Valleyfield Industrialists Recommend Good Wharfage

Valleyfield's Industrial History Dates Back to 1835, is Traced By J. A. McDonald, Chairman

Montreal Cottons Limited Now Employs 3500 Hands—City's Appointment of Comptroller Has Proved Wise Move and Enabled City to Liquidate A Floating Debt of About $90,000

The following is the text of the address delivered by Mr. J. Allan McDonald, chairman of the Valleyfield Industrial Committee, before the Valleyfield Industrialists and a few guests on Thursday evening at the Chateau Salaberry:

Before calling upon a few of our guests for remarks, it might be of interest to strangers present to submit a brief summary of our City. The location of the city dates back to about 1835, possibly a little earlier, when it was known as Oshernestown, and sometimes Hungry Bay.

In 1842 the Federal Government started the construction of the Beauharnois Canal—that is the Canal artery for water transportation from Montreal to points west as neither railroad nor other transportation facilities were then constructed. After the completion of this Canal in 1845 it was found that water was not of sufficient depth to enable vessels of nine foot draught to navigate and a dam was constructed between Clark's or Cat Island and Salaberry Island, but this did not prove adequate and a second dam was built connecting Salaberry Island with the mainland—this provided the town with what was then considered a splendid water power.

In 1854 a man by the name of Miller established a paper mill here and changed the name to Valleyfield, after a place of the same name in Scotland—near Edinburgh—which was a paper manufacturing centre. In 1857 a company was formed under the name of Alexander Buntin Co. and two more mills were built and operated until absorbed by the Montreal Cotton Co. to avoid litigation over water rights.

Following this a grist mill was constructed by Mr. Taylor—the building now used as a cannery factory. Later a Grist and Saw Mill was built by Alexander Anderson. In 1867 Laird Anderson and James Watie started a woollen mill. The population had now increased to about 3,000 and warranted being incorporated as a Town. Again the name was changed—some wanted it changed to Salaberry—in honour of Col. Salaberry of Chateaugay fame. Mr. Buntin and others wished to retain the name of Valleyfield and to gratify both factions it was incorporated as Salaberry de Valleyfield.

In 1875 Sir Hugh Allan, looking for a favorable site with power development for a cotton mill, chose Valleyfield, electricity as a power factor was not developed at that time. Since then this cotton industry has added three more units, thus quadrupling their output and now employ around 3,500, which in itself is more than the population was when incorporated as a town.

In 1881, McDonald & Robb's plant was built and in 1925, after a fire, was rebuilt and the capacity increased, electricity now being their motive power.

Around 1900 the Northrup Loom Co., a branch of a Worcester, Mass. concern located here but the demand for looms being rather limited they changed to the Valleyfield Loom Works.

Early in 1900, the Canadian Bronze Power Co., the largest in this Dominion, bought out this Loom Company and have more than doubled the output since going into operation.

Another industry, the Valleyfield Coated Paper Mill, operated successfully for a number of years but unfortunately was burned out in 1927. This Company decided not to rebuild, one of their Directors having died and his widow wished to withdraw her investment, but during the past summer the Shawigan Water & Power Co. succeeded in having the Industrial Dyeing and Finishing Co. locate on the site of the Valleyfield Coated Paper Mill and they have nearly finished installing the machinery and expected to start operating shortly. Two other industries, J. O. Clermont Lee and Joseph Lafleur's sash and door factories have been established for a number of years and are kept busy turning out such needed material for construction purposes. Rosen Bros. pant factory have been carrying on a nice business and they are now looking for space to increase their capacity.

In 1920, when the Beauharnois Power Co. started their development, they were instrumental in securing the Brupbacher Silk Mills, now known as the Valleyfield Silk Mills.

Through the co-operation of the Shawigan Water & Power Co.

DELIVERS ADDRESS

MR. J. ALLAN McDONALD, chairman of the Valleyfield Industrial Committee, who delivered an interesting historical address before the Valleyfield industrialists, at Valleyfield, on Thursday evening, Mr. McDonald's address dealt with the industrial development of Valleyfield since 1835 to date.

Milk By-law Amended at Valleyfield

Resignation of Ald. A. Meloche is Accepted by Valleyfield Council

The regular meeting of the Valleyfield Council was held on Wednesday evening with Mayor J. A. Larin presiding.

Donat Leboeuf offered to purchase a building which is owned by the City. The Council decided to demolish the structure in question and use the material for other municipal needs.

The Safety League invited the Council to attend their annual Convention in Montreal, Ald. Bourdeau and Chief of Police Jules Vigne were appointed delegates to this convention.

The report of the Health Bureau was read and found satisfactory. In a letter addressed to the Council, Hon. Adélaïde Godbout informed the Council that he would take the necessary steps to recognize the Berthiaume School as official in this Province.

By-Law No. 283 in connection with the distribution of milk in the City was amended at this session; licenses which are generally issued on May 1st of each year, will not be granted unless the milk-houses have been duly examined by milk inspectors. Other amendments were also made to this By-Law in connection with the time of delivery of milk and fines to be imposed on offenders.

Loisel Benoit was granted permission to build a butcher shop on the condition that the slaughterhouse is not on the same location and that the building will be at least twenty feet from the sidewalk.

The contract as drawn up between The Montreal Cottons Limited and the City of Salaberry de Valleyfield for the extension of Bay street was tabled for further consideration.

The resignation of Ald. Arthur Meloche was accepted. Mr. Meloche explained that although he had been requested to reconsider his resignation, he could not alter his decision due to his poor eyesight.

The City Clerk was authorized to write the Health Unit officer, Dr. J. Armand Patenaude, of Ste. Marie, for their prompt attention in sending serum, despite the fact that Valleyfield is not yet affiliated with the Chateaugay-Huntingdon Health Unit.

City Comptroller Raphael Bélanger was granted permission to purchase any lot, land or property he may see fit at the annual sale of land for taxes.

The Council passed a resolution of sympathy on behalf of Leduc, Codebec, K.C., in the recent death of his two sisters.

The Council agreed to transfer the business license of Henri Cibeau but the Council reserved the right to revoke or annul the license at any time, if they see fit to do so.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR ALL DAY CARNIVAL AT SKATING RINK

An elaborate program will be presented to district sport enthusiasts at the Huntingdon Skating Rink on Saturday during the All-Day Carnival.

The many attractions will undoubtedly attract hundreds of citizens. The ice will be colored to blend perfectly with the setting, especially for the evening presentation by the members of the Montreal Figure Skating Club. More than thirty Montreal skaters are expected in Huntingdon that evening.

The races which will be held during the day will be featured by the presentation to the winners of medals and pen and pencil sets. The program will conclude by a dance at the Chateau immediately following the crowning of the Queen of Sports.

Lt.-Col. W. G. E. Aird, General Manager, Montreal Cottons Co. Ltd., Speaks to Industrialists

Gives High Praise to Mr. J. A. McDonald and Industrial Committee For Successful Efforts—Cites Valleyfield's Growth in the Way of Home Building—City's Finances Commented Upon in Friendly Manner—Had Siros Report Been Endorsed, Would Aid in Rehabilitation of Soldiers and War Workers After Hitler is Defeated

Lt.-Col. W. G. E. Aird, general manager and director of The Montreal Cottons at Valleyfield, delivered an interesting address before the Valleyfield Industrialists on Thursday evening. The text of Mr. Aird's address was as follows:

Before going into the remarks which I have to make this evening I desire to say a few complimentary things. First of all, I wish to express my appreciation to the committee which has so splendidly arranged this evening, and more especially for what it does in bringing together a group of men interested as they should be in the welfare of the community and the building of their Valleyfield. Secondly, I wish to speak of a man who has become very dear to me, a man who was born and raised in the territory surrounding this neighborhood, a man who has grown in stature as the city itself grew, a man whom you could describe as being an indispensable part of the community, a man who has given freely of himself so that the superstructure of Valleyfield be built on solid stone and not on shifting sand, a man who has the welfare of the community at heart and who has done a splendid job as chairman of the Industrial Committee of Valleyfield. For their efforts I wish to associate the names of the other members of the committee with that of Mr. McDonald and would ask that as a token of our respect you rise with me and drink to their continued success and health.

Before coming to this meeting I thought I would have a look at the balance sheet of Valleyfield—I speak not so much of figures, but of what we have here in way of natural assets and of things provided by God. I will in my remarks refer to the time, but I will endeavor to keep them short so that as much as possible I can try to give you a picture of what I see without dealing too much with statistics. So that I may have a clearer picture of the whole I required one of my reports to get, but I am glad to report that the material as now collated I am going to place in the hands of your Chairman, believing as I do that it can serve a useful purpose in presenting the picture to those who may be looking for a place where they can set up industry. In studying the material gathered together I was caused to think of many things and being as we are gathered together for the good of Valleyfield, I believe we should face the facts and discover what are our limitations, and having discovered them proceed to eliminate those things which may retard progress in the future.

Responsibility After the War

There is another reason why I feel caused to speak at this time. Today we are at war with many of our sons gone into the armed forces—to-morrow we hope for peace, a peace that will allow our men to return to their firesides and again take up the role of provider for their families. We have a responsibility to those men who have gone to face the foe—we cannot allow them to return as they did after the last war, unable to find employment, unable to take their proper place in the world because no provision was made for them. We must prepare the ground ahead of time so that when their present job is done they will return and find a livelihood created for them. We must not fail in our duty to rehabilitate these men in post war period.

Canada at the present time is being looked at by capital from Europe which desires to find a place for safe investment. I speak with assurance when I say that this will be even more true of the period following the war. Not only will we have capital clamoring to get in, but we are expected with the coming of the new era that peoples will migrate from war-torn Europe to places where there is hope of bringing up their families in peaceful surroundings. We cannot fail to realize that fortune has smiled on us generally and realizing our responsibilities and the part we, as a nation, must play in the moulding of a new world; we cannot deny a place amongst us to those with a background comparable to our own who could contribute to the further development of Canada.

In the midst of war many of us are inclined to deal only with most immediate problems and would be willing to allow the future to take care of itself. We cannot do this—we must be awake and doing—we who remain at home must do our

Sixteen Lots Will be Sold by County Council

Government Changes Date of Sale of Lands For Taxes to Thursday, March 13th

The annual sale of land for taxes will take place again this year at the Huntingdon County Building on Thursday, March 13th. The Quebec Official Gazette listed twenty-three lots for sale but since its issue this number has been decreased to sixteen.

Many changes have been made as to the official date of the sale of land for taxes by the Provincial authorities during the past three years, which has somewhat created confusion amongst the interested parties. Two years ago the sale took place on the first Wednesday in March and last year the government changed the date to the second Wednesday in March. For some unknown reasons the date was again changed this year and the sale will take place, as stated above, on the second Thursday in March.

The annual sale of land for taxes creates a great deal of concern among the farmers of the County of Huntingdon. The sale is brought about due to the failure of the interested parties to pay their municipal, school, ditch and all other taxes due to the different Municipalities which form part of the County of Huntingdon.

However, if the taxes due on the lands listed are paid before March 13th, the sale will not take place.

G. Saintonge Heads Legion At Valleyfield

Valleyfield Branch, No. 62, Shows Surplus of $550. at Annual Meeting—Election of Officers

The Valleyfield Branch, No. 62, of the Canadian Legion held their annual meeting and election of officers on Wednesday evening, in the Montreal Cottons club-rooms.

After reading the minutes of the meetings, Mr. J. A. Cluff, treasurer of the Legion, explained that the Legion dance had been postponed to a later date due to unexpected developments. The financial report showed that the Valleyfield Legion had a surplus of $550.00.

The election of officers gave the following results: Gontran Saintonge, president; James Atkins, vice-president; J. A. Cluff, treasurer; Harold Warburton, secretary; R. Fishwick, Antoine S. Leduc, directors. Poor committee: James MacAlpine, Frank Murphy and Ernest Poirer; poppy committee: A. Hannah, J. Smith, A. Wallot and A. Williams; organizing committee, Jos. Atkins, H. Calvert, Henri Chevrier, Anatole Emond, H. Johnston and J. Jourdain.

At the conclusion of the meeting it was mutually agreed to purchase cigarettes for Valleyfield soldiers, serving overseas. These cigarettes will be forwarded early so that they may reach their destination before Easter.

Mr. Walter P. Ferrival, Director of Protestant Education, made a special trip from Quebec to explain the difficulties that the Department of Education experiences in providing adequate schooling for the Protestant children, widely and thinly scattered over the country districts. This was followed by an explanation by Dr. A. B. Currie, assistant professor of Education at McGill, of how a similar problem had been met and solved in Alberta by building "Consolidated Schools". As Dr. Currie has been Inspector of Schools in Alberta he spoke from personal experience.

By far the most novel feature of the whole course was the method of approach and the accompanying atmosphere. The impression received was that the instructors, the College, the "Department" were anxious not only to teach but to learn. "We know these," they said, "but tell us how you feel, what are your problems, what you think could be done, as we get together to solve these problems; we can help with our knowledge but you must help by giving your active cooperation and support."

Under the leadership of Dr. W. H. Britain, Macdonald College acted as host to the delegates, and members of the staff contributed their services. It was largely owing to Dr. Britain and to his interest in rural conditions and in education that the women of the Province were able to have this exceptional opportunity. Mrs. H. R. C. Avilon, better known to readers of the Macdonald College Journal as Mary Avilon, acted as supervisor. The members of the group selected one of their own number to act as chairman, Mrs. Roswell Thomson. Mrs. Thomson is convener of Education and Better Schools for the Women's Institutes.

The Women's Institute sent representatives to this district from the following places: Ormstown, Mrs. R. Blair; Dewittville, Mrs. K. Pearce; Mrs. S. Cunningham and Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring, Hemmingford.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HEMMINGFORD RED CROSS SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Hemmingford and District Branch of the Red Cross was held in the Forest Fitzgibby Memorial Hall on Thursday evening, Feb. 20.

The report of the chairman showed a membership of 213, of which 146 are working members. During the year 3,945 finished articles of sewing and 1,388 knitted articles, totalling 4,433, have been shipped to Red Cross House. In addition to the above 179 blankets were sent in.

The treasurer's report showed that the sum of $978.67, received in membership fees, donations and blanket campaign, was transferred to headquarters during the year.

The officers for the coming year are: Hon. president, Mrs. M. B. Fisher; president, J. M. Reid; vice-presidents, Mrs. J. K. Goodfellow and J. B. A. Bouchard; treasurer, Rev. W. A. Howard; convener of supplies, Miss M. Bennett; work committee, Miss E. Lacasse and Miss I. Moore; publicity, Mrs. J. K. Goodfellow.

Rev. W. S. Hatcher is Elected President of Red Cross Society

Replaces Dr. H. R. Clouston as Head of the Huntingdon Branch of the Red Cross Society—Other Officers Elected—Financial Report Postponed

The elected Officers of the Huntingdon Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society for the year 1940-41 are:

Hon. President—Dr. H. R. Clouston.
President—Rev. W. S. Hatcher.
First Vice-President—Mrs. D. J. O'Connor.
Second Vice-President—Mr. I. H. Bowden.
Treasurer—Miss M. S. Hunter.
Secretary—Mrs. W. K. Philips.

EXECUTIVE
Work Committee—Mrs. N. F. Manning and Mrs. F. H. Hunter.
Finance Committee—Mrs. A. H. Dawson.
Organization Committee—Miss Norma Lunan.
Supply Committee—Miss Olive Cluff.

In connection with the office of President, it should be made quite clear that the retirement of Dr. Clouston, who has been President for so many years, is deeply regretted. His continuance in office was urged upon him by many officers and members of the Society and it was only upon the decided and repeated refusal of both the retiring President and the retiring Vice-President, Mr. A. Lunan, to accept this office that the Rev. Mr. Hatcher consented to act.

A vote of thanks to both these officers for their years of work in the cause was tendered by Mr. Hatcher and it is appreciated that the Society will continue to have the valuable assistance and co-operation of these members.

Last year, four outside groups worked under the Huntingdon branch and were headed by Mrs. Ed. McGinn, Fairview headed by Mrs. H. R. Graham, Kensington headed by Mrs. J. J. Tannahill and Mrs. R. Chambers and St. Anicet, headed by Mrs. Hilda Gagné. A great deal of work was accomplished by these groups.

The Society wishes to thank Mr. H. Daniel for the free transportation of supplies from Montreal and also, the School Commissioners for the use of the School Auditorium for the concert given in August.

Four members were appointed as delegates to the annual meeting of the Provincial Division of the Red Cross Society in Montreal, Mrs. Lunan, Mrs. O'Connor, Mrs. Munro and Mrs. Philips.

Upon motion of Mrs. F. H. Hunter, seconded by Mrs. N. F. Shanks, and carried by vote the following resolution was adopted:

"It is hereby resolved to request the Quebec Provincial Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society to separate from the Valleyfield Branch all Red Cross Branches located in the County of Huntingdon, if such Branches be willing, for the collection of donations for Red Cross work."

"The new centre which shall include the Red Cross Branches at Athelstan, Dundee, Hemmingford, Huntingdon and that portion of Franklin now under Ormstown Branch will be a Club. More than thirty Huntingdon County District."

Owing to the indisposition of the Treasurer, the financial report was postponed to a later date.

The Society wishes to acknowledge receipt of a knitted Afghan from the Women's Institute and to thank the members for this donation.

Industrialists and Executives Entertained in Valleyfield By Industrial Committee

Bridge to Coteau Will Eventually be on Beauharnois Power Corporation Series of Dams—Industrialists Hope to Have Good Water Route and Wharfage For Benefit of Basic Industries

The Industrial Committee of the City of Salaberry de Valleyfield, headed by Mr. J. A. McDonald, tendered a complimentary dinner to the officials and executives of the Industries of that city and community on Thursday evening. The dinner was held in the Chateau Salaberry which was recently acquired by Mr. Louis-Philippe Godbout. The Chateau deserves congratulations for the excellence of its menu and the service accorded.

Mr. J. Allan McDonald, Chairman of the Industrial Committee, acted as toastmaster. After offering the "Toasts to the King" he gave an historical sketch of Valleyfield's industrial development from 1835 to date. Mr. McDonald's remarks are being reproduced in an earlier column in detail and under a separate heading. Mr. McDonald called upon Lt.-Col. W. G. E. Aird, General Manager of The Montreal Cottons Limited. Mr. Aird went to a great deal of effort in securing data that was not only interesting but essential and should be digested and worked upon at Valleyfield. Huntingdon, Wed., February 26, 1941

Many men do not allow their principles to take root, but pull them up every now and then, as children do flowers they have planted, to see if they are growing.

Montreal Star Cracks Down on Gleaner

THE MONTREAL STAR took "Editor and Publisher" an American Trade magazine, and "The Huntingdon Gleaner" to task in its Thursday, Feb. 20th, editorial columns. On January 16th, "The Gleaner" carried a news story that attacked "The Chicago Tribune" and Col. Robert A. McCormick, the owner. In that news column we reproduced an editorial of the "Montreal Star," January 10th, that dealt with the same subject. "The Gleaner" report carried this sentence before starting the reproduction of "The Montreal Star" editorial: "The next rightful move will be for our Governments to put the pressure on McCormick's interests in Canadian pulp and paper mills." The newspapers in Canada as a whole have been attacking the editorial principles of the Chicago Tribune, owned by Col. Robert A. McCormick and he does not seem to care in the least what papers say: so perhaps an undemocratic action such as putting pressure on his Canadian interests would be a language he would understand. Touch a man's pocket book to a point where he feels the pinch and he will perhaps be willing to consider others. If the above statement does not express the sentiments of the "Montreal Star", we are quite certain it does express the feeling of a great many people in Canada; people who perhaps do not own a newspaper in which they can express themselves to the public, but do feel perturbed.

"The Star" refers to "The Gleaner" as, "a weekly with a small local circulation in the Eastern Townships of this province". Might we here suggest that The Star editorial writers take a look at the map of Quebec province and acquaint themselves with the geographical location of Huntingdon. For fear they will not look at a map, but will read this column, we will inform them that Huntingdon is an agricultural district, devoted largely to dairying and is located in what is known as the Chateauguay Valley, 50 miles southwest of Montreal, in the County of Huntingdon. The Eastern Townships is composed of the counties of Brome, Compton, Missisquoi, Shefford, Sherbrooke and Stanstead.

In regard to circulation, The Star intended to slur The Gleaner, but we do not mind that, for throughout the Chateauguay Valley there are at least two Gleaners circulated for every copy of the Montreal Star entering this same area. Rural weekly newspapers of Canada never expect to have circulations in comparison with the metropolitan press, but if the metropolitan press gave as solid coverage to their advertisers as do the weekly press in their respective fields, the circulation of the metropolitan papers would certainly be a great deal larger than they presently enjoy. Weekly papers are often passed from one family to another to read; such is not the practice amongst city dwellers who may be buyers of The Star.

Mr. S. Morgan-Powell, Assistant Editor-in-Chief of the Montreal Star made the following remarks at the garden party given by the late Lord Atholstan at "My Mother's Home," Dorchester St., Montreal, in August, 1934. Please read his statements and see how they compare with those set forth in The Star editorial of Feb. 20, 1941.

Mr. S. Morgan-Powell said: "I often think that the life of the weekly newspaper editor is, after all, the ideal journalistic life. No rush, no strain upon the memory, no compulsion to accomplish in a few hours what can only be done properly and thoroughly in two days; no late sessions; no furious driving of the mental machine; no recasting for the many corrections which the rush of daily newspaper work renders inevitable. Nothing of this! In its place, leisure to think calmly, dispassionately, logically, and to write in the same way, with the knowledge, when you have finished, that what you have written is the last word to be said upon the subject discussed—the last word, that is, for that week. For this reason the weekly county papers of the country are relatively more useful to your advertising clients than the daily papers of the cities; your readers have time to read the advertisements at leisure.

"You survey the world, both near and far, in retrospect; you embrace every conceivable interest, from bee-keeping to Bedouin raids in Transjordan. And you have the time to verify every fact, to sift the wheat from the chaff, and to present the complete picture. You are not only the counsellors of your readers; you are also their very close and sympathetic friends, and they turn to you with a confidence that is often lacking in their attitude towards the rest of the world.

"I sometimes hear some of my colleagues speak in disparaging terms about life in what they call 'the small town.' They seem to think that because a town is small in size it is therefore of necessity small in view-point. But, gentlemen, you and I know better than that.

We know that the small town has very distinct advantages over the big city, where you frequently 'cannot see the wood for the trees.' Some of the wisest of our public men choose deliberately to live in small towns rather than in the big cities. They find they can get a better perspective of the Canadian scene from the small-town verandah than they can from the big-city hotel lobby.

"And it is because of this that we very often get from the small towns interpretations, opinions, and comments that are both instructive and informative and of use in moulding and in guiding public opinion upon problems of vital interest to us all as Canadians."

Mr. Schmon Goes to Washington

ATTENTION was that Arthur A. Schmon, president and general manager of the Chicago Tribune's Ontario Paper Company at Thorold, Ont., and the Quebec North Shore Paper Company at Bale Comeau, has been granted leave of absence to serve at Washington in the co-ordination of United States war supplies. The announcement, as published in the Toronto Globe and Mail, said that Mr. Schmon's duties would include work bringing him "into contact with" the Rt. Hon. Arthur Purvis' British War Purchasing Board.

The story goes that Mr. Schmon, who was a U.S. artillery captain in the last war, met Col. R. R. McCormick, owner of the Chicago Tribune and the Ontario Paper Company in France. At any rate Mr. Schmon became an executive of the Ontario Paper Company soon after and, although remaining a citizen of his native country, has been a resident of St. Catharines for more than twenty years.

If Mr. Schmon had resigned his position in Canada to work for his government, rumor might have got around that he was thus repudiating the policy of his boss, Col. McCormick, who not only is a vociferous opponent of President Roosevelt, but who also from time to time exhibits the most violent anti-British sympathies. The Chicago Tribune has opposed sending arms and supplies to Britain, favors a negotiated peace, would have the U.S. acquire British possessions in this hemisphere in payment of debts arising out of the last war, and otherwise has an editorial policy which definitely brands him as no friend of the British Empire. But the phrase "leave of absence" suggests that Col. McCormick has given this work his blessing. This is remarkable.

Canadian War Services Fund Inc.

IN order to avoid the inconvenience of repeated appeals by various societies for funds to carry on the work of administering to the comfort, recreation and education of all those who are serving with His Majesty's Canadian Forces, whether on land, sea or in the air, it has been decided by those in authority that a joint appeal should be made by the following societies:

- Canadian Legion War Services Knights of Columbus Canadian Army Huts Salvation Army Y.M.C.A. Y.W.C.A. I.O.O.F.

This plan has the approval of the Federal Government, and a national body, to be known as the Canadian War Services Fund Inc., is being incorporated for this purpose.

The campaign is being organized on a provincial basis. For the Province of Quebec, Senator Leon Mercier Gouin and Mr. E. P. Flintoft, K.C., General Counsel for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, have been appointed Joint Chairmen. The Province has been divided into two divisions entitled the Montreal Division and the Provincial Districts Division. Mr. F. B. Walls, General Manager of the T. Eaton Company Limited of Montreal, and Armand Dupuis of Dupuis Freres Limitee are Joint Chairmen of the Montreal Division and Mr. Ludger Fahey of Quebec and B. C. Gardner, Bank of Montreal, have been appointed Joint Chairmen for the whole of the Province outside the District of Montreal.

It is the policy of the Provincial Districts Committee to appoint joint chairmen of the French and English language respectively, so that a thorough canvass may be made of the whole county.

The six organizations who are to benefit from the results of this drive have promised the hearty co-operation of their supporters and members wherever they are represented throughout the Province. It will, of course, be necessary to organize captains and teams to canvass the districts. The drive will take place from the 24th March next to the 5th April inclusive, and, of course, may carry over a few days after the latter date.

In this time of trial when our young men have come forward in such large numbers to risk their lives for King and Country, a heavy responsibility falls on all of us who remain behind to see, so far as we can, that generous provision is made for the welfare, comfort, recreation and education of the fighting men. The value of the work done by these organizations during the last war and the work of such organizations during the present war is now of even greater importance because of the severe and arduous training being given to the troops during this period of waiting. They should be given ample opportunities for recreation and education when off duty and also be provided with some of the comforts of life to which they were accustomed at home.

The organizers for Huntingdon County are now endeavouring to select an ideal chairman or joint chairmen for the organizing of this county, and likewise in Chateauguay County. It would appear that the organization set-up is active and do not desire to defer getting things well organized before the date of the drive is officially opened on March 24. The drive is to take place from March 24 to April 5, not the best of seasons for such a drive in rural Quebec, but in these days we must subject ourselves to many hardships and that of performing a thorough canvass even at that date of the year must be dealt with and done in a thorough manner. The plan of having a joint drive for these worthy organizations is much more preferable to having a drive for each organization.

I came in November 1829 and it was the spring of that year McParlane was drowned. McNece succeeded him, having been his clerk. McNece got old Lucas to do the pearling for him; the ashery stood at the end of the bridge. Joshua Lewis had another ashery opposite Seely's, where John Hunter did the work. Ashes were dear then. After we were married (and that is 44 years ago) I have got 25 cents for a bushel. There was great competition for them, and the price usually ran about 15 to 20 cents. Old Mr. Dalgleish many a day went about collecting them. Joshua Lewis got a hard name for closeness. Dr. Bell lived with Lightball, and there were reports about his being too intimate with Mrs. Lightball. Anyway, there was a jealousy between the American party and the English, and insulting letters would be written and shoved at night below the doors or fixed up some way. I never carried any, but James' inlays, who succeeded me as apprentice, did. One of the messages left at Lewis' ran that his soul was so small it would go into a mustard shell, and that to skin a flint he would dull a jackknife.

I went out one Sunday with my gun when I met old Mr. Armstrong on the old Laquerre road, who talked to me very seriously about shooting on the Sabbath. He was a really good man, and people used to say there were at least two sincere Methodists in the county, Armstrong and Dalgleish. I had some excuse for going out hunting, for there were no religious services then. Waddy, who lived out by Franklin, and who drank some, used to come occasionally and preach in the school that was burned. Gordon, a cooper who lived where Dalgleish's store stands, used to do so also, and Armstrong exhorted. Armstrong had two sons, John and David. John turned out well. David got to drinking, married a daughter of Waggoner's and died about Trout River Lines. He was real smart and wrote a description of the village and its people.

Old Wallis was the first to build a stone house, except a small one put up by Suttle in N. Ireland, which Robert Douglas bought.

When Mr. Ellice was out I went with him to hunt. He was not very good at it. The gun he had was taken by a rebel in the rising and one of the Crosses afterwards bought it. Capt. Ermatinger often went out with me. He was strong and a good shot. He was killed at Sebastopol. The year I came, '29, I lived with French in a house just put up by Benj. Lewis ("The one I lived in—R.S."). It was not lathed. The year after French built the log house. Gallipeau was strong. The court and school was in the house where Oney's stands. I don't think it was used as a school until about '36, if not later. Bryant came a month before me, and Crawford a year after. Crawford was a splendid axe maker, and with a striker could make a dozen a day. They sold at $2.00 each. For chopping they were kept with an edge that would raise the skin in scraping with one.

Joshua Lewis had a store and ashery opposite Seely's, and moved to the village when his brother died of cholera, cheating his brother's children out of property. His brother was playing cards in Miller's tavern when he was seized. Fitch had a tannery when I came and he lived over it. His eldest daughter, Sally, married a brother of Mrs. French's, who was a daughter of Squire Spencer of Slatton, near Lake Champlain. He also was a shoemaker and worked with an Englishman named Totten. She was very neat and shoemakers would not stay on account of want of food. Old Mr. Fitch was called "Hungry Jack." He did not build tavern for himself but to rent. Finally he took it himself and got into the way of drinking. For several years after I came prayer meetings were held in Palmer's, and his house alternately on Sunday evenings.

John Wallis was a small, insignificant man, fond of snuff so that his upper lip was always covered with it. He was a Universalist, and so was old Mr. Lucas. It was old Mrs.

Governments Will Spend One Half of Totale Income of All Citizens in Canada in 1941

DURING most of the first week since reassembling, Parliament has discussed the huge war appropriation asked by the minister of finance for the coming fiscal year. It is a vote quite staggering in size, larger than any previous demand from the public exchequer in Canadian history. Of the $1,300,000,000 asked by Mr. Isley for war expenses in the coming year, about one half or $660,000,000 will be for the army at home and abroad; $420,000,000 for the navy and munitions departments. The figures, it has been explained, are subject to change, totalling as will be seen somewhat more than the $1,300,000,000 asked. Early in the week when presenting his resolution to the Commons, the minister stated that the Canadian people would be asked to contribute $2,700,000,000 for governmental expenses in the coming year, representing the greatest sacrifice ever experienced by the people of this country. The war program, he said, would tax Canadian productive capacity to the limit, would involve radical changes in the mode of life of the people, and called for the most determined and united effort of all Canadian citizens. The coming year would probably be the most critical in the history of civilization. The total of $2,700,000,000 asked from the people by taxation and borrowing was made up as follows: the war expense of $1,300,000,000; about $400,000,000 for repatriation of Canadian securities held in Britain; this amount to be placed at the disposal of the British Government for purchases in Canada; non-war Dominion Government expenses amounting to $433,000,000, details of which have been given in Parliament in the "Estimates," and the combined budgets of provinces and municipalities amounting to $575,000,000. It is the people who have to foot the bill, whether the government expense is Dominion, provincial or municipal, and the total for the year represents about one-half of the entire estimated income of the country.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS THIS TALK ABOUT "AID TO BRITAIN"

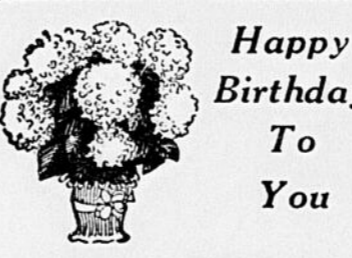

(Dunnville Chronicle) IN a current film, "Canada Carries On," dealing with English children in or coming to Canada, the commentary ends with the words: "Send us your children, England. We will take care of them, keeping them safe and happy while you carry on your fight." "Your fight?" asks the Ottawa Journal. Surely the clever young man who got out this film made a slip there. Or did they merely express, perhaps unconsciously, an all too prevalent state of mind in this country? A state of mind which seems to imagine that England is carrying on her fight, not Canada's. We speak—as our neighbors to the South speak—of sending "aid to Britain." Yet if we reflect at all we must realize that we are sending aid to ourselves, with Britain merely the battleground. Incidentally, perhaps, because of the area of the conflict, we aid Britain, but twenty times more Britain is aiding us; enduring and suffering as perhaps no nation has ever endured or suffered before to keep desolation from our shores.

It is well that we keep that truth in mind, guarding against the thought that this war is between England and Germany, and that we here in Canada are merely aiding Britain. This is our war; ours to the full measure that it is England's, demanding from us the same measure of sacrifice, and of willingness to sacrifice. If thus far the actual battle has been kept from our shores, that is our good fortune—plus England's valor and might.

IT'S AN OPPORTUNITY (Northern News)

IS what has happened unexpected? Has the war news of the last few days "got you down" or has it wakened you up? Chins Up! Remember what one man said when the picture was as dark, if not darker, a man who then and since has been prepared for whatever eventuality might arise, who doubtless foresaw the smaller nations of the Balkans ceding passage to the Hun just as a suburban street would have to surrender to the passage of a group of gangsters? "Every duty, well and honestly done, is a contribution to victory." THE PRIME MINISTER OF CANADA. A MECHANIZED ARMY SERVING YOU Mechanized and motorized units—these make up the modern army. You have often noticed Bell line crews with their trucks along the highway. Those too are mechanized, motorized units, each with a highly skilled crew; each completely equipped with tools, power, material. In an emergency they can be mobilized—quietly, quickly, efficiently—to repair the havoc wrought by storm, fire, or flood. The equipment they carry—standardized apparatus of many kinds—makes possible the speedy restoration of vital service. Preventive maintenance, preparedness, experience, and skill—these all serve to ensure that your message will get through with minimum delay in any emergency—a vital contribution to the country's war effort. Feminine Fancies

Dahlia's Whatnots

A minister once told me that he could listen to the radio and read the newspaper at the same time. Can you? I can't. Can concentration be overdone? Well, perhaps my reverend friend meant he could read while somebody else was listening to a musical program. This afternoon I tried to listen to Dr. Poling, American broadcaster, and to read an article by Rev. Dr. W. D. Reid at the same time. Dr. Poling was too good to lose, so it ended by Dr. Reid having to wait a few minutes. But Dr. Reid is worth waiting for, as well. But the odd thing about it was that they were saying almost the same thing. First Dr. Poling (if fancy he is a Rev. too) told how a man of 38 consulted him about continuing his studies in order to enter the ministry, for which he could not prepare in less than six years, when he would be 44. Dr. Poling, impressed by his earnestness, encouraged him and he succeeded in his course. Then Dr. Reid told about a college friend who had an earnest desire to become a missionary, and was at work in the foreign field, but had to resign that duty because his wife could not stand the climate. For twenty years he preached in Canada, always longing to be a foreign missionary. Upon his wife's death he returned to Canada.

Now, perhaps someone is saying, "The narrower a person's interests are the more likely he is to run across similarity in the nature of things," and probably that someone is correct.

I have noticed two quite different types of men beating and galloping their horses. One was a Russian junk-dealer, who gave his big, strongly-built nag one lasso to start with, and allowed him to gallop the several acres within eyesight. I imagine this man was raised in an Old World town, and was ignorant of how to handle a horse. The other man was a Canadian farmer. He both lashed and galloped his horse incessantly as far as I could see them. He was not ignorant, only drunk. Sober, he drove like a farmer; drunk, like a beer ad. No, we don't need any liquor advertisements in our Quebec papers. The Liquor Commission announced that its receipts are a few millions of dollars higher for 1940 than the year before.

You may remember Sir F. H. Doyle's poem "The British soldier in China," in which he describes his hero as "A drunken private of the Buffs" and tells how the Far Kentish hopfields round him seemed like dreams to come and go.

The war with China was not much less than a hundred years ago. The Buffs have their heroes in the present war, too. Every day a member of this Kentish regiment parades at the Buffs Memorial and turns a page of the Roll of Honour. One day the 16-year-old soldier on this duty, Pullman by name, heard the bombs fall around him and was struck by fragments of a shattered window in the Warrior's Chapel. But "he carried on unperturbed, completed his task, and with head erect" and perfectly calm, marched back to barracks.

Viscountess Snowden addressing the British Temperance League, said: "I never was afraid of anything that might come from Germany until I heard that they were going teetotal. Then I thought, 'If their brains are clear of the fumes of drink if their judgment is not disturbed, and in battle they have to meet people full of rum, our danger is to that extent increased. Is it not possible drink may be our greater enemy?' (condensed). I issue a challenge to all men and women of Great Britain, and to girls and boys who love their country to test if they are really capable of making sacrifices and give up drinking."

The R.P.Y.P.S. held its regular meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goldie and opened the evening with a skating party followed by a hot supper. After devotional and business periods an interesting feature of the evening was a debate entitled, "Resolved that in farm life men worked harder than women." Instead of following the usual custom of choosing the debaters, the question was thrown open to the whole meeting for discussion and brought out many interesting arguments on their own behalf the result, given by a show of hands, was a decision in favor of the fair sex.

THE CHILDREN'S COLUMN

Dear Boys and Girls:—This week's story is about a hare and a hedgehog, the hare being an animal very common to our country, while the hedgehog's home is in Europe and Western Asia. The hedgehog, however, looks exactly like the porcupine which lives in our North America. Now you know that the hare and the rabbit are very closely related to one another, both being about the same size and quite similar in appearance. Their one habit that differs is that the hare does not burrow as the rabbit does, but builds nests in the ground where young are born. Hares have no courage and are not very cunning. They are protected from their enemies by sharp sight and hearing, and they are able to move very quickly in long leaps. The hedgehog has sharp quills or needles on his back which he uses as protection against his enemies. He has a long nose and short ears and can roll himself into a ball very easily. And now, let us go on to our story about...

The Hare and The Hedgehog (From "The Girls' Book of Treasures")

It was a beautiful morning, about harvest time; the buckwheat was in flower, the sun shining in the heavens, and the morning breeze wafting the golden corn fields, while the lark sang gaily in the clear, blue sky, and the bees were buzzing about the flowers. The villagers seemed all alive; many of them dressed in their best clothes, hurrying to the fair.

It was a lovely day, and all nature seemed happy, even to a little hedgehog, who lived at his own door. He had his arms folded, and was singing as merrily as little hedgehogs can do on a pleasant morning. While he thus stood amusing himself, his little wife was washing and dressing the children, and he thought he might as well go and see how the field of turnips was getting on; for as he and his family fed upon them, they appeared like his own property. No sooner said than done. He shut the house door after him and started off.

He had not gone farther than the little hedge bordering the turnip field when he met a hare who was on his way to inspect the cabbages, which he also considered belonged to him. When the hedgehog saw the hare he wished him "Good morning!" very pleasantly.

But the hare, who was a grand gentleman in his way, and not very good natured, took no notice of the hedgehog's greeting, but said in a most impertinent manner: "How is it that you are running about the fields so early this morning?"

"I am taking a walk," said the hedgehog.

"Taking a walk," cried the hare with a laugh. "I don't think your legs are much suited for walking."

This answer made the hedgehog very angry. He could bear anything but a reference to his bony legs, so he said: "You consider your legs are better than mine, I suppose?"

"Well, I rather think they are," replied the hare.

"I should like to prove it," said the hedgehog. "I will bet anything that if we were to run a race, I should beat."

"That is a capital joke," cried the hare. "To think you could beat me with your bony legs. However, if you wish it, I have no objection to try. What will you bet?"

"A golden coin and a bag of turnips if I win or a bag of cabbages if you win."

"Agreed," said the hare, "and we may as well begin at once."

CASSEROLE OF TUNA AND MUSHROOMS

1 lb. mushrooms 2 tsp. butter
1 can tuna fish 3 tsp. butter
4 tsp. flour 2 cups milk
1 tsp. lemon juice or vinegar
1 tsp. salt 1/2 tsp. pepper

Buttered crumbs

Peel and slice the mushrooms and cook for 5 minutes in the 2 table-spoons of butter. Drain surplus oil from tuna fish. Remove mushrooms from butter, add the 3 table-spoons butter, blend in flour, add milk and seasonings and stir over heat until thick. In a casserole arrange layers of tuna and mushrooms, pour the sauce over, top with buttered crumbs and bake till crumbs are browned.

CHICKEN AND MUSHROOM CASEROLE

Follow recipe for Casserole of Tuna and Mushrooms, substituting 2 cups cooked diced chicken for the tuna fish. Chicken stock may be substituted for part of the milk.

JELLIED CHICKEN OR VEAL

1 chicken about 4 1/2 lbs. salt
1 cup cold water 2 c. boiled down
1/2 tsp. gelatine stock
1 tsp. cold water Boiling water

Cut up chicken or veal, cover with boiling water and simmer till tender.

"No, no," said the hedgehog. "Not in such a hurry as that. I must go home first and get something to eat. In half an hour I will be here again."

The hare agreed to wait, and away went the hedgehog, thinking to himself: "The hare trusts in his long legs, but I will conquer him. He thinks himself a very grand gentleman, but he is only a stupid fellow after all, and he will have to pay for his pride."

On arriving at home, the hedgehog said to his wife: "Wife, dress yourself as quickly as possible. You must go to the fair with me."

"What for?" she asked.

"Well, I have made a bet with the hare that I will beat him in a race, which we are going to run."

"Why, husband!" cried Mrs. Hedgehog with a scream. "What are you thinking of? Have you lost your senses?"

"Hold your noise, ma'am," said the hedgehog, "and don't interfere with my affairs. What do you know about a man's business? Get ready at once to go with me. Hedgehog say after this? She could only obey and follow her husband whether she liked it or not. As they walked along, he said to her: "Now, pay attention to what I say. You see that large field? Well, we are going to race across it. The hare will race in one furrow, and I in another. All you have to do is to hide yourself in the furrow at the opposite end of the field from which we start, and when the hare comes up to you, pop up your head and say, 'Here I am.'"

As they talked, the hedgehog and his wife reached the place in the field where he wished her to stop, and then went back and found the hare at the starting place, ready to receive him.

"Do you really mean it?" he asked.

"Yes, indeed," replied the hedgehog. "I am quite ready."

"Then let us start at once." And each placed himself in his furrow as the hare spoke. The hare continued, "One, two, three," and started like a whirlwind across the field. The hedgehog, however, only ran a few steps, and then popped down in the furrow and remained quite still.

When the hare, at full speed, reached the end of the field, the hedgehog's wife raised her head and cried: "Here I am!"

The hare stood still in wonder, for the wife was so like her husband that he thought it must be him.

"There is something wrong about this," he thought. "However, we'll have another try." So he turned and flew across the field at such a pace that his ears floated behind him.

The hedgehog's wife, however, did not move, and when the hare came to the other end, the husband was there, and cried: "Here I am!"

The hare was half beside himself with vexation. And he said: "One more try, one more."

"I don't mind," replied the hedgehog. "I will go on as long as you like."

Upon this the hare set off running, and actually crossed the field seventy-three times; and at one end the husband said, "Here I am," and at the other end the wife said the same. But at the seventy-fourth run the hare's strength came to an end, and he fell to the ground and owned himself beaten.

The hedgehog won the gold coin and the bag of turnips, and after calling his wife out of the furrow they went home together in very good spirits.

The lesson to be learned from this story is, first, that however grand a person may think himself, he should never laugh at others he considers less smart or clever until he knows what they can do; and, secondly, that when a man chooses a wife he should take her from the class to which he himself belongs; and if he is a hedgehog, she should be one also.

Biographical Sketches

MRS. ELIZABETH HORNBY

THIS is a story of a woman of four score and six. It is also a story of the indomitable spirit of England. At Thornton, near the great summer resort of Blackpool in England, where, in happier times, the holiday trippers from the mill towns used to come in great swarms—at Thornton is a cottage with a large garden. And there, for many years, an elderly English couple lived in peace. The Hornbys were solid, plain English folk who had never moved far from that patch of ground. You would have dismissed them as quite ordinary and healthy examples of their class and type—two survivors from the last century—a typical Darby and Joan.

Their children had grown up and moved away as children do, and even the grand-children who had visited there and played merrily about the house were grown up now and concerned with war and politics. They had great-grand-children also, and because they were very old the younger generation tended to push them a little bit into the background.

Then, in February, in the midst of war and frightfulness, Mr. Hornby died. His wife Elizabeth was left alone, at the age of eighty-six. The children, by this time solid elderly people themselves, tried to persuade her to move, but she chose to remain in her cottage on Raikes Road, for here were her memories, here was her home. But as she looked about her she saw marching men on every side, saw in her newspapers the stories of desperate battles across the Channel. And Mrs. Elizabeth Hornby, still a Briton to the core—this woman who had seen the Empire grow through two great wars—now in her declining years, faced a third trial. And she burned to be of help.

There wasn't much she could do. Others with brighter eyes and younger fingers could knit better than she. She was really too old to take young children into her cottage. Auxiliary work was out of the question. But Mrs. Hornby looked one day out of her cottage window, looked at the garden which had been so trim during her husband's lifetime, looked at the garden which now had grown so wild and desolate, and an idea was born in her mind. She had read somewhere, it matters not where, that Britain needed fresh vegetables—that Britain needed to turn every available acre of arable ground into production.

So in the cool March days, in the dawn of an English spring, this great-grandmother got wheelbarrow and hoe, rake and spade, and set out to till the land herself. It was hard, back-breaking work even for a woman half her age; but doggedly, determinedly, foot by foot and patch by patch, she dug and planted and tended and watered the ground until not a single inch of that garden was not doing its patriotic duty!

Now that cottage greenhouse is full of tomato plants, rows of potatoes, carrots, parsley; she even planted strawberry beds.

The story of what she had done spread to Blackpool, and from there to London. Slick newspaper reporters from the great city came down to Thornton to get a story from the old lady, but Mrs. Elizabeth Hornby was indignant. She didn't want publicity. "Don't make any fuss about it," she told them angrily. "I'm just getting on with the job."

"Walter," shouted the angry diner, "there's a bit of canvas in this fish." And the waiter calmly drew, "Well, why not? It's sailfish."

The late Mrs. Alfred A. Giguere, aunt of Mr. and Mrs. E. St. Amant of Huntingdon, passed away at her home in Montreal on Friday. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons, Leo F. and Adrien Giguere, also of Montreal, and a number of relatives.

that's all." And that was all she would say.

But long years from now, when this war is done and the deeds of men in war are inscribed on tablets of marble and bronze, there should also be inscribed the name of Mrs. Elizabeth Hornby—this great-grandmother who defied age and pain, this Englishwoman who knew her duty and didn't hesitate to do it. Perhaps her name should lead all the rest!

Army Team Highly Favored to Capture Semi Final Series

Woollen Mill Swamped 8-3 to Give Army Five Goal Lead in Second Semi-final Contest

Teams Clash Again This Evening in Second Game of Total Goal Series—Winner Meets Leach For "Tip-Top Trophy" Next Week—New Fighting Spirit Injected in Army Sextette Pays Dividends—Soly and Shearer Star

REFEREES . . . REFEREES . . . REFEREES

To the fans in the Huntingdon Town League who wondered, up until last week, whether the Army had a team in the league, we must say: definitely so! With the same players, apparently injected with a new fighting spirit, the Army team will be the team to beat in the finals, judging by the display they gave at the Huntingdon Skating Rink on Monday evening when they swamped the Woollen Mill by 8-3 in the first semi-final game. The second game will be played this evening and the winner will meet Leach for the Tip-Top trophy, emblematic of the Huntingdon Town League championship.

Entering the second game with a five-goal lead, the Army are highly favored to capture the round although they will be given some keen competition, as assured by Manager Jim Leach of the Woollen Mill.

The final series is scheduled to start on Monday evening and will be a best two out of three series. Games will be played on Monday and Wednesday and if a third one is necessary it will take place on Friday evening, March 7th.

Having thinned their roster to the regulation twelve men, the Army seemed more effective on Monday than at any other time this year. They launched power plays and kept the Woollen Mill goalie on the alert throughout the first period as well as during the remainder of the contest. The teams split in points in the first stanza on tallies by Ostiguy and "Chick" Fortune.

Muncey, Shearer and Soly gave the Army a three-goal lead in the second and in the third they bombarded the Woollen Mill goalie consistently. Six goals were scored in the last frame. These were registered by Fair-

R. B. Ness' Howick Rink Beats Lachine to Capture the St. Lawrence Annual 'Spiel'

Winners and Runners-up Receive Medals at 50th Anniversary Bonspiel—Extra End Played in Semi-Finals Before Howick Was Conceded Victory

Another major curling prize left Montreal on Saturday when Howick's rink of R. Logan, W. E. Logan, Dr. J. W. Watson and Dr. Bruce Ness captured the 50th anniversary bonspiel at St. Lawrence. The out-of-towners got off to a strong start when they clinched the first six ends for nine points, and Lachine at no time threatened to overcome that lead.

Dagenais broke into the scoring column with a two and one score, and after sharing four points over four ends, Howick wound up the struggle with another three points on the last two ends.

Immediate past-president R. E. Raguin of the Canadian Branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club presented the medals to the winners and runners-up, and remarked that St. Lawrence had contributed a great deal to curling in this district and has played the game as it should be played from the point of good fellowship—and hoped that the next 50 years would be even more successful.

ALL DAY CARNIVAL

THERE was a day when it was stated a "Winter Carnival" was to be held, that meant an ice palace would be erected; arches would be built of ice and suitably decorated with evergreens; flags and lights would be found across streets; statues made of ice would grace the entrances to public buildings, etc. Everything was made of ice and snow that would tend to characterize winter and make one revel in its charm of crispness for winter sports. The great amount of risk and expense in the building of these ice palaces, arches and statues has been discarded in this country. As a matter of fact the winter day set apart for "sport" has also suffered to a very considerable extent and it is with gratification that we now find many towns and cities hold an "All Day Carnival," and in the course of the day crown a "Queen of Sports."

On Saturday, March 1st, the Huntingdon Skating Rink Association will conduct an all-day of sports, and this Carnival Day is to be a day long to be remembered. The Carnival is being staged for two purposes. First and foremost the Rink Association wish to develop a greater desire in the minds of youth and adults to participate in winter sport. If this can be achieved, then the Rink will automatically reap its second objective, that of raising a sufficient amount of cash with which to renovate and maintain the rink as an asset to the Town of Huntingdon.

Upwards of 30 skaters have offered to be present. The Skating Rink are indeed very grateful to Mr. Cecil Brown, of Huntingdon, a member of Montreal Figure Skating Club, who was instrumental in arranging for their visiting Huntingdon on Saturday evening. These skaters from Montreal are presenting the programme in return for their out of pocket travelling expenses. It is indeed a very fine gesture on their part to so aid our Skating Rink Association. Their programme will be made up of solo numbers, waltzes, ten steps, Paul Jones, comedy numbers and of course a Grand March.

At the conclusion of this Figure Skating programme, at 10 o'clock, the crowning of Huntingdon's Queen of Sports is to take place. Everything appears well for a most enjoyable and interesting day of sports. Try to get the day aside so that you can enjoy it to the fullest. If you cannot be present yourself make an effort to send along some youngster that may be poor and has not the money to pay the small admission asked. The entrance fee for the morning programme is only 10c, for the afternoon 10c and 15c for adults, whilst that of the evening is to be 20c for children and 35c for adults.

Sharp at 8 p.m. a full evening programme is to be presented that will be most colorful, graceful and captivating to young and old, whether they have ever been able to personally participate in winter sports or otherwise. The big feature of the evening is being given by members of the Montreal Figure Skating Club.

Saturday morning will see a double header hockey match played between the two school teams of Huntingdon, Ormstown, and Howick. The afternoon programme starts off with a skate racing programme for junior boys and girls as well as the older scholars. To cap the afternoon programme, Ormstown and Huntingdon girls will stage a hockey match.

E. Goodfellow's Huntingdon Rink Wins Over S. Robb in Consolation Round—R. B. Ness' Rink And S. Stewart, of Howick, Reach Finals, Which Have Yet to be Played—Competition Keen

The sum of $30, in War Savings Stamps and Certificates was distributed among the winning combinations during the District Granite Association Bonspiel which was held at the Huntingdon Curling Club on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Two Howick teams reached the finals and were granted permission to play that game on home ice due to the fact that R. B. Ness' team had to play in Montreal on Friday evening. The winner has yet to be announced.

While Howick teams stole the show during the regular games, Huntingdon outscored and defeated all opposition in the consolation series. E. Goodfellow's quartette defeated S. Robb's aggregation by 13-9 to win the consolation round.

Sixteen teams took part in this annual bonspiel and the games played at the Curling Rink during that three day competition were keenly fought and each entry was determined to win the money prizes.

Kiddies Party Well Attended At Huntingdon

Two Hundred Children Take Part in Annual Skating Party—Free Skating and Lunch Provided by Rink Officials

And a good time was had by all! More than two hundred children of Huntingdon took part in the annual kiddies' party sponsored by the Huntingdon Skating Rink on Saturday afternoon. Huntingdon High School, Huntingdon Convent, St. Joseph's School and a few country schools were well represented at this gathering where skating, races, and other forms of entertainment kept the children active for more than two hours.

This free skating party sponsored by the Rink is very popular, judging from the enthusiasm displayed during the afternoon. Skaters arrived as early as 1 p.m. and did not leave the ice, in most instances, until the going announced the end of the free skating period. Even then some of the younger lads wanted another fling around the rink but quickly rushed into the waiting rooms when told: "Soup is on!"

The rink officials had a trying time to serve these 200 hungry children at one time. Nevertheless, they finally managed to feed them all after serving more than eight gallons of Borden's Malted Milk, 17 dozen rolls and more than 250 sandwiches.

The Skating Rink is to be congratulated for this event as it gives many children in Huntingdon an opportunity to skate indoors at least once a year. Many of these boys have not the necessary funds to enjoy skating in the rink regularly and look forward to this annual affair with much anxiety.

The result of the races was as follows:
Boys, 13 years—1, William Beauchamp; 2, Jack Dudley; 3, Gerard Brisebois.
Boys, 8 years—1, Lucien Dégré; 2, Gérard Tessier; 3, C. Arnold.
Girls, 13 years—1, Thérèse Robitaille; 2, Therese Lefebvre; 3, Thelma Kelly.
Girls, 8 years—1, Betty Houle; 2, Renee Boyer; 3, Beverly Kyle.

We wish to congratulate Miss Gertrude Patenaude for successfully completing her course in Montreal in beauty parlor work, including permanent waving.

On Friday evening the members of the Women's Institute entertained at the Fishy Memorial Hall. Cards were played at 21 tables. Prizes were won by the following: First, Mr. S. T. Cunningham; second, Mrs. W. T. Hayes; third, Mr. Hermas Fortin; fourth, Mr. Flumerfelt; ladies' consolation, Mrs. Francis Stringer; gentlemen's consolation, Mr. John Dabinski. There were 15 lucky door prizes. The committee in charge are to be congratulated on a successful evening. Proceeds amounted to $33.75. Refreshments of coffee and doughnuts, cookies was served at the close.

Mrs. G. A. McKay and the Misses Irene Moore and Shirley McKay attended a tea given by Mrs. F. K. Puttee at 681 McEachran Ave., Ormstown, Que., Saturday afternoon from 4.30 to 6, also a crystal show given by Mrs. Norman Lane, 4757 Grosvenor Ave., Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Hazel McKay, whose marriage takes place Saturday, March 1.

The beautiful flowers on the communion table at St. Andrew's United Church at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning were in memory of the late Mr. W. F. Orr.

Army Ends Regular Season by Trouncing Leach Textiles 4-2 In Wildest Game Seen in Years

Last Game of Regular Season Ends in General Free-for-all—First Loss Sustained by Leach This Season—Referees Fortune and Grant Handle the Situation Satisfactorily Despite Rough Tactics

The regular season in the Huntingdon Town League ended in a sensational way on Friday evening as the Army came from behind in the second period to eke out a victory over the undefeated Leach Textiles team by the score of 4-2.

The hundreds of spectators who witnessed the game saw plenty of action and were kept in suspense until the very last second of play. A regrettable incident occurred with about five seconds of play remaining in the last period when goalie Wheatley of the Army threw his goal stick at diminutive Allan "Stubby" McDermid when the latter attempted to push the rubber in the Army's net. Luckily, young McDermid was about ten feet away when the stick was thrown. The players dashed on the ice and held each other until the going announced the end of the game.

Tempers flared from the opening of hostilities and referees "Chick" Fortune and Howie Grant had their hands full in attempting to handle the situation in the best possible and satisfactory manner.

The Army had the advantage in man power throughout the first stanza when Army players were banded for unfair tactics. The last forty minutes furnished the highlights of the evening as again Army men were penalized for attempting to demolish Leach's players.

Leach opened the scoring in the second but the Army took advantage of the breaks and made good their shots from close-in. Three of the last goals scored by the Army were registered when they were short-handed. The losers kept the puck inside the Army defensive area in the last period in an attempt to regain the lost lead but this was unsuccessful as clearing and break-aways were well timed.

With five minutes to go Leach sent on five forwards and were legally bowled over each time they entered the Army territory. The tactics were most effective in assuring the Army of their first victory of the season in the Huntingdon Town League.

Friday's contest was one of the wildest frays seen in Huntingdon in the last five years. Both teams apparently jumped on the ice with the same idea in mind: win or take the consequences. The levels at which the teams played in this contest could not be described except that they were much, much, much too high for comfort, unless the attacked players carried sufficient insurance to guarantee a decent burial under at least three feet of dirt.

Referees: H. Grant, P. Fortune.

STRIPES AND PLAIDS FOR TAILORED BEDROOMS
Pastels for Delicate Effects—High Colors for Staunch Rooms—How and Where to Use Plaids and Stripes

IF the men of the family are indulgently amused at your ideas of bedroom decoration, 'tis time to surprise them with something strictly tailored. For like smart clothes, bedrooms don't have to be frigid and fancy... some of the most charming and comfortable have a sleek smooth way about them.

At The Top of the Heap

This season, particularly, is a good time for those who are interested in a tailored bedroom. For stripes and plaids are at the top of the fashion heap. When you think of them, however, don't think there's any obligation to go peasant or country-fied if you don't feel that way about life. For both stripes and plaids can be as formal as you please... in fact the Regency and Federal fashions in vogue today call for sophisticated stripes. While for formal French furniture there is a whole repertoire of small stripes with that perfection of detail characteristic of this style. With French provincial furniture, plaids are delightful in either pastel or high colors, according to the design of the formality desired. With 18th Century English furniture there are wonderful Georgian floral stripes. As for early American furniture, stripes and plaids can be used as abracadabra—to make the room either urbane or folksy.

Besides the strictly period traditions in stripes and plaids, there are marvelous recipes for rooms that don't belong to any special style. The rooms most of us have! A floral stripe is charming to pull together a room full of oddments. Use it for bedspread and slip covers, then cut single bands of the flower stripes to outline the windows and make a finish for plain white curtains. If you have an old chest, table or side chair to be painted, see if a band of this flowered stripe cut out and glued on, then shekked, might not add a decorator's touch to a piece of painted furniture. For a modern

To Pull the Room Together

If your problem is the opposite one of simplification, then plain stripes are your dish of tea. They give great smartness when used with ornate furniture or with too much pattern elsewhere in the room. Sometimes if the room has gotten out of hand, it can be pulled together by having three walls in a plain color and the fourth in a plain stripe. Big sprawling cabbage rose floral cretonnes are lovely in combination with plain stripes.

Plaids require a different approach. They don't combine with other designs as easily as stripes, so it is usually better to use them to perk up a room that is too plain and monotone. If you like an effect that is delicate but not fussy, use a pastel plaid in taffeta with furniture of certain dignity. For a crisp, sturdy room, consider Scotch plaid gingham or serge—that would be pleasant with maple, oak or walnut furniture. A pleasant plaid is the thing for painted furniture, maple or walnut.

A word to the wise about plaids—avoid too much plaid in a room, then it will make you dizzy. Better not have them for walls, windows and coverings, for instance, unless you're an expert decorator. An expert decorator of course can break all the rules! Plain walls with plaid curtains, spread and chairs is a pretty safe combination. Or plaid walls with plain curtains, spread and covers is a safe recipe.

With pastel plaids you can use accessories of delicate porcelain, flower prints, or prints of birds. The brighter you'll find that bird prints, Carrier and Ives prints, American primitives are the most satisfactory.

Here a bed-sitting room for a young girl is furnished with bleached French furniture, and a pastel plaid taffeta is used for the upholstery and cushions on the bed, draperies and slip covers. The colors in this room are pale pink for the walls, grey-blue carpet and pink and grey-blue plaid taffeta.

Facts of Interest To Movie Fans

BLOSSOMING of Deana Durbin into a bride-to-be was celebrated at a dinner-dance given in the Floristine Room of the Beverly-Whitely Hotel by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Durbin. Cameramen were barred but Deana co-operated with the boys by posing at home before the shrines. Deana and her fiancé, Vaughn Paul, first became interested in each other during the filming of "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," and she has never dated any other beau. Their engagement was announced on her 19th birthday in December when Vaughn gave her a diamond ring flanked by two sapphire rubies. They've set June 7th for their wedding day.

JANE RUSSELL, unknown 19-year-old Van Nuys girl, was chosen, after a six months' search, to play Rio, fiery half-breed, in Producer Howard Hughes' "Hell's Angels" made a star of Jean Harlow, and whose "Scarface" brought fame to Paul Muni and George Raft. There's nothing unusual about Jane's discovery; her photograph was submitted by the casting office in the routine way. She was picked out for a personal interview, given reading tests, series of film tests, and finally selected as the one for the role. Unusual angle is entrusting a leading role in a big production to a girl without any screen experience at all.

HAPPIEST he'd been in a long time was Laurence Olivier on arrival in New York with Vivien Leigh, headed for England to do active war duty. Unhappy for some time in his position of a British subject enjoying comforts of peace while war raged his homeland, Larry left Hollywood as soon as he and Vivien finished "Lady Hamilton" to offer his services to his government. Unable to book passage on the Clipper, Larry and Vivien sailed from Jersey City on the Excambion for Lisbon.

ART of acting isn't the only one in which many of the Hollywood stars excel, as was proved when the stars had an exhibit of art works created by the film colony. Etchings by Lionel Barrymore were shown, an impressionistic pastel, "Dogs Watch Man-Fight" was Gracie Allen's contribution, sculptured head of Pan by Vincent Price, Henry Fonda and Tyrone Power added to exhibit with their artistic photographs. Most comment was aroused by Reginald Gardiner's painting of Hedy Lamarr entitled "Scorpio," with a rose in one hand and a bullwhip in the other.

Remember that forced friendship is not loyalty, that forced alliances and agreements are never sound. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas, and oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air. We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be... we shall never surrender, and even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this island, or even a part of it is submerged and starving, then our Empire across the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on the struggle until, in God's good time, the new world in all its strength and might sets forth to the rescue and liberation of the old.

Look at the tremendous effort in United States help, from its government, its industries and citizens. Why, this is Canada's opportunity! We in Canada have what it takes too. Let's put what it takes into our war effort.

matred income of the Canadian people.

Program Under Fire

The Government's program has been under fire from Opposition benches. Conservative leader, R. B. Hanson, renewed an urgent request for the formation of some form of national government. There should be, he insisted, a "master war plan." The peace time estimates of $433,000,000 had not been reduced sufficiently. They were $18,000,000 under the previous year, but of this $15,000,000 represented the deficit on the Canadian National Railway, which fortunately during the coming year would not be a charge on the public exchequer. The Government should not carry out the decennial census, due this year, and which will cost $2,800,000. This was a peacetime activity and the country was at war. "The Canadian people," Hanson said, "would give the money to carry on the war to the maximum point of which the country was capable, but they would insist that every dollar was used efficiently." An object of sharp attack by the Conservative leader was aircraft production in Canada, which he said was such too slow. He issued a statement in which he said that he understood six aircraft manufacturing companies in Canada had recommended to the Government that Federal Aircraft Ltd., a crown company, should be dissolved. The co-ordination of the manufacture of Avro-Ansons' planes for advanced air training has been the main duty of Federal Aircraft.

Coldwell Offers Amendment

The acting C.C.F. leader, M. J. Coldwell, has said that he would offer an amendment to the war appropriations bill in which he would ask that the $1,300,000,000 should be raised by compulsory interest-free loans "raised according to ability to pay and by public ownership of the whole financial system." His party would not oppose the war appropriations bill, but he urged that wealthy people should not be allowed to pile up Government bond holdings at attractive rates of interest. For the Social Credit party (New Democracy), V. Quelen said "he feared raising a large sum by taxation and borrowing would reduce the standard of living in Canada to such an extent that it would interfere with the war effort. Monetary inflation did not find favor with either the Conservative or C.C.F. leaders. Inflation to some extent might have to come later on in the war, but for the present it was neither necessary nor advisable, Mr. Hanson believed. Precedence has been given to all governmental measures during the present session. Not long after the war appropriations bill is disposed of the budget will be brought down. It will of course show the proximate proportions of the heavy war and other expenditures which will be asked from the people through taxation and by borrowing. This is awaited pretty grimly by both members of parliament and the public. Canadian army leaders have met in Ottawa to confer on matters of vital military concern. Discussions covered a wide range, including questions of general organization of the military forces, recruiting and training of men, and equipment and supplies for the army. Very naturally opinions and decisions of those attending the meetings are not made public, as they would be of assistance to the enemy. Among those attending have been the minister of national defence, the chief of the general staff, the commanding officers of the Eastern and Western commands and the heads of military districts throughout the country.

"How's business going, good-looking?" "I can't criticize." "That's fine!" "No it isn't! I'm a critic." "I've just returned from photographing big game in Africa." "Well, well, any gnu?"

Well, there's more than one reason for that. It's a mild... cool... sweet smoke—you have three reasons, right there. It's economical—and it's the Burley tobacco—the pick of Canada's Burley crop, with a mellow flavour all its own. Try it. I bet you'll agree—"

Russia Thought to Have Pressured Turkey to Bulgaria Pact—German and Allied and Russian Strategy Keep All Guessing as to Next Move

By DONALD C. MACDONALD

TURKEY'S non-aggression pact with Bulgaria is still something of a puzzler which does not seem to become any clearer as we move further away from it.

German Strategy In this respect it would seem to me that her immediate intentions coincide with those of Germany.

Russian Strategy Russia's whole strategy in this war is dictated by her desire to see neither side of the conflict triumphant.

Allied Strategy Furthermore, if the Allied strategy does contemplate a Balkan thrust, say from Salonika—as apparently the Germans fear, and hope to counteract by preparing their position in Bulgaria—the possibility of its success will be infinitely greater if at the same time Germany is as fully occupied as possible in the west.

Against that background, I believe the Turkish pact with Bulgaria is more understandable. Russia knows that a Balkan war at the moment would eventually drag her into it, and because of her vital interests it would have to be in opposition to Germany.

What the signing of the Turkish pact means is that the German war machine, as it were, is being reloaded with fresh munitions. The German war machine, as it were, is being reloaded with fresh munitions.

ing industrial section and then it showed me the transportation facilities with which we are endowed and particularly the fact that we are afforded by the Bay of St. Francis and of which we take little advantage.

Historical Past in Limelight Again the historical past was brought into the limelight and I saw the men who travelled the St. Lawrence and who after their weary portage discovered the quiet bay upon which our city now looks.

It presented a picture of the electric situation, of the labor situation, of living costs and it made very complimentary reference to the type of organizations here; especially I did it refer to La Chambre de Commerce, La Chambre de Commerce des Jeunes, the Tourist Bureau and the Industrial Committee.

Fiction?

Just what is Germany going to do? Invade England? Attack Greece through Bulgaria and Yugoslavia? Bolster up Italian strength and morale by sending troops, etc., to her aid? Attack Gibraltar? All these things? Any one of them? Just what?

It is just possible she may not be going to do any of them. To invade England requires many things to be in Germany's favor, too many, perhaps, to ever happen all at the one time, and even if a landing were effected the invasion still might not be successful.

Suppose that Germany is not intending to invade England. No one can be sure that she is not, so just the possibility of it keeps much of the British Navy and a very large army more or less inactive. By threatening an invasion Germany keeps British ships and men out of the war against her.

She has made or is trying to make a pact whereby the Balkan States will agree not to attack each other; if Germany attacks Greece, then Bulgaria and Turkey. As long as Bulgaria does not molest Turkey or threaten Turkish interests Germany need have no concern in regard to Turkey. As long as that treaty is kept Turkey can never attack Germany through Bulgaria.

not attack Greece then Turkey cannot attack Germany without breaking her treaty with Bulgaria. Can Greece attack Germany? Well, hardly. Well, who can? England—through Bulgaria and Yugoslavia? Again, hardly, with them all neutral and bound to each other by treaties of non-aggression.

Well, just what is going on down there? Maybe Germany is not going to attack anybody, but is simply making it next to impossible for anybody (England) to attack her through the Balkans. A range of mountains stretches from the Black Sea through Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and into Sardinia, and these mountains can be utilized as a potent line of defence, a natural barrier against attack and with a free hand to fortify them Germany can make a ring of defence around her southern frontiers and which, linking up with the Seigfried and also, of course, the Maginot lines, Germany can make herself secure to a remarkable degree from the ordinary methods of attack.

Is Germany beaten then? Has she decided that all that is left to her is to defend herself? Perhaps, yet possibly not beaten, but a plan by which she may have a chance to be the victor.

In making herself exceedingly strong against attack she can demolish a large part of her army and put them back into industry, and using the munition plants of the occupied countries, and that means Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, etc., and using also the manpower of the overrun peoples she can perhaps build up for herself a strength that may possibly equal or even over-reach the strength and resources of the British Empire and the United States. If this is possible and she can make so many submarines, bombers, etc., that she can very seriously hamper and destroy ship transport to Europe and from Europe, she might eventually win the war that way, or perhaps one should say, think she can win the war that way. This is a possibility somewhat in keeping with German tactics, making others bear the brunt of her defence, and if successful Germany and the German people will have been little less than the victors.

What's in the Wind

by PAULA DICKS

Poetic Justice As a woman with a husband, a farm and a family on her hands, I've had certain doubts at times as to whether I was ever justified in taking my pen in hand (i.e., the cover of the typewriter) to tell the world my latest fool idea. That this self-indulgence has led to membership in the Canadian Women's Press Club and attending meetings connected therewith just emphasizes the complications.

Now, however, I do feel justified, fortified and encouraged in this peculiar hobby. At the Montreal Branch of C.W.P.C. I listened to Sister Mary St. Thomas Aquinas tell something of her experience. Mrs. Mary Barker, Hon. President, in introducing the guest speaker said:

"Sister Mary St. Thomas Aquinas is my dear friend and a beloved member of the Ottawa Women's Press Club for sixteen years. She has been decorated by the Government of France for her literary work and also for her devoted services during the last war. She is the founder and Mother Superior of the Jeanne D'Arc Institute in Ottawa. Among her recent literary accomplishments has been the translation of Marshall Saunders' 'Beautiful Joe' into the French language. We are delighted to have Sister with us to-day and to honor her in this simple way for her literary achievements and fine humanitarian work for her adopted country."

Just what I am is a little girl, and I come to you here as a little girl, said Sister St. Thomas, who is indeed quite small with a round, cheerful countenance and humorous eyes. "I hope you will understand the feeling that made me accept the invitation to come and speak to you. I cannot feel that I am speaking to the public here, as I have been a member of the Ottawa Club for many years. It was my recreation, my happiness and interest in the meetings. They were so charming and made me feel so happy. We were all together, so interested and friendly."

Sister St. Thomas gave a most interesting paper on the times, life and letters of Madame de Sevigne, who was active at the Court and in political circles in the reign of Louis XIV. It is to the indefatigable industry of Mde. de Sevigne in recording the events and painting the political scene in vivid language that we owe much of the historical detail of 17th century France. Extracts from the work of Mde. de Sevigne were read in French by the speaker.

"Happy are we," said Sister St. Thomas, "if we keep alive the sacred fire of our own enthusiasm. If we remain faithful in spirit and sincerely in our writing, and if we inform in our writing, and if we cannot close without sending a loving thought to our brothers, sisters and friends in England and France, and if you permit me I will read to you a poem I wrote a few days ago. The last verse of which has been translated into English:

Spring is Going to Come Anew And if, sad and dreary, thoughtful you bow your head, The sweet primrose or the humble violet Will tell you that sometimes under a trampling foot She has painfully shivered and felt ready to die, When a sudden vigor coming forth From fibre to fibre has brought her back to life.

Miss Lily Barrie, a poetess who has won several honors herself, and witty manner. She referred to a volume of poems which she held in her hand as one of the printed works of Sister Mary St. Thomas Aquinas in which English translations accompany the original French version. But Miss Barrie quoted Alfred Noyes as stating that poetry could not be accurately translated. For herself, she was grateful for the opportunity of acquiring a knowledge of French, in her youth. To know another language is to double your personality.

"I just cannot explain the feeling with which I thank our guest speaker to-day," continued Miss Barrie. "Sister has accomplished so many practical things, as well. Besides leading a devoted and exacting life in a religious order, engaging in literary effort, writing poetry, she has established a home for business women and travellers in Ottawa, Jeanne D'Arc Institute. There, she is known as 'The Little Sister' wherever you go. Under her tuition members of parliament, business girls and young men in

Province's Farms Are Electrified

Rank With Ontario in Percentage of Farms Lighted

Percentage of Quebec farm homes supplied with electricity and gas lighting is exactly the same as in Ontario and more than double the average for the Dominion as a whole.

According to the most recent survey, 1938, 31.2% of Quebec farms were supplied with electricity and gas lighting. Ontario had the same percentage.

In the period from 1931 to 1938 British Columbia was the only province to show a decline, as will be seen from the following table:

BABY CHIMPANZEES USE PAIR OF PLIERS TO REMOVE TOOTH

A little Chimpanzee in the St. Louis Zoo was losing one of its baby teeth. It was loose, but apparently painful and the chimp was afraid to pull it out.

Several of them tried to pull the tooth, but couldn't get a good hold. Finally an attendant gave one of them a pair of pliers. After a few experiments he knew how to use them, and believe it or not he succeeded in pulling the tooth. The whole group examined that tooth, bringing it for their companion's comfort, they shrieked their accusations, bit it, and even jumped on it. The trainer had a hard time getting it away from them.
