers speak pretty confidently of its meeting soon.

It is said that the Russian armament for America is now fitting in the harbor of Sebastopol in the Crimea, and is to consist of five ships of the line, four frigates and transports for 16,000 men; but it is reported that the Turks will not permit this force to pass the Bosphorus. In the mean time accounts from Madrid state, that 11,000 picked men were to proceed from Spain for Buenos Ayres; the shipping to convey them is to be furnished by the French government.

The Imperial Parliament was prorogued to the 3d of November.

The crops were very productive all over England and Scotland; in the latter, the harvest had commenced under the most favorable auspices. The prices of Corn had fallen wonderfully all over Britain, and manufactures were reviving rapidly in every quarter. We hear of no riots, no new plots, and no issues of "Lettres de Cachets," which had been so in quest some months before. Now that the price of food is come to a moderate standard, and employment becoming more general, the people will be quiet, as they always would have been, if indeed it never was the people that deserved blame, it was the artful demagogues who fanned the flame of discontent, that merited chastisement for their wicked deeds.

The chief of the American army, at Amelia-Island, has been issuing like McGregor, proclamations and decrees. The Spaniards had indicated a second attack on Fernandina but again retreated. Fernandina, is we believe, the chief village on this sandy island, near which is situated the patriotic or American fort.—There has been lately much rumour of a pending negociation between the courts of Madrid and Washington, respecting the Floridas; and that Spain is to deliver them up to the United States as an indemnification for the spoliations committed under Bonaparte's decrees at Berlin and Milan. Who knows whether this armament from the United States against the Spaniards was connived at by the government to throw weight in the American scale of negotiation? The Spanish minister may complain, he may protest against this outrage on the law of nations; but the American government can say, we know nothing of the matter, the bandits are not within our jurisdiction, we have no control over them —you may treat them as you please, if fortune should place them in your power. Upon the whole, their appears little doubt of Spain being swindled of the Floridas. To the United States they will be valuable. Pensacola is as fine a harbor as can be found in America; the adjoining country abounds in the finest live Oak and other valuable ship timber, so that this noble harbor will be rendered the first naval arsenal in the United States; which in the event of a war with Spain, Britain, or France, the commerce of those nations in the West Indian Seas would be laid open to the depredations of a most active enemy. And besides this, they could in a few days land whole batallions of troops on any of the islands, and on the spots where they could levy the heaviest contributions.

THUNDER STORM.

Between the hours of one and two o'clock on Monday morning, we had a violent storm of thunder accompanied with uncommonly vivid flashes of lightning. The wind was also violent, and a torrent of rain fell with hail larger than marbles. We have not heard that any great damage has been sustained by the storm. Our readers will observe, that a similar visitation was experienced at nearly the same time in Quebec.

On Wednesday morning the Steam Boat LAUZON, of Quebec, arrived in this port. From the length of time she took in getting through the current, it may be inferred, that her Machinery has less power than the Montreal Boats, or that it is not yet got into proper trim. The latter is very probable.

In the last Herald, we copied from the Montreal Gazette" a list of persons fined for alleged infractions of the Police Regulations. This "CONVICTION" list, we had not time to notice, further than to mark it for insertion as a local article of information. The list, however, on being read in distant places may cause people to form strange opinions of the Auctioneers in this City. They may be led to imagine that instead of being men of credit and respectability, they are a contumacious and lawless, set defying all legal authority. These would be very false conclusions and ought to be prevented; for it is certain, that they are the very reverse in their transactions. The matter of fact is, that they have considered themselves prosecuted most injustly, and not according to the forms of law, and all of them contained in the list alluded to have appealed their causes to the Court of Kings Bench, where probably different decisions may be given.

THE BEAUTIFUL ALBINESS.

The Female known in England and upon the Continent of Europe by this appellation, has lately arrived in Montreal, and intends to visit the United States. The name of the subject of this article is Harvey; and she was born of English parents at a town in Essex within 40 miles of London. They had six children, three of whom inherited the same dark complexion with themselves, and three, including the Albiness, were of the same extraordinary appearance. Her hair is most wonderful, it resembles the appearance of the finest silk. It has a beautiful glossy texture; and she preserves its beauty by frequently immersing it in warm water, and never uses neither a comb or brush. Her eyes are apparently in a state of continual motion, over which she has no controul. Their colour varies with the position of the light, but are chiefly of a soft Indian pink, or a compound of rose colour and blue. Her countenance is animated and pleasing. Her manners and constitution are well bred and accomplished, and her demeanour distinguished by modesty and feminine dignity, and she is said to sing with taste.*

 A lock of it has been brought by Mr. Peale from England some years ago, and is now in his Museum at Philadelphia.*

COMMUNICATION.

"Extract of a letter from Drummond-Island," dated in May last.

"Our town has started up from its primeval wilderness with astonishing rapidity, and is already a handsome settlement. Its situation, even in this frigid season is striking, but in the summer, singularly beautiful and picturesque. When the proposed improvements of this year are carried into effect, it will vie with most in the upper Province. The dull monotony of St Josephs, forms a strong contrast to the lively cheerfulness of Drummond's Island. It possesses a noble harbour; and in fact every advantage that would rapidly advance it to wealth and prosperity. The recent commercial treaty with the Americans, may however retard its progress. Those ministers who evinced such firmness and magnanimity in saving Europe, seem to lose all political sagacity when they come in contact with the wary Jonathan. The Indians, notwithstanding their fidelity and gallant behaviour in the war, are voluntarily renouncing our reiterated assurances, that we held them fast by the hand, and would never abandon them, are forgotten. They too credulously believed, that if honour and good faith were too be found on earth, they were enthroned in the bosom of their English father, and so they would have found them, had he been conscious of what had been promised in his name! They are now given up, and either doomed to a gradual extermination, or to be driven from their sole remaining lands by their implacable enemies. The Poet finely describes their probable destiny."

"So the bold Sauks, by famed Mississippi tide,
Nursed hardy on the brindled Panther's hide,
As fades their swarthy race, with anguish see,
The Yankey Cottages among their trees;
Drawn from the shelter of their native wood,
They leave the murmur of their much loved flood,
And northward rushing in indignant grief,
Where never foot has trod the fallen leaf,
They bend their course, when twilight reigns sublime
O'er forests silent since the birth of time!"

Why so fast to bed each night
Ere the sun withdraws his light,
Willing to supply the place of day
The waxen taper [illegible]

Why at morn with woeful face,
He at breakfast takes his place,
With visage pale and sunken eyes,
And trembling hands which vainly try,
The savoury vapour to clear
To mourn, [illegible] pitiful tale?
Why his belting sank into his

Send the shivering boy from home
To his Uncle let him bid,
Or he will most surely die.
To you whose ruddy cheek and smile,
Show that you feel not the sweet toil:
Should nights seem long and pulse beat high
Another Lover you may try,

And sigh'd alas! but sigh'd in vain.—

ST. PETER'S CHURCH IN ROME.

MR. GRAY,

Notwithstanding the stupendous achievements of the ancient Greeks and Romans in Architecture, it is doubtful whether the old world could have produced a single edifice to be put in competition with the modern Church of St. Peter's in Rome. For such of your readers as have a taste for Architecture and delight in parallels of this nature, I send you the following dimensions of this Metropolitan Church of Catholicity:

	feet
Length of the Portico,	219
Breadth of ditto,	40
Length from the entrance to the centre of the Cupola,	160
Length within from Pope Eugenian's Brass Door to the farthest Altar,	594
Breadth of the middle Aisle,	86
Breadth of the cross Aisle,	73
Length of the church to the cross Aisle,	174
Ditto of the cross Aisle,	434
Ditto Ditto with the walls,	490
Whole length of the Church,	722
Whole breadth of Ditto,	291
Height of the Church from the pavement to the roof,	145
Height of the Church from the pavement to the top of the cross,	432
Outward circumference,	3000 palms.

Adjoining St. Peter's Church is the magnificent Palace of the Vatican which contains no less than twelve thousand five hundred and twenty four rooms.

BIRTH—At York, (Upper Canada) on Thursday 25th Sept. the Lady of the Honble and Rev. Dr Strachan, of a Son.

MARRIED.

On Wednesday last, the 8th instant, Mr. JOSEPH ST. ONGE, aged 19 years, to Mrs. Widow EDGE, aged 54 years and 6 months.

On Tuesday last, the 14th instant, H. HENRY Esquire, Attorney at Law, to Miss FOUCHER, only daughter of the Honorable L. C. Foucher, one of the Judges of this District.

On Thursday last, by the Revd. Mr. Jenkins, CHARLES EDWARD MORE, Esqr. Deputy Asst. Commissary Genl. to Miss MARY ANGELICA, only daughter of Mrs. Babuty, of this City.

DIED.——At Halifax, on Monday the 15th Sept. in the thirtieth year of his age, Mr. DANIEL McKINNON, of this city, Grocer. Since the beginning of the present year he was attacked with pains and obstructions in the lungs, which at last indicated strong symptoms of a rapid decline. He went to New-York in the summer, thinking that a change of air might prove beneficial; but it appears it had very little effect during his stay on Long Island, whence he went to Halifax.—Mr. McKinnon was much respected by his relatives and friends. He has left a widow and three young children to lament their severe loss.

MARY VORE'S EPITAPH.

Ye maidens old and young, approach,
Glancury's last asylum.
This monumental stone records
The worth of Mary Vore.

Her bright example well may teach,
A lesson of humanity,
For prudence and economy,
Shone forth in Mary Vore.

From youthful bloom till pushing age
Had wrinkled her fair form,
She won the love of every wife,
And all the fostered men.

So well beloved, alas, but less gone,
All, all the anything be,
When round the house she chanced to stray,
With eager haste pursued.

Still thinkful of her bounteous hands
The numbered with the dead,
The aged, child and young, mourn
Bow weep over her mead.

Reader this monument shun,
Nor that she is no more,
And may the tears thou shed
The tomb of Mary Vore.

S. SEWELL.

Montreal, Aug. 30, 1817.

THE subscriber having been in Europe for the purpose of attending to the selection of his DRUGS, &c. begs to inform Professional Gentlemen and Merchants, of his return from thence, with a very ample supply, including every CHEMICAL PREPARATION and DRUG admitted by Modern Practice into the Edinbro' and London Pharmacopoeias.

The purity which his former importations have been known (by Medical Men) to possess, renders it unnecessary to say any thing in commendation of the present.

Those Gentlemen having orders for the Upper Country, and whose intercourse with Medicine has not been sufficient to form a judgment of their qualities, will do well to consider this opportunity of supplying themselves and connexions, as the utmost confidence may be placed in the quality and execution of their orders.

Orders from Country Practitioners will meet with immediate attention, by giving a respectable reference in Town.

N. B.—On hand a very general assortment of the most celebrated PATENT MEDICINES, and a few neat and well constructed portable MEDICINE CHESTS, with directions &c

J. BECKETT.
