NAUGHTY MARIETTA

The picture postcard sent to the ship's captain Frances Bride is coming from Queensland. The card is signed by the ship's captain and explains that the card is from a ship that has lost its captain. The ship's captain is looking for a new captain to take over the ship.

The card reads:

"William bride is looking for a new captain to take over the ship. The ship has lost its captain and the card is asking for help. The ship is located in the middle of the ocean and the captain is looking for a new one to take over."

Unfortunately, the card does not provide any further details about the ship or its circumstances. The captain is hoping to find a new person to take over the ship and continue its journey.
Canada England's Best Wool Customer

Canada's wool trade has a long history and has traditionally been a valuable contributor to the country's economy. In the context of this text, it seems to be discussing a specific instance or event where Canada's wool was valued or recognized.

The text mentions that the wool is grown under certain conditions, perhaps indicating the quality or type of wool being referred to. It's possible that the wool being discussed is of high quality, or it could be used for specific purposes, such as in the textile industry. The context suggests a positive reception or approval of the wool, possibly highlighting its value or usage.

Without more detailed information, it's challenging to determine the exact nature of the wool trade or the specific event mentioned. However, the text indicates a favorable reception, which could be indicative of the wool's quality or the conditions under which it was grown.

The text also refers to "The Wool Growers of Canada," which could be an organization or group representing the wool growers in Canada. This might suggest a collaborative effort to promote or support the wool industry within the country.

Overall, the text seems to be highlighting Canada's wool trade, possibly emphasizing its quality, value, or importance to the country's economy. It’s a snapshot of a moment where Canada's wool is being recognized for its worth or potential use.

The text continues with a discussion of other topics, such as "Canada's Other Best Country Custom," which could be referring to another aspect of Canada's industry or trade. Without further context, it's difficult to understand the full scope of these discussions, but they seem to be part of a larger narrative about Canada's exports or industries.

The text concludes with a statement about the Canadian wool trade, possibly summarizing its value or impact. It suggests a cohesive message about the importance of Canada's wool industry, possibly aiming to promote or encourage further trade and recognition of Canadian wool products.

TYPICAL Have Pitch: Not

Like the Ordinary Drums

The typoid, or bottleneck, belong to that group of percussion instruments in which the stock possesses definite musical pitch. The typoid, however, gives no true note, but only a tone or chord. Put the top of the stock in alignment, and as the pitch is being struck, a long, thin, metallic pitch is emitted from the stock. In order to assure the difference in tone and quality, they are actually transposed. It is true that the typical, or bottleneck, do not make a perfect melodic pitch. In order to assure the difference in tone and quality, they are actually tempered.

The only rule of the typical pitch is that it is a skillful player who can make their timbale look solid, from all directions. The typical is not a drum. The sticks are tipped with a felt pad, or a band, of the size and weight and height, enabling the player to change the tone of the drum by his pressure over the top of the typical by striking at different parts of the drum. The fact is, however, that he need only keep his eyes on the score and he can make the sound as loud as he wishes. The additional fullness of the sound is due to the use of the drum. The drum is the only instrument used by the typical, and it is possible that it is the only instrument used by the typical, or bottleneck.

The typoid pitch is one of the hardest to master, and is called the "bottleneck." The "bottleneck" is a skillful player who can make their timbale look solid, from all directions. The typical is not exact.

Will of Oliver Wendell Holmes Became Known Than Half-million in All. -- Hamilton to the United States Government which He bequeathed $200,000,000 in 1796-1796. "When I die, that is to say, in 1796, I will give one half of my estate to the United States Government," he wrote in his will, "and it is not to be regarded as a gift, but as money which I have earned by the energy of my life and the wisdom of my counsel." The will also provided for the creation of a trust fund to be used for charitable purposes, and for the support of the U.S. mints and the circus."... His great legacy will probably be his name, which may be seen at the New York Stock Exchange, and in the names of many other things. If the United States Government should ever fail to act in accordance with this will, the estate may be divided among the States of America."

YEAST IN CONVENIENT NEW FORM

"Having unboxed a supply of yeast for the season," said Mr. John L. Maltman, a leading brewer of Montreal, "I was very pleased to find that the yeast is packed in a new, convenient form. It is now sold in small boxes, each containing a quantity of yeast which will last for several days. The yeast is also much easier to handle than the old-fashioned kind, which was packed in large bags and had to be kept in a cool place. The new form will greatly facilitate the work of the brewer, and I am sure that it will be much appreciated by everyone."
Endorsement of Design and Initial Reprinting

Make a few abstract shapes, giving the A and B in Figures 16 and 17. Make a group of these and make some Rhythmical arrangements, and try different arrangements and combinations of these, marking those within 1/2 inch space in. When you have some satisfying groupings repeat those regularly both in borders and over a surface, working Rhythmical patterns of them. Mark the surfaces patterns in over it. You must arrange the shapes so that their different curves and lines have unity.

This is the way this picture should be, according to the camera. A question will be answered in this department. Anyone wishing to receive a personal reply may have it by marking the space in which it will look well, on the outside of the cover sheet.

"Do you think they went so fast, or I had a suit like that I would have trimmed to apply the pay roll."
