Eighteen have testified in CNTU bombing hearing

QUEBEC (CP) — Eighteen witnesses have testified so far in the preliminary hearing of three union employees charged with bombing and conspiring to bomb motels belonging to a businessman embroiled in a dispute with the union.

Therhault and Raynald Tardif in Sessions court is under a publication ban. The three men, employees of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, are charged in the bombing of the Motel Universel in Chicoutimi last May 23. Henry and Therhault are also charged with conspiracy to bomb motels in Drummondville and Montreal. The union and businessman Raymond Malenfant have been at loggerheads since Malenfant bought the Manoir Richelieu, east of Quebec City, and fired its unionized employees. One of the witnesses expected to appear at the preliminary hearing, which started Monday, is Marc Boi-vin, a former union employee, who has been denounced by his former colleagues as a police informer. Boivin, who is being held in protective custody, pleaded guilty last week to six charges of conspiracy to bomb motels.

Meanwhile, Daniel Johnson, Quebec's acting justice minister, denied a Radio-Canada report that the province is considering taking legal action against the Canadian Security and Intelligence Service for allowing Boivin to commit criminal acts in Quebec. Boivin has been identified variously as an informer for provincial police, the RCMP or the CSIS.

Johnson called the reports "rumours."

ELSS prefers showers

RECORD/JOANNA SCHEIB

In a mock parliamentary debate, Rachel Pelletier praises the range of activities possible in a shower, opposing the motion: "A Bath is better than a Shower." Jean-Francois Coté and Suzie Matteau, also members of the opposition, took part in a debate which was one of six presentations put on by Bishop's English Language Summer School (ELSS). The program, which lasted six weeks, had 130 French-speaking only students. The school's workshop displays, presented Tuesday evening, demonstrated its success as 130 Francophones spoke or sang in English only.

Funds went into secret account

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's largest social-service agency used a secret bank account to pay more than $600,000 over five months to top officials, decorating companies and consulting firms hired without authorization, the Montreal Gazette said today.

The newspaper said the audit of the Centre de services sociaux du Montreal metropolitan covered the years 1984 to 1986 and was conducted by Price Waterhouse last summer.

"I was scandalized," Mario Lebrun, an aide to Health Minister Therese Lavoie-Roux, said Wednesday. "It's mind-boggling."

Asked why some officials named in the report are still working at the agency and have not paid back money they allegedly took, Lebrun said the government cannot interfere with the agency's management.

The newspaper said the audit showed that while 158 cheques totalling $608,994 were drawn on a secret bank account, no money was ever deposited in the account. The bank covered the cheques by drawing the money from other accounts the agency had.

PM on Alberta's Piquette affair:

No Canadian should have to apologize for speaking French

EDMONTON (CP) — Prime Minister Brian Mulroney doesn't like plans to make members of the Alberta legislature seek permission before speaking French in the assembly.

And Mulroney wouldn't comment on Alberta Premier Don Getty's claim that the prime minister feels misled over news reports about New Democrat Leo Piquette's battle to speak French.

Mulroney arrived in Edmonton Wednesday afternoon for meetings Thursday and Friday of his inner cabinet.

Asked about a provincial legislature committee's recommendation that members get approval from the Speaker before using French, Mulroney replied: "What do you think the reaction would be if somebody said to an English-speaking Canadian anywhere in the country, you will have to ask permission or apologize for speaking English?"

"I suppose the reaction would probably be predictable," he said in an interview with the Edmonton Journal's editorial board.

"If fairness is going to be an important consideration of a civilized society — and I think it has to be — then you have to look at this from the perspective of someone else," he said.

"I've always thought that a civilized country is measured by its dimension of tolerance."

POSITION CLEAR

Mulroney said he doesn't want a part in the legislature discussions because he's not familiar with details. "But I think my position is pretty clear in terms of the fundamental."

Questioned in the House of Commons June 29 about the Piquette affair, Mulroney said no Canadian should have to apologize for speaking French.

But Getty said Tuesday that Mulroney has since told him he felt misled because of news reports. Getty said the prime minister now realizes Piquette's apology would be for challenging Carter, not for speaking French.

Mulroney refused to say if he told Getty he'd felt misled.

He said he never discusses his private conversations. "Premier Getty can give his side if he wants."

Mulroney said in the interview he doubts if Strathcona Tory MP David Kilgour could have been elected if he ran for another party in the 1984 election.

KILGOUR OUSTED

He said Kilgour, ousted from the Conservative caucus while he decides his political future after criticizing the government, failed to show party solidarity when the Tories were taking political heat.

"When times get tough you stick together and you ride 'em out," Mulroney said. "David chose to set out his views in another way."

"I'm not sure, but I have some doubts whether he'd have been elected under another banner in 1984."

Mulroney brushed off complaints by Mayor Laurence Decore that he wouldn't meet to discuss rumors that Canadian National will reduce its Edmonton operations.

"That had been knocked down for the falsehood it was."

Mulroney said he set the record straight in a letter to Decore making a meeting unnecessary.

The prime minister said his western economic diversification package will be ready "in a number of weeks."

He refused to give details, saying only that it will have incentives for areas which complement Alberta's economic mainstays of energy, petrochemicals and agriculture.

Binding dispute settlement crucial — Carney

By Mark Wyatt

EDMONTON (CP) — A binding mechanism for settling trade disputes is an essential part of any freer trade agreement with the United States and the only way to enforce one, International Trade Minister Pat Carney said Wednesday.

Carney said she wasn't overly concerned about statements made Wednesday by U.S. senators Jack Danforth and Lloyd Bentsen that a binding disputes settlement mechanism won't win congressional support.

"There is nothing new in these kinds of statements," said Carney, who is in Edmonton for meetings of the federal cabinet's priorities and planning committee.

"When they see our overall package and see the benefits to the United States, I'm sure they will give it consideration," she told reporters after emerging from a private reception in a downtown hotel for Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

"I hope they'll consider our proposition when they know what we have in mind."

Bentsen and Danforth told reporters in Washington Wednesday it would be impossible to establish a "different and unique" disputes settlement mechanism with Canada because other U.S. trading partners would demand the same treatment.

However, Carney said a binding settlement mechanism is "the only way we can ensure a trade treaty is, in fact, enforceable."

She said a new trade pact must include a way of settling disputes that is "cheaper, faster and simpler."

United States officials have warned repeatedly that it will be difficult, if not impossible, to sell Congress on removing Canada-U.S. trade from U.S. trade-remedy laws and putting it under a separate disputes settlement body.

Carney said a separate settlement structure is essential, adding Mulroney has said without a new mechanism a trade deal could be thwarted.

Turner: Tories should walk away from free trade

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Conservative government should walk away from the free-trade talks with the United States, Liberal Leader John Turner said today.

Turner, who was repeating the same demand he has issued to Prime Minister Brian Mulroney over the last two weeks, said there are too many loose ends in the negotiations to continue them.

Mulroney briefed the premiers

Tuesday night in Ottawa on the status of the negotiations, but Turner complained that everyone else in the country is being left in the dark.

"Canadians as a whole really don't know what's going on," he said. Turner is in St. John's campaigning for the July 20 federal byelection in the St. John's East riding.

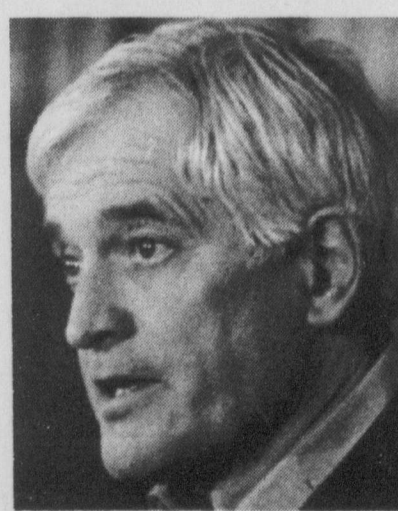

Turner said the deal appears to be fatally flawed already.

In several key areas, there are no assurances that Canadian interests will be protected, he said, citing the auto pact, farm marketing boards and regional development as programs that could be gutted by free trade.

And there is still no guarantee that the Americans will give in on the key Canadian demand for a binding mechanism to settle trade disputes without resort by the Americans to punitive U.S. trade laws, he said.

"I say to the prime minister that if he can't do better than he's doing, if he can't tell Canadian where he is, he ought to pull out of these negotiations."

Both Ontario Premier David Peterson and Manitoba Premier Howard Pawley said that based on what they heard Tuesday night, they would not support a trade deal.

John Turner... Canadians don't know what's going on.

Turner said that reinforces his view that the talks should be aborted.

Mosquitos don't spread AIDS virus — Smith

OTTAWA (CP) — Fears that mosquitos transmit the AIDS virus to humans are groundless, says a spokesman for the National AIDS Centre.

Centre co-ordinator Greg Smith says scientific evidence so far has shown mosquitos can pick up the virus when they bite infected people. But the virus apparently does not enter the mosquito's saliva, which is the way in which the insect transmits such diseases as malaria, encephalitis and yellow fever.

"It's a dead issue," said Smith in an interview. "There's no evidence to support" any fears.

Reports last week in an Atlanta newspaper that mosquitos were found to carry the disease led to speculation that the bugs could infect humans. But the bugs were found not to be infected with the virus, Smith said. AIDS is not like malaria which is a parasitic infection that afflicts the mosquito and is passed on to humans it feeds on.

Smith said that Dr. Robert Gallo, a top AIDS researcher whose experiments isolated the AIDS virus and whose research was cited out of context in the article, has criticized the conclusion that the virus is passed on by mosquitos.

"We have no evidence to support or suggest mosquitos can or do transmit the AIDS virus under laboratory conditions," Gallo says.

Smith said if the virus was passed by mosquitos there would be fairly even distribution of the disease across all age groups. In fact, the incidence of AIDS peaks at the beginning of sexually active age groups and declines in age groups of low sexual activity.

The occurrence of AIDS in children is no indication of transmission by insects, said Smith. Those who are infected with the virus have been found to pick up the disease from their mothers, blood transfusions, or through contaminated intravenous needles, said Smith.

Smith said researcher Jean-Claude Chermann of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, another world-renowned expert in AIDS research, has also supported Gallo's assertions.

Vague language institute plan to promote mosaic

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada's first heritage language institute will be established in Edmonton, federal Multiculturalism Minister David Crombie said Wednesday.

The institute's main role will be to develop teaching materials for languages and cultures which have become part of the Canadian mosaic, Crombie told about 1,100 people at the Italian Cultural Centre.

But he later refused to tell reporters how much money the federal government would spend on the project or when it would be set up. He did not specify which languages were involved.

Crombie said Edmonton was "almost a natural choice" because of its past commitment to heritage languages and cultures.

He said Dr. Henry Kreisel, an award-winning author and former academic vice-president at the University of Alberta, will meet with language and cultural groups who have an interest in the centre. Kreisel will then report back to him by the end of October with recommendations for the centre and programs.

Alberta New Democrat Leader Ray Martin said he needed to know more about the institute before he could get excited about it.

"I would have hoped it would have been a lot more thought out, a lot more specific," said Martin.

NDP flipflop: Get best free trade deal possible

OTTAWA (CP) — In a major flipflop, New Democrat MPs refused Wednesday to join Liberal Leader John Turner's call for an end to the free-trade talks and instead urged the premiers to make sure Canada gets the best deal possible.

NDP trade critic Steven Langdon, whose party has in the past demanded the talks be ended, condemned Turner's demand for a pullout as fatuous and unrealistic.

The surprising shift in NDP thinking came less than a day after Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and the premiers wrapped up a seven-hour meeting to review the trade talks.

Early Wednesday morning, Mulroney announced the premiers were still solidly supporting the trade negotiations.

However several premiers expressed serious concerns and said Canada must not sign a deal unless the Americans agree to a mandatory, binding procedure to settle trade disputes.

Ontario's David Peterson and Manitoba's Howard Pawley said they'd reject a deal if they had to make a decision based on what they learned during Tuesday's marathon briefing.

MAKES CONCESSIONS?

Liberal and NDP MPs agreed Mulroney seems ready to offer too many concessions in his zeal to sign a deal.

Spokesmen for both parties also demanded Mulroney and the premiers tell Canadians more about what's going on in the talks and hold hearings to gather public reaction. After that, however, they parted ways with a vengeance.

In St. John's, Nfld., Turner said the first ministers' comments reinforced his conviction that Canada should pull out of the talks.

"I say to the prime minister that if he can't do better than he's doing, if he can't tell Canadians where he is, he ought to pull out of these negotiations," Turner said.

Langdon said the NDP won't make the same demand. He distributed a letter to the premiers urging them to use their influence to prevent Mulroney from making too many concessions and to support holding public hearings next fall before a trade treaty is approved by Congress.

The letter was signed by Langdon, NDP House Leader Nelson Riis and Robert Toupin, the Quebec MP who defected to the NDP from the Tories last year.

MINIMIZE DAMAGE

Langdon denied the party was changing its position on the trade talks. He said the NDP was still opposed to a Canada-U.S. trade deal in principle, but realized it can't stop the government from signing one and decided to try to minimize the damage a deal might do.

"You have to recognize reality," Langdon said. "And the reality is that you've got a desperate prime minister who is pushing as hard as he possibly can to get a free-trade deal. At this stage, to call for an end to the talks is fatuous."

Left-leaning This Magazine was target of CSIS investigation

TORONTO (CP) — The left-leaning This Magazine, its board and contributing writers have been the target of a Canadian Security Intelligence Service investigation, the Toronto Globe and Mail reports.

The investigation, which included the use of wiretaps, was mentioned in the annual report of the Security Intelligence Review Committee, an independent body set up to monitor the activities of the spy agency.

The report did not name the magazine, but both the magazine and

The Globe and Mail said Wednesday that This Magazine was the target.

It is not known when the investigation began or whether it is continuing.

The Globe and Mail said the magazine's editorial board and freelance writers were targets of the CSIS probe, but did not specify who was under investigation.

Rick Salutin, an editor of This Magazine, said it was "preposterous, so off the wall and absolutely outrageous" for the agency to consider the magazine a national security threat.

'INDEPENDENT VOICE'

Salutin described This Magazine, which has been published by a collective in Toronto for almost 21 years and has a circulation of 7,000, as "hardly hard-left in the political spectrum."

"I would describe it as an independent voice of criticism and opposition to the way things are done," he said. "We've always tended to be left and nationalistic."

Among those listed as editors and contributing editors are: Ian Adams, Margaret Atwood, Myrna Kostash, Carole Corbeil, Mel Watkins, Susan Crean, Lorraine Filyer and Nick Fillmore.

Ronald Atkey, chairman of the review committee, refused to identify the magazine in the report.

But he said the magazine staff could file a complaint before the committee, giving its members the power to investigate the intelligence service's actions.

QUESTIONS VIOLENCE

The magazine is described in the oversight committee's annual report as dealing with "a wide range of topics — the arts as well as social policy and other issues" from what the committee called "the perspective of the far left."

The report said it was "true that some members have advocated violent action by this group, but they were brushed aside by the others."

"A good case could be made that the partisans of violence in this group rate investigation as individuals. But we remain to be convinced that the group itself should be targeted for investigation."

Salutin denied that allegation. "What the hell is this advocated violence," he said. "That is so unrelated to any reality and so inflammatory that they can't be allowed to talk in that kind of language."

Clayton Ruby, a civil rights lawyer, said he wrote to federal Solicitor General James Kelleher on Wednesday about the investigation.

"It is outrageous in a democratic society, which guarantees freedom of expression under the Constitution, that a government agency should engage in such activity," the letter said.

Unions: Minister reneged on Air Canada promise

OTTAWA (CP) — The three unions representing 16,000 Air Canada employees have accused Barbara McDougall, the cabinet minister responsible for privatization, of welching on a promise to consult them before selling the national airline.

The International Association of Machinists, the Canadian Auto Workers, and the Canadian Union of Public Employees are upset by reports that a cabinet committee has recommended the Crown-owned airline be sold off to the private sector.

A proposed sale is widely believed to be a major item on the agenda for a meeting of the inner cabinet today and Friday in Edmonton.

Published reports have also suggested the sale of the carrier could be announced in Edmonton this week should the inner cabinet accept the proposal.

The reports have caught the unions, which oppose the sale, by surprise.

Vincent Blais, president of Local 148 of the machinists union, said Wednesday the unions are still working on a brief that was solicited by the McDougall at a meeting June 18.

"We had a clear commitment from the minister that she wanted and would welcome our views on privatization before discussing any detailed plans with the cabinet," Blais said.

Blais added that McDougall's officials seem to be reluctant to deny the latest round of speculation.

"Apart from our basic concerns about job security and service to the travelling public if the airline is sold, we take great exception to the apparent disregard for the views of the employee representatives," Blais said.

Blais also said McDougall made it clear there was no urgency in receiving the employees' brief.

John Sadler, a special assistant to McDougall, said the union officials didn't realize that the minister was saying there would be a lengthy hearing process before any legislation connected with a sale would be passed.

He also said no decision has been made on the fate of the airline.

North says Casey was architect of Irangate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver North has drawn a picture of the Iran-Contra affair that differs on key points with the stories of other major officials, including President Ronald Reagan, Attorney General Edwin Meese and the late CIA director William Casey.

North, appearing for his third day of testimony today, has depicted Casey as the architect of the arms-to-Iran, aid-to-Contras affair.

And while saying he never discussed with the president the diversion of arms sales money to the Nicaraguan rebels, North's testimony contradicts Reagan's words last year that the sales of missiles to Iran began as something other than an arms-for-hostages swap.

He also was in conflict with State Secretary George Shultz and others including assistant State Secretary Elliott Abrams and former national security adviser Robert McFarlane.

Aliens found semiconscious in 48.8 degree trailer

HEBRONVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Nineteen Mexicans rescued from a railway trailer and 141 found in two trucks in California may be sign smugglers are cashing in on new immigration laws, and officials fear more tragedies like the deaths of 18 in a Texas boxcar.

The 19 semiconscious men were discovered Wednesday in a piggy-back train-trailer where temperatures reached 48.8, said Mario Ortiz, a spokesman with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Dallas.

"This could have been another major tragedy," Ortiz said. On July 2, 18 aliens were found dead inside a boxcar near Sierra Blanca. One man survived.

"I think the officers saved our lives," said Pedro Palma Bustamante, 23, one of those found in this ranching town about 100 kilometres east of Laredo.

"They'll be deported, but not before an intensive investigation," said Ortiz. "This is another smuggling case."

Eighty-five aliens found Wednesday sealed inside a tractor-trailer rig in San Clemente, Calif., were sent back to Mexico later in the day, said John Day, a Border Patrol supervisor. Three are being held as material witnesses against the driver, who faces smuggling charges.

Fifty-three aliens were found in a tractor-trailer Tuesday in San Diego.

ON THE RISE

The four incidents indicate that smuggling of undocumented workers across the border is on the rise, said Ortiz.

Reuben Bonilla, chairman of the Mexican-American Democrats of Texas, which opposed the new immigration law, said:

"The big winner is the coyotes who earn more money now by smuggling people in. We're only seeing the tip of the iceberg now. There will be more human tragedy, not only in the hot summer but also in the bitter cold of winter."

Plans to ban ads protested

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers' Council has launched an $800,000 publicity campaign to protest federal plans to ban tobacco advertising and promotion by 1989.

The Montreal-based council has paid most of the cost for full-page newspaper advertisements protesting the ban and the restrictions on sponsorship by tobacco manufacturers.

Council spokesman David Allnut described the federal measures Wednesday as "Draconian."

The ads cite support from the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, Tennis Canada and other groups backed financially by the tobacco industry, and from provincial tobacco marketing boards.

Via guarantees being on time

MONTREAL (CP) — Via Rail extended its on-time performance guarantee to most routes in Eastern Canada on Wednesday in its bid to win people back to passenger trains.

Starting next Wednesday, the guarantee will apply to all trains in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and southwestern Ontario through October.

The guarantee offers passengers 50-per-cent credits towards their next trip when a train is late. It was first tried on the Montreal-Ottawa-Toronto triangle in May and June, then extended through October on the same routes.

"We feel we have demonstrated the ability to run the trains on time most of the time," said Murray Jackson, Via's vice-president for marketing.

High suicide rates for natives

MONTREAL (CP) — The high rate of suicide among Indian and Eskimo youth is a result of the "profoundly negative effect on the Indian and Inuit people" of contact with European settlers in Canada over the past 450 years, Dr. Michael Moffatt of the University of Manitoba said Wednesday.

"Suicide rates for Indian and Inuit young people are extraordinarily high," Moffatt told a conference of pediatricians. He added that there is "tremendous variation" from one community to another.

"There is a sense of hopelessness" among Indians and Inuit, he said.

"Suicide is much more prevalent in communities that have a high degree of disorganization, alcoholism and loss of cultural values," he said.

Man cons priests for $3.7 m

MONTREAL (CP) — The property of a man accused of hoodwinking a Roman Catholic religious order, the Montfort Fathers, of $3.7 million over a five-year period, was seized Wednesday by Quebec Superior Court.

Rev. Claude Pare, a member of the order, told the court that Henri-Claude Pierre was given an initial $35 when he was broke in 1982 and had arrived from Haiti to study at the University of Montreal. Pierre kept coming back for more help and by 1984 the priests had given him $5,000.

That's when he said he had troubles with Canadian immigration officials and needed more money to stay out of jail while applying for landed immigrant or refugee status. Between April 1984 and December 1986 the priests gave him 263 new loans totalling nearly $3 million, Pare said.

Last January, Pierre wrote from Haiti to say he had no money, was unable to leave and wanted the loans considered a donation.

Lionel Chevrier dies at 84

MONTREAL (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, a long-time Liberal cabinet minister known as the Father of the St. Lawrence Seaway and one of the so-called Four Horsemen who led the attack on the government of John Diefenbaker, died in hospital Wednesday following a lengthy illness. He was 84.

Chevrier, a native of Cornwall, Ont., studied law at the University of Ottawa and the University of Toronto before being elected to the House of Commons in 1935 in the Ontario riding of Stormont.

Chevrier, who was re-elected in the next eight general elections, was known as one of the Four Horsemen with former prime minister Lester Pearson, Jack Pickersgill and Paul Martin. The four helped destroy in five years the 1958 landslide government of John Diefenbaker with their criticism of the government's performance.

Quadruplegic awarded $3.8 m

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal teenager paralysed in a toboggan accident eight years ago is entitled to $3.8 million for her injuries, the Quebec Court of Appeal has ruled.

Lawyer Gordon Kugler, who represented Nadine Bouliane, said Wednesday it's the highest award for bodily injuries in Quebec history. Bouliane, now 18, has been a quadruplegic since the accident in January 1977.

At the time, she was on a school outing to a privately-owned toboggan slide, Les Glissades Valcartier near Quebec City.

Kugler said Bouliane and a friend were sitting backwards on a toboggan, going down one of the advanced runs, when they crashed into a maintenance snowmobile stopped at the base of the hill by its operator.

Car-bus crash kills two

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP) — Two people died and at least four were injured Wednesday when a bus carrying 42 tourists and a car crashed on a main highway in nearby Bic.

A man and a woman, the only occupants of the car, burned to death when the vehicle caught fire after the collision shortly before noon, said Sgt. Claude St-Gelais, a spokesman for Quebec provincial police.

The injured, passengers of the bus, suffered cuts and bruises. Two were taken to hospital for treatment and then released, he said.

The bus was taking the tourists on a tour of the Gaspé Peninsula, he said.

Workers end strike

CAP-DE-LA-MADELEINE, Que. (CP) — About 2,500 employees of Consolidated-Bathurst Inc. voted 90-per-cent in favor Wednesday of a contract that gives a salary increase of 6.5 per cent over two years.

Rejean Paquin, a spokesman for the Canadian Paperworkers Union which represents employees at mills in Trois-Rivieres, Shawinigan and Grand-Mere, said he was happy with the pact which ends a two-week strike.

"We had some major points in the negotiations and we made gains on all these points," Paquin told reporters in this town about 130 kilometres northeast of Montreal.

Gov't spends on English courses

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government spent at least $73 million last year for English-language education and English-as-a-second-language courses at schools and colleges in Quebec, the federal Secretary of State's Department announced Wednesday.

Funding for English-language education is based on the number of students enrolled in English schools, the department said.

The program also provided funds for teacher training and development, bursaries and curriculum development in Quebec. The program, which began in 1983-84, also finances courses in French as a second language.

Canadian wheat market grows

LONDON (CP) — Canada's share of the world wheat market is growing faster than that of any other country despite high export subsidies by the United States and the European Community, says the International Wheat Council.

In a report released Wednesday, the London-based council said Canada is the second-largest wheat exporter behind the United States. Canadian wheat sales of 21.2 million tonnes in the last year accounted for almost 24 per cent of world grain exports. That compares with Canada's 20 per cent share the previous year and 17 per cent five years ago.

However, Canada's improved standing in the export market has not been reflected at the farm gate where farmers are currently receiving the lowest prices in seven years and are expected to receive even less when crops now in the field are harvested and sold.

Turner supports changes

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Changes to the Constitution proposed by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and the premiers will actually strengthen a key federal power, Liberal Leader John Turner said Wednesday.

Critics, including those in Turner's party, have contended that the Meech Lake accord will weaken Ottawa's power to set up national shared-cost programs under an arcane constitutional provision known as the federal spending power.

The Townships

Owner wants puppy back too after TV report sparks interest

Sherbrooke pit-bull saga continues: Would-be owners are lining up to take it

SHERBROOKE — The Eastern Townships animal shelter reports that it has received several requests from dog-lovers — most of them from English-speaking Montrealers — who want to offer a home to a pit bull terrier which attacked three men in three days last week.

The female dog was seized Friday at the request of Sherbrooke police by the Société protectrice des animaux, which operates a shelter and pound in the city.

Tuesday and Thursday last week the pit bull had injured three Sherbrooke individuals in separate, unprovoked attacks.

Two of the men, including an 80-year-old pensioner attacked outside his home, needed hospital treatment.

The dog's original owner was fined more than $500 in connection with Tuesday's attacks. He then apparently gave the vicious pet away to an unsuspecting teenager at a Canada Day celebration Wednesday.

SPA CALLED IN

A cousin of the new owner was fined another $240 Thursday after the third attack. He then asked police to get rid of it for him, and SPA handler Ruben Gutierrez was called in.

The SPA must hold the dog for two weeks pending tests for rabies and other contagious diseases. After the waiting period is over, according to the shelter, the animal must be destroyed unless either its owner wants it back, or a new owner comes forward to adopt it and is deemed suitable to SPA officials.

Friday, Gutierrez said he expected no one would claim the dog or seek to adopt it. But that was before it became a TV star.

MANY CALLS

SPA manager Ghyslain Cyr said

Wednesday he has been overwhelmed with telephone calls since a Montreal English-language TV station visited the shelter and broadcast a report on the Sherbrooke dog.

He said most of the calls have been from English-speaking Montrealers — and seemingly misguided ones at that.

But Cyr added that none of the callers is likely to gain possession. The pit bull's original owner has apparently had a change of heart — or an infusion of new money. He now wants the dog back, Cyr said.

He said he was approached this week by the man who had given the dog away on Canada Day. He asked to take it back, Cyr said, but it won't be as easy as that.

"It's clear that we can't give it back just like that," Cyr said. "We have to go through several checks on the animal's past, and on the quality of life it might receive."

LEGAL LIMITS

"We also have to look at the law to see what we are or are not allowed to do with it," he added, "so our decision is not only for the good of the dog but also within the law."

But Cyr added that the terrier's current behavior pattern doesn't seem to be compatible with human life. It seems alternately afraid and hyper-aggressive, with emotions profound enough to inhibit rehabilitation, he said.

"In that case," he said, "should we keep it in a sort of prison, keep it in seclusion until its death, depriving it of affection, or would it be better to use euthanasia?"

The SPA has a week left to decide how to dispose of the animal. The three choices: return it to the original owner, which the shelter doesn't particularly want to do; find it a new home, which leaves open the possibility of repeat attacks; or kill it humanely.

Black buys Saturday Night from Webster

Toronto magazine deal features Eastern Townships background on all sides

TORONTO (CP-CB) — A recent deal between former Record staff members has shaken the Canadian magazine industry to its roots.

Financier Conrad Black has completed the purchase of money-losing Saturday Night magazine, scotching an earlier report that the deal might not go through.

Black, who lived in Sherbrooke when he owned the Record during the early 1970s, bought it from a group headed by Sherbrooke-born Norman Webster, who was a reporter at the paper a few years earlier and is now editor-in-chief of the Globe and Mail.

A third Record veteran, Globe and Mail national columnist John Fraser, will take over as editor of Saturday Night under Black. Fraser is also a personal friend of Webster, dating from the days they met in Sherbrooke.

Hollinger Inc., Black's holding company, said Wednesday there had been no major snags in negotiations for the acquisition of the prestigious magazine from Saturday Night Publications, a division of Dascon Investments of Montreal. No financial details were disclosed.

'ENTIRELY CORDIAL'

"There were the usual details arising from the previously announced agreement which required clarification but the whole negotiation has proceeded expeditiously and has been entirely cordial," Hollinger said in a brief statement.

The deal, announced June 18, was to close June 30 but officials from both sides said later discussions were continuing. The Toronto Star reported last week that the deal was "on the brink of collapse with each side accusing the other of misunderstanding their agreement."

The newspaper added the two sides discovered they were almost $500,000 apart.

The announcement of Black's purchase of Saturday Night last month led to the resignation of editor Robert Fulford, who worked at the magazine for 19 years. Reports said he was concerned about a loss of editorial control and requests for financial cuts.

Some prominent writers including Peter Newman lamented the resignation, calling it a "black day" for Canadian publishing.

WON'T 'RUN IT DOWN'

Webster, one of Dascon's principal owners, said Hollinger "is not going to run it down," adding that Black — noted for his right-wing views — bought the magazine for its high quality and prestige.

The magazine, currently celebrating its 100th anniversary, is also losing publisher John Macfarlane who has not been asked to stay on.

Biggest winner in the deal appears to be columnist Fraser, whose salary is going to more than triple to $200,000 a year by 1990, according to the Star. Wages like that will put him well above the top of the heap compared to other Canadian journalists.

Toronto-based Hollinger said in the statement that "appropriate personnel appointments will be announced shortly."

Hollinger has changed its focus in recent years and sold off its mining, energy and food store interests to concentrate on newspapers. The company has been on a buying binge in the last year but the purchase of Saturday Night is its first foray into the magazine field.

Hollinger, which owns The Daily Telegraph and Sunday Telegraph in London, recently bought Unimedia Inc., Quebec's third largest newspaper group, for about $91 million. The group includes the dailies Le Soleil in Quebec City, Le Quotidien in Chicoutimi and Le Droit in Ottawa, as well as several weeklies.

Another Hollinger company, Sterling Newspapers, owns a string of small-town daily papers in Western Canada; the group also controls a number of U.S. dailies.

The Hollinger empire was born in Sherbrooke in 1968 when Black bought The Record and the now-defunct Granby Leader Mail with partners Peter White, still another Townships, and David Radler.

All three had just graduated from university and publishing the little Eastern Townships papers was their first business venture.

Although The Record was sold to Sherbrooke lawyer George MacLaren in 1977, the partnership has thrived along with the trio's enterprises.

Norman Webster... Black won't run it down.

Conrad Black... Completes magazine purchase.

Sign of progress: Another empire in the works

While Conrad Black was busy in Toronto counting his latest acquisitions Wednesday, Fisher and Scowen admired a new sign after completion of their second edition of the 142-year-old weekly. If enthusiasm can be used to measure progress, the Stanstead pair may be headed for the big time. They reported advertising and circulation rising to new heights — not unlike the sign, which had been erected a few minutes earlier by Fisher's father Guy and brother Bill.

Jogger killed in Melbourne

MELBOURNE — A young woman was killed late Wednesday when she was hit by a truck as she jogged along a highway outside Melbourne.

Dead is Claire Frechette, 22, of Fontaine Street in Rock Forest. She was killed instantly when struck by the truck at about 9 p.m., police say.

Frechette was apparently out for a post-sunset exercise run on Route 243 near the exit from Autoroute 55. The truck was coming off 55 when it hit her, police said.

Hydro to unplug parts of Ascot

SHERBROOKE (JES) — Parts of Ascot Township will be without power for a few hours on Friday.

Hydro Quebec will cut off electricity for residents in the Route 108 area and between Glenday and Robinson roads.

The scheduled time for the blackout is Friday morning from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. If the weather does not permit the planned repairs, the time is moved back to from noon until 4 p.m.

If it is still raining Friday afternoon, the blackout will be Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The work will affect about 800 clients, Hydro said.

Merchants' group won't take a stand on Botella project

Magog-Orford Chamber unhappy with system

By Gracie MacDonald

MAGOG — The Magog-Orford Chamber of Commerce wants the town of Magog to make clear rules governing planning and future tourist projects, but will not take a position either for or against the $130-million Tonic-Tropiques project planned for Cabana Point.

Chamber president Robert Bourque said at a press conference Wednesday that the town is practically at the mercy of developers because "there is no mechanism for analyzing the consequences of a plan."

He said the town needs an "objective way to evaluate new projects," but he would not say whether the chamber supports the proposed condominiums and tourist resort Montreal developer Sergio Botella wants to build.

The chamber wants Magog to set up a consultative committee to oversee all development on the bay. The committee would include people from all levels of government and some social and economic organizations.

"We have to know what we're doing, where we're going before you start talking about specific projects," he said the committee would ensure the inevitable development is in the city's interest.

CHAMBER DIVIDED

"Don't think (the Tonic-Tropiques developer) is the only one interested in developing the lakefront at the moment."

Bourque said his members' opinions on the project are divided. Many local residents oppose the project, saying it will turn Magog into a "Miami Beach" of the north.

Others claim it will be a valuable addition to the Magog lakefront.

Bourque said the town must decide now what it wants for the future.

COWANSVILLE (JM) — A 35 year old Missisquoi County man who was recently sentenced to three years for incest has pleaded guilty to theft of wood, breaking and entering a barn, and theft of a horse.

Crown attorney Henry Keyserlingk said the wood was worth $700 and none had been recovered. He then placed the value of the horse at $1,200 according to the police report.

Defence lawyer Daniel Giard told the court his client had paid $430 towards the wood and the owner of the horse had told him he had paid $450 when it was purchased.

"You know how horse owners like to exaggerate the value of their property," Giard commented, bringing a collective howl from the other defence lawyers.

It was all Judge Genest could do to stifle his laughter as Keyserlingk, an avid horseman, turned beet red.

Giard then suggested the trial judge in the preceding case would have probably agreed with what he proposed, namely three months, concurrent on each count, but consecutive to the three year term. Keyserlingk did not object and Genest imposed the suggested sentence.

Meanwhile a younger brother of the accused, who had been cited to jury trial on charges of sexual aggression and incest and who had later re-opted for trial before a judge alone, saw his trial delayed to proceed before an out-of-district judge on September 28 and 30. He is free on conditions pending his trial.

proved a preliminary report for community work.

Sessions Court Judge Bernard Legaré suspended his sentence for two years on the charges of conspiracy and burglary and ordered Adams to perform 100 hours of community work prior to October 1. He then fined him $150 and costs, in default to 15 days, on a charge of willful property damage. Barbant pointed out there had been no civil proceedings instituted to reclaim the $2,400 outstanding.

Robert Bourque... Magog system leads to confusion.

Like mugging elderly women

Golf shoes? Ski holidays? Wine for 13? That was only part of the shopping list of some of the staff at the province's largest social service agency.

While senior citizens live in over-crowded homes and delinquent children wait for counselling, top officials at the Centre des services sociaux du Montréal Métropolitain (CSSMM) were having a party on taxpayers money. That according to an audit of their activities over the last two years.

Gone is $600,000 for consulting firms and office decorations and $1,266 for party supplies and vacations.

The agency, like the one here in the Townships, oversees youth protection services, and social work and counselling. Of the millions the government spends on social services every year, much of it goes to agencies like the CSSMM.

To steal money from it is comparable to mugging elderly women.

Every time a battered women's centre asks the government for a few more pennies, they're told that the cupboards are bare and they're lucky to get what they have.

Troubled English-speaking teenagers in the Townships have to travel to Montreal to stay in an English group home because the government thinks it is inefficient to build one here.

But meanwhile, a very selfish group of people are drinking taxpayers money. The picture it brings up is sickening. Worst of all, though, is that some of the people who spent the money are still working at the centre. The government says they have no control over the internal workings of the CSSMM, and cannot force its workers to return the money. This is an outrageous shirking of responsibility.

Health and Social Services Minister Thérèse Lavoie-Roux should demand that all those involved resign immediately, until the whole scandal is cleared up in the courts. If they are crooked enough to steal money from people in need, then they should not be anywhere near a social service agency.

Scant attention paid to Louisbourg treasures

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP)—The massive walls of the Fortress of Louisbourg surround centuries of historical secrets.

While historians have sought traces of the past within the 18th-century fortress, however, scant attention has been paid to the archeological treasures on the rest of this 6,000-hectare national park 40 kilometres south of Sydney, N.S.

Buried in the mists of time outside the walls of the fortress are a system of trenches for a temporary British fort during a siege in 1758, numerous battery positions left by attacking troops and, in the harbor, sunken warships.

A least 29 wrecks lay underwater, including four French warships. One warship is the 64-gun Celebre whose canons and main mast are strewn across the harbor floor.

The Celebre, shelled by British land batteries during the siege, took a hit in its munitions hold, exploded and burned to its waterline before sinking in only nine metres of water.

LOCATES ARTIFACTS

The French began building the fortress on Cape Breton Island in 1720 to protect the entrance to the St. Lawrence River, the French colony in Quebec and the lucrative fishing trade. It was completed by 1744.

In the early 1960s, the federal government began a mammoth reconstruction of the fortress.

Now 32-year-old archeologist Charles Burke is heading up a three-year project which will record the interesting artifacts outside the fort's walls.

Into its second year, the project will recommend to Parks Canada what should be done with these additional historic sites.

"In my opinion, excavation is the last thing we should do," said Burke, referring to the artifacts on land. "We have historical data on the site and it isn't in any danger of erosion — we would excavate for historical research purposes only."

MAPS WRECKS

Meanwhile, in the harbor, six divers from the Marine Archeology Unit of Environment Canada are mapping the location of the underwater wrecks. The mapping could lead to the park establishing diving tours of the most visible of the wrecks. Private companies are already conducting their own tours.

But Willis Stevens, head of the diving team, worries that diving tours could jeopardize the wrecks. "They have to be managed properly or they may be destroyed accidentally," he said.

Divers may be fooled into thinking that the massive cannons are strong, but, after 200 years under the sea, they could be severely damaged by as much as a lead weight dropped on them, he said.

A good deal of the cultural and economic life of Louisbourg also remains uncharted. It is known that, during the French occupation of the community of Louisbourg, almost half the population lived outside the fortress. There was a flourishing fishing industry as well as numerous inns, businesses, a hospital and a tannery.

Twice the fortress came under siege — by New Englanders in 1745 and by 20,000 British troops in 1758. The British blocked the harbor and set up artillery on high points of land. Once a safe haven for French ships, the harbor became a deadly trap. And when the French ships stopped coming, the fortress fell to the British.

Is Soviet's 'new thinking' getting beyond them?

"We are in a new era," said Valentin M. Berezkhov, editor-in-chief of the influential Soviet journal USA. "Either we enter this new era with new thinking, or we may all perish." 'New thinking' is the universal watchword in Moscow nowadays, and it produces remarkable conversations like this:

Q. If the process of disarmament in Europe goes as far as you hope, there will eventually have to be a withdrawal of all troops within their national frontiers, after which they cannot enter other countries even 'by invitation'. So what will become of the Brezhnev Doctrine?

A. "All these problems look difficult today, but they will become easier as the process (of disarmament) progresses. The Brezhnev Doctrine has been officially repudiated by the Soviet Union. The situation is changing. Certainly, any new arrangement should include withdrawal of foreign troops from other nations, and serious guarantees that they could not come back."

Vitaly Zhurkin, Deputy Director, Institute for U.S.A. and Canada Studies
Moscow, June 4, 1987

The 'Brezhnev Doctrine', promulgated on the occasion of the Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968, declared that 'fraternal socialist states' had a duty to intervene militarily to preserve the 'gains of socialism' in any country where a Communist regime was in danger of losing control. It was a more extreme version of the American 'Monroe Doctrine', proclaiming the Soviet Union's right to preserve its sphere of influence in Eastern Europe by military force.

Gwynne Dyer

In fact, to the best of my knowledge it has not yet been officially repudiated. When General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev visited Prague recently he indicated that things were different now in many ways — his body language when he was with hard-line Czech leader Gustav Husak was very revealing — but he didn't actually say that the Brezhnev Doctrine was defunct.

At official governmental level, the demise of the Brezhnev Doctrine still remains a matter of nods and winks, so as to drive the old guard of Communists, both in Eastern Europe and at home in the Soviet Union, into open opposition. And yet here was Vitaly Zhurkin, a senior official in one of the most important foreign policy institutes in Moscow, sweeping it aside as if it were of no consequence.

There is enormous intellectual ferment in Moscow at present, as people urgently try to think through the implications of the new initiatives in every field that have been pouring in to the two years since Gorbachev assumed control. The intelligentsia (as the Soviets frankly call the people who do the country's thinking for it) are both exhilarated — and a little bit frightened.

As a very senior Soviet official put it recently: "We have let the genie out of the bottle, and we cannot put it back in." The expectations of change that have now been unleashed in Soviet society are so great that it would require repression on the scale of Stalin's purges to suppress them again.

Naturally, the intelligentsia are scared, because few of them would survive such a reversal of policy. And there are undoubtedly forces that want such a reversal: not just the military and bureaucratic elements who long for a return to the days of stability, unquestioned privilege, unaccountable power and little effort, but that considerable segment of Russian society which is receptive to appeals to ultranationalism, anti-semitism, xenophobia and even religious sentiment.

When you go off the record, the frankness about this problem is quite disarming. Another senior Soviet official explained how he and all those who thought like him (including Gorbachev) had to 'play the game' during the long years when the 'old thinking' held sway.

He had felt obliged when abroad to defend his country's actions on the good old American principle 'My country right or wrong' — although he often knew that his country was in the wrong. And even at home he had had to mouth the old line, like all the other Party members who knew that the world was not really the sort of place defined by the mini-Stalins and mini-Brezhnevs who dominated the state and Party apparatus.

His own sort of people would have been pushed aside if they had spoken their minds in those times, and would never had had a chance of gaining power. But now, with Gorbachev, they do have power. The biggest problem, he said, is that the adherents of the old ways are now 'playing the game' in the same way, and it is hard to know who is really sincere about the 'new thinking.'

And he was well aware that the old guard could still make a come-back. The new generation that has come to power with Gorbachev in the U.S.S.R. is much more attractive to Western eyes — far better educated, less dogmatic, willing to experiment and to change. But it is not necessarily more attractive to the great mass of the Soviet, and especially the Russian people.

Many millions of ordinary Russians driving taxis, tractors and tanks share the old regime's instinctive conservatism, its profound suspicion of the outside world, and even its anti-intellectualism. Their support can only be won by tangible results. If the generation of technocrats who have now taken over can deliver increased security abroad and increased prosperity at home, it will survive, but progress is bound to lag behind the expectations that have been aroused.

At the moment, people throughout the Soviet hierarchy are frantically engaged in an attempt to catch up with the full implications of decisions already taken and policies already announced. Nowhere is it more important than in the area of defence and international affairs — and mercifully, in this field at least there is now a great deal of thinking about the long-term implications of present Soviet initiatives. The implications are not small.

Triad crime societies rule Hong Kong underworld

By Michael Hughes

HONG KONG (Reuter) — From tattooed thugs shaking down street traders to sleek "godfathers" who might be businessmen, Hong Kong's triad criminal societies are everywhere in the five-million-strong Chinese community.

"They are very much a part of society," said one detective. "The best we can do is deal with the more obvious excesses."

"The Hong Kong godfathers are not ostracized. Everyone knows who they are and most admire them because of their money and power."

The triads' lucrative rackets include drug trafficking, prostitution, money lending and "protection" which is paid by humble hawkers and wealthy club owners alike.

To the police, poisonous snakes thrown into a crowded restaurant probably means a triad gang is pointing out the advantages of "protection."

A waiter in a restaurant is rude to a hostess. She makes a phone call and four men arrive. Two hold the waiter while the others hack his arms with knives and smash a bottle in his face.

GANGS FIGHT

Battles between gangs, usually over territory, are traditionally with long machete-type knives which cause ghastly injuries.

The Chinese workers in the British colony, who live in tenements in some of the most crowded urban jungles on earth, are those most vulnerable to be exploited by the triads.

If they have a small business they will be encouraged to pay protection money, if they want to decorate an apartment they will be wise to use a triad-approved decorator, if they borrow money the lender will use triad thugs to ensure repayment.

At first the triad societies — so named for their use of the triangle in secret ceremonies — were secret political groups, but they changed over the years into today's criminal organizations.

BEGAN IN CHINA

The original triad society is believed to have been established in China in the 17th century with the aim of overthrowing the Manchu Ch'ing Dynasty.

The triads' influence in Hong Kong was officially noted in 1842, when the territory was ceded to Britain.

The societies now tend to be more loosely knit, less disciplined and less ritualized. But there are still initiation ceremonies involving altars, elaborate robes and secret signs.

The executive-level leaders retain traditional titles. The "415" or "White Paper Fan" is the administrator while the "426" or "Red Pole" is the fighter who has made good and now probably runs a nightclub and his own gang of "49s," or soldiers.

Each "49" would also have a "Big Brother," an older and tougher gangster to turn to.

CAUGHT A BOSS

In a rare triumph against the upper echelons of the societies, the police last year arrested a White Paper Fan administrator from the 14K triad, one of the oldest and biggest.

The 36-year-old businessman drove a Rolls-Royce and was frequently photographed with leading Hong Kong society figures.

Police raided his office and found a triad altar, a white fan and initiation regalia. The man was jailed for 18 months for being involved with the triads.

Det. Insp. David Grant, head of an anti-triad unit, said: "He led a complete double life. The office where he received respectable business contacts was also the scene of beatings for people who were defaulting on loans."

"From being a bag-snatcher-type street criminal in 1974, by 1980 he was making 200,000 Hong Kong dollars ($35,000 Cdn) a month, mainly from loan sharking. He kept photographic records of triad members in a safe deposit box."

SOME FILM STARS

Grant said "there are a lot more such people around in high social positions."

"Movies and television films glamorize the triads and one reason for this is that many people in the entertainment world, including some film stars, are triad members."

Grant is at the sharp end in the fight against the gangs. His district is the bustling Yau Ma Tei area of Kowloon, which with the neighboring Mong Kok has taken over from Wanchai as Hong Kong's main red-light district.

A walk with him and a detective constable around the neon-lit streets reveals the extent of triad operations.

Balls click again in a pool hall which a short time ago was smashed up in a triad brawl. In a mah-jong parlor, which Grant said is used for drug sales, the players pause for a hostile glance at the police and then return to the game.

OWE LOAN SHARKS

An elevator leads to a sleazy brothel where tiny cubicles are functionally equipped with a bed, a shower and a TV.

Grant says most prostitutes owe money to triad-controlled loan sharks, and "49s" guard them constantly to make sure they don't run away.

"There is very much a need for a triad tribunal to deal specifically with triad cases and to make allowances for the anonymity of witnesses. You also need judges who are well-versed in triad terminology."

Grant added: "The best piece of law would be to make them accountable for their earnings, as is the case with police and civil servants in Hong Kong."

"I am arresting people with millions in their bank accounts and no legal method of earning it. All I can do is report them to the Inland Revenue for back taxes."

"If they were civil servants and could not explain the money they could be jailed for this. Such legislation would be the most effective step against the triads."

Two states: Examine Dome-Amoco deal

TORONTO (CP) — Two U.S. states have asked American regulatory agencies to examine the proposed merger of Dome Petroleum Ltd. and Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd. on grounds that the deal could force up U.S. natural gas prices.

Michigan and California, who are prime consumers of Canadian gas, are worried that the sale of Dome to Amoco Canada — owned by Amoco Corp. of Chicago — could reduce competition in the U.S. market.

Letters and documents obtained by the Toronto Star show that Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley has asked the U.S. Federal Trade Commission to look at the effect of the $5.2-billion sale on the prices of both natural gas and natural gas liquids such as butane, propane and ethane.

California Controller Gray Davis wants that state's energy board to "take immediate steps to investigate the impact" of the merger on northern Californian natural gas consumers.

The commission is empowered to investigate mergers and acquisitions and their effect on the lessening of competition.

The merged operations would make the new company by far the Canada's largest gas producer.

Davis noted that 40 per cent of the state's gas comes from Canada and that Dome and Amoco are among the largest producers.

In a letter dated June 1, Kelley wrote to trade commission chairman Daniel Oliver, worried about the "potential anti-competitive impact the purchase may have on fuel markets in Michigan and the entire Midwest region."

MAIN CONCERNS

Kelley said his major concerns were about:

— Dome and Amoco's ownership or control of major sources of propane and other natural gas liquids sold in Michigan and adjacent markets.

— Dome's ownership, operation or control of major facilities that gather, transport, separate and store propane and other natural gas liquids sold in Michigan. One of Dome's assets is a 33-per-cent interest in the Cochin pipeline, which runs from the Saskatchewan-North Dakota border through the Midwest to Sarnia.

Michigan's submission said Dome's operation of the 1,931-kilometre pipeline and other key installations gives it the ability to dominate the flow and price of all natural gas liquids moving from Canada to the U.S.

Kelley said he is also worried about Dome and Amoco's current joint ownership of major propane storage and transportation sites in the state.

Dome and Amoco each own 50 per cent of a natural gas liquid pipeline between Sarnia and St. Clair, Mich., and a propane terminal and underground storage plant in St. Clair.

ROUTE VITAL

The submission said that route is vital for much of the propane moving through Michigan and "in combination with the other Dome and Amoco leverage on this market," presents "a serious potential threat to effective competition which would be exacerbated by a Dome-Amoco merger."

A final concern is Dome and Amoco's role as substantial players in the Shipper Pools, a group of producers that control the price and flow of Canadian gas into Michigan.

In Washington, a commission spokesman said Tuesday he could not comment on whether the Dome-Amoco deal is being examined.

He said if the merged company does business in the U.S., then it must file details of its business to the commission.

Davis in a letter June 10 to California Energy Commission chairman Charles Imbrecht said press reports about the merger "suggest to me the possibility that California may become increasingly vulnerable to higher prices for natural gas."

Davis said the gas shipped to the state begins in the Alberta and Southern Gas Co. Ltd.'s pipelines. He noted that, under Alberta regulations, all contracts for gas moving through the pipeline must be approved by the producers or sellers of 70 per cent of that gas.

French firm to acquire Trans-Canada Resources

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian mining subsidiary of a French oil company has received federal approval to take over Trans-Canada Resources Ltd., a near-bankrupt Calgary oil company.

Total Erickson Resources Ltd., 53-per-cent owned by Total Compagnie française des Pétroles of Paris, has received Investment Canada approval to acquire control of Trans-Canada and its subsidiary, Camel Oil and Gas Ltd.

Forced to the wall by a $15-million outstanding loan to the Royal Bank of Canada, Trans-Canada sought court protection from its creditors earlier this year.

Total Erickson, which runs two gold-mining operations in northern British Columbia and the Yukon, will buy control of Trans-Canada for $12 million. That gives Total Erickson 51 per cent of the company if all share options are exercised. Total Erickson already had a 22-per-cent interest in Trans-Canada.

A $6-million injection through convertible notes, most of which will go to creditors, increases ownership to 37 per cent. A final payment of $6 million, now still an option, would bring ownership to 51 per cent.

Fred Davidson, vice-president of finance for Total Erickson, said Monday the company plans to merge Trans-Canada and Camel under the Trans-Canada name, leaving all 15 employees in place.

Davidson said Total Erickson was anxious to expand into resource exploration and wanted a larger stake in heavy oil.

Trans-Canada has 2.4 million barrels of proven reserves in oil and natural gas liquids. It also has reserves of almost 500,000 cubic metres of gas.

Are aphids eating your plants? Give HIC a call

By Thérèse Robert

Extension Service
Macdonald College

Aphids are eating up your plants? Your soil seems in poor condition and you wonder what to do about it? And what about earwigs?

Relax. The Horticultural Information Centre (HIC) has opened its doors again for the summer. It is ready to answer whatever queries you have about your garden.

Manon Bombardier, from the entomology department and Elizabeth Thériault, of the plant science department, are this summer's two staff members for HIC. The service is offered to the public.

Situated at Macdonald College in St-Anne de Bellevue, the centre is in its sixth year of operation. HIC has been in operation since May 13 and will remain open until August 7.

The aim of HIC is to give information on many aspects of horticulture. This goes from giving the name of services offered by government agencies such as soil testing facilities and technical publications to answering thousands of telephone calls pertaining to a variety of questions about gardening.

Information sought is often about how to control insects and diseases found on most household and garden plants, how to grow and maintain healthy plants with the least amount of chemicals. Nowadays more and more people are trying to minimize the effects of chemical products by asking about alternative ways of taking care of their plants.

Fortunately, the centre has accumulated an incredible amount of information from its first year of operation to this day.

From past experience, Bombardier and Thériault are able to offer answers to sometimes difficult questions. They have received over 300 calls, answered letters and made visits mostly with problems pertaining to aphids, preparing the soil, pruning of trees.

Provided that their transportation costs are covered, Bombardier and Thériault will do house calls for particularly difficult problems that cannot be answered by phone or mail.

Give the centre a call at (514) 398-7740 from 8:30 to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Or write them or drop by at Macdonald College. The address is: Macdonald College, Horticultural Information Centre, Box 4000 (Room R2-038), Ste-Anne de Bellevue, Quebec H9X 1C0.

More bought domestic cars in June

TORONTO (CP) — Domestic car makers posted strong sales in June, but it may be a reaction to incentives rather than a change in direction from the slow slide of recent months.

Car sales totalled 82,140 last month, up 11.4 per cent from a year earlier, as both General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. made large gains.

Domestic sales for the first half of the year were down 3.6 per cent. Of the Big Three auto makers, only Ford had higher sales for the period.

The auto makers will find out this month how much of June's extra business stemmed from extremely attractive consumer rebate and cut-rate financing programs.

Ford and GM dropped incentives at the end of June, meaning financing charges of as low as 3.9 per cent will return to the 13 per cent range.

Chrysler Canada Ltd., which lost further ground last month, is maintaining incentives on certain car and truck models.

Truck sales for all four U.S.-owned manufacturers continued to soar to record levels and there is no sign of a quick end to the boom in vans, small pickups and utility vehicles.

Truck sales in June were up 18.9 per cent from a year earlier. The six-month total was up 12.3 per cent.

The June car results "may just be a monthly blip," said Rick Stewart, chief of the national forecast service of Ottawa-based Informetrix Ltd.

There are no economic indicators that would signal a sharp upturn for the auto industry, Stewart said. He still predicts car sales this year will be about 950,000, a drop of more than 13 per cent.

Nortel makes its move

By Brenda Dalglisch

TORONTO (CP) — Northern Telecom Ltd. introduced a major new telephone switching system Tuesday that the company says puts it well ahead of its competitors, most notably the U.S. telecommunications giant American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The new digital switching system, called the DMS-SuperNode, will increase the capacity, capability and flexibility of the public telephone companies that use Northern Telecom equipment, said vice-president Arthur MacDonald.

Toronto-based Northern Telecom, 52 per cent owned by Bell Canada Enterprises, is the only telecommunications manufacturer able to offer such a capability, MacDonald told a news conference.

The Toronto stock market concurred, pushing Nortel shares up $2 to $30.125 Tuesday, its highest level in a year.

Nortel reported net earnings of $313.2 million on revenues of $4.38 billion in 1986 compared with earnings of $432.0 million and revenues of $4.26 billion in 1985. But operating earnings slipped slightly to $414.0 million in 1986 from $422.1 million in 1985.

HAS BENEFITS

Householders will also benefit from the new system.

The DMS-SuperNode will be able to provide customers with automatic redials — if a caller dials a number and gets a busy signal the new system redials the number as soon as the first call hangs up, MacDonald said.

The system can also translate a telephone number into a name, allowing customers to identify callers and screen incoming calls, he said.

The increased capacity the system provides will encourage the use of the telephone system for such things as home shopping services, tele-metering and home security services, said Tom Law, an analyst with Nesbitt Thomson Deacon Inc. in Montreal.

The new switching system, which can be integrated into existing systems, will allow telephone companies to design their own networks. Law says that's something telephone companies want.

Law also thinks the new system will permit Northern Telecom to increase its market share.

SOON TO LEAD

Currently, Nortel has about 40 per cent of the central office telephone market in the United States — about the same as AT and T, but Law believes the DMS-SuperNode will put Nortel into the lead.

Northern Telecom's DMS (Digital Multiplex Systems) product line began in 1976 when it offered the first fully digital central office switching systems. DMS now serves the equivalent of more than 23 million telephone lines, primarily in Canada and the United States.

The DMS-SuperNode evolved from the original DMS line with hard design work beginning in 1984, MacDonald said.

He would not comment on the cost of developing the DMS-SuperNode but said research costs were paid out of the DMS division's annual $200 million research and development budget.

The DMS line currently accounts for about 25 per cent of Northern Telecom's revenues.

"THE CURSE OF THAMUS", that's what it said. I read it twice. Some kind of Greek reference I remembered dimly. What are Greek references doing in my PC Magazine, and as a headline too? My curiosity piqued, I had to read the piece. I was gratified to learn that the headline referred to Socrates' tale of the invention of writing by the Greek God Thoth.

Thoth invented writing, and full of his own brilliance, rushes to Thamus, the King of Egypt. There, he gets a lukewarm reception. Thamus cautions that: "Those who acquire writing will cease to exercise their memory and become forgetful; they will rely on writing to bring things to their remembrance by external signs instead of their own internal resources."

By the third paragraph, the author managed to find some wisdom in Thamus' reply. He states that the use of some types of new inventions can dull the senses, diminish our reliance upon our native intelligence, and lead us to surrender previously held knowledge. At this point my fragile equilibrium was shattered. I threw down the magazine, and mentally started preparing this week's column.

One thing that has always amazed and amused me, is how the same situation can create diametrically opposed reactions from different people. Take the advent of micro computers. Some people seem concerned that the use of computers will cause the users' brains to waste away. Some users seem incensed that they still have to use their brains at all.

Trust me. The use of a computer will not eliminate the need to think. Indeed, it requires constant attention to detail, an infinite variety of detail. It also demands the ability to move easily between the general and the specific.

I have no doubt that the constant use of a computer will cause the loss of certain skills, but that always happens with new technology. How many of you can harness a horse? Drive a buggy? To get more recent, can you use a manual transmission? Personally, I have found that my ability to do mental math has diminished radically since the advent of the inexpensive calculator.

On the other hand, my ability to use a keyboard has improved immensely since the advent of individual workstations. While the example may not be the best, trading a mental skill for a manual one, I can assure that my ability to analyse has been improving steadily for the twenty-six years I have been working with computers.

Everyday I see evidence of relative newcomers to computers using them creatively to solve problems on the job, or just make the work easier. Using the basic business tools of a word processing or spreadsheet program, they create new reports to respond to management's constant need for more and better information.

On the other hand, I often see people who have been using a computer for years that are unable to do anything that they haven't been shown. These people operate their computer by rote, and their jobs are in jeopardy. The constant and rapid evolution of both computers and programs require an office staff capable of adjusting to the new technology.

What's the difference between these two types? Age? Intelligence? No, I've seen all ages and all levels of intelligence in both categories. The difference seems to be that the successful group recognizes they have access to an extraordinarily flexible tool, and they work hard at trying to better understand its capabilities and limits.

These are the people that buy the books that explain the software. They experiment with the software to see if they can make it do certain things they feel are useful. Some of this is old fashioned hard work. Often, because they have no background in computers, it takes them hours to figure out how to do something that could be done manually in half the time.

The difference is, these people realise once they've figured out how to do it, they will be able to save time and ensure accuracy every time that same or similar job occurs. These people are in little danger of suffering brain atrophy due to computer use.

The computer and the programs are not a solution to your problems. They are the tools that can allow you to solve the problems. View them as solutions, and you will be in danger of suffering brain atrophy. You may also end up telling people that a computer took your job.

If you have any computer questions, write me care of this column. Questions that are of general interest will be answered in the column.

Business briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — The dumping onto the Canadian market of small gas-powered chain saws produced in the U.S., Sweden and West Germany is injuring the production of similar saws in Canada, the Canadian Impott Tribunal has ruled.

The ruling, made last week, followed an earlier ruling by the Department of National Revenue that the chain saws were being dumped on the Canadian market.

A duty equal to the margin of dumping has been imposed on the foreign producers.

Little is ever paid out in dumping duties, however, as producers who are hit with the duty generally raise their prices to acceptable levels rather than pay the duty.

Dumping occurs when producers sell their products in a foreign country at a price below their domestic selling price.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian newsprint industry operated at 97 per cent capacity in May, compared with 94 per cent for the same month a year earlier, the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association says.

The average operating rate for the five months through May rose to 98 per cent from 92 per cent for the same period in 1986.

Newsprint production in May was 816,000 tonnes, up 4.3 per cent from the same month in 1986, while shipments to all markets were 815,000 tonnes, an increase of 5.9 per cent.

Newsprint consumption in the United States reached 1,066 million tonnes in May, the highest monthly total this year and three per cent higher than in May, 1986.

CALGARY (CP) — Intera Technologies Ltd. has signed a six-year, $58-million deal to supply aircraft, staff and equipment to the Canadian Coast Guard for an ice monitoring system.

The contract, signed by Intera president Brian Bullock and Harvie Andre, federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs, will create 13 jobs directly and up to 600 due to spinoff sales.

The Calgary-based company has about 300 employees in Canada.

Under the deal, radar systems will be mounted on jet aircraft to monitor the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the East Coast up to Baffin Bay and the northern Arctic.

HOUSTON (AP) — In one of the largest U.S. personal bankruptcy cases, an oilman whose fortunes went bust has been relieved of $149 million US in personal, unsecured debts.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Manuel Leal discharged the debts run up by drilling contractor Charles Marvin Hall, attorney John D'Onofrio said Monday.

A bankruptcy judge is required to forgive a bankrupt's debts if no creditors object to the discharge.

D'Onofrio said only Allied Bank of Texas objected to the discharge of Hall's debts, but dropped its objection after an investigation found no fraud on Hall's part. Allied Bank was owed $11,300 in unsecured debts, according to bankruptcy records.

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Peladeau, president of Quebecor Inc., said Tuesday the company has completed the acquisition of the controlling interest of Donohue Inc. from the Quebec government.

Quebecor owns 51 per cent of Mircor Inc. which paid $320 million to buy Quebec's majority interest in Donohue, a manufacturer of newsprint, pulp and lumber. The remaining 49-per-cent interest in Mircor is controlled by British Printing and Communication Corp. of London.

Quebecor publishes Le Journal de Montreal, Le Journal de Quebec, the Winnipeg Sun, more than 40 weeklies and several magazines.

TORONTO (CP) — Wall Street's insider trading scandal did not spark the Ontario Securities Commission's investigation of improper trading here, the commission said Monday.

Despite speculation that a Canadian link turned up in the Securities and Exchange Commission's investigation into a widespread insider trading network in the United States, the Ontario commission denied any SEC involvement in the major investigation it announced Friday.

SEC officials could not be reached for comment.

Jim Turner, the commission's general counsel and chief spokesman on the investigation, would not comment on what triggered the investigation here into trading activities of certain employees of unidentified institutions and investment dealers.

The commission's investigation is focusing on allegations of three types of trading activities, but is placing the most importance on the allegations of front running, Turner said.

DRIVES UP PRICE

Front running occurs when an investment dealer's trader, knowing an institution is going to make a large purchase of shares that will drive up its price, buys a relatively small number of shares before the institution enters the market and ends up with a small but almost riskless profit on the deal by selling the shares to the institution near the end of its purchasing.

"Front running is sort of like insider trading in that it involves confidential information but it is not insider trading in the pure sense," Turner said.

The commission said it issued the statement because it wanted to quell the rumors that had been circulating on Bay Street for months about an investigation.

But the rumors flew fast and furious on Monday after the announcement. There was speculation about the names of individuals and firms involved and whether the investigation was connected to Wall

Street's problems.

Ian McAvity, head of MVP Capital Corp. and an analyst who writes the investment newsletter Deliberations, said the Toronto market is too small to encourage large scale abuse of the front running technique.

DESERVES PUNISHMENT

"Anyone who tried it here deserves to get caught," McAvity said.

But he said if anyone was doing it, it would probably be someone employed by an institution and making a relatively small salary.

In the U.S. insider trading scandal, a few prominent, highly paid individuals, like Ivan Boesky, were involved but the majority were lower income employees.

In the U.S. insider trading scandal, a few prominent, highly paid individuals, like Ivan Boesky, were involved but the majority were lower income employees.

"The majority, I would suspect, of the guys who were charged in the United States, were young guys who hadn't really gotten into the big bucks yet," McAvity said. "They were just trying to get there a little faster. My suspicion is that you might see the same thing up here."

Stephen Jarislowsky, a pension fund manager from Montreal, said he hadn't heard any rumors about the investigation before the announcement.

He suggested the commission may have issued the statement partly as a warning to prevent such abuses.

"It's like firing a bullet across the bow of a ship without trying to hit it."

Newsprint consumption in the United States reached 1,066,000 tonnes in May, the highest monthly total yet in 1987 and three per cent higher than in May, 1986. For the January-May period, U.S. consumption was 2.3 per cent ahead of its 1986 pace.

Newsprint stocks held by U.S. consumers at the end of May were 2.6 per cent lower than in 1986. They were equivalent to 42 days supply, unchanged from a year ago.

MRS. ELMIRA JANE AULIS of Sawyerville, Quebec

Mrs. Elmira Aulis passed away peacefully on June 14, 1987, at the Sherbrooke Hospital after being a patient only a few hours, at the age of 96. She was born July 7, 1890, in Martinville, youngest daughter of the late Francis Vancour and Mary Young. She attended school in Martinville.

Mrs. Aulis married Ernest Taylor in 1910 and lived in Bulwer. They had one daughter, Florence (Mrs. Wesley Aldrich). Ernest passed away on Feb. 7, 1912.

On April 30, 1914 she married Clarence Aulis who predeceased her on May 10, 1975. They had eight children, Raymond, Laura, Myrtle, Winnie, Sam, Vera, Edward and Kenneth. Raymond, Laura, Vera and Kenneth and two sons-in-law Wesley Aldrich and Edward Banks all predeceased her.

She leaves to mourn her loss, Florence (Mrs. Aldrich), Huntingville, Myrtle (Mrs. Edward Banks), Sawyerville, Winnie (Mrs. Arthur Bennett), Sawyerville, Sam of Montreal, Edward of Huntingville, two sisters-in-law Mrs. Lillian Aulis and Mrs. Yolande Aulis, also of Huntingville, a son-in-law, Arthur Bennett, 21 grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren, several nieces, nephews and cousins, also two sisters-in-law Mrs. Vilo Aulis and Mrs. Luvia Aulis. She spent most of her life around Martinville, Bulwer and Leavitts Mills, moving to Sawyerville in 1967. In 1976 she took up residence with her daughter Mrs. Banks, later going to live with her daughter Mrs. Aldrich in Huntingville. She was in fair health until the last few months and enjoyed going for car rides. She was a wonderful mother and gramma to all who knew her.

The remains rested at the L.O. Cass Funeral Home, Sawyerville, where many came to pay their respects. The several floral tributes and donations to the Eaton Cemetery and Gideon Bibles showed the esteem in which she was held. The funeral service was held on June 17 at the Funeral Home conducted by Pastor Leslie Picard. Mrs. Clinton Smith was organist and Mrs. Claris Phillips sang Just a Closer Walk with Thee.

Bearers were Reggie Aulis, Curtis and Bruce Bennett, Steve and Sidney Aulis, all grandchildren, and a good friend Wayne Aldrich. Burial in Eaton Cemetery.

Attending from out of town were from Berlin, N.H., St. Albans, Vt., Tyngsboro, Mass., Welland, Ont., Bury, Canterbury and the surrounding area.

HENRY BAILEY CALDWELL of Valrico, Florida

Henry Bailey Caldwell passed away in Valrico, Florida, on June 27, 1987.

He was born in Dorchester, Mass., and lived in Middleboro, Mass., before moving to the Tampa, Florida area in 1982.

He was a driver for the Greyhound Bus service before his retirement.

He was a member of the Protestant faith, a member of B.P.O. Elks Lodge No. 1274, Middleboro, Mass., Atlantic Masonic Lodge A.F. & A.M., North Quincy, Mass., Mitchell Memorial Club, Middleboro, Mass., Loyal Order of Moose No. 1880, Brandon, Florida, and Amalgamated Transit Union Local No. 1205.

Survivors include his wife, Jean G. Caldwell, Valrico, Florida;

step-daughters, Valeri Jackwitz, Huntington Beach, California, Constance Richardson, Plainville, Conn., Beverly Bernerdi, Stroughton, Mass., also seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

DONALD ROY CHAMBERLIN of Richmond, Quebec

On Thursday, June 4, 1987, Donald Chamberlin died suddenly at the age of 51. A Masonic service was held on June 7 at 9 p.m. at the J.H. Fleury Funeral Home in Richmond.

Rev. J. Wm. Shaver conducted the funeral service June 8 at 2 p.m. in the Richmond-Melbourne United Church. Accompanied by the church organist, Miss Audrey Millar, and the choir, the hymns "Praise, My Soul, the King of Heaven" and "Unto the Hills Around" were sung. The choir gave a beautiful rendition of "How Great Thou Art". A tribute to Don was given by Mrs. Marion Pope Perkins, Matron of the Wales Home.

Bearers were scouters from the St. Francis Valley District of the Boy Scouts of Canada: Leroy Lyster, Bob Taylor, Brian Barrie, James Delaney, Douglas Coburn, and Richard Bedard. An honour guard was formed by members of the Wales Home Executive and members of the Masonic Lodge.

Interment was in St. Anne's Cemetery, Richmond. After the service, lunch was provided in the United Church Hall by members of the U.C.W. and the Wales Home Kitchen Staff.

A memorial service was held at the Wales Home on Sunday, June 14 at 2 p.m., and was conducted by members of the Corporation of the Clergy of the Wales Home. The residents' choir with Mr. A.W. Bishop at the piano, provided the music. A solo was sung by a resident, Miss Verna May.

The deceased was the only child of the late George Chamberlin and his wife, Edytha Bean. He leaves to mourn, his wife Elaine, daughter Colleen of Winnipeg, son and daughter-in-law, James and Barbara, and a grandson, Jeffrey of Mississauga, cousins in Vermont, Massachusetts and Ontario, brothers and sisters-in-law, several nieces and nephews.

Donald worked many years at C.J.M. in Asbestos before starting to work at the Wales Home, Richmond, in 1972 where he became Executive Director in 1982.

Among his many community interests was the Boy Scouts of Canada to whom he gave local and district leadership for over thirty years. He was presented with the Silver Acorn for distinguished service to Scouting in 1981. Don was also active in the Richmond-Melbourne United Church, Masonic Lodge, Richmond Historical Society, and helped with the Sherbrooke Hospital Financial Campaign. He was a member of the Sherbrooke Snowshoe Club and the Townshippers' Association.

Donald will be sadly missed by his family and his many friends.

CLIFFORD S. FARNSWORTH of Napanee, Ontario

Formerly of Sawyerville, Quebec The death of Clifford Stevens Farnsworth occurred suddenly by accident in Leesburg, Florida on April 10, 1987.

He was born in Sidney, Mantoba, Nov. 25, 1906, son of the late Rev. Albert Farnsworth and Maria Jane Cleary. On account of ill health his father bought a farm in North River, Que. and moved his family there. Clifford did most of the work on the farm.

On September 20, 1933 he was united in marriage to Doris Margaret Bailey of Sawyerville, Que. Of this union two children were born, Earl and Norma. In 1940 after his father's death he sold the farm and moved his family to Sawyerville where they lived for a year or so. Later they moved to Waterloo, Que. where he was employed by Waterloo Plywood until 1946. They then moved to Napanee, Ont., where he was employed at Gibbard Furniture Mfg. Co. On Jan. 16, 1971 his wife passed away and in the same year he retired from Gibbard's after 25 years service. He then started a little business manufacturing and selling planters.

He was a long-time member of Trinity United Church, Napanee, Ont. where he married Catherine in 1975. He is survived by his wife Catherine, his children Earl of Kingston, Ont., Norma Atkeson and husband George and grandchildren Mark and Karen of Greenville, Mich. step-children Jean Stonehouse of B.C. and Deb, Steve and Shalane Lowry of Napanee, Ont., brother Arthur and family of Michigan, brother-in-law Carl Bailey and wife Elsie of Sawyerville, Que., several cousins, nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by a brother Reginald in Feb. 1921 in Winnipeg, Man.

A Memorial service was held at Ridgecrest Chapel in Leesburg, on April 12 with Rev. Clarence Thornton officiating, also at Trinity United Church in Napanee on April 18 with Rev. Guy Case and Rev. Irvine Johnston officiating.

Cremation took place at Orlando, Florida and a graveside service was held April 22 for family at Riverside Cemetery, Napanee, Ont.

EDITH J. QUINN of Lennoxville, Quebec

Edith J. Quinn passed away at Youville Hospital on June 6, 1987 in her 101st year. She was born on October 5, 1886, in Norton Mills, Vermont, the daughter of Patrick Martin Quinn and Mary Adeline Dundin. She was predeceased by two brothers Harold M. of Berlin, N.H. and Edward P. of Bromptonville.

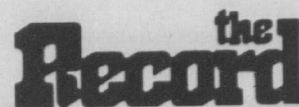

The Quinn family moved to Windsor Mills where Edith received her education at the convent and also at the convent as a boarder in Richmond. Completing her studies she left home and went to work at Griffith's drugstore on Wellington St. in Sherbrooke. After her apprenticeship as a druggist she continued to work there until she moved to Lennoxville where she went to work at the W.J.H. McKindsey drugstore, remaining there until it was bought by Horace Clark in 1945. Having a strong desire to remain active, Edith opened a small gift shop and thoroughly enjoyed the contact with people whom she had known and served for many years.

Edith was always very active in church work. She belonged to the Catholic Women's League and held office at both the Diocesan and local Council level.

As a pastime in her earlier life she enjoyed golfing and belonged to the Lennoxville Golf Club.

The funeral was attended by members of the C.W.L., local friends and out of town relatives.

Melvin and Phyllis Dustin honored on their Silver wedding anniversary

BURROUGHS FALLS (IH) — Some 200 persons, a few of three generations in a family gathered in the Burroughs Falls hall on Saturday evening, June 27 awaiting the arrival of Melvin and Phyllis Dustin of Stanstead to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. The reception was planned as a surprise and upon their arrival with his brother Alton and Diana Dustin from Edmonton, Alberta, they were greatly surprised. Everyone sang "For they are Jolly Good Fellows". They were met by their daughters, Cindy and Cathy, who presented a corsage of red sweetheart roses, baby's breath and silver ribbon to their mother and a rose bud boutonniere to their dad. They were then escorted to a place in front of the head table where they received best wishes for many more anniversaries by relatives and friends attending. This was followed by a skit portraying their courting, marriage and life of the 25 years shared. Ivy Hatch was commentator and the mock wedding was enacted by Bev Smith, minister; Judi Rever, groom; Wynn Dustin, bride; Lorna Taylor, best man; Vera Sisco, father of the bride; Pat Kenney as Cindy, Randy Dustin as her fiancé, Jim Moore; Carole Rever as Cathy and Bruno Vanassa, as Sylvain, friend of Cathy; Weldon Dustin was maid of honor; Manon Danneau, the flower girl. During the "ceremony" Carole and Judy Rever sang a special selection "I reckon this won't happen again", a song composed by Mel when a teenager, and Leta Dustin sang a special number "You're always on my back". In conclusion the "cast" sang "For they are Jolly Good Fellows". Mel and Phyl then had the second happy surprise of the evening when their favorite dance band appeared "The Silver Eagles" quartet. Their first number dedicated to the couple of the silver years was "You're Something Special to Me" with Mel and Phyl on the dance floor joined by Cindy and Jim, Cathy and Sylvain to start off the dancing program. There were several other couples present having anniversaries, Tom and Edith Dustin, Ayer's Cliff, their 62nd on July 1 and the band played a special dedication to them with the couple on the dance floor, then played a gallop with Tom and Edith dancing as in their youth. For the past ten years or so Tom has been afflicted by blindness. Other couples were Jim and Mrs. Moore, Sr. 38; Raymond and Madelyn Curtis, 39 on June 26 and Everett Vachon was having a "39" birthday. A buffet supper was served at 10:30 p.m. Seated at the head table with Mel and Phyl were Cindy and Jim, Cathy and Sylvain, Betty and Andy Davis, maid of honor and usher at the wedding in 1962, Alton Dustin, M.C. of the evening, and his wife Diana, Carol and Arnold Rever, Wynn and Faye Dustin. The head table was centered with an arrangement of silk flowers, these and currency a gift of Phyl's parents, Lawrence and Evelyn Dewey, flanked by silver candles in matching holders. At each end were arrangements of red carnations and white mums with baby's breath, these and the smaller arrangements on the guest tables were a gift from Phyl's aunt, Agnes Brock. The anniversary cake made and decorated by Ruby Sheldon was very beautiful, iced in white with red roses, silver leaves, grapes, scroll, and hearts with their names in them. The base cake was square with small stairs featuring tiny figures representing the bride and groom, the two daughters and boy friends. The second tier reposed on the base and was topped with the third on posts with a silver 25 numeral on the top. The cake was a gift from Mel's sister Gladys and husband Olin Stowell and family from Enfield, Conn. The couple made the initial cut of the cake which was served to all. Mel spoke appreciation comments and said "this evening will be something to remember the rest of our lives". He thanked their daughters, and all who had assisted them in so many ways with a special thank-you to Wynn and Faye Dustin. In conclusion he said "our greatest gift is you being here tonight". Phyl added her thanks, mentioning the band, the gifts and said "25 years ago I married into a great family". Throughout the program Alton Dustin spoke, first offering congratulations to Mel and Phyl, sometimes speaking on a serious note and other times with humour, all of which added to the festivities. There were many gifts, Charles Sisco, Mel's brother-in-law made a beautiful wooden wishing well that will undoubtedly become an heirloom, a picnic basket filled with goodies and useful accessories from the "snowmobile gang" and contained two special bibs, a "him and her's" which they wore during the supper, pieces of silver, crystal, other appropriate anniversary gifts and many, many cards, most containing currency. The gift from their family was the band plus reception. Jim Moore, Jr., and Sylvain Bouchard were in charge of the guest book. Guests attended from Waterville, Lennoxville, Sherbrooke, Dixville, Montreal, Enfield and Stamford, Connecticut, Oakville, Ont., Detroit, Michigan, St. Johnsbury, Vt., Edmonton, Alberta, Boundary Villages and surrounding communities. The delightful and pleasurable evening will be reviewed many times because Wynn Dustin made a video of the proceedings. Melvin Dustin and Phyllis Dewey were united in marriage on July 21, 1962 but the anniversary was held early due to weddings etc. Their marriage was blessed with two lovely daughters, Cindy and Cathy and a host of relatives and friends, all of whom wish the couple many more years of health and continued happiness.

Henry and Kay Brock guests at Open House on 50th anniversary

STANSTEAD (IH) — In observance of the Golden Wedding anniversary of Henry and Kay Brock of Stanstead an Open House reception was held in Centenary Church hall the afternoon of July 4 from 2 until 5 p.m. arranged by their family.

50th wedding anniversary

Congratulations to our dear parents and grandparents, Elmore and Daisy Moss of Beebe, on their 50th wedding anniversary, July 8, 1987. We wish you continued good health and happiness and the celebration of many more anniversaries. With much love, your children and grandchildren.

Kay was wearing a gown of navy blue sheer over navy and upon their arrival their granddaughter Susan presented her with a corsage of miniature white carnations centered with a yellow rose and sheer white ribbon flecked with gold, and her grandfather with a white carnation boutonniere. As the guests arrived, they extended congratulations and best wishes to the honored couple for many more such occasions. The hall was attractive with white garlands and seasonal garden flowers with Sweet William, the bride's favorite flower predominating. Refreshments of fruit punch, sweet breads and other goodies were served. The bride and groom of the golden years made the initial cut of the anniversary cake which was served by a granddaughter Marilyn. The cake, a gift of Ruby Sheldon, was iced in white with the triple tiers separated with posts. It was decorated in scrolls and symbols of the anniversary, yellow roses with gold leaves, and bells and was topped with a golden numeral 50. As the cake was cut by Henry and Kay, several cameras snapped pictures as souvenirs of the event and Bill, their son, took a video.

The couple opened their gifts, an anniversary clock from Crystal Rebekah Lodge, No. 14, Tomifobia IOOF Lodge, No. 18; Harmony Encampment, No. 16 and Canton Friendship No. 16; a beautiful brass engraved plaque with their names and date of marriage and names of the family: Bob, Betty, Pam, Brian, Brendan, Marilyn, Michael, Susan, Ron, Ryan, Jim, Ashleigh, Marge, Joe, David, Dustin and Chris. There were other lovely anniversary gifts, and numerous congratulatory cards with currency. Their son and daughter-in-law Bill and Ellen gave them a kitchen ceiling fan. The gold covered 50th anniversary guest book was a gift from neighbours, Sandy and Darleen Johnston. Guests included their son and daughter-in-law, William and Ellen Brock of Murdochville, grandchildren, Susan Flack and James Brock, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, and others from Cookshire, Lennoxville, Sherbrooke, Que., Williamstown, Newport, East Haven, Vt., Richmond and the Boundary Villages. Henry Brock and Kay Manning were united in marriage in Newport, Vt., on June 25, 1937. Their marriage was blessed with two sons and daughters-in-law, Robert and Betty Brock, William and Ellen Brock, nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Their many friends join in wishing them many more of these happy events.

50th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Levitt will be At Home to all their relatives and friends on August 1st, 1987, 66 Grande Ligne Rd., Trenholm, Que., from 2-4 - 7-9 p.m. Best wishes only, please.

More to Philipsburg Pioneer Day than just muskets and battles

It should come as no surprise that the first item of business this week is the fourth annual Pioneer Day in Philipsburg. The event is a two-day affair this year, starting at 10:30 on Saturday morning and going until about 3:30 or 4:00 p.m. on Sunday. You will be able to read even more about it in the weekend Record... with pictures even.

Events at Philipsburg this year have been divided into categories. Many things simply occur by virtue of being there. The Brome County Museum is bringing an exhibit that you can visit at any time as an example. Apart from coffee breaks and lunches, the artisans will also be doing their thing during both days - however, the same ones may not be around both days. Saturday is probably the best day to see spinning, wool carding, weaving, rosemaking and such things.

The artisan and historic displays are there to be admired at your leisure. Other events, particularly the military ones, are on a timetable. In the big tent in the park you will find a blackboard and a list of timed events. After deciding which military displays you want to see, you plan to take half the walking tour of Philipsburg, eat lunch, go over to the military encampment, finish the walking tour while taking in the historical exhibitions and then return in time for the big battle re-enactment behind the Catholic Church.

It is hoped that the combination of events fixed in time and those fixed in place will allow visitors to select exactly the parts of the show that most interest them. The planned walking tour is particularly flexible, allowing timeouts for watching parades and battles, detours to see historic displays,

Down the Pike

By Ashley Sheltus

time to eat and time perhaps just to sit by the road and watch the lake waving at people passing behind you in a buggy...perhaps the lake is waving at you.

Things will tend to slow, then stop around 5:00 p.m. while the day switches into a different mood. You are invited to bring a picnic to the park and then stay around for an old-fashioned street party. There will be some exhibitions of folk dancing to watch, but mostly it is a time for families to wander around, lie on the grass or do a bit of dancing when the right tune comes up on the Pioneer Sound System. In case of dampness, there is a b-i-i-g tent and for dancing, both the Hotel Champlain and Hotel Gallagher will be open.

Also on Saturday night, you can finish your picnic early and drive over to Freligsburg for an organ and harpsichord summer concert at historic Bishop Stewart Memorial Church. The guest soloist that night is David Sandall who graduated last year from McGill with a Master of Music Degree. This follows his Bachelor of Music Degree from Dalhousie University.

Admission to the concert (the first of three) is $5. The proceeds go to Bishop Stewart Memorial Church and refreshments will be served on the grounds of the Church. The concert begins at 8 p.m. and you may reserve tickets or get more information by calling 514-298-5377.

On Sunday, you have a choice of three Philipsburg church services, RC, Anglican or United, followed by a picnic in the park, more walking tours and the 5km run for the more energetic. The King's Rangers will be back with their friends from Ogdensburg New York, the Forsyth Rifles and they will be joined by the Fraser Highlanders. Sunday afternoon will be a mixture of running, eating, a small military skirmish, piping, dancing of the Highland variety and then a firepower demonstration as about fifty musketeers exhibit the art of loading and firing their weapons in concert. There will be a lot of smoke.

Apart from all of that, I'd like to mention that the town of St. Albans Vermont will be 200 years old next year. As a matter of fact, it was at least in part built by people we in Canada would call United Empire Loyalists had they come a few miles further north before stopping. Those of you going across the line for gas and a few other items, might drop in at the Museum at St. Albans. It's open during July and August from 1 to 4 p.m., Tuesday to Saturday. It's a really delightful place to visit.

Next week, the lowdown on how Knowlton manages to get two Christmas periods, December and July. The Yamaska Valley Barber-shoppers will definitely be in Knowlton on July 18th, wandering from barbershop to shop-shop and singing up a storm between the hours of 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. They may also be at Pioneer day.

Also next week, Camp Garagona and a special appeal to the generosity of Townshippers. See everybody in Philipsburg this coming weekend...watch me duel Harvey Craft...pistols for two at noon...coffee for ?????? later.

Wife of cheater still bitter after two years

me everything if he stopped seeing her, so he continued.

Four years ago he decided to cut her out of his life and take the consequences. He hasn't heard from her since and believes she has moved out of town.

I saw nothing to be gained by kicking him out, but these two years since I learned he deceived me have been hell. Any suggestions on how I can get over this — Pain Without End

Dear Pain: You need to unburden yourself to a professional. (Family or friends won't do.) A trusted clergyman or a therapist would be ideal.

I urge you to get going at once. The tone of your letter suggests that you are still agonizing. Two years is much too long to carry this load. Good luck and God bless.

Dear Ann Landers: You really came down hard on drivers who ignore ambulance sirens. Please lighten up.

In our town we have a few fire chiefs who use their sirens to get to meetings and police officers who use their sirens to go to lunch. There are so many ambulance sirens and flashing lights in this city one would think that half the population has had a heart attack.

We also have the new two-for-one computer traffic control system. This means two minutes on red and one minute on green. This makes motorists mad and encourages those with sirens to use them.

My letter proves there are two sides to every story. — No Location; We don't Want More Trouble

Dear No Location: Thanks for the fill-in. My advice is the same. All motorists must give sirens the right of way. For every fire chief who is going to lunch there are 50 who are going to a fire. (Wake up and smell the smoke!)

Correctional Services Canada say they may have a job for you

If you are an English speaking citizen whose curiosity and/or interest is piqued by the thought of a career within the penal system of Canada, Correctional Services Canada (CSC) may have the job for you.

The prison system in Canada today consists of much more than simply inmates. There are approximately 10,000 CSC staff members, and without these men and women, the correctional system simply could not operate. The positions occupied are numerous and varied: psychologists, psychiatrists, criminologists, lawyers, correctional officers, teachers, instructors, nurses and chaplains, just to name a few. These people come from all walks of life to perform the task of preventing offenders from causing harm to others. They also play a crucial role in preparing the inmates to face mainstream life in the event that they are paroled. These staff members are trained to deal with the stress and the slow burning fuses of the prisoners which may erupt in an explosion.

In addition to these staff members, CSC opens its doors to some 2000 volunteers each year. These people are everyday citizens who give of their time in order to be of assistance to both staff and inmates alike.

One of the objectives of Correctional Services Canada at the present time is to obtain English-speaking candidates for correctional officer (prison guard) positions. These positions are located in Cowansville, Drummondville, Laval, Ste-Anne-des-Plaines and La Macaza. This is not to say that by applying you are automatically hired. The idea here is to help give a gentle push in the right direction, and persuade interested individuals to apply. Between now and December or January, CSC should be hiring qualified applicants, and so the sooner the individual sends his or her resume in, the greater the chance of obtaining employment.

There are several necessary qualifications and other facts to consider when one is submitting his or her candidacy:

- Successful completion of secondary schooling, or an equivalency.
- Should have extensive people related experience.
- Those not in possession of necessary experience, but who have acquired a post secondary education in the correctional field, may also apply.
- All applicants will be submitted to a security. Clearance and must undergo a physical examination.
- Successful candidates will undergo an eight (8) week training session.
- The salary for this particular position ranges from $23,873 to

Ferretting out a ninth trick

By James Jacoby

From the Granovetters' book "Tops and Bottoms," here is a fascinating deal played in an international tournament in Tokyo in 1983. Declarer was Sami Kehela, Canadian internationalist and frequent North American champion. Defending in the West ch'ir was Martin Hoffman of England.

A club was led and Sami won the queen. That gave him eight tricks, barring an unusually bad split in spades, but the ninth was not so easy to come by. If he played diamonds, the defenders would quickly take the club tricks coming to them, and that might just be enough to set the contract. It looked right to run the spade suit and watch what would happen when the defenders had to discard a few times. On the third, fourth and fifth spades, Hoffman discarded three diamonds. Meanwhile East played the diamond eight on the last spade. Now what?

Kehela eventually decided that the opening leader had started with five clubs and was therefore protecting the queen of hearts. He exited from dummy with the jack of clubs. West could cash out four club tricks, but then he had to lead away from the heart queen. Correctly analyzing the situation, declarer threw away dummy's K-J of diamonds on West's clubs and then let West's heart exit ride around his jack for his ninth trick.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

In the year ahead, work in tandem with those with whom you have a good rapport. Harmony is essential because the people with whom you'll team up will play beneficial roles in your personal affairs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In a critical dealing with another, you may sense that you have the upper hand today. Your evaluation of this situation could be wrong. Be careful. Major changes are ahead for Cancans in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before having anyone perform an important service for you today, put the terms and expectations in writing. These documents may be needed later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If a rich friend has recently bought something that you can't afford, don't feel you have to buy the same thing just to keep up appearances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Here's a good motto to hang on the inside of your door today and point out to your family: "Be sure what you see here and say here stays here when you leave."

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't knuckle under to an arrogant associate today just because he makes a lot of noise. A mouse may learn to roar like a lion, but he's still a mouse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be financially prudent today. If you have already budgeted certain funds for specific purposes, don't let your good intentions be subdued by extravagance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today, if others aren't as cooperative with you as you feel they should be, stop and ask yourself if it's due to your poor example.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Before making any serious commitments today, be absolutely certain that you'll be in the position to deliver when they come due. Don't kid yourself or others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Usually you're a rather accommodating person, and friends find you easy to be around. Today, however, this splendid trait may be absent from your inventory of qualities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are too self-serving today, people who are usually supportive may turn their backs on you, or even deliberately place obstacles in your path.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) On occasion, you can be rather inflexible where your opinions are concerned. Much to the chagrin of your companions, you may choose to behave this way today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you intend to buy something expensive today about which you know little, it would prove wise to have an expert appraise it before you write a check.

Canadian Jrs. wait in wake Old guard pushed in classic

By Jack Branswell

SHERBROOKE — On this the 20th anniversary of the first ever world water-skiing championship, it seems only fitting that the event should return to its birth place — Sherbrooke. And that is exactly what Tuesday's press conference at Jacques Cartier Park was for.

For the last two years the world junior championships have been held in Italy. But once again this year Townshippers will have a chance to behold some of the world's finest young skiers as they are put through their paces.

The event, part of the La Fête du Lac des Nations festivities, starts next Friday at 8 am with the slalom competition. The championships consist of three events; slalom, jumping, and trick skiing. Seven countries have confirmed their presence at the event. Of the seven the U.S. will be favored to win, although Canada has been doing very well lately, and it is expected they will rival the U.S. for top honors.

The event will have a distinctive local flavor as Sherbrooke native Benoit Villeneuve will be participating in the event for the first time. The 16-years-old Villeneuve, as the local athlete, will feel the pressure to perform well. He says it has already started.

"I feel a bit of pressure because this is my city and everyone wants me to do well." He says he does not think the pressure will adversely affect his performance. "I will give my most to try and please the public and myself."

As far as results go Villeneuve has not really set any goals except to ski as best as he knows how. "I want to ski my personal best. I want to help Canada win first position." In this championship individual placing are important only in terms of how it helps the skiers country out, because the point system is based on team performance — no individual medals are given out.

Villeneuve has been skiing in the area for seven years now, and he wants to jump to the senior level of competition by the time he is 18. Kim de Macedo, a British Columbia native, is another of Canada's young water-skiers who was paraded before the media at the press conference.

She has shown some impressive results including a second place finish at last year's junior championships in Italy. This year de Macedo is skiing with both the Canadian junior and senior teams. The diminutive 14-year-old, says, without batting an eyelash, that she wants to be the best in the world.

She expects to do well at next week's competition. "I think in slalom I should have really good results." She explains that slalom and jumping are her best events, and that trick-skiing is just a back up for her. Her goal for this year is to be selected for the national team which will go to the senior world championships in England in September.

As for here and now, she says Canada has a good chance of winning the whole thing, although she knows the U.S. team will be tough. But the one thing that will be working in Canada's favor is that by Friday the whole team will be here, and they will be able to practise and get used to the jump and the slalom course.

By Terry Scott

LAVAL, Que. (CP)—Patty Sheehan, who has been on the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour since 1980, says the old guard is facing tough competition.

"A couple of different players have been winning a lot this year," Sheehan said when asked Wednesday to handicap the field in the du Maurier Classic which starts today at the par-72, 6,371-yard Islesmere Golf and Country Club.

"The way the tour has been going, the old guard is not guarding as good as it should."

Sheehan, who is among the old guard, was referring to the fact that golfers such as Pat Bradley, Nancy Lopez and Jan Stephenson, who are usually near the top of the earnings' list, have been overtaken on the 1987 tour.

The people who have replaced them are Betsy King, the leader with $302,806; Jane Geddes, who is just over $10,000 behind that amount; and Ayako Okamoto of Japan, who is third with $253,704. Sheehan hasn't failed totally in guarding her territory — she ranks fourth with $143,986.

"You have to look at the top of the money list," Sheehan said when asked to evaluate her opponents in the event, which pays $60,000 US of the $400,000 total prize money to the winner.

"The ones at the top of the money list have been consistently up there all year."

Geddes has four tournament victories, while King and Okamoto are both three-time winners on the 1987 tour. Sheehan is still seeking her first victory of the year but is encouraged by recent performances.

STAYS CONFIDENT

"For some reason, putting four rounds together has been more difficult for me this year than it's been in the past. But I've been in the top 10 the last five times I've played."

In evaluating the entries for the only LPGA stop in Canada, Sheehan was quick to list Bradley as a favorite. Bradley has won the du Maurier Classic three times, including the last two years.

"Last year, I had four wins under my belt going into the du Maurier, and this year I only have one," said Bradley, the LPGA player of the year in 1986 when she led money winners with a record $492,021.

When the 144 golfers start play in the 72-hole tournament, Val Skinner of North Platte, Neb., ranked 22nd on the earnings' list, will not be among them.

Skinner failed to arrive for her starting time in the pro-am and did not call to say she would be absent before the event, an oversight which, under LPGA rules, calls for disqualification from the LPGA event in which the golfer is entered.

Skinner, who is bothered by a sore back, has been taking medication for the ailment, and it caused her to sleep in Wednesday morning.

A dozen Canadians are entered in the four-day meet, seeking to become the first to win the tournament in their native country since Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., who was a winner at the Montreal Municipal Golf Club in 1973 when the event was known as La Canadienne.

Lisa Young of Prince Rupert, B.C., the 25th-ranked money winner in 1987, is given the best chance among the Canadians contending for the championship.

Kelesi pushed by prototype

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Top-seeded Helen Kelesi of Toronto admitted she saw a younger version of herself in Monique Anders of Burlington, Ont., after she eliminated her 14-year-old challenger 6-2, 6-2 Wednesday at the $60,000 Sun Life national tennis championship.

"She came out there playing pretty gutsy tennis," said Kelesi, who's after her first Canadian women's crown after winning five national titles as a junior. "I was a little shocked and just couldn't seem to get my concentration to the level of a professional match. "It didn't click."

Things did not click for third-seeded Jillian Alexander of Oakville, Ont., either, who became the highest-seeded casualty in the women's field, losing 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 to unseeded Teresa Dobson of Vancouver.

In other action, seventh-seeded Jane Yates, also of Oakville, came close to joining Alexander on the sidelines as she saved five match points in a 6-4, 1-6, 7-6 (7-3) victory over unseeded Patti Henderson of Toronto.

Kelesi said she respected what she saw in Anders.

BEEN THERE BEFORE

"I used to be the one who wasn't expected to win because I was so young," she said. "I know what she must have felt like playing against the top-seed because I've been through it all before."

Anders, who is the youngest player at the tournament, said she was determined to just go all out and have fun.

"It was great," she said. "Once I was out there, I began to get a bit more concerned about my shots."

"Playing Helen was the most important match of my life. What it's done for me is show that if I can bring my consistency up and continue to improve, I might be able to join the international circuit some day," she added.

Kelesi now will face eighth-seeded Jill Hetherington of Peterborough, Ont. Hetherington ousted unseeded Michelle Duda of Brantford, Ont., 6-4, 6-4 to advance to the quarter-finals.

Also advancing were No. 4 Marianne Groat of St. Catharines, Ont., the 1984 women's champion who beat Lisa Parks of Toronto, 6-3, 6-3 and No. 5 Jane Young of Waterloo, Ont. Young, the 1985 champion, defeated Lindsay Matthews of Montreal, 6-2, 6-4.

Second-ranked Stephane Bonneau of Laval, Que., and fourth-seeded Chris Pridham of Oakville, Ont., were two of the favorites who advanced into the third round of the men's draw. Bonneau edged John Picken of Calgary 6-7 (4-7), 6-4, 6-1 while Pridham dumped 1979 champion Dale Power, 37, of Ottawa, 6-2, 6-3.

Sixth-seeded Hatem McDadi of Toronto was a 6-1, 6-2 winner over Gavin McMillan of Calgary, and No. 10 Brian Gyetko of Welland, Ont. defeated David Defehr of Saskatoon 6-4, 6-2.

Youmans throws Astros one-hitter

HOUSTON (AP) — Floyd Youmans says he wonders what it would be like to pitch a no-hitter.

He'll have to keep wondering as he pitched his fourth one-hitter in two years as the Expos edged the Houston Astros 1-0 in National League baseball action Wednesday night.

"That is the fourth one-hitter in two years," Youmans said. "I keep thinking about the feeling that you must get when you pitch a no-hitter."

Youmans was working on a perfect game for the first five innings until Alan Ashby drew a leadoff walk in the sixth inning. He was working on a no-hitter until Kevin Bass started the eighth with a line drive single off the right-field wall.

It was the second straight shutout performance by a Montreal pitcher against the Astros. Bob Sebra pitched a shutout Tuesday night as the Expos defeated the Astros 2-0.

Youmans walked two and struck out three to improve his record to 6-3. The other walk was Bill Doran in the seventh inning.

His Montreal Expos teammates did all they could to keep him from getting nervous about a possible no-hitter, but Youmans said one fan in the Astrodome wouldn't cooperate.

FAN YELLS

"In the dugout, people wouldn't talk to me and were staying away from me to keep my mind off it," said Youmans. "But there was some guy behind the dugout who kept yelling, 'Think about it Youmans, you're pitching a no-hitter, think about it.'"

Youmans, making just his second start since coming off the disabled list from a back injury, said that Bass's hit was on a fastball.

"I was trying to keep it away, but I was tired and got it up and over the plate," he said.

Montreal catcher Jeff Reed said: "We didn't want to walk Bass in that situation. We had been throwing him changeups, sliders all night long, so I didn't think he would be sitting on the fastball. I thought he would be thinking off-speed."

Bass said: "Youmans had good command of his breaking pitches all night. It seemed like the count was always 0-1 on our hitters."

The only run of the game came in the first inning off Astros starter and loser Nolan Ryan, 4-10. It was Ryan's fifth straight loss.

Tim Raines had a two-out infield single, stole second and scored on a single by Tim Wallach.

The performances by Youmans and Sebra against the Astros left Montreal manager Buck Rodgers feeling good about his pitching staff.

"I feel better about our pitching now than at anytime this season," Rodgers said.

Floyd Youmans...people wouldn't talk to me.

Red birds win again in big slugfest

Other teams may soon grow discouraged in watching the St. Louis Cardinals continue to win — at least that's what Terry Pendleton hopes.

"I know, myself, I wouldn't feel good," Pendleton said after his 10th-inning single in the second game gave the Cardinals an 8-7 victory Wednesday and a National League baseball doubleheader sweep of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Extending their victory string to seven games, the Cardinals also increased their East Division lead to nine games.

"We came back, we battled," said Los Angeles manager Tommy Lasorda, whose team was swept in a doubleheader by St. Louis for the second straight night.

The Dodgers outthit the Cardinals by 15-10, a statistic that was negated when Pendleton's single gave him his 50th run-batted in.

HITS HOMER

Jack Clark hit a three-run homer and Willie McGee followed with a home run as St. Louis won the opener 6-3.

In other NL games, it was: Atlanta Braves 5, New York Mets 3; Chicago Cubs 12, San Diego Padres 8; Philadelphia Phillies 7, Cincinnati Reds 2; and San Francisco Giants 8, Pittsburgh Pirates 4 in 14 innings.

Jose Oquendo led off the 10th with a single off Orel Hershisser, 10-8, the third Los Angeles pitcher. After Tony Pena popped out trying to sacrifice, Ozzie Smith singled Oquendo to third. A walk to Vince Coleman loaded the bases and Pendleton, who hit a three-run double earlier in the game, then singled under the glove of first baseman Mickey Hatcher.

Pat Perry, 3-1, pitched two hitless innings for the victory.

In the opener, Clark and McGee homered in the fifth inning off Fernando Valenzuela, 7-7. Clark leads the major leagues with 82 RBI and has 25 home runs.

Bob Forsch, 8-3, scattered four hits before Mike Marshall and Mickey Hatcher homered in the seventh inning. Pedro Guerrero hit his 17th homer in the eighth against reliever Todd Worrell.

Cubs 12 Padres 8

Jim Sundberg's pinch-hit grand slam in the eighth inning highlighted an eight-run rally as Chicago swept the three-game series with San Diego. Les Lancaster, 2-0, pitched the seventh and eighth innings to pick up the win.

Braves 5 Mets 3

Gary Roenicke homered and drove in two runs and Atlanta ended a five-game losing streak. Charlie Puleo, 3-2, stopped the Mets on only six hits, including Darryl Strawberry's 21st home run, in his first complete game of the season.

Phillies 7 Reds 2

Glenn Wilson hit a two-run homer and Von Hayes had three hits as Philadelphia won all three games against Cincinnati. The Phillies have won just 29 of their last 79 games at Riverfront since mid-1974.

Bruce Ruffin, 6-6, allowed eight hits, including solo homers by Eric Davis and Nick Esasky. Davis's homer gave him the league lead with 26.

Giants 8 Pirates 4

Bob Melvin broke a 14th-inning tie with a run-scoring single and Chili Davis followed with a three-run homer as San Francisco won for the third time in the four-game series. Jeff Robinson, 6-6, pitched 41-3 scoreless innings of one-hit relief for the victory.

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — India edged the United States by six points to capture the team title in the cadet (15-to-16-year-old) freestyle finals at the world youth wrestling championships Wednesday.

Each of the two countries triumphed in three weight classes, but the 11 Indian wrestlers made a stronger overall showing with a 54-48 point advantage.

Canada's national squad placed fifth with 14 points. The top Canadian performer was Justion Abdou of Moose Jaw, Sask., who took the gold in the 76-kilogram class, defeating Sunil Kumar of India 16-1.

The effort came on the heels of the Ontario contingent's third-place finish in the junior Greco-Roman championships Monday.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings are scheduled to play the U.S. Olympic hockey team Oct. 3 at the Sports Arena in a match just before the National Hockey League's season begins, it was announced Wednesday.

The game will be the finale of a seven-game exhibition card for the NHL team. The U.S. team is headed for the 1988 Winter Olympics in February at Calgary.

The practice session for the Kings opens Sept. 18 against the Vancouver Canucks, one week after the Kings report to training camp in Victoria.

The NHL regular season opens in Los Angeles when the Kings play the New York Islanders on Oct. 8.

The 20th anniversary of the Forum in Inglewood, Calif., will be celebrated by the Kings with a game against the Winnipeg Jets on Dec. 30. The Kings played the Philadelphia Flyers in the first event at the Forum on Dec. 30, 1967.

Why the proposed Government legislation banning tobacco advertising deserves a sensible second look.

Even by people who don't smoke.

The Federal Government has proposed legislation banning all Canadian tobacco advertising, promotion and brand sponsorship.

Whether or not you smoke, if you're a Canadian who cares about civil liberties, you owe it to yourself to examine this issue and come to your own conclusions.

A VIOLATION OF THE CHARTER OF RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS?

Never in the history of Canada has a legal product been totally denied the right to advertise. Bill C-51 denies tobacco manufacturers the right to provide information through advertising and the consumer the right to receive it. So the proposed legislation may well be a direct violation of the Charter of Rights.

Many Canadians believe banning advertising for a legal product is in violation of Canada's Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

REASONABLE CONSTRAINTS YES. OUTRIGHT CENSORSHIP NO.

Nobody questions the need for reasonable constraints on tobacco advertising. Tobacco advertising has been controlled through a voluntary industry code for more than 20 years.

Under the voluntary code, tobacco manufacturers withdrew from television and radio advertising. They limited expenditures, included government health warnings and ensured that outdoor advertising would not appear adjacent to primary and secondary school areas. Within the last year, the industry has further offered to eliminate people from all advertising and enlarge and modify Health and Welfare messages in advertising and on packages. With this record of co-operation and control, is outright censorship really necessary?

WHAT ADVERTISING DOES AND DOESN'T DO.

Today's tobacco advertising is designed to encourage current smokers to try one brand over another. That's all advertising does. It doesn't get people to start smoking and it doesn't get them to smoke more. In countries where tobacco advertising has been banned, such as Norway, Sweden, Finland and Singapore, consumption has not declined, and in some cases, has actually increased.

Advertising also doesn't encourage young people to start smoking. A recent study of Canadian children undertaken by the respected Children's Research Unit of the United Kingdom shows clearly that advertising has little, if any, influence.

JOBS LOST FOR NOTHING.

There is ample evidence to suggest that Bill C-51 will not achieve its aims. What it will achieve is massive economic dislocation. Up to 2,500 people in Canada's advertising and media industries stand to lose their jobs and many other industries will feel the economic impact.

With tobacco brand sponsorship outlawed, organizations such as the Royal Canadian Golf Association, Tennis Canada, the Canadian Equestrian Federation and many major opera companies, dance companies, theatre companies and symphony orchestras could lose up to $10 million a year in sponsorship grants. All in all, a heavy price to pay for ineffective legislation.

TOBACCO ADVERTISING TODAY. WHO'S NEXT?

If the rights inherent in the Charter of Rights and Freedoms can be conveniently trampled upon in the tobacco advertising issue, whose rights will be denied next?

Will alcoholic beverage advertising be made illegal? Will advertising for certain food products be outlawed? Will trade unions be told that they can't plead their case through advertising because the Government doesn't want Canadians exposed to their ideas? Once we start down the road of banning information, where do we stop?

In a study conducted among Canadian children by the highly respected Children's Research Unit of the United Kingdom, the myth that tobacco advertising encourages young people to smoke was shattered. Among the major findings:

- Peer pressure, parental role models and socio-economic status are the primary influences leading to smoking among young people.
- Advertising was cited as an influence by less than 2% of the young people surveyed.
- Cigarette consumption among young people is substantially higher in Norway than in Canada. Tobacco advertising has been banned in Norway since 1975.

If you're concerned about this basic point of principle, or if you'd like more information on the proposed tobacco advertising ban, we urge you to write to P.O. Box 80, Station "H", Montreal, Quebec H3G 2K8.
