Debts! Debts! Debts!

Mr. Coyne, referring to our editorial "Money from naught" points out that consumer credit has reached the staggering figure of more than 14.3 billions.

We are NOT happy about this situation, nor are we alone in our disquiet. The source of our sorrow, unlike our correspondent's, stems from the inevitably impact these debts have on our economy. We are losing no sleep whatsoever over the question of how these debts will be repaid, nor over the question of the vast amounts to be expended each year in interest charges on the debts. Our sole concern is in seeing debts created on such a scale as this, when the debts represent the spending now of money not yet earned. This spells inflation, with the result that the value of the dollar keeps falling as the incumbrances increase. Savings, in the form of bonds, home mortgages, life insurance, pensions, bank deposits and hoards of cash decrease in value as the payment of debts increase.

We take the position that the government should take every possible action to halt the incredible growth of consumer credit and to keep the national debt from increasing. The action taken on these two headings would constitute important critical decisions in deciding whether to vote for or against the government at the next election.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Coyle, Que.

Re: Your Editorial "Money from naught".

The Ottawa Journal January 16 contained an article, "Credit At All Times High of

We would like to take occasion now to refer to your editorial "Money from naught" in which something similar to our subject was discussed. The editorial states that "credit is a large part of the inflation in our country which is nothing to be proud of, is a menace to our national life and a factor threatening the security of the country."

This means that over and above what was in the editorial itself, we feel that there is a need to produce a paper containing the following statement: "Consumer credit is a large part of the inflation in our country which is nothing to be proud of, is a menace to our national life and a factor threatening the security of the country." The original editorial was dated January 16, 1955.

In consequence, it appears that the "Money from naught" editorial is no longer valid, and that the new stock of banknotes should be issued with the new phrase: "Consumer credit is a large part of the inflation in our country which is nothing to be proud of, is a menace to our national life and a factor threatening the security of the country." The new editorial would date from January 16, 1955.

Of course Mr. Coyne and you will have some concern for the farm people, for the village and small towns and for the general welfare. The only solution seems to be to get the banks to print and distribute the new stock of banknotes. The banks would be glad to do this if the government did not insist on the old stock of banknotes.

The regular editorial for February 3, 1955, of The Equity would have to be printed on the new stock of banknotes. The editorial would date from February 3, 1955.

LYNX RUNS INTO TROUBLE "DOWN SOUTH"

What to do...

To improve Transport For An Injured Person

If you ever have to look after an injured person you may have to carry him in a stretcher or on a blanket. And that's not so easy unless you know how. First of all, the person injured must not be moved if the injury is severe.

* thinks this is the first time he has used a stretcher for a lynx.

As the lynx was not in any danger the owner had to be told of the injuries and the lynx was moved to an iron cage where it could be treated.

The lynx was then taken to the hospital for treatment and has now recovered.

Mistakes for a wall, this lynx is believed to be the first one of its kind ever shot in the district around Alliance. Two men lost their lives in the lynx hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who are the owners of the lynx, say they will not allow it to be shot again.
