Jonas makes stop in Sherbrooke at Le Vieux Clocher

Zacahry-Cy Vanasse
SHERBROOKE

It's not exactly easy to find information online about Montreal-rocker Jonas anymore. Not with teen-pop stars the Jonas Brothers eating up every search of anything "Jonas" and "Music" related on web browsers these days. His name may now be unfortunately linked to the Mickey Mouse Threesome, but his music couldn't be further from that of the teen trio.

Jonas, a Montreal media darling, particularly for radio stations such as CHOM 97.7 FM, in a city starved for something local to latch onto that wasn't hip-indie rock or just plain bad, burst onto the scene five years ago with his self-titled debut, and since then he has toured the province, the rest of Canada, and even into the United States, putting on his rock show that falls somewhere between the 80's hair-rock experience and a show from The Doors.

With a new album in the works, it'll be his third after his 04' debut and 2006's 'Suite Life'. Jonas has taken to the touring life once more, working out the new songs and trying them on for size in front of a live audience. As part of his tour, Jonas will be making an Eastern Townships stop at Sherbrooke's Le Vieux Clocher this Saturday night.

A Jonas show usually includes some originals and the occasional cover thrown in for good measure.

If you're a fan of showmanship and rock and roll turned up to eleven than a Jonas show might be just what the doctor ordered for you. Though not exactly choreographed, there is an undeniable "performance" thought process that goes into each one of his shows. It's a lot of energy and shirtlessness from Jonas, whose looks haven't hurt his career any. It's the kind of high-energy structured rock show that Kurt Cobain and Nirvana supposedly put an end to in the early 90's, of course just like the pop scene the grunge movement also supposedly killed, polished (sometimes referred to as corporate rock) rock didn't go anywhere, it simply bided it's time until people were hungry for it once more. With the huge success of bands such as Creed and Nickelback at the beginning of the decade it's obvious taste for the like had returned.

Opening up the Vieux Clocher gig will be Sherbrooke rockers Pete Moss, who are cut from a very similar cloth.

The Sherbrooke band is touring behind their newest release right now, 'Sober On Strike Episode 3', and this Saturday's hometown show will be another chance for local fans to hear the group's newest tracks and enjoy the normal high octane show "Mossers", as their fans have dubbed themselves, have come to expect from Pete Moss.

This Saturday's show time is set for 8:30 p.m. and tickets are $27.50. Tickets can be purchased from the Shebrooke Vieux Clocher box office, 1590 Galt Ouest, or reserved by calling (819) 822-2102.

In the past Jonas and his band's set-list have included covers such as Led Zeppelin's 'Immigrant Song' and Stevie Nicks' 'Edge of Seventeen' with the latter becoming a staple of Montreal radio during the summer of Party time at CIDI...and a great one it was!

Tanya Singfield
SPECIAL TO THE RECORD

Hi folks, I had to write this one by myself this week because Maurice is exhausted and fast asleep on the couch at the moment. How much can one guy do? Let's give him a break, shall we?

We're doing something a little different this week. We decided it was high time to get together, meet each other and give everyone a well-deserved pat on the back for a job well done. So we threw a party and we'd like to share it with you all.

The party was organized by Marilyn Durrell, wife of our president, Dewey, and myself. We called all the people involved and asked them to bring something to eat. Didn't they all show up early, bringing great food to share, the table was loaded with goodies, and everybody had a wonderful time.

We had people of all ages, both French and English, from Knowlton, Warden, Waterloo, Mansonville and other towns in the area. I think I probably spent the whole first hour of the party making name-tags for each person as they arrived. This was a really good idea, because not everyone knew each other and thus it saved time, not having to introduce yourself over and over, and everyone could see who they were talking to at a glance, and what they do at CIDI.

The facility is wonderful, plenty of space, nicely painted (by volunteers of course, who else?) Later in the evening, the overhead lights were turned off, and table lamps were placed around the room to make things cozy.

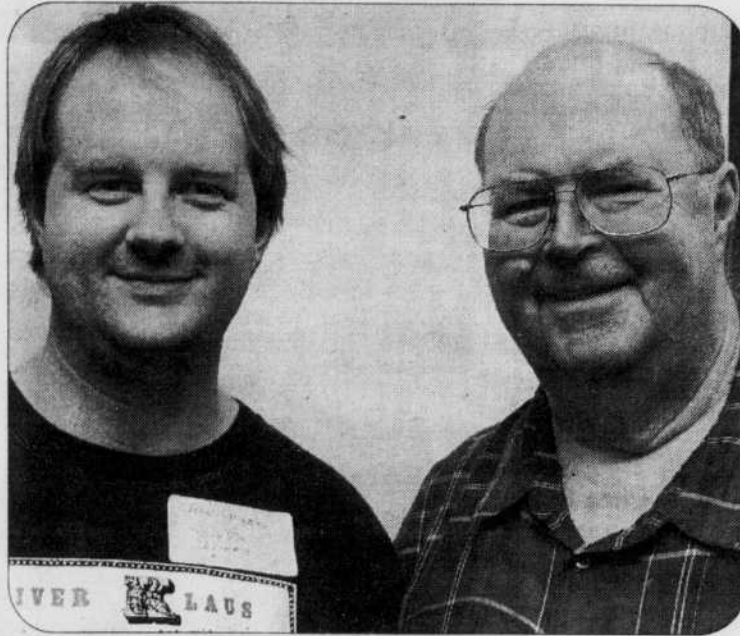

Here are some photos from our party, people obviously having a good time.

Once again we invite you to participate in a great new beginning. Help build a great community by calling 1-888-539-2098 or 450-242-9873. Become a member and volunteer. Come and express yourself, make some new friends, and most of all, it's really a lot of fun!

Give us a listen, you may be surprised by what you hear. And we always want to hear from you, because, after all, we are here to serve the community.

"PAUL BLART: DEDÉ À TRAVERSE LES BRUMES" OR "PRÉDICTIONS"

Junos complete cross-country trek

It took eight years, but the Juno Awards have finally made it to the West Coast.

When CTV took over the show in 2002, the network announced that the Junos were going on the road – and they did, starting in St. John's, N.L.

Now, after stops in seven provinces and every region, the Juno Awards are airing on CTV Sunday, March 29, from Vancouver's General Motors Place.

"We've gone from one side of the country to the other now," says the show's producer, John Brunton. "We started with the philosophy of taking the music to the people. So we've literally gone from St. John's to end up in Vancouver.

"When we started that journey, people didn't believe it could be done. There was the question of how much is it going to cost to go away from the major centers – instead of how much do people want you to come."

Also, for the first time in its current incarnation, a host is repeating. Toronto comic Russell Peters is back as ringmaster this year.

"There are only a few comedians in the world who can play the arena settings," Brunton says. "When Russell walks out on that stage, he's completely comfortable in that setting. He plays Madison Square Garden. He's played to 20,000 people in London in two days.

"The thing that makes Russell interesting for a gig like this is that he doesn't get bowled over or overwhelmed by an audience of 15,000 or 16,000 people. It's a fine art."

Since 2002, the Juno Awards have evolved, as Brunton says, "from a show that happens on Sunday night" to a movable music festival.

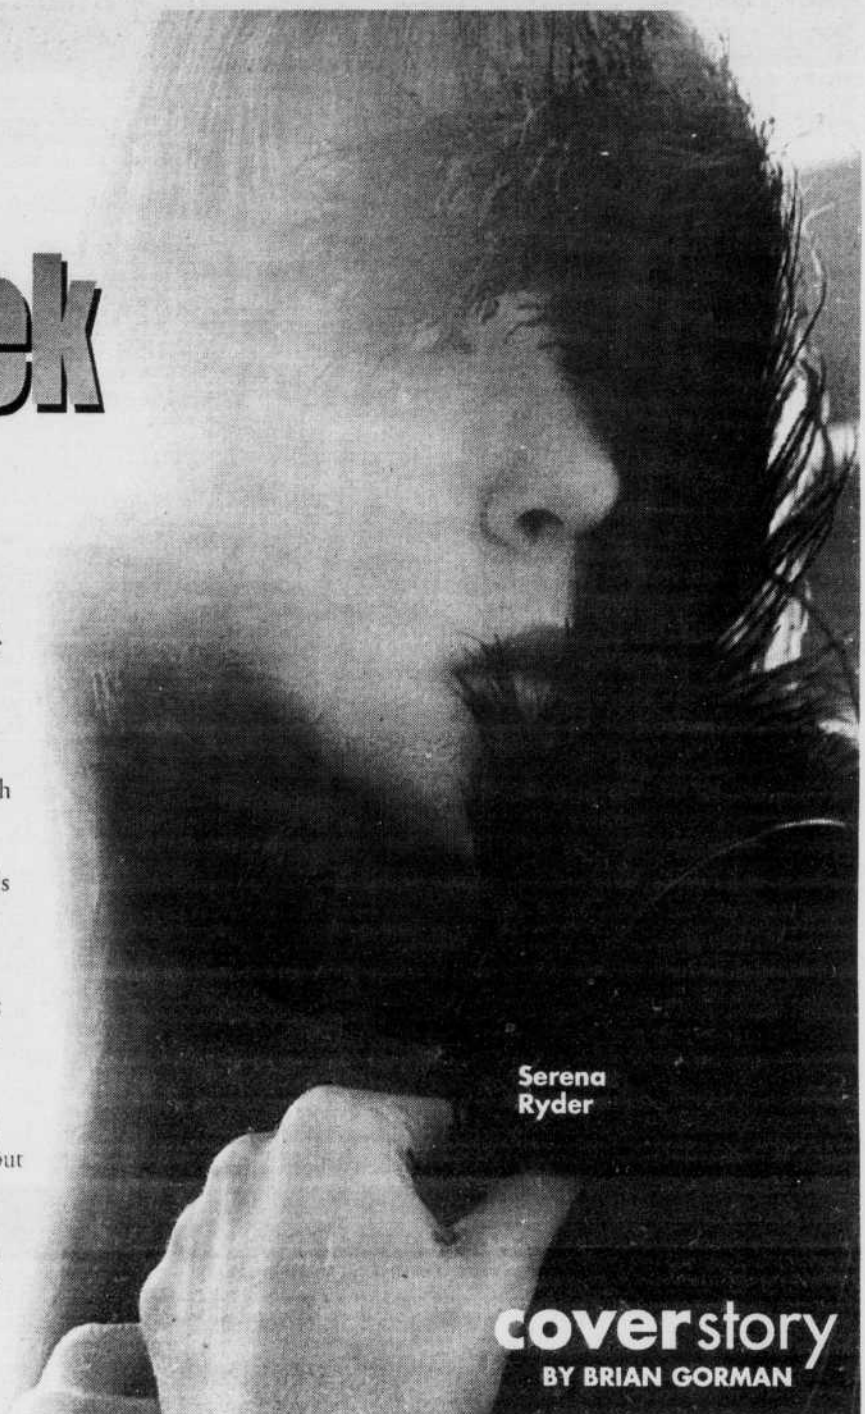

Along with the awards show and the red carpet, there are workshops, club shows and various events. Brunton compares it to Grey Cup weekend.

Performers at this year's awards include Sarah McLachlan, who also will be presented with the Allan Waters Humanitarian Award; soul diva Divine Brown; Montreal rockers the Stills and Sam Roberts; Ojibwe roots artist Crystal Shawanda; and folk-roots singer-songwriter Serena Ryder.

Ryder is nominated in two major categories: artist of the year and adult alternative album. And last year, she took home the new artist honors.

"They're massive," she says. "It's awesome. I have no idea how I – I don't want to jinx it, but I'm blown away by the company I'm among.

"I never in a billion years thought I'd be beside (fellow nominees) k.d. lang and Bryan Adams – or Hawksley Workman, who I have looked up to and adored forever. That's mind-blowing enough. I don't know if it could get better."

Touted as Canada's No. 1 fishing show, "Angler & Hunter," airing Saturdays on Global Television Network, continues to stand out after 14 years on the air as the most comprehensive program of its kind. Since 2007, Cam Brownson has been the host of "Angler & Hunter." An outdoorsman since the age of 3, Brownson grew up on the Otonabee and in the Kawarthas, where he first got a taste for hunting and fishing from his father and grandfathers.

We like seeing a congenial expert educate us on his very particular skills. We'd like to see other national specialists with the same caliber of knowledge do as Brownson does – teach us about everything we want to know.

"FUSSING & FIXING": How many people do you think can change a tire? What about fixing the sole on a pair of worn-out dress shoes? Not the average person, that's for sure. Every episode focuses on life's daily problems and teaches you how to fix them yourself so that the next time you're on the highway and a wheel falls off your car, you'll know what to do. Or at the very least, if you have to walk to the nearest gas station, you'll make it there without too much wear on your shoes.

"PAST & PRESENT": As far as nationalism goes, Canadians may be proud to be Canadian, but compared to Americans, we know less about our country's origins and features. In this new series, to air – naturally – on History Television, viewers will learn about different regions in Canada and features of our landscape far and wide. Finally we'll understand why the French and English have always been at odds here and where in the country to find Guananoque.

celebrity scoop

BY JACQUELINE CUTLER

Jay Harrington

Jay Harrington, who plays nice guy Ted on ABC's Wednesday sitcom "Better off Ted," is one of those actors who looks familiar, but viewers may have trouble placing him.

He's done many guest appearances over the years and has been poised for a breakthrough role.

"Sometimes you work on a pilot and feel great, but you watch it and say, 'They all lived happily ever after,'" he says. "I've done one pilot a year for the last six or seven years. I have been hitting the pavement. You can make a living doing a pilot a year. Then you sprinkle in a guest star here and there."

This show, about an amoral company, Veridian, that will make any invention for the right price, is truly funny.

"After seeing it, I felt there was more to tell," Harrington says. "I am the easiest audience member. I can still watch it and lose myself completely."

Harrington learned about losing himself completely in roles as a kid during summers on Massachusetts' Cape Cod. "There wasn't a ton to do except the beach," he says. "There was a children's theater down the road. I had fun."

He was an athletic kid, and he still plays ice hockey. Harrington also shoots hoops in an entertainment league with actors, musicians and retired athletes such as Kenny Lofton. "No one's too good; no one's too bad," he says.

After knocking around the business for years, Harrington says he thinks he finally has a starring role, with Portia de Rossi, in a hit.

"I think it's good stuff," he says. "I hope people watch television, as we're sort of in a transition time. If we can hold our audience and get some viewers, it would be nice to work with these people for 10 years."

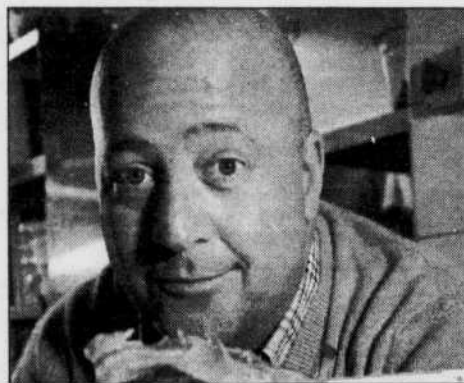

Birth date: Nov. 10, 1971
TV credits: "Private Practice," "Desperate Housewives," "The Inside," "Coupling"
Favorite baseball team: Boston Red Sox
Other jobs: Worked in Boston for FEMA and in Manhattan as a bartender and waiter at Planet Hollywood. "Bobby Cannavale was the security man," he says.
Best Halloween costume: This past Halloween, he was Danny and his girlfriend was Sandy from "Grease."
When he knew he would be an actor: "When I was terrible at math," he says.
First time onstage: In "The Arkansaw Bear"
Prized possession: A signed Paul Pierce jersey and a Jason Varitek autograph

"Top 10 Most Bizarre Foods," encarta.msn.com/encnet/Features/Lists/

On his Travel Channel show, "Bizarre Foods With Andrew Zimmern," the courageous gourmet travels the planet with the goal of putting all sorts of strange things into his mouth — and then swallowing them. Hey, it's a living.

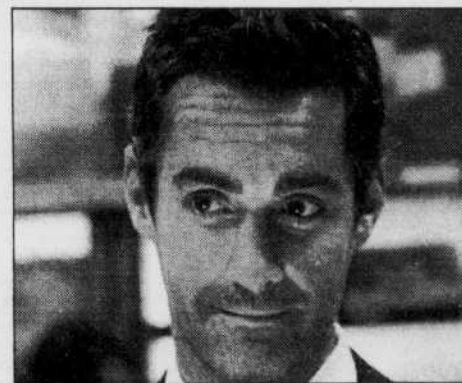

If you're wondering which exotic edibles he considers to be the epitome of "What were you thinking when you ate that?" Encarta helpfully provides his top 10 list, ranging from the nastiest to the most surprisingly yummy.

"Veridian Dynamics," ABC, veridiandynamics.com

Think the company you work for is scary? Here's to hoping it's not as scary as Veridian Dynamics, the fictional corporation that is the backdrop for the new ABC comedy "Better Off Ted."

According to its official Web site (which links to ABC.com), the company is working on cow-free meat, creating a chair so uncomfortable that it increases productivity (until it drives the worker mad) and freezing people (turns out there are worse things than freezer burn).

celebrity q&a

BY JOHN CROOK

Nathan Fillion

OF 'Castle' ON ABC

Q: Were you a fan of detective novels before playing Rick Castle?

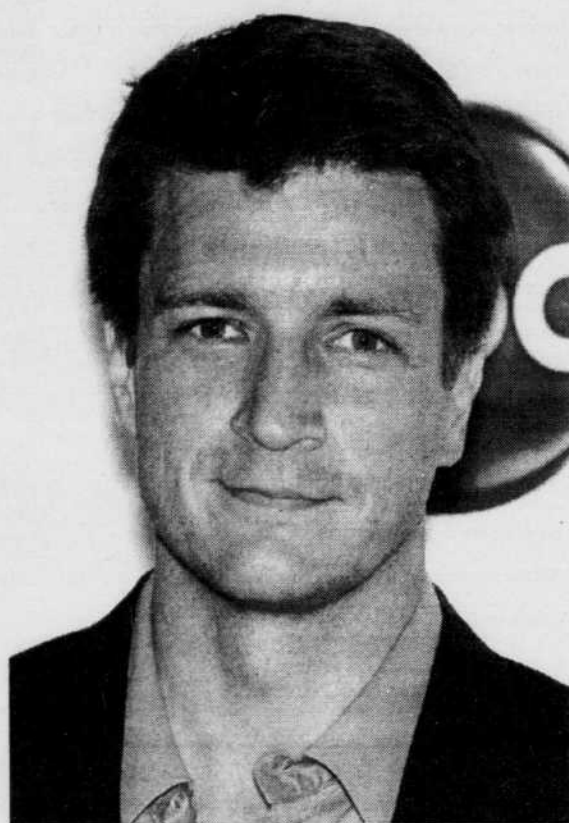

A: The only detective novels I read were the Dirk Gently novels by the guy who wrote "Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy" (Douglas Adams), and that was some time ago. But after I got "Castle," I was looking for a new book, and somebody recommended the Spenser novels by Robert Parker. I started getting into those, and I'm on No. 7 right now. It's all I read at work between takes.

Q: Did you do any research into your character's field?

A: I'm not that actor who says, "If my character lives in New York, I have to go there and hang out for a while." All the work and the research is done for you in essence in the script. One of the things that makes "Castle" so great is that Rick has a very playful attitude. He's a kid at heart, so that's what I tap into.

Q: Was making "Dr. Horrible's Sing-Along Blog" as much fun as you made it look?

A: We probably had even more fun than it looks like, because you didn't get to see a lot of stuff that was going on backstage. That was only a six-day shoot, really quick. They say in Hollywood it's not what you know; it's who you know, and it's true that as you work, that begets other work. That was one of those deals where Joss Whedon just assembled all these people he loves working with to do a project that's he's really keen on. I got to kick back and benefit from all the best that Joss has to offer.

Natalie Morales

Q: Natalie Morales on "The Today Show" recently had a baby. Was it a boy or girl? —Lisa Smith, Toronto

A: Morales and her husband, investment consultant Joe Rhodes, had their second child in September — a boy named Luke.

Q: I Loved Jane Leeves on "Frasier." What is she doing now? —Sheila Lombrick, Windsor, Ont.

A: The 47-year-old Englishwoman is married with two children. Aside from that, she's still active as an actress. In 2008, she co-starred in the film comedy "Endless Bummer" and had a recurring role in the sitcom "The Starter Wife."

Alexandra Cabot from 'Law & Order: Special Victims Unit'

A lot is riding on Michelle Obama's fashionable coattails.

Women started copying her look when she wore that black-and-white dress on "The View." She dares to go without pantyhose and has the toned arms to carry off sleeveless dresses, even in the most formal of settings, such as when her husband addresses a joint session of Congress.

Her casual elegance is having a ripple effect throughout the country, even on TV characters.

"I think professional has changed, when in the workplace women don't have to wear blue pinstripe suits anymore to be a lawyer," says Tina Nigro, costumer for NBC's "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit." "I'm hoping with Michelle Obama, we can be a little bit more fashionable."

Among the actors she dresses is Stephanie March, who plays Assistant District Attorney Alexandra Cabot in the Tuesday drama.

March describes her character's look as "quite a bit more conservative and professional than my lifestyle is. I definitely don't own a suit. I don't interview at Morgan Stanley; I guess nobody does. She is conservative, expensive. I am fighting for a black, good-looking dress. Dresses are so easy."

Cabot's dresses are from designers Calvin Klein, Anne Klein and Narciso Rodriguez. She also wears shell blouses for under suit jackets from Banana Republic.

Nigro builds the characters' closets by shopping a lot at Saks, Bloomingdales, Barney's and Century 21.

Even though Nigro is already shopping at Century 21, with its extensive designer shoe department, she buys the character's 3.5-inch heels at 9 West and Aldo to save money.

As conservative and professional as Cabot's look is, she still needs to accessorize. Nigro finds necklaces and earrings in the Sundance catalog and buys jewelry at Lord & Taylor.

"She wears simple and ladylike pieces," Nigro says.

Cabot's also practical. "If it is cold out, she wears stockings," Nigro says. "Otherwise, no. It is still considered professional. On TV you can't tell if she is wearing nude stockings."

"There was a time on TV — I have done 'Homicide' — where it was about reality and not making people look beautiful," Nigro says. "Now people are prettier. Television's changed; it hasn't the documentary style it was in the '80s, and that reflects in the clothes and hair and makeup."

what we learned from tv lately

BY BEVERLY FOSTER SEINBERG

Delta Burke

"BRIDAL FEVER"

Writing love stories automatically qualifies a person to become a matchmaker in real life.

"ENCOUNTERS AT THE END OF THE WORLD"

One of the most treasured possessions of the residents of Antarctica's McMurdo Research Station is -- get this -- their ice cream machine.

"MANUFACTURING DISSENT"

Although his 1989 documentary "Roger & Me" was all about his unsuccessful efforts to get General Motors CEO Roger Smith to talk to him, Michael Moore actually did get an interview with Smith.

Michael Moore

"MEET THE IMMIGRANTS"

A taxi driving school in Prague, Czech Republic, attracts people from all over Eastern Europe hoping to get jobs driving cabs in Britain.

"CANADIAN BACON"

War is hell, but it's where the money is.

"LINDA & ALI: TWO WORLDS WITHIN FOUR WALLS"

Religious conversion is easy. Adapting to a whole new culture isn't.

"MANUFACTURING DISSENT"

Although his 1989 documentary "Roger & Me" was all about his unsuccessful efforts to get General Motors CEO Roger Smith to talk to him, Michael Moore actually did get an interview with Smith.

"STAR 80"

If you engineered your significant other's rise to stardom, you have no standing to complain when other people cut into your time together. That's what stardom is.

"EAST IS EAST"

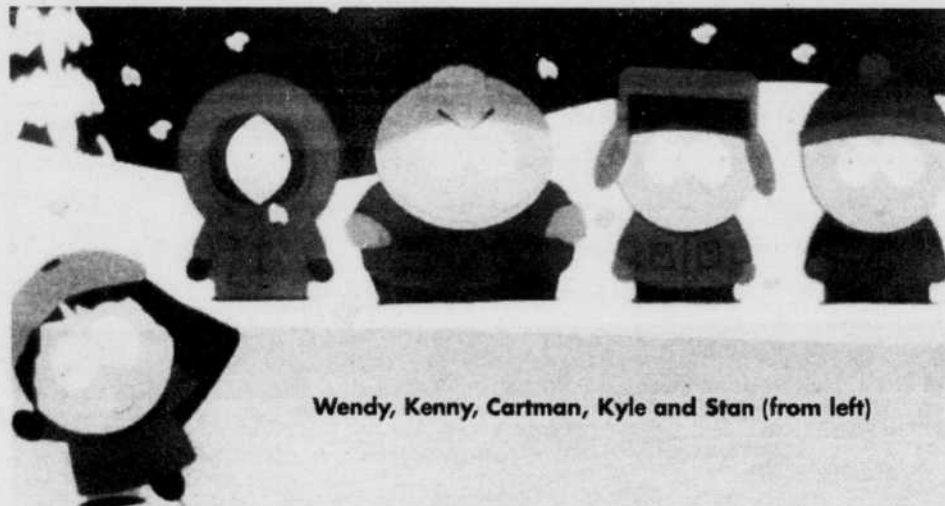

If you choose to raise your family outside your country of origin, the kids are going to pick up your adopted homeland's customs and mores. Deal with it.

Amber Marshall

"HEARTLAND"

Sorry, guys, but sometimes you really do have to talk about your feelings. It won't kill you.

"SOUTH PARK: BIGGER, LONGER & UNCUT"

Brian Boitano doesn't take you-know-what from anybody.

'ER' doctors

BY JACQUELINE CUTLER

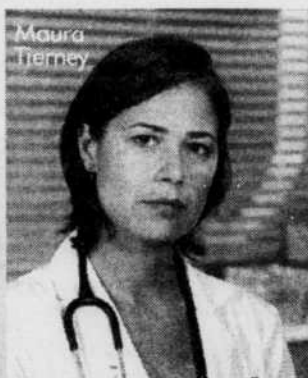

Noah Wyle

John Carter (Noah Wyle):

The truest example of noblesse oblige, Carter was born to a seriously wealthy family, declined a salary and consistently worked the hardest shifts. Not content to help only Chicago's poorest, he volunteered to work in Africa with desperately impoverished people.

Maura Tierney

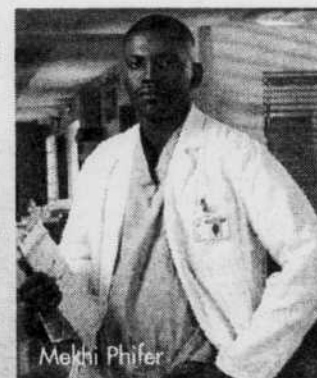

Abby Lockhart (Maura Tierney):

Abby is a grand example of a woman finally realizing her worth. As a nurse, she was compassionate, competent and smart. After a false start (her first husband's money problems consumed her tuition), she made it through medical school. Abby faced her family's mental illness, her inability to commit and alcoholism and was always a caring doctor who listened to her patients.

Gregory Pratt (Mekhi Phifer):

Dr. Pratt was one of the show's underrated heroes. He came from a tough background and had nothing but disdain for the gangbangers he grew up with on Chicago's South Side. Confident and smart, Pratt was determined to make something of himself and help the uninsured in his old neighborhood any way he could, even if he did break the law when he liberated supplies from the hospital for a clinic in the 'hood.

Willie bares it all with latest release

Already a well-known songwriter (he wrote 'Crazy' for Patsy Cline, among others), Willie Nelson began his recording career in the mid-1960s, at a time when the 'Nashville Sound' was the 'in' sound.

It contained lush string sections along with an array of back-up vocal singers, giving country music more of a pop big band sound. This style worked for some singers such as Ray Price, but for people like Nelson, the recorded versions of his songs did not always respect the moods and messages that he meant to convey.

But at the time, artists weren't allowed to select arrangements, musicians and studios. These are all factors that sometimes really changed the results of what the artist had in mind. Back then, Willie Nelson was constantly frustrated by the use of strings, vocal group choruses and the slick final product.

But everything would change with the release of 1975's Red Headed Stranger album. From that point forward Nelson and his Outlaw friends, redefined the way albums were made.

It is with this spirit that Willie Nelson and his good friend and band member Mickey Raphael decided to revisit some of Nelson's early work. The new release titled Naked Willie is a collection of 17 Willie Nelson tracks originally recorded for RCA Records between 1966 and 1970.

The collection sees the original recordings taken back to the bare essentials. Producer Mickey Raphael uses the original master tapes from Nelson's sessions and with the help of modern day technology, they stripped down old recordings and turned them into masterpieces, just as Willie Nelson originally wanted them.

By taking away all of the unnecessary instrumentation, the fans are able to focus on the words of the songs rather than the music. It really leaves Willie Nelson and his band with a sound pure and simple. These uncomplicated tracks sound clean, with a good balance on the mix. You can hear nuances that were buried in the original mixes.

Five of the songs on this compilation were originally released on Laying My Burdens Down. Nelson and Raphael also picked material from the 1967's album The Party's Over and Other Great Willie Nelson Songs, 1969's My Own Peculiar Way, 1971's Willie Nelson & Family, and a few others including the 1968 single 'Bring Me Sunshine' and the archive tracks 'Jimmy's Road' from 1968.

Naked Willie takes on a whole new meaning of 'less is more'.

The new production really shows the great tunes that country music had to offer back then. There's 'Following Me Around', 'The Ghost', and 'Happiness Lives Next Door' and 'I Just Dropped By' which really shines with Nelson's unique style.

'The Party's Over' is an unforgettable classic. I think everyone who gives this tune a listen will be extremely thrilled to hear the difference. It is a typical country song, so you can expect to hear about relationships coming to an end and misery.

Another great track is 'What Can You Do to Me Now', about a relationship coming to an end, but it is so much more than that. It is classic and raw Willie Nelson not to mention the beautiful Kris Kristofferson's classic, 'Sunday Morning Coming Down'.

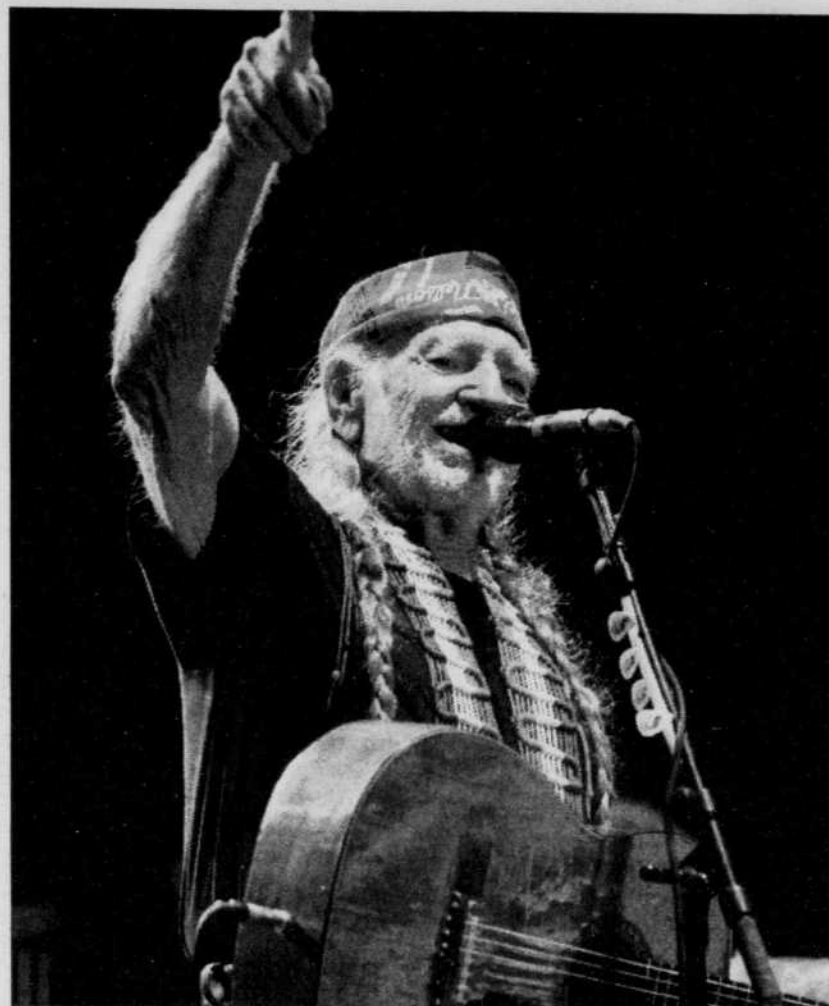

Of the 17 tracks on Naked Willie, only three weren't written by the legend. There's 'Bring Me Sunshine' with a melody that recalls 'King of the Road', 'Johnny One Time' and 'Sunday Morning Coming Down'.

While many of his songs have been re-mastered, remixed and repackaged time after time, very few times has a repackaged body of work sounded so vibrant, and so refreshing. It chronicles a prolific songwriting period for the icon and this is an album that every Willie Nelson fan needs to add to their own collection.

With access to the master tapes, Raphael was able to remove the overlays and remaster the recordings. The result is a revelation for fans who have listened to these songs only through the overproduced version.

Nelson's voice with its unique phrasing is strong and appealing. I think that this time around, all those songs are presented as Nelson heard them when he wrote them and the way they were meant to be.

Willie Nelson is an artist bigger than life and the sum of his work is so impressive that it is sometimes hard to follow everything he does. Just this past year, the celebration of his 75th birthday brought numerous compilations on the market, including the 30th Anniversary Legacy edition of Stardust and the four-disc career retrospective One Hell of a Ride, just to name a few.
