Father of Confederation did it

Allard not first to vote against own government

By CUTHBERT JONES
(Record Staff Writer)

The action of Sherbrooke Progressive Conservative Maurice Allard in voting against the Government in the House of Commons earlier this week is not the first time a Sherbrooke representative has kicked up his heels against the administration of which he was a supposed supporter.

In the days immediately following Confederation, Sir Alexander T. Galt, MP for Sherbrooke, one of the Fathers of Confederation and Minister of Finance in the John A. MacDonald cabinet split with his chief over questions of fiscal policy.

No change in imports on textiles

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming made clear Friday that Canadian policy on imports of Japanese textiles won't change, even if a new international agreement on cotton textiles goes into effect.

In a Commons statement, he also indicated the government has reservations about a proposal in the agreement calling for automatic annual increases in the level of controlled textile imports.

Mr. Fleming outlined the terms of the arrangement proposed at a 19-nation conference in Geneva which ended Feb. 9. It provides for a five-year period during which restrictions on international trade in cotton textiles would be gradually eased. Subject to agreement by the countries concerned, it would take effect next Oct. 1.

VOLUNTARY QUOTAS

Canada doesn't impose its own import controls on cotton goods, but for a number of years has negotiated with Japan for voluntary export quotas to be imposed by Japan on textiles and other products from that country. Quota levels for 1962 have been under negotiation for several weeks.

The proposed international agreement calls for annual increases of five per cent in that kind of quotas.

In the Canada-Japan agreement for 1961, there was little or no increase in textile quotas, on balance, because of industrial difficulties in Canada.

Mr. Fleming told the Commons the government has made it clear on many occasions "that we accept the principle of orderly growth in imports of low-cost textiles."

PEARSON SEES 'GAP'

Opposition Leader Pearson, commenting on the minister's statement, said the agreement could be of great importance to Canada if it reconciled the legitimate interests of Canadian manufacturers with the fact that Japan is one of Canada's most important export customers.

But he said there is a "gap" in the agreement because Communist China was not included in the Geneva negotiations or the proposed agreement.

Mr. Pearson said the gap could become especially important because of Communist China's need to expand its exports to pay for heavy wheat purchases.

Led ship firm

BUFFALO, (AP) — John J. Boland Jr., 58, a partner in the Great Lakes shipping firm of Boland and Cornelius and chairman of the board of the American Steamship Company, died Friday of injuries suffered in an auto accident. Boland's automobile went out of control Tuesday in Buffalo's north side.

When it became apparent that the two could not reconcile their views, Sir Alexander quit the cabinet and subsequently resigned his seat in the House of Commons.

Another instance of a Sherbrooke County MP breaking with the party line came during the early 1920's when F. N. McCreagh joined in a revolt of several Eastern Liberals against the low tariff policies of the first MacKenzie King administration.

Failing to hold an overall majority in the Commons, Mr. King could only carry on with the support of the Progressive party, largely composed of free traders from the Prairie provinces. To solidify his position with the low tariff forces, Mr. King made substantial reductions in the tariff protection accorded some key Canadian industries.

This brought loud reaction from a group of Liberals from eastern industrial centres who claimed they had been elected on pledges that there would be no interference with the tariff set-up.

One Montreal Liberal member, Herbert Marler, later Canadian Ambassador to Japan, resigned his seat and four others, including the Sherbrooke MP, voted against the budget proposals.

At the subsequent election in 1925, Mr. McCreagh presented himself as an Independent Liberal Protectionist, but faced with opposition from both Liberals and Conservatives, withdrew from the race 24 hours before election day.

In both these earlier instances, the split between the Sherbrooke MPs and the government cut deeper than it does in the case of Mr. Allard.

Both Sir Alexander and Mr. McCreagh differed with the cabinet on matters of basic policy. Mr. Allard's criticism is based on one particular point of administration activity.

Since his return from a trip to the Orient, Mr. Allard, outside the House, has expressed concern over certain aspects of the sale of Canadian wheat to Communist China, claiming that other countries behind the Iron Curtain are behind the Iron Loan to build grandstand?

ETAA proposals to be studied by city council Monday night

Mayor Armand Nadeau said Friday city council will discuss at Monday night's council meeting proposals made to the city by officials of the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association.

The mayor said he talked with officials of the ETAA for over two hours Friday and agreed to bring their proposals up at Monday night's council meeting.

"It is impossible for me to disclose any of the things we talked about until after I meet with council members," Mayor Nadeau told The Record in a telephone conversation Friday.

Early last month officials of the ETAA agreed to meet with the city council and discuss the possibilities of leasing the ETAA and to the city in exchange for new buildings. The Sherbrooke Record

The mayor said he will meet with TCA officials on Thursday of next week along with other aldermen to discuss the possibilities of having air service to the Sherbrooke Airport.

Mayor Nadeau said city council would decide on Monday night at the council meeting who would be going to Montreal with him. The city plans to ask TCA officials to consider the possibilities of having one of their regular Montreal-Quebec flights stop at the airport.

Summit conference proposal

Khrushchev steals the limelight from West

Russia asks summit meet West questions timing Swap U-2 pilot for Abel

Nikita Khrushchev this week proposed an 18-country summit conference on disarmament—and in so doing stole the limelight from an alternate Western suggestion.

The Soviet premier made his proposal in notes to the heads of 17 countries—including Britain, the United States and Canada—which are scheduled to meet with the Soviet Union March 14 to take up the disarmament problem.

President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan had proposed earlier that foreign ministers be sent to open the conference in Geneva. Khrushchev said the issues involved were far too important and to turn over to bureaucrats.

The West, however, stuck by its original idea, although reply notes from Kennedy and Macmillan Wednesday echoed the Russian leader's moderate tone. And they indicated a heads-of-state meeting might be a good thing when and if the conference shows progress. Prime Minister Diefenbaker outlined a similar position in the House of Commons Thursday.

POWERS GOES HOME The flurry of summit talk followed a sudden and dramatic "exchange of prisoners" between Russia and the U.S. last weekend.

The swap took place on a border bridge in Berlin early Saturday where Francis Gary Powers, the American U-2 pilot shot down over Russia in May 1960, went free in exchange for Russia Col. Rudolf Abel, convicted of spying in the U.S. in 1957.

A third person, American student Frederic Pryor, 27, who was arrested on espionage charges in East Berlin last August, also was allowed to go free.

North Sea smashes dikes

Routs thousands

HAMBURG, Germany—

A raging winter storm sent the icy North Sea pounding at the German Coast today, smashing dikes like sand castles and routing thousands of Germans from their homes.

At least eleven deaths were reported in Britain and six in Germany. Authorities feared more deaths among Germans who were believed caught in their beds by one of the worst flood storms to batter Northern Europe in the century.

Western soldiers joined Germans in sandbagging breaches in the dikes in this seaport and in Bremerhaven. Communications were badly hit. Telephone operators said lines were down. There were no civilian telephone connections with Bremerhaven.

Two bodies had been recovered in Hamburg but a Hamburg police spokesman said it was believed the floods claimed other lives.

The 7,275-ton Greek freighter Freisearchai was reported in distress off the Danish West Coast.

The Dirkzwager Shipping Agency in Rotterdam said the freighter radioed: "We are in a very dangerous position." The ship was reported then about 100 miles northwest of Esbjerg in Danish Jutland.

Hurricane-force winds lashed most of Northern Europe Friday.

In a midnight broadcast monitored in Paramaribo, Jagan said Friday was "a tragic day which we will remember with feelings of sorrow and shame."

(He appealed to the citizens to return to their homes "and resist the temptation of burglary and stealing" and warned that these crimes would be severely punished.)

Jagan also urged his supporters not to take revenge on the people who burned their stores and homes. "They cannot be solely blamed for what happened," he said.)

Troops fight blazes

British Guiana torn by riots and anti-Jagan demonstrations

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters) — Newly arrived British troops today joined firefighters in battling riot-set blazes raging here in the wake of four days of strikes and demonstrations against the leftist government of Premier Cheddi Jagan.

About 150 British soldiers, normally stationed in Jamaica, poured ashore Friday night from two frigates. Efforts to quell fires blazing in the centre of the city were hampered because water supplies have been cut to a trickle by the strike.

Meanwhile, 170 British reinforcements were flying in from England to help keep law and order.

The anti-Jagan demonstrations took on a racist character as looting and burning crowds, mostly composed of Negroes, struck Friday at stores owned by East Indian supporters of Jagan's People's Progressive Party.

THREE KILLED

Police attempting to check the looters said the crowds opened fire and wounded a police superintendent. Police returned the fire, wounding about 150 persons. Several other policemen, including the assistant commissioner, were hit in the exchange. Official sources denied three persons were killed.

The chaos was sparked by a strike called Tuesday by the Trades Union Congress against an austerity budget introduced by the Jagan government. The budget included compulsory savings deducted from salaries and heavy import levies.

The anti-Jagan government fever has been fanned by a series of giant public meetings and has not abated despite budget modifications offered by Jagan.

The troops from Jamaica steamed into Georgetown harbor Friday afternoon. They were sent to reinforce a regiment stationed at Atkinson Field, 25 miles from Georgetown, which was called to the capital to maintain order.

Sentences deferred

Trio plead guilty to series of thefts in South Durham region

Three South Durham youths who pleaded guilty in St. Francis District Court to a total of 16 theft charges involving $800 were remanded to February 23 for sentencing.

Lucien Tetreault, 21, Richard Desilets, 20, and his 17-year old brother, Pierre-Paul Desilets, admitted carrying out over a one year period, a series of thefts which netted them well over $500 in goods and cash.

Twelve of the charges were in connection with tin cans used to contain several gallons of milk, as well as several bags of mouldy wheat and a few pounds of butter. Four charges were in connection with cheques stolen from mailboxes during the night of January 15 to 16, to the tune of $305.

Tetreault had previously pleaded not guilty to the cheque thefts earlier this week, but changed his option Friday morning. He also pleaded guilty to stealing during the past year more than 300 pounds of butter valued at more than $200.

The thefts were committed in Valcourt, Danville and Richmond. The youths were arrested following an extensive investigation conducted during the past several weeks.

Passing of sentence was remanded to February 23 by Judge Edouard Boisvert. At that time, representation will be made on behalf of the accused by Defence Counsel Leonce Cote.

A youth in his early twenties was sentenced to eight days in Winter street jail Friday morning in St. Francis District Court of Sessions after he pleaded guilty to three counts of theft.

Grant Ensle admitted before Judge Joseph Marier that he had stolen two 40 ounce bottles of Scotch and Brandy and a small microphone, for a total value of about $40. The thefts were committed February 15.

Two Sherbrooke brothers, Marcel and Claude Gaudreau, were remanded to February 23 in Court of Sessions after they pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault causing grievous bodily harm.

The youths, who are both in their early twenties, were arrested early this week in connection with an alleged double assault they committed on John and Fred Antio, last December 25.

Both accused are represented by Sherbrooke lawyer Raymond Frechette.

Antonio Turgeon, of Sherbrooke, was fined $30 and costs by Judge Joseph Marier Friday morning after he pleaded guilty to two counts of false claims in connection with the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Turgeon admitted receiving $48 in Unemployment Insurance last July 17 and August 3, while earning during those two weeks a total of $89.

Judge Marier imposed the light fine after it was revealed that the accused had reimbursed the money.

Capital commission representative

Ottawa should be national symbol

By ALISON SCHOENFELD
 (Record Staff Reporter)

Ottawa should be a symbol of our nation, the macrocosm of our national spirit, and this is what the National Capital Commission is trying to create, the director of the Information Division of the commission told the Women's Canadian Club of the Eastern Townships at a luncheon meeting Friday.

Peter Aykroyd explained that the commission's objective is to try and create a framework that can result in a happy environment for future citizens and, at the very least build into the community factors that will help avoid the disaster of municipal bankruptcy or dangerously depleted natural assets.

A master regional plan for the 1800-square miles which surround Ottawa was drawn up in 1950 by the French planner, Jacques Grober. The concepts which this plan sets forth are all now underway and some have been completed, Mr. Aykroyd said.

One of the projects undertaken is the reclaiming of much of the beautiful shoreline of the lakes and rivers around Ottawa. Thirty-six miles of water front along the Rideau canal and the Ottawa and Rideau rivers has been acquired by the commission Mr. Aykroyd pointed out.

The speaker emphasized that this concept of open space is vital to understanding the developing beauty of Ottawa.

"The watercourses should be available to all the people. So, railways, demolition of the Union Station and renewal of over 400 acres of land to be abandoned by the railways, much of it in the downtown area.

Mr. Aykroyd continued.

The commission, Mr. Aykroyd

This land is in the form of right-of-way which can be used wa that will comprise 41,000 acres of land and will have an average width of 2 1/2 miles. This greenbelt or urban-rural zone will have the effect of limiting urban sprawl and stopping ribbon development, and will provide land for low-density use for years to come, under complete government control, the speaker emphasized.

The greenbelt is unique throughout the world Mr. Aykroyd said. Nowhere has a government stepped out and bought all the land girdling a city.

Part of the Greber Plan was to see that the government buildings constructed in the decades that followed his plan would be spread out and not be concentrated in the center of the city, Mr. Aykroyd explained. This has been accomplished by buying, in co-operation with the department of works, large acreage of land on the outskirts of the metropolitan area. "This allows a good setting for the building, proper landscaping, and also allows employees to live near their work since residential subdivisions grow up on the periphery of the city as well," he added.

Mr. Aykroyd described the natural environment of Canada's capital which is that of forest, lakes, and a few short miles up in the bush, primeval wilderness. Since so much of

Irregularity "not very serious"

The National Capital Commission is "doing what it should be doing" and the irregularity uncovered by the auditor-general is "not a very serious matter" according to Peter Aykroyd, director of information for the commission who was in Sherbrooke Friday to address the Women's Canadian Club of the Eastern Townships.

Mr. Aykroyd was commenting on the report by Maxwell Henderson, Canada's auditor-general, that the commission had not presented two capital budgets to parliament as required by the Financial Administration Act.

Mr. Aykroyd said that the commission had a very astute and experienced treasurer and that since this was the first time Mr. Henderson had undertaken the job of examining the government books it was quite likely that Mr. Henderson might have made a mistake.

He said the question had come up since he left Ottawa in this speaking tour and it could simply be a matter of misinterpretation of the act.

As a planning measure the commission is buying a greenbelt around metropolitan Ottawa said, is in the middle of relocating all the major rail lines from the center of the City. This involves lifting more than twenty miles of track, providing new freight, express and passenger facilities for the for parkway and expressways and which can be developed in to a new urban core for the Capital.

The annual campaign for funds for the Sherbrooke branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society begins Sunday, February 18, it was announced Friday by Lt. Col. E. P. Hall, president of the Sherbrooke branch. The campaign objective for this year has been set at $16,000.

In making the announcement, Col. Hall stated that the record of blood donors and money collected during 1961 indicates that Sherbrooke is far from paying its own way. Last year the three Sherbrooke hospitals used 4,457 pints of blood, while during the same period in the two clinics held in Sherbrooke, only 3,415 pints were collected. The cost of processing the blood used in the Sherbrooke hospitals was $30,000. Other services which included aid to fire victims, life-saving service, aid to veterans and the loan of hospital beds and wheel chairs cost an additional $5,000.00.

A seminar worth public attention

The agenda for the two-day Quebec regional seminar of the National Federation of Canadian University Students which opened today at Bishop's University in Lennoxville reflects a growing concern among Canadians about where they stand as citizens of a sovereign state.

This is obvious in the theme of the seminar which is The Canadian Identity—A Positive Force?

The list of speakers is impressive. It includes members of Parliament, a banker, a businessman, professors, a poet, a novelist and a painter. They are participating in a series of discussions that deal with the political, economic and cultural aspects of this complex—and timely—subject.

The talks cover a broad spectrum of topics such as The Impact of Foreign Elements on Canadian Identity, The Contribution of Canadian Political Parties to the National Identity, The Threat to the Canadian Identity of Massive Foreign Ownership of Canadian Assets and The Ideological Constant in French Canada to name a few.

Although the sessions were designed for the student delegates of 10 universities and classical colleges in Quebec, they also afford the public an excellent opportunity to broaden its knowledge of Canada, its problems and its future by hearing the opinions of experts.

An extra advantage for the person who wishes to be well-informed about his country is that some of the panelists will speak either French or English. Bilingual question periods will follow the discussions.

The Bishop's University student committee of the NFCUS which was instrumental in bringing the seminar to the area is to be complimented for its initiative.

It is a conference which deserves to be closely followed by the public.

Protecting aboriginal Canadian art

One demand upon the federal government that will receive the general support of all Canadians is that from the National Council of Women that Eskimo and Indian craftsmen be protected against the influx of cheap, inferior imitation products from abroad—especially from Japan.

For some time it appeared the Canadian aborigines would be able to improve their precarious economic position by the sale of their native arts. These handicrafts found a wide market not only among Canadians but among visitors from the United States.

But during the past few years, Canadian store counters have been flooded with mass-produced imitations that are difficult to distinguish from the genuine article but which have served to antagonize the Canadian and visitor alike.

Admittedly, the imitations do carry the "Made in Japan" markings required by the customs laws, but generally these are so small they cannot be detected by the purchaser until he examines his "finds" at home.

Probably it might be difficult to deal with this problem under the Customs Act due to the technical issues involved. But the situation might be met by placing the creative work of Eskimos and Indians under the Copyright Act with the very minimum of registration. In this way the sale of imported imitations could be prevented.

Canada has sufficient holidays

Once again the order paper of the House of Commons is loaded with private members' bills covering such subjects as bilingual cheques—disposed of by an administrative order to adopt such documents—a national flag, a national anthem and for the creation of a number of new holidays.

One Ontario member suggests a John A. Macdonald Day to honor the man who was largely responsible for guiding the confederation campaign. The Sherbrooke MP has another bill to mark the passage of the Statute of Westminster by a holiday.

It might be possible to justify either holiday, but unfortunately there are many other dates that mark important phases in Canadian development. To declare each such day a national holiday would result in a complete breakdown of the economic system or result in all holidays being ignored.

July 1 marks the birth of Canada and what day could be more fitting to honor the man who made the holiday possible? And, for that matter, what better day to mark all the successive steps in the development of the Canadian constitution?

Need social influences of monarchy

This year is the tenth anniversary of the accession of Queen Elizabeth II. Of her first ten years it can be said that she has carried out her ceremonial duties with the style expected of the Royal Family; her travels overseas have helped to ease the transition from Empire to Commonwealth; at the time of the change of Prime Ministers in 1957 she sought good advice; she herself has kept clear of controversies (apart from those surrounding her sister). She has been criticised for being unduly conventional and too much withdrawn from the life of her subjects; and the criticism has substance.

No doubt the Queen has been under constant pressure to play it safe. Like her father and grandfather before her, she attaches importance to what remains of the political power of the monarchy, and to safeguard that her impartiality must be beyond suspicion. It now begins to look as though this is being done at the price of making the monarchy look intellectually and culturally colourless. In her public role the Queen has cast herself as a carefully conventional woman of no known opinions; in her private life she pursues the traditional interests of a wealthy country landowner.

Is this good enough for the long reign that seems likely to stretch before her? The candid answer must be no. The last residual political powers of a constitutional monarch are not now of first importance. The only personal political decision the Queen has to take is in the choice of Prime Minister, and so long as she takes care to get ample advice she is unlikely to make a mistake here.

There seems to be some attempt to propagate the idea that in the course of a long reign the Queen will acquire an almost supernatural political wisdom which will enable her to influence Prime Ministers, but this is a fable; no Prime Minister in foreseeable circumstances will attach more importance to the views of the monarch than to those of his colleagues, nor should he. If the Queen presents a soundly based opinion she may influence a Prime Minister—but so may anyone else who has his ear.

Much more significant than these vestigial political rights is the power of a popular monarchy—and no one should underestimate the immense popular interest there still is in the Queen and her family—to influence social attitudes. The Queen has neglected this aspect of twentieth-century monarchy, perhaps because she has been too much preoccupied with political considerations and has therefore shrunk from the responsibility, and the hazards, of giving a more spirited lead in matters outside the immediate scope of politics.

At a time when qualities of innovation, originality, and daring are needed to re-galvanise our society the Royal Family ought to think of themselves as pace setters. We cannot expect the Queen to put a facade of interest in all the multifarious growing points of science, industry, and the arts today, but the Royal Family is wealthy enough to exert some real influence by more active and discriminating patronage. This, of course, if it is to mean anything, would have to be controversial in the sense, at least, that no positive act, let alone an original one, will command unanimous assent. But while it is accepted that the monarchy must keep clear of party politics, it does not follow that the Queen and her family have to be neutral on everything else. When from time to time the Duke of Edinburgh breaks out, there is nothing in the public response to show that a committed opinion is bad for the reputation of the monarchy. The monarchy is more likely to suffer in the long run from being conventionally dull than from bravely some of the risks of controversy.

Give child a faith to live by; Bible teaching a good influence

By JANE SCOTT

The child "in the midst" has become the focal point of interest and controversy in recent years as opposing forces battle for his mind. The action of a group of parents in withdrawing their children from religious periods in public schools is symptomatic rather than problematic.

It is a symptom of the spreading virus of godlessness when parents organize themselves to protect their children from exposure to Biblical teaching and Christian doctrine.

Their fear of the effects of exposure to Christian teachings indicates that they recognize it as a great influencing and leavening force in the educational program.

Bible teaching has done more to influence our civilization to walk the ways of rectitude than any other single factor.

For this reason Russia has forbidden Sunday Schools and limited the scope of secular education to avoid any reference to spiritual values. But it has expanded the curriculum to include hours of indoctrination with the theories of godless atheism.

Russia limits the scope of religious groups like the Jews who conduct parochial schools in which their children are taught their religion.

Local subversive groups aim to stir up animosity and organize parents here to protect their children from "undemocratic" exposure to the Bible and Christian teaching.

But relatively few of those who protest so vociferously have any qualms of conscience about exposing Christian children to the godless hate-producing doctrines of Communism.

In fact many of those who are against religious education in public schools are aligned with the Communists and are using their democratic privilege to overthrow democratic rule and in particular the Christian way of life.

Innocent children are caught in the cross-currents of this conflict. More and more they will be used as the objects of injustice and subversive propaganda.

Those who campaign to protect the children from the terrible injustice of religious periods in schools will be lauded by the godless, subversive element. Anyone who dares to express himself in favor of religious education in schools will be the object of an organized campaign of hate letters and innuendoes.

STAND TOGETHER
What attitude or approach ought God-fearing parents take to this situation?

Firstly, they ought to be informed regarding the tactics of their opponents.

Secondly, they must stand together with the Christian forces and plan their strategy for action in the future.

Thirdly, they must accelerate their efforts to win their children for God by a steady program of Christian teaching backed by example and wholehearted dedication to God and His word and to the church.

As best religious education in the school is a poor substitute for parental teaching and example. And the parent who is zealous for the spiritual welfare of his child must make an effort 24 hours of every day to "train up the child in the way he should go."

Too many parents have shifted their responsibility on to the shoulders of disinterested teachers. This has their efforts to win their children for God in their formative years.

To be effective religion must be taught day by day in the home the same way that courtesy, honesty and personal hygiene are taught.

The name of God and the Book of God and the people of God ought to be the centre and circumference of home life. And parents ought to take their little ones by the hand and accompany them to Sunday School and Church.

Thus they can prove by example as well as by precept that they believe in God and His Son Jesus Christ and that they honor and obey His teaching and reverence His name and believe in His power to bring their sons to perfection.

CAUSE AND EFFECT
It is not by chance but by design and effort that some parents have clean-cut God-honoring and parent-honoring children.

Many families whose names are in the halls of fame are there because their humble, dedicated parents brought "them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Eph. 6:4.

It is a matter of cause and effect. The right training in the right things at the right time will bring the right results.

We are happy to note that many Sunday Schools are stressing parent participation and providing classes for all ages.

In view of the unprecedented battle for our children's minds and loyalties it behooves God-honoring parents and citizens to rededicate themselves to a full-scale program of personal and family devotion to God and His cause.

We must give our children a faith to live by.

resulted in an unprecedented increase in juvenile delinquency and downright disrespect for God, for law and for parents.

These untutored young rebels become the willing dupes of subversive elements who defy God and seek to overthrow the forces of good.

And were it not for the fact that God is greater than the forces of evil we might despair for our world. But we know that He will step into events and have the last word and every knee shall bow before Him.

PROVE BY EXAMPLE
It is a sad reflection on parents that a large number of students are without knowledge of God and His word.

The spectacle of a generation of college students graduating without the basic dimension of life—the spiritual—ought to arouse young parents to a renewal of their faith in God and His word.

UK health scheme a sick giant

Britain's national health service is often mentioned by groups appearing before Canada's royal commission on health services. This story relates the difficulties facing the British plan and efforts to overcome them.

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Because Britain built the first hospitals in the world she now is burdened with the oldest—some 2,800 of them and only two newer than penicillin.

These obsolete green-walled barracks form the creaking backbone that supports the main weight of the National Health Service.

The NHS is a sick giant gobbling up £900,000,000 a year. Many of its diseases are congenital, some incurable. Wads of administrative fat hang heavily from its extremities; a shattered nervous system makes co-ordination sluggish; its lifeblood—doctors and nurses—is slowly draining away.

Despite these infirmities almost all Britons—peasant and peer alike—are really rather fond of their giant. Unlike Canada the problem here is not whether to have him but how to cure him.

One prescription is a major surgical operation on the backbone. Health Minister Enoch Powell has announced that from now until 1971 Britain will spend £1,000,000 a week constructing 110 new hospitals and substantially rebuilding 134 others.

Southern England's great teaching hospitals will be brought up to date. Currently inadequate maternity facilities will be extended. Most of the bleak mental hospitals scattered across the country will be abolished to conform with modern theories of out-patient treatment for the mentally ill.

Pivots of the new system will be a series of ultra-modern district general hospitals. These 600-bed institutions will be designed for local population needs and contain all the facilities for specialized treatment. The patient may have to travel farther to hospital than he does now. But his stay will be shorter, his treatment better and the after-care service more co-ordinated.

When the program is completed Britain hopes to have reached the bright sunlit uplands of socialized medicine. Today, although the anxiety about doctor's bills is removed, the average patient coming under the protection of his own welfare state might think himself back in a new dark age.

REPORTING

OTTAWA — A mental picture of the prime minister picking petals off imaginary daisies, all the while reciting "April . . . June . . . October" is an amusing one. We don't envy him his preoccupation. Or especially admire his method.

How much of this will-he-won't-he game is John Diefenbaker's doing, and how much is due to the speculation of news correspondents (present company not excepted) it is impossible to tell. But starting not later than his tiff with the Senate last spring it has been the PM's policy to rattle the halyards at frequent intervals, as if he were about to hoist the election flag.

I don't suppose this disconcerts more than a very small percentage of the population. The ordinary man on the street, I imagine, couldn't care less. The people it most annoys are those the PM enjoys keeping in a continual flap of confusion and uncertainty: his political foes.

If it only disturbed them it would scarcely be worth pursuing this matter further: this is just good clean fun compared with the slier, smearer aspects of the struggle for political power. But the business community, the men who make the nation's economy tick, also are kept in a tizzy. And that's where this petal picking can do real harm.

Companies have to Plan Ahead . . . for capital investment, for production, for market development and merchandising. What a government may do, and even the political complexion of the government, often is of great importance to them. They want to know where the government stands — and where industry stands with the government.

For example, the Canada-US dollar exchange rate is important to any company buying or selling abroad. Unofficially the Liberals let it be known they wouldn't be adverse to a 90 cent dollar. They are critical of the government's free floating devaluation as contravening the rules of the International Monetary Fund to which Canada ostensibly subscribes. If the Liberals win an election this year, maybe companies should key their operations to the possibility of a dollar pegged at 90 US cents.

But how can any board room hedge on this prospect when the Liberals won't have a chance to win the election until the PM calls one, and when the PM sits picking daisy petals — occasionally dropping one for passing reporters to see?

What we seem to have here is a conflict of two Great Goods. One, the boon of Tory government. Two, the benefit of maximum industrial planning for production, employment, corporate profits and national prosperity. It may be easy for the PM to rationalize that the former is the sine qua non, but this is a dubious argument for industry.

On top of it all is the uncertainty about the budget. Companies fine-tooth the budget in their planning — but the minister of finance won't even admit there will be one before the election. What about taxes? Depreciation? Tariffs? The minister's economic forecast? His forecast of government borrowing intentions? Of interest rates?

The PM likes to talk about the "irresponsibility" of the press, the Liberals and the "bureaucrats." I'd like to hear a few company presidents on the subject of irresponsibility.

me for a long time," writes one critic, "is of silent circles where 30 crumpled wrecks of old men or women sit gazing blankly out at dirty roofs through narrow windows in a long bleak room with one dubious-smelling lavatory and a single bathroom stacked with commodities."

The new hospitals will also bring the general practitioners—the workhorses of the NHS—into closer co-operation with private consultants and hospital staffs.

The gulfs between the three are a structural weakness which the NHS inherited with its inception in 1948 and has done little to repair. It has its origins in Lloyd George's National Insurance Act of 1911 which diverted the mainstream of patients away from hospitals and local clinics and into the family doctor's waiting room.

He was ill-equipped by training and tradition to shoulder the load. During the war years the development of medical techniques far outstripped the facilities available to handle them. After 1948 the GP found himself acting as a clinical expert, consultant and out-patient department all at the same time.

There is talk of sharing short-term hospital patients 21 shillings a week for room and food. Prescription costs, now two shillings each instead of one original one shilling, may go up again and socialists mean that the very principles of free medicine are being undermined.

There is talk of sharing short-term hospital patients 21 shillings a week for room and food. Prescription costs, now two shillings each instead of one original one shilling, may go up again and socialists mean that the very principles of free medicine are being undermined.

At the same time the medical profession itself has been guilty of a major error in judgment. Britain's techniques, second to none in the field of curative medicine, are back in the 19th century in terms of preventive medicine.

Before 1900 preventive medicine concentrated on the diseases of poverty, squalor and malnutrition. The heroine dying of consumption in a garret was the symbol. In 1962 we suffer from the diseases of plenty. The flabby businessman in his early 40s who is always slightly out of breath is the commonest victim.

Early diagnosis of vulnerable groups is the modern method of attacking this problem. The techniques are well advanced in North America but, experts

Today's recipe

MINCEMEAT COOKIE SLICES

Yield—about 4½ dozen cookies

¼ cup mincemeat, 2½ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 3¼ cups once-sifted pastry flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ground mace, ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup lightly-packed brown sugar, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon rum flavoring.

Drain mincemeat in a sieve, if very moist. Sift together the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and mace. Cream shortening; gradually blend in sugars. Add egg and beat it in well; mix in rum flavoring and mincemeat. Add dry ingredients part at a time, combining well after each addition. Shape dough into 2 rolls about 2 inches in diameter; wrap snugly and chill several hours or overnight.

Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). Grease cookie sheets. Using a sharp knife, cut each chilled roll of dough into slices about ¼ inch thick. Arrange the slices, well apart, on prepared cookie sheets.

Bake in preheated oven 12 to 15 minutes. Cool on wire racks.

Suits predominate at Winter carnival fashion show held amid garden setting

By PHYLLIS PICKFORD
(Record Women's Editor)

ELEGANT — This two-piece ensemble is breathtaking in shocking pink Irish linen. The sheath dress has a white bodice embroidered with strasses and a cummerbund of pink linen at the waist. The jacket is fashioned with a full back, falling in gathers from the neckline, three quarter sleeves and a stand-up collar. The white gloves are embroidered to match the dress with strasses. To complete the ensemble the model Florence Marois wears a flowered hat of red, and pink roses, with green leaves.

Sherbrooke Hospital Alumnae

Valentine setting prevails for annual Spring Bridge

The Norton Residence of the Sherbrooke Hospital was the scene of the Annual Spring Bridge held by the Sherbrooke Hospital Alumnae Association Bally.

Refreshments were served by members of the Association, convened by Miss B. Harrison, Miss J. Frank and Miss J. Baily.

On Wednesday evening, receiving with the president, Mrs. G. Frost was Miss Clara Aitkenhead, the director of nurses.

The Valentine theme was carried throughout the room with streamers, hearts and cupid.

The lace covered head table was centered with a silver bowl of red carnations and white mums, flanked by red tapers in silver holders. Red hearts decorated the individual prize packages and sandwich plates.

Mrs. Frost welcomed the guests.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. J. Charlebois, Miss B. Crawford, Miss J. Beers, Mrs. H. Leslie, Mrs. Eric Fuller, Mrs. L. Hogge, Mrs. F. Simms, Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. F. Hill.

Homemaking

A Private Retreat

For a private hideaway, tuck a latex foam chaise in your bedroom. Add a good lamp and a small bookcase to provide a spot of peace and quiet away from the mainstream of family living.

Cushion Togetherness

If you don't want cushions all over the place buy a brass cushion caddy. They come with a stack of four pillows covered with gay vinyl. Turned upside down, with a cushion on top, the caddy becomes a decorative stool.

To be in the height of fashion this year every woman should own a three-piece suit. They come in wool jersey, linen and many other beautiful fabrics. Colors are out of this world, there's no need for anyone to feel drab this coming Spring as there is a full range of colors to choose from. These suits are practical, they can be worn as a suit, or by removing the jacket, one is dressed for cocktails or afternoon tea. Sweaters and frilly blouses can again make this an attractive ensemble for other occasions.

Anita Doucet, one of the models for the fashion show which was presented Thursday evening at the St. Charles Auditorium, in connection with the University of Sherbrooke's Winter Carnival, wore an emerald green three-piece suit of jersey, the dress and jacket being trimmed with a fancy braid.

Diane Brien, daughter of Jeanne Brien, who is now a professional-model was presented for the first time here and chose a navy blue jersey three-piece suit, trimmed with red braid.

Hugette Joubert, was stunning in a brilliant red wool two piece suit fashioned with a detachable jacket and long matching scarf which buttoned to the dress with large pearl buttons.

Florence Marois, modeled a pale blue jersey three-piece suit, the dress having short sleeves, the jacket and dress being trimmed with braid.

GLOVES TO MATCH

Gloves this year are in the most delicate shades, colors blend with all the newest materials. To complete an outfit of navy and red, a pair of navy gloves with red gussets were shown, giving that added touch of beauty to the ensemble. Evening gloves are beautifully embroidered with sequins and strasses.

VIVID COLORS PREDOMINATE FOR COCKTAIL DRESSES

Anita Doucet, chose an orange sheath chiffon cocktail dress, the bodice being embroidered with sequins and the neckline fashioned with a flourish of chiffon.

Janine Morin, modeled a grey organza cocktail dress, the skirt being gathered at the waist and belted, with a matching organza jacket with three-quarter sleeves trimmed with large ruffles of matching organza.

Diane Brien looked demure in a cocktail dress of blueberry chiffon over taffeta with a floral design of mint green and beige roses, fashioned with a full skirt, fitted bodice and a cowl neckline.

Other cocktail dresses shown were eye-catching and stunning, with large floral designs, brilliant red poppies, and roses set on dark backgrounds.

Of course not to mention the Twist gown, fashioned on straight lines with rows of frills in black.

RAINCOATS TO BRIGHTEN DAMP DAYS

This spring raincoats are at their best, and will certainly put a touch of cheerfulness to a rainy day. These come in all kinds of checks and delightful styles.

Modeled at the showing was a grey checked, loose fitting raincoat, lined with a brilliant red and trimmed with large white buttons. Long pointed umbrellas are all the rage to complete the outfit.

The show was presented in a garden setting, with a trellis background fountain and statuette, small pots of red, white mauve and yellow chrysanthemums, tulips and rubber plants completed the decor.

The show was presented by one of Sherbrooke's leading dress salons and the commentator for the evening was Nicole Germain, from Radio Canada. Decorations were by Claude Claudais.

Through the courtesy of many local merchants this fashion show proved to be one of the finest to be presented in Sherbrooke.

Wax Carefully

Waxed living room floors are pretty, but make sure they aren't so slippery that they become dangerous. Many household accidents are caused from highly waxed floors.

Press a bar of damp soap into the broken ends of a light bulb and turn left to remove it from the socket.

But remember — first turn off the current. If you're in doubt, remove the fuse.

After sudsing a bulky knit sweater, stuff it with one or more towels to separate the front and back so air can circulate. This cuts drying time considerably.

Hortense

Combines—saint and a sinner

DAUGHTER TO NAPOLEON by Constance Wright, Holt, Rinehart and Winston of Canada Ltd., $7.25, 405 pp.

Napoleon had no daughters of his own. The subject of this book is Hortense who was his step daughter and the actual offspring of Josephine Beauharnais.

Hortense married Napoleon's brother, Louis, and one of their sons eventually became Napoleon III.

Hortense's life had many elements of tragedy and yet Constance Wright manages to make her heroine appear as neither a milkop nor a martyr. Hortense was very unhappily married to Louis. Two of her children died during her lifetime. She lived to see Napoleon's empire crumble and the emperor die, but she died before her son became Napoleon III.

The person who emerges from the pages is attractive and interesting. Hortense was obviously a woman of character.

And her character sparkles through the sad story, and because she is indomitable the final impact of the book is not tragic.

Miss Wright presents Napoleon as a personality who is intriguing and fascinating if not particularly likeable. If this was the real Napoleon it is easy to understand why he was a success and a failure, why many loved him and many more hated him.

The book declines somewhat in interest with the decline of Napoleon and Hortense's exile, but this is almost inevitable and the quality of writing certainly does not deteriorate.

For students of history and students of character this book has a special appeal, but it is more than a history of a character study. It is lively, amusing, often enthralling story and the result has an almost universal appeal.

ALISON SCHOENFELD

A novel of literary distinction

THE BLANKET OF THE DARK by John Buchan, 287 pgs. Penguin Books, 85c.

THE BLANKET OF THE DARK by John Buchan, a former Governor-General of Canada and author of many other fine works, is a novel of literary distinction, a fact evident in the first few paragraphs.

John Buchan is an author who does not have to rely on crude language or unsavoury episodes to give force and liveliness to his writings.

Set in the England of Henry VIII, THE BLANKET OF THE DARK involves a plot to put Peter, lawful son of the Duke of Buckingham who "died a shameful and unmerited death" because "Wolsley" feared to go to the French wars and leave such a one behind, on the throne of England.

When the story opens, Peter, who has been brought up by a humble forerunner and his wife, thinks himself the son of an unknown English soldier and is troubled by his seemingly inborn desire for greatness when the best he can hope for is some unrewarding position in the church.

For the reader who enjoys a novel about well-known historical characters and events in an English time of storm within church and state, THE BLANKET OF THE DARK offers a fast-paced story with fact and the imagined-probable beautifully and intricately interwoven.

TORONTO — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Wednesday announced the appointment of William Armstrong, 32, as secretary to the Fifth Commonwealth Broadcasting Conference, to be held in Canada in 1963. Mr. Armstrong is now director of information services for the CBC. The conferences are designed to co-ordinate broadcasting within the Commonwealth, exchange ideas and plan joint programs.

OSCAR LEVANT AT THE PIANO — Music of Chopin, Debussy, Ravel (COLUMBIA stereo MS 6276) — Mr. Levant's undoubted talents as a pianist with a most individual and at times brilliant style are amply demonstrated in this recording of some of the standards of the solo concert pianist. One side of the record is devoted completely to well-known Chopin pieces. In Mr. Levant's playing of them, one might find quarrel with the rapidity with which he skitters over some of the passages, but it is difficult to fault his spirit. On the reverse side, Mr. Levant appears more at home with Debussy and Ravel. His headlong and somewhat abrupt manner seems well suited to these two composers.

Skilful portrayal of characters

I MET A LADY . . . Howard Spring . . . Collins . . . 448 pages.

Listed among the best books published in 1961, this latest novel of Howard Spring's has been referred to as the story of a man and the two loves of his life. This short synopsis might be somewhat misleading, as the book is by no means just a love story.

Although the life of the central character about whom Mr. Spring is writing is highlighted by the impact of his meeting with the beautiful and extraordinary Sylvia Bascombe and her daughter Janet, this book is in essence the story of George Ledra, the account of his life and the people in it, from World War I to the end of World War II.

A schoolboy at the outbreak of World War I, George Ledra, the son of a Manchester cotton merchant, was sent by his father to Cornwall for health reasons. There he lived with and studied under Mr. Hector Chown, a retired Greek scholar. And it is at

Grand duke ages on Hapsburg coins

By WINNIFED MATHER, FRNS

Some of the most beautiful of modern coins are those which were minted in Vienna by the Hapsburgs. Collecting coins of the Hapsburgs should be a fascinating quest, as this dynasty covered a long era and many countries.

Two silver coins of one of the last of the Hapsburgs, beautifully struck and with interesting obverse and reverse, are double guldens of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who reigned for 68 years, from 1848 to 1916. These two coins are "versatile" — they will fit into an Austrian collection, a type set of the Hapsburgs, a European Crown set, or a collection of Royal Marriage Commemoratives.

ISSUED IN 1854 AND 1879

One was issued in 1854 to commemorate the marriage of Francis Joseph to Elizabeth, daughter of Maximilian Joseph, Duke of Bavaria.

The other was issued in 1879 to commemorate their silver wedding anniversary.

Each has the value "zwei gulden" incised around the edge of the coin. Francis Joseph bore, in addition to his titles of Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary and Bohemia, 31 titles of Grand Duke, Duke, Margrave, Prince, Count, and so on, and at one period he bore the title "King of Jerusalem."

The 1854 coin commemorating the marriage of this august personage has the accented heads of the couple facing right on the obverse.

On the reverse is depicted the wedding scene with the couple with clasped hands standing before a bishop whose hand is raised in blessing.

EXQUISITE DETAIL ON REVERSE

On many commemorative coins and medals of this period the royal personages are portrayed in antique vestments, but in this case Francis Joseph is portrayed in military uniform and Elizabeth in bridal gown and veil. Under magnification the exquisite detail of this reverse is seen to be an amazingly photographic, even to Francis Joseph's sideburns, the design on the hilt of his sword, and the lace of Elizabeth's veil.

The 1879 coin, which commemorates the silver wedding anniversary has the accented heads of the couple facing right, but the portraits are mature and Francis Joseph has grown a beard. On the reverse is an allegorical seated female figure.

Many of the European countries and German states issued coins to commemorate either the wedding or the silver or golden wedding anniversary of the ruler. The two Francis Joseph coins are the only ones of the same size and value commemorating both the marriage and the silver wedding anniversary of the same monarch.

The prices of Francis Joseph coins are still remarkably low. A local dealer recently had one of the 1879 double guldens in brilliant uncirculated condition priced at only $8.50.

A form of mental exercise for the declining years

ALL THE BEST YEARS by Desmond Young. HARP-ER & BROS. (Mussion Book Company Ltd.)—333 pp. illustrated $5.95.

Why does one write an autobiography? Conceit aside, I suppose it is a form of mental exercise for one's declining years, a sort of retrospective diary or perhaps, more charitably speaking, it may be prompted by a desire to share with others what appears to one as an exciting and interesting life.

Regardless of motive, autobiographies which were quite the rage in Victorian times, are now rather rare publications except for the great or the near-great.

Unbiased view of life

THE UNIVERSITY AS A PUBLISHER — Eleanor Harman, editor. University of Toronto Press. 200 pages. $3.50

"The University as a Publisher" is a collection of some 25 articles by various members of the University of Toronto Press staff dealing with various phases of a university-operated publishing business. The book is designed to mark the 60th anniversary of the founding of the University of Toronto Press in 1901.

The articles cover such subjects as the purpose of a university press, a history of the University of Toronto Press, a description of the plant as well as a resume of the more outstanding works produced.

Marsh Jeannerot, director of the University of Toronto Press, in the introductory article describes the place of a university publishing house in the general printing field.

The purpose of a university and more often than not, even these, out of either a sense of literary inadequacy or false modesty, are ghost written.

This book is an autobiography of the old school and suffers from conceit inherent in any such work. Brigadier Young is best known for his timely biography, "Rommel, the Desert Fox" based on his experience in the Western Desert in World War II but the subject of "All the Best Years", despite a life story of undeniable variety cannot expect to command the universal interest accruing to a latter day military genius.

Written with some perceptivity for his times, the author traces his life through Oxford, the Rifle Brigade in World War I, deep sea salvage, the world of entertainment in which he managed a theatre and ran a night club, to Africa and India as a newspaper editor, the Indian Civil Service, as a public relations expert, to the Western Desert for World War II, a prisoner of war in Italy, and so on, throughout all this profusion of activity he apparently remained popular, and irritatingly enough, never wrong in his opinions or decisions. If you can forgive and forget habitual name dropping and self-righteousness, there emerges a portrait of a decent, likeable fellow who had had an

Profitable reading material

HAD YOU BEEN BORN IN ANOTHER FAITH—By Marcus Bach. Prentice-Hall. 186 pp. $3.95.

"The years of gestation (of this book) were nourished by visits to the temples of other people in other cultures and in other lands." So says Dr. Marcus Bach, author, lecturer, and professor at the School of Religion, University of Iowa.

It is enlightening reading material for those people, young or old, who are confused by the many diverse religions of the world. Here the reader identifies himself with each of the nine major religions in turn, and ends by having a greater understanding of all mankind.

The reader will realize the truth of Dr. Bach's statement that "the spirit inherent in religions is found to be one spirit when we truly put ourselves in the other person's place."

"I feel," he prefaces his book, "that the great religions should be viewed as different dialects by which man speaks to God—and God to man."

In spiritual exchange lies new hope for a new era. Indeed, this we must do if we are to continue to exist.

Not suitable for the young

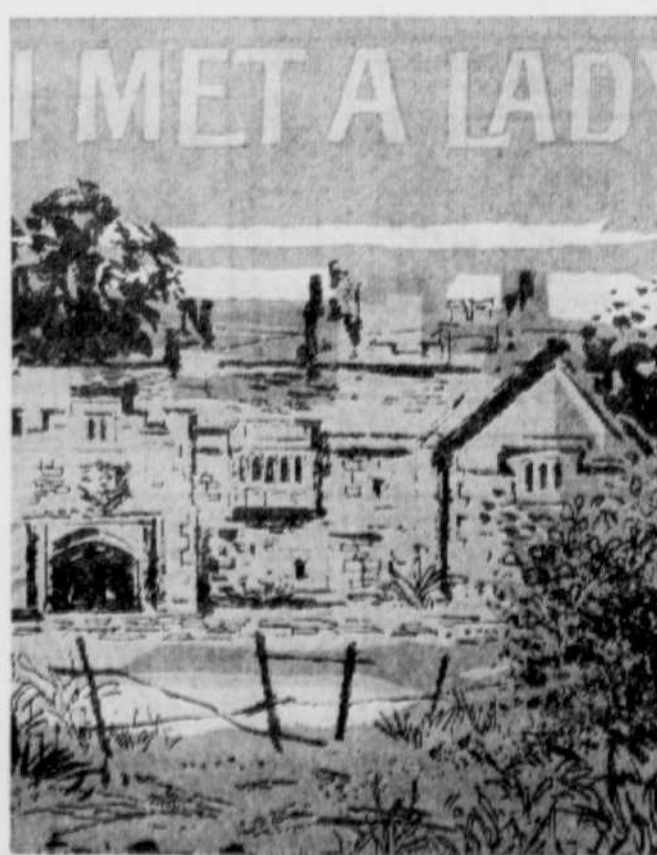

THE RED SERGE by Harwood Steele. Published by The Ryerson Press, Toronto. Price $4.50.

At first quick glance, these sixteen stories of Royal Canadian Mounted Police adventures, would appear to be suitable for teenage boys.

However, do not let the R.C.M.P. theme mislead you; this is not a book suitable for young people. The author hits some very sour notes.

While reading "The Red Serge" this reviewer was tempted to quit halfway through. However, I am glad I did not give up as Mr. Steele has kept his best stories until near the end of his book. This I believe, was a mistake. Stories like "A couple of Caribou" and "Pal" would certainly have made interesting and otherwise very dreary beginning.

Collecting

in the

Townships

The archipelago of Seychelles consists of 99 islands lying in the Indian Ocean. The largest island, Mahe, on which the capital, Victoria, is situated is about 970 miles east of Mombasa and 934 miles north of Mauritius. The islands are believed to have been discovered by Pedro Mascarenhas, a Portuguese navigator, in 1505, although there is evidence to suggest that they had been visited by Arab and Persian seafarers in the 12th century. During the next 220 years the islands were used by the pirates who infested the Indian Ocean. The 18th century saw bitter fighting for control on the Indian Ocean between England and France so that the profitable trade routes to the far east could be protected. In 1756 a "Stone of Possession" was set up by Captain Morphy of the frigate Le Cerf in the name of the King of France. The islands were named Seychelles in honor of the Vicomte Moreau de Sechelles who was Controller General of Finance under Louis XV from 1714 to 1756.

France did not establish a colony on the islands until 1768 when the French wished to compete with the Dutch in the trade of spice and it was decided to plant spice plantations. The outbreak of war in 1778 between England and France stopped the plans. In the meantime the slave traders had found these islands ideal as a stopping off place between Madagascar and Arabia. In May 1780, a French slave ship approached and fearing the islands had fallen into British hands she flew a British flag.

The inhabitants, believing the ship to be English set fire to the plantations and all the valuable work was destroyed overnight. The history of these islands is filled with intrigue and warfare and their value in trade and commerce has increased during the years. There will be a new set of stamps for these fascinating islands and a few values are illustrated.

The Crown Agents have announced some new issues in the near future. Among them are the stamps from Barbados for the Golden Jubilee of the Barbados Boy Scout Association, a new definitive set for British Honduras, Ceylon will issue a stamp to honour the 50th Anniversary of the Scout movement, Cyprus will issue the already announced Europa set, a definitive set and a set for the Malaria Eradication programme. Hong Kong will have a Postal Centenary issue and Sierra Leone a Malaria issue, and there will be a new regular set for Singapore.

The study of stamps and of postal markings is a most important part of our hobby, and the interest displayed at the St. Francis Collectors Club by its members is most encouraging to students of philately. The writer has always thought that the collecting of used stamps was more interesting than the gathering of stamps from agencies.

They are the stamps from Barbados for the Golden Jubilee.

Have you decided to attend one of the meetings of the stamp club near you? These clubs consist of collectors like yourselves and your attendance would add to their pleasure and to yours. I note that Mr. J. B. Swift of Island Brook manages to get to Sherbrooke to most meetings, and that is a fair trip. If you have not already done so, then contact Fred Smith of the St. Francis Collectors Club at Lennoxville. He will probably send along a copy of the Club Bulletin. This is a worthwhile effort, and you will then see what a club can do.

The writer has always thought that the collecting of used stamps was more interesting than the gathering of stamps from agencies.

The stamps are issued for postal use and to find a used stamp with a nice circular postmark from some obscure village in far-off Ghana, for instance, seems to stir one's imagination to dream up all sorts of reasons for its use. Did it come from a Missionary, a trader, or perhaps from some government employee. After all, it is highly unlikely that a native used it. The cancelled to order stamps that are sold these days as "superb used" do not have this fascination. I remember receiving, in a mixture from London, a number of high values from South Africa on paper, a total of four pounds. Right away I thought of diamonds being sent by registered airmail at the letter rate, a dream but still that is part of stamp collecting. There is much to be said about mint, unhinged and perfect stamps. They are beautiful, and they are good property, but the used ones are fun to collect, and many times cheaper too.

Have you decided to attend one of the meetings of the stamp club near you? These clubs consist of collectors like yourselves and your attendance would add to their pleasure and to yours. I note that Mr. J. B. Swift of Island Brook manages to get to Sherbrooke to most meetings, and that is a fair trip. If you have not already done so, then contact Fred Smith of the St. Francis Collectors Club at Lennoxville. He will probably send along a copy of the Club Bulletin. This is a worthwhile effort, and you will then see what a club can do.

BIDDING CUES
SOUTH'S PLAY

In case you don't approve of today's bidding you will have no argument from me. Still, this was the actual auction when the hand was played in a match in Europe, and South took advantage of his opponents' bids to bring home a most difficult contract.

He ruffed the second club lead and promptly led a heart toward dummy's king. West ducked and the king held the trick. A second heart was won by East who led the jack of clubs. South ruffed and went through a careful mental review of the bidding.

West had really bid a lot. Obviously, he had started with five clubs and four hearts and his jump in hearts almost surely indicated a singleton spade. In that case South could not afford to draw trumps since East would be left in control.

With this in mind, South found a way to bring home his contract. He cashed the ace of spades, ruffed a heart in dummy and then played diamonds.

East ruffed the third diamond, and it was the only trick he could take. If he led his last heart, South would discard his fourth diamond and ruff in dummy.

Q—The bidding has been:

East South West North
1 Heart Pass 1 Spade Pass
2 Spades ?
You, South, hold:
Spades 4, Hearts K-7-6-5, Diamonds A-Q-3-2, Clubs A-J-6-4.

What do you do?

A—This is a perfect spot for a convention known as "the unusual no-trump." You bid two no-trump to tell your partner to bid his best minor suit. If you aren't playing that convention you double for takeout. If partner will play your double as business you just have to pass.

TODAY'S QUESTION

East opens with one spade. You, South, hold:
Spades A-Q-10-9-8-7, Hearts 2, Diamonds A-3-2, Clubs 9-6-5.

What do you do?

He ruffed the second club lead and promptly led a heart toward dummy's king. West ducked and the king held the trick. A second heart was won by East who led the jack of clubs. South ruffed and went through a careful mental review of the bidding.

West had really bid a lot. Obviously, he had started with five clubs and four hearts and his jump in hearts almost surely indicated a singleton spade. In that case South could not afford to draw trumps since East would be left in control.

With this in mind, South found a way to bring home his contract. He cashed the ace of spades, ruffed a heart in dummy and then played diamonds.

East ruffed the third diamond, and it was the only trick he could take. If he led his last heart, South would discard his fourth diamond and ruff in dummy.

E. T. BONSPIEL OPENS MONDAY

The 14th annual Eastern Townships Bonspiel gets underway Monday evening with a total of 64 rinks competing for the five trophies at stake.

The curlers will commence the week long battle for the various trophies and prizes Monday at 6:00 p.m. followed with shifts at 8:00 p.m. and 10:00 p.m. This will start at the procedure until Thursday when the rinks will start at 1:30 p.m. and will be in use two hours after. On Friday and Saturday they start in the morning with all-day duels on tap.

The out-of-town rinks start Thursday. This is done in order to accommodate them and at the same time, to reduce the large number of local rinks. The majority of the 64 rinks are from the Townships. One will be from Nashua, N.H., which is the quartet that will travel the most miles to get here.

All of last year's winners will be back to defend their laurels by skipping their own rinks or playing with another. Sherbrooke tops the list with 17. Lennoxville is next with 13 and Sutton follows with five. These are the biggest entries in the 'Spiel.'

Ken Jackson and his Sherbrooke crew won the top trophy last year, Sangster, while Dr. Johnny Hibbard coped La Tribune, Paul Jenne, of Sutton, The Record, Claude Thibault, of Danville, The Mitchell and George Garard, of Lennoxville, The Downs Trophy. The majority of these skips have filed their entries again this year.

There should be some very good curling as the boys will be out to try to win the beautiful prizes which go along with the trophies. On Wednesday evening a special banquet will be held and there is no curling on the agenda. Both clubs, Sherbrooke and Lennoxville, will have open house and special entertainment is slated.

The public is invited to attend these matches. Owing to the large number of entries games are slated at North Hatley, Windsor and Magog for the first part of the week but towards the end they are cut down to the two local rinks for the semi-finals.

So from the look of things some fancy curling should be witnessed before Saturday evening when the finals are reached. No doubt some of the favorites may get knocked over but at least every rink is guaranteed five games before bowing out of the picture.

The skips are asked by the committee to have their rinks ready to start on time. This is very important because the large number of contestants demands a strict time limit in order to have the games finish at a reasonable time. So gentlemen please bear in mind your starting times and adhere to them.

The Yamaska Conservation Association is holding a meeting in Waterloo at the Canada Hotel, Feb. 21 at 8 p.m. Two wonderful films will be shown and there will be three door prizes.

On Feb. 28th at 8 p.m., Richmond Pelletier of Molson's will be on hand at Granby to present some 25 prizes won by members in Molson's Fishing Derby. This will take place at the Legion Hall on Court St. The annual Ice Fish Derby will take place March 11th at Brome and Waterloo Lakes. The weighing will take place at the Canada Hotel in Waterloo before 5 p.m. sharp.

Leo Cahill, assistant coach of the Montreal Alouettes, was in Sherbrooke this week as a guest of the Sherbrooke Snow Shoe Club. As might be expected conversation finally got around to the Larks' chances for the coming season.

Leo laid it on the line. "We expect to win eight to ten games this year," he said. The Montreal coaching staff is confident in part because of a youngster by the name of Sandy Stevens. Stevens played football in college ranks last year in the United States for the University of Minnesota.

Cahill regards him highly, "better both passing-wise and running-wise than Kenny Ploen ever thought of being in his college days." If this is true, the big question now is whether or not Stevens can adapt himself to the change between professional and college football. Montreal coaches think he can.

Cahill added that Francis and Thompson two sophomore quarterbacks, are back with the team again. Cahill feels these two boys will help add the needed offensive strength.

"Montreal deserves a winner. They have a winner in hockey and we think this is the year for a winner in football," Cahill noted. If their defense performs as it did last year and the youngsters come through for the Larks it might be their best year.

The Eastern Townships Senior Ski Championships are slated this weekend at Hillcrest. The Southern Canada Power Trophy will go to the best team taking part in the tourney.

If the weather holds up there should be some good skiing as the best in the Townships will be on hand. The teams comprise two senior men, two senior ladies and two juniors, boy or a girl, which will make the competition more interesting.

The Richmond Hockey Association is organizing a special train next Saturday for Quebec City where their Pee Wees will compete in the International Pee Wee Hockey Tournament. Reminds us of the old days when they used to have specials to Sherbrooke and all around when Richmond team was playing.

The train will stop at Victoriaville to pick up a group from there along with their team and no doubt this will be a great day for the youngsters. The organizers deserve plenty of credit for their work in this community effort. Richmond plays in Class "C" while Victoriaville is in Class "A" but the kids will have a wonderful time just the same, win or lose. Good luck to both clubs - may they bring home some of the big trophies.

Frank Bergeron day in Richmond
Sunday, gifts to be presented

RICHMOND — Hockey fans play for the local Phenoms. Since that year Bergeron joined what is now called the Richmond Braves and has been with them ever since, both as coach and player.

Having been out for quite a spell because of an injured knee this year Bergeron will be back in action on Sunday for a game between the Jets that promises to be a big day for him.

Between the second and third periods of the game, Bergeron and his wife will be back in action on Sunday for a game between the Jets that promises to be a big day for him.

Frank is one of the veterans of the Richmond Hockey team and began his hockey career away back in 1951. He played that year under Joe Marcoux, then coach of the old Richmond Flyers. After three successful junior years in Richmond Bergeron travelled to Windsor where he played Intermediate hockey for two years with the Paper Makers.

In the 56-57 season Bergeron came back to Richmond to N.Y., 3.

E.T. Intermediate Hockey League opens playoffs

Sherbrooke at Drummondville and Montreal at Granby in opening tilts of best-of-seven semi-finals series

The Eastern Townships Intermediate Hockey League swings into its playoffs Sunday afternoon with two games on tap. The Beavers of Sherbrooke move to Drummondville while the Olympics of Montreal are in Granby for the first games of the semi-finals.

The series will shift back to Sherbrooke and Montreal Tuesday evening and then back to Drummondville and Granby for Thursday night fixtures and on Sunday, Feb. 25th, they will be in Montreal at the Maurice Richard Arena and in Sherbrooke. If more games are necessary they will be played every second day.

If the final games of the schedule played Thursday evening are any indication then the fans will see some great hockey before the series are over. The Beavers managed to beat Claude Groulx three times which is the largest they have been able to get against Groulx. Only once have they come up with the same number.

The Rockets have won their last four games on home ice and are favorites to repeat against the Dubs clan tomorrow in the opener. They have a well balanced squad and have the top marksmen in the league. Coach Dube is hoping for a complete lineup for Sunday's tilt. Bert Bourassa missed the last game but it is expected he will be back for the important tilt. Ray St. Cyr is definitely out for good.

At Granby it will be a tough series and may go the limit. The Vics were held to a 3-3 draw Thursday and this should give the Olympics a little bit of extra hope for their battle with the fast-stepping Vics.

Both teams possess hard-hitting forwards and speedy rearwards but the Vics hold a request from the CAHA to join the Galt Terriers for the World Hockey Championships. finished the season as the top goalie in the O'Donnell circuit.

Coach Roger Bedard and his team will have their hands full as the Olympics in their last few games have shown a big improvement and with Noel Picard back on the blueline has added extra strength for Coach Marle Fillion's Montreal club.

Two important games on tap this weekend in St. Francis League with Larry Drouin still top marksman

Two of the remaining five games in the St-Francis Valley Intermediate Hockey League are scheduled Sunday in Asbestos and Richmond when the Miners play host to the Magog Aces and the Braves receive the Rock Island Jets.

The game at Asbestos holds no significance for the Miners as they have already wrapped up the league championship but it is an important one for the Aces. It will give them a chance to move out of the league cellar for the first time since the season opened.

The Aces have come up with some surprising victories as of late and are now riding a four-game winning streak. They opened their streak with a 5-3 victory over the Miners and could come up with a victory Sunday.

The Miners on the other hand will simply be playing out their schedule. After Sunday they will have but one game left to play before the all-important play-offs open.

Rock Island at Richmond. The most important game of the weekend will be played in Richmond on Sunday. The Jets and the Braves are presently in a heated battle for third and fourth place in the standings and both are looking for a victory to better their position in the jockeying for the play-offs.

The Jets are fresh from a 4-2 victory over Windsor Paper Makers and as this was their first victory of the season over Windsor it will surely boost their morale. The Braves' last game was Friday night when they took on the Asbestos Miners.

A glance at the list of top scorers of the league shows the week-end games hold a lot of importance for a few individuals, namely Larry Drouin of Asbestos, Gerry Menard of Rock Island and "Red" Dubois of Windsor. In order, these are:

Maple Leafs prepare new power-play for Rangers over weekend in big games, Black Hawks at Montreal

New York Rangers, in danger of slipping out of that vital fourth spot in the National Hockey League standings, will face a new power play and a rejuvenated goalie when they move into Toronto tonight.

Rangers burning up the league early in the season, have been caught by the oncoming Detroit Red Wings. Whichever team can hold onto fourth place will wind up with the last playoff spot comes semi-final time.

Rangers go twice this weekend—in Toronto tonight and at home to Maple Leafs on Sunday. Chicago Black Hawks visit Montreal Canadiens tonight; the Habs move into Detroit Sunday and Boston Bruins call on Chicago.

In Toronto, with Punch Imlach out of town, King Clancy has been rewiring the Leafs' power play. Frank Mahovlich is on point. Bob Purford at centre, George Armstrong on right wing and Bert Olmstead on left. Tim Horton is also taking a turn at point.

"We're still looking for a power play that clicks," Clancy said. "This one looks mighty good in practice."

He turned the power squad loose on Johnny Bower in goal and was apparently happy with both.

Bower said he had three days rest and that's about all the time off he wants.

The oldest who won the Vezina Trophy last year as the league's top goalie says he's ready to be benched if Imlach wants it that way, but in his opinion he's about ready to regain his edge.

"It's like a broken record. Every time a team slumps, they say the goalie needs a rest. I feel more tired at this time last season. I honestly feel I'm just starting to pull out of a slump."

We've got a battle on our hands to keep second place away from those Black Hawks and I want to be part of it."

The pressure is off the Leafs' goalie now that Montreal's masked Jacques Plante has the Vezina locked up.

"However, if Punch thinks a change of goalkeepers will help the team, I'll ride the bench."

CFL increases import rule to 13 from 12

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Football League Friday increased to 13 from 12 the number of American import players its teams can play in a game.

Although increasing the playing import limit, the CFL made no change in the 15-man import maximum the teams may carry on their rosters.

In connection with each club's total playing roster, which includes both Canadians and Americans, the league decided 35 players can be carried for the first three games but after that the number must be cut to 3. The limit after third game last season was 34.

Prior to the opening of the CFL's annual meeting there had been reports that the league might approve dressing 14 imports in a game. A number of general managers of the clubs both the Western and Eastern conferences were in favor of raising the playing limit from 12 to 14.

REMEMBER WHEN

John J. McGraw signed his first contract to manage the New York Giants 60 years ago today, and piloted the National League club for 29 seasons before retiring in June, 1932. Under his leadership the Giants won 10 pennants and four World Series championships, the latter in 1904, 1905, 1921 and 1922.

LEAVE FOR WORLD TOURNEY — Members of Galt Terriers board train for Western Canada and a series of exhibition games before taking part in the world amateur hockey championships in Colorado Springs, Col., next month. In high spirits as they pulled out of Toronto's Union Station, players and officials wave goodbye to friends who saw them off.

Junior League commences playoffs Sunday

The Sherbrooke Junior Hockey League's playoffs open tomorrow afternoon at the Arena with two games on tap. In the first Tech School will clash with the Indians while St. Francis and the Jr. Beavers get together to complete the twin-bill.

The semi-finals are three-out-of-five series and the second tilt is booked for Monday evening at the Arena. The teams emerging victorious will clash in the finals, which will be an other similar series.

The Tech is favored over the Indians but during the past season Normie Dussault's squad has had the most trouble with the Indians. A tough battle is expected before a winner is declared. The last few games in Tech has shown a big improvement over their early appearances and with the league title tucked under their belts they should be real tough.

In the second clash between Pat Murphy's Beavers and Mutt Dussault's Saints another tough battle seems to be in the offing. The Murphy clan finished second just behind Tech and on the strength of this they are slight favorites.

Coach Mutt Dussault figures his team can upset the Beavers and with a complete lineup they should be able to give a good account of themselves. In their meetings the Beavers held 5-1 and 3-2 decisions while the other they battled to a 1-1 draw.

All games in the semi-finals will consist of the first period straight time with stop time the last minute of play while the second frame will be a fifteen minute, stop time, and the last twenty minutes with time out.

All games will be played under this system, stated President Dugre. And orders have been issued to players not to forget that all majors and misconducts will carry a game suspension.

Montreal players to try out in major league

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Montreal baseball players are heading south this spring hoping to land regular berths with major league clubs.

Pitchers Ron Piche of Milwaukee Braves and Ray Davault of New York Mets, and first baseman Tim Harkness of Los Angeles Dodgers are probably Canada's strongest entries in this year's scramble for positions.

Harkness perhaps has the toughest problem. His rival for the Dodgers' first base job is Frank Howard, the six-foot, seven-inch hard-hitting giant.

But Harkness impressed the Dodgers' brass by batting .500 in a three-game trial at the end of last season.

FINGERS CROSSED

"You never know ahead of time," says Harkness. "They could make a trade or switch players around at any time."

Harkness played briefly with Montreal in the International League in 1958, and last season batted .260 with Spokane. Two years ago he socked 28 homers with Spokane. He is the only Montreal player in the Dodge organization except for Pete Ciancone, who has pitched Class D baseball for two seasons.

Piche started with Milwaukee last season but was farmed to Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League where he won 14 and lost seven, while leading the league in shutouts.

Davault was enthusiastic at being drafted by the new National League entry, New York Mets, after a few years in the Dodge organization.

"I'm not getting any younger," said the 27-year-old right-hander. "I have to make good this year or accept my fate as a minor league player."

Playing for Casey Stengel, long-time pilot of the Yankees who will coach the Mets, is enough incentive "to make good" for any player, he said. Davault had a 10-9 record last year with Tacoma but was weak in the late innings. He hopes to become a relief pitcher. "I would rather see action in 50 games than start 20," he said.

On the Mets' roster Davault will join his former Montreal team-mate, Charlie Neal.

NY Mets sign
Clem Labine

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets signed Clem Labine, the veteran relief pitcher who was released by Pittsburgh Pirates after the 1961 National League season, Friday. Labine, 35, was a free agent.

Labine came up to majors with Brooklyn Dodgers in 1950 and remained with the club, except for a couple of trips to the minors, until he went to Detroit in 1960. Labine finished the 1960 season with Pittsburgh and had a 4-1 won-lost record with the Pirates last season.

Willie McCovey
signs contract with Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie McCovey signed his 1962 contract with San Francisco Giants today.

McCovey crashed into the majors in the middle of the 1959 season and batted .354 in 52 games to become the National League's Rookie of the Year.

His batting average flopped to .238 in 1960 and he came back last year to hit .271. McCovey saw service at first base and as a pinch hitter last season.
