

THRIVING BUSINESS — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zwierzchowski survey the results of their hard work and dedication. The couple began life in Sherbrooke with little money and bitter memories of wartime Europe. Today, business is on the upswing and they hope to expand in the near future.

Frank and Mrs. Frank's secret: hard work

By MARGUERITE SMITH
(Record Staff Reporter)

Canada is a land of opportunity — those who are willing to put their hearts into what they are doing will make a go of it.

That's what Frank Zwierzchowski and his wife, Lucia think — and for them it worked. The couple began life in Sherbrooke with little money and memories of wartime in Europe.

Mr. Zwierzchowski, 48, spent three years as a Polish war prisoner in a German camp, and both he and Mrs. Zwierzchowski spent a year on the run in Italy's mountains before managing to get through to allied territory.

Today they are the owners of a thriving ladies wear manufacturing plant and are making expansion plans for the future.

Says Frank: "If a person wants to work, he can really make a good living."

The couple came to Sherbrooke in May of 1952 after working in England during the postwar years.

Mr. Zwierzchowski worked as an interior decorating contractor, a trade which he learned in England, and Mrs. Zwierzchowski, 44, worked as manager for various clothing firms in Montreal.

When she lived in her native Italy, she had been employed in an office. However, she had to resort to learning the needle trade when she came to England. Because of her sparse knowledge of the language she was not qualified for office work.

And her knowledge of what she learned as a seamstress has helped her in her own business. Some of the girls now working for the couple came to them without any experience and Mrs. Zwierzchowski patiently taught them how.

And she can speak fluently, Italian, Polish, French and English. Mr. Zwierzchowski has a few more languages up on his wife. He speaks Polish, Italian, English, French, Greek and can understand Russian and Romanian.

Then came a day when Mrs. Zwierzchowski thought that it "would be better to start a little business."

With six machines and as many employees, the business got off to a start in 1960 at 1669 Galt Street and slowly began to grow. Now there are 25 machines and employees.

For the first six months, Mr. Zwierzchowski worked at his trade and left the business to his wife. Then he gave up his work to come and help her. He calls himself general manager and still says the business is Mrs. Zwierzchowski's.

Mrs. Zwierzchowski says the need to expand is becoming more and more pressing. She hopes with the aid of the federal government to start exporting to the US soon.

All goods are currently being shipped out to retailers in Montreal.

While the business was growing, Mrs. Zwierzchowski felt a need to broaden her own horizons. She took a three-year extension course in business administration at the University of Sherbrooke and in spite of some difficulties, did not stop until she had earned a certificate.

During this time, her daughter, now 22 months old, was born. She also worked at her business and studied. Her lectures were in French, the textbooks, English and all her notes, she took in Italian. Mrs. Zwierzchowski is a mother of four. The oldest is 21.

"If you really set out to do something, you can do it," says Mrs. Zwierzchowski.

Interrupted her husband: "The most important thing is that you have to want to work."

Said Mrs. Zwierzchowski: "Europeans work harder because they come over here to build their lives."

"But", she added, "there are a number of welfare organizations which make it too easy for some people — which spoil people."

She referred to persons continually out of work and living on public assistance.

It wasn't easy for the Zwierzchowskis when they first came to Canada and Sherbrooke. After working at his first job, Mr. Kwierzchowski broke his arm and was out of work for six weeks.

When they arrived in Sherbrooke, the city seemed to be about 50 per cent English speaking.

"I found both groups very friendly," she said.

"Then after a few years, they started the separatist movements. They are not the same people — they seem more bitter."

He: "If they would just say that they are Canadian, instead of French Canadian, English Canadian or Irish Canadian, then Canada would be a stronger country. You can't be a patriot and think like that."

And if anyone should know about patriotism, it's Frank Zwierzchowski.

In 1939 he was in his first year of law at Warsaw University. He was broke out and he joined the Polish army as a volunteer.

Two weeks later Russia moved into Poland and the troops retreated to Romania and Hungary. Mr. Zwierzchowski went to Romania and was made immobile in an internment camp.

Six months later he escaped from the camp and went to Syria where he joined the Polish brigade. When the Vichy government came into power, (German puppet government) he moved from Syria to Palestine with the Polish troops only to be later taken prisoner by the Germans and sent to a prison camp in Italy where he spent three years.

Your weekend weather Good for the hardy

It should be a good weekend for skiers and equally as nice for anyone enjoying the out-of-doors. Snow flurries will begin late this afternoon and continue throughout the evening and tomorrow.

Today the skies will be mainly cloudy with temperatures a little warmer than they have been. The snow flurries will end Saturday and temperatures are expected to be seasonal.

A ridge of high pressure, according to East Angus weather watchers, is the cause for the flurries. High today and low tonight, 35-33. Sunday, although a bit cooler, should be a perfect day for active nature-lovers.

Lesage attacks

SUNDAY, November 10, 1968 — Inaction and lack of leadership on the part of the Union Nationale was blamed for most of the problems facing Quebec province today by Quebec Liberal Leader Jean Lesage in addressing a meeting of some 300 Liberal militants in the high school auditorium Sunday afternoon at Knowlton.

In a predominantly English address, Mr. Lesage launched a particularly strong attack against the failure of the present government to act in the St. Leonard school crisis where the Roman Catholic School Board has undertaken a policy of phasing out English-language schools.

"Never since Confederation has the English speaking minority been denied the right to send their children to English-language school," Mr. Lesage declared.

Naked bayonets slid swiftly into belt sheaths with a metallic click. Moments later F-N rifles poked into a leaden sky filled with softly falling snow.

A crowd of approximately 1,000 persons watched Sunday afternoon as the City of Sherbrooke's various militia and regular force units celebrated the 50th anniversary of the end of World War One.

All over the Eastern Townships, communities held parades and wreath laying ceremonies in honor of those men who lost their lives in war.

A group of 25 Quakers from Massachusetts came to the Boundary communities of Derby Line, Vermont and Rock Island, over the weekend to donate money for war aid to Viet Cong and Vietnamese war victims.

The group left Amherst, Mass., picking up people in Stockbridge, Williamstown, Hatfield, Whately, and Gill, Mass. They arrived in Derby Line and formed a vigil at Baxter Park. During this time, one of the group, David Clark, read a letter from the United States' treasury department warning the Quakers that they were violating the US trading with the Enemy Act.

Redistribution

MONDAY, November 11, 1968 — Mayor Armand Nadeau urged Sherbrooke council Monday night to begin plans immediately for the redistribution of aldermen in Sherbrooke so the project will be finished in time for the 1970 en bloc municipal elections.

Despite a projected plan to subtract an alderman from the Centre and South Wards and to add an alderman to the North, West and East Wards, council decided to deliberate on the subject for 15 days.

Mayor Nadeau and a number of aldermen rejected Alderman Romeo Quintal's suggestion that each ward be divided into sectors for an en bloc election so that an alderman would be chosen by the voters of just the sector he represents.

Father Alexandre Landry, 58, a member of the Order of St. Gabriel located at St. Guillaume d'Upton, was injured Monday when the car he was driving collided head-on with a transport truck on the Bromptonville Road.

Father Landry suffered a shattered knee and head injuries in the crash. He was transported to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital in Sherbrooke and kept under observation.

The truck, driven by Roger Fournier, 51, of Sherbrooke, belonged to the Laurent Veilleux Transport Co. and was slightly damaged in the accident.

Sherbrooke City Council Monday night decided to maintain its experiment in traffic circulation and to enforce its interdiction of left turns at the corner of King and Wellington Streets until the end of the month.

Alderman Amedee Roy of the Centre Ward told council he has received complaints from Sherbrooke merchants who want the interdiction lifted.

However, Traffic Circulation Committee Chairman, Gerard Dezil said he has heard nothing but complimentary remarks and not one complaint about the experiment.

Still at large

FRIDAY, November 8 — One week after a number of unknown men fired a bullet which perforated Roland Giguere's intestine, the 35-year-old Sherbrooke businessman, father of five children, died of complications in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, as a result of an unsuccessful operation to remove the bullet.

Police continue to believe that would-be hold-up men killed Giguere during a scuffle outside of his home on Friday morning November 1.

The investigation has yet to round up any suspects, but police said they have identified the car driven by the attackers.

Leaders of a union involved in a strike against Domtar Pulp and Paper Ltd. of East Angus and Windsor, affirmed Friday their opposition to violence and agreed to three company conditions for a resumption of talks.

The position of the union, the Canadian Federation of Pulp and Paper Workers, was expressed in a telegram to Real Mireault, deputy minister of labor in Quebec.

The company claims that $100,000 worth of damage was done to its mill in Windsor when armed strikers occupied it for 26 hours Sunday, Oct. 31, and Monday, Nov. 1.

The first snowfall of the season hit the Eastern Townships overnight Friday covering the area from one to three inches with snow.

A survey of rural communities showed that the average overnight snowfall in outlying areas was approximately three inches.

Sherbrooke and Lennoxville on the other hand, according to Lennoxville Experimental Farm weather watchers, had only a scant 41 inches during the first snowfall of the year.

The resident manager of Domtar's Windsor mill announced Friday the two-week foremen's training course geared to mold "a stronger management team" had finished.

John Meyers said for the past two weeks 60 mill foremen have taken courses supervised by teachers from the international correspondence school.

The final meeting was held in the Carousel Room of the New Sherbrooke Hotel Friday afternoon at 3 p.m.

Talks on SATURDAY, November 9 — Negotiations between Domtar Pulp and Paper Ltd. and 1,200 striking employees continued Saturday before mediator Real Mireault, associate deputy labor minister.

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, with which the workers' unions are affiliated, said in a statement that word had been received from Mr. Mireault that Domtar had "agreed to resume negotiations".

Contract negotiations broke off a week earlier when Domtar charged that strikers were intimidating foremen and security guards at its two Eastern Townships plants at Windsor and East Angus.

Three people were injured in two separate accidents in East Angus Saturday.

Injured in the automobile mishaps were Mrs. Monique Dessaint, 604 St. Martin St., Sherbrooke, after her car slammed into a pole on Cookshire St., East Angus.

In another accident Raymond Vachon, 22, of 110 College St., East Angus, was seriously injured in an accident which occurred Saturday night. Lionel Menard, 24, of 303 St. Jean St., a passenger in the car, was also injured.

Brome Stages Cleopatra, a four-month black Labrador female, owned by Ray Mullins, Knowlton, took second in the bench trial sponsored by the Roxboro Kennel Club on Saturday.

"Cleo" was one of over 300 entries in the puppy class which was open to all breeds. Cleo was bred at the Brome Stages Kennel, West Brome.

Judging at a bench trial is based on the conformation of the dogs, and has nothing to do with field ability. Mr. Mullins said he would enter Cleo in field trials next spring.

The week of November 8-15 was marked by death, donations, suggestion, assault and refusal. Roland Giguere, shot in front of his home by abortive hold-up men, died of complications following surgery to remove the bullet. Quakers from Amherst, Mass., came to the Boundary to donate money to Viet Cong and Vietnamese war victims. Mayor Armand Nadeau of Sherbrooke suggested aldermanic redistribution plans begin immediately. Four men, armed with a baseball bat and a tire jack, assaulted a Sherbrooke couple in Deauville and striking Domtar workers refused the latest wage proposals made by plant management.

Damage charges

WEDNESDAY, November 13, 1968 — Three union leaders appeared in Court of Sessions Wednesday before Judge Benoit Turmel and pleaded not guilty to charges of complicity with men who broke into the Domtar Kraft and Pulp Paper Ltd. plant in Windsor November 3 and caused $100,000 damage to the building.

Clement Potvin, a strike director; Valliere Dion, an assistant strike director in charge of discipline; and Charles Ferland, assistant strike director in charge of picketing at the Windsor plant will appear pro forma on the charge November 20.

The courtroom was filled by 200 strikers who watched as the three pleaded not guilty.

With two provincial by-elections, one in Bagot and the other in Notre Dame de Grace, Montreal, politicians are concentrating their activities on these two ridings with a consequent curtailment of the organizational work generally carried on during the late fall.

However, a number of Liberal party meetings to reorganize county associations called prior to the announcement of the by-election date, December 4, will be held as scheduled.

Included is a meeting of Stansstead County Liberals to be held at the Parish Guard Hall, Main Street, for the purpose of electing a new executive for the county association.

A group of four men savagely beat Mr. and Mrs. Paul Auray, 854 Short Street, Sherbrooke, at the Lake Park Hotel early Wednesday morning.

Mr. Auray and his wife were attacked by men carrying a baseball bat and an automobile tire jack. Police are still searching for a fourth man.

Motive for the beating was "to settle a score" according to police reports. Three men were later arrested and arraigned on charges of assault in St. Francis District Sessions Court.

Assault trial

THURSDAY, November 14, 1968 — Three men accused of beating a man and his wife with a baseball bat pleaded not guilty to various assault charges yesterday when they appeared before Judge Benoit Turmel in Court of Sessions.

The alleged assault occurred at 2:15 a.m. Wednesday morning at the Lake Park Hotel in Deauville.

Gilles Robert, 28, Magog, Donald Burke, 30, of Sherbrooke, and Jocelyn Frappier chose a trial before judge and jury. The trial is slated for November 20.

Blizzard

TUESDAY, November 12, 1968 — The Eastern Townships weather station reported Tuesday that 5.2 inches of snow fell on Sherbrooke in the area's first blizzard of the young winter season.

Much of this snow melted, though, during the day. Wind velocity in Sherbrooke gusted up to at least 30 mph. Visibility was poor on all roads. QPP officials, as well as Sherbrooke municipal police, reported a number of cars bumped fenders, and one serious accident occurred.

Solange Thivierge, nine years old, of RR 1, Sherbrooke, was taken to Notre-Dame Hospital in Montreal after she was hit by a car on Galt Street West in Sherbrooke.

She received head injuries.

A $500 reward is being offered to anyone submitting information which would lead to the arrest of the men who murdered Roland Giguere two weeks ago.

The bond was deposited Tuesday at the Sherbrooke police station. Anyone with information should telephone the police at 569-3711.

The reward is being offered by Pat's Restaurants Inc., Douglas Patrick, president, for which Mr. Giguere was a director.

A Quebec Police Commission began deliberating Tuesday on a point of law contained in Coaticook's lawbooks after the three-man commission heard testimony in the Town of Coaticook's case against its ex-chief of police, Gerard Groleau.

Coaticook council decided to discharge the chief July 2 but he complained about his dismissal and he lodged an appeal.

Town council is arguing in court that ex-chief Groleau made his appeal too late, since a Coaticook bylaw states that the appeal must be made within eight days of the council's decision to discharge someone. However, the chief says he received the letter informing him of his discharge on July 12 and he lodged an appeal July 16.

Church groups gather to view African slides

RICHMOND — On Oct. 29 a most enjoyable ecumenical event took place in Chalmers United Church hall when over 100 citizens of all faiths gathered to see slides of Africa, taken during the summer by Rev. Bernard Bonneau.

Father Bonneau was introduced by Rev. R. A. Cameron and Rev. Gerald Doran spoke briefly of Father Bonneau, who was born near Valcourt, studied at Sherbrooke, Montreal and Detroit and was ordained in 1961, after which he was for two years secretary to the Bishop of Sherbrooke and also chaplain for the University of Sherbrooke.

He was connected with Holy Family Church and is now chaplain at the local schools in Richmond and Danville.

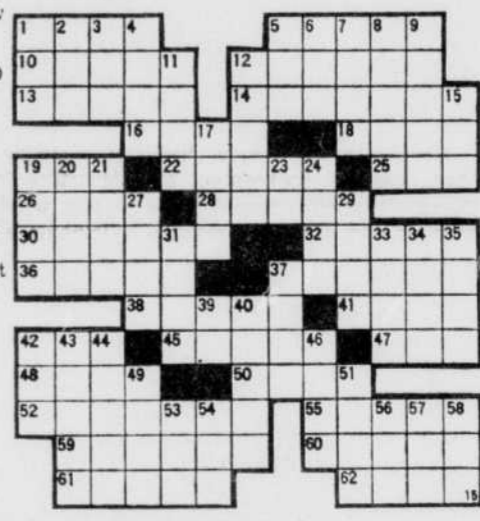

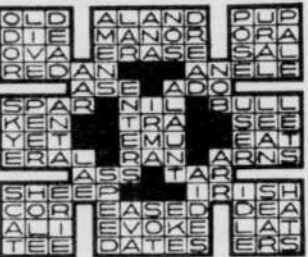

Father Bonneau held the attention of the audience with the beautiful slides and humorous commentary on his tour of Africa.

He was thanked by Rev. W. E. Walker, after which refreshments were served by the members of the Friendship Club of Chalmers United Church, who sponsored the meeting.

Grits fight in vain

QUEBEC (CP) — The Liberal Opposition pelted the Union Nationale government with questions Thursday about a seizure last weekend of about $100,000 worth of illicit liquor, but lost in a bid to make the seizure the subject of an emergency debate.

Opposition Leader Jean Lesage, saying there was an "illicit and clandestine commerce of alcohol" which had reached "scandalous" proportions in Quebec province, proposed the emergency debate.

Speaker Gerard Label, however, ruled against the debate because a police inquiry is under way and charges are being brought before the courts in connection with the seizure. There was therefore no urgency about the proposed debate.

Claude Wagner, former justice minister in a previous Liberal administration, accused the government of threatening police in suburban Vanier whose action last weekend led to the seizure there of more than 9,500 bottles of liquor.

TO PROBE CONDUCT

The accusation followed announcement of Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand that the Quebec Police Commission will examine the conduct of a Vanier constable. A provincial police inquiry had found that the constable was aware that a Vanier warehouse was used for illicit liquor commerce last July 28 but had reported this only on Wednesday.

Mr. Wagner said that instead of threatening "reprisals" against a Vanier policeman, the government should congratulate the Vanier police chief for showing "courage and determination."

Mr. Bertrand said Mr. Wagner had no right to suggest the government is trying to blackmail the Vanier police, but Mr.

Wagner replied that the government is unable to maintain respect for the law.

The premier also announced Thursday that charges are being laid against an inspector employed by the Quebec Liquor Board. QLB employees have been on strike for higher wages since June 26.

Also to be charged in connection with the weekend alcohol seizure are four employees of Melchers Distilleries Ltd. of Berthierville, Que., and the president of the firm that owns the warehouse where the liquor was seized.

TO CHARGE COMPLICITY

Mr. Bertrand did not specify what charge will be laid against the QLB inspector. The other five persons were to be charged with complicity in the illegal transport of alcohol.

Opposition questions were posed by Mr. Lesage, Mr. Wagner and Liberal house Leader Pierre Laporte, and Mr. Bertrand, who is justice minister as well as premier, bore the brunt of the attack.

The questions:

—Why has the justice department not made a charge against Melchers Distilleries and Transport D'Anjou, the firm whose truck was loaded with the illicit liquor shipment?

—Who told the truck driver to take his load to Vanier instead of New Brunswick, purported destination of the shipment?

—Is it true the liquor board has provided liquor permit holders with liquor board brand stamps to apply to bottles?

—Is it true that the liquor board is delivering liquor during the night from its warehouses?

—How many of these "troubling questions" will it take to get the government to conduct a public inquiry into illicit liquor commerce?

Constable quits, says chief was rude

By DENNIS FINLAY
(Record Staff Reporter)

A French-speaking Canadian on the Lennoxville police force said he resigned yesterday because Chief Russell Wells insulted his sanity, legitimacy and ethnic origin.

Constable Yvon Paquin also charged that Chief Wells hit him on the arm with his fist.

Mr. Paquin told the Record this morning that he officially resigned yesterday when he wrote and submitted two letters of resignation.

However, Mayor Cecil Dougherty of Lennoxville said a special meeting will be held tonight at 5 p.m. to discuss the affair and to decide whether to accept the constable's resignation or not.

Mr. Paquin, the father of two children, has been a constable for 18 months and was the only French-speaking Canadian on the Lennoxville police force.

Chief Wells, denied all of Mr. Paquin's accusations in a Record interview today.

"I did not insult him," he emphasized.

Chief Wells said he hasn't seen any letter of resignation from Constable Paquin yet, but Mayor Dougherty explained this morning that Dr. Hector McLeod, chairman of the Lennoxville Police committee, received the letter.

Mayor Dougherty said the resignation has to be submitted to the chief of police.

Mr. Paquin explained that the incident occurred from an accident Monday night.

Constable Paquin was driving the Lennoxville Police Department's patrol car on the River-view Road when the car crashed into a ditch.

Mr. Paquin said he telephoned for a tow truck to pull the car out of the ditch.

The next day, Chief Wells left a note on Constable Paquin's desk informing him that the constable would have to pay for the towing charges.

River-view Road, Constable Paquin confirmed, is within Lennoxville's town limits.

Chief Wells said in the note to the constable that he had no business being on the River-view Road.

Tuesday night, Constable Paquin drove to Chief Wells' home to drive the chief to work.

According to Mr. Paquin, Chief Wells told the constable to stop sticking his nose into the chief's affairs.

Constable Paquin said he replied that he didn't know what the chief was talking about.

It was then that Chief Wells hit the constable in the arm, Constable Paquin said this morning.

He also called him names, including "Pea soup."

Wednesday, Constable Paquin

referred the incident to Mayor Dougherty who called a meeting between Chief Wells, Constable Paquin, Dr. McLeod, and himself.

Constable Paquin said the mayor listened to the narration of the incident and then said he had no time to deal with the affair.

Mayor Dougherty said this morning that he could have done nothing else at the time because Constable Paquin was so irate.

There was "no settling down of the fellow," the mayor explained.

Constable Paquin resigned yesterday.

He also charged this morning in a Record interview that Chief Wells looked at a report the constable had written in French and remarked, "How do you expect me to read in Chinese?"

This occurred only last week, Constable Paquin pointed out.

Chief Wells, after listening to Constable Paquin's version, said "That is just a bit of foolishness."

Chief Wells said if the situation gets too serious, he will hire a lawyer.

The charges were "absolute falsehood" he said.

Chief Wells said, "I can't defend myself against lies. It's ridiculous, you know."

Teachers still keep quiet

MONTREAL (CP) — An aura of uncertainty hangs over Quebec's education situation as the silence between teachers and employers continues following the breakdown Nov. 6 of negotiations, which were fumbling over teacher workload.

The government is unwilling to put a ceiling on the size of classes or the hours of work.

Teachers fear they will find themselves with classes of up to 35 or 40 pupils and few spare periods to prepare lessons, mark student work, or just take a break from the strenuous classroom routine.

Negotiations have been continuing off and on for 15 months. A strike by the teachers became legally possible Oct. 16. But they have contented themselves with work-to-rule campaigns to speed up talks.

The province's 70,000 teachers went on strike late in 1966, but were forced back to work by Bill 25, a controversial law passed Feb. 17, 1967.

against $2.144 in the rest of Canada.

Management spokesmen say teacher demands regarding workload would mean hiring many more teachers and that each teacher costs the public an average of $6,500, not including fringe benefits and other costs.

The province, they say, does not have that kind of money.

THEY DISAGREE

For the teachers, the coin has another side.

Better working conditions and better opportunities for professional advancement will result in improved better classroom morale, and ultimately benefit the children, they say.

A major principle of the management offer, and one with which teachers agree, is equal pay for equal qualifications and experience.

Bill 25 cut short salary differences, especially in Roman Catholic school boards, between men and women and religious teachers. The new contract is expected to put an end to any remaining disparities.

But these improvements are putting even heavier demands on the public purse, already heavily taxed by education reforms.

Almost one-quarter of the provincial budget now is devoted to education.

The new junior college system, which provides two-year professional and technical training and pre-university courses, is costing $38,300,000 this year.

Capital grants to school boards are up $14,500,000 over last year and university grants have increased by $21,800,000.

ers were destroyed in the southern half of the DMZ.

Huong's resignation was submitted as a result of differences arising partly from the stalemate peace talks, the sources said. It was part of an over-all cabinet crisis which could result in Huong's return to office as head of a strong government or his departure from Thieu's regime.

Just what shift in the South Vietnamese boycott of the Paris talks was likely was not known, and government sources would make no official comment. But other sources close to the government said if a stronger cabinet emerged and the Thieu regime thus felt more secure, the president might not feel it so necessary that his delegation outrank that of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front at the Paris talks.

IDEAS DIFFER

Ernest Spiller, spokesman for the Protestant school boards, which, with the Roman Catholic school boards and the government, makes up the management side of the dispute, says teachers should, if anything, be

The government and the school boards are of the opinion that teachers in Quebec should work for less money than in other provinces because the province's per capita annual income is lower—$1,885 in 1966, as

Saigon may attend talks

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese Premier Tran Van Huong has submitted his resignation to President Nguyen Van Thieu amid some indication of a possible shift in South Vietnam's boycott of the Paris peace talks, authoritative sources said today.

(Reuters news agency, however, said a spokesman for Huong "strongly denied" the premier had given his resignation to Thieu.)

On the military front, the U.S. command accused North Vietnam of violating a mutual agreement to keep the demilitarized zone free of military activity and sent American bombers streaking over the zone to attack bunkers and ammunition stores. A spokesman said 34 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed and at least a dozen bunkers were destroyed in the southern half of the DMZ.

Huong's resignation was submitted as a result of differences arising partly from the stalemate peace talks, the sources said. It was part of an over-all cabinet crisis which could result in Huong's return to office as head of a strong government or his departure from Thieu's regime.

Just what shift in the South Vietnamese boycott of the Paris talks was likely was not known, and government sources would make no official comment. But other sources close to the government said if a stronger cabinet emerged and the Thieu regime thus felt more secure, the president might not feel it so necessary that his delegation outrank that of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front at the Paris talks.

They danced an underwater jig when they saw the booty

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP) — Three young treasure-seekers have recovered a large hoard of 17th and 18th century coins from the wreck of a British warship.

They danced an underwater jig after sighting the "nicest" pieces of eight they had ever seen.

Alex Storm of Louisbourg, leader of the group which recovered the coins last month, said in an interview Thursday no value could be placed on the coins, mainly American colonial and Dutch.

A Sydney, N.S., coin expert described the find as being of "extreme importance to the coin-collecting world."

The coins are being examined by experts at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington and at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

The most important coins appeared to be Dutch silver daalders, the currency used in the days of New Amsterdam, now New York.

The three-man team of divers are all 31 years of age. Mr. Storm works with the northern affairs department here. Adrian Richards is a Nova Scotia power company employee while Harvey MacLeod is an employee of the Cumberland Railway.

They discovered the 18th century wreck in September and recovered the coins in a one-week period in October.

It was the second major underwater discovery in this area in three years.

Mr. Storm, Mr. MacLeod and one other man discovered sunken treasure in September, 1965, aboard the wreck of the 18th century French payship Le Chameau just off Louisbourg.

The latest find was made in the wreck of the 36-gun British man-of-war Feversham, lost off nearby Scatari Island in a storm in 1733.

The Feversham was attached to the fleet of Admiral Sir Hovenden Walker. Three of Sir Hovenden's vessels were lost in the storm.

Th latest discovery was found about 10 miles east of the Le Chameau wreck, which yielded a treasure in gold and silver coins variously estimated at between $10,000 and $800,000. Ownership of that find has been the subject of prolonged court proceedings.

The group began the search off Scatari Island, which lies just off the Cape Breton east coast and about 12 miles east of here, after six-months' research in Sydney and in Ottawa by Mr. Storm.

Mr. Richards made the first discovery—a cannon. Later, more than 20 cannons were found and they led the group to the wreck of the Feversham.

"When we found the cannons," said Storm, "we had visions of treasure-laden galleons of pirate ships. We continued to swim along the boulder-strewn bottom and finally found several pieces of eight—the nicest I have ever seen or even hope to see. They were in perfect condition."

"We knew we had discovered something important. We performed an underwater jig on top of a clump of iron work. I'm sure the fish thought we had gone mad."

The first bag brought to the surface contained Dutch coins from New England and from the mints of South American countries.

Storm said he believed the find included the largest discovery of American colonial coins ever made. One was believed to be the first American coin ever minted with a present value of perhaps $5,000.

The dates on the coins recovered ranged from 1616 to 1704, and no two coins were the same.

Sydney coin expert Jack Stephens also refused to place a price on the find.

However, he said it was highly valuable.

"This particular find is of extreme importance to the coin-collecting world. There are coins of great rarity and such a varied and wide assortment that give us an exact picture of the type of coins used in the early American colonial days. There was more duplication of coins in the Chameau."

He said it would be almost impossible to place a value on the find because of the great assortment of coins.

"We want to keep them intact for a time," Mr. Stephens said in an interview. "We'd like someone like the Boston Museum of Fine Arts to review them."

John J. Ford of New York, a leading U.S. coin expert, arranged to send some of the coins to the Smithsonian Institute and others are at the Boston Museum.

Czechs debate

PRAGUE (CP) — The members of the Czechoslovak Communist party's central committee today debated party chief Alexander Dubcek's call for stronger Communist rule without a return to the Stalinism that prevailed before party liberals ousted Antonin Novotny.

Dubcek spelled out a diluted program for the Czechoslovaks in a major speech before the central committee Thursday night.

Hedge on policy for imports

OTTAWA (CP) — An uneasy Commons Thursday night greeted with critical restraint measures to bring about a general reduction in Canadian import duties.

A number of other countries are taking similar steps as a result of four years of international negotiations at Geneva, Switzerland.

Some 1,000 changes are contained in the 195-page set of resolutions introduced by Herb Gray (Windsor West), the parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Benson.

Mr. Gray was chairman of the Commons trade and finance committee that scrutinized the tariff reductions last winter.

Some of the new tariffs came into effect on a provisional basis last Jan. 1 and all are to be effective by Jan. 1, 1972. They generally reduce rates of duty by one-quarter to one-third.

Similar and even greater cuts are being made by other countries. A major Canadian trade mission currently is touring South America to develop markets there.

FOR HURT INDUSTRIES

Mr. Gray said there is "every reason to expect" that it won't be necessary to use any of the $10,000,000 authorized earlier this year for direct loans to industries hurt by the reductions that began Jan. 1.

"No one has made a case for assistance on the grounds of serious injury or the threat of serious injury as a result of Kennedy Round cuts," he said.

The Geneva Negotiations were known as the Kennedy Round, after the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy who initiated them at the General Agreement of Tariffs and Trade negotiations.

Mr. Gray said a "substantial number of applications" have been approved for technical aid or loan guarantees to modernize or expand Canadian production facilities.

Canada then granted free entry to some machinery at an estimated rate of $450,000,000 a year.

Mr. Gray said the program appears to be operating smoothly but Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) said the interpretations made by federal officials frustrated efforts to import duty-free farm machinery.

He also said he believes the tariff changes will be to the general benefit of Canada.

Opposition spokesmen J. Waldo Monteith (PC—Perth) and Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) welcomed the opportunities for greater trade but expressed some strong reservations.

Mr. Monteith noted the hesitant "rumbblings" being heard in the U.S. about tariff reductions there.

Mr. Saltzman said that the tariff reductions coupled with Finance Minister Benson's Oct. 22 budget are a "disaster."

He said free trade might stunt Canada's industrial growth and cause unemployment unless a "new national policy" is implemented.

The old national policy came in under Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, and involved a tariff structure aimed at encouraging domestic industrial growth.

OUTLINES IDEAS

Mr. Saltzman said the "new instruments" of a new national policy should be:

—A Canada Development Corp. to bring about home-owned industrial growth. Such a Crown-owned corporation was proposed when the Pearson administration took office in 1963 but Liberal enthusiasm for the idea had faded.

—A state trading agency to ensure no loss of overseas sales because of U.S. policy. Much Canadian industry is U.S.-controlled.

—Full employment policies "above all" to overcome a difficult adjustment to free trade.

"While we welcome the increased opportunity for reduction of tariffs around the world, we are very much aware of the other policies that must be concurrent with such liberalization of trade," Mr. Saltzman said.

"We intend to press for such policies."

Ray Perrault (L—Burnaby-Seymour) proposed a mission to study the possibilities of trade development in the Pacific.

Not shut out

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada has not shut out the possibility of increasing her NATO forces in Europe if the Russian attitude gets tougher, External Affairs Minister Sharp indicated today.

Meanwhile, he said, reaction among allies has been favorable to Canada's decision to defer a planned reduction in the size of the Canadian air division in West Germany as the result of the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Showdown vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops in the United States are facing a showdown vote on a birth control compromise that calls use of contraceptives a sin but says married couples who break the ban won't be cut off from the church.

The proposed bishops' statement also questions the worth of the war in Vietnam and urges draft exemptions for youths with a conscientious objection to a specific war.

Public enlightenment of liquor sales vital

The breaking of the liquor scandal in the Quebec region will cause little surprise among the residents of this province who have accepted the fact that something has smelled strongly in the liquor distribution set-up since the Quebec Liquor Board employees went on strike last June.

Despite the closing of all legal retail liquor outlets for more than four months nobody who seriously wanted a bottle of hard stuff had to look very far.

It was readily available in many quarters and at a price little above that charged by the legal outlets prior to the strike.

And a curious feature of the situation is that as the strike lengthened the premium charged diminished rather than increased indicating that the undercover vendors were finding it easy to replenish their stocks.

Furthermore the illicit traffic was so extensive that it must have had some unofficial blessing from high places, as most of the wares offered by the sellers bore the markings of the Quebec Liquor Board or a very good imitation thereof.

Premier Bertrand, as attorney-general, has announced that criminal action will be taken against certain individuals in the Quebec area incident.

But this does not go far enough.

With the provincial treasury losing millions of dollars monthly through the curtailment of Liquor Board sales it is his duty to inform the taxpayers, and soon, how the traffic reached such mass proportions without interference.

No ideals, no scandals

Scandals, real or imagined, appear an almost inevitable accompaniment of the Olympic Games and the current rumpus over the revelation that some United States athletes were paid by equipment manufacturers to use certain brands, the latter thereby secretly purchasing an endorsement the rules forbid them to buy openly, is a new case in point.

While the United States Olympic Committee has reproved some members of its own team for accepting kickbacks, a member of the International Amateur Athletic Federation has charged that "virtually every country in the Olympics is guilty of violations in the equipment scandal," with pay-offs running from $500 to $6,000 or perhaps higher.

The claim is made that it all started with the 1960 Olympics in Rome, but if the Greek historian Plutarch can be believed it started long before that.

Rather than entering the games for the sheer love of sports, as we like to believe, the ancient athletes fully expected to be rewarded by their home cities.

According to Plutarch, victors received from 100 to 500 drachmas under a schedule set up by Solon, the lawgiver. Even the smaller award was nearly as much as a year's earnings by a working man.

Greek athletes bearing gifts from the original Olympics, Olympics does not, of course, make any less reprehensible the behavior of modern athletes and equipment manufacturers, nor does the fierce jealousy that existed between ancient city states furnish any moral justification for the rivalry between nations today that threatens to turn the competitions into little more than bloodless wars for national glory.

Some have become disillusioned with the Olympics because they have so often fallen short of their ideals of pure amateurism, individual athletic achievement and international brotherhood.

Yet, if there were no ideals, there would be no scandals.

Pierre might have had it 'right up to here'

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Devotees of the Capital's favorite sport — indoor and outdoor alike — prime minister-watching, are wondering if he isn't already beginning to suspect he might have "had it right up to here."

He's been in power, the supreme power of the first parliamentary majority in six years and three governments, only some 100 days. And he's been sitting there in this newly-elected Commons of his less than nine so far rather uneventful weeks.

Could be that's the trouble — it just hasn't been exciting enough for a go-go guy who motor-biked into the Gobi Desert, canoed down the Coppermine, sports karate's Brown Belt, tramped around Red China and performed other feats of athletic and exploratory dering-do.

Because to those who daily watch, and in fascination study this glittering new style-setting prime minister, there are signs that appear suspiciously like boredom. Not always. Not even every day. But often enough, and seemingly clear enough, too — unless the prime minister-watcher are seeing things — to make some of them wonder. And worry just a bit, perhaps. Maybe it's the style of the man, his casual, airy, uncaring shrug, quick grin and wave-of-the-hand manner.

HEAD DOWN
Blend that easy informality and plain impatience to get cracking with his utter disregard, even often ill-concealed contempt for stodgy fussiness, and what have you got?

The all but unmistakable picture of a man who sometimes gives the impression of scarcely being able to stand for much of what passes in Parliament for the conduct of public business.

Parliament is slow, the process of debate and decision cumbersome, the machinery of legislation ponderously awkward.

There can be nothing instant about it.

Four hundred years of parliamentary tradition in Britain and 101 of them in Canada prevent any rush into action.

And Parliament hasn't been where the action is for Pierre Elliott Trudeau until just three years ago.

Entering it, he could have found it nothing but maddeningly slow, with the House of Commons almost by habit always doing things what must have seemed the hard way. So there he sits, even during the Daily Question Period — the peak of Parliament's day — with a bowed head, held as if in pain, in the cup of his hand.

Add 20 years to Pierre Trudeau's 49, grey his hair, and there would sit a double for former Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Bowed head in hand, slumped in disinterest, fed to the teeth with the steady droning diet of Opposition words.

And like dear old "Uncle Louie" who, for all his quiet courtesy, could be crusty, Pierre Trudeau burns in sudden flame-ups of irritation.

Biting his words off, he has told the Opposition to quit wasting time and has snapped that it had better prepare itself for its job.

And there was the surprising incident the other day when the Opposition was bugging him with repetitious questions about members of the cabinet not being in the Commons . . . he jumped up, turned his back, scooted up the aisle, ducked behind the lobby curtains and left Conservatives and New Democrats alike with their mouths open.

Finally, the crowning indignity.

When the prime minister's own spending estimates — worth a tidy $9,335,800 of the taxpayers' money — were before the House for examination, the prime minister wasn't there to answer the questions.

The Opposition wanted to know about the cost of his rapidly-expanding staff, even about his treasury-paid official household and entertainment expenses. Treasury Board President Bud Drury tried to answer, but lacking the details, could only flounder around in generalities.

"This is hopeless," protested NDP Whip Stanley Knowles. And it was. But so what? So the prime minister's estimates were passed with no questions answered.

Is it boredom? Impatience with old parliamentary traditions that a minister must answer for his spending? Or perhaps even a touch of don't-give-a-dammit?

There are those prime minister-watchers around here who say nothing but Pierre Elliott Trudeau can ever surprise them — not even if, as some seem to suspect he could, he were to chuck the whole thing and jet off to Tahiti.

French Canada says:

Policy fight isn't expected to come

Quebec Le Soleil—It seems evident that in talking about a revision of the Canadian constitution, one wants to insist on the distinct differences of our two fundamental cultures even if it is not the only aspect of the question. Canada is made up of 10 provinces and two territories but that is not 12 distinctions. Contrary to the United States, Canada has two languages and two cultures; and keeping this in mind, one cannot pretend that there are 12 Canadas, but two.

This fact brings to light the importance of these two entities being completely equal. For several years, we have seen Canadian politics bend toward the realization of this objective.

It also is possible, perhaps, to maintain that Canada will have a culture which will develop in two ways, bound with tradition, customs and all that is inherent in Canadian man.

It would not do to hatch only one stereotype Canadian who would be neither fish nor fowl.

The constitution cannot take into account or uphold constant or changing realities. Some realities will remain permanent, some will change. Moreover, a particular region would be determinant as to which characteristics one wished to give it.

It cannot be ruled merely by a stroke of a pen, whether it is a province, township or county. It identifies itself by its total behavior, its spontaneous attitudes, by proper analogies, by fixed laws and given changes.

One can then come to the conclusion (it is not the only one) that the sociological statistics of a country are the larger guidelines of constitutional options. . . . This is a point that committees, which have been established so far to study the possible constitutional options for the country, will certainly not fail to define . . . and to clarify.—A. Tremblay (Nov. 8)

Two published views Clergy debate requires study by most laymen

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

Charles Davis, a Roman Catholic priest in England who had achieved eminence as a theologian, left the Church in December 1966, and two months later he married. In his book, A Question of Conscience (Mason $6.60), published a little over a year ago, he explained why he left the Church. He came to Canada last year to join the faculty of the University of Alberta.

Father Gregory Baum, German-born but educated mainly in Canada, exercises his priesthood as a professor of theology in Toronto's St. Michael's College and as a very influential writer and editor. The Credibility of the Church Today (Macmillan $4.95) is the title of his most recent book which was published a few months ago. It has the subtitle, 'A Reply to all Churches today. He asks, "How far does the renewal render credible the existing social structures of the Church as an appropriate embodiment of Christian faith. "We are observing," he says, "the disintegration of the existing institutional Churches and the struggling emergence of new forces of Christian presence in the secular world of today."

Davis deals straightforwardly and un sentimentally with his marriage, and I can accept his declaration that the desire to marry was a very minor factor in his decision to leave the Church. He still considers himself a Christian, although he has not joined another Church. Baum brings his disagreement with Davis into focus in this way: "While I have much sympathy for the complaints Charles Davis raises against the Catholic Church and I agree with most of the descriptions he gives of the present state of affairs, I have a totally different interpretation of what is actually taking place in the Catholic Church."

His account of what is actually taking place is given in terms of the new directions which came out of the Second Vatican Council. (Baum may now be adjusting his perspectives a little, against the background of the recent encyclical on contraception.)

Father Baum is a clean fighter. (Not all theologians fight clean.) Unlike some of Davis' other critics, he doesn't drag in the marriage to try to put Davis in a bad light. He takes Davis seriously as a theologian.

Charles Davis' I am not presuming to referee the fight between ex-Father Davis and Father Baum. As a Protestant minister, I do not have a ringside seat — but from back here in the bleachers I can see enough of the fight to know that Christians of all Churches should be seriously concerned about this fight, for it delineates many of the basic issues which all Churches are going to have to face in the very near future.

Davis and Baum, apparently, had become good friends while serving together as theological consultants at the Second Vatican Council, where both were definitely in the progressive camp.

In his book Davis comments with some asperity on "the obsolete irrelevance of . . . Church institutions and practices," which, he says, tortures the more perceptive members of

"Behold, heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have built! (II Chronicles 6:18, RSV)

Three men plead not guilty in baseball bat assault case

Three men accused of beating a man and his wife with a baseball bat pleaded not guilty to various assault charges yesterday when they appeared before Judge Benoit Turmel in Court of Sessions.

The assault occurred at 2:15 a.m. Wednesday at the Lake Park Hotel in Deauville. Gilles Robert, 28, of Magog, Donald Burke, 30, of Sherbrooke, and Jocelyn Frappier chose a trial by judge and jury. The trial is slated for November 20.

Robert and Burke are accused of assaulting Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aury.

They pleaded not guilty. Burke is also accused of possessing an offensive weapon, the baseball bat.

He pleaded not guilty. Frappier was accused of complicity on the two assault charges and he pleaded not guilty.

Frappier asked for bail and said he merited it because he hasn't been in any trouble for a year and a half.

He said he is always in the house by 11 p.m. every day. Judge Turmel decided to wait until after Frappier's preliminary hearing before he grants bail or not.

Gerald Gobeil, 30, of Sherbrooke, who also travels under the aliases of Brilio Magnan and Gerald Sylvain, pleaded guilty yesterday to five charges of breaking and entering.

He will be sentenced November 15.

In late October and early November, Gobeil broke into schools in St. Gedeon, St. Ludger, St. Sebastien, St. Hilaire Dorset in Beauce County and in Welton.

He stole a total of over $400 from these schools.

Last week, Gobeil pleaded guilty to several charges of breaking and entering in other schools in the area.

Pierre Rouleau, 19, of Sherbrooke was sentenced to one month in jail yesterday after he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault.

He and another young man attacked Richard Beaudette in a public washroom.

The two assailants asked Mr. Beaudette for money and when he refused to give them any, they attacked him.

Four men pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of operating gambling houses.

This charge means they owned restaurants in which pinball machines or punch boards were found by members of the GPP.

All four men were fined $25 and their pinball machines or punch boards were confiscated. The four men are Jean-Guy Pauson, Gerard Menard, Fortunat Dion and Gerard Maurice.

Sidney Statton, 18, of R. R. 2 Sawyerville, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

He was fined $100 and court costs or 30 days in jail. His driver's licence was suspended for six months.

Yvan Gagne, 19, of Lennoxville, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty yesterday to a charge of breaking and entering with theft.

He broke into the Estrie Bowling Alleys at the Sherbrooke Shopping Centre and stole $450 worth of merchandise.

Judge Turmel is awaiting a report on the youth from the Social Welfare court officials. He scheduled the sentencing for November 21, allowing time for the report to be completed and studied.

Schooling criticized as irrelevant to life

Through history learned in school, Canadians have been kept two nations, and the slanted views of a shared past that they teach their children stand like walls between the two cultures. Mrs. H. E. Vautelet told the Women's Canadian Club of the ET last night.

Mrs. Vautelet has been connected with various organizations including membership in the postwar Economic Advisory Board of the Province of Quebec; the War Savings Certificate National Committee and is a past president of the provincial and national committees of the Consumer's Association of Canada. She played a founding role in the formation of the Montreal Children's library and the Montreal Social Service and Family Welfare, French speaking branch.

"Isn't it time we stopped using here and all over the civilized world our school histories as propaganda for our ancestors instead of a true chart of the seas of human error and safe landings they have sailed on?"

"Should not our schools be used to reduce or cure tomorrow's citizens of the perilous legacies such as intolerance and violence we still carry within us from our remotest past?"

Mrs. Vautelet said the chief function of education should be to train children how to manage and survive the environment left them by their parents.

"Do you really think that in our big city jungle world of muggings, rapes and general violence against women, courses in ballet are more valuable than a course in judo?"

She said there is a probability that Quebec separatists could turn into an angry Samson capable of pulling down the pillars of our Canadian house because no aspect of elementary and high school curriculum has even thought of preparing Canada's future citizens to understand and communicate with each other.

The speaker said today's world is full of challenge due to repeated failures to face in time the problems most clearly visible.

Mrs. Vautelet referred to the Second World War, "for which England and the US carefully armed Hitler," polluted air and water and Hiroshima — "An irresponsibility... just to win a little faster one more of the world's innumerable wars."

Said the speaker: "Despite real riches of our educational system, only we in the pride of our brains that discard instinct as a guide, seem to have decided that our young need only learn about the past, not from the past."

"We give them history as a long list of dates and battles and I have never met a child who has been taught to draw from the troubled past, guidelines for the perilous future."

Mrs. Vautelet said that she predicted several years ago that Rene Levesque would cause trouble.

"It is the sincere, honest, fanatical idealists that have caused the most trouble in the world."

She said education should aim at lifting tomorrow's men one rung higher with each generation up the ladder of civilization... where our repeated returns to the moralities of the jungle show how small is our progress."

Mrs. Vautelet suggested that teaching should be less and better cutting school hours in half and using available schools for twice the number of children.

"If we added to that a couple of hours to be spent in some library on reading of the child's choice, we might ease the protests of parents over shortening of their hours of parental freedom and release the child's imagination."

The speaker asked what schools have done to teach the children of labor forces the elementary economics of the cost to them of slowdowns, strikes, closed shops, less work for more pay.

"If our schools fail to teach the children of labor what they need to know to exercise their growing power over all our lives, sanely and responsibly, where do we think that they can learn it?"

She said her criticism was not of education at the college and university level but at the primary and high school levels.

Mrs. Vautelet said with every decade the principle of one man, one vote, throws more and more of the power of the vote into the hands of the masses least equipped to handle it with the least stake in the land.

"The untutored thousands in our slums... the economically untrained, yet organized masses of labor... the unprepared and uninformed many whose voices are rising like a tidal wave to submerge the prepared few who lead them."

Mrs. Vautelet said what schools give the average student who will go no further, is of very little help to him in handling the many problems of his world.

Taxi limit still 75

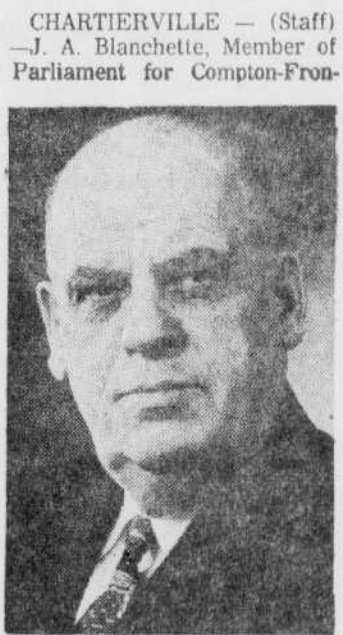

The city has decided not to increase the number of taxi permits in Sherbrooke.

City clerk Henri Paul Emond told the Record today that the decision was made, in closed session of council this week.

Sherbrooke now has 75 taxis and this number has not increased for a number of years. Six drivers approached council recently pointing out that the city could have a better service if the number of permits were increased.

Council's transportation committee made the decision after meeting with taxi car owners who told the committee that Sherbrooke's taxi service compares with other cities and that an increase was not necessary.

Veteran MP Blanchette, 75, dies

J. A. BLANCHETTE
MISS KAREN'S CORNER

CHARTIERVILLE — (Staff) — J. A. Blanchette, Member of Parliament for Compton-Frontenac.

He was 75.

Born at Acton Vale Aug. 7, 1893, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hormidas Blanchette, Joseph Adeodat Blanchette received his education at St. Charles Seminary, Sherbrooke, Academie LaSalle, Providence, R.I., and was graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree from Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

He served with the United States army during the First World War, returning to Canada after receiving an honorable discharge in August, 1919, and in 1920 was married to Lucienne Carpentier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Carpentier of Sherbrooke.

He established himself in Chateaufort where for many years he operated a general store.

First elected to the House of Commons in 1935 he served as MP for Compton-Frontenac for 23 years, being re-elected in 1940, 1945, 1949, 1953 and 1957. He was defeated in the Diefenbaker landslide of 1958.

While in Parliament he was parliamentary assistant to the minister of national defence from 1949 to 1956 and parliamentary assistant to the minister of labor from 1956 to the defeat of the Liberal Government in 1957.

He was a member of the Canadian delegation to the International Monetary Conference at Bretton Woods, N.H., in June, 1941, which resulted in the establishment of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

Mr. Blanchette also served as vice-chairman of the commons committee on veterans affairs and on the committee of Social security.

MISS KAREN'S CORNER

The truth about dentists and things

On PROGRAM 5 this coming week I am going to continue the idea that I started last week. This time I will talk about an operation for tonsils, and then I will take the class for a visit to the dentist. With my lessons about health care I will also include a talk about the proper foods to eat in order to keep good health and I will try to help you at home by telling the class about the magic in the very last drop of milk that is in the glass.

When the class listens to PROGRAM 5 you will notice that I do not promise the pupils anything that might not be true. I do not say that the dentist or the doctor will never hurt the patient. I simply keep reminding the class that what the doctor does is done only to make the child better.

On Tuesday I am going to tell the pupils that they should be brushing their teeth, and I will suggest that, if they do not have a toothbrush, they should ask Mommy for one. In fact, on Tuesday I will be using a song that mentions drinking milk, eating breakfast, washing, combing hair, and brushing teeth. The pupils should be ready to do these things for themselves, especially if they are already five years old.

On Monday I am going to ask the class to draw a Pushmi-pullyu, Dr. Doolittle's famous animal with a head at each end. On Tuesday they will be asked to draw a toothbrush. On Wednesday the class will be asked to draw themselves smiling to show their big white teeth, and Thursday's homework may be a little bit complicated, because I will ask them to draw a dentist's chair, and the nurse holding the little round dental mirror.

On Friday I will ask each child to look in a magazine that they can cut from. I want them to find pictures of things that we eat for breakfast. Then they can paste them in a scrapbook. If a proper scrapbook is not available, the pupil can use an old telephone book or a used-up scribbler that an older brother or sister is finished with.

I am still working on the names of the days of the week, and I will soon start the marking-off of the calendar pad, so it would be wise to have them ready.

I think that every child who sent in for a pencil has now received one. If I have overlooked anyone I am sorry.

Write to me again at PROGRAM 5, Bishop's University, and I will send one out.

Early in the new year I hope to have prepared some materials to mail out that will help my pupils learn about different shapes.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

LA FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
The Ladies Auxiliary of First Baptist Church held the regular meeting, Nov. 6, in the church hall with the president, Mrs. Norman Bradley in the chair.

Mrs. W. Spackman conducted the devotional period. Following the secretary's and treasurer's reports 23 sick visits were reported.

It was noted by the president that the rugs would be laid for Christmas Sunday During the business session final plans were made for the Christmas tea and food sale to be held Nov. 27.

It was decided to have a rummage sale, Nov. 20 starting at 7 p.m.

The next meeting will be on Nov. 20 with Mrs. N. Bradley in charge of devotions and Mrs. D. Knapp as hostess.

Following the benediction, the hostess, Mrs. G. Sunbury served refreshments.

YOUVILLE HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The Youville Hospital Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting in the medical room of the hospital recently, under the direction of the president, Mrs. J. Booth

The meeting opened with a silent prayer, followed by the roll call in which two new members were introduced.

The secretary, Mrs. G. Roy, read the minutes of the previous meeting, and Mrs. C. Bishop, in the absence of the treasurer, read the financial report. The committee heads each gave her report of activities. Due to the forthcoming elections to be held in December, a nominating committee was formed.

Personals

Pourers for the annual Trinity U.C.W. Christmas tea and bazaar to be held at Trinity United Church Hall, Court Street, Nov. 20, will be Mrs. J. G. Armitage, Mrs. Robert Dietz, Mrs. K. A. Burbank and Mrs. Blanche Hyatt.

Ski clothes for '69 will be more elaborate than ever, with a strong emphasis on practical togs for the slopes, and flares for the "apres-ski" life that makes our sport a way of life for many.

The season's latest styles were shown at the Mt. Orford Ski Centre Wednesday evening, when the Orford Ski Club sponsored a ski shop, organized by Boutique Orford and Setlakwe of Sherbrooke. Mario and Nancy Podoriesz were the commentators, Pierre Alain the M.C., and Henri Delorme, club president, assisted by Andre Charest did a tremendous job in explaining the club's role, especially their planned chalet now under construction.

Hurrah, snow is here again, and we're off to the slopes. At last check Thursday, we found Orford, Jay Peak, Glen Mt. all open, and hopes that others like Sutton, Echo and Bromont would possibly also start by the weekend.

A special notice from Jay Peak stated definitely that

SKIING in the Townships

By Charles Catchpaugh

they'll have their aerial tramway running by November 16.

Nap Cote Sports offers a ski clinic at the University of Sherbrooke November 26, 27 and 28.

It's one of those advance advice gatherings so many skiers need, which are usually attended by the advance skiers and ignored by the novice and intermediates who end the season looking for good advice. If you want advice, get it now!

The New Hampshire '68-'69 ski promotion campaign went into high gear early this year, and the results have been some of the most effective advertising gimmicks, broadsides and literature I've yet seen from the New England states. Among the best of their mailers, is a "ski wheel," which skiers can dial complete data on 30 resorts. Anyone wanting copies of these informative "ski wheels," may get them by writing to "Ski Wheel," P.O. Box 856, Concord, N.H., 03301.

Here are five more excellent safety tips from the Canadian Ski Patrol System that might help you or someone you know prevent a ski-accident:

When you come to an intersection on a ski hill, stop or at least slow down, before you proceed.

Watch where you are skiing.

If your mind is on your audience, it is not on the obstacles ahead of you.

Don't swing your ski poles wildly when skiing. You could injure someone very seriously.

Ski with the straps of your poles on your wrists. If you fall, the pole might fly out of your hand and injure someone.

If you treat your ski equipment properly, it will serve you well —

Keep boots in a press to prevent warping

Keep the metal edges of your skis sharpened

Make sure the baskets are attached firmly on your poles.

Before you jump that mogul, be certain of your landing area . . . that there are no other skiers in the way and that there is adequate snow on the other side.

If you are climbing a hill, limb to one side, never in the middle of the hill where another skier could hit you.

Again, in signing off this week, I want to thank you all for thinking about and hoping for snow, but it's not enough, we skiers better get together and keep on

PRAYING FOR SNOW!

Rebel. This year, it rides like something else.

Like it's had its front suspension improved. For softness.

Like it has new rear suspension geometry. For smoothness.

Like it has a new wider track. For stability.

Like it has new steering linkage. For handling.

Like it has a couple of sporty new relatives. You know the ones.

You owe it to yourself to see our sleeper, the '69 Rebel, at your nearest American Motors dealer soon.

It's rugged. It has a solid, single-unit body. It's roomier than any other car in its class. It comes in your choice of six different engines. And it comes lower priced than any other car in its class.

It might be a sleeper right now. But it's got all the equipment to come to the head of the pack.

the sleeper.

It may be the last car you look at. It could be the first car you buy.

See Ambassador, Rebel, Rambler, Javelin and AMX at these

Hard work, their secret

"It was Prisoner of War Camp 59," said Mr. Zwierzchowski, "I mention this because if anyone from the camp reads the article, I would like them to get in touch with me."

The camp was situated in Servigliano, near Ascoli Piceno, (central Italy). In the meantime, Mrs. Zwierzchowski was evacuated from Milan and with her mother, and younger sister and brother came to Servigliano.

The young Polish soldier spent nine months sheltered by Mrs. Zwierzchowski's family. At the time she was working at a civic office in the town and managed to get him papers so that he could move about freely as an Italian citizen.

And then the Fascists found out and the couple had to flee from the town. They spent a year on the run in the Italian mountains until they managed to get into allied territory.

Mr. Zwierzchowski then joined the Polish forces and was with them until the end of the war.

During 1944 he worked as an interpreter with the military corps. At the end of the war, Mr. Zwierzchowski went to England.

One of Mr. Zwierzchowski's biggest peeves today is with regard to the regulations of Dress Manufacturers Commission which does not permit him to work after 6.30 p.m.

"If a person wants to work to improve his business, he should be allowed to."

"Find me someone who can progress in his business" if he has to close down at 4.30 p.m.

"There are so many people on the street drunk in the daytime, and yet a guy like me wants to work... I have no right to work after 6.30 p.m."

Then at the close of the interview, Mr. Zwierzchowski thoughtfully looked around at the piles and piles of material, the humming machines and their busy operators.

"It is getting too bulky in here. We definitely need to expand."

Allegro Unit holds Christmas tea, sale amid seasonal decorations

STANSTEAD — The Christmas season was ushered in on Nov. 2, when the Allegro Unit of Centenary United Church held a sale and tea in their church hall.

The hall was beautifully decorated in Christmas theme. The large number attending were welcomed by the Unit Leader, Mrs. Patrick Deslandes. Miss Gertrude Ketcham sold the admission tickets.

Sales tables included the aprons booth, the Wee shoppe with all articles priced at a dollar or under, the Tiny Tot's, home made foods and the garden tables, as well as the popular Christmas decorations table.

The tea table was attractive with a center of red roses and Christmas decor, flanked by Mrs. Howard Wells, Mrs. W. H. Rudd, Mrs. Eva Hibbard, Miss Arlene Probyn and Mrs. Malcolm Morrison.

The tea table was attractive with a center of red roses and Christmas decor, flanked by Mrs. Howard Wells, Mrs. W. H. Rudd, Mrs. Eva Hibbard, Miss Arlene Probyn and Mrs. Malcolm Morrison.

The small tables were centered with a unique decoration, made from sprigs of branches, sprayed with silver or gold and tipped with popcorn in colors.

The kitchen details were in charge of members of the Unit and others. They were assisted by teenagers of the church.

Little helpers entertained

STANSTEAD — The parish hall of Christ Church, Stanstead, was the scene of a delightful event Oct. 25 when 16 little folk, several accompanied by their mothers, were entertained at the annual Little Helpers party by the ACW Family Life Secretary, Mrs. Leo Perrault.

The little ones had fun playing games, each receiving balloons and a box of animal cookies.

Prior to this, all assembled in the church where a short service was conducted by Rev. R. W. Peirce. The little ones sang, Jesus Loves Me. Brenda Perrault took up the offering, which totaled the children's gift to $9.40, to be sent to the Diocesan Family Life Secretary.

For refreshments, the wee ones were seated in small chairs at their tables, where the decor was carried out in Hallow'en motif. Tea was served the adults by Mrs. Perrault.

Executive of makes plans Home and School

COOKSHIRE — The A.B.C. Home and School Association executive met in the library of the High School, with Mr. E. Schmidt in the chair.

Plans were made to have the next regular meeting of the association Nov. 14, when Mrs. K. Dowd, will be guest speaker. She will speak on grading in the elementary schools.

Mr. Garneau, the school principal, stated that there would be many changes taking place in the schools, which he thought would be for the betterment of the pupils. Mrs. Dowd will explain a number of innovations.

Mr. Moore stated that the nominating committee was working on a nominee for president.

The principal explained that periodical tests were being given to the pupils and that the results of these, along with the regular exams, would count towards the pupils' marks at the end of the year. It was thought that this would eliminate cramming at the end of the year.

It was stated that parents should have the right to have their children instructed in the language of their choice, French

DANVILLE

A Hallow'en Party was enjoyed by the First Danville Brownie Pack on Oct. 28 in place of their regular meeting.

All the Brownies arrived in costumes and were greeted by Brown Owl in a Clown suit and Tawny Owl, dressed as a little old lady.

Games were enjoyed as well as a scary ghost story by Tawny Owl, after which the Brownies enjoyed the refreshments provided by the leaders, Mrs. Ken Frost and Mrs. Gordon Statton.

Richmond

Friends of Mrs. Edward Ward, Cleveport Avenue, will be pleased to hear that she has returned from the Sherbrooke Hospital, after being a surgical patient there for three weeks.

Elders can now swing with teenage jet set

Air Canada has extended its 50 per cent discount on normal economy fares, formerly available only to Swing Air Club (12 to 22 years), to senior citizens travelling in Canada, according to Canadian Travel Courier.

The new program is valid for people 65 and over any day of the year on a space-available basis if they hold a $3 identity card obtained from Air Canada on submission of proof of age. Like the Swing Air Club, the half-fare travel applies only to travelling in Canada, according to Canadian Travel Courier. The oldsters must take equal chances in the line-up with the youngsters and must be able to get on and off the plane under their own steam.

New York theatre? Follow the natives

In New York City, how do you dress, have dinner and get to the theater on time — without a nervous breakdown? Try copying the natives, advises the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau. New Yorkers may rush around madly during the day, but the savvy ones have a set of unwritten rules for avoiding the panic button at night. Here are some of them:

ways tell your waiter what time the curtain rises, and he will "get you to the show on time." New York City restaurants are old hands at rapid service, and many of them—especially those in the theater district—offer "theater specials."

Several restaurants on the East Side actually provide transportation. For example, The Cattleman will pack you off to your theater in their private stagecoach, and Sardi's East will deliver you in their authentic English bus.

Rule 2: If you're the type who needs plenty of time at the dinner table, perhaps you'll prefer to eat lightly before the show and have your big meal later. After-theater dining has become so popular in Manhattan that restaurants all over town are offering special supper menus.

Rule 3: Make your theater reservations by mail as far in advance as possible. In this way, you will have a wider choice of dates and seat locations. This rule also applies to sporting events at Yankee or Shea Stadium, or the new Madison Square Garden Center.

Rule 4: Discover Off-Broadway and its early and late shows. Such hits as "Your Own Thing" and "Tom Paine" offer two Saturday evening performances, and on Sundays there are shows at 3 p.m. as well as in the evening. Reservations, which are accepted over the phone, are always wise.

UK BY RAIL — A British Rail diesel car passes through typical North of England countryside near Keswick in the heart of the Lake District, a favorite holiday and tourist area.

British Railway jokes aside, a good way to see the isles

Not so long ago, travelling was a pastime for the wealthy; now it is within the means of great numbers of people. Undoubtedly the travel habit has caught on, and it will grow. Each year more people travel further, and this brings immense opportunity and challenge to railways.

Last year Britain catered for more than 3,450,000 visitors from overseas, by far the greater number being tourists who wanted to see as much of the country as possible, quickly, comfortably and at reasonable cost. British Rail services help them to do this.

First in choice of popularity with visitors are the large cities, not only for their particular interest, but as convenient centres for further travel, and fast train services — the "Inter-City" trains — link these up all over the country.

PLACES OF INTEREST
Next come places of historic or literary interest such as Chester, Hereford, Plymouth, Stratford-upon-Avon. They are followed by smaller towns famous for beauty of scenery or for their ancient and attractive buildings, and coupled with all these are the many seaside resorts where visitors, after their sightseeing tours, relax for a short time before journeying home.

British Rail services not only cater for all these tastes but make travelling so pleasant that it becomes part of the holiday itself and not just a means to an end.

The inter-city trains are the "crack" trains of Britain both for speed and for comfort, and cities are linked up several times a day by the services provided. From London, Edinburgh, 393 miles away, can be reached in under six hours; York to London, 188 miles, takes three hours; Glasgow to London, more than 400 miles, can be covered in six-and-three-quarter hours; London to Plymouth takes four hours and to Bristol, Gateway to the West, under two hours.

Of special interest to passengers travelling by sea from the Far East is the journey from Liverpool to London. It takes a mere two hours 40 minutes and passes through the heart of England. By night, inter-city sleeper-comfort lulls the passenger to sleep to awaken refreshed in the morning ready for further travels or sightseeing tours.

There are other excellent services all over the system apart from the inter-city trains. They stop at intermediate stations and are therefore invaluable for local journeys. All have reasonable standard of comfort.

Sleeper berths can be booked in advance and seats can be reserved on principal trains.

CATERING FACILITIES
British Rail Catering looks after food requirements. Passengers waiting at larger stations can refresh themselves at refreshment rooms or buffets provided for their use.

The majority of long-distance day trains are equipped with restaurant car services which provide meals — breakfast, lunch, tea or dinner as the case may be. On many other journeys buffet cars offering snacks and cold meals are used, and on a few trains there are griddle cars which provide hot, light meals cooked to order.

Passengers travelling on ordinary trains where restaurant cars are not in operation can get packed lunches from any station refreshment room. These are called "Buffet Packs", and are made up on the spot and to individual requirements. For passengers travelling in parties of 16 or more "Tray Meals" can be obtained. Such meals are more elaborate than the Buffet Pack and must be ordered in advance.

Since cost is of vital importance to tourists British Rail issue a large range of economy tickets, particularly during the holiday season — early April to the end of October. Within the bounds of their availability, they carry considerable reductions.

RAILROVER TICKETS
Among the most advantageous are the Railrover tickets. There are three varieties — the All-Line Railrover with an availability of seven of 14 days Area Railrovers available for seven days and Runabout Rovers also available for seven days.

The All-Line Railrover is self-explanatory — it covers the whole system of British Rail, from Cornwall in the extreme south of England to the north of Scotland and from the east coast to the farthest west. The Area Railrovers cover wide areas — for instance, the Northern Railrover covers north-east England, crosses the Pennines and the Lake District and goes on to the west coast.

The "Freedom of Wales Ticket" gives unlimited travel in Wales, including the beautiful narrow-gauge line from Aberystwyth to Devil's Bridge where the only steam locomotives operated by British Rail for public use now function.

The "Freedom of Scotland Ticket" is like the All-Line Railrover in that it can be had for seven or 14 days' use.

Music on Records

By Elisabeth Gustafson

CHOPIN: The Four Scherzos; Prelude, Op. 45; Barcarolle, Op. 60. Vladimir Ashkenazy, pianist. London stereo CS-6562.

Again, London Records presents Vladimir Ashkenazy pianist, and Ashkenazy presents Chopin. An occasion for gratitude. Ashkenazy continues his way on discs through the works of Chopin, and few artists have a more legitimate right. Of the younger generation he is the Chopin player par excellence.

He has technique to spare; but then so have most of the younger professional pianists before the public today. What makes Ashkenazy outstanding is his whole-hearted implication in the school of playing which believes that the piano is a lyrical instrument; that non-percussive tone is essential; that emotion and passion are not hostile to the intellect. The school has almost gone out of existence — and with it, authentic Chopin playing.

For once, the popular third Scherzo is played presto con fuoco; the inner colorings of the fourth are present. And so on, through all the virile sensitivity of these Chopin pieces. Here is music of genius in the hands of a musician.

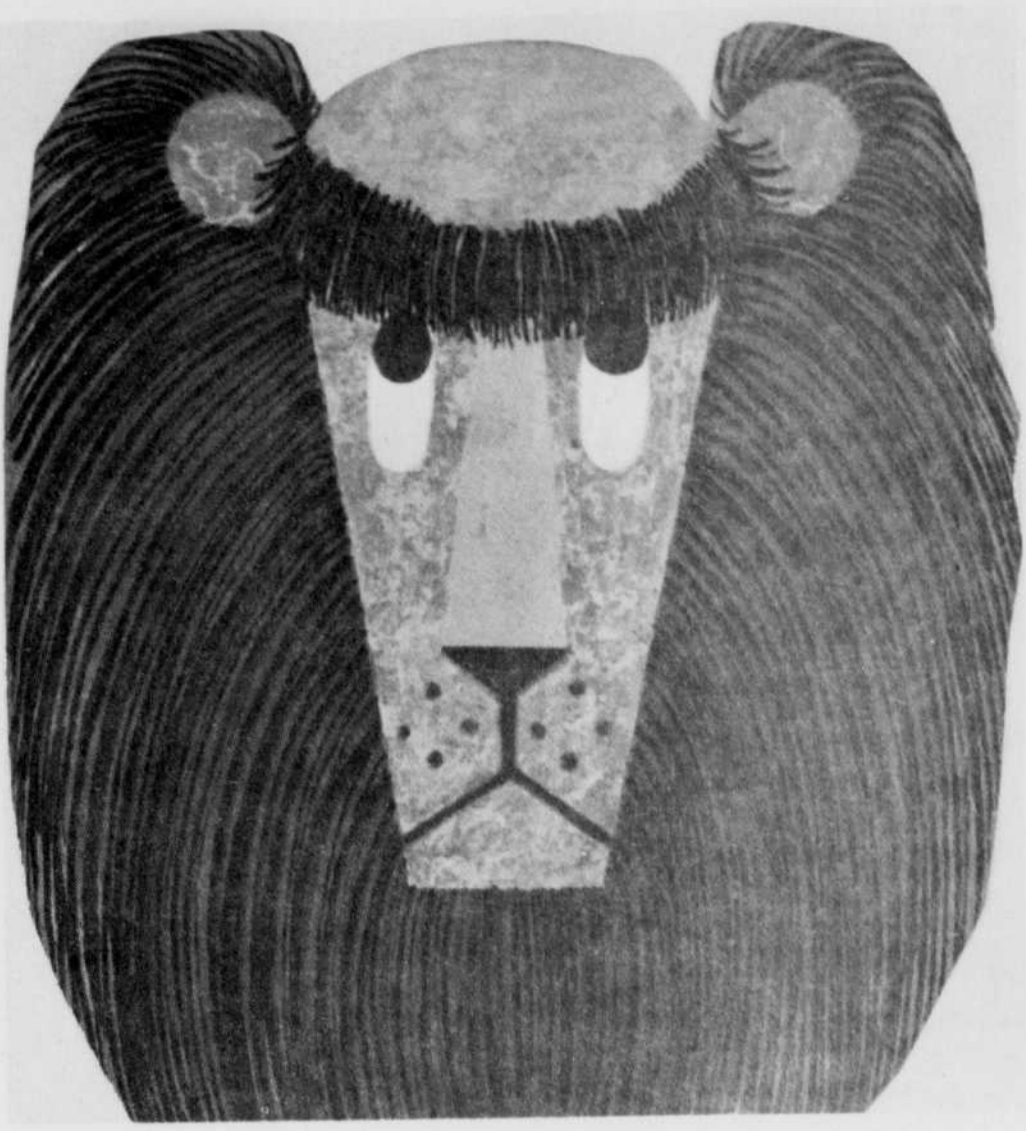

MacMILLAN: String Quartet in C minor; Two Sketches on French Canadian Airs, 1. Notre Seigneur en pauvre, 2. A Saint-Malo. Deutsche Grammophon Stereo 139900.

Deutsche Grammophon Records has done us a service in putting out a record of the music of the Dean of Canadian Music, Sir Ernest MacMillan. To have a company of stature turn its attention to our composers may shift the keel a little of those of us Canadians who skip as of little interest native music when it is presented by ourselves. Some of us still have to have the stamp of some extramural authority to be convinced that native art is worthy of attention. This attitude is foolish; but it still persists. May this record jolt these dolts.

The quartet by Sir Ernest MacMillan are presented in conventional in structure and familiar in mode. It was composed during and shortly after the First World War and skips atonality and serialism. But it makes for no less impressive listening for all of that. The Quartet is of great vigor and assertion. The third movement lento ma non troppo, has a long, melodic, contemplative line — a pastoral, a fresco, effect, suggestive, at times, of the music of Delius, but substantive and without the impressionism of Delius' music. The Amadeus group plays this Quartet with affinity and care. It is good to be able to add this Quartet to one's library. Equally welcome are the two Sketches based on French Canadian legends, Notre Seigneur en pauvre, and the second Sketch, a transposition of the popular Quebec song of the ships out of Saint-Malo who arrive dock-side and unload their cargoes for the hard-headed Quebecois to bargain over. Sir Ernest MacMillan's music equally arrives happily home.

the week of Books

Jottings
BY BLUEBELL PHILLIPS

Did you ever take a really hard, thoughtful look at children, a look divorced from them as yours, seeing each as an entity complete, self-absorbed?

Before a child can speak, he dances, before he can talk, he makes up tunes; almost as soon as language is familiar to him, he makes up rhymes. Oh, the words often have no meaning, but they delight him. "Hug, kug, bug, scrag, wug, zug," he'll say over and over, laughing at the sound, enjoying the sound.

The natural creative senses at work, creative senses that are usually lost in the business of growing up, going to school, learning that life is real, life is earnest and that in the hard, hard world the grave is all too often the goal — wanted or not. Some fortunate few carry with them to the grave that early joyful imaginative absorption — the self only a small part of it. They are the ones whose parents and teachers have not snatched away the lovely dreaming or they are the ones who have clung to dreams in spite of everything.

Usually they are readers. Movies and television are fine, an essential part of the child's modern world, enlarging his horizons. But limiting them too, for what is seen on the screen is someone else's imagination at work, not the child's. Canned or frozen food for thought. Lost in a book — fun, adventure, romance, fact — the child makes his own exciting background, gives his characters faces, clothes them. He dances, sings, makes up rhymes beyond his actual knowledge. He is joyfully, imaginatively absorbed.

And so book week for children, and on this page an indication of the wide choice of books available to keep your young alive in the wonderful world of make-believe even when fact is the street along which feet run.

The coin • • • • •

The Royal Mint has released a pocket wallet containing five denominations of Britain's first decimal coins. The 5 New Pence and 10 New Pence, dated 1968 and described in an earlier column, are the same size, weight and metal as shillings and florins and are interchangeable with them.

The three bronze coins, 1/2 New Penny, 1 New Penny and 2 New Pence are dated 1971, and will not become legal tender until Decimal Day which will be Monday, February 15th, 1971. On this day — D Day — the United Kingdom will officially change to decimal currency and the pound sterling (£) will be divided into 100 new pence.

The reverse designs of the new coins are by Mr. Christopher Ironside. Their heraldic inscriptions include on the 1/2 Penny the Royal Crown, the penny a Portcullis with chains royally crowned, originally a badge of King Henry VII, but for long registers, office machines, and closely associated with the Palace of Westminster; and on the 2 Pence the badge of the Prince of Wales. Three ostrich feathers enfiling a coronet of crosses pattee and fleurs de lys, with the motto "Ich Dien". The obverse of all denominations by Mr. Arnold Machin, O.B.E., shows the Queen wearing a diamond tiara, a wedding present from Queen Mary. This portrait is also used on the coins of Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Still to be released is the 50 New Pence. It will replace the 10 shilling note — sometime before D Day. The present half-penny will cease to be legal tender August 1, 1969, the half-crown on January 1st, 1970, and the penny, threepenny bit and sixpence after the changeover period. The changeover period will last for several months after D Day; except on cheques, both currencies will be in use and £ p will gradually replace £ s d in shops and offices as cash registers, office machines, and slot machines are converted or replaced.

Ivor Whitehouse Collecting

in the Townships

Interest in stamp collecting must be increasing in the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville area if attendance at the St. Francis Stamp Club meeting can be used as a gauge.

The meeting was under the capable direction of President, W. E. Passey and a number of business matters were settled. The financial report of the recent stamp exhibition showed that a profit was made and that the total attendance was excellent. It would appear that the business part of the meetings will have to be cut down if the executive wishes to keep the attendance above the 25 to 30 mark. The meetings usually start at about eight o'clock and an hour should see the business transacted and the special event for the evening finished, this would leave about an hour for the members to exchange stamps and stamp information.

The exchange of stamps at the meetings could become a most important part of the proceedings, nearly every collector has some duplicates and these should not include the more common foreign, Canadian or American stamps, although American stamps are issued in such large numbers that, if properly mounted, they could be traded.

It is a pleasure to see both French and English speaking members comparing collections and stamps — and it is hoped that this spirit of friendship will continue to grow. The next meeting of the Club will be on Thursday, November 21, in the Upper Room of St. George's Parish Hall in Lennoxville. You are cordially invited to attend and are assured of a warm welcome from the members.

Yule time is great for books

From three publishers, the book editor has sent the following books for capsule reviews as they may interest those who have teenagers who like books as Christmas gifts. From Harcourt, Brace and World Inc., N.Y.:

OLUDE, THE HUNTER AND OTHER TALES FROM NIGERIA (153 pages, $4.50) is a collection of Nigerian folk tales gathered by Harold Courlander with Ezekial A. Eshughavi. There is an Aesop's Fable charm to them and each typifies a defect, a virtue, a defeat, a victory and often ends with a little homily: 'Beauty is only worn; it is not the same as character.' Interesting, well-written and informative.

A TIME BEYOND US edited by Myra Livingston (280 pages, $6.95) brings to the young poetry lover's attention a great variety of poets — Yeats, Alexander Ruskin, Houseman, Robert Frost, Dylan Thomas — American, English, Irish, Welsh, Russian, French, Japanese, Chinese — (no Canadians or Scots!) and some of the poems, Russian and Chinese for example, are written in both English and the native script and language.

Teenagers who like science fiction will find Andre Norton's

DARK PIPER (249 pages $5.25) an action-packed yarn involving 10 young friends who find themselves the only human inhabitants of Beltane, a planet designed for biological research the other inhabitants being mutants. I found it a moral but not a moralizing story, exciting and believable.

John Freissart is a lively bit of ancient history for anyone who enjoys the age of chivalry when courage was profoundly individual and not necessarily dependent upon being the victor — though that was important too. A fine book.

From the John Day Company N.Y. WHO WROTE THE CLASSICS, Vol. II, (319 pages, $6.95) by Nora Sterling, covers the lives of Sir Walter Scott, Herman Melville, George Eliot, Thomas Hardy, Henry James, George Bernard Shaw, Joseph Conrad, Edith Wharton and Stephen Crane. Easy reading for students and others who like to know about their favorite authors. Miss Sterling has perspicacity and a light hand in writing the biographies.

I, JOHN FROISSART (Longmans; 158 pages, $4.95) is a collection of stories taken from the original Froissart's Chronicles translated from the French into English at the command of Henry VIII. Now Mr. Grant has written the tales in his own style, not losing the flavor but making them more agreeable to modern youth. I, admire work — Michael Chortyk, art director, left, and W. H. Meeker, president of Coult's Hallmark Cards, study the works of Canadian Secondary School art students who participated in the annual Hallmark Art Scholarship competition. These were on exhibit at the annual assembly of the Canadian Society for Education Through Art in Winnipeg, late last month.

From the pens of E. T. writers

"ODE TO ROBERT KENNEDY"

We sing this praise to you, Senator,
Fighting for this land near civil war,
The people of this country don't know what's going on
But I can tell you Robert, Some always will be wrong.

They walked up to you, and they wanted to see
What you were going to do for their land of liberty.
They touched you, they cried, they knelt and they prayed,
And now you've gone, Robert, but their love for you stayed.

A man took your life for some unknown cause
And till the day I join you I'll never know what was
The reason for his action, the truth behind the facts,
Whether for his country, the whites or the blacks.

Now one more day has come and gone
No more you'll see the light of dawn,
For you made the friendless man your friend
And his devotion to you shall know no end.

And to this day we'll kneel and pray
And ask that peace be on its way.
For this was your life, the reason why
In the hearts of your people, you'll never die.

GRANT WOOD
Lennoxville High School

There is a variety of reading

THE HUNKENDUNKERS by Richard R. Livingston and Harriet Pincus. Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc., N.Y. $3.95.

A delightful story with delightful illustrations. How does a man get him a wife? At the Wife Store. Children? At the Child Store. But not everything can be bought there. Not the right names. Oh dear, no. Stores don't solve every problem as Paul Hunkendunker and his wife Frizonia find out. They have a marvelous time solving name problems and house problems and all kinds of other problems. So will the reader and the read-to.

FELIX, THE BALD-HEADED LION written and illustrated by Kenneth Townsend. Longmans, $3.50.

Everybody loves a lion but a bald-headed lion is a figure of fun. Felix was but he won't be to young readers who will love him and be glad he has a 'happy ending.'

THE JOKING MAN by James Flora. Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc., N.Y. $3.95.

A mystery for youngsters in grades three and four though younger children will enjoy it, too, for 'I' from the team of Charlie and I — tells the story of how their grumpy town is made lively by the joking man whom nobody ever sees. Charlie and I know who he is and if the reader can't guess — will tell. But only at the very end so don't look at the back page first.

TOBIAS, THE MAGIC MOUSE by Jacob Bech Nygaard, illustrated by Ib Spang Aiken. Translated from the Danish by Edith Joan McCormick.

Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc. N.Y. $4.25.

A long novel about the adventures of Tobias who gets mixed up with all kinds of human and animal creatures and carries the reader along with him on his escapades.

For older young readers with imagination and a sense of humor.

A IS FOR ALWAYS by Joan Anglund. Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc., $2.50.

This simple little book, prettily illustrated, comes in a "keeping" cardboard cover. Each letter of the alphabet stands for a worthwhile human quality. Different from A is for apple. Better.

MARIA POPPINA by P. L. Travers, translated into Latin by G. M. Lyne illustrated with the same illustrations used in the original English version by Mary Shepherd. Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc. $4.25.

Youngsters who are studying Latin will find Maria Poppina a bright relief from 'Caesar' tossed his legions into the Tiber' or whatever.

THE NIGHT THEY STOLE THE ALPHABET by Sesyle Jaskin illustrated by Enrico Arno. Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc. $4.75.

What would any little girl do if robbers stole the alphabet from her bedroom wallpaper? Just what Victoria did, of course. Go after her stolen property and have a lot of exciting adventures doing so.

DINOSAURS AND THEIR WORLD by Laurence Threlkoff. Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc. $4.25.

Every young child knows that dinosaurs are. Mr. Pringle's book will interest those who can read. Factually but simply and interestingly written and well illustrated with photographs, the book covers everything from where and what and when to how bones are reconstructed for museums and where in the US and Ontario such museums can be found.

A good variety of books from which to choose.

GORDON LIGHTFOOT: Halfway to a horizon

Lightfoot evokes a love-hate relationship

Being a Gordon Lightfoot fan is like becoming involved in a love-hate relationship. As a songwriter he shows flashes of pure genius at times then comes up with material that resembles the junkiest of tin pan alley rejects. As a performer he can communicate a moving musical experience then go flat like stale soda water an hour later. As a personality he gives you everything and he gives you nothing.

At his concert in the Centennial Theatre last weekend, the paradox of Lightfoot manifested itself in the first person. The scene could hardly have been better set by a hungry impresario.

The word of his coming had been out since last April. There was hardly any publicity, but who needed it—everyone knew Lightfoot would be there on the appointed date. When the tickets went on sale a week before the concert, the lineup started forming four hours before the box office was scheduled to open—a rare scene at Bishop's where students usually make a point of avoiding concerts which have been arranged with great difficulty and expense.

In any case, the house was sold out within two hours and when the big night finally arrived, a packed house was there waiting to see if the Lightfoot legend was for real.

For the first half and a while in the second it was very real. He sang most of the songs which had made him a byword in folk circle sboth in Canada and the United States. Long River, Ribbon of Darkness, I'm Not Saying and The Canadian Railroad Trilogy. Here he was in his own preserve and the Lightfoot touch stood out definite and pleasing.

Here is Lightfoot the authentic artist; Lightfoot the master of the North American idiom; Lightfoot the rural poet of a Canada too few of us have seen or cared about; Lightfoot the sensitive man who translates what he sees and feels into a meaningful musical experience. The latter aspect of Lightfoot is brought out by The Old Man Who Came Home from the Forest, a tragic fantasy which was perhaps his best number of the night.

He wrote the song after seeing a drunk in New York sleeping in the rain under a newspaper. Unfortunately such scenes are an all too common part of today's urban life, but under Lightfoot's sensitive treatment the old drunk became a soldier who has given his best years to the pursuit of war then returns to find that the world he left behind as a young man has disappeared in his absence.

Then there is Lightfoot the social critic who stands out starkly in his incisive Black Day in July, a song which probes somewhat indelicately for some of the answers behind the Detroit Riots of two summer ago.

And in the governor's mansion,

Chances are dim, but Bishop's might join UGEQ

At a time when all hope seemed to have faded, a segment of the student body at Bishop's University began voicing the opinion that maybe they should establish some means of contact with the rest of the students in the province, and become a part of the educational revolution in Quebec.

The renewed spirit manifested itself in recent weeks in a fresh movement to push, pull, persuade or entice Bishop's to join the Union Generale des Etudiants de Quebec.

UGEQ — The very mention of the organization makes the traditionalists wince. For the bureaucrats in the education department it conjures up visions of occupied schools, thousands of students on the march, educational anarchy, anti-federalism and rampant Marxism.

UGEQ is basically a radical movement with more than a slight leaning toward the left, but its radicalism is constructive and its resources have been mobilized for the purpose of improving the system of education in the province, and the improvement of the student's position in society. Its leaders are super activists. They want things done and they do not beat around the bush. They are not prepared to let the government fumble its way to a solution if they see one themselves, and in the process they have invaded a few establishment pastures and trampled some sacred cows.

Unfortunately such activities do not sit well with those who have let the post-secondary educational structure deteriorate to its present chaotic state; hence the battle is joined.

On the shores of the Massawippi though, where Bishop's proudly stands, things are still quiet and serene.

Everybody still goes to the football games; the girls still curl their hair for Saturday dates and the boys still paint the frat house in the fall.

Students still go to lectures and don't ask questions, they wear their gowns to the dining hall, and politics belong in Ottawa. Quebec is some distant world beyond Lennoxville, and since it is filled mostly by people who speak French, it doesn't really matter to them. Student politics will revolve around the annual elections and how much money to give to the fic soc. As long as there are enough comfortable chairs in the common rooms and women in the men's residence between the specified hours, what else is there to protest about.

The administration is good to the students too. They let them entertain the illusion that they are in complete control of discipline on campus, but it is still the principal who has the last word. Students are also allowed to sit on several university committees to lull them into believing they have a hand in the running of the institution. But in the midst of all this serenity, there is a handful of activist agitators (some of them have been in Montreal to talk with the anarchists there) who have the notion that tokenism is not enough. They want to make a concrete contribution to what is happening in education and they are convinced the answer can't be found in the frat houses.

These are the students who want to join UGEQ. They are the ones who want to start a dialogue with students at other universities in other parts of the province. They are the students who want to communicate and to contribute.

They want to get away from the paternalism and the Westmount ethnic which prevails at Bishop's. They refuse to tacitly accept the spoon-feeding of traditionalist values to which they can no longer relate themselves.

They want to create a new order instead of being inculcated into a crumbling one which is desperately clinging to its outmoded ideals and corporate structures.

The ideal of UGEQ is progress. Unfortunately most of the people at Bishop's are uninterested in progress since they are too familiar, too comfortable within the confines of paternalism, and the rarified atmosphere of radical change leaves them bewildered.

Under these conditions, the pro-UGEQ bandwagon at Bishop's is destined for a halt before it gets properly started.

But, if through some quirk of fate the majority of the Students Association loses its head long enough to vote for UGEQ membership, it remains doubtful that the university as a whole can contribute anything significant to the organization.

HIGH Times

By MARGUERITE SMITH

IT'S BEEN HOPPING at Sawyerville High reports High Times correspondent Ian McBurney. Winners of the public speaking contest, recently held at the school, are Marlene Ward of Sawyerville in the junior section and Leona Hodge of Bury in the senior section. The Sawyerville Juniors and Bury Seniors took the cups at the boys' volleyball tournament held at the school. Teams attending were from Thetford, Cookshire, Bury and Sawyerville.

AT AYER'S CLIFF HIGH A record hop was held Nov. 1, sponsored by the Sports Council. A Halloween party was sponsored by the Students Council for pre-schoolers and Grades 1 to 5 reports High Times correspondent Cheryl Davidson.

THE BIG NEWS this week is the Quebec High Schools' Students' Council Conference for 1968 which Noranda High School is hosting today and Saturday. High Timers from the ET along with students from the Gaspé Peninsula, Ottawa Valley, Montreal, Quebec City and from as far away as Matagami are expected to attend this conference which will be officially opened by John G. Diefenbaker, MP. In all there are probably delegates from about 50 Protestant high schools now participating in conference activities. Among those attending from the ET are Michael Davidson and Cheryl Davidson, Grade 11 students at Ayer's Cliff High. Conference activities got off to a start this morning when Marcel Vesque, president of the Noranda High School students' council delivered an address.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS, who will speak and conduct panel discussions exploring the conference theme, Youth and His World, include C. Wynne Dickson, Associate Deputy Minister of Education, Mrs. Pat Pearce, member of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, David Depoe, the outspoken spokesman for Toronto's Yorkville district, and Mr. Rod Dewar, a Montreal broadcaster who is a former Noranda High School student. NHS principal H. E. Bashaw told The Record that he is delighted the annual Conference is taking place at Noranda High School this year.

Lennoxville Calf Club elects year's officers

The annual meeting of the Lennoxville Calf Club was held recently in the Assembly Room of the Experimental Farm. The meeting was called to order by the president, Kelly Ross, and the minutes of the last meeting, which were read by the secretary, Linda Ross, were adopted as read by Clifford Hatcher and seconded by Barbara Coates.

The final details of the dance to be held on Friday, November 15, at Nick Dean's were made.

Mr. C. Picken was then called on to present the Pee Wee Trophy to Susan Taylor for the Grand Champion Pee Wee Showman. Nominations were then accepted for the Ronald Taylor Memorial Trophy for Leadership. Those nominated were Barbara Picken, Kelly Ross, Peter Ross, Jim Richards and Sylvia Gass. Three of these five nominated, will be voted for at the next meeting, and the one with the most votes will be presented with the Trophy. Mr. Warren Ross was then chosen to act as chairman for the election of new officers for the year 1968-69. The new officers are as follows: President, Peter Ross; vice-president, Peter Gass; secretary-treasurer, Sylvia Gass.

Junior leaders: Linda Ross, Heather Rose and Kelly Ross. Senior leaders: C. Picken, H. Beaulieu, G. McVety, W. Ross and F. Tarte.

Honorary leader: W. G. MacDougall.

Pee Wee Executive: Brenda Lee Picken and Barbara Coates. Lunch committee: Cathy Coates and Maureen Dillon. Press correspondent: Sylvia Gass.

WEST AFRICAN ART — This is but one of the pieces of West African art that will be on display when the Witches Kettle studio opens in West Bolton later this month. The studio will also feature Middle Eastern and European artifacts. (Record photo: W. Hahn)

Garish masks lurk in the dim lights

By JOHN McCAGHEY

WEST BOLTON — (Staff) — The Witches Kettle, an art gallery devoted to African, Middle Eastern and European works, is due to open here in the near future. The studio, located about four miles east of Knowlton on Highway 39, is owned and will be operated by Willy Hahn.

Mr. Hahn, a native of the Netherlands, emigrated to Canada in 1957, and has been employed in the electronics field. An installation trip to Turkey first awoke Mr. Hahn's interest in native arts. One main reason was that he was paid in local currency, and that there were severe limitations on the amount of Turkish money he could leave the country with, whereas he could bring out native crafts and antiques.

Mr. Hahn acquired authentic Turkish rugs, as well as pottery that dates back two to four thousand years.

Mr. Hahn became interested in West African art while he was involved in the maintenance of a micro-wave communications network that had been installed in Liberia by RCA Victor of Montreal. Mr. Hahn also instructed local technicians in the intricacies of the system.

"The natives were interested in foisting off 'junk' until they realized you were a serious collector," said Mr. Hahn, "then they produced the authentic items, some of which are priceless."

"In many cases these artifacts are beyond purchasing," Mr. Hahn said, "as they are of a religious nature."

Mr. Hahn said, "Any carving out of Africa that is more than 50 years old is generally considered to be antique and authentic, as the art has been lost."

Mr. Meauze, in African Art, said "The African carving technique is so simple and at the same time so powerful that one can only wonder at the same results, considering the rudimentary tools used. Primitive hatchets and adzes are the sole tools used."

Mr. Hahn served in the Royal Dutch Airforce prior to emigrating to Canada, and decided to settle in the Eastern Townships because "I'm a small town boy, and I'm tired of the city rat race."

An aura of mysticism and superstition pervades his studio, the garish masks that inspired artists such as Cezanne and Picasso lurk in the dim light. Other works that inspired European sculptors like Rodin, Arp, Adam and Maillol are in evidence, displayed against voluptuous Turkish tapestries.

Mr. Hahn's West African collection includes works in wood, terra-cotta, bronze and brass, and to the best of his knowledge is all authentic.

One could almost sense the smell of equatorial Africa the day this article was written, as the first serious snowstorm blanketed the West Bolton area. A fine locale to get the aura of warmth on a blustery winter day.

A Salary Policy for a Healthy Economy

The government of Québec has already offered salary revisions to the union employees of the Québec Liquor Board. To accept the other financial demands would upset the governmental salary policy and would therefore risk the provocation of a chain reaction in the public and allied services who have already accepted government offers or have a view of doing so.

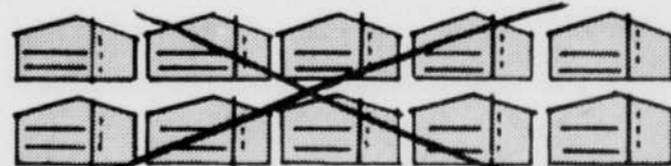

Such augmentation would total between 130 and 140 million of dollars per year

To provide such funds the government has two alternatives:

EITHER
the public must agree to sacrifice
a greater student enrolment in universities

PLUS
the construction of 10 Polyvalente schools per year

PLUS
the augmentation of family allowances by 50%

PLUS
the construction of a comprehensive hospital

OR
the public accepts augmented taxes

Beavers trounce Gauls 7-2

PICTURE NEVER LIES — The puck is seen in the net but despite this the referee and goal judge last even disallowed Bill Dupre of Sherbrooke Beavers a goal. This happened when the puck was deflected over Andy Payette's mitt but when the puck bounced out the goal judge ruled no goal. In the picture can be seen Yvon Lacoste, (8), Rene Pepin, (15), and in the rear Luc Tessier. Serge Nadeau, (5), is the only St. Hyacinthe player in view. The Beavers trounced the Gauls 7-2. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Sherbrooke Beavers lashed back at their critics last night as they romped to an impressive 7-2 victory over the St. Hyacinthe Gauls before over 2,000 persons at the Sports Palace.

In other Quebec Senior Hockey League action last night in Victoriaville, Bob Bedard scored a pair of goals for the Vics to lead Granby to a 4-1 victory over the Tigers.

Last night's win by the Beavers marks their third in 14 games and first in five outings against the Gauls. Productivity has been scant for the Beavers so far this season and the seven goals is a sight Coach Bruce Cline has been waiting for since the season opened.

With the 7-2 victory Sherbrooke moved to within one point of the Ottawa Eastern Canada Nationals. Granby kept their four-point margin over the Beavers as a result of their 4-1 win.

Sherbrooke travels to Chicoutimi Sunday and will visit the Tigers Tuesday evening.

The Beavers pounded Payette with 16 shots in the opening frame and with a little luck could have come out of the period with a much larger lead than 3-1.

Sherbrooke's Jim Beckman opened the scoring at the 1:30 mark of the opening period with a drive from just inside the blue line. In a seemingly innocent play Beckman picked up the puck at centre ice, skated to the Gauls' blueline unmolested and then unleashed a powerful slapshot into the lower corner on Payette's stick side.

At the 4:20 mark Bill Dupre stretched the score to 2-0, scoring on a power-play effort. St. Hyacinthe narrowed the margin to 2-1 with a goal by Michel Cormier at the 6:00 mark.

Sherbrooke moved ahead 3-1 at 15:01 on a beautiful play involving Robidas and Pepin. Pepin laid a perfect pass onto Robidas' stick. Robidas skated in alone, beating Payette with a drive to right corner.

Both teams scored once in the second. Sherbrooke's mark-the Beavers, beating Guy Labelle with a blueline drive. Labelle took over in the St. Hyacinthe nets at the 8:21 mark of the second period. Payette allowed the first four goals be-seconds. Scoring for the Beavers were Levesque, Bruce Cline and Normand Sara-Bour-

net. Jim Beckman led the Sherbrooke attack with a pair of goals, his fourth and fifth of the campaign. Bill Dupre, Lionel Robidas, Jean Levesque, Bruce Cline and Normand Sara-Bournet rounded out the scoring.

Veteran Beavers' captain, Rene Pepin, picked up three assists while Lafond and Bouchard each assisted twice. Lionel Robidas picked up five points in the scoring race last night, scoring once and assisting on four other tallies.

Luc Tessier was again the best on the blueline for the Beavers. Lionel Robidas and Jean Levesque each played their best game of the new season. Levesque, along with scoring once, checked continually throughout the game and was a big factor in the win.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

er was tallied by Beckman, his second of the night, while Gilles Cartier scored a power-play goal for the Gauls.

In the third period Levesque scored a power-play effort for fore retiring to an early show-er. In the third period Sherbrooke took over the play, tallying three times, two of these goals being scored within 50

Argos in top shape for Rough Riders tomorrow

TORONTO (CP) — Tackle Bill Frank of Toronto Argonauts is not impressed with Ottawa Rough Riders.

"Put any Argo in a room with a Rough Rider and I'm sure the Toronto player would be the one to come out," Frank said Thursday, less than 72 hours before meeting Ottawa here Sunday in the first of the two-game total-point Eastern Football Conference final.

"I'm sorry, but I can't see where they're all that impressive physically."

Frank, 30, whose 250 pounds make him one of Toronto's best defensive men on the front four, says the key to Sunday's game "will be ball control."

"They have a lot of things going for them, in the air and on the ground. The secret is to cut down on the percentage of plays they can use and we're bound to come out on top."

Frank, a Toronto co-captain, came to the Argos during the 1965 season after being cut by Dallas Cowboys of the American Football League.

gave us a feeling of belonging," Frank says. "Now, people aren't coming and going all the time like they were before Cahill took over last year."

Talking of Ottawa, Frank says the Argonauts are ready to put a "full game together."

"We've analysed the films and found costly errors were committed against them in the first three games."

The Rough Riders have defeated Toronto in all three regular-season meetings this year and outscored them 100-33.

But despite the three drubbings, Frank and his Toronto team-mates are all of the opinion that "this is a new season and we're going to be ready and a lot looser for this one."

The second game of the series is scheduled for Ottawa Saturday, Nov. 23 with the winner representing the EFC in the Grey Cup final here Nov. 30. Sunday's game is set for 2 p.m. EST and will be televised nationally by the CTV with the Toronto area blacked out.

Meanwhile, the field at Canadian National Exhibition Stadium, site of Sunday's game, appears in good condition for the opening game. It was covered by tarpaulins until Thursday and, except for bare spots about 20 yards from each end zone, the turf is strong.

It will be re-covered by the tarpaulins the moment rain threatens, but the weather has been clear and cold through most of the week.

Box office officials also report that the game appears to be a sellout.

Hull scores three to lead Hawks to 6-4 victory, Leafs belt Habs 5-3

Chicago Black Hawks and perhaps the entire National Hockey League must be thankful today that Bobby Hull changed his mind about retiring.

Hull's crowd-pleasing value to Chicago and to the NHL was demonstrated anew Thursday night when he scored three goals and assists on another to lead Chicago to 6-4 win against Pittsburgh Penguins.

The victory kept Chicago in a fourth-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs and four points gave Hull 30 for the season, seven more than Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings who is runner-up in the scoring race.

In other NHL games Thursday, Toronto surprised Montreal Canadiens 5-3, Detroit Red Wings crushed Los Angeles Kings 5-2 and Philadelphia Flyers upset Boston Bruins 4-2. There is no action scheduled tonight.

The Red Wings scored three goals in the first period and then coasted to their victory against the Kings before a Los Angeles gathering of 8,525.

The Maple Leafs moved to within four points of the first-place Canadiens by rapping home four second-period goals — two within a 10-second interval.

Mike Walton, Wayne Carleton, Norm Ullman, Paul Henderson and Murray Oliver scored for Toronto. Yvan Cournoyer scored two goals for the Canadiens and Jacques Lemaire added one.

The Maple Leafs broke up a 2-2 tie midway through the middle period when Ullman and Henderson connected within 10 seconds.

Ullman scored at 11:37 on a pass from Henderson with Montreal's Serge Savard in the penalty box. Ten seconds later, Henderson beat Canadian goaltender Rogatien Vachon.

Ullman scored at 11:37 on a pass from Henderson with Montreal's Serge Savard in the penalty box. Ten seconds later, Henderson beat Canadian goaltender Rogatien Vachon.

GAMBLE A SENSATION
A crowd of 17,953 at Montreal saw the Canadiens outshoot the Maple Leafs 42-33, but Toronto goaltender Bruce Gamble was sensational. He stopped 19 of 20 shots in the second period.

The effort seemed to firmly establish Gamble as the team's best goaltender, ahead of veteran Johnny Bower and rookie Al Smith.

Minor Hockey has busy weekend with fifteen games on agenda

The Hawks and Tigers are deadlocked for top honors in the Bantam section of the Sherbrooke Minor Hockey Association according to the latest reports released. Each club has posted straight wins in their two starts.

Four clubs are tied in second spot in the 12-team circuit, Chalfoux, M. Mediatrice, Cardinals and Laporte have split their two wins while the Canadiens and Olympics have a point each for their stalemate. Eagles, Assomption, Voltigeurs and the Senators are in the cellar and have yet to pick up a point.

Denis Gendreau and Paul Ducharme posted hat-tricks while

R. Dufresne potted two in the 9-3 Cardinals' win over the Eagles. Denis St. Cyr came through with a five-goal effort when the Cardinals batted the Voltigeurs 8-2.

The Hawks ran over Assomption when they blanked them 15-0. Daniel Jutras registered four goals while R. Routhier posted the first shutout of the season. In the Tigers 13-3 win breque was the star with five goals.

Marc Ouimet came up with the second shutout of the season when he held the Senators off the score sheet and his mates chalked up five goals for the win. The Canadiens and the Senators battled to a 3-3 stalemate.

In the Pee Wee "A" Section six teams posted wins in their first game to remain in tie for the leadership. Coeur Immacule, Larocque, Ste. Jeanne d'Arc, Gagnon, M. Mediatrice and Laporte were the winners in the initial game.

Commencing Friday evening at 6 p.m. five games are listed in the Bantam section while Saturday, starting at 7 a.m., six games are on tap. On Sunday morning at 8 a.m. four games are on tap in the Bantam section. Saturday and Sunday afternoons practices are listed starting at noon and finishing at 6 p.m.

Roughriders will have to score 25 points to beat Stampeders on Saturday

REGINA (CP) — Ron Atchison says Saskatchewan Roughriders will have to score at least 25 points Saturday to defeat Calgary Stampeders in the opening game of the best-of-three Western Football Conference final series.

The veteran defensive tackle, in his 17th season with the Roughriders, said in an interview Thursday "our offence has got to score at least 25 points because I can't see us holding Calgary to a low score."

Atchison, who joined Saskatchewan in 1952 after graduating from Saskatoon Hilltops, winners of the Canadian junior football championship last Monday, has played more than 300 games in his professional career.

Hunting and fishing in the E.T.

By NORM NICHOLL

The Protection Service report for the month of August shows that 581 cases were prosecuted and added $11,465 to the funds of the government. Total prosecutions in each category were: Moose-15; Deer-15; Fur-Bearing Animals-2; Partridge-5; Migratory Birds-11; Miscellaneous-103; Fishing 430 for the 581 total; Infractions and fines for the eleven districts were: Abitibi-3 for $125; Chicoutimi-31 for $3,590; Gaspé-38 for $390; Hull-21 for $540; Québec 74 for $1,506; Rimouski-25 for $375; Sept-Îles-105 for $1,060; Temiscamingue-30 for $275; Trois-Rivières-24 for $365; Montréal-106 for $1,755; SHERBROOKE-Deer-13; Miscellaneous-12; Fishing-99; Total-124 for $1,465.

The agenda for the up-coming Québec Wildlife Federation Conference, which is to be held on November 29th and 30th in the Sheraton-Mt. Royal Hotel, Montréal has been released. The theme of the Convention this year is "WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT" with the Honourable Gabriel Loubier, Minister of Tourism, F&G as guest speaker at the closing dinner Nov. 30th.

On the agenda outside of the resolutions to be presented there are other discussions, two especially, that should be of interest to both hunters and fishermen. One is to be held Friday evening, November 29th at 8 p.m., in the Champlain Room—"BLUE PRINT FOR PURE WATER" which is an outline for stopping water pollution and curing those areas where extensive pollution problems exist.

The second one slated for Saturday, November 30th at 2 p.m., entitled "THE DEER IN QUÉBEC AND ITS HABITAT" with Dr. Pimlott as guest speaker. A panel discussion will follow with Dr. Roger Bider and Bruce Stephenson as members.

Reminder: Each Club or Association who belongs to Québec Wildlife Federation is entitled to send two voting delegates to the Convention.

For deer hunters, last weekend, it might be said a dream came true with the snowfall Friday. Most of the hunting areas had enough snow for tracking deer and getting hunters wet and made walking just a little harder for us Sunday hunters.

Provincial deer kill figures up to November 10th., for the eleven districts are:

District	Buck	Does	Fawns	Total
Chicoutimi	5	4	3	12
Gaspé	242	230	59	531
Hull	454	376	85	925
Montréal	180	135	66	381
Québec	246	240	118	604
Rimouski	418	336	136	890
Sherbrooke	320	302	201	823
Temiscamingue	3	3	1	7
Trois-Rivières	10	7	0	17
Total	1,878	1,633	679	4,190

At the Labelle checking station 134 deer were registered and checked by Wildlife biologists, the deer were taken in zones F-2 and H.

Recent figures released on the controlled moose hunts in the four parks and reserves of the Province breakdown follow:

Sex	La Verendrye	Laurentide	Matane	St-Maurice
Males	116	59	43	7
Cows	69	29	40	6
Calves	7	4	2	2
Total	192	92	85	15

Hunter success in each of the areas was listed as: La Verendrye-62.7%; Laurentide-61.3%; Matane 93.4%; 50% at Saint-Maurice.

Last week I published some of the highlights of the studies that have started in areas north of Montréal by Dr. Pimlott and Bruce Stephenson on deer herds in that region. I also mentioned that I would this week try to comment on them.

Well, two factors have changed my mind for the present. Material that I wanted to secure hadn't arrived and secondly when I saw that the two gentlemen, who are carrying out the survey, are to be speakers on the subject at the coming conference. This will allow me to hear what they are planning, if anything, in this area or what suggestions they may have for the preservation of the deer herds in general.

Bishop's cagers clash with Sir George this evening

Bishop's University Varsity basketball Gaiters open the '68-69 season tonight at 8 p.m. playing hosts to Sir George Williams University. Tomorrow afternoon the Gaiters meet the powerful Loyola Warriors at 2:30 p.m.

This year's addition to the Gaiters, according to Coach Garth Smith, is young, small and inexperienced. Coach Smith referred to this year as the "start of a rebuilding program" when interviewed yesterday.

of the squad is approximately five feet, 11 inches. This, he said, is a rather liberal evaluation of the team's overall average height.

Gaiters' captain Richard Purcell returns at five feet, seven inches, along with veteran John Mackenzie, 6'3", and brother Doug. Other hopefuls according to Coach Smith are, Knowlton native, Barry Hall and Bill Savage, a Sherbrooke High School product.

Promising rookies are Dave Simpson of Montréal and Ricky Vallee, another Sherbrooke product. Don Cummings, a third-year man has shown great improvement according to the team's mentor and should see a lot of action this season.

Probable starters for the weekend action will be Purcell, Hall and Doug Mackenzie working out of the guard positions with forwards John MacKenzie and Bill Savage. Sixth and seventh men are Don Cummings and Rick Vallee.

Melody Smoky wins main event last night, good card Sunday

Melody Smoky, owned by Gaston Smith and Elphege Lemire of Drummondville and driven by Guy Jutras, emerged the winner in the main dash on last night's card at the Sherbrooke Race Track. He posted the best time of the evening, 2:13.1, on a hard, icy footing.

The condition of the track didn't both the horses too much since they were all fitted with their winter calks and came through with fair performances despite the heavy wind and cold.

The best time for a half mile was registered by Rene Masse and M. E. Chief in the sixth when he came through with his usual half going the distance in 1:04.4 but faded on the second trip around. He finished third in the dash.

Buster Huckins with Ozark Plutocrat got away to a good start in the ninth setting the pace for the half in 1:06.3 but Guy Jutras made his move just before the three-quarter take over and beat him to the wire.

In the tenth the exacta of Florent St. Denis and Raffles along with Charles Connors' Justa Witch paid their backers the sum of $155, which was tops for the evening. Ligue's Miss Supreme, the favorite in the dash, finished third after leading until the back stretch.

In the main dash Sunday afternoon six of the best side-wheelers are slated to go to the gate with the St.onge-Grenier owned Beate Mir listed as the favorite with his pole position. Caddy Book, Gordon Ibafe, Rebel Land Mite, Earl Adios and Tom Lucky comprise the balance of the event.

The big trot on the card has drawn a field of seven C.H.D. the pole position. This class could be tough as Nossell Herman, Singing Duke, Maplewood's Pride, Knockout Mir, Tiffany Miss and Baron Jamie could force the dash into a wide-open battle.

Hauver's Singing Duke is installed as the favorite but a couple of the others could provide plenty of opposition. C.H.D. with the pole could be tough while Nossell Herman is the unknown in the dash since he is making his initial appearance.

The second trot on the card, in the sixth has only seven listed as well as the third dash. It seems there is a shortage of trotters at the local oval.

There is no racing Saturday as this was cancelled with the only card on the weekend billed to go Sunday afternoon. Post Time is 2 p.m. and with some good weather the fans could be in for a fine card.

Bishop's Gaiters meet RMC in hockey opener tomorrow

Bishop's University hockey Gaiters open their 1968-69 OSIAA campaign Saturday afternoon against the Royal Military College Redmen with a revamped offence and a depleted defensive crew.

The Gaiters were originally scheduled to open against University of Montreal Carabins in the Metropolis Tuesday, but the blizzard which struck Montreal this week prevented the team bus from reaching its destination.

To make matters worse, the bus went off the road on the way back, tipped over and gave the whole team a shakeup. The only severe injury was to second year defenceman Ron Desjardins, a Lennoxville High grad, who came out of the incident with several bruised ribs which will sideline him for two to three weeks.

This leaves the defensive corps with only three men: sophomore Gord Glass, and rookies Terry Loucks and Ross Barrett. Coach Al Grazys said he will call a player up from the junior varsity squad for Saturday's contest to plug the gap, but the biggest loss is still the departure from the university of all-star Cliff Goodwin and his partner Al MacAllum.

RCM, however, is in an even more serious plight as the Redmen lost their entire defence from last year through graduation and even their coach admits they will be weak in that department.

The offence was also hit by graduations, the most notable of these being the one-two scoring duo of Willie Mitchell and Bill Murray which kept the Gaiters in contention throughout last season and boosted the team into the playoffs.

The new faces here, however, seem almost certain to make up for the losses.

The hottest acquisition of the year is Don Liesemer, a former Junior Canadiens star who was a standout in the Quebec senior league last year with the St. Hyacinthe Gauls. The Sherbrooke Beavers offered him everything except the roof of the Sports Palace to play for them this year, but Don decided to go with the Gaiters.

Jeff Planché, a Sherbrooke homebrew will start on left wing with Liesemer, while Ron Perrowe, one of the best hockey players to come out of the Montreal high school system in recent years, will play the pivot position on the first line.

Rookie Bob McCabe will centre the second line which includes Ken Chipman, a former 20-goal man in the OSIAA before he had to sit out last season with a knee injury, and veteran Tommie Allen, who is his last campaign with the Gaiters.

Returnees Bob Sommerville and Don Clevy will play the wings on the third line which is centred by Roger Taylor who should come into his own this season after a relatively disappointing campaign last year.

Rounding out the squad as all-round utility man up front will be Sherbrooke native Dick Hafenden.

Between the pipes, the Gaiters will once again start Phil Stote, who came on strong in the latter part of last season to capture the number one goaltending spot. With a year under his belt, Phil should prove to be more than adequate.

Coach Grazys considers his squad as good, if not better than last year. The defence may take a while to jell, but once Desjardins gets back on the ice things should be reasonably tight.

Green and Gold opens hockey and cage season this evening

Tonight at the Sports Palace the Green and Gold of the University of Sherbrooke play hosts to RMC of Kingston at 8 p.m. in a regular Ottawa - St. Lawrence Conference hockey encounter.

The Green and Gold hoopsters open their OSLC basketball season tonight also at the University meeting the powerful Loyola Warriors in the Arts Faculty gym at 8 p.m.

So far this season Uof S' hockey team have won one and lost one. Sir George Williams clipped the Green and Gold picketers 4-3 in their debut, last Friday evening in the new Forum in Montréal. Following this defeat the U of S squad rallied to overpower CMR of St. Jean 8-5 on the military crew's home ice.

U of S finished second in the conference last year behind the Loyola Warriors hockey team and it seems the two teams will be vying for top honors again this season.

U of S team captain, Gerald Langelier, last year's Conference top scorer, is back again this season. Daniel Doyon, the league's top goaltender last year has returned but is being replaced by Luc Tremblay, an excellent young goaltender who played for the Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Senior Hockey League at the beginning of this year.

For the first time in University of Sherbrooke's history, the basketball team participated in the OSLC playoffs last year. Tonight the Green and Gold hoopsters meet the conference champion Loyola Warriors.

At 2:30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon, the basketball squad meets Sir George Williams University in the Arts Faculty gymnasium.

Returning to the team's roster this season are veterans Claude Laliberté, Clement Bessette, Clement Chalifoux, Paul Deshaies and Jacques Gagne.

Laliberté was a doubtful case earlier but now things have been straightened out and the champion Conference scorer last season will be back in action. Among the new recruits are, Ranzo Fransisco, University of Montréal, Zoel Berube, Sherbrooke Seminary, Claude Gratton, University of Montréal, Serge Talbot and Rene Raymond.

Several good players have reported to the squad, among them Andre Boisvert, Normand Desile, Howard Meunier, Andre Roy, Jocelyn Desrochers, Yvon Lemaire and goalie Jean-Pierre Desaulniers. Coach Thiffault is pleased with his new group and hopes to form a strong club to represent the coming season.

Macdonald College

Thanks to the reader who sent in this story about Pat's horse. It arrived soon after we wrote about the cow-with-a-porthole-in-her-side at McGill Open House. You remember she was demonstrating the research at Macdonald College into ways of converting coarse plant roughages into human food.

The day will come we suggested, that we will be hungry enough and smart enough to take our protein directly from the grasses. Then the job for the ruminant animal will be to digest industrial wastes like sugar cane refuse, corn cobs, straw, and even treated wood pulp, and convert it to meat and milk. With special treatment woody material can be changed to simpler carbohydrates more digestible than cellulose.

Well, according to our reader, Pat has already tried it. Pat lived near a sawmill with useless sawdust accumulating every day. How nice it would be, he thought, if he could get his horse to subsist on sawdust. He knew it would take some time to train his horse for the task.

So he gradually replaced the hay and oats with sawdust. Each day saw Pat a little closer to his goal. But just as he had the horse very nearly on a straight sawdust diet, it up and died, and spoiled it all.

We think we get the point.

Satisfied a long-standing ambition last week, saw Nova Scotia for the first time since I went through in wartime, on a troop train, in midwinter, on a stormy night, with one-way ticket. I can tell you the impressions were different this time.

The sun was just setting as we landed at Halifax airport.

The long rays coming over the low rocky hills just caught the brilliant red, soft maples against their background of dark green pines. It was beautiful. The old uncomfortable memories were erased in a flash.

My first look at Nova Scotia agriculture found me asking, "where is it?" Around Halifax, there is not enough soil to stop the boulders rolling down the broken slopes. But further north, toward Truro, we did see neat comfortable dairy farms on rolling grasslands. And we had a glimpse of the famous marshlands on the red soils of the tidal river flats, just waiting for economic conditions to come right for their development. We missed seeing the Annapolis Valley, where I am told the best farms are. There, summer heat is sufficient to mature grain corn.

The Atlantic Winter Fair turned out to be just like its counterpart in Ottawa, Toronto, or Sherbrooke. Old friends meeting old friends. Beautiful teams of Percherons and Clydesdales symbolizing a by-gone but beloved Agriculture. Jumper and harness horses symbolizing the pleasant extravagance of a new era. Magnificent manured herds of beef and dairy animals bring out the conflict between

Wood floor maintenance easy but vital

By MR. FIX

Wood floors are the pride and joy of many a home. But when they start to suffer from marks, stains, worn spots, cracks and splits they lose their beauty. Since wood floors are so easy to repair, it doesn't pay to allow them to deteriorate.

Marks made by rubber heels, casters and similar items and which do not respond to simple wiping-up can be removed by a brisk rubbing with a cloth moistened with turpentine or some other solvent. The earlier you get to the job, the less effort and the less solvent you will have to use.

This treatment may remove some of the finish but it is easy to restore. Smooth the area by rubbing with steel wool and then coat the spot with clear shellac. Finish with varnish if that is the way the rest of the floor is finished.

Finish the job by waxing the floor.

Marks that go deep, such as cigarette burns or deep dents, are a little more work to clear up. Scrape the mark out with a chisel or knife, then fill with plastic wood. Use one to match the old wood. Once it is dried, sand it and wax it.

Some discolorations soak through the finish and into the wood itself. When this happens you will have to remove the wax and old finish. Once down to the bare wood, bleach the stain. Use a commercial bleach available in paint stores and follow instructions explicitly.

With the stain bleached out, refinish with several thin coats of shellac or varnish.

Cracks often develop along the grain of floor boards. A little glue and sawdust make a good filler. Scrape out the cracks and clean thoroughly of any grease and dirt. Fill, allow to dry, sand and finish.

The boards in new floors sometimes shrink and separate. This is caused by using either green or wet wood, which then shrinks as it dries out. Fill the openings with plastic wood, wood putty or glue and sawdust.

Occasionally there will be a section of flooring that will need replacing because it is rotted or damaged. Cut a new section of floor board to fit the damaged area. Cut out the old by drilling holes at the corners and chiseling out. Since the new floor board is grooved it will be difficult to fit in from above. Plane off the underside of the groove and fit in place. Tap in place for a good fit, using a wood block between the floor and the hammer to avoid marring.

Drill pilot holes for the nails, making the holes slightly smaller than the nails. Nail at all four corners and countersink the nail heads. Before nailing, if the new wood seems too high and tapping in place doesn't make it flush, plane it down. Refinish to match the rest of the floor, using stain if necessary before applying shellac or varnish.

Continuing Education — Professional Training

Adult Courses in Professional Agricultural Training

The Quebec Ministry of Education, through its Continuing Education Service, is offering courses in professional Farming Training. These courses are available to all farmers who are interested in improving their present knowledge.

Pre-requisite: Grade VII. Good knowledge of English, as courses will be given in that language.

Recruitment: For application form, phone 263-3722, write Box 105, Cowansville, or call at 120 Bell Street, Cowansville.

Applicants finally accepted by C. M. C. will be eligible to receive allowances.

Course Content: The complete course is made up of four blocks (=480 hours). This year, two blocks will be offered in the territory of the Bedford R.S.B., i.e. II (Farm Administration, Commercial Law, Farm Calculations, etc.) and IV (Animal Husbandry, with options). Next year, blocks I and III.

Certification: Successful candidates will be issued a Professional Agricultural Certificate.

Location: Cowansville: 120 Bell Street (offices of B.R.S.B.).

Start: January 7th, 1969.

Schedule of Courses: Full-time course of 6 hours per day, five days a week for 8 weeks. (4 weeks for each block).

The new focus is on training in agricultural technology. Students will be highly trained for specific jobs in the agricultural industry. In addition, the first three years of a degree course in agriculture will be still given.

It is refreshing, and encouraging, to see this expression of faith in the future of agriculture.
