World News In Brief

London, Ont., May 9—(CP)—"Fractional" drops in the cost-of-living index are the result of the federal government's "disastrous meddling with the agricultural affairs" of Canada, Hon. George Drew said last night.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Western Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, the leader of the opposition said the Liberal administration is "drunk with power."

The government attitude, he said, is: "If we want to get away with it, who's going to stop us?"

Canberra, May 9. —(Reuters) — The Australian government today took the first formal step in slashing imports from dollar sources, including Canada. It announced a 20-per-cent cut in licences for imports outstanding March 31.

Authoritative sources said similar reductions are expected in buying for the period beginning April 1.

London, May 9. — (AP) — The Queen, hatless and dressed in black, received the heads of London's diplomatic corps for the first time today in a Buckingham Palace ceremony.

The diplomats, headed by Brazilian ambassador J. J. Moniz de Aragao as dean of the corps, presented their credentials to the Queen. All had been previously accredited to the late King George VI. Diplomats appointed and accredited since the Queen's accession were not present.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh shook hands with each diplomat after the ceremony. Foreign secretary anthony Eden represented the government.

London, May 9—(Reuters) —A three-power agreement to give Italy a share in the administration of the United States-British zone of Trieste was signed here today by heads of British, U.S., and Italian delegations who have been negotiating in London for the past month.

The agreement, details of which will be published later, hands over to Italian officials all departments of local government except those concerned with security. The U.S.-British zone has been under military government since 1945.

The results of the London conference are being made known to Yugoslavia, which administers the adjoining zone of Trieste, before they are made public.

Rochester, N.Y., May 9—(AP)—Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused in four warehouses here last night by fire and a gasoline explosion. Fire Chief John A. Slattery said the cause of the fire was undetermined. It began in a warehouse owned by the flower city carting company, and gasoline in truck tanks exploded shortly afterward.

Caracas, Venezuela, May 9—(Reuters) — Former King Leopold of Belgium is due here today to make final preparations for his proposed jungle exploration trip up the wild Orinoco river. The one time King and his party are expected to leave from here in a flat-bottomed boat for the largely-unexplored reaches of the giant river near the Venezuela-Brazil frontier.

Ridgway Tells U.N. Troops To Use Force If Necessary To Free Camp Commander

Communist Prisoners Seize American General At Koje Island.

Seoul, Korea, May 9.—(AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway ordered allied troops "to use whatever force is necessary" to free an American General "without delay" from his communist captors in an allied prison camp on Koje island.

Red prisoners of war, defying the order, today still held Brig.-Gen. Francis E. Dodd, commander of the Koje island prison camp, as hostage. Koje is a few miles off Korea's southern coast.

Ridgway said the communist prisoners are demanding, in exchange for Dodd, "phones, permission to organize, writing paper and some other things."

Ridgway, supreme U.N. commander, answered the demand by ordering Gen. James A. Van Fleet, his ground commander in Korea, to use force, if necessary, to rescue the hefty 52-year-old Dodd.

North Korean P.O.W.s captured Dodd Wednesday. But the army kept it secret until today.

An Eighth Army spokesman said Dodd and Lt.-Col. Wilbur Robert Raven were seized while standing at the gate of a prison compound talking to leaders of the 6,000 communist prisoners.

"The gate was a wide one," the spokesman said. "Dodd was standing in the centre of the gate.

"When the prisoners grabbed him, it was an organized mob and he was swept inside.

"But Raven was standing beside a post of the gate. When the prisoners grabbed him, he seized the post, held on, and by fighting and kicking managed to free himself."

The army said Dodd has been treated well by the Reds. He communicated with guard posts outside the barbed wire stockade by army field telephone and couriered messages. He received American food while the North Koreans ate their usual bowls of rice —both passed through from outside.

Dodd relayed a communist demand for 1,000 sheets of writing paper and a "hospital representative." The paper was stacked outside the gate. But Brig-Gen. Charles F. Colson, newly named prison camp commander succeeding Dodd, allowed neither paper nor medic to pass through the gates.

Instead, Colson demanded the Reds release Dodd forthwith. The North Koreans ignored the demand.

Ridgway called the seizure of Dodd a "flagrant and fundamental defiance of United Nations authority." he said:

"I have authorized and directed General Van Fleet to take whatever action is necessary and to use whatever force is necessary to recover General Dodd."

Ridgway issued the orders on his final visit to Korea before leaving the Far East to take command of N.A.T.O. forces in Europe.

Koje has been the scene of two bloddy riots by communist prisoners. One American soldier and 90 Red P.O.W.'s were killed.

Seoul, Korea, May 9.— (AP) — Twelve fast Red jets swept down on eight rail-wrecking allied F-80 Shooting Stars today and one of the Reds was reported damaged in the ensuing fight.

The Fifth Air Force did not say how the comparatively slow F-80s fared. Allied losses, if any, are announced weekly.

The battle was fought near Kusong, 30 miles south of the Yalu river which separates Korea from Manchuria.

On the western front, allied troops were back on a hill that changed hands eight times Thursday and today in a hotly-contested area northwest of Yonchon.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Reds in their latest assaults used about 80 troops. In one phase about 25 communists were reported killed.

Munsan, Korea, May 9.— (AP) — Deadlocked Korean truce negotiators met for only 20 minutes today. A United Nations command spokesman said the Reds probably awaited new instructions from higher up.

The negotiations are stalled over the issue of prisoner exchange, the only major block in the path of an armistice.

After today's brief session, Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, allied spokesman, said he did not think the communists have had an opportunity to "get new instructions." He called attention to recent statements by top officials in Canada, Britain and the U.S. supporting the uncompromising U.N. command stand that no prisoners will be forced to return to Red rule against their will.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il again demanded unconditional return of Red prisoners in allied hands and rejected the U.N. proposal to return only those who would go voluntarily.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate, replied:

"The firmness and finality of the United Nations command position should be unmistakably clear to you by this time. I have

Drugs Duty Reduction Is Asked

Ottawa, May 9.—(CP)—Two party leaders yesterday urged in the Commons that Canada abolish import duties on new drugs being developed for the treatment of lengthy heart and other diseases, particularly new vitamin E concentrates.

They drew an immediate reply from a government spokesman that the matter is constantly under review; that concessions have already been made and that more exemptions may be forthcoming.

The plea came first from Solon Low, Social Credit leader, as the Commons considered resolutions to implement tariff and tax changes made in the 1952-53 budget presented April 8.

He obtained support from M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) and from John Blackmore, (SC—Lethbridge).

Mr. Blackmore said that the government's tax policy for the common man is "close to criminal" and said he knows of people who "have to give up their loved ones" because they haven't the money to buy high-priced drugs.

James Sinclair, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said substitute blood plasma, aureomycin, streptomycin and vitamins of high concentrations are among drugs recently taken off the duty list by Canada.

"The minister is giving continual study to these requests and as the opportunity offers the list of drug exemptions is extended," he said.

The request for drug exemptions was one of many demands for lowering of taxes and tariffs made by members. These ranged from abolishing tariffs on books and hearing aids, made by R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) to a request by C. A. Cannon (L—Magdalen Islands) for sales tax exemption for fishermen's gear.

C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River) said parliament should make manufacturers pass on tax reductions through lower prices. However, Mr. Sinclair said there is no chance. No agreements had been made with the industries concerned to pass on tax reductions.

Mr. Knowles said some way should be found to reimburse those who had paid the special excise tax on stoves, refrigerators and washing machines in the last year The tax now is repealed.

Members approved all the resolutions necessary to give effect to budgetary changes except those dealing with income-tax revisions.

Mr. Sinclair introduced an amendment to the tariff schedule making duty free all tires and tubes used as replacements on farm machinery. Previously only those used as replacements on internal combustion tractors could enter duty free.

Mexico City, May 9—(AP)—Painters Diego Rivera and David Alfaro Siqueriros had the protection today of a court injunction forbidding police to arrest or kill them. They said in their petitions they had learned the police planned to arrest them in connection with the May day riot and "to kill them on some pretext." The injunction is a usual form of protection in Mexico. The group said they were only spectators at the May day shooting, which left two dead and 13 wounded.

Labor Wins In Many U.K. City Votes

London, May 9—(Reuters)—The Labor party ousted Conservative city councils in 19 British cities in yesterday's "little election."

Results showed Labor had gained 656 seats and lost only 16 in 372 municipal borough councils throughout England and Wales.

Against this the Conservatives and independents—in most cases they are Conservative supporters —lost almost 700 seats against gains of only 76.

In addition to the 19 towns in which new Labor councils will take over, two more are likely Labor wins—one of them the midland's industrial metropolis of Birmingham.

There a Conservative majority of 35 was slashed to two, and that will almost certainly be wiped out in forthcoming aldermanic elections.

In Manchester, the Conservatives lost six seats, remaining the largest party but losing full control of the city council.

Labor's most striking successes were in the cotton towns of Lancashire, where the textile slump has caused unemployment. Five towns there—Preston, Bolton, Bootle, Eccles and Widnes—have gone over to Labor, and Conservatives majority in many others have dwindled.

But Labor's successes were not confirmed to industrial areas. In some traditional Conservative fortresses Labor obtained a foothold for the first time.

With nearly all results declared the state of the parties was:

Conservatives—52 gains, 472 losses.

Independents — 24 gains, 210 losses.

Labor—656 gains, 16 losses.

Liberal—12 gains, 29 losses.

Three big towns whnch swung to Labor control were the Yorkshire wool centre of Bradford, the southern port of Bristol and

Second Reading Given Malan's Bill To Alter South African Constitution

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

Capetown, May 9 —(AP)— Prime Minister Daniel Malan's bill to alter South Africa's constitution and keep the courts from killing his white supremacy program won approval in principle last night.

The House of Assembly, controlled by Malan's Nationalist supporters, gave the bill second reading by a vote of 79 to 65 after a bitter 30-hour debate marked by insults and threats as well as arguments and appeals.

The bill now goes to committee of the whole House for clause-by-clause consideration. Malan's majority is strong enough to prevent changes, and the measure now is certain of final passage.

Specifically, the legislation will create a parliamentary high court to decide constitutional issues in place of the appeals court, South Africa's present highest tribunal.

Malan's admitted purpose is to clear the way for passage of laws which will trim the voting rights of about 50,000 persons of mixed blood in Cape province.

They would be confined to separate electoral lists, barred from voting for general candidates in elections.

The Nationalist Prime Minister pushed his voting law through Parliament once before. The appeals court threw it out last March 20 on ground it violated the constitution.

Another clause of the constitution threatened with repeal after Parliament takes judicial power is the guarantee that English remain as an official language, along with Afrikaans. Afrikaans, derived from Dutch, is the language of the Boers who make up about 60 per cent of South Africa's white minority and dominate Malan's party.

Johannes Strydom, minister of lands, told the House he thinks English will disappear, leaving Afrikaans as the living tongue. He denied wanting to suppress it, however, and said he thought it would fade away gradually.

Tensions is growing as the bill proceeds through the House. The suppressed non-white majority of South Africa's population has threatened nation-wide disobedience of racial laws. They already are barred from skilled jobs and their ownership of property is restricted.

Opposition whites also are restive, especially in such English-speaking provinces as Natal.

But interior minister T. E. Donges, piloting the bill through the House, said he believes tension will subside after the bill is passed.

He told the House the government wants the bill passed as speedily as possible. The governments' five-year term ends in another year and Malan apparently wants to complete his white supremacy program so it be an accomplished fact before the election campaign begins.

Atomic Gun Described As Devastating

New York, May 9.— (AP) —An atomic gun developed by the United States army was described last night as an accurate and devastating weapon, providing field commanders with tremendous "finger-tip" fire power—and heralding a new era in the waging of war.

The description of the first U.S. atomic artillery weapon — a gun that can "hit its target under any weather conditions and give ground troops the kind of devastating close support never before available in warfare"—came from Army Secretary Frank Pace.

Pace said the new weapon "is essentially an artillery piece—but with immeasurably greater power than any artillery hitherto known."

"Such atomic weapons," he added, eventually bring "significant changes" in the army's traditional mission of closing with and destroying an enemy.

Pace's claims for the weapon came in a speech before a meeting of the National Wool Manufacturers' Association.

The weapon has been tested by the army with non-atomic ammunition but official specifications of the gun remained a secret until last night.

It weighs about 75 tons but is highly mobile and is carried on a platform suspended between two engine cabs at its front and rear.

It can travel at a speed of about 35 miles an hour on highways—and it can cross bridges "which army engineers are already trained to build for present heavy divisional equipment."

Williamson Puts Gems On Market

London, May 9.—(AP)—Dr. John Toburn Williamson, Canadian geologist who keeps a hoard of diamonds worth fortunes, was offering some of his gems for sale in London today.

But on the open market there were "just a few, worth possibly £500,000," it was said in the diamond trade.

So there still was uncertainty whether Dr. Williamson, who is in Africa, was determined to become a large-scale competitor of the Diamond Sales Corporation, which for half a century has controlled the quantities of diamonds the world might buy, and the prices it paid. Its tight regulation kept prices stable and made diamonds an excellent investment. Dr. Williamson is a native of Montreal and was educated at McGill.

A contract obliging Dr. Williamson to sell his diamonds through the Sales Corporation expired Jan. 1, and for some months he sold little of the production of his Mwadui diamond mine near Shinyanga in Tanganyika, East Africa. Now the first substantial quantities of his diamonds have been received, not by brokers in the trade, but by the Standard Bank of South Africa in London, which has instructions to show them to customers.

"We don't know Dr. Williamson's plans, and could hazard no estimate of the value of the shipment we have received," said a bank official.

Dr. Williamson's personal and business friends here had no definite information but believed he has started selling some of the gems he has been hoarding in a strong room at the Mwadui mine.

Dr. Williamson, 45 - year - old bachelor and geologist, discovered the Mwadui mine in 1940. Deposits were so rich that soon he was producing 1/10 of the diamonds of the world markets and financiers called him "potentially the richest man on earth."

Leese Ballet Is Hailed At Toronto

Toronto, May 9—(CP)— Montreal last night took the honors of the Canadian ballet festival in a program divided with Vancouver.

The Elizabeth Lees Ballet of Montreal with "Lady From the Sea" was the hit of this fourth night. The Montreal Ballet presented "Ballet Regal", an interpretation of Grieg's Piano Concerto in A Minor.

The Ballet Production Club of Vancouver showed "Serenade" and another Vancouver group, Le Ballet Concert, "Colonnade."

Hugh Thomson of the Toronto Daily Star said the performance of "Lady From the Sea" was the "most satisfying of the session." He added: "The music and choreography fitted hand-in-glove style."

Herbert Whittaker of the Globe and Mail said: "In the central role, Miss Leese proved herself a dance actress of considerable stature."

Of "Colonnade," Rose Macdonald of the Telegram said: "The setting challenged interest but the intent of the ballet, danced to DeBussy's Sacred and Profane Dances, was elusive." Mr. Whittaker said: "Calvin von Reinhold and Miss (Kay) Armstrong restored the balance somewhat in their pas de deux."

"Ballet Regal" designed in commemoration of the visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada provoked varied comments.

Mr. Whittaker found it "a stage full of posturing regality and flourishing trumpets" but Miss Macdonald said: "Costumes and symbols used with great taste made this ballet a great spectacle."

Mr. Thomson said: "This was more pageant than ballet."

In the Ballet Production Club's "Serenade," to the music of Mozart's Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Miss Macdonald said of a young Chinese-Canadian, Denise Quan: (her) dancing shone with an effulgent grace beyond any of the other promising young people."

U.S. Oil Strike May Be Extended

Denver, May 9—(AP)— Scarcity of high-octane aviation gasoline today ranked as the most serious effect of the country-wide oil strike which began nine days ago.

There seemed little chance for immediate settlement. A possibility the strike may be extended was voiced in Denver by O. A. Knight, president of the Oil Workers International Union (C.I.O.).

The major hope seems to be a meeting May 13 between the Wage Stabilization Board and representatives of 22 striking A.F.L., C.I.O. and independent union and management of the refineries and pipelines.

The pinch on aviation fuel has been widely felt. Air France announced flights will be cut by 50 per cent unless the quota for trans-Atlantic carriers is increased. The line has 20 flights weekly. Trans-Canada Air Lines reduced schedules of about 40 daily flights between Canada and New York, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago and Seattle.

A 30-per-cent slash in aviation gasoline has been ordered by the government. The United States air force has reduced training flight hours. Military and commercial lines report shortages are affecting operations overseas and in the territories.

A report from Ottawa said Canada may curb the use of aviation gasoline.

Stolidly Defiant, Slayer Will Be Executed Today

San Quentin, Calif., May 9—(CP) —Stolidly defiant, Stanley Buckowski spurned the attentions of a priest, lawyers and the prison warden as he awaited death in the San Quentin gas chamber today.

The moody, 27-year-old self-confessed killer of four persons—three of them Toronto residents—lay silently on his cot. He broke his silence only to snarl at those who offered him help in his last hours.

"You dog, what do you want now?" was the greeting warden Harley O. Teets said he got on visiting Buckowski's death-row cell.

Teets said he wanted to inform the sallow-faced Canadian that a prison chaplain would visit him.

"I want no part of him," Buckowski said.

"But remember, Stan, you're a Catholic. You should talk to Father (Daniel) McAlister," Teets urged.

"He's just plain ornery," Teets said, reporting that prison guards had to force Buckowski to take a bath.

Buckowski, who was born in Winnipeg and grew up in Toronto, was sentenced to death for murdering an 82-year-old woman who surprised him while he was robbing her home in Los Angeles February, 1950.

Buckowski shot and killed Mrs. Helen Edmunds after he brushed off his 25-year-old wife, Jean, and told her to "take a walk around the block." Both were tried for the murder. He was convicted and sentenced to death Dec. 4, 1950. She was acquitted.

A policewoman testified at the trial that Mrs. Buckowski told her after their arrest: "I know my husband was going to break into the house. When he came out he told me he had to shoot a man. I didn't know until later it was an old woman who was killed."

The court set the date of execution for Nov. 16, 1951. But a month before, Buckowski won a temporary stay of execution pending an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States on the ground that a judicial error had been committed at his trial.

While his appeal was up before the high tribunal Buckowski confessed to the Toronto murders of Alfred Layng and Robert and Gloria McKay in 1949. The three murders had remained unsolved for two years.

He made his confession to prison authorities and Ontario police and crown attorney William Gibson who made a special trip to California.

He said he confessed to the Toronto killings because he didn't want somebody else to get blamed.

After the triple murder Buckowski fled to the United States. He robbed homes—picking on the rick-looking ones—in several states and finally ended up in California where the law caught up with him for the last time.

On Feb. 28 the Supreme Court refused to consider his appeal and execution of the death sentence was set for today.

Prison officials who studied Buckowski during his nearly 17 months in the death row described him as an "unhappy, dangerous" man who would kill anybody who got in his way.

The world was "peopled by punks," he told them, and robbery was the only "easy way to make a living."

One of his few relaxations during his death-house stay was playing the clarinet.

Buckowski refused 11th-hour attempts by his lawyer to obtain a stay of execution.

East Germany Planning Army

Berlin, May 9. — (AP) — East German government circles reported today their communist regime is speeding plans to raise an army of more than 350,000 men. Already, informants said, it is calling back fully-trained veterans of the people's police—the army nucleus—to swell the present 60,000-man ranks to 150,000.

The tempo of the Soviet-zone armament quickened at once after high East German officials said they will need to defend East Germany from a threat of civil war they see in the western plan to arm West German forces for the proposed European army.

Among other steps reported under way were:

1. Drafting of a "defence law" to establish a volunteer army and authorize conscription of all able-bodied men for military training.
2. A recruiting campaign di-

High Hurdles Still Face 6-Nation European Force

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, May 9. — (AP) — The welding of western Europe's military might into a single army against aggression moves a formal step nearer completion today, but with long strides still ahead before the projected six-nation force is ready for Gen. Matthew Ridgway's European command.

Representatives of the six countries—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—meet at the French foreign ministry this afternoon to initial the almost-complete draft of a treaty uniting them in a European defence community.

The action signifies their agreement, after 15 months of negotiations, on most clauses of the treaty. The next step will be a meeting of the six countries' foreign ministers later this month to settle the remaining points of disagreement and sign the treaty.

High hurles still will face the plan after that, before the projected one-uniform army of some 40 divisions can take the field under the military commander for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. These include:

1. Ratification by parliaments of the six nations. Much trouble is expected in West Germany, which wants to get more concessions for its troops, and in France, where many oppose putting any Germans in uniform.

2. Signing and ratification of the peace contract between West Germany and Britain, the United States and France. Recent German demands for more concessions have indicated this may be a long way off. Until the peace contract is ratified, the army treaty under its own terms can not take effect.

Military experts anticipate a year of training before German troops can make any effective contribution to western defence. Since the E.D.C. treaty provides these Germans can not be recruited and armed until the defence community itself is in operation—fully ratified and running—even optimistic estimates do not see the international army as a going concern before mid-1954.

Still unsettled in the E.D.C. treaty is the clause allocating west Germany's contribution to western defence of some $2,600,000,000 —what portion will be used by West Germany for her own troops, and what will go to Britain, United States and France for their troops in Germany. This question is being fought out in the peace contract negotiations.

Other points yet to be agreed are how long the treaty is to last, whether a veto will be allowed in voting and where the army headquarters will be.

Army Officers Gather To Honor Gen. H.D.G. Crerar

By DOUGLAS HOW

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 9—(CP)—A boisterous reunion of wartime army officers cheered Gen. H. D. G. Crerar last night when he lamented the status of Canada's army of today as a "shop window" force inadequate to face major war.

The retired former commander of the first Canadian army struck that sombre note at a dinner which drew more than 600 officer-veterans to honor him on the seventh anniversary of VE-Day, culmination of a war in which it was said his troops never once got an order to retreat.

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of today's army of 50,000 men, sat with a non-committal face as his old wartime chief was cheered from all sides in regretting that although "we have a display of quite attractive samples in our military 'shop window,' there is practically nothing behind that window display."

Twenty-four generals, some retired, some still in service, dozens of brigadiers and colonels, scores of majors and captains, people who came all the way from Vancouver to Halifax but mainly from Ontario, turned Toronto's Royal York hotel into a temporary military headquarters for the dinner.

It was the biggest reunion of brass since the war and its informalities—reminiscing, tale-telling and repeated nostalgic routing of the enemy—went on far into the night. Its details were elaborate with reminders of the war years. There were huge replicas of divisional and corps patches and route signs, movies of the fighting, pictures of overseas scenes, "Herbie" cartoons by Bing Coughlin.

There were cheers at the dinner when it was announced that Gen. Crerar has been appointed aide-de-camp general to the Queen, cheers when a telegram of greetings was read from Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, first chief of the first Canadian army, good-natured boos when tribute was paid Gen. Crerar for first advocating close-support bombing in infantry attacks, laughs when chairman Maj.-Gen. C. C. Mann went to unveil a portrait of Gen. Crerar and couldn't get the curtain to roll back. The portrait was presented to the honored guest.

Gen. Crerar in his speech struck the reminiscent tone which keynoted this whole night, but he did move into serious ground once and that was when he made references which recalled his calls for compulsory training in the past.

This time he went so far as to say he is greatly worried because even with compulsory training it would be nearly the end of 1953 before Canada would be ready for major war.

The implication was that even the growth of the army since Korea started, nearly doubling its size and creating four new brigades, has not changed Gen. Crerar's mind.

MOVIE MUST BE GOOD TO HOLD SINGER'S COME-BACK INTEREST

Hollywood — There's a movie comeback gleam in gorgeous Jeanette MacDonald's eyes and the one-time queen of MGM's super-duper musicals is admitting she's had all kinds of offers during her year's absence from Hollywood.

"But I didn't like the scripts," she said between rehearsals for the first filmed TV version of Duffy's Tavern. "I read scripts all the time," she said, "but I still haven't found one I really like. I'd rather leave a pleasant memory than come back and do a little old stinker."

Jeanette is clowning with Ed Gardner and singing Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts" on the Tavern show and then she hops back to her New York apartment to prepare for a summer concert tour.

Her opinion of current Hollywood musicals: "They don't seem to have much plot. That's what I always fought for."

A regular TV show for Jeanette and hubby Gene Raymond?

"Maybe," she said.

Steve Cochran's pinching himself and saying "Somebody's kidding." But it's spelled T-R-U-E that Variety's 1951 poll of box-office grosses puts him in second place, just after Gregory Peck, as the actor whose movies brought in the most dollars.

With five movies to his credit, Steve's in the $9,000,000 drawing-power class and is saying:

"It's a freak thing, of course. It seems like only yesterday that I thought I was a flop as an actor in Hollywood. I had to leave town. I couldn't get a job."

Steve's latest at Warners: "Danger Forward." His secret ambition: to direct.

She Lost Decision

The arena is empty and the decision is past history. But Joan Leslie, on the movie comeback trail in Commander Films' "Hellgate," rues the day that she ever put up her pretty dukes in her historic battle with the Warner brothers.

Joan, who lost a fortune in her four-year battle for story approval and better roles, told me:

"Now that I'm older and wiser! I realize that it was foolish to fight a studio. Now I know no actress ever gets exactly what she wants. You compromise here and there. I had bad advice. With good advice, it would have been simple to settle the case with mutual benefit for everybody concerned."

Will she try to regain her former place in the movie sun now that she's married and the mother of twins?

"I'm all wound up with ambition again," she smiled.

* * *

The wheel of fortune is spinning, spinning again for Virginia Grey, Hollywood's most jinxed actress.

She's been re-discovered by Hollywood because of a New York TV appearance, and if and when Clark Gable makes another film at MGM, Virginia will test for the leading lady role—the kind that Jean Harlow used to play.

But forget rumors that she'll be the next Mrs. Gable. She told me: "We've been friends for years. I'm just the 'good friend' in his life."

Says Virginia of the bad luck that's dogged her screen career in the face of critical raves for her beauty and acting know-how:

"I'm still trying to figure it out. It's darned discouraging. They always say they want a new face or a big, big star. That's the story of my life. But with all the ham ego, a girl keeps hanging on."

Change Of Heart-Throb

Ray Bolger, who wasn't judged pretty enough to be starred along Gene Kelly lines when he was at MGM, is back in Hollywood as a Warner star and grinning about passing the romantic test at long last.

Nimble-footed Ray ends up with a lass in his arms in "Charley's Aunt," and wins Doris Day in "April in Paris," and he's saying:

"Hollywood has changed its feelings entirely. The handsome, stereotyped leading men aren't getting the jobs. Hollywood has discovered that the prettiest girls don't marry the handsomest men. Danny Thomas proved it in "I'll See You In My Dreams." Nobody noticed his nose, There couldn't have been a more charming guy in the world than Danny in that picture."

"It sounds like Fannie Ward, but I was typed as an ingenue for almost 20 years. Even after having seven children, producers kept thinking of me as a young thing."

That's from the new Maureen O'Sullivan, with a gray streak in her hair and her first mama part in UI's "Bonzo Goes to College."

She declares: "I'm past the ingenue nonsense. When they asked me if I'd like to play a mother in this picture, I jumped at the chance. I want to go on from here, too. I want to play character parts. I want to an adult actress."

JACOBY ON CANASTA

THIS COLUMN WILL END FIGHTS

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

I still get letters from all parts of the country about a point that I have covered in this column two or three times. "When are you allowed to count the top card of the discard pile as part of your initial meld?" they want to know.

The answer is short and simple: always.

It doesn't matter whether you need 50, 90, or 120. It doesn't matter whether the discard pile is frozen or unfrozen. You are always allowed to count the previous discard as part of your initial meld (provided, of course, that you are taking the pile).

Let's take an example. The player at your right discards a jack, and you need 50 points for the initial meld. You hold two jacks and a deuce. Those cards add up to only 40 points, but you reach 50 points when you count the jack that is at the top of the discard pile.

You are therefore allowed to put down your two jacks and your deuce and take the pile. This is equally true whether or not the discard pile is frozen.

Some players have the mistaken idea that you need the full count outside of a matching pair when the pack is frozen. There is nothing at all in this idea. All you need is the matching pair and a meld that somehow totals at least your minimum count when you add up the top card of the pile, the matching pair, and anything else you may wish to meld.

Some players have the mistaken idea that you must put your initial meld down from your hand when the pile is frozen, and that your side can take the discard pile only at a later turn. There is nothing in this idea either. Whether or not the pack it frozen, you are allowed to take the discard pile on the same play in which you make your initial meld.

This brings me to another point frequently asked. The player at your right discards a jack, when the pile is not frozen. Are you allowed to put down your initial meld—say three aces, when you need 50 points—and then take the pile on the same play with a jack and a wild card?

You are not allowed to do that. You may take the discard pile with one matching card and a wild card only if your side has made the initial meld at a previous turn to play. Whenever you take the pile and make the initial meld at the same turn you must put down a natural pair that matches the previous discard.

If some of your friends have discussed these points, please clip this article out and save it to settle the next discussion.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Little Dream House

A car drove up from the road and stopped suddenly in front of the house. The car door slammed, there were voices and laughter. Diane stood there, frozen. Bill's voice! "Now here's what I call an ideal house in the country. Just the kind I like."

A plaintive feminine voice answered him protestingly. "Why, Bill, you must be fooling. You couldn't possibly like this silly little insignificant house. You don't mean that we'd have to live here when we were married?" Diane's blue eyes blazed in fury; she clenched her small fists. The girl's voice went on: "Why, Bill, my pet, of course we're going to be married. Don't frown at me that way. After all, I did propose to you, but it's Leap Year, remember? But I refuse to live in this house. No, I won't even go inside. I refuse to get out of the car and look at what is obviously your ideal house, not mine."

Diane bit her red lips in anger at this unknown girl who didn't like the little house Diane and Bill had built so lovingly together. And Greg didn't like the house either. She rushed out of the front door. "So you don't like this house!" she said furiously to the stunning red-haired girl who sat at the wheel of a beautiful green convertible. "Well, I would never invite you inside. It's my house. Or at least it's half mine, but it'll be all mine as soon as I buy Bill's half."

Greg was staring at her. "And you deliberately drove me all the way out here, never letting me know that it was the house you and your ex-husband built . . ."

Bill was staring at her, too. "So you want to buy me out? Sorry, but I won't agree. I've just written your lawyer that I want to buy your share. I plan to live here."

"But you can't, Bill Monroe. It's my house, I'm going to live here," "—alone."

"Well, we'll see about that," Bill said goodnaturedly. "In the meantime, how about a few introductions all around?" After the hurried introducing was over Greg Carveth stood next to the green convertible and began chatting with the girl whose name was Patricia. At least, thought Diane thankfully, it isn't that terrible Vicki. Greg and Patricia said how they loathed the country; they chatted on and discovered they had some mutual friends in New York.

Diane and Bill wandered under the blossoming fruit trees, past the lily pond and the stone barbecue and finally perched on the edge of the swimming pool, their swimming pool. They talked and talked, fast and furious at first, then low and tender. After awhile they rejoined Greg and Patricia, who seemed to be getting along beautifully. Bill said, "Look, why don't we four have dinner together at the Wagon Wheel, where all of us were headed anyway?"

Greg and Patricia said that would be fine. "O.K.," said Bill, "you two can go in Patricia's car and I'll drive Diane. She and I have a lot of important matters to discuss."

"Yes, very important," said Diane, frowning at Greg and Patricia, who didn't like her darling little house. "Bill and I are going to get married all over again and live here happily ever after in our dream house."

Film News From Britain

FILM STORY RIGHT IN NEWS

Recent disclosures that the Kenya government is purchasing a fleet of high speed motor torpedo boats and helicopters to combat the notorious ivory-poaching racket, serve to point up the seriousness of the illegal industry, which, alleged to be bringing in well over $3,000,000 a year to its operators, threatens to strip the Colony of its herds of wild game.

Moviegoers who have seen "Ivory unter," the 1951 Royal Command Performance Film, will recall that Colonel Mervyn Cowie, the ardent conservationist in whose honor the film was dedicated, succeeded in establishing two vast national parks in Kenya, just after the recent war, as game sanctuaries. Ivory poachers and out-of-season hunters were given short shrift and the safety of the wild game herds assured. Although fictional characters appeared on the screen, the film story generally parallels actual fact.

Escape By Sea

The racketeers, however, who are headquartered in India, were not to be done out of their illegal trade without a fight. Recently they have resumed operations on a grand scale along Kenya's East African coast, smuggling elephant and rhinoceros tusks across the Indian Ocean by means of seagoing dhows, to rendezvous in India. Hence the Kenya government's decision to concentrate on P.T. Boats and helicopters.

The ivory is obtained in the first place by ruthless members of Kenya's Wakamba tribe who have been bribed by the racketeers. Coating their hunting arrowheads with a poison of their own concoction—one for which no effective antidote has as yet been discovered — they stalk their prey, waiting for the right moment to let fly a hail of poisoned arrows from their powerful cross-bows. It may take several days for the poison to take effect but the hunters follow the game patiently, waiting for the end. The ivory is then hacked off and moved at night to the coast by truck.

Lured My Money

The ivory poachers have perfected their system down to the last detail and they have the advantage over the government police rangers in that they have a lonely, rugged eighty mile coastline from which they can launch their noiseless, undetectable sailing boats. Once these boats have passed the three mile coastal limit — which they do at night — they are in international waters and are free from search.

Reason for the persistence of the racket is naturally the money the ivory brings. Native hunters receive about fifty cents a pound, according to the Special Correspondent of the Johannesburg (Transvaal) Times, which means that by killing three elephants a month a native will make more money than he normally would in a year at run-of-the-mill jobs. The dhow captains get their share of the money, and the big-time operators, in India, sell the ivory for between four and six dollars per pound.

Colonel Cowie, who has few patrolmen at his disposal, warns that unless the racket is broken and the traffic stopped, the fine herds of wild game, as seen in the J. Arthur Rank Organization's Technicolor "Ivory Hunter", will be no more. Elephants and rhinocerous, even in game sanctuaries, are at the mercy of ruthless, armed killers, who take advantage of the fact that there are hundreds of miles of open boundaries and very few patrolling rangers to oppose them.

THE MOB AGAIN

The gang known to movie fans as the Lavender Hill Mob are still active, though carrying out activities on an individual basis. The leader, sometimes known as Alec Guiness, has, in addition to "The Man In The White Suit" yet another comedy which has just had its world premiere in London, England. Entitled "The Promoter," and adapted from the Arnold Bennett comedy classic, "The Card," it co-stars Valerie Hobson and Glynis Johns. Alec, at the moment of writing, is touring Scotland and the north of England in a new play "Under The Sycamore Tree."

The other leading member of the gang, alias Stanley Holloway, was recently on stage too, in South Africa, where he was appearing as Abanazar in "Aladdin." Now he is back in England, summoned by director Anthony Havelock-Allan, to appear in "Fumed Oak," one of the three Noel Coward stories which will make up "Meet Me To-Night."

Magog Man To Face Trial On Theft Charge

Joseph Boisvert, of Magog, charged with theft, was ordered yesterday to stand trial at the next criminal assizes by Judge Joseph Marier, who presided at the preliminary hearing.

Boisvert is charged with the theft of some $200 worth of copper wire from the Brompton Pulp and Paper Company at East Angus. The theft occurred on the night of April 23-24.

Two men, Adrien Boisvert and Armand Boisvert, have pleaded guilty to the theft and will receive their sentence next week. Yesterday they were called in as crown witnesses to testify.

Questioned by crown prosecutor Roland Dugre, Q.C., the men stated that a signed confession which they made to police was partially false. They stated in their confession that Joseph Boisvert, their brother, had participated in the robbery. Yesterday they said that they did not think that Joseph had anything to do with it. Warned about perjury the men stuck to their story.

The trio was arrested by East Angus Police Chief Clement Bouchard with the aid of Paul-Emile Boulanger and W. H. Bernier, special constables. Mr. Bouchard and the two constables testified at yesterday's hearing. John Riddoch, an employee of the Brompton Pulp and Paper Company, testified that some 250 feet of copper wire had been stolen from the company.

Armand and Adrien Boisvert mentioned a fourth person in connection with the robbery, who is expected to be picked up soon for questioning.

Seven Charged With Assault And Robbery

Seven men from St. Joseph de Beauce appeared in Court of Sessions here yesterday and were charged with assault and robbery. They are accused of beating and taking $93 from Andre Lamothe, of St. Ferdinand de Halifax.

Those arrested are: Gaston Bisson, P. A. Doyon, C. H. Fortier, L. Lageaux, Adrien Poulin, Marcel Vachon and Paul Marcoux. They were released on $100 bail after appearing before Judge Joseph Marier.

Lamothe is alleged to have been beaten on the night of January 19 at Disraeli.

Roland Dugre, Q.C., is handling the case for the Crown.

Louis Prima Ranks Among Top Attractions

Louis Prima, the gravel-throated trumpeter, who plays at the Arena on May 15 with his fine group of music-makers, has built himself up to one of the foremost "In Person" band favorites in the land by his strictly "on the beam" rhythm, his super-singing of novelties and the all-around entertainment value offered by his organization.

A unique combination of top drawer modern swing idiom and the old style New Orleans jazz has made Louis' music a "must" for dancing feet and for those who just like to listen, as well. Louis' torrid trumpeting adds no little to the enjoyment of both classes.

The Prima band of fine dance music has been featured at many of America's fine clubs and hotels, including the Hotel Astor in New York City and Meadowbrook in New Jersey, the Hotel Sherman in Chicago and the Park Central in New York City.

On stage, Louis' throaty voice, his growing trumpet and his many shenanigans and the all-round sparkle of his band's show have made the Prima outfit one of the top-office draws in the land. At such theatres as the Earle in Philadelphia, the RKO in Boston, the Palace in Cleveland and many others throughout the land, Louis has drawn terrific box-office records.

This figure has stood for 30 years and practically every big name band has had a chance to shoot at it since the stage policy went into effect some years ago. But it remained for Prima to smash the box office figure to smithereens. At the Adams Theatre in Newark, which is considered a very representative house for bands to test their popularity, Prima did the near impossible. He broke the attendance record. A few weeks later, Lionel Hampton's band came in and beat Louis' mark by a few hundred dollars.

A few months later, Louis returned and topped Hampton's figure. Within six months Louis had established two records at one house. To further prove that Prima can be listed as one of the nation's leading theatre draws, he is the only band in the country to play the Downtown Theatre in Detroit three times within a twelve-month period. It is now a recognized and established fact that Louis Prima's appearance at a theatre is enough to start lines forming at the box office an hour or two before the show is to start.

In addition, Louis' voice and personality are known to the country at large through his wide-selling records, his many network dance broadcast, besides his guests "Spotlight Bands," "Million Dollar shots on such popular shows as Band," "The Chesterfield Supper Club" and many big budget films.

Mr. Justice Gervais Rules That Chartrand Was Guilty Of Contempt

Mr. Justice Cesaire Gervais this morning found Michel Chartrand, syndicate organizer, guilty of contempt of court.

Judge Gervais rendered his judgment after presiding at a hearing—held some two weeks ago—involving an action taken by the S. Rubin Company against Chartrand. The company claimed that the accused violated a court injunction issued by Mr. Justice William Mitchell. The injunction permitted the company—whose employees have been on strike since March 13—to export goods.

"After hearing the case the court accepts the motion of the plaintiff, declares the defendant, Michel Chartrand in contempt of court, orders the issuance of a special order with notice to be served on him personally ordering the said defendant Michel Chartrand to appear before the said court, session to be held the 16th day of the month of May, 1952, at 10 a.m., to show reasons, if he has any, why he should not be condemned for contempt of court to a fine payable to the crown not exceeding $2,000 with or without imprisonment of 60 days, without prejudice to any recourse in damages by the plaintiff. The whole with costs," stated Judge Gervais.

Judge Gervais considered the motion taken by the company well founded in fact and in law.

Several witnesses were heard at the hearing.

Chartrand admitted grabbing the keys from a truck, which was trying to export goods from the company, and throwing them into the crowd. He denied having anything to do with threats made to company officials who were having a meeting in the New Sherbrooke Hotel. The meeting was cancelled. He also denied having anything to do with two youths being taken for a 'joy-ride', one beaten and both left stranded on the road.

Chartrand admitted being the business manager of the Association of S. Rubin Company Employees and it was proven that he helped organize the picketers.

Chartrand was represented by Carrier Fortin while Evender Veilleux, Q.C., handled the case for the S. Rubin Company.

Clean-Up Week Contest Set For Schools

Plans for the annual Clean-Up Week contest to be conducted in the local schools from May 18 to May 24 were discussed at a meeting of the Clean-Up Week Committee of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce held under the chairmanship of Leo Thibaut.

This will be the third annual campaign conducted by the local Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with the Sherbrooke Fire Department and serves to stress the importance of orderly properties in fire prevention work.

The National Wallpaper Trophy, offered by Eugene Gingras, is again at stake. The first year this trophy was won by the Sherbrooke High School and last year was awarded to St. Joseph's School. Some five thousand pupils are expected to take part in the contest.

In addition to Mr. Thibault, the members of the committee are Eugene Bengle, Camille Dufresne, Camille Gendron, Gerard Marchand and G. E. McClintock, with Fire Director Percy Donahue, Brother Fabien, director of St. Jean-Baptiste School, and Wright W. Gibson, principal of the Sherbrooke High School, as technical advisers.

Woman Burned At Gas Stove

Miss Aurelie Houle, 5 Moore street, suffered burns to arms and face yesterday while trying to light the gas stove in her home. Apparently the match wasn't held close enough to the burner.

She is a patient at the Sherbrooke Hospital where her burns are described as superficial.

Presentation Is Made To Mrs. Boright

A special meeting of the local association of the Girl Guides was held on Tuesday at the home of the president, Mrs. K. Doherty.

An invitation had been extended to the Guiders and mothers of the Guides to attend this meeting. Fourteen members were present and six guests were welcomed by the president, including Mrs. Robert Boright of Lennoxville, retired Divisional Commissioner, and Mrs. Albert Stoddard of North Hatley, her successor.

The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer. The secretary, Mrs. L. Stockwell, read the minutes and the treasurer, Mrs. H. Harris, gave her report.

Plans were discussed for a rummage sale and tea.

Following the meeting, Miss Geraldine Hebert, past president of the local association, ably expressed the appreciation of the association, the Guiders and their mothers when she thanked Mrs. Boright for all she had done during her term of office.

It was with deep regret, Miss Hebert said, that the association had received Mrs. Boright's resignation.

Miss Shirley Coley, senior Guider of the 3rd Sherbrooke pack, then presented Mrs. Boright with a mahogany shadow box.

Mrs. Boright very graciously thanked all for the beautiful gift and wished the association much success in the future under the capable guidance of Mrs. Stoddard.

Following the presentation, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Coley, Mrs. Winslade and Mrs. Harris, with Miss Hebert and Mrs. Stoddard pouring at the attractively arranged tea table.

Anglican Young People's Association Will Hold Diocesan Rally At Week-End

Tomorrow and Sunday are the dates which have been named for the Quebec Diocesan Council of the Anglican Young Peoples' Association Golden Jubilee Rally. This gathering will be held in St. Peter's Church Hall.

Alan Brown of Quebec, president of the Diocesan Council, will be present to preside at the business meeting. Other A.Y.P.A. members are expected from the Eastern Townships and Quebec City.

Catherine Wark, president, St. Peter's Branch and vice-president of the Diocesan Council, has been handling arrangements for the week-end. Pearl Robinson, vice-president of St. Peter's, is in charge of the entertainment program.

The rally is scheduled to get underway with the registration of delegates Saturday afternoon. At the banquet, to be held in the evening, at which several of the "old A.Y.'ers" will be present, Archdeacon W. W. Davis of St. Matthew's, Quebec, will be guest speaker. Archdeacon Davis is soon to leave for the Maritimes and, as he has long been a good friend of the Association, it is only fitting that he be guest speaker at such a time.

The social evening will be followed by Preparation for Holy Communion in the Chapel and will end Saturday's program. Sunday will start with Corporate Communion at 8 a. m. with breakfast immediately afterwards in the Church Hall. The members will attend the 11 a.m. service in a body and thus end the week-end's festivities.

French Pianist Pierre Sancan Heard Here

Members of Les Jeunesses Musicales du Canada, through a system of exchange programs, had the opportunity yesterday of hearing French pianist Pierre Sancan in the final recital of the local association for this year.

Winner of many scholarships, including a first prize for piano from the Paris Conservatory, and the First Grand Prize of Rome, Mr. Sancan has played with internationally famous orchestras and is now on an extended tour of Canada and the United States.

Les Jeunesses Musicales are to be congratulated for their very worthwhile project, the development in the young people of an interest and appreciation for the best in music.

Children of school age attending such concerts are extremely fortunate because—from childhood on—they can foster an enjoyment of the arts, even an active participation in music if they so desire.

If such programs do nothing else but prepare the future adults for good and intelligent listening, they will still have accomplished a great deal.

As in previous programs, interesting commentary on a particular selection or group was given by Andree Desautels. Her explanations of the composer's intent are always simple but said in exquisite French and in a manner certain to hold the interest of the young people.

Yesterday's commentary was confined to Schumann's Carnaval, which was afterwards played by Mr. Sancan in a truly brilliant fashion.

Bach's "Jesus Joy of Man's Desiring" opened the program and was followed by Mozart's Sonata in G Major, which was well received by the large audience of students and teachers.

A group of the artist's own compositions were very popular, particularly "The Music Box," and an extremely difficult Caprice for the left hand.

Mr. Sancan has a strong technique and clarity of touch which undoubtedly have done much to bring him to his present stage of artistic achievement. It is a pity that he did not see fit to play the Debussy group which was on the program, as it would have given him more opportunity to display his virtuosity. However it is understandable that his programs have, at times, to be adapted to the maturity of his listeners.

Particularly interesting was his immediate improvising on a theme of four notes suggested by members of the audience.

He responded to the insistent applause with another of his compositions, "Les Chevaux de Bois."

Two Persons Of Lennoxville Hurt In Mishap

Elaine Crandall, 35 Church street, Lennoxville, and Jimmy Andrews, also of Lennoxville, were admitted to the Sherbrooke Hospital last night after the motorcycle driven by Mr. Andrews and having Miss Crandall as passenger missed a turn on the Rock Forest road.

They were taken to the hospital where Miss Crandall is a nurse-in-training, by Blake's ambulance. Both are under observation.

POSITIVE APPROACH NEEDED IN KOREA

Nine months ago United Nations negotiators sat down with Communist spokesmen to begin truce talks in the Korean war. Probably no such talks have ever taken so long or proved so unproductive. Western negotiators lately appear to have been operating under the theory that unproductive talks are better than no talks at all. Whether this is so is a question the members of the United Nations ought to examine closely.

Realistically we have to accept the fact that we are in a potentially dangerous position. We cannot calmly assume that stalemated peace negotiations are to our advantage, any more than stalemated military operations are necessarily good for us.

It would be pretty foolhardy at this stage to prodict glibly that a settlement is in early prospect, or in prospect at all. If no real agreement is to be achieved, then what have we gained by this painful process of talking with the Reds?

We have reduced the fighting to a minimum and thus cut casualties sharply. Yet that very gain carries within it the seeds of danger.

For during this convenient lull the Communists have built up a strong defensive air force, vastly improved their anti-aircraft emplacements, augmented their regular artillery and constructed defenses in depth. In other words, they have gone far toward recovering or surpassing the military potential they had before the UN's successful smashes in the spring of 1951.

Naturally we have not been idle in the field, either. But it was the UN force that held the edge when truce talks began, and there is no longer any assurance we still would have it. Very likely the fine fighting trim we were in at that time is a thing of the past.

The Reds needed to negotiate when the talks began. Today they continue them because the manoeuver keeps us in the hole. We can see no great advantage in talking, yet the alternative of resuming full war seems worse, especially under the altered circumstances of combat.

Possibly the current course of continuing apparently fruitless talks is still the wisest. But if that is so, we ought to pursue it positively after exhaustive top-level review of the whole Korean problem.

As it stands now, we simply are drifting along in negative style, improvising from day to day. We need a fresh approach that suggests more than that we are just in a rut and trying to make the best of it.

Too much is at stake in Korea to allow policy to be played by ear by the men in the field, however competent they may be. If the Korean war was worth fighting, it is worth the attention of our top men today, so that we may determine anew where we should try to go.

REALISTIC BRITAIN

The official British attitude towards the "world trade conference" recently conducted in Moscow is summed up in the following excerpt from the monthly news letter sent out by the United Kingdom Information Office under the heading "Innocents in Moscow."

"The 500 or so starry-eyed 'delegates' from the U.S.A., Britain, Canada and other Western nations are now wending their way homewards, well-briefed — as the Kremlin thinks — to do the job for which they were invited to Moscow. That job is to sow doubts about the western embargo on the export of strategic goods to the Soviets and their satellites, and to persuade other Western businessmen of the value of the Soviet and Chinese markets.

"The Soviets now hope that the Innocents from Moscow will put pressure on their Governments to ease or evade the strategic embargo. There is talk of big textile and other deals between U.K. firms and Iron Curtain countries.

"Let us get this Conference and these 'deals' straight. The British businessmen who attended were there in a purely private capacity and with no official support whatsoever.

"Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom received no invitation; nor did the United States Government. They regard the Conference as a propaganda move by the Kremlin in its 'Peace' offensive. They did their best to discourage businessmen of note from attending and playing the Kremlin's game.

"U.K. Policy on trade with Russia, China and the Soviet satellites is well-known, and remains unaffected. Trade with those countries is subject to Government licensing and no strategic materials are allowed to be shipped. So far as China is concerned, Britain observed the United Nations resolution of May, 1951, which is even stricter in its ban on strategic material."

However, the letter points up another British viewpoint, revealing the realistic grasp of world trade which the government and business men of the Old Country have.

"But outside the list of goods which are completely prohibited or restricted," it says, "there are a great many things which Britain is very ready to sell to the Communist countries. For instance, for the past six months U.K. trade officials in London have been trying to persuade the Soviet representatives to buy British textiles. The Soviets were content to do nothing except sit back and watch the growing unemployment in the textile industry not only in U.K., but also in North America. In both Hong Kong and China, itself, British businessmen have been trying with little success to increase trade in 'unrestricted' goods.

"If Russia and China really wish to increase their trade, they could easily have done so either by governmental approach or direct through commercial channels. In practical terms, the much publicized 'offers' from Moscow add nothing to what could have been done in the past without the elaborate flummery of a Moscow Conference. The fact that the Chinese are now offering, at a propaganda meeting, to place large orders direct with the British manufacturers proves if anything that they intend to continue their policy of squeezing out long-established firms in China. These firms have been prosecuted and confronted with extensive, crippling claims — a policy in line with the Soviet plan to eliminate any Western contacts with China."

"UNION SHOP" ISSUE CRITICAL IN SETTLEMENT OF STEEL DISPUTE

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — While current developments in the steel wage case overshadow the "union shop" issue, it is one of the more important, though less emphasized, points of controversy preventing settlement of this major labor dispute.

Most of the headline attention has been centered on presidential seizure of the steel industry and wage rates. But recent growth of union shop contracting and pending union shop negotiations in rail, aircraft, automotive and other big labor disputes make this question worth close study and better understanding.

The union shop is, of course, created by a labor union contract providing that every person hired by the employer must join the specified union and pay union dues.

In a "closed shop" the employer can hire no one who is not already a member of the union. In an "open shop" both union and non-union members may be hired but there is no bargaining by the union for all employees as a group.

Modification of these various conditions of employment include "maintenance of membership" and "sole bargaining agent" contracts.

In the former, present members of the union must keep their membership, but new employees are not forced to join the labor organization. In the latter, as the name implies, the union is recognized to bargain with management on wages and working conditions for all employees, whether they belong to the union or not.

The closed shop, though well established in building trades typographical and other A. F. of L. unions, was outlawed by the original Taft-Hartley law. This provision was amended last year, however, to approve union shop contracts without employee elections.

NLRB Elections Approved Union Shop

Up to the time this amendment was passed, National Labor Relations Board had been forced to conduct an election in which a majority of the employees had to approve a union shop contract before it could be put into effect. After 47,000 of these elections had been held, 45,000 of them approving the union shop, NLRB was relieved of this costly responsibility.

There are today some 100,000 union labor contracts. They cover between 15 and 16 million union members, or about one-fourth of the total labor force. Last year the Department of Labor made a survey on 2651 of these contracts. This was only 2½ per cent of all the contracts, but it included nearly all the big organized plants and it covered over five million workers, or nearly a third of all union members.

The same survey showed 61 per cent of all contracts had union shop, 13 per cent had maintenance of membership and 26 per cent had sole bargaining agent provisons. By numbers of employees, the survey showed 58 per cent covered by union shop, 16 per cent by maintenance of membership and 26 per cent by sole bargaining agent contracts.

Pro-Con Arguments Same For Closed Shop

Growth of the union shop contract can be traced and in part attributed to the Taft-Hartley closed shop ban. The arguments for and against the union shop are basically the same as the arguments for and against the closed shop.

Organized labor, leaders and union members like the union shop because it eliminates the "free riders" — the non-union members who reap all the benefits of increased wages and pension plans without having to bear any of the burdens of union dues or picket line duty.

Furthermore, union leaders argue that a union shop contract promotes union security and employees security, thereby removing a major ground for labor disputes and so promoting stable labor relations and industrial peace.

In opposition to the union shop idea, the main argument is that it violates individual liberties and freedom of choice. To require anyone to join any organization — a union, a political party or a church — as a condition to getting and holding a job is said to be contrary to the Constitutional Bill of Rights.

Compulsory union membership is also said to promote union monopolies, bad leadership in unions and the right of the labor bosses to force discharge of any employee who does not pay union dues.

Glimpses Into The Past

A BEAUTIFUL HOMESTEAD

There are homes in the E.T. today, standing as monuments to the endeavour, and to the love that burned brightly in the hearts of our pioneers while they built their dwellings and tilled their lands. And we know that there still exists that spirit of independence and loyalty which pioneers, figuratively speaking, spaded into their soil. That is what our beautiful homeland stands upon. Prior to 1800 Compton County was a dense forest but its topography was such that men with vision chose what was really "the promised land."

One of the first to settle in the Township of Eaton was Ebenezer Learned, the youngest of four brothers and a son of Ebenezer Learned, who was a member of the first New Hampshire Legislature. It is claimed that this Canadian pioneer was the first white child born in Columbia, N.H. That was in 1774. Ebenezer Learned began the life of a homesteader in 1799. He built a log cabin, cleared a good piece of a land and planted grain. The first he raised he carried on his back to Colebrook, N.H. to be ground and at that time it was worth one dollar a bushel. Grain was used for barter in obtaining provisions and farm equipment.

Seven children were born in this forest home, one of them, Alden Learned, becoming the founder of the Learned homestead in a small settlement then called Lapingham which was soon changed to Learned Plain. Here the young pioneer labored alone, then he married Sally Mallory, member of another notable pioneer family.

Alden Learned soon decided to build a larger and better house and with courage born of desire he set to work. He made his own bricks and hauled lime from Lime Ridge, a distance of thirty-five miles, with an ox-sled in winter. This house has a solid brick wall and heavy cedar beams as good as when placed over a century ago. And the house doesn't creak in the wind.

EVERGREEN FARM

It is a cold bright Sunday in winter, over twenty years ago, the sleigh bells play a merry tune as our sleigh glides over the crisp snow; we are passing through a well-tilled farming community where farmlands lie under the deep snow resting from their season of production and awaiting the next. We are hoping for a glimpse of a homestead which has reached its century mark, in which are living the fifth generation of the Learned family. A noble stretch of trees, spruce and fir, urges us on until we come to the "palace in the wilderness," a commodious house with its adjoining buildings that shelter good live stock, the backbone of a good farm.

The trees have given the name, Evergreen Farm, and the homestead has given it a place among the homes in the townships that show what our pioneers came here to do. We are given the privilege of visiting where we were shown the original fireplace with its oven, now closed in, but in condition that would allow of use again. The fireplace in the living-room is bricked right to the ceiling and gives it warmth. The finishings of the room are hand work and the ceilings are high—an unusual sight in the early days. The finishings brought many visitors to this well-built home to gaze upon the handiwork of pioneer Alden Learned.

Alden and his wife, Sally, were the first occupants, and their eldest son, Ebenezer, third of that family name was the next occupant, Hom, their only son, then Gordon W. and his wife Edythe, their two children, Rupert and Jean making the fifth generation. Gordon, when a small boy, helped his grandfather, Ebenezer plant the beautiful trees that gave the name to the home.

Upon the visiting day, twenty years ago, while little Jean ran her fingers over the piano keys, we learned that John Learned, son of Alden, taught singing in the schools. He possessed a tenor voice of exceptional merit and old ones of today may recall his singing of the old ballad, "The Old Arm Chair," with a tender note in his voice, remembering that his ancestor, the first Alden and his wife, Sally, both died while sitting before their fireplace.

Gordon was one of four children; his brother Ronald lived on the adjoining farm; Frank went to Ontario as a mining engineer, while a sister went to Calgary. Alden was mayor of Eaton; Homer was councillor and mayor of Newport; the Learned Plain post office was kept in this Learned home until rural delivery began.

Jacoby On Bridge

IT'S GOOD BRIDGE KNOWING SAFE PLAY

"Today's hand was played in the final round of a pair tournament," writes a Miami correspondent. "West opened the four of diamonds, and declarer decided to finesse. He played the queen of diamonds from dummy and dropped the nine from his hand.

"East was not deceived by this falsecard. He won the first trick with the king of diamonds and returned the suit for his partner to ruff. This set the slam contract.

"South said that he knew he was taking a risk when he finessed. In a total point game he would have put up the ace of diamonds and would have ruffed out his spades. At the end he would give up one diamond trick.

"South added that West was an artful player who was fully capable of underleading the king of diamonds to give him a guess and a problem at trick one. South didn't want to make only 12 tricks if everybody else was going to make 13 tricks.

"How good is this reasoning? Would you say that South was theoretically correct, but unlucky? Or would you say that South had a very close decision to make? Or would you say that South was wrong and just got what was coming to him?"

I think South was wrong, but I also think he was slightly unlucky. Every tournament player bears the scares of just such hands, so I sympathize with the poor fellow.

For the benefit of non-tournament players, let me make it clear. There is no problem at rubber bridge. You go up with the ace of diamonds, take the ace of spades, ruff a spade, get back with the ace of clubs, ruff another spade, and so on. You ruff out all the spades, draw trumps, and eventually give up one diamond.

In a match-point tournament, you don't want to make 12 tricks if everybody else has bid the small slam and is going to make 13 tricks. In that case you will get no points even though you make your small slam contract.

The important point, is however, that South should feel very well pleased with his slam contract. The chances are that the slam will not be bid at about half of the tables.

South should expect a good score if he merely makes his slam, regardless of the extra trick. The general principle is that you play safe for poor contract when you're in a very good spot. It isn't necessary to play every hand wide open.

You, South, hold: Spades 6-3, Hearts Q-7-4, Diamonds K-8-2, Clubs K-Q-J-9-8. What do you do?

A—Bid three clubs. This jump bid shows a hand that was nearly worth an opening bid, including either a very powerful club suit or a fairly good fit for hearts. Your partner will pass if he has a sketchy opening bid, but otherwise he will re-bid and game will be reached. You are very happy to get to game opposite a sound opening bid.

The Record Short Story

LITTLE DREAM HOUSE

By MAY HOLT BATCHELDER

It was such a delightful little house that it seemed a shame no one lived there. Nestled at the foot of a dark green wooded hillside, the small ranch-style house, painted dark red with tidy white trim, shutters and doors, was approached from the road by a rustic bridge over a meandering stream. To the rear of the house the stream had been dammed to make a fine big swimming pool. There were fruit trees blowing white blossoms in the soft May breeze and lilac bushes fragrant with lavender plumes. Altogether it was an enchanting little house, not too large, not too small, desirably secluded yet conveniently near the main highway.

Diane Monroe, her blonde hair tied back in a flying pony-tail, braked her small blue car to a stop on the graveled driveway in front of the new house. She turned to the young man next to her on the front seat. Big handsome Greg Carveth was still asleep. That annoyed her, no end. He'd let her drive all the way out from New York on the crowded parkway as he napped comfortably beside her. And he was still snoozing. Not even the sharp indignant slam of the heavy car door as she hopped out awakened him.

She'd known Greg only two months, just since she'd returned to New York from Reno after having divorced Bill Monroe. She couldn't decide whether she was in love with Greg or not. He'd given her a terrific rush and just last night, while they were sipping drinks at their favorite night club, he'd asked her to marry him. A most attractive and eligible bachelor. Greg had everything to offer, good looks, excellent family background, wonderful job with a good future. But she was undecided about wanting to marry him . . .

She stood and stared a long time at the little house. Her house. That is, her's and Bill's; the deed was in their names jointly. Somehow or other, she didn't want Greg Carveth to know right away that this was her house, the house she and Bill had dreamed up through the three delightful years of their marriage. The house they'd saved for; planning each room, every tiny detail with the architect, poring over the blueprints with proprietary pleasure and bright-eyed hope and love.

The little house, finally finished, had been complete down to the last detail; the curtains were up, all the furniture arranged, canned foods were ready to move in when Diana and Bill had had their bitter quarrel. It was all because she thought Bill paid entirely too much attention to glamorous Vicki Hoffman, divorcee in their next apartment, who had a big television set.

She was forever inviting Bill and Diane over to watch TV programs and Bill always accepted eagerly; he and Diane had no TV in New York, as they'd bought a set for their house in the country. Bill thoroughly enjoyed the fights, wrestling matches and quiz programs; Vicki was a perfect hostess and provided cold drinks and sandwiches. Diane found that she and Bill were going evening after evening to Vicki's dim-lighted apartment to watch TV; if it were not the fights it was to see Milton Berle or Groucho Marx or The Toast of the Town. Vicki was always hanging around Bill with sweet words and provocative smiles; Diane said Vicki had designs on Bill and wanted to break up his marriage.

This Bill hotly denied; he said he didn't like Vicki, it was her TV that interested him. Diane and Bill quarreled more and more and when their fiery words had dwindled down to smoldering silence Diane packed her bags and flew out to Reno. She communicated with Bill only through her lawyer. The brand-new house was to be sold, with an equal division of the selling price. It was on the market now . . .

Diane dug down in her handbag and found the front door key. She glanced back over her shoulder at the car. Greg was still placidly sleeping in the late afternoon sunshine. She pushed the door open and walked into the living room furnished in the Early American antiques she and Bill had had such fun hunting for and buying on Third Avenue.

At the sight of the old cobbler's bench they'd planned to use for a coffee table, the cranberry picker for magazines, the pewter candlesticks on the pine chest, the rows of Sandwich glass gleaming like jewels in the west window, she felt like sitting down on the chintz-covered sofa and weeping her heart out. The house was perfect, just what she and Bill had wanted. But Bill wasn't a part of her life now. She thought swiftly about Bill's dancing dark eyes, his tender laughing mouth, his stalwart spirit, his utter dearness. . . .

Then she looked across the room and saw the new television set that she and Bill had planned to watch during winter evenings in the warm fire-lighted room and that reminded her of Vicki and her TV, the start of all the trouble with Bill. Perhaps Bill was married to that dreadful Vicki by now; he was a free man. Diane wept tears of rage, regret and loneliness.

Sadly she wandered through the other rooms, the pine-paneled dining room, two bedrooms cozy with chintz and antiques, the two tiled baths, the streamlined kitchen. She decided that she would buy Bill's half share in the house. She wanted to live here, summer and winter, to revel in the hills—cool green in summer, flaming gold in autumn, gleaming white in winter—to enjoy the swimming pool, the gardens, the warm hearted fireplace, to dream of Bill who was lost to her forever. Diane jumped suddenly when she heard the loud impatient horn of her car.

When she ran out of the house she saw Greg sitting up in the front seat scowling like a sulky baby just awakened from a nap. "Where have you been?" he demanded possessively. "What on earth did you stop here for? I thought we were driving right on up to Connecticut to have dinner at the Wagon Wheel."

"Oh, Greg," she said as she smiled at him and patted his tweed-sleeved arm placatingly. "This is the dearest little house. And not too long a commuting distance from New York. It's for sale. Furnished and complete. I'm just mad about it. I thought," she said softly, "that it would be perfect for us if we decided to get married soon. Do come and see it!"

Greg clambered out of the car and looked around, blinking. "What a lonely out-of-the-way spot," he said. "I wouldn't want to be stuck out in the country like this. Too far from the city and people. I like people, plenty of people, around me all the time."

"Oh, Greg," she said, "come on in and see the house. It's just exactly what I want."

He followed her through the door. A tall man, he looked awkward and incongruous standing there in the low-ceilinged living room. She thought of Bill, who was just medium height, stocky and sturdy; he looked so utterly right in this house. He belonged here. Greg surveyed the room in one quick glance. "I can't stand those spindly antiques. I like my furniture massive and modern," he said positively. "This house is too small, too quaint. I'd never be happy here. Look, darling," he turned and put an arm across her shoulders, "Let's get married soon and live right in New York. We can go away week-ends in the summer. I'm a city boy. I like to go out in the evenings—theatre, night clubs and all that. I couldn't stand this silly little house 'way out in the country." He looked at his wristwatch. "Let's get going darling," he said. "We've a long distance to drive before we have dinner and I'm starving now."

Diane looked around her small living room. Greg didn't like the house. Her showing it to him had been a sort of test. She knew now that she would never marry Greg. She would live here all alone and remember Bill, darling Bill. . .

Oasis Club Hears From A. Zaplaski

The Oasis Club of the Blind met last evening at the MacKinnon Memorial for bowling. About twenty-four blind persons took part in the bowling, and O. Gauthier of Magog and Ben Schofield of Sherbrooke ran up the high scores. The Sherbrooke Lions Club was represented by Alberic Julien, Hugh Rose and Lucien Desfosses, who assisted the blind bowlers. Refreshments were served at the close, under the supervision of Mrs. Neil Tracy, Mrs. Arthur Nadeau of Magog, Mrs. Ben Schofield and Mrs. Wilfrid Moquin, the latter also of Magog.

The club was honoured by the presence of Anthony Zaplaski, Quebec Division chairman of the Canadian Council of the Blind, of which the Oasis is a member club. At an informal meeting before the bowling, Mr. Zaplaski gave his annual message to the members of the club.

He stressed the value of unity among members, and asked that language and religion should not be a barrier to joint action on all important projects for the common benefit of all blind people. He noted that the province-wide efforts made for a school for blind Catholic boys which seems soon to be crowned by success. The contribution of English speaking members was very loyal and effective.

He also mentioned that shortly an effort will be made to eliminate the means test in the blind person, in which an unified effort of all the blind would be necessary.

Norman Tracy, vice president of the club, acting in the absence of Roland Laliberte, president, who has left Sherbrooke to take up work with the C.N.I.B. in Montreal, thanked the divisional chairman.

Philathea Society Has Meeting At Lennoxville

Mrs. T. Saunders opened her home to members of the Philathea Society of the United Church, where they held their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. H. L. Wallace, president, opened the meeting with prayer.

Business included plans to cater for a chicken pie dinner for the Sherbrooke County Women's Institute this week and to hold the annual spring sale of food, fancy work, aprons and baby garments and blossom tea on May 28. Many donations for the various sales tables were brought to this meeting and aprons were given out to be made up for the sale.

A most satisfactory report was given on the recently held rummage sale. Mrs. W. A. Henderson extended an invitation to meet in her home for the June meeting. This concluded the business and a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. T. Saunders, Mrs. R. DeBlois, Mrs. A. Drennan and Mrs. H. Harvey.

Achievement Day Is Held By Art Class

The Art Class held a largely attended achievement day in the Lennoxville Women's Institute club room. Seventy-one paintings were on display.

Mrs. G. Richards, County President (also a member of the class) welcomed the guests to the showing and afternoon tea was served by other members of the class under the convenership of Mrs. B. Turner.

In the early fall a class of eight under the direction of Miss F. Elizabeth Campbell, of Macdonald College, took up their brushes for the elementary steps in landscape painting in oils and watercolors and emerged with a desire to follow up in the work after the week's course.

This was possible when Miss Hilda Fowlie of Sherbrooke, gave of her services for a class of eleven which met once a week for the past four months, in which time a great deal has been accomplished.

Miss Campbell and Miss Fowlie, both present on the achievement day, commented on the work exhibited which showed the first and last pictures made by the budding artists, and spoke highly of the ability in the use of the brush, the blending of colors, the shaping of objects, etc., now being accomplished by the class. Miss Fowlie was presented with a small gift in appreciation for her leadership and the friendly atmosphere which has been enjoyed by all.

This group hopes to further their studies in the open during the summer and in classes again in the fall.

It can travel cross-country. It can fit into a landing ship designed for amphibious operations. And it can fire with accuracy "comparable to conventional artillery, and tests indicate it is much more accurate at long ranges."

Pace also said that in addition to "tactical" atomic bombs being developed for use by aircraft, the U.S. also is developing atomic artillery which can outrange the gun-type weapon.

This development, he explained, involves "guided missiles and rockets to receive atomic warheads."

Despite the building of new weapons of destruction, the army secretary foresaw a continuing need for "many of our conventional weapons."

"So-called 'fantastic weapons' there may be," he said, "but to rely on them alone for our protection is not only fantastic, but foolhardy to an extreme."

London, May 9. — (AP) — The R.A.F. called off all squadron training at home and abroad today because of the United States oil strike. Jet fighter units were excepted.

Most of the high-octane aviation gasoline used in R.A.F. Bombers and old piston-engine fighters comes from the U. S. Jet planes use kerosene from mid-east oil fields.

Britain's nationalized airlines also are getting anxious about the oil strike. The fuel ministry has announced a 30-per-cent cut in deliveries of all gasoline of 80-octane rating and above effective Monday.

Canadian Ex-Cowboy Finds Real Home In Scotland Highlands

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

Fort William, Scotland.—(AP)—Here in the dour Highlands of Scotland, of all places, is a cattle ranch run by a Canadian ex-cowboy.

The cattle roam the range. A heifer with wanderlust would have to go as much as 10 miles to meet a fence.

The ranch, about 10,000 acres of mountain, glen, burn, heather and peat, is a five-year-old venture of Joseph William Hobbs, who learned his ranching more than 40 years ago near Calgary.

Hobbs has lived in Vancouver, where he built a skyscraper, and in Sault Ste. Marie, where os a boy he sold newspapers. Now ha lives in Castle Inverlochy, near here, a wealthy man determined to teach the Highlands that one way out of their shabby economic stae is to tudn a lot of wild and craggy country into cattle ranches.

"Britain needs beef more than any country on earth," says Hobbs. "Why be so dependent on the Argentine when here in the wide-open spaces of the Highlands there is just the right kind of setting for the right kind of dogie?"

In 1945 Hobbs bought the busy Ben Navis distillery and the castle which has become his home. With cowboy tradition in his veins, he couldn't see the Highlands go to waste, and in 1947 he bought 5,000 acres. The holding, all in one piece, has been doubled since.

Hobbs turned down the old Highland cow, long-horned, shaggy-coated and almost as sure-footed as a goat. The Highland cow manages to live comfortably in the 110-inch average yearly rainfall but doesn't have energy to spare to make impressive steaks.

In the west of Ireland Hobbs found the Connemara cattle, short-haired and accustomed to even colder weather than is usual in Scotland. He bred Connemara cows with Aberdeen Angus and Shorthorn bulls, and produced the young stock which now roams his range. Short-haired, the animals dry quickly after rain and devote their energies to making steak.

Great Glen cattl eranch. There is a home farm, and scattered in the hills are a dozen other buildings.

The food, in addition to the hillside vegetation is silage mixture of oats, tare, peas and beans grown on the 300 acres of the home farm, and stored in silo trenches. At seasons of poor grazing many tons of it are dug out and transported to the xaleys and hillsides with tractors.

The ranch is run on wild west principles, but there are differences. Cowboy-in-chief Charles J. S. Palmer, who retains his Scottish title of factor, (master of an estate) is a cowboy in a kilt. He can't remember wearing anything else. He rides daily on one of the ranch ponies.

In another respect there is a difference from North America—there is no roping of cattle. British law forbids it.

There is another difference—in Scotland cattle are not branded—they are tattooed on an ear.

But there are roundups. Three times a year the ponies go out to bring in everything on the ranch. One roundup is at weening time, when calves are separated from their mothers. Another takes place in June for a veterinary inspection and eliminating of sick or weak animals. Then the important roundup is made to select the animals for the annual sales. The practice is to sell most of the stock as yearlings.

Teen-Ager Novices Model Own Clothes

Toronto—(CP)—Thirteen girls between the ages of 11 and 16 were the models at a recent fashion show of the girls Kiwanis club of Toronto.

The garments modelled ranged from a one-piece cotton dress to a wedding gown of satin. All items were made by the girls. The wedding-gown was made by a 17-year-old who will wear it to her own wedding in June.

The class was formed 11 weeks ago and the students all were beginners. They were given a complete dress-making course of one lesson a week.

Despite the difference in ages, every child learned to master such intricate types of sewing as monagramming, hemstitching and embroidery.

Growing Edmundston N.B.'s Fourth City

Edmundston, N.B. — (CP) — This Madawaska county centre in northwestern New Brunswick became the province's fourth city under an act at the recent session of the New Brunswick legislature. The other cities are Fredericton — the capital — Saint John and Moncton.

Since its incorporation as a town in 1905, Edmundston's population grew from less than 1,000 to 10,750 at the time of last year's census. Most of the residents are French-Canadian and bilingual.

The town's growth has centred around Fraser Companies, Limited, and its United States subsidiary, Fraser Paper, Limited, at Madawaska, Me. Mile-long pipelines ling the huge plants, pouring woodpulp under the Saint John river and to the Madawaska mill for manufacture into paper. An international bridge — one of the border's busiest — also joins the two communities.

Edmundston has the second highest per capita income in Canada. The woodpulp and paper-making industries employ about 6,800 full-time and seasonal workers. Canadian National Railways employees here number more than 400, and the New City has several smaller industries.

The Canadian Pacific Railway also serves Edmundston, one of the busiest entry ports on the New Brunswick-Maine border.

Among the city's structures and facilities are five churches, a 225-bed hospital, a classical college, six schools, three banks and two theatres. It is the episcopal seat of the Roman Catholic diocese of Edmundston.

The original settlement was known as Madouskbkak, a meeting place of Maliseet Indians, and later as Petit Sault. The name Edmundston was adopted in 1856 on the occasion of a visit by Sir Edmund Head, then governor of New Brunswick.

The Doctor Says:

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE IS USUALLY SIGN OF LONG, HEALTHY LIFE

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

Mrs. E. C. writes that she blacked-out in a store and soon after her doctor found that her blood pressure was low. She says also that she often feels tired and dizzy with pain in the top of her head and wants to know whether this is all caused by low blood pressure.

In answer it may be said that a few rare diseases can cause low blood pressure and perhaps one of these might have been responsible for her fainting, but it seems unlikely that low blood pressure by itself could have been at fault. However, in addition to Mrs. C., a great many people are interested in low blood pressure and frequently become much disturbed because their blood pressures are lower than what they think should be normal.

As a matter of fact most people with low blood pressures are well off and can expect a long life. There are few exceptions: there is a condition known as Addison's disease which, among other symptoms, is characterized by a low blood pressure, but this is rare and there are only a few other things which are accompanied by low blood pressure which have any serious significance.

There are several things which help to determine whether the blood pressure will be low, high or normal. The pump-like action of the heart is one. The elasticity of the arteries is another. In most cases of below "normal" blood pressure, the cause seems to be exceptionally elastic arteries and this is a good thing. For one it generally means that hardening of the arteries will be slow to develop and this in turn has much to do with the expectation for a long life.

It is hard to say whether there are or are not any symptoms which can be laid at the door of low pressure and nothing else. Some people—like Mrs. C.—who have low blood pressure also complain of lack of pep or some other vague thing, but this is just as likely to arise in the mind as it is from the pressure.

Let Pressure Be Low

Even if the blood pressure should have something to do with complaints of this sort there is not much that can be done about it. There is no good, safe, way to raise the blood pressure and it is better left alone in most cases, unless anemia or some other condition is also present which should be treated on its own account.

Low blood pressure causes a great deal of unnecessary worry, and with exceedingly few exceptions the person with below normal pressure can feel lucky, and does not need to do anything about it providing there are no other signs of disease.

DOROTHY DIX

Three Little Words

Women Love To Hear Them; Men Hate To Say Them

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been engaged for two years and plan to be married this summer. When we began going together, my fiance told me he loved me, but since then he'll never say it. If I ask him, he just says, "You know I do!" He's in the Army now, coming home on week ends. In his letters he tells me he loves me, but never will he say it when he sees me.

If he doesn't tell me now, I'm sure he won't say it after we're married. He is a very shy and reserved person. He never shows any emotion, even anger. There's never a scene if something displeases him; he just doesn't talk. We're both in our middle twenties, so I don't think I'm being childish about this.

CALAMITY JANE

ANSWER: Frequent declarations of affection are, I know, what a girl in love craves most. But alas, they are also what most men hate to make. A man feels that if he has once asserted his love, it can safely be taken for granted from that point on. And the one thing a woman never takes for granted is her beloved's devotion. It's just a case of a woman's sentimental nature contrasted with a man's practical one.

DEVOTION GOOD SUBSTITUTE

You rightly assume that if you don't hear the three magical words now, you won't hear them after the wedding. As a substitute you will have day-by-day devotion, affection and consideration. You'll just have to learn to make them do. A husband who doesn't make constant verbal declarations of love, but shows his feelings with loyalty and fidelity, is surely to be preferred to the man who violently asserts his love, then stays out every night spending his salary on himself.

A reasonable man should realize how much importance women place on such seemingly small things, and make an effort to please them by saying the sweet nothings, making the affectionate gestures that spell romance. Why they are so dense is one of life's mysteries. Until a magic formula is devised to turn every man into a hard-working, domesticated husband with just the proper dash of Don Juan, wives of unromantic males will have to be satisfied with the crumbs of demonstrative love.

Your finance is apparently one of those strong, silent men who can be a considerable problem. Learn early when it's safe to ask questions, and when it's better to be silent. Respect his silent moods, but don't overlook surliness or sulkiness. Diplomatic handling is called for in dealing with self-contained people. They are well worth the trouble, however, as they're greatly to be preferred to the nagging, haggling, overcurious type.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been accused of not having a sense of humor, but do you think it's funny of my mother-in-law to tell our little boy that I am not his mother and that he doesn't have to mind me? She is always saying things like that to him and the child is getting very confused. If I complain, she tells my husband she's only joking. Then he becomes angry with me and says I shouldn't take her so seriously.

B. E. M.

ANSWER: Your mother-in-law's sense of humor verges on the macabre. Anyone with even a small knowledge of children knows that they are easily confused and, above all things, such desperately important items as family ties should never be the subjects of teasing. Someone should make your husband realize this or his son may easily become a nervous, bewildered little boy. Your doctor would be a good person to do the talking; perhaps the next time you have occasion to take the child for treatment or a check-up you could discuss the matter.

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it possible for older people really to fall in love? I know a woman who is apparently very much in love with a man she has known for years. She is a widow, he a widower. They are frequently in each other's company. Is friendship and companionship best for them, or would they be happier if they married?

A. L. J.

ANSWER: Who would be so presumptuous as to put an age limit on love? It may take different forms at different ages, or with different people, but folks are capable of loving all their lives.

The mutual devotion of older people is a perfect foundation for marriage; it will prove just a deeper manifestation and extension of their present friendship.

Drummondville

Drummondville is again highlighting the news headlines in traffic highway accidents. On Thursday evening, according to the report of detective Farah-Lajoie, and Sgt. Maurice Dupont, both members of the Provincial Police, Mr. Camille Gendron driing alone in his automobile in the direction of St. Hyacinthe, smashed into a tractor, after the operator of the vehicle, Mr. Jean-Jacques Houle, had left the field for the highway. Within a few split seconds of the fatality an oncoming car, driven by Mr. Frank Rutherford, of Drummondville, ploughed into the two vehicles, which had obstructed the main highway. In the impact, Mr. Camille Gendron, aged 44 years and a lumber dealer of St. Hugues de Bagot, was killed instanitly. The driver of the tractor, Jean-Jacques Houle, aged 16 years, and a resident of the 8th Range, St. Germain, was thrown clear suffering only from shock and superficial injuries. The occupants of the car, driven by Mr. Rutherford were Mr. and Mrs. Lemoyne, a sister-in-law, Mrs. Bernard. Mr. Lemoyne, who was seated alongside the driver, died instantly from a fractured skull, while the other three victims were rushed by ambulance to the St. Croix Hospital, in Drummondville, for medical treatment, and where Mrs. Bernard died three hours later, from a skull fracture and internal injuries. Mrs. Lemoyne and Mr. Rutherford are both suffering from compound fractures on both legs besides cuts and bruises on the body, which are less serious, and according to the doctor's reports both are expected to recover rapidly. Mr. Camille Gendron, the dead victim of the sad fatality was a brother of Dr. Aristide Gendron, of St. Jean Baptiste, and a brother-in-law of His Worship Mayor Antoine Biron, of Drummondville.

On Saturday morning around 1 a.m., Mr. Roland Breton lost control of his car, while rounding a curve at Marcotte village, three miles from Drummondville. The car left the road and crashed into a tree, with the result that one of the passengers, 19 year-old Rael Yergeau, was killed instantly while three others were seriously injured. Mr. and Mrs. R. Blanchette, who lived nearby, heard the crash and called the police, and ran to the rescue of the victims. Fire by this time had broken out in the wrecked automobile. Fortunately Father Clement Boisvert, of Mont-Laurier, who was driving along a few seconds later, stopped his automobile and extinguished the fire, with a small chemical extinguisher from his automobile. Chief Leo Gouin, of St. Simon and Sgt. Maurice Dupont and Constable Oram Turcotte, of the Provincial Police, were quickly on the scene accompanied by an ambulance to take the injured to the hospital. The names were given as Miss Rita Trottier, aged 20, Town of St. Joseph; Mr. Jean L. Fortier, aged 21, also of St. Joseph; and Roland Bergeron, 27, of St. Jean Baptiste, all of whom, were seriously injured. Dr. Gilles Staint-Onge opened the coroner's inquest Saturday afternon, but adjourned it sine die at the request of detective Farah-Lajoie of the Provincial Police, as none of the injured were able to be present to give their testimony in the fatality. Miss Rita Trottier suffered a skull fracture, besides a broken arm, fractured hip and leg and her present condition still remains critical. Mr. Fortier suffered a broken right arm along with several deeps cuts and bruises. The automobile a 1951 Chevrolet is a complete loss.

Mr. Hermann Rodier, ager 52 years and a resident of the 5th Range of St. Majoric, was killed instantly Tuesday afternoon about 5 p.m., when struck by a car on Sir Wilfrid Laurier Blvd., halfway between Drummondville and St. Germain. The victim had just stepped out of his son-in-law's truck and was in the act of crossing the highway to meet his son, failing to note the approach of the oncoming automobile. He was struck down by the vehicle, driven by Mr. Roland Morissette, of Town of St. Joseph. Death was instaneous. The deceased is survived by his wife, nee, Valeda Desrosiers, five sons, Euclide, Leo Remi, Rene, and Donald; five daughters, Mrs. Oliva (Marielle) of St. Edmond; Mrs. Donatien Labonte (Rose) of the 2nd Range; Mrs. Lionel Poudrette (Rachel), of Drummondville; and Annette and Irene, of St. Majoric.

INDIANS SWEEP FIRST SERIES IN YANKEE STADIUM SINCE 1947

Overcome All Former Handicaps To Dump Ex-World Champs; Giants Down Cards To Gain On Brooklyn

A month ago it was said Cleveland Indians couldn't capture the pennant until they learned how to win at Yankee Stadium. Well, they seem to learn fast.

Not since 1947 had the Indians swept a series in New York Yankees' home park until they humbled the World Champs yesterday, 12-5 for a third straight.

The Yankee Stadium jinx, the Vic Raschi hex, the Eddie Lopat whammy all went out the window in this first New York-Cleveland series of the season.

Raschi got his lumps Wednesday and Lopat his yesterday when the Tribe's new cleanup man, Ray Boone, a struck the big blow of the game, a three-run homer in the fifth.

Bobby Feller was the winning pitcher as the Tribe finished its first Eastern trip with a fine 7-3 record. But Feller needed help from Bob Lemon. The Yanks nicked Feller for 12 hits in 5⅔ innings. Lemon gave them only one the rest of the way — a ninth-inning homer off Gene Woodling.

Winging home after his successful tour, the Indians are only 18 percentage points behind the leading Boston Red Sox.

Chicago White Sox salvaged the finale at Boston, 4-2, on Saul Rogovin's five-hit pitching. Ed Stewart's two-run homer off loser Ray Scarborough in the seventh was the crusher, ending the White Sox's six-game losing streak.

Big Jim Rivera, St. Louis Browns' slumping rookie flash, snapped out of it with a ninth-inning home run that beat Philadelphia, 9-8. Rivera, benched for weak hitting, got into the game just in time to make a sensational catch in the sixth. Then, with Old Satchel Paige flim-flamming the Athletics, Rivera reached Carl Scheib for the winner. Paige, fourth Browns pitcher, allowed only one run and two hits in four innings.

Washington Senators struggled 11 innings to a 4-4 deadlock with Detroit Tigers in a "suspended game" that will be completed May 31. Play was halted after the 11th to let the Tigers catch a train for home and a date with Chicago this afternoon.

Dave Koslo continued his mastery over St. Louis Cardinals as New York Giants tightened the National League race with a 3-0 win. The defending champs now are only 28 percentage points behind Brooklyn Dodgers who were idle yesterday.

The surging Giants rushed through their first Western trip with a glittering 9-1 record. They have won 13 of their last 15 games.

Koslo has won nine in a row aganist St. Louis over a three-year span.

Stan Musial, who went hitless against Koslo last year in 17 trips, had a pair of doubles. It wasn't enough to save Gerry Staley from his first defeat after winning five in a row.

Willard Marshall tripled with the bases loaded and singled home a fourth run in the Boston Braves' 6-4 triumph over Chicago Cubs. The loss dropped the Cubs into a third-place tie with idle Cincinnati.

Philadelphia at Pittsburgh was postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

What's Wrong With The Yankees? "They Lack Left-Handed Power," Says Ace Hurler Bobby Feller

New York, May 9—(AP)—Bob Feller, who has pitched against the New York Yankees more times than any active hurler, appeared to be the logical person to ask the question in most everybody's mind today.

"What's wrong with the Yankees?"

The former premier pitcher in baseball, still a very effective hurler with the Cleveland Indians, didn't hesitate a moment as he replied.

"That's evident, isn't it? They don't have that left-handed power any more. Sure, they miss Joe DiMaggio. But they also miss those left-handed long-ball hitters who used to murder you in Yankee Stadium. Yogi Berra, who can reach the seats, probably will help, but he is not enough."

Feller, who's been facing the Yanks on and off since 1936, registered his 29th win over them against 33 losses when he beat the New Yorkers 12-5 yesterday.

"Understand," Feller explained. "I'm not being critical of the Yankees. They're a good club. They have good pitching, a fine defence and lots of speed. It's just that the team doesn't have those long ball hitters any more. The kind that made the Yankees famous as the Bronx Bombers.

"Just look at the Yankee teams I faced in the old days. Lou Gehrig, DiMaggio, Bill Dickey, Tommy Henrich, Charlie Keller, Joe Gordon, George Selkirk, Red Rolfe and Frank Crosetti.

"Except for DiMaggio, who used to belt me pretty good, I never had too much trouble with the right-handed power hitters. It was those southpaws who used to murder me. Guys like Henrich and Keller. Even the mediocre left-handed hitters gave me more trouble than the good right-handed hitters. The spark is so constructed, it helps the southpaws and hurts the righthanders.'"

Sharp Note Cops Top Western Trot Stake

Arcadia, Calif., May 9.—(AP)—Sharp Note soundly walloped a select field of three-year-olds in the $10,550 Western Trot, feature of the Grand Circuit meeting yesterday at Santa Anita.

Theme Song was second and Great Colby, driven by Joe O'Brien of New Glasgow, N.S., third. The winner's time was 2:03 4/5 for the miles event. It was the second fastest time of the meeting and the fastest mile ever recorded for three-year-old trotters in May anywhere.

Driven by Bi Shively, Sharp Note established himself as a solid contender for the Hambletonian Classic at Goshen, N.Y. in August. The black colt won $4,447 for his owner, C. W. Clark of Dearborn, Mich.

Sharp Note paid $4.90 to win.

J. Percy Page, Famed Edmonton Grads' Coach, To Retire From Teaching Profession Next Week

Edmonton, May 9. — (CP) — J. Percy Page, the man who coached Edmonton Commercial Grads to four world basketball championships, has announced his retirement.

Mr. Page celebrates his 65th birthday next Wednesday and at the end of June will retire after 40 years continuous service with the Edmonton Public School Board.

Back in 1914, a group of high school girls wanted to start playing a new game called basketball. They asked their teacher if he could coach them.

"Well, I'll give it a try," Mr. Page said and the Grads were born. In 25 years they played 522 games, won 502 of them, travelled more than 125,000 miles and took the official world championship at four Olympic Games.

Mr. Page is known primarily for his basketball coaching career but he also has gained recognition in the fields of education and politics.

Born in Rochester, N. Y., of Canadian parents, Mr. Page enjoys the distinction of dual citizenship in Canada and the United States. He was raised at Bronte, Ont., attending Junior High School at Oakville and graduating as a gold medallist from the Collegiate Institute at Hamilton.

In 1912, while acting as commercial master at the St. Thomas Collegiate Institute, Mr. Page was invited to come to Edmonton to introduce commercial training into the City High School system.

With his retirement next month, Mr. Page will have earned the honor of holding the record of continuous service in the City High School system.

Mr. Page is the author of a school book entitled "practical office training" and his students have won more high-speed shorthand awards over the last seven years than those of any commercial high school of similar size in Canada.

Mr. Page's career in politics began when he entered the Alberta legislature as an independent in 1940. He was appointed president of the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta and from 1944 to 1948 was leader of the official opposition.

He still hopes to play an active part in politics.

Doctors said X-rays showed today that Bilko has an "incomplete fracture" of a bone in his upper right arm—the result of a fall.

Stan Musial has been shifted from the outfield to first base.

Gerry McNamee Sets Another New Record

El Segundo, Calif., May 9.—(AP)—Gerry McNamee last night broke the second U.S. National Junior College swim record in two nights.

McNamee who comes from Vancouver and is attending the Junior College at Fullerton, Calif., won the 220-yard free-style race at the Southern California Junior College Championships in 2:12. The record is 2:13.6.

The previous night he bettered the 1,500-metre mark when he swam it in 19:14.2 — 1/10th of a second faster than the record.

GOOD GOLF'S EASY . . . No. 6

Player Who Tries To Improve Game Gets Most Out Of Golf

By JACKIE BURKE
Golf's Newest Star

There are two types of players at every club.

One wants to improve his game. The other plays for exercise.

Ninety-nine of 100 golfers who don't break 100 consistently tell you they are not interested in bettering their scores.

Jackie Burke

But let one of them shoot a 95 and he is pleased and thrilled.

To get the most out of golf, keep trying to improve. The player who wants to play better looks for competition. He is never satisfied with his game.

He worries if he has a poor score.

He replays every round mentally, pointing out missed putts and flubbed drives.

That fellow is bound to go somewhere in golf.

The exercise golfer isn't interested in his game and his scores show it. He concedes himself five-foot putts, tees up on fairways, kicks his ball out of holes in the rough. He can even laugh off a 10 on a short hole.

To be sure this type of player gets something out of the game, but not the benefits, fun and thrills he could obtain if he tried to improve.

To get the ultimate out of the game, you must practice, study the game, play in keen competition and try in every way to lower your score.

Sometimes in experimenting to improve you make mistakes. Players often change their stance, grip and clubs.

Sometimes they change for the worse, but the fact that they are trying to get better shows they are interested.

And even if they make many mistakes they cannot help correcting a fault here and there.

Try a relaxed, easy practice pivot. If you feel free and at ease you probably have the proper trance, balance and grip.

FREE AND EASY—Try a relaxed practice pivot. (NEA)

While the use of the hands and forearms are the basic factors of the proper swing, the hips and shoulders cannot be neglected. They must turn enough to take them out of the way of the hands and forearms.

There cannot be any obstruction to the smooth, flowing swing of the forearms.

The length of the backswing depends on the club being played. Woods and long irons require a fuller backswing than short irons.

Golf doesn't come naturally to anyone.

Ability, physique and mental outlook being equal, the player who practices the most will play the best—and get the most out of the game.

NEXT: The irons.

Magog Club Golf Course Will Be Open Saturday

Sydney, Australia, May 9.—(AP)—The Australia Davis Cup team left by air yesterday for Britain and the Wimbledon tennis tournament. The Wimbledon event doesn't start until June 23 but the Australians will play in various meets before then.

Chuck Davey To Get Shot At Welter Title

Chicago, May 9. — (AP) — Chuck Davey, sensational undefeated southpaw, will get a shot at the welterweight championship in Chicago Stadium late this summer, Truman Gibson, secretary of the International Boxing Club, said yesterday.

Gibson said Davey, who scored four knockouts in defeating Chico Vejar, the New York University freshman, Wednesday night, will be sent against the winner of a 147-pound title event between champion Kid Gavilan and Gil Turner.

The bout is booked in Philadelphia July 2.

Promoter Bob Wormser of Indianapolis said Davey is all set to fight Fitzie Pruden of St. Catharines, Ont., in Indianapolis, May 26. Davey will be unable to go through with any fight until at least the May 28 date because of a gash over his right eye brow requiring three stitches.

Canadian Open Goes To Vancouver Golf Club

Vancouver, May 9. — (CP) — Point Grey Golf and Country Club will be the scene of the 1954 Canadian Open, club officials announced yesterday.

The 72-hole tournament will likely be held in late August, following the British Empire Games.

It will be the second time Vancouver golf fans will watch top Canadians and Americans in action. The Open was staged at Shaughnessy in 1948.

Dodgers Draw Warning For Bench Jockeying

New York, May 9.—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers have been warned by President Warren Giles of the National League to stop their jockeying from the bench, it was learned today.

The warning came in the form of a letter to Manager Charlie Dressen. The letter was read to the Brooklyn players in Cincinnati last Wednesday following the banishment of pitcher Chris Van Cuyk from the bench by Umpire Frank Dascoli on Tuesday night.

Giles is said to have written Dressen that he heard vile language from the Brooklyn bench and that Jackie Robinson was the worst offender.

After the letter had been read to the Brooklyn players, Robinson is said to have told Giles he never used profane language. Dressen also denied that his star second baseman had used any vile language.

The letter told Dressen he would be held responsible for the action of his players and that Dascoli was too lenient on Tuesday when he took action only against Van Cuyk.

Dressen had no comment other than to defend Robinson.

British Promoter Says Maxim Has Contract For Fight In England; Hopes To Stop Robinson-Maxim Bout

London, May 9.—(AP)—If Sugar Ray Robinson wants to be the world light-heavyweight champion, that's okay with Randy Turpin, who says he will fight Sugar at any weight.

"Just get him in the ring, anywhere, any weight and any time," Turpin's manager, George Middleton, said today.

On the face of it, Robinson's decision to move into the 175-pound ranks against Champion Joey Maxim next month seemed to upset a lot of carefully laid plans for Turpin.

The 23-year-old British Negro outpointed Robinson for the world middleweight title in London last July and 64 days later he lost it back to Robinson on a 10th-round knockout in a rousing New York battle.

Turpin has been chasing Robinson for a third go but Sugar hasn't been buying any. So Randy branched out among the light-heavies.

He toppled Jacques Hairabedian, the French 175-pound champion, in three rounds last month and meets Don Cockell, the British light-heavyweight king, here next month. The winner of that bout—and it should be Turpin—had been promised a crack at Maxim's title late in the summer.

"We thought we were sitting pretty," Middleton said, "and then this Robinson-Maxim fight pops up. That delays our plans, but we'd be very happy to meet the winner."

Announcement of the Robinson-Maxim signing brought a flurry of cables from London Promoter Jack Solomons to Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, the New York Athletic Commission, the National Boxing Association, Jack Kearns, Maxim's manager, and others.

The gist of all of them was: "You can't do that to me unless I agree. I've got Maxim signed."

Solomon's story is that he still holds a contract with Maxim dating Jan. 24, 1950, when Joey lifted the light-heavyweight crown from Freddie Mills, in London.

Kearns said last night in New York that after Maxim gets through with Robinson he planned to have Joey fight the Turpin-Cockell winner in London.

Ottawa Athletics Cause Another Upset By Edging Royals 6-5; Chiefs Fail To Gain As They Drop Tilt

If Ottawa Athletics had a couple of more opeatives like Charlie Bishop and John Metkovich, they probably wouldn't be in last place in the International League today.

In fact, the League-Leading Montreal Royals doubtless are wondering just why the A's are in the cellar. Bishop went all the way last night to chalk up his third triumph in setting down the Royals, 6-5, while Metkovich stroked a three-run homer, his fourth of the season.

The A's have won only five games thus far, and three of them are credited to Bishop. The game actually was decided in the bottom of the ninth when Jack Conway hit a two-run single.

The Royals lost no ground to the second-place Syracuse Chiefs, who also took a beating. Vern Fear of the Springfield Cubs set the Chiefs down with two hits to take a 4-1 decision. Springfield was no great shakes at the bat, either, collecting only three singles.

They were aided by wildness on the part of Al Holloman, who dropped his first game in six starts. He yielded a wild pitch and a single in the first, walked three and was tapped for a single in the second, then wild pitched three runs across.

Aided by two home runs by Lou Morton and another by Bobby Rhawn, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Rochester Red Wings, 8-5. The Wings went ahead in the fourth, but couldn't hold their lead. Lou Ortiz accounted for two of their runs with a one-on home run.

Buffalo Bisons slaughtered Baltimore Orioles, 10-0, behind the six-hit pitching of Milt Jordan. Jocko Thompson hurled creditably for the home forces for seven innings, allowing three runs, but blew up in the eighth, when he was blasted for home runs by Dave Jaska and Jack Phillips.

Black-Eyed Susan Stakes To Draw Five Sure Starters; Eddie Arcaro And Real Delight Rated Favorites

Baltimore, May 9. — Pimlico's Black-Eyed Susan Stakes — the fillies' version of the Preakness — had five sure starters today, with the combination of Eddie Arcaro and Real Delight getting the big share of attention.

Also high up in general regard was Parading Lady in the $20,000-added race set for Saturday, one week before the Preakness.

Arcaro, who rode Calumet Farm's Hill Gail to victory in the Derby and expects to ride him again in the Preakness, also won the Kentucky Oaks May 2 with Real Delight.

As for Hill Gail, Trainer Ben Jones said again today he expects to start the Calumet star of 1952 in the $75,000-added Preakness May 17. Jones said at Louisville a swelling on Hill Gail's leg has gone down and he had a light workout today.

Joe W. Brown's Parading Lady rates well for the Black-Eyed Susan through her impressive victory in the Acorn Stakes at Belmont last Saturday. She came from 12th to win two lengths from King Ranch's Sufie in the Acorn Mile.

The Black-Eyed Susan—it used to be the Pimlico Oaks for $10,000—is at 1⅛ miles.

Besides Real Delight and Parading Lady other definite starters are F. Eugene Dixon, Jr's Dinewisely, Puckety Farm's Faga-La and Edgar Zantker's Enfleur.

Sports Roundup

New York, May 8. — (AP) — The baseball race is not yet a month old, and a forecaster should not become panicky any more than a manager should, but we already have a strong feeling that some alterations are necessary in what was presented here as the four-star, exclusive and certain order of finish in the American League.

If you risked a beer on Cleveland Indians to win the flag, take it easy. You're in. They have what it takes, even with such a man as Larry Doby out with injuries. It is below that point that the original list appears to be slightly out of kilter, and we would like to offer an explanation.

In the first place, they have been trading players all over the joint since the season opened. Second, several clubs, especially Boston Red Sox, are employing athletes who were kept carefully hidden during the spring. They're good, too. And in the third place, a few players are not performing up to the standard expected of them.

Take, first, the two swaps which have given Washington a new young outfield of Jim Busby, Jackie Jensen and Archie Wilson, and a potential winning pitcher in Frank (Spec) Shea, whose long-lame arm appears to have mended. Let's jump the Senators up two notches to fifth place.

That makes it necessary to drop the cooled-off St. Louis Browns down to sixth and Chicago White Sox to seventh.

For the time being, at least until another revised forecast seems advisable, we'll leave the Yankees in the runner-up spot. You can't turn your back on a champ just because he gets knocked down a couple of times.

What to do with the Red Sox presents something of a problem. It is contrary to every baseball law for a club to come up with that many sterling rookies. However, it's done now and it seems expedient to shove the Bobby Sox up a peg into third place.

Let's see, that leaves Detroit without a home. The Tigers are eighth at the moment. Put them fourth, but remind me to feel their pulse again in about a month.

Lorraine Williams, Chicago Wonder Girl, Is Following In Tennis Footsteps Of Prodigious Maureen Connolly; Experts Predict Great Future

Chicago—(NEA)—It is a sporty, long-distance bet that some day pigtailed Lorraine Williams will win the national women's tennis championship.

From out of nowhere, the plucky little Chicago southpaw has come bouncing like one of the circus Zachinis being shot from a cannon. George O'Connell, brave as the boy on the burning deck, doesn't see how she can miss.

The veteran Chicago tennis pro's eyes glisten when the subject of 13-year-old, four-foot-seven, 85-pound Lorraine comes up. He is one of the slim, light-skinned Negro girl's busiest and staunchest supporters.

"She is simply extraordinary," he waxes, "and though I've not seen Maureen Connolly, it is hard for me to believe she was any better at 13.

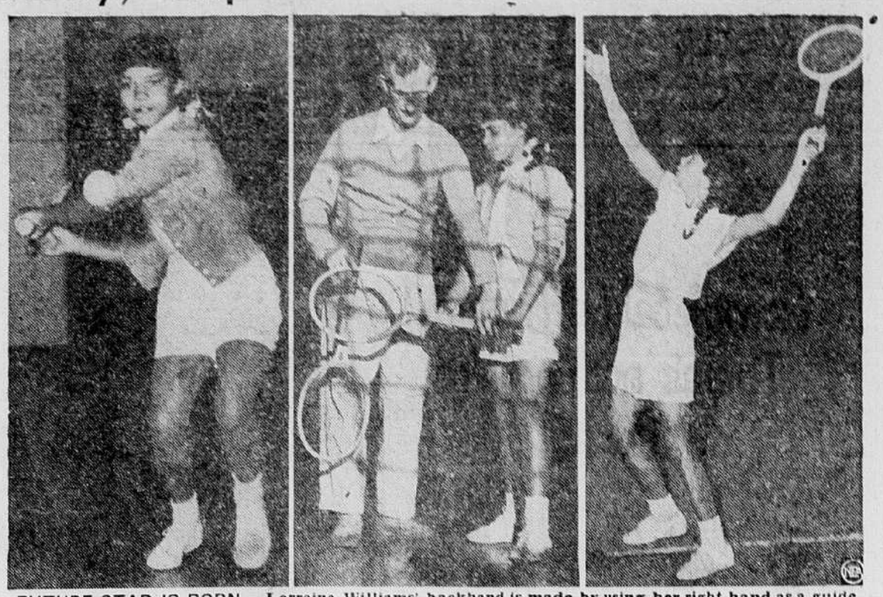
"I don't believe anyone can keep her from winning the national girls' crown before she is 16. I played a couple of sets against her the other day just to find out how good she was. I tried all the tricks—drop shots, top-spin drives and such. Nothing upset her. She has the poise of a veteran."

One Of Eight Kids

Lorraine has been playing only four years comes from a family of eight children. Her mother, a widow, works as a beautician. Lorraine's first racket was nothing more than two pieces of plywood nailed together. She graduated to a real club her second year.

Lorraine was discovered by Dr. Willis Ewell and his wife, Dorothy, former national Negro champion, two years ago.

"The Ewells have worked wonders with her," relates O'Connell. "They have coached her soundly in tactics. Her style is natural. During the Summer, Dr. Ewell takes her up to their farm in Michigan, and having found it rather rough work hitting enough balls to her, he has invented a machine which looks like a Rube Goldberg contraption. It has given the girl amazing steadiness and accuracy. She handles swift shots with astonishing ease."



FUTURE STAR IS BORN—Lorraine Williams' backhand is made by using her right hand as a guide. George O'Connell shows her the proper grip. The 13-year-old miss serves with a forehand grip. (NEA)

The Ewells also took their protege to the University of Chicago, arranged for private lessons from Chet Murphy, ex-Big Ten ace and coach of the Maroons. They took her to tournaments to watch the top stars. They saw with she went to the national Negro tournament at Wilberforce University.

Last Summer Lorraine qualified for the national girls' tourney in Philadelphia, passed it up for a return appearance at Wilberforce. She's eyeing the big prize this trip.

In early April, Lorraine won both the Western Indoor Tournament Junior Girls' and Girls' titles, convinced genuine antiques she plays best under pressure. She is constantly polishing off much older competitors.

"She has an uncanny ability to get to almost any kind of shot," says O'Connell. "She's aggressive and quick, gets incredible depth which most kids her age wouldn't even try to handle. Her strongest shot is her forehand. Speed does not bother her and she really shoots the lines.

"Her backhand is made by using her right hand as a guide and appears to be two-handed, yet soundly hits the ball. She's uncommonly accurate on both sides, does not baby the ball. Up close she's cool, instinctively seems to know where to put the ball, is good and sharp overhead.

"Her service, although made with a forehand grip, is well placed and falls deep in the service court. She's just beginning to use the correct service grip and I believe a left-hand twist will be much in her favor.

"Lorraine is fiercely competitive, gets the maximum from splendid skills because of her flaming spirit. It helps to make up for her size, or lack of it.

"She will play for six or seven hours without stopping. She has boundless energy, a pair of sturdy legs that never tire. It is utterly amazing a girl so young handles herself so well."

Lorraine Williams is such a pleasant and engaging little lady that even her competitors are rooting hard for her.

"Porky" Oliver Sets Hot Pace In Greenbrier

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 9—(AP)—Ed (Porky) Oliver of Lemont, Ill., got away to a fast start in the $10,000 Greenbrier Open Golf Tournament yesterday by shooting to within one stroke of the course record of 60.

Oliver's 61 put him three strokes up over Sam Snead, the host pro who set the record for 18 holes two years ago. Par for the 6,380-yard course is 70.

Oliver's round, however, was the best ever scored in the five-year-old Greenbrier. Snead's record was set playing in a non-tournament foursome. Both Oliver and Snead laid the foundation for challenging the Greenbrier's 72-hole record of 259 set by Ben Hogan two years ago.

A stroke behind Snead in the field of 37 came Harry Dee of New York.

Tied for fourth at 67 were Doug Ford of Harrison, N.Y., and Dave Douglas of Newark, Del. another stroke behind were Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif., and Dow Finsterwald of Athens, O.

Also beating par, by one stroke, were Marty Furgol of Atlanta, Ga., Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., and Max Faulkner, the British Open champion.

Oliver, a Ryder Cup player last year, just missed matching Snead's record 60 by a hair breadth on the last hole. A 20-foot putt for a birdie, which would have been his 10th in 18 holes, slid by the cup's edge.

He birdied five of the ifrst nine holes for a 29. Two if them were on 20-foot putts.

Jockey Johnny Longden After 4,000th Winner

Albany, Calif., May 9—(AP)—Veteran jockey Johnny Longden, who has ridden 3,995 winners, will return to Golden Gate Fields today for the last two days of the meeting in an attempt to become the second in racing history to ride 4,000 to the winner's circle.

Only Gordon Richards of England has reached that number. He chalked up his 4,417th winner last April 30.

Longden has been out of action the last few days with a back injury suffered when he was spilled and kicked by his mount here April 26.

Longden, who is in his early 40's, has been jockey for 25 years and has become a millionaire. Often called "Mr. Moneybags," Longden is regarded as the wealthiest jockey in the business. He maintains a huge stock farm in Nevada, flies his own plane and has many business investments.

He was born in Yorkshire, England, emigrated to Canada as a youngster and lived in Taber, Alta. He began his jockey career on Western Canada tracks.

Jack Goldsmith Pleads Guilty To 'Fix' Charges

New York, May 9—(AP)—Jack Goldsmith, 32, former Long Island University basketball player, pleaded guilty today to two counts of bribery in the college basketball "fix" scandal.

Judge Saul S. Streit ordered him held without bail pending sentencing May 28 after Assistant District Attorney Vincent A. G. O'Connor declared:

"He has never shown the slightest desire to co-operate and has taken a hardened criminal attitude."

Goldsmith, a Brooklyn resident, had been free under $50,000 bail.

"He's been a fixer, player, gambler and double-crosser," said O'Connor.

Goldsmith faces a maximum possible penalty of 10 years in prison and $20,000 in fines.

Goldsmith pleaded guilty in the bribing of Harvey (Connie) Schaff, a New York University player, to control his team's score in a game with Cornell University Jan. 1, 1950, at Madison Square Garden.

Cornell, the underdog, won 69-56.

Goldsmith also pleaded guilty to bribing four L.I.U. players to lose a game to Duquesne University in the 1950-51 season. Duquesne, also an underdog, won 64-55.

Two co-defendants, Daniel Lamont, 44, of Altoona, Pa., and Joseph Serota, 37, of Brooklyn, pleaded guilty yesterday to conspiracy. Their sentencing also is scheduled for May 28.

Charlie McAdam, Well Again, Will Run In Withers Mile Saturday; To Enter Preakness Stakes Next Week

New York, May 9.—(AP)—Charlie McAdam, one of the tough little colts of the Florida winter racing season, is on the prowl again and appears likely to get a crack at other three-year-old stars in the $75,000 added Preakness Stakes May 17 at Baltimore.

The bay son of Helopolis is owned by John C. Clark, head of Hialeah race course, and won a division of the rich Flamingo Stakes there last winter. But he became ill here this spring, missed the Jamaica races and had to be taken out of the Kentucky Derby.

Now he'll be the favorite if he starts in the 77th running of the famed Withers Mile, a $25,000-added event Saturday at Belmont Park. He proved he was back in form Monday by capturing the first division of the Swift Stakes at Belmont.

With any sort of showing in the Withers, Charlie McAdam is almost certain to head for Pimlico and a meeting with Hill Gail, Blue Man, Sub Fleet and other sophomore stars.

The Preakness, second jewel in the Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown, already has a gross value of $105,770.

Trainer A. G. (Bob) Robertson had Sam Boulmetis, a Baltimore boy, in the saddle again for the Swift Stakes Monday, and the colt defeated several of the leading sophomores of the season among them Private, Armageddon, Jet Master and Lord Priam.

His chief opposition in the Withers would be Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' One Count, Bayard Sharp's Hannibal, and E. B. Benjamin's Primate. Hannibal set the Derby pace until collared by Hill Gail half a mile from home. Hannibal is the only one in the probable Withers field which raced in the Derby, but he's not eligible for the Preakness. One Count and Primate are, however. Ted Atkinson was engaged yesterday to ride One Count.

Other Withers candidates include All's Fair, Quiet Step, Old Ironsides, Armageddon and possibly Cajun.

Tommy Bolt Shoots Hot Round To Lead Tourney

Mexico City, May 9.—(AP)—Tommy Bolt of Durham, N.C., yesterday set a course record with a spectacular eight-under-par 32-32—64 and staked himself a four-stroke lead over Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago in the first round of the Pan-American $15,000 Invitation Golf Tournament.

Bolt, one of the top money winners on the winter P.G.A. circuit, turned in his record-breaking score over the recently-opened 7,347-yard Mexico Country Club course.

He never missed a green and his spectacular approaches repeatedly left him with two and three-foot putts. He had eight birdies.

Four pros were tied for third at 71 — Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif.; Robert de Vicenzo, champion of Argentina; Douglas Higgins, Fort Worth, Tex.; and Iverson Martin, Fort Worth.

Community School Plans Being Made At The Boundary

Derby Line, May 9. — Plans for the 12th consecutive sessions of the International Community School are getting well underway, and an announcement of some of the special features will be made in the near future, according to the reports made at the May meeting of the executive committee, held at the Haskell Library, Tuesday evening, May 6, with the president, Rev. E. H. Nickerson, presiding.

There will be some new classes this fall, and also some new hobby and handicraft groups, and the old favourites will be continued. The various classes are being decided upon according to the desires of those who were members in 1951, and it is hoped that anyone who has ideas for classes will get in touch with the secretary, Miss Madeliene Poisson, at Rock Island, Que. The committee is always glad of suggestions and ideas, and the school is planned to satisfy so far as is possible the desires and needs of the Boundary Communities.

Possible speakers and special events are under consideration, and they will be varied and of a type that should command more than the usual interest. Announcements will be made as soon as dates have been decided upon.

Earl Heath was asked once again to look after the publicity and advertising for the school, and offered the suggestion that a little more advertising of some of the special events might bring in a larger audience. The advertising will stress the fact that non-members are welcome to attend any of the evenings to hear the speakers or take in the special events.

The next meeting of the executive committee will be held the first Tuesday in June, and it is hoped that an announcement of some of the classes, speakers and special events can be made at that time.

Those present at the meeting were Rev. E. H. Nickerson, Miss Gertrude Ketcham, Miss Elsie McIntosh, Miss Aline Ricard, Miss Laura Stone, Mrs. A. Arkin, Mrs. Marjorie Colt, E. J. Struthers, Heron Hudson, Allen Pocock, Lloyd Kezar, Elywn Humphrey, Victor Griffith, Edwin Earle, and Earl Heath.

Waterloo Kiwanis Sponsor Many Summer Activities

Waterloo, May 9.—At the weekly Kiwanis meeting of the Waterloo Club, vice-president Wes. Parkes was in charge, and it took the form of an open forum, followed by a short directors' meeting, when several questions were discussed and settled.

It was anonunced that the prospective date for the Horse Show was set at July first, with the Kiwanis Club working with the Waterloo Concert Band on this project, and making it into a large affair. It is expected that there will be horses shown from all over the district, and it should prove to be a great attraction for old and young alike. It will be held on the Exhibition Grounds.

It was also announced that the seeds are ready for distribution among the school children for their summer gardens, in preparation for the school fair, which will be held in September. This project is being put on in conjunction with the Farm Forum, and there will be made available either flower seeds of four varieties or vegetables of seven varieties, and the plot of ground for this garden must be according to standard, which is fifteen feet square. The gardens will be judged in August, when the flowers and the vegetables are at their best, and later, when harvested they will be exhibited at the school fair, which will be held in the High School.

It was announced that there will be a Public Telephone Booth put up at the beach this summer with the Kiwanis Club guaranteeing its upkeep. The reason for this installation is its presence in the time of emergency, such as drowning, when time is so vital.

The Badminton Junior Club prizes have been distributed and the Kiwanis Club is the sponsor of this project under the very capable leadership of Kiwanian Tom Wilkinson. It provides the prizes for this tournament and interest ran very high this year among the juniors in town. It was decided to erect more picnic tables in the vicinity. Two tables that have been put up on the Granby highway, however one has been smashed and this will be replaced, and it is expected to put two up on the South Stukely highway and two more on the Foster highway. In this way, the club feels that it is doing a bit to welcome strangers in the vicinity.

Next week the club is meeting at the picnic place on the Granby road to replace the broken table at six p.m.

Members Of House Would Contribute To Pensions Plan

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa—(CP)—All political parties have tentatively agreed to a contributory pension plan for Members of the Commons.

The plan, to provide a life pension for anyone who has served at least eight or 10 years in Parliament, will be discussed soon by Finance Minister Abbott and representatives of the political parties.

If final agreement is reached, the plan likely will be submitted for approval at this session. While it will be sponsored by the government when it is introduced, it will represent the labor of a group of private members who have worked for several years on possible pension schemes.

The program is aimed particularly at taking care of men who devote most of their life to politics and then suffer defeat when they have no business or employment to which to return.

Recently, Julian Ferguson (PC—Simcoe North) urged the government to increase the indemnities of Members of the Commons. Members now receive $4,000 for each session of 65 days duration and $2,000 a year tax-free living allowance. In 1951, members received $10,000 because there were two sessions.

Prime Minister St. Laurent has told his supporters there will not be two sessions this year. A Liberal Member said that at a recent caucus the Prime Minister made it clear that unless work is concluded by June 30 or by July 15, at the latest, the session will simply be adjourned until the fall.

Such an adjournment would mean that Members would receive only one indemnity no matter how long the session lasted.

Mr. Ferguson's request was welcomed by many Members, including some Liberals. However, Liberal sources said there likely will be no increase in indemnities until after the next federal election, expected by some in the fall of 1953.

Under the proposed pension plan, each Member would contribute a percentage of his indemnity each session. The government would match the Members' contribution. To qualify for a pension, a Member would have to serve in at least two Parliaments. The life of a Parliament is usually four years, although under statute it is elected for five years.

The pension of a Member would say vary according to his contributions. To get a maximum of $3,000 a year, a Member would have to serve for at least 17 sessions.

One of the originators of the plan said that only 84 Members in the 262-seat Commons have served for two Parliaments and now would qualify for such a pension. He said there is a turnover of about 100 members in the life of every Parliament, and out of that number only 20 would be pensionable.

Se said adoption of the pension plan would eliminate many hardship cases among Members, defeated or taken ill after years of service.

If the plan works successfully for the Commons, he said, a similar contributory plan may be devised for the Senate. Senators now are appointed for life. Under a pension plan, a voluntary retirement age at 75 may be fixed. A Senator would have the option of holding his seat or of retiring on pension when he reached that age.
