NO ONE EXPECTS RESIGNATION OF THE GOVERNMENT

VOTE IN BRITISH COMMONS
REGARDED AS ASSERTION OF INDEPENDENCE

London, Oct. 24.—Political experts and the editorial utterances in the papers this morning generally express the view that no one expects the Government to resign as a result of the adverse vote in the House of Commons yesterday and that the circumstances of the defeat of the Pilot amendment in nowise need entail such a step. The incident however, is regarded on all sides as one which has given the administration a service shock, a repetition of which it could hardly survive.

The vote is generally described as an assertion of the independence of the House of Commons and a revolt against the alleged dictation of ministers—a determination to reassert the supremacy which the Commons surrendered to the Cabinet during the war.

More than one hundred supporters of the coalition, among whom Sir Edward Carson, was conspicuous, voted against the Government. These represented the intense anti-alien feeling prevailing among the Conservative Coalitionists and the fear that the Government is trying in the present stage of the bill to annul amendments which those hostile to aliens secured in the committee stage.

Some surprise is expressed that the labor members and the so-called free Liberals joined in the vote against the Government on this issue, thereby identifying themselves with the anti-alien faction, contrary to the avowed principles of the leaders.

It is believed in some quarters that the Government on Monday will ask the House to re-consider the vote and in view of certain circumstances it is regarded as possible that the House may comply. These circumstances concern the convention entered into between Great Britain and France in 1913, in which it was agreed that French pilots might bring French ships into certain English ports and that English pilots should be granted a reciprocal privilege in French ports.

It is contended that unless the House of Commons revises yesterday's vote the Government will be compelled to denounce the convention and incur the reproach of treating the compact as a "scrap of paper."

To this anti-alien reply is that the convention was concluded secretly and that information about was only dragged from a reluctant Government during yesterday's debate.

Dissatisfaction is also expressed at the way in which Edward Shortt, Home Secretary, handled the bill in the Commons, strengthening the belief that he will probably resign.

NO TAX EXEMPTION FOR GRAND TRUNK

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 24.—Word was received by Mayor Church today from Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways, that the Government had no intention of claiming exemption from municipal taxes for the Grand Trunk Railway property after it becomes a Government road. There is nothing in the bill before Parliament, said Mr. Reid, that would change the situation, and the taxes must be paid as heretofore.

The Government would have neither the desire nor the power to claim exemption from taxes.

The assessment of the Grand Trunk at a rate of twenty eight m's, the 1919 tax rate yields a revenue to the city of $332,396.

REFERENDUM VOTE MISUNDERSTANDING

CITIZEN'S LIBERTY LEAGUE
MAY DEMAND RE-COUNT
IN ONTARIO.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 24.—Serious misunderstanding on the part of Deputy Returning Officers as to the way in which referendum votes should have been counted is alleged by the Citizens' Liberty League and it is said a re-vote may be demanded by the League. J. E. Bell, of the Liberty League, claims that certain deputy returning officers wrongly counted ballots, not understanding whether "for" meant "yes" or "no", and he says one Toronto deputy returning officer counted about 500 votes wrongly because of his confused idea as to what these answers on the ballots meant. Representations have been made to Hon. I. B. Lucas to the effect that a recount is necessary in order to ascertain the will of the people. Appeal to Allan Dymond, Chief Election Clerk for Ontario, pointing out that whereas the members of the League were entitled to the rights and privileges of candidates during the taking of the referendum vote, the officers had not recognized this right. Mr. Bell's letter to Mr. Dymond concludes as follows:

"Will you kindly arrange to have the returning officer for each electoral district in Ontario forward to us a statement showing the total number of votes polled for the affirmative and negative sides and ballots spoiled or rejected at each polling sub-division and a grand total showing the total number voting 'no' or 'yes' in the different electoral districts of Ontario."

Rev. Ben Spence had no direct statement to make with regard to the Liberty League's protest.

"A poor loser is a poor sport," he remarked.

RECOMMEND THAT WILSON CREATE A COMMISSION

NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL CON-FERENCE COMES TO AN END IN STATES

Washington D.C., Oct. 24.—With a recommendation to President Wilson that he create a commission to carry on the work which the National Industrial Conference was unable to accomplish, the public group, the last remaining element of the body, finally adjourned tonight.

Despite two attempts by Mr. Wilson to save from dissolution the gathering, tonight's adjournment brought to a formal close the conference called by the Executive to bring some common ground of co-operation between labor and capital on the outcome of which were held in abeyance strikes affecting the entire industrial life of the nation.

The report of the public representatives declining to assume the task for which the original gathering was called, was transmitted to the White House through Chairman Bernard M. Baruch in the form of a thousand word letter. No information was forthcoming from the White House as to the President's next move to bring industrial peace to the country.

Although the report was not made public, it was learned that the document summarized the proceedings of the fourteen days the conference was in session; put the stamp of approval on the plan for industrial boards suggested by Secretary of Labor Wilson, and recommended the calling of another body containing industrial experts to undertake the peace adjustment. It was drafted by a committee of five delegates, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was Chairman. Although four or five conferees were opposed to final adjustment, only Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, voted against the motion on final tests.

Delegates urged that the high cost of living and other problems be pressed for immediate solution before dissolution, but a strong majority of the representatives, it was said felt that the conference virtually came to an end with the withdrawal of the Labor group Wednesday and that the public group was not sufficiently representative to undertake a general programme and also was handicapped by popular disfavor.

The industrial boarding plan of Secretary Wilson, which met with favor among the delegates, provides for boards of employers and employees in each industry, with a general board of appeals and as a final resort in cases of dispute, an umpire chosen by the parties to the dispute, or from a standing list of twenty named by the President.

Several public representatives were not present at the final session. Of these Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation went to New York Wednesday noon and did not return, and I. J. Forrester, President of the Order of Railway Clerks, withdrew following similar action on the part of the representatives of organized labor.

CIVIC EMPLOYEES IN ELECTION WORK?

ALD. SEGUIN ASKS POINTED QUESTION AT CITY COUNCIL MEETING

According to information secured by Ald. Seguin, of Limonien Ward, there are certain civic employees who are demonstrating an altogether too keen interest in election work, so much so it is alleged that two of them abandoned their work at the City Hall recently for a day and went out to work and solicit votes in favor of a certain candidate.

Mayor Lavigne said it was the first intimation he had of the matter, but would look into it.

One of the Aldermen laughingly remarked that it would be time enough to make inquiries next Tuesday.

Ald. Bouchard (St. Roch's) gave notice of the following questions for the next meeting:

What is the value of exempt property in Quebec? What revenue would this property bring the city if it were taxed?

With regard to the charges of higher telephone rates in the limits of Belvedere Ward, about which Ald. Le Sage had inquired at a previous meeting, Mayor Lavigne explained that the Telephone Company had its service limited to a radius of 2 miles from the exchange as a crow flies. In accordance with this there were certain parts of the city which were outside of the radius, and this was the case with parts of Belvedere Ward. In areas without the specified radius the company was authorized by the Dominion Board of Railway Commission-

GREAT INDUSTRIAL BATTLE IS PENDING

CONFERENCE OF AMERICAN LABOR HEADS TO BE HELD
SHORTLY

Washington, D.C., Oct. 24.—What may prove one of the greatest industrial battles in history was believed by some observers here to be forecast by the announcement today of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, that a conference of the heads of the 112 international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor would be held in Washington "in the near future," to discuss present and impending disputes.

Co-operation of the four big railroad brotherhoods and the farmers of the country as well as the labor organizations of Canada probably would be sought, it was said in furthering whatever programme the union chiefs decide upon.

Mr. Gompers' announcement was contained in a telegram to the Illinois Federation of Labor at Peoria. His message was in reply to one in which the Illinois organization asked that a special convention of the American Federation of Labor be called to perfect an alliance of the international unions of the United States and Canada and the railroad brotherhoods "more effectively to fight out the life and death struggle of the workers now in progress."

Federation officials also pointed out that the Illinois Branch proposed that aid of the farmers be enlisted and that assessments aggregating one-fourth of the net earnings of organized workers be made "until the objects of this drive be accomplished."

Decision to issue a call for a meeting of the International Union Chiefs was reached by the Federation's Executive Council Tuesday night but the announcement was withheld. At that time labor officials had become convinced that the national industrial conference would be unable to reach any basis for the establishment of industrial peace. It was on the following day that Mr. Gompers, in withdrawing organized labor's representatives from the conference, warned the employers' group that when they met in conference again with the spokesmen for union labor they would be glad to talk collective bargaining.

Federation officials today declined to go into details regarding the forthcoming conference. They said subjects to be discussed would rest with the union chiefs themselves and the time of the meeting had not been determined.

Mayor Lavigne said a report on this matter would be submitted at the next meeting.

LIFE INTOLERABLE IN FRAGRANT TOWN

UNDEMOBILIZED FIND LIFE
UTTERLY INTOLERABLE — PLACE HAS LOST LAST IN-TERESTING FEATURE.

London, Oct. 24.—To judge by letters received lately from Port Said, it would seem that certain old comrades who still lag undemobilized upon the scene are finding life utterly intolerable in that fragrant town. It is the case in the case it is clear that the place has lost its last interesting feature.

We allude to the mysterious horde of jet-black aborigines known to the British soldier as the Jumping Jacks, or the Indiarubber Gentlemen (though "gentlemen" is not exactly the word used), and to the civil population by various pity cognomens which, perhaps fortunately, have no satisfactory equivalent in English. To dally no further with their identity, they are the Abyssinian levies raised by Italy for some purpose which has not yet been stated.

They dawned upon the town one hot sticky morning about a year ago, camped alongside the white Italian troops in one of the little enclosed sand-deserts off the Rue Eugénie. They appeared as a very drowsy crowd wearing a particularly tall scarlet turban with chin-strap; a white calico garment resembling a curtailed smock, secured round their slim waists with a broad sash of vivid hues suggestive of corsets; white calico bags, and puttees. A few wore sandals; most went barefoot.

The N.C.O.'s carried scimitars and sported little crinkly goat-like beards. Port Said was charmed with them at first, for they had money and seemed simple folk; and for their part they were greatly taken with Port Said and its miniature sky-scrapers, its "bars" its cosy, pungent Arab town, its busy streets, and presumably, the contrast it afforded with their native villages in the torrid plateaux to the south-east.

But this incipient entente cordiale was doomed to perish untimely. The visitors showed that they cherished some unpleasant customs, such as the indulgence at night, more especially at the full of the moon, in interminable concerts of tom-tom, flute, and vocal atrocities which could have been heard half-way down the Canal.

But the estranging circumstance was that those who still had money discovered a tendency to be a little exacting with it. So their popularity soon waned, and the small fry of the town, master of armor-piercing epithets, began to pursue them with discourteous gestures and derisive outcries. But they knew not what an Abyssinian warrior will do when his blood is up. The gallant blacks turned upon the small boys and rent them.

The feud was begun, for the Egyptian's tender point is his small boy, no matter how full his quiver of them. Early one evening exasperated fathers hounded the blacks to their camp with every detail of ignominy. Arriving more or less in safety, they held a soiree musicale of great length and animation, in the course of which they were harangued by their leading D'Annunzio into a state of warlike frenzy.

Hastily arming themselves with staves, scimitars, and any other weapon brushed aside their Italian guards and sallied forth into the town, capering and yelling. Outside a café they all but killed an Italian officer who strove to restrain them; but during this skirmish they had the misfortune to come into conflict with some Australians, and being unused to the Dominion style of fighting, they suffered a reverse. Nevertheless two women, two boys, a venerable Arab, and several windows were damaged by their staves before they could be hustled back to their camp.

This kind of thing went on for three successive nights, a truce being tacitly arranged by day, apparently in order that they might still make their little purchases of the Egyptian peddlars who haunted the vicinity of their camp. Then open hostilities ceased by common consent, though when the blacks fared abroad they sought the security of numbers.

One glorious moonlit night the rare peace of the Rue Eugénie was shattered first by the dull thumping of the tom-tom and shortly afterwards by a hullabaloo that brought every policeman, civil and military, panting to the camp. The Mahomedans of the detachment, wearying of the quiet life, had fallen upon their Christian brothers-in-arms, and every bivvy in the camp lay prone. A bemused Australian had figured prominently but vaguely in the fray, though in what capacity he had broken into the camp—whether as friend of one party or the other, as peace-maker or as agent-procaccateur—he never really explained.

And so they have—they must have—gone, taking with them, it is to be feared, the three-fold mystery which wrapped them. No one had ever seen them on any front; none knew what high hopes or intentions had brought them thither; their ultimate destination was hidden from all. It would be in the highest degree unjust to suggest that they did not do their bit in the Great War. At the worst, for nearly a year they helped to amuse and enliven a whole town.

SURE SYMPTOMS.

There was an epidemic of chicken-pox in the village, but fortunately little Johnny had kept free from it. One morning, however, he came rushing downstairs excitedly.
"Oh, daddy!" he shouted, "I'm sure I've got chicken-pox. I've just found a feather in the bed!"

UNIONIST CAUCUS
IN SOUTH AFRICA

IMPORTANT GLIMPSE GIVEN
OF FUTURE POLITICAL POSSIBILITIES THERE

Bloemfontein South Africa, Oct. 24.—(Reuters)—The Unionist caucus which opened here yesterday is important as giving a glimpse of the future political possibilities in South Africa.

Referring to a reference by General Hertzog to the constitution as a "scrap of paper," Sir Thomas Smartt, leader of the Unionist Party in South Africa declared that no members of the National Convention were more responsible for Union than Hertzog and other Free State representatives who have explicit promises of good faith which the Unionists meant to see maintained at their face value. (Loud cheers.)

Sir Thomas though General Hertzog's dismissal from the Cabinet and subsequent events had so warped his mind that he did not know what he had promised in 1909. Surely General Hertzog would not have brought his son to see the signing of the Act of Union if he thought it would be a scrap of paper a few years later.

Sir Thomas recalled that Sir Starr Jameson had asked for a best man government at the outset of Union. History had shown that Jameson was right. Smartt said he was prepared for a fair amalgamation with the ministerialists but not the absorption of the Unionist Party. (Cheers.)

Referring to the new status of the Dominions he emphasized the fact that it brought new responsibilities, the first of which should be Imperial preference. Sir Thomas also touched on the high cost of living and advocated control of the trusts. He forecasted a wheat shortage and expressed the opinion that the Government should take over the wheat supply in the interests of the public.

HOUSE APPROVES
AUSTRIAN TREATY

GENERAL TERMS IDENTICAL WITH THOSE APPLIED TO GERMANY.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 24.—After a brief discussion, the House tonight formally approved the peace treaty with Austria. The League of Nations covenant and the labor clauses, the Minister of Justice explained, were identical with those in the German peace treaty. Mr. McKenzie, while declaring that he was not prepared to offer objection to passage of the resolution yet maintained that it was unnecessary. In effect, he claimed, the House had already approved the treaty by concurring in Senate amendments to the bill to put the German peace treaty into effect.

Mr. McKie, of Edmonton, urged delay that the provisions of the treaty might be further studied. But the motion for approval carried.

During the greater part of the day, the House was in committee on the Grand Trunk bill and the bill will be further considered in committee. In the course of the discussion the Minister of Railways stated that the physical assets of the Grand Trunk would be, liable to municipal taxation as heretofore.

NEED NOT FEAR
GOVERNMENT OF
UNITED FARMERS

POLICY WILL NOT DISPLAY HOSTILITY TO CITIES AND TOWNS

Toronto Ont., Oct. 24.—Cities and towns in Ontario need not fear the prospects of a farmers' government, says the Toronto Star, in an editorial today.

"Should the farmers be called upon to form an administration it will be found that their problems will be the same as those of any other group associated for purposes of government," continues the article. "We need not fear that its policy and measures will display hostility to cities and towns. Any prejudice of that kind that may exist will be lessened by responsibility and by the desire to obtain support from all quarters."

"Having once got over their surprise at the new situation the people will judge of a farmers' government, like any other, upon its merits, its capacity and its record. Old line Liberals and Conservatives perhaps expect a return, some day, to the old two party system. Even so, it will pay them to cultivate good relations with the farmers, and to win their friendships, which may come in handy for future alliances."

Labor Squabble

Some of the labor councils are in for a season of contention, if a circular letter from John Corbett, Secretary of the Independent Labor Party of London, Ont., receives the notice Mr. Corbett evidently desires. Secretary Corbett takes strong exception to the opposition shown to Dr. Hugh Stevenson, the Labor candidate who defeated Sir Adam Beck by a number of well-known labor leaders, who appeared on Sir Adam's platform and he says they "must be brought to book, that labor might know on which side of the fence they stood."

John Flett General organizer of the American Federation of Labor; Joseph Gibbons business agent of the Street Railwaymen of Toronto and W. F. Bush an organizer of the Garment Workers' Union are the men to whom Secretary Corbett refers.

Mr. Corbett has a position in the Trades Union movement and is an Executive Board member of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen.

John G. O'Donoghue, Labor lawyer is also taken to task in the same connection.

HONOR MEMORY OF MAN AND ATHLETE

MCGILL PAYS TRIBUTE TO
LATE CAPT. PERCIVAL MOLSON TODAY.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 24.—The memory of the late Capt. Percival Molson, M.C. will be honored tomorrow afternoon when the McGill stadium will be officially dedicated as the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium. It was thought fit that the large grounds should be named after the graduate who had played such a prominent part in college athletics and made a handsome bequest of seventy-five thousand dollars to pay for the construction of the Pine Avenue grounds.

The dedication will take place in the afternoon while the Intercollegiate Track Meet is in progress and will be attended by many of the officers of the Princess Patricia's, with which battalion Capt. Molson was serving at the time he was killed, as well as by many of the members of the family. The dedication addresses will be read by Dean C. E. Moyle, and will be presented by Errol MacDougall to Lieut.-Col. Herbert Molson.

The Stadium will be formally opened at the same time. This ceremony had been postponed during the period of the war and had to be performed before any of the Intercollegiate games could take place. The interest in the track events, together with the graduates in the dedication ceremonies, is bringing a large crowd out to the games.

CITY RECONSIDERS
PALAIS LAND SALE

COUNCIL RECLAIMS LAND AND
WILL NOW SELL IT BY PUBLIC AUCTION.

The agitation conducted in connection with the sale of a valuable piece of land at the Palais a portion of the former cattle market, to Mr. L. P. Lortie, for the sum of $2 a foot proved effective inasmuch as the City Council last night after a lengthy discussion decided to reclaim the land sold and to put this portion of land as well as adjoining lots up for sale by auction, with an upset price of $2 a foot.

At the previous meeting of the City Council a petition was read signed by a number of rate-payers objecting to the fact that the land had been sold to Mr. Lortie without any notice having been given that the property was for sale and that the deal was not given sufficient publicity. At that meeting Ald. Lantier gave notice of motion for the reconsideration of the deal.

A counter petition was read at the meeting last night approving the sale of the property to Mr. Lortie and asking the Council not to reconsider the sale.

Mayor Lavigne then read an opinion given by Consulting City Attorney L. A. Taschereau and concurred in by City Attorneys Chapleau and Theriault in which it was maintained that the City had the legal right to sell the property in question without calling for tenders or giving public notice.

Ald. Lantier was unavoidably absent from the meeting last night, so Ald. Fiset said he would out of courtesy to his absent confrere present the motion for the reconsideration of the sale. He said that personally he did not mind the criticism, but he considered that it would put an end to all the talk there had been about the sale.

Mayor Lavigne explained that if Ald. Fiset's motion was not unanimously carried it would require the absolute majority of the Council. If the motion carried the report of the Public Works Committee recommending the sale would then be placed on the table and might be amended by the majority of the Council present. He went on to show that the sale had been approved by the Public Works Committee and later ratified by the City Council. The sale contract had been accepted by the City Attorneys and had been signed by him. The first installment on the property had even been paid by Mr. Lortie. The Mayor said he refused to be intimidated by an apparent action for damages, which had not yet been served on him and probably never would be. He remarked, however, that he would like to receive it. He said that the Council was not composed of children, and the fact that the sale had been approved by the three City Attorneys showed that the Council had acted within its legal rights. He did not see why the Council should come back on this sale unless it was to please certain parties who had been pestering the City for a long time to sell their properties. He said it was not a question of the Mayor in the matter and he left the Council free to decide as it wished in the matter.

A vote was then called on the Fiset motion and it was decided on a division of 7 to 4 to reconsider the sale.

The Council voted as follows:

For—Aldermen Bedard, Collier, Bouchard (St. Roch's), Bertrand, Fiset, Mercier Lesage—7.

Against—Aldermen Gauvin, Martin, Bouchard (Jacques Cartier), Seguin—4.

Speaking on the sale Ald. Fiset said that it had been the opinion of the majority of the Council after the previous meeting that the best thing to do under the circumstances was to recall the sale and to put up the land in question for sale by auction. He admitted that he accepted the opinion of the City Attorneys that the sale in question was legal, but it had always been the custom to advertise the sale of City property, but this had not been done in the present instance.

He then moved, seconded by Ald. Mercier that the lot of land in question together with adjoining lots be put up for sale by auction with an upset price of $2 a foot with similar conditions as imposed upon Mr. Lortie as regards the erection of buildings.

Mayor Lavigne said he had no objection to the motion of Ald. Fiset, but what he would object to was any provision calling for the opening of a new street.

The motion was carried by a vote of 7 to 4, as follows:

For—Aldermen Bedard, Collier, Bouchard (St. Roch's), Bertrand, Fiset, Mercier, Lesage—7.

Against—Aldermen Gauvin, Martin, Bouchard (Jacques Cartier), Seguin—4.

LAST EFFORT TO AVERT THE COAL
STRIKE FAILURE

HALF MILLION MINERS WILL QUIT WORK ON EVE OF WINTER

Washington D.C., Oct. 24.—The last Government effort to avert the coal strike set for November 1 failed utterly tonight, and half a million miners will quit work on the very eve of winter, with the Nation's bins running dangerously low.

Even an appeal from President Wilson, sick in bed, at the White House was not enough to bring peace to a conference that was torn and on the breaking point half a dozen times during the day. Charges and counter-charges flew thick and fast as the group of operators and miners filed out of the meeting which began somewhat hopefully four days ago.

While the operators announced that they had accepted the President's offer to wipe the slate clean and negotiate a new wage agreement, the miners charged that the operators had bolted without the consent of Secretary of Labor Wilson, who was the storm center of an extraordinary fight to save the country untold distress and suffering.

Surrounded by a score of miners, John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine-Workers of America, hurried out of the hall and halted long enough to announce that the strike order stood and the miners would walk out after a full day's work on the closing day of the present month. The final breaking up of the conference, Lewis said, meant that the official notice of the failure would be sent forthwith to the Unions, everywhere to order the men out of the mines at the appointed hour.

The President's appeal was made through Secretary Wilson after he latter had exhausted every possible effort and had pleaded until his throat ached. It pointed out what a strike meant and urged the two sides to get together, negotiate their differences, resorting to arbitration only in the event that negotiations failed. The important point in the proposal however, was that the mines be kept open and the miners stay at work.

ORGANIZATION

BOLSHEVISTS IN STEEL CITY
GREW BOLD LAST SUMMER.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 24.—Followers of Lenin and Trotsky in the steel city of Gary, Ind., now patrolled by troops as a result of violence during the steel strike, grew so bold this summer that they attempted organization of a "red guard" with discharged soldiers as the armed force, Lieutenant Donald V. Van Buren, a military intelligence officer, told the Senate Labor Committee today in resumption of its inquiry into the walk-out of steel workers.

Lieutenant Van Buren, who is on the staff of Major-General Leonard Wood, in command of the troops in Gary, laid before the committee scores of pamphlets, circulars and propaganda tracts, along with records of the statements of men arrested after the beginning of the military occupation, to back his assertion that agitators in the Steel City "were urging the workers to get ready, to get prepared to take over the industries and the Government and run it themselves."

Oscar Anderson, Chairman of the Steel Workers' Council at Gary, put in a staunch challenge of most of Van Buren's charges before the session closed.

"The whole issue in the strike," Anderson said, "was the eight hour day."

Lieut. Van Buren's testimony was detailed and frequently furnished by direct readings from transcripts and documents. Hungarians and Russians in Gary, particularly, he said, were being attracted by the radical movements, communist, anarchist and I. W. W., in character. The overturn of Government in favor of Soviet organization was the openly proclaimed object in the literature which he presented.

VOTING ON MONDAY IN QUEBEC EAST

MUCH INTEREST BEING MANIFESTED IN THE OUTCOME—
GALIBOIS FIGHTING HARD.

Monday is polling day in Quebec East bye-election in which riding, the political opponents are Mr. Ernest Lapointe, former Liberal member for Kamouraska, and Mr. F. X. Galibois, a former member of the City Council, who is in the field as a Liberal-Labor candidate.

While the Liberals pretend to make light of the opposition offered by Mr. Galibois, the fact that they have employed most of their heavy artillery in the division proves that they are none too certain of the outcome.

At last Provincial election, Mr. Galibois gave Mr. Louis Letourneau a hard run, and owing to the fact that the Liberals in Quebec are very much divided, his candidature is meeting with considerable support from dissatisfied members of the party.

What the Liberals resent most is the intrusion here of an outsider. They argue that Mr. Lapointe should have retained his seat in Kamouraska and have given a chance to Quebec men who have worked long and faithfully in the interests of the party and have made as many sacrifices as he has.

The Liberals maintain that they are confident of an overwhelming victory, but like a horse race, an election is never sure until it is finished and who knows but Mr. Galibois may be the successor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on Monday night.

AUSTRALIAN SOLDIERS
ASK DEPORTATION

Brisbane, Oct. 24.—(Reuters)—A deputation of returned soldiers waited upon Premier Hughes and requested him to have the Government deport all Germans from the plantations to German New Guinea. Mr. Hughes promised that if at the coming elections he was returned to power he would visit New Guinea and then decide.

QUEBEC, OCTOBER 25, 1919.

THE MILK SITUATION.

The milk situation appears to be coming to a head as an early meeting of District dealers has been called to discuss "important business" which may be fairly surmised to have some connection with the proposed increase in price from fourteen to sixteen cents a quart. In the past these dealers have tended to alienate public sympathy from their cause by the adoption of an arbitrary attitude, refusing as far as possible to offer any justification for the increases imposed. If their figures are based on reason and necessity they should have no difficulty in establishing that fact but persistence in a stand of "like it or lump it" can only arouse suspicion of needless exaction.

The new price of sixteen cents will under no circumstances be welcome and will work serious hardship in a large number of cases but, if it is really necessary for the dealer to earn that much revenue in order that he may be able to continue in business, then the public will be disposed to accept this added burden with as good grace as may be. That all the cards should be placed fairly on the table is, however, a first essential.

There is a growing impression, confirmed by experience in other places, that the milk trade as a whole is not conducted in as economical or as efficient a manner as could be desired and that where such conditions do exist, the consumer does not derive the benefit of them, owing to rates being based on deliberations of the Dealers' Association. Milk supply is an even more vital public utility than transportation or communication and should be supplied to the consumer at the very lowest possible rate. Should it be found therefore that the situation can be relieved, without injustice to producer or distributor, by the introduction of more efficient and more economical methods, it will be the duty of the City Council to see that those methods are applied.

Here, as in practically every other line of trade and commerce upon the continent, the middleman forms a heavy item in the final cost. As the Chronicle showed yesterday morning, farmers are glad to deliver their milk to the creamery for some six cents a quart and there is an unreasonable spread between this rate and the dealer's sixteen cents, which does not represent any productive work but merely handling and distribution.

Even by the best and most public-spirited management the cost of the middleman is unnecessarily high, since it represents an additional profit to be earned, and sooner or later the municipalities will have to undertake this service for themselves. By dealing direct with the farmers and distributing to the consumer at cost of handling, civic milk stations could materially reduce the price of this literally life-giving fluid, without incurring any added public expense.

Whether Quebec is in a position to undertake such a service at the present time is a debatable question but we venture to say that the City could sell milk at fourteen cents in competition with the dealers at sixteen and derive a very neat revenue from the transaction.

For the moment, however, speculations of this kind are beside the point since a first concern must be to protect the community against wilful profiteering, should it be found that the demands of the dealers are unreasonable, and the Chronicle earnestly urges upon the City Council once more to adopt every measure to that end, invoking the aid of the Federal Board of Commerce, if that is necessary, as we believe will be the case.

A SALVATION JUBILEE.

The Salvation Army is celebrating its Jubilee, an event which like many others had been deferred until now through the necessities of war. Established in Canada seventeen years later, the Army was founded in 1865 when the late General—at that time the Reverend—Edwin Booth commenced mission work in the east end of London. Since that time it has spread over the entire world and developed into an organization as powerful as it is efficient, and this despite of frequent opposition from without and occasional failures from within.

No doubt some of its methods may not appeal—may even be distasteful—to many people but it can find its abundant justification in results, for there is no doubt that the Salvation Army has done a work and reached a class of people that organized Christianity had previously been able to cope with successfully.

So long as it walks in the steps and maintains the traditions of its founders, the Army will have an undoubted mission to perform and its chief dangers at the present day are those which spring from too great prosperity and too complex organization.

The vitality of the Salvation Army has been demonstrated not only by its having survived in robust health the fiery trials within and strenuous buffetings without which marked its earlier days, and the even more dangerous and insidious temptations of later and easier times, but by the life it has created wherever it has gone. Compare the condition of things in the Churches and in the sphere of philanthropic work as it was before the advent of the Army almost anywhere, with what it is today. Go beyond that; compare the present-day attitude of those in authority towards the poor and unfortunate; see how prisoners are dealt with; note the trend everywhere to look upon even the criminal in the light of a subject for every possible effort to bring about reformation, instead of an outcast who must not only be vindictively punished, but for ever afterwards branded as an evil-doer. It is not claimed that nothing was done, nor would have been done without the Salvation Army, but under God the Organization has undoubtedly been used to create in public consciousness a conviction of man's duty to man, that has materially helped in stirring the whole civilized world to action.

No reference to this Jubilee could be complete without a tribute to the man under whose hat, as he used sometimes smilingly to say, the whole Salvation Army a tone time was to be found. This is fitly done in the Jubilee Address of the present General, who said:

"There must be in the mind of us all many thoughts, the first of which, perhaps, concerns our dear old General. Every day of my life I am increasingly conscious that he was a man raised up by God for the accomplishment of a work purposed in the mind of God Himself. And looking back upon the history of the Army and recalling something of the struggles of the early days, I realize how God not only wonderfully called him to that work, but as wonderfully sustained him in carrying it forward.

"Going a step further, I should say that there were two guiding ideas which, more than any others had to do with the work he accomplished for the world. First—It was firmly fixed in his mind that the lost can be saved, and, second, that the saved can be made into saviours of others! And if you were to ask me from what single spring of purpose and thought the Salvation Army sprang, next to the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, I should certainly say it came out of those two paramount convictions.

"How remarkably, also, he exploited what I think is the New Testament idea of religion—that it should be a fighting religion! From first to last he stands before us as an example of whole-hearted and desperate fighting for God, for the suffering, the poor, the lost, and the forgotten.

"If anything marks out the story of his life above other things, it is what he expressed at nearly the end of his earthly course—that while there was a suffering soul remaining, he would fight for that soul; and while there was a lost woman, he would fight for that woman; and while a drunkard still lived, he would fight for that drunkard; and while a criminal remained in the prisons, he would fight for that criminal.

Attached to the civic assessment notices that are now going the rounds is a nice little billet doux from the respective School Commission Boards. The Catholic School tax is fifty-five cents, an increase of eight from last year; while that for Protestants is eighty cents, an increase of forty or one hundred per cent.

As an instance of what the minority in this city are invited to pay to a Board over which neither they nor anyone else has any sort of control, we may cite the case of a gentleman whose personal property tax is only eight dollars less than that of the considerable business establishment which he manages and which falls in the neutral panel.

Certainly the Protestant School Commissioners are showing modern business methods in getting all that the traffic will stand and no one can say that Quebecers are not prepared to make every sacrifice for the cause of education. We trust that the worst is not still to come.

THE ONTARIO SITUATION.

(Montreal Gazette.)

It is unfortunate that the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario has been drawn into the political arena and that he should have entered into a public discussion of his powers and the propriety of his course with the leader of the Liberal party, Mr. Dewar. The Lieutenant-Governor is representative of the Crown, and under our constitutional system the Crown can do no wrong. The meaning of this expression is that the Crown has at all times an adviser, upon whom devolves the whole responsibility for the conduct of government, and it is unseemly that the representative of the Crown in the person of Sir John Hendrie should be dragged into the party political pit. Sir John must take some blame for the situation in having, unwisely and gratuitously, given an expression of his position to the press, and the consequence of his indiscretion has probably convinced him that it is well to adhere to the constitutional practice. He must find an adviser in the person of a prime minister, who will take responsibility for his position, and keep the Crown above criticism and reproach. What course the Lieutenant-Governor will pursue can be known only after the event, but Mr. Dewar's eagerness to obtain office can scarcely be justified by his following in the Legislature. These number not more than one-fourth of the Assembly, or about the same number as the present Government musters, and it would be as logical for the Lieutenant-Governor to give a mandate to one of the Hearst ministers as to Mr. Dewar.

THE TWO LANGUAGES.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Rev. Dr. Love, of St. Andrew's Church, Quebec, undoubtedly spoke the truth at the Presbyterian Synod the other day when he declared that a better understanding between the two dominant races in Canada could best be promoted by encouraging the acquisition by both French and English of a knowledge of each other's language. A better understanding must come from easier intercourse through the medium of the spoken and written word. There is generally far less ill-feeling and far greater mutual respect and admiration among those of the two races who understand each other's language than among those who do not. And it is a reflection on the English-speaking people of Canada that the percentage who have acquired the French language is much smaller than the percentage of French-Canadians who have learned English. It would be well, as Dr. Love urges, if greater effort were made to have the school children learn both languages as far as possible.

NOW, more thought has to be given to the stockings children wear. Cooler days—cold nights, demand it.

BERLINERS HAVE FORGOTTEN WAR

EVERYONE IN GERMANY BEGINNING TO FEEL THAT WAR IS THING OF PAST

Berlin, Oct. 15. (By Mail.)—The hand of autumn is already upon Berlin. One notices the earlier falling shadows, the occasional curious opaqueness of the atmosphere, and, above all, the yellowing leaves which collect in little heaps beneath the trees in Unter den Linden and the untidy on the grass plots of the Pariser Platz. Even the geraniums which until now have kept up an unflagging brilliance, are beginning to look a little tired, like society beauties at the end of a trying season.

Yes, autumn has certainly arrived, and with it the end of an epoch. For every one in Germany is now beginning to feel that the war is a thing of the past. Great as are the changes in Berlin, there are times and places when one would hardly know that a war had ever been fought. As you pass, for example, by the Adlon Hotel your eye is caught by the window of a fashionable florist, where superb mauve and heliotrope orchids in gilded baskets and tied with broad ribbons of the richest silk make a magnificent show. You could not see anything finer in the Rue de la Paix or in Regent street. Next door is an equally fashionable jeweller's—and so you may pass from one of Dives' estates to another, forgetful altogether of Lazarus until you almost stumble over him where he lies on the pavement at the door of the restaurant at which you are going to dine. Poor Lazarus, who has been a hero in the war, now appears in the altered character of a skeleton at the feast.

"It really is too bad that the man should be allowed to make such an exhibition of himself!" you hear someone murmur as you pass; but "In Germany everything is allowed to-day" is the explanation which, like charity, covers a multitude of sins.

The revolving glass doors of the restaurant turn on their pivot and you enter a luxurious establishment. A row of attendants stands ready to receive you with an obsequiousness dating from the old regime. You are shepherded into the dining-room, where a majestic headwaiter dots the honours of the house. With quite an old-world courtesy he bows you to a table.

It is past eight, and the restaurant is filling up. The appointments leave nothing to be desired. The glass, cutlery and plate are unimpeachable, and the flowers upon the table give an admirable finish to the whole. A band plays in the corner not so loud as to disturb the conversation but so well that one wonders whether it is not a concert orchestra. The waiter brings the bill of fare, from which you learn that it is a meatless day. Possibly it is a shade of disappointment on the face of the guest that leads to the hastily-whispered reassurance that, though there is no meat on the menu, there is meat in the house, and you are forthwith given a choice of as many as eight meat dishes, including beef, mutton, seal and pork. The wine list is a catalogue of red and white almost all German except a few red wines of France. Most conspicuous among the sparkling wines are Kupferberg Gold and Rheingold, both at 30 marks a bottle. The guests are fashionable and animated, and by degrees the brouhaha of conversation fills the room and almost drowns the music of the band only now and then subsiding for a little, as when a particularly fine rendering of Gounod's "Ave Maria" by the first violin compels attention. For the rest, the company is young, gay and mondaine. At a table near at hand is seated a very pretty girl, dressed in a dream of tulle and pearls. Her companion, evidently an official on civil, sports the single eyeglass—the proletarian the hated badge of arrogance and caste—and wears it with an air. It is quite evident that war is not the subject of the conversation of this youthful pair, any more than that of the other guests around you.

Waiters glide hither and thither bearing delicate dishes. Delicious melons, choice grapes and other fruits, followed by fragrant coffee with liqueurs complete the banquet. You notice that the pretty girl has out her jewelled cigarette case and is tapping the end of her cigarette on a filigree thumbnail preparatory to lighting up.

The music rises and falls; now it is Lohengrin, now Rigoletto now a waltz by Strauss, and anon the "Jewel Song" from Faust or the Largo of Handel. And this is taking place nightly in a score of first-class Berlin restaurants, to say nothing of the countless smaller places where the scene is reproduced on a more modest scale. As one watches it one is almost led into believing that the war is a figment of the brain. But, on leaving, you observe poor Lazarus, still trembling from shell-shock on the pavement, and are once more brought up with a sharp turn to the ugly realities of life.

Such is Berlin to-day. Will it ever be otherwise, you ask—and when?

STREET RAILWAY FARES APPROVED

CITY COUNCIL GAVE FIRST READING TO BY-LAW AT MEETING LAST NIGHT.

By a vote of six to five, the City Council last night approved the report of the Finance Committee conceding increased fares to the Quebec Street Railway and a by-law based on this report was given first reading.

This by-law will be duly published in the official papers of the city and is slated for second reading at the next meeting of the Council which will be held on Friday November 7th. Should it pass final reading at that meeting the new rates will become effective on Saturday November 8th.

In discussing the new rates Ald. Fiset proposed an amendment to the report by which it would be specified that the increased fares would be for a period not exceeding two years.

This amendment was put to a vote and was defeated on the following division:

For:—Aldermen Martin, Bouchard (St. Roch's), Bertrand and Fiset—4. Against:—Aldermen Gauvin, Bedard, Collier, Bouchard (Jacques Cartier), Seguin, Mercier and Lesage—7.

When the report of the Finance Committee embodying the concessions to the Company as well as the restrictions placed upon them by the City was called, a vote was again taken when the report was approved on a division of 6 to 5. The Council votes as follows:

For:—Aldermen Gauvin, Bedard, Collier, Bouchard (Jacques Cartier), Seguin and Mercier—6.

Against:—Aldermen Martin, Bouchard (St. Roch's), Bertrand, Fiset, and Lesage—5.

The restrictions placed upon the Company with regard to the increased fares, are that they will become null and void unless the Company has its extension on Beaufort Road in operation by the 15th of November, and the belt line from Belvedere Ward to St. Malo begun on June 1st, 1920 and completed by November 25th, 1920.

In connection with the extension on Beaufort Road, Mayor Lavigne explained that Mr. Lynch had told him that the new line east of the C.N.R. tracks would be in operation by November 15th but it would require a few days more to have the line in operation west of the C.N.R. crossing. It is the intention of the Company to use the car which is now in operation on the Mastai spur line on the new extension west of the C.N.R. crossing pending the construction of the subway which will permit the cars operating on Beaufort Road to cross the C.N.R. tracks.

At the opening of the meeting a letter was read from the Principal of the Quebec Technical School thanking the City for the annual grant of $20,000 received. The Sisters of the Hospice St. Charles also wrote thanking the City for the grant made to the institution from the proceeds of the amusement tax.

THREE STEAMERS HERE YESTERDAY

GRAMPIAN, MELITA AND METAGAMA DISCHARGE THOUSANDS OF CIVILIAN ARRIVALS

The Louise Docks and Immigration buildings were an animated scene yesterday from early morning, until late last night, caused by the arrival in port of three Canadian Pacific Ocean Service Steamers, Grampian, Metagama and Melita, which brought a grand total of 4,515 passengers.

The SS. Grampian was the first to reach port at 7 a.m., with 1,128 passengers, 420 cabin and 708 third class among whom were included 60 children and 10 infants. There were no Soldiers or dependants on this steamer, the passengers being all civilians, and splendid specimens of English and Scotch prospective settlers.

These were also included quite a number of young English brides coming to join their husbands, and pretty young fiancées, who are coming to be married. Miss Perry National Secretary of the Y.W.C.A. of Toronto and supervisor of Women landing at Quebec during the past summer, was the center of attraction with the latter. She not only had to play the chaperone, but arrange for the time and place of their marriages, and wire to the various destinations of the girls to have them met and cared for until they are married.

It was 11:30 a.m. before the third class passengers were passed by the Canada Immigration Inspectors, placed on special trains furnished by the C.P.R. and C.N.R., and forward to their Western destination.

SS. Metagama

The Steamer Metagama arrived at 9:15 a.m., and docked at the breakwater in line with shed 26 with 1,599 passengers, 574 cabin and 1,005 third class including 35 cabin and 78 steerage for the United States. The steamer also brought out to Canada several young brides and fiancées who were taken charge of by Miss Perry. The passengers on the Metagama were also all civilians with passports to assure them a landing. It was 10 o'clock noon before they were permitted to come ashore and proceed to the Immigration building for inspection on account of the passengers who landed ahead of them from the Grampian. It took until 4:30 o'clock to finish the inspection of the latter and place them on board the special trains in waiting to carry them to their destinations.

SS. Melita

In the meantime the SS. Melita, with 1,793 passengers, 525 cabin and 1,268 third class arrived and docked at the breakwater in line with shed 26. The passengers of this big ocean liner included 26 Canadian officers, among whom were Brig.-Gen. Bell, of Calgary. The third class passengers included 89 soldiers and 173 soldiers' dependants the rest being all civilian passengers with passport permission to land.

It was after six o'clock before the third class passengers were allowed to land from the Steamer and proceed to the Immigration buildings for inspection, consequently it was late last night when the immigration inspection was over and allowed the passengers to entrain and proceed to their destinations.

As usual however, the ladies of the Quebec Patriotic Societies were in attendance to care for the Women and Children and make them comfortable during the hours of their detention. The daughters of the Empire as well as the French-Canadian ladies of the Courcellette Chapter and the Red Cross were to be seen everywhere looking after the comfort of the Women and Children. The rest room in charge of the Red Cross ladies under supervision of Mrs. Colin Sewell was greatly appreciated by the mothers of young children who were afforded every attention. This organization alone has spent $9,000 from the 2nd of May last to provide comforts for soldiers' dependants arriving at Quebec. Only one of the features of what the ladies of the Quebec Patriotic Societies have done in the same service not forgetting the matrons of the Salvation Army.

NAPOLEONS PLAY
CHARNY TOMORROW

In The World of Sport

ATHLETIC EVENTS
AT Y.M.C.A. GYM.

NAPOLEONT WILL MEET CHARNY IN EXHIBITION GAME HERE TOMORROW

CONTEST WILL BE LAST OF SEASON—JOCKS,
WINGO, CANADIENRE AND DESJARDINS WILL BE HERE WITH TEAM—MATCH WILL START AT 2:30 O'CLOCK.

The last ball game of the season will be played at the Exhibition Grounds tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock (official time) when Napoleons, City League champions, will hook up with the fast Charny bunch in an exhibition game. It promises to be the stiffest proposition that the Naps have encountered this year, as the Charny bunch have been trimming everything that they came across. Last Sunday they tackled the strong Edmunston, N.B., team, and simply walked over them. The score board read Charny 29, Edmunston 2, after the last half of the ninth, so it will be seen that they are no dubs.

INDOOR SPORTS AT Y.M.C.A. GYMNASIUM

THREE EVENTS WERE RUN OFF LAST EVENING—FIRST TEN MEN.

The first of a series of indoor meets to be held every Friday evening at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, was staged last evening.

The popularity of the meet was shown by the extremely large number of entrants. In the running high jump, Wiggs cleared five feet five inches, which is a very creditable jump. A. Simons and E. Wiggs were tied for the 50 yard dash, in nine and three fifths seconds. The slow time may be explained when it is said that the men were obliged to run round the entire length of the balcony of the gym, and much time was lost in the turns.

It is to be hoped that the next meet will see an even larger number of athletes turn out.

The summary follows:

Running High Jump.

1st E. Wiggs 5 feet 5 inches; 2nd. H. Copeman 5 feet 4 inches; 3rd. R. Matthews 5 feet 1 inch.

Sixty Yard Dash

1st A. Simons, and E. Wiggs 9 3/5 seconds; 2nd. R. Matthews and R. Jack 9 4/5 seconds; 3rd E. Portugais 10 seconds.

One Hundred Yards Swim

1st E. Wiggs, 1 minute and 35 seconds; 2nd. A. Simons 1 minute and 50 seconds; 3rd. R. Matthews 2 minutes and 6 seconds.

First ten men by points—E. Wiggs 198; R. Matthews 168; A. Simons 168; R. Jack 150; C. Perry 140; H. Pearson, 117; E. Woodley 114; F. Ouellet 114; E. Portugais 112; J. Dionne 106.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON

SAILS FOR AMERICA

London, Oct. 24—Sir Thomas Lipton, challenger for the America's Cup, will sail for New York on the liner Carmania tomorrow. Sir Thomas plans to remain abroad for ten or twelve days for the purpose of making an inspection of his yacht Shamrock IV with which he hopes to lift the cup.

TICKLISH BUSINESS

WEDNESDAY'S SCRAPS AT THE DRILL HALL

BATTLING LAHN AND TOMMY
BUCK FIGHT SHOULD DRAW
RECORD ATTENDANCE.

In booking up "Battling" Lahn and Tommy Buck in the main bout of next Wednesday's card at the Drill Hall Joe Montminy certainly deserves commendation, for this is a scrap that has all the earmarks of a real live honest-to-goodness affair.

Quebec sports need no introduction to Tommy Buck—Buck knocked out Joe "Kid" Burns in two rounds some years ago right in Quebec, and although Burns claimed he was out of shape, yet the fact remains that Buck put him out and the feat is no easy one. Every one knows Buck's record and it is useless to name the list of successes of the clever Philadelphia boy.

Lahn, however, is new to Quebecers, thought close followers of sport know of his prowess—He belongs in the same "stable" as "Bill" Brennan, under Leo. P. Flynn's management, and that counts quite a lot.

Besides this, and more important still, Lahn is there. He has whipped some of the best bantams in the business and Johnny Ertle, when world's champion, absolutely refused to meet him, though Lahn offered five thousand dollars reward to anyone who would induce Ertle to meet him—Further than that Lahn had posted guarantees in several places, but Ertle refused—So then fans, you have a little idea of what to expect when two men such as Lahn and Buck hook up—And you can be sure both men will do their best, as Lahn has had great difficulty in landing a bout with Buck, although Tommy says, it is the other way round.

Both boys are about the same weight, and there is not likely to be any hitch in this regard. It is easily the best attraction, so far as records go, that could have been billed for Quebec just now. Lahn has boxed every bantamweight in the country, including Eddie Campai, Frankie Burnes, Dutch Brandt, Jimmy Murray, Jimmy Taylor, Young Marino, Frankie Daly, and has knocked out 60 p.c. of his opponents, scoring six knockouts in his last six fights. He knocked out Jimmy Taylor in 9 rounds, after Taylor had given Kid Williams the fight of his life in 15 rounds. Williams, like Ertle, ran out on Lahn, on four different occasions.

Besides this, there are three other good local bouts on the card, one of which will introduce to Quebecers Joe Montminy's kid brother Romeo, who will meet Kid Gagne. Young Montminy is coming fast and should give a good account of himself.

DIED FROM STROKE

WHILE PLAYING GOLF

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 24—George W. Ellens, financier and philanthropist, died at the Philadelphia Country Club late last night from apoplexy while playing golf. He was 61 years old.

Sporting Notes

Desjardins and Wingo are a smooth working battery—and so is the Metivier-Piton combination.

The first of a series of weekly meets was held at the Y.M.C.A. last night. A large entry list was the result, and the events were keenly contested.

Desjardins had the honor of twirling for the New York Giants in Montreal.

The Buck-Lahn scrap Wednesday looks like a fight from start to finish.

Quebec fans will be anxious to see "Big Six" Jocks, Wingo and Desjardins again in action. The three players will be in the Charny line-up against the Napoleons tomorrow.

Joe Ledden and Sylvio Drouin will handle the game, which is scheduled to start at 2:30 sharp.

The game with Charny tomorrow should be a real test for the Naps, and given fine weather, should draw a record crowd.

Lariviere, the brother of the Charny catcher, will also come down with the Charny outfit. He twirled for Lachine in the Independent League in Montreal all last summer.

NOTED AMERICAN WHO BECAME A PEER

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR
WAS ONE OF RICHEST MEN IN ENGLAND.

London, Oct. 24—William Waldorf Astor, Viscount Hever, one of the richest men in the world, and at one time one of the most discussed, died recently. This was the Astor who shook the dust of America from his feet and became a British subject. For nearly thirty years he pursued his ambition to enter the peerage, despite any discouragements and rebuffs. It was not until the war came and he opened his deep purse to his adopted country that the King saw fit to honor him, and it must be said that Viscount Astor was deserving of honor. He gave millions, and not only gave but showed that there was at least one British subject of German blood who was intensely loyal to the land of his adoption. Nevertheless, when he was created a Baron there was much criticism of this act of royal favor, on the ground that other men equally generous had been passed over. However, the country was then in the throes of the war and not a great deal of attention was paid to an incident so trifling, but the comment showed that the old prejudice against Astor had not died, though it was far from being as strong as when it made life in England not much more pleasant than it had been in the United States.

Richest of Astors.

William Waldorf Astor was the son of John Jacob Astor, the third, and inherited the bulk of his fortune. He was probably the richest of the Astors. From boyhood he was trained in the management of the huge estate that was one day to be his, but this was irksome to him, and he turned to politics. He was elected to the New York Assembly and later to the Senate. When he offered himself as a candidate for Congress he was defeated, and it is said that this was a blow from which he took a long time to recover; but his pride must have been appeased when shortly afterward President Arthur appointed him ambassador to Italy. While there he amused himself as an author and produced a couple of novels now forgotten, but probably what one might have expected from a millionaire. He also showed some interest in art, which he had inherited from his mother she being a woman of unusual culture and charm. After his term of office he returned to the United States and suddenly displayed a keen interest in society. He built a great establishment at Newport, and made no secret of the fact that he and his wife were the dictators of American society, and were prepared to meet all comers in defence of their title.

War With The Press.

It was about this time that he ran foul of the American newspapers. It appears that another Mrs. Astor was the pretender to the social throne, and she also lived at Newport. One day Mr. Astor informed the postmaster that all letters that came addressed simply to "Mrs. Astor" should be forwarded to his wife. The newspapers commented derisively on this news and also on the fact, or alleged fact, that Mrs. William Waldorf Astor had actually copyrighted the name "Mrs. Astor."

Another cause of offence and one which more readily entitled Mr. Astor to sympathy was when the Charlie Ross case was recalled as the result of an alleged confession, and a New York newspaper indulged in speculations as to what ransom would be demanded if the eldest son of the Astors should be kidnapped. This story was widely copied and gave Mr. Astor deep anger, because he and his wife both feared that the idea of kidnapping their son might be thus planted in the mind of some desperate man. Indeed, it was said that worry over the possibility seriously impaired Mrs. Astor's health.

"Not Fit for a Gentleman."

Then it was that Mr. Astor announced his intention of going to England to live, because "newspapers made the United States unfit for a gentleman." His remark was treated with jeers, and it is to be admitted that when he established himself in England certain newspapers there were not more kind. The Astors, however, soon introduced themselves to English society, and bade fair to enter upon a brilliant career when Mr. Astor had the misfortune to get himself "in Dutch," as he said, with King Edward. It appears that one of the King's intimates was Admiral Sir Barclay Milne and one night the Admiral, after dining with some friends, went with them to an Astor reception. The Admiral had not been invited, but it was an English custom for invited guests to take with them their own dinner guests to after dinner functions. Whether Mr. Astor was aware of this custom or whether, as is suspected, he had previously been snubbed by Sir Barclay, is not exactly known. At any rate he demanded a check or ticket from the Admiral, and his inability to produce a definite and legally binding invitation led to his being asked to withdraw.

Displeased the King.

King Edward, when he heard of the incident, was indignant, and the unfortunate Astor was made to feel the weight of his displeasure, for society naturally took its cue from the King, and for a time it appeared that the Astors' social ambitions were a closed chapter. Later on King Edward, with his proverbial good nature, relented, and was several times seen in the company of Mr. Astor, who was then a naturalized British subject. He bought a couple of newspapers, and the Pall Mall magazine, to the latter of which he contributed fiction of almost incredible inferiority. He also

A Feast to the Eye is the Post-War Maxwell

A NOTED artist, whose income is sufficient to provide him with a Rolls-Royce, took one look at the Post-War Maxwell and remarked: "It's a sun-down!" Which is art slang for saying, "It's a beauty."

This artist then went to the telephone and placed his order for one.

But the real great beauty of the Post-War Maxwell was hidden from the eye of this noted artist.

He did not know about the vast improvements made in the chassis, how the electric system has been made well nigh faultless, how a heavier and masterly rear axle has been used, how Hot Spot and Ram's Horn have given the engine a new efficiency, how the emergency brake has been set up on the transmission shaft, nor a score of others that would make a "mechanical mind" forget his dinner.

It's a greater Maxwell than any of the 300,000 of the same type that grace the highways of the world.

raised a laugh by publishing the Astor genealogy, proving that they were descended from a well-known Spanish family of the tenth century. Since everybody knew that the Astors were first discovered in Waldorf, Germany, about a hundred years ago, this effort deceived nobody. Another error of judgment was made when he bought at auction the flag of the Chesapeake, which had been captured in the famous battle with the Shannon, and presented it to a British museum.

HOW TO COLOR MEERSCHAUM

To coil a meerschaum pipe fill it and smoke it down to about half of its height to the height to which you wish the color. Leave the remainder of the tobacco in the pipe and do not disturb it for several weeks, or until the color is obtained. When smoking put fresh tobacco in the bowl and smoke to the same level for several days. The meerschaum pipe should never be smoked in a very cool place. First, a new meerschaum pipe should be allowed to cool off before a second bowlful is lighted, otherwise the pipe will become dry and raw. To cement meerschaum pipes make a glue of finely powdered chalk and the white of an egg. Put a little of this mixture on the parts to be repaired and hold them pressed together for a few minutes. To distinguish true meerschaum from the imitation rub the supposed meerschaum with a silver object. If the silver leaves lead pencil-like marks on the meerschaum it is artificial, but if no marks result it is genuine—Illustrated World.

A TONIC FOR THE NERVES

The Only Real Nerve Tonic is a Good Supply of Rich, Red Blood.

"If people would only attend to their blood, instead of worrying themselves ill," said an eminent nerve specialist, "we doctors would not see our consulting rooms crowded with nervous wrecks. More people suffer from worry than anything else."

The sort of thing which the specialist spoke of is the nervous run-down condition caused by overwork and the many anxieties of to-day. Sufferers find themselves tired, morose, lowspirited and unable to keep their minds on anything. Any sudden noise hurts like a blow. They are full of groundless fears, and do not sleep well at night. Headaches, neuritis and other nerve pains are part of the misery, and it all comes from starved nerves.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich, red blood. Therefore to cure nervousness, and run-down health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills actually make new, rich blood, which strengthens the nerves, improves the appetite, gives new strength and spirits and makes hitherto despondent people bright and cheerful. If you are at all "out of sorts" you should begin curing yourself to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BRIAND NEXT IN LINE FOR PREMIER

MAN SPOKEN EVERYWHERE OF IN FRANCE AS SUCCESSOR TO PRESIDENT POINCARE.

Paris, Oct. 24.—Who is Aristide Briand—the man whose name is spoken everywhere as the probable next Premier of France?

Well, to begin with, he is the son of a small cafékeeper at St. Nazaire the little coast town which for nearly three years has been glutted with American soldiers and sailors, coming and going.

He is the man who, when as a young reporter, he was asked to lecture at Rennes, wired back:

"Impossible to come; no boots." His comrades passed a hat and got him the boots.

He is a personal friend of President Raymond Poincaré.

When he first came to Paris he was a Socialist and served as secretary of a Socialist organization. He wrote radical articles for the radical Lanterne.

They whisper—that is, his enemies do—that Briand once went so far as to put flowers on the grave of an anarchist executed for bomb throwing. It is a matter of record that he defended in court a man accused of suborning soldiers from their duty. This was long before the present war.

On the other hand he is the man who, as a simply deputy, put through the measure separating the church and state—a feat that premiers had tried for 30 years unsuccessfully to do.

After he had the law passed as deputy, he had to enforce it as Minister of Religions. It was then that he made a definite break with the Socialist party. He entered a middle class ministry for the purpose of administering the law he had made. The Socialists would not excuse or forgive him for entering such a ministry for any reason, and denounced him.

Some say he is still a Socialist in his thinking, though he no longer functions as one. While in office during a former term as Premier, however, he took a step which, while for the good of the country, seems quite at odds with Socialist principles. Government employees and others were banded in one of the general strikes that used to cause trouble in France before the war. Postal workers, railwaymen, telegraph and telephone operators were all out. Paris was getting hungry, for no food was coming in.

Briand broke the strike by calling up the railway workers as military reservists and arresting as deserters those who refused the call. The men had all once served their terms in the French conscript army and were still subject to recall for duty. The trick brought down a howl from the Socialists.

Personally Briand is a man of rather striking appearance. He wears an air of mysterious suffering, dramatic weariness—and the French love their drama. He has a rich, mellow baritone voice which he uses with remarkable effect. His oratorical gifts—the success with which he carries his point when once given the opportunity to speak—have won for him the name of "The Charmer," in contradistinction to Clemenceau's "The Tiger".

He is dark. His face is heavily lined. He has black brows, a heavy, drooping moustache and thick and rather long hair. His face is saved from heaviness by the hollowiness of his cheeks. His ears are outstanding. There are pouches under his eyes and heavy lines from his nose down about the corners of his mouth.

Some who do not like him dispose of him as a "cultured longshoreman" and consider his appearance sensual.

At any rate the newspapers, that supported him in previous "campaigns" are opening fire on Georges Clemenceau, the present aged Premier, and the air is full of suggestion that Briand is to be head of the first after-the-war Cabinet of France. Of course something may happen that will change the expected course of things.

He will probably be an excellent peace-time premier. Events have proved that he was not a good war-time leader. France needed the fierce destructive old fighter Clemenceau to keep her willing to make limitless sacrifices for victory. She may need the more constructive Briand to put her house in order, now that the struggle is over.

RED CROSS SUPPLIES FOR USE IN RUSSIA

Ekaerindor, Oct. 24.—By Courier to Paris. — The presidents of the three Cossack states of Terek, Kuban and the Don gave a dinner to Americans who recently brought into the Caucasus three trainloads of 103 freight cars in all American goods consigned to the Red Cross. Each of the three presidents referred to Russia's ambition to become a federation of states patterned after the American union. "The United States of Russia" was a favorite toast.

The supplies are for the hospitals and asylums to three Cossack states and for the Volunteer Army.

The territory of the Cossacks, particularly the remote regions among the mountains, have been shut-off from the world market for the past three years by the Turks on one side and the Bolsheviks on the other.

ANOTHER BIG FEATURE AT ALLEN MONDAY, TUESDAY & WEDNESDAY

The Allen continues next week its policy of the best pictures in the city and will offer Stuart Holmes and Florence Billings in "A Dangerous Affair."

Here is another really great film full of action, tense situations and gripping scenes. There will also be another of the clever comedies the Allen has made a habit of showing while varied attractions will fill the bill.

Don't miss the Allen shows if you care for a really wholesome, interesting picture programme.—Advt.

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD" AT THE ALLEN TODAY

Today is your last opportunity of seeing "Hearts of the World" at the Allen, at popular prices. This is the first time the great D. W. Griffith production is shown at such low prices and this proved a big incentive for the Allen has been crowded since "The Hearts of the World" was shown there on Thursday.

The bill for today includes a roaring Mac-Sennett farce-comedy Uncle Tom's Cabin Without the Cabin, and other attractions.

Performances today will be given at 2, 3.30 then 7.30 and 9 p.m.—Advt.

Chronicle's Review of Attractions for Next Week

AT THE IMPERIAL.

William Busnach's eight-act drama "Little James" is offered at the Imperial next week by Bella Ouellette's talented troupe. It is a very good French play, and will no doubt be popular.

AT THE CRYSTAL.

On Monday and Tuesday, "The Midnight Man," featuring James J. Corbett, the former world's heavyweight boxing champion, is presented, while the bill for Wednesday and Thursday consists of the serial "Elmo the Mighty," which features the mighty Elmo Leneloir. The last two days of the week see "The Silent Mystery" starring Francis Ford on the bill.

Other pictures, are also shown, including comedies and Western plays.

AT THE PRINCESS.

All next week Joseph Bozo and his troupe are at the Princess Theatre, in their burlesque act. Pictures are also shown between the acts.

Chronicle's Review of Coming Attractions For Next Week

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

One of the best mammoth productions of the season will be offered at the Auditorium for the first three days of next week. It is "The World and Its Woman," and presents Geraldine Farrar, the noted prima donna, as the star. The great upheaval in Russia forms the background of the picture. The overthrow of the Czar's Government, the effect it had on the soldiers, and the general discontent of the populace is shown in a series of vivid pictures. Into this atmosphere is woven the story of an American girl's rise to fame as an opera singer in Russia, paralleling, in a large measure, the actual rise of the heroine, Geraldine Farrar, to the pinnacle of her operatic career.

Geraldine Farrar and Lou Tellegen have the principal characters in the story, but they are surrounded with a brilliant cast.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Harvey D. Orr's latest musical comedy success is on the boards. The comedy is entitled "The Million Dollar Doll in Paris," and is said to contain a very excellent cast of players. It is straight from a long engagement in New York.

AT THE ALLEN.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, a Big Special picture is being shown. The title is "A Dangerous Affair," and Charles Miller and Herbert Rawlinson have the leading parts. They are strongly supported by an all-star cast, including such players as Florence Billings and Stuart Holmes. This picture will be very popular with patrons of the Allen Theatre, for it is up to their usual standard, which is that only the best pictures will be shown in their theatres.

For the last half of the week, the programme has not yet been announced, but another Big Special has been booked.

AT THE VICTORIA.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Alice Joyce is seen in her latest Vitaphone release, entitled "The Spark Divine." The picture strikes a new note in the problem of mother-love. It tells a powerful story of a woman in whom love was dead, and gives Alice Joyce a remarkable opportunity to display her marked talent in a gem which bids fair to be the largest in her long string of successes.

Muff and Jeff comedy and the twelfth episode of "The Great Gamble," complete the programme.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Peggy Hyland is seen in "Miss Adventure." It is her latest Fox picture, and is also said to be the best that Miss Hyland has ever appeared in. It is a drama of an unusual sort, and the little star is enabled to portray her emotional acting with great success.

The twelfth episode of "The Mysteries of Myra," and a special comedy fill out the programme, which is one of the best that patrons of the Victoria have ever been offered.

AT THE EMPIRE.

A thrilling story, a beautiful and talented star, a splendid cast, excellent direction and some wonderful photography—all go to make up Norma Talmadge's latest Select Pictures "The New Moon," in which she is presented at The Empire on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. "The New Moon" is story of a Russian Princess, who flees to a neighboring province when her castle is attacked by anarchists, and takes refuge in a small store as a peasant girl. When the decree is issued, ordering all women in Russia to register in order to be nationalized, the Princess refuses to register, and incites the other women of the town to follow her example. The authorities discover the true lineage of the peasant girl who is leading the women to revolt and try to force her to register, with dire results to themselves.

A Harold Lloyd comedy and Topics of the Day complete a very good bill.

H. B. Warner does some remarkable acting in his new drama "For a Woman's Honor," which comes to the Empire for the latter half of the week.

Warner portrays the character of a young English physician who protects the memory of his fiancée's father by paying blackmail to a daring adventuress, and in so doing places himself in a false position with his sweet heart and her mother, who believes the adventuress to be his wife. To clear himself would besmirch the character of a dead man and blast the happiness of the woman he loved.

The play is well constructed in that the audience know that the accusation of the blackmailer is false, but there is no way in which Dr. Mannering (Warner) can prove it. Only the death of the adventuress can remove the sinister shadow, and this is brought about in a highly dramatic manner.

A Gaumont News Weekly and a comedy complete bill.

LAST CHANCE TONIGHT TO SEE MARY PICKFORD IN "THE HOODLUM"

This is your last opportunity to see Mary Pickford in her latest great success, "The Hoodlum." This picture has caused tremendous interest in Quebec and unprecedented crowds have seen it at the Empire Theatre. Other subjects shown. Come early and get a good seat.—Advt.

DON'T MISS LARRY SEMON COMEDY AT VICTORIA TODAY

There is a comedy playing at the Victoria Theatre today which is funnier than any comedy which has ever been issued, Chaplin not excepted. It is entitled "Between the Act" and features Larry Semon. See it today, it is on the same bill with George Walsh in "Never Say Quit"—Advt.

BEAUTIES OF THE NIPIGON COUNTRY

ABOUNDS WITH MAGNIFICENT SCENERY — DELIGHTFUL FISHING—HEALTHFUL AND GLORIOUS CLIMATE.

When the generation now passing away were school children, they learned from the Geographies of that day that the St. Lawrence was the "great" river of eastern North America, and that it drained five great lakes: Ontario, Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior.

That a sixth lake lay to the north of Superior was well known to the Hudson's Bay Company who had trading posts upon its shores, but the Hudson's Bay Company was apparently not disposed to be communicative about its territory. The general public had no interest in it, and it remained isolated until rediscovered and mapped by the Geological and early railway surveys about 1870.

These explorers brought down wonderful stories of the size and strength and numbers of its fish, and especially of the trout and, more and more as years went by, it was visited by sportsman fishers, first by two and three, and then in greater numbers, as it was rendered more accessible.

The river draining the lake became perhaps the most famous trout stream in the world. The fitting out and guiding of parties of anglers became a permanent business and avocation for the population at the mouth of the river white and red. The anglers made the ascent of the river in canoes fishing the best pools. The wonderful lake itself was known only to the few.

This laborious ascent of the river is now no longer necessary. Canadian National Railways have a line along its very shores and have established a comfortable hostelry at Orient Bay which the angler may use as his headquarters.

These developments explain why the lake and river was considered of sufficient interest to be worth a day's stay for the Prince of Wales, as a result of whose visit the beauties and attractions of the Nipigon country have come more prominently before the public.

The lake is some 80 miles long north and south by 45 wide. Its waters is of crystal purity. The surface is studded with islands. It is bordered by high bluffs and rocks, and its shores are indented by numerous great bays, many of them almost landlocked. McIntyre, Chiefs, Gull, Omabika, and Orient Bays are themselves large and almost detached lakes.

Into this great basin flow a number of large rivers: the Gull, the Poshkogan, the Wabinoosh, Omabika, Onaman and Sturgeon, and many smaller ones. Out of it the waters flow as the famous Nipigon pouring in limpid flood over the Virgin Falls, and through a succession of lake expansions, alternating with other falls and rapids, finally shoot under the bridge at Nipigon Village and lose identity in Lake Superior. In the comparatively short course of 30 miles they descend 240 feet. The Virgin Falls are only one of a series. Cameron's Falls, the Split Rock Rapids, White Chute, Victoria Falls, and Hamilton Rapids, besides several minor rapids, are all serious interruptions to canoe navigation and would be beauty spots even with tamer surroundings. Their beauty is much enhanced by the rugged grandeur of the gorge, and the brilliant coloring of the precipitous rocks which enclose it.

The fundamental geology of this Nipigon country is Archean, but over the older rocks there has been at some remote period an overflow of volcanic traps and basalts covering many hundreds of square miles, and called the "Animike" series. This covering has been cracked open and swept away at a great number of points, leaving what some of the geologists call a "dissected plain," and these rifts are of great depth and extent, although often very narrow. Basaltic overflows, in cooling, crystallize in prisms at right angles to the surface, which in this case was almost level, and the rock breaks naturally away on these cleavage lines leaving vertical cliffs often several hundreds of feet in height, and it is this vertical cleavage which gives the region its peculiar and almost unique scenery.

Through one of these remarkable rifts the surplus water of the Nipigon basin found their way from Orient Bay to Lake Helen. Then came the glacial period, and the rift became dammed up by an enormous accumulation of sand, gravel, and boulders. When the ice melted the river found a new and more circuitous course through a parallel rift several miles farther west. As a matter of fact it probably found two for a time, for from Chief's Bay there is only a short portage with an almost negligible summit into another river, the Black Sturgeon, which runs into Lake Superior several miles farther west.

The peculiar outlines above alluded to are those of flat-topped hills with vertical faces several hundred feet high, and a lower slope of broken rock fallen from the precipices. But it is not in outline alone that the hills are remarkable, nor in their height, although that is the greatest in Ontario. The coloring is wonderful. Trap rocks are generally dark in color but they are strongly impregnated with iron which "weathers" red. The lichens which cling to their faces are yellow. The spruces on the plateau are a very dark green, and the birches on the lower slope a much lighter green, with the silver streaks of

AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY BEING LIQUIDATED

SECRETARIES OF WAR AND NAVY SAY ITS MAINTENANCE DEPENDS ON CONGRESS.

Washington, District of Columbia, Oct. 23.—The alleged failure of the War and Navy departments to adopt a comprehensive aeronautical policy is given in some quarters as the reason for the precipitate liquidation of the aeroplane manufacturing industry since the armistice was signed. The Secretaries of War and the Navy deny that such a policy is lacking and assert that the maintenance of adequate manufacturing facilities depends solely upon the amount of money Congress is willing to appropriate for aeroplanes.

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, said that he was not informed of the extent to which the industry had been liquidated but presumed this industry, like all others vastly stimulated during the war, was getting back to a peace-time basis. The government he said, could not keep up the industry beyond its actual needs, and these had been placed before Congress. The Senate recently had agreed to appropriate $15,000,000 for the purchase of army aeroplanes, but the house had not acted on it. At the time the armistice was signed the aeroplane industry in the United States had reached an output of about 2000 aeroplanes and 10,000 engines a month. Many plants which had been making bodies for automobiles, and other plants capable of conversion to the use of aeroplane production, were put to work on government aeroplane contracts. These plants, it was said, naturally are returning to their peacetime uses.

The government cannot, it was pointed out, place enough orders for aeroplanes to maintain any considerable part of this industry now. The liquidation of the industry, estimated at as high as 90 per cent. by some means that the government could not quickly obtain large scale production, but this, it was said, is true of most other war material.

There are a number of members of Congress on influential committees who are taking note of the charge that an organized propaganda is being conducted by certain private manufacturers of airplanes to induce the Government to invest heavily in aeroplanes to assure continued operation of their plants. While this charge may not be borne out by facts it has unmistakably served to retard action by Congress in appropriating funds for the army and navy air services.

The Secretaries of War and the Navy have asked for much larger appropriations than Congress has been willing to grant. They not only want enough funds to maintain air services corresponding with the proposed peace-time military and naval establishments but for experimental work.

STRONG APPEAL FOR JUSTICE FOR GREEKS

Salonika, Greece, Oct. 24.—An open letter to President Wilson is published in the newspapers by the Belgian professor, Comte de Selys, and contains some noteworthy passages. During the war the professor had the opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with the Turks in Asia Minor, whom he terms "barbarians not yet touched by civilization." "Soldiers who only know how to steal and deceive." He describes in vigorous language the unspeakable atrocities of the Turks against the Greeks, whose villages were wantonly burnt. The Count says: "Now that the glorious day of reparation has come, Thrace must be given back to Greece. Constantinople, where so many traces of the Greek genius can still be found, must also be returned to Greece. In spite of massacres, persecutions, and deportations, the Greek population is still very important in numbers." He closes his letter by calling upon President Wilson to "give back to the Greeks the sacred inheritance of their forefathers."

the stems. The lake expansions of the river are of various shades of blue, depending on weather and wind. The foam of the rapids and of the falls is of purest white.

The attractions of the Nipigon country are not confined to scenery and fish. Its summer climate is delightful and healthful. The days are warm and bright, and the nights too cold for mosquitoes. Its people are intensely interesting. There are the de la Rondes, descendants of a noble French family who have lived and traded there for generations. There is McKirdy, a pioneer storekeeper, trader, and outfitter, who has lived in Nipigon for over thirty years, and made a competence, and who knows every Indian and halfbreed in the district, and manages them in his kindly way as no one else can, and they love him and impose on him. And there is Neil McDougall who manages the "Lodge" at Orient Bay. He has seen service with the H. B. C., in his earlier days, knows and loves the wilderness thoroughly, and spins interesting yarns about his experiences, and is pre-eminently the right man in the right place. Anyone content with comfort and simplicity, and not looking for luxury, and interested in things quite alien to metropolitan life will find the Nipigon country and Orient Bay a delightful place for a summer outing.

SHIPYARDS GROW

VERY RESTLESS

DELAY IN GIVING OUT PROMISED GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS CAUSES ANXIETY.

Canadian Shipbuilders who were led to believe that the Federal Government had decided to encourage steel building in Canadian yards are becoming restless over the delay in the giving out of promised contracts. All the Canadian shipyards which have in the past received contracts, including the Davie Shipbuilding and Repair Co. of Lauzon, Lévis are about through with the work allotted to them, and are looking for new allotments which are not materializing. These shipyards have gone to an enormous expense in extending and fitting up their respective plants that has more than absorbed profits, and besides the idleness of the invested capital, will have to discharge their thousands of skilled workers unless they are awarded additional contracts.

The "Ship Building and Harbor Construction" magazine in its October issue discussing the question of Government tardiness in not giving out contracts in accordance with its programme, says:

"Still no announcement from the Government regarding its policy. It is understandable that with the Prime Minister and the Minister of Marine both absent through sickness there should be a certain amount of delay, but it is earnestly to be hoped that this will not be prolonged a moment longer than is absolutely unavoidable. The few contracts that have been given out recently are neither here nor there. What the shipbuilders want is some definite announcement as to the Government's policy and some assurance that it will be lived up to. It is generally conceded that the Government cannot go on giving out contracts indefinitely—but what is to follow? Boards of Trade all over the country are urging that a system of subsidies should be announced, to follow the system of contracts."

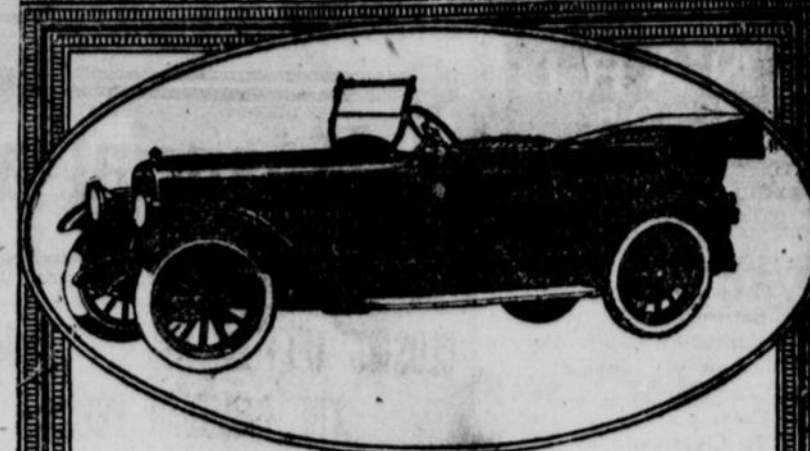

FUTURE OF CHINA'S TRADE WITH WEST

JAPANESE EXPECT MUCH OF THEIR GAINS TO REVERT TO STATES AND EUROPE.

Washington, District of Columbia, Oct. 23.—Interesting details of the Chinese boycott against Japan are contained in a mail report from China through official channels. With references to the increase of trade since the war, it is admitted by Japanese merchants, says the report, that a great deal of the trade with China will revert to United States and European hands in a few years particularly of the high grade products.

"What the Japanese fear is a protracted period of 'dumping' it is said, 'but they do not seem to comprehend the magnitude of the labor question in America and Europe, and its relation to the high price of manufactured articles. The present offers a favorable opportunity for the American and European agents to rebuild a flourishing trade; and yet advantage cannot be taken of the situation, owing to the high price of products of foreign origin, due to greatly increased costs, the limited supply and large markets elsewhere."

The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods, which was first actively begun last May through the agitation of students and merchants over the Shantung question, seemed for a time as if it would be spasmodic and of short duration, but an organized and systematic movement was inaugurated shortly afterward and this had very definite results, it is reported.

Japanese merchants soon found that their flourishing trade decreased 40 to 50 per cent. This applied to the retailers more than the wholesalers.

An important result of the movement was the stimulus to Chinese manufacture, and it was said the indications were that in the not distant future a considerable portion of the trade in ordinary commodities which the Japanese merchant has held in the past and has captured from the American and European manufacturer during the war will gradually pass from his hands into the hands of the Chinese themselves.

CLEANING LONDON'S AIR

Unsuspecting Londoners would probably be very uncomfortable if they knew what the Atmosphere Pollution Research Department recently discovered about the city; that each cubic inch of air in the vicinity of London contains six million particles of dust. Pure mountain air contains only thirty thousand such particles to the inch.

Germans, too, are so plentiful that it is estimated a man putting in a ten-hour day in the city inhales some thirty-seven million microbes of all kinds.

It has been put up to the Atmosphere Pollution Research Department to find a remedy.

CANADIAN CABOOSE FLIES ROYAL STANDARD

When the party of the Prince of Wales left their enclaves at Cameron's Falls, they inspected the power development under construction there by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission. To obviate the toil and delay consequent upon the transfer of the baggage and equipment of the Royal party from the Nipigon River to the rails of Canadian National Railways, the Commission kindly loaned one of their construction engines to handle this caboose, which one of the party termed "a guard's van for a goods train." and another, "a jolly hunting box." The picture shows Ernest Brooks, Official Photographer for the Prince of Wales, moving the Royal Standard to the Royal train. The Prince is to be seen standing upon the trucks behind his train. THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. TEACH THE BOYS TO LIVE CLEAN

THE BOSTON POST PUBLISHED
INTERVIEW WITH SIR DAVID WATSON.

The "Boston Post" published the following in its issue of the 22nd, instant in connection with a visit there of Major General Sir David Watson:

The future safety of the world rests almost entirely on the English speaking nations, according to Major-General Sir David Watson of the Canadian expeditionary forces, who paid a hurried visit to Boston yesterday while en route to Providence, where last night he spoke at a banquet commemorating the fourth anniversary of the founding of the British Empire Club of that city.

While Sir David is one of the foremost Canadian figures in the World War and presents an appearance typical of the British high officer, he has none of the mannerisms that are commonly looked upon as characteristic of the militarist. In fact he is not a militarist, despite his five years overseas in command of one of the most heroic bands of men—the first Canadian volunteers.

When seen by a Post reporter yesterday, he was reluctant to discuss the military future of the world. To him the future is a serious thing and according to his way of thinking, one in an official capacity should be exceedingly careful in making public announcements.

He refused to make any comment as to his attitude or the attitude of the Canadian people in regard to the League of Nations. He, however, did declare that as long as the Anglo-Saxon nations were bonded together in a league of common interest, the safety of the world is forever assured.

"The sacrifices of the men who went overseas," he said, "are sacrifices that are to make for improvement in their own home lands. These men who went to war are coming back better citizens, have better understanding of the Ten Commandments and the golden rule, and these requisites cannot help but result in a broader understanding of their duties to their home and to their country."

His plan for the safety of Canada savors not of the ideas of the militarist, and this plan he says he would advise for the United States.

"Our boys in school should be taught to live so that if the time comes they will make ideal soldiers," he said.

"I do not mean that they should necessarily be taught to shoulder a gun in school; rather should they be taught to live clean and upright lives so that in an emergency they will be able to step into the breach and duplicate and perhaps surpass the activities of our own Canadians if the occasion arises."

"The militarism should be left to a few specialists. These specialists could then be called upon to train our boys for war if necessary and thus we could again show the world that in our democracies we have the material, ready to spring to arms at a minute's notice and defend all that is sacred to us. Today the principal duty of our boys, our young men and returning soldiers is toward industrialism and agriculture."

"The future of Canada and the United States lies along these lines. This fact should be strongly emphasized on the minds of our youth and by education and enforcement toward clean living we can keep our places at the front commercially, for after all commerce is the life of both my nation and yours."

Sir David Watson, or plain Dave Watson, as he is known throughout the length and breadth of the northern Dominion, is one of the idols of the Canadian army. His democracy is almost proverbial and he is called friend and pal not only by his officers but by the thousands of Tommies who served under him.

He is not a soldier by profession—that life was thrust upon him. Thrust upon him when in August, 1914, the British empire declared war on Germany following the violation of Belgium's neutrality. Previous to that he had been an officer in the Canadian militia and then, with the declaration of war, he was given command of the Second Battalion, and after a comparatively short period of training was sent overseas. He returned home in July of this year and is now making his first visit to the United States since his arrival. Tonight he will speak before the Canadian Club in Boston.

Sir David's profession is that of a newspaperman. He is the managing director of the Quebec Chronicle.

The eminent Canadian is a believer in firm discipline. In his estimation the war has taught the world the need of discipline not only in our armies and navies, but in our business, our industries and on our farms. "Discipline," he said, "won the war for the allies, and discipline in commerce will win for the English-speaking races a place ahead of the rest of the world."

notably during the war, but farm life, with its long hours, strenuous labor, and social isolation, has never attracted them. The domestic service problem is acute and growing more so, and it will be interesting to see what impressions the English delegation gathered of the scope of this sunny, empty land for the settlement of "a superior class of English women."

New Steam Boat

On Tuesday last the new steam boat in the Ottawa river, having received her engine at Lachine, made a trip of about 7 miles from thence to the upper outlet of Chateauguay river. She performed it to admiration having gone that distance in 50 minutes and returned in 37 1-2. Her model is said to be very handsome, and her engine (the first made in Canada) to reflect great credit on her fabricator Mr. Lough. It is the opinion of those who were aboard of her during the excursion, that she surpasses in speed any other steam boat navigating the waters of these Provinces. Mr. Bruce has the merit of her construction.

Command in Canada

It is announced (in the London papers) that the Duke of Richmond would return after the ensuing spring from his command in Canada, and that he will be succeeded by the Earl of Dalhousie. It is probable therefore that Lord Dalhousie will be appointed to the command on the receipt of intelligence of the death of the Duke.

Horse Killed

A carrier named Turgeon was driving on Massue Street the night before last, when his horse, a valuable animal, fell into the drainage opened for waterworks purposes. Upon descending from his vehicle, Turgeon found that his horse was already dead, having broken its neck.

Quebec Fortifications

During the Hon. Mr. Robertson's recent visit to Quebec he expressed his regret that there should have been any dismantling of Quebec's fortifications in the way of removing old guns, balls of shot, cannon balls, etc., such as formerly stood at various points around the Battery and elsewhere. He expressed his determination to stop anything further of the kind, declaring that the past history of these relics and the military character of the surroundings demands that they should be retained. The Hon. Gentleman also stated that it was his intention to ask for a much larger vote of money at the next session of Parliament in order that the whole fortifications of Quebec might be put in a perfect state of repair as possible.

Business Activity

Wholesale merchants admit quite a revival of business of late in town, no doubt due to the presence of so many country merchants making fall purchases, and anxious to receive their winter stocks before the close of steamboat and schooner navigation. The large amount of country produce recently marketed and the high prices obtained for much of it, and especially for potatoes, has no doubt made money much more plentiful in the surrounding parishes, and will enable dealers to meet their obligations here with promptitude. Reports of the leather and boot and shoe industries have much improved to during the last few days.

Go Down the Hill of Life in Comfort.

Physicians are full of warning to men and women who are just turning forty.

At forty, they say, many ailments which have lain dormant, become active. Kidney and Bladder troubles show themselves, and much care is advised.

The best care that can be given is in providing oneself with Gin Pills and taking them at the first sign of pain in the back or across the groins, or when dizziness, constant headaches, swollen joints, rheumatism, sciatica or gravel bring suffering or discomfort.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

taken in time, will prevent serious complications. They strengthen weakened kidneys, relieve congestion, soothe inflammation, and help the vital organs to purify the blood so that the poisons, uric acid and waste are duly eliminated.

Gin Pills contain no alcohol and no ingredient that could harm the health in the slightest way. Their great principle is derived from the Juniper Berry, which made Gin an old-time remedy for kidney trouble. Seven other highly effective diuretics and antiseptics are combined, and the result is a Pill that is, we believe, the best ever prepared for allaying the pain caused by deranged kidneys, and restoring the organs to proper activity. They are particularly useful in the treatment of stone or gravel in the bladder so that they may be passed, thus avoiding painful operations.

Thousands of voluntary testimonials from all parts of Canada are continually pouring into our office, showing in a most practical way the proved excellence of these wonderful Pills.

Get Gin Pills from your druggist or dealer, who sells them at 50c. a box, under money-back guarantee. Send for free sample, addressing:—

AUSTRALIA AS FIELD FOR WORKING WOMEN

WOMEN'S DELEGATION HAS JUST ARRIVED TO FIND OUT WHAT CHANCES ARE.

Adelaide, South Australia, October 24.—There has just arrived in Australia the women's delegation appointed by the Imperial Government to ascertain to what extent and in what direction, this country of immense and thinly populated acres can absorb population; what chances are there for working women on the farms, in big industrial workshops and in domestic service.

The delegation comprises Miss Pugh-Jones and Mr. M. T. Simm, wife of the Coalition member of the House of Commons, accompanied by Miss Chomley, who is well acquainted with Australia, and they will spend four or five months investigating. A similar delegation has been sent to Canada and to New Zealand. These commissioners will return to England and on their reports future action will be based.

Mrs. Simm will interest herself chiefly in industrial matters and Miss Pugh-Jones will deal with farm activities.

Australia has never been examined before as a field for women settlement and it is not difficult to see that, if the movement be successfully undertaken, social conditions may be affected. Australian women have gone extensively into factories and offices, occupied by the home forces alone, and made a profit of about $50 an acre.

In France thousands of acres were cultivated by the soldiers, and vegetables worth no less than $2,500,000 were produced.

By irrigation the army in Mesopotamia became self-supporting so far as vegetables were concerned and the grain crop was valued at $15,000,000.

The Saloniki army also was busy cultivating the soil back of its lines and in addition to harvesting crops worth some $300,000 saved 52,000 tons of ships which would otherwise have been used to carry supplies to that far off front.

MEXICAN "PELADO" SOLVES FOOTWEAR PROBLEM

Mexico City, Oct. 22.—The Mexican "pelado"—the poorer class of native—has solved the problem of the first disposition of discarded automobile tires. He uses them for shoes. One of ten such natives seen on the streets of the capital at least six, if wearing foot covering at all, will have their soles protected by generous slices of rubber tire, bound around their feet with a thong.
