MP demands impeachment

Claims judge based report on politics

OTTAWA (CP) — Blunt-spoken Jack McIntosh slashed back in the Commons Thursday night at Saskatchewan Judge Harold W. Pope who criticized the Conservative MP in his report on a judicial inquiry into Prairie farm assistance benefits.

The member for Swift Current-Maple Creek said Judge Pope is a Liberal supporter who suppressed evidence and who should be impeached from the bench.

He charged the judge with neglecting to call a key witness and making misleading, pro-Liberal and political statements in his report, tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. McIntosh's speech was punctuated by cries of "shame" from Liberal benches. Two Liberal MPs accused him of casting aspersions on a judge.

Mr. McIntosh said he wishes there was a procedure open to him to remove Judge Pope, but unfortunately there isn't since the judge acted as a one-man commission of inquiry appointed by the federal government.

The 20,000-word Pope report stated that Mr. McIntosh unduly pressured the Prairie Farm Assistance Administration to pay crop-failure benefits to about 1,000 farmers in the Swift Current area just before the 1963 federal election.

Judge Pope found irregularities in some of the payments and upheld the dismissal of George Walker, the PFAA supervisor for the Swift Current area.

Mr. McIntosh spoke in an otherwise plodding, listless debate on a bill granting the government $700,000,000 in spending authority for August and September.

Conservative sources said they plan to keep the money debate rolling today and all of next week. It began Monday. The net effect is to push back the resumption of the acrimonious debate on the government resolution for a maple leaf flag.

"I wonder how much this picaresque inquiry cost the Canadian people," Mr. McIntosh said.

"I contend that it was not a judicial report, but a political report. I am surprised that any judge, knowing the political overtones of an inquiry of this sort, would jeopardize the independence of the judiciary by acting as a judge in this connection if not for some reason as yet unrevealed."

"My immediate reaction to the commissioner's conclusion can be summed up in the Latin phrase, 'Suppression veri et suggestio falsi,' which means, 'Suppression of the truth and suggestion of the false.'"

Kennedy out of VP race

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's sweeping knockout of Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy and others from the lineup of vice-presidential possibilities focused speculation today on Minnesota's Senators Hubert H. Humphrey or Eugene J. McCarthy as his probable choice for a running mate.

In an unprecedented action Thursday, the president eliminated nearly all the major possibilities for the No. 2 spot—including the attorney-general, Sargent Shriver, peace corps director and Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

The consensus among many knowledgeable Democrats was that Johnson, calculating that he has established his own political image strongly, wants to win elective office without leaning on any Kennedy.

The feeling was that to eliminate any emotional surge for the attorney-general, the president was willing to eliminate a whole lineup of possible candidates he never really had considered.

UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, a two-time loser as Democratic standard bearer, was among those knocked out of consideration for second spot on the ticket to be chosen at the Democratic national convention which opens Aug. 24 in Atlantic City, N.J.

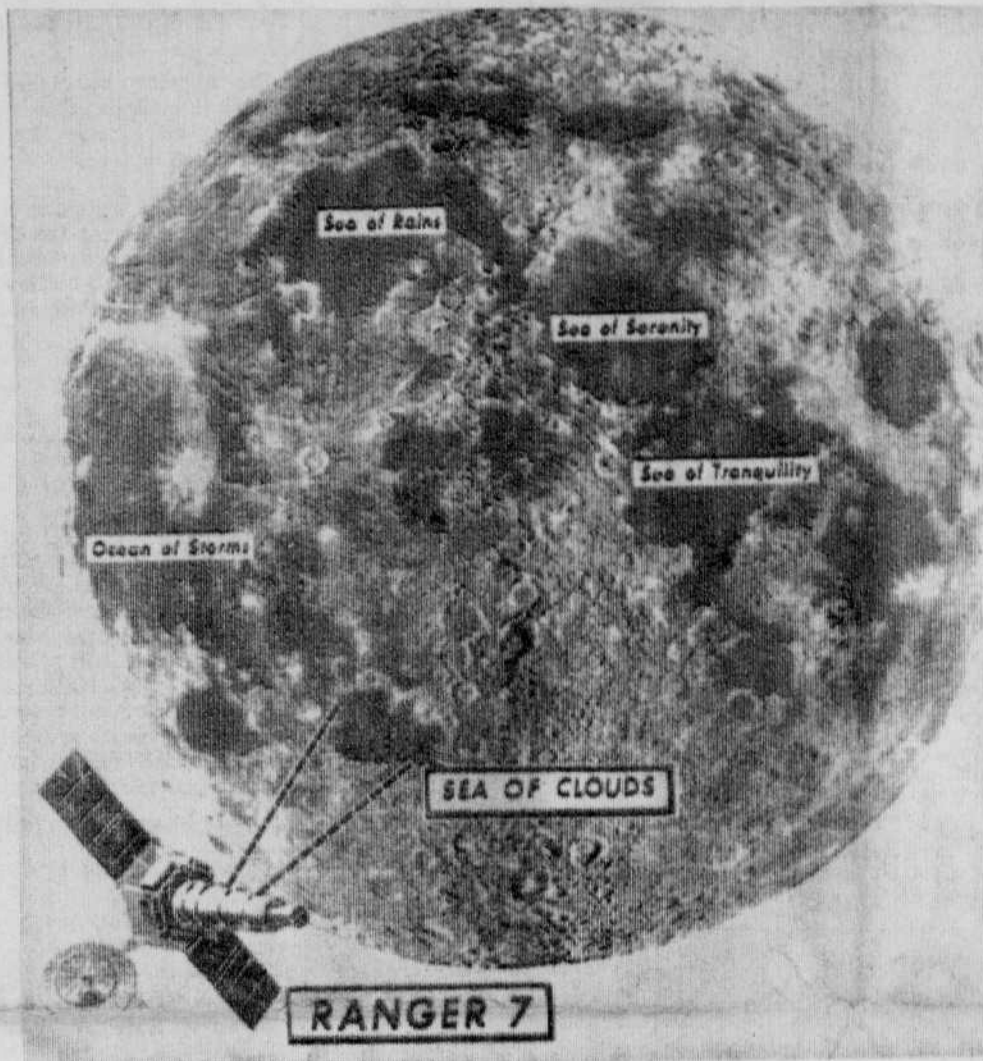

Johnson included on his non-candidate list all cabinet members and those in government who have access to the White House for such gatherings.

EXCLUDES CABINET
Johnson said he had decided it would be inadvisable to pick a running mate any member of the cabinet or those who have cabinet status.

Success greets moon flight

Picture reception splendid as Ranger hits target area

WHERE RANGER 7 AND CAMERAS LANDED — Dotted lines extending from sketch of Ranger 7 spacecraft indicate approximate area of moon's surface where landing took place this morning. The area is just southwest of the centre of the moon's lighted side. (AP Wirephoto)

Two further survivors found in French coal mine disaster

CHAMPAGNOLE (Reuters)—Two more of the 14 miners trapped in a limestone mine since Monday have answered signals from the surface, making a total of 11 known to be alive in the disaster, it was announced in this French Jura Mountain community today.

Sounds were picked up from the missing group for the first time late Thursday night after days of probing by the rescue forces. Another group of nine miners in another section of the mine have been in daily contact with above-ground through a small emergency shaft drilled into their dank confines Tuesday.

Further checks this morning produced regular knocks on the probing drill sent down by rescuers. The knocks were in answer to those made on the drill shaft by rescuers.

Rescuers now planned to drill a small emergency shaft to try to make quick contact with the two men, feared to be injured or nearing exhaustion.

Three of the 14 trapped men were believed dead. The guide drill for the main escape shaft reached the nine survivors in one section of the mine early Thursday. A three-foot vertical escape shaft now is being drilled.

Some of the men were nearing a nervous breakdown as they awaited rescue. Plans for them to be brought up to the surface in a bullet-like capsule similar to the one used in a West German mine disaster last year when several miners were rescued.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Spacecraft Ranger 7 televised the first close-up pictures of the moon today and they look "extremely good," U.S. scientists said today.

Ranger 7 crashed into the moon after a historic three-day flight at 6:25 a.m. PDT 9:25 a.m. EDT today and during the last few minutes before impact its six cameras apparently worked just as planned.

"We have good pictures," Ranger project manager Harris M. Schurmeier told a press conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which made and guided the spacecraft.

"The light level was good and video signals were good and the first quick prints made from film exposed by signals transmitted from Ranger 7 look exceptionally good."

"I think the public will be able to distinguish quite a few details when the pictures are released."

"If the pictures are sharply contrasted — with light and shadow — we ought to be able to see something the size of a few metres..."

Ranger 7's six cameras were to return 4,000 still pictures made from 1,300 miles above the moon's surface right down to the moment of impact.

The first photographs, Schurmeier said, are expected to be released within 24 hours after a board of scientists studies them.

The last shots, he added, were taken a fraction of a second before impact and would cover an area of about 60 square feet.

Ranger 7 smashed into the sea of clouds just below the equator on the left portion of the moon's lighted side. This is one of several vast plains on the moon surface, called seas because that is what they looked like to ancient astronomers.

It is in such an area that astronauts may land in a few years.

It was hoped that today's photographs would show the kind of terrain they will encounter — whether it's rocky and jagged or dusty and smooth. It was the first success in a $200,000,000 lunar investigation program that has seen 12 straight shots go awry.

The latest, Ranger 6, was most heartbreaking because it looked perfect until final seconds when cameras wouldn't go on.

Ranger 7's two wide angle cameras started functioning on command 16 minutes and 40 seconds before impact at an altitude of about 1,300 miles.

Four narrow angle cameras started transmitting three minutes later.

A spokesman said there was no interruption during the entire transmission as the 806-pound insect-shaped spacecraft streaked toward the moon at 5,800 miles an hour.

Tracking experts said the straight line distance to the moon at the time of impact was 228,686 miles.

Ranger's path to the moon was curved and it took 67 hours, 35 minutes to make the 243,665-mile flight.

Ranger 7 was launched Tuesday morning from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Cyprus, finance worry Thant

Plans new UN report

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—UN Secretary-General U Thant said today he intends to submit a new report on Cyprus to the United Nations Security Council.

Arriving here by air from Moscow, he told reporters that he has asked member governments who supplied troops for the Cyprus force for their views on the situation. Canada is one of the major contributors with 1,100 men in Cyprus.

Thant then had talks with Swedish Foreign Minister Torsten Nilsson on the question of Cyprus and the problem of United Nations finances.

Thant told reporters: "What worries me is the very critical financial situation in which the world organization is today (but) I feel confident that human wisdom and human ingenuity will override the present very serious challenge to the UN."

He said he expects the financial problem and African questions to dominate the next session of the General Assembly.

The Secretary-General said in a message to Nilsson last Friday he did not have grounds to make a report to the Security Council on the Cyprus situation.

However, he said today he had been in constant touch with UN headquarters since he started his world tour 17 days ago, "and I have come to the conclusion that it is time for me to submit a new report..."

The secretary-general Thursday night appealed to the Russian people to help save the UN from "a very serious financial conference that during his Moscow visit he had found Khrushchev still adamant in refusing to pay for UN peace-keeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East."

But he told the Russian TV audience he believed Russian leaders would "endeavor to search for a solution... so that the United Nations would not face the same fate as its predecessor, the League of Nations."

Devotion costs her life

Phone operator dies in Ottawa hotel fire

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Addie McCormick, a 64-year-old widow, died Thursday when she stayed at her telephone switchboard to warn guests of a fire that swept through the fashionable 300-room Beacon Arms Hotel.

Her son, Donald, was one of the firemen who fought the blaze in the 12-storey downtown

Albert Street hotel that took two other lives and injured at least 17.

Many of the 130 people, believed in the building at the time, escaped down aerial fire truck ladders or crossed a catwalk high above the pavement into a next-door office building.

Firemen Patrick Dorion, 25, was lowered by rope in swirling black smoke and made possible the rescue of a New Haven, Conn., couple trapped on a ninth-storey window ledge.

Eugene Eckels, 35, and his wife were each hauled to safety on the roof by the rope.

Only five weeks after he was married, Cessario Zuccomi, died in the fire. The 28-year-old hotel maintenance man's body was discovered in an elevator several hours after the afternoon blaze was extinguished.

Earl A. Colvin, 67, believed from Waban in the Boston area, collapsed after being rescued from his room by aerial ladder. He died in an ambulance on the way to hospital.

In hospital in satisfactory condition early today were: Mr. and Mrs. Eckels; Hubert Harris, 51, a hotel cook, who suffered a broken right ankle when he jumped out of a second-storey window; John Hatch, 52,

MLAs conclude 120 days of debate

Vital legislation approved by Quebec House at record session

QUEBEC (CP)—The longest session in the annals of the Quebec legislature was to be formally prorogued today after 120 sitting days and almost as many colorful and historic moments.

The deep social changes in this province were reflected in Liberal government bills that swept aside century-old structures and codes.

But almost as much happened outside the assembly as inside.

There was the federal-provincial fiscal conference here in March, which resulted in major concessions to Quebec's taxation demands and a new and easier relationship between Ottawa and this province.

Though Quebec did not get its universal portable pension plan into effect during the marathon session that began Jan. 14 it did see its scheme emerge as a possible model for a national one.

As fiscal relations with Ottawa improved, those within the province deteriorated and at one hectic point, 10,000 farmers milled on the legislative lawns to protest land taxes.

Temporary concessions were made, with the promise that the Quebec royal commission on taxation will have a permanent taxation to ease the farmer's burden by the end of the year.

LARGE DEMONSTRATION
The demonstration, largest within memory in Quebec, pointed up the growing problems of the province, its municipalities and school boards in their hunt for revenue.

Premier Jean Lesage's budget, another record, defended spending programs as "investments that will enrich the community." Despite revenues that would pass the billion-dollar mark, a deficit of $179,023,600 was forecast.

Almost one-third of the money would go into education, and it was legislation in this field that highlighted the session.

Bill 60, which established an education department, was the first major change in Quebec's educational structure since Confederation.

Though Paul Gerin-Lajoie, 44, the first education minister, had to wage a hard campaign to win support for the measure, it ultimately won the approval of the assembly by a unanimous vote.

Labor legislation caused a deeper stir.

The trade union movement reacted strongly to the government's original labor code. The Quebec federation of labor at one point threatened a general strike unless revisions were made.

BILL GOT APPROVAL

But the bill that finally went through, after a year of discussion and controversy, met general approval. Important new features included the compulsory check-off, and extension of the right to organize to professional groups, such as doctors and engineers.

Meanwhile, a special committee is studying labor legislation that will apply to civil servants, municipal and school board employees and similar public service groups.

Married women, previously shackled by the restraints of the Napoleonic Code, now can enter into contracts, sign medical consents and enjoy other rights under another major piece of legislation.

An Opposition bill requiring legislature approval on major power exports was passed. It came before the setback in negotiations between the Quebec government and British Newfoundland Corporation on the Hamilton Falls, Labrador, hydro-electric project.

If realized, this project would mean transmission of huge amounts of power via Quebec to New York state.

Behind the scenes study of a steel mill project continued. One major announcement of the session came in April, when Premier Jean Lesage called a press conference to announce that General Motors will build a huge auto manufacturing plant north of Montreal to employ 2,500 men.

The Union Nationale opposition poked away continuously with charges of patronage, but got caught in a dramatic backfire late in the session.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Debbie Watson, a bubbling, wide-eyed 15-year-old, today can walk down almost any street without causing any undue stir.

By Christmas time all this will change because Debbie will be a recognizable television star. Debbie, a Los Angeles youngster whose previous theatrical experience included only minor roles, has the title role of NBC's new Karen, one of the three situation comedies which, under the title of 90 Bristol Court, will have their debut in October.

"I've already got four fan letters," Debbie announced breathlessly.

Debbie and I were joined for the studio luncheon break by Richard Denning, television's former Mr. North and Michael Shayne, who is playing her father in the series.

"At first, it's marvellous. You really get a kick out of having people nudge each other when they see you and whisper your name. You get a great thrill out of being asked for autographs and addressed by strangers. But after a while there are times when you wish people would let you alone."

Debbie listened politely but it was obvious that she couldn't imagine fame ever becoming a bore.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

HOW A BAD PLAY
LOST A TOURNAMENT
By OSWALD JACOBY

After four days of part scores we can stand a little excitement in the column. Here is a hand that decided the 1950 Vanderbilt Cup.

At one table South stopped at a nice safe six club contract; at the other table South arrived at seven clubs and received a queen of diamonds opening. He thought for a while, put up dummy's ace of diamonds and discarded his jack of spades.

The heart jack was guarded against him and he was down one trick. Furthermore, it turned out that East had started with queen and one spade so that if South had discarded a heart at trick one he would have made the grand slam.

South felt that he had been unlucky. Actually, he had made a very bad play.

The correct play was to ruff the first diamond in his own hand and lay down the ace of spades to see if the queen would drop. It wouldn't, whereupon South should play the ace of hearts to see if the jack would drop. It wouldn't. His next play would be the king of spades. This time the queen would drop whereupon South could go to dummy, discard his low heart on the ace of diamonds, return to his hand and draw trumps. If the second spade lead failed to drop the queen, South would go over to dummy and discard his jack of spades. That way he would retain the same heart play that he would have had if

Instead of bidding four hearts your partner bids four diamonds over your three spades. What do you do now?

Certificates awarded

Closing exercises are held by Mansonville Vacation School

MANSONVILLE — The 1964 Vacation Church School came to an end the evening of July 17, when the closing exercises were held in the Intermediate School gymnasium. Each class supplied a part of the program.

The projects made by the different classes were on view in the individual class rooms. Each child was allowed to take home the articles he or she had made as a memento of the school.

R. Worden opened the program with call to Worship and prayer of Invocation. A recitation of welcome was given by Dick Maxwell and scripture lesson was read by B. Thomas of Bolton Center United Church.

The treasurer's report was given by Miss Ruth Heath, who stated that due to the very large attendance of 185 students the school's finances were in the red.

PRESENT CERTIFICATES

Each class offered its own selections on stage. At the close of their numbers Mr. Brown, the director announced the names of the young folk and they were given their attendance certificates by the class teachers.

The offering was taken by four intermediate class boys, Goldwin Cote, Larry Hastings, Neil Manson and Douglas Peasley.

Music at the beginning of the program and during the taking of the offertory was furnished by David Bailey, pianist, a member of the intermediate class.

A number much appreciated, was a duet by Devon Wilkins, recorder, accompanied on the piano by Mr. R. G. Albiston. Devon, another member of the intermediate class, also played a piano solo at the close of the program.

Dedication of the offering was by Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Brown spoke of the work accomplished by the children and thanked teachers, helpers and all others who had helped to make the school a success. Benediction was pronounced by Mr. Albiston, pastor in charge Anglican Church.

She was met at the door by Mrs. M. Bacon, presented with a corsage of nursery articles, and then escorted to a chair decorated for the occasion. A large stork holding a baby was suspended from the ceiling.

The Misses Judy Johnson and Phyllis Bacon presented the guest of honor with a prettily decorated basket filled with gifts. Mrs. Smith was assisted in opening the parcels by Mrs. Francis Smith and Mrs. Sylvia Phaneuf.

EAST WARD SCHOOL

E. Ward School property is sold

The Sherbrooke Board of Protestant School Commissioners decided last night to sell the old East Ward School property.

Details on the sale will not be made public until clearance has been received from the department of education, John MacLeod, board secretary said this morning.

A letter, and all necessary forms, concerning the sale of the grounds, two-story brick school building and a house on the grounds which has previously been a janitor's residence, were forwarded by mail to Quebec this morning.

Clearance should be received within a few days said Mr. MacLeod, at which time details of the sale will be made public.

The board announced the 80-year-old building would be sold June 30. The school was closed this Spring due to the dwindling number of pupils attending classes.

It was costing the local board several hundred dollars for each pupil to maintain the old brick school's facilities.

Despite objections from some

Consider $8 million project

Construction school here?

A joint committee of management and labor in the construction industry is studying the feasibility of building a mammoth regional apprenticeship center for that industry in Sherbrooke, it was learned today.

Carrier Fortin, Sherbrooke MLA, has been informed of the committee's studies and is said to be in general agreement with the projected format. The $8 million center which would be built by the provincial government would have space for some 800 students. A 300-room residence, a cultural center and a sports field would be included in the scheme. The center would, if built, instruct students in all facets of the building trades. The residence would be built by the students themselves. This means of cutting down expenses was first tried in a similar school in Shawinigan and the building still stands.

The present apprentice school on Galt Street West would be integrated into the new institute. The former is described as "vastly overcrowded" by members of the study committee.

No date has yet been set for construction of the school.

Milk price up a cent as dairies rap gov't.

Starting Monday, the price of whole and skim milk will increase one cent a quart in Sherbrooke, Lennoxville and Magog, it was announced today.

Comments this morning by spokesmen for three dairies — Sherbrooke Pure Milk, Leclerc, and Hunting's, agreed with Guy Pinard, general manager for Leclerc, who said:

The price increase is an irrational and illogical one which will go to those producers who really don't need it — the fluid milk producers who mainly supply to industrial bulk milk users.

The price increase which was granted to farmers as a result of the march on Quebec in June was granted in fear by the government and the blame can especially be laid to Alcide Courcy, the Minister of Agriculture who was using the opportunity to fulfill a political commitment, he said.

A meeting was held earlier this week at which the group comprising five local dairies decided that the increase was most untimely and wrote protesting strongly to the minister of agriculture, said the spokesman for the group, Mr. Pinard.

Water safety demonstration is washed out

Yesterday afternoon's rain washed out a planned water-safety demonstration at the Shopping Centre in Sherbrooke.

The lessons in mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration, boating tips, swimming know-how, and the like will, it is now planned, be offered next Thursday from 2:30 to 4 at the centre.

Free refreshments and gifts will be distributed to all youngsters attending the demonstration, given by qualified instructors.

In separate meetings

Mayors of Sherbrooke, Magog promote, protest the pipeline

The mayors of Sherbrooke and Magog and representatives of Dominion Textile's Magog plant met Resources Minister Rene Levesque in separate talks on a single topic — Sherbrooke's plan to draw 15 million gallons of water a day from Lake Memphremagog.

The first meeting was held this morning with Mayor Ernest Simard of Magog. He is reported to have expressed concern of his administration over further lowering of an already low water level in the loss of power through decreased flow of water over respective dams.

Mayor Nadeau, who was to have met the minister this afternoon, was to have spoken in favor of the pipeline project which was recently approved by his administration.

For the Magog mayor, this is his second trip to Quebec City on the pipeline project. In mid-May, Mayor Simard was promised by department officials that he would be consulted before a final go-ahead would be given to Sherbrooke's administration.

He is known to have asked the American consul general in Montreal to accompany him for his meeting with Mr. Levesque. Lake Memphremagog is an international waterway and would be affected equally in the American section by Sherbrooke's pipeline project.

The consul-general declined, apparently because of assurances he has received from the federal government that the lake level would not be altered so as to contravene an international waters treaty.

Details of the talks are expected to be released later.

The temperature drops 40 degrees

A sharp and unexpected drop in temperature was recorded in the Eastern Townships yesterday and last night.

The maximum yesterday recorded by the Dominion Experimental Farm at Lennoxville was 68. The Dominion Public Weather Bureau of the Department of Transport had predicted a high of 90.

The minimum yesterday was 50, but last night Experimental Farm readings dropped to 40.

Elsewhere, in Stanstead county, the mercury sunk to the freezing point. One Stanstead farmer reported seeing frost early this morning.

The Experimental Farm has never seen July frost in its region in the last half-century. The all-time low at the farm in July during the last 50 years is 33.

The abrupt climatical change to coolness forms a marked contrast to atmospheric temperatures earlier this week, which were recorded as high as 90.

Assembly acts to protect integrity

For any member of an elective body to lay bribery charges against one of his colleagues without having thoroughly investigated the accuracy of the complaint is a serious offence.

But in certain circumstances the offence may be excused by arguing that the individual laying the charges did not realize the legal and moral implications of his actions — that he lacked the legal training necessary to make a proper evaluation of the weight of the evidence.

However, no such excuse may be offered in the case of Yves Gabias, Union Nationale MLA for Trois Rivières, who charged a fellow member, Rene Hamel, now attorney-general, with accepting a $1,500 payment in return for obtaining a gravel contract for a Shawinigan Falls contractor.

Mr. Gabias has been a member of the Bar of the Province of Quebec for many years and also served as a Judge of the Court of Sessions of the Peace prior to resigning to re-enter the field of politics. Either as a lawyer or a judge he should have realized the importance of thoroughly investigating the truth of any charges he intended to make.

Premier Lesage and the members of the Assembly probably took these factors into consideration when they approved the resolution expelling the Trois Rivières member from the House for a period of three years — an action unparalleled in Canadian parliamentary history.

Parliamentarians enjoy certain immunities from prosecution over charges made within the chamber, which fact places them in a privileged position.

The very fact that they enjoy these immunities from prosecution before the regularly-constituted courts also places upon them special responsibilities. And one of them is to assure that any charge they make against an individual — either within or without the House — be supported by the strongest evidence.

By his own admission, Mr. Gabias failed to do this.

It's hardly worth being fixed for life if you've nearly worried yourself to death doing it.

MP's dilemma; what is too much?

Federal Conservative MP Jack McIntosh, representing Swift Current-Maple Creek, Sask., stands accused by a federal judicial inquiry of pressuring a government agency to pay crop failure benefits to about 1,000 farmers in his constituency in 1963. This could be an example of the pressures to which he, as a Member of Parliament, was subjected.

One of the duties of an MP, politically and morally, is to look after the folks back home. One of his difficulties is coping with the bureaucratic red tape with which civil servants in all government agencies seem to entangle themselves and everybody else.

While it is easy to label Mr. McIntosh with political opportunism, if not downright dishonesty, it could be that he is guilty of no more than a lack of judgement.

Many people have gone to their MP with complaints, whether justified or not, of unfair treatment or unreasonable delay on the part of civil servants. They are entitled to expect that he will do what he can in their behalf. Where to draw the line must often be a difficult thing for a representative of the people to decide.

In most homes where there is juvenile delinquency there likely is also adult delinquency.

Other papers say:

Must keep the peace in Cyprus

Too much candy is bad for teeth. Outlaw it. Butter in excess can add weight and that can strain the heart. Butter should be banned, not subsidized. Traffic accidents killed almost 4,400 Canadians last year. Build no more cars or require each car to bear this warning in luminous paint on its hood: "This car can kill you or someone else."

Ridiculous? Unwarranted interference with a man's right to follow his own judgment, if need be to make his own mistakes? No more absurd or hysterical than what is proposed about cigarettes in the U.S. There within six months packages must caution that cigarette smoking "may cause death from cancer and other diseases." All cigarette advertising will include the warning a year hence, unless the tobacco industry can persuade the Federal Trade Commission that it is no longer required. It will, though, likely be a long time before the orders are carried out. The industry is launching a test case, which can drag for years. Huge fortunes are at stake. Federal, state and civic governments collect more than $3 billion a year in tobacco excise taxes. In 21 states tobacco paid more than $14 million to 700,000 farmers last year. They swing a lot of votes in this election year.

Whether or not cigarette smoking causes or aggravates otherwise-originated cancer remains in sharp controversy, although the weight of medical evidence continues to mount. A survey among 5,000 Canadian doctors discloses that almost half have changed their smoking habits; more than one-quarter have stopped smoking; of those who smoke 25 per cent use cigarettes, one-fifth pipes and around 13 per cent cigars.

The American Medical Association within the last month recognized "a significant relationship between cigarette smoking and the incidence of lung cancer." Last January a commission after several years' study reported adversely to the U.S. surgeon-general. Cigarette sales fell sharply for a short time. In the U.S. they soon resumed pre-report levels. In Canada, while sales have climbed from their January low in the first quarter of the year, they were still 8 per cent under January-March, 1963. Cigars, which the U.S. report found less harmful, were up 29 per cent here. Pipe smoking, also reported less injurious, is on the rise, too.

Lung cancer deaths in Canada totalled 3,246 last year. A committee to study smoking vs. health was appointed in mid-winter by Health Minister LaMarsh. Until it reports, she has said, there will be no decision on paralleling the U.S. orders. Miss LaMarsh is well advised to wait until her tobacco jury comes in. Then, irrespective of its findings, she will be wise still to stifle any impulse to follow the U.S. lead. It isn't only that Canada, too, has tobacco farmers, although not in the U.S. ratio; and that the federal government collects tobacco tax millions a year. The issue runs much more deeply:

For the solution lies neither in prohibition nor in scare tactics. It is for science to determine what elements, if any, in cigarettes cause cancer, diseases of the heart, respiratory ailments and other maladies named in the U.S. report. There have been indications of such research being launched or financed by the tobacco industry in both countries.

In the meantime, the individual in each remains free to stop smoking cigarettes, to smoke fewer, to use more, to swing over to cigars or a pipe, or, for that matter, to chew snuff.

French Canada says:

Need supple political formula for Quebec-Ottawa co-operation

Quebec Le Soleil—As a result of the new formula for federalism being extended to many federal programs, the Quebec government's refusal (to participate in two new federal plans to aid education) will not deprive the province of the sums it normally would have received if it had joined. . . .

Thus Quebec, while keeping its autonomy intact, while maintaining all its prerogatives, does not make its residents pay taxes for federal programs from which only the populations of other provinces will benefit, as has happened in the past.

This is the aim of co-operative federalism through which an attempt is being made to take more account of the difference between the various provinces of the country without exposing them to penalties because they decide to stay outside federal programs for reasons of principle.

It is a formula for constant compromise between the various governments of the country. It may not be an ideal formula, but at the moment it is the most realistic.

Our province belongs to a confederation where 11 governments must continually deal with one another. There can be no question of Quebec imposing its will, its conception of federalism, on the other 10 governments. There can be no question of Quebec governments, through over-rigid attitudes, preventing other provinces from benefiting from federal programs to which they have no objection because they haven't the same reasons as we for opposing them.

Some people contend that Quebec is isolating herself from the rest of the country by withdrawing too often from federal government programs. Is such a situation likely to loosen the links which unite us with the central government and the other provinces? Perhaps, but until such time as we are capable of finding final and equitable solutions to the problems of our association under one central government, a more supple formula than the one that existed in the past is more likely to eliminate many complaints Quebec had against the central government. (June 22)

Quebec L'Evenement—The meeting of health ministers was unanimous on the principle of the need for a health insurance program, even though it's adoption was put off for an indefinite time.

For all practical purposes one can conclude that Canada is on the road towards health insurance and that it can do nothing to avoid it. It may be five years, 10 years or even longer. No one knows. But, the idea having been accepted, it will be picked up by pressure groups which will try to hasten its arrival by all the means at their disposal. This program will also appear in the platforms of our various political parties and one day or another a government will have its hand forced and will set it up.

Already we have the assurance that since it is a social security measure, Quebec will want to remain outside any federal program and build its own, while obtaining a fair share of the money from the central government. . . .

Governments would do well to proceed very prudently and with extreme slowness, especially since it will lead to numerous problems, besides the financial one, whose solutions will not be easy. (July 22)

Quebec L'Action — French-speaking Canadians suffer from collective frustration when they find that their language is ignored in their own country. But have they ever considered that hundreds of thousands of their English-speaking fellow citizens suffer a corresponding humiliation because of their ignorance of French? All young English-Canadians who receive a higher education learn French. Rare are those who can speak it, even if they can read it. And we are guilty in large part. "You learned English at our expense and you never give us a chance to learn your language." How often has this reproach been made against us, for example at the Press Gallery in Ottawa where all our English colleagues complain that they spent years taking French lessons with no more practical results than those who studied dead languages.

The phenomenon is often repeated. As soon as an English person joins a group of French-Canadians, they launch into English. Is it courtesy? They say so. Is it unconsciously acting superior? This is doubtful. It is mainly laziness. We refuse to make the effort needed to help the person speaking slowly and with difficulty a strange language he wants to learn. . . .

French at present is making surprising conquests in Canada. Recently we were able to go from Quebec to Vancouver, without speaking a word of English. . . .

If the French-Canadians spoke their language first, everywhere, the tendency would be irresistible and many big national problems would be nearing a solution. But in Quebec, to speak French becomes a duty to wards those who want to learn our language. Lorenzo Pare. (July 22)

Moncton L'Evangeline—The Commons has adopted the bill extending Canada's territorial limits to 12 miles.

This question of territorial waters for fishing is not new. It has been discussed for several years without a decision being taken for or against. Canadian authorities have always feared unfavorable reactions from other countries with the result that Canadian fishermen have lost thousands of dollars each year. . . .

The fishing industry has undergone considerable growth in the last few years. With construction of larger and stronger trawlers, the discovery of new fishing methods and the help of governments, our Canadian fishermen now are in a position to compete with foreign fishermen, both on the fishing banks and on the markets. . . .

The adoption of this bill by Parliament marks the beginning of a new era for the fishing industry in Canada. Bernard Poirier (July 22)

Montreal Le Devoir — At each of his press conferences, General de Gaulle discusses themes as wide as the world, involving not only tactical considerations but also a profoundly articulated vision of politics, in the widest sense of the word.

This time de Gaulle spoke of Europe's vocation. He said, without hedging, that he wants to be separated from both the United States and its closest partners.

De Gaulle spoke about a Europe that should "exist by itself, for itself" and have its own policy. He described this Europe as living its own life, not in opposition to the New World but "beside it." . . .

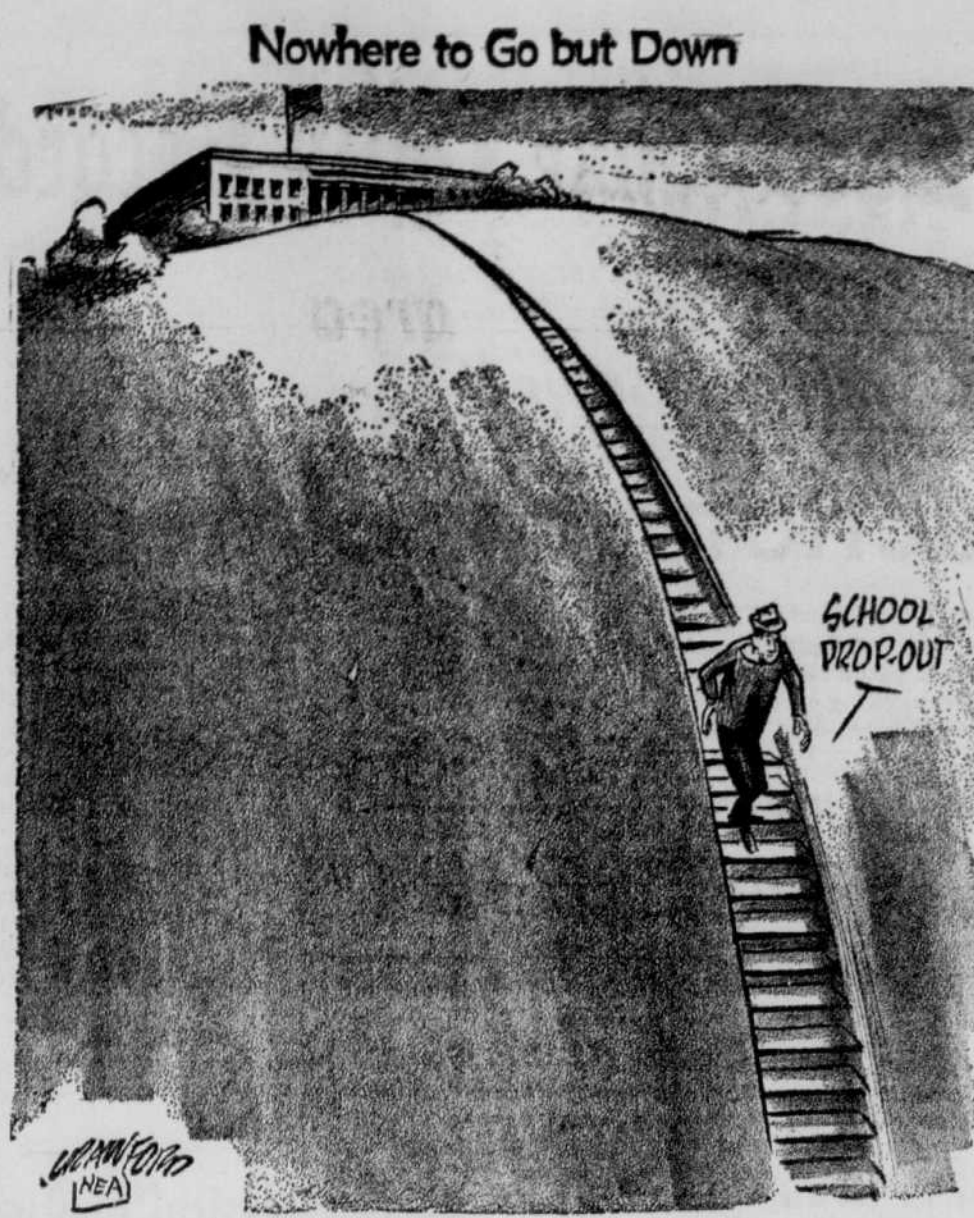

It should be "another force" within a world where the classic division of two camps dominated by Washington and Moscow is not enough. The problem is complicated by the fact that de Gaulle is visibly thinking about "an autonomous Europe" in which France would be the hub. . . .

The naked truth is that none of the Common Market countries want to be placed under the direct or indirect tutelage of France. These countries are not less European for all that. But they are seeking a European formula that would be something more than a return to the classic hegemonies of yesterday. . . .

Between France and her partners important differences have grown up. The Italian, Dutch and Belgian leaders are disposed to create progressively a real supranational political authority. To a formula which he feels is abstract and hazardous, de Gaulle prefers what he calls a "Europe des patries," that is a Europe where each nation would preserve its full sovereignty.

In recent months de Gaulle has extended his influence around the world. At the same time he seems to have set himself apart from his nearest neighbors.

In any other man this paradox would be disturbing. With de Gaulle one certainty remains. Over and above all differences of strategy or tactics, he remains, basically, a man of the West, a man of the Atlantic, haughty and proud but always faithful and sure.—Claude Ryan (July 25)

Crippen was hanged the following November in England.

Manitoba experiment

Students spend a French week

ST. BONIFACE Man. (CP)—An experiment in teaching French by giving English-speaking high school students a week at a French language school is planned for this fall. Eleven students from St. John's Cathedral Boys' School in nearby Selkirk will spend the first week of the term at St. Boniface College. And they won't speak a word of English while there.

The experiment is part of a project started two years ago decided students were ready to spend a week this fall and another next spring at St. Boniface College. The 11 students are just entering Grade 11. The plan is to have them take one subject entirely in French in Grade 12.

It was the college that stipulated the students speak no English during the week there. But St. John's readily agreed. "We realize the students will be a little lost during the first week," says Principal Byfield. "But during the second week next spring they will probably start catching on."

The sugar maple is one of the tallest broad-leaved trees in Canada, reaching to 130 feet with a diameter of four feet.

St. John's developed a program intended to "revise this imagery so that it reflected the masculinity more—its feats in military actions, the exploits of fur traders in Canada, adventures and so on." And it required students to translate 500 words each night from English into French.

Tape recordings of French-speaking Manitobans were used in the revised course. French-language radio station CKSB here was also included.

Hong Kong colony

Pretty at distance but squalid close up

By SID ADILMAN

HONG KONG — (TNS) — From the boat, the lights of Hong Kong resembled diamonds carefully set into a monstrously thick necklace.

But the guide, a lithesome, tawny Chinese, was coldly plucking them out one by one.

"That light over there is the Queen Elizabeth Hospital. With 1,338 beds, it is the largest general hospital in the British Commonwealth. But it's hopelessly inadequate," she said.

DISEASE
Hong Kong, with a population of nearly 4,000,000, has only a total of 11,719 hospital beds. The Colony is regularly assaulted by cholera, tuberculosis, malaria, diphtheria, enteric fever and malnutrition. Hospitalization is always acute.

The Queen Mary Hospital, attached to the University of Hong Kong, has 632 beds and several others (five operated by Roman Catholic, two by Protestant and four by Chinese agencies) have a few more.

"My father is wealthy so about getting into a hospital, the guide was saying. 'We can afford to pay. But if you're poor what do you do?'

The boat moved slowly through oil and refuse-topped water.

SHANTY HILL
The question went unanswered.

"That string of lights up the mountain is a shanty town, one shanty after another all the way up. It's indescribably dirty. The shacks have been there since I was old enough to walk. 'They just exist. Nobody looks after them, repairs them or paints them; their lives run the same course as the shacks.'"

The guide shuddered after her discourse and leaned over the guard rail, the weight of Hong Kong's much ignored squatters' problem appearing to bear down on her.

"That clump of lights is a resettlement block serving about 5,000 people." It looks no bigger than a Jameson ave. high rise. I don't have to worry about apartment buildings housing no more than 100 people.

LOW RENT
The government maintains it gives low cost housing to 604,754 (about 17 per cent of the population who earn less than $67 a month). But this number includes higher paid junior civil servants for whom 15 per cent of all space in low cost housing projects is saved.

"Those lights ahead of us are Aberdeen, the sampan village," the guide continued. "This is something even the government can't hide. Here the government has failed us most badly."

"Most of us wealthy Chinese can stand being discriminated against at public clubs or in government. Most of us, like the British, can avoid the awful stench of the Colony by remaining in our homes on the hills. Most of us can't stand the sampan village, about it."

LITTLE CRITICISM
"A few Chinese, mainly those not in the newspaper or publishing business, have criticized loudly and are not here any more," my guide said.

"They have just disappeared. Maybe to Formosa. Nobody knows," she added.

The four tourists on the boat, two U.S. businessmen, a Calgary accountant and a Toronto reporter, ate little of their nine-course Chinese meal. They said little on the return trip.

The guide leaned over the rail wondering out loud if they really had wanted to know about the "other side of Hong Kong."

It is much more comfortable not to know, I thought.

And the diamond-like lights of Hong Kong seemed to lack their earlier lustre.

Commonwealth statement made for Home's political benefit says Labor ex-prime minister

LONDON (CP)—Earl Attlee, former Labor prime minister, has charged Sir Alec Douglas-Home with using the recent Commonwealth prime ministers conference for domestic political profit.

With Parliament about to close and a general election in the offing, Attlee told the House of Lords Wednesday:

"I was hoping that attending the Commonwealth conference, the prime minister might have got away from being a political propagandist and might have become prime minister."

Attlee attacked a government motion, moved by Lord Carrington, leader of the House, calling attention to the conference communiqué. He was puzzled by the motion because Commonwealth conferences had never been debated before.

"It is undesirable that we should have a discussion of this kind," Attlee declared. "The prime ministers are all equal. The conference was not the action of the British government, but of a number of governments."

SAYS OBJECT TO BOOST PM
"We had to wait until the last part of Lord Carrington's speech and there the object came out: The object was to give a boost to the prime minister of Great Britain."

Douglas-Home, a former Commonwealth secretary, received considerable praise from other premiers following the conference and Canada's Lester Pearson was among those paying tribute to his chairmanship. Attlee had suggested before the July 8-15 meeting that Harold Wilson, Labor party leader, be invited to sit in but Douglas-Home, who became Conservative leader last October, vetoed this.

"I think it is deplorable we should have this motion, particularly as we know that the prime minister of this country has said that every action must be dictated by electoral considerations," Attlee told the Lords.

"The prime minister had no prescriptive right to preside. It might have been anyone. It has not been the habit to announce this, and it has not been the habit to use the Commonwealth conferences for the personal aggrandisement of the prime ministers of this country."

PRESIDED AT MEETINGS

Attlee himself presided at three prime ministers conferences, including the 1949 meeting in which India decided to remain in the Commonwealth after becoming a republic.

Carrington, introducing his motion, spoke of gloomy predictions before the conference. These had been confounded by its success and the striking desire of the premiers to strengthen the association. He added:

"This meeting may well be the turning point in the future of the Commonwealth. One of the reasons why the meeting was so successful is that the prime minister . . . was in the chair and set the tone for the meeting."

"It would not be too much to say that this was a personal triumph, and widely recognized as such."

Attlee said he was glad the conference was successful but the credit belonged to all the premiers. The Conservatives had shown their disregard of the Commonwealth by the "heresy" of trying to join the European Common Market.

The Conservative government had shown little interest in Commonwealth trade and was apparently more willing to sell warships to Spain than to India.

"They may think it is a good election point to show some interest in the Commonwealth, but I would rather they did it by deeds and not by mere speeches," Attlee declared.

Lord Ogmore, Liberal party president, immediately disagreed, lauding the motion as an opportunity for expressing thanks to all the premiers. Tory lords also defended the motion.

Work progresses on Denison Ave.

GRANBY — (Special) — The sanitary and rain sewer on Denison Avenue is making progress as time goes on. It has taken a large amount of dynamite to tunnel through the rock under the bridge on Denison Avenue and has caused a great deal of inconvenience as all traffic was directed to residential streets.

It was decided to tunnel under the Denison Avenue bridge and when work was underway it was seen that instead of going fourteen feet under ground, that double the amount of tunnelling had to be done, thus making the work more difficult and lengthy.

The cost of this work is in the neighborhood of $200,000 and it is hoped that most of the work will be done by the beginning of 1965. Andre Laliberte, engineer says that a greater part of the work has been done, already, than was anticipated for this date.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—Everyone in our town reads the column and we apply many of the hints. Anyone with itching mosquito bites will find that using a brush to lightly scratch will relieve the itch and not break the skin.—MRS. I. M. I.

DEAR POLLY—Your column just goes to prove that many women still hold their homes and loved ones dear. With so many little ones wanting to help mom water the seeds and flowers that are popping up, take one large pail of water, give each child an empty can (any size) with nail holes punched through one end and they'll help mom peacefully and joyfully.—M. B.

GIRLS—I heartily agree with M.B.'s remark about today's women. When using her hint, do be sure the edges around the top of the can be smooth so there will be no little cut fingers. This might be a good place to use the paper cup idea that suggested holes in the bottom for watering plants.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have a plastic wastebasket in my kitchen and one in the bathroom. When I need to mop the floor, I empty the wastebasket and use it instead of a bucket and rinse it well after the job is done. Then my baskets are clean as well as the floors.

• After cleaning a lampshade with detergent suds, blot with a bath towel, replace and turn the light on so the heat from the bulb will dry the shade quickly.—MRS. H. M. B.

GIRLS—Of course you will never wash a shade unless you are sure the trimming is sewed, not glued, on.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When my daughters' jeans started to wear out at the knees I used to cut them off to make shorts for them. I hemmed the cut-off edges until recently, when I thought of using strips of iron-on tape to bind these raw edges. This finishes them without any sewing. I fold the tape in the middle and iron it on so it is half on the inside and half outside. It makes a very smooth finish with little trouble.—GERALDINE

Today's recipe—New gourmet dressing for fruit

As a tree is known by its fruit, a fruit salad is known by its dressing. There is the cream cheese type, the cottage cheese group, the mayonnaise-raisinnut classification, the sour cream variety, and dozens more.

But until this particular Gourmet Dressing has been tried, one hasn't really given the flavor of the fruit a chance to come through in proper fashion. By some amazing magic, this dressing succeeds in bringing forth the best in the individual flavors of each of the fruits in the bowl. It makes the strawberries sweeter, the peaches tarter, the oranges milder and the blueberries just beautifully good.

The secret ingredient is the touch of Angostura bitters which, in itself, is a kind of catalytic agent that blends and marries the other flavors in the dressing while adding a mild, subtle aromatic one of its own. Try this dressing either with the fruit on crisp greens as a luncheon main dish salad, or as a fruit compote for dessert. Equally interesting, either way.

GOURMET DRESSING FOR FRUIT

3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon cornstarch
Juice of 1/2 orange
1 1/4 cup apple juice

Questions readers ask

Q—My parents are both in their 70s. Shouldn't they have vitamin pills and food supplements to get an adequate diet?

A—No, according to Dr. Dena C. Cederquist, chairman of foods and nutrition at Michigan State University. He believes elderly people are being duped by food faddists who tell them they cannot get an adequate diet from simple, inexpensive every day foods. Also that the faddists offer "expensive, unnecessary and, in many instances, useless products." Also, "there is no evidence which suggests older people require greater amounts of any specific nutrient than do younger adults," Dr. Cederquist says.

King sees no gains in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — After talks with Mayor Robert F. Wagner over a four-day period, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has given no indication of any agreement on major demands by New York city's Negroes.

At a press conference Thursday he urged round-the-clock negotiations on a Harlem unity committee's nine-point program.

He also called Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy "utterly unresponsive" to Negroes' demands. They were:

1. Suspension of white police Lieut. Thomas R. Gilligan, who shot and killed a Negro boy, Police said it was done in self-defence. The shooting touched off the bloody rioting.
2. Formation of a civilian board to review cases of alleged police brutality.

Murphy has opposed both demands. Wanger has expressed his "complete faith" in Murphy.

King said Murphy "is intransigent and has little understanding of the urgency of the situation."

He said "explosive possibilities" are still in Harlem "and they will subside to the degree that the administration seeks to remove the conditions that brought them on at first."

King, invited here by Wagner, said he was "not a negotiator but a consultant."

News flashes from around the world

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Marina Oswald settled Thursday her suit against her former business manager and lawyers by agreeing to pay them $12,500 for the voidance of contracts she had signed with them last December.

Mrs. Oswald is the widow of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald. James H. Martin, who held a 10-year contract as her business manager, and Grand Prairie lawyers John M. Thorne and Paul W. Leech, who were to represent her legal interests, were not present.

She now has approximately $39,000 from donations sent her by the U.S. public following the death of Oswald last Nov. 24. Mrs. Oswald claimed in the suit that she did not understand what she had signed with the two men.

She fired them Feb. 14 by registered letter, but both refused to drop out of the contracts voluntarily.

LONDON (AP)—"Do you want to import into Great Britain the problems we see in Rochester, New York?" asked a Conservative British legislator who favors immigration restrictions.

The question was posed Thursday in the House of Commons by John Wells. He urged "a far more serious view of the legislation we have with a view to restricting the nearly unlimited flow of unassimilable material."

Another Conservative, Norman Pannell, said if immigration was necessary to meet labor needs, they should be met by short-term immigrants from Europe "rather than unassimilable immigrants on a permanent basis."

Pannell estimated at present rates of entry from the Commonwealth and high birth rates among immigrants, Britain's colored population would reach 3,000,000 by 1980.

"A figure of this kind gives rise to grave danger even in a country as free from racial prejudice as Britain," Pannell said.

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. John Roe, a 27-year-old Toronto mother of three won a half hour of free clothes shopping Thursday by entering a store in a home-made topless bathing suit.

mission circle.

A worship period was conducted by the president, Mrs. Orin Gardner, with Mrs. M. Merrill, and Mrs. M. Sharnan reading and leading in prayer.

Plans were made for future meetings, with the hope of procuring a special speaker and a film on a particular missionary work.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Minnie Dwight, 46, filed a $300,000 negligence claim against the city Thursday, asserting she was shot by a police bullet during the Harlem riots July 21.

The woman said she was walking home from her job as a bookbinding machine operator after midnight when a bullet tore across her back from shoulder to shoulder. She was on Lenox Avenue between 117th and 118th Streets.

Laos anti-Reds claim victory

VIENTIANE (AP) — Anti-Communist Laotian forces Thursday night claimed their biggest success in months. They reported they had driven the Pathet Lao from the north-south highway linking the country's two capitals and from a good part of the east-west road to the Plaine des Jarres.

Neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma's government said a joint offensive by neutralist and rightist battalions, supported by the rightist air force, cleared the north-south Route 13 running from Luang Prabang, the royal capital, 140 miles southward to Vientiane, the administrative capital.

The government said the offensive, launched last Saturday after three weeks of secret preparation, also opened east-west Route 7 from its junction with Route 13 east to Muong Soui, the neutralist foothold on the fringe of the Plaine des Jarres.

The Communists drove the neutralists from the plain in May. Government casualties were estimated at about 10 killed and 20 wounded. About 20 Pathet Lao soldiers were captured.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Mario Palardy holds Yanks at plate fans 14 as Senators win 6-1 in LL White Sox lose, two games tonight

Young Mario Palardy, holding the visiting Yankees to four hits while striking out 14 men, sparked the Senators to a 6-1 win in the Sher-Lenn Little League game last night at the Parade Grounds. In the other game played, White Sox went down to a 9-4 defeat at the hands of the Twins.

Tonight Red Sox and Indians tangle in what should be a humdrum. These two teams are fighting it out for league leadership and a win for the Sox would give them a pretty fair lead. Tigers take on the Orioles in the other slated game.

When Senators have Palardy on the mound, you are sure to see fireworks, for this youngster is tough on the opposition. His fourteen strikeouts last night was an example, for Yankees batters were baffled all the way. It was only in the second inning that the Yankees managed to get a man beyond second base.

Yankees got a single hit from David Garard in the second inning, one from Steve Mitchell in the third and their remaining two hits came in the sixth as Larry Dewing and Art Chamberlain connected.

At the end of two full innings it was 5-1 for Senators. Yankees went scoreless in the top of the first while the Senators, on two hits, came up with five runs in their part of the same inning. Mario Palardy and Pierre Segouin were the hitters. Yankees' run was tallied in the top of the second.

Asbestos Club seeks players for '64 season

ASBESTOS — The management of the Asbestos Alouettes Football Club is in search of recruits interested in playing for the squad in the 1964 season.

Young men, 16 years of age and over, are permitted to participate in the league. Those interested must report to Roger Garneau, former Ottawa Rough Riders instructor, and Jean-Marie Pellerin, last year's coach.

The meeting for recruits will be held at the football field on St. Roch Street Monday, August 3, at 6:00 p.m.

Andre Lachance, president of the Asbestos Alouettes Football Club, encourages all boys in this age limit to attend.

Ottawa Rough Riders trample Alouettes 25-1

MONTREAL (CP)—One question Eastern Football Conference fans may be asking today is: Are the Ottawa Rough Riders that good?

Another good question might be directed toward the Montreal Alouettes.

Are they really that bad?

The two teams came together Thursday night in the final Canadian Football League exhibition game for both.

The result, watched by a near-capacity 25,380 fans, was a lopsided 25-1 victory for Ottawa.

Displaying awesome mid-season form, the Rough Riders chalked up an undefeated exhibition record with the win.

Moral: If you want your boy to play for a second-division club, you'll cut down on his living costs by sending him to Washington rather than Cleveland.

While the Senators were wrecking manager Birdie Tebbetts' psychology and sending Cleveland to a sixth straight defeat Thursday night, Baltimore Orioles belted Minnesota Twins 7-4 and Chicago White Sox blanked Detroit Tigers 2-0 in the only other American League games scheduled.

The Senators, uncharacteristically riding a four-game winning streak, got clutch relief pitching from Jim Hannan and Ron Kline to back up their biggest inning of the season.

Two-run singles by Joe Cunningham and Dick Phillips were the key blows in the Senators' sixth-inning splurge. Hannan, who came on after the Indians hopped on Al Koch for five singles and a homer by Vic Davalillo in the first, pitched five shutout innings. The Indians got a run in the eighth and loaded the bases with two out in the ninth on three walks before Kline came on to end it.

Two Orioles teammates were tied for third with their 3-1 records keeping them in the race. LaFrance and M. Duval held third place between them. T. Lickford, of the Braves has a 2-1 standing for fourth position.

'Gibby' Gilbert fires 67 for early lead in Open

AT EASE — A platoon from Arnie's Army stands at ease while the Commander, Arnold Palmer, golf star from Latrobe, Pa., signs autographs. Arnie shot a par 71 in the starting round of the Canadian Open golf tournament at Montreal Thursday. This placed him in a six-way tie for ninth place, four strokes off the pace. (CP Wirephoto)

MONTREAL (CP)—The mere mention of Gibby Gilbert's name always brings the same question:

"Who's he?"

But Gilbert, a 23-year-old from Hollywood, Fla., needn't be worried about his anonymity. They asked the same question of Arnold Palmer, once an unknown himself, when he scored his first pro golf victory in the 1955 Canadian Open.

And look where Palmer is today.

Gilbert, who has the initials CL in place of a first name, took a step in the same direction Thursday as he fired a four-under par 67 to take first round lead in this year's Canadian Open.

"I was very lucky," he explained while still in a state of semi-shock.

"I haven't won a nickel on the pro tour and I started last August. Some lawyers from Miami are backing me."

FARED BADLY

In fact, Gilbert has fared so badly on the tour that the Professional Golfers' Association has revoked his player's card and he can participate in only two more tournaments. But his amazing round has changed things and he said he will re-apply for permission to continue.

Gilbert shot a 34 - 33 - 67 against the 36-35-71 par of the rigorous Pinegrove layout to lead Bob Shave Jr., of Willoughby, Ohio by one stroke and a corps of big-game stars by several more. Jack Nicklaus was three behind at 70 with five others and Arnold Palmer bracketed with six others.

Palmer could easily have come in with a six-under-par score, but his putter let him down. He missed on birdie tries at 11, 12 and 13 before missing an 18-incher on the 14th for a three-putt green.

But he bounced right back, sending a seven-iron shot to within six inches of the pin on the 150-yard 15th. He tapped it in without problems.

"I have no confidence in my putting," said Gilbert's grandmaster. "I have never had such a long period of bad putting. I may start seriously thinking about changing my style."

A fellow with no putting problems was Shave, who uses the pendulum type putter—a one-pound brass stick swung between the legs while standing over the ball.

"I gave up the conventional way of putting," he explained.

Palmer topped his former record last night when he allowed only one hit past him. His previous encounter, with the Sherbrooke Alouettes, saw him give the Als a two-hitter game.

Acton now has the great advantage of taking the first position in the standing with Coaticook. There is no doubt that these squads will battle it out in the playoffs for the final berth.

Jim Proulx, Corbeil's opposition on the mound, was the only player to get the better of him. Corbeil practically won his own game in the 11th inning when he connected for a single to drive Jacques Malouin across for the winning run. This was his third single of the game, which added a portion to the number of hits for Acton. Dickson and Groulx did just as well with the Beavers both connecting for a double.

RALPH LAPOINTE EXPELLED

Chief umpire Nick Malfara at Coaticook decided not to put up with Ralph Lapointe's insults in the ninth and proceeded to issue his expulsion from the game. This didn't harm the Canadians as they went on to defeat the Royals for a share of the spot in the league.

Dave Gilbert showed up well under the Royals attacks, but stopped them early in the inning. Four hits were allowed off Gilbert's pitches, while the Canadians connected for 12.

Half of the hits were contributed by Gerry Lamoureux and Louis Michaud with three singles apiece while teammates Chuck Roys and George Huntington made up for the remaining singles.

Este, Bourbeau, Ayoub and Roudreau were the four hitters for Drummondville as they each got a single. Coach-instructor Fred Bourbeau was relieved by Andy Occhinerio in the fifth but managed to be tagged with the loss while Gilbert, with 11 men fanned at the plate on his pitches, was accredited with the loss.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting — Bill White St. Louis, drove in four runs with two singles and a sacrifice fly, leading the Cardinals to a 5-2 victory over Chicago Cubs, their sixth straight triumph, longest streak in the National League this season.

What Rotary stands for

Rotary is a world fellowship of business and professional executives who accept the "Ideal of Service" as the basis for success and happiness in business and community life. In Rotary, thoughtfulness of others is regarded as the basis of service, and helpfulness to others as its expression. Together they constitute the Rotary "Ideal of Service."

Rotary's universal appeal is that it offers a practical means of enlarging one's friendships, participating in community betterment undertakings, promoting high standards in business and professional life, and advancing international understanding, good will and peace.

To attain its "Ideal of Service" to humanity, Rotary seeks all that which brings people together and it avoids all which separates them.

In their broad program of service work, Rotarians believe in the value of action based on unselfish motives.

Rotary is not a secret organization. Rotary does not seek to supplant or to interfere with any religious or political organization. It assumes that its program of service is in accord with all religions, and it does not concern itself with a Rotarian's politics. Rotary expects him to be faithful to his religion and loyal in his citizenship.

Rotary serves society in many ways

To a great many people the Rotary Club is merely a weekly get-together for a group of professional and business men who sing, eat, hear a speaker, and then go home until the following week. Actually, there is far more to Rotary than these weekly meetings though they are of a very real benefit to those who attend them. Just getting together and talking with the other members and building up a fellowship is of value and would of itself make the club worthwhile. There are, however, four important objects that take the club and members far beyond a weekly get-together.

The four objects of Rotary are to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise, in particular to encourage and foster: 1. The development of acquaintances as an opportunity for service.

2. High ethical standards in business and professions, the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

3. The application of ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business, and community life.

4. The advancement of international understanding, goodwill, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

Yes, there is a good deal more to Rotary than the weekly meetings, but no good Rotarian misses a meeting if he can help it, as he realizes that out of these meetings come opportunities to serve his community and the world.

Briefly the four main spokes that stem from the hub of the Rotary Wheel, emblem of the club, indicate the principal objectives: Friendship, the good fellowship of Rotary; Business Ideals, the importance and worthwhileness of Service above Self; Community Service, the good that Rotary does in the communities; and World Service, the importance of the Rotary Spirit throughout the world stressing the absolute necessity for the ideals of Rotary as a foundation for lasting peace.

Rotary is a world fellowship of business and professional executives who accept the "Ideal of Service" as the basis for success and happiness in business and community life. In Rotary, thoroughness of others is regarded as the basis of service, and helpfulness to others as its expression. Together they constitute the Rotary "Ideal of Service."

Rotary's universal appeal is that it offers a practical means of enlarging one's friendships, participating in community betterment undertakings, promoting high standards in business and professional life, and advancing international understanding, goodwill and peace.

Rotary Club has many projects

ROCK ISLAND — Each year for the past 19 years a group of business and professional men of the Boundary, all members of the Boundary Rotary Club assemble in fellowship weekly and usually during the evening there is some mention of the forthcoming fall fair. Maybe a suggestion, some idea gained by a Rotarian visiting another club, but always in the back of their minds is the Rotary Fair and thoughts to make it better and bigger.

This group of public minded citizens are not thinking of a successful fair for themselves but to help others. Those who attended the fair to have a good time, and those who purchase raffle tickets to receive a good prize. The profits are used locally in many benevolent ways.

They maintain the children's room of the Haskell Free Library on the International Boundary where new books are added annually and loaned out to hundreds of youngsters from each side of the border.

A sum of $500 is contributed annually to the Frontier Swim Project which covers one quarter of the season's costs. A student loan fund is functioning and giving assistance to young people seeking higher education. Welfare help is given annually and totals many hundred of dollars. Classes are fitted, fuel and foods and medicine purchased and paid for. At Christmas time many of the needy families are given a food hamper from the Rotary. Every cent which is raised and is a profit from the fair is used in this way.

So, come to the Boundary Horse Show at Stanstead.

Car squeaks after lube? Oil the little spots yourself

So you've been faithful and have had your car greased as often as the owner's manual says you should. But still there are annoying little squeaks, latches that don't work smoothly, windows that won't go up and down as easily as you would like.

The average grease job gets all the major points. But a man going over a car quickly with a high pressure grease gun is likely to miss or ignore the spots that require only a minimum of lubrication.

Even if he gets them, since it's only a drop of oil or a dab of grease that's involved, it's likely that the spots will need attention before the next grease job. If yours is one of the cars that is self-lubricating, then it is even more important that you go over many of these points yourself since your auto doesn't often get into a service station for lubrication.

Your Own Program

Set up your own small lube program. Once a month is a good interval. One of those oil cans with a long nose that pumps oil will squirt oil into hard-to-reach places. Fill it with light oil—SAE 10-W is about right. Have a grease stick handy and a tube of powdered graphite. Grease that's packed in a tube is good for home use.

Check the hood. Clean away dirt from the latch and oil the moving parts. Put a little grease on the striker. Squirt some oil on the hinges. Note all the moving parts when you open and close the hood and lubricate them. Give the same treatment to the trunk as well.

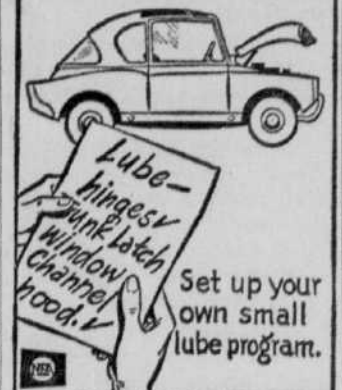

While the hood is up, put a little oil on the accelerator linkage. If these parts stick it will cause increased idling.

Other moving parts such as transmission controls under the hood will be helped with a little oil.

Doors are often skipped in lube jobs and begin to stick and squeak. Use grease on the heavy parts of the hinges, oil on the hinge pins. A drop of oil on window handles will help them turn smoothly.

Do not use oil on door or trunk locks. Blow a small amount of powdered graphite into the locks. Oil will gum the works.

Set up your own small lube program.

With the doors open, check the tracks that the adjustable front seats ride on. Oil the controls, spread grease on the tracks.

All of those push-pull controls on the dash will work more smoothly with a little lubrication. Get under the dash and put a little oil on heater and ventilator control wires and pivot points.

Grease for Fan Belt

Use your grease stick to end fan belt squeaking. While you're there, oil the generator.

Don't forget the glove compartment. A little oil on the mechanism, some grease on the striker plate.

Use stainless stick lubricant or brake fluid, never petroleum products, on parts such as belts, rubber stripping around doors, rubber strip under hood.

Though not part of a regular grease job, smear some grease on battery terminals to prevent corrosion. If corrosion is already there, remove cables and scrape terminals until they are bright. Remove dirt from the top of the battery by scrubbing with a stiff brush and then washing with baking soda. Rinse with clear water. Replace the clamps and coat with more grease. (NEA)

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY

When mid summer comes do your cows go down in milk? Most herds do and according to the researchers summer slump is mainly a heat effect. Cows just can't take hot weather.

Anything you can do to keep the cows cool and comfortable will help. Shade is essential even if it means taking the cows off pasture during the day.

Water, of course, is most important. It takes 25 gallons to produce 40 lbs. of milk. On a hot day a cow will drink 50 gallons if she doesn't have to walk for it. Plastic pipe is cheap and a line to the pasture will pay for itself the first summer.

Cows are more comfortable on green growing pastures than on bare feed lots. Evaporation from the grass actually lowers the temperature near the ground. Overgrown fencerows slow down air circulation over the fields.

Unlike humans, cows can't perspire to keep cool. They depend instead on "insensible evaporation" from the surface of the skin and from the lungs to regulate body temperature. This system just cannot cope with high air temperatures. Above 70° a cow feels the heat.

And what does she do about it? She instinctively knows that feed produces heat, and eats less. In a day or two the milk scales show the result. Production loss is rarely regained.

Various breeds differ in their ability to endure heat. Brown Swiss and Jerseys tolerate hot weather better than Holsteins and Ayrshires. The tropical Zebu has great folds of skin under the neck to get rid of heat. White cattle suffer less than dark.

CHOMP CHIPS

A few days ago I toured the Humpty-Dumpty potato chip factory in Lachine. It was quite an experience.

Could you have guessed, for instance, that the average

Canadian eats three pounds of chips in a year, and that he is rapidly catching up on his American cousin who eats six pounds? Or that Quebec production, valued over $2,000,000, constitutes 44% of Canadian sales?

I was surprised to learn also that this major plant was operating at this time of year with less than 48 hours reserve of potatoes. The first Quebec Cobblers were coming in. This variety must be used within twenty-four hours of digging before the starch changes to sugar. Customers don't want a dark caramelized chip.

Actually, the chip industry is very fussy over the potatoes it buys, and pays a good premium to get them. The choice of varieties is limited to a few like Sebago, Pongo, Avon and Keswick.

A potato is required which is high in dry matter, peels with little waste, and is low in reducing sugars. It must never be chilled at any time during harvesting, storing or delivering, and should be stored at 55°. At low temperatures, starch changes to sugar.

This particular plant contracts with local growers for its main supply, but during the early summer months, shops way down into the states for a source. The truckers drive day and night to get them here within the time limit for immature potatoes.

Peanut oil at 325° is used for cooking. The thickness of the raw chips is checked hourly to 3/16 inch.

My thanks for the tour go to Paul Neidermayr, production manager of the Humpty-Dumpty plant. Paul is a 1959 graduate of Macdonald College.

HOUSE PLAN OF THE WEEK

NEW HOUSE DESIGN—This house, by architect J. Bryan Crawley of Winnipeg, is of post and beam construction with exposed beams at six-foot centres on the sloping ceilings of all rooms. Post and beam is a type of construction made with load-bearing posts and beams in which the enclosing walls are designed to support no loads other than their own weight.

The house is planned around a modest court which will add privacy and outdoor living qualities to the house. The living-dining room has ample wall space for placing furniture. The kitchen is efficiently planned and well placed. The bedroom-bathroom area may be separated from the rest of the house by a folding door. The front door should face east for best lighting.

The floor area is 1,145 square feet and the exterior dimensions, excluding the carport, are 37 feet by 36 feet five inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 326, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.
