HUA'S CHINA

When they think of China at all, most Canadians tend to look at it as a puzzle with 800 million pieces. But the Canadian government is making special efforts to woo this vast market for trade purposes. Recently Record Publisher George MacLaren accompanied Don Jamieson, Canada's Secretary of State for External Affairs, on a tour of this unknown nation. In a four-part series beginning tomorrow, Mr. MacLaren uses words and camera to describe what he saw and felt.

Define program, Ryan urged

By TERRY SCOTT
of The Record
GRANBY — Liberal leadership hopeful Raymond Garneau says he intends to apply pressure during the coming weeks to discover what type of Liberal party each candidate plans to build.
Referring specifically to his lone opponent, Claude Ryan, Mr. Garneau stated, "the only thing he has said is that he wants a happy Quebec in a united Canada. But how does he plan to do that?"

He's making images with no real idea attached. I intend to apply pressure in order to get some specific answers."
The former finance minister, speaking with The Record Saturday night, spent about four hours in this city attending a press conference and later a "meet-the-candidate" supper at the Granby-St. Paul Golf Club.
Mr. Garneau was accompanied by D'Arcy McGee MNA Dr. Victor Goldbloom, who has been a major supporter throughout the campaign.

"I understand that Mr. Ryan has taken a few days off to rest and to write a program. Imagine, two months into the campaign and he's now outlining his plans. I wrote mine down the day I announced my candidacy," Mr. Garneau said.
The leadership hopeful added that he would not like to see members of the Liberal party wake up on April 16 and feel like Quebecers did on November 16, 1976.

He downplayed a statement made at the press conference that Mr. Ryan had earned the delegates' approval in 56 ridings compared to just 21 for the former cabinet minister.
"In 1970 everyone said that Claude Wagner had the Liberal leadership in the bag, but when it came time to count the votes it was a different story."
"When I was in Rouyn-Noranda a while ago the newspapers were reporting that Mr. Ryan had support from 21 of the 24 delegates. But I had people phoning me up and saying that's simply not true, because we still support you. I don't get upset about things like that. The whole thing will be decided on the convention floor."

He viewed the race as a nose-to-nose struggle at the moment and predicted it will remain that way, citing in particular the tendency of the young delegates to change their mind.
Mr. Garneau believes that his age (at 43, he's 10 years Mr. Ryan's junior) will work in his favor to attract the support of the under 25-year-old delegates.

"We're choosing a leader now for the 1980's," he explained. "If you pick a man of say, 55 years of age, he'll be that much older in 1981. He may not be able to stand the rigors of an electoral campaign. If you have a man of 45-46 you can look ahead knowing he'll be able to withstand at least two man-"

PM, ministers hit hustings with giveaways

REGINA (CP) — A federal election is coming.
That was the message, loud and clear, brought to the Prairies by the federal cabinet. Prime Minister Trudeau and other cabinet ministers spent a lot of time asking Manitobans, Saskatchewan and Albertans to vote Liberal in the next election.
The three-day road show was capped by an announcement by Transport Minister Otto Lang at a news conference Saturday that $75 million will be spent on rebuilding railways branch lines in 1979, in addition to $100 million already earmarked this year.

Rail upgrading is an emotional issue on the Prairies, as small towns fear they will die unless the rail system is improved.
At the news conference, held after a cabinet meeting at a downtown hotel picketed by farmers, students and francophones, Trudeau defended the visit by his ministers, who jetted frequently between cities at public expense.
It was a chance for the government to get to know the region and should not be interpreted as a partisan event, he said.

"We can only lament the cynics who say the government should be holed up in Ottawa," he said, adding that Liberals still form the government even though an election could be only a few months away.
But at public meetings since Thursday, Trudeau said the best way for the West to "take over" Ottawa was by sending more Liberals to Parliament.
His cabinet ministers carried the same message—be it Federal-Provincial Relation Minister Marc Lalonde talking about the status of women in Winnipeg; Revenue Minister Joe Guay pleading for national unity in Portage la Prairie; Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan listening to farmers' complaints over depressed beef prices in Regina; Finance Minister Jean Chretien explaining the devalued dollar in Saskatoon; Privy Council President Allan MacEachen debating the pipeline business in Calgary; or Public Works Minister Judd Buchanan being told of inadequate federal funding for science research in Edmonton.

EASY COME, EASY GO...

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP) — John Brown has spent $140,000 on his friends since he won $1 million in a Loto Canada lottery draw six months ago but he says the spending spree is over.
"My book-keeper and my lawyer have told me not to spend so much," he said in an interview. "I'm pulling in my horns."
Brown, 43 and divorced, used to receive $14,000 a year as a machine operator. He recently bought a local inn for $500,000.
He said treating friends at the bar costs him $25 to $30 a day and he spends $15 to $20 a day buying drinks at the nearby Royal Canadian Legion hall where he bought the winning ticket.
Brown said the first thing he did when he heard about his win was to get drunk.
The second thing he did was buy a $60,000 mobile home and take three friends to British Columbia and California. The trip cost $12,000.
GIVES TO FORMER WIFE
While he was in Los Angeles, Calif., he gave one of his four former wives $10,000 and a new $7,000 car.
"She was just delighted," he said.
A former wife in Windsor, Ont., got $5,000 as did his father. Brown, a former bartender who said he has known hard times, also donated $25,000 to the Salvation Army.

Oh, rats. Here I am, the world's finest specimen, spending a perfectly good weekend cooped up in this insult of a cage while all those simpering lapdogs strut around the place like they owned it. So what if it is the Sherbrooke Kennel Club dog show? So what if I'm up against 200 other dogs from across the province? So what if adoring crowds have filled the Carrefour de l'Estrie to see me... and maybe one or two of the others? I'd rather be out getting into some of those perfectly delightful groundhog burrows and other good stuff exposed by the melting snow.

Refugee camps prepare for Israeli reprisals

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinian strongholds in southern Lebanon are considered likely targets for Israeli attacks in retaliation for the weekend Arab terrorist raid in which the Israeli government said 36 of its citizens were killed, 72 were wounded and all 11 raiders killed or captured.
"Those who kill Jews in our time cannot enjoy impunity," said Prime Minister Menachem Begin, and he vowed that Israel "will eliminate this threat" of terrorism.

The government today raised the Israeli toll to 36 dead, including one policeman, after announcing Sunday that a total of 32 Israelis had been killed.

Funerals for the victims began with the burial of a five-year-old girl, Na'ama Hadani. A number of the bodies were burned or mangled beyond recognition.
Among the dead was Gail Rubin, 39, a photographer from New York City who immigrated to Israel five years ago and held dual U.S. and Israeli citizenship.

Believed to be the first victim of the guerrilla attack, Miss Rubin was on the beach at the fishing village of Maagan Michaels, 60 kilometres north of Tel Aviv, when the terrorists came ashore in two rubber dinghies.

BUS HIJACKED
The raiders shot and killed Miss Rubin, flagged a taxi on the nearby Tel Aviv-Haifa highway, hijacked one bus and then another and packed the second bus with 70 hostages from the two vehicles. The terrorists headed for Tel Aviv, firing machine-guns and grenades from the bus windows and planning to seize a hotel to demand the release of imprisoned terrorists.

The Great Debate everybody won...

REED SCOWEN
... Important argument

By JANET COTTON
Of The Record
LENNOXVILLE — Reed Scowen has travelled the length and breadth of Canada listening to people argue for and against national unity. Last Friday he came back to his native Eastern Townships for one more round.
As executive director of the Pepin-Robarts Task Force on Canadian Unity, he's heard from thousands of Canadians in the past few months, but Friday night's bout on Quebec separatism between local English and French students was "as interesting as any I've heard."
Close to 400 people turned out to hear Bishop's University and Universite de Sherbrooke students battle in both French and English the question of an independent Quebec in the Great Debate, moderated by Mr. Scowen at Centennial Theatre Friday night.
Four students — one each from Bishop's and U de S arguing for and against separation — presented their positions on the causes and solutions of the national unity problem.

Quebec has never been a part of Canada, and Canadians have never understood Quebecers, said Roger Blanchette, the Universite de Sherbrooke student arguing for separation.

"Since 1867, it has been Quebec and Canada, not Quebec within Canada. We can't cheat with reality. Canadians have always held the attitude of the conquered and the conquerer when it comes to French Canada."

Separation is inevitable, so why not let it happen now, Roger asked.
"It's been a long time that we've talked about separation, about the differences between French Quebecers and other Canadians. Even if the majority says no to the independence referendum, those differences won't go away."

"We'll continue to argue, although we've wasted so much time already. The energies we have spent, the hours, could have been used to develop Quebec and Canada."

Ford was not 'aware' of steering defects

OTTAWA (CP) — It is absolutely impossible to say that the Ford Motor Co. of Canada was aware of an alleged defect in the steering assembly of its full-sized cars built between 1971 and 1973, Ford lawyer Donald Brown said Thursday.

He told county court Judge Elmer Smith that of 500,000 Fords built or imported into Canada during that time, only 84 complaints were made about the steering. The first complaint was made in September, 1972, he said.

Ford is charged under the federal Motor Vehicle Safety Act with failing to notify Canadian owners of 1971-73 Fords of the alleged defect "that affects or is likely to affect" their safe operation.

Making his final arguments in the case, Brown said the alleged defect—and he declined to say it was—"can't be detected until it happens."

"It takes a strange combination of events" for the defect to become evident and the evidence was that it happened only to a few cars when they were driven more than 50,000 miles, Brown said.

The transport department, which brought the charge against Ford, says the problem involves a joint in the idler arm, a part of the steering assembly which is attached to the frame of the car.

LOSE CONTROL

There was evidence at the trial indicating that over time the joint can seize and continuous steering movement will cause it to rip out of the ram, resulting in loss of steering control.

But Alan S. Tetelman of Failure Analysis Associates of Los Angeles said detachment of idler arms from the Fords was possible only if corrosion and deterioration occurred uniformly and simultaneously over a large area.

That is "An unlikely combination of events," said Tetelman who tested 303 idler arms from Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Oakville, Ont., and Winnipeg at Ford's request.

Under cross-examination, however, he admitted his report did not include tests on nine of the arms and that data on one of six damaged arms was not reflected in his report.

He could not explain some of the omissions but said they did not affect his main point that detachment of the idler arms was not likely to occur.

In his final arguments for Ford, Brown quoted Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada as saying that a manufactured product must live up to the promised expectations.

In the case of a motor car, said Brown, promised expectations should be the period of warranty.

...more recalls

LIVONIA, Mich. (Reuter) — Ford Motor Co. said Thursday it is recalling about 1,600 of its 1978 Mustang II, Pinto and Bobcat cars and about 12,000 1972 to 1978 heavy trucks to inspect seat belts for possible defects.

Ford said that on some of the cars, the retractors may fail to lock because of deformation of the retractor housing.

The truck seat belt problem involves seat belt assemblies on the driver's side, Ford said.

In Oakville, Ont., a spokesman for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. said the recall will involve 1,800 trucks in Canada. But none of the cars destined for recall were sold in Canada.

Coal talks recessed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the striking United Mine Workers union and the coal industry recessed their main contract talks Sunday, eliminating hopes for a tentative contract settlement in the long U.S. coal strike before a back-to-work court order takes full effect today.

Officials on both sides of the strike stressed that the recess did not indicate a breakdown of the talks and said bargainers would continue to meet in small groups to discuss remaining issues.

But with federal marshals completing efforts to serve back-to-work orders in the coalfields, they conceded that no agreement appeared imminent in the long dispute.

Both sides stressed that they were making progress in the latest round of talks, which began Friday.

PROGRESS REPORTED

Both sides stressed that they were making progress in the latest round of talks, which began Friday without the assistance of federal mediators.

BCN raises loan rate

MONTREAL (CP) — The Bank Canadian National announced Thursday it will raise its prime lending rate to 8 3/4 per cent from 8 1/4 per cent, effective March 10.

The bank will also increase the interest it pays on true-savings accounts to 6 1/4 per cent from 5 3/4 per cent, effective April 1.

The Provincial Bank of Canada also announced Thursday that it will raise its prime lending rate to 8 3/4 per cent from 8 1/4 per cent effective today.

The Provincial bank will also increase the interest it pays on non-chequing savings accounts to 6 1/4 per cent from 5 3/4 per cent, effective April 1.

The increases follow an announcement Wednesday by the Bank of Canada that it is raising its prime lending rate—the rate at which the central bank lends to chartered banks—to eight per cent from 7.5 per cent.

Northern Telecom lays off 80

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Telecom Ltd. has announced it will lay off 80 workers at its plant in Aylmer, Que., about 10 kilometres northwest of Ottawa.

The company, the country's largest manufacturer of telecommunications equipment, warned about two months ago that layoffs might have to occur because of poor market conditions.

Since then, "market conditions have not improved and we had no choice but to go through with the layoff," a company spokesman said Wednesday.

Last year, Northern Telecom, Bell Canada's largest subsidiary, laid off about 1,000 workers at plants across the country.

Stelco reports drop

TORONTO (CP) — Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Stelco) reported a slight drop in profits for 1977 on Thursday, but held out little hope for any significant improvement in the industry this year.

"The outlook for 1978 is for relatively little improvement," J. Peter Gordon, chairman, said in a year-end report to shareholders.

"The latest projections indicate that world steel consumption will increase by about 5.5 per cent in 1978." While the Canadian steel industry fared much better than other countries, such as the U.S. and Japan, Gordon said Stelco's profit in 1977 was unsatisfactory, providing "less than we continue to require."

Stelco earned $90.2 million or $3.36 a share last year compared with $90.6 million or $3.67 a share in 1976.

Beyond 1978, Gordon said Stelco is looking for a resurgence in domestic construction which would help the steel industry. He referred specifically to energy projects, such as development of Alberta's oil sands, frontier oil and gas, and nuclear generating stations.

A NEW DEAL

Alternative: Home births

Hospitals are for sick people, not for events as healthy, natural and exuberant as birth of a child.

Yet all but a handful of North American women have allowed the 'experts' to talk to them into having their children in the sterile, impersonal confines of a hospital delivery room. Why?

First, midwifery — the basis for healthy childbirth throughout the world — is outlawed in much of North America.

Second, North American women have become alienated from their own natural processes, putting their trust more in our gee-whiz medical technology than in their own gut feeling that the childbearing process is best in familiar surroundings.

Even our language perpetuates the concept of childbirth as a painful, frightening ordeal, with phrases like bearing children, labor pains, and delivery...both of the baby and from pain.

What price have women paid to deliver themselves from pain?

Evelyn Nerenberg, a young mother, describes how her sister put up with her pregnancy and birth. "My sister's generation, people in their 30's, see it as something to be endured. My sister was under anesthesia for her labor and delivery and when she saw her baby she thought it was the ugliest thing she had ever seen."

It wasn't always this way. "The simplicity of these processes (pregnancy and childbirth) was understood by our ancestor sisters. They had a built-in knowledge of child birth...they could not articulate or explain it; it was unquestioning, self-conscious, and uncomplicated," writes Suzanne Arms, in her book Immaculate Deception.

Three years ago, I gave birth to my little girl in a hospital setting. I believed that that was the only place where I could get proper care. My memories of my stay there are beset with contradictions. The sweet awe of the birth of my baby contrasts sharply with the sterility, efficiency and indifference of the hospital staff and setting. I was cheated out of making decisions regarding the welfare of my baby and myself, but I was too tired and caught up in the immediacy of labour to protest. My obstetrician, during his brief visits, was competent, efficient — and condescending.

Now I know that I wanted more than a hospital room and strangers coming in and out, who shaved, moved, placed, injected and ignored me while they invaded my body. I felt so lonely and isolated from my loved ones; my husband who left after the birth, my new baby who was taken away to the nursery, my mother and dear friend who couldn't come to see me during labour and delivery but loyally stood vigil in another room.

Recently I met two women who are part of a growing number of people who refuse to settle for less than they want during child birth.

"I can't imagine having a child without being aware of everything involved in the process," stressed Evelyn, a mother who had her child at home.

"Giving birth is not an illness," continued Evelyn. "The decision to have a home birth came slowly. I had a difficult pregnancy and there was a lot of pressure to have the baby in the hospital. My parents kept stressing the risks I was taking with my child's life. Toward the end of my pregnancy I felt it was right to have the baby at home — close to familiar people and things."

Evelyn's labour was long — 22 hours.

"There were times when I started to get depressed but it was hard to feel down with the cheering team I had."

Her husband, Michael, Dr. Lowry, her physician, friends, all together, shared, calmed, supported and invested themselves in Evelyn's labour experience. "I can't see having done what I did without their support," concluded Evelyn.

Jean Glezes who assists with home births describes her role. "I want to help out and be a friend to birthing women, someone I wished I'd had."

Jean, a mother of three, all delivered at home expresses how liberating and fulfilling a home birth can be. "In her own home a woman is free to express herself in her own way. She doesn't have to fit in to a hospital regime. When I had my children at home, I began to understand that our capacities are much, much more than we, women imagine we have. Because of her experiences Jean now encourages women "who are able to take time to improve their capacities to experience full participation in the birth process."

When invited Jean attends births and works with Dr. Lowry providing support and knowledge to the mother. But since midwifery is illegal in Canada, she must be careful of the role she plays. "There was a time when Dr. Lowry couldn't make it to a birth because of a storm. I helped deliver the baby. It was exhilarating to witness the close positive relationship the mother and father had toward their child and each other."

Jean stressed the complementary roles of midwives and doctors. "I want to emphasize that we are not trying to rip off the doctors. Most doctors are bored during normal births because they don't require any medical interference." Since 90 per cent of births have no complications perhaps one should consider removing them from a hospital and provided alternate support systems where the women and men involved will be free to make decisions regarding their own and their child's welfare.

"I want to have control over my existence and be completely responsible for decisions influencing my life," Evelyn said. Her husband Michael elaborated. "Every husband should be there at the birth of his child. My participation made the experience of the birth my experience. It brought me close to my wife and child."

"Canadians have never understood Quebec. We are a breed in ourselves, but have never been treated as equal with other Canadians."

Quebec must integrate into the modern world, and have the right to choose its own partners and establish its priorities, he said.

"We don't accept that the federal government tells us what we can and cannot do. They grant us concessions but we don't need these concessions. We can do it on our own. We have to."

The real source of the national unity problem isn't economics or mistreatment of the French, but rather language and culture, said Mark Angers, the Université de Sherbrooke student arguing against separation.

"We can't deny the problems exist, for they affect all Quebecers," he said, "but we have to realize that the difference in languages is the source of all our troubles."

"If all Canadians spoke the same language, there would be no national unity debate, he said. There are two languages, "but is that reason for separation?"

Brome-Missisquoi selects convention reps

Liberal delegates lean towards Ryan

By TERRY SCOTT
of The Record

The riding of Brome-Missisquoi selected Wednesday night the required 24 delegates to represent the constituency at the Liberal leadership convention at Quebec City April 14.

Party rules state that eight male delegates must be chosen, an equal number of females, and the balance of the delegates must be under 25 years of age, divided equally between men and women.

Wednesday night's selection was completed in about 40 minutes, giving rise to speculation that the procedure had been "cut and dried" beforehand. In many ridings delegate selection has taken as much as five hours.

"You saw the nominations," said one of the organizers, "it was open to anyone. It may have looked planned but anyone had the right to put forward a nomination."

Secret ballots were not needed since no more than the required number of delegates were nominated in each category.

Few of the delegates who spoke with The Record would reveal their preference in the leadership race, many stating they will wait to see what transpires over the next month before coming to a firm decision.

The pockets of conversation which took place following the delegate selection, however, tend to indicate the majority of support from Brome-Missisquoi will go to Mr. Ryan.

Ron Shand, of Knowlton, who was chosen as a delegate to the convention, stated he would definitely back the former Le Devoir publisher despite receiving a call the previous night from Dr. Victor Goldbloom, the D'Arcy McGee MNA who is supporting Raymond Garneau.

"I've been involved with the Liberal party for 40 years," said Mr. Shand, "and I think Claude Ryan is the man who can bring this party together. There are too many Judases in the party right now."

Robert Blackwood, who was chosen as a delegate in the under 25 group, said he too was leaning toward Claude Ryan.

Both candidates are keeping a close eye on the youth vote since it represents one-third of all ballots cast by delegates in Quebec City.

Peter Turner, president of the provincial Liberal Association in Brome-Missisquoi, and a delegate to the convention, has declared a preference for Mr. Ryan as well.

While the mood of Brome-Missisquoi delegates seems to augur well for the Ryan camp, the opposite is true in nearby Shefford County.

Following the choice of delegates last weekend, Liberal party workers in Shefford claim that support is unanimous for Mr. Garneau. Shefford MNA Richard Verreault announced several weeks ago that he is in favor of the former finance minister.

Mr. Garneau will be visiting Granby on the weekend.

dates after that election."

The leadership candidate repeated to journalists his program at the constitutional level calling for the repatriation of the constitution and having it inscribed as a law of Canada rather than of Britain.

He added that each province should have the right of veto on all future amendments, noting that Quebecers shouldn't have to battle in order to secure their rights — there should be a guarantee.

Asked about the government's green paper proposing educational reform, Mr. Garneau stated that he saw it as "the creation of a fourth column" which would result in the end of school boards.

He said he was opposed to the abolition of school commissions and attacked the government for its plans to remove the right of school boards to collect taxes.

"If you want to abolish it you simply must give another source of taxation," he said.

Mr. Garneau added that changes must still be conducted since school boards have become increasingly centralized.

"It's getting so you can't paint a wall in yellow or white without asking the Ministry of Education for approval."

He suggested handing responsibility over to school commissioners, not only to administer the field of education but to make the decisions as well.

"Suppose they are given a budget of $10 million. If, at the end of the year the school board incurs a deficit, well, it's their problem because the school commissioners are responsible for the money."

Despite the growing intensity of the leadership race, Mr. Garneau said he isn't concerned that an irreparable schism will develop in the party once a winner has been declared.

"All conventions are like that... it doesn't mean, though, that you can't go the next morning, offer a handshake and admit that the objectives of the party are more important than a personal defeat. There are so many things we have to prepare for — the referendum, the next provincial election..."

The 15-year political battler said that if he becomes the new leader he hopes to unite all members of the party but "I won't get down on my knees and beg if someone doesn't want to come along."

At a special reunion dinner in the St. George's Club in Sherbrooke on Friday, March 10, graduates of Macdonald College living in the Sherbrooke area honored fellow alumni of 50 years or more of community service. Recognition was given to well-known local retired agronomist W.G. MacDougall, to Mr. L.V. Parent, for many years manager of the Co-operative Wool Growers' Association, and to Mr. R. G. Hodge, right, a well-known Cookshire area farmer and to Mrs. Hodge, second from right, a former teacher in the Townships area.

Dr. Lewis Lloyd, centre, dean of Macdonald College spoke to the graduates, stressing his pleasure at the strength of the college, and at having opportunities to meet with graduates.

The Eastern Townships has always been a source of top students and the graduates of the area have played leading roles in the alumni affairs, said Dr. Lloyd. Standing next to him are Mrs. Carrolle Smith and Galt principal, Mr. Ben Hodge, far left.

Fair presentations underway

Lawrence and Evelyn Dewey entertained the Attractions Committee of the Ayer's Cliff fair board at their Dew - Dust Ranch in Stanstead on the evening of March 1.

It was resolved to contract a Canadian group from Ontario for one evening and a performer for between events on the grandstand for the three days.

Turner Hunter will arrange the horse racing program and others on the committee will make contacts for the popular horse pulling contest.

Warehouse blaze extinguished

At approximately 8:15 Saturday evening, the alarm sounded in the Canadian Johns-Manville warehouse in Danville. The company police arrived to find the empty plastic bags on fire.

At this time the Asbestos fire department was called in. Under the direction of fire marshal, Roland Pariseau, the blaze was extinguished.

More than 60 men worked throughout the day Sunday to clean the warehouse of soot. Damage was caused to the filled bags of fibre.

Insurance men were on the scene Sunday, but no estimate will be made until the middle of this week.

Lambert, the Bishop's student arguing against separation.

"Are we seeking a sense of vengeance? Are we still referring to the English and French as the conquered and the conquerors? We cannot base a policy on sentiment for something that happened 200 years ago."

"Division is not the solution. It is only with unity that we have strength among the people to resolve our problems."

"Separation won't bring positive change. It won't create jobs for the unemployed. We have to stop the polarization, to overcome the two-solitudes attitude if we want improvement."

The concept of independence is reactionary, emotional, and self-defeating, she concluded.

"The hostility that comes out of it, is not a step forward for the people of Quebec, but a step backward."

Following the debate, Mr. Scowen, told the audience the need for discussion of the national unity problem "cannot be overemphasized."

"Let's hope that what happened here tonight will continue. There's no place in this country that the desire to remain united will be more critical than here in Quebec, here in the Eastern Townships," said Mr. Scowen.

"As long as we are talking, debating, and having a little bit of fun, the desire for separate countries will diminish."

Hostage drama drags on

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — The two negotiators in the continuing hostage drama here flew to Montreal and back Sunday afternoon, amid rumors they had met with Quebec justice department officials.

However, neither lawyer Robert LaHaye nor radio station reporter Claude Poirier would comment on the purpose of their helicopter trip to Montreal, 45 kilometres away.

During their three-hour absence, police arrested six persons following scuffles in two separate incidents near the barricade that surrounds the provincial prison where the hostages are being held.

All but one were released after questioning.

Earlier, Montreal lawyer Frank Shookey said he was trying to convince police to replace LaHaye and Poirier with two negotiators requested by the three men holding the hostages.

The two men, Claude Jacques, the brother of one of the hostage-takers, and reporter Georges Aubry, were rejected Friday by provincial police.

Economics Department hosts speaker

In continuation of the University Conference series, the University of Sherbrooke Economics Department will feature Mr. Gilles Ares, director general of the Quebec Cooperative Council on March 16.

Mr. Ares will speak on "The Strategies of Cooperative Development in Quebec" at 2 p.m., in Room 128, Faculty of Arts building.

E.T. contributions...

The Eastern Townships region was the fourth-largest contributor to the 1977 Quebec Christmas Seal Society, statistics released by the society indicate.

Donations from the Townships totalled $23,443.45, placing it behind leading contributors, Montreal region with $221,410, Quebec City with $118,809, and Quebec East with $61,569.

The Townships surpassed their 1976 donation of $23,418 by only $25 although the society surpassed its 1977 objective of $525,000 with total donations of $541,811.82 — an eight per cent increase over 1976.

Let Louis do it

Businessman Louis Desmarais' sobering prediction that Canada could be on its way to becoming a have-not nation within 15 or 20 years may sound far-fetched, but we can only agree with the reasoning behind it.

Mr. Desmarais, speaking last week to one of Montreal's most influential businessmen's associations, said the country has gotten used to sitting back and watching Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Levesque play "showdown poker with our political future" while Canada's economy goes to hell in a handbasket.

Mr. Desmarais blames the nation's slumping economy on declining productivity, the runaway growth of government, and a widespread 'let-George-do-it' attitude which allows governments to go their merry ways between elections.

Even declining productivity could be linked to bad government, Mr. Desmarais said. "Massive social welfare programs have seriously undermined Canadians' traditional values of self-reliance and devotion to hard work."

Our educational system is teaching Canada's children how to consume, rather than preparing them for the realities of employment, he added. Worse, the system is indoctrinating them in anti-productive social values.

This has extended to management-labor confrontations, which is another major factor in the nation's declining productivity.

He blasted the growth of big government, saying the very size of the beast has estranged it from those it once served.

This, he claimed, is why so many Canadians from coast to coast are longing for a return to more regional forms of government. "Decisions should be made at the lowest possible level."

Mr. Desmarais makes more sense than all the so-called brains in Ottawa or Quebec have for the last two years.

We say let the businessman have a whack at running the country. The politicians haven't done a pennyworth of good since they got hold of it.

JAMES DUFF

Don't give in

Premier Rene Levesque, in his weekly press conference, has very wisely said no firm policy can be made concerning hostage-taking incidents in provincial prisons, adding that preservation of lives is the sole priority.

Mediators Robert LaHaye and Claude Poirier have managed to keep low profiles while negotiations continue in the explosive situation at the provincial jail in St. Jerome where two persons serving terms for double murders still hold six prison guards as hostages.

We have heard comments from prison and penitentiary guards since the incident began and, unfortunately, many feel Mr. LaHaye only decided to act as a negotiator to gain personal publicity, in other words a showboater.

Nothing could be further from the truth. We have known Mr. LaHaye for three years and he is a hard-working dedicated defence lawyer who has the respect of his Crown opponents, as well as that of the judges. We are firmly convinced he accepted the onerous task with one thought in mind, the saving of lives of both the hostages and the abductors.

It seems highly unlikely that provincial solicitor-general Marc Andre Bedard can agree to the demands of the prisoners who have requested $100,000 ransom, transportation to a country which has no extradition treaties with Canada, and the transfer of francophone inmates currently held at Dorchester, N.B., and Millhaven, Ont., to Quebec penitentiaries.

The situation is further complicated as Edgar Roussel and Roland Simard, the two men serving life for double murder, are under the jurisdiction of the federal government.

A recent directive to all penitentiary directors said they could not offer any concessions in hostage-taking incidents.

The reasoning behind the directive is simplistic, to say the least. Our federal penitentiaries from Nova Scotia to British Columbia are bursting at the seams. The granting of concessions such as those under negotiation in St. Jerome would only breed many similar incidents across the country, turning the penitentiary system into utter chaos.

There are no easy solutions to such problems other than a maximum of patience and understanding between the negotiating parties. Messrs. LaHaye and Poirier have managed to keep the situation in hand so far, and we can only hope their efforts are fruitful in the immediate future with no loss of life.

Hargreaves' prediction: June 12 election

Election talk has intensified in Ottawa particularly with the most recent national public opinion poll that shows the Liberals "bottoming out" of their six-month-long decline.

Everyone has his or her favorite election date and reasons for it. Here's one scenario and the reasoning behind it.

Prime Minister Trudeau will call a federal general election at 11 a.m. on Friday, April 7th in the House of Commons with voting day set for Monday June 12th.

That prediction is what is known 'as going out on a limb,' but here's the reasoning behind it.

Most observers in Ottawa believe the government wants to have an election before having a budget. That is because a budget with tax cuts would have an horrendous deficit and would be perfect material for an Opposition campaign attacking mismanagement. A budget without any significant economic moves would be labelled a "do-nothing" effort and also provide ammunition for the Opposition.

If there is to be no budget then the prime minister would like to call an election fairly soon, before Opposition demands for it become too intense. The finance minister, Jean Chretien has said on many occasions he wouldn't have anything to say about a possible budget until after the end of March. Apparently he does not want to have to say much in April either if he can avoid it.

The Election Act calls for about 57 days from the calling of the election until election day.

But Mr. Trudeau doesn't want to call the election too early either because the provincial Liberal leadership convention in Quebec isn't held until April 15th. At the other end voting days are seldom held after the end of June (1974 being an exception because of the fall of the minority government). Elections have to be held on a Monday, or a Tuesday if the Monday in question is a holiday. There are four Mondays in June - the 5th, 12th, 19th and 26th.

May is almost excluded as a possibility for an election.

To make the last two weeks in May a possibility the prime minister would have to call the election while Parliament had risen for the Easter Recess, or call it in the next week or so, nearly a month before the Ryan-Garneau showdown in Quebec. That clearly is not in the cards. In Quebec, as in other provinces the provincial workers are also the federal workers, and while an overlap of a few days or a week in the provincial leadership and federal election, campaigns might be bearable, anything more would create major organizational problems.

Terry Hargreaves

The Record's

Ottawa correspondent

Looking at June, the first week would encounter some of these problems - the date would have to be announced the moment Parliament returns from its Easter recess. The 5th remains an outside possibility.

At the other end of the month, June 26th, is being advised against by Quebec Liberal MP's who think a federal election on St. Jean Baptiste weekend would not yield the kind of benefits it did in 1968, and in fact might do quite the opposite.

That leaves the 12th and the 19th. The 19th is Discovery Day in Newfoundland and a public holiday in that province but there are much stronger reasons to cancel it - the monthly figures on unemployment and the Consumer Price Index come out on the 13th and 14th. Both figures could be damaging to the government and not the kind of thing you would like to have weighing heavily on the minds of people four or five days before voting.

So the 12th has the advantage of being the day furthest away from the May statistics on unemployment and the price index - the June figures would come out the day after election day, but of course by then it would be too late to change your mind.

Counting back the required days from Monday June 12th makes the weekend of April 15th the latest day legally to call an election to fall on June 12th. But of course no one would call an election on a Friday, one day before the leadership convention in Quebec and its attendant publicity.

That kind of action would not be appreciated at all by the delegates and workers, all who would be asked to work on the federal campaign.

But how about the Friday before, the 7th of April? A Friday is a good day to call an election - there is lots of coverage in the newspapers, radio and television over that weekend and by the following weekend there's a bit of a lull in the initial excitement as the parties start to gear up their machines.

And a week later Quebec Liberals choosing their leader with great enthusiasm and lots of media attention would not be expected to hurt the beginnings of the national election campaign, for the federal liberals.

That's the kind of scenario that's being talked about in Ottawa these days.

But of course, I thought Bob Stanfield would win in 1972.

Letters

A sad thing

Editor:

I was somewhat surprised when I saw the letter in the Record Friday, Feb. 24 by Jean Simoneau in which he said they (the St. Jean Baptiste Society) had sent to our Prime Minister. I would like to inform him that he is wasting his time sending such garbage to Mr. Trudeau. The PM has been around long enough to know the St. Jean Baptiste Society is out to stir up trouble between people of different languages and I suppose different religions. Let's hope our Prime Minister isn't one of them. It's a sad thing when people would adopt the name of a saint with poor John sitting up there unable to do a thing about it. It was bad enough for King Herod to chop his head off without having his name hitched to such a society. I am ashamed of people who pretend to be members of the Catholic Church. I am a member of the Catholic Church and proud to be, but I am not a member of any of those societies or orders on either side of the fence. There are a lot of them, and they are just as dirty on one side of the fence as the other. All this dirt has been taught to the people for centuries by those different orders. I will exempt St. Patrick's Church here in Sherbrooke; I have been there most every Sunday for more than seven years and I never heard a priest say a bad word about anyone, but it's not so in them all. I have no use for those different societies and orders that clan up behind closed doors to do their dirty work. I suppose they are sharpening their swords to kill one another with. I wonder what God thinks of it all. That they all have some streak of religion hitched to it. The devil is surely reaping a rich harvest from them all. I have been around for quite a while and I have seen some of the dirt of those different orders.

Task impossible, absurd

Editor:

As an Anglophone writer, editor, and publisher, living and working in Quebec, I may well be as Camille Laurin says, "a fox in the hen-house." My SAMISDAT and I most certainly challenge any and all would be czars of culture; any and all concepts of enforced ethnic purity, as if any culture were ever self-created and self-pollinating in the first place. If appealing to individual intelligence and integrity in whatever language, through whatever means makes us foxes, so be it; a fox, at least, is an intelligent animal.

Laurin by contrast is a dog in the manger. He would become cock-of-the-walk by rendering Quebecois capons, protected from every influence but his own. But no matter how many feathers he sticks in his dunce cap, his Doberman mentality remains pathetically obvious. Because his precious French culture has intermingled more than he would like with Anglophone influences, he would abolish those influences, forgetting that culture is the cumulative product of individual choice; that individual French-speaking citizens themselves have freely chosen to read English books, watch American television, and listen to Scots-Irish music. No author, producer, or recording artist gained a Francophone audience at gunpoint; and when Laurin points his fangs and guns at us, in actuality he takes on all of Quebec, Francophone, Anglophone, and saxophone for that matter.

We contrast Laurin's attitude to that of France between the world wars. Through welcoming expatriate authors, artists, publishers, and patrons, Paris in that era became center of not only French culture, but of English and American culture as well. Parisians learned to speak and read English, to appreciate culture other than the native. Native culture broadened and changed. Laurin-like cultural chauvinism was left to Nazis - and should have died with Hitler.

Regardless of whatever 'norms' Laurin and the Parti Quebecois establish to "change the criteria for possession and ownership of the media," regardless of whatever means our Francophone fascists use toward "aiding what is French in the cultural domain and regulating what is not," we shall continue publishing SAMISDAT, free and unregulated. We recognize no governmental authority over right to publish, when, what, and how we see fit. We have earned that right ourselves, with our own pens, thoughts, sweat, and printing equipment, without governmental aid. In other places and times we have defended this right against gangs, organizations, and other equally spiritually corrupt legislation. We shall not yield it now, particularly when our community now more than ever needs examples of individual guts and enterprise against an increasingly monolithic, dictatorial state.

Meanwhile, we find Laurin aptly described by this poem we published back in January, 1975:

The Little Man Inside

kicks at the garden wall, sharpens his knife

and dreams of conquering all the flowers.

The dictator of seeds, asparagus, and clover wants the sun
all to himself.

His self-appointed task is as impossible as it is absurd.

Jack Anderson's
Washington Merry-Go-Round
Booze bonanza in the Capital
by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Under abstemious Jimmy Carter, the White House does not serve alcoholic beverages except for wine and beer. But outside the presidential premises, the spirit of W.C. Fields still lives among officials of subordinate federal agencies.

Indeed, they have developed a steady flowing source of free government booze. Their secret source is the whiskey, vodka and other liquors seized by customs agents and tax revenueurs.

The General Services Administration falls heir to this bottled bonanza, which should exceed 30,000 gallons in a good year. An obscure law allows the GSA to distribute its largesse without charge to government agencies and private groups for "medicinal, scientific" and other appropriate purposes.

Such private institutions as hospitals, nursing homes and even convents, all known for their sobriety, stocked up with 1,300 gallons of liquor between October, 1976 and December, 1977.

"Even sisters need a tot now and then," as a GSA official explained the allotment to convents. One satisfied customer is a Little Sisters of the Poor convent in Illinois, whose spokesman explained to our reporter Valerie Strauss: "We give it to the sisters when they have a cold."

But the 11 Washington agencies, which stocked their liquor pantries with nearly 600 gallons of the confiscated hooch, made few medicinal claims for their haul.

The State Department uses it for diplomatic receptions and dinners. The convivial people at Coast Guard headquarters drank up their share at an annual picnic. Even the scientists at the National Science Foundation preferred to consume their portion than to waste it in the laboratory.

The greatest demand is for champagne and foreign wines, confiscated from returning tourists who try to sneak extra bottles through customs. Scotch is second on the list.

Also available are vodka, gin, brandy, liqueurs, rum, tequila, vermouth and beer, which are accepted gratefully. There seemed to be no demand, however, for the gallon-and-a-half of undrinkable industrial alcohol that was seized during the 15-month period.

Those who partake of the free government hooch are nervous about President Carter's anti-alcohol attitude, which they view as a quaint idiosyncrasy. But they would prefer not to advertise their access to the confiscated liquor. Here's where, nevertheless, the liquor flowed during the 15 months:

State Department, 80 gallons; National Science Foundation, 142 gallons; GSA, 76.1 gallons; Air Force Academy, 73.3 gallons; Air Force Foreign Liaison Office, 25 gallons; Coast Guard, 31.2 gallons; Nuclear Regulatory Commission, 55.1 gallons; Marine Corps, 15.4 gallons; Interior Department, 17.3 gallons; Chief of Naval Operations, 10.4 gallons, and ACTION, 8.8 gallons.

Some 75 private organizations also took advantage of the free liquor offer. There were 25 nursing homes, 24 hospitals and 15 convents.

Footnote: As seized contraband, the liquor costs the government nothing and the only cost to clients is for hauling it away.

Polluted Pot: For over two years the United States government has been helping Mexico control the production of marijuana by spraying fields with a potentially toxic herbicide called paraquat. As a result, the health of millions of pot smokers in this country may be endangered.

Paraquat kills marijuana plants within two days. But Mexican farmers have been harvesting the crop within hours after helicopters spray the fields. Much of the marijuana that is smuggled into the United States, therefore, is contaminated.

At the request of Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., the White House reluctantly initiated a study to determine if paraquat-tainted pot is hazardous. A White House report, issued in December, downplayed the danger. But we have learned that many of the findings are disputed by new scientific evidence.

The White House document, for example, claimed that the maximum amount of paraquat "likely to be found on plant material is about 500 parts per million." Government scientists, however, have subsequently detected as much as four times that amount in random marijuana samples. The average contamination, they determined, is nearly four times the amount claimed in the December report.

The White House also alleged that the United States was not responsible for the paraquat hazard because the Mexican government had purchased the herbicide in Europe. But we have seen confidential State Department cables that reveal the United States has provided technical assistance for the paraquat program.

A backstage brouhaha has developed at the White House, meanwhile over whether the U.S. Government is responsible for protecting the health of marijuana users. President Carter's chief drug adviser, Peter Bourne, believes the government has a duty to safeguard its citizens from hazardous products, whether they are legal or illegal. Others have argued heatedly that federal authorities have no responsibility to protect pot smokers.

Rangers back in playoff position

New York Rangers have put themselves back into National Hockey League playoff contention with a lot of help from Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Penguins went into the weekend with a two-point edge on the Rangers in the battle for the last wild-card playoff spot.

Pittsburgh also had a pair of home games, one against Vancouver Canucks on Saturday night and another Sunday against Toronto Maple Leafs. But the Penguins blew both of them—losing 7-1 to the Leafs and 3-1 to Vancouver.

The Rangers took advantage of hapless Washington to move into a points tie with Pittsburgh as they crushed the Capitals 8-2 Sunday night. In other Sunday games, Philadelphia Flyers clipped Colorado Rockies 6-2, Vancouver and Detroit Red Wings fought to a 4-4 deadlock, Boston Bruins manhandled Los Angeles Kings 9-3 and Buffalo Sabres outscored Chicago Black Hawks 5-2.

Aside from Pittsburgh's loss to Vancouver on Saturday, the Leafs whipped the listless Cleveland Barons 5-2, New York Islanders dumped the Sabres 4-2, Montreal Canadiens downed the Kings 5-3, Detroit edged Colorado 5-4, Atlanta Flames took a 4-1 verdict over Chicago, Minnesota North Stars and St. Louis Blues struggled to a 1-1 draw and Philadelphia walloped the Bruins 6-2.

PLAYED AS SHOULD
For once, the Rangers played like they should against a weaker team as Phil Esposito led the way with two goals and an assist. Coach Jean-Guy Talbot thought the Rangers might have tried extra-hard against the Capitals because of a futile trip to Washington this month only to find out a scheduled contest had been postponed because of what turned out to be a minor snowstorm.

"The boys remembered that unnecessary trip to Washington and I think they poured it on because of that," Talbot said. "What I liked was that we finally played up to our potential against a weaker team instead of playing down to their level."

Sherbrooke Beaver captain, Mark Green (no. 12), moves in on the Hull Olympics goalie at the Sports Palace on Friday evening. Coach Delage's squad won the tilt 7-3.

Bulls' coach blasts ref

Birmingham Bulls' coach Glen Somnor, his vocabulary dominated by profanity, shouted into the microphones of reporters as he condemned World Hockey Association officials, members of the Winnipeg Jets and then the media.

"If (referee) Ron Harris thinks that's how to keep the Swedes in this league he's crazy," Somnor said after his Bulls lost 3-2 Sunday to Winnipeg Jets in a WHA game. "Wait until Dave Dunn gets to Birmingham. He'll be looking into the barrel of a few guys."

When questioned about the Bulls' recent lack of success as they continue trying to brawl their way into the playoffs, Somnor stormed away into the dressing room. "Who does that guy think he is, asking me those questions? What's he's doing asking me why we lose 9-2 or 8-3 in games when we've been fighting?"

LINSEMAN ENTERS

And then there was 19-year-old rookie Ken Linseman, who precipitated a third-period bench-clearing brawl, interrupting a conversation between Somnor and the only members of the media he would talk to, to shout his piece.

"Go ask (Winnipeg goalie Gary) Bromley what he thinks he's doing giving me a shot just because I'm in his crease," said Linseman. "What the hell is that? And there's no penalty."

One thing was obvious, the Bulls were hot after failing to duplicate a feat they achieved earlier this season when they rallied to beat the Jets after a bench-clearing brawl.

Sunday, the Jets scored two goals in the first four minutes of the third period, took some of the Bulls' best shots and gave some of their own in the bench-clearing incident late in the period and then hung on for the victory.

Barry Long, Anders Hedberg and Peter Sullivan scored for Winnipeg. Steve Alley and Pat Westrum replied for the Bulls.

In the only other game Sunday, defenceman John Schella scored twice to pace Houston Aeros to a 6-3 win over Indianapolis Racers.

Don Larway, Rich Preston, Steve West and Morris Lukowich also scored for Houston. Rene LeClerc, Michel Parizeau and Peter Driscoll replied for the Racers.

The win moved the Aeros into a second-place tie with New England Whalers, 14 points behind leading Winnipeg.

Beavers dump Olympics 7-3

By STEVE BELL
For The Record

SHERBROOKE — It took two full periods of play before the Sherbrooke Beavers were able to muster up a five goal scoring drive in Friday's otherwise uneven 7-3 win over the Hull Olympics.

The Beavers' play in the first two periods was anything but noteworthy. Their passing was erratic at best and they displayed considerable awkwardness whenever they managed to cross the Hull blue line.

Hull did most of the heavy checking in a tame first period, which caused noticeable problems for the Beavers in their own end. The Beavers' inability to complete their passing plays combined with their unusual tameness resulted in them heading off the ice at the end of the period behind 2-0.

Rock Bois scored the first of the two Hull goals, assisted by Mario Chartrand and Daniel Noonan. Claude Larochelle scored six minutes later assisted by Yves Dandurand.

Play in the second period opened up at a faster clip with both goalies coming up with some good saves. Sherbrooke's Pierre Tremblay mixed it up with Hull's Mario Chartrand early in the period. The fracas ended with Tremblay being led off the ice by teammates, and handed major and minor penalties plus a game misconduct after he took a run at the referee. Chartrand received a major for fighting.

Rickey Vaive scored Sherbrooke's first goal at the midway point of the period, with Mark Green getting the assist. Eight minutes later the line of Locas, Vaive, and Begin evened the score at two apiece, as Louis Begin got credit for the goal.

Sylvain Locas' goal at the 26 second mark of the final period started the Beavers' scoring drive and a return to their usual style of play. Locas bounced the puck off the back of Bouchard's head as he skated around the side of the net. Rick Vaive and Jimmie Mann got the assists.

Luc Locas scored a few minutes later with a weak shot between Bouchard's leg as Secco and Demers assisted. Hull's Benoit Bouchard began having trouble with the Beavers at the outset of the period. The shots which he had been successfully stopping in the first two periods started getting by him.

Serge Boisvert scored, assisted by Luc Locas and Allen Demers at 6:22 as the Beavers kept the pressure on around the Hull net.

Yvan Charbonneau, the Sherbrooke netminder showed good form in the final frame, making up for a somewhat shaky first period. Charbonneau came under heavy pressure after Boisvert's goal, but came up with some good moves, at one point sweeping the puck off the goal line.

But Hull kept the pressure up until they were rewarded with a goal. Claude Larochelle scored Hull's final goal of the game, unassisted.

Sylvain Locas tucked a loose puck into the open side of the net past Bouchard, to pick up his second goal of the match. The assists went to Leverman and Mann.

Jimmie Mann put the final touches on the Beavers scoring with less than a minute left on the clock. Mann backhanded a shot from his knees past the downed Hull goalie.

Total shots on goal for the game were, for Hull — 35, for Sherbrooke — 39.

OTHER GAMES

Denis Halle scored four goals to lead Quebec Pemparts to an 11-7 triumph over Chicoutimi Saguenéens in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League play Sunday.

In other high-scoring contests, Laval Nationals humbled Shawinigan Dynamos 11-2 and Montreal Juniors thrashed Hull Olympiques 11-4. The two other games saw Trois-Rivières Draveurs down Verdun Black Hawks 4-2 and Cornwall Royals beat Sherbrooke Beavers 6-3.

Bob Crawford had two goals to lead the Royals to victory. Steve Stockman, Rick Paterson, Brian Fontaine and Cam MacGregor each added one.

Richard Secco, Mark Green and Serge Boisvert hit the mark for Sherbrooke.

Shepardson-Gage wed

STANBRIDGE EAST — A quiet wedding took place in the United Church at Stanbridge East on Saturday, February 25. Miss Louise Shepardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. King Shepardson, was united in marriage to Mr. Colin Gage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gage.

Rev. Keith Eddy, pastor of the church performed the ceremony. Mrs. Shelley McDonald was matron of honor and Mr. Brian Gage, brother of the groom, was best man.

Only the immediate members of the Gage and Shepardson families were present at the ceremony. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. King Shepardson, Mrs. Wesley Gage (Mr. Gage was unable to attend due to a previous commitment in Toronto), Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gage, grandparents of the groom, Miss Rosemary Gage, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Gage, Mr. Floyd Gage, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Belisle and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Gage have left for St. John, N.B. They have both been transferred there by their respective employers.

Hearty congratulations are extended by their many friends to this worthy couple.

50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Miller were very pleasantly surprised on Sunday Feb. 19, 1978, when friends and relatives gathered at the Royal Canadian Legion in Philippsburg to wish them a very happy 50th wedding anniversary.

Wilfred and Doris thought they were going to their grandson Steve Miller's for dinner as it was Wilfred's birthday but instead of going to the house Steve turned into the Legion.

They were greeted at the door by their son Norman and daughters, Pat and Ethel. Pat pinned an orchid corsage on her mother while Ethel pinned a carnation on her father.

Their son Norman read the Golden Scroll of their 50 years together.

They received a message of congratulations from Prime Minister Trudeau.

They were presented with various gifts by their grandchildren.

Wilfred and Doris were very happy to see so many old friends.

A very delicious turkey dinner was served by the Ladies of the Philippsburg Legion.

Music was supplied by their grandsons Steve and Chris, and the New Thymes.

Thanks go to everyone who helped to make this anniversary party a success.

Ann Landers says

Where there's a will...

Dear Ann: May I say a few words to the man who called homemakers "glorified parasites"? He had glowing words of praise for the woman who can bring home a paycheck as well as keep the house running and "raise kids on the side."

I have met those kids who are being raised "on the side." I've bandaged their elbows and knees and kissed their bruises. I have dried their tears and rocked them in my arms. I've been their Scout leader, Sunday school teacher, and 4-H leader. Those kids are all ages, colors and nationalities. They live in large cities and small towns.

Their mothers work so they can have nicer things, but what they really want and need is more time and attention.

I am sick of being put on the defensive about my chosen career. I am a homemaker and a full-time mother because I believe it is an important and rewarding career. Thank God for those of us who WANT to stay home. Where would YOUR children be without us? — Up Front

Dear U.F.: You have spoken eloquently for your side and I thank you. Some mothers would flip their lids if they had to stay home. These women are better off at work — and so are their children. Mothers who feel as you do deserve the respect of those who have another viewpoint. You certainly have mine.

Dear Ann Landers: Because your column is "the word" in most homes throughout the United States and Canada, will you please give some space to the subject of wills? Although you have done so in the past, it bears repeating.

I have just come through a terrible experience — proof of what can happen if a will is improperly drawn.

Although I was named legal heir to a large estate, I lost out after a lengthy, expensive court fight. Relatives who rarely bothered to visit or help out during the lifetime of my elderly friend ended up with everything.

Although my dear friend had an attorney draw up her will, she kept making HANDWRITTEN, UNWITNESSED additions.

Everyone should be aware of the importance of naming an executor and a co-executor. When naming the executor, he or she should be chosen with care. Age should be an important consideration. The executor and co-executor should be younger than the person writing the will — by several years.

Too bad they don't teach these things in school. Your column is the next best place to learn. — Will Aware

Dear Ann: To paraphrase an old saying, dear — "Where there's a will, there's a relative." And now, an added word from me.

Readers One and All: The way to make certain your money and possessions will go where you want them to go is to draw up a will with the assistance of a lawyer. Be aware that changes made at a later date must be witnessed in accordance with the laws of your state. Most states require two witnesses, some three. Without the signatures of the witnesses, the changes will not be considered valid.

Dear Ann Landers: My dad and mom were divorced two years ago. It says in the divorce decree that my dad is supposed to pay all medical and dental bills for my brother and me.

I am a 13-year-old girl and would be quite decent looking if my teeth didn't stick out in front like a chipmunk.

I went to a dentist who straightens teeth and he said I have a very bad protrusion and should have braces for three years at least. But my dad refuses to pay for the work so the dentist won't do it. I think it is gross that he has enough money to buy his second wife a nice fur coat but can't afford to have his own daughter's teeth straightened. My mom works but she can't afford the dentist bill and has no money to hire a lawyer to make my dad live up to his agreement.

Please give me some advice. — Wishing For Those Railroad Tracks

Dear Wishing: Chasing divorced fathers to make them pay for things usually is a losing battle, especially if there's no money for lawyers. Ask your mom to take you to a university dental school. They often do very good work and the prices are much lower than those of practicing dentists. Good luck, dear, I hope you get those "railroad tracks."

currently stands 7.2 per cent

The fats and oils index has increased by 1.1 per cent during the last month, mainly due to higher prices for cooking oil. While international commodity markets for vegetable oils have been relatively stable for the last six months, the decline in the value of the Canadian dollar has resulted in a small increase in vegetable oil costs in terms of Canadian dollars. The fats and oils index is currently 19.6 per cent above year ago levels.

While retail beef prices have been relatively stable to date in 1978, pork prices continue to advance. The AIB's index increased by 3.4 per cent during the last four weeks. The increase was due to an advance in hog prices which are now as high as they have been since 1975. However an increase in hog supplies together with a considerable decline in prices is generally anticipated during the next six months. This should augur well for retail pork prices. Hog production was relatively profitable for farmers for much of 1977. Retail pork prices are currently 14.9 per cent above February 1977 levels. Lower chicken prices in recent weeks have produced a 0.7 per cent decline in the poultry index. The poultry index is currently only 1.5 per cent above year ago levels. Lower feed prices have generally held poultry production costs at or below year ago levels. Production costs for eggs are also below year ago levels.

An increase of one cent per dozen in the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency's price to producers in mid January has not been reflected in supermarket prices. The AIB's egg index is currently 0.6 per cent below month ago levels and 3.5 per cent below year ago levels.

Tangerine-walnut topping

Versatility, ease of preparation, and great taste are a must when it comes to cooking these days. And if the food happens to look spectacular, that's okay, too.

Warm and rich, Tangerine Walnut Topping fits into all these categories. For a special treat for the family, it's delicious drizzled over a scoop or two of ice cream. Or, if you're entertaining company, combine it with vanilla pudding for a simple, yet impressive dessert.

Fresh tangerine and lemon juices combine with brown sugar and cornstarch to make the sweet, yet tangy, basis for the topping. Add fresh grated tangerine peel, tangerine segments and walnut halves. It's that easy. For a buffet, you could even keep it warm in a chafing dish or fondue pot to let guests make their own sundaes.

This is a new idea that uses one of the world's oldest fruits, the tangerine. When first discovered in China, the fruit was named the mandarin orange because "mandarin" meant "superior" to the Chinese. Today there are enough varieties of California-Arizona tangerines to supply market from November through May.

Two varieties, the Minneola and Kinnow, are the ones you'll be most likely to see in stores today. The Kinnow, prized for its rich and sweet flavour, should be in exceptionally good supply this year.

Yellow-orange in colour and smooth with thin skin, the Kinnow is slightly flat in shape. The Minneola, on the other hand, is reddish orange to deep red in colour, with a knob-like formation on one end. Its flavour is rich and tart. The Minneola is a tangelo, a hybrid of tangerine and grapefruit.

TANGERINE WALNUT TOPPING
 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 3/4 cup fresh squeezed tangerine juice
 1/2 cup water
 1 tablespoon fresh squeezed lemon juice
 2 tangerines fresh grated tangerine peel
 2 med/um California-Arizona tangerines, peeled, segmented, seeded
 1/2 cup walnut halves
 Vanilla ice cream, pound cake or vanilla pudding.

In saucepan, combine brown sugar and cornstarch. Gradually stir in tangerine juice, water and lemon juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring until thickened. Add tangerine peel, segments and walnuts. Serve warm over ice cream, pound cake or vanilla pudding. Makes about 2 1/2 cups sauce.

World Day of Prayer Services

EAST ANGUS — The Women's World Day of Prayer service, held in Emmanuel United Church, here, was well attended.

Those taking part were Mrs. L. Bailey, Mrs. J. Cruickshank, Mrs. L. Wilkin, Mrs. S. Clout, Miss Mary Palmer, Mrs. R. Hays.

Having the bilingual prayer sheets made it possible for our French-speaking friends to participate.

Following the service a social hour was enjoyed over a cup of tea.

Miss Palmer invited the ladies to hold the service in Notre Dame de la Garde next year.

The thoughts of each one as they left for home was that Christian women the world over were sharing this service with us this day.

PHILIPPSBURG — The World Day of Prayer Service for the Philippsburg and St. Armand area was held in the Philippsburg United Church on Friday, March 3rd, at 2 p.m. when a large number from the congregations of St. Paul's Anglican, Philippsburg Roman Catholic Church, Sisters of the Presentation de Marie of Philippsburg and the St. Armand Roman Catholic Church joined together for this bilingual ecumenical service. They were also joined by a group of Golden Agers from Stanbridge East.

Mrs. F.A. Field of the Anglican Church and Mrs. G.L. Kidd of the United welcomed the gathering as they arrived and gave to each one the bilingual form of service.

Mrs. Gordon Ewing, on behalf of the ladies of the church welcomed those attending. Mrs. Andre Bellefroid of St. Armand replied to this welcome, both ladies mentioning the fact that this was the 60th Anniversary of this World's Day of Prayer Service.

Mrs. E.H. Naylor of the Anglican Church and Mrs. M. Remillard of the Philippsburg Catholic Church were the leaders of this bilingual service which had as its theme: "Community Spirit in Modern Living."

The service followed, as printed in the service sheets with ladies from the different churches taking part. The choir of the St. Armand Church, augmented by members of the other churches, with their organist, Mrs. Wilfrid Chabot and choir director, Mrs. A. Bellefroid, led in the singing of the bilingual hymns as printed in the service sheets.

The message, taken from the theme of the service was given in English by Mrs. G.

Sandilands and by Sister Gauthier in French, both speaking forcefully and impressively in the chosen subject.

During the offering which was taken by Mrs. George Sutherland of the United and Mrs. D'Arcy Neville of the Philippsburg Catholic, an anthem was rendered by the St. Armand Choir, with Mrs. A. Bellefroid as soloist.

The offering, which amounted to $80.00, has been forwarded to the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada.

Following the service, all went to the Legion Hall where refreshments were served and a most enjoyable social hour was spent.

Thanks were expressed to the ladies of the United Church by Mrs. Raeburn Orr, speaking in French and English, for their kind hospitality and for the enjoyment all had derived from this ecumenical gathering, which was the largest attendance present since the yearly service was inaugurated in this area.

Residue in pans

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — How do I remove a residue from the inside of a shallow oblong aluminum pan? The reservoir in the back of our gas heater started to leak and ruined several floor boards. So I used this pan to catch the water and residue formed along the water line. Nothing I have tried will remove this. — H.L.V.

DEAR H.L.V. — Try boiling two teaspoons of cream of tartar in a quart of water in the pan for a few minutes, then scrub with a soap-filled steel wool pad. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I would like to add the following to the answer to Mrs. W.L. about eliminating silverfish. Buy a pound of Epsom salts and throw it around any area where you've seen the silverfish. You will never see another. We even had them in the bathtub when we first moved here 15 years ago. My husband used five pounds around the crawl space and we have never seen another one. We got this information from India. — WINIFRED

DEAR POLLY — Our paper had your column headlined "Bread Isn't for the Birds." I am 64 and I have been feeding birds with old bread for as long as I can remember. What is wrong with feeding bread to birds today? Surely there is no law saying you cannot feed bread to the birds. — MARY LOUISE

DEAR MARY LOUISE — The answer given was not a law, only information from a large nature center where they study birds. I, too, have fed bread to birds many, many times not knowing the harm that could come to them from eating damp or wet bread. I am taking the word of an authority and will put something else out for the birds. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When I am ordering something that is less than a dollar, rather than put small change loose in the envelope I tape the money in an empty match book flap, close the cover and tape that shut before putting it into the envelope. — DORIS

DEAR POLLY — If baking powder has been on your shelf for quite some time it is a good idea to check its power before using. Put a small amount in a saucer and add a little water. It has lost its leavening power if it does not fizz. — SANDRA

DEAR POLLY — My husband and I have been married for 23 years. Like most husbands, he has sent me cards on all special occasions and I have kept them. Lately as each special occasion draws near, I get out the cards he has sent me and display them. Our young married daughter thought this such a good idea that she is going to do the same with her cards. — MRS. G.S.G.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Obeying the doctor's orders

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why is it that most doctors will prescribe Lanoxin or digitalis and not tell the patient to make sure he takes it every single day? Also that they should drink a couple of glasses of orange juice or eat a banana a day for potassium? Too many people take pills for granted and if they start to feel good they quit taking the medicine.

I read in one of your columns that if you take digitalis in any form you should never, never, never stop taking it unless your doctor says so. If you stopped taking it what would happen to you?

DEAR READER — Most people who take Lanoxin or other digitalis preparations take them because they have heart failure. A small number take them to control heart irregularities.

Heart failure causes fluid to collect in your lungs interfering with breathing. When the right heart is also involved you have swelling of the feet, ankles, abdomen and liver. The digitalis strengthens the heart muscle and enables the heart to pump enough blood to correct the heart failure. This works fine as long as you take it. As soon as you stop it, if you really had heart failure from permanent heart damage to begin with, the heart's pumping action gets weaker and the fluid starts accumulating again.

And while you say most doctors don't tell their patients to take their medicines I can't verify your statement. Of course some idealistic doctors are pretty naive and think their good patients are going to follow their instructions to the letter. It wouldn't occur to these doctors that after paying to see the doctor and getting his advice, then paying for medicine, that the patient would stop following his instructions by stopping the medicine.

Noise damage is a real thing and the kind of noise doesn't make any difference — whether it is music, gunfire, engines or anything else. The loudness and range of the sound involved is what damages the ears.

After a few years of getting to know human habits such doctors realize the error of their ways. You are absolutely right that people often tend to stop taking medicine as soon as they feel better rather than as long as the doctor told them to take it.

Yes, some fruit juice or a banana helps keep your potassium level up, and this helps prevent some undesirable side effects of digitalis medicines that sometimes occur. People with heart problems and high blood pressure usually do better to limit their sodium salt and maintain adequate potassium intake. It is even a good idea for all of us; most people eat too much salt. To give you more information on this I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My three teenage children have a hi-fi which they play with the volume very high. In fact, it is deafening. I claim that it will damage their hearing if they continue to listen to it with the volume so high.

My own peace of mind is affected by the noise, but my main concern is the possible damage to their hearing. Would you please comment?

DEAR READER — You are right. It is deafening. Studies have been done, particularly on loud rock music, and continued exposure will lead to hearing damage.

Noise damage is a real thing and the kind of noise doesn't make any difference — whether it is music, gunfire, engines or anything else. The loudness and range of the sound involved is what damages the ears.

Oswald: "North's one-diamond response to his partner's club opening would be made by most experts. His reason for that bid is that he can give a jump raise if the opener rebids one spade or one heart, can pass to a one notrump call and bid two notrump if opener goes to two clubs."

Alan: "Opener does rebid one heart and the final contract becomes four hearts. South has no trouble making his game because the diamond queen is located where he wants it to be, but the game bid is a good one."

Oswald: "A one-heart response by North would produce a raise to two hearts by South. North might decide to pass since his hearts are so weak. Also a one-spade response (normal 40 years ago) would probably lead to failure to ever find the heart suit. Not too bad a fate since three notrump makes also."

Alan: "This hand is given here as a preliminary to discussion of the problems involved in bidding balanced-type hands. They will be discussed further all week."

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

March 14, 1978

There's a beneficent aspect in your finances this coming year. You should be able to buy some of the things you've wanted, but felt you couldn't afford.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't pay the sticker price if you're shopping for an article for the home today. With a little spirited bargaining, you could probably lower it. Find out to whom you're romantically suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have all the right words today, but no one could call you glib. Others know that what you say comes from the bottom of your heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone may seem to be poking his nose into your affairs today, but don't be unduly alarmed. He may point out gainful avenues you've ignored.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take a few extra pains with your attire today. You could meet someone of the opposite sex you'll really want to impress.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're a real booster today. Everything you do seems to be designed to promote pals without calling attention to yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When you enter a place, you seem to buoy up the spirits of everybody in the room today. You don't do it consciously. Nevertheless, it happens.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Set your sights high in business today. Keep in mind that you're in control. As long as you believe it, you'll be in control.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your main concern today is to see that everyone is treated fairly. You'll go out of your way to make sure it happens. This is to your benefit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An arrangement with another may be very profitable for you today, even though you have a minor role. Some type of business is involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Often people make an acquaintance on just a fleeting impression. Today you may meet someone new and gain a staunch ally, or even start a budding romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have the urge today to do something artistic around home, dig right in. The end results will really be very pleasing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In any tense situation today you can keep a stiff upper lip. Your composure may falter a bit inwardly, but those around you would never know it.

A gift from the heart

Bishop's guard Dave Thornhill leaps to the basket against Laurentian University in CIAU basketball competition in Halifax on Friday. He scored 38 points in two games in a losing cause as the Gaiters were eliminated after the second round. Mate Blair Shier looks on as he drives high to the hoop.

BU Gaiters downed 78-62

By BRUCE PORTER
of The Record

HALIFAX — Laurentian Voyageurs moved away from a tired Bishop's University men's basketball squad in the second half here Friday to eliminate the Gaiters from CIAU contention to take a 78-62 triumph.

BU's shooting left much to be desired in the game, especially in the second half, and it gave Laurentian the time to build up their four-point half-time advantage in the final 20 minutes.

The Gaiters showed a lot of fatigue in the late going, having played very hard in their 84-74 loss to York University the previous day in their tournament opener.

Dave Thornhill put on another good display of shooting, both inside and outside, to lead the club with 17 points. His 30 per cent shooting average from the floor shows how things just weren't going Bishop's way.

Trevor Bennett and Wayne Hussey followed with 15 and 14 points respectively. Hussey got a chance to sit out the final 47 seconds, the first time in the two games that he was replaced on the floor. The recovery from stomach flu still hadn't given him his full mobility back during the game. Bennett got 11 rebounds.

Blair Shier ran so hard on his bad ankle Thursday that he hobbled badly against the Voyageurs and only picked up three rebounds, a necessary part of the Bishop's game. He scored seven points in the match.

Bishop's stayed very close to Laurentian in the first half and could have taken the lead near the end if the ball had bounced the other way a couple of times.

The Sudbury win was paced by two first-team All-Canadians, guard Charlie Wise, and Bruce Burnett. Burnett, deadly around the basket with his 6' 6" frame, scored 27 points while Wise seemed to be getting points all over the floor, netting 22.

It was Bishop's first outing in the nationals since 1967 and while they lost twice, neither game was a real walk-away.

Rob Latter did a lot for his LCC squad in their three games, including leading the scorers in their 62-40 victory over MacDonald Cartier Memorial High in opening round action. C. Henegan led MCM with 16 points.

Pierrefonds Comprehensive

High nipped Stanstead 57-53. Derek Burgess had 20 for PCHS while Peter Carpentieri scored 29 for the Spartans.

Riverdale High thumped Galt 74-46, with Ron Penston getting 13 points for the winners. John Pallett, Dave Perkins, Jeff Steward and Phil Tawel each had eight Riverdale points as well.

Lorne Matheson scored 15 for the Pipers.

Centennial clobbered Saguenay Valley Regional 74-44 in the other quarter-final match. Owen Gilbert had 15 and M. Christiano added 12 CRHS points. W. Archibald got 15 for the losers.

In the consolation semifinals, Stanstead squeezed past MCMHS 44-42 and Galt downed Saguenay Valley 64-30. Carpentieri and Allan Chastinet paced Stanstead with 13 and 12 points respectively. Henegan got 14 for MCM. David Simons collected 20 Galt points while Archibald tallied 16 for

Axemen drop CIAU final

HALIFAX (CP) — Brian Heaney promised his wife his St. Mary's Huskies would win the Canadian college basketball championship as a birthday present.

"I didn't go out and buy a present for her today," Heaney said with a chuckle after the Huskies unseated Acadia Axemen Saturday night as Canadian Inter-collegiate Athletic Union champions with a 99-91 victory in the CIAU final.

"I asked her two weeks ago what she wanted for her birthday and she said she wanted the national championship for the Huskies. I took the kids out and got them presents for her but not one from me."

"I had a feeling we might be ready to win it all," said Heaney, whose club qualified for the tournament as the host team.

In a playoff for third and fourth places, York Yeomen, the Ontario East champions, finally got their shooting game down and dumped Victoria Vikings, the western title holders, 94-81.

In the battle for fifth and sixth places, the wild-card Laurentian Voyageurs from Sudbury, Ont., took a 69-53 decision from Manitoba Bisons, the No. 1-ranked team in the nation before the tournament began and the Great Plains champions.

DISAPPOINTING ENDING

It was a disappointing finish for the Bisons and the final game in the college careers of forwards Cliff Bell, Grant Watson and Greg Daniels, as well as all-Canadian guard Martin Riley.

The title game matched two arch-rivals with a rich history and tradition of going at each other with great intensity. This one was no different.

It showed in the last few seconds when St. Mary's centre John Brown slammed in a two-hand dunk shot that aroused the ire of Acadia centre Vic Soares to the point where both exchanged shoves and punches.

"We did what we had to do," said Heaney. "We kept Soares away from the basket as much as we could and I think our big people won most of the battles with him."

Acadia coach Dick Hunt, thwarted at an attempt to lead only the second team to win consecutive titles, said the Soares-Brown outbreak was more from frustration and pride than anything.

"We try to win with humility and lose with pride. I hope we did that. I give credit to St. Mary's and to (Ron) McFarland especially. He was just super tonight."

McFarland, a six-foot four-inch guard from Ansonia, Conn., scored almost at will during the game, ending with 38 points, many from shots 30 feet and more away from the basket.

Frank White tossed in 26 points to help the cause and Tom Kappos, a tournament allstar, had 16.

Visser Tournament champions, Lower Canada College, pose following their thrilling 47-40 championship victory over Centennial Regional on Saturday at Bishop's University. It is the first time that LCC has won the event in its 33 years of competition.

LCC wins Visser tourney

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Consistent defence allowed Lower Canada College to win the 33-year-old Visser Tournament for the first time Saturday after they downed Centennial Regional 47-40 in an exciting climax.

LCC gave up only 40 points in each of their three games to win the trophy. Centennial also did very well, giving up 47 points in two games and 44 in the other.

In the consolation final, Stanstead College downed Alexander Galt Regional 51-36.

Rob Latter did a lot for his LCC squad in their three games, including leading the scorers in their 62-40 victory over MacDonald Cartier Memorial High in opening round action. C. Henegan led MCM with 16 points.

Pierrefonds Comprehensive

High nipped Stanstead 57-53. Derek Burgess had 20 for PCHS while Peter Carpentieri scored 29 for the Spartans.

Riverdale High thumped Galt 74-46, with Ron Penston getting 13 points for the winners. John Pallett, Dave Perkins, Jeff Steward and Phil Tawel each had eight Riverdale points as well.

Lorne Matheson scored 15 for the Pipers. Centennial clobbered Saguenay Valley Regional 74-44 in the other quarter-final match. Owen Gilbert had 15 and M. Christiano added 12 CRHS points. W. Archibald got 15 for the losers.

In the consolation semifinals, Stanstead squeezed past MCMHS 44-42 and Galt downed Saguenay Valley 64-30. Carpentieri and Allan Chastinet paced Stanstead with 13 and 12 points respectively. Henegan got 14 for MCM. David Simons collected 20 Galt points while Archibald tallied 16 for SVRHS.

LCC edged out Pierrefonds 42-40 with Centennial getting a 65-47 triumph over Riverdale. Neil Gordon and Latter led LCC with 11 and 10 points, while Robert Sutcliffe got 20 for PCHS. Dave McKeasey powered his squad with 26 points while Gilbert added 18. Penston got 23 for Riverdale.

Carpentieri led the Spartans with 16 points in their final tilt over AGRHS. Steve Dizgun had 12 for Stanstead with Simons replying with 17 Piper points.

In the championship final, Latter scored 18 points while Gilbert countered with 20 for the losers.

Tournament organizers wish to thank Bishop's University for the use of the J.H. Price Sports Centre for the tournament and all the spectators for their support in high school basketball.

Pierrefonds nabs QASA title

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Pierrefonds Comprehensive High School whisked away the QASA crown for the second consecutive season by thumping Marymount High here Saturday in the championship final.

The ever-mighty Trojans won the last game 9-1 and clobbered MacDonald Cartier Memorial High 8-1 in their opening tilt.

Richard Cecchine got the hat-trick in the MCMHS game, while Glenn Crawley, Robert Aucoine, Jonathan Rathbone, Bob Hardy and John Kinch got one goal apiece. Frank Laxton tallied MCM's only marker in the first period. Pierrefonds led only 2-1 after one but netted three powerplay goals in a five-minute span in the middle stanza for the win.

Nobody's got it like Pontiac's got it!

Grand LeMans 4-door Sedan

True mid-size The exclusive inside story

For 1978 General Motors has delivered a dazzling performance in re-defining the mid-size car.

RESULT: the new mid-size that doesn't short-change you on the inside. PONTIAC'S GOT IT: the new LeMans Series.

HOW DOES PONTIAC PULL IT OFF? With scientific design, cunning craftsmanship, and a lot of style. The new re-sized LeMans Series.

They're trimmer on the outside than last year. Now you'd expect a corresponding compactness on the inside. But no. Inside, the new LeMans not only retains the space you're used to, it actually features more room for hearts and legs. Instead of a "squeeze-play," you get comfortable seating for six passengers. And even a bigger trunk.

And to top it all off, there's the traditional LeMans styling, attention to detail and comfort, and handsome interior appointments. Not only is that Pontiac finesse prominent in the new LeMans Series, it may well have never been so finely interpreted before.

This good news goes for the whole LeMans family: Coupes, Sedans, and Safari Wagons. LeMans and Grand LeMans, with V6 power standard and a V8 option, and Grand Am, V8 power only. It's all part of the exclusive inside story. They've all got it. And nobody's got it like Pontiac.

Buying or leasing, see your Pontiac dealer for new excitement.
