

BAPTIST CHURCH; ITS PRINCIPLES

Explained By Dr. Cameron At Baptist World Alliance At Stockholm, Sweden

(By Canadian Press)
Stockholm, Sweden, July 22.—The Kingdom of God in the hearts of men expresses itself in service to one's fellows and is accompanied by a program of social redemption which is made effective in commerce, in pleasures, in international relations and the whole of human life, declared Dr. W. A. Cameron, pastor of the Bloor Street Baptist Church of Toronto, Canada, who today delivered the chief sermon before the Baptist World Alliance which opened its session yesterday.

Dr. Cameron said in part: "The Kingdom cometh to a man when he sets up Christ's Cross in his heart. It passes on its way when that man rises from the table and gives himself and serves the person next him. It comes to every man with its offer of rebirth into newness of life. It comes to society with a new order which reshapes the men and women who live under it. It comes as a protest against any features in prevailing conditions that do not disclose Christ-like love. It comes with a program of social redemption, in pleasures, in international relations, and the whole of human life. It is the world-wide state, whose law is the divine Will, whose members obey the Spirit of Jesus, whose strength is goodness, whose heritage is God."

"Surely we as Baptists have a contribution to make in the building of the Kingdom. Who knows but we have come into the Kingdom for such a time as this. Many of our principles are shared with others who profess the Evangelical faith."

Dr. Cameron said the Baptist principle "includes the spirituality of religion. It includes the rights and responsibilities of the individual. It includes freedom from the coercion of belief, from the coercion of ritual, from the coercion of ecclesiastical authority. It includes the right of private judgment—to see and state the truth as God gives the vision. It includes the liberty and equality of all believers. It includes these and many other things. These principles are essential if we are to have a redeemed humanity upon a regenerated earth; if we are to look forward to a time when the clash of arms shall be no more; when oppression and injustice and hatred shall have ceased among mankind; when this world of struggling men and women shall indeed recognize Christ as the light of its life and the leader of its thought."

BELGIUM TAKES OPTIMISTIC VIEW OF BRITISH NOTE

Official Circles In Brussels
Believe British Proposals
Offer Basis For Discussion

CABINET TO MEET

Belgians Think Developments
In Germany Are Favorable
To Franco-Belgian Policy

Brussels, July 22.—The British note on reparations on its arrival here by special courier, was immediately examined by Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar and then translated. Both Ministers studied it thoroughly and drew up points to constitute a basis for discussion at a Council conference tomorrow which was specially called for this purpose. The feeling in official quarters can be described as still optimistic.

If the British view as expressed in the note were regarded as unchangeable and not open to modification after due discussion, it is believed that optimistic feeling would not exist, as some of the points in the document are not comprehensible to the Belgian mind.

It is thought that the diplomatic conversations which are now entering on a period of great activity, will be aided by developments in the situation in Germany, which are considered to be evolving rapidly in a direction favorable to the Franco-Belgian policy.

No immediate conversations between the French and Belgian Ministers are contemplated at present, but the discussions will be continued through diplomatic channels.

London, July 22.—An indication of the extreme care extended in drafting the new British reparations communication was given by Sir Wm. Joynton-Hicks, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, in the course of a speech to the Primrose League in Crystal Palace yesterday afternoon.

"We have been gravely anxious the past few weeks regarding foreign affairs," said Sir William, "with a constant series of Cabinet meetings in the last fortnight, to arrive at some position of stability on the continent, ending in the despatch of a very long considered, very anxiously cared for draft letter in the hope of arriving at a solution jointly with the Allies, so as to ensure the peace of the world."

The Government, declared the speaker, desired to see the late enemy pay what he could, and that justice be done to the claims of the Allies as well as Great Britain, but it was impossible not to realize that until stability was achieved in Europe the trade on which Great Britain vitally depended could never be satisfactory. Today the whole of Europe was unable to trade and unable to pay because of the conditions in Central Europe. He appealed the Allies and to the whole world for what was the world's greatest need—world peace.

CAPT. ROBINSON WON KING'S PRIZE

In Competition At Bisley On Saturday — Winner Was Late Of R.A.F.

Bisley Camp, July 22.—(By Canadian Press Cable)—In brilliant weather but with a changing wind and a mirage over the targets the final stage of the King's prize was competed for amid great excitement which was accentuated when Capt. E. H. Robinson, late of the R.A.F. won the coveted prize from Lance-Corporal W. T. Norton, late of the Queen's Regiment, Westminster, in the tie-shoot-off.

The Duke of Connaught, who had previously visited the Canadian competitors at their home and who subsequently distributed the prizes to the winners in the various competitions, was an interested spectator of the shoot-off that meant so much to Robinson and Norton. Robinson scored five bulls' eyes, including two slights. Norton made two liners and a nagle in the shoot-off.

Robinson made 96 in the second stage of the shoot for the King's prize, 67 at the 900 yard in the final yesterday and 69 at the 1,000 yards, his aggregate being 222.

ances In Cape Breton During Week-End

Sydney, N.S., July 22.—John MacDonald, Toronto, a representative of the Workers' Party of Canada, was arrested yesterday at Glace Bay by provincial police on a charge of "seditious utterance." The information was laid by ex-Mayor A. C. McCormack, of Sydney Mines, who alleged that the accused, speaking at a recent meeting in that town, said in part:

"They come with their damn flag and take you."

This was supposed to refer to conscription for the army. The charge was ordered by the Attorney-General.

MacDonald took to Moscow last year District 26's application for admission to the Red Internationale. This application was subsequently quashed by order of John L. Lewis.

JURY IN DELORME CASE DISAGREED; WERE SENT BACK

Till This Morning With Ad-
monition That They Reach
An Agreement

JUDGE'S CHARGE

Chief Justice Took Over Five
Hours To Sum Up Evidence
At Trial

Montreal, July 22.—(Canadian Press)—A deliberation lasting from 5.25 Saturday afternoon until 9.25 Sunday evening, the jury in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme, charged with the murder of his half brother, Raoul, failed to agree on a verdict and on reporting to Chief Justice Francois Lemieux on Saturday night were sent back till Monday with an admonition by the judge that they make every effort to come to an agreement. The jury deliberated all today in their effort to arrive at a verdict. The Chief Justice, Sir Francois Lemieux, counsel for the defence and the Crown, and all court officials held themselves ready all day to meet again at the Court House in the event of the jury reaching a verdict. The case was put into their hands at 5.25 Saturday afternoon after the Chief Justice had spoken for five hours and twenty minutes.

"We do not agree and further, more, we do not believe we will be able to agree."

This was a report made by the jury at 9.15 Saturday night to the Chief Justice.

His Lordship refused to accept the verdict as final, and adjourned the Court until to-morrow morning.

Failure to agree, he told the jury who stood before him, each man looking solemnly ahead of him, imperilled the jury system.

The law permitted a verdict being received on Sunday and he suggested that they continue their deliberations, and if they came to a decision on Sunday to notify the sheriff who would inform His Lordship, and the Court would convene at once.

It was jurymen No. 10, Wilfrid David, who brought in the decision of the jury. It came after very brief deliberation for it was at 5.20 that His Lordship concluded his English address and adjourned until nine o'clock.

"Perhaps the jury may be ready with a verdict before that time?" suggested Allyn Tachereau, K.C., counsel for the defence.

"Not before 9 o'clock," said the Judge.

It was around 8 o'clock that the jurors returned to the Court in charge of the guards. Whatever the nature of their deliberations had been they appeared quite happy, some of them laughing and joking with one another. By this time a large crowd had gathered in front of the Court House. As nine o'clock approached the crowd became greater and greater and soon filled the park between the Court House and the old City Hall building, as well as the pavement in front of the Court House and the sidewalk on Notre Dame street.

When the result was made known in the Court room it was only a second before the outside crowd knew of it. They dispersed without any demonstration.

In his summing up of the evidence in the trial His Lordship laid stress upon the questions: "By whom was Raoul Delorme killed; when was he killed; in what manner was he killed?" These were questions necessarily left to the decision of the jury, but he pointed out that the victim was killed by six bullets, of which three had been extracted from his body. Were those three bullets fired by the Bayard pistol bought by the accused a few days prior to the murder? Perhaps that was the dominating question of the case.

In support of the contention that they were, the Crown had brought forward the evidence of the gunsmith Haynes, Dr. Demore and of Colonel Gaudet. Haynes' evidence had not been quite so conclusive under cross examination, but that of Dr. Demore and of Col. Gaudet merited full consideration. The defence had produced Mr. Jones, a New York firearms expert, who had examined the pistol and fired bullets from it, after a man named Hamilton had examined the weapon. The Crown had made serious allegations against Hamilton and the defence had not found him a suitable person to put in the box. It was to His Lordship very strange that "this man Hamilton, apparently of doubtful reputation, should have been engaged for the account of the defence." Also Jones had not produced in court the bullets said to have been fired by him.

Bloodstains in Car.

As to the bloodstains on the cushions of the car, His Lordship said it would be agreed that the

RUSSIA WILL EXPORT GRAIN

Coming Harvest Expected To Yield 500,000,000 Poods
More Than Home Needs

Moscow, July 22.—The coming harvest, according to official figures based on information obtained from seven thousand rural communities is expected to yield more than three billion poods (a pood is approximately 35 pounds), which is 500,000,000 poods over the 1922 harvest. The total sowing area is 50,905,000 desyatines, (a desyatina is 2.70 acres, compared with 22,000,000 desyatines sown in 1922).

The surplus over the country's needs is estimated at 500,000,000 poods, of which more than 200,000,000 poods are destined for export. The total agricultural production for 1922 is valued at 4,500,000,000 gold rubles, as against 4,500,000,000 in the year before the war. Official statistics show Russian oil exports for the six months from October to March totalled 8,500,000 poods, which is only 30 per cent of the pre-war exports. The chief importers were Great Britain and Germany.

The total yield of the Baku, Grosny and Ural oil fields for the nine months from October to June were 22,000,000 poods or fifty per cent of the pre-war yield.

Berlin, July 22.—The German government officially announces an agreement between the government's grain bureau and commercial representatives of Soviet Russia by which Russia will deliver 400,000 tons of grain to Germany before November, part payment for which will be taken in German industrial products.

Leonid Krasin, Soviet Minister of foreign trade and commerce, estimates Russia's export of grain from the coming harvest at 2,500,000 tons.

Leon Trotsky, the Soviet War Minister, estimates them at 500,000 tons higher. Roughly speaking, Russia has exported 400,000 tons between the last harvest and the present time.

The Bolsheviks say the prospects for a big grain crop this year, are excellent and American Relief Administration officials who are coming out of Russia daily confirm this.

One of the accused must have been a most unfortunate car, in that three times within two months its cushions were stained with the blood of three different people.

Do you now find the cushions of the car might possibly have been stained a fourth time on the night of the crime with the blood of young Raoul Delorme.

It is for you to reply.

The quilts that were found wrapped around the victim's head bore strong resemblances to a quilt found in the Delorme house. All three of them showed the same peculiar characteristics. If the quilts wrapped around the victim's head came from the Delorme house, who could have obtained them?

It was the jury to reply.

His Lordship did not attach over-much importance to the evidence of the handwriting experts called in by both sides on the question of who had written the address on the parcel containing the victim's watch sent to Police Chief Lefevre.

He made special reference to the severe attacks made on Detective Lajoie in the course of the trial. He described those attacks as "a great insult to justice."

He pointed out that the accused had told three lies. One as to where he got the Bayard revolver, one as to having shot at a dog with a while on a trip to the United States; and one as to disclaiming knowledge of the whereabouts of Raoul's will. Was it reasonable to suppose that he told all these lies to the police for no reason?

As to the motive for the crime, he was the heir to an estate of between $150,000 and $150,000. His Lordship concluded by saying: "Gentlemen of the jury, the accused man, is he guilty?"

If he were guilty, he could understand their fears and their disquietude. Those sentiments denoted in the jury the special and legitimate respect which was due to the clergy. "For you, a priest, when he is seated, when he is just and virtuous, he is the counselor of afflicted souls, the counselor of Christian homes."

"I understand, gentlemen, I understand, my friends, with your profound respect for all that pertains to the Christian Catholic Church, your horror to have before you a priest accused of a vile, hideous crime."

But he pointed out that the church of Christ was in a perilous position here if she could not furnish in a district like Montreal jurors sufficiently clear-minded, conscientious and faithful to the discharge of their duty to convict the accused, of though he be a priest, they believe him guilty.

"If you are convinced that the accused is guilty and yet you acquit him, then you are lending the office of a priest to the service of a prevaricator and fratricide, so that any man sufficiently lacking in conscience and endowed with the necessary education may interpose himself with a sacerdotal robe and invest the church in order to prostitute justice and religion to his crime."

NEW RECORD FOR UNLOADING ORE

Handled 83,086 Tons Of Iron Ore From Ten Steamers In One Day

All past records were broken for the handling of iron ore from Lake steamers into freight cars by the New York Central Railroad at Ashabula Harbor, Ohio, on July 7th last.

On this date the New York Central unloaded in one day 83,086 tons of iron ore from ten steamers, loading the combined cargoes into 1,384 freight cars, which were forwarded direct to the steel furnaces at Youngstown, Ohio and Pittsburgh, Pa.

In addition the New York Central, aside from taking care of this unprecedented peak of inbound ore tonnage, unloaded 575 carloads of coal, in turn placed on steamers and sent on their way to destinations in the Northwest, where it is imperative that coal stocks be built up in the summer season. The combined record for the day for loaded ore cars and unloaded coal cars amounted to 1,961 cars, an achievement which has no equal in the past.

The record established by the New York Central at Ashabula Harbor, on Saturday, July 7th, shatters the previous high mark set for this lake port which was on July 10th, 1916, when they carried, handled and sent forward to the furnaces 80,179 tons of iron ore in 1,608 freight cars.

Skipper's Cat Plenty Joss

CAPTAIN A. J. HAILEY, R.N.R., master of the Empress of Canada, and his favorite cat, "Speed."

"Speed" has first say on the big ship. This cat, according to Captain Hailey, does everything including talk.
The Empress of Canada had a cat on board when she left Britain's shores, but when Captain Hailey took "Speed" aboard at Vancouver, it was on the upper deck, and the Canadian cat took this as a sign that he was to be supreme in the upper works of the ship.
Rover, the cat that was part British and part French, and understood the continental parley better than the roar of the lion, strutted forward to meet "Speed" when he docked here, but the effect was electrical.
"Speed" arched his back, negotiated a Sharky swing, and a Corbett hook, and finally made a roller coaster out of Frenchy as the latter sought refuge in the engine room. Since that melee, Speed has moved unchallenged on the cabin decks.
This does not mean that "Speed" does not go below. By instinct this cat knows when the Chinese crew is celebrating and frying grasshoppers. The big cat is fond of this particular dish and never fails to share it when the special gong rings.
Captain Hailey tells a good story about "Speed." Several prominent Chinese were visiting the master of the ship in his cabin in Shanghai, and "Speed" was occupying a cushioned chair near the Captain's elbow. One of the visitors had the regulation imperial finger nails, and stretched the long and tapering horns out on the table at times to emphasize his remarks.
Captain Hailey noticed the cat watching the long nails, and every time the Gaiyuan fingers moved out on the table, "Speed" stretched his beautifully curved nails out in imitation of the visitors.
In a storm, "Speed" will seek the rigging of the ship and in a high falsetto do a nocturnal wail that makes the blood of the man on the bridge run cold.
On the whole Captain Hailey says "Speed" is the most entertaining cat he ever owned, and the Chinese say he is a good Joss, and keeps bad luck away.

HELP TO RUSSIA IS NOT FINISHED

American And British Friends Plan To Continue Their Relief Work

Moscow, July 22—The American and British Friends will continue their relief work in Russia. After the coming harvest our feeding program will be largely dropped and we will turn our energies to reconstruction work, designed to help the people in the famine-stricken areas get on their feet again. This statement was made recently by Dr. Wilbur K. Thomas, executive secretary of the American Friends' Service Committee. He continued:

Our reconstruction work will proceed along three main lines. First of all, we plan to supply the peasants in our area with horses on a business but non-profit-making basis. We will establish a fund with which to buy horses in Turkestan and Siberia. We will sell these horses to the Samara peasants at cost price and use the money which we receive as a revolving fund, with which to purchase more horses.

The second item in our program is medical work. The Russian Commissariat for Health has laid out some excellent plans for baby clinics and child welfare work which it has not been able to realize on account of lack of funds.

Without such accuracy and without perfect lubrication—to say nothing of the strength and quality of the materials—the gearing would, of course, be rapidly destroyed. However all the difficulties encountered have been overcome, and the total output of British geared turbines now equals that of turbines for direct coupling.

THE GEARED STEAM TURBINE.

For many years the sphere of utility of the steam turbine was limited by the fact that the speed of rotation of this machine was so high. In the turbine itself high speed is an advantage, but it is often desirable to run the driven shaft or machine at a much lower speed. Various means of reconciling these two conditions have been employed by British engineers and the use of mechanical gears has been brought to the highest degree of perfection. Special machines have been devised for cutting the gear teeth with mathematical accuracy,

IRISH AND TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF DECEASED OF '47

Pilgrimage Held Yesterday Under Auspices Of The A. O. H.—Prayers For Beloved Dead—Eloquent Sermon By Rev. Father Healey—Speeches By A. O. H. Officials

The pilgrimage of the Irish people to Grosse Ile yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was marked by another eloquent tribute to the memory of the Irish famine and fever victims of 1847 who found their last resting place under the sod of that little island.

Seven hundred people left here yesterday afternoon on board the Steamer Cape Diamond, which had been chartered for the trip and returned to this city last evening at 8.30 o'clock.

On their arrival on the island the pilgrims were met by the officials who gave them a very cordial reception. A procession was then formed headed by the Hibernian Cadets and a monster wreath which was to be deposited at the foot of the memorial monument was carried by six cadets. Next came the Morin Band the members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the clergy and their assistants and the general public.

When the cemetery was reached the large gathering knelt devoutly while the Rosary was recited followed by the sermon.

The sermon of the occasion was delivered by Rev. Father Healey, C.S.R., of St. Ann's Montreal, who spoke as follows:—

"This is the land for which I swore to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, saying: 'I shall give it to thy seed. Thou hast seen it with thine eyes and shalt not pass over to it.' Deut. 34. 4.

The Book of the Olden Story of God's dealings with His chosen people contains no more majestic figure than the masterly leader of the Jewish nation—the patriarch Moses. Yet with all the grandeur and might of that life-work, guided ever onward by the unerring inspirations of the great Jehovah. There is no more pathetic picture in all the panorama of Ancient Scripture than that of the great ruler of His people—dying within sight of the heaven which meant Heaven to the Jews—the Promise Land. Forty years did Moses act as God's medium of goodness to Israel; forty long years did the patriarch-General in the army of deliverance. Forty years did he seek a goal and lead his people onwards towards its attaining. And in the shadow of victory, victory deserted him. In the moment of entrance to the Land of Promise, the land and the promise both were denied him: 'Thou hast seen it with thine eyes and shalt not pass over to it'.

The pathos of this denial that made the life of Moses so poignant a narrative in its closing scene finds parallel today in memory as we stand on the shores of this fair green Isle, resting so peacefully on the bosom of the mighty St. Lawrence. Here, a people came years ago, led by the finger of Destiny, by the over-ruling Providence of God, out from a land of bondage, where a tyrant monarch held captive God's chosen ones into a land of Promise, a land which was guaranteed liberty from oppression and the right to serve one's God according to the dictates of one's conscience. Faith in the Almighty, courage of heart, confidence in the future, all were the leader Moses—to this captive people to take them away from the flesh-pots of tyranny to the pure blessed air of freedom—to the home where liberty was Heaven's hand-maid to bring peace and joy to long tortured souls. This spot is hallowed to the memory of every loyal Irishman, true to the story of his race and the traditions of his forefathers.

For, here in the fever days of '32, of '47 and '48 the Irish people came. This land beckoned them—it was the land of God for them, as if the Almighty said to them as first He said to Moses: 'This is the land for which I swore: "I will give it to thy seed. Thou hast seen it with thine eyes and shalt not pass over to it." This was the real land of promise of God for the lonely exiles from that country which though it was Home was being made a barren waste by the oppression of alien wills and alien strength and alien laws.

Ireland was Home, for the men and women of '32, of '47 and '48, but a Home where love and pity and religion and mercy and God had fled. America's friendly shores stretched out hands of appeal to the weary sufferers of Erin, and across the stretch of waters, the pilgrims came—seeking the land of promise—lured on by the vision of plenty and peace and prayer and protection "neath genial skies. The Promised Land was looming up before eager eyes. Dreams were soon to be converted into realities. Tyranny was soon to be overcome by tranquility. Poverty was about to yield to plenty. Persecution was now but the back-ground for peace. Famine was to be swallowed up in fortune. Happiness is now to succeed the horrors of home. But—God's ways are not our ways. His thoughts are not ours. The impoverished ranks of the exiles. The ships that left Ireland, filled with men and women exalted unto heights of ecstasy, in expectation of the good things that were in store, soon became floating carriers of foul pollution. Plague and pestilence, ship-fever and cholera, soon spread their deadly ravages and the ships of good hope soon became pest holes of disease, disaster and despair. The grim hand of terror struck thousands down and the very ocean lanes were marked from coast to coast by the fetid ranks of death. Corpses were cast into the ocean by the thousands. And when this little Isle was reached and the ships touched its shores they brought death and disease as their company. Deep in the wide trenches lay buried the hopes and the fears, the joys and the sorrows of the bright-eyed, cheery-hearted pilgrims of Erin. More than 18,000 were buried here or at Montreal, or cast into the briny deep.

The Rainbow Road

Truly, the land of promise, the rainbow road of rest and laughter, became the pit of pestilence, the foul smelling, disease-schaling region of death. Within sight of friendly people, where homes beckoned, and kindly fires of friendship burned on welcoming hearths, the people of God saw the haven of peaceful earthy shores denied them.

Today, descendants of this great people, members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, impelled by common loyalty to the past and standing beneath the shadow of that great granite Cross, which the generosity of your noble society has erected on this spot of memory, we gather about the graves of our dead, to reverence the little dust that once was Ireland's fairest children—to do memory to sainted ones who were true to God and country, unto death—yes—unto the death of the cross.

We stand on hallowed ground today. And we are privileged to do so. Grosse Ile is the Holy Land of Ireland. Here in a special way His feet trod—going about to soothe and comfort. Here His spirit hovered in the days of evil, and hovers still now in the days of peace and calm. Here did Jesus choose to come and dwell among His own. He came unto His own here and His own did receive Him. In love, in life, in sorrow in death. The presence of Jesus here made this Island a tabernacle of resignation, for the fever victims in their earth-passing. He was with them in '32, in '47 and '48—He is with them even now—His presence makes this green Isle Holy Land for the Irish.

Kneel here today, dear friends, take up this dust in the hollow of your hands and press it to your lips. For this dust is sacred, it is hallowed. This dust is Ireland. Kneel upon this soil today and consecrate yourselves to the God to whom your forefathers were consecrated when they died. They were God's children then as you are now—God's children in more than one sense—for, had they renounced their Faith in Christ never would this lonely Isle have been their fever home of rest in death.

Shat of Stordied Import

Grosse Ile in its memories—its martyred dead—the great granite Cross—the shaft of stordied import—has its lesson for us pilgrims to its hallowed shores.

The dead speak to us. 'Mid the bright skies of heaven with the sun of glory shining down, I can see this spot peopled now with myriad forms! Bethlehem's plains were not more bright that fateful night of Christmas when the Angel choirs heralded the earth-coming of the Messiah to startled shepherds' ears! Here now, above our heads, are the spirit forms of the victims of '32, of '47 and '48. They are grouped about the cross of memory. Their countenances are aglow. Peace and radiance are theirs. They look down upon the children of the Gael—and from their hearts goes up the cry: 'Children of Erin! be faithful as we have been. Be true to Faith and Fatherland! Fear no earthly evil, for the Almighty is with you. Be steadfast and true to God as we have been; and God will be your reward as He has been to us. Here on the site of so much sorrow and distress, we stand upon a Tomb. Grosse Ile is the Tomb of the dead. By the thousands He buried here our very own. This spot is one giant coffin whose sides and whose covering are the earth. It is a Tomb for the bodies of the dead.

A Tomb? Yes! But a Cradle too. The Tomb that welcomed home the weary dead also witnessed the birth of liberty to the descendants of those shrouded in the grave. Grosse Ile, sepulchre of the dead, stands for Canada—the home of the living—the land of liberty and freedom—the land where the Irish live in peace and plenty and power—where the Irish share side by side with every other nation, the freedom to live, to worship God, to serve altar and country and build up home and happiness. Not in vain did our forefathers die upon these friendly shores—since their death has won for the living so priceless a heritage.

Altar of Patriotism

Grosse Ile is a Tomb. It is a Cradle. It is also an Altar of Patriotism, a Beacon-Light of Hope. Every emigrant that passes this way, coursing down the mighty river, eager to find a real home in the welcoming land of Canada—see this mighty shaft of Memory, the Cross of Christ, standing silent—sentinel-like over this island sanctuary. They seek the meaning of the Celtic Cross; and they are told the sombre story of '32, of '47 and '48. And the narrative thrills. It fills the heart of the new-come with patriotism towards the land which was so anxious to make its verdant shores Home for the Exile. It makes the emigrant hate tyranny and oppression the more. It makes him the more ardent to measure up to the high standard of citizenship required in this glory-land of ours.

Members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, friends and lovers of Ireland! let this ceremony be not a passing fancy, idle empty of meaning or of good. The dead speak again to the living. The Holy Land of patriotism is a country peopled again with your very own. See the Tomb yields its dead. Hear their sad story! See the exiles of the New Babylon sigh for sights and sounds of Home! This land, the new home of freedom gave the weary re-laden exiles homesickness for the Old Land. For, Ireland is always true to the heart of the Irishman. Even though it be "the most disastrous Country that ever yet was seen." It is home—though famine and terror and persecution walk its island confines. It is Home still. For, it is Erin—dear, distracted Erin—Erin, sweet Emerald Isle of the sea. So did it seem to the victims of '32, of '47 and '48 as they waited here for the approach of death to free them from their sorrow. So let it seem to us today. Let Grosse Ile speak to us of Home. Let this spot make us, too, homesick for Ireland—for all that Ireland means and is—for Irish hopes and Irish hearts—for Irish aims and Irish hearts.

Freedom in a Blessed Land

Today, thank God! we enjoy freedom in a blessed land. Let us cast our glances and our prayers across the seas from this sanctuary of a nation's dead. And whilst saying a prayer for the Ireland that is at rest here, let us breathe a prayer to God through the intercession of Irish dead for the Ireland that is living beyond the waters. Let us pray for Ireland in every land and clime. Let us pray for Ireland—the little spot of faith and hope and charity and love for Fatherland—that is in every Irishman's heart.

And thinking of everything that Ireland means to us Irishmen—faith in homeland, let our thoughts go back across the waters of the Atlantic to make the poet's words our memory-picture in closing: "When I behind your mountains hold—Your noble lakes and streams—A mingled tide of grief and pride Within my bosom teems. I think of all your long dark thrall Your martyrs brave and true; And dash apart the tears that start—We must not weep for you, dear Land—We must not weep for you!"

Libera Chanted

After the sermon a solemn Libera was chanted by Rev. Father O'Hara, C.S.R., assisted by Rev. Father Foster, C.S.R., and Rev. Father Walter, C.S.R., of Newburgh, N.Y. Following the service the procession reformed and wended its way to the monument where the wreath was deposited by Rev. Father O'Reilly, C.S.R., of St. Patrick's, Quebec, and Rev. Father Naylan, of Philadelphia, both of whom spoke and speeches were likewise delivered by Miss M. T. Mulvaney, State President of the Ladies Auxiliary, A.O.H. for Rhode Island; Miss Mary Brady, State Vice-President of the Ladies Auxiliary A.O.H. for Rhode Island; Mr. James Hewitt, President of the Quebec Division, A.O.H., C. F. Moran, State President of the A.O.H. for California, and A. B. Cain, State President for Oregon.

President Hewitt in the course of his address extended a cordial welcome to the outside delegates and assured them that the members of the Quebec Division of the A.O.H. will ever consider it their duty to guard and preserve the monument erected in memory of 1847 as long as the organization continued to exist and he was convinced that as long as the Irish or a true descendant of the race lived in Quebec he would deem it his sacred duty to keep the torch of patriotism burning.

In addition to the out-of-town officials already mentioned there were the following:—M. Hart, of Division No. 8, Chicago; F. G. Stewart, of Division No. 2, Montreal; Mr. Stewart, T. Donohue, Recording Secretary, of Division No. 7, Montreal; W. Lamonte, Treasurer of Division No. 1, Montreal; Mrs. Lamonte, Vice-President of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Division No. 2, Montreal; Miss Carrie M. Aloon, State Secretary, Rhode Island; Mrs. Annie McCarthy, Chairman of Irish History, Rhode Island and her daughter; Mrs. Mary Gallagher, County President of Providence, R.I.; Miss Mary Harvey, County President of Washington County, R.I.; Miss Catherine Donohue, Treasurer of Division No. 8, Providence, R.I.; Mrs. Julia T. Myers, Past State Secretary of Rhode Island and her daughter.

The sail on the River was a very pleasant one and the American visitors were charmed with the beauty of the scenery. They expressed their deep appreciation of the cordiality which they had met on all hands since their coming to Canada.

REFORESTATION IN OLD ENGLAND

Lord Lovat Tells Of Britain's Determination To Restore Her Forest Wealth

A distinguished visitor to Canada carried here on Saturday on the Canadian Pacific Steamer Montcalm in the person of Major General Lord Lovat, Chairman of the British Empire Forestry Commission, with a delegation who are on their way to Ottawa to attend the British Empire Forestry Conference which will open there on Wednesday. This is Lord Lovat's second visit to Canada. His first was at the time of the Tercentenary Celebration held here in 1908.

Accompanying Lord Lovat are:—Lieut. Col. Courthope, M.C., M.P., Chairman of the British Forester Association; Sir James G. Calder, Professor R. S. Troupe, head of the Forestry School, Oxford University; Dr. A. W. Bothwick, a research officer; Dr. J. W. Monro, Entomologist; Mr. J. R. Ainslie, from Nigeria; Mr. E. H. Battiscombe, from British East Africa; Mr. W. A. Robertson, from India; Mr. A. C. Forges, delegate from Ireland; Mr. C. S. Trevor of London, all forestry scientists, several of whom are accompanied by their wives and families.

Lord Lovat and party were met on arrival of the Montcalm by Lieut. Col. R. M. Beckett, of Quebec, who is a member of the governing council, of the British Forestry Association, and who attended a meeting, held in England in March last which was presided over by His R.H.H. Prince of Wales. Mr. G. C. Picher, Supt. of Quebec Provincial Government Forestry Service and his assistant Mr. Bedard, who previously met and worked with Lord Lovat on forestry problems.

Lord Lovat who had charge of all the British forestry operations during the Great War, is a splendid type of the British soldier and gentleman. Speaking of the British Empire Forestry Conference, Lord Lovat said: "After spending Sunday and Monday in Montreal we shall proceed to Ottawa to organize the conference, which we expect will have far-reaching effects in forestry education. On Thursday we shall adjourn our meeting in order to make a tour of inspection of all the centres of forestry operation in the Province of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, returning later to Ontario. The British delegation includes forestry scientists and we have come over to Canada to observe and learn the forestry methods in this country as well as the industries which are operated in that connection. England has but a small forest area in comparison to Canada, yet her forests were depleted by two-thirds to meet the emergencies of the late war. Now we are determined to recover this loss by practical reforestation, and it is for this reason that we have come over here to get practical information."

Under the impetus of crop prospects Western business sentiment is steadily growing more cheerful, according to the fortnightly report of the Union Bank of Canada, issued in Winnipeg Wednesday. The crop continues to make rapid progress. It is as yet too early to forecast the yield, but the generally bountiful harvest now in promise makes it clear that a great influx of labor will be needed to handle the coming crop, the report states. This report is based on returns from 194 points, which with the exception of half damage around Winnipeg, are distinctly favorable.

Sixty-four points in Alberta indicate continuance of satisfactory conditions. Twelve points report hail, but the area has been ideal for growth. Wheat is in splendid condition, with plenty of moisture. All other cereals are doing equally well, with the exception of rye, which will be light. Abundance of feed for live stock is promised.

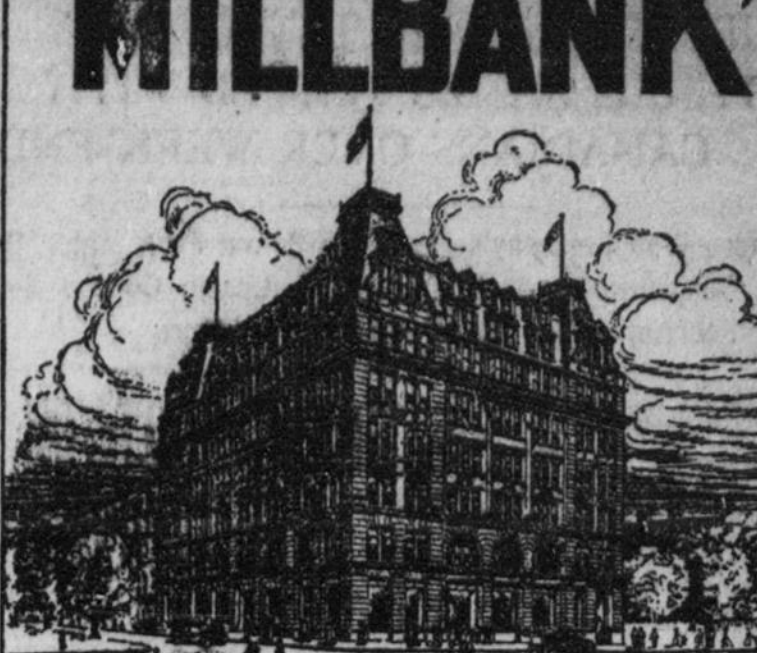

Rain and moisture conditions have been general in Saskatchewan, according to most of the returns. Local damage has resulted from hail. In northern Saskatchewan the greater part of the wheat is heading out, and the crop is looking the healthiest in years. In southern Saskatchewan cutting of the earlier sown wheat will begin the first week of August. Regina district has an exceedingly promising crop. Central Saskatchewan has a good looking crop, although Yorkton may have had more rain than needed.

Extreme heat in Manitoba has sent the crop rapidly ahead, and hastened the ripening. Most of 40 reporting points state that general crop conditions were never better. At many points wheat is virtually all headed. Present outlook suggests that cutting will be general in three weeks.

highest skill in the process of manufacture. Granite and special cement are the main ingredients, and the production is controlled by continuous laboratory tests. When the various sections of this rock-concrete pipe are cemented together they form what is really a homogeneous mass of great strength and durability. The arrangement leads itself to very rapid and economical construction.

I never saw an off-removed tree, nor an off-removed family that thrived as well as those that were settled.

QUEBEC TOOK 1 GAME IN THREE FROM CANADIANS

QUEBEC DROPPED TWO OF THE THREE GAMES PLAYED WITH CANADIANS OVER WEEK-END

Visitors Won Saturday's Contest 7-3 And First Match Of Doubleheader Yesterday 2-1 — Locals Copped 3-2 Fourteen-Inning Victory In Second Fixture

Canadians took two of the three contests played with Quebec over the week-end, the visitors taking Saturday's fixture 7-3 and securing an even break in the double-header yesterday, winning the first game 2-1 while the locals came out on top in the second contest, which went fourteen innings, by a score of 3-2.

The locals outlasted the visitors in all three contests while they also fielded in better style, having only three misplays chalked up against them while Canadians had eight. However, the visitors made up for their errors by cracking out hits when the locals threw away a number of chances to tally through their inability to hit safely with runners on the path.

The two games yesterday were thick full of spectacular baseball, both teams putting up as good a brand of ball as has been witnessed on the local diamond this season.

Keay, who twirled the only contest that the locals won, counted the winning run in the fourth inning frame as the moundman opened the inning with a single, went to second on Major's sacrifice, held up at third when Carmel cracked out a one-base blow and crossed the plate on Klinger's long sacrifice fly to Boole in right field. This brought to an end the longest Eastern Canadian League game played here this summer.

Canadians opened the scoring in the fourth with one run on two hits and a steal. Army, who had starred off with a single and stolen second, crossing the plate on a double by Delfie. The visitors countered again in the sixth when Delfie cracked scored O'Rourke who had singled previously.

Quebec evened the score at two-all in their part of the sixth on three hits, a walk and a sacrifice fly. Klinger, the first man up, worked his way to second on a single, then sent him to second with a single, and Wingo beat out a bunt, filling the bases. Deostiers hoisted a long sacrifice fly that scored Klinger and after Kramer had fled out Jennings came across with a home-bagger that sent Martin across the pan with the tying run.

Canadians threatened in the seventh when they bunched two hits and a sacrifice but a straight peg to the plate by Kramer in centred out off Boole. Quebec came near scoring in the tenth but Klinger was caught sliding for the plate.

The locals counted the winning run in the fourteenth when Keay crossed the plate on a long sacrifice fly by Klinger.

In the first game yesterday the visitors counted one run in the first inning, and their second and last one in the third. The locals counted their only tally in the fourth on Klinger's triple and a single by Martin.

Saturday's contest was not as spectacular as that of yesterday, the visitors winning the game in the second inning when they scored six runs on as many hits and an error.

Umpires Blunt and Bruneau came in for a lot of abuse during this game on account of some close decisions, which from a spectator point of view were all against the home team, and a number of the fans swarmed around the "Umps" after the game, with blood in their eyes.

However, the much more unprovoked mainly through the intervention of Dr. Odillon Leclerc, Chairman of the Athletic and Sports Commission of Quebec, who acted as peacemaker.

LEONARD MEETS TENDLER TONIGHT

Lightweight Champion Will Battle Most Logical Contender In 15 Round Bout

New York, July 22.—Becky Leonard, lightweight king, will battle his logical and most dangerous contender in the opinion of ring critics when he meets Lew Tendler, Philadelphia southpaw in a 15-round title match tomorrow night at the Yankee Stadium.

The Leonard-Tendler go is one of the few "natural" matches for a championship that have been arranged in any boxing division this year.

Leading contenders in other classes have been forced for the most part to remain in the back-ground. Tendler, however, is getting his second chance within a year at the 135-pound crown.

Leonard, who has held the lightweight throne against all comers for the past six years, will face his rival with the backing of a majority of experts but there is no lack of confidence of victory in the challenger's camp.

According to their handlers, both men will enter the ring at the top of their form. Leonard, despite his comparative inactivity for the past year has displayed old-time form in training. Tendler, with the knowledge that he gave the titleholder one of the hardest fights of his career when they met in a 12-round engagement at Jersey City last summer, believes that he will turn the tables in decisive fashion this time.

Both boxers rested today at their homes after several weeks of preparation. They will weigh in tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. Weight forfeits of $10,000 have been deposited by each pugilist.

CANADIAN IN CHESS TOURNEY

Morrison Of Toronto Will Compete In American Congress At Lake Hopatcong

New York, July 22.—(By Canadian Press).—That Canada will be represented in the masters' tournament to be held in connection with the Ninth American Chess Congress at the Hotel Alamac, Lake Hopatcong, August 5-29, was made certain by the receipt yesterday of the entry of J. B. Morrison of Toronto, Canadian champion who made such a fine showing against Capablanca, world's champion in the international tournament in London last year.

Morrison is recognized as the Quebec's first player and his participation, together with that of D. Janowski, French champion will add in international flavor to the forthcoming contest.

After all fellows, umpires are like the rest of us and are liable to make mistakes, though it is understood they are not supposed to. Still they do blunder now and again the same as the rest of us. It was an exceedingly good thing that the trouble was averted Saturday for it would have only given the city a bad name and caused the baseball fans to be classed as poor losers.

The crowd yesterday gave Umpire Blunt another razzing for a decision he gave and in which he was perfectly right. It happened with Jennings on first base and Carmel at bat in the second game.

Carmel hoisted a high fly, which landed between O'Rourke and Lawson about three feet in front of the plate and then bounced into foul territory. Carmel reached first safely and Jennings landed at third.

The umpire called it a foul ball and mentioned Carmel back to bat and sent Jennings back to first base.

This decision was perfectly right as a ball landing on fair ground between first and home, or third and home, and bouncing into foul territory is, according to the rules a foul ball. Fans would do well to read the rules and in which case this and this would prevent a lot of unnecessary crabbing and make the life of an umpire a whole lot easier.

There is a strong possibility that at least a couple of new players will be seen in uniform with the Quebec team before the three game series with Three Rivers starts today, is completed. The locals have a good team at present but are badly in need of pitchers. With a couple of good slab-artists added to the roster the club would climb up quickly.

Oscar Deschamps of Montreal, who has fought here a couple of times, will meet Frankie Bull for the lightweight championship of Canada. In Montreal Wednesday evening, Bull is the recognized present titleholder.

Kid Dube of Lewiston, Me., and Chris Newton of Toronto, have been matched for a return bout here next Monday, though this time it will be over the fifteen round rope. Newton outpointed Dube in ten rounds a week ago.

ROYAL RIFLES AT THE RANGES

Sergt. F. Martin Was High Scorer At Shoot Saturday C. Knowles Second

Quite a number of the members of the Royal Rifles of Canada journeyed to the ranges at St. Joseph de Levis on Saturday to participate in the weekly shoot of the Regiment. Some pretty fair scores were put on despite a tricky wind and a smoky atmosphere. Sergt. F. Martin leading the score with a total of 32 for the shoot at the 200, 400 and 600 yard distances. C. Knowles was next with 28 while W. J. Mullis with 29 finished in third position.

Sporting Notes

Joe Delfie, who has been playing the outfield for the locals for the greater part of the season, was released Saturday. Joe was offered a permanent position at Cap de Madeline at a good salary and decided to accept this preference to playing baseball. He asked for release and his request was granted.

Pitcher Barnes has been sold by Canadians to Royals. Barnes is one of the best pitchers in the Eastern Canada League and according to reports will be given a trial with the Chicago White Sox before long.

Umpire Blunt and Bruneau were certainly given a razzing by the crowd at the game Saturday afternoon on account of some close decisions which seemingly always were against the home club. Both "umps" were certainly a bit off-color and they are lucky to get off after the game as the did for the crowd that awaited them apparently meant some business. The "umps" can thank Dr. Odillon Leclerc, Chairman of the Athletic and Sports Commission of Quebec for their safety, for had not the physician stepped in and acted as peacemaker, there sure would have been some trouble.

After all fellows, umpires are like the rest of us and are liable to make mistakes, though it is understood they are not supposed to. Still they do blunder now and again the same as the rest of us. PROBLEMS OF BILINGUALISM

In Schools Discussed At Imperial Education Conference In London Recently

(London Times)

The Imperial Education Conference considered the bilingual problem and problems arising out of the use of a medium of instruction of a language which is not the home language of the pupils. Dr. Viljoen (Union of South Africa) said that the Act of Union provided for full equality of treatment of the two official languages, English and Dutch, in South Africa, and he explained the practical application of the provisions of the Ordinance, in respect of the two languages, both as media and subjects of instruction, in the primary and secondary schools of the Cape. Doubtful cases, that is to say, where pupils possessed an almost equal knowledge of both languages, were, the speaker said, left to the decision of the parents; but where the parents exercised no option, it was the duty of the principal teacher, if necessary, in consultation with the local education authority, to determine which language was the home language of the pupil. All cases of dispute were finally submitted to the Department for decision. The rights of bilingual teachers who had entered the service of the Department before the passing of the Ordinance were fully safeguarded. Every pupil was taught the second language as a subject of instruction, unless the parents otherwise desired, and the regulations required an equality of standard of proficiency in both languages.

Referring to some of the problems arising out of bilingualism, the speaker expressed the opinion that in no case should pupils be allowed to begin simultaneously the study of both languages. In the primary school, instruction in the second language could begin in the lowest standard, but reading should be deferred to Standard II, or the age of eight, and no written composition should be given before Standard IV, or the age of 10. The second medium should not be used as a medium until the pupil had acquired sufficient knowledge to follow with comparative ease the instruction given in it.

Mr. J. R. Firsi (India) said that in India multi-lingual conditions prevailed; there were roughly 147 languages. In his own Province, the Punjab, trilingualism was a fact, and it was educationally a most unpleasant fact. He attributed most of the educational troubles to it, and believed that no real advance could be made until the triangle was solved. There were many handicaps in any bilingual system. Schuchardt once remarked that a bilingual person might have two strings to his bow, but they were strings of rather slack, and that the three souls which the ancient Roman said he possessed owing to his being able to talk three different languages were probably very inefficient souls after all. But facts were facts. Statesmen and politicians should not be misled by the claims of the educationists. Nothing should be done until the educationists were brought to their senses and not retrograde, but progress which might be harmful to the intellectual and cultural development of his people.

Professor G. H. T. Ross (India) discussed the question of the exact value to the child of his mother tongue being the medium of instruction through which he was to acquire that culture which put him in touch with the modern world. In the case of millions of children in the Empire their mother-tongue was quite unfit to be such a medium of instruction. It was important to decide how soon that language should be dropped as a means of acquiring general culture. A second important question was the exact value of bilingualism as a force in the child's development.

Mr. H. E. Bowman (Palestine) explained the difficulties of linguistic instruction in Palestine and neighbouring countries. He pointed out the special difficulty of finding suitable text-books for the teaching of English, and gave it as his opinion that for advanced scientific study English was probably the most suitable medium in Oriental countries of the Empire.

The old order changeth not, and green apples and colts are still as closely knit together as hain and eggs.

July22x2IRISH READING
RECORDEDTo Those Wishing To Acquire
A Working Knowledge Of Erin's HistoryA correspondent asks for the name of a few books which would provide a small working knowledge of Irish history, literature, folklore and general background. It is a much larger order than at first appears, for if one suggests anything that does not cover both sides of all the disputes that have arisen in Ireland, one will not only be blamed for partiality, but will run
the risk of misleading the student,
who might be better off in his ignorance than with a one-sided view of what is known as history. If all Irishmen would read both sides of their disputes and verify the facts
they would soon get together, realizing that grievous errors were made on both sides of all the feuds that have existed since the time of Strongbow, and long before that.
2,000 years ago, when Cuchulainn and Queen Maeve represented the two hostilities of that time. It is to this ancient period that the student should first go for his background.
The book that is indispensable for the ordinary reader is Dr. F. W.
Joyce's "Social History of Ireland,"
in two volumes, lavishly illustrated,
the second edition published in 1913. There is a preface note following the title which indicates the flavor of the books. "The place,
time, author and cause of writing
of this book are: its place is Ireland, Dublin, its time is the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and three; the author is Patrick Weston Joyce, Doctor of Laws; and the cause of writing the same book is to give glory to God, honor to Ireland, and knowledge to those who desire to learn all about the old Irish people."Joyce and O'Grady.
Dr. Joyce wrote a great number of shorter books dealing with special aspects of his subject, including A Shorter Social History of Ireland
in one volume for those who do not care for the more exhaustive study. In his big work he gives a list of authors and authorities containing 374 items, among which may be found nearly every book on ancient Ireland worth considering.
Two of the older books that cannot be ignored are Eugene O'Curry's Manuscript Materials of Irish History and his Manners and Customs of Ancient Ireland, the latter in two volumes. These are source books for all later writers and readers.
Standish H. O'Grady's Silva Gael-lica is another important book.
The first volume contains the Irish text and the second the English translation. The work of his son, Standish James O'Grady, should be known to all students of the Irish tradition. "His History of Ireland:
the Heroic Period, with its epic narrative of Cuchulainn, is a work of superlative beauty, and the History of Ireland: Critical and Philosophical, leads the reader to regret that it never passed beyond the first volume. A selection from this author's work is published in Every Irishman's Library, a series of volumes issued by the Talbot Press, which in themselves comprise enough to store the mind with Irish lore. An excellent book to give the story of the more prominent Irish tales is E. J. Young's Keltic Wonder Tales, which contains fourteen of these enchanting narratives, but Lady Gregory's four volumes of translations from the ancient Irish are sufficient in themselves to give the average reader
all that he desires of the old-world life.

Legend and History.

Lady Gregory's four volumes are Cuchulainn of Muirtheimne, Gods and Fighting Men, Saints and Wonders and Poets and Dreamers. She has published a number of other books,
but these are of the ancient world
and are unique in their quality. Dr.
Joyce has versions of the Old Keltic
Romances in one of his volumes.
From the archaeological side, Colonel Wood-Martin's Pagan Ireland and Traces of the Elder Faiths of Ireland are interesting reading, and George Petrie's Round Towers in one of several books devoted to this subject worth consulting. When we come to more modern times the real difficulty begins because there are two sides to all the histories, or nearly all of them, the English side and the Irish side. The reader who reads only one side and refuses to believe anything that the other side says will never understand the Irish question, that standing an entirely impartial historical, one is compelled to read both sides, selecting the most reliable chroniclers. It is astonishing how little difference there is between them, after all. Keating's history for early times, translated by John O'Mahony, is a classic, and for later times there is Thomas Moore's history, Thomas Wright's history in three volumes, from the English side, and O'Halloran's history in three volumes from the Irish side.
Langman's Ecclesiastical History of Ireland in four volumes gives another phase of Irish life, and Robert King in his History of the History of the Holy Catholic Church in Ireland treats it from the Protestant standpoint. Dr. George T.
Steele has two interesting volumes,
Ireland and the Celtic Church and Ireland and the Anglo-Norman Church, which deal with an early period.

The Dublin Renaissance.

Two books indispensable to an understanding of the last century
in Ireland are John Mitchell's Jail
Journal, which is an English classic;
the same writer's History of Ireland, covering the period from 1801 to 1850, explains as possibly no other book so well does, the cause of bitterness and strife in Ireland and ill-feeling towards England in the last two generations. Efforts of various descriptions were made to maintain the Irish tradition
after the Union. Irish music attracted attention and Edward Bunting, organist of St. Anne's Belfast, in Belfast, in 1812 assembled a number of Irish harpers and collected a large number of their traditional songs. The ancient poetry was recollected by the work of men like Samuel Ferguson, James Clarence Mangan, Denis McCarthy and others. Douglas Hyde was one of the first to revive the old lyric literature by his Love Songs of Connacht, which was followed by Religious Songs. This was in 1893, but before this, there began the mystical movement in Dublin
which more than anything established the Irish Literary Revival.
Ernest A. Boyd's book, Ireland's Literary Renaissance is the book beyond all others to give the student an account of the writers and the literature of Ireland from that time. Lloyd R. Morris has an excellent little volume, The Celtic Dawn. The developments of the last twenty years have been very swift. Sydney Brooks' book, The New Ireland, published in 1907,
may be read to contrast with subsequent proceedings. Ernest Boyd gives a full bibliography in his book up to 1913. Students should

EXCITES ISLAMTo Those Wishing To Acquire

Erin's HistoryCairo, July 22.—The Hedjaz dispute continues. Heated Egyptian Muslims in the press are heartily abusing Hussein as "King of Brigands and Camel Drivers" and the use of other offensive epithets suggests reprisals, many of which are most preposterous. One proposal made is the convocation at Cairo of a pan-Islamic conference representative of all Moslem independent states to depose King Hussein and constitute an international Moslem administration of Hedjaz.
The Cairo representative of the Hedjaz Government declares that the trouble arose through the sending by the Egyptian government of a separate medical contingent from a part of the mahmal, occurs.
King Hussein did not object to the regular medical contingent as sent on former occasions, but could not accept a separate mission because since the pilgrims yearly comprise the subjects of France, Britain, Spain, Holland and so forth, he might eventually be compelled to accept a medical mission, of which possibly some would not be a purely medical character.
Incidentally the representative of the Hedjaz Government confirmed the local report that 2000 pilgrims from Yemen had been attacked by Wahabites, who massacred all but 50
of them.SEVERAL FAST TRAINS

STEAM NAVIGES.

For anyone who has experienced the speed and ease of traveling from the use of pick and shovel, there is a peculiar satisfaction in watching the remorseless way in which a steam navy bites a ton or more at once from the face of a railway cutting or other excavation. The machine in practice is a self-propelled excavator, fitted with a long boom carrying a bucket, mounted on trucks or cable tracks. The machine carries a cross arm at the end of which is a bucket armed with teeth of man-ganese steel. Even a small machine will dig anything from 40 cubic yards an hour in stiff clay up to 50 cubic yards in soft loam. The three machines recently supplied by a British firm, for use on a harbour contract abroad, were of a much heavier type. The excavation had to be made through heavy rock and the machine applied weighed 80 tons. Between the extreme excavators in use standard British excavators handling anything up to 120
cubic yards an hour in blasted rock and 300 cubic yards in sand.large number of their traditional

IS A PARADOXChanging Customs Of People, And Break Up Of Ancient Social SystemPeking, July 22.—It has been generally expected that the widespread confusion throughout China would result in a serious check to foreign trade. The fact that so many provinces are either engaged in war or overrun by the bandits necessarily affects commercial confidence, and this is proved by the standstill in business in many up-country regions and by the large accumulation of capital in Hong-Kong and Shanghai. It has been brought for safety instead of being employed in financing trade.
The boycott of Japanese goods, which has assumed serious dimensions during the past two months, was expected further to affect commercial returns.
The Customs figures for the half year, however, have falsified these forebodings and given proof of the extraordinary vitality of trade in China. The Customs revenue is even if it is not as high as it was made for the increase consequent upon the application of the effective 5 per cent tariff for part of the period, there is a net gain of $2,000, 000 (225,000) compared with the "normal" figures for the corresponding period last year. When it is considered that the principal import of piece-goods has been unusually low,
and Japanese imports during June were only half the previous monthly average, it is remarkable that the total volume of trade has not only been maintained, but actually increased.The explanation is simple enough.
It is that the Chinese are fast awak-
ing to the utility of foreign manufactured goods, that their standard of living is steadily rising and that the demand for foreign articles with in the home of the nation is increasing. It is sufficient to maintain and increase foreign imports. In huge areas in the interior trade and enterprises are being stifled to extinction by the chaotic conditions prevalent in the interior. The economic development of the interior, and the regions continues unabated. It is hardly affected by the political chaos and there seems to be no limit to its possibilities.The commercial prospects of a China in a normal, or even in an abnormal condition are almost beyond estimation, and it is plainly to be seen that the industrial nations to establish themselves here commercially. But they are faced with extraordinary conditions, requiring an understanding of the extraordinary character, which only Governments can apply.
There are great debts owing to foreigners which the Chinese Government can never liquidate, until the foreign Powers consent to an increase in the tariff. There is the decline in foreign trade resulting in danger to foreign investments and property, and in constant violations of treaty rights, which can be stemmed only by international action. The problem of the Debt is easy of solution, and the re-establishment of foreign trade is a matter of principle, a matter of a small increase in the foreign tariff.If the interested powers neglect these necessary steps—and they are now humming and having about it—
they will have endless trouble on their hands and the future of the country is uncertain. The future, and the certainty that the end damage, traded upon which the interests of all
are founded.

N. Y. PRICE TRENDS IRREGULAR; MONTREAL FIRM

NEW YORK PRICE MOVEMENTS WERE IRREGULAR, BUT CLOSING PRICES WERE UNCHANGED

Strong Demand For Certain Railroads Frightened Bear Traders And Turned Most Of List Upward Again—Oils Were Sensitive—Usual Leaders Moved In Narrow

New York, July 21.—Today's stock market gave concrete evidence of the changed speculative sentiment. Prices closed somewhat irregular but losses resulting from a wave of short selling in the oils generally were recovered on last minute buying and short covering.

Opening prices were somewhat higher than yesterday's closing. Professional traders concentrated the pressure against the oil shares, which were sensitive to selling because of the recent cut in crude oil prices.

A strong demand for stocks of the eastern group of railroads, however, frightened the bear traders and turned practically the entire list upward, with the result that most of the early losses were wiped out.

The usual leaders moved in a narrow range. United States steel was unchanged on a small turnover while Studebaker and American Can eased fractionally.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a decrease in loans, discounts and investments of $66,898,000 and a drop of $9,946,000 in the reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve bank.

Demand deposits declined $39,737,000 and time deposits fell off $5,726,000.

Aggregate reserve totalled $520,869,000 leaving excess reserve of $22,259,250, a decrease of $4,533,230 under the previous week.

Total sales 276,000 shares.

20 Industrials averaged 91.39, net loss .33.

High 1923, 105.35, low 87.64.

20 railroads averaged 80.75, net gain .24.

High 1923, 90.68; low 76.35.

Trading in bonds on the New York Stock exchange today was on a small volume with prices holding firm.

Chief interest in the foreign group centred in the Mexican 4's, which advanced 1 1/2 points. United States government issues were quiet.

Changes in the railroad group generally were small and mostly upward. Industrial issues were strong in dull trading.

Daily Gossip On Leading Stocks

The market for paper and pulp is a very difficult one from the point of view of Canadian export. The United States is finding great difficulty in obtaining a share of the business in competition with Germany, Austria, Holland, Norway, Sweden, and Finland. During the nine months ending March, 1923, the United States shipped to Brazil newspaper to the value of $155,000, and book paper, not quoted to the value of $132,000. Other papers exported are estimated to value roughly $73,000, or a total for the nine months of $360,000, or $480,000 per year.

Brazil imported paper of all kinds in 1922 to the value of $2,250,000. (Commercial Intelligence Journal, issued by Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.)

Bonds of the Dominion of Canada or any province or municipality of the Dominion become legal investments for insurance companies under a new state law effective yesterday, says a report from Boston, Mass.

The general tone of the steel market is one of surprising buoyancy, considering the time of year, and in the marked contrast to the disquieting apathy that prevailed during the early part of the month, says Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News. Not only in the larger iron and steel plants does the present optimism exist, but also in scores of smaller concerns throughout Canada where the upward movement of business is visible.

Conditions in the strike area of Cape Breton are still unchanged. Judging from the present belligerent attitude of the strikers a long struggle may be expected, continues the review. The centre of the existing activity is in Ontario where practically all the industrial firms are working to capacity. Reports from Hamilton, Kingston, Guelph, London and Walkerville are particularly encouraging. Executives contend that the present revival of business is not merely a temporary flurry, but one that will most likely be sustained for some time to come.

Miller & Company, New York, wires that McIntire Porcupine Mines has declared regular dividend—sells ex-dividend August 1st. Dividend payable September 1st.

Tribune Company of Chicago and its subsidiaries, Ontario Paper Co., Ltd., and News Syndicate Co., Inc., of New York, filed complaint with Interstate Commerce Commission, alleging that present rates on newspaper paper from Toronto, Ont., to New York City are unreasonable and ask reparation of $15,000.00 be awarded.

Canada is deeply cutting into the U. S. food exports to the United Kingdom and a number of European countries. These exports from the Republic have so fallen during the last year that that matter has been the subject of a special enquiry with a view to ascertaining the reason.

For example, it has been found that, whereas in 1921 agricultural products formed 78 per cent of the American exports to the United Kingdom, in 1922 the proportion fell to 70 per cent. To Germany these exports formed 34 per cent in 1921 and only 78 per cent last year. Belgium from 77 to 68 per cent and Italy 82 to 79 per cent. These reductions took place in spite of the fact that the American exporters have had the amplest of credits.

The American Government officials no doubt have had an impression that Canada has been getting much of the business that the Republic has been losing and this view is strikingly confirmed by the Canadian export figures.

The Modern Miller says there has been slight revival of buying of flour on the basis of current prices, and shipping directions have been received in sufficient volume to bring about some improvement in average rate of millers' operations, but the expected rush of new crop buying orders holds off from week to week while wheat grows steadily cheaper.

Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement shows bank ratio increased to 75.5 per cent from 75.4 per cent New York Federal Reserve Bank ratio 83.3 per cent against 81.1 per cent previous week.

Strong criticism is heard in Toronto bond circles regarding the call for tenders by Hon. Mr. Fielding on a $22,500,000 block of National Railways fifteen year serial equipment trusts bearing the Dominion guarantee.

The objection lies in the fact that the Finance Minister has called for tenders in lots of $1,000,000 or more. These bonds being serials, for example, are almost certain to be the high tenders for shorter maturities and insurance companies and similar institutions, for the long ones, which would leave only the intermediate durations free.

Chicago, July 21.—Wheat steadied today, showing gains on the distant options at the close. The volume was small but reports of black rust and hot weather damage in the northwest and later of revived export demand, pushed up prices.

Wheat closed 1-8 cents off to 3-4 @ 7-8c higher, with September 99 1-4c to 99 1-2c, December 11.02 1-8 to 11.02 3-8.

Corn showed gains varying from 5-8 to 3-4 @ 1 1/2-5c. Oats were 1-8 to 3-8c higher and provisions were unchanged to 1-8c higher. Closing: Wheat July 11.00 1-4; Sept. 99 1-4c; Dec. 11.02 1-8.

Corn, July 84-34c; Sept. 78 7-8c; Dec. 85 1-8c.

TRADING IN MONTREAL MARKET WAS EXTREMELY DULL, BUT PRICES WERE QUITE FIRM

Winnipeg Railway Was Strong Spot. Gaining 2 Points—Dominion Glass Suffered Greatest Loss, Being Off One Point To 92—Bonds Were Without Feature

Montreal, July 22.—Trading in listed shares on the local stock exchange Saturday was extremely dull and was in fact the least active half session of the year to date.

Despite this dullness the market continued to show the stronger tendency by which it has been characterized since Tuesday.

Only twenty-nine issues came out and of these eight gained ground; four lost points; four were unchanged and thirteen were out in broken lots only.

The least inactive stock was British Empire Steel 2nd, preferred, which advanced 1-4 to 19 3-4. Spanish preferred was second and closed unchanged at 98 1-2. Abitibi and Smelters came third, the former losing half a point at 60, while the latter gained 1-4 at 25 1-4.

Winnipeg Railway was the strong spot, gaining two points at the close of 34. Dominion Glass suffered the greatest loss, being off a point to 92, while the preferred gained 1 1-4 points at the new high of 105.

Total sales, listed, 1,469.

Trading in bonds in local stock market Saturday was dull and without feature.

Total sales $47,300.

A. J. NESBITT BUYER OF OTTAWA-HULL POWER CO.

Whose purchase of the Ottawa and Hull Power Company constitutes one of the most notable deals in the power field for some time.

Montreal, July 22.—(Special)—

One of the largest and most important power deals that have been consummated in Canada in the past few years was successfully concluded here today, when A. J. Nesbitt, head of the firm of Nesbitt, Thomson and Company, on his own behalf, took over the entire ownership of the Ottawa and Hull Power Company, the largest concern wholesaling power in the districts of Ottawa and Hull.

Earlier reports had indicated that perhaps Mr. Nesbitt had associated with him some New York interests, but when the final details were completed today it was found that he was acting solely on his own account and had purchased for his own firm the entire outstanding stock of the big power company.

Mr. Nesbitt has been specializing in public utility and power undertaking for a great many years. The present, however, is the largest deal ever carried out for his personal account.

The Ottawa Hull Power Company owns two hydro-electric plants situated on the Chaudiere Falls, between Ottawa and Hull, on the Quebec side. These two plants have an installed capacity of 31,000 horsepower and with a third unit now being installed will have a total production in excess of 40,000 horsepower.

In addition, the company controls a large undeveloped power at Bryson, 50 miles from Ottawa, capable of the development of 60,000 horsepower. Among some of the principal customers who are large consumers of the company's power are the City of Ottawa Hydro-Electric Commission, the Ottawa Light and Power Co., Canada Cement Co., Hull Electric Co., City of Hull, British-American Nickel and others.

Nature's Own Power for Industry

LIKE a magnet, hydro-electric power is drawing to Canada—INDUSTRIES, POPULATION, PROSPERITY. It is speeding up the development of the resources of our forests and mines; it means marked economy to industries dependent on these resources. The investor's money which makes possible this transformation of idle water power into active, profitable electric energy, benefits both its owner and the nation as a whole.

Hydro electric securities, the obligations of an economically sound and rapidly growing industry, combine all the elements of safety with the assurance of steadily increasing earnings. We are proud to have played a part in the financing of many water power developments.

We have prepared an interesting Booklet on Hydro-Electric Securities. A copy will be mailed on request.

Mr. Scott's Suggestion.
(From the Star).
The suggestion of an Anglo-American League contained in a communication from Frederick George Scott, of Quebec, was thought out and written by that gentleman in the early stages of the Spanish-American war. The communication was mislaid, and while the ideas suggested still apply, they, to a certain extent have been carried out by others, who, however, were yet behind Mr. Scott in their perception of the trend of events leading up to the desired object.

Historic Gavel.
Toronto, July 21—A unique gavel, the gift of the Michigan Grand Masonic Lodge to their Canadian confreres, was presented here at the Grand Lodge session yesterday afternoon. The crossed flags Canadian and American, on the handle lie on silver and are beautifully enamelled.

TAXES AND OTHER MATTERS.
To the Editor of The Chronicle, Quebec, P.Q.

Sir,—While interested and angry politicians are explaining to equally as interested and angry electors, the reason for construction of certain branch railways not going forward, the Senate through several of its members is explaining that it was justified in refusing the grants voted by the Lower House, for the reasons which spokesmen on behalf of the Senate give.

While the country is for the time being saved the expenditure of the twenty-eight millions, which the Commons voted, this is a mere bagatelle compared with the huge sums we are compelled to pay through ordinary taxation channels. For a country that was not one of the principal participants in the Great War, such as France and Great Britain, we are taxed to the very neck. The ingenuity of succeeding Finance Ministers is exercised in every possible direction, in order to extract the necessary funds to not only carry on the Government, but pay the huge deficit involved in the continued operation of the Government owned railways.

The leaders of the party belabor each other in connection with railway operation and deficits. There may be a certain amount of satisfaction in this for the leaders and their enthusiastic followers, but it does not in any way alleviate the condition of the country, or make the burden less heavy to bear, which our small population is carrying.

Plain speaking is required, both by the press and the men who direct our large industrial, commercial and financial institutions. We will lose nothing at all in being honest with ourselves. Although groups may criticize those who point out the necessity for a national inventory and reorganization, the great majority of sincere Canadians will support such a movement. The quicker we realize that we cannot afford to continue paying the taxes we do, and particularly meeting the deficits which we have been paying for the last two or three years, the quicker will we get back to the normal condition that makes for national prosperity.

TOBACCO AND BRAIN POWER

Professors Find Weed Unfavorable To Close Thinking—Celebrities Used It

There is an old rhyme beginning "Tobacco is a filthy weed; (I like it)"

And it comes to mind when reading a book by Prof. M. V. O'Shea on "Tobacco and Mental Efficiency," published by the Macmillan Company. It is the fruit of the investigations of an American Committee to Study the Tobacco Problem which was organized in 1918. Speaking generally, the book is hostile to tobacco, but that does not rob it of interest. That there is a tobacco problem, however, is an assumption that will not be universally concurred in. The fact that the per capita consumption increased in the past sixty years from 1.8 pounds to 7 pounds does not constitute a problem. It may seem a problem to those who regard the use of tobacco as an immoral act, and in the United States and elsewhere—there are such people. There are also physicians who regard it as a destroyer of youth, although we suppose the great majority of physicians smoke. Not even Mr. Bryan, however, has been able to have non-smoking established as one of the fundamentals of religion, although he did succeed in having American Presbyterian clergymen forbidden to practice the habit.

Unfavorable To Thinking.
Generally speaking, the author finds that the use of tobacco is unfavorable to those mental processes which the machinery of the psychologist permits them to examine and measure. These processes are the least important. For example, the non-smokers would probably answer all the popular questionnaires more smartly than the smokers, and thus, perhaps more easily secure employment from the proprietor of some great establishment who had smoked from the age of fourteen. A great many authors, who, we are assured, stand at the head of their profession, were questioned. Practically all of them smoked, and all find the practice helpful to meditation or reflection. Their views might be received with greater respect had Prof. O'Shea been able to give their names. It would be tantamount to "to know," for instance, whether the meditations of Harold Bell Wright are stimulated or retarded by smoking, and whether Amy Lowell derives any mental inspiration from a stout cigar. Knowledge of these details might alter one's views about smoking.

Famous Smokers.
But if these contemporary celebrities remain anonymous, history gives us information concerning the tobacco habits of many famous men. Lincoln, Taft, Roosevelt and Wilson were non-smokers, though Wilson was chiefly in private and ineredible suspicious that Lincoln chewed tobacco. George Washington smoked. So did Gambetta. Bismarck was a notorious smoker as he was a drinker, and held that smoking was essential to statesmen, probably for the reason that it encouraged meditation. General Grant was both a smoker and a drinker, and there was nothing moderate about either practice. The Duke of Marlborough was the first among famous men to be noted for chewing tobacco. For a long time tobacco was preferred in the form of snuff, and addictions included Frederick the Great, Dr. Johnson, Napoleon, George II, T. S. Arthur, Metternich, Gibbon, Marie Antoinette, Voltaire and Robert Burns. Raleigh comforted himself with tobacco in the Tower while the headman was sharpening the axe. Lord Roberts did not smoke. Kitchener did and so did General Gordon, who also associated himself prominently with brandy, according to Lytton Strachey.

A Glorious Band.
Paley, the philosopher, smoked and drank. Thomas Hobbes smoked thirteen pipes every evening up to the age of thirty-two, when the practice came to an abrupt end. Spargen was a cigar smoker, but insisted that he smoked to the glory of God. Richard Porson, perhaps the greatest of Greek scholars, not only smoked moderately, but drank. Among English writers who were smokers are: Kyron, Keats, Pope, Burns, Coleridge, Wordsworth, Browning, Rossetti, Meredith, Fielding, Butler, Dryden, Goldsmith, Garfield, Addison, Johnson, Hogarth, Jenner, Steel, Swift, Moore, Scott, Lytton, Kingsley, Dickens, Tennyson, and Thackeray. Can any one match this list with non-smokers since the time that tobacco was introduced into England? Here indeed, is the very flower of English genius, and we might add later names such as those of Robert Louis Stevenson and George Meredith. We have no doubt that Thomas Hardy smoked. George Bernard Shaw does not smoke; he rather steers. The list of non-smokers of distinction presented in the book is humorous. We find, for instance, President Edward Hitchcock, Robert and William Chambers, John G. Whittier, George W. Childs and men of equal renown.

Judge For Yourself.
There are, however, enough men of distinction in all walks of life to prove that one does not need to smoke to become useful and honored. There are enough smokers to prove that the habit is not fatal to genius. There are enough vigorous, life-long smokers to show that the practice does not invariably lead to an early and highly tubercular grave. One does not attain success by not smoking, but we believe that even smokers would not advise, except in odd cases, that a young man should cultivate the habit. If he does not feel the need of smoking, and he has to the good, the money that he otherwise would spend on pipes and tobacco, on the other hand, if he is a smoker there is no reason

In the world, why he should suppose himself to be accurate and destined to be a trader all his days of some more efficient non-smoker. Smoking is not vital one way or another. It agrees with some people and does not agree with others. Some could not do without tobacco in comfort. Some cannot smoke with comfort. As regards tobacco, a man should be his own doctor.

The distinguished visitor, who was accompanied by other Grand Officers, including Sir John Ferguson, Grand Treasurer, Lieut. Col. Hamilton Widdowburn and A. E. Carlyle, came primarily to attend the annual communication of Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario held at Toronto this week to install the Grand Master at St. John's, Newfoundland but en route between the two cities, the party halted and were given Masonic receptions at Quebec, Trois Rivières and Montreal.
