The "Salada" Orange Pekoe

West of the Sun

Joseph Lewis Chadwick

Pickle Pitter—It comes as no surprise that mechanical innovations have finally invaded the pickle fields. Beverly Aldred, 18, an Ontario inventor, has solved the problem of making pickles by creating a machine that enables workers between rows without need for bending or stooping.
Two pickers ride on the same machine which is driven by a belt.

"When A Feller Needs A Friend"—upper picture shows the lone male "exhibitor" in the Baby Contest, looking properly nervous—as what man wouldn't. Below—another view of the young sters awaiting decision of the judges—who certainly had their work cut out making a choice.

Champions In The Boys' and Girls' Dairy Calf Club at Dresden are shown above. Reading from left to right are Ann Sterling, who placed first; Lee Montgomery, 2nd; and Tommy Davis, 3rd. Lee Montgomery also captured the title of Champion Showman. The Calf Club was one of the biggest drawing cards of the Fair, and everyone had a great time. Owner Lee Montgomery may well be proud of the showing that the boys and girls and their entries made.

Pretty Miss—Joan Ironsides took top honours with her pony, Willie Winkie, at the Ingersoll Fair. Miss Ironsides will show Willie Winkie at London, Aylmer, and numerous other Fairs during the coming month. They will be a hard combination to beat as they proved at Ingersoll, when they special.

Willie Winkie was a perfect model. He posed with the air of a veteran trooper, and seemed possessed of unlimited patience.

Champions of the racing com­mittee, Burton Harris of the Ingersoll Agricultural Society, supervised a host of details with amazing efficiency. As a matter of fact, it was with some difficulty that Burt was persuaded to slow down long enough for your roving photographer to snap his picture.

Rivers of Ink

French scientists have analyzed what must be the most remarkable story in the history of the ink industry. The name is 'George.'

When our investigators really did find the object they had been looking for, they were amazed to find that 'George' was a very obdurate individual. Apparently he never thought that anyone would try to find him. When they did, however, they were surprised to discover that he was of utmost importance to the French scientific community.

The investigation began when one of the scientists was looking for a new ink for a special project. He had read about 'George' in a recent article and decided to try him. When he did, he was immediately struck by the unusual properties of the ink. It was very dark, almost black, and it seemed to have a life of its own. The scientist was intrigued and decided to study it further.

As they delved deeper into the mystery of 'George,' they found that he was not just a simple ink. He was a complex creature, with a history that went back many years. The scientists were able to trace him back to the early days of the ink industry, when he was first discovered.

It was discovered that 'George' had been created by a group of scientists who were trying to create an ink that could not be replicated. They had succeeded in creating a formula that was unique and could not be copied. 'George' was the result of their efforts.

The scientists were able to replicate the formula and create a new ink that was just as unique and could not be copied. They were able to use this new ink in a variety of projects, and it proved to be very successful.

The story of 'George' is a testament to the importance of research and the power of science. It is a reminder of the importance of perseverance and the power of ideas. It is a story that will be remembered for many years to come.

To overflowing. And rain water is so much richer on the piano. With hard water, you lose the color and smell. So with the hard water, there's no...well, at least it's less beautiful, but also less strong. I suppose that's what it can do to a hot-water tank, you know?

I agree. I think that's the main reason. And after all, it's not as if we're the only ones who object to hard water, is it? But for once I know what I was thinking about—my experience out west was too recent for me to talk about, and, honestly, I couldn't understand my anxiety. It was something that was always there, and it wasn't something that I could easily express. I mean, I couldn't even explain to myself why I was feeling so anxious.

In law always used to laugh at me dry—well, with a hard water wash it's not the same. In law always used to laugh at me dry—well, with a hard water wash it's not the same. But for once I know what I was thinking about—my experience out west was too recent for me to talk about, and, honestly, I couldn't understand my anxiety. It was something that was always there, and it wasn't something that I could easily express. I mean, I couldn't even explain to myself why I was feeling so anxious.
There's a token of affection, dear,
There's a memory fond and true,
Though we try to forget every tear.
And heartache, dear father, for you.

There's a voice we're longing to hear,
There's a face that is haunting us,
Dearer to memory than words can Moorhead—In fond and loving mem­

His sudden death surprised us all,
Quick and suddenly came the call,
Moorhead—

They have found in God's garlen of
To dear one's who have gone to rest.
