Viet leader is fired by junta

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's ruling military junta tried to head off another political crisis today following the ouster of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Huu Co. He had been deputy premier, defense minister and the leading southerner in the junta dominated by the refugees from North Vietnam.

Informed Vietnamese sources said 20 to 30 supporters of Co, most of them military personnel, had been put under house arrest, and assistants of his on the defense staff were being transferred or watched by security police.

Saigon, although filled with rumors, was quiet and there was no indication that the director of ruling generals was breaking up. But some disillusionment at the ouster of the southern general was reported among southern leaders in Saigon who resent the northerners' domination.

Yamaska teachers on job under protest

MONTREAL (CP) — Roman Catholic school commission voted 58 per cent in favor of staying off the job today in the Yamaska region east of Montreal, ending a walkout which has kept 8,500 children without classroom instruction since Nov. 24.

Norman Reid, president of the union bargaining for the Yamaska teachers, said union members were returning to the schools "in a spirit of revolt and indignation."

"The conflict isn't resolved," he said. "We still consider ourselves on strike but we are going back because of the whip of government injunction."

But political pressure was mounting over the Union Nationale government's handling of teacher troubles in Montreal, where 9,000 Roman Catholic teachers have been on strike since Jan. 13, closing schools to 217,000 children.

At a meeting Tuesday in nearby St. Hyacinthe, 417 teachers employed by the Yamaska teachers they must go back to their classrooms. Only 67 teachers reported to work Monday and Tuesday after the injunction had been served.

In Montreal, negotiations between the Montreal Catholic school commission and two unions representing the striking teachers were reported going well under the mediation of Mr. Justice Andre Monpitt of Quebec Superior Court.

MOVES NON-CONFIDENCE
In Quebec City, where the legislature resumed sittings Tuesday, the opposition Liberal party moved a motion of no confidence in the government, which is faced with teacher strikes and threatened teacher strikes in several parts of the province.

Strikes spark debate at legislature opening

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's Union Nationale government found itself confronted Tuesday night with a motion of no confidence put to the newly reconvened legislative assembly by the Liberal opposition.

The motion, an offshoot of strikes by teachers in Montreal and elsewhere, sparked debate that is expected to continue today.

The assembly, back in session for the first time since before Christmas, also saw the tabling of a report by the provincial auditor, which had sharp words for the administration of Expo 67, of the province's transportation and highway laws and of the winter works programs.

Also tabled at the busy Tuesday sitting was an apparently non-committal report dealing with Quebec finances before and after the six-year term of the former Liberal government.

Premier Daniel Johnson, shortly after his Union Nationale's assumed office last June, charged that the Liberals had left Quebec's finances "in a mess."

The Liberals denied this and

Dunham chief sent to trial on abduction charge

SWEETSBURG WARD — Judge Guy Genest, yesterday, ordered Dunham Police Chief Alain Langlois, to trial at the next Assizes, on a charge of abduction. Langlois, a Granby resident, was suspended by the Dunham Town Council on January 9, 1967, pending outcome of his preliminary hearing.

Lise Thireau, 17, of Granby, told of her abduction during a preliminary hearing at Bedford District Court yesterday. She said that she was approached on Waterloo's Main Street January 4, 1967, by a man who appeared to ask for directions, and when she opened the car door he dragged her into the car and drove off. She said that she had told him that she was going to call a taxi, to take her to her parents' home in Foster.

The man allegedly showed her a police identification card that read chief, and said that he would gladly drive her to her parents' home. Once they had gone past her destination, Miss Thireau said that she started to scream, to no avail, and that she would have attempted to jump from the car, but for its excessive speed.

She said that the man then pulled off on a side road and threatened her, then, after having attempted to embrace her, while she was resisting, hit her with a blackjack. She said that she was not knocked out, but managed to open the car door and get out. She then alleged that the man hit her another four times with the blackjack, but that through fighting back, none of the blows put her out.

Miss Thireau said that she ran to a car parked nearby, and asked for aid. She said that the driver of the second car took her to Waterloo, where she received medical aid.

The Crown's second witness, Jean-Guy Loisele, 22, Waterloo, substantiated Miss Thireau's testimony to the extent that he saw two persons scuffling outside a car, and that one, Miss Thireau, ran to him and asked him to drive her to Waterloo for medical aid. Loisele said that she was slightly hysterical, and after having brought her to a doctor, he alerted the Waterloo police. Loisele said that he had been parked on the Fallowfield - West Sheppard road when the event occurred.

Langlois was ordered to preliminary hearing February 7, on charges of having robbed Miss Thireau of her purse and other valuables. Langlois is free on $500 cash bail.

Regional school pros and cons clash, pitting immediate need, further study

By PAUL WATERS
(Record staff reporter)

A delegation from Stanstead, Beebe and Rock Island presented a "slow down" petition to the Eastern Townships Protestant Regional School Board yesterday afternoon, demanding that the board reconsider its plans to build the proposed school complex in Ascot.

Another delegation from the border communities, however, turned up at the same meeting, protesting the petition, supporting the regional board and urging the working towards realization of the big centralized school for the sake of the children.

The petition, signed by 500 border residents and presented to the Stanstead-Beebe-Rock Island Board last Tuesday, claimed that the proposed site will prove a disservice to Stanstead County, inflict hardships on the children and lower Stanstead land values.

The border area's petition was backed by a petition from the North Hatley School Board, which also demanded that the regional board suspend its present plans and re-examine the situation. A copy of this petition had already been sent to Quebec Education Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

TWO POINTS

The controversy at the meeting centered on two points: the distance Stanstead high school children would have to travel to school, and the depopulating effect the school site would have on the border area.

The petition claimed that the lack of a high school in the communities would make it harder to attract new settlers to the area and drive the present residents away.

Speaking in support of the board, Allen Greer of Stanstead issued a very strong protest against any delay. Any more delay in the completion of the school, he said, would be a detriment to the children. "We don't know how long the delay would be," he added, "nor have the petitioners proposed any alternate plan."

Border education is falling behind, Mr. Greer said, and there would be too big a price to pay for any delay in the completion of the new school. "I don't believe in rushing into anything as big as this headlong," he said, "but I don't think we have any choice."

WANTS FURTHER STUDY

A delegate from the North Hatley School Board, Ronald Sutherland, called for a complete re-study of the matter. He said it would be a "criminal undertaking" to proceed without further study.

Saying that the board's statistics were out of date, he said it would be "absolute idiocy" to make the study without the aid of a trained demographer. With the construction of the autoroute through Maine to the Maritimes, he said, the population situation in the border area could change radically.

The Stanstead area children he contended would be forced to spend more than four hours on the bus a day. This would affect adversely both their health and their ability to learn, he claimed.

"I cannot see," Mr. Sutherland said, "how it would be a detriment to the students if we paused and took another look at where we are going."

WHY SO LATE?

Asked why the protests had come so late, 18 months after the planning committee's report had been published, Mr. Sutherland said that the North Hatley board had not received a copy of the report until last December.

The Regional Board Chairman, Lorne Campbell, said that the reports had been available since July of 1965.

Mr. Campbell also said that the location of the school was bound to be a thorny problem. It would be impossible, he said, for the board to satisfy everyone.

North Hatley outlines position against new school

A five-point petition calling for a suspension to the Eastern Townships Protestant Regional School Commission's plans to build the school in Ascot until after re-examination has been sent to the regional board and to Quebec Education Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand by the North Hatley School Board.

The petition calls the preliminary investigations of the original planning committee "unscientific, often uninformed, and in some cases patently valueless."

The petition claims that there are five weaknesses in the committee's report. The statistics used are already outdated by five to ten years, the petition claims, and enrolment predictions are based upon the highly dubious principle of static population.

The calculations of transportation time for school buses based on a series of trips by an individual in a private car, the petition goes on to say, are largely irrelevant. Research in the USA, it says, shows the average school bus travels at a rate of a mile every two minutes, which would mean some children would spend more than four hours a day on the bus.

The report on the location of schools is incomplete, the petition claims, and it ignores the most significant factors: transportation and the possibility of using existing facilities.

The fourth point that the petition brings out is the effect of the regional complex on the elementary schools. Some elementary schools, the petition says, may not be able to exist without the high school, and will have to close down, forcing primary school children to travel long distances to school.

ONE-SIDED

"It would appear that the education philosophy underlying the program of the planning committee leans too heavily upon precedents developed in industrialized, thickly populated areas of the USA," the petition states. "A great deal more documentation is required before any philosophy can be confidently adopted," it continues.

In the petition, the board explains why the protest did not come until 18 months after the publishing of the planning committee's report: "The delay is explained by the fact that the Regional Board did not distribute essential documentation to the region's school commissioners until mid December, 1966. Moreover, attempts to obtain clarification of policy from a representative of the regional board have met with consistent evasion of issues, however inadvertently."

Later on, the petition states: "It should also be noted that in view of the changing perspective ives in the Department of Education of Quebec and considerable disillusionment with certain regional school experiments, not to mention the appeal of a possible decrease in expenditure which would come about if a new program justifies use of existing school facilities to a greater extent than does the present plan, there is good reason to believe that the Department of Education will not prevent the regional board from reconsidering its position."

School question blocks accord between sect and welfare court

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—At tempts to settle a dispute between social welfare court and members of a breakaway Roman Catholic sect operating a Laurentian monastery seemed to be stymied today as 51 children remained in hiding from the authorities.

A spokesman for the Apostles of Infinite Love said Tuesday proposals made by Crown prosecutor Andre Fauteux that involved sect children going to public schools are unacceptable.

The children now are taught by monastery teachers.

Meanwhile, Mr. Fauteux was to fly to Quebec City today to brief the justice department on the case.

Adding to a confused situation was the absence of Rev. Jean de la Trinite, Quebec leader of the sect, who left the monastery Sunday and who is due to appear in social welfare court Thursday to answer charges of exposing children under his care to moral and physical danger.

Due to appear Thursday on the same count is Rev. Louis Douzich, also of the monastery.

21 CHILDREN FOUND

Father Jean did not appear at a short court hearing Tuesday to which he had been summoned and Judge Leandre Prevost issued a warrant for his arrest.

Of 72 children originally sought by social welfare officers, 21 have been found.

Tuesday's brief court hearing was followed with a tour by the court of the monastery, which lies just outside St. Jerome, 45 miles northwest of here. St. Jerome is 25 miles northwest of Montreal.

HOME AGAIN — Mrs. Roland Poitras gets a joyful greeting from her daughters Monique 16, left and Gisele, 14, after they were returned home to Fitch Bay by welfare authorities. The girls had earlier been removed from their home by police seeking 72 children hidden by monastery officials of a breakaway Roman Catholic sect of which Mrs. Poitras is a disciple. (CP Wirephoto)

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Isidore Zifferstein, a Los Angeles psychiatrist, in a recent article, was critical of some television programming for children, wrote that children between the ages of five and six watch television on an average of more than four hours a day.

Nicholas Johnson, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, in an interview taped for broadcast Monday night observed that "tens of millions of children in this country are spending more time with the television set than in school—and are getting very little for this expenditure of time."

And even the casual observer notes a marked shortage of regularly scheduled network children programs for young children.

There is Captain Kangaroo on CBS, a highly lauded program, and that network plans to start a children's film festival of 12 programs early in February.

NBC has its occasional Children's Theatre and early in March will present Rabbit Hill.

But seen only by small children and some vigilant parents, are the blocks of cartoon programs on all three networks from 9 a.m. until after noon Saturdays.

BEEF BREEDERS PRESENT — The Quebec Aberdeen Angus and Shorthorn associations held their annual meetings in Sherbrooke yesterday and elected new executives. Donaldson of Foster, president of the Aberdeen Angus Association; and Dr. Louis Johnson, president of the Quebec Beef Breeders' Association. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay)

Urges more beef production

Quebec only raises 30 per cent of the beef it consumes, Agriculture Minister Vincent said at a combined meeting of the Quebec Beef Breeders Association, the Quebec Hereford Breeders Association, the Quebec Aberdeen Angus Breeders Association, and the Quebec Shorthorn Breeders Association at the Lebaron Hotel last night.

Mr. Bombardier, the Sherbrooke County agronomist, was replacing Quebec Minister of Agriculture Clement Vincent as guest speaker. Mr. Vincent was apparently busy in Quebec at the opening of the Legislature.

Speaking on the need for increased beef production, Mr. Bombardier said that Quebec farmers should be encouraged to diversify more and more toward the raising of beef animals.

Both the federal and provincial governments, the speaker said, have the facilities to advise and help the farmers in diversifying. There are beef experts working in the area for both governments he said, who are always available to the farmer.

At the meeting, the three associations choose their executives for the coming year.

In the Hereford Association, Albert Taylor of Lennoxville was elected president. Bernard Methot, St. Antoine de Tilly, vice president, and Ted Tanner, was named secretary.

The new president of the Shorthorn Association is Erwin Watson of Bury, vice president, Hugh Peckham of Granby, and Donald Corrigan of Shawville. Miss Elizabeth Duffy was named secretary.

J. R. Donaldson of Foster was named president of the Aberdeen Angus Association while H. Trudeau of Rigaud was elected vice president. The secretary is L. H. Hamilton of St. Anne de Bellevue.

Dr. Louis Johnson was made president of the Quebec Beef Cattle Association and was also named to the Board of Directors, Aberdeen Angus delegates.

The other two directors named by the Aberdeen Angus delegation are J. R. Donaldson and Bob Laberge.

Named directors by the Hereford breeders were A. W. Taylor, R. M. Mayhew, and L. Langevin. Named by the Shorthorn breeders were: T. C. Stewart, Erwin Watson and Allen Martin.

The three directors at large are Wes Nichol, Colin Staples and J. A. Soucy.

Galvin Road officially restored

Withhold payroll deductions

The L'Estrie Roman Catholic Regional School Board is refusing to send to the provincial government the monthly income-tax and pension fund deductions from its employees' pay cheques.

The decision came as a result of the government's tardiness in making the grants necessary for the board's administration and to balance the board's budget, L'Estrie President Michel Marengo said.

The L'Estrie Board is also asking other boards in the region to follow suit in refusing to turn the deductions over to Quebec.

The board's decision to keep the payments will mean $35,000 a month to the provincial government, or $280,000 for eight months, the length of the school year.

Mr. Marengo said that each month the school board will make a monthly report and send it to the government with a note attached explaining that the board didn't have the money to pay the bill because Quebec is late in making the budget balancing grants.

Commissioner Francois Thibault said that the government is always behind and late in making grants and that it continued it would be the children who would pay the price.

ASCOT NORTH — (Staff) — Nineteen-year-old Susan Ironside and her crusading students tasted victory last night when the municipal council here changed the name of La Montagne Street back to Galvin Road.

The council's move, made at a special meeting, ended Susan's week-long campaign to preserve what she felt was part of her family's and the area's history.

Council secretary Marcel Grondin reported the decision this morning.

"I'm really happy, and I really enjoyed doing it," Susan told the Record today in the first flush of victory.

Susan, a Grade 12 student, working with the help of only her school friends, last week circulated a petition protesting the original name change and managed to collect 136 signatures.

With two other students, Bruce Dunsmore and Susan O'Boyle, she visited Mayor Julien Ducharme on Monday night and presented him with the petition.

The mayor told the delegation on Monday night that the matter would be decided at last night's meeting and that he would do "his best" to help the students.

This morning Susan said: "I think we were very well received by the mayor; he seemed very reasonable, he really seemed to involve himself and he kept his promise."

"I always thought it (the name Galvin Road) would be restored," she continued, "I couldn't see any reason it shouldn't be."

The decision, she said, really made the work worth it.

The Galvin Road was named after one of Susan's ancestors, Maurice Galvin, a pioneer who settled in the area in the 1850's.

Galvin, who first came to Canada about 1835 and settled first near the border area where he worked on the building of the Grand Trunk Railroad, cut the road through virgin woods with a team of oxen and the help of his three brothers.

After he settled in the Ascot-Lennoxville area, Galvin set himself up in the tailor trade and opened a shop in Lennoxville.

Sir Alexander T. Galt, whose ill-fated Moore Street Home tumbled to the ground only last October, was one of his steady customers.

The controversy over the name change arose when residents on the road, were notified that they now lived on La Montagne Street.

Galvin's descendants who still lived on the road, Susan and her grandmother, Mrs. W. Newham included, were outraged.

However, on Monday night Mayor Ducharme said that the name had been changed for about five years but the council had not got around to sending official notices or to putting up signs until two weeks ago.

Susan started her petition last Thursday and the older members of her family planned to start one of their own, but it won't be necessary now.

Urges plan for store hours

The newly appointed president of the Sherbrooke Downtown Businessmen's Association said last night that he had requested an interview with Maurice Beaudoin, minister of labor and trade and commerce, to regulate store closing hours in the province.

The interview is requested if the provincial legislature does not come up with a uniform closing hours plan.

Gaston Beaudoin succeeds Guy Pigeon to the presidency of the businessmen's association. Mr. Beaudoin made the announcement of seeking an interview with the minister as he outlined his program for the year.

Mr. Beaudoin said that closing hours are important to the small businessman.

Eventually, said Mr. Beaudoin, the small stores will be open on holidays and even on Sundays if the government does not stop the bigger chain stores.

Mr. Beaudoin said that during 1966 two chain stores were opened and during 1967 LaSalle industries is planning to establish a retail outlet in the Sherbrooke area.

Mr. Beaudoin also said that downtown parking is another problem that needs attention.

Mr. Beaudoin asked the merchants to put their heads together and to work as a team.

The 1967 executive of the merchants' association as elected last night is made up of Gaston Beaudoin, president, Germain Beaudoin, Moise Gauthier, Fernand Gagne, all vice-presidents and Roger Fortier, treasurer.

Rotary plans centennial pavilion for the retarded

The Sherbrooke Rotary Club last night embarked on a $50,000 project to provide a new recreation and workshop building for the Dixville Home for retarded children.

The building, which will be known as the Sherbrooke Rotary Centennial Pavilion, will house recreation and workshop facilities for 105 children who attend the institution full time.

The project was approved by the Club's executive at a director's meeting last week and the club as a whole voted approval of the project at the club's regular dinner meeting at the New Sherbrooke Hotel last night.

A club committee has been researching the project for several months and last week the project chairman, Tom Markey, reported to the Rotarians that the Club plans to build a 40 foot by 80 foot single storey building with a full ceilinged basement.

The ground floor will be divided into four workshop areas, Mr. Markey said, and one large kitchen area to teach girls domestic science. The basement will be used as a recreation area equipped with a stage that the children can use for productions, dances, and shows.

The Dixville Home Inc. is organized and run by two men originally from Holland, John Visser, executive director and his assistant and partner, Gerrit van der Mark. It is set up as a residential institution, and Mr. Markey said that the 48-member staff tries to give it a home atmosphere.

Says taxation of advertising would add to inflation trend

To tax advertising as a way to curb inflation could just add to the cost of foods and make for greater inflation a marketing manager said last night at the weekly meeting of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

John Hethrington, marketing manager for Bombardier Snowmobiles of Valcourt said that higher income rather than higher advertising expenditures have created the current consumer pressure on our economy. Mr. Hethrington stated that while personal disposable income has increased 43 per cent advertising has increased only 34 per cent.

Advertising is not a price off deal, or trading stamps, or publicity through press releases. Advertising is communications. "The entire role of advertising is to communicate facts, information and opinion about a product or service."

"A paid message on a mass media that does not communicate is no advertisement, it is a waste of money for the advertiser and a waste of time for the consumer."

One of the claims made by critics is that advertising creates wants. This, said Mr. Hethrington, is impossible. Man is an inquisitive animal. As each level of want is satisfied a higher, more refined group of wants become apparent.

"The hardest thing that can be said about advertising is that it exploits these wants or needs. And even this may be too strong a condemnation."

At city council Mr. Nicol was quoted as saying he preferred 14-foot-long trucks as to avoid traffic tie-ups in the downtown area.

Council finally agreed Monday night to allow any truck under 17 feet to make use of the downtown area after 10:30 a.m. daily.

In favor of 18-foot trucks Ald. Everett Nicol said last night in a telephone conversation with The Record that he was in favor of 18 foot long trucks making use of downtown Wellington Street after 10:30 a.m. daily.

Advertising is an important and integral part of the successful production and distribution of any product. It is only a part of the product and part of the total costs. "But it is as justified as a box to hold the product or the nuts and bolts that go into it. Used effectively, advertising adds value to these products and can effectively lower the prices but increase the volume."

Advertising, said Mr. Hethrington, has also a vital benefit to offer, in the area of defraying much of the costs of newspapers and television. Without advertising a single copy of some daily newspapers would cost $3.

Girl injured

A six-year-old girl was injured yesterday around noon when she was hit by a car at the corner of Maisonneuve and Clark Street. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilles Phaneuf, Mirreille, is reported in fair condition after being treated in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital for injury to her leg caused by a car. The car that hit her, driven by Jean Claude Lamoureux, 22, of Katevale, police said, had eluded with another car driven by Jean Luc Ruel, 33, of 4480 Gadbois Street, in Sherbrooke before it went out of control and hit the little girl.

Stupid action by L'Estrée Board

For the best interests of all concerned it is hoped that the members of the L'Estrée Regional School Commission will reverse its decision not to remit to the province monthly the provincial income tax and Quebec Pension Plan stoppages withheld from its employees' salaries.

The decision made Monday was based on the claim that the Commission has no ready cash, largely because of the delay by the Department of Education in paying the grants due the Board.

Probably the Regional Board has reason for indignation against the provincial authorities at the delay in receiving the grants but it is placing itself in a dangerous position by diverting to its general funds monies which it has withheld from the teachers and administrative officials for definite purposes.

Not only could it face possible charges of misappropriation of trust funds but it will be subject to the various penalties provided against all employers who are delinquent in remitting the various withholding taxes levied by the government.

Then there is the possibility that the teachers and other employees might be placed in jeopardy of losing acquired rights through this default on the part of the Board.

Furthermore because it urges other Commissions to follow its tax strike policy, the Board might even find itself charged with inciting lawbreaking, an offence under the Criminal Code.

Admittedly the whole education picture in Quebec is a mess but adoption of a stupid action by the Regional Board will do nothing to relieve the outlook.

Simpler labor legislation needed

One witness appearing before the Rand Royal Commission investigating labor relations in Ontario has come forward with an almost heretical suggestion.

He believes that labor-management troubles would be reduced substantially if much of the existing and proposed labor relations laws were wiped away.

Drastic as this may seem, the idea might even work.

Implementation of many of the proposed labor measures would only antagonize either labor or management or both and would fail to improve the overall situation.

A study of the industrial dispute picture in Canada rather favors the idea that in many areas a plethora of labor legislation is a disturbing factor in the industrial picture.

Should simplify earthly problems

How contemptuous can you get about the miracles of modern science?

When the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported a few days ago that it had repaired a satellite using an "electronic screwdriver" with a handle 252,000 miles long, nobody seemed to get very much worked up by the news.

Perhaps the average man, including ourselves, could not comprehend what the announcement was talking about, but as close as we can understand it, the trouble developed with Explorer 33, launched last July, was something like a short circuit.

Engineers sent a powerful surge through the spacecraft's electronic system, which cured the problem.

Having read about it we are duly impressed.

But we will be even more impressed when some of this scientific know-how comes down to earth.

If engineers can fix a satellite that is nearly 300,000 miles out in space, there is hope that some day we will find a repairman who can treat an ailing television on the spot and not say: "Sorry, I'll have to take this into the shop."

Other papers say:

Russian recreation often a chore

The Soviet Ambassador to the United Nations, Nikolai Fedorenko, has proven himself quite a bit on a popular American television show. We only hope that Western ambassadors will have an opportunity to show themselves just as mischievously charming if and when Soviet television comes up with its equivalent of the Merv Griffin Show. (We commend Mr. Griffin for his enterprise in getting Ambassador Fedorenko to appear with him, but we have a feeling that any eventual Soviet Merv Griffin would be a little less politically naive than was his American prototype the other evening.)

Some might think us naive for expecting Soviet television to move in the direction of this kind of entertainment. But we have reason for doing so. Our reason is not so much the acquiescence of that belittler of the Communists, Marshall Tito, in the opening of "bunny" clubs on the Dalmatian coast—an example which we earnestly trust the Russians will not follow. No, our reason is the accumulation of evidence that both Soviet taste and Soviet leisure are being progressively Westernized. The latest installment is a flaming row between a Soviet playwright and Soviet drama critics, reminiscent of last summer's storm in London involving John Osborne and the British theater reviewers.

The popular Russian playwright, Viktor Rozov, has just accused Soviet critics of being out of step with the times. "As a rule," he wrote in Pravda, "...critics pounce not on what is obsolete, mediocre and bad, but on what is new, talented and developing." He pointed out that in both Moscow and Leningrad, plays played by the critics were still playing to full houses after more than a year.

One of the reasons that Soviet theaters fill more easily perhaps than those in, say, London or New York, is that they offer an escape from overcrowded homes—and from Soviet television. Perhaps it is hardly fair to put it that way, because there is no reason to believe that Russians boycott their television programs. But these programs are, by Western standards, overdidactic and consequently short on entertainment. To quote a Harvard scholar, "In the official Soviet interpretation leisure appears more like work than play."

The whole point of Mr. Rozov's jab at the critics in Pravda may well be to give ammunition to those who think that in the arts, people should be given what they want and not what Big Brother thinks they ought to want. And from the glimpses we get of it, through the curtain of officialdom, genuine Soviet public opinion usually seems to be marked with a healthy degree of common sense.

It worked in Brazil

Portugal's colonial success in past bodes well in future

By JOHN D. HARBRON

"PORTUGAL NO MUNDO" — Portugal in the world. It's a phrase with no mean or hollow ring to it. Deep in the post-colonial era, Portuguese civilization and language prosper in Africa, Asia and Latin America.

About 125 million people speak Portuguese, chiefly in Brazil, a former Portuguese colony and in Africa. The many dialects of Portuguese, like the major Portuguese possessions or former colonies attest to the strong cultural tentacles which this tiny but resilient country has put down where it colonized.

This explains in large part the failure of competing African rebel and guerrilla movements to topple Lisbon's rule in East and West Africa. In Angola (Portuguese West Africa) and Mozambique (Portuguese East Africa), Portugal holds the last two big African territories left from former European empires.

The total area of these possessions (including Portuguese Guinea) is huge, about one million square miles. The population of nearly 12 million is also impressive. So are their resources of oil, cotton, sugar, coffee, metals, diamonds and hydro power.

IT LOOKS PERMANENT

For five years, sabotage and terrorism have been held back by Portugal, which maintains a huge African military infrastructure to keep law and order. Portuguese civilization in Africa is doing more than holding on. It has all the signs of permanence.

Two things account for this. One is that after containment in the remote corners of Angola and Mozambique, the rebel groups have withdrawn into newly-formed African nations where they now live off their hosts.

Not only are they a major drain on already slim national budgets, but they are squabbling among themselves. In Tanzania, once a willing host for exiled Mozambique rebels, the guerrilla groups have become so contentious that Premier Nyerere's intensely anti-Portuguese administration has issued ultimatums — stop bickering and start fighting the liberation war again.

The more significant reason is the Portuguese cultural and ethnic hold on Africa, when all other major colonial powers, including the enlightened British, have gone.

Gilberto Freyre, the sociologist, says Portugal is more successful than all her European neighbors in integrating European values into tropical environments.

Freyre, who lives in Brazil, the vast seed-bed of the Portuguese view of the world, sees present and future dynamism for Portugal in Africa, if the country can achieve the same blend of Mediterranean and African values that took place in Brazil, the largest multi-racial national society in the Western Hemisphere.

"Portuguese culture, more than any other has linked European civilization to the tropics, through an intuitive as well as a partly scientific work of study, experimentation... and adventure," writes Freyre.

What is historic in Portugal's traditions, argues Freyre, can also be modern and cites his homeland as a working model. The white stucco colonial churches of Alentejo, the blind mulatto architect, with their simple, white stucco, inspire modern Brazilian muralists.

A COMMON CULTURE

In Angola, this Brazilian influence is strong in modern buildings. Exact reproductions of 17th century Brazilian schools and homes parallel the construction of modern, spacious flats with the easy but pragmatic stylings of Rio de Janeiro's sunbreaker windows, all attesting to an African sharing of a Portuguese-American culture.

This is a reflection of a mixed African-Brazilian society, created in the days of slavery and Portuguese empire in America. To remain in Africa, Portugal must survive the intense pressures of raucous and destructive African nationalism.

Unlike the Dark Continent, Brazil moved slowly, even ponderously, from one period to the next maintaining an imperial system under Emperor Dom Pedro II until his abdication in 1889.

The Brazilians have had four centuries to develop one of the really meaningful, racially-hybrid societies of the modern world.

The success and longevity of the Brazilian hybrid, in turn justifies Portugal's second major claim to a permanent role in Africa.

Lisbon promotes the concept of the assimilation, a mixture of the white and black races, plus the ancient Portuguese inclination to racial inter-marriage.

In time, the African assimilation is supposed to share most of the advantages of the European new arrivals from Portugal.

Yet interracialism, even in the compatible Portuguese sociological climate, moves at a snail's pace. The Portuguese admit to the slowness. Lethargy, the Latin propensity to put off until tomorrow, the upheaval of the anti-guerrilla campaigns, slow down the program. Mozambique's six millions contain only a handful, about 50,000 "civilized Africans."

CITIZENSHIP IS POSSIBLE

"The Portuguese road to full citizenship for the black is rugged," commented The Reporter. "But theoretically it is still open." In 1961, Portugal extended citizenship to all natives in its African territories by repealing the Law of Native Peoples which had previously classified the African as civilized or non-civilized.

Apologists for a Portuguese role in Africa say the other colonial nations failed because they transmitted their European national traits to Africa races and cultures. The Portuguese, on the other hand, snare, rather than impose a European value system on their colonial subjects.

Hence we find the development of Portuguese-Brazilian society in South America and a small but still viable Portuguese-Indian society in Asia.

In ancient Goa, seized by India in 1961, still nostalgically called Portuguese India in Lisbon, these interpreters of Portugal's assimilation role in the tropics, expect a distinct Goan culture, part Hindu, part Portuguese will flourish indefinitely. (TNS)

AFRICA AT EXPO

More than 200 animals are being displayed at Expo 67 in a three-acre representation of African plain and jungle.

OFF TO THE RACES

Cockroach line longer, but

We're older than we think

NEW YORK (NEA) — Well, of all things, here is another one of these major scientific breakthroughs to conjure with—

After a year of studying a fossilized elbow bone found in Kenya, zoologists at Harvard University have revised the calendar of human history on earth again.

Man, the scientists now say, has been on the planet for at least 2.5 million years, and shared the Pleistocene Age with the mastodon, saber-toothed cat and other extinct animals.

Naturally we were staggered by the news.

The last time we encountered a major scientific breakthrough of this sort a few years ago, man's life on earth had just been placed to 1.7 million years.

And according to the scientific revision before that, if memory serves, we were told that man was only 600,000 years old.

It seems as though this kind of breakthrough keeps breaking through every time we look around. And the plain fact is, we are getting a little tired of conjuring with it, and wish the scientific community would leave the topic alone.

To our way of thinking, there is very little benefit in knowing exactly how old man is or where he started. The study, it seems to us, has built-in problems.

To begin with, it is tough enough to get along with the families you are related to by blood and marriage. But to find out that you are also related to your enemies through the elbow—well, what zoological discovery will one have to bear next?

It also occurs to us that continuing breakthroughs in this sort of lineage will soon raise a hob with family crests, coats-of-arms and the whole science of genealogy.

Basically, there is enough trouble in the neighborhood now without having to worry about whether your sister might marry somebody with a Pleistocene in his background.

We would also like to point out what older and older ancestors can do a fellow's self-respect and pride in accomplishment.

A decade ago, when man was believed to be only a half-million years old, scientists were forever congratulating each other on how far the human race had come in so short a time.

But as the race proves itself to be more and more antique, the achievements start to look a bit smaller. After all, 2.5 million years to invent a 38-hour deodorant and an electric guitar is not really much of a feat.

Other races have done a lot better in a much shorter time, it seems to us. The old English sheep dog, for example, is probably no more than 300 years old. But it won the best of show last year. And that is more than you can say for —well, Ian Smith, for example.

It also strikes us that while scientists triumphantly announce each breakthrough in man's history on earth, nobody ever bothers to say whether being 2.5 million years old makes the race young, middle-aged or old.

The most we have ever been able to get out of scientists on this matter is that man is younger than the cockroach and older than the old English sheep dog.

But what does that mean? Our suspicion is that for all the talk about the past and the future, nobody really has the foggiest notion of what time it is.

If a man of 45 becomes a father, people say he's a little too old for that sort of thing. If he tries to start a new career, people say he's much too old for that sort of thing.

But if he drops dead at 45, everybody says, "What a pity. Such a young man."

TODAY IN HISTORY

The Liberal government of Canada published the reciprocal trade treaty it had signed with the United States 56 years ago today—in 1911—after years of negotiation. A reciprocity treaty had been in force from 1854 to 1866, during which time Canada prospered, but was ended by the U.S. because of resentment against British support of the South in the Civil War. Since then the Americans had turned down all attempts to revive the policy. The U.S. Congress ratified the 1911 treaty but in Canada the Conservatives defeated the Liberals in the same year and it never went into effect.

1531—An earthquake killed 30,000 people at Lisbon.

1950—India became a republic.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—the Germans captured a mile of French front line near Verdun. British raiding enemy trenches near Loos; Russian forces near Riga were attacked.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—the first U.S. troops to reach Europe landed in Northern Ireland; Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced a gift to Britain of $1,000,000 worth of war supplies; Japanese troops occupied a town 60 miles from Singapore.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY

FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

I implore you by God's mercy to offer your very selves to him; a living sacrifice, dedicated and fit for his acceptance. (Romans 12:1, NEB).

PRAYER: Forgive us, O Lord, that often we have complacently offered Thee our second best. Through Thine indwelling may we be and do best that all the kingdoms of this world may become Thine. May we live as well as pray. "Our Father who art in heaven. . . Amen."

Sentenced to two years for robbery and car theft

SWEETSBURG WARD

(Staff) — Jacques Bourdon, 18, address unknown, was sentenced to two years in penitentiary by Judge Guy Genest, yesterday following a plea of guilty to three robbery charges and one of car theft. Bourdon stole Dr. Gilles Bisson's station wagon on January 18, 1967, and was apprehended by Longueuil police the next day. All three robberies took place in Dunham, the total value of cash and merchandise stolen amounted to $821.00. The recovered wagon was valued at $2,500.00.

Judge Guy Genest expressed hope that Jean Major, 19, Granby, would be able to learn a trade, following his sentencing to two years in penitentiary. Major pleaded guilty to four charges of robbery, two of willful damage and one of car theft. The car theft added six months concurrent to his original sentence. Judge Genest said that he would try and have Major placed in the Leclerc Institute.

"You've had a lot of chances," were the words addressed to Albert Jalbert, Granby, by Judge Genest following a two year penitentiary sentence. Jalbert had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering a Granby school.

Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux pointed out that Jalbert had previously been convicted on two theft charges, one of vagrancy, and contributing to the delinquency of minors. Judge Genest said that he would alert the appropriate authorities, to establish Jalbert's possibilities of rehabilitation.

Real Moisan, Granby, a six time loser on charges of indecent acts and molesting minors, will spend the maximum six months behind bars for having performed an indecent act before minor females.

When asked if he had anything to say, by Judge Genest, Moisan replied "I'd much prefer three months." Judge Genest concurred with the crown's request for the maximum sentence.

J. Wayne Davis, was fined $30.00 and costs or one month in jail, following his plea of guilty to having assaulted C. Fortier. Davis was ordered to pay Fortier $43.15 in damages. He was granted 30 days to pay the fine.

Rene Berard, Granby, was ordered to preliminary hearing January 31, following pleas of not guilty, to two charges of having defrauded Emile Aros of $477.23.

the fines.

Gerard Coderre, Granby, pleaded guilty to two charges of having defrauded the Unemployment Insurance Commission. He was fined a total of $80.00 and costs, or 30 days in jail. Judge Genest granted days, and had his driver's permit revoked for a three month period.

file a provincial sales tax report within the period prescribed by law.

R. and A. Lanctot were fined $50.00 and costs, or 3 days in jail, for a violation of the retail sales tax act.

Montrealer pleads not guilty to fraud charge at Sweetsburg

SWEETSBURG WARD — (Staff) — Nicole Desgagnés, of Montreal, already assigned to the fall assizes, will undergo preliminary hearing on yet another charge of fraud, January 31. Miss Desgagnés, free on $500 cash bail, pleaded not guilty to having defrauded Guy Sanschagrin of $113, by means of cashing a fraudulent cheque.

Two Waterloo men were ordered to the fall assizes by Judge Guy Genest, following preliminary hearing. Judge Genest ordered the two men, Maurice McKinnon and Roger Duquette, to stand trial on charges of attempted automobile theft.

Judge Guy Genest ordered Raymond Lachance to pay a fine of $100 and costs, or one month in jail, following his plea of guilty to a charge of hit and run. Lachance's driver's permit was suspended for one year. Lachance had hit young Danielle Oigny in Granby last year, causing a skull, pelvis and arm fractures, as well as a severe concussion. Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux asked for the maximum license suspension of three years, as Lachance had tried to conceal the damage on his automobile, following the accident.

Three violators of the game act pleaded guilty, and were fined $100 and costs, or one month in prison, by Judge Guy Genest. They were: B. Bergeron, P. Thibodeau and Jacques Lavigne. Judge Genest ordered their firearms confiscated along with the ammunition and a hunting knife.

Insect influences girl's choice of nursing career

OTTAWA (CP) — An insect that flew into Dorothy Percy's eye at a memorial service for a king made her decide to become a nurse.

Miss Percy, retiring in January as chief nursing consultant to the department of health and welfare, says people give all sorts of idealistic reasons for their choice of a career, but she clearly recalls why she made her decision.

"It was May 10, 1910, at the memorial service for King Edward VII on Parliament Hill. I remember the purple and black draperies and the bands playing dirges.

"I was just a little girl and I suppose I must have been standing there wide-eyed. At any rate, a fly flew into my eye.

"A lady standing nearby took out the whitest, stiffest handkerchief and deftly removed the insect. She was a nurse, and I decided then to be a nurse and never wavered."

A grey-haired, bespectacled woman with a matter-of-fact, good-humored manner, Miss Percy graduated from the University of Toronto school of nursing in 1924.

She has worked with the Victorian Order of Nurses, taught at the University of Toronto nursing school and nursed in military hospitals here and in England.

In 1947 she became the first head of the health department's nursing division and in 1953 chief nursing consultant, interpreting government policies to nurses across the country and bringing their point of view to the government's attention.

She says that although she has seen terrific changes in her 43 years in the field, to aim is still the same—the best nursing care for the patient.

"Nurses now need a great deal more knowledge of background sciences, but the emphasis is still on personal care and person-to-person relations."

She would advise a young girl entering nursing to take a university general-degree course in nursing science and then go into special training.

"I regret I haven't had more formal preparation."

If a girl is the "sort of person who enjoys dealing with people, finding out what makes people tick," opportunities for her in nursing are "unlimited—it offers everything."

For and about Women

Suede-covered Green Book Washington's best seller

WASHINGTON (AP) — One book covered in green suede is always a best-seller in Washington. It can be found at the White House, the state department, in the homes of the Kennedys, Humphreys, McNamaras and Rusk. They call it the Green Book.

Depending on its owner, it's a status symbol, a telephone directory, an arbiter of the cocktail circuit, an etiquette guide or an instant guest list.

The Green Book is really The Social List of Washington, D.C. It's criticized, chastised, mud-died and prized. Getting in seldom hurts. Being dropped usually pinches.

One woman threatened a lawsuit because she'd told friends she would be in, and wasn't.

WHAT IT TAKES

Prerequisites for getting in include birth in a well-known family, wealth (self-made or inherited) or government or diplomatic position. Also, you must live at least part of the time in or near Washington.

This year's edition dropped a bomb when an associate justice of the Supreme Court, William O. Douglas, was deleted. Douglas, at 67, married his fourth wife, a 23-year-old, last summer.

Typically, there was no explanation for the omission. Reasons for being dropped, says the Green Book's publisher, Carolyn Hagner Shaw, generally fall into one of four categories:

Unpleasant notoriety, unpleasant divorce cases, separations where husband and wife live apart but claim the same name, and failure to answer the yearly questionnaire.

Major government office-holders, congressmen and embassy delegations — 2,000 total — are listed in one section. Some 5,000 social names comprise the bulk of the book.

Unpretentiously, all names are listed with telephone numbers, zip code, addresses of all their homes (half have at least a summer and winter residence). No one gets special treatment.

On page 751, near the bottom, is this entry:

Johnson, president of the United States and Mrs. Lyndon Baines (Claudia Taylor) Miss Lynda Bird

The White House, Washington, D.C. 20500. 456-1414

Luci was not listed because she is married. Children are not included until they are of debutante age, 15 to 17.

One does not pay to be listed in the Green Book. But to receive a copy of the product, there is a $17.50 subscription price and the subscriptions are limited and carefully scrutinized. About 15,000 books are sold each year.

In Confederation time

Education in midst of haphazard beginning, at a shaky minimum

Whatever else it was meant to accomplish, education around the time of Confederation was not apparently intended to cheer anyone up.

A second reader in the Canadian Series of School Books, published in 1867, has a story about two dogs—Snap and Tray. Tray was a good dog but Snap was mean and because of his nasty behavior toward a pack of other dogs both he and Tray were torn to bits by them.

Moral: "We should not go with bad boys or girls, lest we share their fate."

The reader also has a poem that goes:

"O say what is this thing called light
"Which I must never enjoy?"
"What are the blessings of the sight?"
"O tell your poor blind boy."

The book is in a collection in the reference library at the Ontario College of Education in Toronto.

In 1867, education was in the midst of being transformed from its haphazard pioneer beginnings to tax-supported organized provincial systems, but not without opposition.

Parents had paid fees at so much a head to support local schools, and some resented the tax system, calling it an excuse to get them to pay for the education of other people's children.

It was still only the gentry who had more than about five years of schooling. Teacher licensing had begun, though standards and training were at a shaky minimum. School tripling, but attendance often depended on what else there was to do.

Schools themselves were improving. Frame and brick were replacing log buildings, though the ink still froze in inkwells in winter.

Benches that ran the length of the room or that seated pupils two by two were replacing backless benches and desks were replacing slanted writing boards that students stood up to use.

The equipment for one-room rural schools included a box stove, a box of sand for blotting ink, a bucket and dipper for drinking water, and a birch rod about four feet long and thick as a man's thumb.

LEARNED BY ROTE

The curriculum was basically the three Rs with dellops of geography and British history. Education was mostly by memorization, the birch rod probably an effective memory aid.

Emphasis was still on the glories of other lands. A Third Book of Lessons, an English book published in Canada in 1865, said: "It is from the nations of Europe that all efforts to enlighten the nations which still dwell in darkness, and in the region of the shadow of death, must proceed."

An 1872 General Geography for the Schools had a preface that sounds familiar. It explained that the book had been written to fill a need, as most previous books had been British or American.

75 per cent of doctors in USSR are women says CNA official

OTTAWA (CP) — Medical practice in the Soviet Union is virtually a female monopoly, says Dr. Helen Mussallem, executive director of the Canadian Nurses' Association.

It's not just because Soviet nurses are almost all women—a male nurse is a rarity—it's because 75 per cent of the doctors are women, too.

Dr. Mussallem had a good look at medical services last October when she joined nursing chiefs from 22 countries on a month-long tour sponsored by the World Health Organization.

As chief consultant and rapporteur for the tour, Dr. Mussallem later spent a month at W.H.O. headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, writing a report about the trip.

Talking to a reporter, she came up with more evidence of how completely a female-dominated field medicine is in the U.S.S.R.

Feldshers, whose training is between that of a nurse and doctor, are almost all women, too.

The basic difference between the Soviet and Canadian health services, Dr. Mussallem said, is that in the U.S.S.R. no one pays for training or treatment.

"They have the largest land area in the world and there is some health service available in every part—from complex hospitals in Moscow to a small first-aid post on a remote collective farm."

These feldsher-midwife units are similar to nursing posts in Canada's Far North.

NO PRIVATE PRACTICE

Nurses and doctors are assigned to a specific hospital after graduation. After they have worked there three years they may move elsewhere "if they have a valid reason."

One reason might be that a nurse's husband has been shifted to another area. Or she might want to work closer to home.

"There is virtually no private practice. Medical service is free to everyone, so there is no need for private practitioners."

Doctors are trained at "upper medical schools" while nurses, feldshers and midwives are trained at "middle medical schools." There are about 742,000 nurses in the Soviet Union compared with about 108,000 registered nurses in Canada.

That's about seven times as many nurses to serve more than 11 times the population.

Dr. Mussallem said what struck her immediately on enlisting in Moscow was that all medical personnel—doctors, nurses and orderlies—wear the same uniform.

This is a white smock and white surgeon's hat. The smock is worn over street clothes, and

TOURNEY BIDDING SKILL PAYS OFF

Oswald: "Here is a hand which really shows the American team trials players at their best. Looking at all the cards one can see that North and South can wrap up either seven clubs or seven hearts and that it should not be hard to get to one of those grand slams."

Jim: "The great trouble is that in this type competition no one is left to his own devices."

Oswald: "There was plenty of bidding static from East and West. The toughest series of bids came from Mike Lawrence and Lew Stansby. Lawrence overcalled with four spades. Marshall Miles bid four no-trump with the North hand and Stansby, sitting East, jumped to six spades."

Jim: "This type of bid is known as a premature sacrifice. Stansby was going to go to six spades in any event. He decided to bid it early and hope for the best. The best happened. South passed to give his partner a chance to go to seven hearts but North decided to double and take a sure profit. It was a point profit since 700 plus was low score and meant a loss of 12 International Match Points."

Oswald: "The next best East-West score went to Kehela and Murray. Kehela overcalled with two spades, which did not keep North and South from getting to seven but Murray showed why he is one of our most successful competitors by going to seven spades and taking the save for a profit of nine IMP's."

Jim: "The other three North-South pairs were allowed to play the hand at a grand slam. Roth and Root gained an extra IMP by getting to seven hearts while Freeman-Feldesman and Kaplan-Kay played in seven clubs."

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Every man should be afforded the experience of being a movie star in his early 20s," says Warren Beatty.

"The life is truly wonderful—the public acceptance, the abundance of available girls. Why, I've seen men of 65 still struggling to have those things. How lucky a person is to have those things early in life—and then go on to something else."

Beatty was reviewing his own unorthodox career in the film business. Five years ago he made a startling debut in Splendor in the Grass and followed with two other performances of such distinction that people ceased identifying him as Shirley MacLaine's brother.

Then Beatty went into a two-year eclipse that seemed inexplicable. What happened?

"I was more interested in having fun," he says. "The external aspects of being a movie star fascinated me, and I found more pleasure in dashing off to Paris, getting drunk and carrying on with the dolls than in working."

GOT REPUTATION
Meanwhile, he was getting a reputation as an "enfant terrible."

"Perhaps I was," he remarks. "I suppose some people would call me temperamental, but this is a business of temperament."

"Much of my reputation for being difficult came from people whose scripts I turned down; I refused between three and four million dollars' worth of jobs during that time. I would lead them on, and then at the last minute I couldn't do the picture. I couldn't bring myself to make the decision."

"Success had come too early, too fast, too easily. I didn't know how to handle it, and so I did nothing but have fun."

At the end of two years, the fun began to diminish, as did

It is hoped that speakers will be obtained for the social evening. Mrs. Douglas McKim Derby Line, returned home Jan. 5, after spending a week of the fee, which will look after re-birthdays with their family.

Eddie Sylvain of Lac Beauport wins Sulton Dog-sled Derby to nose out top American drivers

SUTTON — Eddie Sylvain of Lac Beauport raced his 12-dog team of purebreds and croise to victory at the fourth International Dog Sled Derby put on by Junior Chamber of Commerce at Sutton last weekend. His time Saturday for the 14 miles was exactly 50 minutes and Sunday over the same course, he clinched first place by covering the distance in a flat 45 minutes to make his overall score an impressive one hour and 35 minutes.

Canada also won second, 4th and 5th honors. Runner-up in second position was Mac McDougall of Ste. Agathe des Monts. His 12 Siberian purebreds scored a total of one hour, 33 minutes and 25 seconds; with Saturday time 51:28 minutes and Sunday result 46:07 minutes.

The three sons of Uncle Sam in the contest were badly outclassed by the Canadians but two of his spirited daughters upheld the Star-Spangled Banner. One of them, a 29-year-old redhead named Ann Wing from Millersburg, N.Y., won third prize for the overall with a score slightly lower than Mac McDougall's and Debbie Mulburg, age 21, of Center Harbor, N.H., finished third on Saturday and added enough Sunday to take sixth place for the overall.

Canada, La Belle Province, and its home town of Lac Beauport, can be proud of the winner who merited first place and top prize of $900. For, during the four years since he first entered sleds at Sutton, he has matured from an ambitious young man of 20 into a top dog sled team driver.

"Eddie Sylvain earned his win," declared a rival driver. "He worked very hard to become a champion racer. First time he came to Sutton he got off to a bad start when he took a wrong turn and went six miles off-course before he finished."

"Sylvain ran into some trouble the next year, too. He didn't quit because of those setbacks though, and last year, as you know, he made third place by giving Mrs. Jean Brivar her first victory by a Canadian driver and team. This season Sylvain proved that his victory was no fluke. Before coming to Sutton he had won over 29 other competitions in a race down near Quebec — and also had won first place at St. Jean de Beauce where 28 of us raced. His win at Sutton gives him three in a row."

Interviewed later for the Record, he revealed a few more facts about himself and his team.

"I have 30 dogs in all," he said. "I used 12 Saturday and the same number Sunday. I have two lead dogs here. One is named Busky, and the other is Puce. The older is 5, the other about a year younger. Both are very good."

Defeat U of S 96-56

Gaiters ignite as Munzer soars

Bishop's University basketball hitting a new peak at 256 points, ball Gaiters gave themselves a playing all eleven games so shot in the arm and boosted far. He is currently atop the team forward Peter Munzer OSLAA individual scoring, averaging 23 per game.

Coach Garth Smith, in using every member of the Gaiters' staff, concentrated on improving the team's defence, employing the full press in the second half. Such constant pressure allowed Bishop's to expand the score, but still remain under the three-figure mark, after leading at the half 38-20. Munzer's fabulous game total consisted of 12 and 22 point spurges in the respective periods.

Yvon Lamarche's squad from U of S now have two victories and nine losses in the OSLAA, having defeated Ottawa, and winning a committee decision over Loyola, due to player ineligibility.

University of Sherbrooke plays host to SGWU's second weekend game here, Saturday afternoon.

Pointgetters for the Gaiters in their tenth season victory, other than Munzer, included Ken Flewelling, 15, Dave Oldfield and Richard 'Perch' Pucell, 11, each, followed by guards Brad Jones and Nick Busing, nine and eight respectively.

Butch Staples, one of the better guards in the conference, and the team's playmaker, settled for two points, along with Doug and John Mackenzie.

Clement Bessette stuffed 25 points through the hoops for the losers. Don Royer and Jean Desreault followed with ten and eight.

Bishop's Gaiters, with their five league games remaining, are favored to win the league championship, and are also the strongest contenders for the playoff title which will be up for grabs March 3-4.

Book creates literary row

MONTREAL (CP) — Rejean Ducharme, 25-year-old author of the best-selling novel La valise des Avalés, has touched off a transatlantic literary row.

The storm over the novel about a half-Polish, half-Jewish girl broke last week when the Paris weekly Les Nouvelles Littéraires said:

"Rejean Ducharme unmasked. The beginning of a literary scandal?"

Jean Montalbet, writer of the article, claimed that Ducharme did not exist and that the book was written by Montreal Le Devoir's literary critic Naim Kattan.

Mr. Kattan said, however, that he had nothing to do with the book and had never met the author, adding:

"But I did review it. I am enthusiastic about it."

The novel's first printing was sold out within a few days in Montreal and it came extremely close to winning a variety of prizes, including the Goncourt, French Literary award, after its publication in Paris.

Mrs. Omar Ducharme, mother of the author, said in a television interview that her son does exist but that he "hates publicity and wants to be left alone to work in peace."

Lift grain ban

MONTREAL (CP) — Restrictions imposed in the past regarding the handling here of United States grain during the spring shipping season will no longer apply, port authorities said Tuesday.

The board of grain commissioners, which issues licences for the operation of grain elevators in Canada, will allow national harbors board grain elevators at Montreal and Quebec to handle grain grown outside of Canada for re-export on a permit basis.

Delay strike

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Association of Interns and Resident Doctors decided Tuesday night to postpone scheduled study sessions after arranging a meeting with Health Minister Jean-Paul Cloutier of Quebec.

The association, which represents more than 2,100 interns and resident doctors in the province, had planned to begin on Thursday the study sessions, a stratagem employed in labor disputes by groups which do not wish to go on strike.

Representatives for the medical men, who are seeking more pay for the internship and residency years of their profession, will meet Mr. Cloutier in Quebec City Friday.

the Ecole Supérieure de Musique Vincent d'Indy.

In 1961 she won first prize in the Jeunes Musicales Competition in St. Hyacinthe and in 1962 received her diploma with honors from the Conseil de l'Académie de Musique de Quebec.

In 1962 Miss Mauger left for Paris with a grant from the then Department of Youth and began her studies at the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique.

Favors Germans

MONTREAL (CP) — Brig. Dillard Menard, commander of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal during the Second World War, said Tuesday the inclusion of German representatives at ceremonies for the 25th anniversary of the Dieppe landing next August "would be an excellent thing."

Of the 600 men under Brig. Menard's command during the Dieppe raid, only 27, of whom 14 were wounded, survived. The regiment had the job of covering the withdrawal of other soldiers involved in the 1942 raid on the French port.

Rejects 'sinister suggestions' of Quebec Eskimo 'raid' plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Fresh reports that the Quebec government soon will take over education, health and welfare services for Indians and Eskimos in northern Quebec were shot down in the Commons Tuesday by Northern Development Minister Laing.

He said "sinister suggestions" in press reports from Quebec

City that the provincial and federal governments have made such arrangements are simply not justified.

The minister said he still stands by his statement of March 4, 1964, that no transfer of administration to Quebec would be made unless the Eskimos and Indians themselves approved the move.

Federal officials say the Eskimos and Indians in northern Quebec want to remain under federal administration. Mr. Laing clashed angrily three years ago with Rene Levesque, then Quebec's Liberal resources minister, who wanted his department to take over the Ungava region.

ASKS ASSURANCES

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) referred Tuesday to reports from Quebec that officials of the two governments have drafted a report on the implications of transferring the northern services.

He asked for an assurance that the Indians and Eskimos of northern Quebec will be consulted before any transfer is made.

Mr. Laing said a report on the financial aspects of the question was drafted by a committee of federal and provincial officials, but he has not yet seen it.

"It is only a working paper for the two governments on financial considerations," he added.

Financial report from Greenshields Ltd.

Although still curtailed with Algoma Steel operating far below a normal level, last week's Canadian steel ingot production was an encouraging 9.1 per cent higher than in the preceding week.

Algoma Steel shutdown on Dec. 17 - 66 when members of railway unions refused to cross striking bricklayers' picket lines and the company's steel-making plant at Sault Ste. Marie remained closed through Jan. 14 this year.

A settlement with the bricklayers was reached over the Jan. 14th weekend and the plant was re-opened immediately.

However, relatively low industry output during the past week indicates that Algoma's operations are still far short of the pre-shutdown level.

Last week's industry production of 143,438 tons was 33,682 tons or 27.2 per cent lower than 196,120 tons in the comparable weeks of 1966 and represented 66.5 per cent of industry capacity at Jan. 1 - 66. Operating rate for this week ended Jan. 22 - 66 was 91.3 per cent.

Shell Canada reports net earnings from operations for the year ended Dec. 31 - 66 of $1.31 per share up from .97 cents per share in 1965 or a rise of 35 per cent.

Increased volumes of refined product sales, improved price levels for motor gasoline and sulphur, and higher crude oil and natural gas liquids production were the main factors contributing to improved earnings for 1966.

Refined product sales volume for 1966 increased 6 per cent to an average of 183,700 bbls. per day.

Sales of motor gasoline and residual fuels accounted for most of the increase, offsetting a slight decline in distillate sales due to generally milder weather in Eastern Canada.

Gross production of crude oil and natural gas liquids averaged 82,800 bbls. daily, an 8 per cent increase over 1965. Natural gas produced and sold was 4 per cent higher at 284 million cubic feet daily.

Indicated net income of $11,826,000 (.36 cents per share) for the fourth quarter of 1966 compares with $8,475,000 (.26 cents a share) for the final three months of 1965.

Consolidated net earnings of Industrial Acceptance Corp. Ltd. for the year ended Dec. 31 - 66 was $13,389,000 up from $12,258,703 for 1965.

After preferred dividends ($836,000 in 1966 and $826,496 in 1965) earnings available for common shares were $12,433,000 or $2.09 a share against $11,932,207 or $2.01 a share.

J. P. Pennefather, President, notes that results for the year 1966 confirm trends indicated in quarterly reports.

STRIKES SPARK

The upshot was the appointment of Montreal lawyer Clement Primeau to inquire into the whole matter.

STUDY REPORT
The opposition, led by the former premier, Jean Lesage, is studying the largely statistical Primeau report and preparing for today's expected renewal of debate on the no-confidence motion.

Before adjourning Tuesday night, the house heard Paul Gerin-Lajoie, a former Liberal education minister, criticize as "hypocrisy" directives issued by the Johnson administration to school commissions last October.

The directives limit the amount of salary increases the commissions can give teachers without consulting the education department, now headed by Jean Jacques Bertrand.

They have been a central issue in many of the areas where the teachers' discontent over salaries has boiled up into strikes or near strikes.

Mr. Bertrand defended the directives Tuesday night after the opposition lost a bid to have the assembly begin an emergency debate on the strike issue.

FINDS IRREGULARITIES
In his now-tabled report, Provincial Auditor Gustave Tremblay said there have been "numerous irregularities" in claims submitted by Quebec municipalities under winter works programs.

"Certain deficiencies" have been noted during the 1965-66 fiscal year in the expenditures by the Crown corporation administering the world's fair, which opens at Montreal April 28.

"Corrective measures were initiated," said Mr. Tremblay, and "their application is steadily reviewed through periodic meetings with all the parties concerned."

He gave no details on the "deficiencies."

Mr. Tremblay said that in some cases the discovery of violations of Quebec's highway and transportation acts had not been followed up with prosecutions. This could cost the province money.
