Centralization For Teacher Hiring Urged

Last week a letter was published from Mr. William Fairbairn, and the educational problem now facing this county—that of obtaining, and how to go about getting good teachers.

Weeklies across the country are giving much publicity to this same problem which apparently bores school boards everywhere. In Stanstead County, this Province, we note that the Super visor Lloyd Mackeen has recently returned from the Martimes in search of teachers, and has six vacancies to fill. He has given consideration, the local paper reports, to seeking teachers in England.

In Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, a bona fide urban community (no matter what Halifax says on that subject)—the school board is complaining of its good teachers being lured away by the promise of higher pay elsewhere.

Unfortunately, concern over the situation has reached such a point that it is being seriously suggested that the financing of primary and secondary education be taken over by the federal government.

At first glance of these widespread difficulties, coupled with our own experience, it seems rather obvious that something is wrong.

The only way to do this seems to be through great financial load. This keeps the local people constant-paid at a rate commensurate with their services.

In Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, a bona fide urban community, it is being suggested that the financing of primary and secondary education should be taken over by the federal government.

The school board is competing with every other school board for teachers. With the latter in short supply, a sort of salary inflation is bound to creep in and unless a change is made in existing policies the day is not far distant when this bidding for teachers will make the taxpayer's load and impossible load. The salary pendulum is on the verge of a complete slide from the nadir of the abysmally low pre-war salaries towards the zenith of happily high pre-war salaries, and I must say that the result would be to exclude, because of finances, many educational opportunities that might otherwise be enjoyed in the district.

The idea of this problem would be to get away from competition among the school boards.

To us, unfortunately, concern over the situation has reached such a point that it is being seriously suggested that the financing of primary and secondary education be taken over by the federal government.
