WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 4, 1854.

MONUMENT IN HONOR OF THOSE WHO FELL WITH WOLFE AND MONTCALM.—We have already mentioned that a subscription was being organized at Quebec, with the object of collecting a fund for the erection of a monument in memory of the brave men who fell on either side before that "ancient capital;" and we learn that the subscription list will shortly be presented for the signatures of such of our citizens as may feel inclined to aid in this praiseworthy undertaking. We say praiseworthy, for we heartily concur with our Quebec contemporary, LeCanadien, in believing that such mementoes of our past history are well calculated to keep alive that patriotic sentiment of a common nationality, which is the only reliable foundation of national greatness and prosperity. We trust, then, that our citizens of both origins, will cordially and liberally join with our friends in Quebec—and throughout the Province—in raising such a sum as will secure the erection of a monument, worthy not only of those whose deeds it is sought to commemorate, but of the great and prosperous state, which, in less than a century, has sprung from the peaceful union of their descendants and successors.—These ideas were so admirably expressed by the Hon. Mr. Taché, in his speech on the 5th of June last, at the re-interment of the remains of the warriors, whose heroism it is sought to honor, that we gladly avail ourselves of the hon. gentleman's eloquent appeal—although we are aware that it must lose much of its native force and grace in a translation. Mr. Taché said:—

But here let me be permitted to express an opinion, to form a wish. The monument which we propose to raise, it appears to me, should be erected, not in a paltry, narrow, selfish spirit, but with large and generous views—a monument to the memory of the brave men of both armies, who, on the 28th of April, 1760, made side towards their respective countries the greatest of all sacrifices, the sacrifice of their lives. Let us imitate, then, the beautiful example which has been given us by our brethren of British origin, in the noble erection by them of the joint memories of Wolfe and Montcalm—a monument, simple it is true, but imposing, and upon which is engraven the following note-worthy inscription: "Mortem virtus communem, famam historia, monumentum posteritas dedit;" that is to say: "Courage having united them in a common death, history gives them an equal glory, and posterity the same monument." Beautiful and admirable sentiment, which cools the sensibility and wounds the pride of no one, but which fills the heart with admiration, respect and tenderness, and gives rise to the most noble and heroic aspirations! Once more, why should we be less generous than our fellow-citizens of English origin? What have we to fear? Is not history more durable than brass and the monuments of men, and has it not given to our ancestors the portion of laurels which was their due, and to their actions upon many most important points which well deserve an elaborated and well prepared answer? But the truth of the matter is, that my friends at Buffalo, were so kind and hospitable during the few hours of my sojourn there, that I had not a single moment which I could devote to prepare a reply to this Address, because unlike many of the ordinary addresses which persons in my situation are in the habit of receiving, it touches upon many most important points which well deserve an elaborated and well prepared answer.
