World News In Brief

New York, Oct. 26—(AP)—Milk trucks started rolling again today to serve 12,000,000 consumers in the metropolitan area following settlement of a one-day strike.

The dairies said they hoped for normal or near-normal deliveries today in the three-state area.

Fifteen thousand drivers and dairy workers employed by 200 companies won a "package" increase of $10.80 a week in an agreement which ended the strike late yesterday.

Churchill Wins In Own Riding

Woodford, England, Oct. 26.—(Reuters) — Winston Churchill—virtually certain to be Britain's next Prime Minister—returned triumphantly to his suburban constituency here today and for the seventh time since 1925 heard himself proclaimed Member of Parliament.

Bareheaded, with his wife by his side, he stood on the steps of a red brick schoolhouse while the Mayor of Woodford announced he had polled 40,938 votes.

His nearest opponent, Labor candidate William Archer, had 22,359 votes.

Cheers—and boos—burst from the mixed political crowd packing the school playground. There were cries of "Good old Winnie," "God bless you, Winnie," and "Sock 'em, Winnie."

Then, as the Labor candidate joined Churchill on the steps, a Conservative supporter yelled "You're not the masters now."

Churchill Returns To Office Ending Labor Government's 6 Years Of Administration

Majority Of Slightly Under 25 Seats Expected As Returns Continue To Come In.

London, Oct. 26.—(CP)—Returns from 611 of 625 constituencies in the British election showed the following party standing at 4:50 a.m. GMT (11:50 a.m. EST):

Labor	292
Conservatives and allies	313
Liberals and others	7
Deferred	1
Unreported	12

London, Oct. 26.—(CP)—Winston Churchill and his Conservatives were returned to power today, unseating Prime Minister Clement Attlee's Labor party after six years of socialist rule.

Churchill, just turning 77, late today awaited a summons from the King to form a new government.

At 4:30 p.m. GMT (11:30 a.m. EST) Morgan Phillips, Labor party chairman and its chief strategist, conceded the election to the Conservatives.

Mr. Attlee tonight went to Buckingham Palace to resign as Prime Minister.

By late afternoon, counting of votes in yesterday's general election had given the Conservatives 313 seats assuring them of an over-all majority in the 625-seat House of Commons. A Conservative spokesman had said earlier they expected a majority of 25. But the exact size of the majority was expected to be somewhat less.

Labor's majority in the last House was never as high as 11

The overnight results indicated that the once-powerful Liberal vote was again becoming a force in British politics. But this time not in electing Liberal representatives to Westminster — rather Tories.

With the Liberals running only 109 candidates — they had nearly 500 in the 1950 polling — the Liberal vote went in many instances to the Conservative party and in such numbers that it threw the balance in favor of the Tory standard-bearer.

Early returns last night showed the socialists — 3 to 1 outsiders in pre-election betting — doggedly holding their ground.

The first break came when Eric Johnson, a Tory newcomer to politics who once owned a cattle ranch in the Cariboo country of British Columbia, won a narrow victory from the old Labor member in the Blackley division of Manchester.

The only Conservative loss was in Belfast West, where Irish Labor candidate Jack Beattie won by 25 votes after some frenzied recounts.

The vote yesterday was heavy — about 82 per cent — but in districts counted last night it was slightly under last year's. In that election a total of 28,769,477 balloted. This year some 500,000 new voters — most of them young people just turned 21 — had been added to the rolls.

Early-morning Tory exuberance was based not only on the fact they had captured 11 Labor seats while the Liberals, with Tory backing, took another, but on comparison with the last general election 20 months ago.

In 1950, the Conservatives were 61 seats behind Labor at the end of the first day's tabulations. When the "down country" returns rolled in the next day, they surged back and nearly won the election.

The Conservatives, heavily favored in the betting and in public-opinion polls, had opened the campaign in the buoyant belief they might win control of the government by as many as 100 seats.

The vigorous Labor campaign, capped by frequent assertions that Churchill was more likely than Attlee to get the country into a war, kept trimming their optimism. When good weather yesterday brought out a heavy vote in the industrial centres, the Tories scaled their majority predictions even farther downward.

With the Tory margin a slender one, possibly leaving 300 seats to Labor, Churchill's followers will not be much better off than their Labor predecessors.

The result brought to a climax six years of grim, unrelenting struggle by the old wartime Prime Minister against the Labor party, which imposed government control over much of Britain's industry and private enterprise. However, the Tories are not expected to change things much except turn back the iron and steel industry to private ownership.

Churchill was jubilant — and grateful. Speaking to his constituents at Woodford, where he was re-elected, he said:

"You have given me wonderful support. It never reached a higher pinacle than it did today."

This is the composition of the House elected in 1950: Labor 315;

Alexander's Term Extended

VISCOUNT ALEXANDER

Ottawa, Oct. 26—(CP)—Viscount Alexander's term of office as Governor-General of Canada has been extended several months beyond next April 12, it was learned today.

It is the second extension of the popular Governor-General's term, which originally was to have expired last April but was set forward one year. Traditionally, the King's representative in Canada holds office for five years.

An official announcement of the latest extension is expected to be made shortly by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

It is understood the extension was agreed upon after consultation between Prime Minister St. Laurent, the King and Viscount Alexander.

Previously, the Viscount had planned to return to England in the spring. He now likely will stay in Canada until late summer.

Viscount Alexander was appointed Governor - General on March 21, 1946, and officially assumed office the following month, on April 12.

Montreal, Oct. 26—(CP)—The city of Longueuil, across the St. Lawrence river from Montreal, wanted to give something "different" to Princess Elizabeth when the Royal couple visited here next week. Someone suggested "something practical she can use for everyday living." The result is a hand-woven tartan skirt in the Princess' colors, red, yellow, blue and white.

Royal Couple Will Resume Tour Today

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 26.—(CP)—It was back to the grind today for Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

After a three-day rest, two of them spent at posh Eaglecrest Lodge 106 miles north of here, the Royal couple started their journey eastward with a visit to Nanaimo.

From there they were scheduled to embark on the destroyer Crusader for the 38-mile trip across Georgia Strait to Vancouver, arriving there about noon.

Then it was on to New Westminster and small centres up the Fraser valley and canyon. They are scheduled to reach Edmonton 2 p.m. Saturday.

It was a relaxing day yesterday, including horseback riding, a drive to Sproat Falls to take pictures of leaping fish and a visit to a lumber camp.

Egypt "May" Join West In Alliance

Cairo, Oct. 26. — (Reuters) — Egypt, which earlier this month rejected a bid from the United States, Britain, France and Turkey to join a middle-east defence group, today indicated she might consider joining western defence organizaitons "after Egypt's demands are fulfilled."

A statement to this effect, latest move in Egypt's scrapping of her 1936 treaty with Britain and a drive to oust British forces from the country and the Suez Canal zone, came from foreign minister Salah Ed Pin Pasha.

He said the Anglo-Egyptian dispute itself cannot be mediated, much less settled, "before the evacuation of the British troops from Egypt and the Sudan and the practical recognition of the unity of the Nile valley under the Egyptian crown."

Salah Ed Din also had harsh words for France. He said she "has practically the same imperialistic ambition as Britain."

Salah El Din again denied reports os U.S. mediation in the Anglo-Egyptian dispute, which arose last week when Egypt abrogated her treaties involving the Suez Canal and the Sudan.

He said the U.S. seems to regard the Anglo-Egyptian dispute from "one single aspect — the aspect of military preparations for a future war." He added: "Therefore it is not to be wondered at that the U.S. disregards the principles of right and justice."

The rumors of U.S. mediation in the dispute arose yesterday after U.S. ambassador Jefferson Caffery called on King Farouk.

(In Washington the State Department said the U.S. had made no move to mediate between Britain and Egypt. It said Caffery talked with King Farouk "about the general situation.")

Meanwhile the situation remained relatively quiet but tense along the Canal.

A British military spokesman said yesterday an Egyptian labor boycott and an Egyptian clamp on food supplies are giving the Britons a hard time.

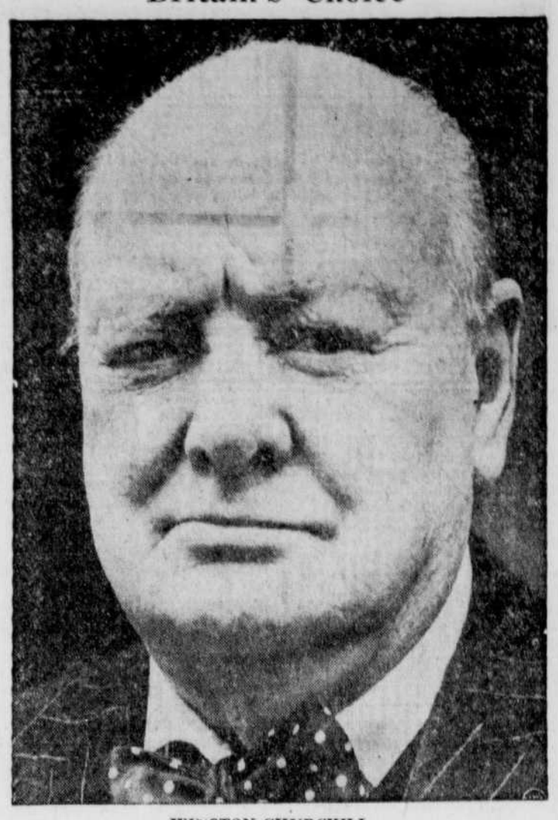

British forces holding the Suez went on wartime rations and kept British ships moving through the Canal.

The Egyptians also were reported to be gradually cutting off fresh water.

Ottawa, Oct. 26—(CP)—The publicly-owned CBC ended the 1950-51 fiscal year with a deficit of $1,271,874, it was disclosed yesterday in the Commons when Revenue Minister McCann tabled the corporation's annual report.

Revenue totalled $8,301,379 and expenditures $9,573,253. The deficit of $1,271,874 compared with a deficit of $243,746 in 1949-50.

Britain's Choice

WINSTON CHURCHILL

Top Men In Both Parties Are Returned To Commons

London, Oct. 26—(AP)—Winston Churchill and Prime Minister Clement Attlee and the top leaders of their parties won re-election today.

The Liberal party leader, Clement Davies, also retained his seat.

Anthony Eden, Conservative deputy leader and probably Foreign Secretary in a Conservative government, was re-elected for the Warwick and Leamington division.

In his Woodford constituency, Churchill polled 40,938 votes against 22,359 for Labor member W. A. Archer, 871 for communist J. R. Campbell, and 851 for independent A. Hancock. Churchill's edge was 18,579, a gain of 80 votes over 1950.

Churchill's two sons-in-law, Duncan Sandys and Christopher Soames, held their seats.

Left-wing Labor supporter Aneurin Bevan and his principal seven supporters also won. They include Bevan's wife, Miss Jennie Lee, Michael Foot, Tom Driberg, Harold Wilson former president of the Board of Trade, John Freeman, former junior minister in the supply ministry; Ian Mikardo, and red-haired and pretty Mrs. Barbara Castle.

Edeh defeated Labor's William Wilson by 9,803 votes, an increase of 850 over 1950.

The ranking leaders of both parties retained their seats in the neck-and-neck battle.

But Churchill's son, Randolph, lost to Foot.

Biggest upset of the voting was the defeat of Lady Megan Lloyd George, oeputy leader of the Liberal party and daughter of the late David Lloyd George.

She was ousted by Labor's Cledwyn Hughes by 11,814 to 11,219. Conservative Owen M. Roberts polled 6,366 votes. In 1950 she beat Hughes by 1,929 votes.

Among Conservatives re-elected who may be named members of a Churchill cabinet were:

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, a Nuerenberg war-crimes trial prosecutor, who is a possibility for Attorney-General or Minister of Labor.

Richard Austen Butler and Oliver Lyttleton, both spoken of as future Chancellors of the Exchequer. Butler is a former Minister of Labor.

Osbert Peake, who appears tagged as Churchill's Home Secretary.

Brendan Bracken, a likely choice for Minister of Fuel and Power.

Harold Macmillan, who may get the job of carrying out the Conservatives planned target of 300,000 new homes a year.

H. F. C. Crookshank, a former Postmaster-General and treasury official.

Sir Arthur Salter, a former Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

J. P. L. Thomas, vice-chairman of the Conservatives, and probably Churchill's choice for First Lord of the Admiralty.

H. R. Macheson, Conservative junior whip in the House of Commons.

Labor leaders put back in Parliament include Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Gaitskell; War Secretary John Strachey; Hugh Dalton, Minister of Local Government and Planning; Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell and Tom Williams, Minister of Agriculture.

U.K. Election Sidelights

London, Oct. 26.— (CP) —Labor bigwigs, listening to election returns in their party headquarters last night, gasped when someone in the hall applauded a Tory win.

A short time later came the announcement of another Conservative victory. Again applause resounded from one corner.

This time an attendant was summoned and the offender thrown out.

The socialists said they didn't know how the lone Tory got into the headquarters.

The Churchill family—staunch Conservatives all—batted .750 in the general election.

Papa Winston did the usual by winning in his Woodford constituency. His sons-in-law, Christopher Soames and Duncan Sandys, were winners. But son Randolph, mak-

Newspapers Comment On Election

London, Oct. 26—(AP)—"Glory, Glory Hallelujah!" the pro-Conservative Daily Express proclaimed—"It's Churchill's V-day."

"Bar miracles, it is a Tory victory," conceded the Daily Mirror, Labor's most widely-circulated newspaper supporter.

Headlines in this morning's London newspapers ranged between these two notes of elation and despair, but all conceded Winston Churchill's Conservatives were apparently on the way to unseating Prime Minister Attlee's government.

Most newspapers cautioned that more than half the polling districts were still to be heard from. But these districts were mainly rural—normally strong Conservative territory.

The Daily Express said jubilantly:

"This is the rout of socialism. By the time the outcome of polling is complete tonight, Mr. Churchill will once more be Prime Minister of Britain."

The pro-Liberal News Chronicle analyzed the returns as a sign that the Conservatives will wind up with a majority of 35 seats in the House of Commons.

The Daily Herald, staunch Labor supporter, saw the initial results as a sign that "the return of a Conservative government with a small majority seems certain."

London's communist Daily Worker, however, still refused to concede.

The newspaper, which had supported the Labor party—to the party's great embarrassment—ran this cautious headline: "Labor majority in danger."

The Express, published by Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook—one of Churchill's wartime Cabinet ministers, had some editorial suggestions ready for his former chief.

"Abroad Egypt is the immediate task for the new government," said the Express, always a tub-thumper for a strong British Empire. It continued:

"During the election this second-rate kingdom, like a swollen frog of the Nile delta, had puffed and croaked against Britain. It is now time to teach these unfortunate people and its misguided politicians a sharp lesson. And happily there are now men capable of the task. In Cairo they will understand the meaning of this election."

Cairo, Oct. 26—(AP)—Iran's chief oil expert said today his country could produce 30 per cent of its normal output of refined oil "without any aid from the outside."

Production at the great Abadan refinery had come to a standstill after the nationalization of Iran's British-operated industry and the expulsion of British technicians.

Two Red Planes Destroyed, Three Damaged In Korea

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Allied jet pilots today shot down two Russian-made MIG's and damaged three others in the sixth straight day of aerial dog fights over Korea. On the ground U.N. infantrymen advanced in hand-to-hand combat.

The navy reported a United States cruiser and destroyer were hit last week by Red shore fire and one man was killed and six wounded.

The Fifth Air Force said all its jets returned safely from three separate air battles in which 68 allied planes tangled with 121 MIG's.

All told, U.N. fighters sighted between 150 and 160 jets in MIG alley over northwest Korea and near the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. But some of the Reds fled.

United Nations' infantrymen attacked against stiffening resistance northwest of Yonchon in the west and in the area southeast of Kumsong on the central front, an Eighth Army communique said. It was quiet on the eastern front.

Attacking units threw communist defenders off high ground in minor gains in both the west and centre.

The two enemy MIG's were shot down in a five-minute battle in the Sinanju area Friday afternoon.

Three enemy jets were damaged in a noon battle between 24 F-84 Thunderjets and 16 MIG's.

In Tokyo, Far East naval headquarters announced two American warships suffered battle damage from Red shore batteries but both remained at their stations.

The Destroyer escort Ulvert M. Moore was hit by one shell Oct. 17 off Hungnam on the Korean east coast. One man was killed and two injured. The heavy cruiser Helena's superstructure was hit Oct. 22 and four crew members were slightly wounded.

In the air Thursday, allied fighters and bombers dealt a smashing blow to communist rail transport.

The Fifth Air Force said a record 36 locomotives and 289 rail cars were destroyed or damaged in a series of raids in the northwest.

Stepped-up daytime activity of communist planes sent U.S. B-29 Superforts on night raids of Red airfields at Namsi and Saamchan in northwest Korea Thursday.

Before dark Thursday, United Nations' and communist jets flashed into aerial combat for the fifth straight day. The Fifth Air Force said one Russain made MIG was damaged.

No allied losses were reported in the air fight, but ground fire downed one U.S. plane.

In new ground fighting northwest of Yonchon, the Eighth Army said, U.N. forces fought for control of hilly terrain. Red defenders threw heavy machine-gun and automatic-weapons fire at the allied attackers who closed to hand-grenade range.

Munsan, Korea, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The allies today quickly rejected a communist buffer-zone proposal that the United Nations give up such bitterly-won Korean areas as Heartbreak Ridge, the Punchbowl and the iron triangle.

The Reds wanted U.N. forces to withdraw as much as 15 miles. Their proposal countered yesterday's U.N. suggestion for a buffer zone generally along present battle lines.

Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes told the Reds their proposal bore "no relationship to the military line of contact and did not offer truce protections."

The Red offer and U.N. rejection came at the second meeting of subcommittee trying to agree on a cease-fire line. The meetings are held at Panmunjom.

Prince And Princess Receive Variety Of Gifts For Children

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 26—(CP)—It should be just like Christmas around Clarence House when Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip get home late in November. They've got all kinds of things for little Prince Charlie and his one-year-old sister.

An Indian suit, a cowboy suit, baseball bat, even some maple sugar are among the surprises in store for the young Prince who is not quite three.

There are bunny blankets and moccasins for Princess Anne. And miniature farm implements. The toys—in a steel box—actually are for both youngsters. They are from the children of Swift Current, Sask., and were presented to Princess Elizabeth when she visited there Oct. 17.

Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton gave their Royal Highnesses maple sugar to take back to their children. It was encased in a box of bird's-eye maple.

Princess Anne's bunny blankets also came from Ottawa. They are spun from Canadian wool and bear Royal infancy's coronet.

And just wait until Prince Charles sees that Indian suit! It was given to his mother when she visited Calgary. The buckskin coat was made by the Blackfoot tribe and the chaps by the Bloods. The Peigans fashioned the gauntlets and the Sarcees the buckskin moccasins. There even is a porcupine headdress made by the Stony Indians.

The cowboy outfit also came from Calgary. It includes a big hat, silk tie and a gun-belt complete with pistol.

A baseball bat also will be among Prince Charles' presents, the gift of the children of Chatham, Ont. Both he and Princess Anne also will receive moccasins of caribou hide, made in Saskatchewan.

The Princess and her husband will also have souvenirs of their own. Jewelry and paintings, books and a telephone, are among the gifts they have received so far.

The telephone came from Brantford, Ont., home town of the inventor of that instrument, Alexander Graham Bell. The books include a leather-bound copy of the history of Hull, Que., presented by that city.

Toronto's gift was six sketches of Ontario at different seasons of the year. There also was a diamond-studded brooch for the Princess and matching cuff-links for her husband.

Furnishings for Clarence House include a sterling silver punch bowl from Vancouver. When the Princess visits Rimouski, Que., Nov. 5 she will receive a pottery vase.

There are the practical gifts. Canadian dollars to be turned over to British charity. Some of these have come from centres helped by Britain during crises. From Manitoba, where flood-torn Winnipeg received British help in the spring of 1950 came a cheque for $5,000.

Regina gave a voucher for 500 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat or its cash equivalent. Apple-growers around St. Thomas, Ont., have forwarded a hamper of MacIntosh Reds and Cortland to Clarence House. Residents of Salmon Arm, B.C., contributed a cheese wrapped in gold foil and tied with purple ribbon.

Finally, there have been gifts with a twinkle in the eye—such as the green and white polka-dot bow-tie Prince Philip received at Windsor, Ont., from Governor Mennen Williams of Michigan, who likes to wear bow-ties himself.

Tax Increases Will Help Finance Old Age Pensions

Ottawa, Oct. 26—(CP)—Personal income and corporation taxes are to be increased to help finance pensions of $40 a month for Canada's 700,000 citizens 70 and over.

Finance Minister Abbott yesterday announced these changes in the Commons to pay for the pensions, expected to cost $330,000,000 in 1952-53—the first full year of operation:

1. A special two-per-cent levy on taxable income to begin July 1 next, with a limit of $60 a year on the amount any one taxpayer will be asked to contribute. This is expected to yield about $95,000,000 a year.

2. Another two-per-cent levy on corporation profits—with no limit—beginning Jan. 1 next. This is expected to yield $65,000,000 a year.

3. Starting next Jan. 1 two per cent of the 10-per-cent sales tax will be diverted to the pensioners fund. This is expected to provide $145,000,000 a year.

The total yield of between $300,000,000 and $310,000,000 will be paid into a special old-age security fund. The government will advance loans to the fund when necessary, but it is expected that the fund will eventually become self-supporting.

Mr. Abbott spoke after Health Minister Martin had introduced the legislation under which the pensions will be paid to everyone 70 and over, regardless of means, provided they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. A resolution to the pensions bill was adopted and the bill itself was introduced and given first reading.

Mr. Martin disclosed that close to 500,000 of an estimated 700,000 Canadians have already qualified for the pension, which starts in January.

Spokesmen for the three opposition groups unanimously endorsed the proposals in principle, but said higher payments were desirable. The method of financing the program also was criticized.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said the pension was too small and should be increased to at least $50 or $60 and there should be no limit on the annual contributions of those in the high income tax brackets.

F. D. Shaw (SC—Red Deer) said many members felt that $40 a month was not enough but had supported it because they were convinced that the government would not have supported a higher figure.

Alongside the program for those 70 and over will be a federal-provincial plan under which $40-a-month pensions will be paid to the needy between 65 and 69 in those provinces which conclude agreements with the federal government. The payments are also scheduled to start next January.

Mr. Abbott said the total cost of the old-age security program, including the federal government's share of assistance to the 65-69 group, will be $365,000,000 a year — $1,000,000 a day.

An estimated 2,500,000 taxpayers—half of the country's labor force—will contribute to the pensions through the new levy of two-percent on taxable income in addition to the share they pay through the sales tax.

Over a full year, the man with a taxable income of $1,000 will pay $20 over and above his normal income tax for social-security purposes; the man with a taxable income of $2,000 will pay $40, and the man with a taxable income of $3,000 will pay $60—the limit.

Mr. Abbott said the income-tax levy will not become effective until next July because he plans to drop the 20-per-cent defence surtax, imposed last spring, and to set the basic income tax rate "as appears to be necessary in the light of the situation next spring." He also plans to drop a 20-per-cent defence surtax on corporation profits of more than $10,000 and fix the rate at whatever appears necessary.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

MELDING RULE IS VERY IMPORTANT

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Many canasta players still have trouble with the rule about making two melds in the same rank. Perhaps the difficulty is that the rule goes one way in Canasta and the opposite way in Samba (three-pack Canasta).

Let's take Canasta first. You're not allowed to make two melds in the same rank. For example, you may not put down a meld of three kings and then another meld of three kings. If you do so by mistake, the two melds must be joined together.

Sometimes there's a real rhubarb over this type of meld. A player needs 120 points for his first meld and tries to put down K-K-2-2 and another meld of K-K-2-2. He is told that this meld is impossible and that he must join the two melds.

Then he discovers that the melds cannot be joined because they would then form a canasta with more than three wild cards. It seems that there's nothing left for the poor player to do but to climb up to the roof and jump off.

Actually there's a less drastic solution. The player may put down some natural pair to accompany one of the deuces. If he cannot do that, he must pick up the whole meld as an insufficient meld. In that case, his side needs 130 points for its initial meld.

Another problem sometimes comes up in this connection. You meld four kings and three wild cards, making a canasta. Later on in the same hand you acquire the other four kings and three more wild cards. Can you make a second canasta of kings? No. You may add the kings to your canasta, but you must find some other way to make use of your three wild cards.

The rule is exactly the opposite at Samba. Since that game is played with three decks (and six jokers), you have twelve cards in each rank. You are allowed to make more than one meld in the same rank in this three-pack game.

Mind you, even in Samba you wouldn't put down two separate three-card or four-card melds of the same rank. That would just be silly. However, once you have completed a canasta in Samba, you may start a new meld in that rank; and you may even complete a second canasta.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

SOME HOLLYWOOD 'INCIDENTS' DON'T GET INTO HEADLINES

Hollywood — Exclusively Yours: Vic Mature and his wife just missed making the headlines when a stranger at another table in a Hollywood eatery objected to Vic's language. The star's friends kept the fight from getting beyond the grabbed-lapels stage. There's a howl in a letter sent to George Stevens by a Fitchburg, Mass., theater owner. Discussing "A Place in the Sun," the showman wrote:

"Next time you make a picture like this, have Montgomery Clift kill the society dame instead of the factory girl—goes over better with these milltown audiences."

No More "Strombolis"

The leak out of her attorney's corner is that Ingrid Bergman is undecided on whether she'll star for hubby Roberto R. in "Europe —1951," despite the drum-pounding from Italy. Dr. C. Ritchie Bell Is Inducted As Professor At Presbyterian College

Montreal, Oct. 26—(CP)—Very Rev. Dr. C. Ritchie Bell, former Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said last night the contemporary pulpit would undergo a revolution if ministers realized that the starting point of their preaching is "the historic word of God."

And this must be brought before the people freshly and relevantly, he said in his inaugural lecture on "Preaching and the contemporary scene" following his induction by the Presbytery of Montreal as professor of pastoral theology and homiletics at the Presbyterian college.

Very Rev. Dr. Malcolm A. Campbell, Minister of First Church and a former Moderator, gave the charge to Dr. Bell and Rev. J. S. McBride, Moderator of the Presbytery, presided and conducted the induction.

"The emphasis of contemporary preaching is nearly always on what man must do to avoid worries and fears, to achieve peace in his own soul and between nations," Dr. Bell said. "It is a message of human efforts, not of God's all-sufficient grace.

"This is a tragic consequence of the blurring of the word 'Christian' by forgetting its destinctive meaning . . ."

"One of the most unfortunate things about so many preachers who fancy themselves to be remarkable prophets is the meanness of spirit which characterizes them.

"They are so censorious in their approach that the people, even if persuaded intellectualy of the minister's correctness, may be emotionally so anatogonised by his manner that they will not follow him . . .

"Let us be done with the many questions with which we spice our sermons which is only an attempt to show people our erudition . . ."

Dr. Bell is a native of Sherbrooke and was educated at local schools and at Bishop's University.

Knowlton Pupils Exchange Farm Ideas In Vermont

Knowlton, Oct. 26 — Twenty-three students from Knowlton High School visited their counterparts in North Troy, Vt., and participated in a supervised farming project under the guidance of agricultural specialist Stanley Hardacker, of Knowlton, and Mr. Haynes, of the North Troy Vocational School.

The Knowlton students left from the Brome Central School by bus and on arrival at North Troy walked into a regular class discussion under instructor Haynes, the discussion centered about a supervised farming program account book. The main theme of supervised farming program account book. The main theme of supervised farming is that a pupil plans a practical project in school and then carries it into practice on his or her own farm.

Some of the farm boys in the North Troy area have such productive enterprises as chickens, calves, cattle, and orchard husbandry. They have also pursued supplementary farming units such as growing grain, to feed their chickens and livestock, improving their pastures to help on the dairy end of the farm.

After a study of methods the students boarded the bus to see one of the best projects actually carried out by one of the North Troy seniors. This boy, Leo Limoges, had a two way productive project under way in Holstein calves and Hybrid hens. He also had two supplementary set ups in improved pasture for his calves, and grain growing for his hens. He started his herd as a freshman, and now as a senior has the best herd of its kind in Supervised Farming in the State of Vermont. The boys and girls from Knowlton were equally impressed with his fine flock of poultry.

The students boarded the bus to go back to the Vocational School for a brief lecture and shop-conducted tour and then left for Knowlton. They arrived back at three-thirty just in time to catch their own bus home. The trip was arranged by Mr. J. E. Perry Supervisor principal for the Brome Central Board.

Hardboard Plants Grow To Utilize Wood Waste

Portland, Ore.—(NEA)—A new wood products industry is springing up in the Pacific Northwest, in the heart of the nation's largest virgin forests. Wood waste is being turned into usable sheets of hardboard.

By early next year, a string of seven new hardboard plants, costing well over $15,000,000, will be in operation. It's the biggest thing in lumber since the advent of the Douglas fir plywood industry more than 25 years ago.

Hardboard is another answer to the timberman's continual search for new uses for wood waste. It is what the name implies. Wood waste is chewed up until it has lost its original cell structure and then pressed into boards under terrific pressure and heat. The result is a board of metal-hard surface.

The seven new plants, plus others now in the organizational stage, will turn out 850,000 square feet daily. That means that the nation's supply of hardboard will rise by nearly 40 per cent.

* * *

Hardboard has many uses. In homes, it makes ceilings in attics, floors and cabinets. The automobile industry uses it for shelves over spare tires and backs of bus seats. Furniture makers use the material for everything from table tops to drawer bottoms.

It wasn't until 1948 that a foot of hardboard was made west of the Mississippi. The first hardboard was made at Laurel, Miss. There are other plants in the midwest and the south now, and two already operating in Oregon.

Sawmills and plywood companies are getting into the act. At Longview, Wash., the big Long-Bell Lumber Co. will press its waste wood into hardboard. At Lebanon, Ore., the large Cascades Plywood Co. will utilize wood shavings.

The trend in this area toward hardboard wasn't an overnight decision. Since its organization in 1945, the Plywood Research Foundation at Tacoma, Wash., has been testing the material. The research has shown sawmills and plywood plants that they can use virtually everything that comes from a high-priced log. Scrap wood sold to a pulp mill might bring only $5 to $6.50 per ton; the same amount of wood chewed up and dressed into hardboard will return $18 to $20.

The general process of making hardboard is similar to that used in paper making. After the wood waste has been reduced to chips, it is heated and pulped, and resin and other chemicals are added. This wet mixture is spread on a blanket and a vacuum under the blanket sucks the water from the fibres while they are en route to the press. The heat and pressure are so great that a two-inch-thick wet pulpy blanket is reduced down to a quarter-inch-thick panel of hardboard.

"Hardboard," says one lumberman, "could be as common as plywood one of these days." Hardly a week passes that some new company isn't formed, with plans announced for a new hardboard plant. It's the latest in wood utilization.

Armstrong Here Tuesday

The kid whose real name was Louis Armstrong was nicknamed Satchel Mouth because of his big mouth. Armstrong shortened this himself to Satchmo and Satchmo he has been ever since.

He was born in New Orleans so it isn't strange that he got the jazz fever as a child. He has played on river boats, in theatre bands, night clubs, big combos, little combos and has been the undisputed King of Jazz Trumpeters for years. This is not only true in this country but the world over.

On his last trip to Europe everywhere he appeared he had to play until the lights went out. Louis Armstrong and his All Stars will appear at the Granada Theatre next Tuesday.

Windsor Mills Air Field Is Leased By Government To Civilian Firm

Windsor Mills, Oct. 26. — This Eastern Townships centre will occupy a more important place in international aviation affairs in the future, becoming a customs port of entry for airborne traffic, as a result of a transaction which will see its airfield operated by business interests as a public airport. Situated a short distance from Sherbrooke, and built during the early days of the war to serve as an elementary flying training school for the Royal Canadian Air Force, the field has been maintained during the postwar years by the Department of Transport, experiencing a limited amount of activity.

With effect today, it will be leased by the Department of Transport to the Babb Company (Canada) Limited, internationally known dealers in aircraft and spare parts, who will operate it as a civilian field, and use for their own purposes the excellent hangar space available. The Babb Company has been requested by the Customs Department to provide an office on the field to serve as a customs port of entry.

"With civilian flying on the increase, and many companies making wider use of personal aircraft, the customs move is considered a long forward step in serving the Eastern Townships area," declared Cheston M. Newhall, Babb vice-president and general manager. "Heretofore, air travellers headed for this field from the United States had to first proceed to Montreal for customs formalities, before backtracking some eighty odd air miles to Windsor Mills."

In addition to Sherbrooke, this airport serves such growing industrial communities as Magog, Asbestos, Thetford Mines, Richmond, and other centres which have wide business dealings with United States firms.

J. L. Lavoie, who was with the Department of Transport at Windsor Mills, will remain here in the capacity of airport manager for the new tenants. Already a number of Cornell elementary trainers have been stored at the field.

The news of the transaction was warmly welcomed in Sherbrooke by Mayor Charles B. Howard who for many years has been fighting for the improvement of aviation facilities in the Sherbrooke area.

"This deal with the Babb Company," he said, "appears the best possible move for the expansion of air traffic in this district aside from the enlargement and improvement of the field by the Department of Transport itself.

"The establishment of a customs port of entry should materially facilitate the use of the Windsor Mills airport by United States residents who desire to visit the Eastern Townships by plane, with especial advantages for the travellers from the New England states.

"It is to be hoped that the Department of Transport will see fit early modernization of landing facilities at the St. Francois port to permit the landing of heavier planes than is now possible."

Concluding the mayor suggested that the official name of the port be changed to the Windsor Mills-Sherbrooke airport.

THE REDS STILL STALLING

Despite optimism over the resumption of peace talks in Korea, prospects for a settlement can hardly be described as bright. Russian rejection of the United States effort to break the impasse at the Moscow level inevitably casts a pall over negotiations.

Up to now, the feeling in official quarters has been that a bitter logic of compulsion has brought the Communists back to the council table again and again, when it appeared all hope of further discussion was lost.

The elements of compulsion were seen to be these:

Heavy Communist losses in the field over more than a year's time.

Inability of the Chinese and North Korean Reds to win from Russia enough new armor and other material to provide the punch for another offensive.

The prospect of shivering out another cruel Korean winter with forces certain to be severely decimated by cold and disease.

These elements still must be working their powerful logic on the Communist high command. Yet the Reds' performance at Kaesong and Panmunjom shows little sign they are ready for the only kind of settlement the military realities will allow.

General Ridgway has recently informed them in plain words that each day's delay costs them territory, for as our soldiers advance they take the truce line with them. UN forces today are four to 15 miles beyond their line of Aug. 23, last day of real negotiations.

But even this knowledge has made no substantial dent. Current optimism is over getting around the table again—not over any concrete proposals for settlement. The truth is no progress at all has been made toward that objective, and we must at least entertain the thought that the Reds intend no settlement we could accept.

At the start they may have been misled by early official U. S. declarations that a ceasefire along the 38th parallel might be satisfactory. Foreign Minister Vishinsky's reply to U.S. Moscow overtures indicates the Reds still think in those terms.

Apparently they were upset by allied determination to take the truce line with us as we advanced, and to seek a line more defensible militarily than the 38th parallel.

It must be remembered that never in postwar history have Communists been asked to yield land they held before an aggression began. This is something they have never had to swallow. Despite harsh battlefield realities, they haven't yet been able to digest this.

To settle at the 38th would permit them to claim they had "repelled the Western invader bent on conquering North Korea." They could gloss over their failure to win their own goal—South Korea. But they could not gloss over the presence of a potent enemy force 20 to 30 miles inside territory they once called their own.

That is their dilemma. They are meeting it by stalling, by going through truce-talk motions which tend to deflect attention from the battlefield and to water down firmer military resolve on our part. They may well be playing by ear, improvising as they go, hoping something will turn up to give them the break they need.

The question before the United Nations is how long it will permit this fragile device to assist the Communists. If we do not have within the next month or so unmistakable evidence that the Reds are negotiating seriously, we might well consider that the time is at hand for more vigorous prosecution of the war. In war there are some things even a Communist may be brought to accept. And the peril of irreversible defeat is one.

FINANCING THE OLD AGE PENSIONS

One strong feature of the federal government proposals for financing the universal old age pensions as announced by Finance Minister Douglas Abbott in the House of Commons yesterday is that the cost of the plan is to be met by special direct taxation. This answers the fears expressed by many economists that the Government would seek to pay the pensions out of the steadily-growing surplus now accumulating in the national treasury as a result of the tax increases contained in the last budget. The imposition of a special two per cent income tax is a token notice to the taxpayers of Canada that the pensions payments are not a gift from the government but rather must be met out of the pockets of the people themselves.

Unfortunately, however, much of the cost will be hidden through indirect taxes, or at least by levies which are not seen by the ultimate recipient of the pensions. The argument of the Minister of Finance that the two per cent sales tax proposed is the fairest measure of taxing on ability to pay might be sound from this particular viewpoint, but its impact is hidden to a great degree by the fact that it is collected at the manufacturer's level and in very few cases is appreciated by the purchaser. Similarly the increased corporation tax is a burden upon the economy of the country for which the government does not have to render account to the individual citizen.

But from an overall viewpoint, the financing proposals appear to be on a strong basis, if the preliminary plans laid down by the Finance Minister are implemented. Despite pressure from certain quarters, who back the something-for-nothing pensions idea, he has resisted the move to have the cost met from the general revenues of the country and has indicated that the new taxes, and that portion of the sales tax to be diverted to the pension fund, will be levied as distinctly social security taxes and that they will be collected on that basis in the future, regardless of the general position of the exchequer.

This will give the taxpayer the opportunity to study and decide whether or not he feels like footing the bills for any future benefits that may be proposed.

TAFT'S HAT IS IN THE RING

Ottawa Journal

It is more than eight months to the Republican convention in Chicago to choose a candidate for the presidency in next year's election, but Senator Taft of Ohio already has made a formal announcement that he will present his name to that grand court of the party.

Senator Taft's ambition to be President, as his father was before him, is no new thing. He sought the convention four years ago, but was beaten by Governor Dewey of New York — who in turn was beaten at the play-off by President Truman. Now Taft is ready to try again.

He did not jump to this decision. A lot of people have been telling him for a long time that he was the only man to beat Truman. To get a more expert and detached opinion Taft sent two of his trusted advisers out into the country — they visited 38 states in seven months and reported back to their principal that he was "the overwhelming and obvious choice" for the Republican nomination, that he could win "an overwhelming victory" in 1952 over, presumably, the President or any other Democrat.

The Senate from Ohio took a week to consider this survey, and then tossed his hat into the ring — not gaily, not with any sense of abandon, but in the decorous Taft way. He listed three main planks in his platform: Opposition to the "socialism" of the New Deal on the home front, criticism of the Truman administration's "fatal mistakes" in foreign policy, and restoration of integrity in government.

Dewey is out of the picture, and Taft could have the nomination for the asking but for the mighty shadow of General Eisenhower which darkens his path. Eisenhower has powerful support too among Republicans — including Dewey and Senator Duff of Pennsylvania — and there is a growing feeling that he would accept the Republican nomination if it were offered him. But, as the New York Herald Tribune puts it, the General "is reluctant to deflate the present buoyant spirit of the North Atlantic Treaty countries by forecasting his own withdrawal as supreme commander," so avoids any definite commitment. Apparently it is Taft's idea, in making so early an announcement of his plan, to line up the largest possible number of convention delegates before the Eisenhower boom is accentuated (if it is) by that gentleman's active intervention in the political scene.

But it is practically certain now that the Republican candidate will be either Taft or Eisenhower. For the Democrats it is clear that if President Truman wants the nomination he can have it, and he declines at this time to state his position. If he prefers to retire to private life at the end of 1952 the Democratic convention will be a free-for-all.

ONE MAN STARTED IT

Fort William Times-Journal

A story which deserves a place in the exciting story of industrial development in Canada is that of Tom Moore of Magog, Quebec. It is the story of a pioneer industrialist who had a vision.

Magog was little better than an Indian village when Alvin Moore opened a little store in the place. To increase his trade, he obtained a steamboat to pick up produce from settlers along the river, produce which he accepted in trade for other goods.

When the boat became inadequate, he organized a company which built the Magog and Waterloo Railway. And to provide more traffic for the railway, he started a cotton and print company.

Forty years later Alvin H. Moore could look back on an amazing change in the community he was instrumental in shaping. The village grew from a population of 200 to more than, 3,000. He saw the opening of banks stores, power plants, lumber mills under his magic touch.

He was not a wealthy man when he died in 1911. He had spent almost all of the great amount of money which passed through his hands in nurturing industries. But his name remains popular in Magog today. Had it not been for his vision and his determination to turn a vision into reality there would be no Dominion Textile Company in Magog now.

Magog is one of several concrete examples in Canada of the benefits which accrue to a community from the initiative, daring and hard work of individuals who accept the opportunity afforded by free enterprise to build up industries which provide incomes and prosperity for hundreds of Canadian citizens.

Glimpses Into The Past

THE ISLAND IN OLD DAYS

October, the golden month of autumn, is leaving us, giving over to November, the sombre month of shorter days of light, and the prelude to winter, when our townships become the white country. The harvest has been garnered in, the trees have denuded themselves of their brilliant leaves and now stand with bare limbs all through the winter, except the sturdy evergreens, true sentinels of the forest. This month is also the time of ploughing the land in readiness for spring planting. Is there a finer autumn scene than a newly ploughed field, the brown earth lying under the bright sun, its furrows true to scale?

If we take a glimpse into the misty past we will see a far different sight for the first comers had to fell trees, burn the stumps and branches, then plough through the rough ground with implements far different from those in use today. But they did it, and farmers of today benefit from their hardy bravery. Perhaps an old time ploughman went to Woodstock, Ont., this autumn where 700 ploughs were on the field with as many men and implements—these far different from those used over a century ago. When you see a young lad with a pair of heavy draught horses turning the turf as regularly as his father you know that the horses know who is holding the reins.

At an annual Match several years ago we noticed a young lad driving a pair of oxen who were making their furrows straight and in good time. Desiring a photo we motioned to Mr. MacDougall who was on the field; he motioned to the lad and the oxen stood quietly, then continued on their portion. And they finished their work at the same time as a pair of horses near by. The lad received a prize and the oxen had their pictures in the paper.

There was an unique annual match that took place on the island in the St. Francis river near Lennoxville. If one mentions the island, some one else will ask: "What island," and learn that the St. Francis has a very fine island right before them. This one of which we will have a glimpse is part of Willowdale Farm on the east side of the river. The island, about midway in the river has twenty-five acres under cultivation, hay and farm vegetables, with a few shrubs and bushes around the edge. There has never been a bridge from mainland to island, the usual way of crossing being the fording place, and here we must be reminded that this is the only ford—so far as is known—in the E. T. During the winter there is a road over which is taken fertilizer for the spring, then in summer the fording place is in use except in high water.

We will take a brief glimpse at the island when a ploughing match was held there by the Sherbrooke Ploughmen's Association. The only way to get across, except by swimming, was in the farm wagon drawn by two sturdy horses, who went back and forth all that day. We wondered if those faithful horses contracted rheumatism? For the match there must be horses, ploughs and other equipment, also over a hundred people, but there must have been a few scows, and fair-sized boats for the double trip of everybody and everything. The ford is about two hundred feet on the east side, and quite shallow most of the summer. Cows go over from the farmland, the collie swims over to tell the cows to come home, and most horses seem willing to ford their way.

Willowdale Farm is one of the historical places in the St. Francis Valley. Early in 1800 Gabriel Caron came as a pioneer farmer. He evidently knew the value of island property for he cleared the island and planted it; he also planted the long row of willows on the roadside, which gave the farm its name. After a time Caron sold to Herbert Bieber, an Englishman who operated the farm and built a fine large house. The next owner was James Parker who introduced pure bred cattle on his farm and induced others to do the same. He was well known as showman in the stock ring and one who worked for general improvement. He passed away in 1919 and in 1920 Beattie Bros. of Leeds, purchased the farm, then a property of 350 acres. Quite recently Beattie Bros. sold to J. A. Patenaude of Montreal. Mr. James Beattie, resident at the farm, explained that the island farmlands were of the best. Willowdale stands today as a monument to man's industry and as evidence of the agricultural wealth of the St. Francis Valley . . .

A few miles up the river, in Ascot, there is another island, in fact there were several in the river. The farmlands were owned by Joseph Rolfe who came to Canada early in 1800. He had a sawmill, and built a barn on the island. There was also a son Joseph, and these Rolfes married into E. T. families. Today they are gone, but the island still remains in the river, adding to the beauty of the river scene at Ascot.

In looking far into the misty past we can see the island in early days when Sherbrooke had many horses, and riders of same. The island was a rendezvous for riders, men and women, but records do not tell how they got there. But it is recorded that the island was a gay place when prancing steeds, men and women in gay attire went there for races and for daily exercise. This, of course, was before the time of the Harkness race course on the hills of East Sherbrooke. Those were the days of handsome horses and men and charming ladies with long veils streaming—ah yes it was a gay place—the island!

DON'T IGNORE ANY OF YOUR PLAYS

Opportunity knocks only once, according to the proverb, but today's hand copied the postman by knocking twice. The trouble was that South was deaf enough to miss both of them.

West opened the king of hearts, and South had his first chance to make his game contract. He should have allowed West to win the first trick.

What would West do next? If he led another heart he would seem to be helping declarer (although it would actually be his best continuation). If he led a trump, to stop dummy from ruffing hearts, dummy would still have the ace of hearts to control that suit. Declarer would draw trumps, try the club finesse, and eventually discard his last heart on one of dummy's clubs.

However, declarer ignored the first knock. He won the first trick with dummy's ace. Now he had a sure-fire play for his contract, but he ignored that too.

Instead, South began at once on the trumps. After drawing three rounds of trumps South took the club finesse. East won with the king of clubs and returned the deuce of hearts. This gave West a count on the suit, since he knew that East had started with exactly four hearts.

Hence West cashed exactly two hearts and then cashed his ace of diamonds. This gave the defenders four tricks, and South could score only his honors.

Do you see the right play at the second trick? Instead of drawing trumps, declarer must lead the queen of clubs from the dummy.

East cannot afford to refuse the trick, of course, and now nothing can stop declarer from making the contract. The defenders can take one diamond and only one heart trick. Dummy's lowly deuce of trumps stops the enemy from taking a second heart. South can regain the lead to draw trumps, and then he can discard his last heart on one of dummy's high clubs.

The Record Short Story

CHERRY FRAPE

By HOLLIS STARNES

The instant she opened the door of actress Cherris Pyne's coop-like room at the old Broadway theatrical Hotel San Pedro, chambermaid Katie Kilfeather spotted the hat. Perched on the bedtable lamp, it gave color and glow to the drab, dismal quarters.

Dropping her sweeper and dustmop, Katie rushed toward the lovely creation with a shout, "Hey Cherry, where's ye get that hat?" But her teen-aged guest, running the shower and practicing vocal scales in the bathroom, didn't hear.

The portly, gray-haired maid examined the hat with awe. It was formed of a single exquisite plume, deftly circled on a small shell-like frame. "'Tis the color o' cherry frappe, like ye get at the sody fountain.

"That's a good one," she chuckled "frappe on top o' pie!" She had christened the tawny-haired singer "Cherry Pie" when first she took a room on the floor.

Suddenly the maid gasped as she peeked at the label, "Glory to God—this must 'a' cost a mint!"

For the milliner's name was world-famous. She'd read of Hollywood stars and millionaires' wives who paid fabulous sums for hats from this place. She raced to the bathroom door, pounding hard. "I said, where'd ye get this hat?"

Vocalizing and swishing water stopped. She heard a girlish giggle, then a dripping beauty, draped in a soggy bathtowel, bounced out and grabbed the hat. "Don't I look like a queen?" she demanded, putting it on.

Katie restrained her titters at the incongruous sight, and started stripping the bed. "I'm askin', where'd ye get it?" It was part of her job, as she saw it, to see that these little young things on her floor were kept out of harm's way—and Broadway wolves' wiles.

Cherry admired the hat in her mirror. "It's a long story, but I'll make it snappy—can't be late for my voice lesson. George got paid last night and—"

"W-what!" the maid looked incredulous. Cherry's current light o' love, a young medical student who earned his keep working in a drug-store off-hours didn't make enough in a month to buy this hat with the famous label.

"Don't keep interrupting! His boss finally forked over $13.80 overtime. So George said, let's blow ourselves and go dancing. After my show we went to a Spanish place in the Village, where the music and food—"

"Get to the hat!" broke in Katie.

Cherry whirled it off, started rummaging for clean underthings in her dresser. "Our table was along the wall. Right next to us was a middle-aged couple. She had on this hat."

"A lid like that calls for a young face," sniffed the maid.

"It looked good on her, though. She'd had a few drinks—anyhow, she seemed friendly. She asked if I'd change hats with her for one dance. Said her husband thought mine looked cute."

"What hat had ye on?"

"That little Juliet cap I made yesterday—from the black velvet ribbon you snitched out of somebody's trash basket. It did look cute when I finished it. Anyhow we swapped. George and I went out on the floor, and danced through two encores. When we came back to our table—the couple had left."

"Left!" Katie choked.

"The waiter said they had an argument, and went home. I told him about the hat. He said a fair exchange was no robbery."

"Fair exchange!" cried the maid. "Swappin' a lid worth a fortune, for a thing I fished out o' the trash!

"'Tis highway robbery! Ye must find out who this woman is, an' get back her hat to her pronto!"

Cherry was headed again for the bath, with an armful of lingerie. "But I know who she is. The waiter told me her husband's name. J. B. Jenks, and they're at the Sherry-Netherland. I gave the waiter my name and address, in case she calls up."

"In case!" thundered Katie. "By now, no tellin' what cockeyed ideas that rich dame's dreamed up, with a hangover. She can claim ye worked a flimflam game on her—land ye in the pokey!"

The girl scoffed, "You would think of something fantastic like that! Well, I'm not running after Mrs. Jenks today—I've got two shows to play, and lessons all morning!"

Katie said, "Then I'll trot it back myself, on the way home from work. By a rare stroke o' luck, 'tis me afternoon off."

Cherry turned on her in the doorway. "All night I kept thinking how much good that hat could do every kid on this floor—for job interviews, heavy dates. To that rich woman a good hat means nothing. To poor kids like us, it means a million in morale!"

She burst into tears, slammed the door. Katie asked herself as she went on bedmaking, "Is the young one right—that hat's more use here than gatherin' moths in some rich old dame's hat box?"

Even so, there was still the matter of principle . . . The hat must go back!

But her mouth was grim, early that afternoon, as she marched through the imposing lounge of the big Fifth Avenue hostelry, and called on a house phone for Mrs. J. B. Jenks.

A woman's voice answered groggily. Katie began, "I brought back the hat ye exchanged last night with a young girl. I'm maid in the hotel she lives at."

Mrs. Jenks seemed flustered. "Why, how did she know who I—well, leave it at the desk, please. But she wants her hat back, I suppose. If you come up—"

"Right away," Katie said briskly, her mind on a signed receipt.

Mrs. Jenks received her in a handsome housecoat, but her eyes were puffed; she still looked like the morning after. "Miss Pyne was sorry she couldn't bring this herself," Katie said, holding out her paper bag.

Absently Mrs. Jenks dropped it on a chair. "Come in and sit down—while I hunt for her hat. Everything's upside down in the bedroom—I'm just starting to pack. My head's bad this morning, J. B.—that's my husband—and I argued all night."

Katie steadied her as they crossed the living room. "I remember now—it was that girl's hat that started the argument!" said Mrs. Jenks. "J. B. thought it looked cute on her—then said I was a sight in it. I got mad and walked out. No matter what I've bought or worn since we came to New York, he acts just the same.

"Says I'm the type for plaid shirts and faded blue dungarees, like I wear on the ranch."

"Could the poor man be homesick?" ventured Katie, sinking onto the sumptuous divan.

"He's downstairs right now, arranging for our railroad transportation home! We came for a month—in five days we're leaving. But I don't mind. I'd better find that girl's hat."

Sitting there alone, Katie's heart sank even lower. This rich woman would have left town without giving a thought to the hat. A floorful of style-conscious kids might have got jobs, caught nice beaux with it on their heads making them feel like a million.

Mrs. Jenks was back with a smart-looking hatbox. "There, I put hers in the box mine came in."

Katie scrambled to her feet. "She certainly thanks ye for lettin' her wears yours last night. Said it hiked her morale up sky high—ye know how kids are about beautiful hats! Well, I'll be on me way. Good luck back on your ranch!"

She was at the door when she heard Mrs. Jenks chuckle. "I can't wear this with dungarees, can I—and if you say that nice little girl likes the hat——"

She was holding out the paper bag. Katie opened her arms for the cherry frappe.

No Solution Sighted In Dock Strike

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Federal mediators have abandoned efforts to end New York's crippling wildcat dock strike, amid claims by insurgent union leaders that the walkout will spread to still more east-coast ports.

The four-man mediation panel returned to Washington last night after top conciliator Clyde M. Mills announced:

"We're giving up . . . this is a dispute which must be resolved within the union. This situation is intolerable and must be ended immediately."

The mediators withdrew after Joseph P. Ray, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (A.F.L.) pulled his non-striker group out of the peace talks, saying:

"We're not getting anywhere. We're leaving."

Strike leader John (Gene) Sampson told reporters:

"That means Philly and Baltimore will be tied up, too."

In Philadelphia last night, four locals voted not to work any ship cargoes diverted there from New York, effective today.

The 12-day-old waterfront walkout has crippled the vast port of New York—including piers in New Jersey—and also has closed down docking operations in Boston.

The port of Albany, N.Y., closed for two days, reopened yesterday after the men voted to return to work.

Union rebels struck over their demand for re-negotiation of a recently - approved wage contract with easth-coast shippers. The contract calls for $2.10 an hour, a 10-cent wage boost. The rebels want a 25-cent hourly raise.

The demand was turned down by Ryan.

Scores of passenger ships and freighters have been diverted to other ports, including Halifax.

Truckers operating between Montreal and New York said last night there has been a considerable increase in shipments to the Canadian city during the last 24 hours.

Truckers said that Montreal harbor will handle perishables tied up in New York and will load them aboard transatlantic ships there. Thus far, no ships have been reported rerouted to Montreal.

U.K. Election

ing his second try for the House of Commons, lost by a narrow margin to Michael Foot, pamphleteer for the Labor party's rebel left wing.

Norman Dodds, re-elected to Parliament as Labor member from Dartford, got down to business in a hurry this morning. He delivered to Parliamentary clerks in London a list of 11 items he wants taken up as soon as the House of Commons convenes.

Three sets of fathers and sons have been elected to the new Parliament thus far. There also are two sets of brothers.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland, "there were thousands doing it," said Elizabeth Brennan, so she and seven other women of Belfast voted in the general election in other people's names.

They were charged with impersonation today and remanded on bail.

In Aylesbury, Buckingham, the election "battle of the giants" was won by the Conservative candidate, Spencer Sumers, who is six feet four inches tall. The Labor candidate, Tony Harman, is six feet six.

A Liberal candidate in London's Kensington North lost his £150 deposit in yesterday's election. His name: A Gamble.

Initial optimism in the stock exchange, following the first election results indicating a Conservative victory, was shortlived.

Industrial and mining share prices advanced by between one shilling and two shillings sixpence when the market opened but these improvements were quickly reduced when dealers found there was insufficient buying to warrant the higher levels.

Market opinion agreed that the election position — pointing to a small Conservative majority—was disappointing and a note of caution became fairly widespread. Most shares fell back to their overnight levels.

Half-time in Britain's election count found the Liberal party taking another financial thrashing in forfeited deposits.

By early today, 37 of the party's 109 candidates lost the £150 deposit all candidates must put up when starting the race. In the 1950 election Liberals lost 314 deposits by the time the count ended.

The deposits, a device to keep out freak candidates, go to the treasury if the candidate fails to poll an eighth of the total vote in his constituency.

The communists, who had only 10 candidates in this election, also took a beating. Up to half-time the treasury had gathered in deposits of six Reds.

Last year the Reds paid generously for risking 100 candidates. Ninety-three lost their deposits, totalling £13,950.

Last year's Liberal forfeitures cost Lloyds—world-famous underwriters—£30,000. In 1950 the party lost £7,500 on the first 50 forfeitures. Lloyds absorbed the next 200 and the party shouldered the remaining 64.

Churchill Returns

Conservatives and allies 299 (including the Speaker who does not vote); Liberals 9 and Irish Nationalists 2. When Parliament was dissolved three weeks ago today the standing was Labor 313; Conservatives and allies 297; Liberals 9, Irish Nationalists 2, independents 1, vacant 3.

It was the razor-edge majority, plus deteriorating economic conditions, which forced Attlee to call the election. The socialists were practically powerless to keep the machinery of government moving in the direction they wanted it to go.

Independent observers expressed belief that Churchill would encounter the same difficulty if the Tory majority was no larger. There has been speculation he might bring some Liberals into his government in order to get the voting support of Liberal members.

The election was mainly fought on a cost-of-living issue, coupled with the undertone of Labor's accusation that the Conservatives were a "war party". Britain's worsening financial position, which many consider the gravest crisis facing the country, was passed over in the campaign for more popular issues.

Labor stated in its pre-election statements that it would try to obtain peace, maintain full employment and increase production, bring down living costs and to build a "just society."

They accused the Conservatives of being the "party of privilege" and said they would levy more taxes and attack monopolies and combines.

The Conservatives promised they would impose an excess profit tax, scrap iron and steel nationalization and stop all further proposals for state ownership; reorganize the publicly-owned rail- and road-transport system on a regional basis; discipline monopolies and fight restrictive practices on both sides of industry.

In foreign affairs the explosive situation in the Middle East came in for much attention. Labor defended its actions in Iran and Egypt where the Conservatives advocated stronger action.

One of the surprises in the first day's count of Labor votes was the success of rebel Aneurin Bevan and four of his principal lieutenants. In addition to the stormy Welshman, who was Labor Minister when he resigned from Attlee's Cabinet earlier this year, Mrs. Barbara Castle, Ian Mikardo, John Freeman and Harold Wilson, former president of the Board of Trade, all were re-elected.

Bevan and his followers left the government in a bitter dispute with Attlee over the costly rearmament program.

Attlee and most of his major aides were re-elected. Attlee was returned with a majority of 11,574 in his east-end London riding Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison was re-elected in London.

The Minister of National Insurance, Dr. Edith Summerskill; Fuel Minister Philip Noel-Baker, Education Minister George Tomlinson, Pensions Minister George Isaacs, and Health Minister Hilary Marquand all won their races. So did Richard Stokes, Lord Privy Seal, and Patrick Gordon-Walker, Secretary for Commonwealth Relations.

Among Conservatives reporting victory today was Brig. Fitzroy MacLean, author of "Eastern Approaches", who parachuted into Yugoslavia during the war to lead a British mission to Marshal Tito.

But he had his majority in Lancaster reduced by attractive Dodo Lees, 31, socialist who nursed French resistance fighters behind the enemy lines in the last war.

The King, recovering from his lung operation of a month ago, heard the results today by radio at Buckingham Palace with the Queen and Princess Margaret. His private secretaries prepared up-to-the-minute analyses of the situation as the day wore on.

Labor ministers and Conservatives counterparts who would replace them continued their run of personal victories. Among successful socialists were Hugh Gaitskell, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Lynn Ungoed-Thomas, solicitor-general, who held his seat in Leicester with an increased majority.

Three top men in the Conservative shadow cabinet who were re-elected were Oliver Lyttleton, R. A. B. Butler and Harold Macmillan.

Butler, minister of education in the wartime coalition government, is regarded in some quarters as an eventual successor to Churchill.

Lyttleton is expected to be chancellor of the exchequer in a trade minister during the war. Conservative government. He was trade minister during the war. Macmillan might be colonial secretary.

Sir Ian Fraser, blind Conservative M.P. for Morecambe and Lonsdale, retained his seat with a majority of more than 17,000 over Labor.

Alice Bacon, miner's daughter who was last year's chairman of the Labor party, was re-elected in northeast Leeds, Yorkshire.

Gaitskell, who succeeded ailing Sir Stafford Cripps as chancellor of the exchequer, won in Leeds South with a majority of more than 14,000.

Labor's first loss of the day—to a Conservative—came in Bedfordshire south where the winning candidate was N. J. Cole.

First "Bevanite" to be elected in today's counting was Jennie Lee, wife of Aneurin Bevan, Rebel Laborite, who was re-elected last night.

Agriculture minister Tom Williams won in the west Yorkshire constituency of Don Valley.

Brig. Anthony Head, possible defence minister under Churchill, swept back in his seat in Carshalton, Surrey.

Another leading Tory to be elected was Robert Boothby in the Scottish highland district of Aberdeenshire East.

Clement Attlee's nephew, 36-year-old Christopher Attlee, failed to upset the Conservative stronghold of Eastbourne. In another family act, Randolph Churchill—son of Winston—failed against a Labor candidate in Plymouth.

The roster of Bevanite followers in the Commons was completed when newspaper columnist Tom Driberg was re-elected.

Attlee's defence minister, blunt-spoken Emanuel Shinwell, held his seat of Easington, Durham, with no trouble.

The victory of Anthony Eden, probably the new foreign secretary, was reported soon after Churchill was re-elected at Woodford.

Capt. Harry Crookshank and Brendan Bracken, also likely Conservative cabinet material, won their seats.

Hugh Dalton, one-time chancellor of the exchequer and Attlee's minister of local government and planning, was re-elected in Durham.

Dingle Foot, brother of Bevanite Michael Foot who defeated the younger Churchill, lost to a Conservative in Cornwall North. Foot is vice-president of the Liberal party.

Lady Megan Lloyd George, Liberal daughter of the first world war Prime Minister, was defeated in the Welsh division of Anglesey by the Labor candidate. She had represented the constituency continuously for 22 years.

War secretary John Strachey was re-elected in his Scottish constituency of Dundee west.

David Eccles, one of the bright young men of the Tory party who is earmarked for a ministerial job, was re-elected in Chippenham, Wiltshire.

Labor seats which fell included Wycombe, which William Waldorf Astor, eldest son of Lady Nancy Astor, first woman to sit in the House of Commons, won for the Tories. He will join his brother, John Jacob Astor, in the new Commons.

John Jacob Astor won the Sutton district of Plymouth for the Conservatives.

Morrison, Richard R. Stokes, the Lord Privy Seal, and Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the Board of Trade.

A husband and wife act met a divided result. Conservative A. A. H. Marlower won at Hove, but his wife, also a Conservative, lost at Brixton.

Two women fought it out in Tynemouth. Conservative Irene Ward defeated Laborite Grace Colman.

BRITISH TIGHTEN GRIP ON SUEZ CANAL — Map below shows the 104-mile course of the vital Suez Canal that Great Britain has bottled up at both ends, pending the outcome of Egypt's efforts to throw out all British armed forces. A British cruiser is on guard at Port Said, two other warships have sealed up the southern terminus at Port Taufiq, tank-supported troops have seized railroad stations outside Suez and troops are pouring in from England and Cyprus to reinforce those that have already cut off the canal zone from the rest of Egypt.

The Suez Canal—"jugular vein of the British Empire"—runs almost due north and south for 104.5 miles from Port Said on the Mediterranean to Port Taufig (Tewfik) on the Gulf of Suez, long, narrow arm of the Red Sea, gateway to the Indies. Built through the vision of the great French engineer, Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, it was started in 1859 and opened in 1869. It is a sea-level canal all the way, without locks. Parallel to the main ship channel is the Sweet Water Canal, originally built when the ship canal was being cut to bring fresh water from the Nile for the thousands of workers doing the digging. This "most important ditch in the world" is not owned by Egypt. It is, in effect, a private toll road, owned by an outside concern, the Suez Canal Company. Great Britain and French businessmen between them hold 96 per cent of the stock. The French wield financial control, but defense of the canal is left almost entirely to British armed forces, based there under a 20-year treaty signed in 1936. It is this treaty that Egypt wants to break and expel the British troops.

Churchill Wins

"No, the Yanks are on top," was flung back from a man in the crowd, whose further words were drowned by angry protests from Churchill supporters.

Churchill, wearing a dark blue overcoat and a white scarf, smiled, gave his famed V-sign, and looked pale and grave as he declared:

"This election has been a model and has maintained the high level of political work which our British tradition embodies.

"We have all felt we have a great deal in common, and now perhaps there may be a lull in our party strife which will enable us to understand more of what is good in our opponents and not be so very clever about each other's shortcomings."

Immediately afterwards Churchill drove back to his London home.

In the evening, British election returns were relayed to them.

The twin cities of Port Alberni and Alberni, 30 miles from the Lodge, had only a few minutes' warning that the Royal couple would pass through on their way to Sproat Falls. Then thousands turned out to line the streets, emptying stores, mills, schools and homes in almost nothing flat.

Philip was at the wheel, driving with one hand and waving with the other as the convertible needled its way through the throng. The Princess wore a mink coat and was hatless, her chestnut hair tossed by the cool autumn breeze.

Earlier, the Royal pair watched timber-topping at Nanoose, 2,000 feet up in the hills.

Back at the Lodge, the Princess rode a mare named Julie while the Duke handled a high-spirited horse called Honey.

PASTURES NEED LIMING . . .

Good pasture is one of the most profitable crops that can be grown—and the acre value often exceeds the income derived from cash crops.

Authorities agree that the first step toward getting good pasture is to apply the needed amount of limestone. Usually some fertilizer also is required.

This combination results in:

More and better forage, less weeds
More milk and meat from each acre
More grazing, less barn feeding
More profits, lower production costs

Don't wait—start now to increase your pasture income by using our agricultural limestone.

Three Canucks In London Run Of Gotham Hit

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London. — When the Broadway hit "South Pacific" opens its London run next month in Drury Lane's Theatre Royal, American singing star Mary Martin will have three Canadians to help her make it a success.

They are Calgary-born John McLaren, Ray Buckingham of Ottawa and Bill Nagy of Hamilton, Ont.

Biggest part of the three goes to slim, dark John McLaren who plays one of the four male leads—a United States naval officer called William Harbison.

McLaren came to London in 1940 with the Canadian army and ever since he's been tied up with British films, stage and radio. In fact, he got himself a two-year leave from the army to play "A Canadian Soldier Named Bill" in a British wartime radio program called "Front-line Family."

Ray and Bill, on the other hand, start with small supporting roles. Thirty-year-old Bill, however, is understudying the male comedy lead played by American Ray Walston, and hopes to take over the part in about six months.

At the moment, Nagy and Buckingham, who is 22, play seamen—but with something of a difference. Ray, who came here 3½ years ago as the juvenile lead in "Golden City," is using his bass voice in a character role. Bill plays a typical naval comedian nicknamed "Stewpot."

The three Canadians have one other thing in common. They all like the British stage well enough to want to stay in Britain. The veteran resident is McLaren, who was demobilized in London and decided to stay. He has continued in radio and had film parts in "Man From Morocco," "Calling Paul Temple" and "Poet's Pub." His stage successes include the part of the Yank in Fifth Shepherd's "Hasty Heart." He has also played with American film star Joseph Calleia in "All My Sons."

Bill Nagy arrived in 1949 with the cast of the American play "Death of a Salesman," starring Paul Muni.

Word of "South Pacific's" tremendous success on Broadway has seeped through to London and opening night Nov. 1 is eagerly awaited.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on 'nerves'—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 136

High School Annual Commencement Was Held Recently At Waterloo

Waterloo, Oct. 26. — The Waterloo High School Annual Commencement was held in the school auditorium recently. Opening with "O Canada," Rev. E. D. Mitchell followed with a short prayer. The chairman of the school board, Mr. Robert Flood, then introduced the commissioners and distinguished guests which included Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth P. Greenaway of Montreal, Mr. Charles Slack, Dr. M. Katz, Mr. Jack Court, Mrs. Dorothy Adam, Mrs. Roger McKergow, Rev. E. D. Mitchell and the commissioners, Messrs. Orval Lewis, Wesley Parkes, A. J. Buckland, G. E. Hanson, the secretary-treasurer of the board and Mr. Flood, the chairman.

In his opening remarks the chairman commented on the excellent teaching staff under the direction of Mr. O. T. Pickford, principal. Also of how fortunate the parents and pupils were in Waterloo to be able to attend such a fine school. He asked especially for the co-operation of parents, students and teachers in making the task of every one easier. He called upon Mr. Pickford who presented an excellent talk on "A Few Components of a Well Run School." Among these components was the co-operation between teachers and students, without which no school can boast complete, sound organization. Mr. Pickford also stressed the importance of household science as well as manual training for the student's benefits today. He asked that they take full advantage of all the modern equipment placed at their disposal in the school.

The glee club under the capable leadership of Miss Margaret Hamilton was asked to sing three numbers, which were "Thanksgiving Prayer," "Caller Herrin'" and "Little David." Mrs. Bob Nugent was piano accompanist.

The first group of prizes was then distributed to grades eight and nine. Mr. Lewis made the presentation of the book prizes to the following students in grade eight: Shirley Maynes, Leslie Hanson and Beverley Hallam, while Mr. Parkes presented the prizes to the grade nine students as follows: Janet Chapman, Dorothy Fisk and Barbara Marcotte.

The special prizes consisted of the Slack Bros. award for the highest in English Literature and composition, the $15.00 prize going to Marlene Rosburg, and this was sent direct to Marlene as she is no longer a student of this school. The Macdonald Metals & Plastics award in grade 9 of $15.00 for first and $10.00 for second in mathematics went to Janet Chapman with 95.8% and Everett Arnott with 93.0%. The Slack Bros. award in grade 9 went to Dorothy Fisk with 93%.

Mr. Buckland was called upon to introduce the guest speaker, who is no stranger to many people in Waterloo having spoken before the Kiwanis Club as the Lieut. Governor of the O.Q.M. District. Mr. Greenaway, who is a businessman of Montreal and well qualified to speak to such a group, presented his topic, "Flags." The first flag was the flag of youth's responsibility. The flag of responsibility is today way out ahead of civilization, and the job of bringing civilization up to the standard of responsibility rests on the shoulders of youth." It is your job, the speaker insisted, to see that civilization goes forward today, tomorrow and on. Do not shirk this duty." The second flag was that of Democracy. To see that this Democracy which we have grown to know and love flourishes is just another job for the youth of today to attend to. "If we let Democracy down," Mr. Greenaway said "we will lose life itself." The third flag of love reaches all. To love thy neighbor is not only a mere saying, it is a commandment. It is not the puppy love of youth of which he was speaking, it was the ability of living in accord with one another —living in peace and harmony. The fourth flag was the flag of religion, the ability of worshipping God in the church we choose, the desire to serve God, and the knowledge of realizing what the church means to you. Mr. Greenaway's address was humerous, hilarious in places, and yet the message it brought to all who were fortunate enough to hear him will not soon be forgotten.

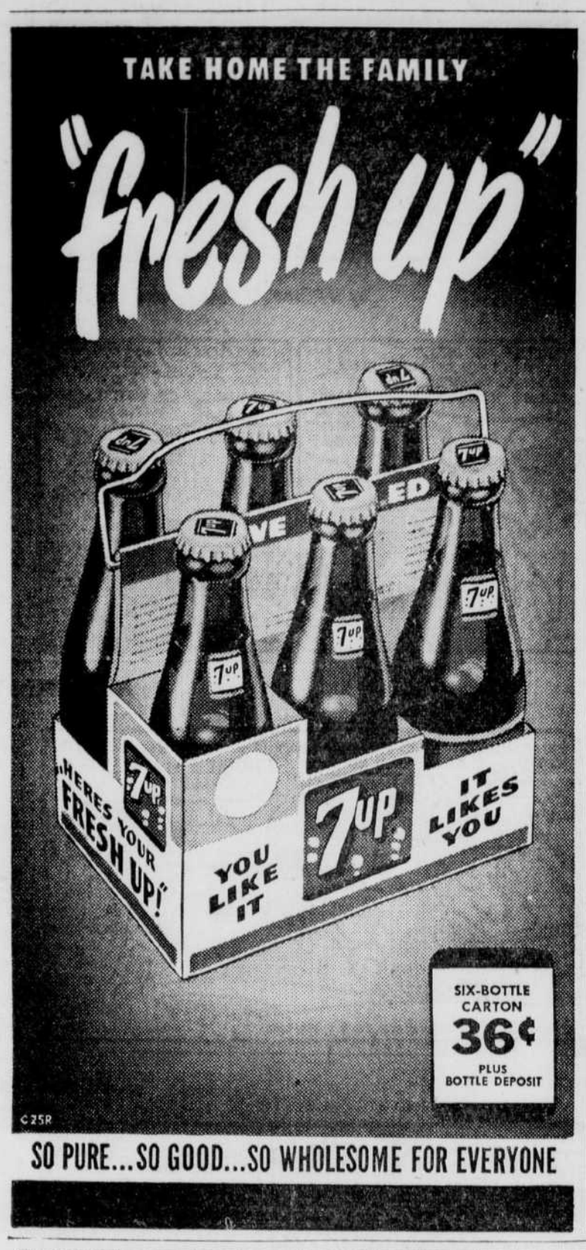

The glee club then sang its final group of two numbers, entitled "Without a Song" and "One World." This group of girls show to great advantage the untiring efforts of their teacher, Miss Hamilton. Singing beautifully in three part harmony the glee club did a wonderful job, especially in One World, which is a difficult number to put over. This they did in professional fashion, and much credit is due indeed to their teacher. The following prizes were awarded.

Mr. Greenaway presented the certificates in grades ten and eleven to the following students: First class, grade ten, Rosemary Martin; second class, Roy Atkins; Jean Maynes, Rita Neilson. Miss Neilson was given her certificate in the third class group due to an error, and attention is called to this fact. Third class, Anne Brown, Roger Burnham, Shirley Hallam, Doris Hanna, Shirley Ledoux, Irene McElroy, Juliette Tetreault, Betty Thompson. In grade eleven, Rita Noble, Gerald Martin and Hilaire Campbell. The book prizes, presented by Mr. Charles Ritchie who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Greenaway from Montreal, to the grade ten students went to Rosemary Martin, Jean Maynes and Roy Atkins. The grade eleven book prizes were presented by Mrs. Greenaway to Hilaire Campbell, Rita Noble and Gerald Martin.

The special prizes in grades ten and eleven were distributed as follows: Dr. M. Katz Award for General Proficiency in grade ten of $20.00 went to Rosemary Martin. The Adam Lumber Award of $15 in Grade ten for French was donated by Mrs. Adam to Jean Maynes, and Mr. Hector Choquette, M.L.A. Shefford donated a special $10 prize in grade ten for second place going to Rosemary Martin. This was presented by Mr. Flood on behalf of Mr. Choquette. The Macdonald Metals Award in Mathematics of $20.00 for first and $15.00 for second in grade ten was presented by Mr. Court to Irene McElroy with 86% and Shirley Hallam with 80%. Slack Bros., Award of $15.00 for English Literature and Composition in grade ten went to Rosemary Martin with 84% and was donated by Mr. C. W. Slack. Beaver Chapter No. 7, Order of the Eastern Star presented a special award for first in social studies in grade 10 of $15 and this likewise went to Rosemary Martin, and was presented by Mrs. Rober McKergow. The Singer Sewing Machine Co. presented a book award to the pupil showing the most progress in sewing in grades 10 and 11, and this presentation was made by Mrs. Greenaway to Rita Noble of grade 11.

Rita Noble of grade 11 was then called forward to deliver the valedictory, in which she thanked the teachers, the students, parents and friends for helping the graduating class get through school, and it would be always with happy thoughts with which they remembered their years at the old Waterloo High. Mr. Parkes was asked to thank Mr. Greenaway for not only his outstanding talk, but for coming and bringing his wife and Mr. Ritchie, who was also very well known throughout Waterloo. Rev. Mitchell closed with benediction. During the proceedings of the evening the chairman asked a student of grade eleven to stand, in the person of Carl Mann who is here from Matepedia. Carl received this year a valuable scholarship from the Women's Institute of the Gaspe Coast for outstanding work in grade ten and the past year he received a scholarship from the Gaspian Sulphate Company for obtaining the highest average in grade nine of any pupil in the Gaspe Coast.

Following the program, a delightful dance was held in the gymnasium and a buffet lunch was provided for all present by the school board and was served by the teachers.

The Children's Corner

Ex-Majorette Now Sings

BY JOEY SASSO

We had just seen "Kiss Me Kate" for the third time when we met the comedy star of the show backstage. Finally, she bounced, with a throaty "Hi" and a big toothy grin and a wave of her long arms. It's practically impossible to put Lisa Kirk's personality on paper. She's vivacious, friendly, alert, and full of drive. We could sense the dynamite that helps put her songs over with such a bang, the minute she breezed up.

While she busied herself removing greasepaint and bobby pins, we fired questions at her. We were curious to know how one mere girl could play the lead in a Broadway hit show, guest star on dozens of top radio and TV shows, sandwich in recording sessions with RCA Victor, pose for photographs for magazines like Esquire, sing every night at the Persian Room and bring in such crowds that her engagement was extended. Did she possess a super-secret vitamin pill? Lisa's huge brown eyes got even wider and in an innocent voice she said, "Oh, but I'm not doing nearly as much as I want to. As soon as I organize my time a little better, I'm going to take flying lessons, and do lots more reading and studying. I want to improve myself!"

Maybe that's the secret of her enormous enormous energy. She wants to improve herself! And until she's "improved" she'll be going like wild fire. Lisa, who is five feet seven tall would rather talk about her talented hubby than anything else. Robert Wells is the lyricist who penned such hits as "The Christmas Song," "County Fair," "What's My Name," "Speak A Word Of Love," and "Ask Me No Questions." He and Lisa were married on April 17, 1949. They live in a tastefully-furnished apartment in midtown Manhattan, and the auburn-haired song-bird-comedienne is still as bubbly and in love as a mint-new bride.

Here career on the stage came about through a miracle of fate. Although Lisa had studied tap and ballet since she was a babe of three, and had her own radio song show while still in school, her ultimate goal was to be a woman lawyer.

• • •

LISA, who was born in Brownsville, Pa., on Feb. 25, 1926, was a busy girl all through Charleroi high school. She did debating, was a drum majorette, edited the school newspaper, and played basketball. After her graduation in 1943, Lisa decided to have a nice thrilling vacation in New York before submerging into law text books in the Fall.

Once in the Big City, she hung her hat at the Rehearsal Club, and got so wrapped up in show business that she never did go to law school. Instead, Lisa got a job as showgirl and between shows she sang with a band and starred in her own radio show. What a dynamo!

Next came "the boards" and such Broadway shows as "Good Night Ladies," "Are You With It?" and "Allegro." At the same time she was telling herself "The Gentleman Is A Dope," in the latter musical, she was doubling into the Copacabana. It was there that Cole Porter saw her and decided she was the gal for "Kiss Me Kate."

He made a good choice. "Always True To You In My Fashion" and "Why Can't You Behave" seem to have been written for her. She certainly packs a wallop with them. Maybe it's because she has a good pair of lungs and loves to throw herself around and dance and act when she's doing a song.

• • •

OR maybe it's because of an intangible something that Lisa has. She's one-third laughter and two-thirds T.N.T. And if you hid her behind a screen and told her to sing, she'd still pack a wallop. Lisa's that kind of gal.

The song with which Shirley Booth stops the show nightly in the new musical success, "A Tree Grows In Brooklyn," is performed on RCA Victor by Lisa Kirk, who herself stops shows. "Love Is The Reason," one of the best ingredients of the Arthur Schwartz-Dorothy Fields score, serves as an instrument for a duet-with-her self by Lisa. She does a variation on the vocal trend so popular now by singing the harmony as counterpoint and getting a contagious fugue effect. In contrast to the sprightly "Love Is The Reason," the coupling "Sad And Lonely" has a lingering-tempoed lilt with the pensive quality of "Beautiful Brown Eyes," a recent Kirk cutting. If Lisa pours a little extra heart into it, that's possibly for sentimental reasons—tune was penned by her spouse, songwriter Bob Wells. A chorus assists her on this side along with the orchestral accompaniment.

Lecture Given For Home, School At Bedford

Bedford, Oct. 26.—At the Bedford High School a very interesting lecture sponsored by the local Home and School Association of the High School was given by Mrs. G. B. McLeod, of the Canadian Handicrafts Guild of Montreal. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Malcolm McCaw, who stated that Mrs. McLeod was a native of Prince Edward Island and a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass. For a number of years Mrs. McLeod has been connected with the Canadian Handicrafts Guild in judging handicrafts, her specialty being rugs and quilts.

In her opening remarks Mrs. McLeod gave a brief outline of the purposes for which the Canadian Handicrafts Guild had been formed, the primary objective being to prevent the disappearance of Canadian handicrafts, which were gradually dying out, the arts and crafts of the Indians and of the native-born Canadians. The Guild purchased handicrafts and in many cases have made many country-women self-supporting. Today Canadian Handicrafts Guild members are found throughout the Dominion. In Nova Scotia the Guild is operated under the provincial government. With the great influx of immigrants into the country during the past years, another branch of handicrafts has been brought into the country by the new settlers which is beautiful and unusual. The largest market for handicrafts is found among the tourists. It is regretted that more interest is not taken by Canadians in the purchase of their handicrafts, instead of allowing many lovely and valuable pieces to go out of the country.

Through the efforts in research and study by members of the Guild many almost lost examples of Indian crafts have been brought to light. Embroidery done with the hair of the elk, which produced an exquisite piece of work, was revived when an ancient Indian woman (the only one who was left who knew this art) was found in British Columbia.

An important exhibition which will be held in Montreal in the near future is that of Eskimo handicrafts. Mrs. McLeod had several among the group of handicrafts which she had on display. Many were small figurines, beautifully made and carved, of black soapstone, faithful in detail, of many of the animals found in the Arctic.

The hooked rugs were originally brought to New England and Canada by sailors returning from foreign travels. Rugs were made and used by cavemen from animal skins. Early examples of hooked rugs were made by sailors to while away the tedium of long ocean voyages. These were made from jute, and were sometimes called "prodded rugs," owing to the dull hook, used in pulling the pieces of canvas through the jute. Besides New England, the Maritimes and Newfoundland were among the first sections of the continent to have hooked rugs. Among the rugs on display was an example of early New England rug-making, which depicted the history of the times and kind of life of the maker, told through design material and dye, and home, all of which could be reconstructed from the pattern of the rug.

Another rug from Prince Edward Island with the dates 1850-1927 showed the transition from carriages to cars, which occurred dring this period, also showed the raising of foxes, for which Prince Edward Island is noted, and through the fish and boats, the fishing industry. All the various objects were shown in perfect detail. The colors were soft and harmonious, against a beige background. The most beautiful colors are obtained from vegetable dyes. Today great strides have been made in commercial dyes, but the colors are not equal to those of vegetable dyes. From the common mushroom, all colors may be obtained. Barks and fungii of trees yield a soft green, the babybrown berry is also another source, as is also the English purple clover. It is important when preparing the vegetable dyes to obtain enough at one time to complete the rug, as pigments change quickly. Bark taken in April will be a totally different color to bark from the same tree obtained several weeks later.

A hooked rug from Labrador made from old silk stockings presented an effect of needlepoint. In reparing the stockings for hooking they must be cut around the stockings for the stripes, not diagonally. A pictorial rug, done by a French-Canadian woman, showed a winter scene. This type of rug is never placed on the floor, but is hung on the wall. Still another rug was from Cape Breton Island, which is especially noted for its beautiful rugs, considered to be a fine example of work. The effect of needlepoint in the rug was obtained by using a fine needle and small strips of material. When the rug is completed the loops are clipped, this produces the desired effect. A Quebec rug with the dates 1534-1934 was a pictorial one, showing the landing of Jacques Cartier in Gaspe, in which real hair is used for Jacques Cartier, and his meeting with the Indians. The centre of the rug has a cross, to which both Jacques Cartier and the Indians are walking. This is an example of how firmly religion and history are fixed in the the minds of the French-Canadians. Another rug made by an old lady in New Brunswick had the appearance of chenille, the colors were beautiful and soft. She took the flowers in her garden as a pattern.

The remaining rug was a modern stylized rug done in Quebec, depicting a winter scene in a little village, with the church in the background, done in soft tones of green, grey and white. The only rug from Western Canada was done by a recent immigrant who took as her pattern snowflakes falling outside her window, with a background of green. The flakes were done in soft colors.

Mrs. McLeod stressed among points to observe in making quilts: 1 accuracy, 2 don't use paper for cutting patterns, as it slips. Emery paper is excellent, if not obtainable, blotting paper will serve the purpose. The Guild encourages quilt-makers to use original patterns. Ideas for old-fashioned quilts can be obtained from old Godel magazines. Heavy padding is essential to good quilting, long slim needles are needed, also little needles for the small details of pattern.

Among the quilts on display were some beautiful examples of quilting, some of the quilts being very old. Today quilting has become almost a lost art. Quilts should be long enough to come up and cover the pillow.

Among other articles on display were a number of figurines made from juniper roots, which came from Alberta. The figures, with the exception of the carving of the face, were left in the original shape of the root, which was finished and polished. The maker of these was a farmer, who in endeavoring to rid his farm of these roots, was struck with the possibilities of making articles from the roots. This work has been most profitable. A cigarette box in the form of a teal duck, was most realistic, the coloring being true to nature. Solid silver coasters and servers, copper plates with lacquered colored designs and candlesticks and cake plate in beaten copper all came in for much praise. The Guild is endeavoring to raise the standard of work. The Guild's stamp of approval is only allowed on work which meets their standards.

Several examples of the famous Dikeman ware made in New Brunswick, crackleware, also were greatly admired. The art of making crackleware was found through accident. The kiln in which pottery had been placed, failed to reach the necessary temperature, and when the pieces were taken out, they were totally different from ordinary pottry. There were also specimens of Quebec pottery, showing originality in design, shape and coloring.

Mrs. McLeod was thanked by Mrs. Charles Jones for her kindness in coming to Bedford, and for the very interesting and clear-cut presentation of her subject.

Following the address, refreshments were served by the hostesses who were Mrs. W. B. Bradshaw, Mrs. Roy Cook, Mrs. Eric Kemp, Mrs. L. Ames, Mrs. William Campbell and Miss Lottie Casey.

Perfume That Clings

Q.—Dear Claire: I adore perfume, but for some reason or other its fragrance just does not last on me. I have told several of my friends that I want a new perfume, but first I must find out about a lasting one.—Mrs. A. W.

A.—A particularly good idea for women who claim that perfume does not "stay with them" is a brand new fragrance medium by Houbigant called Liquid Skin Sachet. It smoothes on the skin very easily and lingers longer because of its sachet base. It has a slower rate of diffusion and evaporation than any other type of fragrance. Try this Houbigant Chantilly Liquid Skin Sachet. Only $1.95.

Magog Couple Are Honored On Anniversary

Magog, Oct. 26. — On Saturday evening, October 13th., a 25th wedding anniversary party was given in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Catchpaugh at their home on Saint Patrick Street in Magog. Penalties Prove Costly To Locals As Shawinigan Chalks Up First Win; Dube And Milne Register Tallies

Shawinigan Falls., Que., Oct. 26.—(CP)—Shawinigan Falls Cataracts scored twice in the third period last night for their first Quebec Senior Hockey League victory of the season, 4-2, over the third-place Sherbrooke Saints.

Ralph (Bucky) Buchanan scored twice for the Cats and Lyall Wiseman and Johnny Mahaffy fired home the other counters. Sandy Milne and Gilles Dube were Sherbrooke Marksmen.

This was the Cat's first victory in four starts. Some 4,000 cheering fans saw Buchanan, former playing coach who decided last season to stick strictly to playing, put the Cats ahead in the first peroid, scoring the sole marker of that frame.

He tipped Marius Groleau's pass in in the first minutes of play while Sandy Milne of Sherbrooke was off for boarding.

With the Cats' Bob Dawson away, also for boarding, Sherbrooke forced the play, but Lloyd Hinchberger set up Buchanan in front of Roger Bessettee's goal after three minutes in the middle stanza.

Buchanan fired a puck that was stopped by Bessette, but the puck got loose and dribbled into the cage for the Cats' second goal. The Cats' lead was cut past the halfway mark when Milne's shot picked the corner of Al Millar's nets.

Dube knotted the tally at four minutes of the third sinking a high shot after outplaying Shawinigan Falls' defence.

The Cats broke loose and scored when Sherbrooke was shorthanded. Tom McDougall was away when Mahaffy tallied with Wiseman sinking the clincher at 19:39.

Chicoutimi Moves Into Top Spot In Senior Group With 3-2 Win Over Quebec Aces In Closely-Fought Tilt

Chicoutimi, Que., Oct. 25.—(CP)—Chicoutimi Saguenays last ngiht moved into first place in the Quebec Senior Hockey League by taking a 3-2 victory over the lowly Quebec Aces.

German Leger scored two goals, including the clincher in the second period. Sherman White handled the other Chicoutimi counter, while Herbie Carnegie and Ludger Tremblay tallied for Quebec.

Chicoutimi now has nine points, one more than the idle Valleyfield Braves. Quebec is in fifth place with four points, tied with Ottawa Senators.

Quebec drew first blood with Carnegie scoring on a solo effort 29 seconds after the opening whistle. Leger tallied late in the period, picking up a puck in front of Johnny Marois' nets after a rink-length play with Dick Wray and Floyd Crawford.

In the second frame, White put the Sags ahead 2-1 with Georges Roy and Pete Tkachuk assisting on the play.

At the halfway mark, Jean Beliveau took a pass from Marcel Bonin and skated to within a few feet of the Chicoutimi nets. He flipped the puck to Tremblay who pushed it between Marcel Pelletier's legs for the tying goal.

Play see-sawed until the last few minutes when Leger scored. Dick Wray and Jean-Paul Lamirande drew assists.

Chicoutimi had the edge of play in the first and third periods with Quebec's Marois making 20 stops against Pelletier's 18.

Bill Ezinicki Returns To Fold; Will Report To Hershey Farm Club; Canadiens And Hawks Battle To Tie

Wild Bill Ezinicki, a fair country golfer who had little hope of playing caddy fees out of his earnings, has decided to make his chip shots on the ice where he is more at home. And, incidentally, where the pay is such that he is sure of three meals a day.

Ezinicki, the National Hockey League's bad boy, made his belated decision Thursday, just a few hours before Montreal Canadians and Chicago Black Hawks squared off at Chicago in the only N.H.L. game of the night.

The game ended in a 2-2 draw, leaving Canadiens one point behind the pace-setting Detroit Red Wings.

Wild Bill's action had a familiar ring to it.

Last season, when he was with Toronto Maple Leafs, he roamed Winnipeg fairways during the pre-season training, reported Oct. 10, was chased to Pittsburgh, a Leaf farm club in the American Hockey League, and early in November was traded to Boston Bruins for four players.

Ezzie went back to his golf clubs after the hockey season and was still chasing golf balls when the N.H.L. started its 1951-52 campaign. But a talk with General Manager Art Ross at Boston Thursday ended with Ezinicki signing a contract and agreeing to go to Hershey, Pa., a Bruin farm club, to get into shape.

The N.H.L. house now is in order except for Captain Emile (Butch) Bouchard who was left behind when Canadiens headed for Chicago. Coach Dick Irvin read the riot act to Butch and told him to trim seven to nine pounds off his six-foot-two frame.

Canadiens held the edge against the Hawks until the third period when Bill Mosienko, with assists from Doug Bentley and Pete Boreck, rapped Chicago's second goal past goalkeeper Gerry McNeil. Jimmy McFadden counted Chicago's first goal, with assists going to Pete Babando and Gus Bodnar, midway through the second session.

Maurice Richard gave Canadiens a 1-0 edge at 10:57 of the first period — the 297th goal of his career and his fifth of the season. Paul Masnick made it 2-0 at 9:51 of the second and the Hawks stormed in to get the split in points.

Win For Saskatchewan Would Be Good For Football; Draws Bye In Western Final To Meet Winner For Title

Three years ago people said it would be a wonderful thing for football if Calgary Stampeders, who waited 37 years for a crack at the Grey Cup, should take the booty. Well, they did and the game's popularity zoomed to crazy heights in Eastern and Western Canada.

Toronto Varsity Stadium, site of the championship game, added another 7,000 seats in a major remodelling job to bring its capacity to 27,000.

Persons whose only dealings with horses probably amounted to feeding the milk man's nag after a night out dressed up in spurs and high boots and travelled East to add color to the East-West rivalry. The ticket scramble, despite a steady increase in prices, was akin to the rush for candies at an orphan's picnic.

Now, the situation is the same except for the names of the leading characters. The cry in many quarters is "Yeah Roughriders." It doesn't make much difference, except for geographical and sentimental reasons, whether it's the Ottawa or Saskatchewan brand.

Again, the reason is: It would be good for football.

Ottawa won the Cup last in East-West competition in 1925 (they won it in 1940 but the West didn't challenge that year) and the Roughriders, Saskatchewan variety, are still waiting to have their names inscribed on the base of the 56-inch-high trophy.

Both Rider clubs have a chance of going to Toronto in late November. The Western Riders' chances are a trifle rosier since they won a bye into the Western Canada finals against the winner of Saturday's sudden-death semi-final at Edmonton with Eskimos against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Ottawa's Riders are in a three-way first-place tie in the Big Four with Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, with two games remaining of the schedule. Ottawa meets the Bengals at Hamilton tomorrow with the Riders holding a 2-1 edge in games between the two this year.

The other Big Four game is scheduled for Sunday at Montreal with the also-ran Alouettes and the up-and-coming Toronto Argonauts. Argos, seven-time winners of the Cup, are given the nod in this one on the strength of a double victory in their home-and-home series last week-end after dropping a close 8-6 decision in the teams' first meeting of the year at Toronto Sept. 3.

Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Beaches meet Saturday at Sarnia to decide first position in the four-team O.R.F.U. schedule wind-up. The winner has choice of grounds in the first of the two-game total-point playoffs Nov. 3.

Windsor Royals, still looking for an entry in the win column, to go Hamilton for a tiff with McMaster University.

The Intercollegiate race turns into the home stretch with winless Queen's at Toronto and Western at McGill. Toronto Varsity leads the circuit with three straight victories and a win tomorrow will just about clinch the college title for the Blues.

"Bluebird" Blows Up And Sinks When Doing 165 Miles Per Hour

London, Oct. 26.— (Reuters) — Speedboat ace Donald Campbell said last night his "Bluebird" was doing 165 miles an hour, five faster than the American-held world record, when she blew her top and sank under him yesterday on Lake Coniston.

Campbell, son of the late Sir Malcolm Campbell who set a record of 141.74 m.p.h. in 1939 with the original Bluebird, had his mechanic Leo Villa with him when the explosion occurred. Neither was hurt.

The two were putting the latest version of Bluebird through her paces with a try at the record, 160.323 m.p.h., held by Stanley S. Sayers of Seattle.

"We were travelling faster than ever before and Leo will bear me out when I say the needle was sticking at 165 m.p.h.," Campbell said after the crash.

"After weeks of building up our speed I took her down the lake this afternoon to warm up and on the return I gave her the gun.

"Suddenly there was a terrific crash and I am afraid the engine or transmission blew up.

"We slithered to a stop and realized at once we were sinking in the middle of the lake."

A motor launch raced alongside Bluebird as she stopped and towed her into shallow water where she sank.

Bluebird's explosion ended Campbell's attempts on the record this year. He reckoned Bluebird would have touched at least 185 m.p.h. if she hadn't blown up.

"We still have a boat," he said. "But what further use she will be we cannot tell until we get her out of the water."

In August last year her 2,400-horsepower power plant was damaged during trial runs at more than 140 m.p.h. over the same course she was on today.

A new engine was fitted plus a new speed propeller.

Improved Canadian Team Threatens U. S. Attempt To Retain Low-Score Jumping Title At Harrisburg Show

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 26.—(AP)— A much improved Canadian team yesterday threatened the United States' attempt to retain its low score jumping championship at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show.

The Canadian team was well within striking distance of the leading Americans going into the final of the three-event low-score competition. The United States was low with 12½ faults in the first two events whereas Canada has 20.

Canada pulled even with the U. S. in blue ribbons at the week-long show last night as Robert Ballard won the "in and out" event on Reject, his nine-year-old chestnut gelding.

Coupled with Tam Gayford on Skip Across, faultless through the first two days, Ballard gave the Canadians a good chance of catching the Americans.

The only other team within striking distance of the most prized title of the show is the Irish army team, which has only 25½ faults. The Mexican army team with 96 faults, and Brazil with 56¼, are virtually eliminated.

The first U.S. all-civilian team proved to be the surprise of last year's show when it snatched the low-score title from the Mexican army team, which had won the event the previous two years and needed only one more victory to retire the President's trophy.

Ballard's triumph last night in the "in and out" was the first time the Toronto business man had won a ribbon in the eight events held here so far. He did it with the only faultless performance of 18 entries in the difficult nine-obstacle event.

Arthur McCashin, a former airlines pilot from PJluckemin, N.J., took second place on Totilla with three faults. Totilla broke stride just before the last obstacle and crashed into it. He was penalized three faults.

Tied for third place with a single knockdown each were Canada's Skip Across, with Gayford up, and Mexico's Arete, ridden by Col. Humberto Mariles.

Ratterman Is Finished With Canadian Football

Montreal, Oct. 26—(CP)—George Ratterman, New York Yankees' passing star who switched to Canadian football this season, made it clear yesterday he is through with football in Canada.

At a press conference, the 24-year-old quarterback said he was quitting Montreal's Big Four Alouettes because of the "uncomfortable feeling" his first season here brought him and his family. He did not amplify.

Ratterman announced his decision to quit last Saturday when the Alouettes were pushed out of the playoff picture. He has two games to play with the Larks before the season ends.

Then, he said, he didn't know what would happen. "I have no definite plans for the future."

Ratterman said he was sure he could adjust himself to the Canadian type of football. However, the Als made such a poor showing this season, he had decided it would be better for all concerned if he terminated his contract at the end of the season.

Big Share Of Sweep Tickets Come This Side

Dublin, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Canadians and Americans took a big share of the 1,690 prizes drawn from the Irish Sweepstakes drum of fortune as it rolled for nearly seven hours in Dublin today.

The most valuable tickets were the 940 representing specific horses. Of these, 51 horses are possibilties for the start of the Cambridgeshire race next Wednesday.

There are ten tickets for each horse. Holders of tickets on the winning horse will receive £50,000, on the second horse £20,000, and on the third horse £10,000. Tickets on all other horses, whether they run or not, bring the holders £329.

Then there are 50 cash prizes of £312 and 700 cash prizes of £100. Tomorrow 3,000 prizes of £10 will be drawn.

Although addresses of holders of tickets outside Ireland are not disclosed, it was learned unofficially that Canadians and Americans represented more than half the drawers of tickets on specific horses yesterday.

Coach Vic Obeck Looking For Close Battle Tomorrow With Western Squad

Coach Vic Obeck, who has tried to avoid prognosticating, regarding his McGill football Redmen this season, is still hedging when you ask him: "What will the Redmen do this Saturday."

Earlier this semester when asked that, Vic gave the sage reply: It will be a close game or someone will win by a big score."

Apparently he is not stepping out on the long limb to call the shot for the repeat battle with Western Mustangs at Molson Stadium here. You would think that Obeck should be yelling to the roof tops over that upset victory against the Mustangs in London last Saturday. But Vic is a fellow who knows that footballs take funny bounces and he doesn't want to say in whose favor they're going to jump.

However, there was a general uplift in the McGill camp over the win in London. It was the first time a McGill team had knocked off Western in the Thames town since 1935. And some quarters feel, that if the Redmen don't do anything more this season, that London win was just as good as a title.

The last time McGill won a title was in 1938 and at the expense of Western. To get into the championship picture this season, they have to roll back Mustangs again this Saturday and hope that the unbeaten Varsity Blues of Toronto hit a defeat.

McGill came out of the Western fray without major hurts, which is good news to Obeck. He may also have further backfield strength for the coming game, as big Len Shaw is due off the injury shelf. He has been sidelined since the Sarnia game when he injured his shoulder. If he is able to gallop in his oldtime style, he should be a great help to the club for he is a powerful, punter, kicker and passer.

One of McGill's surprise moves against Mustangs last Saturday, was the diversified attacks used off different formations. Obeck had three quarterbacks in action during the fray. Terry Rogers handled the single wing sequence, while Gene Robillard was on the double wing and Geoff Crain the T. They pulled several shifts and at times all three were on the field at the same time, which was enough to confuse most foes.

Obeck has warned his team to not take the Mustangs lightly. "They are going to be tough to handle, make no mistake about that. You'll have to play heads up ball all the way."

Obeck praised his boys for their splendid job at London. To the observer fellows like Geoff Crain, Dave Tomlinson, Gene Robillard, Rogers, Bob MacLellan, Don Kepron, Hank Sliwke, Cec Findlay, Wally Kowal, O'Flanagan, Dave Caldwell, Jim Mitchener, played tremendous games. But for a real bangup two-way job that was a delight to see, you couldn't overlook lineman Bill Pullar. The big Calgary student tore the opposition asunder with his charging. He picked up three fumbles, pulled in two pass interceptions and did just about everything else but supplant the water boy.

Joe Louis Slight Favorite To Whip Unbeaten Rocky Marciano Tonight

New York, Oct. 26.—(CP)—Aging Joe Louis, who wants another shot at the heavyweight crown more than anything else in the world, risks that chance tonight when he faces young, undefeated Rocky Marciano in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder.

This is the big comeback test for the 37-year-old Brown Bomber and he knows it. A loss to the 27-year-old Brockton, (Mass.) belter means the end of the trail for one of the ring's all-time greats.

The betting professionals believe Louis is approaching the end. They have established him as a slim 6-to-5 favorite — the shortest odds in all of jarring Joe's career.

The lowest price ever on Louis was the 9 to 5 odds for his second fight with Max Schmeling.

Louis, however, feels he has enough left ot whip the hard-hitting but crude Marciano.

"I'll beat him," said Louis. "Maybe knock him out."

"I'll win," said Rocky, "Maybe knock him out. I think I can beat anyone in the world."

It's the old story of the ring — the veteran on the downgrade and the eager, hungry youngster on the rise. The bout is expected to draw a crowd of more than 15,000 fans and a gross gate of around $150,000.

This is the ninth scrap for Louis since he was battered into dismal defeat by Ezzard Charles 13 months ago. Joe won all eight but only three by knockouts.

Marciano, a one-time shoe worker who has been fighting pro a little more than three years, has won all 37 of his pro fights, 32 of them by knockouts. A win over Louis will shoot him into a title fight next summer.

This observers believes Rocky is going to have to wait a while. We think that Louis' experience, his 26 pound pull in the weights — 210 to 184 — his nine-inch edge in reach, and his stunning left jab and hook, will be more than enough to cope with the vim and power of the Massachusetts Mauler.

MacPhail Serious About Six Major Leagues

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Larry MacPhail, one-time boss of the New York Yankees, wasn't kidding —or anyway not much—when he said that what this country needs is six major baseball leagues.

MacPhail said in an interview today he thinks four major leagues could be formed right now. A rapidly growing population, he said, soon would support two more.

"First," MacPhail said, "Cleveland and Detroit certainly could support another major league club. And possibly New York could stand another one or two."

Then, without pausing for breath, he rattled off these cities as major league possibilities:

Seattle, Portland, San Francisco (two teams), Los Angeles (two teams), San Diego, Houston, Dallas, Toronto, Montreal, Baltimore, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, New Orleans, Atlanta and Kansas City.

MacPhail said he agrees with a proposal made some years ago by Warren Giles, then of the Cincinnati Reds but now National League president. Giles suggested that a study be made to see if the minor leagues couldn't be realigned completely.

"That must be done," MacPhail said, "before we can do much talking about the majors. We must begin at the bottom and work up."

Montreal Nationales Swamp Granby Royals

Granby, Que., Oct. 26—(CP)— Montreal Nationales last night moved into a first-place tie with Montreal Canadiens, slaughtering the hapless Granby Royals 10-1 in a Junior Amateur Hockey Association game here.

Royals have lost their six games of the season.

Pronovost and Richard scored three goals each for Montreal, while Goyette had two. Scullion and Lamirande accounted for the other goals. Watson saved the Royals from a whitewashing with a lone marker in the middle period.

McGill Retains Track And Field Titles

Toronto, Oct. 26—(CP)—A loose-legged McGill University track and field team retained their supremacy in the college ranks today as it won the 44th annual Intercollegiate Track and Field Competitions at Varsity Stadium.

The Redmen from Montreal chalked up 74 points on seven firsts, eight seconds, three thirds and three fourths in the 15-event program. The host University of Toronto was second with 59 points while McMaster from Hamilton was third and the University of Western Ontario at London, Ont., was fourth. McMaster earned 17 points and Western 15.

Two Senior Intercollegiate records were broken. Slim Don MacFarlane, a smooth-pacing sprinter from McMaster, knocked one-tenth of a second off the existing 100-yard mark set by Toronto's J. Russell in 1926. MacFarlane's time was 9.9 seconds. Don Blair of McGill broke his own high jump record when he pushed the bar to 6 feet 2¾ inches.

Crown Withdraws Case Against Two Jockeys

Welland, Ont., Oct. 26—(CP)—The Crown yesterday withdrew charges of conspiracy against two jockeys and two jockey agents charged in connection with alleged "fixes" at Fort Erie Race Track during the summer.

Jockeys Robert Wankmueller of Newark, N.J., and Phil Marchese, Pawtucket, R.I., were cleared along with Henry Dunne, Brooklyn, N.Y., and Billy Michaels, Buffalo, N.Y., the two agents.

A third jockey, Donald Cox of Hamilton, had a perjury charge dismissed today because of lack of evidence when he appeared in a Toronto court.

Special Crown Prosecutor Joseph Sedgwick of Toronto said he was withdrawing the charges against the four men who appeared here because of lack of evidence.

A charge of conspiracy against Harry Swartz, Toronto, alleged "contact man" in the case, will be heard later.

The Ontario Racing Commission Tuesday reinstated Jockey Gil Robillard who had been suspended indefinitely and fined $100 for not reporting a bribe offer promptly.

Brooklyn, Cincinnati Brewing Big Player Deal

New York, Oct. 26 —(AP)— A major player trade is brewing between Brooklyn and Cincinnati Reds whereby Ewell (The Whip) Blackwell may go to the Dodgers in exchange for one of their top-flight outfielders.

Brooklyn Vice-President E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi yesterday admitted he had discussed possible trades with Gabe Paul, new general manager of the Reds.

Bavasi declined to say whether Blackwell was the man he sought, but added that another get-together has been scheduled during the draft meeting in Cincinnati, Nov. 20.

The Reds are reported to have asked for either Duke Snider, Carl Furillo or Andy Pafko—in that order—in return for The Whip.

Blackwell won 17 games in 1950.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

Maurice (Rocket) Richard scored his fifth goal of the season in Thursday night's only National Hockey League game to move into a first-place tie with two teammates in the individual scoring race.

The five goals, best so far this season, added to two assists give Richard seven points. Also at seven are Bert Olmstead and Elmer Lach, both leading in the assists division with six each.

Montreal Royals Chalk Up Third Straight Win; Dump Senators 5-1

Montreal, Oct. 26 — Montreal Royals last night overpowered Ottawa Senators 5-1 in a Quebec Senior Hockey League game that slowed to a walk after the middle of the second period.

A crowd of 4,265 saw Royals bang in three unanswered goals in the first period, split the second-period scoring with Senators and add an insurance marker in the final frame.

Dollard St Laurent, husky young defenceman, paced the Royal attack with goals in the first and second periods and one assist. Art Rose and Dickie Moore scored the other first-period goals and Tod Campeau added one in the third frame.

Leo Gravelle scored for Ottawa and Eddie Emberg collected an assist.

Royals had a heavy edge during the first period and took advantage of a penalty to Grigg late in the frame.

St. Laurent banged a long, low one from near the blue line that Fraser never saw. The second Royal marker came just as Grigg stepped on the ice from a tripping penalty two minutes and two seconds later. Rose got credit for it but the puck seemed to skip into the net off St. Laurent's stick.

Moore scored the slickest goal of the frame when he rammed home Douglas' rebound while Fraser was out of position.

St. Laurent coasted in and drew Fraser to the right then flipped the puck into the left corner of the net for his second-period goal. He took Moore's short pass just inside the blue line while there wasn't an Ottawa defender near.

After the two goals early in the period, play became a wild series of end to end rushes that brought injury to Edgar Blondin. The Ottawa forward went sailing when Rousseau stopped him hard as he came out of the Ottawa zone. He was helped off the ice.

Play was particularly listless and ragged in the final frame although Senators livened it occasionally with five-man rushes.

One of their ganging attacks led to Campeau's unassisted goal. While five Senators turned the heat on Plante, Campeau snagged the puck near center ice and sailed in on Fraser. His hard shot from 15 feet out hit the far post and bounded into the cage.

Anniversary Observed At Sutton

Sutton, Oct. 26. — The 152nd anniversary of Sutton United Church was observed recently with the pastor, Rev. Dr. S. W. Boyd in charge, assisted by Rev. B. M. Mallalieu, of Lancaster, Ont. The choir rendered the anthem, "Magnify His Name," with Mrs. S. W. Boyd at the organ. Dr. Boyd gave a sketch of the high spots in the long history of unbroken years of service, began in 1799, by Rev. Lorzano Dow. In 1845, the stone church across the street now occupied by Olivet Church erected by congregations of Wesleyan Methodist Church, and used until this church was built. A number of persons are still living, who were present at the laying of the corner stone, in 1877. The pastor referred to the pipe organ, given in 1927, by Isaac Wilson, in memory of the Wilson family. Also to the endowment fund provided by Mr. Wilson, which also provides assistance to suitable young men of the Eastern Townships to secure their education for ministers of our church. Greetings were read from friends who were unable to be present.

They were proceeding home when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck driven by Mr. Jean-Louis Lanoie, of St. Helene, between the highway and the crossroads. All victims of the fatality were immediately taken to the St. Croix Hospital for medical treatment. The father, Mr. Lucien Bedard, as reported by hospital authorities, is still on the danger list, while the others escaped with only severe cuts and bruises, and shock, with the car a total loss.

Alderman Leo Surprenant, a well known and highly respected leading Drummondville industrialist, who had been visiting the Continent with Alderman Hormisdas Hains, was suddenly struck by paralysis as they were proceeding towards Cherbourg France, to board the liner Queen Elizabeth for their return trip home.

On a two month tour of Europe they were both accompanied by Father Gaston Hains, son of Mr. Hormisdas Hains, who at present is studying at Dieppe, the trio had all registered at the Univer's Hotel, and the following morning Mr. Surprenant was suddenly stricken and a specialist was called from Paris to attend him, who, after examination declared that his condition was serious. Mr. Hains, however, tried to have the patient placed aboard a plane and have him flown back home, but this was refused on the grounds that the patient was in too far a critical condition to attempt such a journey or to be moved. Alderman Hains had no other alternative then than to board a plane alone to bring the sad news to Mrs. Surprenant and family. On hearing the sad news, Mrs. Surprenant accompanied by her daughter, Giselle, left here Thursday morning to board a French air-liner for Paris to be at the bedside of her husband, according to all latest reports the doctors are still hopeful that he has a chance of recovery.

A very successful Boy Scout and Cub Apple Day was held when both Troops were out in full force in selling apples to the general public, and in some respects permission granted by some industrial managements to canvass the workers in their plants. So great was this response for the boys that the total amount taken in the sale of apples, with the deductations made of overhead costs amounted to $125. This money goes into the Fund of the local Boy Scout and Cub Troops to enable the boys to further their advance in this noble work of The Boy Scout Movement.

Halifax Out To Complete Deals For Reinforcing Purposes; Drop Two In Row; Meet Sydney Tonight

Halifax St. Mary's meet Sydney Millionaires in the Cape Breton City tonight and the management of the Capital club intends to begin a campaign there for new talent.

First on the list is Hughie Campbell, a holdout since the Saints started training in Montreal. He will be approached with a final offer and if he isn't interested, Halifax will offer him to Sydney in a trade for defencemen Joe Levandoski and a right winger.

Saints Coach Wilf Field was still muttering to himself today over the two losses this week.

"No player on this club can consider his job safe," he said. "The trial and error period is over. It's produce or else."

It appears that Halifax can no longer count on help from Buffalo Bisons of the American League and the club management is preparing to loosen the purse strings and go abroad for players.

Halifax, two points behind third-place Moncton Hawks, will be fighting for a third-place tie tonight while a win would put Sydney in fourth place. Halifax has six points and Millionaires five.

Sydney won their second game of the season last night, a 4-1 victory over Moncton Hawks. Once again, goalie Nick Pidsodny was the star especially in the third period when he was outshot 13-4 by a desperate Moncton club.

Tonight's other game brings Charlottetown Islanders against Saint John Beavers in the New Brunswick port city.

Islanders failed again last night in their bid for a win, dropping their sixth start 3-0 to Glace Bay Miners.

The first period at Charlottetown was slow and scoreless but Hawks' Rohmer scored at 7:09 of the second and the over-anxious Islanders became rather erratic in their shooting.

Alex Groza, Ralph Beard and Dale Barnstable, now out on $1,000 bail each, testified freely before the New York County Grand Jury today, Hogan said.

The athletes are charged specifically with conspiring to "shave points" in the National Invitation Tournament game between Kentucky and Loyola of Chicago in Madison Square Garden March 14, 1949.

Today, Hogan said, Groza admitted receiving not $500 for that "fix" but $1,000 for himself and $500 for the other two players for the Loyola game.

The men also admitted receiving $500 each for winning the Kentucky-Tennessee game on February 8, 1949, in the Alumni Gymnasium at Lexington, Ky., by fewer than 18 points, the margin by which Kentucky was favored, Hogan said. Kentucky won the game 71 to 56.

Hogan said the three players admitted the second "fix" yesterday to Assistant District Attorney Vincent A. G. O'Connor.

J.M. Rouleau Heads Yamaska Hockey Loop

Knowlton, Oct. 26.—The Yamaska Hockey League held its organizational meeting at the Lake View Hotel here. Officers were elected and the plans for the coming year were discussed. The final meeting before hostilities commence was set for November 12 at which time all fees must be completed and all new applications for memberships discussed.

The meeting was attended by Farnham, Knowlton, Cowansville Legion, and Mansonville. J. M. Rouleau was in the chair as president of the league, Glen Brown as secretary-treasurer, and the official delegates were A. Normandin, Gordon Wright, G. Paterson and P. E. Gemme. Mansonville had a large delegation headed by Coach Young, and Farnham were well represented.

The new slate of officers elected for the incoming year were E. J. Persons, honorary prseident, J. M. Rouleau, president, the secretary was to be located by the executive and presumably from the Cowansville Sweetsburg area, Glen Brown recording secretary, and P. E. Gemme, of Mansonville, as vice-president.

Plans were discussed regarding the formation of a league for boys 12, 13 and 14 years old. Both Cowansville and Knowlton felt that they had sufficient boys to recommend this step, but the rest of those present felt that they should study their areas before committing themselves. Gordon Wright, Knowlton representative, felt that some other communities outside the present league might be able to ice teams if they were approached. If there are any of these communities interested they should contact the president before the Nov. 12 meeting.

The meeting broke up with prospects high for minor hockey in this area.

Sports College To Discuss Smoking Topic

Toronto, Oct. 26.—Smoking, a "hot" topic in sports circles following the dismissal of a halfback from the McGill University football team for breaking training, will be aired on Sports College this Saturday.

Lloyd Percival, director of the sports instruction service, will tell athletics and coaches across Canada exactly what research has determined about the effects of cigarettes on the athlete. The result of a world-wide survey by Sports College, Percival's report will contain statistics on heart reaction, condition, lungs, co-ordination and eyesight as developed by recognized experts on the subject.

Sports College found that smoking has increased 22 per cent since 1945 among teen-age athletes in Toronto alone.

Dr. A. H. Steinhaus, world-renowned authority on smoking in athletics, estimates that cigarettes can reduce team efficiency by as much as 25 per cent. Endurance tests conducted by Sports College have shown reductions of 40 per cent in stamina and ability to recover from hard physical effort, even among senior athletes.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF IMPORTANCE

TO SHAREHOLDERS OF

CHIBOUGAMAU EXPLORERS, LIMITED

The President and Directors of Chibougamau Explorers, Limited, take pleasure in announcing that negotiations have been completed with a strong financial group under which a total sum of $1,273,750.00 will be provided if all the options are exercised. $43,750.00 of the above has already been paid and the remainder will be paid at the rate of $50,000.00 per month.

During the past summer, as drill hole after drill hole returned high assay results, interest in this new strike and this new camp — South Chibougamau — mounted. When, by early autumn, 19 drill holes had indicated an ore body 900 feet in length (open at each end), with average width of 15 feet to vertical depth of 600 feet, and combined copper and gold values of $15.85—an indicated 700,000 tons of ore, and dollar value in excess of $10,000,000.00 it was necessary to provide major finance. The company had the choice of several offers but naturally, after careful study, took the best.

Now, with its Treasury supplied with working capital, Chibougamau Explorers, Limited, will proceed to Shaft-sinking and underground development immediately.

It is planned that the 300 ton mill already purchased will be moved to the property during the winter.

Home And School Association Met At Sutton

Sutton, Oct. 26. — The October meeting of the Sutton Home and School Association was held in the High School with a very good attendance. The president, Mrs. Rupert Phelps, was in the chair and the meeting was opened by all repeating the Lord's Prayer. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved; correspondence was read by the secretary, Mrs. Fordyce Ingalls. The president expressed regret that one of the teachers, Mrs. Donald Hastings, was ill in hospital. It was voted that flowers be sent to her. It was reported that Mrs. A. H. Miller, the magazine convener, had been successful in obtaining several subscriptions.

The special feature of the evening was a very interesting talk given by the principal, Miss K. Harper, and Mrs. Ellis Gatenby, teacher for grades eight and nine. Several topics were covered by both speakers and a few of the most important points were as follows:

The vital importance of choosing the proper combination of subjects that are made available, to give the child a suitable grounding for his or her future career; at grades eight or nine it is none too soon for the child to start thinking about this important part of the future; the subjects should not be chosen because they are easy or because they are new, but for their practical value, and should not be dropped until definitely proven by persistent effort that they are not suitable. This matter should be discussed seriously by the parents with the child and the teacher.

On the much discussed topic of "home-work" Mrs. Gatenby pointed out that it was quite necessary in order to properly cover the year's work but that it should be, as far as possible, a consolidation of the daily work and that all difficulties should be referred to the teacher so that she could have a proper knowledge of the child's weaker points in any subject; also that it was important that the child be provided with a quiet place to study without interruption and that the study time should not be broken up, but should be one of continuous concentration. Homework also tends to teach a child self-reliance, and responsibility. The co-operation of the parents is very necessary in this matter and the children should be required to remain at home on school evenings. The moulding of the child's character takes place at this stage of life and full harmony between teachers, parents and children is vital.

Miss Harper outlined the courses available in grades ten and eleven and their relation to the requirements of the various universities. She pointed out that reading and writing were weak in most schools and could be greatly improved by spare time reading and the writing of paragraphs, essays etc. The child should be allowed to think things out for themselves to give them the ability to think clearly and went on to say that the mind should be a "Power House" and not a "Cold Storage Chamber." While the larger high schools undoubtably have a great many advantages over the smaller ones, Miss Harper felt that the more personal contact possible between the teacher and pupil in the smaller school was a definite and important feature. Educational standards should be rigid and the school should be upheld by the parents; the parents play an important part as they have the greatest effect on the education of their children. The child should be trained to intelligently face difficulties that invariably arise.

Both ladies spoke with clarity and conviction and their remarks were much appreciated by parents and friends assembled.

Mr. Lawrence Smith thanked the speakers, with fitting remarks, on behalf of the Home and School Association and friends present.

It was proposed that the 'teen age girls be asked to volunteer to remain after school on the day of the afternoon meetings, which are held every second month, to look after any small children who might accompany their parents.

An "Attendance Banner" was then presented; this to be won each month by the class room having the largest parent attendance at that month's meeting. The first winner was Mrs. Royea's room, grades two and three. The banner which was painted by Mrs. A. Gregoire of Coaticook, is attractive in appearance and it is hoped that it will be an incentive to an increased attendance at the meetings.

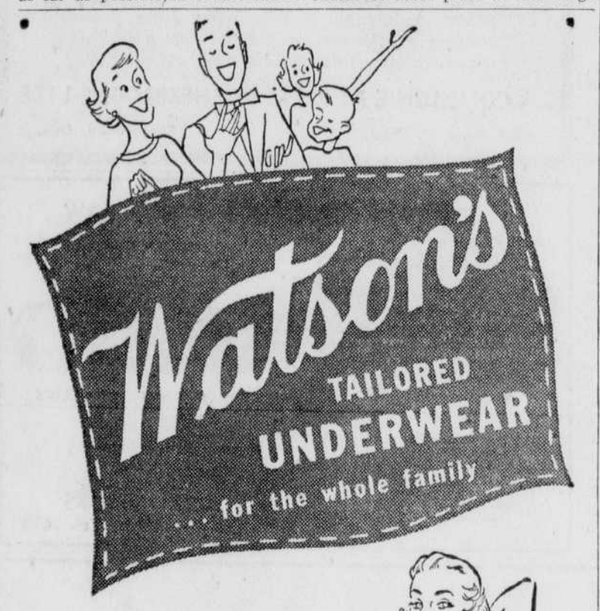

The establishment of a curfew was suggested to assure children being off the streets at a reasonable hour and it was decided that the Town Council be interviewed in this regard.

In view of the increasing cost of clothing it was also proposed that the girls be requested to wear cotton stockings with their uniforms. The parents and teachers were both asked to co-operate.

At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served followed by a pleasant social hour. The refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Hollis Hooper, Mrs. Clinton Hazard and Mrs. L. Reid, assisted in serving by several other ladies.

St. Pat's Annual Alumnae Reunion At Richmond

Richmond, Oct. 26. — The 4th Annual Re-Union of Mount St. Patrick's Alumnae was held at Mount St. Patrick, Richmond, Que., when it was opened by a mass celebrated by Rev. Father Cormier, at 9.00 a.m. in the Convent Chapel.

The members who were received by the Superior of the convent and the Alumnae Executive assembled in the hall at 2.30 p.m. for the reception, the cream tinted walls and pillars brought out the brilliant hues of gladioli and other fall flowers arranged in large white baskets, bright pottery and cut glass bowls, and placed to advantage about the hall and on the pianos. The event being graced by the presence of Rev. Father A. Dupuis and Rev. Father R. Roy, with over two hundred of the former pupils and many of their teachers present from Montreal, and the Townships.

A duet played by Mrs. G. Tremblay and Miss M. Tremblay, followed by the Alumnae Song opened the reception after which the president, Miss A. Linahen, gave a brief address of welcome and offered felicitations of one of their oldest members. Mrs. Austin Hall, for the honor of having conferred upon her by His Excellency the Archbishop of Sherbrooke, the Medal of Diocesan Merit of St. Michael the Archangel of Sherbrooke for her magnanimous work for the church, the president remarking that Mrs. Hall was organist of St. Bibiane's Parish for 56 years. She also congratulated Mrs. Alfred Paradis of Bromptonville, another old pupil for the honor conferred upon her recently by His Holiness the Pope by awarding her the medal "Bene Merenti," for her outstanding work in Catholic Action.

This was followed by "Ave Maria" sung by Mrs. L. Rattray. Rev. Father Roy then addressed the gathing and congratulated the Alumnae on their wonderful spirit and interest in education and on the missions. Mrs. Rattray was again heard in "Thanks be to God" and "Bless this House" which was again received with hearty applause. Rev. Father Dupuis gave a very stirring address which was listened to with interest. After the singing of the National Anthem, the members proceeded to the Chapel where Father Dupuis officiated at Benediction.

The members were then ushered to the dining-room where a sumptuous lunch was served by the younger set, the Guest Table being centered with blue delphinium and marigolds in a deep amber bowl, and lighted with gold and green candles in silver candelabra. Presiding at the coffee and tea tables were Mesdames H. Bedard and E. Dubois. The individual service tables being decorated with gaillardia and small blue flowers in yellow and blue bowls, and the window sills with roses.

At a business session the Alumnae decided to hold a Card Party on Wednesday the 14th day of November next at 8:00 p. m. in the Convent Hall, the proceeds to be turned over to the Scholarship Fund. All the former pupils were asked to give their whole-hearted support to this outstanding event if they wish to continue their good work in the field of Education. As proof of appreciation for the 1951 Scholarship the following letter was read as received from the Superior of the Convent — "The occasion of the annual 'Alumnae Reunion' gave us an opportunity of reiterating our appreciation of the Marguerite Bourgeoys Scholarship offered to the High School pupils of Mount St. Patrick.

Pope Pius XII says, "Your day is here, Catholic women and girls, public life needs you." To fill her place in public life woman needs education. Our Holy Father has pointed out the way and you dear graduates of former years, have given tangible proof of your co-operation in his program.

The Scholarship, promising material assistance, will encourage the students to assiduity in study. We feel sure that interest you manifest in the youth of today will be rewarded. Spurred on by your energetic example, they will acquire the moral strength and spirit of sacrifice necessary to assume the responsibilities that you will pass on to them.

May our Lady of the Cape and Blessed Mother Bourgeoys repay you for your generosity with peace, holiness and a deep, lasting happiness."

Miss Lucy Desmarais, vice-president, in her gracious manner, voiced the appreciation to the guest speaker and artists for their lovely music selections.
