Raynald Frechette is a newcomer to politics compared to some of the members of the National Union Party, meeting in Sherbrooke this weekend. But the MNA the respect of the top men in his own party and members of opposition parties as well

Frechette was man-in-middle of Bill 63

BY RICHARD SPALDING

RAYNALD FRECHETTE: CALMLY DEALT WITH LEVESQUE'S PROCEDURAL FLAK

Being presiding officer in the Quebec National Assembly during the sizzling debate on Bill 63 was something akin to being referee in a tag-team wrestling match or being dropped into the middle of a tiger cage during a family fight. The idea as Sherbrooke MNA Raynald Frechette quickly discovered--is to keep the combatants apart and try to stay in one piece yourself.

For seven straight days the debate raged--a verbal confrontation that Opposition leader Jean Lesage says was one of the most exhilarating battles in his 25 years in politics.

As deputy speaker, Mr. Frechette was chairman of the committee of the whole for clause-by-clause study of Bill 63. In the chair, he had to deal with constant bursts of procedural flak from Party Quebecois leader Rene Levesque, who pulled every trick he had in his political bag to cripple the proceedings of the Assembly and stop the controversial language bill.

Time and again over the seven days, Mr. Frechette was called upon for fast decisions on a myriad of abstruse procedural manoeuvres by the so-called mini-opposition led by Mr. Levesque.

Mr. Frechette's success in this difficult role won him the respect of members of all parties.

As Deputy Speaker, he couldn't join in the debate, but he has his own opinions about Bill 63.

"I am completely in favor of Bill 63," Mr. Frechette said in an interview last week," and I admire the calmness and restraint of the English-speaking citizens of the Eastern Townships in the face of the demonstrations against the Bill."

The 35-year-old MNA was the target of a Sherbrooke demonstration on the night of Monday, Oct. 27, when several hundred students from local CEGEPs and the University of Sherbrooke gathered in front of his house and demanded to speak to him about Bill 63. He spoke to the crowd three times before it finally dispersed.

'English should protest'

A week later, Mr. Frechette said that English-speaking Quebecers had as much reason to protest against Bill 63 as French-speaking Quebecers, because the Bill required the former to learn French without requiring the latter to learn English.

Speaking of Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire leader Raymond Lemieux, Mr. Frechette said he and his group were advocating for Quebec exactly the kind of unjust measure that French-speaking Canadians had opposed so strongly in Ontario in 1915 in the case of the infamous Regulation 17 concerning separate schools.

Raynald Frechette has always been interested in political affairs. The oldest of five children, he acquired an early liking for politics by toddling around behind his father to National Union political meetings in his home town of Asbestos in the 1930's and 40's.

This early liking for politics developed while young Raynald was attending the Sherbrooke Seminary after World War II.

The Seminary had a rather unique model parliament, with a special room set aside for its debates. Raynald was once elected Prime Minister--but he soon got his first taste of the fickleness of political success by being thrown back into opposition.

Mr. Frechette's father was a Johns-Manville laborer in Asbestos, and Raynald says he owes his opportunities for an education to the tremendous sacrifices his father made to put him through university. Mr. Frechette senior is now paralyzed from a stroke. His two younger sons are electricians in Asbestos, and his two daughters are nurses.

After obtaining his B.A. from the Sherbrooke Seminary in 1958, Mr. Frechette considered entering the church. Instead, he accepted the advice of a teacher friend, and chose law as his career. In June of 1961, Mr. Frechette walked out of the University of Sherbrooke with a law degree.

Although he seriouslyintendedto stick to the practice of law, as fate would have it Mr. Frechette's first law partner was Maurice Allard, who was then federal member of parliament for Sherbrooke.

When still a student at the Seminary, he participated in the 1957 St. Laurent-Diefenbaker federal election by working for a Progressive-Conservative candidate in his native Richmond-Wolfe constituency. The candidate lost.

The following year, things got better and in that year's federal election, his candidate, Florent Dubois, won under the Progressive Conservative banner.

It wasn't long before he himself was running for the provincial seat in Richmond county. It was 1962, and he lost by some 2,600 votes to Emilien Lafrance, liberal minister of Family and Social Welfare.

In that election, Maurice Allard's new partner was the youngest candidate in the province to run for the Legislative Assembly.

It was quite a campaign, he says, running around to deliver speeches in a Volkswagen.

Not discouraged, political opportunity knocked again in the beginning of 1966, when he was unanimously nominated as a candidate at a National Union convention in Sherbrooke County.

"I hesitated about running against Carrier Fortin, then provincial labor minister in the Lesage government," he says. "The thing was, Mr. Fortin had been one of my law teachers at the University of Sherbrooke."

But when the votes were counted on the night of June 5, 1966, the Lesage government had been defeated by Daniel Johnson and Raynald Frechette had won his first election by defeating Mr. Fortin by 19,915 votes to 17,281.

"I have a lot of respect for Carrier Fortin; he is highly competent, and I am sure he will be an excellent judge," Mr. Frechette said of his former law teacher, who was named to the bench on Nov. 13, 1969.

The young MNA's election in 1966 developed into a close relationship with the prime minister, Daniel Johnson of Bagot County, also a lawyer who had once considered entering the church.

The National Union's trade mark is that it is an independent provincial party, Mr. Frechette says, which partly explains why he joined the party.

He also emphasized that the National Union is not a separatist party, and that two members had resigned from the caucus because of Bill 63.

The National Union party has historic connection with Sherbrooke, the scene of the 1933 convention which elected Maurice Duplessis as the leader of the Quebec Conservative Party out of which the National Union later grew.

Our MNA knew the old warrior in the final part of his life.

"He always dedicated Wednesday to St. Joseph," Mr. Frechette said, the day of all of his important decisions, "and all of his elections were held on Wednesday."

One day the old prime minister was coming out of church where he attended mass daily and encountered a priest friend. Mr. Duplessis asked the priest what the electors were saying about him. Quite stunned, the old priest said that he drank a little too much.

"From that day on Duplessis said goodbye to his bottle of scotch and never drank again," Mr. Frechette said.

"Mr. Johnson had a special gift of seeking out problems with his colleagues," he said, and he was always there to give you a helping hand or to put you back in an optimistic mood."

Mr. Frechette says he was a little apprehensive about the latter's way of doing things, but his conduct as Prime Minister surprised many.

The whole climate of Quebec politics is changing, Mr. Frechette says, and this was evidenced by Premier Johnson's attitude after the 1966 election.

"You see, Premier Johnson, unlike Duplessis, accepted other people's opinions and advice, because no man can run Quebec alone anymore. Premier Bertrand does the same."

Politics is a very hard career, and ruinous to the health, says Mr. Frechette. To make happy and to content certain individuals, an MNA tries his best, and often you end up feeling nothing but frustration.

Patronage disappearing

It used to be that everyone who was looking for a special job would drop in to see his representative in Quebec and demand that he be given a job.

In many cases, explained Mr. Frechette, the MNA would deal alone in this matter and grant favors to party followers.

Unions and the civil service commission have altered the trend and minimum standards have been set to qualify for a given position.

The best any MNA can do now, Mr. Frechette emphasized, is give guidance and offer advice to these people.

What about the future of Sherbrooke's member of the National Assembly?

Raynald Frechette tells it this way: "increasing experience and knowledge of problems should normally increase my political responsibilities."

Anyhow, Mr. Frechette said he cherished no special ambition except maybe to continue serving the people of Sherbrooke county.

Father of three children: Lucie, 9, Patrick, 6, and Jacques, 2, Mr. Frechette is perfectly happy in his second marriage performed earlier this year.

The young MNA's first marriage ended tragically on Dec. 3, 1967, with the death of his wife in an automobile accident.

Although quite puzzled by the entire political process just a few months ago, Mrs. Frechette has demonstrated an uncommon eagerness to find out all about her husband's preoccupations and has candid interest in the subject of politics, her husband said.

It's difficult and somewhat painful for a father to be away from his family so many times during the year, he says, but it's all part of the game.

On the future of the National Union government Mr. Frechette ventured that much would depend on the result of the Liberal convention next January.

He feels that Pierre Laporte would be the best qualified candidate to lead the Liberal party

But, added Mr. Frechette, Premier Bertrand's self-control during the recent debate over Bill 63 confirms my conviction that he is capable of assuming the burden of prime minister with success for many years to come.

As lawyer, he once defended man who stole his snowmobile

"As a lawyer, I have the feeling I am being useful to people," says Raynald Frechette, and agrees that some attorneys often end up working for nothing.

In a way, the feeling of usefulness is translated by his interest in politics, which he admits, satisfies the need to help other people.

The successful businessman and company executive is not often the one who needs the law most.

Mr. Frechette's clientele includes the needy most often; the little man who is in trouble, either with the law or with someone else.

One not-too-typical case is the man who stole Mr. Frechette's snowmobile, then two days later, called to ask Mr. Frechette to defend him.

"Well, I defended the guy in court for stealing my snowmobile and obtained a suspended sentence for him."

"To be a lawyer, you have to be patient, and I believe I am patient."

The law firm of Frechette and Dube is going well enough, with an office in Coaticook and a third attorney joining his Sherbrooke office next spring.

But politics can spoil a law firm when the attorney is away.

Second-in-command, Laurent Dube, takes care of things while the MNA is away in Quebec City.

Mr. Frechette says he planned ahead when he was first elected and formed a partnership with Laurent Dube in 1966.

Prior to that, attorney Dube was practising law in Coaticook.

Reminiscing about his beginnings in the legal profession, Mr. Frechette noted that you couldn't turn down customers, who in most cases, were destitute.

Today, because of an increasingly busy schedule in the political circle, many interesting cases have to be referred to other lawyers.

Mr. Frechette takes a particular liking to criminal cases, where he has acted as defence counsel in many successful trials.

"If I were defeated at the next election, I would go back to my law practice," he says.

People are inclined to like your beliefs and proposals as your decisions and terms become crisp, clear cut. Partners are fairly easy to find and deal with. Romance is within reach if you have the time to devote to it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Odd experiences are commonplace today, and coincidence features a rather improbable or fascinating situation. New contacts are promising.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Everybody is acutely sensitive to disclosure of events of the last few days. Leave off the inquiry and you will eventually get a straighter story. Coincidence brings about a most extraordinary incident.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New people may become very important in your thinking. Your financial outlook improves abruptly, then settles to normal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): More facts come to light from travel undertaken for other reasons. Use notebooks or other ways of refreshing your memory. Nobody is very happy with your independent ideas, but much is at stake in looking after your own interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This Sunday it is important that you extend yourself and your resources to help keep the peace and to protect your community from dissension. Gladly make the effort.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Secret activities blunder into unexpected visibility this Sunday when you meet head on with somebody from your own bailiwick. It's better to stay home and concentrate on improving your mind or state of health.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be ready to discuss your specialty with a visiting stranger—it just may happen that someone of competence and charm arrives. Otherwise, solitary diversions are preferable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Original projects thrive until you expect everybody to give up his own doings and join in yours. Then all balk. Lessen your demands on others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): People are seeking you for a wide variety of reasons. Be ready to readjust according to whom the inquirers are. Keep your main discourse to social trivia. Direct questions will then indicate the interests of the strangers.

FOR MONDAY, DEC. 1, 1969

Your birthday today: Present conditions improve steadily in the year ahead as you achieve minor adjustments. Rough edges smooth as your skills sharpen. You must control your moods, yet find room to express yourself. Today's natives are headstrong, fatalistic, apt to plunge into ventures prematurely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get out bright and early, be conversant with the day's situation. Do not reply to provocative strangers. New starts are not favored this week.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Give other people extra space and time to work out details. Do your share with minimum comment. Routines, old matters can be cleared away now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Effort on necessary matters works out better than involving extra people. Tonight make use of the crosscurrents to hold a simple gathering of friends with differing viewpoints.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The less you expect from relatives, the happier your day turns out to be. Job applications and fresh beginnings are not favored at this time except as temporary expedients to fill gaps. Avoid unnecessary promises and travels.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The temptation is to begin the week with overoptimistic activity, with everybody you care about going along. Detailed preparations for later activities are strongly advised.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are close to your best today in material affairs if you will listen to the urging of your intuitive powers. Family members, friends, neighbors pose some distraction. Patience will be well rewarded.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Matters that already have been started go well. Relatives are quite sensitive. You are tactful enough in crucial situations; now you are tested in moments of drift and unpreparedness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stand on your own feet and do what you find is well within your reach. Prepare in advance for future activities. Social spending easily gets out of hand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Close associates are firmly with you today, according to how well you have dealt with them. Outside factors arouse impatience, perhaps hasty initiative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your natural tendency to plan ahead in detail requires verification of your information.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your judgment is sharper and more to the point than your friends' ideas. Do not expect favors or preference in the management of anything that is not entirely your own personal property.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What you do today benefits your partner or relatives more than it helps you. Expend as much energy as conditions permit; get a good start on the new week.

At the Moulin

Suburban Underground

SHERBROOKE — A group of Montreal's top musicians, who call themselves Theodore's Smokeshop, opened last night to a full house at the Moulin Rouge.

The six member group is one of the few on the Montreal music scene that displays such instrumental versatility in their playing.

Combining organ and vibes with clarinet, saxophone and a two-piece horn section, Theodore's Smokeshop performs a great variety of material with a professional touch.

They describe their music as "suburban underground" with good listening and dancing qualities.

Covering a wide scope of the general music scene, the group performs a selection of popular songs, including Blood, Sweat and Tears, Chicago Transit, and Paul Butterfield material. In addition, they play a number of their own original compositions, two of which may soon be released on a single.

Accomplished musicians in their own right, the six members of Theodore's Smokeshop come to Sherbrooke from Pointe Claire, where they began their careers in music.

Lead guitarist and saxophone player is Bruce Burrow, with Bill Bryons on drums.

On guitar, flute and clarinet is Gary Hynes with Tim Moxam providing the background beat on bass.

Les Clackette is the group's lead singer and Leon De Launey, on organ and vibes, completes the list.

The group has entertained at Montreal's Laugh-In and assorted High Schools in the area.

They have played extensively in Ontario as well, and have recently gained increased popularity in both provinces.

At the time of writing, Theodore's Smokeshop had been engaged to play the Moulin Rouge until Sunday, but don't be surprised if they stay for another week or even longer.

ONE CHURCH, TWO NATIONS? Edited by Philip LeBlanc, O.P. and Arnold Edinborough, Longmans Canada Limited, Price $6.50, 190 pages.

Fifteen distinguished Canadians discuss the ecumenical movement in Canada, each from the highly individual standpoint of his own particular field.

The background, present influence, and possible future of religious forces in Canada are considered by four historians, three sociologists, one Jewish and two Christian theologians, an ecumenist, a political scientist, a legal authority and Member of Parliament, a newspaper editor and a literary critic.

Religious unity and political disunity are the concerns of the contributors. Claude Ryan points out in his article on Religion versus Nationalism that the ecumenical movement is rapidly drawing the Christian Churches together while "the paradox is that Canadians are apparently remaining as far apart as they ever have been."

The writers make some sharp and critical observations of the ecumenical movement, as it is discussed against the background of the political arena. There are diametrically opposing views in their interpretation of the role of the church in political activity.

Here is a sampling of their opinions:

Ramsey Cook, Professor of History, University of Toronto states that the ecumenical movement will doubtless have some political implications in a country of religious and national divisions like Canada. But it would be a great mistake to expect that its effect on Canadian unity will be major. On the other hand George Johnston, of the Divinity Faculty, McGill University affirms that the reunion programs of the church, if they are to be faithful, must inevitably drive men on to the creation of one world and the reality of one brotherhood of mankind.

Paul W. Fox, Professor of Political Science, University of Toronto, asks the question, Does religious unity in Canada today lead to a new degree of political unity? He answers his question by saying he doubts if the religious unity in Canada today will have much direct effect in altering institutions so that they reflect a higher degree of political unity.

John Gwynne-Timothy, Professor of History, University of Western Ontario, a member of the General Commission of Church Union describes The Evolution of Protestant Nationalism but unlike Fox he concludes that the ecclesiastical union will strengthen the political bias of the churches to national unity.

Charles A. Tipp, Professor Church History, Central Baptist Seminary, a professed Evangelical lists many objections to unity. He concludes that the Evangelicals are concerned for the purity of the Church more than unity; for the truth or doctrine of the Church more than form and structure; and for liberty more than conformity for every individual.

An important theme throughout the book is the French-English question in Quebec.

ONE CHURCH, TWO NATIONS? presents a factual study of church union in Canada. Study groups would find it very helpful in stimulating discussion on the ecumenical movement in Canada.

BARTOK: Sonata for two pianos and percussion; POULENC: Sonata for two pianos. Bracha Eden and Alexander Tamir, pianists; with Tristan Fry and James Holland. London CS—6583.

Bartok's Sonata of 1937 is written for two pianos and a battery of percussion instruments. This is the way percussion should sound and be used. Instead of the usual improvised mess of emphatic noises, we get the utmost cool (to use the current term). In Bartok's hands, percussion becomes the most delicate, intricate, tasteful comment on all that is going on around it. What is going on around it, is the melodic and rhythmic statement of two pianos.

The piano in itself is, of course, a percussive instrument. But contrary to current notions, it is not only that; it is also the most lyrically singing of instruments. Thus we have, in this Bartok Sonata, a dovetailing, as it were, of tympani and piano strings; a melting of xylophone with legato singing; a fusion of cymbal and pedal. In other words, Bartok knows how to write; how to take diverse instruments and thoughts and fuse them into an artistic whole!

The piece is full of the most exciting wit and rhythm, as in all his music. Bartok makes use of folk material, gypsy tunes and movements. The whole of indigenous Hungary is in this Sonata — but with that artistic transmutation that takes the soppy tune and turns it into the purest of lines; that takes the coarse, available rhythm and turns it into the most intricate propulsion or wit. Listen to the deliberate perfection of the first movement for proof; or the sheer rhythmic versatility of the finale — that at the end runs out of steam and ends up in a drum exhausted of any wit but its own demise! Here is exciting fun!

On the other side of this record, the two percussionists quietly steal away and leave Eden and Tamir with their two grand pianos. What these two excellent artists are up to is hardly worth their talents. Poulenc's Sonata of 1952 sounds like a job of work, pleasant and charming as it is; and, truth to tell, the work was commissioned. The four movements succeed one another in easy fashion and with Gallic charm, urbane and witty, sadly sentimental and tear-drippy. What they add up to is a sort of reminiscent pastiche. The work at every corner reminds us of something else Poulenc wrote, particularly his Concerto for two pianos. But then, who has a better right to make music out of Poulenc than Poulenc?

Aquitted of murder - claims homosexual attack

BY BERNARD ST. LAURENT

SHERBROOKE — (BSL) — Andre Chouinard, 18, of Lac Megantic, was acquitted of a charge of unpremeditated murder yesterday after he testified at his trial that he had hit Emile Fecteau with a rock only after the latter had made violent homosexual advances toward him.

Fecteau, 48, of St. Ludger, died on the night of June 14 from a blow to his temple.

Chouinard, who took the stand to testify on his own behalf, said Fecteau tried to attack him after they drove together all night in Fecteau's car while drinking beer.

"He grabbed my neck," Chouinard recalled, "and pulled his zipper down."

The prosecution, led by Stanley Steinman, based its case on testimony by several witnesses that Chouinard was with the deceased for most of the evening of June 14.

The pair were seen travelling on small country roads during part of the evening, and at 6 a.m., they visited the Lavoie family in Lac Megantic for two and a half hours.

In his testimony, which lasted nearly all day, Chouinard told the court that his mother had taken in a lover and forced him to move out.

After three days in the woods, Chouinard said he decided to look for a job in Thetford Mines.

He had been on the highway only 15 minutes when Fecteau came along and offered him a ride, Chouinard testified. On what was apparently the road to Thetford Mines, both men consumed "a considerable amount of beer."

They left at approximately 8:30 a.m. and a few miles past Lapierre on the St-Robert road he said Fecteau made a pass at him.

"I got out of the car after I made him let go of me and started to run. Just as I was getting near the trunk he grabbed me again and started belting me in the stomach."

"I hit him once in the nose and he fell to the ground on his back."

"He was unconscious and bleeding badly. I stopped the first car to come along and asked the driver to call an ambulance for him."

"But then I figured that we should solve the matter ourselves. We had always got along and it was the first time that he pulled something like that. When he regained consciousness I put him in the car on the back seat. A few miles further on the route 24, he started getting the same ideas again."

"He got really mad and threatened to kill me with a gun that he had in the trunk. I was driving the car. So I stopped the car and went to the trunk to get the gun."

"I thought that he would listen to me if he were at gun point. I opened the trunk and saw that there was no gun. He had gotten out of the car in the meantime and grabbed me again. This time I started hitting him with my fists and feet."

"I remember hitting him once in the throat with my foot but that's all."

"He pushed me on the ground and I picked up a rock and heaved it at him. It got him on the side of the face and he fell to the ground. I got up and saw that he wasn't moving."

"I saw that he was dead and I got scared. I didn't know what to do so I dragged him into the woods not too far from the place he died."

"I wouldn't have done it if I thought that there was no gun in the trunk. I didn't mean to kill him but he attacked me."

Testimony by the only other defense witness, Jean Lin-Teau of St-Ludger, revealed that the deceased had tried to attack the witness about a week before the murder of Fecteau.

Defense attorney Jean Cormier said after the case that it was really Chouinard himself who won the case by his deep sincerity and obvious telling of the truth.

The jury took about 40 minutes to reach a verdict. The trial lasted four days.

The first trial was cancelled and a new one ordered by Judge William Mitchell when one of the jurors left custody while the jurors were attending a movie at the Granada theater Nov. 4.

Chouinard still faces a charge of possessing a firearm.

Papers to Red countries name CYC ' contacts'

OTTAWA (CP) — Papers seized from couriers en route to Cuba or Iron Curtain countries contain names of "well-placed" people in federal Crown corporations, chief city attorney Michel Cote of Montreal said Thursday night.

"They are named as contacts," Mr. Cote said in an interview after touching the subject during a Commons inquiry into the Company of Young Canadians.

"Whether they are would-be contacts or established contacts I do not know."

He told the committee earlier he would not elaborate on this aspect of testimony but hoped a royal commission on subversion would be set up to hear it in secret. Otherwise, national security and that of the persons involved might be imperilled.

"We know that CYC volunteers have sent such messages because we have seized these documents from the couriers," Mr. Cote said. He described the couriers as members of Quebec's Front de Liberation Populaire.

He said volunteers have sent messages to Cuba to Francois Bachand, a former CYC man who skipped bail on a robbery charge.

Mr. Cote told the inquiry he has documents that "tie in other people in Crown corporations" to the courier service.

The volunteer's letter, read by Mr. Cote, gave as his "credentials" a two-year suspended sentence for possession of dynamite, acquittal for conspiracy in the theft of a weapon "responsible for two deaths" and membership in the Popular Liberation Front in Montreal.

"We have other letters addressed to Cuba... found in the hands of a liberation front courier charged with delivering letters to Cuba," Mr. Cote said.

"And what gives you the feeling that people don't respect you anymore?"

A letter seized from the liberation front's political office referred to a CYC volunteer linked with demonstrations and to 10 members of the Front de Liberation Quebecois, a terrorist movement, who were in Cuba.

The same letter said the liberation front in future would advise the Cuban consul on the arrival of any members of the movement in Cuba.

Other correspondence connected with CYC volunteers said demonstrations on Quebec nationalist themes rather than labor were the most successful. It was suggested that emphasis be placed on such themes.

Mr. Cote said that shortly after, children throughout the province were parading against a draft bill in the Quebec legislature.

He did not name the bill or give the date of the demonstration.

Children joined a mass demonstration this fall against a new official languages bill passed by the provincial government.

Lucien Saulnier, Montreal executive committee chairman who spurred the inquiry with charges of subversion against the CYC, said it is only an element in a well-knit revolutionary movement that threatens not only Montreal but all Canada.

Mr. Saulnier said he advised Prime Minister Trudeau 11 or 12 months ago of suspicions about the CYC. He asked why the RCMP, which he said has the same information as do Montreal police, has not acted.

Mr. Saulnier said it is absurd that "the government responsible for the defence of the country should be using funds that serve to destroy our country."

Riot police called back

MONTREAL (CP) — About 50 riot-equipped Montreal police briefly patrolled the city's downtown area Thursday but were quickly withdrawn in the face of adverse public reaction.

Police reacted in the face of complaints from Montrealers and tourists who saw the officers wearing helmets with face shields and carrying three-foot riot batons.

A police spokesman said later: "It had been felt it was a good idea for people to get accustomed to seeing the men in crowd-control uniform which may be necessary during the weekend."

Police Director Jean-Paul Gilbert has promised visitors a peaceful Grey Cup weekend, and officials seem determined to maintain order, even at pre-game rallies such as one held in Place Bonaventure Thursday.

But out-of-towners may still get to see a couple of Quebec-style demonstrations. McGill University students have planned a peaceful protest and parade for 1 p.m. today in opposition to a recently-passed bylaw prohibiting demonstrations.

A number of women's organizations, led by Simone Chartrand, the wife of labor leader Michel Chartrand, say they will march on city hall at 8 p.m. tonight. According to their posters, they are demanding they be granted "fundamental liberties."

CONTRAST EVIDENT

But at the noon-hour gathering Thursday, there was a curious discrepancy between hundreds of businessmen, laughing and talking in small clusters, and the police, clutching clubs and plastic-visored helmets, who lurked behind pillars and doors.

After a musical interlude by a youthful drum and bugle band, which has played It's Just One of Those Songs That You Hear Now and Then at every rally this week, past and present football heroes were introduced.

Cigar-puffing Sam Etcheverry was given a rousing cheer, which rose to fever pitch when the master of ceremonies commented, "It's too bad they don't make them like that any more."

In another part of the city, nine Miss Grey Cup contestants who have been seen but not heard in various areas of Quebec since Monday, were finally given the opportunity to talk.

But not before reporters were warned not to ask the girls about politics, national unity or sex. The latter ban stems from last year, when one was asked whether she used birth-control pills.

Without exception, the girls professed to love Montreal.

UN caucus here tomorrow

SHERBROOKE — A caucus of Union Nationale members and delegates will be held here tomorrow at the CEGEP on Terrill St.

Tomorrow's meeting, the second of its kind in less than a year, has been called to decide on amendments to the party's constitution and to elect members to the central council.

Other purposes of the caucus were not revealed, but it is believed that nine advisors will be elected to the council from 10 regions.

Also scheduled are discussions on plans and programs for the next general election.

Delegates from 108 counties will cast a total of 324 votes on various subjects during the meeting.

Following the caucus, a news conference will be held in the CEGEP's hall number nine, at 5 p.m.

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Re-evaluate BAEQ program

QUEBEC — (CP) — A top-level meeting of federal and Quebec officials may be held in 1970 to reappraise the program for the development of eastern Quebec, provincial cabinet minister Marcel Masse said today.

Mr. Masse, minister responsible for the Office for Eastern Quebec Development, said Jean Marchand, federal minister for regional economic expansion, and MPs from the area will be invited to sit down with their provincial colleagues and try to figure out what is wrong with the program.

The area in question covers the lower St. Lawrence valley northeast of Quebec City, the Gaspe peninsula and the St. Lawrence gulf region.

Mr. Masse told reporters there are "gaps" in the existing federal-provincial agreement on the regional development program, affecting the co-ordination of effort, the fixing of priorities, and the carrying out of plans once they are settled. Nothing had yet been achieved in a practical sense and the economic situation in the Gaspe peninsula was getting worse instead of better.

May enter Liberal race

QUEBEC — (CP) — Gerard D. Levesque, industry minister in the former Liberal government of Quebec, is thinking of entering the race for the provincial party leadership.

He told reporters Wednesday he will announce his decision early in December.

A Liberal leadership convention to choose a successor to Jean Lesage is to be held here Jan. 16-17. The three declared candidates, who have been campaigning for several weeks, are: Pierre Laporte, former minister of municipal and cultural affairs; economist Robert Bourassa, the party's financial critic; and Claude Wagner, former justice minister.

30 bills to tackle

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand announced Thursday that at least 30 bills will have to be adopted before the fourth session of Quebec's national assembly ends about Dec.18 or 19.

And the import of some of the bills immediately sparked questions of a Quebec general election.

Mr. Bertrand, replying to a Liberal back-bencher, reiterated:

"I can say ... that there will be an election in 1970."

Mr. Bertrand had said legislation to be presented would touch on lotteries and would set up a ministry of communications.

The bill on lotteries could conceivably be the start of a provincial lottery to compete with Montreal's, which began in May, 1968.

Quebec's justice department has described Montreal's as illegal and it now is before the Supreme Court of Canada.

The ministry of communications is expected to be a cornerstone of a satellite program between Quebec and France.

Accept North America

MONTREAL (CP) — The challenge facing Quebec is to accept and succeed in the North American way of doing things, Jean-Louis Gagnon, co-chairman of the federal royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, said Thursday.

The Quebec that went its own way in isolation and indifference to the rest of the continent is gone forever, Mr. Gagnon said in a service club speech.

"We have to accept America. We could not stay outside America." This meant developing an education system that would prepare people for life in an industrial society.

PM says Biafra asked too much

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thurday Biafra asked Canada, during negotiations for daylight relief flights to the breakway Nigerian province for a political commitment that no country could give and remain impartial in the civil war issues.

This was the reason, he told the Commons during a day-long debate on aid in the civil war, the government is insisting on supporting International Red Cross daylight relief flights—if they can be arranged. The Red Cross has not flown relief to Nigeria or Biafra since June.

Mr. Trudeau spoke after Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) called for federal government financial assistance for Joint Church Aid and Canairelief in their work of sending food and other relief supplies into Biafra at night.

He said he could not give details of the diplomatic negotiations Canada conducted in trying to get agreement on daylight flights. But he added:

"Canada was asked for an assurance of a political character and of a nature so extreme that no government could accede to it and still make any claim to non-intervention and non-support of the political aims of one side or the other.

The Biafran request convinced him that Biafra's leaders were seeking political advantage.

Will 'yank the rug'

Bourassa promises to demolish Parti

POINTE-AU-PIC, Que. (CP) — Robert Bourassa, a candidate for the leadership of the Quebec Liberal party, Thursday promised to "yank the rug out from under Rene Levesque," leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois.

"I promise you that if I am elected leader I will make it my business to demolish the Parti Quebecois," he told delegates to the Liberal leadership convention to be held Jan. 16 to 17 in Quebec City.

The Liberal financial critic said that "logic and reason" must be used to solve Quebec's problems of social and industrial development.

"With a powerful team in Ottawa and a new, dynamic, modern-day oriented government in Quebec, I am certain that we can make federalism work.

"And, it is through this approach that I promise to yank the rug out from under Rene Levesque," the 36-year-old leadership hopeful said.

Mr. Bourassa, who represents the Montreal working-class constituency of Mercier in the National Assembly, is battling former Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner and Opposition House Leader Pierre Laporte for the top Liberal job left vacant by the resignation of Jean Lesage.

Quebec, Mr. Bourassa said, now has its back to the wall.

"The Union Nationale government seems fascinated with the politics of inertia which result in paralysis of the administrative apparatus. And the separatists, while calling for change and development, want to achieve this by tearing down the present structures."

"It is my belief, however, that what we have to change is not the structures, but the people. Problems today are infinitely too complex for the simplistic solutions offered by some politicians."

Massacre uproar continues

A worldwide uproar over the alleged American massacre of innocent civilians at My Lai, South Vietnam, continued unabated Thursday while the South Vietnamese government announced it would set up a committee to investigate the grisly affair.

Newspapers across Europe denounced the possible slaughter of at least 109 South Vietnamese men, women and children by United States troops at My Lai on March 16, 1968. The Communist world registered its protests.

Senator Tran Van Don, chairman of the South Vietnamese Senate's defence committee and Senator But Van Giai, chairman of the interior committee, at an urgent meeting Thursday, appointed a joint delegation to visit the village Monday.

Earlier this week, the lower house of the South Vietnamese National Assembly established a committee to investigate the alleged atrocities.

Meanwhile, a 22-year-old former U.S. soldier was quoted as saying in a newspaper interview in San Francisco Thursday he saw an army captain shoot a child during the incident.

"There was just this little kid there, this little boy, and I looked over and saw Medina shoot him," Richard Pendleton, a former private, was quoted in the San Francisco Chronicle.

Medina, commander of the company which included a platoon led by Lieut. William L. Calley—the only man charged with premeditated murder in the alleged massacre—has not previously been accused

Wilcat strike idles 1,850 at Thetford

THETFORD MINES —Officials of the Asbestos Corporation will meet tomorrow with union representatives to find a solution to yesterday's wildcat walk-out of about 1,850 workers of the company's top three mines.

A walk-out yesterday morning by workers of the King-Beaver mine here lead to the simultaneous walk-out of workers at the British Canadian mine in Black Lake and of miners at the Normandie mine in Vimy Ridge.

By mid-afternoon, the 1,800 striking workers had paralyzed the entire mining operations of Asbestos Corporation.

Union spokesmen here said yesterday the walk-out was prompted by the company's delay in meeting union demands.

Demands from the No. 4 King-Beaver mine workers resulted in bringing their parking lot closer to the mine.

Miners at the No. 3 King-Beaver mine has asked the company to allow transport buses to cross the gates at the mine and let them off nearer the entrance.

Union spokesmen said the conflict originated from a request from the King-Beaver workers two months ago to provide transport from the main gate to the mine, while the other King-Beaver workers wanted to change the location of the parking lot and reduce the distance they had to walk on wintry days.

Union demands were discussed with company officials in two meetings in both months, "to end up being rejected by the company," union spokesmen said.

In the case of the parking lot, the company had said that it was impossible to change the location of it. Tight finances prevented it.

The company had also ruled that permitting buses to pass the gates was against security regulations.

A brief meeting between both parties resulted in a new meeting for tomorrow afternoon.

Canada wants better postal deal with U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada intends to press hard for an improved postal agreement with the United States when the present reciprocal free delivery pact comes up for review next spring, the post office department budget director said Thursday.

Ronald Gunn made the comment in reply to a question from Barry Mather (NDP—Surrey) at the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee.

Noting the volume of U.S. mail carried by the Canadian postal service far exceeds the level of Canadian mail carried by the U.S. service, Mr. Mather asked how this imbalance can be justified.

Maltais deprived of seat

BAIE COMEAU, Que. — (CP) — Election of Pierre Maltais L.—Saguenay in the 1966 Quebec general election was declared null and void in a judgment rendered by the provincial court Thursday.

Three judges said they found Mr. Maltais had violated the electoral law during the campaign leading to the June 5, 1966, election.

Mr. Maltais, who won the seat with a plurality of 1,232 votes over Union Nationale candidate J. Ernest Bruvere, has 30 days in which to lodge an appeal.

In Quebec City, Gerard Lebel, speaker of the Quebec national assembly, said he will take no action until he knows whether Mr. Maltais plans to appeal the court's decision.

Two Union Nationale organizers petitioned the court to invalidate Mr. Maltais' election, alleging that he had made promises to various persons in violation of the electoral law.

Judges Richard Allevn, Georges E. Blanchard and Jean-Marie Houle ruled that the allegations have been substantiated and said that Mr. Maltais is ineligible and unfit to hold his seat.

PROMISED BEER LICENCES

Mr. Maltais was accused of promising to obtain licences for the sale of beer, and of promising money and favors in return for votes.

A question of privacy

It has been said that a child's education should begin 20 years before his birth, with the education of his parents.

Well-meaning but misguided parents have created an artificial problem at Alexander Galt Regional High School, and, as usual in these situations, it is their children who are suffering.

A few mothers discovered that communal showers were not only part of the school's facilities, but compulsory, following physical-education activities. Claiming invasion of privacy, health hazards and immorality—just for a start—they aired their objections on open-line programs. Then, demanding either non-compulsory showers or private stalls, a group of seven visited the principal. He simply reaffirmed the administration's position.

Undaunted, the parents are continuing the crusade.

Undoubtedly there are some boys who are reluctant to take communal showers. There are also children who are reluctant to start school or brush their teeth. If the shower issue had been treated in the same light it wouldn't have become one. Gentle persuasion by parents and tactful handling by the administration would certainly have resolved the situation painlessly.

Instead, a practice that is so common elsewhere that it passes unnoticed, has been inflamed and magnified completely out of perspective. Newspaper stories have helped fan the flames.

If the administration were to retreat each time a handful of parents claimed an encroachment of individual rights, total paralysis of authority would result to the detriment of both parents and students. After all, some students have been smoking for some time with their parents permission. Is the no-smoking rule an infringement of freedom of choice?

Identical shower facilities have been in use at the Richmond Regional for over a year without a murmur of dissent. A doctor's certificate will exempt a student from showering if there is a legitimate medical reason.

There are REAL problems to face with today's youth. Alcohol, promiscuity, rebellion against authority, drugs, etc. All the old ones and a few new ones. With a concentration of some 2,700 students at Alexander Galt, these serious concerns must be handled by reflective and informed adults.

And then there is the challenge of education itself. Few of us can discuss modern maths, electronics, computer programing or many other subjects on the curriculum, for that matter. But showers, now there is something you can really sink your teeth into.

Dropping the Lord's name to strengthen an argument can be somewhat ineffective when it is practised by opposing parties. After all, if the Lord had intended us to appear in the nude, we would have been born naked.

Unfortunately, the tempest in a teapot effectively overshadows any discussion of the opportunities previously unavailable to these same students....a complete weather observatory that can predict the weather as inaccurately as any other....a radio station where students can learn to discuss ludicrous and insignificant topics on open-line programs, and offset printing equipment where they can discover how to write a misleading story in their own newspaper.

The agony of our era is the necessity of dealing with problems for which there seems to be no solution. Concentration on the real ones is a full-time job for parents and administrators alike.

In name of democracy

The time seems rapidly approaching when the democracies will have legislated away their freedom. Then, of course, they will not be democracies anymore.

The case of a lonely Scot living in Eastbourne, England, offers an indication of what may be in store for the average man if the present tendency continues.

He was called before the authorities for having committed a heinous crime---inserting an advertisement in his local newspaper asking for a Scottish servant "for Scottish family able to do some plain cooking."

He was warned officially by the local committee appointed by Britain's Race Relations Board that his advertisement was considered "unlawful" by the Board because he was asking for a Scot and, thus, had discriminated against the English, Welsh, Irish, Australians, Indians, Pakistanies and perhaps even against Canadians.

Surely there is nothing more lonelier in England than a Scotsman surrounded by the Sassenach, a tribe not too familiar with "plain" Scottish cooking.

Therefore, that he should want a Scottish servant seems not to be so much a question of discrimination as a very natural desire to feel at home and all that word implies.

We wonder if the British Race Relations Board would have charged discrimination against an Ethiopian gentleman who advertised for an Ethiopian servant, believing that a man from his own country would have a better understanding of his needs.

Unfortunately, this absurdity perpetrated under the name "bill of rights" cannot be laughed off--we have adopted much of the same kind of silliness here in Canada.

MATTER OF FACT — JOSEPH ALSOP

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Among the New Left's numerous assaults upon academic freedom at Harvard and MIT, the most successful has been the attempted strangulation of MIT's great Instrumentation Laboratory. The I-Lab, as it is called, single-handedly provides the essential guidance-brains for the moon landings. So this is no trifling success.

Close study on the spot has revealed an even uglier story than was told in earlier reports in this space. But some New Left red herrings about the I-Lab must first be got out of the way. For this purpose, it is best to begin by being personal.

Long before the New Left storm troopers began to shout their slogans, I supported Harvard's decision to refuse all classified contracts, including defense contracts. And I thought MIT was mistaken when it made the contrary decision.

At Harvard long ago I also opposed the establishment of the East Asian Research Center because I considered this a wrong turning for the university to take. Yet Harvard made its decision to establish the center; and this is now germane because of the consequences.

The first consequence of Harvard's decision was to confer certain rights on all those who responded by joining the East Asian Center. As a second consequence, it would now be an outrageous invasion of academic freedom if I launched a campaign for the center's suppression because of its current infestation with junior Maoists.

ATTACK ON ACADEMIC FREEDOM

Here, the I-Lab case is exactly analogous. The MIT decision to accept classified research led on to the even bigger decision to continue the I-Lab after World War II had ended. Because of these decisions, precious rights were conferred on the faculty and staff members who joined the I-Lab. Thus, an attack on those rights is automatically an attack on academic freedom.

But there are other aspects of the I-Lab case as well. In this case, to begin with, MIT incurred heavy obligations to the taxpayers and government of this country. The government, relying upon MIT's above-cited decisions, came to rely entirely on the I-Lab for much research of the most vital national character.

From this, finally, MIT profited very richly. The I-Lab's government contracts have always included "overhead" payments to the university, which are now running at the rate of $11 million per annum. At a guess, these overhead payments are about one-half pure gravy for MIT. And this, of course, was why MIT simply let the I-Lab go on growing--as I believe, unwisely--until the New Left assault began last winter.

Intimidated by the New Left assault, MIT President Howard Johnson promptly organized the star chamber proceeding known as the Pounds Panel to sit in judgment on the I-Lab and on the Lincoln Laboratory as well. How this panel was submissively stacked with New Left representatives by New Left demand is a story that has already been told.

DESIRABLE IF 'OFF CAMPUS'

The line these men took on the Pounds Panel reveals the true New Left approach. It was easy for them to avoid infringement of academic freedom. It was easy to respect the long-established rights of the I-Lab staff members. It was easy--and also desirable--to get defense research "off campus."

All this could have been done by the simple expedient of "divestment." But this meant setting up the I-Lab as an independent research institution, free of MIT control and, not at all incidentally, beyond reach of New Left attack. Hence, divestment was violently opposed.

Continuing MIT control was just as violently insisted upon. MIT was further urged to use this control for immediate "conversion" of the I-Lab to higher, purer forms of socially useful research. Such was the New Left program.

"Conversion," of course, was a mere code word for strangulation. Being exceedingly intelligent men, Prof. Noam Chomsky and his allies on the Pounds Panel were naturally aware that the I-Lab's hundreds of brilliant guidance experts could not conceivably "convert" to expertise in such areas as urban sociology.

Yet they nonetheless demanded instant conversion, at least for that half of the I-Lab staff now engaged upon Defense Department contracts. It was like Harvard passing a rule requiring instant proficiency in classical Chinese, in which case most members of the East Asian Research Center would be out in the cold the next morning.

There are more ways than one, in short, of attacking the job security which is the very heart of academic freedom. And albeit indirectly, the New Left members of the Pounds Panel beyond question attacked their I-Lab colleagues in this heart area of their job security.

So we are back in the old Joe McCarthy-time once again, with a new, equally nasty political twist. But one must admit the New Left's neo-McCarthyites are far more adroit than the late senator, who used a meat-ax instead of a stiletto.

"Must be all those heavy new thoughts for the 70s . . ."

The French press on...

The language bill in retrospect

Montreal La Presse: One month and 16 hours of debate in the national assembly of Quebec; scenes in the street and monster demonstrations; decisions — among a handful of members — with incalculable consequences; a "silent" majority which remained too silent . . . it all ended with a vote of 67 in favor of Bill 63. The opponents numbered five; two abstentions and the absence! from the chamber of 10 government members and 20 Liberals must be noted.

From all evidence, the outcome, even though the law has been passed, remains precarious. The province of Quebec is entering an extremely difficult era. There will be no peace of mind, for there will be groups to re-kindle constantly the flame of dissent, as there will be men in politics firmly decided on stirring up new eddies. Nothing very pleasant awaits us at the outcome of this sinister adventure.

In any case, the hostilities are over and the new law's implications must be translated into reality. It is well-known what its opponents, who used a vocabulary of roughness, think of it. If they did not succeed in achieving a majority to block the bill, it is because their wild arguments were not enough to stir up the legislative mass, which preferred the Bertrand formula, that is, a "loyal try" at Bill 63.

We are in favor of this loyal try. We will have a general election in 1970, by far the most crucial event in our entire history, an event in which the electoral masses — and it is they who should say what they want and how they want it — will make a definite choice between the advocates of a fevered absolutism and those who see themselves the guardians of order without really being such wretches and rotten eggs. But until this important day, we must try to live, and it is not in an atmosphere of division, tension, fear or frenzy that we will be able to rediscover the calm necessary to fruitful deliberations. Can we then ask the licensed agitators to give us a bit of peace? — Roger Champoux

Montreal Le Devoir: The national assembly finally put an end . . . to the exhausting debate stirred up by Bill 63. . . One could passively accept this ending and find nothing more to say. But the experience of Bill 63 was very rich in lessons of all kinds for one not to show an interest in drawing a few useful conclusions. . . .

While the legislature was almost unanimous in its support for the bill, a real surprising could be witnessed in various circles. The opposition which arose against the oil was so strong, outside the legislature, that the impression was created of a break between the legislature and an important segment of public opinion.

From a social and moral point of view, who could maintain that the opposition to Bill 63 was only an artificial and transitory phenomenon? Let us draw a few reflections from this experience:

The "circumstantial opposition" led by Messrs. Levesque and Michaud played a vital role in the debate, a role whose importance largely excuses the objective abuses of procedure which they committed.

2. Three members had to leave the ranks of their respective parties during the debate because they could not agree with their colleagues regarding Bill 63. These members brought honor to their consciences by bringing their convictions before their immediate political interests.

3. The Bill 63 crisis showed that the representativeness of the legislature remains hazardous, doubtful and fragile. This mechanism of representation remains, however, the best in the eyes of a great many.

4. For certain opponents, Bill 63 was only a new pretext for trying to make something other than the legislature the legitimate forum of democracy. It cannot be repeated too often that this position is dangerous.

An important chapter in the history of democracy in Quebec has just been written. But the chapters to come remain uncertain, for they could depend on the importance taken on by the forces which have hardly begun to show themselves, but whose appearance has given them an unsuspected strength and fulness — Claude Ryan.

Bishop's stage hostsThe Visit

The Visit arrived last night on the stage of the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre as a highly-charged potpurri of human failure, greed and black humor laced liberally with the macabre.

Friederich Durrenmatt's play as directed by David Rittenhouse of the Bishop's English Department is high on gimmickery, but not so high on acting talent. However, the prevailing and carefully-nursed atmosphere of horror in itself makes the play worth seeing.

The setting of the play is Gullen, a little jerkwater town which somewhere along the line fell out of step in the march to the Great Society.

On this way, however, the town is all astir as Clara Zachanassian, the richest woman in the world, is about to pay a visit to the town where she was born and the town which she was forced to flee in disgrace after a youthful love affair had resulted in her bearing an illegitimate child.

In a dramatic and chilling scene, Madame arrives accompanied by her Latin lover who is about to become her eighth husband, her butler who was a former magistrate, two ex-mafia heavies who act as her full-time sedan chair bearers and part-time enforcers, and her two blind eunuchs.

The townfolk, led by the blustering burgermeister, greet the visitor with dollar signs illuminating their eyes and schemes to relieve her of some of her millions.

The tables are soon turned, however, when it becomes clear that Madame Zachanassian's visit is based on revenge rather than philanthropy.

She proposes to donate a billion marks to the town in return for the life of Anton Schill, the town grocer, who had denied being the father of her child at the time she was forced to leave Gullen.

The citizens in an outward orgy of self-righteousness at first reject the proposal, but then drift into a bigger orgy of credit spending. After a time it becomes clear that the credit is based on Schill's life.

The horror of Schill's growing realization of that fact, Clara's icy aloofness as the growing greed of the townspeople manifests itself, and the final rejection of human values is the basis the play rests upon.

And throughout the drama one can imagine the invisible spectre of Durrenmatt thumbing his nose at humanity.

The acting in the Bishop's production ranges from fairly good to generally mediocre.

Fiona Campbell is extremely well cast as Clara Zachanassian, but the role is far from challenging. Her task is mainly to act as the epicentre of the action and this she does with an icy grace which is in complete keeping with the atmosphere of the play.

Tom Rothney as Anton Schill was tremendous at times, but mostly he was average. Howard Hughes carried off his burgermeister part with aplomb, but he should stick to comic roles.

The real acting gems were found in some of the secondary roles. John Griffin and Bruce Retallack as the blindmen were near perfect, Bronwen Mantel as the burgermeister's wife was a delight as was Tim Belford as the bumbling Bobby.

Director Rittenhouse also deserves praise for coming up with two highly-believable hoods who look entirely borrowed from death row at Sing Sing.

The whole, however, has a unity of action, character, and atmosphere which overrides the mediocrities and makes The Visit a success.

There will be two more performances; one tonight and one Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Centennial Theatre.

Apollo moon probe yields new results

HOUSTON (AP) — Scientists had a triple threat Thursday—research on Apollo 12's moon rocks, the first close-up photographs of the Ocean of Storms and spectacular film of the earth eclipsing the sun.

Color movies and photographs taken during the moonwalks last week showed the place or origin for the rocks, which scientists note are larger and generally lighter in color than those fetched by Apollo 11 last July.

The blanket of grey dust dirtied the boots and snow-white space suits worn by astronauts Charles Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean, the photographs showed.

Apollo 12 astronauts Conrad, Bean and Richard F. Gordon Jr., meanwhile, enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner Thursday while quarantined aboard their recovery ship USS Hornet. They are to reach Hawaii today, then be flown nonstop to quarantine facilities elsewhere in the moon-rock laboratory at the Manned Space Centre here.

The photographs showed an eerie, unreal world with a coal black sky, long shadows, rocks and craters.

Service moving ahead with modern quarters

SHERBROOKE — The once crowded Technical Services employees down at city hall can now work and plan the city's urban future at ease in their new building.

With the city hall clan and the mayor attending the old "Unite Sanitaire" building was re-opened last night to serve as headquarters for the city's Technical Services Department.

During the opening ceremonies last night, Technical Services Director Frank Mascolo said the new location was "modern and functional."

Recalling the condition of the building at the time of purchase and the long months during which construction workers toiled to update it, engineer Mascolo said the end result had boosted the enthusiam of every staff member of the service.

"It is economical at the level of municipal management to set up the technical services staff in the renovated new building, Mr. Mascolo said.

Using a strip of barbed wire instead of the traditional ribbon, Mr. Mascolo reminded the audience of some of the problems staff members encountered in the development of new city land.

Addressing the group, Hilaire Beliveau, chairman of the Urban Renewal Committee, said the new building was a necessity for the technical services.

"The building was disgusting at the time of my first visit," said Mayor Armand Nadeau.

Mayor Nadeau recognized the very important role the technical services people played in the urban development of the city.

With this new building, the city now shelters its complete technical services facilities which not too long ago were boxed-up in the already too small city hall.

Of the 32 employees, director Mascolo said, eight are directly involved in urban affairs and landmarking, 12 are responsible for various services, while seven are committed to the permit section, and five engaged in general management.

For the staff in urban affairs, the focus is on zoning regulations and the La Have urban director plan prepared back in 1960.

Local Archbishop named to conference executive

SHERBROOKE — Sherbrooke's Roman Catholic Archbishop is now a member of the executive committee of the Canadian Catholic conference.

Archbishop Jean-Marie Fortier of Sherbrooke, Archbishop Henri Routhier of Grouard-Mc-Lennan, Alta., and Archbishop James Hayes of Halifax were elected to the executive committee of the Canadian Catholic Conference at the semi-annual meeting of Roman Catholic bishops Thursday.

They will join Archbishop J.A. Plourde of Ottawa, president; Bishop William E. Power of Antigonish, N.S., vice-president; and Bishop Francis A. Marrocco of Peterborough, Ont., treasurer; all elected earlier, as executive members.

John Everett Rollins, Canada's ambassador-designate to the Vatican, paid an unofficial visit to the Thursday morning session.

Initial consideration was given to a proposed pilot project to determine feasibility of restoring a permanent diaconate. It has been suggested this be established on an experimental basis in one large, one medium and one small diocese.

EVERY FEAR CAN BE CONQUERED BY LOVE LECTURER DECLARES

Fearful thinking is basic to most of the world's problems today, but mankind can progressively learn how to eliminate fear, a Christian Science lecturer declared in an address prepared for delivery in the Oval Room of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in downtown Montreal on Thursday evening, November 27.

The speaker was Noel D. Bryan-Jones of Worthing, Sussex, England, lecturing under the auspices of the Christian Science church on Cote des Neiges Road in Montreal. Mr. Bryan-Jones is a former First Reader of The Mother Church of Christian Science in Boston, Massachusetts; a public practitioner of Christian Science healing; and a member of the denomination's world - wide Board of Lectureship.

The lecturer explained that fear is overcome as one comes the auspices of the Christain divine Love, or divine Principle, governing man and the universe. Through this learning process our prayers rest on an understanding of the Father's good will for all His children, he stated.

The lecturer went on to say that "fear of disease, disaster, war, and poverty can be eliminated." He stated that the ability to do this is given to us by God. This ability is in accord with God's law of good that applies to human affairs and problems. He spoke of God's law of good as the Science of Christianity, which has divine Love, God, as its basic Principle. The lecturer said that the Bible teaches how fear is to be eliminated, and reminded his listeners of the prophet Isaiah's comforting words: "Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness."

Bridal shower

MONIQUE GAGNE

SUTTON — On Nov. 16th Mrs. Arnold Roya and Miss Lise Larivee were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower in Grace Church Parish Hall in honor of Miss Monique Gagne a December bride-to-be.

Miss Gagne was seated in a special chair in front of a table standard trimmed in yellow with a decorated umbrella. The umbrella concealed a bag of confetti which was later broken and showered over the bride-to-be. Little Miss Sabina Lengacher presented a beautiful yellow rose corsage to Mrs. Conrad Gagne, who in turn pinned it on her daughter, Monique.

The gifts were placed on a long table and Mrs. B. Russell presented them to the bride-to-be. She was assisted in opening the parcels by Miss Christine Lengacher, sister of the groom-to-be.

Seated beside Miss Gagne were her mother, Mrs. Gagne and her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Lengacher Jr. Two contests were enjoyed by the thirty relatives and friends present. The first was a clothes pin contest won by Trudy Jones and Mrs. Gagne, the second was "What a Bride should have for her Wedding and Honeymoon" and won by Jane Tetreault.

The hostesses served lunch assisted by several of the young girls. The bridal table was covered with a shower cloth and centred by a large arrangement of red roses and tall lighted candles. The shower cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Louis Booth, Sutton. Seated with the bride-to-be were her mother, the groom's parents, and his grandmother, Mrs. Alfred Lengacher Sr.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES TEMPLETON KERR following their wedding in St. Patrick's Church, Sherbrooke. Mrs. Kerr is the former Eileen Elizabeth Mouldy, daughter of Mrs. Ernest Mouldy and the late Mr. Mouldy. The groom is the son of Mrs. James Kerr and the late Mr. Kerr, Sherbrooke.

Kerr-Mouldy wedding

A military wedding took place recently in St-Patrick's Church, Sherbrooke, when Eileen Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mrs. Ernest Mouldy and the late Mr. Mouldy, was united in marriage to James Templeton Kerr, son of Mrs. James Kerr and the late Mr. Kerr. Msgr. J.R. Moisan officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mr. John Codere, church organist, played the wedding music. Standards of pink gladioli decorated the altar. The guests pews were marked with large pink satin bows.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Ralph King, the bride wore an A-line gown of shell pink polyester-acetate with a raised leaf design, a round neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The floor length train was fastened at the shoulders. Her short veil of pink tulle illusion was held by a pill box made of the same material as her dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of Forever Yours roses, pale pink miniature carnations and ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Lorraine Pluff, was attired in a floor length A-line gown of deep turquoise shantung, the bodice having a round neckline and bell sleeves. Her headdress was a short veil held by a matching bow. She carried a cascade bouquet of variegated green and white leaves. Little Kim Norris, flower girl for her aunt, was in a gown of similar design as the maid of honor's. She wore a bow in her hair and carried a basket of red tea roses, pale pink miniature carnations and ivy, with pink streamers.

Mrs. E. Mouldy, mother of the bride, wore a two piece dress of deep pink peau de soie with a lace coat. She wore navy accessories and a corsage of pale blue carnations.

Miss Margaret Kerr, sister of the groom, who stood proxy for their mother who was unable to attend, wore a three piece light blue suit, a pink hat and navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. Sgt. G. Blanchard was best man for the groom. The ushers were G.W. Bishop and D.J. Turnbull.

Before entering the armoury for a reception, a six man guard of honor formed an arch with their swords through which the bride and groom passed. The table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, made and decorated in pink and white by the bride's mother. White candles and deep pink carnations were used to decorate the tables.

A presentation was made to the couple by R. Knapp, president of the Mess, of a beautiful silver tray on which was engraved 40 names, all members of the Sgt's. Mess.

The Misses Karen and Kathy Guilbault, twin nieces of the bride, were in charge of the guest book.

Dancing was enjoyed by the guests to the music of Mr. Denis Lovett. Following the reception the couple left for Gray Rocks Inn, St-Jovite. The bride travelled in a jade green wool A-line dress with matching green and off-white checked coat, white hat and brown accessories. Her corsage was of orange delight roses.

Guests attending the wedding were from Toronto, Montreal, Three Rivers, Kingsbury, Richmond, Massawippi, Lennoxville and Sherbrooke.

21 Today...30 Tomorrow

Get used to "time flying." Put your skin on a stay-young plan today. Don't for a moment think if you're in your 20's you don't have to plan ahead. These are the "direction years," for what you do now in skin care will be what you'll look like when you're 30 and 40.

Elizabeth Arden's special representative, Mrs. Edwidge, will be at The Gallery of Cosmetics from Monday, Dec. 1st to Thursday, Dec. 4th, to help you get started on a complexion direction this very week, based on a group of very special Elizabeth Arden formulas. Each one of these preparations is specially geared to take "instant care" of danger areas if you're over 30 and help avoid them if you're under. Perfection Cream helps keep skin young, radiant. Beauty Sleep has moisture built in for resiliency. Crème Extrordinaire assists in keeping wrinkles at arm's length. Velva Cream Mask has Extract of Sea Moss to pep up a tired complexion and famous Orange Skin Cream denies dryness with its Orange Oil content and nature's own purified lanolin.

Ask today about Elizabeth Arden's plan for you. Don't wait!

Mrs. Edwidge

Meet Barracuda'70. Colour it wild.

A wild new sports car deserves something different in the way of colours. Barracuda '70 offers you a choice of 18 different colours. Some of which you never had in your crayon box. Like Ultra Violet, Super Yellow, Light Citron, and Vitamin C Orange. A word about performance: the high-performance Barracuda is called 'Cuda and it's a ground-shaker! A 383 cu. ins. V-8 is standard, but you can power up as high as a 426 Hemi or 440 Magnum.

On the other hand a 225 cu. ins. Six is standard on the basic Barracuda and this sort of thing saves you money. You see, Plymouth set out to build you a groovy sports car. But not at all costs.

PLYMOUTH FURY: Plymouth Fury makes it because it's made with more. It's a full 18 feet long. Its wheelbase measures over ten feet. And the extra width Plymouth has added between the rear wheels gives Fury today's wide stance look—and extra stability on the road. And you can choose from 30 models, including two new hot performers—the GT and S/23, with enough options to make your 1970 Fury purely, personally yours. Cut loose and give today's world a fling. That's what Fury is all about.

VALIANT DUSTER: A new sporty look in compacts. A distinctive new grille features integrated quartz iodine lamps. Smooth, curved sides are set off by ventless windows and the swept back roof-line blends into a short rear deck. Fiberglass-belted tires give greater traction and more mileage. In brief Duster is big enough but small enough. Snazzy enough but functional enough. Even briefer, Duster makes it.

PLYMOUTH BELVEDERE: This year, Plymouth's mid-sized Belvedere line covers the full spectrum—from sensible family cars with flair to rumbling, grumbling road machines. It includes the G.T.X., with a 440 high performance V-8 standard. Road Runner is even wilder this year. Then there's the sleek and stylish Satellite and Sport Satellite, and the economical Belvedere.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Contact Lenses Usually Should Cover Pupil

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—My contact lenses don't cover the entire pupil. Shouldn't they?

A—There are two kinds of contact lenses, those that cover the whites of the eyes as well as the cornea (scleral contacts) and the smaller corneal lenses that do not quite cover the entire iris but should cover the pupil unless it is abnormally dilated.

Q—I am 17 and have worn glasses for six years. Would contact lenses scratch my eyes?

A—Not if they are clean and are properly inserted. But they may cause some minor irritation until you get used to them.

Q—Must a person with severe progressive myopia who wears contact lenses eventually wear bifocal contact lenses or must he wear supplemental spectacles for reading?

A—Although bifocal contact lenses are thicker than the conventional type, more difficult to fit and more likely to irritate the conjunctiva, some persons are able to make the necessary adjustment.

Q—Would scleral contact lenses help a person whose eyelids turn inward?

A—They would be worth a trial.

Q—What are the reasons why a person should not wear contact lenses? Could a person with glaucoma wear them?

A—An irregular or scarred cornea and a tendency to conjunctivitis are the chief reasons why a person could not wear contact lenses. Glaucoma would not be such a reason.

Q—My doctor is giving me Eutonyl for high blood pressure. He says I shouldn't eat cheese while I am taking this drug. What would happen if I got a little cheese inadvertently?

A—Cheese and such foods as pickled herring, Chianti wine, pods of broad beans and chicken livers contain tyramine, a substance that increases the blood pressure. In persons who are not taking Eutonyl, enzymes quickly break down the tyramine and no harmful increase in blood pressure occurs. But the drug interferes with the action of these enzymes and a serious increase in blood pressure may result. A small amount of cheese taken inadvertently would probably not hurt you but you should not knowingly take any chances.

Jim: "Wouldn't it be nice if finesses always worked and suits always broke the way you wanted them to?"

Oswald: "It would be heaven for you but hell for your opponents. Meanwhile you should concentrate on making the best of your cards the way they actually fall."

Jim: "In this connection it is most important to study all possibilities before committing yourself. This hand played in a rubber bridge game by my Dallas Aces teammate Mike Lawrence illustrates this."

Oswald: "I see what you mean. If Mike led a trump at trick two the combination of a singleton club and three trumps in the West hand would have cost him slam, game and rubber."

Jim: "Mike is a pretty fast player but he thought quite awhile before leading to the second trick. He decided that the actual bad break was far more probable than to find all six spades in one hand and that he should play ace and another spade to see what would happen."

Oswald: "He found out quickly enough. West dropped the king under the ace but when he had to follow to the second spade Mike was sure of his contract."

Jim: "With spades breaking 4-2 he was able to ruff two spades in dummy. Thus a trump lead could not hurt him. Also he was careful to ruff the club when East led it."

Oswald: "As is frequently the case with successful slams, the hand could have been beaten. If West had opened a trump the combination of bad breaks in spades, hearts and clubs would have been too much for him to handle."

Campbell's hard-line tactics result in Ferguson six-game suspension

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, Thursday night suspended John Ferguson, Montreal Canadiens left winger, for six games and handed out a total of $5,775 in fines to two clubs and their players.

The penalties were the result of a stick-swinging incident between Ferguson and Gary Sabourin of St. Louis Blues at St. Louis Nov. 15. The incident was followed by a general melee in which players from both teams left their benches.

Ferguson's suspension included Wednesday night's game against the Maple Leafs in Toronto, which he sat out by the president's order.

The NHL president slapped the St. Louis hockey club with a $2,000 fine for failing to stop its players' mass exodus from the bench and the Montreal club $1,000 for the same infraction.

The difference in the club fines was due to the fact that the Nov. 15 incident was the second violation by the Blues in successive games.

Ferguson, who received a match penalty and an automatic $100 fine and an additional $25 for a misconduct penalty, also is assessed $200 for stick-swinging, bringing his outlay to $325.

LOSES SALARY

In addition, the 31-year-old Vancouver native will have his salary for the six games he misses remitted to the NHL.

Campbell gave 11 players from each club fines of $100 each for leaving the bench. He tacked an extra fine of $100 on the Blues' Tim Ecclestone for being first to leave the bench and an extra $150 on Noel Picard of St. Louis for leaving the penalty bench to join the fracas.

Campbell, president of the league since 1946, said it is the stiffest penalty he has ever handed out.

Ferguson was issued the match penalty by referee Lloyd Gilmour for "his deliberate attempt to injure Sabourin" late in the second period of the contest.

A formal hearing was conducted at the league office Tuesday with all the principals in attendance.

It was following this hearing that Campbell ordered Ferguson set down for the Wednesday night Toronto contest which Montreal won 3-1.

The incident between Ferguson and Sabourin occurred at 13:51 of the second period in the St. Louis game. Campbell's statement said the game produced some heavy bumping, "but no viciousness or unusual incidents between the teams."

"Sabourin had just crossed the Montreal blue line into the neutral zone and was turning toward the board on the penalty box side of the rink," Campbell said. "This brought him on a collision course with Ferguson who had just been in a heavy collision with another St. Louis player (Frank St. Marseille) along the boards.

Just before they collided, the puck came to Sabourin along the ice and he banked it off the boards into the Montreal defensive zone.

"As they came together, Sabourin raised his stick in front of his body. Ferguson responded with an overhand half-swing delivered with both hands on the stick, which the referee described as a 'chop,' which struck Sabourin on the right side of his head."

The blow is described in the statement as "glancing." It raised a welt but did not break the skin.

SABOURIN DAZED

"Sabourin sank to the ice on his knees in a dazed condition and the referee immediately halted the play and signalled a penalty to Ferguson."

Sabourin returned to play strongly in the third period.

"As soon as the play stopped, Picard and Ferguson became involved in a fight and they wound up wrestling to the ice," Campbell added.

Gilmour imposed a match penalty on Ferguson for "deliberate attempt to injure" and gave Picard and Ferguson major penalties for fighting.

During the fight all players on the ice had paired off except Sabourin, and Ecclestone came off the bench to offset the extra Montreal player but took no part in the fighting.

"Picard finally took his place on the penalty bench... and Ferguson proceeded to the exit," the president's statement added.

BATTLE RENEWED

"Just as he (Ferguson) reached the gate, he became engaged in a fight with Bob Plager of St. Louis, who had pursued him as he was leaving the ice. This precipitated an exodus of all players from the benches and a general free-for-all occurred. Picard also left the penalty bench to participate."

Gilmour, when order was restored, imposed major penalties to Plager and Ferguson which carried an additional automatic misconduct penalty to Ferguson for incurring two majors.

Campbell summed up by saying that the incident "had none of the characteristics of the Wayne Maki-Ted Green affair in Ottawa Sept. 21.

That one sent Green to the hospital with a fractured skull and will keep him out of Boston Bruins lineup indefinitely. Maki, now with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, was suspended for 30 days, while Green must serve a 13-game suspension when he is deemed ready to return to hockey by an NHL doctor.

Campbell's statement on the Nov. 15 fracas continued:

"Ferguson's reaction to the collision was instinctive reflex action conditioned probably by his declared attitude to such situations. "Apart from stating that he had no intention 'to hurt Sabourin,' he seemed to feel that his action was completely normal and justifiable."

The league president said he views this as a form of intimidation which has become part of Ferguson's attitude toward his play, "of which there is ample confirmation in his personal record although he has never received a match penalty previously.

SKIING

in the Townships

By Charles Catchpaugh

Snow . . . that priceless gift to skiers from mother nature is here to stay, at least that's what the weather man tells us. Last weekend, several centres had slope-sliders on their hills, and this Saturday and Sunday should be a booming beginning to the 1969-70 ski season. I haven't got an overall resume on plans by regional resorts, but quoting an unofficial source, I can relay the message, which is that you'll probably be able to ski at any of the major stations, providing of course that you are happy to stick to the less challenging sodded slopes.

Going across the Townships, I have an account of the Mt. Sutton ski fashion show run last Saturday night by Jean Lessard. It was a huge success, and a real education to anyone concerned with ski fashions. Navy blue, I'm told, is the vogue basic shade for this winter. What a contrast from last season's shocking pinks, stunning yellows, and simulated flesh tones. One thing hasn't changed, every stretchy item is still endowed with that appearance of being four sizes too small, and reveals every crease in the human torso, but the bell-bottoms, flares and extra yardage craze has also found its way onto the hills, but more as clothing for casual use than down-to-earth skiing practicability.

Another word from Sutton, has to do with that area's Christmas training camp.

The Mont-Sutton Ski Club and the Jean Lessard Ski School today announced that the annual ski racers camp at Mont-Sutton will be held this year from December 25, to January 1st, 1970.

Training will be under the instruction of Jean Lessard, Yves Bienvenue and Michel Dubreuil, with Denis Boulanger and Charles Kelly as assistant instructors.

Training includes Ski racing techniques, Waxing Dry Clincis, films and actual racing. Proficiency tests on December 25 to determine levels of ability, and races at the end of the course to determine the selection of the Mont-Sutton Racing team.

The course is open to juniors from 10 years of age and the cost is $33, with lifts costing $10 for those without season tickets.

New at Sutton this year, is an additional building with added facilities for patrons and the many who go to the area just to watch people on the hill.

The Jay Peak Mountain News went to press for the first time in October, and promises to be a great success. Editor is Ken Poole, former public relations officer at Jay. This 20 issues a year publication will carry just about everything: local news, special features, columns, lively editorial. Jay Ski Team coverage and much more. THE JAY PEAK MOUNTAIN NEWS will also be sponsoring the 1st Annual Miss Jay Snowqueen Contest. Know a likely candidate?

+++

Skiers in the news, another feature of my column shall make up part of my weekly package this winter.

This week I have singled out an old friend and great sportsman from Magog, Henri Morin, owner of Magog Marine Sales and Service, 675 Thomas Avenue, who will again do ski repairs, fittings and adjustments. Years ago, Henri was hailed from near and far as a magician with skis, and then the equipment took an upward flare from conventional woods, Kandahar bingings and bamboos. Henri, however, didn't lose interest, instead he kept pace, but dropped the ski service end of business. Now, he is slowly getting back to the old game, and even at 60, he's an artist with the hickories besides the new composite skis.

Wings bury Kings 5-1; Orr sparks Bruins

National Hockey League coaches often express satisfaction at gaining a tie on the opposition's home ice.

But coach Hal Laycoe of Los Angeles Kings could be excused if he became ecstatic when his charges next pick up a point on their current nine-game road trip.

The Kings were in Detroit Thursday night where Frank Mahovlich led the Red Wings in a 5-1 victory to extend the Los Angeles winless streak to nine games. In one other game, Boston Bruins downed Philadelphia Flyers 6-4.

The Kings' last victory was a 6-2 decision over Toronto Maple Leafs in Los Angeles three weeks ago. They lost their next two games at home before starting out on the nine-game road trip which so far has netted them only one point on a tie with the Leafs in Toronto.

Doormats of the West Division with just three wins in 18 games, the Kings still have road games against St. Louis Saturday and Oakland Tuesday before returning to the dubious advantage of home ice at the Los Angeles Forum.

The Red Wings, meanwhile, snapped a six-game winless streak to reclaim fourth place in the East Division from the Chicago Black Hawks.

Mahovlich started the march in the first period before 12,886 Detroit fans when he set up Wayne Connelly, who beat Kings goalie Gerry Desjardins.

SCORES EIGHTH GOAL

Three minutes later, Mahovlich scored his eighth goal on a pass from defenceman Carl Brewer. Pete Stemkowski started the second-period scoring with Mahovlich adding his second of the night six minutes later.

Detroit centre Garry Unger and rookie Butch Goring of the Kings exchanged third-period goals. Goring's play came with just 1:22 left to ruin Roger Crozier's chance at earning his first shutout since Oct. 22, 1967.

Boston defenceman Bobby Orr reclaimed sole possession of the scoring leadership with two goals and one assist in the victory before 14,831 at Boston. Orr's three points broke a 30-point tie with Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues.

Phil Esposito, last season's scoring champion, picked up four points on a goal and three assists for a season-total of 23 points.

Eddie Westfall, Johnny Bucyk and Johnny McKenzie rounded out the Boston scoring. Jim Johnson scored twice

Beaver lead erased, Bruins win 7-6

SHAWINIGAN — The Shawinigan Bruins jumped into second place in the East Division of the Quebec junior "A" League by virtue of a 7-6 victory over the Sherbrooke Beavers last night.

Mike Morton and Yves Bergeron each capped the win with a hat trick while Michel Letourneau added the single tally.

Bruno Isabelle, Normand Dube, Denis Dussault, Jean Lemieux, Michel Lepage and Gerald Lecompte provided the Beaver goals.

Sherbrooke held a 3-1 edge until midway into the second period when the Bruins suddenly exploded with five goals, and exhausted the teetering Beaver defence while firing 24 shots at goaltender Belanger.

In other league action last night, the Sorel Black Hawks defeated Rosemount 6-4 and Cornwall tripped Laval 5-3.

Tonight, Trois-Rivieres is at Quebec to meet the Ramparts while Sorel play at Drummondville.

Sorel's victory forces the Quebec Ramparts to share their first place laurels. Each club has 28 points.

Trot-pace features Sunday racing

By LEN O'DONNELL

The final program of the season will be held Sunday afternoon at the Sherbrooke Race Track, announced Charles Connors, general-manager of the track, yesterday afternoon.

The Sunday program is the 72nd of the current season and a good crowd is expected to be on hand for the final event of the year. A well balanced card has been lined up by Len O'Donnell, racing secretary, and the fans should witness some good racing before the winners are declared.

The main dash on the card will be a Trot-Pace which is listed as the ninth race on the program. Three of the top trotters, Nosdell Herman, Baron Chief and Ray Ban, will join five of the top pacers in the combined event.

This is the first time this season that a mixed class is on the program and a good race should be witnessed, providing the track is in good condition. Brochu's Isola Abe, fresh from winning last Sunday in 2:12 two-fifth, is installed a slight favorite but the competition will be tougher Sunday.

Charles Coombs' Lovely Palis along with Noel Paquet and his trotter Baron Chief must be given serious consideration for top honors. The three trotters have all drawn the inside positions according to Canadian Trotting Association rules when mixed classes are staged.

There is one class of trotters while the rest of the card are strictly pacers. The fifth dash, for non-winners of a $1,000, should be another tough battle before a winner emerges from the eight-horse field. Windsor Boy, Mary K. Wilson and Admiral Richelieu are given the edge over the rest of the pack.

Tony Clap, formerly owned by Curtis Chute of Bulwer, will be making a start in the class. C. Rocheleau will be the teamster but his entry has failed to show any of his former style. He has been having trouble in getting started and has not taken many starts this year.

Gaiter pucksters, cagers at home

LENNOXVILLE — (BH) — The Bishop's Gaiters, currently holding a 2-2 record in their regular season OSLAA schedule will be at home to entertain Sir George Williams Friday night and Trois-Rivieres Saturday afternoon.

This is the first encounter between Bishop's and the Georgians, who upset the Loyola Warriors in the OSLAA playoffs last spring at the Sports Palace then defeated the Gaiters in the final.

The University of Sherbrooke, meanwhile, appear to be strong contenders (along with the Gaiters, Loyola, and Sir George) and sport an unbeaten record of three wins and a tie. The Vert et Or downed the Georgians last night 8-6 to vault into first place with the Loyola Warriors.

Macdonald College and Sir George invade the "pit" on Friday and Saturday respectively to tangle with the Bishop's cagers.

Stanstead College

STANSTEAD — Lorne Bouchard, a noted artist, and his wife, Mrs. Bouchard, both of Montreal, arrived at Stanstead on Nov. 26. The evening of Friday, Nov. 28, there will be an exhibition of Mr. Bouchard's painting in Le Baron Hall from 7:30 to 9 p.m. to which the public is invited. There is currently an exhibition of Mr. Bouchard's in the Klinkhoff gallery in Montreal.

+++

Several boys will be going to King's Hall, Compton, as guests of that school for an evening of swimming, buffet and dancing. Members of the staff will also be along.

+++

Several are planning to attend the Bishop's University play on Nov. 27-28-29 in Lennoxville. The title of the play is The Visit.

+++

The Cadets meet at assembly with the band in attendance.

+++

Basketball, hockey and skiing will get underway after the holidays which will soon be here.

An exhibition hockey game was played on Nov. 19 with the Galt Regional school at Lennoxville. Stanstead won with a score of three to Regional's one. Scoring for Stanstead were Tim Manning and Scott Waugh.

In the league games, the school played the Sherbrooke Seminary on Nov. 22 and won with a score of six to one. Mike Allard scored twice, and one each was made by Tim Manning, Dave Ross, Andy Lester and Steve Mitchell.

+++

Dave Patrick, Lloyd Brown and Tim Wright have organized a plane club. The boys have their own club room with model planes. Duncan Graham, staff advisor, says the boys are tremendously interested and plan a spring air show.

Tourists To Hawaii

HONOLULU—(NEA)—Ten years after achieving statehood, Hawaii is having growing pains, but pain in paradise isn't too hard to take.

Those rumors that "Waikiki has become another Miami" haven't hurt and airliners from the mainland are pouring record loads of tourists into the islands, most of whom just can't wait to shoulder other tourists in the densely populated Waikiki beach area.

Hotels and condominium apartment houses up to 24 stories high shoulder each other in downtown Honolulu almost as closely as the aloha shirt-clad men and muu muu-wearing women tourists.

This closeness has brought a new sidelight of tourism—voyeurism. Some Honolulu hotels are crowded so closely that the best view from one's lanai (porch) is the rooms of the opposite building. A common sight is a man in shorts smoking a cigar and checking the rooms a few hundred yards away with binoculars. Some blatantly use telescopes on tripods.

Residents tell of being invited to visit friends in a hotel for a rubbernecking party featuring such attractions as a careless blonde who forgets to pull the drapes when she undrapes.

Another attraction for would-be voyeurs, who shed mainland inhibitions when they don flower prints and leis, is the night clubs which now feature the violent, sexy dancing of the South Seas in contrast with the gentle Hawaiian hula.

Hula hips now rotate to banging bongos instead of undulating to the rhythm of waving palms. The traditional hula isn't show biz any more.

Peace, beauty, quietude and relatively unspoiled native custom are sought by many in the outer islands, such as the so-called Big Island (Hawaii), Maui, Kauai and Molokai. Already bulldozers and construction cranes are at work on many beautiful beaches and many an isolated valley is sprouting a high-rise apartment building, but there's too much landscape for man ever to mar completely.
