MONTREAL'S SCHOLASTIC VISITOR.—President Elliot, of Harvard University, who was the guest of honor at last night's banquet of the American University Men's Association in Montreal, has been President of Harvard since 1869, and is one of the best-known educationists on this side of the Atlantic. He has had a distinguished career, and has delivered many noteworthy addresses on educational and scientific subjects. Last night's banquet was of a very representative character.

McGILL'S NEW PROFESSOR.—Dr. Howard T. Barnes, who has just been appointed Professor of Physics at McGill University, is a leading authority on certain branches of physics. His researches extending over several years, on the specific heat of water, have become a classic, and, after occupying the attention of the Royal Society of London at a special session, were made the basis of the report on this subject, to the conference of physicists at the last Paris Exhibition. The Opening of Parliament; A Group of Historic Pictures

THE OPENING OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT—King Edward and Queen Alexandra on their way to the House of Lords. The golden coach, in which they are seated, is being drawn by eight cream Hanoverian horses belonging to the royal stables. Yeomen of the Guard from the Tower of London form the bodyguard around the coach.

THE OPENING OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT—His Majesty the King about to read the Speech from the Throne in the House of Lords. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is seated on his right.

THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT BY QUEEN VICTORIA ON JAN. 31, 1856—The Prince Consort is on the Queen's left, and the Prince of Wales (now His Majesty the King) is on her right.

AN HISTORIC SCENE IN ENGLISH HISTORY—Edward I. addressing his subjects in the new palace yard in 1297. The populace are shown lifting up their hands in token of their devotion.

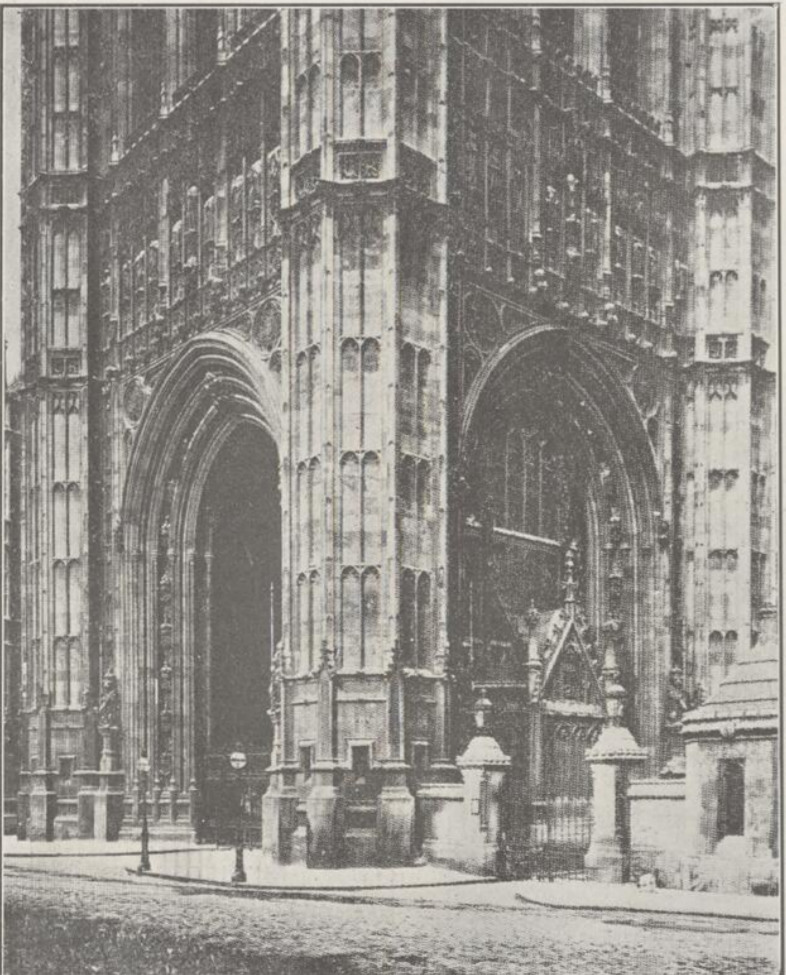

SCENES CONNECTED WITH THE OPENING OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT—The formal opening by King Edward, on Tuesday last week, of the second session of the second Parliament of his reign, was attended with all the pomp of ceremonial incidental to this important legislative function.

The King and Queen, in the historic golden coach, participated in the usual state procession from Buckingham Palace to the House of Lords. The route was lined by troops, and the crowds gave Their Majesties a hearty reception. The great officers of state awaited the King at the Victoria Tower entrance of the House of Lords, whence the robing room was reached. The King, having donned the royal robes over his Field Marshal's uniform, a procession was formed, and, amid fanfares of trumpets, it slowly traversed the Royal Gallery and the Prince's Chamber, thence entering the Upper House, which was brilliantly lighted up by electric lights. The House was filled to its capacity, and the assemblage of members of the Royal family, of peers, robed in scarlet and ermine; and peeresses resplendent in court dresses, state robes and magnificent jewels; foreign diplomats, church dignitaries, judges and officers of the navy and army, all in gala uniform or clad in the vari-colored robes of their office, combined to form a scene which was medieval in its picturesqueness. Ranged on the steps of the throne, on either side of the King, stood the Earl of Crewe, lord president of the council, bearing the imperial crown; the Earl of Carrington, joint hereditary lord great chamberlain of England, carrying the sword of state, and the Marquis of Winchester, premier marquis of England, with the cap of maintenance in his hands, and other state dignitaries.

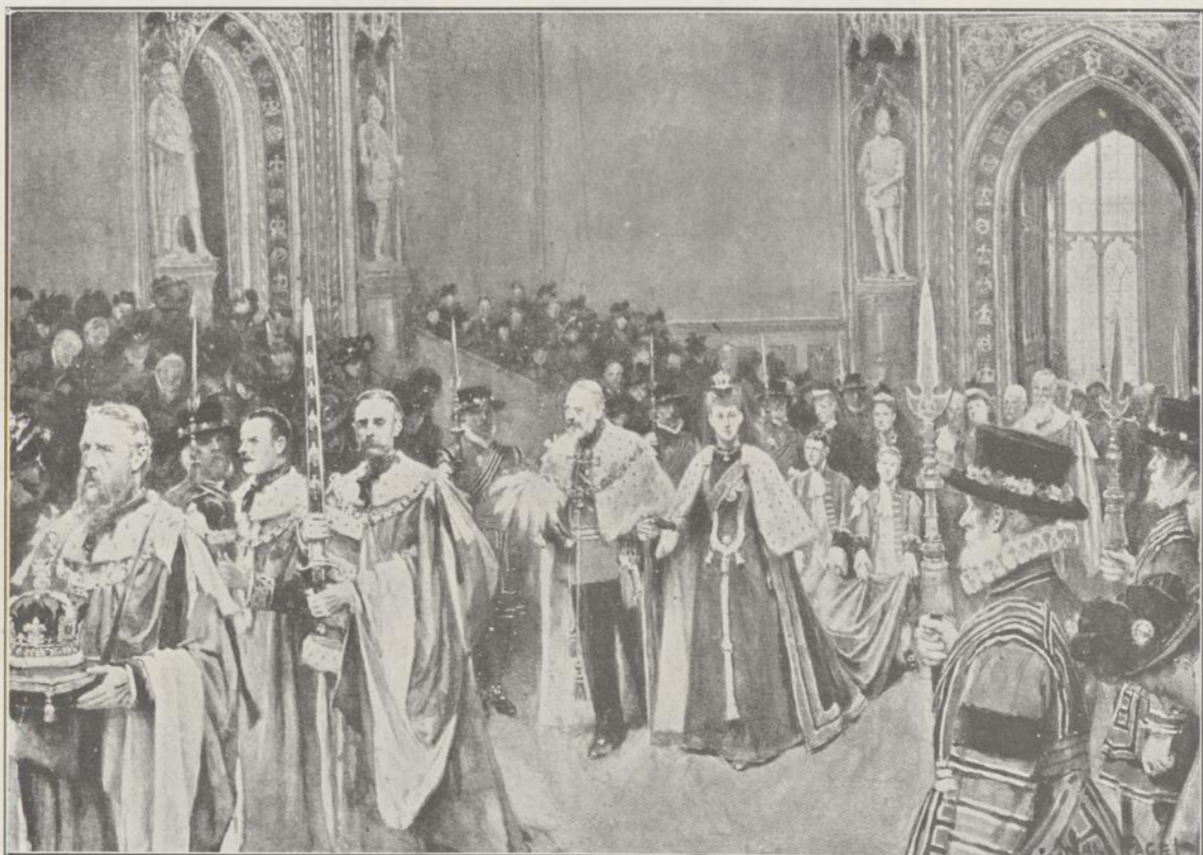

The members of the House of Commons having been summoned to attend the House of Lords, the Lord High Chancellor, Lord Lonsburn, kneeling, handed the King the speech from the throne, which His Majesty read.

HENRY VI. OPENING THE ENGLISH PARLIAMENT WITH HIS MOTHER—This is the only instance recorded in English history in which Parliament was opened by a Sovereign of tender years. His Majesty, it will be noticed, holds the royal sceptre in his hand, but does not wear the golden circlet on his head.

THE OPENING OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT—The great gateway at the foot of Victoria Tower, through which Their Majesties passed.

THE OPENING OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT—Their Majesties the King and Queen passing from the royal robing room to the House of Lords. Yeomen of the Guard line the passageway.

A Wholesome Sweet For the Youngsters.

The fondness of the little ones for sweets is natural—and should be satisfied.

Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate is the most delicious and an entirely healthy sweet for children.

It is pure and nourishing.

It is easy to digest.

It is made only of the best cocoa-beans, the purest milk and finest grade of sugar.

The more children eat of it, the sturdier and rosier they'll grow.

Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate is made in a spotlessly clean factory—in the beautiful Gruyere Valley, Switzerland, famous for its bracing air, pure water and rich pastures, where the cows graze that supply the milk used in this ideal Milk Chocolate.

Cailler's has a peculiarly delightful flavour and a rich, creamy delicacy, not found in other Milk Chocolates. And it is wrapped in four wrappings.

Every wise mother will avoid the unwholesome and often impure candy—and get Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate instead.

They'll begin right away.

At grocers' and confectioners'—5c, 10c, 15c, 20c and 30c. Daintily wrapped Croquettes (just the thing for receptions), 20c and 40c.

IN A MONTREAL AUCTION ROOM—Here are the prices at which some of the things in the picture sold at:—Sideboard, $14; dumb waiter, 75c; gas stove, $4; dinner set, $3.75; carpets, 75c to $1.75; bed, $8.75; sewing machine, $5.

The Tale of the Auction Room

Written for the Standard

THE red flag hung at the door of the St. James street auction room indicated that a sale was proceeding. The long, white-washed room at the rear of the premises was stacked with articles to go under the hammer that day. Every imaginable kind of household furnishing, from bedroom suites and Morris chairs to kitchen stoves and clothes wringers, from pianos and pictures to carpets and china. Clothing, too. Suits of all kinds, for all ages and sizes of human beings, fur coats, tweed coats, dust coats, fur sets, costumes, hats, caps, boots, underclothing and handkerchiefs. Office and store and factory furnishings—desks, stools, showcases, coffee cans, butter refrigerators, boot-stitching machines, punches, drills, and hand-tools.

Among the oddest things in the remarkable collection—a church organ, a live parrot, twelve gross of Jack-in-the-Boxes, and a small mountain of military belts from the old St. Helen's Island stores.

Most of the things are second-hand. Many look new or nearly new; others plainly show signs of wear and tear and neglect.

An Interesting Crowd.

The auctioneer has started at one end of the long room. He has mounted to an old kitchen table, with his clerk beside him, and the crowd is gathered round. A strange crowd. Curio hunters in their furs and jewellery; the Mrs. So-and-so's down to pick up a bargain for the home; the street railway conductor who has dropped in to spend an idle hour and a dollar or two if anything should take his fancy; the bright young lady, about to be married, trying to be economical in the furnishing of the dovecot; the man who is down at heel, with hands in pocket, straw in mouth, happy and contented-looking, indoors only because it happens to be snowing outdoors; the sad-eyed women in black, waiting to see what the household things will bring—it tears her to part with the things, but she must have money; the Hebrew broker, in two types, the clean and well-dressed and the unclean and ill-dressed, on the best of terms with one another.

The old table shakes. A hind leg is saying good-bye to the rest. The auctioneer and his clerk dismount carefully and mount some more substantial platform. Then the old table is put up for auction. Nobody wants it. After much haggling, a broker accepts it for five cents.

Miscellaneous Small Things.

A basket-full of odds and ends is next for sale. There are a few bowls and cups and saucers, a carrot grater, a teapot, a soapdish, several tin jelly shapes, a small lamp, a coal-bucket, a brass candlestick, an alarm clock, a wall calendar for 1892, and the basket itself. Five cents is the first offer. Ten, fifteen, and twenty follow in rapid succession. A pause. "Twenty-five," shouts a little woman. "Any advance on a quarter," says the auctioneer—"going, going,—gone at a quarter. Next lot."

A walnut parlor suite of six pieces, the upholstery a little faded and worn. "Twenty cents!" calls a Hebrew humorist. "Don't bankrupt yourself," answers the auctioneer. Five dollars, (Continued in General Section, p. 13.)

THE HOTEL DE VILLE OF THE AMBITIOUS CITY — Exterior of the City Hall, Hamilton, Ont., in which many exciting debates took place during the past three months.

SNOWSHOEING IN MONTREAL—A group of enthusiastic snowshoers photographed for The Standard on the Champs de Mars just previous to the recent amalgamated tramp of city and outside clubs.

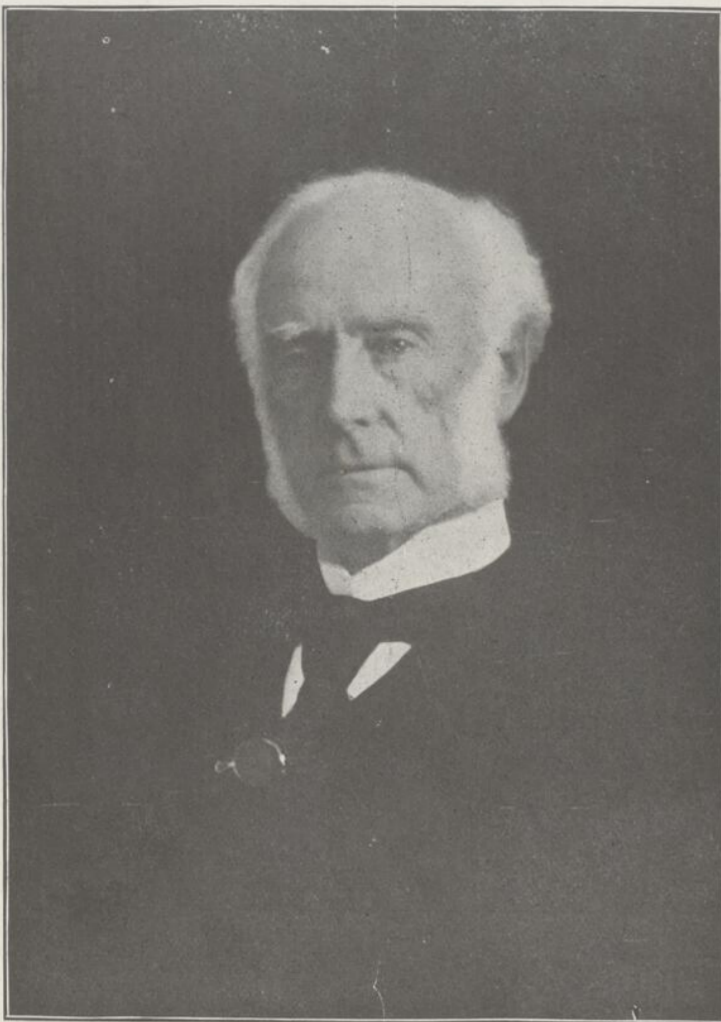

A RACE ON SNOWSHOES—Scene at Delorimier Park, Montreal, on the occasion of the recent big snowshoe meet.
