CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

CATARRH

cannot be cured by snuffs, washes or local applications. It is a weakness of the constitution, developing itself in the nasal organs first, afterwards extending to the throat and lungs, and but generally in Consumption, if not checked by proper remedies. Pains in head, back, loins and weakness of kidneys are its attendant diseases. How people have Catarrh than any other disease. It is easily cured. Thousands of cases, some of many years' standing, have been entirely cured in New Hampshire and the Dominion the past three years, by the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy. Certificates to back the above, and a treatise on Catarrh sent free on application to T. J. B. Harding, Druggist, &c., Brockville, Ont. Send name on postal card, and it will only cost a cent. INSURANCE.

CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

THE "MINIMUM" system of Assurances has just been adopted by this Company, where, by a partial application of the Profits, rates of premium are charged

Lower than have ever before been offered for Life Assurance.

The following are the rates for Assurances of each $1,000, with profits upon the system referred to:—

AGE.	ANNUAL PREMIUM.	AGE.	ANNUAL PREMIUM.
21	$12 80	39	$23 80
22	13 10	40	24 70
23	13 50	41	25 60

"LOWER than have ever before offered for Life Assurance," is the strangely incorrect announcement of a new "minimum" rate by a Canadian Life Company. The ÆTNA has been issuing Policies on the following VERY MUCH LOWER rates throughout Canada for EIGHT YEARS past. And the ÆTNA Policies are all NON-FORFEITING and CONTESTABLE, while those of the other Company, though costing, on some ages, 20 per cent. more, do not confer these valuable privileges:—

Age.	Premium.	Age.	Premium.	Age.	Premium.
20	$11 09	32	$15 65	44	$24 97
21	11 37	33	16 19	45	26 14
22	11 66	34	16 75	46	27 39
23	11 97	35	17 36	47	28 71
24	12 29	36	18 00	48	30 10
25	12 64	37	18 68	49	31 59
26	13 38	38	19 41	50	33 17

HOW TO MAKE MONEY

Is the object which chiefly occupies our attention, yet few seem to observe the many ways by which they could save sufficient to make themselves rich,—such, for instance, as live in rented houses, pay large sums annually in shape of rent, for which they have nothing left at the end of the year, and is, therefore, a total loss to them. To utilise this great outlay, and with it provide homes for the people, with land sufficient to make them self-sustaining, has ever been the aim and object of the proprietor of Mount Royal Vale, and for this purpose he has set apart one thousand Villa Lots on the best part of his great property, each lot being forty feet front by a depth of one hundred and twenty, which he is selling for four hundred and eighty dollars per lot, payable in instalments equal to one dollar per week, without interest.

The lots north of Central Avenue will still be sold for three hundred dollars in payments equal to 50 cents per week. When one thousand lots are sold he will commence to erect buildings, to be paid for on equally liberal terms, from two dollars per week upwards, according to the cost of the building, which will be nearly one-half less than the city price, as he possesses an unlimited supply of brick, sand and stone with a never-failing supply of the purest water on every part of the property. Purchasers can have as many lots as they require, and build their own houses or hold their land vacant. Many are now arranging to lay out their grounds and plant shade and fruit trees. The soil being of the richest quality, when so planted and properly cultivated, will yield sufficient to sustain family in comfort and respectability. The money now wasted as rent will pay their instalments, and in a few years they will find themselves the proud possessors of a magnificent homestead. Lots that are now sold for a few cents per foot will then be worth ten times that amount. This is no vain exaggeration; it is as plain and as true as that two and two make four. Neglect to purchase those lots will evince a lamentable want of intelligence, a positive dislike to make and save money, where there is not the shadow of a chance to lose.

Young men should bear particularly in mind that an effort to become proprietors is the first great step towards establishing a name and credit—showing that they intend to sow other seeds than wild oats.

The place is fast becoming a very important suburb; omnibuses run to and from the city post office at hours to suit the people by way of Dorchester street to Sherbrooke street toll-gate, thence by Côte St. Antoine and Côte St. Luke Roads, entering the Vale nearly opposite Monklands or Villa Maria. After the first of May next passes will be issued for fifty cents per week for one round trip daily.

The lots are free from all encumbrance. The title deeds and registry searches will be submitted to purchaser's attorney, and other information from Mr. T. F. O'Brien, at 532 St. Mary street, every morning at 9 o'clock, and at Mount Royal Vale at 2 o'clock p.m.

On Saturday, the 23rd inst., the balance of the above lots will be sold by auction, without reserve, at 2 o'clock p.m., by John J. Arnton, on the grounds. 210

It is well for the farmers that the cold, wet weather with which we have been favored for the last few days has kept off till the crops have been so fully garnered. In several districts of Ontario, however, the frost has done a great deal of injury to the late sown spring grain, so much so, in one or two counties, that the fields are said to be not worth harvesting. All root crops for winter feed, in the neighborhood of Hampden, owing to the continuous drouth, are reported to be a complete failure; this, together with the failure of the wheat crop, makes the prospect look rather dark to the farming community of that district. In some parts the farmers are busily engaged in sowing fall wheat, the Seneca variety being much used. In the county of Victoria farmers are busily engaged in threshing; it is thought fall wheat will be nearly a complete failure, spring wheat not so bad, as the majority of farmers will be able to realize fully half a crop. Oats and peas are considerably above the average. Bush fires are doing an immense amount of damage, destroying valuable woodlands, burning fences, and running over stubble and meadow lands. In the United States, also, hundreds of acres of valuable timber, hay and grain are being destroyed. Wheat all over this country is still spoken of as below the average, and root crops in some places are found to be a complete failure, in none above the average. Oats and peas are a fair crop and will amount on the average to from 25 to 30 bushels per acre.

The business of moving the grain crop has just begun. The first cargo of barley shipped from

THE SMALL-POX SCOURGE. — Since the publication of Dr. Finnie's letter on the small-pox scourge, and our article accompanying it, we have received a large number of communications, but we do not think it necessary to publish more than the one which appears to-day. It is sufficiently indicative of the state of public feeling, and we are certain that the interest it discovers is very largely shared in by the community. We can only reiterate our appeal for immediate and earnest action. It is all very well for a number of gentlemen, convened by the Mayor to assemble, lock themselves in, and pass a resolution. The resolution may express most most wholesome sentiments, but of what effect is it? None whatever. The Health Department ought surely to recognise by this time that the day for platitudinarianism is past, and that action alone can arrest a progress of a scourge that is nothing short of appalling.

We are speaking earnestly, not alarmingly. The danger is great, and will not be diminished by the authorities and the public, ostrich-like, burying their heads, and refusing to recognize the terrible facts of the situation. It is all very well to say that the exposure of the truth about the existence of small-pox in Montreal will affect the trade of the city. How much more will trade be affected if the disease be permitted to spread illimitably for want of the application of the proper precautions and safe-guards? We say that the Corporation, in the face of the existence of the epidemic and its spread by the recklessness and ignorance of that class of the population among whom it is most rife, and who are being constantly misled on the subject of vaccination, are placed in possession of a more solemn trust than ever, in guarding the commerce and prosperity of the city from the consequences of disease. It becomes their duty to endeavor by every means known to medical science to stamp this disease out, and no fear of the consequences should deter them from its performance, which they owe to the city, to the country at large, which depends upon the city for supplies, and to themselves. We call upon the Mayor to head the movement. He was elected as a sanitary reformer. When small-pox called for checking, two years ago, he was hailed as a deliverer. After two years of office the terrible fact has to be recorded that the disease is as rife, and in as fatal form as ever it was.

The Public Health Association has its work before it now, that is if the body exists in any potentiality. Will the President endeavor to stir up the dry bones of the organization, so that the exigencies of the situation may be intelligently considered, and the work of the Corporation supplemented by the action of competent and public-spirited citizens. If ever there was a time when the existence of such an organization was desirable, it is the present.

Since the above was written we learn that the Mayor has been very actively working, endeavoring to awaken interest among the educated and influential classes. He has given much time and labor, but he requires to be supported, and he asks for assistance from the medical profession and the clergy of the city. We bespeak for him the assistance he requires. His hands should be strengthened by all who have the interests of the city, and the health of the masses at heart.

"THE MINISTRY OF WEALTH."

HENRY WARD BEECHER'S LECTURE AT THE VICTORIA RINK.

Over four thousand persons paid their fifty or seventy-five cents last night to hear the pastor of Plymouth Church lecture on the "Ministry of Wealth," and went away apparently well pleased with their investment. Of this vast and refined assemblage, one-half, at least, were of the gentler sex. Mr. Beecher, who seemed to be in excellent spirits, entered upon the business of the evening without any other preliminary than an introduction to the audience by Alderman Nelson, who was the only person on the platform besides the lecturer. He said:

It affords me the greatest pleasure in being brought face to face with so many who are, in a large sense, my fellow citizens. (Murmur of applause.) The political lives that divide us are no more than partitions which divide a house, rather for comfort than for separation (applause). We are of the same house hold, and belong to the same European stock. However much we may differ in our notions of political principles or political economy, our sense of honesty, of justice and of honor is the same on both sides of the imaginary line which divides us (applause). There was a time when I thought it would be better if you could be united to us politically; but I have lived to see that it is better as it is (cheers)—not that you would be unwelcome, but it seems to me that Providence has appointed a nobler work to be done than if you were part of that nation which is large enough to occupy the field. I have made successive visits to this large city, and I have noticed the advance it has made in the accumulation of wealth, the beautiful buildings erected, and the stately edifices that adorn your streets; and it seems to me that no subject can be more fit to speak upon to-night than the value of property (applause and laughter). Property is the source of wealth, and wealth leads to the development of a higher civilization. The science of wealth treats of the production of wealth, of its distribution, and of the laws which regulate the one and the other. I have heard it said by moralists that poverty is better than riches, that riches currupt, that we are in life merely to pass through it and to reach another sphere in which we are to have another development; and I acquiesce in this view, but not in its inferences. I believe this life is but a preparation for what is to come; and to prepare us for the life that is to come we must act a living part, for men are not prepared in churches or in colleges for the life to come, but in life (applause.) Believing in instruction, and in moral instruction, as I do, I know there is work for the Church, but men cannot practice in churches! They must go into the busy world to practice. Human society, well organized, is a training ground—schools and churches are the places where instruction is imparted. Training gives ideas; training gives life; and yet there are many among moralists who are called spiritual Christians. There is a cursory and ill-defined notion that while Providence tolerates riches, men may make a compromise with their consciences, and you hardly see how a rich man shall enter the Kingdom of God—"The love of money is the root of all evil." It is "buying riches," however, that the Scriptures inveigh against; for God does not forbid the holding of property. All revelations are at agreement that a man may pay too much for wealth; they are not at a disagreement that he should renounce property. Now, what is the value of property? For instance, if a man is hungry or thirsty, he must have food and something to quench his thirst and the first primary of eating and drinking is property (laughter). We have no earthly paradise where eating and drinking may be dispensed with; we are not inhabitants of a country where food is provided by a bounteous nature without exertion on our part; we belong to a country more rigorous—a country where a man, if he would eat and drink, must work, unless, indeed, he wishes to slake his thirst at a well (laughter). Whatever may have been the condition of our parents in the Garden of Eden as to raiment, we cannot go without clothing, for the necessity of warmth is as great as the necessity of food. Such being the case, somebody must work and create property. We cannot take shelter in caves or hollow trees; we must have dwellings, and to build dwellings somebody must prepare the lumber, make nails, blow the glass for windows, and somebody must put the house together. But to do this work the workers must be fed and clothed, which costs a great deal of money, even to put up a cottage, and much more to build and adorn the dwellings of the rich. But when you are in your dwellings there must be many chambers, for the eye is as hungry as the mouth, and God that made the heavens over our heads thought of and saw the necessity of building. But we cannot deprive our eyes of the beauties of nature, therefore we have our country house as well as our comfortable home; neither is our food or drink unpalatable. All these things are expensive, as you will find by the time you have brought up all your children, and the comforts of life are necessary when you are bringing up children. It is wealth that creates food, that builds these homes, that creates love. It is wealth that adorns that home where father and mother and affection dwells, and can you go through all these processes and have no property? There is in all this a necessity for the creation of wealth. Moreover, I do not believe there is a community that could emerge from barbarism to civilization without property. Now, I hear a great deal said about poverty, but it is by men who fail to get rich (laughter.) But what kind of poverty do they extol? Wny, give me a comfortable dwelling, with warmth and clothing and food and books; give me an opportunity for literary intercourse, and I will commence to be poor (laughter.) Give me a golden candlestick and I shall not want a golden candle (renewed laughter.) Give me everything I want and I shall be content with this sort of charitable poverty; give me all the advantages of riches and I shall not ask for wealth. The community that in the mass is poor, is either as yet only struggling in the preliminary steps that lead to wealth, or else it is one of abiding poverty. The American mechanic enters upon his career determined to make his fortune, and all that he requires is work. Total depravity means laziness (laughter.) When a man feels hunger, his heart rises and says, "Work!" There are some persons that are born so that they have no need of working—it is doubtful which is more unfortunate, the fungus or such a man (loud laughter and applause.) The most unfortunate of men is the man who is born to affluence (loud laughter and applause.) He gains nothing by being born—he is a cypher. There is a necessity of working—I do not mean drudgery—and when the hand is directed by the brain, as in a skilful mechanic, it looks as if the hand thought. To be sure I will be told, there are the birds—do they work? and yet God feeds them. Ah! the birds! Well, do they not pick worms out of the ground? Yes, and they seem to be always moving about looking for food. God feeds them, but lets them work for it (laughter.) And so God feeds man. Work is universal; that much of it is drudgery and an evil I do not doubt; yet it is, on the whole, a necessity to work. The apostle has said: "Those that will not work shall not eat;" but they do (roars of laughter.) It is necessary to work, but to work intelligently. I don't suppose the ox knows what day of the week it is, or why he is eating or drinking. There is no to-morrow to a dog, an ass or a lion; but to man there is a rational motive, and he works to-day with a kind of prophetic eye to the by and by. Now, in work, there is required an element of sagacity: what to do? why? when and where? and how to do it; a knowledge of men, means and material. The workman is obliged to ponder them, and working develops foresight and sagacity; he is going to the school of the blow-pipe or the hammer, and while he is working for wealth, wealth is flowing back upon him. But without self-denial there can be no success. Self-denial means subordination. When men come together, some must lead and others must follow, and some will be low, others of a medium elevation, and some higher. Self-denial comes not of itself; for no man will deny himself good except for something better (laughter). If a man works he cannot sleep. It would be very pleasant if a man could do nothing and drink (laughter); but luckily for him the manager of his household, and a good many of them manage very stupid men (renewed laughter), will step in here and have something to say, for woman is, like Peter, a great way ahead of the sex, and she will say, "You must not go to this public house." He denies the animal nature that is in him for the intellectual, and by and by, if he lives longer, he will feel spiritual influence. Higher work is based upon the necessity of self-denial—that is, the animal nature must be for ever under subjection to the understanding; but this is not all. I hold that this subjection must be as eternal as the planets, and that success must stand upon those qualities that make a man proof against the common frailties of mankind, and of staunch fidelity to his obligations. A man may for an hour gain something by deceit; but he gains something at a cost which no man can afford. "There is a way that seemeth right unto man," but let me tell you that powers and riches are useless if they are not built upon a superstructure of morality. There cannot exist honesty of feeling between man and man and a determination to bear obligations between man and man; they have gained wealth, but they have nothing to enjoy. A social curse will rest upon their children; he that breeds iniquity breeds vipers and lives as it were in a den. I know that there are men who have succeeded in business, and who have always gratified their licentious appetites and gluttony; but, mark me, it was by these, but in spite of these vices, that they have prospered; it was because they had virtues, notwithstanding their vices, and that they exercised these virtues that they succeeded. Tell me they made money by frauds! I say it was not the craftiness but the honesty that was in them that made the money. Now, in the great commonwealth of industry, what is credit? It is the value of a man's character. A man proposes to build a house, but he has not the means to build withal; he has only a good business reputation. He goes to the lumberman and he says, "Trust me." He says to the hardware merchant, "Trust me;" and to the builder, and plasterer, and painter, "Trust me." They trust him; and why do they trust him? Because he is a man of ability and character, and they trust him because they know he will discharge his obligation. This is character—this is reputation. He gathers his lumber, his laths, and, later on, his paints, and the house is created. It was his character which enabled him to do this, and perhaps to put some two or three thousand dollars to his credit withal. But character should be backed by skill. I might say to a man, "Send me your fishing-rod and I shall return it and bring you a dozen of trout;" but if I have no skill in fishing he might very properly say: "I have no doubt you will bring back my rod but not the fish, because you have not the skill." (Laughter). The basis of credit is character, honor and ability, without which there can be no commerce; without credit society falls apart and becomes a sand-hill (applause). Speak of dishonesty in commerce! It may enable a man to gain an advantage for a day; but to say he will retain it is to say that your valuation of character and credit is at fault. Or do you suppose that human society can be organised as a system of fraud and deceit, and all its great machinery run from day to day without honor, honesty or virtue? Credit exists because men know that man has not ceased to be a trustable animal. Now I am making these observations because it seems to me that young men should understand that, while there does exist deceit and craft in the acquiring of property, yet the fundamental nature of wealth-getting is morality. The man who, by skill and material industry, builds himself an estate, has a right to a certain degree of pride; and while there are men who are lucky, as it is called, the bulk of property is acquired by men who had been looked upon as unfortunate. The men who were successful did not, therefore, proceed by haste, and the man must be content to wait until he has earned what he wishes to possess. The man who is not willing to give a quid pro quo for what he receives is a thief. (Laughter and applause.) It is as if you went into a store, and for a dollar's worth of goods you undertook to get two dollar's worth. One-half of you is honest, perhaps, but the other half is a thief (laughter). You must learn to give an equivalent. There can be no lesson more necessary to young men than that the way to prosperity lies over fundamental virtue. The acquisition of property is conformable to the moral law of God, and the Ten Commandments are a good capital to any young man who wants to start in business (applause). When men have acquired enough property to be independent—of what are they independent? If they have ever so much more than they want, they just have food and clothing. If a man has a talent to acquire and administer property there is no reason why he should not acquire it. It is not necessary to happiness that a man should be very rich. When he has enough wealth to satisfy the animal necessities; when he has amassed enough to remove the fear of want, he may say, "I am prosperous; I can educate my children; why should I go on in this drudgery?" Now a man at forty-five may change his occupation from a rough to an easier one; but building a web and making a little hole, and running in there like a spider—why should he do that? (applause). But then you may go into the country and buy a farm you know nothing about (laughter), and there you may sit, yawning because the nights are so long and the days are so long, and there is nothing to do but to grow fat—this is retiring from business! (Great laughter.) But the man who takes pride in the community in which he lives has something else to do than yawning. Then, in the next place, a man's wealth is to be bestowed upon his household—his household, which is the nearest place to happiness on this side of the gate of heaven—except where the family is like the other gate. (Laughter.) If there is a place where there exists disinterested love and affection, in sickness and death, it is the household. Is there, in fact, one place on earth where there is to be found greater or more constant love? The home is the abode of true earthly happiness; and while virtue may live in a hovel, it also dwells in the palace and shines from the sacredness of home upon mankind. If virtue imposes the necessity of living in a hovel, let her have her way, and let a man believe more in the ultimate reward. And where a man spends money to make his home a beautiful spot, let him be encouraged. I like to see a home filled from floor to ceiling with works of art, with rich and costly furniture, with soft and luxurious carpets, and all that ministers to ease and comfort. I love to see all this—the women walking in heavy silks and the children richly clad; and, if there is one place in the world which a man may make his pride, it is his household. A young man may come into a community without a cent, and see what he has come to; look at the home he has built. I tell you that the homes of this country are more important than its churches, its great institutions of learning, and its legislative halls. (Applause.) But the surplus of wealth should be devoted to the needy. I say this because those who should give it are probably absent (laughter). The taxes which are required for the sustenance of the Government should be paid, and paid readily by all good citizens—because the country in which a man lives deserves his support; but the man who sneaks out of his taxes, why there is no scales small enough to weigh his meanness (laughter). I know you all pay your taxes (roars of laughter). Those who have wealth are responsible how they use it. It is more blessed to give than to receive, and no man knows happiness till he is poor, and no man has practiced benefaction until he has become familiar with it. There are chimes in the belfry which are never rung; fi they vibrate, they sound as if the angels had touched them. (Applause.) But the stingy man never hears them, though others the sounds are a succession of joys, than which heaven has nothing better. (Applause.) Wealth is an element of power to a larger extent than the rich man supposes. Perhaps some of you have exclaimed, "Oh, that I had been an artist, that I could create—like Michael Angelo or Mozart—to sing down through the endless generations!" Well, you may not be able to build yourself, but you have in your hands that which may build more than a thousand architects! There are thousands of undeveloped geniuses that need only benefactors; you may not be able to plead with the tongue of a ready lawyer, but if you have wealth you may have a thousand of them to plead for you (laughter). It is in your power to send to the seminary young men to preach and to sing, and this may be better than if you had gone there yourself; because your tongue would have been but one, and theirs may be a hundred. You have but to employ that wealth for the community and knowing men will do this while they live, and not trust to executors. The speaker, after some further remarks, referred to Mr. Peter Cooper and Mr. A. C. Stewart, of New York, the first of whom had so wisely conferred many blessings on the poor during his own lifetime; while the other, though he had put many schemes of public benefaction in execution personally, had left bequests which were involved in litigation with the rest of his vast estate. Mr. Stweart had begun his work of charity late in life; yet he had done nobly, and his endowment of the college in Tennessee with a million of dollars was an act inspired by the genius of piety. He concluded by predicting that a tide of wealth was setting in that would roll over the two great communities which dwell on both sides of the St. Lawrence; to make good use of this wealth would be a responsibility that would rest upon the young men of both countries.

A vote of thanks was then tendered the lecturer, and the meeting adjourned.

Alfred Rodman, of Brownston, Ind., was lynched on Thursday morning while returning from Jeffersonville. He had threatened to kill several persons, and, having already been guilty of murder, was dealt with as related.

THE CAYUGA MURDERERS.

EXECUTION OF JOHN YOUNG THIS MORNING.

[Via Dominion Line.]

CAYUGA, September 22.
John Young suffered the extreme penalty of the law this morning, at about 7:15. He was accompanied to the scaffold by the Sheriff and County officials, and three clergymen, viz., Rev. Mr. Locke, Episcopal, Cayuga; Rev. Mr. Grassett, Episcopal, Simcoe, and Rev. Mr. Fife, Methodist, Cayuga. After the rope was adjusted by the executioner, and the cap drawn over his face, he was directed to kneel on the drop, and after two of the ministers had engaged in prayer with him, and while repeating the Lord's prayer, at the words, "Deliver us from evil," the executioner took hold of the lever, and the chain attached to the bolt, not being strong enough, broke, and he had to get a sledge hammer to knock the bolt out in order to let the trap door fall. He may thus be said to have died two deaths, a mental one, for it was over five minutes before the executioner could do his work. The drop was about ten feet, and after he fell he did not seem to have any death-struggle. After hanging for thirty minutes, life was pronounced extinct, and the body was cut down and an inquest held before Coroner Drew. A large crowd of people was present, and lined the jail-fence to where the scaffold was built. It was certainly not a strictly private execution, as all the movements could be easily seen from the outside. Mrs. Macdonald was among the number of those present.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

COAL hall stoves, coal cooking ranges, scuttles, &c., &c. L. J. A. Surveyer, 524 Craig street.

REMEMBER the great sale of villa lots at Mount Royal Vale to-morrow afternoon. Lunch at two o'clock sharp.

GARDNER'S QUININE WINE.—The wine usually sold is said to contain only one grain of quinine to the wine-glassful, while that prepared by J. Gardner, chemist, 233 St. James street, contains two grains of quinine in each wine-glassful.

ONE of the most important furniture sales of the season will take place at H. J. Shaw's stores, Craig street, to-morrow morning, including a sample of all the articles in his large stock, comprising a very large assortment of chamber suites, drawing-room suites, dining-room, library, hall and office furniture, walnut and gilt frame mirrors, &c. The furniture is principally of American manufacture, and the sale worthy the attention of parties furnishing. To commence at 10 o'clock.

DIETETIC.—In these times when sickness prevails to such an extent, anything tending to strengthen the human frame, and especially that of infants, must be hailed with satisfaction. Tindale's Family Groats are most strongly recommended by the medical faculty as being highly nutritious and strengthening for children, delicate and dyspeptic persons. It is unlike medicine that gives relief from disease, but leaves injurious effects behind. In this respect it should be largely availed of by families. It can be had from numerous agents, whose names can be seen on reference to advertisement.

— Mr. Hecker will give a grand evening concert on Tuesday, 26th inst., at the Mechanics' Hall, in aid of the sufferers at St. Hyacinthe. A first-class programme will be provided. Mdme. Vincent and several other artists will appear on the occasion.

HOW BOLOGNA SAUSAGE IS MADE.

Yesterday Mr. Moore, Meat Inspector, seized and brought to the Health office 20 lbs. of tainted beef from Messrs. Janvier, Giroux and Alfred Letourneau, butchers, corner of St. Catherine and Sydenham streets. Letourneau told the Inspector that he had intended to send the identical diseased beef to one Cuvignon, pork butcher, Seaton street, to be converted into Bologna sausages. Upon Mr. Moore remarking that the meat was not fit for food, he took up a length of sausage, and cutting it in half, said it was made of the same kind of meat, and was very good. Mr. Moore also made the following seizures:—From J. B. Deslauriers, 739 Ontario street, 75 lbs. of tainted corn beef; from Charles Racicot, 604 St Catherine street, 10 lbs. of meat unfit for food; and from Charles Turcot and Henri Coutu, 319 Logan street, some 50 lbs. of diseased meat. In the last three cases, the Inspector was unable to carry away the confiscated carrion for want of a vehicle. Turcot and Coutu are the same parties from whom Mr. Moore seized an emaciated lamb yesterday. The work done by the Meat Inspectors is of the highest importance to the public health, and the Corporation should lose no more time in providing them with suitable means of carrying away the unwholesome meat which is daily seized in our markets; otherwise the office of Inspector will degenerate into little better than a farce.

MEAT INSPECTION.—With much justice a correspondent draws attention to the absurdly inefficient manner in which the civic regulations concerning meat inspection are carried out. We thoroughly agree with him that the system of confiscating diseased meat, and permitting the butcher who exposes such poisonous food for sale to escape without further punishment, is a farce. In England, where they are accustomed to do things thoroughly, the law visits with fine and imprisonment vendors of meat unfit for human food. Only recently we noted in an English paper the fact of a prominent victualler being sent to prison for six months and fined £100 sterling for having exposed putrid meat for sale. In Montreal he would have suffered the loss of the meat, and even that loss would depend a good deal upon his willingness to recognize the authority of the Meat Inspector. The whole difficulty lies in the unwillingness of the City Council to arm the Inspector with sufficient powers. There is a disinclination to deal rigorously with the butchers, who are numerous and powerful as a body, and thus the citizens suffer. If the Health Association would take this subject up, and agitate for efficient legislative action to overcome the existing evil, we think some good might come of it.

TELEGRAPHIC.

QUEBEC, September 22.

Several horses have arrived from Montreal, to take part in the races next week. Good sport is expected.

Yesterday a lad stealing a ride on a construction train, on the North Shore Railway, fell off and broke his arm.

There are 83 vessels in port to-day. Rates of freight have again advanced, and the market is firm at quotations, with slight prospects of a decline, as the volume and disposition of the fall fleet is now generally known. Quotations are: London, 75s for deals; Liverpool, 30s for timber; Greenock, 29s for timber; Glasgow, 82s for deals; Dublin, 30s 6d for timber, 80 for deals. River freights—From Quebec to Toronto—Salt, 15c per sack; coals, $1.75 per ton. To Kingston—Salt, 12c per sack; coals, $1.50 per ton. To Montreal—Salt, 7½c per sack; coals, 90c per ton; sawn lumber per 1,000 feet, board measure, $1.

Salt—No arrivals.

Coal—Scotch steam has been selling at $4 to $4.75, and English at $3.75 to $4 per chaldron of 1½ tons.

Fire Bricks—Retailing ex wharf at $26 to $28 per 1,000.

CITY NEWS.

— Rev. G. Yorke Pope preaching at the Inspector street Church.

— The St. Helen's Island ferry boat will cease running next Sunday. Its contract expired on the 20th instant.

— Can nothing be done to suppress the circulation of an indecent illustrated "extra" of a saloon-keeper, sold on the street.

— We have been requested by many of our fellow-citizens to acknowledge the favor conferred upon them by Mr. Palmer, of the Post Office here, for the accuracy and attention which he bestowed upon their correspondence, in forwarding it when they were out of town during the summer on their holidays.

— J. B. Latraille, 18, shoemaker, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Riche and Fahey on a charge of having, along with a man called Richard, on the 27th of July last, broke into Mr. Dragon's premises, St. Lawrence Main street, and stealing several suits of clothes therefrom. Trial fixed for Monday next.

— The following is a list of those who have entered for the type-setting competition-to morrow afternoon:—Messrs. John T. Wardley, A. Filiatreault, Jas. Williams, Alex. Allen, Dan. McMullin and Samuel L. Kydd, of the Gazette; George Birnie, Thomas Gilman, Wm. Hibbins, Wm. Logan and Alex. Walker, of the Herald; Wm. S. Humphreys and David Taylor, of the STAR; John Lynch, Isaac Glennon and A. Barrette, of the Witness; Alphonse Mondon and Alfred Clement, of La Minerve; Alfred Sabourin, of Nouveau Monde; and Thomas Alty, of T. Larkin, book and job printer.

AN IMPORTANT LAW SUIT.—Mr. Octave Chavigny de la Chevratiere has entered an action to-day in the Superior Court, against the City of Montreal, for the recovery of $537,728.79, the estimated value of Jacques Cartier Square. Mr. Lacoste, attorney for plaintiff.

BURGLARY.—Thomas Keating was arrested to-day by High Constable Bissonnette on a charge of burglary. He is accused of breaking into the dwelling of Mr. Roger Dandurand on the night of the 14th inst. He was brought before the Police Magistrate to-day and remanded.

CHARGE OF FORGERY.—Yesterday criminal proceeding were commenced against Mr. John O'Brien, boot and shoe merchant, St. Joseph street, by Mr. John Goodenough, but as complainant has neither completed nor signed his depositions, we do not feel warranted in alluding further to what is at present a mere ex parte charge, for which no one is responsible.

THE FALL MEETING.—The Hunt Club will hold their Fall Steeple-chase Meeting, at Blue Bonnets course, on the 12th and 14th of October. There will be three races each day. On the first: The Green Steeple-chase, Half-bred Race and Farmer's Plate. On the second day: The Hunt Cup, Open Handicap and Consolation Stakes are on the programme. The amount of money given away will be $1,325.

THE HARBOR.—As the fall fleet has only recently begun to come in, there are but comparatively few vessels in port. The "Circassian," which arrived Wednesday evening, and the "Waldensian," which arrived on Thursday, are both discharging a general cargo of hardware, groceries, dry goods, &c. The steamer "Venezia," from the gulf ports, is taking on board a general cargo of provisions. The "Quebec" (Dominion Line) is discharging a general cargo of hardware, groceries, &c.; and "The Lake Champlain," of the Beaver Line, is discharging rails and a miscellaneous cargo, and will take on her return trip a general cargo of provisions and cattle.

STEALING A PURSE.—An old man named Alexis Lanctot deposed at the Police Court, this morning, that Joseph Mirande, a carter, had stolen his purse, containing $16. A man called Limoge, to whom accused had acknowledged having taken the purse, appeared as a witness. His story was that the prisoner, the plaintiff and himself were patients at the Hotel Dieu; that yesterday the prisoner came to him and said he had just stolen the old man's purse, upon which witness told him to give it to the old man or he would split on him. Mirande then requested witness to take the purse and return it to the owner, as he was afraid. To oblige Mirande witness went and handed the purse to Lanctot, who said that $7 had been taken out, and accused the prisoner of the theft. The prisoner was subsequently arrested and sent to Queen's Bench for trial.

STEALING A HAT.—Miss Mary Ann Stephens made a deposition before Mr. Desnoyers this morning against Mary McGinness, of no occupation, accusing her of stealing a $12 hat belonging to the plaintiff, under the following circumstances:—A servant girl in Mrs. Stephens' employ, 59 Aylmer street, saw a woman passing by the house, and the next moment the woman was seen leaving the house. Miss Mary Stephens, coming into the hall at this moment, missed a valuable hat, and suspecting that the woman, who had just left, had stolen it, she went out in search of her. On arriving at Bleury street, she saw the prisoner walking along wearing the stolen hat. Without hesitating a moment, Miss Stephens quietly took her hat off from the woman's head, and returned home. Mr. Desnoyers condemned Mary McGinness to nine months' imprisonment.

METHODIST SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The regular session of the District Convention opened yesterday a.m. in St. James street Church, Hon. Jas. Ferrier in the chair. After devotional exercises, Mr. Ferrier was elected President of the Convention, and made the usual address.

Rev. M. L. Pearson then opened a debate on the "International Lesson Series, and how to use them," and was followed by Rev. Mr. Wilson, Rev. Geo. Anderson and Rev. Mr. Rogers, of Lacolle, who continued the subject.

Rev. L. M. Beaudry then opened the next subject of debate, "Wisdom in Winning Souls," being followed by Rev. Mr. Gaetz and Mr. Charles Morton.

PARK COMMISSIONERS.

A meeting of this Committee was held yesterday at three o'clock p.m., Ald. Nelson in the chair; Alds. McGauvran and David, the City Surveyor, Mr. Wm. Mc. Gibbon, Park Superintendent, and Mr. Picton, engineer in charge of the works, were also present.

A plan of the Mountain Park, showing the new road, to cost $40,000 to $50,000, was laid before the Committee. A statement of the cost of the new rustic side-walks, at $1.42 per yard, was submitted. It was decided not to make any more at that price. An application for $363 for troughs was referred to the Council. A proposal for placing hitching posts in different parts of the Park and for erecting four water-closets was left over. In reference to the appropriation for the new road or boulevard, it was decided to take no action till a complete plan had been received from Mr. Olmstead.

BAD MEAT.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—The farce of merely confiscating bad meat when exposed for sale should surely be put a stop to. In England it is considered a serious offence, and I noticed in a late paper that, for his second offence, a butcher was lately fined £100. In this city a butcher offers his bad meat for sale, satisfied that if the worse comes to the worst he will only lose his meat, while every piece that is sold of it is clear gain. If you fine them as well as confiscate, you will soon see a change, and a law to that effect should be made at once; one means at least of spreading disease would be avoided.

D. B.

SMALL-POX.

To the Editor of the STAR:

DEAR SIR,—Dr. Finnie's letter, and your own remarks in the STAR of to-day, present an appalling picture, for which, I apprehend, few of our citizens were prepared, and unless the authorities go to work in earnest to remedy or abate the evil, it becomes a serious question whether the public schools should not be closed as one means of preventing the spread of the fearful malady.

Too much blame cannot be attached to those who are responsibe for such a deplorable state of things, and something more than mere talk or reports is required to dispel the gloomy apprehensions arising in the minds of the public. Let there be no more humbug about compulsory vaccination, but let us have it—and have it authorities see that nothing but action of the most vigorous kind will satisfy the community.

CITIZEN.

Montreal, 20th September, 1876.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

APPEAL SIDE.

Judgment was given to-day in the important case of Jette vs. McNaughton, reversing the judgment of the Court below as regards four out of the five lots which McNaughton bought on the Canal, but confirming it as regards lot 12. Two Judges, the Chief-Justice and Judge Ramsay, were in favor of reversing the decision of the Court below as regards lot 12, but yielded to the majority.

Judge Tessier rendered his decision first. He held that the employment of "puffers" at a sale was permitted by the French law.

The Chief-Justice held there had been no fraud which the Court could take notice of; that the case was one to be decided entirely according to the principles of the old French law. To constitute a fraud there must be deception in the eyes of the law, and damage must be proved to have resulted to the party claiming redress. In the present case there had been no deception, and not only had there been no damage, but McNaughton had actually commenced an action for the recovery of $20,000, because, as he alleged, he could not get a clear title to the land.

Ramsay, T.K., had yielded his opinion to the majority of the Court. It was almost a libel on the French law to say that it does not absolutely condemn puffing, but such is the case. It would not be pretended by any of the learned Judges that a sale at a mock auction could be valid. It appears that, of those present at the sale, Crevier, Parisean, Telmosse, and, perhaps, Beaunet, were merely encherisseurs pour la form; a pretended sale of nineteen lots was made to these puffers. Frigon admits he gave one false bid, and a true one. Mr. Hogan and Mr. Molson also gave false bids; and Mr. Turgeon also gave a bid for which he refused to be bound. He concurred with the judgment.

Judge Monk said McNaughton had signed the auctioneers' book for four lots, and must be regarded as the purchaser. He also wished to acquire lot number 12, and it was then put up for sale. He seems to have been well satisfied with the whole affair and so expressed himself. He even took an action of $20,000 because, as he alleged, the plaintiffs could not give him a clear title. With the practice of puffers at auction it appears that all auctions are conducted in this manner in the Province, and the sooner this was removed by legislation the better. He could not too strongly condemn a practice which he could not look upon in any other light than one of immorality. He concurred with the judgment of the Court.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

REMEMBER the great sale of villa lots at Mount Royal Vale to-morrow afternoon. Lunch at two o'clock sharp.

THE attention of our readers is directed to the important sale of building lots at Cote St. Antoine, which takes place on the ground to-morrow, at 3 o'clock. The site of this property is not to be equalled on the island.

TO-MORROW morning and afternoon Messrs. Devany & Co., continue the large sale of elegant furniture at their rooms No. 650 Craig street. As the terms are very liberal, and the collection varied. Parties purchasing should attend before purchasing elsewhere. The hour is ten and two o'clock.

A TRAGEDIAN'S SORE THROAT.—Edwin Booth, like most of his professional brethren, suffers frequently from severe inflammation of the throat, which prevents him occasionally from appearing on the stage. This theatrical sore throat is sometimes so serious that it actually drives an actor into private life. Booth, however, promptly stops the first symptoms with Giles' Liniment Iodide of Ammonia.

REMEMBER the great sale of villa lots at Mount Royal Vale to-morrow afternoon. Lunch at two o'clock sharp.

OTTAWA, September 22.

A few days ago, an old man, who had retired apparently in good health, was found dead in his bed, at his house, on the Flats. The body was buried in a pauper's grave, and his wife, a young woman, was married a second time three days afterwards. A short time previous to his death, the old man complained to Detective Groulx that his wife had attempted to poison him, but, as no evidence was obtainable, no action was taken. The case will now be investigated, and an inquest held.

Nothing definite can so far be ascertained concerning the award of the contract for Section 15 of the Pacific Railway. Kane & Co., of Montreal, are reported to have the lowest tender, at something under $1,500,000.

THE FATE of the FAIREST.

A Story of Life.

[illegible] was pre-
While yet fondling her arm some proof paring to ask him to [illegible] as no mere hal-that what he asser[illegible] knock was heard at the lucination, a fai[illegible] room door.
Before Wilton could clear his voice to give the permission to enter the room, the door opened and closed instantly.
But rapid as was the action, the door on closing had left within the room Nathan Gomer.
He nodded at Wilton, he nodded at Hal, and he smiled—that is, grinned—at Flora. All the while his face glowed like burnished gold upon which a sunbeam rested.
Wilton uttered a cry of joy. He ran up to him, and seized him by the hand.
"I wanted to see you," he cried.
"I imagined as much. Here I am," responded Nathan.
Old Wilton cast his eyes rapidly upon Flora, upon Hal, and then on Nathan Gomer. For an instant he appeared perplexed, then he said to Hal—
"Flora has not seen the wonders of this place, Harry Vivian. Will you conduct her where she can see how the prisoners pass away their long and wretched days of confinement? Just for a stroll."
Hal could have told him that she had already witnessed as much as it was necessary for her to see, but he guessed that Wilton desired to be alone with Nathan Gomer, and he bowed assent.
"You have no objection, Master Vivian," observed Wilton, fancying that he hesitated.
"Objection!" cried Hal, astounded.
Objection! What to have Flora to himself for ten minutes or a quarter of an hour? unquestionably not. He emphatically expressed himself to that effect, and so Flora tied on her sweet little bonnet, and put on her neat little mantle, and laid the softest of soft hands upon his arm, making it thrill to his heart, near to which it rested, until he hardly knew anything but that she was at her side—at once the richest, dearest treasure upon earth.
Confused by the noise, and by the jostling of the throng of persons in the racket ground, they unconsciously strolled round to the back of the prison, or to the county side, as it is termed.
Between the hours of ten and three, this part is comparatively deserted, as it is during the period mentioned that the needy prisoners, who live on the support of their creditors and the county, are alone permitted to mix on the parade in front, or to visit their fellow prisoners who are better off than themselves.
No county prisoner—for they have their prison pride—likes to be looked upon as a "county bird," so he shows himself in front as long as he can—the back part, thus, as we have said, has few persons promenading its precincts at the hours named.
Flora and Hal were, in consequence, comparatively alone in their walk.
As they strolled on, both seemed full of thought; after a silence, which endured for a short time, a few remarks were made, but of no personal nature; at length Hal ventured to say to her—
"Can it be possible, my dear Miss Wilton, that your father is not laboring under a delusion in speaking of his immediate liberation?"
Somehow, Flora had expected this question, yet she had not prepared an answer. She paused for a moment, then replied—
"From the moment my dear father was seized as a prisoner until now the whole affair has been inexplicable to me. What can I answer? the matter of his conversation seems to me to be visionary, yet I never remember him to be so clear in his delivery, nor so elated without being incoherent."
"That may only be a sign of the disease which may have fastened itself upon him, following the terrible agony of grief he has had to endure."
"Oh, Mr. Vivian in [illegible] his mind is so [illegible] sound your opinion in high estimation, and if you say so, I shall believe you."
Hal heard her words with a tingling sensation of happiness; he saw the tears spring into her eyes, and he blamed himself for having brought them there, especially when she said—
"It will so much add to the grief I have already suffered."
"I would not add to it for the world, Miss Wilton," he said, hastily, and added thoughtfully, "it may have been selfishness which led me to form the supposition, but I would willingly, though not cheerfully, abandon it if I thought, by so doing, you would be spared one painful emotion."
"Not cheerfully," said Flora, with innocent surprise, "why with reluctance, Mr. Vivian?"
"Not reluctance, Miss Wilton, that is not the word—sorrow is the truer term."
"I do not understand you; Tam, I suppose, very dull; but truly, Mr. Vivian, could you be sorry to find my father not insane?" she inquired, with some earnestness.
"Listen," he said; "if what your father has said be not the wanderings of a disturbed mind, the return of the gentleman who has recently visited him, from India, has opened up to him an immediate return to some former wealthy position, even though the instrument appears as unconscious of his power to effect it as we are."
"So I understand it," returned Flora, finding Hal pause.
"Then," he exclaimed, strong feeling being manifest in the tones of his voice, "I should not, I trust you will credit me, be sorry that he had achieved his immediate release from this filthy prison, or that he and you—you, Miss Wilton, were restored to a position you so eminently deserve to occupy; but I should be sorry to think that all your good could not be accomplished without my discomfort."
"Your discomfort?" asked Flora, catching his arm, and looking into his eyes with an expression of interest for which he would have willingly pressed her to his heart if he dared.
He was a little confused, for he saw plain enough that if he had no heart to lose, she had no desire to occasion him discomfort.
"Well, Miss Wilton," he answered, "to speak honestly to you—I have reared up a little fabric, based upon what I thought to be your condition; I had expected from it much happiness, perhaps that of securing to you immunity from troubles and trials, so far as I could. By the return of this Indian officer, it is dashed to the ground, and shattered to atoms. I rejoice most sincerely that it has brought you and yours gainful good, but do not think harshly of me if I selfishly regret that by it my prospects of felicity are swept away entirely. In the time to come, when difference of position shall part us for ever, may I ask you, Flora—Miss Wilton—to believe that, had the opportunity been afforded me, I would, when tried, have proved to you a sincere and true friend?"
"In the time to come—when we shall part forever—what difference of station should part us? Oh, Mr. Vivian, I could not—I would not, accept a position which might bring such an estrangement to pass—I would sooner die—I owe—my life—those of my sisters—to your bravery."
She seized his hand and kissed it, and then burst into tears.
Hal was almost in the act of placing his arm about her, and giving vent to a passionate declaration, when a hand was placed upon his shoulder.
He turned round with a sudden start, which almost upset the individual who had tapped him on the shoulder. He found it to be Nathan Gomer, who grinned, and, pointing his thumb over his shoulder, said to Flora—
"Your father awaits you both in his room. He is about to quit the prison with you, but he would say a few words to you before he depart."
"But the two thousand pounds for which he is lodged here?" said Hal, with a stupefied air.
"They are all paid, [illegible] when he Mr. Wilton is free," [illegible] Gomer, with will, sir!" exc[illegible] his features. the old p[illegible] (To be continued.)

HISTORICAL ITEMS.

Chimneys were first built in the year 1200.

Quills were first used for pens in the year 553.

The currant tree was introduced into England in 1533.

From 1601 to 1620 men were forbidden to ride in coaches.

Henry I. ordered that the yard should be the length of his arm.

Wedding rings are bound to be of standard gold by Act of 1855.

Drums were first used by Edward III., at the siege of Calais, 1347. They have undergone very little alteration since that time.

Before the middle of the seventeenth century tea was not used in England, and was entirely unknown to the Greeks and Romans.

In 1700 good hair was sold at £3 per ounce. In 1703 mourning rings were first used. In 1710 brown and black hair dyes were advertised.

The custom of shaving is said to have come in use during the reigns of Louis XIII. and XIV. of France, both of whom ascended the throne of France without a beard.

Until 1752, the year of Our Lord, in England, began on the 25th March. An Act of George II. ordered that the 1st of January, following the last day of December, 1751, shall be the first day of the year 1752.

It was on the 9th of March, 1543, that by act of Parliament, permission was given the English people to read the Bible. The act declared "That it shall be lawful to all men to read the Bible and Testament in the mother tongue."

In olden times in India there was no shilly-shally about popping the question; the great difficulty was to prevent a superabundance of popping from too many lovelorn swains together. But things are altered materially for the worse now, and there is tightness in the Indian matrimonial market of this present year of grace. The fact is that young men cannot marry in India any longer with those prospects of comfort which in olden days made them speak of matrimony as something awfully jolly. What with the rise in prices, the debased rupee, the frightful extravagance of feminine fashions, and the parsimony of the Government of India, which has abolished hundreds of appointments, and cut down the salaries of as many more, no young man with his senses about him will risk the maintenance of two pe[illegible]

FAMILY MATTERS.

REPELLING MOTHS.—If fine cut tobacco is sprinkled under the edges of carpets and under those places where bookcases, bureaus, &c., make it dark, it will prevent the moths from laying their eggs in them.

PUT a teaspoonful of brown sugar into a quart of paste, and it will fasten labels as securely to tin cans as to wood. Housekeepers may save themselves much annoyance in the loss of labels from their fruit cans when putting up their own fruit, by remembering this.

VERY durable neat mats for floors can be made from old coffee sacks. A piece of the bagging of suitable size is bound with some dark fabric and secured to a frame of four laths. By means of a hook of wood or iron, like an enlarged crotchet needle, carpet raps are carried through the material so as to skip every other thread, and to leave loops half an inch long, the ends, of course, being fastened. Old red flannel can be used to make tasteful borders.

FLOWERS nearly always begin to fade and droop after being kept for twenty hours in water; a few may be revived by substituting fresh, but all may be restored by the use of hot water. For this purpose place the flowers in scalding water, deep enough to cover about one-third of the length of the stems. By the time this is cold the flowers will have become erect and fresh. Then cut off the shrunken ends of the stems, and put them into cold water.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.—A red ink for marking clothes, which is not attacked by soap, alkalies or acids, is prepared as follows: Enough of finely-powdered cinnibar to form a moderately thick liquid is very intimately mixed with eggs' albumen, previously diluted with an equal bulk of water and beaten to a froth, and filtered through fine linen. Marks formed on cloth with this liquid by means of a quill are often fixed after they have become dry by pressing the cloth on the other side with a hot iron. The ink will keep in well closed bottles for a long time without separation of the suspended cinnabar. A black indellible ink is made by putting one and two-thirds parts of nitrate of silver in sixteen parts of distilled water, and adding two parts of gum arabic and one-third part of saygreen.

HOW TO BEGIN.—Girls, you can learn how to be thoroughly neat and clean by attending properly to your own rooms, if your sphere of usefulness is confined to a small space. Keep everything in perfect order, in the first place; neatness is one great principle of beauty. Cherish your instincts of taste and fitness in every little thing that you have about you. Let it grow impossible to you to put down so much as a pin-box where it will disturb the orderly and pleasant grouping upon your dressing-table, or to stick your pins in your cushion even, at all sorts of tipsy and uncomfortable inclinations. Take upon yourself gradually—for the sake of getting them in hand in like manner, if for no other need—all the cares that belong to your own small territory at home. Get together things for use in these cases. Have your little wash-cloths and your sponges for bits of cleaning; your furniture brush and your feather duster and your light, little broom and your whisk and pan; your bottle of sweet oil and spirits of turpentine; and a piece of flannel to preserve the polish or restore the gloss, where dark wood grow dims or gets spotted. Find out, by following your surely growing sense of thoroughness and niceness, the best and readiest ways of keeping all fresh about you. If you are of an inventive turn of mind, processes will readily come to you. When you have made yourself wholly mistress of what you can learn and do in your own apartment, so that it is easier and more natural for you to do it than to let it alone, taking a real interest in all your small improvements, then you have learned enough to keep a whole house in order.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.

See that every letter, newspaper, or packet is securely folded and sealed, for every such packet has to be several times handled, and in the mail-bag is exposed to compression and friction.

Carefully secure every letter containing money or valuables, first with gum or mucilage and then with wax, and be sure to leave a good impression of a seal.

Avoid inconvenience and injury.

When letters are delayed or missing, communicate immediately with the Inspector of the Division in which the Post Office is situated. In case of a missing letter state the exact contents, address, the office at which the letter was posted, the name of the person by whom posted and the name of the person by whom received at the office. In case of a delayed letter or paper, send the envelope or cover in an entire state to the Inspector, so that the place of delay may be ascertained by an examination of the post marks.

In the event of a supposed abstraction of money or value from a letter, send the letter and cover to the Inspector for the Division in which is situated the office at which the letter was delivered, stating day and hour on which delivered, name of Postmaster or Clerk by whom delivered, and persons by whom received.

Whosoever, being bailee of any chattle, money, or valuable security, fraudulently takes and converts the same to his own use, or to that of any other person not the owner, although he do not break bulk, or otherwise determine the bailment, is guilty of larceny, and may be convicted upon an indictment. This section does not extend to any offence punishable on summary conviction.

Forgery is the fraudulent making or alteration of a writing to the prejudice of another's right; it is further the false making of an instrument with intent to prejudice any public or private right. The crime is not confined to the falsification of mere writings; it plainly extends to seals, stamps and all other visible marks of distinction by which the truth of any fact is authenticated or the quality and genuineness of any article warranted.

Under the criminal acts of 1869, whosoever is convicted of carrying about his person any bowie knive, dagger or dirk, iron knuckles, skull-cracker or slung-shot, shall be subject to a fine, before any Justice of the Peace, of not less than ten and not more than forty dollars, and in default to imprisonment for a term not exceeding thirty days. The carrying of a sheath knife in any of the seaport towns or cities entails a like penalty, but the act does not apply to seamen and riggers.

It is expressly forbidden to any occupant of a house or building, supplied with water from the Water Works, to furnish water to others, or to use it otherwise than for his own use, or to increase the supply of water agreed for, or to waste it, or to practice any fraud upon the Corporation with regard to the water supplied.

The Montreal Revenue District consists of the counties of Hochelaga, Jacques Cartier, Laval, Vaudreuil, Soulanges, Laprairie, Chambly, Vercheres, Berthier, Joliette, L'Assomption, Montcalm, Richelieu, Yamaska, Drummond, Arthabaska, and the city of Montreal—Dunbar Browne, collector.
