Peacekeepers intervene to halt Lebanese army brutality

BEIRUT (AP) — Peacekeeping soldiers are reported to be intervening to stop brutality against Palestinians by Lebanese soldiers, who have seized hundreds of alleged criminals, illegal aliens and guns in a sweep of West Beirut.

Italy's ambassador to Lebanon said after more mass arrests on Wednesday that Italian members of the tri-national peacekeeping force have stopped Lebanese regulars from beating a Palestinian.

President Amin Gemayel told ambassadors from countries who contributed to the peacekeeping force that four Lebanese officers have been disciplined for brutality and that future violators will be severely punished, French diplomatic sources said.

In Jerusalem, Israeli officials said Syria has refused to agree to simultaneous withdrawal of Syrian and Israeli forces from Lebanon, but that the Syrian position was viewed as an opening position that could be negotiated.

They said U.S. peace envoy Morris Draper, mediating efforts to get all foreign armies out of Lebanon, informed Israeli officials that the Syrians want the Israeli soldiers who invaded Lebanon four months ago to leave first.

Draper was in Jerusalem to inform Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Syria's position. Israeli officials said later that both men agreed on the need for a simultaneous withdrawal of forces.

'Shut up!' Reagan tells candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican candidate who created a scene at the White House and was told by President Reagan to shut up says he spoke out because "somebody has to say that the emperor has no clothes."

"There are two Reagans," Gary Richard Arnold said Wednesday after his extraordinary confrontation with the president. "I agree with 90 per cent of what he says, and disagree with 90 per cent of what he does."

Arnold, a Santa Cruz, Calif., businessman, touched off the incident in the White House as Reagan was giving a pep talk to 90 Republican candidates.

Reagan was trying to make the point that before he took office, government spending had been rising faster than Americans' wages. Suddenly, Arnold rose from his back-row chair and interrupted the president.

In a defiant tone, Arnold charged that Reagan was responsible for the largest tax increase in history, had abandoned Taiwan, had increased trade with the Soviet Union and had not carried out the Republican party platform of 1980.

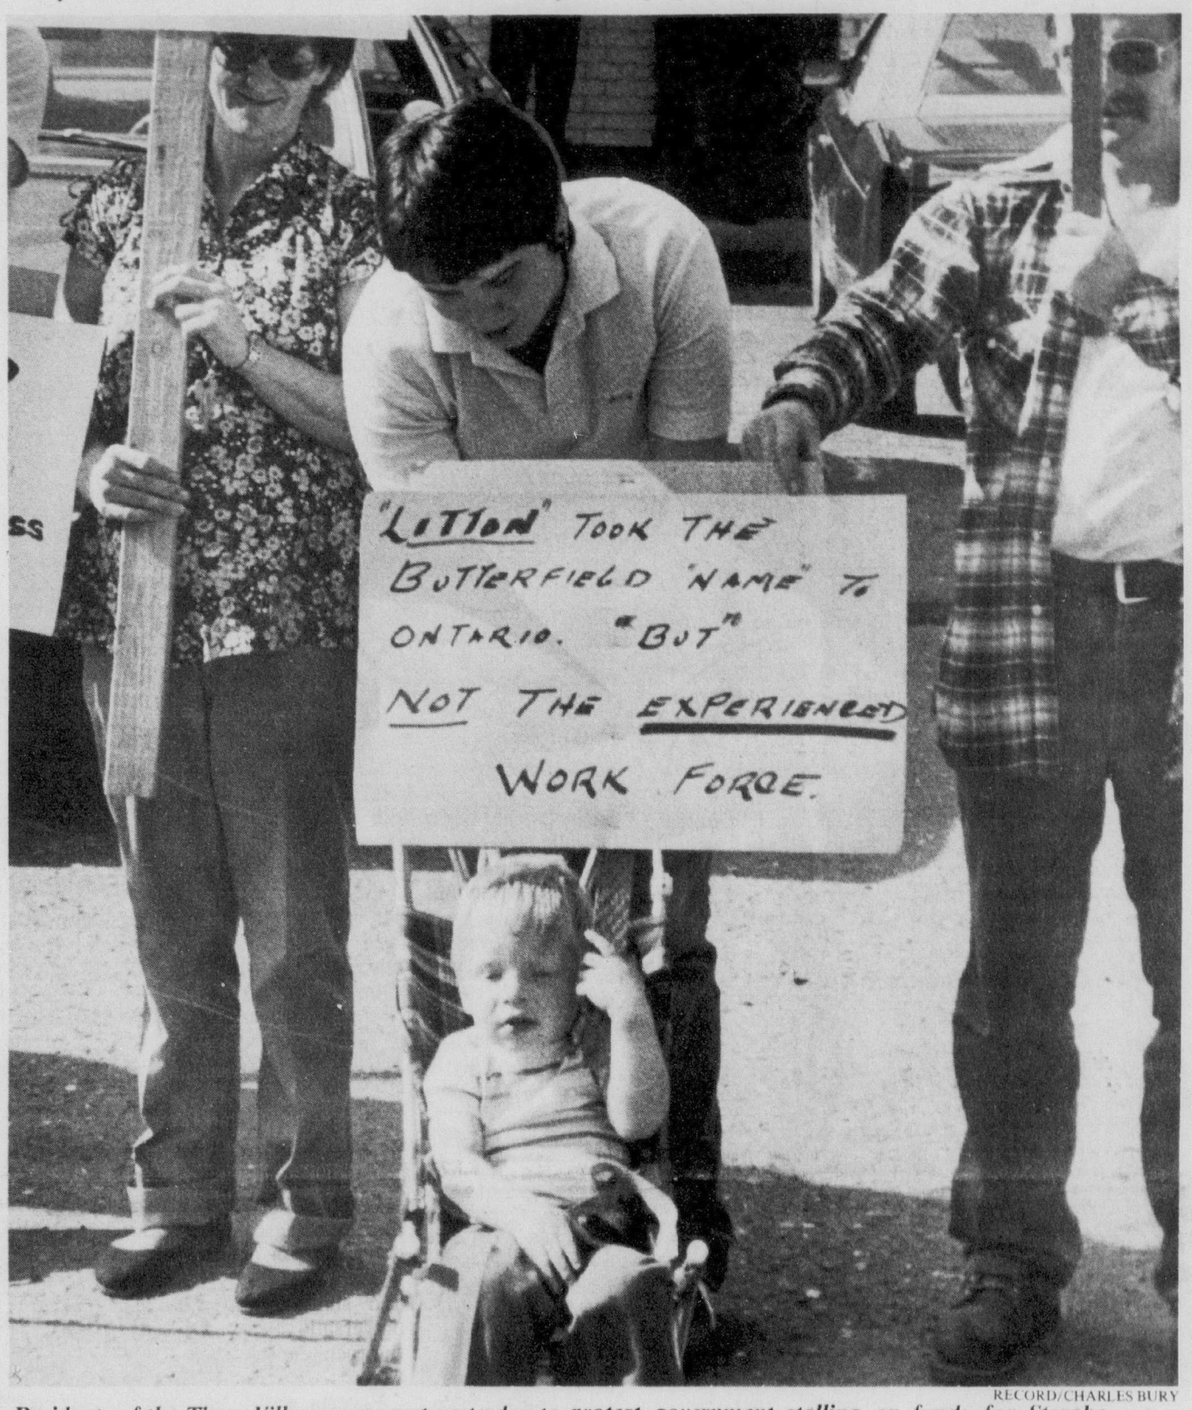

Red-faced and angry, Reagan stared directly at Arnold and replied: "OK. I don't know who the two of you are, but you haven't said a word that's true yet."

The president frequently pointed his finger at Arnold thoughout the exchange.

Finally, Reagan lost his patience when Arnold kept interrupting and refused to let the president reply.

"Shut up," Reagan snapped. "Look."

Shortly afterward, Arnold sat down and Reagan went on with his speech.

Residents of the Three Villages were out yesterday to protest government stalling on funds for Starobe. Everyone got in on the act.

Rock Island demo attacks fed stalling

By Charles Bury

ROCK ISLAND — Hundreds of unemployed and underemployed workers, local politicians and the few remaining businessmen attacked the federal government at a double-barreled demonstration Wednesday for stalling on promised help to the hard-pressed Three Villages region.

Over 200 unhappy demonstrators — many with nothing else to do since they lost their jobs earlier this year — rallied outside the offices of the newly-formed Starobe machine tool company at lunch time to show they are behind efforts to get federal-government help for the firm. Later, some of the same protesters gathered outside the Rock Island town hall to give their support to the mayors of Rock Island, Stanstead and Beebe, who held a joint press conference to underline their discontent with the way Ottawa is neglecting their predicament.

The Three Villages, nestled along the Vermont border south of Sherbrooke, have a combined unemployment rate of more than 40 per cent. One main industry, the Butterfield division of the giant multinational Litton Industries, wiped out more than 200 jobs May 27 when it closed its 101-year-old cutting tools plant and moved the operation to Smiths Falls, Ontario. Another local industry, Jomac Glove, faces chronic difficulties because of low-priced imports from Third-World countries. The third major local industry, granite mining and machining, is threatened by similar imports if the federal government acts on recent recommendations and wipes out import barriers.

When the Butterfield closing was announced, federal officials along with the Three Villages municipal councils, the workers union and Litton management combined to set up a manpower training and adaptation committee (CAMO) to help workers find other jobs, help interested businessmen set up in the depressed area, and seek assistance from government.

Feds won't deny welfare cuts will come — Roberts

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet's powerful priorities and planning committee won't assure Liberal MPs that social assistance programs such as family allowances and old age pensions will not be touched in the hunt for money to create new jobs.

"I'm not prepared to give assurances about anything," Environment Minister John Roberts, the committee spokesman, told reporters Wednesday.

Roberts, speaking after the first day of a special two-day committee session to set plans for the fall and winter, confirmed that social programs were among the issues the group discussed.

Significantly, Health and Welfare Minister Monique Begin — responsible for most such programs — was the only minister not on the committee who was invited to attend.

Begin left before reporters could speak with her but Roberts said the committee is looking at a variety of scenarios and is "not excluding anything."

A senior government official, who asked not to be named, also said the cabinet is studying several possible tradeoffs among social, economic and other objectives. He would not elaborate.

Liberal MPs told the cabinet Tuesday at a special four-hour caucus that they don't want the government to abandon the principle that family allowances and similar programs are applied universally, that is, they are not tied to the recipient's income.

CONTINUES SEARCH

Roberts said the government is continuing its search for ways to divert more spending into job creation to ease the country's record unemployment but he and other ministers were even more vague than they have been to date in telling reporters what Canadians can expect.

Sent out to field questions despite the fact he has just joined the committee, Roberts either declined to answer or referred all the tough questions to Finance Minister Marc Lalonde, who refused to talk to reporters.

For example, Roberts wouldn't confirm or deny a suggestion that the federal deficit — forecast in June to be a record $20-billion this year — will likely be $26 billion to $28 billion.

"I'm not here to tell you exactly what information was provided to cabinet . . . I'm not going to get into the game of agreeig or disagreeing with various statements sane or wild that are made by you about what might have been said to them (the ministers)."

John Roberts... no assurances

He also refused to answer when asked if the government still has the $1 billion or more in unallocated funds that were outlined in the June budget.

Roberts said the 13-member committee led by Prime Minister Trudeau is still studying a range of options for the fall and winter but decisions are still some time away.

The committee, meeting at Meech Lake in Quebec's Gatineau national park, continues its session today.

The full cabinet holds its regular meeting Thursday, to be followed by a regular committee meeting next week and a full-day session of the cabinet next Thursday.

The committee met as the latest Gallup poll showed that Liberal support, which rebounded by three points in August from a record low, fell one point to 30 per cent in September.

Meanwhile, Conservative support rose one point to 45 per cent and NDP popularity fell one point to 22 per cent.

Trudeau declined to comment on the figures but some ministers took solace from the fact that the number of undecided voters rose to 31 per cent from 25 per cent.

"I think that's an indication that people are rethinking the situation based on changing circumstances," said International Trade Minister Gerald Regan.

Regan said he has "never been tremendously fascinated by polls," except at election time.

Second climber reaches summit

KATMANDU (CP) — Canadian climber Patrick Morrow and two Sherpa guides reached the summit of Mount Everest today and were spotted descending from the world's highest mountain shortly before 6 a.m. EDT, expedition leader Bill March said.

March said the sighting officially confirms the second Canadian conquest of Everest this week.

March said in a radio call to the base of the mountain from an advance camp that Morrow and Sherpa guides Lhapka Tshering and Pema Dorje were descending from Camp Four, 941 metres below the summit.

The initial message saying the team had made it to the summit was sent to March at Camp Two from a New Zealand high altitude camp being prepared as a base to attack Everest's sister peak, Mount Lhotse, on Friday.

The New Zealanders radioed March who relayed the call to base camp.

The sighting ended hours of anxious waiting for word of the fate of the team.

At the base of the mountain organizers had been debating the veracity of two sightings made while the climbing team was heading for the summit.

TOOK SAME ROUTE

The Sherpas and Morrow, 29, a freelance photographer and mountaineering buff from Kimberley, B.C., followed the same route used by Laurie Skreslet, 32, and his two Sherpa guides on Monday, when the Calgarian became the first Canadian to stand on the "roof of the world."

Morrow's team pushed on after Alan Burgess, 33, of Canmore, Alta, dropped out of the climb 400 metres from the summit when his oxygen mask failed.

The team set out in temperatures of —40, under clear skies and with only light winds near the peak to scale the last 941 metres.

Skreslet got over the top and back down to the highest camp with his two guides in eight hours, 50 minutes.

Glory and $4 a day...

KHUMDE, Nepal (CP) — Four dollars a day, honor and courage keep rugged Sherpa tribesmen soldiering up the face of Mount Everest with foreign climbers year after year, a Nepalese mountaineering outfitter says.

Although three Sherpas were killed in the Khumbu icefall last month and two were hurt in an avalanche, 30 others have remained with the Canadian Mount Everest expedition.

"A Sherpa would rather die than break his contract," says Bobby Chettri, a Nepalese who is director of Mountain Travel Ltd. of Katmandu.

"Once a Sherpa agrees to go on an expedition, he assumes a personal responsibility to lead and guide foreigners," he said in an interview from the foot of Everest, 175 kilometres east of Katmandu.

"They are experts at what they do, they honor their commitments and they are professionals."

Sherpas on the Canadian expedition are paid a standard Nepalese government-set rate of $4 a day Canadian, plus their food and the right to keep their equipment.

"And the Canadian expedition's equipment is among the best I've seen in five years," said Chettri, whose company provides logistical support for expeditions into the Nepalese Himalayas.

Sherpas are an ethnic group from the Everest region of Nepal. Their name means Pepele of the East.

They are Buddhists and consider Mount Everest a revered peak, "the mother goddess," Chettri said.

Climbing to the peak is a kind of pilgrimmage for Sherpas, who start going on expeditions at the age of 17 or 18 and continue until as late as 50.

Sundare, one of the two Sherpas who reached the summit earlier this week with Laurie Skreslet, the first Canadian to stand atop Everest, had reached the "roof of the world" for a record third time. He is 29.

Chettri said Sherpani, female Sherpas, "have started taking an active interest in trekking."

"They are very strong and have more endurance than many men. I wouldn't be surprised to see some of them on the summit of Everest within a few years."

Playing with fire

Don't play with fire! That's the message of Fire Prevention Week. But as Sherbrooke fireman Michel Beaubien found out while helping set up the department's exhibit at Carrefour de l'Estrie, toys are another matter. The toys will be given to needy children at Christmas; the exhibit, which will feature demonstrations of emergency rescues, continues until Saturday night.

Wrecked cars will be opened with special emergency tools at 3 and 7 p.m. today and Friday, and at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday. Firemen set up the display in their time off.

The Queen is 'in a rage' over tabloid expose of Randy Andy fling

LONDON (AP) — A Caribbean fling by Prince Andrew and actress Koo Stark, who has appeared nude in erotic films, is creating an uproar among Britain's tabloids and stories that the Queen is "in a rage."

All tabloids today splashed their front pages with stories about the vacation taken by the 25-year-old actress and the prince, who has been dubbed "Randy Andy" because of his many girlfriends.

A smaller account was carried by the respected Daily Telegraph, which said Stark was described as "Britain's Emmanuelle," after she appeared in an erotic film seven years ago called Emily.

Some newspapers and the BBC television network on Wednesday carried pictures of Stark, 25, daughter of movie producer Wilbur Stark, appearing nude in that film. The BBC clips showed her asking a man to make love to her.

Stills for Emily printed in British newspapers showed her naked with another naked women in what The Daily Mail described as a torrid "lesbian shower scene."

The Sun quoted an unidentified member of the Queen's staff as saying: "It is one thing for a prince to be seen with a film actress — but quite another to go away on holiday with a blue movie star. The Queen feels badly let down."

'QUEEN IN RAGE'

The tabloid said: "The Queen is in a rage," although it did not attribute the statement. The Queen is with Prince Philip on a tour of Australia.

The Daily Mail reported the actress's mother accompanied her daughter and the 22-year-old prince to a royal hideaway on the island of Mustique as a chaperone at the Queen's urging. Buckingham Palace denied this.

In Bridgetown, Barbados, a well-informed source who declined to be identified said Andrew, Stark and at least one unidentified companion arrived Tuesday on Antigua on a scheduled flight from London, then flew to Mustique, 150 kilometres west.

Mustique is owned by Colin Tennant, a friend of Princess Margaret, who has often gone there with friends. The island house is heavily guarded.

The Daily Express said the flight from Antigua to Mustique was booked by an official in the British High Commissioner's office in Barbados. It quoted charter firm clerk Susan Freer as saying: "The prince and Koo seemed extremely relaxed."

Andrew is on leave from the Royal Navy after co-piloting a navy helicopte during the Falkland Islands war wit Argentina. Stark was first name publicly as a friend of Andrew on Sep 20, two days after his return from th Falklands.

Today's tabloid accounts say Star has also appeared nude in explicit se scenes in a British television pla called The Blue Film and in a movi called Cruel Passion about the 18th century French aristocrat the Marqui de Sade.

Quebec offers free rides to encourage reporters

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec cabinet has decided to offer reporters free rides on government airplanes when ministers visit out-of-the-way regions of the province.

Marie-Lyne Ethier, an official in the office of Transport Minister Michel Clair, said in a letter Wednesday to Jean-Jacques Samson, president of the national assembly press gallery, the new directive is aimed at encouraging better coverage of those regions.

The directive covers the Gaspe Peninsula, the North Shore of the St. Lawrence River, the Iles-de-la-Madeleine in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Abitibi region in the northwest.

It says the media must be invited by the minister and that a reporter must not deprive a national assembly member or a civil servant of a seat.

The Transport Department puts several planes at the disposal of cabinet ministers for their trips, and Ethier explained that the directive would not cost the government anything.

"The plane would be going anyway," she said.

But with budget cutbacks, she said, the media are less likely to pay for trips to outlying regions, and the government thought this would be a way to improve coverage of regions that would otherwise be ignored.

FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED

When a minister decides he or she wants the media along, reporters will be notified and seats assigned on a first-come, first-served basis.

Ethier dismissed any notion of the free trips as a way for the government to butter up the media.

"The only thing we're offering them is a place on board. We're not telling them what to say. A reporter doesn't have to come along."

MLA forks out $120 for 600-metre bus ride for 8

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario cabinet minister who hired two buses to take guests from the legislature building to a reception only 600 metres away says that although it didn't exactly work out, he'd do the same thing again.

Bruce McCaffrey, minister of citizenship and culture, said Wednesday he spent $120 to charter two buses to take about 300 politicians and civil servants to the Royal Ontario Museum because it was important for them to see the building.

The province contributed $37 million to a recent museum renovation and held a reception and tour there Tuesday night.

However, only eight guests used the bus, which took 15 minutes to cover the one-block route because of traffic and turns.

McCaffrey, who went by bus, said all others chose to walk.

He said politicians only had a two-hour break between the close of the afternoon sitting and the beginning of the night proceedings and he was afraid no one would show up if he didn't make it easy for them.

Also, he thought inclement weather might prevent attendance.

"As it turned out, it was the nicest evening we've had in about 18 months. It was a judgment call and the weather could have been different."

McCaffrey said he honestly felt the buses were a good idea.

"It sure as hell wasn't necessary but I just didn't know that at the time."

Wattage watchers beat rival calorie counters

SALMON ARM, B.C. (CP) — The Williams Lake wattage watchers have put the heat on the Salmon Arm's calorie counters.

In a 24-hour energy-saving competition held Monday and Tuesday between the two communities, Salmon Arm's hydro use actually went up — by more than 22 per cent.

Williams Lake, meanwhile, cut its Hydro consumption by almost three per cent.

Ironically, it was Salmon Arm that challenged Williams Lake to the contest. The idea was to promote a reduction in all forms of energy consumption in the two centres with similar climates, industries and populations.

But in Salmon Arm's downtown core Monday only a handful of businesses reduced lighting and heat, most cars contained only one driver and there were few cyclists and pedestrians.

Cyril Simmons, Salmon Arm municipal clerk said: "I had a feeling this would happen. I had a feeling that they (Williams Lake) were working on it harder than we were."

Salmon Arm city hall operated on reduced lighting and had the heat down, as did most of the schools in the city.

But over in Williams Lake on Monday, city hall lunched by candlelight, turned down the heat, turned off the computer and kept only one photocopier in operation. Other residents walked, biked or took carpools to work.

Figures released by John Bos, Hydro customer advisory representative in Williams Lake, showed that Williams Lake residents used 730,140 kilowatt hours of power in a 24-hour period from Sept. 30 to Oct. 1 — the period used for comparison purposes. When the contest ended at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Williams Lake residents had used 708,728 kilowatt hours of power — a reduction of about 22,000 or 2.93 per cent.

Mtl. to restore gas

MONTREAL (CP) — The city of Montreal obtained a court injunction Wednesday ordering a firm to restore gas in 12 buildings it owns in the city's northend. Residents of the buildings have been without gas for heating and hot water since mid-August because owner, Murand Investments Ltd., has not paid a $35,000 bill it owes to a natural gas distributor.

Pay cut for Canadair

MONTREAL (CP) — Aircraft manufacturer Canadair Ltd. of Montreal has imposed a five-per-cent pay cut for 15 months on its 2,500 salaried employees, saying the recession has put extreme pressure on the company's finances.

Company spokesman Ken Romain said Wednesday the company hopes to save $4.6 million during the period when the salaries will be "deferred."

Romain said some of company's "top management" will experience higher wage deferrals of 10 per cent.

RCMPs' prosecution continues

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government will proceed with prosecution of 10 former or present RCMP officers accused of stealing the Parti Quebecois master membership list in 1973 even though a similar charge against another Mountie was dismissed last week.

All 10 are scheduled to appear in court here Nov. 1 to have a date set for their trials.

However, defence lawyers are expected to invoke last week's ruling by Quebec Superior Court Justice Benjamin Greenberg to argue that their clients cannot receive fair trials because of remarks made by Premier Rene Levesque in the national assembly this summer.

Air Canada threatens layoffs

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada plans to lay off 585 of its ground crew and customer service staff if their unions are unwilling to accept a work-sharing and voluntary retirement plan, a local union spokesman said Thursday.

The layoffs would be spread across the country with the majority, about 400 employees, being cut from its maintenance staff in Montreal.

The airline is to submit its alternative plans to reduce staff at a meeting today in Montreal with negotiators for the International Association of Machinists, which represents about 8,300 Air Canada employees.

French pay-TV too risky

MONTREAL (CP) — A unilingual French pay-TV network would not be able to serve Ontario, Quebec and the four Atlantic provinces adequately, a public hearing was told Wednesday.

"A French-only network is too great a risk," Harold Greenberg of 1859-9431 Quebec Inc. of Montreal told a Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission hearing.

La Television de l'Est du Canada has applied for a licence to set up the unilingual French netowrk.

Greenberg's company is applying for licence to set up a bilingual pay-TV network.

Police deny brutality charge

MONTREAL (CP) — Two suburban policemen denied Wednesday before the Quebec Police Commission they used undue force with a man and a woman detained in police cells. Yolande Everell and Jean-Claude Desjardins complained they were jailed, beaten and kicked when they went tothe Longueuil police station to protest a traffic ticket meted out by officers Alain Tremblay and Michel Ferrier. The officers testified they didn't lay a hand on the pair. The police advisory board took the case under consideration.

Petro-Can. to help in Senegal

MONTREAL (CP) — Petro-Canada, the federally owned energy company, said Wednesday it's international subsidiary has signed a two-year agreement with the Societe nationale des petroles du Senegal to help explore for oil and natural gas in the African country. The Canadian company will contribute $16.2 million towards the project, Petro-Canada said in a statement.

Ouellet denies urea foam charge

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet denied Wednesday political pressure was used to get Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp. to give its stamp of approval to urea formaldehyde foam insulation.

Ouellet, once minister responsible for the federal housing agency, told the Commons health committee he double checked his records when allegations of political interference were first made.

"I have denied this publicly and I have looked at the files to make sure there was no political pressure," he said.

Immigration cut-downs possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might cut back its intake of refugees and immigrants in order to protect scarce jobs for Canadians, Immigration Minister Lloyd Axworthy warned Wednesday.

The gloomy unemployment picture is "the primary factor" in determining annual immigration and refugee quotas that must be unveiled in Parliament by Nov. 1, Axworthy said in an interview.

He refused to confirm reports he is considering a draft proposal to cut the number of refugees to be admitted next year to 10,000 from 14,000. But a department spokesman admitted "it is one possibility."

Telesat Can.'s 1st U.S. deal

OTTAWA (CP) Telesat Canada signed its first deal with a United States satellite carrier Wednesday providing for an exchange of data between the two countries via space.

The arrangement, signed here with American Satellite Co. of Rockville, Md., basically allows information to be transmitted by satellite to the U.S. from Canada and vice versa, said a statement from Telesat.

A bilateral agreement between Canada and the U.S. allowing such operations was approved in August.

Indian self-gov't studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The often bitter, always uncertain relationship between Canada and its Indian population took a few hesitant steps forward Wednesday, with the first meeting of a Commons study committee on Indian self-government.

"I think in all the years I've been involved in the Indian affairs committee this is the most important task we have ever undertaken," chairman Keith Penner said following the meeting.

"We've been given an assignment that has a history of failure," added Penner, Liberal MP for the Northern Ontario riding of Cochrane-Superior

Manufacturing reports upturn

TORONTO (CP) — Increasing numbers of manufacturing companies have reported both an improvement in production and the level of new orders during September in a survey by the Purchasing Management Association of Canada.

A higher proportion of the 120 companies that participated in the survey also said they were having greater success in scaling down inventories, a necessary precondition to any economic recovery.

Daniel Creighton, association spokesman and procurement director for Metro Canada Ltd. of Kingston, Ont., said the findings represent a considerable change from earlier surveys and may point towards an improvement in business conditions by the end of the year.

Haig regrets no conscription

TORONTO (CP) — Former U.S. state secretary Alexander Haig says he generally favors his country's foreign and defence policies but regrets it no longer has compulsory military service.

Haig, who said he "jumped and was pushed" when he suddenly resigned his office last June, told a business luncheon Wednesday the Reagan government is doing its best internationally and at home to reverse some of the misguided efforts of former White House administrations.

The U.S. had to rebuild its military strength even as it pursued nuclear arms reduction talks with the Soviet Union and set about to restore the economy at home, he said.

Kitchener's Oktoberfest on Fri.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Despite the gloomy Canadian economy, suds, schnapps, sausage and sauerkraut will once more reign supreme when the annual Oktoberfest gets under way Friday.

The symbolic keg of beer will be tapped by Oktoberfest officials and assorted politicians, and within hours the 28 accredited festhalls, with a total seating capacity of over 24,000, will be echoing good cheer.

Organizers are expecting a good turnout, but "because of the depressed economy in general, will spend a little less per head" than in previous years, says Fred Ryan, Oktoberfest manager.

Alta.'s independents get support

CALGARY (CP) — A newly formed group calling itself the Provincial Rights Association announced Wednesday that it will work to elect at least 40 Independent candidates in the Nov. 2 Alberta election.

Association president Peter Aubrey told a news conference the group will be doing "all it can" to elect Ray Speaker, Walter Buck and Fred Mandeville, all Social Credit members of the last legislature, and Howard Thompson, who helped found the Western Canada Concept party in Alberta. The four will run as Independents.

Aubrey, an executive with Zephyr Resources Ltd., said the group hopes to eventually form a political party.

BNS losses higher than profits

EDMONTON (CP) — The Bank of Nova Scotia's interest spread — the difference between what the bank earns on loans and what it pays on deposits — has jumped in the last year but the increase is needed to cover losses and boost profits, says a bank official.

"There are higher losses. . . . Those spreads cover your losses," Len Woolsey, the bank's general marketing manager, told a news conference.

"The only way to get more money is to increase your spread," Woolsey said.

Smith won't testify

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cathy Evelyn Smith of Toronto, believed to have been the last person to see comedian John Belushi alive, is declining to testify before a grand jury investigating his drug-overdose death, her lawyer says.

Smith has no plans to leave Toronto, said her lawyer, Milton Davis.

Smith, 35, a backup singer for rock groups who lives in Toronto, was not subpoenaed but was invited to testify, said Los Angeles Deputy District Attorney Michael Montagna.

But Davis said: "They didn't even offer her plane fare."

Belladonna in Belgian beans

PARIS (Reuter) — The French Consumer Affairs Ministry said Wednesday traces of the poisonous plant belladonna (deadly nightshade) have been found in packets of frozen green beans imported from Belgium.

A ministry statement said small black grains found in the beans by a consumer had proved on analysis to be belladonna. However, no case of poisoning has been reported, officials said.

Homeopathic doctors use belladonna as a drug in small controlled doses to treat high fevers, as well as whooping cough and asthma. But in very large doses the heart along with all other muscles is paralysed.

Newman to write guide

LONDON (CP) — Peter C. Newman, best-selling author and former editor of Maclean's magazine, has been signed to write Debrett's Guide to the Canadian Establishment.

The book, to be co-published with Methuen Books Canada and in co-operation with McClelland and Stewart Ltd., is due out next fall.

It will "explain the historical background of the power elite within Canadian society, delineating some of the most important sources of influence within the Canadian economy," a statement from Debrett's said.

Thatcher sticks to policies

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher will stick to her tight economic policies and will not cut taxes to buy votes at the next election, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Geoffrey Howe said Wednesday.

Addressing the Conservative party convention, Thatcher's finance chief forecast that Britain's annual inflation rate will be 6.5 per cent by the end of the year, down from the current eight per cent and a peak 21.9 per cent in May, 1980, a year after the Conservatives took office.

Referring to Britain's record unemployment rate, Howe said "tomorrow's jobs" must come from private enterprise and not from government spending.

Orangutans die off with forests

GLAND, Switzerland (Reuter) — The orangutan faces extinction if tropical rain forests go on being destroyed at the current rate, the World Wildlife Fund says.

The Swiss-based fund, which campaigns for the preservation of endangered species, said in a statement Wednesday that every minute 49.4 acres (about 20 hectares) of the world's tropical forests are destroyed.

The timber industry is a major destroyer of the forests, which provide a home for orangutans in Indonesia and Malavsia.

Earth tremor kills Polish miners

WARSAW (AP) — A tremor caused by earth shifting after coal extraction, collapsed mine shafts 750 metres below ground in the southern town of Bytom on Wednesday, killing six miners, official news media reported.

PAP, the state-run news agency, said five miners apparently were killed when "a strong earth tremor destroyed 140 yards (128 metres) of wall lining at the coal face," or working area of the Dymitrov mine.

Twenty-one miners were trapped by the cave-in and later rescued by mine workers who dug through the collapsed tunnels, the state-run television said. One of them died in a Bytom hospital, where nine other miners were being treated, the report said.

Heavy flooding in Azerbaijan

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Republic of Azerbaijan has been hit by heavy flooding which has ruined crops and brought factories to a standstill, the daily newspaper Trud reported Wednesday.

It said the floods, which swept through the Caucasian republic on Tuesday, caused enormous damage to vineyards, sown fields and orchards.

Student kills noisy neighbors

TOKYO (AP) — A college student angered by noisy children and a blaring television stabbed five neighbors to death Wednesday night, including a 95-year-old man, police said.

They said 22-year-old Hitoshi Murata bought a cooking knife about 10 days ago and had been thinking about killing the neighbors.

Some power back in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Repair crews restored power in three central provinces, but more than 1.3 million people in the eastern third of El Salvador had no water or electricity Wednesday because of rebel sabotage.

Tuesday's guerrilla attack on power lines blacked out homes of 1.8 million people in seven provinces, authorities said.

Soviet diplomat dead in Lima

LIMA (AP) — Wladimir Solomakhine, 29, a member of the administrative personnel of the Soviet Embassy in Peru, was found dead Tuesday in his room at the Soviet diplomatic residence in Lima, police said.

A police spokesman said officials of the Soviet Embassy in the San Isidro district were acting secretive and "almost not co-operating" in the investigation of the death of Solomakhine. His body had "three superficial cuts on the wrists and the chest," the spokesman said.

Thompson & Alix, Nutrival future up in air as banks take possession

SHERBROOKE (TB) — Local food wholesalers and retailers received a shock yesterday when the Canadian National Bank took possession of two Sherbrooke companies both wholly-owned subsidiaries of Nutrigestion. Thompson and Alix, the region's biggest produce wholesaler, and Nutrival, the supplier for the Nutri Plus, Nutri Mieux and Nutri Extra stores, were seized after they failed "to respect their obligations to the bank".

Both the bank and the regional representatives of SODEQ (the Quebec government development office) have remained closed-mouthed about the seizure. According to a bank spokesman, the future of the companies will not be decided until bank officials take a good look at all the pertinent documents including company books. "It is only when all the documents are in hand that a decision will be made," he said, adding that this is not likely to happen until the end of this week or the beginning of the next.

As far as SODEQ, which recently loaned Thompson and Alix $200,000, is concerned, every effort will be made to save both companies.

Company employees were made aware of the seizure and possible permanent closing of Thompson and Alix yesterday at noon when a distraught Director General, Andre Hamel, spoke to the companies 66 employees. "It was the most difficult moment of my 22 years working here," said Hamel.

Recent hopes that both companies would be purchased by a major Montreal firm were dashed last week when the prospective buyer withdrew its offer after several months of neogotiations.

Employees of Nutrival met last night with union representatives to discuss the methods available for workers to obtain salaries that have not been paid for a week. The members of local 504 of the Union des Employes de Commerce also discussed the possibility of obtaining separation pay due them according to provincial law.

The closing of Nutrival, although it will not immediately affect the independent owners of the various Nutri Plus, Nutri Mieux and Nutri Extra outlets, did have an immediate spin-off effect with the closing of the Subito wholesaler outlets in Sherbrooke, Magog and Drummondville.

Over 350 local businessmen make major purchasers from Subito and the closing of one of the regions biggest wholesalers will make it difficult for stores, and restauranteurs who will now have to seek another source of supply.

One local businessman who remained anonymous put it this way, "It is very difficult for us. We are accustomed to doing business here. Subito, is the biggest in the area... For us to go elsewhere is a major problem. The waiting lines are longer, picking up stock from another company is more difficult. We lose precious operating time away from our business."

The Canadian National Bank has chosen the Montreal firm of Raymond Chabot and Associates to direct the seizure.

Government two-faced on grants — Starobe head

Now, with the Starobe group (mainly former Butterfield employees) ready to invest $100,000 of locally-raised capital in a new plant that could create up to 100 new jobs, and after spending almost $30,000 (half of it from the same federal government) on studies that recommended massive federal aid, and after waiting for an answer that has never come from Ottawa, Three Villages people are fed up. They want action, and they want some of it now.

Ron Winter, president of the Starobe group, says government is two-faced. "They (Ottawa) just gave Litton another $48 million," he said, "to set up another assembly line in Toronto, for the guidance system of the Cruise missile. The Ontario government gave them $450,000 to open up in Smiths Falls. In 1975-76, the Quebec government gave them grants to buy new machinery for Rock Island. Now that machinery is in Smiths Falls, and everybody here is out of work."

"Litton already has enough government money," he added. "How can they go on feeding an outfit like that? We are trying to start up, get some of these people back to work. We know how to solve our own problem, and they won't give us a penny. So we're trying to make them know we're here."

Starobe associate Joe Gaboriault says Ottawa is acting unfairly. "They've designated (for emergency-economic assistance) other areas, like Thetford Mines, Black Lake and Asbestos-Danville. They give them millions and they don't know what to do with it."

"Unemployment is probably higher here, and we're all ready to go. It doesn't make sense; we're just waiting for the government."

"Maybe we're not big enough in the Three Villages," he said, "or we don't holler enough. What are they waiting for?"

Albert Gauthier is president of the CAMO. He says the federal government has repeatedly delayed meeting with the committee. "They were going to meet us in June, then they were going to meet us in July, but they said the government was on vacation so they couldn't. Then they were going to meet us in August, then in mid-September. Now it's October and we still haven't met the minister." The federal department of industry, trade and commerce and regional economic development has had three different ministers since early September.

"We keep sending telegrams, letters, more telegrams. They write us back that they have received the letters, but that's all. No meeting."

"We're holding back projects that could get going. We have a list."

"We're really angry," he said. "And the local population must be even more. We could have created jobs right away."

"In spite of the help of the local government representatives and bureaucrats, in spite of all MP Claude Tessier's efforts, we've gotten nowhere."

Rock Island mayor Jean-Louis Dupont, speaking for his colleagues Rolland Rodrigue of Stanstead and Lucien Gagnon of Beebe, said it's time to move from words to action. "We had a meeting last night," he said, "to discuss methods of organizing pressure so Ottawa moves. That's why we had this little demonstration today."

"We wonder if Ottawa even knows if we exist," he said. "And if they do, do they know where the Three Villages are? We don't want to be ignored any more."

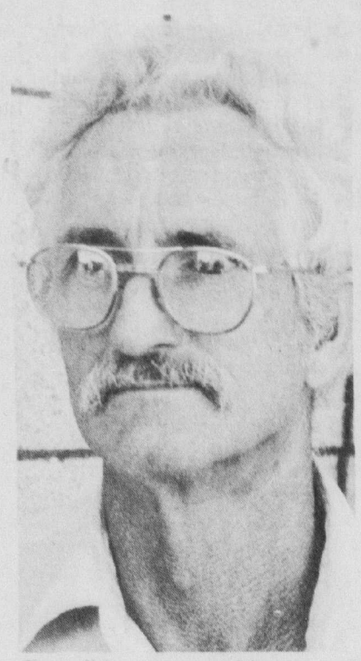

"We must have a meeting with Marc Lalonde before the end of October, or we'll take other steps," he said. "We want an answer: will we be designated or not? Yes or no."

CAMO's federal representative Pierre Alain said designation as an economic emergency zone could take up to 11 months. "That seems to be about the average," he said. Alain also said designation is not the only possible solution to the Three Villages problem. "There are lots of programs available," he said.

One feature of designation that leaves the Three Villages wondering is early retirement. Workers in a designated zone who can't find work in the region are eligible for early returement if they are of a certain age. They would not be eligible if there is no special zone.

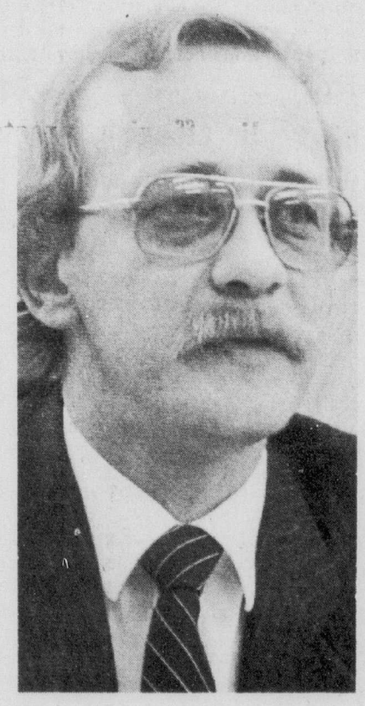

Russell Brown is a 30-year Butterfield veteran who is now 54 years old. He is a tool-hardening heat-treatment operator, and he says he has been told that there is no other place in Quebec he can work, so he could retire if the Three Villages are designated.

"I could work for Starobe," he said, "or I could have moved to Smiths Falls - but who could live on that pay with the $350 rents up there?"

Russell Brown... could go on welfare

"But at my age, I have little chance of getting into another field. I'll have to go on welfare, but I don't want to do that."

Albert Gauthier... We're fed up

Toponymy group seeks input

As most people have been made aware through the local media, the Townshippers' Association has been for the past year involved in the study of local place names — the toponymy of our region. This past weekend, the association hosted a most successful conference on the subject and a number of suggestions were brought forward by the participants.

As a result of the discussions in which she participated at the conference, Heritage and Cultural Affairs Committee Chairman Anne MacLaren hopes to communicate with as many people as possible who share her interest in the preservation of this important aspect of our history.

Everyone knows of places — villages, lakes, mountains, roads — which have had their names changed. If there is a particular name whose loss has concerned you, drop us a line about it. It is important that the Heritage and Cultural Affairs Committee be informed as fully as possible and we need the help of people across the Townships. In addition, try to keep informed about proposed name changes in your community. Attend your town council meetings or keep in touch with someone who does. All name changes to towns, villages, streets and roads go through the town council. If a change is proposed which you feel is unnecessary or ill-advised, let us know about it. Remember that name changes proposed by the Commission de toponymie are only proposals and do not have to be accepted by the town. You can write to us at 2365 Galt West, Sherbrooke or call (819) 566-5717 or (514) 263-4422.

Communication Quebec, the source for provincial government information, has steadily increased the number of publications available in English in our area. A recent addition to their bookshelves is a series of pamphlets from the Ministere du Travail, de la Main-d'oeuvre et de la Securite du revenu.

These booklets deal with various aspects of employment, including the job search, retraining and job security. A number of folders are aimed at the employer and explain how he can best utilize the resources available to him at Manpower Centres, the steps to follow when reclassifying employees, vocational training and qualifications, and on-the-job training.

A second series, entitled 'Job Aid' explains the various programs which have been set up to facilitate the entry into the job market of the unemployed. All of the booklets are free of charge and may be picked up at the Communication Quebec office at 50 Grandes Fourches south.

While you are there, you might want to pick up a little book called the "Toxicological Index". This brochure is aimed at industry but is also extremely useful in the home. It does not deal with specific products, but is a guide to understanding the type of information commonly printed on commercial and industrial products. The booklet is available in English and explains all these terms that we see on household chemicals but never really understand. A section on first aid is also included, and the pamphlet would be a useful and important addition to your medicine chest.

The Townshippers' File is a bi-monthly product of the Information Office of Townshippers' Association. Any comments, criticisms or ideas for future columns would be welcomed and should be sent to Townshippers' File, c/o Susan Reed, Information Office, 2365 Galt West, Sherbrooke, Quebec, J1K 1L1.

East Angus worker crushed to death

SHERBROOKE — A road worker for the Deso dy Company was crushed to death by a truck yesterday, moments after he had given the signal for the truck to continue backing up.

The victim, Andre Bedard, 41, of Quebec Street, East Angus, was apparently directing the driver of the truck in a back-up manoeuvre when he stepped behind the 10-wheeler, which was carrying 17 tons of asphalt. He was killed instantly.

The accident occurred about three miles south of the Windsor exit on Route 55 at about 4:30 in the afternoon. Bedard's death is being investigated by the Richmond detachment of Surete-Quebec.

SHERBROOKE — Students at the University of Sherbrooke lose "at least" $100,000 a year, by not receiving all the financial assistance to which they are entitled, according to the Director of the University's Financial Aid Department, Robert Rouleau.

Rouleau says the money is lost to students because many who are eligible don't apply for loans or bursaries, and many who do, are refused, or receive less than they are entitled to, because of mistakes in their application forms.

Rouleau says it is for this reason that the Financial Aid Department is setting up a finance clinic to help students handle their financial affairs, and to ensure that those who qualify for financial assistance get all that they are eligible for.

The clinic will assist students in filling out their forms, and also make students aware of funds available to help them through the time they have to wait until their loans come through.

According to Rouleau, 57 per cent of all students registered at the university applied for financial assistance this year, up from 52 per cent for the year 1980-81. More than a quarter of these applications come from people returning to school after having already been out on the labor market.

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Liberal member of the national assembly Hermann Mathieu says he wants an provincial investigation into a complaint by maple syrup producers in southeastern Quebec that they are losing between 10 to 30 per cent of the sap from their maple trees. Mathieu, said he wants an investigation into the cause of the losses and possible compensation.

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincially-owned Asbestos Corp. Ltd. says it intends to stop production at three asbestos mines in the Eastern Townships region for seven weeks beginning Dec. 20 in order to reduce stock. The company also said its subsidiary, British Canadian 11, will remain closed for an indefinite period.

SWEETSBURG WARD — B. Routhier, 21, of Charlesbourg changed his option and pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery and theft of approximately $7700 from the National Bank, wearing a disguise, and utilization of a firearm in a crime of violence in Cowansville on June 8. He also pleaded guilty to armed robbery in the theft of approximately $1,000 from the National Bank in Repentigny on June 7.

Routhier missed death by inches when he and Michel Christin attempted to run a road block at the intersection of River Street and Boulevard Jean-Jacques Bertrand. He jumped into the rear seat of the getaway car when Cowansville constable Claude Lefebvre and Jules Waltz shot into the radiator and the tires of the 1973 Oldsmobile. The car careened and rammed into a pickup truck and a board was projected through the windshield directly over the empty passenger seat.

Judge Bernard Legare imposed the five and a half years suggested by Crown Attorney Pierre Gibeau and defense lawyer Claude Hamann. He handed Routhier four and a half years on the first count, two years concurrent on the second, and one year, consecutive on the third, as well as five years concurrent for the Repentigny robbery. The sentences are additional to all terms he is presently serving.

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Henry Obiedzinski, of Cowansville, entered no plea at his arraignment on charges of obstructing police in the performance of their duties and possession of hashish with intent to traffick in Cowansville on Sept. 29. Claude Hamann chose jury trial when Judge Bernard Legare upheld a crown motion for preventative detention. Obiedzinski's bail hearing was set to Oct. 4, in Granby.

Suzanne Ruel, also of Cowansville, entered no plea at her arraignment on charges of possession of cocaine and hashish with intent to traffick in Cowansville on Sept. 29, when Robert O'Donnell chose jury trial. Judge Legare then upheld a defence motion for non-publication of the details of the bail hearing. Ruel was finally allowed her provisional freedom on $2,000 cash bail, was ordered to reside within the District of Bedford, and to inform the court of any changes of address 48 hours prior to any move. Her preliminary hearing was set to proceed on Oct. 8.

Nothing more dangerous

The federal government's Priorities and Planning Committee, made up of key cabinet ministers and other top Liberal strategists, is finally seeking ways to deal with the most pressing concern in Canadian politics — the country's record unemployment statistics.

Recognizing at last that the million or so Canadians who cannot find jobs can still vote, the government realizes it must do something about a situation that has sunk their popularity to new depths and has placed this country in its worst economic shape since the great depression.

We should perhaps feel relieved that, for whatever reason, the Trudeaucrats are finally trying to do something about unemployment, which they have been far too prepared to accept as an inevitable part in their cherished fight against inflation, but, alas, the problem is being tackled in an all-too typical way.

Government policies have driven this country's economy to a state of near collapse, and chauvinistic energy policies have driven thousands of jobs right out of the country as foreign investment has all but dried up. Intolerance towards outside participation in our economic life has accomplished nothing but the alienation of our most important economic partner, the United States, and prompted retaliation which has severely damaged many important industries. Financial mismanagement has caused the Federal deficit to reach a record $20 billion, with some observers suggesting it might be even higher.

So now they want to set up job creation programs and are desperately seeking money with which to pay foir them — money they do not have.

With this in mind, the mandarins in Ottawa are contemplating cutting social assistance services like family allowances and old-age pensions to finance their latest intervention in the economy.

To think that the same government which has blindly led us into our present mess can improve a situation by getting even more involved is silly, but to pay for it with money which is for some people, their last defense against destitution, is nothing short of criminal.

The government cannot expect to be able to ease the unemployment situation by more tampering with an unstable economy. Nor can they expect that robbing Peter to pay Paul is going to ease their financial bankruptcy. The big boys are desperate, and we should all watch out. There's nothing more dangerous than a cornered animal.

Hard times will hurt human rights activities

By Paul Gessell

OTTAWA (CP) — Human rights causes could suffer from government attempts to reduce inflation, says Gordon Fairweather, federal human rights commissioner.

He said there is a danger the government will "put on hold" traditional social programs and such people-oriented agencies as the Official Languages Commission and the National Council of Welfare.

And by making economic issues paramount, the government could unwittingly influence financially-strapped persons to "lighten up their commitments" to human rights issues and seek scapegoats for their problems.

Targets could include women seeking equal pay for work of equal value or racial minorities considered to be taking away jobs from unemployed, white persons.

In a wide-ranging interview recently, Fairweather also made these observations, predictions and assessments:

—The feeling in some government circles is that the new constitutional Charter of Rights may actually forbid discrimination against homosexuals.

—Most employers in the federal domain have become fairly non-discriminatory in hiring practices but the country at large is still often intolerant of immigrants.

—The commission "is going to the limit to be seen to be even-handed" in investigating complaints by Progressive Conservative MP Dan McKenzie that some federal departments discriminate against English-Canadians in favor of French-Canadians in hiring.

—Fairweather is reluctant to speak out against the "extraordinarily authoritarian" Israeli prime minister, Menachem Begin, for fear of being branded anti-Semitic.

—The best way for people to obtain action on human rights violations at home or abroad is to convince an MP to raise the issue in the Commons.

—The "first of a series of omnibus bills" correcting conflicts between federal laws and the Constitution is to be introduced in Parliament this fall or early next year.

—Long-promised changes to the Canadian Human Rights Act giving more protection to the handicapped should be introduced in a few months.

PQ in Ottawa: Gandhi never ran in London

QUEBEC (CP) — For Parti Quebecois backbencher Jerome Proulx, news that his party is having second thoughts about running candidates in the next federal election was the answer to a prayer.

In what could be the first step toward shelving the idea, the PQ executive council has proposed that the party hold off on deciding whether to present candidates in the federal arena.

Inspired by the French poet Charles Peguy, whose work includes a poem about the biblical slaughter of the Holy Innocents, Proulx denounced the idea of a federal PQ through the personage of God.

"What astonishes me, said God, are the Pequistes," Proulx recently wrote in the Montreal daily Le Devoir.

"Gandhi, the great liberator of the 20th century. . .never thought of running for Parliament in London," Proulx said, adding the PQ was elected to make Quebec independent, "not to make war on Pierre Trudeau."

"My prayer was loud," he joked on learning of the executive council's decision.

PQ vice-president Sylvain Simard explained in a telephone interview from his office at the University of Ottawa that preparations for a federal party will go ahead as decided at a meeting of the PQ national council in June.

EXECUTIVE WAS SPLIT

He added that the 14-member executive, which includes party president Rene Levesque, had been split 50-50 on the issue but now that another step has been added before the federal leap, the consensus is favorable.

"There is so much that can happen between now and an election," Simard said, adding that the executive wants to keep its options open and its strategy secret.

Under a proposal to be submitted by the executive at a PQ national council meeting in Montreal Oct. 30-31, preparations for a federal campaign would continue but no candidates would be nominated. A final decision would be delayed until the calling of a federal election.

It appears that what has changed since the June decision is Levesque's mind. The first indication of this was the dropping of Marcel Leger in a cabinet shuffle last month.

Leger, who is credited with building the PQ electoral machine, was the most enthusiastic supporter of a federal wing. Among new faces added to the cabinet was Guy Chevrette, one of the most outspoken opponents of a federal wing.

Influenced by internal party polls which indicate the PQ could take as many as 40 of Quebec's 75 Commons seats, most members of the Levesque cabinet now favor federal participation. In addition to Recreation Minister Chevrette, Women's Affairs Minister Pauline Marois is against the move and Labor Minister Raynald Frechette is cool to the idea.

At riding meetings across the province, party members are being asked to approve a strategy document outlining the steps to be taken in forming a federal party. PQ headquarters in Montreal reports that two-thirds of the 122 riding associations back it.

The document notes that it took "11 months of intense work" to prepare for the PQ's second election win last year. "The pre-campaign is, if not more important, at least as important as the campaign itself."

It projects spending $3.4 million on a federal campaign, money that could be collected in a campaign blitz once an election was called.

The PQ program states that the next Quebec election will be fought on the issue of independence and that if a clear majority of Quebecers vote for the party the government will begin the process of making Quebec sovereign.

Simard said the 1980 referendum on sovereignty-association was beaten by the federal Liberals and this justifies PQ involvement in federal elections. The PQ can't support the Tories or the NDP because they went along with patriation of the Constitution over Quebec's objections.

WANT CAKE, EAT IT TOO

In the 1980 federal election the Liberals won 74 seats in Quebec, leaving only one to the Tories. A year later the PQ took 80 out of 122 seats, confirming what comedian Yvon Deschamps describes as Quebecers' desire for an "independent Quebec within a united Canada."

"We cannot deprive ourselves of this (the federal) forum," Simard said. The PQ must offer Quebec voters an alternative to assure that the federal Liberals, with their power base in Quebec, doesn't win by default.

"Our objective is the sovereignty of Quebec," Proulx said. "I think it (running federally) is a suicidal adventure.

"Trudeau won't be there by the spring anyway, I'm pretty convinced of that."

Solo climber hit peak on the cheap

KATMANDU (CP) — In conquering Mount Everest this week, Canadian Laurie Skreslet enjoyed the luxuries of bottled oxygen and companionship — two things a Tyrolian mountaineer opted to do without two years ago.

Reinhold Messner also chose to tackle the demanding north side of Everest for his successful August, 1980, solo ascent, instead of the well-trodden South Col route blazed by Sir Edmund Hillary in 1953 and used by Skreslet of Calgary and two Nepalese Sherpas.

In a 1981 article for National Geographic magazine, Messner explained why he avoided the usual apparatus of high-altitude mountain climbing — including oxygen tanks and radios — for his lonely, but swift, assault.

"I wanted to experience the mountain as it was, to truly understand how my own body and psyche related to its natural forces," wrote the German-speaking Italian citizen and climber for 30 years.

Messner and a friend, Canadian photographer and climber Nena Holguin, used two yaks — hairy, ox-like beasts used in the Himalayas to carry heavy loads — to reach the 6,500-metre level, where a simple base camp was established.

He then set off alone, with only a 15-kilogram load in his rucksack, ski poles, an ice axe, as well as an ice screw and rock pitons to attach his tiny tent in case of a storm.

KIT LIMITED

His first aid kit was limited to some Japanese herbal oil, Aspirin and sleeping pills. He carried no weighty oxygen tanks — a risk he and Austrian friend Peter Habeler successfully took when they climbed Everest along the South Col route side two years earlier with nine other climbers and 25 Sherpa guides.

Fighting bouts of fatigue brought on by the thin mountain air, Messner dumped unneeded food and gear at each overnight bivouac he set up. The scorching summer sun left his throat "parched and burned" and it took "a monumental effort" to take self-portraits.

On the third day, he plodded through deep snow to reach the aluminum tripod left at the top by Chinese climbers in 1975, gazed at the world below and took some pictures. He headed back down after 40 minutes.

Gravity shortened to one day the trip back to base camp, where Holguin treated her companion for heat exhaustion and dehydration.

The north side was previously tackled by British adventurers George Mallory and Andrew Irvine in 1924, who reached the 8,000-metre level of the 8,848-metre Himalayan peak with rudimentary equipment, but lost their lives in the final push to the top.

Messner also recalled a summit bid by Maurice Wilson, a religious zealot who, convinced that God was by his side, launched a solo assault. He died on the way.

New girl on the block — cellblock...

CALGARY (CP) — Like boys trying to impress a new girl on the block, male prisoners in Bow River Correctional Centre have cleaned up their act in the three weeks since the minimum-security institution went co-ed.

Ed Vandal, director of the $4.5-million prison which opened last spring on the outskirts of Calgary, said most of the 97 male prisoners have improved their personal appearance since seven women prisoners arrived.

The men are shaving and bathing more often, combing their hair and tucking in their shirt tails and profanity isn't nearly as prevalent.

"Men in any kind of setting tend to behave at a higher standard when women are present," he observed.

Mixing sexes makes jails more like normal life and helps prisoners prepare for their release.

"I'm not going to suggest that putting in women prisoners is a new phenomenon that's going to stop men from committing crimes," Vandal said. "But it is humanizing."

The Calgary centre, with space for 114 men and 16 women, is one of only two co-ed prisons in Canada. The other is Edmonton's Belmont Correctional Centre.

SITUATION BEING STUDIED

Vandal said several more correctional institutions are watching closely to see whether the provincially-run jails prove successful.

Bow River prisoners live in separate male and female quarters but spend much of their work and recreational time together. That ranges from peeling potatoes in the kitchen to pumping iron in the prison weight room.

A no-touching policy is in place because "holding hands can stretch to having your arm around somebody to a peck on the cheek to a passionate embrace, so where do you stop?"

The policy hasn't been violated yet. Vandal said prisoners who break the rule face possible transfer to other all-male or all-female institutions.

If the first co-ed day at Bow River was any indication, he has nothing to worry about.

"It was like the first day back at school," recalled Vandal. "Everyone was standing back looking at each other."

Mary Ross of the Elizabeth Fry Society, which is helping to co-ordinate Bow River's program, said the only complaint so far from female prisoners is their feeling of always being on display.

With only seven of them among 97 men, Ross said the women want more time to themselves, something she hopes to provide through more all-female activities. One-third of the jail guards are women.

Bow River prisoners, housed in a prison without bars, fences and locked doors, are serving light sentences or the last six months of sentences of up to two years less a day. They have been carefully screened to eliminate potential troublemakers in the co-ed program.

Press invents its Royal stories?

By Judy Creighton

TORONTO (CP) — The author of the latest book on Diana, Princess of Wales, said this week certain members of the British press invent stories about the Royal Family to serve their own ends.

Gordon Honeycombe, who last year produced a book entitled The Royal Wedding and now has followed it up with The Year of the Princess, said he finds "some but not all" journalists working for some of Britain's daily newspapers "deplorable."

However, he said members of the Royal Family "are sufficiently invulnerable" to what appears in print.

Honeycombe, 46, was a nationally-known television newscaster in Britain before turning his hand to writing full time.

A prolific wordsmith — he has written eight books, most of them mysteries — Honeycombe says he is an absolute stickler about facts and checks and double checks before he is satisfied.

In The Year of the Princess, Honeycombe garnered his facts from many sources, including newspaper clippings, verifying each one with the press office at Buckingham Palace and consulting friends and palace staff.

GOT BIG BREAK

Probably his greatest break was when Diana's mother, Frances Shand Kydd, asked Honeycombe last April to "set the record straight" about the breakup of her marriage to the princess's father, Earl Spencer.

Honeycombe had written to Shand Kydd when he was researching his previous book on the royal wedding and she had been impressed by his wish "to give a true and accurate picture of events."

Because of persistent reports that she had "deserted" her children, Shand Kydd wrote in her own words what actually happened when she and Spencer divorced, Honeycombe said.

In August, prior to the publication of The Year of the Princess, Honeycombe gave Shand Kydd's side of the story to the London Daily Express.

Other Fleet Street papers, angered that the story had been given exclusive treatment in The Express, printed stories with blazing headlines that inferred there was "a row" between Shand Kydd and her former husband and that Diana was "upset," which Honeycombe said simply was not true.

His most recent book takes readers through the princess's year from July 29, 1981 — the day of her marriage to Prince Charles — right up to the birth last June 21 of the couple's first child, Prince William, and the christening Aug. 4.

FEATURES PHOTOS

It features several exclusive color plates and dozens of color photographs of the princess and other members of the Royal Family — many of which were taken by freelance British photographer Tim Graham. Several of the photos were taken by Lord Snowdon, the former husband of Princess Margaret.

Honeycombe's strict adherence to facts is evident in his documentation of the many and varied events Diana has attended as part of her duties as a member of the Royal Family.

He said he agreed to write the book because of the "incredible interest" in anything royal and the fact that The Royal Wedding book sold 300,000 copies.

"But I see the latest book as one women will enjoy reading although I think it is also an historical perspective for future use as a reference."

Honeycombe's first trip to Canada is not only a promotional one. As a side line and for personal enjoyment, he is trying to trace other families and individuals with the name Honeycombe.

"It's unusual but I have discovered we are all related, we Honeycombes, and I've found too that many are situated in the Toronto, Hamilton and Kitchener area."

African killer bees won't be welcome here — Agriculture Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — African killer bees, capable of stinging people to death, will likely find cold winters and European honey bees make Canada an inhospitable home, says an Agriculture Department expert.

But to make sure the bees can't move in, scientists here are looking for ways to end the need for importation of honey bees from the U.S. each spring, Rolf Boch says.

Although beekeepers in other provinces can keep their hives during the winter, the success rate on the Prairies is low so bees are usually killed each fall and replaced by bees from the southern U.S. each spring.

However, U.S. Agriculture Department reported recently that the killer bees are slowly migrating north from South America and could reach the southern states within the decade.

If that happens, Boch says, Canada would have to bar imports of American bees to prevent accidental entry of the African bees here.

There is a chance that an African-European bee cross could tolerate cold but retain the killer bee's vile disposition, Boch explains.

The killer bees have reached horror-story proportions with reports of their aggressive attacks on humans since they were brought to Brazil from South Africa in 1956.

Stage is set for natural gas boom in west

CALGARY (CP) — The stage is set for a natural gas-fuelled energy investment boom in the 1980s, says a study by Peters and Co. Ltd., a Calgary investment house.

Wilf Gobert, company vice-president, said in the study that increased gas production in the mid-1980s is expected to dramatically increase producer earnings.

"This will be the fuel for the next bull market in energy companies," he said.

The study said gas exports could bring Canada $12 billion a year in revenue, compared to $4.4 billion at current levels.

A key reason for the study's forecast is the federal government's decision to jump on the gas marketing bandwagon.

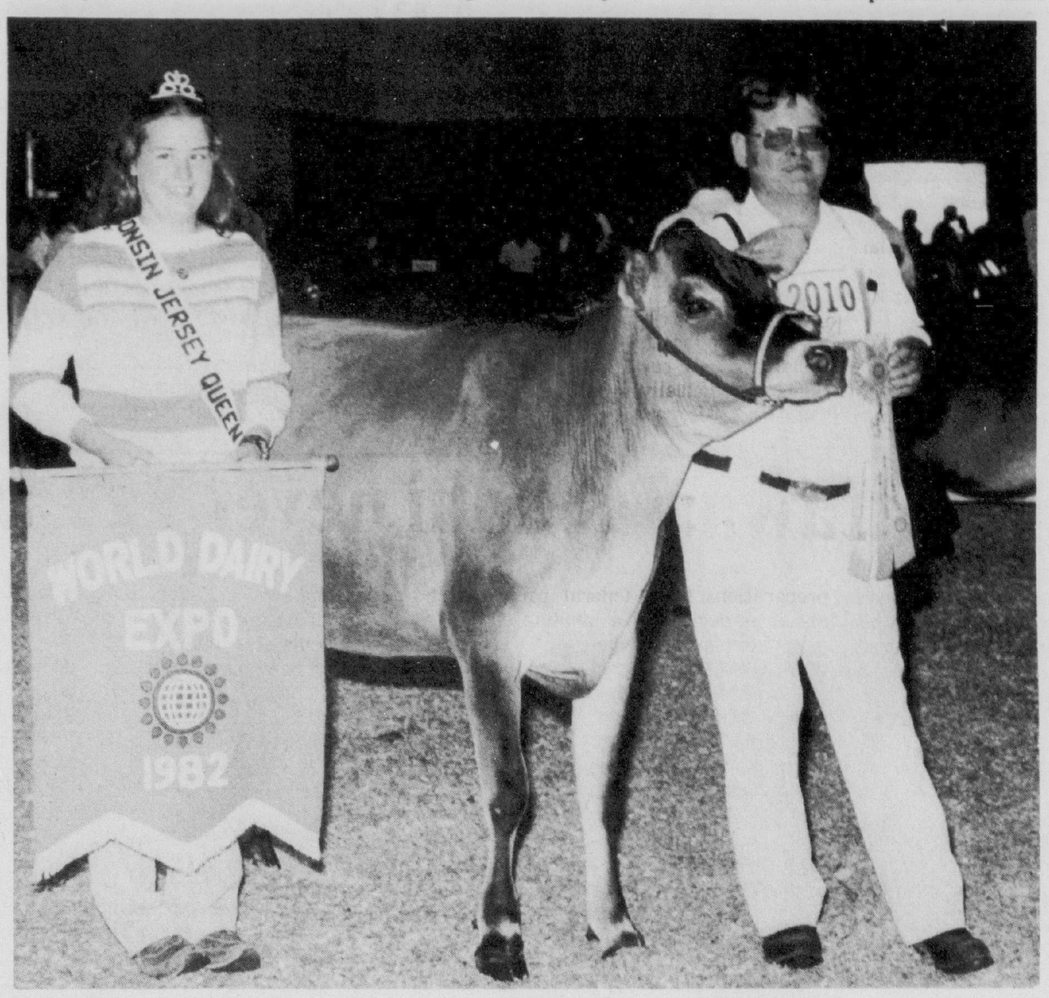

The energy industry has contended for several years that Canada has a sizable surplus of gas available for export.

The industry maintains that the National Energy Board's tests, which determine how much gas is surplus to Canadian needs, are too conservative.

As recently as last fall, the board issued a report, held back for six months while Alberta and Ottawa nailed down an energy-pricing agreement, saying there was no surplus gas for new exports.

Soon after the report was released, Ottawa announced the board would hold omnibus hearings on gas exports which began last May and were completed in Calgary last month. The board's findings are expected before the end of the year.

Gobert's study said the hearings reflect a major shift in federal policy in favor of exports. A new formula for determining the exportable surplus devised by the board puts the total surplus at 10 trillion cubic feet — about one trillion cubic feet more than the old formula and enough to double exports.

Local heifer wins in Wisconsin

Marlu Gem Velvet, owned by the Bob Bowers family of Sherbrooke, captured first place in the Senior Yearling Class during the Regional Jersey Show at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin. Velvet was exhibited by Lorne Ella of Oakville, Ontario and was awarded her ribbon by Wisconsin State Jersey Princess, Patti Ziegler. The five-day show ran from September 29 to October 3.

Ladas come out dead last in 1983 rating

OTTAWA (CP) — Ladas built in the Soviet Union were termed the biggest disappointment of the year when the Automobile Protection Association released its annual list of winners and losers.

In two years, the Lada has plummeted from recommended, to acceptable and finally to non-recommended, David Wineberg, Ottawa director of the consumer group told reporters.

The Lada has "sloppy manufacturing and no quality control," Wineberg said.

North American-built cars ranked slightly better than in previous years in the recommended list for 1983 autos. Most Japanese cars, traditional high-rankers, retained their recommended status.

Despite recommending some General Motors cars, the association said most of the company's products have questionable paint quality.

The association also panned front-wheel-drive vehicles in general as being "overpriced and overrated."

Cars are ranked by the association according to the complaints and recommendations of its 15,000 members across the country. The annual survey is not scientific and traditionally is dismissed by the auto manufacturers.

No cars in their debut year are recommended.

"They are subject to design changes and the consumer should not be subjected to their imperfections while paying full price for the privilege of 'test-driving' one of these cars," the association said.

Vehicles are recommended if they possess characteristics such as an excellent warranty, good dealer network, little depreciation and are inexpensive to maintain.

The cars in each of the following categories are not ranked but listed in alphabetical order.

West may grow but their french-fries are shrinking

WINNIPEG (CP) — French-fry lovers in Western Canada could notice a size difference when they rip open packs of their frozen favorites or line up at fast food counters this year.

The average size of potatoes grown in Manitoba, the West's largest producer of spuds for frozen french-fried potatoes, is down this fall because of early frost and dry weather, said Gary Sloik secretary manager of Keystone Vegetable Producers Association Inc.

"The french fries will probably be somewhat shorter," said Sloik, whose organization represents Manitoba vegetable growers. "I don't know whether it will be enough of a difference that the housewife will know the difference."

He said, however, real french-fry connoisseurs will spot more finger-length french fries, while six-inch potato chips will be rare.

About three-quarters of the potatoes grown in Manitoba are Russett Burbank white potatoes, formerly known as netted gems. Red potatoes are usually sold for table use.

Russett Burbanks are valued for french-fried potatoes. Most are grown under contract for processing plants at Portage la Prairie and Carberry in the heart of the southwestern Manitoba potato belt.

Sloik said an early frost on Aug. 26 killed the tops of many potato plants, halting the growth of the potatoes under the ground before they could mature.

Dry weather earlier in the summer also cut the size of the crop, he said.

The total weight of this year's crop could be down as much as 25 per cent from last year, when farmers dug up about 308 million kilograms of potatoes, said Sloik.

"It will actually hurt a lot of farmers financially."

Thinking Canadian could mean $1b more

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would be at least $1 billion richer every year if consumers would think Canadian at the grocery store, says the Women for the Survival of Agriculture.

And that wealth would generate badly-needed jobs, Diane Harkin, organization president, said as agri-food week in Canada was kicked off Monday at a reception staged by the Agriculture Department and saluted by other federal departments and provincial governments.

The survival organization, which is trying to get governments and society to recognize the role of farm wives and female farm operators, is trying to emphasize the positive in enlisting consumer support for farmers.

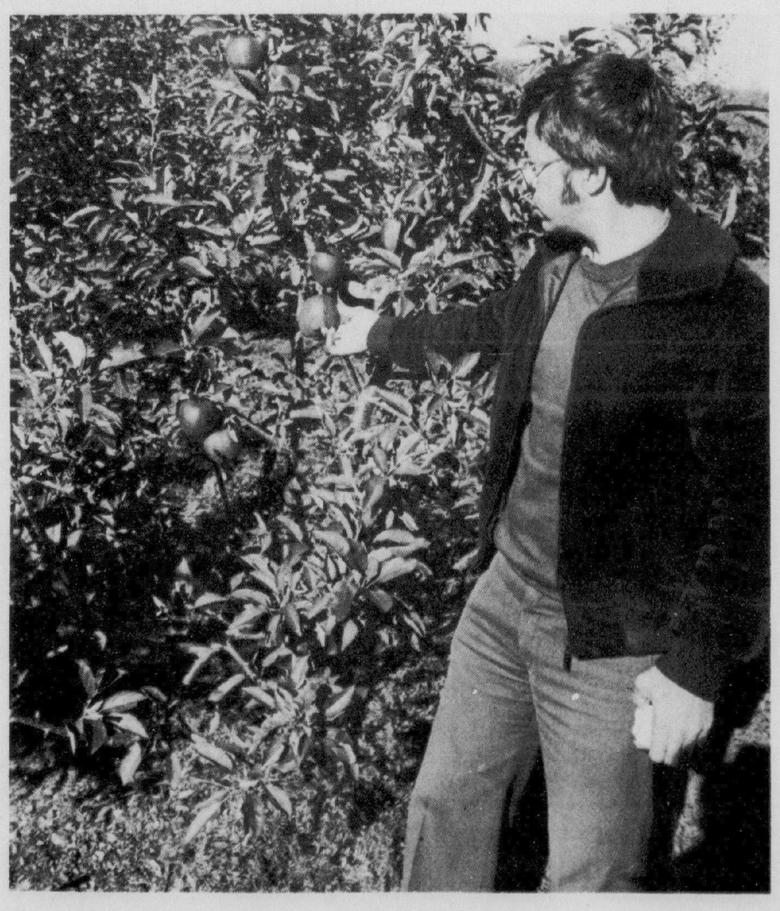

Not enough Canadians appreciate the high-quality food they can buy at low prices, Harkin said. "It is time for people to hear more of the positive."

About $3.5 billion of the $5 billion worth of food Canada imported in 1980 could have been grown here, she said. Or Canadian-produced alternatives were available.

Making the switch could have provided jobs for 350,000 Canadians. And if the $2.2 billion farmers spent on interest payments in 1981 had gone into the economy, another 220,000 jobs would have been created.

If farmers made an adequate income producing food, they would stop selling land to housing developers and stick to growing food, she added.

Agri-food week was born last spring when the survival group started approaching farm federations, food companies and governments about joining in a week-long promotion of Canadian agriculture and food.

You can get herpes everywhere — even in the dentist's chair

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (Reuter) — Herpes simplex virus can be contracted in the dentist's chair, a medical conference was told this week.

Dr. John Manzella, of the infectious diseases division at York Hospital, York, Pa., said 20 people were infected during a four-day period by a dental hygienist who had earlier cleaned the teeth of a patient who had a large lower lip cold sore.

He said the infected people developed fevers, painful lip and mouth blisters, bleeding gums and sore throats. He said all recovered.

The hygienist was a 22-year-old woman who developed chronic hand dermatitis a week after attending the patient with the cold sore, Manzella told the conference sponsored by the American Society of Microbiology.

Before she became ill, she cleaned the teeth of 46 more people. Twenty, aged six to 64, became infected.

Blisters on the hygienist's hands were then found to contain herpes simplex virus, Manzella said.

When she returned to work, she wore gloves and no new cases developed among her patients.

In another report on herpes, Dr. Martin Lerner of Detroit's Wayne State University school of medicine said a combination of two or three experimental drugs might have a better anti-viral effect than any one of the drugs used alone.

In addition to cold sores, herpes simplex can cause genital ulcers and eye infections.

There is no known cure and although drugs are available to alleviate the symptoms, there has been concern about the increased risk of drug side effects and the emergence of a resistant virus when one drug is used to treat the infection.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I took a car trip with a dear friend (who is expecting) and her little daughter and my two sons. Suddenly, in the middle of nowhere, our car went off the road, skidded and flipped over. The car was a total loss.

But God was looking out for us. My friend received only a minor cut and a few bruises, with no damage to her unborn child. I suffered a bad cut on my arm. Miraculously, there wasn't a scratch on the children.

I want to use your column as a giant thank-you card to dozens of people whose names I will never know, but not one of whom I will ever forget. We could not believe the number of people who stopped to help us.

There are so many we owe so much to: The young couple who pulled us all out of the car and risked their own lives (cars have been known to catch fire and explode); the truck driver who called on his CB for an ambulance; the helpful law enforcement officers; the ambulance attendants; the kind and gentle medical personnel; the cab driver who stopped and offered to take us to the motel.

The motel people were terrific. "Don't bother to register," they said. "Come right in." A passerby helped us retrieve our belongings from the car at the wrecking yard, gas station attendants and other total strangers did everything possible to calm the kids. Those wonderful people gave me new faith in the goodness of man.

And now I want to tell all your readers to celebrate LIFE. You will never know how precious life is until you come close to losing it. Everyone has some kind of problem, but no matter how miserable your life may seem at times, you should think of the alternative to life. Today you are alive. You are able to feel, to think, to walk, to talk, to love. You are a glorious miracle.

Celebrate that miracle, and all your problems will come into perspective. You will live each day to its fullest, will be able to tell your family and friends "I love you" with spontaneity and joy. You will come to realize, with humility and wonder, just how beautiful your existence can be.

Thank you, Ann, for letting me share my thoughts today. You may sign my real name, because I want all those beloved strangers to know me, even if I'll never know them. -- Much Love — Hope White.

Dear Hope: Here's your letter. What an upper! Especially at a time when so many people are putting extra locks on their doors, installing alarms, buying guard dogs and staying inside after dark.

It's heartening to know that people can and do rise to the occasion when a stranger is in trouble. The spontaneity suggests to me, at least, that people are basically good. And what better proof than the letter you have written.

The instinctive human response to come to the rescue of someone in trouble has been thwarted these last few years because so many of us have come to fear for our own safety. This is a sad commentary.

Bless you for writing to share your story. I hope the good will you feel for your fellow man is contagious.

Confidential to Burning the Candle at Both Ends: You don't want advice, honey, You just want more wax. Your minister gave you good advice. Take it.

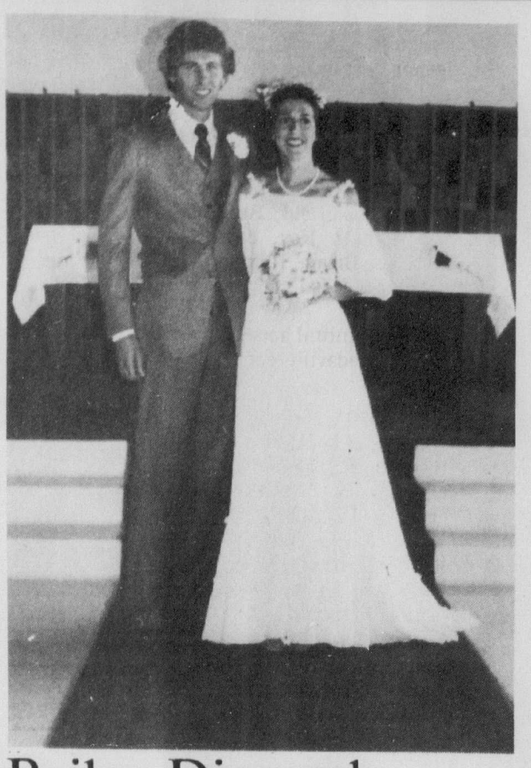

Dear Ann Landers: I am fed up with sending expensive wedding gifts only to discover the bride and groom are getting divorced before the charge for the gift has come through.

I am fighting back by presenting one-year magazine subscriptions as wedding gifts addressed to Mr. and Mrs. with instructions to the publisher that if a change of address notice comes through within a year to cancel the subscription and refund the balance to me, the donor.

I'd like your reaction. — Had It With The Flakes

Dear Had It: A couple can be divorced and keep the magazines coming to the same address. Not everyone vacates the first love-nest. Sometimes the bride or groom remains. Feeling as you do, why not skip the wedding gift and send something for the first anniversary?

The floor length gown having Alencon lace appliques and a French lace pleat insert, fell into a chapel train outlined with Alencon lace. A bandeau of matching Alencon lace held her ankle length veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red and white roses.

The groom was handsomely dressed in a beige jacket trimmed with dark brown piping and brown trousers. His boutonniere was an orange colored carnation.

Janet's being mauve and she carried a bouquet of mauve shaded carnations. Nancy's dress was yellow and she carried yellow and bronze carnations.

Mr. Jean Pierre Cloutier acted as best man for his brother-in-law.

The ushers were Brian McIntyre, brother of the bride, and Christopher Lepitre, friend of the groom. They were all dressed in identical suits of beige with a dark brown piping.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of sapphire blue polyester knit and a corsage of yellow roses.

The groom'smother chose a floor length light blue gown of polyester knit, with matching jacket and wore a corsage of red roses.

The reception was held at Le Gosier in Coaticook. The four-tiered wedding cake was made by the bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Herman Cutler, decorated by Mrs. Ellie Bailey and given as a gift to the bride and groom by the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. James Smith.

The guest book was in charge of Mrs. Brenda Mathews and Mr. David Ham. Mr. Ottis Patterson, uncle of the bride acted as MC.

Out of town guests attended the wedding from Ontario, Montreal, Lowell, Mass., Nashua, N.H., and Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. Bellows are now making their home near Dixville.

Congratulations

On Sunday, October 10 Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allan (Barbara McKee) will be celebrating their 54th wedding anniversary. Love and best wishes from family and friends.

Daedalus Productions of New York Presents
The Fantasticks
New York's Longest Running Musical Hit.

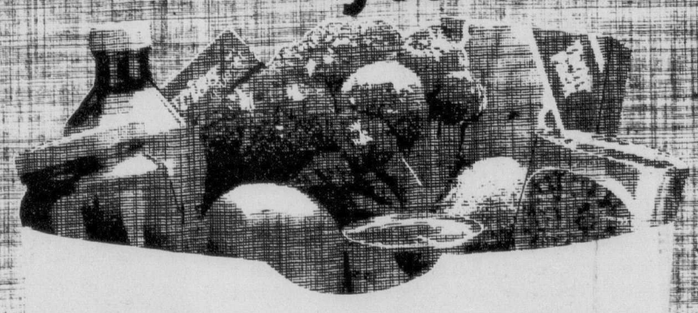

In 1960, a struggling, unknown actress by the name of Barbra Streisand sent a picture and resumé to the producers of "The Fantasticks", a new off-Broadway musical. She didn't get the part. (They never got past her picture). To this day, the producers have been eating their hearts out, right? Not exactly.

On May 3, 1960, "The Fantasticks" opened at New York's Sullivan Street Playhouse. It never closed. Twenty-two years later, it is still running strong, and after 9,300 performances, is the most successful musical in American theatre history.

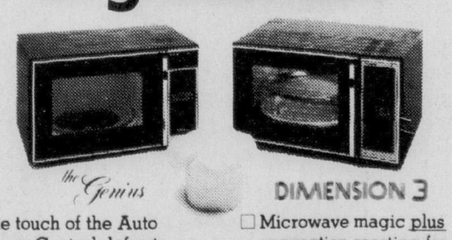

A crazy-quilt blend of "Romeo and Juliet" and "Zorro", the story is one of two young lovers, of people growing up and the memories of joys and struggles we have all shared. It's "bright, buoyant and touching" — family entertainment.

And it all comes to Centennial Theatre (Bishop's-Champlain) on Thursday, October 7 at 8:30 p.m. for one night only. Reserve your tickets now. 563-4966. Special groups rates available!

MRS. HAROLD CHUTE
of Cookshire, Quebec

The community was saddened on Monday, Sept. 20, 1982 to learn that Thelma (Velma) died after a brief illness at the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Velma, as she was better known, was born July 29, 1911 in South Durham, second daughter of the late George Carson and his wife Fannie Whittaker. Velma attended school in South Durham and went on to Montreal to attend a secretarial school where upon graduation was employed as a secretary for a number of years. She later came to Kingsley neighbourhood and worked as a housekeeper companion until the sale of the farm, after which she moved to Sawyerville and was employed as a clerk at the store of J.A. Lowry Ltd., H.E. Locke's grist mill and later at the Sawyerville Post Office until failing eye sight forced her retirement.

On April 18, 1968, she was united in marriage to Harold Chute, moving to Eaton where they resided on a small farm until they sold their farm and purchased a small bungalow on the Smith Road where they resided at the time of Velma's death.

Velma was a very active person and community worker when her health permitted. She was a member of St. Phillip's A.C.W., Sawyerville Women's Institute, Sawyerville Christmas Club and for many years a director of Eaton Cemetery holding many offices in these organizations. She had just recently been presented with a Life Membership certificate and pin from the Sawyerville Women's Institute. Due to failing health she had not been able to attend these organizations as frequently as she would have liked, but still remained an avid card player. She was a good neighbour and always willing to lend a helping hand.

The funeral service was held in Lennoxville at Webster-Cass Funeral Home on Thursday, Sept. 23 at 2 p.m. Canon R. Jervis-Read spoke comforting words and one hymn, the "Old Rugged Cross" was rendered.

The bearers were all friends, Fred Robinson, Douglas Mackay, George Pinchin, Thomas Harbinson, Wellington and William Raymond.

The numerous floral arrangements, donations and largely attended funeral were all tributes to Velma's kind and friendly character. The ladies of the community served lunch following the funeral at Bulwer Community Centre.

Laid to rest in Eaton Cemetery, Velma leaves to mourn, besides her husband, a brother Ernest, a sister Daisy, several nieces and nephews and five sisters-in-law. She was predeceased by a sister Frances.

Those attending from a distance were from Ottawa, Richmond, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville and surrounding area.

St. Andrew's Guild

SHERBROOKE — St. Andrew's Guild was pleasantly entertained on Monday afternoon, September 20 at the home of Mrs. George Jobel in Hatley. A delicious dessert lunch was served by the hostess prior to the business meeting.

Mrs. Duncan Bruce took the devotions using "Work" as the theme and reading from Ephesians chapter 6. We are told to perform our daily tasks faithfully, not for the applause of men or merely for the joy of accomplishment, but as unto the Lord and for the blessing of mankind.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and the correspondence included letters of thanks from the Board of Managers and sick and shut-in friends. The treasurer Mrs. Margo Burrington gave the financial report. A Rummage Sale to be held on Friday, September 24, was discussed.

On Wednesday, October 13, the Guild will cater for a hot turkey dinner to be served to the Sher-Lenn members at noon. The menu will include hot vegetables and lemon and pumpkin pies. It was moved by Mrs. Clifford Brown, seconded by Mrs. Lorna Savage that we charge $5.50 each. Mrs. Kelly Ross will convene the kitchen and Mrs. Brown the dining room.

On Sunday, October 17, St. Andrew's will welcome members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows to the morning service which will be followed by a lunch of sandwiches and cake for the members and their wives in the church hall. Plans for this were also discussed.

The next meeting will be on Monday evening October 18 when Mrs. Brown will be in charge of devotions and Mrs. Burrington refreshments.

There being no further business, Mrs. Brown adjourned the meeting and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

Kison pitches Angels over Brewers, Cards-Braves try again tonight

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Kison was the forgotten man of the California pitching staff during much of the 1982 season. But now the lanky right-hander has hurled the Angels to within one game of baseball's World Series.

Kison fired a brilliant five-hitter and retired the final 13 batters he faced Wednesday night as the Angels took a 2-0 lead over Milwaukee in the American League championship series by beating the Brewers 4-2.

The teams were not scheduled to play today and the best-of-five series moves to Milwaukee for Game Three on Friday. Left-hander Geoff Zahn will try to complete a California sweep against Milwaukee right-hander Don Sutton.

Fourth and fifth games, if necessary, will be played Saturday and Sunday, respectively. But the Brewers have to win Friday or their season is over.

Their challenge is obvious considering no team in the 13-year history of league playoffs has ever come back to win after losing the first two.

Kison, who did not start a game for the Angels between June 22, when he was sidelined briefly after a line drive by Johnny Grubb of Texas hit him in the leg, and Sept. 14. When he did return, it was to the bullpen, where he made 16 relief appearances after angrily rejecting a suggestion he pitch himself into shape in the minor leagues.

The trouble did not stop there for Kison, 32, who was rumored to be on the trading block. At one point, he was going to New York Yankees for Tommy John, whom the Angels later acquired for three minor leaguers.

When he returned to the Angels' rotation after 82 days without a start, he didn't blow the opportunity, shutting out Chicago White Sox. He won two more games before the end of the regular season.

John limited Milwaukee to seven hits in an 8-3 victory Tuesday by the Angels.

"Bruce pitched a great game, that's all there is to it," said losing pitcher Pete Vuckovich, who yielded only six hits.

Reggie Jackson broke one playoff record and tied a league playoff mark with a booming homer to straightaway centre field in the third inning.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A restart is pending, but manager Whitey Herzog says his St. Louis Cardinals already have an edge over Atlanta Braves in the National League championship baseball series.

"We were one run down," said Herzog following the rained-out opener Wednesday of the best-of-five series. "Any time you're one run down and get rained out, it's to your advantage.

"There's no doubt it's a break for us."

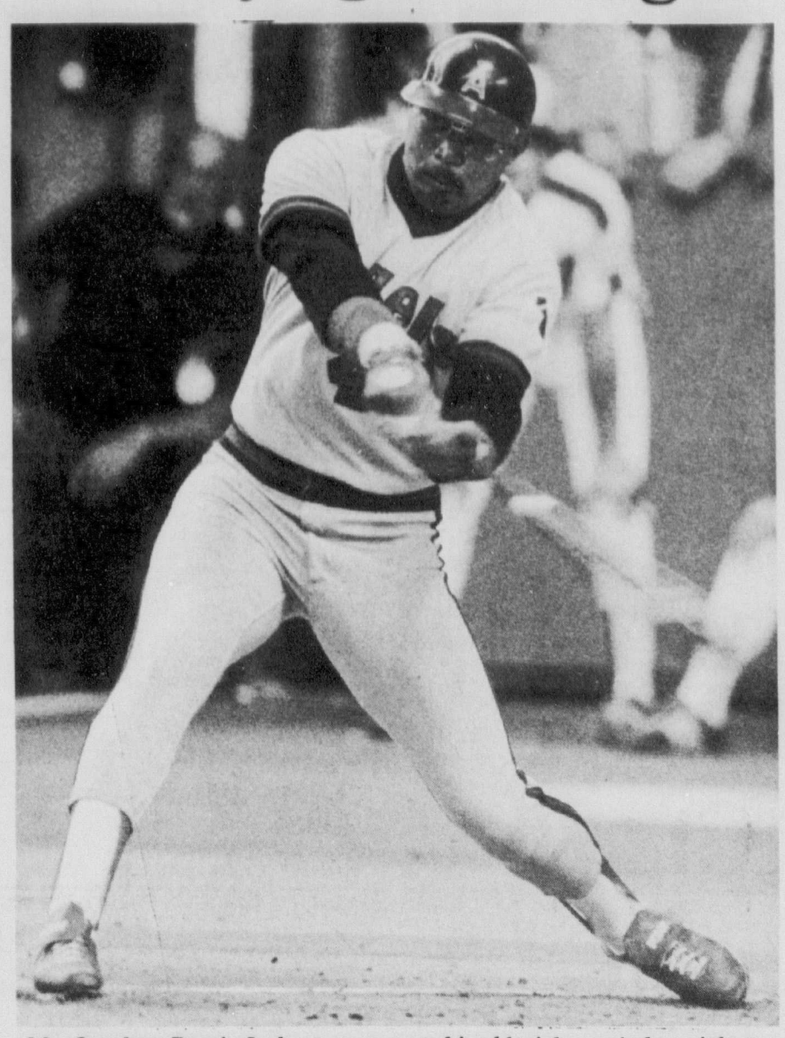

While Herzog counted his blessings, Atlanta counterpart Joe Torre had trouble accepting the timing of home plate umpire Billy Williams's decision to suspend play.

"I don't think the game would have been called that quickly during the regular season," said Torre after watching his Braves hold a 1-0 lead with one out in the bottom of the fifth inning when play was stopped. "I have no animosity.

"It's a playoff game and he knew they wanted to complete it."

Probably disappointing the Atlanta manager the most was the groove into which knuckleballer Phil Niekro had settled before the rains struck with the game two outs short of being official.

Niekro wiggled out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the St. Louis first. He also survived Lonnie Smith's two-out triple in the third because Tommy Herr, the Cards' leadoff batter, was caught stealing after a single.

Mr. October, Reggie Jackson, was up to his old tricks again last night as he drilled a towering home run

Walter, Lafleur start Habs off on right foot

MONTREAL (CP) — Ryan Walter may not be stylish but he makes things happen, as he proved for Montreal Canadiens on Wednesday night.

Walter scored the winning goal at 19:29 of the second period, completing a three-way passing play from centre Doug Wickenheiser and right winger Guy Lafleur, to lift Montreal to a 2-1 victory over Hartford Whalers in their National Hockey League home opener.

"Ryan Walter has added something to that line," said Montreal coach Bob Berry. "He's not an overly flashy player, but he adds a lot to that line, he makes it work."

Walter helped make the first Montreal goal — a power-play effort by Lafleur — work by parking himself in front of Hartford goalie Greg Millen.

"We had planned that a little bit," said Walter. "Millen was moving out and cutting down the angles and we planned to put someone in front to stop him from coming out so far."

BOTHERS MILLEN

With Walter bothering Millen in front of the net, defenceman Larry Robinson fired a slap shot from the blueline that deflected off Lafleur's stick. The puck popped over Millen into the net at 3:09 of the second period.

Former Canadiens centre Pierre Larouche had given the Whalers a 1-0 lead at 1:34 of the same period.

Walter, 24, was acquired from Washington Capitals along with defenceman Rick Green for defencemen Rod Langway and Brian Engblom, and forwards Doug Jarvis and Craig Laughlin on Sept. 10, two days before the Canadiens training camp opened.

The low-scoring game was in marked contrast to Montreal's 1981 home-opener against Hartford — a 5-5 draw and Walter said he prefers lower scoring games better.

"I prefer the low-scoring type of game," Walter said. "Those are the type of games you like to win." ONE SHOT ON NET

After taking a one-goal lead late in the second period, the Canadiens hardly stormed to the attack to pad the margin in the third, when they managed just one of thir 29 shots on net. The Whalers fired four of their total of 20 shots at Montreal goalie Richard Sevigny in the final period.

The Canadiens had only one glittering scoring chance in the third period, when centre Pierre Mondou skated in alone on Millen. He tried to deke the goaltender, but Millen dove and pokechecked the puck off his stick.

Mostly, however, the Canadiens were content to dump the puck into the Hartford zone and forecheck the Whalers' attempts to break out.

"There's been a lot of talk about our defence," said Montreal coach Bob Berry. "We might have overemphasized the defensive aspect of our game in the third period, but when you hold the other team to just four shots, it has to be encouraging."

The Canadiens play the Bruins in Boston tonight.

Nordiques 6 Sabres 4

The Czechoslovakian influence in the NHL also was a determining factor in Buffalo where Peter Stastny scored three goals and set up brother Anton for another to pace Quebec's victory. Michel Goulet and Real Cloutier also scored for the Nordiques.

Veteran Ric Seiling and rookies Paul Cyr, Dave Andreychuck and Hannu Virta replied for the Sabres. The teams were tied 4-4 in the third period before Peter Stastny and Goulet scored unanswered goals.

North Stars 5 Jets 4

Winger Dino Ciccarelli scored the tying and winning goals in a 32-second span early in the third period to lift Minnesota to victory and spoil Winnipeg's home opener.

It was 3-3 after two periods — Willy Lindstrom, Paul Maclean and Lucien Deblois scoring for the Jets and Neil Broten, Steve Payner and Willie Plett, on a power play, for the North Stars. Lindstrom's second of the game put the Jets back on top before Ciccarelli struck.

Leafs 3 Hawks 3

In Chicago, defenceman Borje Salming's slap shot from the Hawks' blue line with 1:19 remaining eluded goaltender Murray Bannerman and capped a Leaf comeback from a 3-0 first-period deficit. All three Toronto goals came on power plays. Walt Poddubny scored the others in the second period.

Kings 3 Canucks 3

With goaltender Richard Brodeur on the bench in favor of an extra attacker, Swedish centre Thomas Gradin beat rookie Kings goaltender Gary Laskoski during a goal-mouth scramble for his second goal of the night with 57 seconds left to lift Vancouver to the tie in Los Angeles.

Blues 2 Red Wings 1

In Detroit, Wayne Babych's power-play goal at 5:43 of the third period lifted St. Louis to victory. Detroit goalie Gilles Gilbert was given a penalty for cross-checking at 4:14 of the final period and centre Derek Smith was serving the penalty for him when Babych slipped the winning goal into the net from a goal-mouth scramble.

Canadians lose another gold medal to electric eye

BRISBANE (CP) — The notorious medal-grabbing electronic sensors proved their impartiality in the Commonwealth Games pool Wednesday but Canada's swimmers were in no mood to applaud the miracles of state-of-the art technology.

The sensitive equipment, the bane of relay swimmers throughout the six-day swimming competition, claimed the Canadian 4x100-metre medley team as its last victim, robbing it of a gold medal by detecting Dan Thompson of Toronto taking off early on his butterfly leg.

Australia inherited the gold when Canada was disqualified, reversing the proceedings Tuesday night when the Australians lost a gold to Canada in the women's 400 medley relay.

While the incidents did not affect the overall result of the meet — Australia finished with 13 gold medals to Canada's nine — both teams complained their swimmers needed time to adjust to the electronic monitors, which are not normally used in major competitions and are not yet sanctioned by FISA, the sport's international governing body.

Infractions by both teams cost them medals in the women's 400 freestyle relay Saturday, an Australian gold and a Canadian silver. And the Canadian men lost another silver in Monday's 4x200 freestyle.

CALLS FOR REVIEW

"I think there has to be a review of the use of takeover equipment," said Dave Johnson of Edmonton, coach of the men's team.

He said swimmers cannot match the sensors' ability to judge hundredths of seconds.

Canada temporarily evened the gold-medal count at 9-9 in Wednesday's first event with a 1-2-3 finish in the men's 100-metre backstroke as Mike West of Waterloo, Ont., broke the Games record for the second time in two days with a time of 57.12 seconds.

Red Wings top Saints

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (CP) — Wayne Crawford scored three goals and assisted on the winner to pace Adirondack Red Wings to a 5-3 win over St. Catharines Saints in the American Hockey League season opener Wednesday.

Ted Nolan and Rejean Cloutier added singles for the Red Wings.

Reg Thomas, Dave Farrish and Bruce Boudreau replied for the Saints, farm club of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Crawford got two of his three goals in the first period while the veteran Boudreau scored for St. Catharines.

Crawford scored his third goal of the night at 14:16 of the second period and about three minutes later he fed a pass to Nolan who broke in alone from centre and beat Saints' goalie Bob Parent with a low wrist shot from about 15 feet for the winnner.

The Red Wings outshot St. Catharines 35-32 before 4,577 fans.

MONTREAL (CP) — Indiana University soccer coach Jerry Yeagley said Wednesday he is interested in becoming head coach of Montreal Manic of the North American Soccer League, but denied published reports that he would know by next week if he "had the job."

Yeagley, who has compiled a 160-24-8 career won-lost-tied record since becoming head coach at Indiana in 1973, said he met Sunday with Manic general manager Roger Samson and Jacques Burelle, vice-president of operations."

OTTAWA (CP) — Rolanda Coe's debut as Ottawa-Carleton's first female high school football player Tuesday wasn't illustrious.

But neither was her Confederation High School Cardinals' team effort against Sir Robert Borden.

Coe, a five-foot, seven-inch, 150-pound halfback, ran the ball once from her own 10-yard line and got to the line of scrimage. The Cardinals lost 33-0.

Coe is a 15-year-old Grade 10 student who says she "just wanted to play football."

Her mother Yvonne says she tried to talk her out of it "but she wanted to play so I finally gave in."

Confederation coach Bob McAskin said Coe is really not a starter.

"We have five kids playing halfback and she took her turn. Because she hasn't played before she lacks a lot of the basic skills.

No end to strike in sight and NFL people getting nervous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. pro football strike is in its 17th day with no end in sight.

The growing urgency for a breakthrough became apparent Wednesday when the National Football League announced games this weekend had been called off.

It was an announcement that had been made for each of the two previous weeks, but this time there was an added note. League officials said they will attempt to reschedule only two weeks of strike-victimized games.

"Since three regular-season games have not been able to be played and in view of previous announcements that a maximum of two weekends of games could possibly be made up in the event of a prompt settlement, this means at least one weekend of games has been lost for the season," the NFL said.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle and other league officials have said there was sentiment among owners not to resume the season unless at least 13 of the 16 scheduled games could be played.

Hours after the league had called off the games, the NFL management council, the club owners' negotiators, spurned the union's offer to resume negotiations later this week.

OBSTACLE REMAINS

The management negotiators said further talks "would produce no constructive results" while the union's demand for a wage scale remained on the table.

Union chief Ed Garvey and his aides failed to sell the wage scale concept to the management council's executive committee, consisting of six club owners, in what was billed as a non-negotiating meeting on Tuesday. The owners have avoided the bargaining table despite calls from the union for their presence.

Wednesday night, the management council said the owners had not changed their position to leave the bargaining to negotiator Jack Donlan and the council.

There have been no official negotiations since last Saturday when three days of talks ended with no hopeful signs apparent.

Though the two sides were not battling across a bargaining table, their courtroom skirmishes continued. A federal judge on Wednesday prohibited teams from filing suit at the state level to block the participation of their players in a series of union-sponsored all-star games.

At the same time, he denied a union request for a temporary injunction to prohibit the teams from interfering with the union games.

Annual Fall reception held at the Wales Home

RICHMOND (KA) — The Fall Reception of The Wales Home (Foyer Wales) was held on Wednesday, September 29. Seasonally warm weather brought together numerous friends, old and new acquaintances, as well as residents of the Wales Home, to celebrate the joyous occasion.

Upon entering the main entrance, guests were greeted by members of the Corporation, as well as staff members, then asked to sign the guest book. Everyone was seated in the living room.

The afternoon's events got underway with the singing of O Canada. Words of welcome were spoken by the President of the Corporation, C. W. Dickson. The President called upon Rev. Marion Hartgerink who recited a prayer of thanks.

C.W. Dickson noted some of the changes in the Home since last year's reception. He noted the retirement of the Executive Director and Secretary, R.S. Butler, and he introduced Donald Chamberlin as his replacement. Dennis Noble has taken the position formerly held by Mr. Chamberlin as Assistant to the Secretary.

Mr. Dickson briefly told of the dream of Horace P. Wales, founder of the Home, and his wish to create a suitable dwelling for senior citizens in the area. Years later, the dream became reality, as the Home presently has 240 residents. Recent renovations to the 3rd floor have been completed, and Mr. Dickson announced the opening of ten new apartments. Noting there are still vacancies, he invited those who wish to do so, to visit one before leaving.

The floor was then given to Bruce Allanson who introduced the Sherbrooke Snowshoe Club Choir. He also called attention to the fact that two former members of the Choir were presently residents of the Home.

Under the very capable hands of the Choir Director, Irving Richards, the vocalists were led in their rendition of many memorable songs of yester-year. With a piano accompaniment, songs filled the living room with joyful tunes including: "Waltzing Matildie", "When You And I Were Young, Maggie," and "This Land Is My Land." Numerous other selections were sung with guests joining in. Their program concluded with the singing of two hymns.

Isabelle Dykeman had the pleasure of introducing the afternoon's guest speaker, Mrs. Joyce Hibbert.

Mrs. Hibbert, from Drummondville, is the author of the book, "War Brides". Mrs. Hibbert began her very interesting talk by introducing herself as one of the many thousands of War Brides, who met their Canadian husbands on their homeland in England, during the war. Her husband was with the Canadian Black Watch stationed in Sussex County, England.

She proceeded to read a humorous poem, obviously written by a male Canadian, entitled, "Ode To A Canadian". Its contents expressed the writer's view of taking an English wife.

Mrs. Hibbert recounted the day she and thousands of other brides set out from England to join their husbands who had left for Canada previously.

The war brides started out on very rough seas, after very sad tearful departures from families and friends. Once at sea, the Atlantic Ocean's storm forced them back to Belfast. Many women wondered if they really should continue to go to a totally strange country, but they continued on.

Docking in Halifax, in February, 1946, Mrs. Hibbert continued on to Montreal to meet her husband. She fondly recalls seeing him for the first time in civilian clothes.

Adjustments to a different way of life took a while to get used to; even expressions once used in England took on a complete different meaning in Canada.

After taking a creative writing course and having a hobby of writing, Mrs. Hibbert decided to put into words some of the hardships that were suffered by the war brides. Several letters to newspapers in Nova Scotia brought response from the other brides who shared in the voyage of love.

In 1978, the first hard cover edition of "War Brides" was published. Two years later, a soft cover edition was made available.

Arnold Healy expressed thanks to Mrs. Hibbert on behalf of all. The enlightening speech was very interesting and enjoyed by everyone.

C.W. Dickson echoed his appreciation to both the guest speaker and the Snowshoe Club Choir. He invited everyone to adjourn to the dining room for refreshments, reminding all to feel free to view the new apartments and visit friends in the Home.

The afternoon came to a close as everyone joined in to sing, "God Save the Queen."

The dining room was attractively decorated with floral center-pieces on each of the tables. President of the Local Auxiliary, Mrs. Stevens was in charge of serving the delicious refreshments.

Your Birthday

October 8, 1982

This coming year you are likely to make a major shift in goals. The new ones you set for yourself will be more within your reach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to maintain in middle course today. There is a possibility you could be overly assertive in some instances and much too passive in others. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Double-check all your facts and figures today regarding things which you are doing for yourself, as well as that which you are managing for others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Friends will back off today if you try to sell them on ideas you do not fully understand or believe in yourself. Sincerity is a "must."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Protect your self-interests today, but also strive to be fair and sharing with those who are working at your side. Acknowledge allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is one of those days where you might put more effort into things which have no real value than you will on those which can offer true advantages.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't do things today which oppose your better judgment. When your common sense sends signals to back off, you'd be wise to heed it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally you're rather definite, and others have no trouble in understanding your position on issues. However, today your indecisiveness may confuse them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Should you have a misunderstanding with a coworker today, don't rehash it once it's resolved. If you fail to let sleeping dogs lie, you'll create unnecessary problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not take anything for granted financially or commercially today. Assumptions could lead to mistakes, causing you to lose in the long run.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take extra pains to be explicit and accurate when communicating important information today. If others don't understand the facts, they can't do your bidding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not discuss things which were told to you in strict confidence today. You could lose an ally if he or she learns of it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Matters which affect your finances or security should be attended to as early as possible today. While your mind is fresh there are fewer chances for mistakes.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Those South players in the charity game who elected to open one no-trump on the theory that the Constitution gives every American the right to bid one no-trump whenever he holds from 15 to 18 points and a balanced hand were usually punished by getting a bad score.

Most West players studied the lead for some time and finally decided to attack with the queen of spades. This would kill dummy's one entry immediately and all declarer could take would be three diamonds, one spade and one club. Down two for minus-200 isn't a tragedy in rubber bridge, but with this hand it was just about a tie for bottom.

Those South players who opened one heart fared a lot better. Many were allowed to play there and invariably managed to scrounge out seven tricks for an 80-point plus. Again nothing to ring bells over, but a mighty good match point score.

Most West players who bid over the one-heart opening wound up as declarer or dummy at two spades and made it for plus-110. Not good enough to tie with those who beat one no-trump two tricks, but well above average.

A few East-West overbidders got higher and were well punished when their overbidding led to minus one, two or maybe even 500 at four spades doubled.

United Church Women meet

LENNOXVILLE — Mrs. Allan Davidson presided for the general meeting of the Lennoxville United Church Women held in the Lounge on September 27. Mrs. Davidson gave a meditation on the value of looking at the beautiful side of life. The UCW Purpose was repeated in unison.

The minutes were read by Miss Esther Bassett in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. C.P. Mallalieu. Mrs. D.A. Baldwin gave the treasurer's report.

During the summer the walls of the Lounge were brightened by a fresh coat of paint; the kitchen was cleaned and an inventory of equipment made.

Several members attended Summer Event at Bishop's University in July.

Correspondence included a request from the Lunch Fund of the Lennoxville Primary School; a letter from Queen's Theological College, Kingston, Ont.; a letter from Lennoxville Community Aide which is hoping to draw up a calendar of community events; information from Mrs. T.A. Judson, president of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference UCW, requesting material for a report on women at work and worship in the church since 1925. Mrs. Charles Hoy and Miss Geraldine Lane are working on this project. Thanks were expressed from Mrs. C.P. Mallalieu for the lovely cards and flowers she received during the summer.

Miss Shirley Bassett, flower convener, would be grateful for donations of fruit and vegetables to decorate the church for Thanksgiving. The UCW will place flowers in the church on October 17.

A meeting of the bazaar committee was held on September 22 to plan for the Christmas bazaar on Saturday, November 20, when a roast turkey supper with all the trimmings will be served in three sittings starting at 4:30 p.m. The bazaar in the Upper Hall will open at 3 p.m. when crafts, home baking, jams and jellies and much, much more will be sold.

Unit Reports - Unit 3 held a supper meeting at which Mrs. H.B. Taylor spoke on continuing education at Bishop's University. Unit 5 catered for a Golden Wedding Anniversary. Unit 6 had an interesting programme when Maureen Home, R.N. spoke on Women's Health.

The possibility of buying plastic tablecloths for the dining-room was considered.

The nominating committee will consist of Mrs. Philip Gaudine and the Unit leaders.

Unit leaders and other interested persons are asked to attend a meeting in Waterloo on October 27.

The next UCW general meeting will be held on Monday evening, December 6.

•

WATERVILLE — The Waterville U.C.W. met in the afternoon of Sept. 22 at the home of Mrs. K. Spafford, with Miss M. Swanson presiding.

The meeting opened with the U.C.W. Purpose, followed by the devotional period led by Mrs. Spafford. She chose to speak on "Autumn in September", and after reading several verses of scripture the hymn, "O Worship the King" was sung. Autumn is the time of abundance, the time of fruiting. And while man is reaping this abundance, nature is sowing next year's harvest, the seeds driven by the autumn winds. The leaves surrender all their goodness to the roots from whence they came. Hibernation commences, for autumn is the beginning of the resting period of winter sleep. September's clear air and blaze of colour tell us autumn is on the way, and the beautiful reds and golds are symbols of plenty. But the harvest depends on the seeds sown in the spring, so autumn is also the season of faith. Devotions closed with a prayer and the Lord's Prayer, and the offering was received.

The minutes of the previous meeting were accepted as read.

The treasurer reported $175.00 forwarded to the M. and S. and all commitments met.

Plans for the Fall Rally being held here Sept. 29 were finalized, and several upcoming programs were discussed. The menu for the Nov. 10 luncheon was chosen.

Business concluded, the president pronounced the benediction, and a social hour followed, during which the hostess served refreshments, with Mrs. Lillian Sarrasin presiding at the tea-table.

•

RICHMOND (KA) — The first meeting of the Melbourne Unit of the UCW since the summer recess was held in the Church parlour on September 22.

The leader, Mrs. M. Hughes, welcomed the 11 members and all repeated the Purpose.

Devotions, led by Mrs. C. Beers and Mrs. B. Rodgers, consisted of the hymn Blessed Assurance, two readings and prayer.

Mrs. Rodgers expressed thanks for remembrances when she was ill. Roll call was responded to by reporting 30 wales Home calls and 25 local calls.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. In the absence of the Treasurer, this report was given by Miss A. Millar. The recent chicken pie supper was a very successful project.

A collection for the Fellowship of the Least Coin was received.

It was announced that the Wales Home Annual Fall Reception will be held Sept. 29, and the Fall Rally to be held at South Durham, Oct. 13 at 9:30 a.m.

The meeting closed with the Benediction.

The program in charge of Mrs. Rodgers, consisted of an amusing contest and a guessing contest, prize being won by Audrey Millar, after which refreshments were enjoyed, hostesses were Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Doyle.

•

WINDSOR — St. Andrew's U.C.W. met on Monday evening, Sept. 27, at the home of Mrs. M. MacMorine. The hostess welcomed a guest, Mrs. Ann Clark, who read an opening selection in keeping with Thanksgiving. The roll call, minutes of the previous meeting, and treasurer's report were read.

It was noted that the Fall Rally would be held in South Durham on Oct. 13.

A fall sale and tea has been decided upon with a date to be set at the next meeting. The group will sponsor the bulletin for a month. Lower Windsor group will be contacted to decorate the church for the Thanksgiving service.

As there was no further business, the meeting was adjourned and a social hour spent. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The date and place of the next meeting will be announced later.

•

SUTTON — The U.C.W. of Calvary United Church opened their fall activities with an executive meeting held at the Russell home, Pleasant St., Wednesday morning, September 15, when plans for the fall season were finalized.

After the executive meeting 24 U.C.W. members went to the Hotel Camile where they enjoyed a delicious dinner, as is their custom to do for the first fall meeting, 19 ladies returning to the hall for a regular meeting in the afternoon.

The meeting was opened by Marjorie Thompson, President, the devotional was given by Beth Travers, theme being This is a Blessed Day, followed by a poem and prayer.

Minutes were read and accepted as read.

Financial report showed a satisfactory balance. All bills were paid. Correspondence read from sick and shut-in who had been remembered with cards and gifts, also from bereaved families who had been remembered at that time.

The fall work schedule includes the Fall Rally which Sutton will hold, assisted by Mansonville U.C.W. on Oct. 5 and a rummage sale on October 7 and 8 in the church hall.

Christmas Bazaar will be coming up later in the fall and the workshop to prepare for it was to hold its first meeting at the Campbell home. Calendars and note paper are now on sale and can be bought from Mrs. Bernice Russell at her home.

Get-well cards were signed and sent out to ill church members and also sympathy cards were signed by all.

Meetings will be held every fourth Wednesday of the month at 9:30 a.m. for the winter months.

Meeting was adjourned by Beth Travers and Phyllis Estall.

Sherbrooke Hospital Ladies Auxiliary holds annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Sherbrooke Hospital Ladies Auxiliary was held Monday, Sept. 17 in the lounge of the Norton Annex. Members met at noon for refreshments, followed by a business meeting.

Mrs. Jean Dawson, president, welcomed the ladies back after the summer, with a special welcome to guests attending the meeting.

Mr. D.A. Mackenzie, director general of the hospital, reviewed the happenings in the hospital during the past year. These have been difficult times in the hospital, but he felt that they had weathered the financial crisis quite well. It appears at this point in time, they might just be able to come up with a balance budget at the end of their fiscal year.

Changes to the hospital cover a fully operational new dietary department. In process - two new boilers are being installed with a possible saving of $35,000 to $40,000 a year in oil cost, which can be used for something else. Within two years, the saving will increase to $100,000 a year.

Also in process, is our global project covering the re-organization and improvement of our operating room suite, recovery room area and central sterilizing facilities of the hospital.

In the near future, they are looking at new X-ray equipment and re-monitoring of the Intensive Care Unit, as the present monitors date back 10 or 12 years.

The hospital is going forward - it is better equipped with a well trained staff and able to offer better service to the patients.

Mr. Mackenzie expressed their appreciation for the co-operation of the Ladies Auxiliary and their financial support. The $10,000 they donated last spring for the purchase of a monitor for the Intensive Care Unit is awaiting the final decision in selecting the correct monitoring system for both the Out Patient Dept. and Intensive Care Unit, so that they can interconnect.

He was thanked by Mrs. Marguerite Blandon for bringing the ladies up to date on the present status of proposed projects.

Also attending the meeting were Mrs. J. Ransehousan and Mrs. M. Tector of the Sher-Lenn, 50 Plus Club. They wished to make the auxiliary and the hospital aware of the many complaints by golden agers who felt it was a type of harassment being referred to under their maiden name while in hospital. It causes problems with the switchboard and visitors to the hospital. It has been discussed at great length in the hospital with doctors and nurses who agree it is confusing and inconvenient, but they have not been able to come up with a satisfactory solution to the problem. A committee will be formed to look into the matter.

A business meeting followed at which time the annual reports of the various committees were given and a new slate of officers for the coming year presented.

St. Paul's Guild

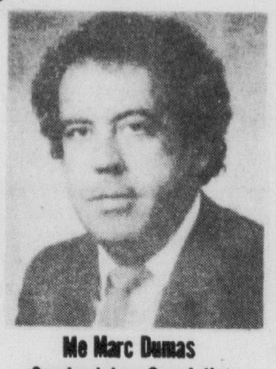

MARBLETON — The members of St. Paul's Ladies guild met in the church hall, to organise everything in preparation for the garage sale held on Sept. 25. At the completion of the work, vice-president, Mrs. Audit opened the meeting with prayer. The minutes were read and approved and future business discussed. Donations to the guild have been acknowledged with gratitude. The Thankoffering will be collected at the Oct. 10th church service.

Miss Florence Hunt, who has faithfully collected the used stamps for several years, finds she is unable to do it now. Therefore, Mrs. Priscilla Audit will be collecting them in the future and will be sending a parcel to the Canadian Bible Society in mid-October.

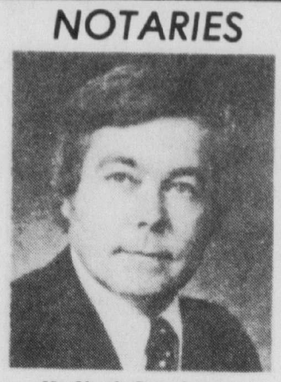

The church calendars for 1983 are being ordered and also church wall plaques, which may also be used for a teapot trivet, are to be ordered.

The next meeting on Nov. 17 with Mrs. Guillette. The meeting adjourned with prayer and benediction.
