Beavers get $10,000

City Council decided at the end of Monday night's meeting to allot a $10,000 grant to the Sherbrooke Beavers Inc. to help defray the hockey club's $28,000 deficit following the last season, it was announced yesterday.

A delegation, headed by the Beavers' president, Leandre Mercier, visited council Monday night and asked for the city's support to overcome the unexpected high deficit, which was due to a $15,000 increase in the players' salaries over the year before and a drop of 30,000 in attendance.

When contacted by telephone yesterday, Mr. Mercier stated the Beavers' executive were "half-satisfied for the moment" with the $10,000 grant.

He said he had been hoping for $18,000 to set the Beavers back on their feet.

Would the Beavers executive return to council to ask for more help, as they are still faced with $16,000 to clear?

Mr. Mercier answered the executive has not decided anything definitely yet how to pay the balance of the deficit but it was "perhaps a possibility" they could return to council to ask for more help.

Mayor Armand Nadeau said yesterday the Beavers organization should be very "happy" with their first contact with council.

He said if they come back asking for more money, "... there's a possibility they might get more or they might be told to get to work."

He stated the council members were not entirely satisfied with the manner in which the Beavers' administration spent its funds on salaries and expenses.

Mayor Nadeau said he was speaking for the council on this affair and was not expressing his personal views.

He asserted, "We need a hockey team ... and we're ready to help."

He also spoke of the city's policy to help clear up Sherbrooke's sports teams' deficits and said in some instances, because of this policy, the administrations of the teams tend to handle the funds a little loosely.

He said the Beavers' administration should be more careful, in the council's opinion, with the money they spend, because it is the public's money.

He referred to the figure of $45,000 paid to the players last year.

He pointed out it was a $15,000 increase over the salaries paid to the players for the 1966-67 season.

Mr. Mercier explained the players had a good year in 1966-67 and the Sports Palace was usually packed for a hockey game.

Banking on their popularity, they demanded increase in their salaries for last year.

However, there was a drop of 30,000 in attendance at the games last year and the administration ended up borrowing $8,000 from a bank to pay the players their salaries.

Mayor Nadeau wondered about the bonus plan the Beavers executive exercised, both at the council meeting and on the telephone yesterday.

Yesterday, he called the bonuses an up-to-date manner to do business with sports teams but said the system should not be generalized.

He was referring to the method Mr. Mercier said the Beavers used to sign a player.

A player who would not sign, for $100 a week for example, would be offered a bonus to sign.

The mayor disapproved of this system.

At the meeting, Mr. Mercier stated facts and figures, trying to prove to council the Beavers needed help.

He said the revenue last year had decreased $30,173.59 and the expenses had increased $11,055.13 over the previous season.

He pointed out the Beavers Inc. had paid over $99,000 in amusement taxes and rent in the past two years.

The Canadian government, which is responsible for foreign affairs, has suspended relations with Gabon, recalled the expert, who declined use of his name.

Thus the Quebec minister's decision "definitely clashes" with federal authority.

Informed sources said in Paris that Mr. Cardinal met Tuesday with President Albert Bernard Bongo to discuss education assistance to Gabon.

He referred to reports that Jean Guy Cardinal, Quebec education minister, made such an offer to the tiny West African country at a current conference of French-speaking education ministers in Paris.

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's reported offer of aid to Gabon means a new clash with the federal government's authority in external affairs, an expert in constitutional law said Wednesday.

Foreign policy will be an election campaign issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday foreign policy will be an issue in the June 25 election campaign.

Just 26 hours later, Conservative Leader Stanfield took up the challenge in his opening shot of the campaign at London, Ont.

In the foreign policy field at least, the campaign may be the liveliest since acceptance of American nuclear weapons was an issue in the 1963 contest.

The external affairs issue really began April 7, the day after Mr. Trudeau was chosen Liberal leader, with Mr. Trudeau's call for a complete re-assessment of foreign policy.

He was replying to a question about the possibility of bringing Canadian troops home from Europe.

Mr. Stanfield termed this a casual and incomplete statement on foreign policy which Mr. Trudeau had made "off the top of his head."

On Wednesday night in a speech at London he went further.

"Rhetoric," he said of Mr. Trudeau's statement.

SUGGEST REVIEW

The prime minister had suggested a review of Canada's commitments. But the renewal of the North American Air Defence agreement with the U.S. for five years—signed before Mr. Trudeau became Liberal leader—suggested a foreign policy which would retain Canadian commitments.

Mr. Stanfield said NATO would deteriorate if Canada withdrew from the alliance.

Mr. Stanfield demanded an early and explicit statement by Mr. Trudeau on foreign policy.

The freshman prime minister said Wednesday that reshaping foreign policy is very important to him and that he will have ideas to present during the campaign. However, it would not be wise to introduce fundamental changes before the election.

He said he has a basic objection to the proliferation of nuclear weapons. The more countries which had such arms, the greater the danger of some trigger-happy nation starting a war.

The implication was that he may rid Canada of American nuclear weapons. In 1963, he called then Prime Minister Pearson the "unfrocked prince of peace" for accepting these weapons.

Defence Minister Cadieux returns today from a meeting of the NATO nuclear planning group, of which Canada is a permanent member. The group deals with how best to employ tactical nuclear weapons in the defence of Europe.

There are some 7,000 American tactical nuclear warheads in Europe, hundreds of which would be delivered by Canadian forces in a war.

Mr. Trudeau has said that he thinks Canada should concentrate more on North American air defence. But he has not spelled out what this might mean in acquisition of more jet interceptors or missiles.

He has also said, in regard to peacekeeping, that Canada cannot be the policeman for the entire globe.

This statement may undermine the policy of the Pearson administration which geared defence re-organization to peacekeeping.

Liberals, Conservatives and NDP are agreed on one aspect of foreign policy: foreign aid must be increased.

Mr. Trudeau has suggested that Canadian aid be more selective to have more impact. It should be more bilateral than multilateral.

More money for firemen

Sherbrooke firemen yesterday signed a collective work contract that will result in a 13 per cent increase in salaries for the rank of lieutenant down to recruit over a two-year period.

The contract was signed between city hall officials and members of the International Association of Firefighters of America, Sherbrooke Chapter 987.

Lieutenant Guy Choquette, chapter secretary said there will be a salary increase of seven per cent the first year and six per cent the second year.

The increase in salaries is retroactive to the beginning of last January when the work contract expired.

Lieutenant Choquette said the base pay for a raw recruit the first year will be $75 a week.

The salary could be increased to a maximum of $80 the second year.

A veteran firefighter with 60 months experience under his belt will be able to receive a maximum salary of $116 a week during the first year of the work agreement and $123 the second year.

Lieutenant Choquette emphasized that these figures applied only to the top-salaried firemen.

The work agreement also contains improvements in fringe benefits, annual holidays and civic holidays.

Lieutenant Choquette said firemen who work on civic holidays will be able to make up the time on other days. There will be a two-week holiday with pay for firemen with from one to 10 years experience with the force.

He said the average work week will be 42 hours a week. This figure was arrived at based on a four-week period.

Lieutenant Choquette said firemen work 13 hours on the night shift and 11 hours on the day shift which chalked up an average of 42 hours a week over a four-week period.

The collective work agreement signed by the firemen yesterday is identical to the one signed by public works employees several weeks ago.

The Sherbrooke firemen were represented by Theodore Lamoureux, president of the local chapter, Andre Dion, member of the chapter board and Guy Choquette, chapter secretary.

The city of Sherbrooke was represented by Charles Langlois, director of services, Olivier Routhier, city treasurer, and Nova Corriveau, director of personnel.

Work agreements still have to be negotiated with electrical employees, and city hall employees.

LBJ runs into money trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is running into trouble in its efforts to cut the U.S. international dollar drain this year by $3,000,000,000.

Some government officials already have conceded privately the goal in some areas of the program will be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to meet.

But perhaps the sourest note in the entire picture is the deteriorating trade position which officials blame on inflation at home, strikes and the threat of strikes, and what they call, excessive wage settlements.

The net result is a sharp rise in imports and a decline in the trade surplus.

President Johnson unveiled his new balance-of-payments program on New Year's Day in a fresh attempt to lick a perennial problem which produced a $3,700,000,000 deficit in 1967.

FORESEE IMPROVEMENT

Although exact figures won't be available until mid-May, officials now look for substantial improvement in the deficit for the first three months of this year compared with the last three months of 1967.

But the deficit in the prior quarter was $1,850,000,000 and there's little chance it will drop to the quarterly level prevailing before devaluation of the British pound last November.

The quarterly drain during the first three-quarters of last year ranged from $533,000,000 to $638,000,000.

Johnson's new program called for Congressional action on a variety of fronts but Congress

Clergy councils are in

OTTAWA (CP) — Most Rev. Jean-Marie Fortier, newly-appointed Roman Catholic Archbishop of Sherbrooke who takes up his new duties this weekend, said Wednesday he does not object in principle to the formation of associations of priests provided such organizations are "useful."

He noted that a number of dioceses now have pastoral councils grouping all the clergy of the diocese. "I can't see forming parallel associations, or unions, of priests, but I don't see any objection in principle."

He made the statement when asked to comment on the publication of an open letter arguing in favor of priests' unions such as those formed in the United States.

Archbishop Fortier, former Bishop of Gaspé, was appointed Tuesday to fill the Sherbrooke post left vacant by Most Rev. Georges Cabana who has retired.

He was interviewed during a reception given by the apostolic delegate to Canada, Msgr. Emanuele Clarizio, for bishops of the Canadian Catholic Conference who have been meeting here since Monday.

has yet to complete work on even one of them.

Passage of the proposed 10-per-cent income tax surcharge is the keystone of the entire program.

EXCISE TAX

The House of Representatives approved extension of the five-per-cent excise tax on airline tickets for international travel but deferred action on the major part of the travel program—a proposed tax on spending by U.S. tourists in other countries.

The government fared better administratively. Effective next week, foreign tourists will be eligible for a wide range of discounts on travel and accommodations—part of an attempt to attract more foreign tourists to help offset American spending abroad.

But trade now is the most worrisome aspect for government officials close to the balance-of-payments question.

Co-operation

MONTREAL (CP) — Rt. Rev. Msgr. Paul Gregoire, who was named archbishop of Montreal Monday, asked Wednesday for the co-operation of all the spiritual and intellectual resources of the Montreal diocese.

Msgr. Gregoire, 56, who will be consecrated May 22, also paid tribute at a press conference to Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, his predecessor, who retired in December to become a missionary priest in an African leper colony.

Troopers move

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroopers have moved close to the A Shau Valley in a new operation to cut off North Vietnamese supply and infiltration routes, military spokesmen said today.

The move could be the start of a major push against the North Vietnamese valley stronghold stretching 25 miles along the border of Laos in the northwest part of South Vietnam.

Block trade

WASHINGTON (CP) — A militant conservative U.S. youth group has established a formidable barrier to U.S. plans for building trade bridges to Eastern Europe.

Young Americans for Freedom, which calls itself "the nation's most active political youth organization," wants no truck nor trade with Communists.

An affiliate of the Republican party, it claims victories over two major names in American big business.

In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Jules Leger, Canadian ambassador to France, is still in Ottawa and an external affairs department spokesman said Wednesday it is not known when he will return to Paris.

Mr. Leger came home for consultation April 13, after France notified Quebec — but not Ottawa — of the April 22 date for resumption of an international education conference of 17 French-speaking nations.

Wallows in sea

Ontario's Progressive Conservative government was accused by a Liberal critic Wednesday of "wallowing in a sea of inefficiency."

James Trotter, Liberal health critic, told the legislature that health costs in the province are getting out of control.

Race controversy still rumbles in UK

LONDON (Reuters) — Controversy over race relations today continued to rumble through Britain as 39 immigration officers prepared to explain why they backed a call to ban colored immigration.

The officers, who admit immigrants at London's Heathrow Airport, signed a petition supporting Opposition MP Enoch Powell, fired as Conservative party defence spokesman for a controversial race speech.

Pledging Powell their support Wednesday, the men—supposedly bound by the Official Secrets Act—further embarrassed their home office superiors with charges that corruption is undermining efforts to enforce present immigration laws.

Home Secretary James Callaghan suspended one of their number and launched an investigation into the affair.

Minds in and out of the civil service seemed to boggle at such further immigration-officer statements as the admission by one of them that "we are biased" about immigrants when the officers are supposed to be impartial.

A public opinion poll issued said 82 per cent of 500 persons interviewed thought Powell was right when he called for the immigration ban and aid to colored people now in the country to leave.

Conservative Leader Edward Heath dismissed Powell after he made a speech in Birmingham Saturday in which he said Britain would flow with "rivers of blood" unless there was a clampdown on colored immigration.

STRIKES ABOUND

The racial issue also sparked token strikes by stevedores, meat workers and miners in support of Powell.

Allegro Unit of UCV plans May tea, sale

STANSTEAD — The Allegro Unit of Cenaryst Church met on April 9 at the home of Mrs. H. M. Cass with one guest attending. The leader, Mrs. Patrick Deslandes, conducted the devotional period, choosing the article, The Parable of an Empty Mind.

Communications included two thank-you letters and a letter from the foster boy, Jin Sung, in Korea.

The Praying Hands pens are proving most popular and it was reported that 47 out of 75 are sold. It was decided to order another 50 for the May tea and sale.

Plans were made for the salad tea and sale on May 11 in the church hall from 3 to 6 p.m. Members volunteered to be in charge of the mystery table, the home made food table and the treasure table, while others offered to help in connection with the tea.

Several items were turned in to Miss Arlene Probyn for the Wee Shoppe Christmas table. The project for the May meeting will be items for the Tiny Tot Shoppe of which Mrs. Stanley McMullan is the convener.

The next meeting will be held May 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. A. P. Gordon. The hostesses served refreshments.

Criminologists to educate public on drugs

The president of the Eastern Townships Criminology Society said yesterday the society hopes to sit down with other interested organizations in about a week to formulate a program to educate Sherbrooke's public on all aspects of today's 'drug cult.'

Optimists to boost bike safety

The Optimist Club of Lennoxville will conduct its annual Bike Safety Week from April 27 to May 4 this year. A bike inspection will be held on April 27 from 10 a.m. till noon at the Optimist Community Park. This inspection is conducted by the members of the Optimist Club together with members of the Lennoxville Police Force.

All children owning bikes are asked to bring them to the park for inspection. They will receive their safety sticker, if their bikes are in safe riding condition.

Children whose bikes do not pass inspection will be asked to have the defects corrected before they can receive their safety stickers. A copy of the rules and regulations of the bike safety code will be given to each child.

Optimist Doug Patrick is general chairman of the Bike Safety Week Activities. In conjunction with this program Cubs from the First and Second Lennoxville Cub Packs will be examined by Constable Ted Dewing, Lennoxville Police Force, for their cyclist badge.

Bike Safety Week is held each year by the Optimist Clubs of Canada and the U.S.A. to stress intelligent co-existence of motorists and children on our streets. All citizens of Lennoxville are urged to help observe this Safety Week in an effort to make Lennoxville streets safe for cyclists.

FOR RESEARCH WORK — The University of Sherbrooke's faculty of administration received a $20,000 grant yesterday from the Bombardier Foundation for research work in audio-visual educational aids. Above, Mrs. Yvonne Bombardier, widow of J. Armand Bombardier whom the foundation is named after, presents the $20,000 cheque to Michel Cloutier, assistant to the dean of the faculty of administration. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Bombardier grant is received

The University of Sherbrooke's faculty of administration received a $20,000 grant from the Bombardier Foundation yesterday for research work in audio-visual educational aids.

Michel Cloutier, assistant to the dean of the faculty of administration, said purchases have already begun for audio tapes and slides.

He said the audio-visual equipment will be standardized for work in the university.

Mrs. Yvonne Bombardier, widow of J. Armand Bombardier whom the foundation is named after, presented the $20,000 cheque to Mr. Cloutier in an informal ceremony at the administration pavilion yesterday afternoon.

In a press release Leon Bedard, university director of public relations, said the grant "marks the beginning of an important research project concerned with the potentials in education through the use of machines, tapes, films and other technical equipment and materials."

He said the donation will make it possible to do research into the availability and uses of such materials, and to develop ways in which they can be used most effectively both by business and educational institutions.

A key reason for the project is also to improve the facilities for using the French language in the field of business education.

Mr. Bedard said the world of business is deeply concerned about the effects of automation and technical changes, "but insufficient study has been done on the problems and opportunities presented by the new technologies to the field of edu-

He added local educators will call upon experts in the fields of television, broadcasting, business and theatre to answer questions regarding the new role of professors and classroom methods, when the new machinery is operational.

The letters incorporating the J. Armand Bombardier Foundation were filed on March 26, 1965.

The foundation has three major aims: to aid missionary work, to aid education, and to advance the social, cultural and domestic environment in Valcourt, Quebec, where the Bombardier Company is located.

In the educational field, the foundation earmarks finances for scholarships to worthy students and for research projects such as the one now launched at the University of Sherbrooke.

City road repairs beginning next week

City workers will begin to patch Sherbrooke streets next week on Monday or Tuesday, Charles Langlois, Director of Services, said yesterday during a telephone interview.

He stated "two gangs" will be working on the streets next week and the city's entire patching crew will be going "full blast" by May 6.

There is still frost in some streets so it would be no use to patch them up right away, Mr. Langlois explained, but the warm weather this past month will allow some patching next week, well ahead of the previously scheduled May 15.

The city budget allows $100,000 for patching the streets this year, he said, but when asked if this amount is sufficient considering the condition of the streets this year, he answered, "Let us hope."

He said the city spent about $100,000 in 1967 to do the work and about $98,000 in 1966.

However, he said every year is considered the worst before the patching begins because the condition of the roads is so noticeable to drivers.

The construction of a new home for the Clifford Bailey family is now well on the way to completion.

The funds for the new home, replacing the one which was destroyed by fire this winter, came mostly from Lennoxville citizens who contributed to the Clifford Bailey Fire Fund.

Men wait in cells without bail

Two Sherbrooke men were remanded to cells yesterday pending trial on a charge of entering a private home with the intention of committing a crime.

They appeared before Sessions Court Judge Roland Dugre.

Armand Grandbois, 27, and Pierre Genest, 27, pleaded not guilty upon arraignment to a charge of entering the home of Gerald Bishop, of Sherbrooke.

Both accused have lengthy criminal records and because of this Judge Dugre refused bail.

Grandbois is scheduled to appear in Sessions Court in May to face trial on five separate criminal charges.

Both were recently released from penitentiary.

Grandbois and Genest will appear pro forma next week.

Robert Maheux, 25, of Weedon, pleaded not guilty in Sessions Court yesterday to a charge of wilfully and voluntarily causing damage to private property.

The accused is alleged to have caused $250 damage to a car owned by Julien Audy, of Weedon.

Maheux was refused bail also.

Last December the accused was given a suspended sentence and ordered to post a $200 bond to keep the peace for two years after he pleaded guilty to a similar charge.

The amount of the damages was not reimbursed to the victim.

New Archbishop proves welcome appointment

The nomination of Msgr. Jean-Marie Fortier, Bishop of Gaspé, as Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Sherbrooke will be welcomed by residents of this district regardless of the religious denomination they support.

His selection is important for two reasons. He is the youngest man to be appointed to the position and thus will be able to tackle the many problems attached to his high office with vigor and with the reasonable hope of being able to carry out the many long-range projects which devolve upon the administrator of a constantly expanding archdiocese.

And equally important he classifies himself as a progressive and his record shows that he is a strong supporter of the ecumenical movement which seeks greater co-operation among all Christians in the advancement of their common interests.

Thus he will be a splendid successor to a worthy man, former Archbishop Georges Cabana, who has done much to remove those frictions and misunderstandings which too often arise between people of differing faiths.

Despite his comparative youth, the Archbishop-designate, has a record of great service to his church, serving in many parts of the world before his appointment as Auxiliary Bishop of St. Anne de la Pocatière and later as Bishop of Gaspé.

Don't be half-safe. Look BOTH ways before crossing the street.

Neutral voice needed

President Johnson is expressing exasperation with the North Vietnamese over their reluctance to accept his suggestions on a suitable site for the beginning of peace talks.

But to a degree he has only himself to blame.

He has declared that the United States would "go anywhere, any time" to open these talks but he has not only refused the first Hanoi suggestion — Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, but also the second proposal, Warsaw.

In return he offered four sites in neutral Asian countries, all of which were rejected by Hanoi.

Now, Washington has impatiently listed 10 more potential sites, six in Asia and four in Europe, but Washington diplomatic sources indicate they expect the talks will eventually begin in Paris, a city neither of the antagonists has yet mentioned.

Some such choice may be the only way to break the ridiculous impasse the Washington-Hanoi exchange has led to — reaching the point now where neither side wants to appear agreeable to any proposal from the other.

With President Johnson, the man who repeatedly said his emissaries would go anywhere, now digging his heels in and even adding a new condition that his allies must have access to the peace talks, the hopes of a meeting grow dimmer by the day.

Under these circumstances, the situation cries for a third party to volunteer its good offices in bringing the negotiators together.

In some of the emerging nations, the only accurate way to tell time is with a coup-coup clock.

Children at NATO bases have an advantage?

Wide-eyed youngsters of Canada's NATO forces in West Germany get a first-hand look at a foreign country under a unique defence department school system, a Canadian Press reporter learned during a recent visit to the NATO bases.

By JOHN LeBLANC

SOEST, West Germany (CP) — The morning's school bell may signal a visit to the parliament in Bonn, or to watch an ancient cobbler at his craft of fashioning wooden clogs.

Wide-eyed youngsters of Canada's NATO troops in Westphalia get a first-hand wrapup of a foreign country's geography, history and customs right from the kindergarten. They're seeing and doing things many of their contemporaries left at home will never experience in their whole lives.

For the 3,400 pupils attending a half-dozen defence department schools, studies of life in the host country are as much a part of the curriculum as the three Rs.

"We think we're giving them a plus in education that wouldn't be possible in Canada," says Don Vinge, who came here from Regina as a physical education instructor four years ago and now is area supervisor for schools of the 4th Infantry Brigade Group.

Vinge has 192 teachers in his organization, all of them except four Germans on loan from school boards across Canada. His instructions to them include:

"An appreciation of human thought and accomplishment beyond national borders, a broader social outlook and the ability to interpret the experience of other peoples must be fostered. We must not allow the opportunity to escape us or our pupils."

INHIBITS PLAN

A rotation system for teachers on a basic two-year cycle inhibits this idea somewhat. Just about when a teacher has got a German indoctrination, he or she is due to head back home. Mainly, this is because the Canadian boards don't want to part with such select personnel too long.

Another handicap of the educationist here is tight classroom accommodation. While the schools are mostly modern, there are not enough to go around.

About 800 pupils are still taught in converted barracks that were labelled "temporary" in 1960. In the last four years, five classrooms have been added to existing buildings while the school-age population has increased by 500.

A resulting major deficiency is in technical high school facilities. Students get a five-year academic or four-year commercial course.

But the bonuses for the Canadian students are many. Field trips fan out to innumerable spots of historic, industrial and cultural significance. Soest itself is charged with history, an old walled town whose past goes back to a Roman occupation.

BRIDGES GAPS

Walter Mout of West Vancouver runs a special programs department that tees up ideas for bridging the gaps between Canadian and German environments.

The youngsters may go to nearby Dortmund for opera; visit convenient art, science and mining museums; take in folk festivals and the like; have a look at Neanderthal man in a digging 1½ hours away; see a puppet or watch a bakery cranking out that yard-long German bread.

With financial help from the West German government, they participate in an institution called Schullandheim (school home in the country), where classes from German schools live together for a week in mountain or lake districts. About 500 Canadian small fry joined in last year at a net cost each of a mark (27 cents) a day.

These are only a few out of hundreds of doorways to learning opened to the Canadians.

"Aw, for Pete's sake!"

Summing it up

Teenagers left conference with more open mind on bilingualism

Perhaps the most constructive aspect of the recent Sherbrooke M-Y Club conference on Bilingualism and Biculturalism is that out-of-province teenagers left for home largely free of ideas that bilingualism and biculturalism wouldn't "feel at home" in their towns or provinces.

Approximately 130 teens attended the local conference which closed last Saturday, and 87 of the delegates were from outside of Quebec. During the first hours of the conference you could detect a feeling on the part of some Western province delegates that they definitely were not sold on the idea of a bilingual Canada. There was this impression: "What good would bilingualism be in an area where there are no French-Canadians?"

Yet as the young Canadians listened to speeches and batted ideas back and forth in the various workshops a more objective and open-minded approach began to emerge.

As Ben Hannan, executive-director of the local YM-YWCA says, the delegates "were honestly searching for back-home solutions."

The truth of this remark was brought out during a study session last Friday.

A young group leader from Western Canada asked the teenagers if they were simply going to forget about the conference when they returned home.

Immediately he was flooded with ideas on how to carry on the theme of the conference in the delegates' home towns and provinces. Some teens suggested holding radio programs to inform form the public of their Sherbrooke experience while others said it would be a great idea to invite French-Canadians to the west in student exchange programs.

Despite the spontaneous enthusiasm for cultural and linguistic links with French-Canada, one still couldn't help but think that the road ahead is a rocky one.

When reference was made to the Bilingualism and Biculturalism Report during a Friday afternoon workshop session, one delegate raised his eyebrows and asked, "what is it. I've never heard of it. . . . you must be from Ottawa. . . ."

And when the question was raised as to whether French-Canadians moving to Western Canada would be accepted as equals, one delegate replied that they would if they first learned to speak English.

But such opinions by no means dominated the conference.

In fact, an address by Claude Tibault, head of the History Department at Bishop's, which contained a message of mutual respect for all Canadians, sparked lively interest among the teens.

Mr. Hannan says as a result of their discussions the teens strongly opted for respect of other language groups and acceptance of the differences.

"The problem was not uniquely Quebec but also related to Polish, Swedish, German, Acadians and Canadian Indian groups."

One question kept popping up throughout the conference.

"How can we learn to speak French when there are no French-Canadians to speak to?"

The conference delegates strongly rapped the methods of teaching French in the provinces outside of Quebec.

And there were cries heard in Quebec before, pleading for more French-Canadians to teach their mother tongue in the English-speaking provinces.

Jean-Real Couture, a 19-year-old French-Canadian who learned English from his childhood playmates suggested out-of-province teens should form conversation groups, read French-language newspapers and watch television as much as possible.

An insight into the way of thinking of young French-Canadians was spelled out to the teenagers by a University of Sherbrooke student.

Normand Paquin said one of the root reasons for the present friction between some French and English-speaking Canadians is that the English think practically while the French think logically.

The youths sat attentively through this part of his address. Mr. Hannan, who spent most of his waking hours with them, summed up their attitude.

"The delegates, being English, saw separatism as impossible because it was impractical. But they saw it (separatism), as logical in terms of the expression of the French-Canadian population being recognized as an integral part of Canada."

TEN YEARS AGO

Girls of all ages performed at the MacKinnon Memorial Building in the YWCA in Review. The show opened with a swimming review consisting of several musical routines including an impressive candlelight number and a demonstration of strokes and parts of the life-saving drill.

The review also featured singing, dancing, gymnastic work and skits.

The greatest crowd pleasers seemed to be the singing by the nursery school class and a YWCA ski put on by the residence girls.

KNOWLTON LANDING — The annual meeting of the Knowlton Landing branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Gardiner Westover with the president, Mrs. Claude George in charge of the meeting.

Officers for the coming year were re-elected by acclamation. The treasurer, Mrs. P. O. R. Knowlton gave her report for the past year. It was decided to invite county president, Mrs. Walter Westover and Mrs. Cowan, the county secretary to visit the group at the next meeting. Mrs. Westover served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — People who call for a basic revision of the direction of our foreign policy as a response to what they consider to be major changes in the Soviet system should take note of a brief news item from Moscow which appeared in the papers.

The supreme court of the Russian Republic, the dispatch said, rejected appeals against the conviction and sentencing last January of four young intellectuals who dared to criticize the totalitarian nature and practices of the Soviet regime.

Three of the four — Yuri Galanskov, Alexander Ginsburg and Alexei Dobrovolsky — who committed the "crime" of speaking their mind about the notorious trial of writers Sinyavsky and Daniel, were sentenced to seven, five and two years respectively.

The supreme court not only confirmed the savage punishment, but also turned its wrath on one of the defence lawyers for actually trying to defend the client assigned to him by the state in the Soviet mockery of justice.

As in the previous literary trials, this latest farce of "socialist legality" was neither public nor wholly secret. Western correspondents were barred and the handful of relatives of the defendants and officially approved spectators were forbidden to take notes, presumably to prevent the emergence of another "white book" comparable to that smuggled out by Ginsburg on the Sinyavsky-Daniel trial.

Little confidence in justice

Clearly the Soviet regime has little confidence in its own justice if it fears the publication of an uncensored account of the proceedings.

The action of the supreme court of the Russian Republic furnishes the latest proof of the narrow limits of the so-called "liberalization" of the Communist system. It shows that despite all its protestations of "democratization," the one-party dictatorship cannot depart too far and for any length of time from its course of suppression of the freedoms which on paper are guaranteed by the constitution.

What we are witnessing in the various stages of intellectual ferment behind the Iron Curtain are cycle phases of a vicious circle which keeps on widening and contracting but cannot move away from its totalitarian centre.

The process started with Khrushchev's denunciation of Stalin's excessive brutality. This first attempt to give the dictatorship a greater flexibility in meeting its changing economic and social needs encouraged a few daring intellectuals to press for more reforms than the regime could safely tolerate.

When these pressures overstepped the very limited boundaries of the intended "liberalization," Khrushchev's successors had to tighten the screws again. Not right down to the mark where Stalin and Beria kept them, but enough to intimidate the freedom seekers.

The same thing happened in Poland and Hungary. In Czechoslovakia, Mr. Dubcek's recent warning that the Communist Party will not tolerate the extent of criticism which accompanied the downfall of the Novotny regime indicates that in Prague, too, the screws of totalitarianism will be tightened again.

While it is true that these pulsations of the vicious circle from which one-party dictatorship cannot escape without committing political suicide are slowly improving the life of the nations behind the Iron Curtain, they do not as yet have any appreciable effect on Soviet policy of Communist expansion and certainly do not warrant any basic change in the concept of Western collective security which 20 years ago led to the creation of NATO.

Naive and dangerous

It would be naive and dangerous to conclude from the very limited and carefully controlled Communist "liberalization" process that the Soviet threat has declined to the vanishing point.

As US Ambassador Harland Cleveland put it in one of his lectures to the NATO Defence College: "Those who tell us the Soviets are now irreversible, we have the bly peaceful in their intent (while steadily increasing their military capability) are not in a position to guarantee their predictions.

"Only the Western allies as a group can together make the prophecy self-fulfilling (for) Soviet society and its derivative, Soviet foreign policy, are changing partly because of Western deterrence and Western contagion. As progenitors of this progress, we have the right and duty to measure carefully the rate of change.

Sweetsburg Courts:

Judge declares youth hostile

SWEETSBURG WARD — (Staff) — Sessions Court Judge Guy Genest declared Bruce Benoit, 16, South Stukely, a hostile witness, following testimony as a Crown witness in the joint case of Reed and Larry Coulombe, South Stukely, accused of having stolen a bicycle valued at $40 in Bromont, April 9. Benoit was remanded to cells pending continuation of the trial, April 26.

Benoit, under questioning by Crown Prosecutor Claude Noisieux, said that he could not understand "the long words in French" that the Social Welfare Judge posed April 22.

Crown prosecutor Noisieux, obviously irked, attempted to have Benoit commit himself to the truth, as did Defence Counsel Jacques Meunier. The joint effort only made Benoit more confused, and resulted in Judge Genest sentencing him to three days.

Bench warrants were issued for Alton Warden, of Granby, and Wendell Perry, Bedford, wanted on charges of impaired driving.

Hugh Salisbury, Sutton, and Normand Briere, of Marieville, pleaded not guilty to charges of impaired driving. Their cases will be heard May 7.

Fernand Leduc, Farnham, pleaded guilty to a charge of having committed an indecent act in Farnham, on April 13. Crown Prosecutor Claude Noisieux suggested a fine of $100 and costs.

Judge Genest imposed the suggested sentence and warned Leduc not to appear before him on a similar charge.

Michel Bachand, 18, Granby, pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering, theft of a rifle and ammunition and possession of an illegal firearm.

Defence Counsel Yves Lagace told Judge Genest that Bachand, a first offender, had shortened the shot gun himself, some six months before the burglary took place. Mr. Lagace asked for the clemency of the court and suggested a suspended sentence.

Sunday School takes part in Easter service

MANSONVILLE — At 11 a.m. on Easter Sunday, the United Church was filled when Rev. Edwin J. McDonald announced the processional hymn, Crown Him with Many Crowns and the Senior choir proceeded into the church, followed by sixty children of the Sunday School, who each placed a crown in the sanctuary, symbolically crowning the Lord Jesus.

The antiphonal reading entitled, Christ Our Passover, was given after Angela Mabel Gay George, three-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keyworth George was baptized.

Received into full membership in the church were: Mrs. Hilmar Krausser, on the basis of study group participation and letter of transfer from St. John's Lutheran Church, Montreal; Michael Lee, on the basis of study with the minister and profession of faith and Mr. and Mrs. Robin Wall, on the basis of study group participation and profession of faith.

Other hymns used during the service were Jesus Christ Is Risen To-day and The Strife Is O'er. Mr. McDonald preached on The Doctrine of the Real Presence.

The senior choir sang resurrection Dawn in four part harmonies. Then those who desired, participated in the sacrament of Holy Communion.

The church was beautifully decorated with potted lilies, mums and roses.

pending sentence for the first offender.

Judge Genest suspended sentence for two years.

Judge Genest reserved sentence in the case of Brian Souva, Knowlton, who pleaded guilty April 16 to a charge of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace.

Defence Counsel Jacques Meunier told Judge Genest that he had talked to Doctor Hugh Miller who said that he would admit Souva to the Foster Alcohol Rehabilitation Clinic, as soon as a vacancy occurred probably within a week. Mr. Meunier suggested that Souva be freed on bond pending admission to the clinic.

Crown Prosecutor Claude Noisieux objected, stating that Souva had discharged a rifle in his home and that there was no way of preventing a similar act if he was freed.

Mr. Meunier then said that Mrs. Souva was willing to help her husband and suggested that sentence be deferred to a later date.

Judge Genest said he suspended his sentence until April 30 and freed Souva on probation.

Clifford Buzzell, Eastman, pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering in Eastman and theft of a record player and a pair of boots, valued at $100, the property of Maurice Legault. Buzzell admitted to having been accompanied by a juvenile in the burglary. Crown Prosecutor Claude Noisieux suggested that sentence be suspended until April 30. Judge Genest freed Buzzell on probation until that date.

Jean Croteau, 18, of St. Etienne de Bolton, pleaded guilty to a charge of dangerous driving in Bromont, April 19. Crown Prosecutor Noisieux suggested a fine of $50 and costs and suspension of Croteau's driver's permit for one month.

Judge Genest imposed the suggested fine, but extended the suggested suspension to three months, and told Croteau "learn to drive safely in the future." He was granted 30 days to pay the fine, or a month in jail.

SPACE AGE TRAINING DISCUSSED: Robert C. Stacey, management director at The Space Research Institute Inc., Highwater, discussed the needs of space age training at the Cowansville Industrial Management Club's April meeting.

Space age training discussed

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — Employee training in the space age was the topic and address by Bob Stacey, manager of the Space Research Institute's Highwater Laboratory, to the Cowansville Industrial Management Club's monthly meeting at the Maurice Hotel, Tuesday.

Mr. Stacey outlined the history of the institute, from the days when founder Doctor Gerry Bull blew out windows at McGill and MacDonald, to the proposed orbital flight of a Martlet rocket manufactured at Highwater and expected to be completed this year.

Mr. Stacey said that there were noises of derision when it was proposed that the laboratory employ natives of the Townships, from people who had no knowledge of the initiative and native intelligence of the local populace.

Mr. Stacey said that as they were inducted into a necessary training program, they progressed rapidly, and often with more flexibility of thought than city trained technicians.

"The latter were loath to adapt quickly to changing methods of operation, while the Townshippers flourished in the same circumstances."

Persons who had minimal education and little sophisticated job experience, found themselves conducting tests on space suits used in the Gemini program, he said.

The suits were tested for absorption and rejection of space dust and fragmentation impact in the hypervelocity gun at the Highwater laboratory, said the speaker.

One example of the training was that a person, who had previously handled cameras of the simplest nature, took photographs of the suit testing at a rate of more than four million frames per second, he said.

Mr. Stacey emphasized that all the photographs and charts displayed to the club members were products of the laboratory and executed by persons trained on site.

He singled out the specialized work done in the laboratory machine shop as another example of proper training and adaptability. The precision work done at Highwater, such as extending gun barrels has been attempted by the British, French and American authorities, without success, yet Township technicians have mastered the art, said Mr. Stacey.

This indicates that the technicians are adaptable to change, and as we enter the space age, management must change to keep up with the times.

Mr. Stacey said that the takeover of the Institute, by Norwich University, Northfield, Vermont, would effect the economics of the local area for a while, but that he hoped that purchases would return to the annual level of about $1,500,000 shortly. It is expected that the institute will increase the number of employees from approximately 100, to nearly 200 during this summer. Vacancies will be filled on a basis of competency, whether the applicant is Canadian or American.

A lively discussion period followed. Mr. Gordon Staton, RCA, introduced Mr. Stacey and Archie Dryden of Vilas thanked him.

Mr. Richard Parent has returned home after a trip to Europe.

Mr. Paul Brault spent a week in Brantford, Ont.

Mrs. Lois Green has returned home after undergoing a heart operation.

RECORD'S switch to OFFSET PRINTING!

LAYOUT AND DESIGN
'What A Beauty!' he said

By Howard B. Taylor

January 22 was a big day in Sherbrooke, Quebec. The Daily Record, 3,000 p.m. in a city of 75,000, went off. And went from a nine-column format to an eight-column format.

"Reader reaction has been just terrific," says Hugh Doherty, the editor in chief. "One subscriber telephoned me one afternoon to exclaim 'What a beautiful paper!'"

The old look-type abandoned in, type setting and tagging all over the place, art reproducing faithfully — in upper left.

The old page was 9 1/2 inches wide, after shrinkage. The new one is 9 1/8, after a 5 per cent shrinkage on the camera.

Body type was 8 on 9 in the old. It's 9 on 9 1/4 in the new. Even with the shrinkage, the new body type is almost a point larger, giving readers another readability bonus.

Harmonizing weights of Times are still used. The Times head in the old look is 96 point. The biggest head in the new page is 72.

Let's let Mr. Doherty describe the details:

— "We reduced the size of the page 1 namplate (long overline)."

— "Removed all heads and horns from leadings, standing and otherwise. They now are on our far hidden list."

— "Increased space between leadings and stories all around, with the word out that we want the pages to breathe."

— "Removed underlines from kickers throughout the paper. At the same time, cut down on use of kickers."

— "Dropped editorial cutoffs, except where considered absolutely necessary."

— "We play pictures big whenever possible, with lots of white space around them."

— "Block-type makeup, which is basic for main-news pages, introduced throughout paper where possible."

Three color spots enliven the new page. The PC head (not the kicker), the "Fight fire" head and its body type and the seven-column line across the bottom. The color is orange.

There are three Ben-Day reverses, one being the skyline. Mr. Doherty, try a simple type set someday, instead of the reverses, just to see how it feels. But the news briefs head is vastly to be favored over the Gay Nineties head "World News" in the old page.

The star dashes in the news briefs really sell no press. Plain, clean, original old white space would do the separation job better.

It would have been neat to shove to far right the element consisting of the seven-column line and the two-column picture. That would put strong elements in upper left and in lower right.

But, why not pick? The improvements are here for all to see.

And you the faint-hearted. You who are afraid about heads in the all-down style:

"Downstyle heads were introduced in the Daily Record eight years ago," Mr. Doherty writes. "Can't imagine why old style still persists elsewhere."

"Any kind of modern makeup without down style just isn't modern, in my opinion."

Double Problem: Itchy Wool, Old Sheets

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Can anyone tell me what I can do about my little girl's wool skirts as she complains about them irritating her skin when she wears them? Also, another question: I have some old sheets that are beyond repair for using as such but still are too good to throw away. Can anything be done with them? Any suggestions will be greatly appreciated.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—I save my old lightweight plastic tablecloths, shower curtains and window curtains to use for making kindergarten art aprons. Those with designs make pretty ones. I fold the plastic and cut them out, with or without sleeves, all in one piece. Cut out the neck and split down the back. This can be done with the pinky shears. Add strips of bias tape at the back of the neck to tie it on in place. Snaps could be sewn on if one preferred. If you do not have a sewing machine, the side and sleeve seams can be held together with adhesive-backed mending tape. When the aprons become soiled I just wipe them off with a damp cloth.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—My husband has been ill with a heart condition for about two months. He was so tired of bed baths and wanted to take a shower as soon as he was allowed to walk about. Naturally he was weak and unsteady on his feet and I was afraid he would not be able to stand alone or that he might slip and fall. I solved this by putting a folding yard chair (aluminum with plastic webbing) in the shower stall. He could sit down and shower in safety and he did feel much better and so refreshed. There was no danger of losing his balance while trying to lean over and wash his feet.—MRS. M. F. L.

DEAR READERS—After receiving your doctor's permission for the shower it might be well to take the added precaution of putting a nonskid rubber bath mat under the chair before the convalescent goes into the shower stall.—POLLY (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Ponchos and frilled matador shirts vie with cottons in casual fashions

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (CP) — As you would expect, color and Spanish influence dominate the Texas fashion industry. Colorful ponchos and frilled matador shirts vie with simple little cottons for the casual Texan life.

Texas has a thriving fashion business, with Dallas as its home base, situated in a modern five-story building with permanent showrooms. This year the Texas Fashion Creators Association held its 18th press week in San Antonio, in conjunction with HemisFair, the first world's fair in the southwestern United States, which opened April 6.

Naturally HemisFair has inspired many of the Texas designers. This was especially noticeable in the gay prints. Earl R. Shepard even included an abstract print, representative of the fair, for a bikini and cover-up set. The arches of the Convention Centre inspired a black-and-white vertical print by Kohen-Ligon-Folz.

Spanish lime and hot pinks were favorite shades in all the collections. Much was made, too, of pandemics and carefree fabrics for HemisFair promenading.

Colorful and Latin American are the circular fringed cotton ponchos in gay designs. One poncho-blouse by Fem-Form is an Aztec-inspired print. It was worn with orange dacron-and-cotton pants. The matador theme appeared in a cotton ottoman cape over an A-line dress and in a pale blue matador shirt, befruffed in white around a vestee effect and around the bell sleeves, worn over matching ankle pants. Both are by the 40-year-old Dallas firm of Donovan-Galvani.

DIRNDLS IN DEMAND
Dirndl skirts have become popular everywhere and Texan designers showed many styles. Especially effective were those by Jo Hardin, including a cotton houndstooth wrap dirndl teamed with a ruffle-sleeved voile shirt and a rayon-and-silk, bias-cut dirndl topped by a pocketed shirt. Also in the world fashion news and important in the Texan collections is the shirt shift. Many of them are in dacron-and-cotton and sell for as low as $12. Several sport appliqued motifs were used on the skirts, including a Texan sun.

Also popular for Texan casual life are jumpsuits and Jamaican-length playsuits with contrast-color skirts or with reversible color-to-print wrap skirts. Mr. Fine has a pant-dress series he calls a Deck Set. One beige set has orange-and-green stripes from the neckline down one pant, with the other pant leg in horizontal stripes. Another was a white mini-skirt over pink-edged bloomers. These sports clothes were all under $20.

Cotton ottoman, Moynashel linen and silk prints were featured in the daytime collections. Ruffle trims were used sparingly, except for ruffled skirts in the evening group.

Mike Benet's fitted Empire dress of organdy over taffeta was ruffled down the back in six tiers of lace.

Safety tips for sun tanning at home

How often has your first sunny summer weekend been spoiled by a painful ugly sunburn? You can avoid beginning your summer like this by getting a head start with a sun lamp. If you tan in the sun, you can use a sun lamp safely. But remember, at close quarters, the intensity of a sun lamp is several times that of the mid-summer sun, so keep your distance!

The closer you are to the lamp the shorter you stay under it, say experts. They advise that if your lamp is thirty inches away, stay under it for just six minutes. At three feet, you can take nine minutes; at four feet, 15 minutes and at five feet you can bask in the sunlight for 29 minutes.

Remember though, if you have sensitive skin, sunburn easily, or if you have just bathed, take less time for the first exposure. As your skin becomes tanned you can lengthen the time under your sun lamp. If you like, use your regular sun tan lotion, and be sure to wear your sunglasses.

That School Lunch

If you're on a diet and your school cafeteria is geared for the football team, take your own lunch. Remember when you count the calories to add the value of mustard, butter, relish and catsup. You can buy whole milk in school, but if you need nonfat milk bring it in a thermos.

Help Keep Your Diet

If it's lunch or dinner at a restaurant and you're dieting safe choices for appetizers include tomato, clam or sauerkraut juice, fruit cup or one-half grapefruit or a shrimp cocktail with lemon juice, clear consommé or bouillon. Main dishes might be any roasted or broiled meat or chicken, fish or main dish salad. For dessert choose fresh fruit, small serving of ice cream or gelatin.

THEY'RE ADJUSTABLE

Insurance firm must pay claim

Mr. Justice Louis - Philippe Cliche in a Superior Court judgment issued yesterday ruled that the Canadian Fire Insurance Co. of Montreal must pay $8,000 to a Racine hotel owner as a result of a fire which gutted a barn and farmhouse owned by the plaintiff on Range 2, Melbourne.

John Dutilly, the plaintiff, was found not guilty of arson by a twelve-man jury when he faced trial in March.

Benoit Laplante, who was living on the farm at the time of the fire, pleaded guilty in Sessions Court to intentionally starting the fire.

In testimony at the assizes trial Laplante said the plaintiff offered him $200 to commit arson.

Because of inconsistency in Laplante's testimony both at the preliminary hearing and at the trial, Dutilly was found innocent. The insurance company involved, after hearing this testimony, contested the plaintiff's claim.

QUEBEC SCENE:

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said in the legislature Wednesday he will investigate the publication in a Quebec government magazine of an article on Dr. Robert E. Liefmann of Montreal and his claim to have discovered a cure for arthritis.

The premier was replying to a question from Dr. Victor Goldbloom, Liberal MLA for the Montreal riding of D'Arcy McGee, who asked why "publicity of this nature" was given to Dr. Liefmann, "who claims to have found a miracle cure for arthritis."

Dr. Goldbloom said Dr. Liefmann "exploits the public by selling his medication without examination and even by mail, by permitting an assistant who is not a doctor to treat patients during his vacations of several weeks, by refusing to submit his medication to the federal food and drug directorate for analysis, and by refusing to open the files on his patients for verification by the scientific world."

First reading

QUEBEC (CP) — The legislative assembly Wednesday gave first reading to Opposition Leader Jean Lesage's bill to abolish the legislative council, upper house of the provincial legislature.

The private member's bill will likely die on the assembly order paper, the fate of an identical bill introduced by Mr. Lesage during the first session of the present legislature.

mon drug program should also be centered around an educational structure.

Mr. Lizee's interest in the Y's work is reserved as he said he would seek Mr. Bougie's advice tonight before deciding whether the drug education program should be expanded into a widespread effort, incorporating other organizations.

The recent moves of the Regional School Commission, the Centre d'action familiale and the Eastern townships Regional Criminology Society, indicates a snowballing interest in the drug situation in Sherbrooke, following the Y's spade work earlier this year.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Jim Bunning stops Dodgers as Cards wallop Reds 7-0

Jim Bunning made it home safely after a cold night in Pittsburgh but Curt Flood was turned away at the gate after a hot time in St. Louis.

Bunning posted his first pitching victory at home as a Pirate Wednesday night, subduing Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 in frigid Forbes Field with late-inning relief help from Elroy Face.

Flood, the National League's hottest hitter, drove in five runs with two singles and a triple as the Cardinals slugged Cincinnati Reds 7-0—but failed to score for the first time in 13 games this year.

Three other scheduled NL games were postponed because of bad weather.

Bunning yielded a three-run homer by Jim Lefebvre in the first inning and then blanked the Dodgers until the eighth, when he aggravated a pulled groin muscle and left the game.

The victory was Bunning's second of the young season against one set-back. He beat the Dodgers 3-0 at Los Angeles, then lost to San Francisco 5-2 at home last Saturday before Wednesday night's struggle, which began in 43 degree weather and ended with the thermometer at 38.

NOTCHES WINNER
Gene Alley reached first on an error by Dodgers shortstop Zoilo Versalles in the sixth inning, moved around on Roberto Clemente's single and a ground out and scored the tie-breaking run on Bill Mazeroski's second sacrifice fly of the game.

Flood stroked a two-run single in the second inning, singled another run across in the sixth and lashed a two-run triple in the eighth as the Cardinals breezed to their third straight victory behind the five-hit pitching of Ray Washburn.

The St. Louis centre fielder's run-scoring streak ended five games short of the National League record, set by Ted Kluszewski in 1954, when he was cut down at the plate trying to stretch his triple into an inside-the-park homer.

Steve Hargan stops Tigers on one-hitter, Angels win

Steve Hargan was twice as good as Clyde Wright and neither was very good for the batting averages of Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators.

Hargan hurled a brilliant one-hitter Wednesday night as Cleveland Indians ended Detroit's nine-game winning streak 2-0. A couple of hours later, Wright gave up two hits, pitching California Angels to a 6-1 victory over Washington.

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles ripped Minnesota Twins 7-3 and Oakland Athletics tripped New York Yankees 4-3 in 11 innings. Hargan faced only 28 batters, permitting just two walks and Jim Northrup's leadoff single in the third. He struck out seven.

HORTON INJURED

Hargan also scored Cleveland's second run of the game when left fielder Willie Horton and shortstop Ray Oyler collided under his pop fly in the seventh inning and the ball fell for a triple. Leon Wagner's pinch single drove in the run.

Horton was carried off the field on a stretcher and preliminary examination showed he had suffered a concussion. He was taken to Shaker medical centre for further examinations.

Wright didn't look like he'd survive the first inning against the Senators. He walked the leadoff batter, surrendered a single to Hank Allen and then walked the next two hitters, forcing in a run.

Hawks face elimination tonight, Habs have too much depth—Reay

CHICAGO (CP) — Toe Blake sat in the stands at Chicago Stadium and read the daily racing form while Billy Reay discussed the Kentucky Derby as he relaxed in his small office.

There was little hockey talk in the arena Wednesday, although the temperature dropped to 37 degrees outside and a howling wind tossed snowflakes about. Most of the Montreal Canadiens players went through a light skating and shooting drill at 9:30 a.m.

Gump Worsley, the veteran Montreal goaltender, wandered into the stadium to watch the workout and offer off-hand remarks.

MONEY SERIES
"It's the money now and that's what we're after," said Worsley. "Ten grand, that's going to be pretty good for less than two months work."

It was one of the few mentions made during the long dreary days of the National Hockey League's best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series that continues tonight with Montreal leading Chicago Black Hawks 3-0.

A number of fringe Black

Hawk players straggled onto the ice about 11 a.m. and panted-mined a light practice.

A win tonight will give Montreal a sweep of the quarter-final and semi-final series in eight straight games.

Only one team has rebounded from a 3-0 deficit to win the Stanley Cup series in more than 20 years. Toronto Maple Leafs did it in 1942.

Reay, although anxious to get to the horse races, extolled the greatness of the Montreal club, conceding that his Hawks can't overcome the depth of the Canadiens.

"I'll rate them with any of the great Montreal clubs including the 1946 cup winner and I'll say this one has greater scoring ability," Reay said.

The game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. CST and will be televised by the CBC national network. A fifth game, if necessary, will be played in Montreal Sunday afternoon.

Injuries hurting as Blues and Stars meet

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Holding to a schedule for the National Hockey League semi-final play-off between St. Louis Blues and Minnesota North Stars is becoming a complicated chore.

The traditional alignment, giving one team four home games and the other three, had to be thrown out because Minnesota's home ice was occupied this week by an ice show.

The North Stars were forced to accept a schedule calling for five games in the best-of-seven series to be played in St. Louis. The third game in the series, tied at 1-1, is here tonight at 8 p.m. CST.

The North Stars won at home Monday to tie the series after losing the opener here Sunday.

Now the teams could play the fourth and fifth games on consecutive days, depending on the outcome of tonight's other semi-final Stanley Cup game between Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago at 7:30 p.m. CST.

If the Canadiens eliminate the Black Hawks, then the game scheduled here Saturday night would have to be played at 1 p.m. CDT Sunday to fulfil a television commitment with the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The fifth game is scheduled for Monday night.

The NHL contract with CBS demands a game every Sunday afternoon until completion of the Stanley Cup playoffs regardless of previous scheduling.

Coach Scotty Bowman of St. Louis isn't too happy at the prospect of back-to-back games for the second time in a week, but manager-coach Wren Blair of Minnesota isn't dismayed at the thought.

"It may even help us," he said Wednesday night after bringing his team here. "They've got a lot more older players than us and it could make a big difference if they have to play two games that close."

Blair is happy about the physical condition of his players compared with those of St. Louis.

"(Bill) Collins is the only player we won't dress," he said.

Collins suffered a cut elbow ligation in the series opener and is expected to be lost for the season.

"We have some other injuries, but I'm not going to discuss them—I don't want to tell the other team about them."

Scotty Bowman named NHL Coach-of-the-Year

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Young men looking ahead are making St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League tick, but the one team is most proud of is Scotty Bowman.

It was announced Monday that the 33-year-old bachelor from Montreal had been named NHL Coach-of-the-Year by Hockey News, a weekly sports publication.

"I'm just elated at the choice," said Sid Solomon III, executive vice-president of the club and only 30 himself.

Bowman, just finishing a two-year gentleman's agreement—he has no contract with the club, came to St. Louis as assistant general manager and assistant coach to Lynn Patrick, who held top spot in both categories.

But with the season 16 games old and the Blues last in the six-team Western Division, Patrick decided it was too big a load to handle both jobs and turned the coaching over to Bowman.

WOEFUL RECORD
That was Nov. 22 and their won-lost-tied record was 4-10-2.

So with nowhere to go but up, that's where they went.

The Blues and Minnesota North Stars are tied at one game apiece in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals with the third game set for 8 p.m. CST here tonight.

Bowman's was a modest reaction to the award.

"It's just been a matter of trying," he said Wednesday.

"First we just hoped to make the playoffs, then we hoped to beat Philadelphia (Flyers), now we're hoping to get into the Stanley Cup finals.

"It took us until the 73rd game (of a 74-game schedule) to make the playoffs and seven games to beat the Flyers in the quarter-finals. But that's the way it's been going."

The Blues wound up third in the league and had to go against the division-champion Flyers in the first playoff round, blowing a 3-1 lead in games be-available just at the right time to help us win the quarter-final and through the year we've been able to build some real depth on the club."

Solomon added: "They (the team) responded to him."

"He makes great moves as a coach and has a real understanding, not only of his own team's abilities, but also those of the other teams."

New schedule is released by City Parks Department

The Sherbrooke Parks Department has released a new schedule for the rest of April, May and June at Assumption, Montcalm and Ste. Jeanne d'Arc gyms.

The three gyms will be at the disposal of the public with physical directors in charge. Each evening during the week, Monday till Friday, the classes will be divided into two sections at all three places.

The classes will commence at 7:00 till 8:30 with the second taking over finishing at 10 p.m. Indoor hockey, ping-pong, basketball, and badminton and physical conditioning are on the program.

Pierre Remillard, Francois Mercier, Mrs. Claude Joubert and Andre Lord will be in charge of the courses. Guy Rousseau will attend to the table tennis and can be reached at 567-0935 for further information. Paul - Emile Grenier is the manager of the Ste. Jeanne d'Arc Centre.

SCOTTY BOWMAN

fore taking the seventh game of a brawl-filled series that included two overtime contests.

"It's been a gratifying year," he said. "But we've had good goaltending and good breaks."

"Glenn Hall has been outstanding and Dickie Moore gave us the lift when we needed it in December, then came back in February to help us again through the stretch and the playoffs."

Estevan Bruins blank Penticton Broncos 3-0

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — A bristling Scotty Munro ordered early practice for his Estevan Bruins today following their 3-0 victory over Penticton Broncos Wednesday night in the Western Memorial Cup hockey finals.

"We played about a tenth of what we should have," the general manager complained after the game, first in the best-of-seven junior series. "I was very disappointed."

Bruins went into the game as favorites and Munro made it clear he agreed with this index-ment of Broncos: "If this is the best hockey club in British Columbia then B.C. is about 90 years behind the times."

Broncos manager George Stoll contended sheer bad luck prevented Broncos showing better. Broncos Dale McBain and Ken Conner both hit goalposts in a fruitless third-period rally.

Jim Harrison, a four-year veteran and most valuable player in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, scored the winning goal in the first period and another late in the second.

Dale Hoganson, who assisted on Harrison's first goal at 19:53 of the first period before 2,800 fans, scored himself after one minute of the second. Gary Braun helped on Harrison's second goal.

"Our boys played a good game," said Stoll. Munro's assessment was that the B.C. junior A champions matched Lakehead teams but were "no better than one of the Prairie junior B teams."

Cardigan Bay favored over Golden Blend

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP) — Cardigan Bay, harness racing's amazing 12-year-old gelding, starts his campaign tonight for the last $50,000 he needs to become the first standardbred ever to win $1,000,000.

Among those disputing his progress is Golden Blend, a five-year-old stallion from Montreal.

Both are entered in the $50,000 International Pace, worth $25,000 to the winner.

Old CB is the favorite in the eight-horse field; Golden Blend one of the outsiders.

Cardigan Bay runs as an entry tonight with Cardinal King. Together with Southern Song, they represent New Zealand.

FAVORED AT 8-5

Cardigan Bay and Cardinal King are favored at 8-5; First Lee is a 5-2 second choice with Adios Vic picked for third at 3-1.

However, Old CB the favorite and longshot Golden Blend have something in common—both have met the great Romulus Hanover and while Cardigan Bay lost to him, Golden Blend beat him.

The hostesses, Mrs. Geoffrey Doherty and Mrs. Ed Comeau served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held May 1 at the home of Mrs. Carol Farnam and members are reminded to bring plants and slips for the sale.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

The opening event of each national bridge championship is a nationwide charity game in which players all over the country play the same hands. These hands are predealt by computer and, since each player is competing against his own group, the top score for the country is likely to go anywhere and usually does go to some small town.

West will open the king of spades and, while South won't like his slam contract, he should make it.

The play isn't really very complicated. He must win the spade lead and play a trump. West will show out and South will have to decide to end-play West if he wants to make his contract. The end play develops if South plays dummy's ace and king of hearts and times the whole play so that he will ruff two of dummy's hearts and eventually play out all dummy's trumps in order to wind up with the jack of spades and ace-deuce of clubs in dummy and three clubs to the queen in his own hand.

West will be down to the queen of spades and king-jack of clubs, and South will throw West in with the king of spades. West will have to lead a club and South will make his slam.

The bidding in the box shows how a mere three-spade opening by West leads to a diamond slam by South.
