*Accountant/theatre
buff raises funds for Youville wing*

By Jake Brennan
RECORD CORRESPONDENT

"Life's negatives, well understood, can be positive. It's just up to us to decode it all."

These are the words by which Denyse Tremblay lives her busy life. While turning negatives into positives would surely result in a quick dismissal from her position in the accounting department of Sherbrooke's Commission Scolaire, her ability to look on the brighter side has proven both appropriate and invaluable after work, when she engages in her life's passion — writing and producing plays to raise money for the D'Youville wing of the University Geriatric Institute of Sherbrooke.

Since 1994, Tremblay's Coup de Coeur theatre troupe has staged shows from which all proceeds go toward buying electrically-adjustable beds for residents of institute's D'Youville wing. This year's offering, entitled Rencontre au bar chez Albertine, will be staged April 26 and 27 at Centennial Theatre.

The French-language play is set in a local watering hole which attracts society's underclasses because of its Friday night three-for-one happy hour and ensuing drinking contest. The theatrical celebration of life includes 30 songs performed by a choir accompanied by Minutions, a five-member band.

Hovey Manor the Taj of the Townships

By Sunil Mahtani
SPECIAL TO THE RECORD

When I was about 12 years old, my family planned a trip to India and one of our stops was to be the Taj Mahal. I told my parents I remembered visiting this wonder of the world when I was younger. They said that was impossible, they had never taken me there before.

I was dumbfounded. The image of the Taj Mahal was so indelibly etched in my mind I was certain I had visited it before. I could picture the majestic white structure at the end of a long pathway featuring a pond quite clearly in my mind's eye. One of the reasons for this was that my parents had visited the Taj Mahal, took home movies and played them for us over the years, etching a striking image in my mind that I could conjure up easily. When I actually visited the Taj Mahal in person, I felt a tremendous sense of déjà vu.

This was the same feeling I had the first time I visited Hovey Manor, the country house hotel on the shores of Lake Massawippi just outside the village of North Hatley. The turn-of-the-century estate with a large verandah, white pillars and tastefully appointed Colonial-style rooms has been photographed and written about in newspapers and magazines so often that upon seeing it with your own eyes, you feel a sense of instant recognition.

Add to that the heavy aura of history that surrounds the estate, built in 1900 by Henry Atkinson, an Atlanta businessman who used as his inspiration George Washington's home at Mount Vernon, Virginia, and the atmosphere is simply intoxicating.

For the first half of the century, it was known as "The Birches" since it was built in a birch grove. In 1950, Montrealer Robert Brown purchased the property, converting it into a country inn and renaming it "Hovey Manor."

Almost three decades later, Stephen and Kathryn Stafford purchased the estate and have retained its grandeur while upgrading its facilities.

One of the reasons Hovey Manor receives so much attention is that it is one of the few dining establishments in Quebec to merit the distinction "Table de Prestige." It constantly receives local, national and international awards for its haute cuisine.

Although I have visited Hovey Manor in the past, I had never enjoyed the pleasure of dining there. Thus, when friends from Toronto visited recently, we planned a special lunch for four.

The dining room at the Hovey is a step back in time. It has a Colonial look with a Williamsburg-style chandelier (elaborate decorations featuring tiny lamps with shades), knotty pine walls, an inglenook fireplace featuring an enclave with two small benches for a romantic rendezvous and antiques scattered throughout. An annex with floor to ceiling windows looking out onto the lake is bright and airy, featuring William Morris wallpaper and Bartlett prints on the walls. Happily, the entire establishment is non-smoking!

Everything here seems to be a work of art. Even the china, which is Noritake, made in Sri Lanka; the "Royal Hunt" pattern features rabbit, deer and pheasant on burgundy and deep green.

The wine cellar boasts 900 selections and the menu can send your head spinning before you've tasted a single drop. We knew we wanted to introduce our friends to a Quebec wine, and a Dietrich Jooss from Iberville was recommended.

The Cuvée Spéciale 2000 won an award at the International Eastern Wine Competition. This was a terrific choice, a robust wine with a floral bouquet that seemed to herald in spring.

A basket of warm homemade whole wheat and white buns was served as we all perused the selective à la carte lunch menu. It was such a treat dining with so many others. We felt we could order almost everything, so we each chose one appetizer and one main dish.

The chef does a wonderfully inventive job of creating fusion cuisine at the Hovey, mixing the flavours of different cultures together to create unique dishes with personalities all their own, all while utilizing regional products.

Our four starters were deep-fried dumplings of smoked duck and shitake mushrooms ($8), spicy black bean soup ($5.50), roulade of smoked salmon with Hatley goat cheese ($8) and Mediterranean vegetables in puff pastry ($6). The dumplings were crispy and tasty, surprisingly similar to the Indian samosas, but stuffed with a melange of smoked duck and shitake mushrooms and served with watercress and a tart mango purée. All the dishes were also visual treats, utilizing various-shaped plates to create the maximum effect.

The black bean soup was rich, hearty and well-spiced, the beans perfectly cooked. Olive oil toast rounds floated on top. The roulade was a disappointment. It was basically smoked salmon rolled with a creamy cheese and herb mixture wrapped in leek, but was nothing special, lacking a distinctive flavour. The toast that was served with it was slightly burnt as well. The Mediterranean vegetables were fine; chopped tomatoes, purple onion and green pepper mixed with goat's cheese nestled in puff pastry and served with a tapenade of black and green olives.

Our main courses were prosciutto ravioli with a Brie-basil sauce ($11.50), Atlantic salmon with wildflower honey and ginger ($14), foccacia of chicken and avocado ($12) and Thai beef curry crepes ($13).

The ravioli was a mouth-watering gourmet dish featuring giant, triangular-shaped ravioli stuffed with Italian ham and artichokes covered in a creamy white Brie and basil sauce with puréed plum tomatoes perched on top.

Now I dream of ravioli!

The salmon was grilled to a perfect rosé medium, with a delicate sauce, and served with vegetarian sushi (rolled rice filled with slivered carrots).

Delicious. The foccacia, which our server called a "5-Star Sandwich" was indeed that, filled with chicken and avocado and served with a tempura of hearts of palm. The Thai curry crepes were also exceptional, featuring sautéed beef and mushrooms with a smoked red pepper vinaigrette.

Sweets were simple but effective. The sorbet of the day ($4.50) was a rainbow sherbert served in a half moon slice with each layer containing its own distinctive flavour – kiwi, tropical fruits, pear, mango, little fruit and raspberry. Absolutely refreshing and delicious, served with two half moons of moist shortbread cookies. The fruit crumble ($4.75) was also a hit, served warm with vanilla ice-cream.

Fine coffee and tea ended our meal off just right. Tea-lovers will enjoy their lengthy tea menu, with the leaves served in a Bodem-style pot.

The lunch experience for four, not including wine or gratuity, was $124 (approximately $62 for two people). This is not cheap, but then, how often do you get to visit the Taj?

LegWork extravaganza showcases local talent

A fundraiser for the Theatre Lac Brome endowment fund

By Morri Mostow
RECORD CORRESPONDENT

On May 4, Townshippers will be treated to the kind of show they rarely see — a full-length dance revue.

With a cast of more than 40, LegWork stars Patricia St. Onge and her cloggers, along with other talented Township dancers and troupes. The show mixes such dance and musical styles as pop, rap, country, Irish jigs and Broadway show tunes.

The Moran Irish Dancers, from Richmond, will perform traditional Irish step dancing, while members of Sunshine Theatre and Knowlton Players will present musical theatre numbers choreographed by Joanne Watson and Darleen Bell. Watson will also do a modern, interpretive dance of her own.

Patricia St. Onge, her sister, Melissa, and cousin, Steve Woodard — both in the show — have been clogging for the past 11 years. They trained under the expert tutelage of Waterville's James Naylor and danced with his Rainbow Country Cloggers. Patricia and Steve are reigning U.S. regional champions, having won the North East Duet Clogging Championships three years in a row (2000, 2001 & 2002).

Producer Gerry Wood recently discovered Mansonville's Patricia St. Onge clogging her heart out at a local festival.

"I couldn't believe that such amazing talent was dancing on a hay wagon!" said Wood. "Patricia belongs under klieg lights in a real theatre."

So, the retired Knowlton publican decided to produce a dance extravaganza showcasing Patricia and other local dancers. To ensure a professional-level production, Wood teamed up with local theatre veterans Kate Wisdom and Ralph Steiner.

The result is "LegWork", a full-length dance spectacular, in support of the Theatre Lac Brome Endowment Fund.

Nineteen-year-old Patricia chose 12 of the best Rainbow Country Cloggers to join her in eight numbers, six of which she choreographed. "It's been a pretty big challenge," she said, "since we've only had a few short months to pull it all together."

Other cast members include Meghan Allen, Bill Jarand, Sheila McManus, Juli Senier, Aldyne Kerrigan and Katherine Weldon.

The show promises a lively variety of youthful energy, fancy footwork and high-steppin' fun.

LegWork will perform two shows only: a May 4 matinee at 2 p.m. and an evening performance at 8 p.m., both at the Knowlton Playhouse. Tickets are $15, with proceeds going to the Theatre Lac Brome Endowment Fund. The shows are expected to sell out fast. Call 450-292-3174 for tickets.

Bluesman's mini-tour stops in Sherbrooke

By Jessie Aulis
RECORD CORRESPONDENT

Bluesman Bob Walsh, a Quebec City native, continues his cross-province tour this weekend to promote his latest album, Unforgettable Songs, with a performance at Le Vieux Cloucher in Sherbrooke.

Accompanied by nine musicians on this "mini-tour", Walsh has also been keeping himself despite having shows at the New York's Winter Garden as well as dates in Europe cancelled following September's tragedy in New York.

The show he taped last spring for CBC (French network) at Le Grand Theatre de Quebec will air on April 28, on Les Beaux Dimanches. The Quebec Symphony Orchestra provides the background for Bob Walsh's interpretation of old jazz classics.

"I am anxious to watch it myself," admitted Walsh, who is also expecting to travel to Europe early this summer before he hits the road for the summer festivals circuit.

"I was so nervous on the taping night. I was kind of on the edge because you don't get much practice time. It will be as much as a surprise for me as for people watching it."

Walsh began singing when he was four years old with his father. Sitting at the kitchen table, Walsh explains how his father and him spent countless hours singing along with the radio. In 1985 he moved to Montreal where there's more work for musicians.

Walsh has often been called the best blues vocalist in Quebec. He started out playing rock 'n roll, country and even Beatles selection — basically whatever people wanted to hear. But it didn't take long for Blues to become his trademark.

"I didn't pick Blues, it picked me," admitted Walsh. "This is the type of music that gets to my soul. Of course there's a lot of pain, sorrow and sadness expressed when you sing the blues."

"Sometimes though, it's about disturbing situations which are exposed by songwriters in a light way. Just take a look at country music, it's like white man blues."

Although, this friendly giant has penned a few songs, he considers himself an interpreter.

"Interpretation for me, means taking someone's song and making it my own in the way I relate to it, regardless of what the writer had in mind when he wrote it" he explained, "he said. "It is like a painting; everyone relates to it or sees it differently."

Of the selections Walsh will be performing from Unforgettable Songs at the Vieux Cloucher this weekend, will be classics like 'Over The Rainbow' and 'Summertime'.

du Maurier grants go to 86 Quebec arts groups

Theatre Lac Brome, Orford Arts centre among recipients

Staff

The du Maurier Arts Council recently announced that 86 Quebec arts groups are among the recipients of grants for projects they will be presenting to the public in 2002 and 2003. Twenty of the 86 arts groups are first-time grant recipients.

The 86 groups to receive funding in 2002 represent a broad range of artistic disciplines including visual arts, music, literature, opera, dance, theatre, film and multi-media. Among them are Canton d'Orford's Le Centre d'Arts Orford, for theatre; Quebec's l'Oeil de Poisson, for visual arts and Rimouski's Festi Jazz Rimouski, for music.

"The overwhelming diversity of this year's proposals are a true indicator of the outstanding contribution Quebec organizations are making to the arts community within the province and across the country," said Neil Blanche, President of the Council in a press release.

"In its 32-year history as a supporter of the arts, the du Maurier Arts Council has had the distinct pleasure of assisting a wide variety of Quebec arts organizations fulfill their creative vision and reach out to audiences in new and innovative ways."

The du Maurier Arts Council, one of Canada's foremost private sources of arts funding, announced the distribution of this year's funds after convening recently to assess the grant applications submitted by arts groups from across the country. This year's recipients will share in the $2 million that the Council is distributing to 271 arts organizations across the country.

"The Quebec arts community is truly flourishing and it is important to recognize the remarkable contribution that these groups make to their local communities," added Blanche.

"In addition to providing emerging artists with the opportunity to showcase their works, these productions also play a role in contributing to local and regional economies.

"The Council is pleased to support these important initiatives and applaud this year's recipients for their contribution to the Quebec arts scene."

The du Maurier Arts Council was formed in 1971. Its mandate is to foster innovative artistic projects and activities geared to attracting new audiences to established art forms, thereby contributing to the growth and development of the arts

Azur presents Mémoire d'objet

Staff

The Azur Cultural Centre Gallery, in collaborations with the Creatio Artists Centre, present Mémoire d'objet, a collection of works by Marie Claprod from April 14 to May 19.

A native of Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Claprod has a degree in Visual Arts from UQAM. Her philosophy revolves around the texture in painting, as well as integrating collages of images and objects that evoke suggestions. Her artistic approach centres on the object and its rapport with onlookers.

Many of Claprod's objects appear to be in the third dimension, presented within a frame where painting, drawing, photocopies and objects are intermingled. For the most part, they are common and ordinary objects. Others are "lucky charms" that have a history Claprod wants visitors to ponder about.

The vernissage is scheduled for Sunday, April 14 at 2 p.m. at the Azur Cultural Centre, 81 rue Desjardins, Canton de Magog. The gallery is open Thursday to Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. For more information, call 843-8200.

Amadeus Ensemble to perform Sunday

By Jutta Riegel

SPECIAL TO THE RECORD

The Ensemble Vocal Amadeus de l'Estrie presents a concert of sacred music on Sunday, April 14, 4 p.m. at St. Jean-Baptiste Church on rue Conseil in Sherbrooke.

Four soloists and an orchestra will accompany the choir. The first part of this concert consists of three excerpts from the Vesperae solennes de confessore by Mozart and two cantatas by Anton Bruckner, Libera me in f-minor and the Ave Maria.

The second part is truly dedicated to the patron of the choir with the Requiem Mass by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. The Requiem was Mozart's last work, written in 1791 and left incomplete at his death. The strange circumstances of its composition have given it a legendary aura.

The piece was commissioned by Count Walsegg as a requiem for his wife and was completed by Franz Xavier Suessmayer at the request of Mozart's widow. The Suessmayer version has been considered somewhat controversial by musicologists and critics and alternate versions are often performed. The version presented at this concert is that of André Martin, which stays very close to the traditional version, but eliminates some of its major inconsistencies.

The conductor for this concert will be André Martin who has been musical director of the choir since its foundation in 1991. The soloists are Sylvie Malenfant, soprano, Chantal Denis, mezzo-soprano, Philippe Gagné, tenor, who participated at the choir's recent Rachmaninov performance and Robert Huard, bass, who sang many concerts with the choir such as Bach's St. Matthew Passion and his Mass in B-minor.

The orchestra is composed of 20 musicians mostly from the Eastern Townships.

Organizer chooses theatre to communicate cares

"Music carries good energy and communicates something special," said Tremblay, adding that it has played an integral part in all her productions.

Many of the show's players work in the D'Youville wing, whose beds are by no means restricted to the elderly. Starting from as young as 18, the residents are all permanently bed-ridden, paralyzed from sporting or motor accidents or debilitating illnesses.

"They're there for the rest of their life — that's their address," summarized Tremblay. "It's sad, but that's the way it is. We have to show these people we're there for them because they don't want to die."

Tremblay has chosen theatre as her forum for communicating that care. Her involvement on stage began with a dream of singing and dancing in a musical. She took her first step toward that dream when, in 1993, she was a line prompter in a Bishop's production of Les Belles Soeurs. Tremblay said she enjoyed the experience so much that she began seeking other outlets for her growing interest.

At the same time she knew a resident of the D'Youville wing, and also knew the wing could always use financial help. But beyond her dreams and the one BU production, Tremblay had little theatre experience.

"I have no theatre training, no university baggage," she said cheerfully. "I use my life experience and that of others."

Undeterred by the D'Youville wing's lack of financial backing for her theatre proposal, Tremblay made use of the training she did have — in accounting — to scare up some corporate sponsors. Beyond that, she knew she could rely on a certain take from tickets and beer sales at the show's intermission.

In 1994, the year she ran her first production, proceeds totaled $3,500, which paid for one new bed with remote control. So much effort for one bed might seem incommensurate, but considering that it will act as the main living space for one resident puts the achievement in perspective.

After the initial show's success, the hospital was more than pleased to have Tremblay lend her considerable and varied talents to their cause again. The next year, while looking for actors for her show, she happened upon Gaetan Demers. With 25 years' experience in drama for radio, television and local theatre, Demers was the perfect complement to Tremblay's inexperienced inspiration. He and assistant Lorraine Dubuc have since directed Tremblay's last five shows.

But after six shows, the annual project has remained unquestionably Tremblay's baby. As producer, she drums up sponsors and financing, prepares posters, programs and tickets, and handles media relations for a show she also, incidentally, writes and performs in.

But the middle-aged dynamo, who blows off some of her seemingly boundless energy in karate and step aerobics classes, takes the pressure of the production's responsibilities in her stride.

"Sometimes there's a certain fatigue, which is normal," she said. "But to get people interested in the cause through my plays, that's very rewarding. All the stress and fatigue vanishes when I see that."

That stress builds up over quite a long period. She takes a mere two weeks off after each spring's production, then gets back to writing the following year's show, which usually begins rehearsals in October.

If life were a biblical drama, Tremblay would be ideal for the role of the Good Samaritan. Yet her devotion to the D'Youville wing stems from a broader belief system.

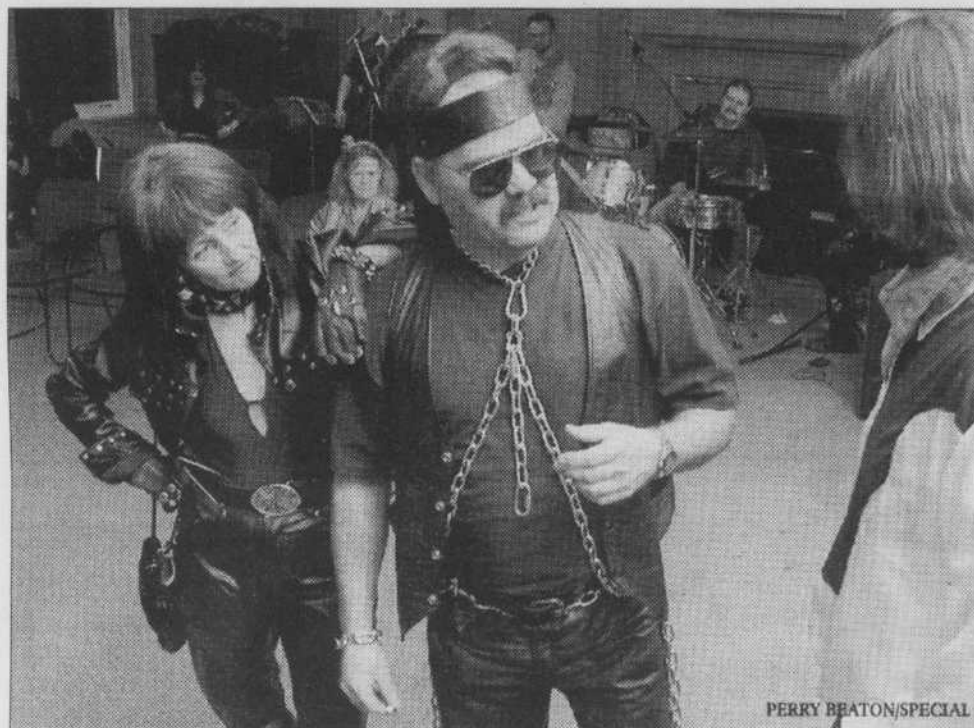

"I'm Catholic, yes, but I believe in life, and that there are people who need us," she said. "What's important to me to be able to do this, it's not complicated. It's believing in the cause, maintaining positive energy and the desire to have fun and apply myself. Nothing more than that."

And she is very aware of the multiple benefits her devotion produces.

"All at once we help people and a cause, and we entertain — so there are many positives in this project," she said with a contentedness known only to the unconditional giver, whose touch can obscure the negative in any situation.

Arioli cashes in with Pennies From Heaven

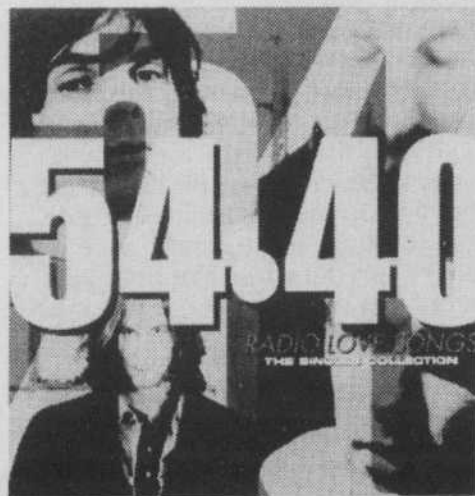

SUSIE ARIOLI SWING BAND
Featuring Jordan Officer
Pennies From Heaven

SUSIE ARIOLI SWING BAND
Pennies From Heaven
(Justin Time)

There is not a dud on this disc. It is all good, all varying in intensity and most definitely a worthwhile addition to your collection of jazz recordings. The title track leads the listener into a smooth serenity, building to a more moderate presentation of 'Honeysuckle Rose' followed by a sensual presentation of 'Night And Day'. There are also a number of timeless classics taken out of the repertoire for this recording. 'Don't Explain' is a lovely, soulful song. There are also some upbeat, lively instrumentals to be found in 'Jordan's Boogie' and 'Walter's Flat' demonstrates Jordan Officer's fluid guitar playing. 'Having Fun' and 'Sit Down, Baby' are two outright upbeat and fun songs along with the tongue-in-cheek rendition of 'Do Nothing 'Til You Hear From Me' that will make you want to get up and start dancing about the place.

54-40
Radio Love Songs - The Singles Collection
(Columbia Records)
Good and some great radio-friendly hits abound on this assortment of love songs spanning more than 20 years for Canadian rockers 54-40. The band had its origins as a trio, now a quartet, with this collection featuring 19 noteworthy numbers. 'Love Rush' is a mellow song with nice guitar work and a cool chorus, while 'Plenty Emotion' is just plain cool. Both are new tracks to entice fans of the band to buy the CD. Those who aren't familiar with the band will recognize one or more of the songs on the CD, most certainly 'I Go Blind'. The song, you may recall, was made famous by Hootie and the Blowfish for the Friends soundtrack. Other dear, sweet singles include 'Since When' from the album of the same name, as well as 'Crossing A Canyon'. Finally, 'Radio Luv Song' has a somewhat fast tempo and a rockabilly sound.

— T.D.

VARIOUS ARTISTS

National Lampoon's Van Wilder
(Artemis Records)

We begin with a title track from eminent Australian punkers the Living End with the song 'Roll On' and Jimmy Eat World representing alternative rock with 'Bleed American'. Most of the songs are perfect for boys, with adrenaline and just the right mix of rock and punk to the soundtrack. Sugarcult's song 'Bouncing Off The Walls' has a decidedly Green Day pop punk feel to it with a bit of melody in the singalong chorus. There are also a few slower songs like 'Hit The Ground' from 6Gig and Swirl 360's tune 'Okay'. 'Little Man' by Sia is a soulful song reminiscent of an Alicia Keys song. The CD ends on a slow song beat 'Start

Over', which sounds vaguely like Oasis, but by Abandoned Pools. This is an album that one might not mind listening to on repeat a few times as it has a certain familiarity yet mixes different genres on the soundtrack.

EDWIN & THE PRESSURE
Self-titled
(Columbia Records)

Edwin, a Toronto native, first tasted national stardom as part of the alternative rock group I Mother Earth. However, with a craving for more, the lead singer's appetite for success took him in another direction, notably his solo debut album, Another Spin Around the Sun. Now, two years following its lukewarm reception, Edwin has gone back to the ways of the group with his sophomore album Edwin & The Pressure. Teaming with Mike K and Ron Bechard on guitar, as well as Sekou Lumumba on drums and veteran touring partner Kenny Cunningham on bass, Edwin continues his straight-ahead rock approach in semi-rousing numbers like 'Superhoney' and 'The One That Got Away'. Other singles, like 'Firecracker', are reminiscent of I Mother Earth, but are clearly versions seen through Edwin eyes only. Finally, while several slower rock numbers like 'Malibu Sunset' and 'High' may exhibit some diversity within the album, they ultimately fail to generate anything as exciting as the singer's lone solo smash single 'Alive', which was released on his prior album.

From novels and biographies to cookbooks and beyond, there's nothing like a good read

Ready or not, Spenser is back

Few writers today have as large a share of the hard-boiled detective genre as Boston novelist Robert B. Parker. At 70, he has just trotted out the latest in his Spenser series, the 29th since he introduced the wisecracking P.I. in The Godwulf Manuscript in 1973. Parker has always given more than a nod to Raymond Chandler, even styling Spenser after Chandler's hugely popular Philip Marlowe.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

Parker's archetypal characters and unwavering belief in the hard-boiled convention have made him a perennial favourite. Biographer David Geherin described called Parker's two-fisted but tender-hearted Spenser "the very model of the private eye for our time."

While Parker's last Spenser episode, Potshot, had mixed reviews, he builds a better case for the private eye in Widow's Walk (Penguin/Putnam; $35.99). Our man is called in to investigate the young wife of a wealthy, middle-aged bachelor who has been found dead in bed with a bullet in his head. Police don't have to look beyond his sexy wife for a prime suspect. The couple have been seen arguing earlier at a cocktail party. Conveniently, she was watching TV in another room, she says, when the killer came calling.

Parker builds a seemingly hopeless case against the flaxen-haired bombshell. She's just too pretty, too blond, too cutesy, too quick to leap into others' beds. The fact she once tried to hire someone to off her dearly beloved doesn't help her cause. She is the perfect suspect for a jury to hate. But here, too, is a none-too-perfect husband with more than a few deviant skeletons in the closet. Plotting aside, it's the dialogue that marks Parker as the undisputed master of the hard-boiled universe. With few exceptions (James Ellroy being one of them) Parker can, with a simple verbal exchange, paint a story like no other. Spenser's hired gun, Hawk, again contributes mightily to Parker's breathless, in-your-face pacing.

Early rumblings from some armchair quarterbacks suggest Spenser is not as quick off the mark here as he might be. But those critics should remember that Spenser adventures are a rite of spring, and that spring sometimes can take its time letting us at our plots. The wait is worth it.

Novelist Anne Perry has just published her 22nd Victorian mystery starring Thomas and Charlotte Pitt, a series that has transported fans to an England of yore, replete with cobblestoned streets, gaslights, and horse-drawn carriages. In Southampton Row (Ballantine/Random House; $38), we're nearing the end of Victoria's rule and the country is closing in on a general election.

Superintendent Thomas Pitt, one of London's finest, is back on the front lines against the powerful Inner Circle, a politically driven secret society with sinister ambitions — one of them to get rid of that constant thorn in their side, Thomas Pitt. Bullock prefers heroes a little on the dark side

By Jamie Portman
SOUTHAM NEWS

Don't believe all those stories about Sandra Bullock playing Wonder Woman on the big screen.

"I don't have the time or the capability to pull it off," she grins. "They need somebody really athletically inclined who can kick ass. Sure, Wonder Woman will make a studio a lot of money, but I like 'em darker and more twisted."

Which is why she is about to open in Murder By Numbers, definitely a dark and twisted film, and why she relates so strongly to the role of emotionally troubled homicide detective Cassie Mayweather — a person who brings some intense personal baggage into her investigation of a woman's grisly murder.

In the Warner Bros. release opening April 19, Mayweather finds herself engaged in a deadly game of cat and mouse with two ruthless teenage killers (played by Ryan Gosling and Michael Pitt), extremely bright youngsters who have gone to great lengths to destroy the evidence. Determined always to be in control, she seeks to demonstrate her power over her fellow investigator (Ben Chaplin) by hitting on him sexually — yet is incapable of making a commitment. She is in danger of forming an unhealthy emotional attachment to the woman who was murdered. And she is confronting a further emotional crisis when she is asked to testify at the parole hearing of the man who mutilated and almost killed her in an outburst of jealous rage years before.

It's the first genuine suspense piece Bullock has done since The Net several years ago, and she sees it as a welcome contrast to "fluff" she's done like the enormously popular Miss Congeniality.

When Tony Gayton's screenplay for Murder By Numbers came her way, Bullock knew her two-year search had ended.

"I was looking for a psychological thriller," she admits. "Not an action thriller, not something which just had tools to propel a story, but something that truly was an unwinding of the mind — which I find far more thrilling. It goes back to the Hitchcock era and the old days of filmmaking where you rely on a camera move and on what is not said to instill fear and tension."

When Castle Rock Pictures told Bullock that veteran suspense director Barbet Schroeder (Reversal of Fortune) was also interested in the project, she was well and truly hooked.

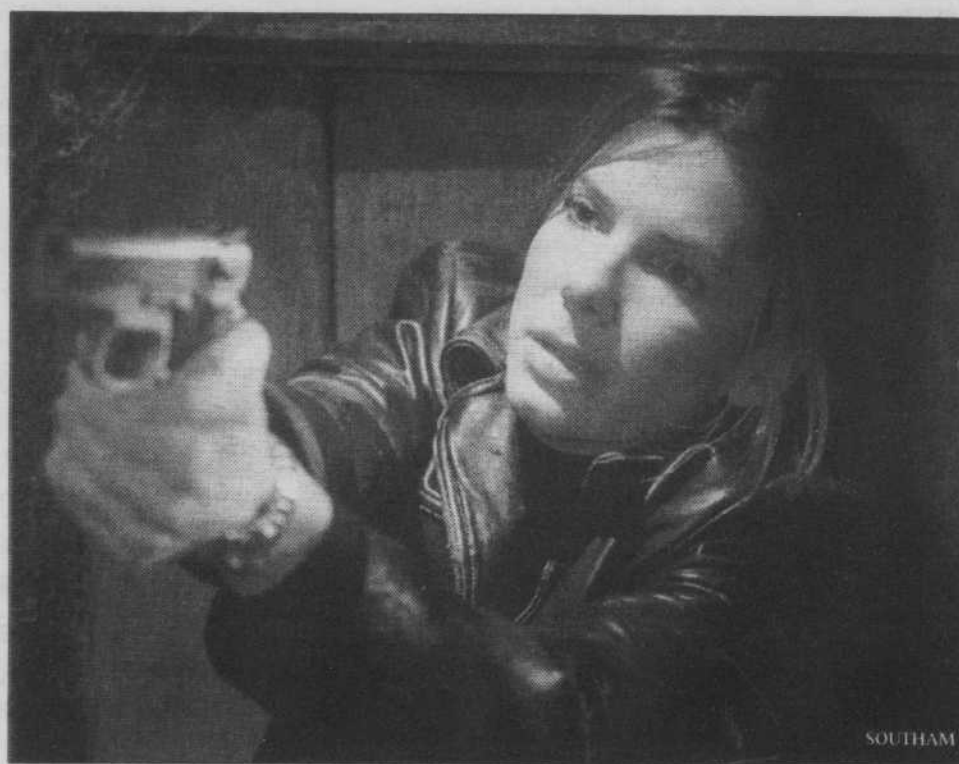

"I met with Barbet and and found out that we wanted to make the same film — and then we took it from there."

Bullock, 37, is her usual mercurial self this morning. She's decked out in her favourite colour — black — wearing black fashion slacks, black tank shirt, black sweater, and black shoes. Her long black hair is hanging straight, but from time to time, she absent-mindedly reaches back and forms it into a pony tail. And she's talking a blue streak — which she always does when she's excited by a project.

She doesn't consider Murder By Numbers to be a conventional thriller. And, although the prospect doesn't worry her, she knows it could generate flak from some quarters because it deals with two teenage thrill killers.

"It's a problem that exists and it's something we tend to sweep under the carpet, and that exacerbates the situation," she says tartly. "You know what? Silence is deadly, but if you glorify violence, it's even worse."

She says Murder By Numbers, which

she co-produced, doesn't commit either offence.

"I say show it. Make it as uncomfortable as possible and address the issues. You're dealing with violence here, with abuse, with spousal abuse, all weird subject matter in this film, but somehow at the end you have a moral solution, which is that you cannot negate your life, you cannot suppress what exists already, and as an adult, you're responsible for that."

The plot of the film is rooted in the infamous Leopold-Loeb murder case of the 1920s which saw two privileged young males commit murder for the sheer thrill of it. The crime inspired both novels and stage plays, as well as two widely admired films — Compulsion and Alfred Hitchcock's Rope. Bullock says the time is ripe to examine such subject matter again, given the proliferation of teenage killings.

"Lately, it seems like there's been an influx of these events. ... It's something that needs to be addressed now because we need to look at our society, we need to look at our home life, and ask questions. What is it that's making young people so unhappy, so angry and so capable of doing things like this? Unless you address this, it's not going to be solved."

Last year, because of the success of Miss Congeniality, industry polling concluded that Bullock was Hollywood's second most bankable female star. But she says it all has to be taken with a grain of salt.

"It will change next year and I'll be back down at No. 67," she giggles. "You know what this means? It means that I had a good year and made the studio some money, and now I may choose some projects for next year that make no money."

Yes, she could play it safe and "continue making films like Miss Congeniality with a formula that does work every single time, but I'd get bored."

And making Murder By Numbers — which allowed Bullock to indulge her fascination for criminology and forensics and to explore a character's darker emotional recesses — was definitely not boring.

Red-Headed Stranger gets better with time

One of the greatest songwriters of his time, Willie Nelson's music seems to go better with time — case in point his latest album entitled The Great Divide.

Often referred to as the 'Red-Headed Stranger', Nelson, who has been married four times and will turn 69 this month, isn't showing any signs of letting up on his recent release. The Great Divide is a savvy, eclectic album, featuring a collection of his signature stylish work and always slick production. The album is highlighted by several big name artists, including Sheryl Crow, Rob Thomas of Matchbox 20, Bonnie Raitt and country superstar Lee Ann Womack, whom accompany Nelson on a mix of singles.

As usual, Nelson is constantly trying to innovate with his music. Working in the past with top notch producers like Chet Atkins, Jerry Wexler, Daniel Lanois, Don Was and Chips Moman, he joins forces with producer Matt Serletic, the man behind Santana this time around.

The Great Divide starts off strong as Nelson and jazz guitarist Jackie King team up to write and perform the title track. The singer/songwriter also revives Mickey Newbury's vintage pop number, 'I Just Dropped In', and goes so far as to team up with rock sensation Kid Rock in the single 'Last Stand In Open Country'.

The first single released from The Great Divide, however, is the best. Entitled 'Medocino County Line', Nelson performs a duet with Womack, who was voted CMA Female Vocalist of the Year. I can't think of a better match than those two to sing that song.

Other notable singles on the album is a cover of Cyndi Lauper's haunting 'Time After Time', which is convincing and commanding as Nelson gives it a new life. There's also Leslie Satcher's 'You Remain', which was originally penned as a tribute to Nelson.

The selection goes on to include 'Maria (Shut Up And Kiss Me)' an infectious number with horns, harmonica, pedal steel and a strong Brazilian feel.

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

Heavily produced, The Great Divide is what you call a career album, although it's not the only one in Nelson's case. From the opening number to the last single, there's only great songs on this disk.

Born in Abbott, Tex, the long-haired singer has come a long way since his first picnic performance in 1937 when he was four years old. The former DJ worked hard before he had his professional fortunes turn. Actually, it didn't happen until he joined forces with Waylon Jennings, Tompall Glaser and Jessie Colter to record an album that would spawn a legion of successful releases for Nelson.

Although known as singer/songwriter, Nelson has also done well on the big screen. He's starred in films like Honey-suckle Rose, Where The Hell's That Gold with Delta Burke and Stagecoach.

But Nelson has went through some rough times too. He has divorced three times, had troubles with the I.R.S. — to the order of $16.7 million — and was faced with the devastating suicide of his eldest son Billy in 1991.

Despite everything however, the first thing that came to my mind when I met Nelson at the Champlain Valley Fair (where he gave a conference on American Farmers before performing) was how strongly he exuded a kind of dignity and grace with what ever he was asked.

Nelson is one of country's most enduring stars, and his list of hits is endless. If you like Nelson, you have to buy this new album. If you don't know him, however, this is the perfect opportunity to discover one of America's greatest artist.

Note: Don't forget the giant jam session for Multiple Sclerosis Branch 2000 on Saturday, April 13 starting at 3 p.m. at Army, Navy & Air force on St-Francis Street in Lennoxville. There will be many bands, door prizes and fun and this is all for a good cause. Admission $5.
