

IMMENSE DAMAGE.

The Floods in Southern Rivers Hourly Increasing.

The Backwater of the Kaw River at Kansas City Caused by the Highness of the Missouri Causing Considerable Trouble—Large Area of Country Flooded—The Rivers Rising and Danger Increasing.

ST. LOUIS, May 14.—The river at this point reached a height of 32 feet 8 inches this afternoon, which is only 16 inches below the big flood of 1883, and a rise of about a foot since last night. As the water rises, more and more land in the northern and southern parts of the city become submerged, and hourly encroachments are made on the railroad tracks and other property bordering on the river.

More land is also inundated on the eastern side of the river and nearly all the ground on the south side of East St. Louis to East Cavendish, a distance of about five miles is under water.

The large sections of the country north of East St. Louis reaching up to the National stock yards is also submerged, and within these boundaries scores of houses are flooded, and their former occupants have been forced to abandon them and seek safety on higher ground.

Along the level in the central part of the city the situation is not materially changed. The water continually creeps up the banks, and the ground floor stores are being inundated, and their occupants are moving out. The prospect is now that three and perhaps four feet more of water will come from the upper streams, and that there will not only be great inconvenience to business but immense destruction of property.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 14.—The Missouri river continues to rise, and the damage to property by the flood increases hourly. This morning the Kaw river in Kansas City had been backed up by the flooded Missouri so that it overflowed its banks, and its waters invaded the basement of the packing houses of Kingman & Co. The company was obliged to suspend operations.

To-night Argentine, Mo., will be without electric light, and is already without water. The flood this morning invaded the plant of the Electric Light company, and put out the furnaces. The foundations of the reservoir of the Water works company, which washed out last night and a portion of the reservoir carried away, releasing the water contained in it. Most of the cisterns are full of flood water mixed with refuse from packing houses. The copper refining plant of the Kansas City Smelting and Refining company at Argentine has been shut down on account of the high water, the furnace being flooded. The whole town of Argentine, excepting that part built on the high bluffs, is under water. All the houses in the bottoms along the river banks are covered with water to their second floors. The residents had sufficient warning to save themselves and their household goods.

ARMOURDALE. The Kaw is doing great damage in Armourdale. The back water has flooded nearly the entire town and the people in many parts of it are going about in boats and on rafts. All the packing houses there were in operation this morning, but their stock pens are flooded and business greatly interfered with. The cellars of the Phoenix Packing company are full of water. It will take only a rise of a few more inches to flood all the packing establishments. The prospects are that by to-morrow they will be obliged to suspend. All the numerous bridges between Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kansas, and over the Kaw river in Kansas City are in danger of being washed out. In the city the flood has reached only a short distance into the east bottoms and has driven but few families from their houses. In the west bottoms some of the streets have been flooded by backwater. The river is now 24 ft. 7 in. above low water mark.

TO START TO-DAY.

A Gigantic Strike Among New York Pavers.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The big lock-out of pavers will unquestionably take place on Monday morning. The edict has gone forth and hundreds of men will be ordered on strike throughout this city early in the morning. The fight bids fair to rival any trouble between capital and labor that has taken place in years. The men have demonstrated that they mean to fight, and the manufacturers have likewise shown that they mean war to the knife. Every effort has been made, it was said, to have the Manufacturers' association agree to a settlement but without avail. The lock-out of the painters means that other trades will join in act of sympathy. Wherever stone is by the New England association, strikes will occur. This means Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and other large cities in the west and Boston and big cities in the east. Bricklayers, hod-carriers and kindred trades will surely be affected in such a way that thousands of men will be thrown out of work.

STONE CUTTERS DISCHARGED.

KEENE, Mass., May 14.—The Webb Granite company of Marlboro discharged to-night all its union cutters and quarrymen. About 250 were working at Fitzwilliam depot, the balance at the Marlboro quarry. Seventy-five paving cutters were discharged last Sunday. This is in pursuance of the demand of the Granite Manufacturers Association, that the workmen should sign a January bill. Two or three small employers at Fitzwilliam are presumed to sympathize with the movement but have not shown their hands.

HARDSHIP IN LABRADOR.

Fishermen Reported to be on the Verge of Starvation.

HALIFAX, May 14.—Steamer Harlaw which arrived this morning from Newfoundland reports and confirms reports of destitution on the Labrador coast. There are a number of people who live in Flowers Cove vicinity who have to depend on a few more fishing for existence, and if the weather is bad and the season is a bad one for them, and this spring they are consequently in want, and it was stated to those on the Harlaw that many of them are suffering. Some information was also given about two cases of starvation reported to Capt. Farquhar last trip. They were those of two children, they were very little to eat, were thinly clad and were actually starving. Their mother went to a neighbour to beg some aid for them, and when she returned the children were both dead.

QUEBEC'S FINANCIAL CONDITION.

Trying to Run the City on the Cheap Plan. SPECIAL TO THE HERALD.

QUEBEC, May 14.—The financial situation of the city of Quebec is certainly unique. At a meeting of the City council yesterday an increased tax of 1 per cent. on real estate was again refused by a vote of fifteen against thirteen. This leaves a deficit of at least $31,000, which cannot be filled otherwise than by diminishing the appropriations to the different committees. The appropriations of the Roads committee being diminished by $11,000. Their position is as follows: They owe already for work done about $3000 more than their appropriations. Therefore, not only will the streets of the city not be touched this year, but the work done last year must remain partly unpaid. To fill the gap it was calculated that the proceeds of the water tax might possibly reach $9000 more than at first calculated. All the appropriations being considered insufficient to meet the requirements, it is alleged that the council was bound by its charter to increase the property tax until it had reached one-and-one-half per cent. This the council has just refused to do. It would not be surprising if, under such circumstances, the city did not succeed in negotiating the proposed loan and conversion of the debt, concerning which they have petitioned the Legislature.

RETURNS TO HIS WIFE.

But She Had Got Along Without Him, and Did Not Want Him.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 14.—Twenty-one years ago, Thomas Norman, an employee of the Kingsville woolen mills, deserted his seven months' bride and disappeared. The union had been a happy one, and no reason could be advanced for his unhusband-like act. A few months after Norman's disappearance a child was born, and since then Mrs. Norman has continued an employee of the mill. On Wednesday last a stranger came to Kingsville, and, after making some enquiries, informed Mrs. Norman that he was her husband, and endeavored to secure a reconciliation, but she told him she had gotten along without him for 21 years and could continue to do so the rest of her life. Norman says he has been all over the world, but refuses to give the reason why he deserted his bride. He says he has considerable property in Chicago, which he says he has willed to his son, T. H. Norman, a prominent young man of Ruthven.

GRANTED A DIVORCE.

A Suit in Which Parties Known in High Life Figured.

LONDON, May 14.—Society has been somewhat interested in another divorce suit, the parties to which are well known in high life. Charlotte Mildred, eldest sister of Lord Churston, had committed adultery with Count d'Auchian in Paris, where they lived together. No defence was made, and the court granted a divorce. Count d'Auchian was ordered to pay the costs.

CITY AMUSEMENTS.

What is Going On in Montreal Theatres and Halls.

Over twenty members of the Rose Hill company arrived in town yesterday. They open a weeks engagement at the Royal today, and judging by the notices which have appeared in American papers Montrealers will have a very entertaining performance presented for their approval. This is the company's first appearance in Canada.

Mr. Farrell, the Academy of Music stage carpenter, has just received a letter from Prof. Couture, in which he and his associates are given the warmest praise for their work in connection with the production of the "Yeomen of the Guard." The professor's experience gives him the right to judge, and he declares that the stage arrangements were of the most satisfactory nature.

During the week of the 23rd a short enjoyment of the celebrated Cleveland Elfenbein minstrels has been arranged for the Academy. A special program is being prepared for Montreal.

The membership of the St. Mary's Catholic Young Men's society have arranged to hold a "grand concert and musical entertainment" this evening in the St. Mary's Hall, corner Craig and Panet streets, and a good programme has been arranged.

The following Torontonians are staying at the Marlborough hotel:—H. McAllan, Chas. H. Bailey, E. W. Fisher and J. M. Ridley.

THE CHINIC DEAL.

Quebec Insurance Men Very Much Dissatisfied.

Some expressions of opinion concerning the monopoly granted by the Provincial Government—Monday an eventful day for Mr. Pacaud—Slight protection against a threatened land-slide.

QUEBEC, May 15.—Several insurance agents of this city were interviewed yesterday, concerning the alleged dissatisfaction caused by the giving of the monopoly of Government risks to Mr. Eugene Chinic. These gentlemen do not appear delighted with their friends, and two of them spoke quite freely. "What we object to," said the first, "is the granting of the monopoly to one who is not and never was in the business. Mr. Chinic is not an insurance agent. He is manager of the Chinic Hardware company. I refused to accept a risk on the conditions that were offered me. I took an active part in the last election and induced many Liberals to vote with us. They are laughing at us now. If another election was to take place to-morrow they would vote against us."

"You see," said the second, "from a business point of view this Chinic deal is but a small matter and does not affect us materially. What we object to is the meanness of the conduct of the Government and the absence of principle it discloses. Most of us are English speaking. We have worked actively to return to power the Conservatives, who instead of treating us decently and like business men, have up and snubbed us. Mr. Chinic conducted the Public Works department, we were dealt with differently, at least here in Quebec, although I believe it was different in Montreal."

"Is it a fact that all the insurance on Government buildings in Quebec is now vested in the Quebec Assurance?" asked THE HERALD.

"All so-insurance this year," yes, nominally. But as that company is by no means strong enough to carry the whole of so large a risk, I understand that they have divided it among a certain number of American companies, who have no deposit with the Canadian Government."

"Then the rates of these Companies are not uniform as are those companies doing a regular business in Canada?"

"I believe not."

"If Government risks are to be given to American companies having no deposit here, could not the Government obtain better conditions by doing business directly with them?"

"I cannot, of course, answer that question."

PACAUD'S EVENTFUL DAY.

To-morrow will be an eventful day for Mr. Pacaud. He expects judgment on the demurrer he filed some time ago in the action taken against him by the Debouchereux Government for the recovery of $100,000. Also Judge Chauveau's decision as to whether he and Mr. Menard will be committed for trial on the charge of conspiracy. A second investigation on another charge of conspiracy with Mr. Charles Langelier will also be begun against him. It is probable that no attempt will be made this time to close the doors of the court upon the press and public.

LANDSLIDE PROTECTION.

The crevice in the cliff which now undermines a portion of the Citadel has become so threatening that the Government has had it filled in with earth and stones, over which has been placed a wooden drain one foot square. This seems a very slight protection against so frightful a catastrophe as that now once more threatening the citizens of a considerable portion of the Lower Town.

The sensation created here by the Globe revelations, especially in connection with Sir Hector Langevin, is considerable. All honest Conservatives are dismayed.

SUFFERING GREAT AGONY.

The resumption of specie payment must be fully attained.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR BOARD.

The Executive Decides That the Chinese Cannot Belong to the Order.

PITTSBURGH, May 14.—The General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor is still in session here and will not finish the work on hand before the middle of next week. It has been decided to boycott a wealthy shoe manufacturer of Lynn, Mass., because he recently discharged all of the union men in his employ, and is now running a non-union factory. Arrangements were made to instruct the farmers of the country to purchase only footwear having the registered mark of the union boot and shoe maker. It has also been decided to send one of the members of the board through the New England States, and another to have the territory between here and Galveston, Texas. These officials are to visit the locals in these sections and settle all disputes. They will be kept busy all the year. The board is now consulting on appointing four or five organizers to thoroughly canvass the United States and start new assemblies wherever they can. They will probably be appointed. Some enterprising man in Missouri wanted the board to allow him to organize an assembly of Chinese. It decided that the Chinese should be excluded and so notified him. In the whole organization of the Knights of Labor there is not one Chinaman.

THE BIG READING DEAL.

Everything is About Ready to Take Hold of the New England.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—The time for depositing securities, with the penalty attached, under the reorganization plan of the Poughkeepsie Bridge company, expired to-day. It was stated that of the $25,000,000 of Central New England railroad bonds, all except $25,000 were deposited, and that the organized committee expected to turn the property over to the Reading Railway company without going through foreclosure proceedings. Of the $5,000,000 of Poughkeepsie bridge bonds it is understood that over $4,800,000 have been deposited, and that with such a large proportion of the committee expects if foreclosure proceedings are found necessary to place the entire property in the hands of the Reading within 90 days, which would make the bonds interest bearing at the time prescribed. It is said that after the Reading secures control of the property the title will be changed to Philadelphia, Reading & New England Railway company.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—John W. MacKay and R. V. Day, executors of the estate of Mrs. Theresa Fair, ex-wife of the mining millionaire, have agreed to pay a quarter of a million presented by Archbishop Riordan. The claim was founded on a contract made by Mrs. Fair in 1890, agreeing to give the archbishop the sum named for a Catholic seminary. The executors stated that they would not allow the claim, because when Mrs. Fair renewed the agreement she was not of sound mind, and was lying.

AWFUL COLLISION.

Many People Mutilated in the Great Crash.

During a Wind and Rain Storm a Cannon-Ball Passenger Express and a Freight Train Dash Into Each Other at Full Speed—The Trains Literally Dashed to Pieces—Horrible Loss of Life.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 15.—A special to the Plaindealer from Cleveland, Ohio, says: In the midst of a terrible storm of wind and rain two Big Four trains crashed into each other near here this morning with awful effect, the full horrors of which are not yet known.

This morning the summer schedule went into effect and orders had been issued accordingly. Freight No. 42, a through train north-bound had orders to stop at North Bend to allow express No. 80, a cannon-ball special to pass. The trains passed at another point some miles further on. Instead of stopping the freight engineer pulled ahead and approached Cleveland, running about 20 miles an hour. Why he did not stop at North Bend will never be known, as he is dead, but it is thought that in his anxiety over the storm which might have washed out bridges, he forgot the schedule and hurried on. As the train approached Cleveland, Charles Smith, the telegraph operator, rushed to the signal wires and dashed at the danger signal. Either it was not seen in the blinding rain or the engineer could not control his engine, for it sped on by without checking speed.

At that moment the express came in sight. If any effort was made on either engineers part to slacken speed it was not apparent, and the engines crashed into each other. Both locomotives were shattered into a shapeless mass and rolled off the track. The cars behind were smashed into kindling and the track for 100 feet was torn up. Telegraph poles were thrown down, and it was two or three hours after the wreck before the word reached this place and a special train was sent to the scene from Cincinnati. Long before the people from the little village and the surrounding country had gathered, and in the frightful storm were doing all they could. Many of the wounded had been taken away, and the number cannot to-night be definitely known. Not a person in either train escaped uninjured.

RECOVERY OF THE DEAD.

With the arrival of the special train the work of getting out the dead began. Up to six o'clock five bodies had been recovered. The fifth body was that of a man, crushed out of all human shape. Under the freight engine, bruised and scalded were found engineer Wm. Hiddis and his fireman Hiram Prince, both of Indianapolis. Under a freight car further back Philip Gibson and David Harwood were found. Nearly every bone in their bodies were broken, and their faces horribly disfigured. WHY SHE WENT HOME.

One day Miss Hunt's accustomed haunts knew her no more.

The big policeman on the corner of Printing-House Square missed the trim little figure he had come to know as it hurried by him on her daily rounds; "the boys" in the office suddenly discovered that the quiet, serious-faced girl reporter who had often beaten them on news had vanished, and even the city editor, who was not supposed to have any emotion of his sort, suddenly roused to the fact that he had lost one of his most alert and earnest aids and actually experienced a sensation which, in any other human being, might have been termed regret.

Yes, Miss Hunt was gone. A little note of resignation found its way to the managing editor's desk—an indefinite sort of billet-doux which gave no reason whatever for the girl's sudden departure.

ONE COLD WINTER'S NIGHT.

"Little fool!" said the awful Man, as he read the note, "she has made the mistake of her life. Just got on her feet—work attracting attention everywhere—chief delighted with her—and away she goes. I suppose to marry some worthless chap she will have to support."

"Where's little Hunt?" everybody was asking. "The office is mighty lonely," said the sporting editor, casting a kindly glance towards a closed desk. "I fancy she's gone back to teaching school," said the dramatic critic. "I wonder how she could tear herself away from me," thought the beauty of the reportorial staff, who fancied Miss Hunt admired his blond bang.

The most plausible reason for Miss Hunt's going away and the one generally accepted was that she had gone back West to marry a cowboy or the owner of a silver mine, and for weeks the exchange man hunted through the columns of marriage notices in the Western papers to see if he could find an announcement of her wedding.

But "little Hunt" had not gone away to be married nor to teach school. However, she had a reason for going—a reason she kept fast locked in her heart—while she made her plans for departure.

It was one cold, winter night she decided to go. She had been hard at work all day. She had written a new story which had actually made the city editor smile; she had interviewed a dancer who had invented a new terpsichorean wriggle; she had been to the bench show, and had done up the dogs and the dames in great shape and she had "faked" a story for the Sunday paper which was calculated to draw tears from the compositor who would set it up.

Miss Hunt was tired. Nor did it seem to rest her when she found a note on her desk from the editor-in-chief telling her that her salary was to be raised.

It was midnight when Miss Hunt let herself into the pretty little apartment she called home, flung off her wraps and sat down before the open fire to write. These four or five rooms, furnished in the dainty fashion so loved by girls, were very dear to Miss Hunt. Every hook and corner, every belonging and furnishing, were a part of her very self. She had labored ceaselessly to have, furnish and keep this home. Her thoughts, her ideas, her individuality were here. The long tramps through all kinds of weather, the struggles, the disappointments, the heartaches were here depicted, and all the triumphs, victories and successes bore their fruit in this tiny home. It was on that divan with its nest of cushions that Miss Hunt flung herself for a rattling good cry the day she lost the interview with a famous and fickle actress. How much it had meant to her, how little to the capricious creature who so coolly broke the engagement she had absently guaranteed! There was the piano at which Miss Hunt had poured out all the sacred sorrow of her heart through her fingers. There was the dainty ribbon-bedded rattan chair bought with the proceeds of her first assignment—ah! how everything in these rooms spoke to her of the light and shade, the joy and sorrow of her checkered existence in this heartless town where she had struggled and succeeded—in gaining a footing!

But there were many other objects here which spoke as forcibly of another life—a life which seemed far away now to Miss Hunt. In that pile of cushions yonder on the divan was one made of many tiny pieces of silk carefully pieced in old-fashioned shapes. There were stars and "rising suns," and blocks joined in quaint and precise manner. That cushion had come one Christmas morning with the inscription, "Just to let my little girl know that mother does not forget her." The picture over the piano!—when Miss Hunt looked at it there came always a big lump in her throat, for it used to hang over her piano in a Western home. The pretty lamp on the table—ah! could she not now see two silver heads bent close to its light? . . . a pair of thin hands fluttering over the bits of silk, . . . "piecing blocks" for "my little girl" away in New York. . . . another pair . . . sinewy, honest, fatherly hands holding the newspaper Miss Hunt had sent.

Somewhere to-night they had been sitting, old, tired out with the burden and heat of life, alone. They had worked, saved and denied themselves many luxuries so that their bright and ambitious daughter should have a chance in the world. They had placed no obstacles in her way, had listened patiently when she told them of her intention to go forth and battle for success. Ah! they had believed in her, loved her with their prayers and never murmured at her long absence.

She remembered her first days in New York, when, friendless, ignorant and unknown, she had gone about timidly, uncertainly. What a mountain of strength their letters had been! Miss Hunt sighed. She had not written home as often of late as she should—she had been so busy—and when one writes for a living one wears at the sight of pen and ink. But their letters, breathing love, tender faith and pride, had come every week—no failure there. The fountain of parental love had remained pure and fresh and strong.

"We know you are busy," the last letter had said; "we hope you are happy and satisfied. It has occurred to us of late that your letters have a mournful tinge. Remember, daughter, that if you ever weary of your useful life the old home stands always open—yes—longing for you."

Miss Hunt stirred the blazing fire impatiently. "Let me see," she said to herself—"where is it I have to go to-morrow? The slumming assignment . . . how I dread it . . . remember daughter, . . . I must see those committees women . . . if you ever weary . . . and then, there's that interview with the woman in the Tomb . . . horrible. I was in hopes they would never send me there again . . . the old home—stands—always open—yes, and longing."

Miss Hunt started up with a cry. The old home! Why was she not there with her patient, gentle, lonely father and mother? What was she doing here—here?

"A useful life," they had said. Yes, she had led a useful, honest life. She had been conscientious and painstaking. She had persevered through formidable difficulties and a succession of heart-rending disappointments. She was rewarded now. People were talking of her clever, distinctive original work. She was quoted, written about, pointed out as one of the brightest newspaper woman in town. She had begun to dip into magazine work and one of the most conservative of periodicals had already published articles from her pen.

But oh! life is brief and love is mighty. A great wave of homesickness rolled over the girl as she thought of that little home—open always—yes, longing for her; of those two dear faces ever set patiently towards the East, looking for their sunlight.

What were success, admiration, [work], money and independence compared to this sudden rush of feeling that shook her soul? "What does it amount to after all?" over and over again she asked her sick heart. "How little it all means, any how!"

"I wish," said the city editor a few days later, "I wish little Hunt had not cleared out. She would be the very one to work up the mystery surrounding the death of that girl. Hang it all! Why did she go away?"

Why? Ask that silver-haired couple away out in a little Western home, who would tell you with bated breath and a radiance like the light of heaven on their faces of an evening when, as they sat by their lonely fireside reading over one of their little girl's "pieces," they heard a quick, resolute step ring up the garden walk. Then the latch clicked, the door swung open and self-contained, well-poised, energetic Miss Hunt, who had undauntedly faced every hardship and danger in her literary existence, became as a little child.

For with one big sob she flung herself on her knees between those weary watchers, and the thin, wrinkled hands met over their "little girl's" head.

"Miss Hunt had given up journalism for the home—that was always open—yes, longing for her."—Edith Sessions Tupper, in New York World.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

TWO NOVELISTS.

A Comparison of Mrs. Humphrey Ward and George Eliot.

In the "Notes and Comments" department of the North American Review for April, Mr. Charles Townsend Copeland compares, as to general literary merit, the writings of the two novelists, Mrs. Humphrey Ward and George Eliot. He says: "One of the latest planets to swim into the ken of those who keep weather eyes on the literary sky, is the author of 'Robert Elsmere' and 'David Grieve.' Not merely the professional discoverers have hailed the lady with acclamation, but in private life scores of the apparently judicious deem her a great novelist. A frequent means of praising Mrs. Humphrey Ward, especially since the appearance of David Grieve, is to compare her—for modern criticism is nothing if it is not comparative—to the author of 'Adam Bede' and 'Silas Marner.' There is undoubtedly a superficial likeness. Both women are learners to the verge of pedantry, both have a far-reaching interest in life and the problems of human conduct, both get their novels under way and keep them under way by elaborate and often cumbrous means.

"But resemblance, partial even in these particulars, cases altogether with these, and what seems to me the radical difference between George Eliot and Mrs. Ward—geared to the striking difference in native ability—is to be found in their respective manifestations of that moral purpose which appears to be their chief bond of union. In short, George Eliot began writing fiction as a novelist and ended as a moralist. Mrs. Ward began as a moralist, and has yet to become a novelist. 'Miss Bretherton,' her first creative work, is an apparent exception to this crudely stated formula; but 'Miss Bretherton,' charming as it is, leaves the reader suspecting that the author may have undertaken it not from an impulse to represent character, but with a determination, highly laudable in itself, to talk about art and the theatre. The human spectacle, for its own sake, may fairly be called the inspiration of the 'Scenes from Clerical Life' of 'Adam Bede,' of 'Silas Marner,' even of the 'Mill on the Floss.' But Mrs. Ward wishes in one case to defend natural religion, in the other to prove the superiority of the most unsatisfactory marriage—thus David describes to Lucy their condition without betraying any consciousness of a lack of gallantry either on his part or that of his author—to an ideal union. In both instances she dresses her subject in a tastefully colored scene. These dolls walk and talk; in contrast with the handiwork of inferior artists they seem to live and breathe—for never, it must be admitted, has the novel of sheer purpose been so deftly managed as by Mrs. Ward; but put them against Dorothea, Rosamond, Gwendolen, or even against Grandcourt, 'The Mill on the Floss,' and they are only marionettes. Skillfully twined through the moral show which Mrs. Ward is bent on exhibiting to a public that saffron long and is kind.

"If George Eliot be superior to Mrs. Humphrey Ward in holding to the novelist's true vocation and in the far deeper realization of characters, her superiority is no less marked in drama, in passion and above all in humor. In truth, the apparently judicious have scarce a leg to stand on when they liken Mrs. Ward to George Eliot. For if, in substance, she is no analogue, in manner the analogy holds still less, as any one may see who will look at the English of 'Miss Bretherton,' or make a similar examination of the diction of 'The Mill on the Floss' and the diction of 'David Grieve.' Mrs. Humphrey Ward writes ably and well, but she has no style, and at her best George Eliot is a master of style."

Woman's Position in Modern Life.

Madame Adam has a sensible article in the Fortnightly Review on "Woman's Position in Modern Life," in which she says many things which are well worth saying. Madame Adam's article is much more than a plea for woman's suffrage; on that subject, indeed, she only dwells incidentally, but it lies at the basis of all. She says: "The campaign English women are now engaged in for the conquest of their civil and political rights is being followed with the profoundest interest in France. French women are not as yet prepared to engage in such a struggle."

"The question of the suffrage, like every other question, is dominated by 'the necessity that the activity, the faculties, the influence, the powers of woman should be brought to bear upon the proper adjustment of the social equilibrium.' Woman now-a-days is a force, and as a force must find her suitable employ. Her full and due share must be allowed in her social action and social rights, duties and benefits. She can no more be indefinitely withheld from her public duties than she is exempted from taxation. The longer the delay in according woman her rights, the more disastrously will she make felt the influence of her defects."

Woman's first work is in the family, but the task there is not to accentuate the difference between men and women, but to unify both sections of the race. "To unify, as it were, the minds of her sons and daughters rather than allow them to remain in different spheres; to inspire her husband with a desire to make her a sharer in his conceptions and enterprises; to seize every occasion of participating, within the measure of her capacities, in masculine ambition and effort—such should be the first steps henceforth taken by a woman toward a future where her position and influence will be duly recognized and more accurately marked."

Keeping Up With the Children.

She was a woman of middle age, thin and plain, with no claim to beauty except the eager dark eyes shining like stars from a wistful, care-lined face. Twenty years ago she had slipped her trustful hand into that of another, and counting the world well lost for the sake of her love and faith, had entered upon a life of such toil, privation, and heroic endurance as only women in frontier settlements, amid primitive conditions, know.

"I have tried my best," she said, simply, "to keep up with the children. Father and I resolved, when our first boy was a baby, that, stint and scrape and contrive as we might, we'd educate all that heaven sent us. And we have done what we could. I wasn't willing that my children should get ahead of me; I've tried to study their lessons with them, and to enter into their feelings. I don't want them to outstrip me in the race."

"This mother had been one of those to whom early rising and late retiring had been always essential, in order that the routine of the house-work should not suffer. In that part of the country where she lived, hired help for domestic purposes was almost unheard of; women did their own work, and their daughter sometimes lending a kind hand in an emergency, and the men of the family doing their share as best they could. Her determined effort to keep step with her children in their intellectual development, she had in another direction builded better than she knew; for the children, boys and girls alike, had early been pressed into service, and had, as she explained, "taken hold" of whatever was to be done. The boys could make beds and set tables as well as draw water and split wood. The girls were facile housekeepers, with a practical knowledge of cooking and laundry work, and in American society as essential in the outfit for living as the richest as to the poorest. Though the living in the household was plain, it was abundant, and the ideal set before the family was something nobler than a mere strife for wealth. Everything was open and above-board. Books were read and prized in common, and so much was going on to interest everybody that there was no temptation to devour poisonous tidbits in secret. So it came to pass that the keeping up with the children brought great good in its wake.

At last a day dawned when the mother felt as if the first stone had been set in a wall of separation. Two of her brood had found their wings. A daughter was going to college. A son was entering upon a business career. The little wistful woman yearned to keep pace with these both, yearned perhaps to ordain the pathway of both, as she always had done. But it was inevitable that there should be some parting of the roads. Brave as she was, she kept down a heartache under her cheery show of courage.

"Have comfort, dear," said an older friend, who had been through a similar experience. "The children will never outgrow you; you had a twenty years' start of them. And you have so disciplined your mind, and trained your heart, and elevated your own thoughts above the daily rut, the fret, and the stir, that you dwell in a serene atmosphere, favorable to expansion of every faculty. They may acquire facts, but they will fly like honey-laden bees back to the hive. The mother who has kept pace with her children from babyhood to adolescence will never lose them."—Harper's Bazar.

"A woman!" cried Hopkins. Then, with a nod of apprehension, he went on: "Oh, yes; the mysterious woman who wanted to see the manager, no doubt."

"But why don't you go and see?" said I impatiently. "Cos I ain't so fond of interfering in other folks' quarrels," he said drily, "special ly between a man and a woman, and most likely husband and wife into the bargain. 'Owver, I don't mind going back with you to show you it all right."

He unhooked a lantern which hung on a nail in the wall, and proceeded to accompany me through the storeroom at a sauntering pace which I could not induce him to quicken. Expecting the woman's cries and groans and loud complaints would break upon our ears as we returned, I was surprised and rather alarmed to hear no sound from the attics. A horrible fear flashed into my mind that the woman might have been stunned or even murdered, while I was trying to persuade the watchman to come back with me. Just as we turned a corner from one storeroom to another round a great pile of grain-filled sacks, we heard light footsteps hurrying towards us, and came face to face with the strange woman. Her hair and dress were disordered, and her features were quivering with pain or excitement. I uttered a cry of relief at sight of her, but she hurried on with only a hasty glance in my direction. The watchman, however, was not so easily satisfied.

"Hello!" he cried. "Stop, miss; I want to know something about this."

As she took no notice, he left me and after her.

I wanted to know what explanation the woman would give; on the other hand, I was still more anxious that the unknown man, who had not, I supposed, yet left the attics, should not again escape me.

There was no light near where I was standing, so I decided to follow Hopkins and the woman towards the entrance. The watchman had a lantern I knew.

Hopkins and the woman were standing at the foot of the iron staircase, and by the time I reached the top they seemed to have got over the first shyness of strangers.

The woman was speaking as I came within hearing, and, in the hope of learning something of importance, I condescended to listen.

"So, as I didn't see why I should be left in the lurch, I just found out where he went to, and followed him down here. That was fair enough, wasn't it? I haven't done you or anybody any harm; I only wanted an explanation from your young man."

"Well, I don't see as that's any excuse for comin' in kicking up a rumpus in Miss Smith's house. And it's doubly wrong to come a-arskin' for the manager just to get inside the premises, 'cause it's calculated to get me into trouble. Therefore, you'll please, miss, in future to have your shindies outside. In the meantime, as I must just see whether the gentleman backs up you, I'll just trouble you to step inside here a minute."

Little insignificant creature as Hopkins looked, he was strong, and wiry, and active. Although the woman was a head taller than himself, and in spite of her struggles to escape, he half dragged, half pushed her into a small room on the right which was used as an office, and with the terse remark—"You're all right, miss," he turned the key in the lock and walked away from the door towards the staircase.

Just at this moment I heard a man's footsteps behind me, coming in the direction of the staircase. It was the cat-like tread I had heard before, the tread of the man I was tracking. I stood back in the darkness, shaking my head to foot with excitement, to let him pass me. I was so convinced that I knew who it was, that I fancied it could only be necessary for me to see his descending figure against the light thrown by the watchman's raised lantern, to have my suspicions confirmed. But as he set foot on the staircase I saw that the man was dressed in a long, loose, rough coat and broad-brimmed felt hat, which entirely disguised both head and figure from where I stood. Crane my neck to look at him as I might, and as I did, there was no information to be gleaned without a sight of his face. He was running rapidly down the stairs. I think he had heard me, though he did not look round. I had my time to lose.

Precipitating myself upon the staircase, I almost flew down, perceiving, as I speedily did, that he was bent upon escaping me. I caught him within half a dozen steps of the bottom, and clung to him like a leech as he tried to shake me off. If it had not been for the watchman's presence I believe he would have flung me over the iron banisters, for he uttered a vicious hiss through his teeth as my hands closed around his arm. Still he kept his face turned so that I could not see it. We were within three steps of the ground.

"Your light! show your light?" I shrieked shrilly to Hopkins, who was standing lantern in hand.

Hopkins replied. Raising his lantern with a jerk, as he moved a step forward, he turned the light upon the man's face.

For one moment I stared blankly at the drawn features, the wild eyes of a creature who looked more like a beast of prey than a man, the next, my arm sank to my sides as, with a shiver, I let him go.

For it was the face of a man I had never seen before.

CHAPTER XI.

I suppose I fainted or went out of my mind for a short period, overcome by the excitement of my chase of the mysterious man, and by the amazement I felt on discovering him to be a stranger.

At any rate, when I came to myself I was sitting on the hard floor, propped up against the bottom step of the front staircase, and Hopkins was standing over me, flashing the light of his lantern on my face, with a rather malignant expression on his own features.

"Oh, so you've come to, hev' you?" said he drily, before I remembered much.

I sat up and put my hands over my face, trying to recollect. "So you've been a playin' the spy, and a workin' of yourself into a fever all about nothing," continued the watchman jeeringly. "Now I suppose you're not a servant at all, but hev' come here with some head in your heye, most likely a man. But I tell you, whoever you are, it won't wash. I ain't a-goin' to hev' this place made a 'unting ground for young men, and that hev' grievances against their young men, and so I tell yer."

I listened very quietly, a good deal impressed by the serious, earnest manner of the little Cockney, who gave me strongly the idea that he would be above a bribe.

"That doesn't apply to me," I said at last, "but I think it does to the woman whom you shut in that room." And I pointed to the door he had locked upon her, which now stood open. "What has become of her?"

"August Flower"

Perhaps you do not believe these statements concerning Green's August Flower. Well, we can't make you. We can't force conviction into your head or medicine into your throat. We don't want to. The money is yours, and the misery is yours; and until you are willing to believe, and spend the one for the relief of the other, they will stay so. John H. Foster, 1122 Brown Street, Philadelphia, says:

"My wife is a little Scotch woman, thirty years of age and of a naturally delicate disposition. For five or six years past she has been suffering from Dyspepsia. She became so bad at last that she could not sit down to a meal but she had to vomit it as soon as she had eaten it. Two bottles of your August Flower have cured her, after many doctors failed. She can now eat anything, and enjoy it; and as for Dyspepsia, she does not know that she ever had it."

HOW TO HELP THE FARMERS.

It is not very easy to understand the precise position which the Star wishes to occupy on the trade question. It seems evident, however, that none of the old party titles will fit, and it might be to its advantage to offer a prize for the most suitable name for a new party, the competition to be open to its many readers. The national policy, it says, has been a perfect triumph. It has erected factories, built up cities, harnessed our women and children to daily toil, made millionaires and started a national exodus. So great has been its triumph that even its strongest supporters, among whom a short time back the Star might have been reckoned, are compelled to call a halt before the country is quite depopulated.

It is a peculiar kind of triumph that drives out the sturdy manhood of the country and partially replaces them by foreign importations. It would be a curious study to see how far the new factories are run by native industry, and we fancy if the census gave information on this point, we should find that the result of all our efforts has been to drive two native Canadians into exile for every foreign laborer imported. Even supporters of the N. P. are getting tired of their triumph, and the Star only voices public opinion in calling for such an arrangement of the tariff as shall give the farmers fair play, and enable them to recover some of the ground they have lost in the last ten years.

The puzzle is how is this to be effected without giving up protection. Our contemporary says the farmer wants a lower tariff on farm necessities, and proposes to relieve them by cheapening certain requirements—but it still believes in protection. It will protect the farmer by taking off the duty and protect the manufacturer by putting it on again. Does it propose to enrich the farmer by free trade and the manufacturer by protection at the same time, or are we to have alternate years or periods. Are we to have some years of encouragement to agriculture till the country is filling up again, and the streets of the cities are grass-grown, and then, hey-presto, the scene to change again and the farmers to submit to another squeezing. To cry out so vigorously for a relief from the tariff which at the same time is said to have been the very means that has built up the country seems a contradiction. To preach protection and free trade and discrimination in favor of Great Britain in the same article looks a trifle inconsistent.

However, we will not concern ourselves as to other people's motives. What we want is a reduction of the tariff, and we hail with gratitude any assistance from any quarter to that end. Unfortunately free trade has been rendered almost impossible. There are, however, some duties that are not protective in their nature, and these could be done away with without causing any great derangement in our markets. There are other duties on the raw materials of certain trades that could be removed with positive advantage, and the purely protective duties would in most instances bear scaling down pretty considerably. If a lower tariff on farm necessities means merely farming tools and implements and such articles as binder twine, wire for fences, etc., it will certainly be a measure of relief, but a very limited one. If the reduction is to apply past that, so as to cheapen the cost of a farmer's living it will be not only a measure of relief for farmers, but for every citizen of Canada. This is the only way to render efficient assistance to the farming interest. We cannot interfere with the laws of nature and boom up first one industry and then another at the expense of the rest. Free all as far as possible from their shackles and then leave them to work out their own destinies. Legislation that injures one class has its effect on all.

The Ottawa Citizen has shown marked improvement since the new management took hold three months ago. It appeared on Saturday morning as an eight-page paper which is henceforth to be its permanent form. It now looks like a metropolitan journal and its contents do not belie its appearance.

The Star's groping after economic facts is painful but hopeful. It has discovered one truth—that the National Policy has sacrificed the farmer for the benefit of the cities; and is at present doing remarkable mental gymnastics to try and make this fact square with its contention that the N. P. has been a great boon to the country. The thing cannot be done. If the National Policy has affected the prosperity of rural regions—and no candid observer of current events can deny that it has—it has been an evil thing for Canada.

AN INDEPENDENT LABOR PARTY IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The near approach of the general elections in Great Britain appears to be stirring all parties into unwonted activity. Gladstonian liberals are indulging in anticipation of triumph, and are already settling in their caucuses who shall have the different offices of State, and what measures shall or shall not be forwarded. There is, however, an old saying about "many a slip between the cup and the lip," and another that cautions people against taking a census of the juvenile denizens of the poultry yard, before the process of incubation is properly completed.

There is a new opposition springing up to the Gladstonian regime, and from a quarter where no opposition was expected. The trades unions of Great Britain, for midable both from numbers and organization, have declared for an independent labor party. At their great convention held at Newcastle—on—Tyne they laid down a political platform which they pledged themselves to do all in their power to carry out. Among other planks were payment of members of parliament, a measure which would enable workmen to be represented by their fellow-laborers, and the eight hour day. Mr. Gladstone is such an earnest reformer that there seems no room in his mind for two subjects at once. Just now he is so full of Home Rule that every other question looks trivial beside it, and he would postpone measures of paramount importance to the English people, until after Home Rule is accomplished.

Full of his one idea Mr. Gladstone threw cold water upon the labor platform. Had he been a little less honest, and merely put off the consideration till "to-morrow," as Canadian politicians know how, he might have escaped much trouble, but he did not choose to pretend an interest he did not feel. Hence the labor associations are now arrayed against the Liberal cause. The Opposition was treated lightly at first, as it was not supposed the labor party could raise funds to contest more than a few seats, and as M.P.'s receive no sessional indemnity there is also a constant tax to support any labor representative that must tell heavily on the resources of the Unions. It is said, however, that Conservatives, who recognise in this independent party their only hope of keeping in power, have subscribed largely to find the necessary funds, and what with their donations and subscriptions from the trades unions the labor party is now taking the field vigorously. Up to the present no less than one hundred and seventy labor candidates have been selected and are busy at work in their chosen constituencies.

In most instances these labor men are opposed to Gladstonian members of the namby-pamby liberal school who have no two ideas of their own, but follow Gladstone as a political idol. Sturdy liberals of the radical school are safe from the new opposition. Conservatives have, by the mouths of their leaders, partially subscribed to the labor platform, and are to be favored in opposition to moderate liberals. The struggle will be watched with considerable interest, for though recent events in Montreal have led us to look upon labor candidates as mere windbags who cannot command the votes of even their own committeemen, there is reason to believe that the British unions are composed of different metal. It would be strange if Gladstone, who has been almost worshipped by the working classes should be kept out of power by their means.

THE RIGHT RULER FOR GREAT BRITAIN.

Whatever else may be said of Canadian members of Parliament, it must be admitted that they are not deficient in gall. They are so confident in their own abilities that they are ready to legislate not only for the Dominion but also for the Empire, and probably would not mind giving the States a little assistance at the same time. Mr. McNeill, the other day offered his disinterested advice to Great Britain on the trade question. The policy that has been pursued with marked success for upwards of half a century, and which at present finds more supporters than ever, he would have reversed without a moment's hesitation. What matters it if the six hundred and odd members of the British House of Commons are opposed to his cunningly-devised scheme of protection? Numbers cannot daunt the McNeill. Ottawa is evidently the place from which Britain should be ruled, and McNeill is the man to do it.

WHAT SIR JOHN THOUGHT OF MR. CHAPLEAU.

The Toronto Globe on Saturday published the fac-simile of this interesting letter written by Sir John Macdonald to Hon. Thomas McCreedy in 1884:

Ottawa, May 1884.

(Private and confidential.)

My dear Mr. McCreedy—All my colleagues from the other provinces concur with me in the opinion that Langevin and Chapleau should try to live together in amity in the Government.

They think that Chapleau is less dangerous when he is a hostage for his good behavior by being in the Council than as a man free to act. Langevin is sensitive to attacks in the newspapers and if Chapleau takes the field against him he will sting our friend to death. L. is going to Quebec by the end of the week and will see his friends. I wish you particularly to see him and impress on him the necessity of putting up with C. until the latter does something so wrong as to justify his forced resignation. Just now I cannot ask him to do so unless L. and Caron or one of them in writing either make and prove a sufficient charge or say I must choose which of them to keep.

This must be communicated to C. and he will wring his vengeance so long as he lives on the devoted head of those who drive him out of the Government. The faults of C. will soon be forgotten and L. will be charged with persecution and jealousy. This will create a sympathy for C. and the Grifts and Rouges will eagerly accept his assistance and he will become a power among the Conservatives. As a junior member of the Cabinet he is comparatively harmless. It is not he who is the danger to the Government. I think, in your personal interest not to have a Tupper, with whom I have gone over the whole of the thing, agrees with you and would round up to Montreal on Friday and see him (Tupper). He would like to see you on the subject and I have told him I would write to you to meet him. Be sure you go. He leaves Montreal for Halifax on Friday night. Burn this letter when read. You need not say to L. that I have written you. Yours sincerely,

JOHN A. MACDONALD.

The letter only confirms what was generally believed that Chapleau was something of a white elephant to the government. When Sir John Macdonald died the art of managing him was lost.

High tariffs have made manufactures increase in Canada but have crippled the farmers by increasing the cost of their necessities. This in a nutshell is the statement the Star makes in a column and a half of matter. In other words money destined for the pockets of the farmer has been diverted to other uses. The Star calls this "statesmanship," but "robbery" is a much more exact term.

CURRENT COMMENT.

THEY SHOULD BE PROUD.

Toronto Telegram (Ind. Con.): Poor John Carling! Poor old Judge Elliot! Hyman is young. He has lost nothing that time will not restore to him. The men to be pitied are the two aged, but no longer honored, politicians, who have thrown away that which true men have died to keep. Surely politicians need praying for, inasmuch as they must be sorely tempted. Men exposed to the trials that seem to have made William Elliot forgetful of his oath and John Carling unmindful of his honor illustrate the weakness of mud manhood in its buttermilk.

STILL AFTER ABBOTT.

Compton County Chronicle (Cons.):—The Conservatives in the Eastern Townships would like to know of some act that the Hon. John Abbott has done to entitle him to hold the position of Premier of Canada. In every sense of the word the Premier is a nonentity.

VERY PATRONIZING INDEED.

The Canadian Gazette, commenting on the discussion in the House of Commons on Mr. McCarthy's resolution respecting the appointment of a Canadian agent at Washington, says: Such matters as these should only as a last resort be made the subject of Parliamentary action. The probability is that the British Minister at Washington, who by reason of his experience and personal qualities is one of the best informed representatives this country has ever had in the United States, would welcome the aid of one specially versed in Canadian affairs; but the subject is one for quiet diplomatic handling, rather than noisy partisan debate. We wonder Mr. Laurier did not realize this.

NOT KEEPING THEIR PROMISES.

Toronto Mail: Mr. De Boucherville is not instituting a very startling reign of economy in Quebec. He is not in harmony with the demand for the abolition of the Legislative Council, and because many of his followers favor the reform it is rumored he may resign. The other day it was intimated that a movement was on foot to have the indemnity of the members reduced. They are paid $800 a session, while for the same service Ontario allows $600. In reply to a question, it has been officially intimated that the Government will not take this reform in hand. It is to be left to the House to deal with, and the chances are that no more will be heard of it. At the outset of its career the Government dismissed a number of clerks, and made a great pretence of desiring economy. The legislators evidently do not believe that economy should begin at home.

M'CREEDY DID NOT TURN TURK.

Toronto Globe: One or two Tory newspapers have lately fallen foul of Mr. Thomas McCreedy in the belief that he has turned turk upon his party and supplied the Globe with the vouchers relating to the Quebec district reptile fund of 1887. As was stated in these columns at the outset, Mr. McCreedy has done nothing of the kind. In his evidence before the Privileges committee last year he stated that his papers had passed out of his hands and into those of other persons. More than this it is not necessary for us to say at present.

A PROPOSED REDISTRIBUTION.

How the Ormstown "Times" Wants Chateaugay and Laprairie Fixed.

The Ormstown Times objects to the carving of Chateaugay done in the redistribution measure. It says: "The people of the parish and village of Ormstown have no desire to be annexed to Huntingdon even for electoral purposes, and we can safely state that the people of Chateaugay and St. Philomena parishes would rather remain in their old time-honored county."

It suggests that Chateaugay, Naperville and Laprairie be made into two constituencies as follows:

Chateaugay—the present county of Chateaugay, St. Isidore parish, St. Patrice de Sherbrooke, St. Remi village, Remi parish, with a population of 19,776.

Laprairie—the present County of Laprairie, and St. Isidore parish, Naperville village, St. Cyrien, St. Edouard, St. Michel, Archange with a population of 14,909.

This, it estimates, would be satisfactory. It says:—"The county of Chateaugay would be still intact, Laprairie county would also be in a far more compact condition, with not a wrench, the county affected being that of Naperville, which will be totally effaced."

Don't Monkey With the Snake.

It is stated that a rattlesnake cannot bite if held up by the tail. Would you like to put the statement to a practical test? Probably not; but how often do you take far greater risks? A snake bite is not the only means of introducing poison into the system. If your liver is sluggish, it fails to remove the impurities from the blood which pass through it, and deadly poisons are thus thrown into the circulation, all the more dangerous because they are insidious. If your blood is impure, if your liver is out of order, if you have blotches, pimples, boils, eruptions, "don't monkey with the snake." Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the only specific against all blood poisons, no matter of what name or nature. It is sold under a positive guarantee that it will benefit or cure, or your money will be refunded.

FOOTBALL.

A Great Game in the Ottawa University Football Series.

OTTAWA, May 15.—The four football teams of Ottawa university played off two matches in the series on Saturday afternoon. Both were interesting, and there was a marked improvement in the play of all the teams. Troy's aggregation easily defeated a team captained by Collins, the score being 31 to 22. Captain Troy carried off all the honors for the victors. His play at quarter was the best ever witnessed on the grounds. He made many runs and succeeded in scoring three touch-downs and a goal from field.

The closest match of the series was the one which followed between fifteen captained by McCarthy and Gaudet. Brunet and Lee put up a brilliant game in the back division for Gaudet, while Clarke and Smith were conspicuous for their combination work on the losing side. The score stood 17 to 14. The final tie in the series will be played on Wednesday between Troy's and Gaudet's teams.

THE TURF.

Allerton and Delmarch to Trot for $10,000—Brooklyn Handicap To-day.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 14.—Allerton and Delmarch will trot here next August for a purse of $10,000, 60 per cent. to go to the winner and 40 per cent. to the loser. All the contracts have been signed.

NOTES.

Bud Doble thinks that the trotting record will be lowered to 2:07 this season.

Arion (2:10) is said to have grown and developed considerably since last year, and is in first-class condition. He is jogged five or six miles every day, and will probably be sent a fast mile in the autumn.

The Brooklyn handicap takes place to-day.

LACROSSE.

The First "Firm" Lacrosse Match of the Season—The Cornwallis Team.

On Saturday afternoon the first "firm" lacrosse match was played on the M.A.A.A. between teams from the dry goods warehouses of Hodgson, Summer & Co., and that of James Johnston & Co. The teams each played with an even score. The game was a good one from start to finish. It will be noticed from the list of players that the old reliable "Billy" Hodgson and A. McNaughton were playing, and as usual they did some brilliant work. The teams were as follows:

H.S. & Co. J.J. & Co.
J. Hodgson, Goal. W. Slessor
W. McLaughlin, F. Shaw
C. Crutchlow, C. Point, B. Elliott
J. Scott, Defence Field, A. Irving
E. Bullen, F. J. Finner, S. Elliott
J. Finner, Centre, H. L. Shaw
E. A. Leamont, Home Field, A. McNaughton
W. C. Hodgson, Outside Home, R. Lockie
J. O'Neill, Inside Home, J. Connor
J. W. Woods, Captain, A. Cameron
W. S. Weiden, referee, Hodgson & Summer team won by three straight.

A general practice of the Montreals was held immediately after this match. The men are fast getting into shape for their match with the Shamrocks on the 21st. The cinder path was greatly patronized. Among the number running were Doble, Carr, Cameron, Leithead, Louson and Lorne were out in their cycles and made good time. The bicycle handicap races will take place as soon as the electric lights have been placed, which will likely be in about a week's time. The Shamrock team got in a good practice and will be in good trim for their first match. The team will likely be picked on Wednesday night.

CRESCENT LACROSSE CLUB'S PRACTICES.
The following letter of advice in regard to practices, for the coming season, has been sent out to the players by the Crescent secretary. As some of the men may have changed their addresses this spring, the letter may not reach them. All the old members are urgently requested to take note and be out in the field as heretofore.

My dear Sir,
I have the pleasure to advise you that practice will begin on Monday the 16th, on our old grounds corner of DeLormer Avenue and Mignonne street. You no doubt are aware that we held over a challenge received last year from the "Gleaners" and have to meet them on the 28th inst.

We also have challenges from Sherbrooke and Ottawas. You will see from the above that interest in the Intermediate is not lagging in any degree.

It is very essential that we get down to work at once and we rely on each and every player's co-operation to defend the championship honors held by the old Crescents. We have also continued our team in the District series and will endeavor to place a young team in the field that will do honor to themselves and the association.

I might add that the president (pro tem) wishes me to convey to you that the feelings of himself and committee are that the association have the brightest season since their formation before them, and that everything that lay in our power will be done to make it as pleasant and comfortable as possible for every player.

Yours very truly,
A. J. FAIRBAIRN, Hon. Sec.

EMMETT LACROSSE CLUB.
A special meeting of the above club will be held this evening at 8 p.m., in St. Ann's Hall, Ottawa street. An important business in connection with the Tomahawk drawing is to be transacted every member is requested to attend.

THE TORONTO TEAM.
The Toronto team are taking advantage of all the good weather to get in practice. Dixon, Gale, Boyd and Martin, of the old team, have already been out, and the new making preparations on a large scale for the opening of their new grounds in North Rose-dale on May 24, when the Montreals meet the Torontos. The team that will meet Montreal on that day promises to be a good one. At the beginning of the season several "old heads" intimated their intention to hang up their sticks, but they naturally enough desire to at least play at the grand opening of the new grounds, and thus participate in an event that will be remembered in the history of Canada's national game. It is said that each member of the team that plays on the 24th will each be presented with a gold medal to commemorate the occasion. The rain during the past few days has placed the grounds in excellent condition, and with a few fine days all the buildings in the new grounds will be completed.

The grand stand gives a seating capacity for 5,000 spectators; in the centre there are 400 reserved seats. Refreshment booths and cigar stands have been erected.

A Three Club League in Winnipeg.
WINNIPEG, Man., May 15.—A three club lacrosse league has been organized here and a schedule arranged. The object is to bring out all the lacrosseists, in order to pick the strongest team possible for the proposed games with some crack teams in the east.

CRICKET.

A Practice Match by the McGill Club on Saturday.

The first match of the season will take place next Saturday on the McGill college grounds, between teams from the college club and that of Montreal. The McGill team had a practice game on their grounds on Saturday for the purpose of getting the men together and pick a team for the coming match. With the exception of Lyman's batting and the excellent bowling on the part of Hill, which accounts for the small score on the opposite side, the play was very poor. The teams were as follows:

A MATCH AT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, May 14.—The cricket season opened under most favorable circumstances here yesterday afternoon at Rideau Hall grounds. Their Excellencies and suite as well as the very elite of the Capital were present and seemed greatly interested in the match between the "Old Countrymen" and "Canadians." The latter went first to bat, and totalling 142 runs before the close of the innings. The heavy bats for the old country eleven were greatly surprised at the very outset and were quickly disposed of. Bell and Palmer, however, handled the willow with good judgment. When stumps were drawn at six o'clock they had made 43 runs for three wickets. The match will be finished on Thursday next. BICYCLING.

Kingston Preparing for the Meet.

KINGSTON, May 15.—The work of constructing a bicycle track for the annual meet of the Canadian Wheelmen's association was commenced on Saturday. It is on a lot of 6 1/2 acres, situated close to the city. The track will be made of wood, oval shape, 12 feet wide at starting point. At the turning and finishing points it will be 15 feet wide. By cedar posts it will be raised nine inches above the ground. It will be finished on June 5th.

CHESS.

Annual Meeting of the Montreal Club on Monday Evening.

The annual general meeting of this association was held at the club rooms, on Phillip's square, on Saturday evening. Dr. Darey, the chairman, having commented on the satisfactory position of the club's affairs, and the secretary-treasurer's report and that of the auditor, Mr. Arthur Perkins, having been read and approved, a resolution was passed appointing a committee to report upon proposed changes in the by-laws. The officers for the ensuing year were then proposed. The following are the names of those elected: Mr. L. P. nam, president; Mr. W. D. L. Marler, 1st vice-president; Mr. J. A. Robertson, 2nd vice-president; Messrs. Molyneux St. John, H. Vaughan, A. Perkins, council; Mr. P. Barry, secretary-treasurer.

A vote of thanks to the retiring officers having been passed, a special vote to Mr. Liddell, the retiring secretary, for his gratuitous and valuable services during the past four years was carried unanimously, and this was followed by another providing a testimonial to him on his retirement.

This club, which is now in a flourishing condition, is the principal one of the Dominion, and is frequently visited by chess players from other places, who always find a cordial welcome, and an opponent when they wish to play. Two years ago the club brought the celebrated players Blackburne and Bird to Montreal, the latter being the guest of the late Mr. Thomas Workman, who was an enthusiastic chess player, and who in his well remembered old haunt, where the Workman trophy may now be seen upon the wall. There is no believe some idea of bringing Steinitz or Tsihorm to Montreal this year.

HIS WALK FOR NOTHING.

How Pedestrian Stone Lost His Chance to Secure $5,000.

BOONE, Iowa, May 14.—Pedestrian Stone, who started to walk from San Francisco to New York on a wager of $5,000, to walk 25 miles per day, no allowance to be made for sickness or bad weather, has reached here. On his arrival he received notice that the wager had been declared off, because instead of walking around the bay at San Francisco via San Jose and Stockton, he crossed in a boat. He acknowledges he did so, but is very angry because he has been allowed to walk 30 days since the bet was declared off.

THE BISLEY MEETING.

Important Changes Governing the Competitions.

Canadian riflemen will be interested in the important alterations which the council of the National Rifle association has decided to make in the general arrangements and in the prizes at the Bisley meeting next July. The shooting, instead of commencing on a Monday, as it has during the past 30 years, will this year open on Tuesday, July 12th, and the chief series open to volunteers only are to be shot for in the second week, the final shooting for the Queen's prize, hitherto occurring on the second Tuesday, now reserved for the second Saturday, the closing day of the meeting. The Queen's prize will consist of 400 prizes, value $2,220 in all, ranging from Her Majesty's £250 for the best man to 100 prizes of £2 each. The Tyro, hitherto a distinct series for volunteers who have never won a prize, is to be abolished, and instead a certain number of places will be reserved in the Queen's, St. George's, and other series, and in the aggregate for men previously non-winners. Volunteers are to be admitted to the great volunteer contests, and special prizes are to be provided for them in the Queen's. A new prize has been given by Mr. Newnes, M.P., for unlimited entries at 500 and 600 yards, an aggregate of two best scores to count. The Duke of Cambridge's prize for any military breechloaders is to be shot for at 900 and 1,000 yards, instead of at only one range, and a like change has been made in the Secretary of War's prize, the ranges being 800 and 900.

AT THE RANGES.

Montreal Rifle Association's Competition.
The first competition of the season of the Montreal Rifle association was held at the Cote St. Luc ranges on Saturday. The competition was a great success. The entries were large and the competition keen, especially in the "green" match. The following was the program for Saturday:

Rifle, "Martini"; ranges 600, 500 and 200 yards; 200 yards kneeling; 7 shots at each range. First prize, silver ladle; second prize, silver tablespoon; third prize, silver desert spoon; fourth prize, silver teaspoon. Teaspoon will be offered if five or more green entries.

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON.

The first baseball match of the season was played on the Clipper grounds on Saturday between teams from the Garnet and Clipper clubs, and it proved to be a decidedly good one. It was easy to be seen from the amount of puffing and lemons used that it was the first of the season. The umpire, who was somewhat new at the business, gave some rather rank decisions on both sides, which shows the absurdity of putting a "green" man in such a responsible position. The Garnets will make a splendid addition to the proposed Junior league as they have the pluck in them, their base running being very good, although in some cases their fielding might be improved. The base running of the Clippers was somewhat slow, but their fielding on the whole made up for the loss.

The following is the score:

NOTES.

There is a good deal of talk in regard to the formation of a junior baseball league in town. The clubs interested should get a move on, as it is getting late in the season for arranging schedules, etc.

The Crescents go to Granby on May 24. The Farnham and Montreal clubs are arranging for a match here on the Queen's birthday.

THE RING.

A Montreal Pugilist Breaks His Hand.

Mike Welsh, the well-known local pugilist, in speaking of his mill with Joe Tansey in Chicago on April 30th, says the match was with 2oz. gloves, and he knocked Tansey out in the sixth round with a right hand swing blow back of the ear. The blow did Tansey up but it broke Welsh's hand. He was matched to meet Paddy Brennan two weeks ago for $100 a side, winner to take all, but on account of the accident the match was put off.

A CRACK STEAMER

The Parisian Arrives in Port Yesterday Afternoon.

Her Voyage Described by Captain Ritchie—Low Water Stops the Running of River Boats—Lots of Steel Rails Arrive—The Canopus Sails But Leaves Some of Her Cattle—Marine News of Interest.

The R. and O. N. company's boats began their regular summer service to St. Helen's Island yesterday.

The steamship Storm King, which sailed for London Saturday, carried grain and 399 head of cattle and 99 sheep.

A diver was at work in the Lachine canal yesterday effecting some repairs to the electric light cable under the canal.

The Beaver line steamship Lake Nepigon sailed from Liverpool for Montreal at 12.30 p.m. Saturday with 280 passengers.

The Allan steamship Numidian, Captain Nicol, sailed for Liverpool on Saturday with a full general cargo, 498 cattle and 99 sheep.

The depth of water in the ship channel on Saturday by the Montreal gauge was 29 feet 8 inches, by the Sorel gauge 41 feet 1 inch.

The steamship Rydholm, Captain Brown, which arrived Saturday and docked in the lower canal basin, is from Sorel light. She discharged at the latter port a cargo of steel rails which she brought from Maryport.

The steamship Derwentholme, Captain Holmes, with a cargo of steel rails from Maryport, arrived on Saturday. She is discharging cargo at the wharf at Hochelaga. The steamship Liddesdale, also with rails from Maryport, is discharging at the same place.

Owing to low water at Coteau, pilots refused to take boats either up or down the channel, and in consequence the sailing of river steamers, announced for May 18, have been cancelled for the present, and in consequence the crew of the steamer Spartan has been paid off for the time being.

A new line of steamers is to run between Montreal and Valleyfield. The steamer Gaitaneau, now undergoing repairs at the latter place, has, it is said, been purchased at a cost of $20,000 by the new company, composed of merchants of Montreal and Valleyfield, and will be the first boat to be put upon the route.

Notwithstanding the difficulty over the cattle-carrying regulations, the steamship Canopus, Captain Easterbrook, sailed for Liverpool Saturday with a full general cargo and 497 head of cattle. Before sailing, however, many of the cattle stalls were rearranged according to regulations, and 30 head of the cattle that were to have gone on the Canopus were reshipped by the Allan steamship Numidian.

THE PARISIAN'S FIRST ARRIVAL THIS YEAR.

The Allan line Royal mail steamship Parisian arrived in port for the first time this season, yesterday afternoon. She passed St. Helen's Island at 3.30 o'clock, and as soon as she was docked was besieged by the largest crowd that has been seen on the wharves this summer. The Herald reporter was received with courtesy by the captain and officers. The captain reported an exceptionally pleasant voyage. The Parisian left Liverpool at 5.18 p.m. May 5, taking up mails and passengers at Moville on following day at 2.45 p.m. On May 10 a moderate gale from south-west west was met, which afterwards veered round to the north-west. On the 11th, at 3.35 p.m., two large icebergs were passed in lat. 48.57 N. and long. 45.34 W., and from there to Cape Race ice was met with continually. Very fine weather was experienced in the Gulf, and some thirty small vessels bringing lumber up the river were passed. Contrary to the practice adopted last year, the mails were landed at Rimouski, also some 14 passengers. Twenty-four passengers were landed at Quebec, while 107 cabin, 35 intermediate and 105 steerage came on to Montreal by the vessel.

Steamship Mesaria from Three Rivers for Sydney, for cargo of coal, passed, down at 2.30 a.m.

Steamship Lady Ives, which passed up to Montreal this morning, ships a cargo of lumber on account of Messrs. J. Burstell & Co.

Bark Herlof Herlofson arrived at Bic yesterday and was ordered to Metis to load.

Contractor Beemer has had built during the winter at Lake St. John a new composite ship, to be used on the lake. She will commence running beginning of next month.

Steamship Canopus arrived from Montreal at 4 p.m. and proceeded. She seemed to be port heavy and rolled considerably.

Allan line steamship Numidian arrived from Montreal at 3 p.m. and moored at the company's wharf. She sails for Liverpool at 9 a.m. to-morrow, shipping the mails at Rimouski, as usual.

Cargo of salt ex bark Sif changed hands yesterday, but figures have not transpired.

Ships Thekla and America from Greenock, arrived in port this morning with the first Scotch coals of the season. Both cargoes are on the market.

Steamships Valetta and Trafalgar, which passed up to Montreal this morning, will run in the coal trade for season.

The barks Veritas, Edith and Maiden City, with cargoes of coal from Sydney for the port, are reported to be in the Gulf.

The coasting steamship Otter on her second trip to the Gulf this season left port at 8 a.m. She will ship North Shore mails at Rimouski.

Some lively running is being made for the position of dock master of the Levis graving dock. Captain Baine is said to be leading, although Captain Bernier, the former holder of the office, threatens war if he is not re-appointed.

The Customs authorities are still collecting police dues from the shipping, notwithstanding that there is no river police force. Shipping people are very much dissatisfied and are beginning to suspect that Mr. Tupper's free port promises were only taffy. There is, however, a report to-day that the Harbor Police force, or at least a portion of it, are to be again to be sworn in on Monday.

A few of the spring fleet of sailing vessels are coming seeking. They have all been fixed in the English market. None of those yet arrived are open. The local market for timber freight seems in a very weak condition.

What has become of the new Government revenue cutter is the query here? It looks as though the Government was giving the smugglers a chance before she puts in an appearance, and from all accounts these defrauders of the revenue are taking advantage of it. Positive assertions are made that two cargoes have been run ashore at Matane, one at Mechin, another at Berthier and one at River du Loup.

ARRIVED—May 15.

Steamship Garnet, Burkitt, Sydney for Montreal, coal.

Steamship Monkscon, from Philadelphia for Montreal, coal.

NOTES.

The customs authorities at an early hour this morning captured a small schooner near the Island of Orleans filled up with smuggled whiskey and gin. The vessel has a name and is a delapidated looking craft of no value.

The screw tug steamer Flora, when opposite Indian Cove, about ten o'clock this morning, coming into port with ship Savannah in tow, took fire and some of the machinery is reported to have blown up. The ship was at once anchored and the tug headed for shore and beached above the wharf at the point of Orleans Island. Between the fire and explosion she was completely wrecked. The boat was owned by Mr. Powell, of Lewis, and is said to be fully insured.

THREE DROWNED.

A Distressing Accident at St. Cunegonde.

They Were Playing on Logs in the Canal Basin—Two of the Boys Brothers—The Mother in a Serious Condition—All the Bodies Recovered—An Inquest to be Held To-morrow.

A sad drowning accident happened last night in one of the canal basins in St. Cunegonde.

Two sons of Mr. H. Lachance, aged respectively 7 and 8 years, and one of Mr. Jas. Embloe, aged 8, while playing on some logs, lost their footing and fell into the water, and before assistance could reach them, were drowned.

Mr. Lachance up to May 1st was a crockery merchant at 2625 Notre Dame street, where he now resides, but the business not paying to his satisfaction, and being offered a lucrative position as commercial traveller for J. L. Cassidy & Co., St. Paul street, accepted, and closed his business.

He started out on his trip about a week ago, and at the time of the accident was 180 miles below Quebec, where a telegram has been sent informing him of the sad fate of his two sons.

Mrs. Lachance has had her daughter visiting at home for a few days, but Sunday being the last day she could spend at home, her mother started off yesterday to take her to the convent in Lachine, in order to be there for this morning, and Mrs. Lachance arrived back home about five minutes past three and was sitting down taking off her hat and cloak, when a knock was heard at the door, and on descending to see who was there, was met by constables Jos. St. Denis and Isidore Cousineau of the St. Cunegonde police, bearing the bodies of her two sons, whom she had left but a short while ago playing around the door in good health, and enjoying themselves.

She asked them to be good boys, and especially requested them not to go near the canal. Shortly after her departure young Embloe came along and said he was going to have some fun on the canal, and asked them to come along, and they never thinking of anything else but play started off, and they were not seen alive again.

Mrs. Lachance was unconscious up to a late hour last night. Mr. Jas. Embloe, of 77 St. Martin street, is a moulder, employed by Day & De Belois, founders, 110 to 120 Ann street.

He was informed shortly after the accident that the two Lachance boys had been drowned, and knowing that his own son had accompanied them, immediately hastened to the spot, but only arrived in time to assist the constables in lifting the body from the water. He was nearly distracted, and for a time nothing could be done with him. After a while those who were standing near succeeded in calming him, when he procured a conveyance and took the body home.

Chief of Police Page, of St. Cunegonde, immediately notified Coroner Jones, but that gentleman informed him that the inquests could not be held until 7 o'clock to-night, on account of having two others to attend to during the day.

The men working around the basin state that no blame can be attached to the watchman, as he has all he can do to keep the boys away, but they generally manage to get in some way or another, generally by climbing the fence. The men themselves have continually warned them away, but to no purpose.

BREVITIES.

A branch Post office will be opened at Mook's on St. Catherine street, near Guy.

A large variety of fine and inexpensive articles, especially suitable for wedding or birthday presents, at J. B. Williamson's, 1741 Notre Dame street.

W. F. Smith, late manager of the popular lottery, was arraigned before the magistrate Saturday on several different charges. He was fined $5 for each offence.

The visiting governors for the present week to the Protestant House of Industry and Refuge and to the Home at Longue Pointe are Messrs. John Hutchison and Henry Morgan.

A Dane named John Petersen was sentenced to a fine of $3 or one month in jail by the Recorder on Saturday for being drunk on St. Lambert hill and slapping a priest in the face.

The quarterly meeting of the Dominion Commercial Travellers association was to have taken place on Saturday evening, but no quorum being obtainable, it was, perforce, adjourned.

The little child of Mr. R. Donaghy, of 66 Manufacturers street, Point St. Charles, was found accidentally smothered in bed yesterday morning. Coroner Jones will hold an inquest to-morrow.

An unsophisticated Swede, named Henken, was swindled out of $40 at the C.P.R. depot on Friday evening, by the same old confidence racket as a bogus bond and a brass watch.

Gentlemen wishing to have their clothes cleaned, dyed, repaired, altered, turned or pressed can have them done at M. J. Adler's, 47 Beaver Hall Hill. Telephone 4861. Parcels called for and delivered.

Private Watchman Lavoie, while passing the corner of Ontario and St. Louis streets at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning, found the dead body of a new-born infant. Coroner Jones will hold an inquest at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Some 400 children of St. Patrick's parish are being trained by the Rev. Martin Callaghan to assist at the congregational services which take place in the church on May 26. A full orchestra, led by Father Callaghan, will accompany the singing.

The Protestant House of Industry and Refuge report that during the week ending May 14 they had 71 male and 56 female inmates at the country house; total, 127. The corresponding period last year they had 78 male and 51 female inmates, making a total of 129. The number of night lodgings given at the night refuge was 324, as against 269 last year.

TWO NEW STATIONS ACCEPTED.

Additions to the Fire Department of Which the Aldermen are Proud.

On Saturday two fine new fire stations in St. Jean Baptiste and St. Gabriel wards, which have just been completed, were taken over by the city.

The St. Jean Baptiste station was designed by Mr. Mombriant, and the contractors were Messrs. Delorme, for the woodwork, and Messrs. Chapleau and Lemieux for the stone and brick work. For the St. Gabriel station Mr. Mombriant was architect and the contractors Messrs. Beaudry.

Mr. Leclerc, building inspector, pronounced both buildings perfect; not a flaw could be found, he said, from the cellar to the chimney top, and the arrangements for accommodating both men and horses were excellent.

Ald. Stevenson says that the West ward which he represents has no fire station, and he would not give the council any peace until they granted a station for this ward, as it is greatly needed.

A Convict's Serious Assault.

Convict Scanlan, who is serving three years in the penitentiary of St. Vincent de Paul for assaulting a man with a knife in 1890, assaulted the guard in charge of the shoemakers shop where he was engaged at work. He struck the guard on the head with a hammer, and rendered him unconscious for several hours. The prisoner was overpowered and locked up in the dungeon. He will be arraigned for a murderous assault at the June term of the Court of Queen's Bench.

A CHAT WITH BISHOP GROUARD.

He Tells His Experience with Strange Indians.

A HERALD representative yesterday had an interesting chat with Bishop Grouard, who is to accompany the party of clergymen in their trip to the Pacific coast, which was referred to on Saturday.

After speaking of the languages he understood, and the great extent of his diocese, which runs from Anchorage to the Arctic ocean, he related some of his experiences.

During his travels from Great Slave Lake to Fort Simpson, on Mackenzie river, to Fort Nelson, the bishop met Beaver Indians, Slave Indians, Mahonays, Mountain Indians, Mautais Monde and Thonenes, and, without exception, he found them ignorant and uncontrolled by any law. In consequence they were naturally cruel and their morals were not of the best.

A favorite mode of punishment for a wife to receive, if her husband thought she did anything wrong was to have her nose cut off with a hatchet. Their mode of living is very simple, their principal diet being fish. They are supplied with guns and ammunition by the Hudson Bay company, and thus are able to shoot moose and caribou. At one part of the year caribou are very numerous, and they manage to kill sufficient to provide dried meat for many months. Every four years that part of the country is literally overrun by rabbits, and for almost a year the inhabitants enjoy the delicacy. After this they dwindle away and are not seen again for another four years.

Two convents have been established by the Grey Nuns in different places on the Mackenzie river, for the purpose of giving shelter and educating the poor Indian orphans. These convents have done a great deal of good there, often raising poor children from starvation after having been beaten and driven from home by their brutal parents.

Since the advent of Bishop Grouard as head of the missionaries, the Indians of all the tribes along the Mackenzie have become more civilized.

FIFTY CHILDREN FOR THE TOWNSHIPS.

Mrs. Birt Brings a Consignment From the Liverpool Orphans' Home.

The Parisian, which arrived in port yesterday afternoon, brought, among her passengers, Mrs. Birt, of the Liverpool Orphans' Home, in charge of 50 girls for the Knowlton, Que., branch of the home. The girls, who looked in excellent health, ranged in age from a little tot of three to one or two who were over eighteen. Speaking to a HERALD reporter, Mrs. Birt said that the children, although some were of English, Irish, and Scotch nationality, were chiefly from Liverpool. They had made themselves conspicuous during the voyage by their good behavior. They had all been thoroughly examined by the doctor appointed by the institution, and there was not one of them who was not in good health. Mrs. Birt had no doubt but that she could place them all in good homes in the Eastern Townships.

Butchers Must Pay $100 License.

The question of butcher's licenses has been at last settled, and $100 per annum is the fee that all vendors of beef, mutton, pork, &c., will have to pay for the privilege of supplying the public with the necessities of life referred to. So it was settled at the Market committee on Saturday morning last.

Must Be In by Tuesday Noon.

Tuesday at 12 o'clock noon, is the time fixed for closing the acceptance of tender for the electric light plant at the city. Every tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque for $25,000 as a guarantee of the fulfillment of the contract, if granted. The Mayor, who is president of the committee, will call a meeting on Wednesday or Thursday to open and consider the tenders.

Montrealers in Europe.

C. and Mrs. Cummings, Ottawa; S. Rivard, J. E. Renaud, Joliette; W. M. McKay, Ottawa. Among those registering at Paris were: L. P. Rivet, Charles Desjardins, Dr. J. E. La Berger, Dr. and Mrs. D. B. A. McLean, Harry Desjardins, R. X. Bagny, Louis and Edouard Amos, Dr. F. Desmarches, Montreal; G. and Mrs. LeMoine, Quebec; Rev. J. Saurie, St. Therese.

His Worship Puts His Foot Down.

The Mayor has struck at last. For some time past the crowd of people who besiege the City hall to ask him to give them money, tickets to every part of the habitable globe, snug positions in the city's service, reduction of their water rates or the remitting of their taxes, has been steadily increasing. They waylay him on the street, in the corridors, and on the landings, until he is no longer a man to him, and he has finally concluded to put a stop to it. In future he will see applicants only on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, from 12 o'clock to 12:30, and peldiers, whether Jew or Gentile, he will not see at all. This is final.

Signor Vegara's Concert.

Signor L. R. Vegara has addressed a letter to THE HERALD respecting criticisms of his recent concert. In it he says:

"Now about his statement that the names mentioned in my program were not my pupils, and that they all sang better a long time ago when he heard them. Now again he shows his ignorance. Mrs. Humphrey, Miss Pelletier, Messrs. Dupuis, Stewart, Kelly, Duquette, in fact all who appeared at my concert have and still study with me, and the great improvement they have already made during the short time has been with me as was amply shown at my concert; those who attended with a noble feeling towards the true art can but praise, and only people, such as P. P. Jay themselves out to criticize and speak of what they are entirely ignorant of.

The Clerkship to be Decided.

The meeting of the City Council this afternoon will be an important one. The proposed by-law for closing all saloons at seven o'clock on Saturday nights will be discussed and settled one way or another. It is expected also that the appointment of the new city clerk will be made, and as Mr. Desbarat's friends are canvassing briskly on his behalf, it looks as if Mr. O. David would have no walk over.

A NEW MONASTERY.

An Imposing Ceremony Yesterday Morning.

The Corner Stone of the Very Holy Sacrament Building Laid Yesterday—A Description of the Proposed Church—A Sketch and Picture of the Superior General.

The laying of the corner stone of the monastery and church of the Blessed Sacrament, situated on Mount Royal avenue, near St. Denis street, took place yesterday morning. Archbishop Fabre, assisted by Superintendent-General Tesnieres and Father Estevon, of the new order, conducted the ceremonies, which were very impressive.

Although the services were not to start before 10 o'clock, as early as nine the basement or foundation of the new church was filled with people. There were seats placed in the front part for the ladies, and enough room left behind for the men to stand, but this was not sufficient, as crowds lined the foundation and hundreds watched the proceedings from the large open space which surrounds the building.

An altar had been erected in the open air, where a mass was celebrated. The choir, in which was represented almost every French Catholic church in the city, sang Gounod's solemn mass, with full orchestral and brass accompaniment. St. Jean Baptiste church was represented by W. Proulx, J. Lagace, D. Pillet, O. Terrien, N. Bleau and J. B. Courtois; St. Louis choir by Jos. Haudon, L. Lamy, A. H. Ducheneau, A. Labelle, A. Fournier, J. A. Martin, N. E. Giroux and others. Dr. Sylvestre acted as conductor and organist. D. Avignon supplied the music.

The scene was beautiful with artistic decorations, and the residents of the neighborhood before the Holy Sacrament, while the priests recite appropriate offices. The chapels of the order are opened day and night to give the faithful opportunities to assist at the perpetual adoration practiced by the members, and wherever houses have been established the society has sprung immediately into great favor with both the ordinary clergy and laity.

Very Rev. Father Tesnieres, Superior General of the Order of the Fathers of the Holy Sacrament.

The very Rev. Father Tesnieres, the Superior General of the order, is a worthy successor to the venerable founder. He has his headquarters at the parent house in France, but to show his appreciation of the great good to follow from the establishment of a house in Canada he came to Montreal, to be personally present at the laying of the corner stone of the monastery and church, and was present at yesterday's ceremonies.

THE ORDER IN MONTREAL.

The establishment of the order of the Very Holy Sacrament in Montreal is comparatively recent date. On November 21, 1890, the Rev. Father Estevon, with four other Fathers, arrived here from Paris. His Grace Archbishop Fabre granted permission for the establishment of a branch house in Montreal. Father Estevon secured the building, No. 50 Mount Royal avenue, at present occupied by the order, and a sanctuary for the perpetual adoration of the Holy Sacrament was constructed and consecrated built. Success has crowned the mission. The original little chapel long since ceased to be able to accommodate all those who desired to visit it, which led to the project to construct a monastery and large church, the laying of the corner stone of which was accomplished yesterday.

GIVEN A YEAR'S IMPRISONMENT.

A Priest Sent to Jail in British Columbia—An Unusual Case.

A remarkable case is reported from Lilloet, B.C. Father Cheroux was tried for assault, causing grievous bodily harm upon a young Indian girl. The prosecution arose out of the case where the Indians of Lafontaine village flogged a young man and girl who had been found guilty of immorality. The accused were Father Cheroux, Chief Kilipoutki and four Indians of Lafontaine Indian village. The village is almost entirely inhabited by Indians. The chief of the tribe has always exercised almost absolute authority among his people, punishing them for any minor offences committed. When the couple were arrested for the offence the chief, on the suggestion of the priest, had them whipped, 15 lashes being laid. Subsequently the woman was again whipped for a similar offence by order of the chief.

Judge Cornwall found the defendants guilty. Father Cheroux was sentenced to one year in jail, the chief to six months, and each of the Indians to two months. His Honor, however, agreed to reserve a case for appeal, and the case will be brought to whether on the question of consent there was liability in law for assault, and as to whether the customs of the Indians were in force and would justify the assault if there was one.

THE C. P. R. YARDS CROWDED.

Union Stock Yards Proposal Causing Considerable Trouble.

The proposal to establish new union stock yards at Lachine appears to be causing quite an amount of trouble among the live stock importers. A number of them irritated by the position taken by the Montreal Stock Yards company, have inaugurated a boycott against them, the result being that there has been a decrease in the amount of business done by them, and a corresponding increase in that done by the Canadian Pacific stock yards. The gentlemen connected with the Lachine stock yards scheme, asked both railway companies to run branch lines into that place. This the C.P.R. agreed to do, but the G.T.R. at first did not give any answer, and the opinion was expressed that there was some influence working against the new scheme. It had been understood that the answer was to have been given last Monday, but it was not. The union yards men thereupon withdrew their business from the Montreal stock yards at the Grand Trunk. The accommodation of the C.P.R. yards was taxed to the utmost last week, and altogether there were 6,000 cattle received, instead of usual average of 3,000 to 3,500 head. It is proposed now to enlarge the C.P.R. yards, so as to accommodate 2,000 more cattle.

BARNLEY TAKES THE $200.

Close of the Contest and Exhibition at the Art Gallery.

The spring exhibition of the pictures at the Art Gallery, Phillips square, came to a close on Saturday. There was a large attendance of visitors and the prize pictures were the subjects of much attention and comment. The result of the voting in the contest for the most popular picture was made known. It showed that in all 1182 votes had been recorded, the highest number, 282, being given to Mr. Barnley's landscape picture. It thus takes the popular prize of $200. The next two pictures were Cote's "In China Cork," 135 votes, and Brynmor's still life "Books," 105 votes. During the evening Gruenwald's orchestra rendered a varied and excellent program of music, which was much appreciated by the visitors. On the whole the exhibition has been very successful.

The "Penitent" request of pictures are being placed in position, and it is expected that they will be ready for exhibition next week.

Mayor McShane has accepted an invitation to be present at the first annual dinner of the Canadian Bankers association at the Windsor hotel on Thursday next, and will respond to the toast of the Mayor and corporation of the city of Montreal.

Arrival of L. P. Hebert, the Canadian Sculptor.

He Will Remain Three or Four Weeks to Study the Surroundings of the Proposed Maisonneuve Monument—Montreal Behind the Times in Sculptural Art—The City Should Pay.

Mr. L. P. Hebert, the celebrated Canadian sculptor, whose design for the Maisonneuve monument has been accepted by the committee, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and is the guest of Mr. Victor Roy, 11 Ernest street. When seen by a HERALD representative last night Mr. Hebert was found in a most communicative mood and seemed delighted to talk of his life in Paris and the pleasant trip he had across the Atlantic in the steamship Parisian.

"I am a very quiet traveller," he said, "but we had such a lively lot of passengers on board that I was bound to join in their enjoyment, which was kept up all the way across, and we had splendid weather all the time, and the kindness and attention of Captain Ritchie made everyone feel quite at home. We had over one thousand passengers on board, of which about one hundred and fifty were in cabin."

When asked about the special business that had brought him over to Montreal, Mr. Hebert said that since his design had been accepted by the Maisonneuve Monument committee he had been in constant correspondence with the chairman, Judge Pagnuelo, but as this was a tedious process he determined to present himself in person to the committee, and see what was really required. It was necessary, he said, that he should study the surroundings, so that he could make the monument in keeping therewith. The original model will have to be somewhat changed and made larger, as there are many big buildings around Place d'Armes square.

This will all be arranged when he meets the committee during the present week. The monument, he says, will be about 30 feet high including the pedestal, the effigy being a little over life size.

"Will you sculptor the effigy here?" asked THE HERALD man.

"Oh no," replied Mr. Hebert. "That would be almost impossible, we have neither the material nor the appliances here for such a work and I shall have to return to Paris to carry it out."

Mr. Hebert will remain here three or four weeks and then return to Europe, but he says he will not be able to complete the monument this year so that the formal inauguration will not take place till May 18-1893.

"Have you been studying in any of the French academies of art while in Paris?" Mr. Hebert replied that he had not gone to Paris for that purpose, but only to practice the art which he had learned here in Montreal under Mr. Bourassa. Any work he did in Paris he submitted to his confreres for criticism. These were Mons. Dalon, Bartholdi and Turot, the latter being a director of "Nationale Academie de Sevres."

In speaking of monuments in European cities as compared with Montreal, he said we were a long way behind the times. Here we have but two, the Nelson monument and that of Her Majesty the Queen, both of them very poor specimens. He thought the civic fathers should have undertaken the erection of the Maisonneuve at the city's expense the same as was done in nearly all other cities. The commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the city of Montreal was a matter of national importance and should not be left to private subscription. In Paris and other European cities monuments in honor of prominent men were erected by the dozen, and most of them at the city's expense, and seeing that Montreal now held such a prominent position among American cities it should not be backward in voting a little money for the purpose of erecting monuments.

DISCUSSING THE SCHOOL TAX.

Baron de Hirsch Institute to Move in the Matter—Deputation.

At the Hirsch institute yesterday a joint meeting of the Board of Management with the Colonization committee was held, at which, in addition to the members, Messrs. Louis Levy and S. C. Davis, two gentlemen interested in charitable institutions in London, Eng., were present. Reports were laid before the meeting from Mr. McDermid, manager of the colony in the Souris district, speaking very highly of the men sent out.

The president stated that a petition upon the subject of the school tax had been drawn up and forwarded to the Provincial Secretary, asking that an equal distribution of the amount realized by the tax be made.

Mr. Levy, after complimenting the board on the work done, said that he had paid a visit to the institute and its school and could not speak too highly of what he had seen.

A committee was appointed to go to Quebec to interview the Government on the subject of the school tax, composed of Messrs. D. A. Ansell, consul-general of Mexico; Moise Schwob, vice-consul of France; Samuel Davis, Max Goldstein, B. C. L., Nosse Vinberg, L. Cohen, J. Goldstein, L. Aronson, Harris Vinberg, the president; D. S. Friedman, treasurer; Lyon Cohen, secretary, and W. H. Baker, principal of the school.
