THE LEADING ADVERTISING MEDIUM OF THE DISTRICT OF BEAUHARNOIS

SIXTY-SIXTH YEAR

APRIL 18TH, 1929. HUNTINGDON, QUE., THURSDAY.

EIGHT PAGES

1929 ROAD MAP ISSUED BY QUEBEC

Fine Production Available to Anyone Asking For a Copy.

IN FOUR COLORS.

New Numbers For Provincial Highways—Folded in Unique Way.

Hon. J. L. Perron, Minister of Roads, has issued to newspapers the Quebec Highway Map for 1929.

This map has many new features and constitutes an innovation not only for Canada, but for the whole of America. As in last year's map, the map is a pocket size folder and it is bilingual.

The main characteristic of the 1929 map is its "accordion folding". The map may be consulted the same way as a book, without unfolding it completely and having the trouble of following again, which is always a tedious task with ordinary maps. The new map of the Quebec Roads Department, these drawbacks no longer exist. If it is desired to post or frame the new map, it may be cut along a line printed for that purpose. Attractively Bound.

The cover of the map is attractive. The map itself is in four colors: a blue tint shows the contours of the province; highways, names of towns and villages, are in black; rivers and lakes are shown in blue, and natural and sporting resources are given in red.

The 1929 Highway Map, printed on only one side of the paper, includes the general map of the province and a large scale section for the district of Montreal, with the exception of absolutely local roads. All main and secondary arteries are shown with their present state of completion, which makes very easy trips in any part of the province.

Another feature of the 1929 map has been the addition of entrances and exits of all cities in the province, thus facilitating travel. Traffic rules, information for foreign tourists, entering Canada, road signs, a chart of distances, and general information on the province and the highways are given.

KEEPERS OF "BLIND PIGS" ARE WARNED

Judge Monet Champions New Rule of Quebec Legislature.

The Quebec Liquor Commission, with the strong backing of the provincial Government and assistance of the Montreal police, has inaugurated a determined campaign to abolish illegal liquor selling establishments. These places, some of them under the guise of night clubs, and others run by individuals who operate in their own homes, have been, it is said, fairly active in the past, but it is now that the law has been amended so that a customer may be prosecuted as well as the proprietor and the waiters. The additional hour granted to the licensed beer taverns is also expected to work to the disadvantage of the "blind pigs", most of whom are tappers put in an appearance after the closing hour of the taverns. Until recently this was 10 p.m., but now it is 11. Both the clause as to punishment of patrons and the extension of the hours of tavern sale were passed at the recent session of the Legislature.

The war against the illicit sale of liquor having started in earnest, Judge Monet has officially notified the offenders that they are going to be badly defeated. To give effect to his warning he fined the first batch of customers, taken in raids by the police over the weekend, the sum of $1, each, but there was a sting in the minimum fine applied, for the costs to each individual were $10.65, making the total expenses $17.95, a heavy price to pay for the doubtful pleasure of drinking beer and questionable liquor in more or less sordid surroundings. Waiters were given prison sentences of from one to three months, with costs, and if the latter were not paid three additional months were added to their sentences. Such punishment should prove a deterrent to all but the most reckless persons. Furthermore, Judge Monet announced that this was but a starter and that in future he would be much more severe with both "the house" and the patrons thereof. The public will approve these repressive measures and will agree with the courts attitude. There is no excuse for these holes-in-the-wall, which, besides purveying to foolish drinkers, give shelter to criminals, who find victims among the customers and plot hold-ups and burglaries besides. They are evil establishments not to be tolerated.—(Gazette.)

ACTIVITIES OF THE W. C. T. U.

Foes of every kind of narcotic habit the W. C. T. U. is a particular enemy to the cigarette habit for girls. Illustrative of this is the resolution passed at a recent meeting of Fitch Bay Union. "That newspapers be asked to refrain from publishing advertising matter relating to smoking cigarettes by girls."

Ormstown Union celebrated its fortieth anniversary in February in a largely attended public meeting. A charter member was among those present, and she was made a life member of the Provincial Union after forty years of service, an honor deferred. Brief summaries of the work of the years was given, and the membership roll, swelled by the addition of fourteen names. Money was voted to the Temperance contest and to world missions, as well as to the Provincial Extension Budget.

Brookfield Union remembered the sick and sorrowing, sent twenty comfort bags to lumbermen.

Dewittville Union sent a cash contribution to a city mission, gave cash prizes for the Provincial Temperance contest, and remembered Dr. Grenfell's Mission in Newfoundland.

Lennoxville held a public meeting and tea with an interesting program, the returns going to the Provincial Extension Budget and World's Missions.

Sherbrooke had a delightful musical and tea, the proceeds of which went to the Y. W. C. A.

ST. ANICET

FIRE ON MOIR HOTEL PROPERTY

Volunteer Fire Brigade Render Excellent Service Saving Nearby Properties.

At 2:45 Saturday morning the siren sounded and awoke the majority of the townspeople and attracted a large number of them to the scene of the fire that was raging on the Moir hotel property. The building that was on fire was that of an old storehouse, near the kitchen and the tavern. In the old building was stored 8 cases of bed clothes, over $500 worth of empty bottles, a small quantity of wood and several 80 double windows. How the fire started is unknown, but general opinion is that some undesirable man was sleeping in the building.

The local fire brigade under the direction of Chief Cecil Stark soon had two streams of water pouring onto the building from King street and a third hose was stretched from the pump at the river edge. The three streams soon played havoc with the obstinate fire and shortly after four a.m. it was considered extinguished, and the Moir Hotel and other nearby homes saved. The water pressure from the village mains and pump was excellent.

VALLEYFIELD

Sunday was observed in St. Mark's as a day of intercession for the missionary work of the church.

In the morning service the Ven. Archdeacon Overing of Montreal, preached the text, "Where there is no vision the people perish." Prov. 29, 18. As he developed his theme, pleading for a wide vision of the missionary work of the church it was quite apparent that the large congregation appreciate the eloquent and earnest appeal he made.

At the evening service the incumbent, Rev. W. H. Lummis, D. D., preached the third sermon in the series, "The Appearance of the Risen Christ." The first command of the Master after the Resurrection "Go Tell," Matt. 28:10, and the last command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel," were emphasized as the one and only task of the Christian Church.

St. Mark's A. Y. P. A. held a brief business meeting on April 10th, and a fair attendance of young people regularly. This organization will shortly close down for the summer months and the officials intend to present a good program for their next opening. Aside from the picnic this year, things will be very quiet in A. Y. P. circles.

The president, Mr. H. C. Bruden, mentioned the loss of another brilliant member in Mr. Fred Fishwick, who has left for duties elsewhere. At a social of the A. Y. P. A. a presentation was made to Mr. Fishwick, Mr. H. C. Bruden and Rev. W. H. Lummis making suitable remarks.

The Girls Branch of the W. A. of St. Mark's Church held a social night on April 15th, for the members and a few invited guests. About 35 were present and the girls had a very enjoyable time, participating in games and singing songs and other amusements. Mrs. Lummis was the recipient of a pantry shower and Rev. Mr. Lummis of a beautiful study lamp, these being presented by the president, Miss Edith Roston, to which Rev. Mr. Lummis replied.

We are glad to hear the news that Mr. William Brindle is getting around again after his recent illness. Mr. Brindle is one of the oldest employees of the Huntigton Cleaners, being 75 years old, and this was the first time from work and is to be congratulated.

Mrs. W. Hastie and daughter of Montreal, were recent callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Nap. Bonrassa of Montreal, spent the week-end in town.

Mrs. J. A. Legault and Miss Marcel Legault were callers in Montreal last week.

Miss Dorothy Grace has returned from Saranac Lake, N. Y., where she spent the winter visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Laviolette of Cornwall, Ont., spent the week-end in town.

Mr. C. J. Magnan, Inspector-General of the Catholic Schools of the Province, was in town last week for an official inspection of the Normal School and his departure, a reception was given by the pupils where he was the guest of honor and eloquently addressed the pupils on the ethics of teaching.

On Thursday afternoon fire destroyed the entire contents and part of the building owned and inhabited by Mr. A. Daoust of this town. The fire originated from an overturned pot of tar on the stove, which caused an explosion. Considerable difficulty was experienced by the firemen in subduing the flames. The building was partly covered by insurance.

HUNTINGDON

Mr. and Mrs. John Galipeau and son Fred, returned to Montreal, where Douglas will be away for the summer months and we all wish him success in his new vocation in life.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper of Coteau, were the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McMeekin in Montreal.

Mrs. Josephine Hertz recently visited with friends and relatives in the city.

Mrs. Margaret Sparrow, of St. Lambert, has been visiting relatives in town.

Mrs. N. McCremon and Mrs. J. C. Boyd recently spent a day with friends at Chateaugay, Que.

We are glad to report Mr. A. Kidd has returned from the hospital much improved in health.

Saturday evening upwards of forty farmers gathered at the meeting called in behalf of the forming of the Parish Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the Township of Godmanchester. No business of public importance was done other than the fact that the application for charter has been made.

24 HOUR SERVICE EFFECTIVE AT CUSTOMS

A. B. Harmon, deputy U.S. Customs Collector in charge of Malone district announced Tuesday that the U.S. Customs office at Trout River will be kept open all night from now on.

The 24-hour service does not take effect at the Canadian Customs until May 1st.

YOUNGER-LEWIS IN ADDRESS ON THE PEDLAR

Rabbi Stearns Unable to Give Lecture at Valleyfield.

The Mutual Improvement Society held their weekly session last Thursday evening. The hall was filled for the people had the expectation of hearing Rabbi Stearns of Temple Emmanuel, Westmont, who was booked to speak on "The Pedlar in Soviet Russia."

One hour before the time of meeting the Rabbi, owing to unavoidable circumstances found it impossible to be in Valleyfield and with only a short preparation he telegraphed to the secretary of the Society, Mr. J. H. Lee, to fill the breach and took for his subject "The Pedlar." Starting with the great departmental stores he traced the history of trade and commerce back to the early days of barter.

Touching on the question of credit and business methods he showed how from the money, trade was at one time the business of individual to individual and oftentimes even in these modern days, the pedlar is still to be seen. Picturing himself as an old time pedlar seated in an old fashioned cottage with the oil lamps trimmed and lighted, supper over, the pedlar man, his wife and children gathered around the fireside the pedlar opens his pack. He draws out a silken hose and gives a little sketch of the silk worm and how silk is produced. Then he tells of how in 1588 the wife of the Rev. Wm. Lee of Nottingham, England, was knitting stockings and her husband becoming weary with the monotony of the knitting needles invented a machine and reversed the usual order of the threads, so that the stockings were knitted from the heel to the toe. The pedlar brought his pack and the pedlar has to sell his wares to the people. In India about 90 per cent of the people make a meagre living from the soil. Through time they too will be taught by leaders of the Institutes and Household Science Instructors so that the Women's Institute will not only be a national organization but will be established in every country in the world. Following the address of Miss Morris, Mrs. Wallace Youngie, who had charge of the music for the meeting gave a few songs assisted by the choir of the ladies of the district. Then our hostess, the ladies of the Allan's Corners division, served a beautiful lunch and not only served those present but sent boxes of dainties to four friends who were ill. All felt that they had spent a very profitable and pleasant afternoon.

MISS MORRIS ADDRESSES HOWICK W. I.

Delegates Appointed to Provincial And County Conventions.

The April meeting of the Howick Women's Institute was held in the Church at Allan's Corners on Wednesday afternoon, April 10th. This being the first meeting following the annual one, the response to the roll call was particularly interesting. Forty-two members and friends were present, the president, Miss Macdonald presiding. After the regular business was transacted delegates were appointed to attend the County and Provincial conventions. These to the County Convention held in Franklin Centre the first Friday in May, are Mrs. James Graham, Mrs. James Kerr and Mrs. Alex. Youngie and to the Provincial Convention to be held in Macdonald College some time in June, are Miss Morris of Arbroath, our County President, and gave a splendid address, her subject being "The Past, the Present and the Future of the Women's Institutes." Miss Morris ably reviewed the life work of women, in the early ages all the agricultural work was done by women while the men spent their time in hunting and fishing. The men were in the home and when women worked in the home and as well doing their regular household duties they spun, wove and made up the clothing worn by the members of the household. Later came the factories and took all their work away from the home but the women followed the work to the factories and today we find women in nearly every occupation of life. About fifty years ago women's clubs were started in Toronto where they have been since. A little band of women at Stoney Creek, Ontario, met and formed the Women's Institute, the object being relief work and to make plans for community activities, in their words "to do good to the world." The influence of that small organization soon spread over the whole Dominion and in 1915, Mrs. Watt of Victoria, B. C., introduced it into England where it spread rapidly over the British Isles in Europe, then Africa. In some countries the rules of the organization differ from ours but the object is the same. In Ontario some branches are taking up historical research work of their own Province. One Institute there built a library costing $2,000 while others have done as well in other branches of work for the betterment of the community. Some branches may not accomplish any large object in the next few years, it is scarcely possible to estimate what the results of the next corresponding number of years may be. If only the women of India and China could all enjoy the privileges of the Institute what a difference it would make. In India about 90 per cent of the people make a meagre living from the soil. Through time they too will be taught by leaders of the Institutes and Household Science Instructors so that the Women's Institute will not only be a national organization but will be established in every country in the world. Following the address of Miss Morris, Mrs. Wallace Youngie, who had charge of the music for the meeting gave a few songs assisted by the choir of the ladies of the district. Then our hostess, the ladies of the Allan's Corners division, served a beautiful lunch and not only served those present but sent boxes of dainties to four friends who were ill. All felt that they had spent a very profitable and pleasant afternoon.

MRS. MAC KAY OF INDIA AT VALLEYFIELD

Noted Missionary Authority Gives Inspiring Lecture to W. M. S.

MANY ATTEND.

Miss Jennie Wilson Presented With Life Membership.

Mrs. J. S. MacKay of Sitapur, India, one of the foremost platform speakers in this Dominion, paid a visit to Valleyfield, Ont., on Friday afternoon, April 12, in connection with the Women's Missionary Society. The occasion is one long to be remembered as being the only one of her kind ever held in this town. A veteran missionary of India with whom the work has become a passion, gave a graphic and vivid description of the needs and opportunities of that vast Empire. Speaking from intimate and personal knowledge of the people of India, Mrs. MacKay spoke with a fervour, which showed how deeply in earnest she was to awaken in the people of Canada interest in the needs of those less fortunate.

Accustomed as Mrs. MacKay is to addressing large audiences in the cities, Valleyfield was favoured in securing her as a speaker. The meeting was well attended, there being many visitors from Howick, Huntingdon, Ormstown, St. Louis and Kensington. Mrs. J. A. MacDonald read the minutes. Mrs. Thos. Hood introduced the speaker in well chosen remarks, paying a fine tribute to the work done by Mrs. MacKay.

The missionary had been in India for forty years and spoke as one having authority. Forty years ago Mrs. MacKay, then Miss Jean Sinclair, left the town of Madoc, Ont., to take up work under the W.M.S. Twenty-four years ago she met Dr. Douglas Hayter, Huntingdon; 2, James McCoy, Huntingdon; 3, Austin Johnson, Ormstown. Age 14, 1, Annie Laine, Chateaugay Basin; 2, Edith Rennie, Rockburg; 3, Mona MacDougall, Ormstown.

Juniors—Age 7, 1, Lorna Hebert, Chateaugay Basin; 2 and 3, None.

Age 9-11, George Leggett, Rennie's S.S.; 2, Helen Wilson, Franklin Centre; 3, Irene Cairns, Athelstan. Age 11-13, Erle Fernell, Gore S.S.; 2 and 3, None. Age 12, Dorothy Sharpe, Franklin Centre; 2, David Watson, Athelstan; 3, Allan Wilson, Franklin Centre. Age 13, Helen Elder, Athelstan; 2, Ralph Hayter, Huntingdon; 3, Ernest Ames, Rockburg.

Mrs. A. Waller, County President; Mrs. R. J. Blair, County Supt. of Scientific Temperance Instruction.

BOWLING CLUB ADVANCEMENT RECORDED

Annual Fees For Ladies Set at $2.50 For 1929.

Wednesday evening a well attended meeting was held in the Canadian Bank of Commerce in the interests of the Bowling Green. President F. I. Batcheller presided. Mr. N. W. Sparrow presented the financial statement which showed that the club had borrowed $800, had received membership fees from 13, and that accounts as due had been met. The treasury still has a balance on hand and have 15 sets of bowls for sale.

The election of officers for this season resulted in F. I. Batcheller, Alex. McEdwards and N. W. Sparrow being re-elected to their respective offices, viz., President, Vice-President and secretary-treasurer. The executive members are J. W. Stark, W. J. Goudrey, Dan Walker, Adam Sellar and A. A. Lunan.

Much interest was manifested at the meeting and in giving consideration in regards to the membership fees for the ladies it was decided to set them at half price, viz., $2.50 for the year 1929.

The matter of securing electric lights for the green was left in the hands of the president.

BRIDGE MAY YET BE BUILT

Senator Graham Says Brockville to Morristown Project May go Through.

Senator George P. Graham, one of the sponsors of the Brockville to Morristown bridge, which Governor Roosevelt has vetoed, is still hopeful that the project will go through in some form.

Senator Graham pointed out that Governor Roosevelt's exception was taken not to the bridge itself, but to its erection as a matter of private enterprise.

"I am still hopeful that the enterprise will go through in some form, because Governor Roosevelt has expressed the hope that some arrangements may be made for its construction," Senator Graham said. He declared that the directors of the St. Lawrence Bridge Company, of which he was one, had been interested in the proposition, not for its financial aspect, but because of the need of the bridge. They would be quite willing to step aside, he declared, if some arrangement between the New York State and the Ontario or Federal Government could be reached for its construction as a public undertaking.

ATHELSTAN

Canadian Border Patrol Officer Menard made a seizure at Fred Palmer's Jamieson's Lines on Tuesday morning. A Packard sedan, without a license and a quantity of beer in the car were seized. Officer Fiske of the U.S. Patrol seized a car that was in a garage on the American side of the line at the same place.

THE SECRECY OF INCOME TAX RETURNS

A few years ago the United States authorities made public the income tax payments throughout the Republic. The newspapers appreciated the news value of such, particularly those in the higher divisions, and filled pages of their papers with the names and amounts paid. The government felt that this was going too far, and discontinued the right to publish. Now President Hoover is trying another experiment, granting permission to public details of refunds when the amount exceeds a certain amount. He will probably be criticized, but there is much to be said in favour of such a plan. All income tax forms are complicated, and in the administration many problems arise which are not specifically provided for in the Act itself, therefore, the Treasury has to make rulings. The meaning of these rulings is not grasped by many individuals who make their own returns, but the wealthy people, those who can afford to retain accountants and lawyers to handle their statements, are able to take full advantage, with the result that in many cases exemptions are claimed while the less wealthy pay in ignorance.

In Canada the forms are somewhat less complicated, and the Act, providing for absolute secrecy, no details are given out. We do know how much is collected, and that the major portion of the tax is paid by corporations, chiefly those which have a profit of over $50,000 a year. British Columbia, however, is considering a new experiment. That province has had an income tax for many generations and press reports tell us that a "black list" is being prepared for publication, this list consisting of those who have not paid a tax for many years. The value of such a list is doubtful, for if the individuals are liable to the tax, and have failed to pay, then it shows inefficiency in the administration of the law. From a distance it would look like an attempt to get neighbours and business associates to act the part of informers.

THE SHOWING OF THE MERCHANT MARINE

The annual report of the Canadian Merchant Marine was published this past week and it is not an encouraging document, showing that it cost $1.13 to get every dollar's worth of business. The government fleet consists of 38 vessels, while seven others have recently been transferred to the new company which will operate the West Indies services. In his statement Sir Henry Thornton says that the adverse showing was due to reduction in rates, to increased competition on certain routes as well as strikes and lesser purchasing power in certain parts of call. The report also shows that the government fleet owes the Dominion one hundred million dollars, of which 28 millions is for accrued interest.

The government entry into the shipping business was a war-time experiment and was the result of a demand for ships. Now that the war is long by, and as shipping rates are apparently being kept at a low level, with ample shipping facilities available most people will agree that it is time for the government to get out of the business. The Dominion is pledged to provide certain services for the West Indies and these must be kept up, but it is an open question whether Canada should leave itself open to the complaint that charges may be made against those services which properly belong to the merchant marine. Several companies, chief among them the C.P.R., are operating fleets efficiently, and with the steady growth of Canada's external trade the Dominion has an opportunity to develop invisible trade assets through ocean freight rate collections, but the government merchant marine apparently is a handicap to both the Dominion and the private companies.

THE FOOLISHNESS OF LAWS

In the Toronto Globe on Saturday was a news item that the Government of Ontario intends modifying certain regulations regarding Embalmers and Funeral Directors. Last year an order was passed under the legislative authority prohibiting undertakers to advertise save by the use of a small professional card, which could only be printed in one place in a publication. It has been found that undertakers have paid little attention to the law and have used ordinary newspaper publicity, calendars and other advertising devices, so it is proposed to modify the regulations to a reasonable extent.

Fool laws are those which cannot be enforced, and the wise government concerns itself less with new legislation than with the development of respect for existing laws. Every legislative body has its share of "dead" enactments. For instance, in the state of New York it is against the law to leave any medicine or ink in a place where children can reach the bottles. This winter a legislative body in the middle-west was considering a bill concerning a petty matter, and to show the absurdity one of the members moved an amendment that whenever bathing suits were used for pictorial effect on bill-board advertising, the men's suits must be red. Much to his disgust the House adopted his amendment, and he was hard set to have it killed before the law was given official assent.

Just now the professions seem to be the worst offenders, and every legislative body annually faces lobbies organized by some profession to give them exclusive jurisdiction. The "pain-less" dentist is, in some places, prohibited from advertising, but the State of Georgia goes further; that state makes it a misdemeanor for a dentist to be guilty of cruelty. It must be a great satisfaction to the learned men to know that the states of Colorado, Michigan, Illinois, Maryland, Minnesota and New York adopted laws making blacksmithing a learned profession, although it is true that the courts later held the laws of Illinois and New York to be unconstitutional.

THE SPIRIT OF THE INTERCOLONIAL

The Maritimes have always looked upon the Intercolonial railway as their own; a railway where tickets were a novelty, and passes a matter of right. It has been said that for years there was never a grade cow killed on the right of way—by the time it reached the claims' department it had become a job. Such may or may not be true, but in any event jobs on the Intercolonial formed part of the political patronage of the political parties. After the Canadian National idea developed the old Intercolonial was absorbed into it, and there are now complaints. The leaders of parties have sought to leave appointments in the Canadian National alone. Sir Henry Thornton was picked to operate the road, and appointments were left to him. This, it would appear, is not satisfactory to certain of the Maritime members, and in the House of Commons on Friday night it came up. One of the Nova Scotia members complained that the crews on a boat had to be supporters of the defeated Liberal candidate, and asked the Minister of Railways that he interfere and tell the captain to split his selections. This Mr. Dunning refused to do, saying: "My hon. friend is just now expressing what I call the maritime point of view, which I do not complain of, but which does exist. The minister cannot and should not communicate with the captain of that ship. The minister communicates with one man in the system, and one man only, and that is the 'president.' The debate leading up to this remark, which closed the discussion was not bitter and shows that the bulk of the two parties stand united in their policy of leaving the operating of the Canadian National to the officers of the system. It did however, tend to show the difficulty of understanding the viewpoint of the Maritime members, who, undoubtedly, irrespective of political affiliations, still look on the old Intercolonial as belonging to a patronage feed trough.

THE DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION

To-morrow the dairymen of the district meet in Hemmingford to discuss matters of interest to the industry. The President, Mr. R. R. Ness and Secretary R. J. Roy have arranged an excellent programme and it is to be hoped that a large number will be able to attend. No farming activity is changing more rapidly than is the dairying business, and new problems are constantly arising. The modern dairyman does not depend on his milk cheques alone. He is also a breeder of pure-bred, or high-grade, stock for sale and he looks to this side-line to produce a substantial share of his profits. Through the publicity created by the Ormstown Show, the showing records of exhibiting breeders and the adoption of the T.B. free area this district has become an important supply point for live stock, and there is no reason why we cannot consider that only a start has been made. If our farmers make a study of the market demands, and breed accordingly, it should be possible to greatly increase the cash revenues of each farmer.

There are also the problems arising in connection with the sale of fluid milk and cream. At present Montreal is taking a large share, the balance going to the United States markets. Now comes the planned development of the Beauharnois power scheme, which will offer new local markets for the dairy farmers. One of the questions the farmers might well talk about among themselves is the best way to supply these markets. We cannot ignore the fact that the distribution of dairy products is falling into the hands of a few people, and it may be that the farmers for their own protection, and to secure the major return, will be compelled to embark on a large co-operative scheme.

Chronicle News Bits

Specially Written for The Huntingdon Gleaner.

The Sunday Newspaper.

An American writer recently wrote a book on United States newspapers stating, among other things, that it would rarely be found that an afternoon paper published a strong and popular Sunday edition. His explanation of this is, that the morning newspaper rarely gets the advertisement readers, and so does not get the volume of advertising. To offset this, they publish a Sunday paper which frequently provides the annual net profits of the business. While this may be true in America, over in England they had a number of Sunday papers, generally regular weeklies, which have no connection with any daily, and some of these are decidedly readable. At this season of the year—between winter and warm weather—it is easy to get "fed-up" with most things, so for variety I have been reading the last issue of the Sunday Times of London to arrive in Canada, March 24, and here are some of the things it states.

British Control of Companies.

As the Canadian papers during the past two or three years have devoted considerable attention to arguments advanced by the President of the Sun Life that, as this great insurance company was becoming so popular as an investment, there was danger of external control developing, I looked on the financial page of the Times to see what it had to say about the General Electric financing. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago an effort was made to see that new stock in this company was awarded only to English residents. This is the result: "Intense satisfaction was caused by the eleventh-hour decision to withdraw the General Electric Company's offer of share to British subjects only, and the immediate effect was a spurt of 12s in the price to 68s. It is expected that the new terms will be such as to satisfy the American shareholders while ensuring that control shall remain British."

Beating the Income Tax.

The British income tax is high, therefore, unpopular, and the Times provides a column for questions and answers. One gentleman wrote stating that on the last day of the taxing year he had become a father. He wanted to know how much exemption he could claim. The reply was that he was entitled to the dependent exemption for the full 365 days. Another wrote asking about alimony. The court had allowed the lady alimony and had ruled that it be paid to her without deductions of tax. She wanted to know if her alimony revenues were exempt. The answer will not please her.

These Bridge Fiends.

Bridge apparently consists of rules, tempers and etiquette, so the Times also has a column answering deep questions concerning this game of cards. Apparently a player had made use of the term "major suit" and the editor was called upon for a definition. He reported that "the phrase 'major suit' is not used otherwise than to mean Spades or Hearts; similarly 'minor suit' only means Diamonds or Clubs."

The Pride of Public Service.

Among the book reviews are some comments on T. P. O'Connor's "Memoirs." He tells the story of the development of the Irish Party in the House of Commons, and of the Irish following of Parnell. As the paper says: "These young men pledged themselves to sit, act and vote together, and not to seek or accept office or honours for themselves or for their families. For forty years they kept those pledges faithfully. They were all poor in this world's goods (not half a dozen of them had any private income), and they received from voluntary funds in Ireland about £120 a year each. There was no payment of members in those days and most of them had a hard struggle to keep body and soul together. A couple of score of them had the qualifications for ministerial rank or permanent appointments, and could have attained them; but not one of them ever departed from their self-denying ordinance."

A Fortune From Beggars.

Most of us have heard of beggars who have, bit by bit, become rich by collecting from the public, but the writer to the Times from Paris gives the story of a more remarkable feat—a woman who has become rich from serving beggars. It appears that in Paris is a lodging-house the "Grappe d'Or" where for two francs a homeless wanderer could obtain a half bottle of wine and the right to sleep in the cellar on piles of straw. They had a cabaret and gramophone, besides the human musical talent in their midst, and one of the sights of Paris was to visit the "vagabond's cabaret," but new days have come and the authorities have decided the place must be closed; for sanitary reasons. The report closes with the remark that the up-stairs tenants are well satisfied with its disappearance. "So apparently is the proprietress, who has been made wealthy by the poorest clientele in the city." That the beggar's life is not an altogether unhappy one was learned by interviewing one of them who told the reporter "I know of another place. It is a long way off, but the exercise will be good for my health."

Drinking Habits of France.

The comment is frequently that the people of Quebec are gradually adopting the customs of France, and are drinking wines instead of spirits but the reporter of the Times gives another angle to the question, saying that "An effort is being made in Paris to make drinking a more sociable affair than it has been for some time. Those concerned with the wine industry have declared that the men of today, instead of lingering in conversation with their fellows over cups of good wine, resort to a bar for five minutes and drink whisky and soda. Drinking in fact, has lost in these days of hustle its old atmosphere of sociability—men are drinking more but talking less. That is bad for the wine business." To overcome this the wine industry is offering prizes for the best drinking songs, because, "Drinking songs, it is felt, are enemies rather than friends of drunkenness, since they emphasize the social aspect of what in moderation is an honest indulgence." They will at least start a debate on the subject.

The Eating of Snails.

Apparently, a prolonged argument is being carried on in the columns open to readers over the question of snail eating. One gentleman in the current issue agrees that such food has medicinal value and adds "As diet, I can vouch for the smaller striped kind, such as you find or down and open places, as being very good. A very good dish is: Rice, plenty of olive oil, chips of chicken, tomatoes and snails (fed on vine leaves)." Personally, you can make the experiment.

A Natural Barometer.

Another gentleman writes to enquire if any know where there are stones which forecast the weather. He says there are such in Finland which have a white and mottled appearance in fine weather, but which gradually turn black as wet weather approaches. He says that the change is due to the amount of salt in the stone, which, as bad weather comes, absorbs the moisture and turns colour.

The High Cost of Dying.

A lady also wrote to the Times about the death of her husband. He had been visiting on the Riviera during the winter and was staying at an hotel. It seems that the cold wet weather, which spread over that area this year, developed a flu epidemic, and among those who died was her husband. In addition to the ordinary hotel bill she was charged £25 "as an indemnity for his having died in the hotel."

This Man Believes in Skating.

Another correspondent took a more friendly view towards the hospitality of other lands, and he congratulated Canada on its ice. It appears that in the early days of March, 1907, he was a resident of Canada, and decided to skate from Ottawa to Montreal. This he did, except for a few hundred yards at Calumet, when he walked around the rapids. He says: "It was said at the time that this had never been done before, not because of the distance (125 miles) presenting any difficulties, but because of the snow on the river." He started at seven in the morning slept at Calumet, and arrived in Montreal at 3 p.m. the next day.

The First 500 Miles of an Automobile.

Every driver, it appears, dreads the order of the manufacturers that he must drive his car slowly for the first five hundred miles. The rule is not always obeyed, and the result is trouble later on. However, the motor columns of the Times tells of a Company which is seeking to protect their cars during that period of use. "The Singer Company have acquired merit by fitting in the throttle barrel a set-screw which limits the extent to which the throttle can be opened. The device is sealed and the company does not endorse the guarantee that goes with the car until they have the dealer's certificate that the seal has not been broken within the 500 miles."

Dogs And The Flu.

England became quite worked up over the flu question this year, and everything was blamed, including the dogs. It was alleged that distemper among the dogs was immediately followed by sickness in the homes. The secretary of the National Canine Defence League denies this, saying that if it were true, distemper would be prevalent, and such was not the case, in fact, it was opposite.

Pall-Bearing is Work.

Over in England a man cannot collect unemployment allowances if he is working, and he must declare everything he earns by working. Failure to do this cost Charles Cooper, of Kidsgrove 30s. It seems that Charlie was offered the position of coffin-bearer at a local funeral and was paid 4 shillings for his services, but failed to disclose the revenue. His defence "that the money was a gift in lieu of wine and biscuits, the customary remuneration for funeral bearers" was not accepted and he was fined 30 shillings. He at least qualified as a mourner.

A New Smuggling Commodity.

The French courts, according to the Times, have had an unusual case before them. It appears that a big company was securing electricity from across the border, but had failed to report the same to the Government. The importation consisted of 281 million kilowatts and had a duty value of £318,709. The courts fined the company and collected as fine and duty £645,161. The manager was also given a three day jail sentence in which to think it over.

It Costs Money to Investigate.

The North of England textile manufacturers have been petitioning the British Government to impose a duty on their products, and hearings have been heard. These are not completed, but it is estimated that the costs of these hearings already amount to about $50,000.

New College Curriculum.

Under the heading "A Woman's Corner" appears an article about a school where girls from 13 to 15 years of age are trained for domestic service. It is a two-year course, the first year being devoted to ordinary training, such as cookery, laundry-work, needlework and housewifery. "During the second year the work is more specialised, so that the girl who feels she has a call to be a nursery maid or a kitchen maid is given extra instruction in her subject."

The Cost of Smoke.

A learned Professor addressed the Royal Sanitary Institute on Saturday the 23rd of March and informed his hearers that smoke not only caused much extra work for millions of women but, in addition, it was a waste of money. He estimated that the loss in Britain in smoke through the use of ordinary domestic fires amounted to eighty million pounds sterling a year.

The Easter Palm Gift.

A press dispatch states that the Pope received from the Benedictine Nuns of Camaldoli a beautiful palm three feet high for Palm Sunday. In view of the recent reconciliation between the Italian Government and the Vatican the palm this year "contains in the centre a miniature of Professor Gustiniani representing Pius XI blessing the Italian flag and Lictors Fasces, thus symbolising the reconciliation of Church and State." The privilege of manufacturing palms for the Apostolic Palace was conferred on these nuns in 1876.

Child Has Narrow Escape.

Just out of London is an electric line owned by the Southern Railways. It is one of those lines which secures its electric power by the third-rail method. A little five year old boy was out playing with a ball and it rolled down the embankment onto the track. The boy followed it, and stumbled along the track for a couple of hundred yards. Finally, as he picked up the ball he touched the rail and was badly burned on the knees and hands. Fortunately he was seen and some workmen rescued him just two minutes before the next train was due.

What is a Jail Sentence Worth.

In August of last year a case was tried at Stoke-on-Trent, where a painter charged the prisoner with false representations. It seems that a man approached a painter with the offer of a contract for decorating a public house. The deal was made and the man was paid a commission. Unfortunately for the painter, the owner of the public-house knew nothing about the deal. The prisoners fled his innocence, that he was not the party, but the painter and the publican swore that he was the man, and he got three months of hard labour. He is out of jail now, but the authorities were not content and now find that he had told the truth and therefore was innocent. He was given a pardon and £100 as compensation. The man, when interviewed, said that he was glad to have the pardon and his name cleared, but he did not think £100 was adequate compensation for the three months hard labor which he served behind the stone walls.

CANCER

Cancer is an old disease. It is described in the writings of the ancients which have come down to us. Only in comparatively recent times has it been understood that the various tissues of the body are made up of the one type of cell, all coming from one parent cell. Similarly, cancers arise from each type of cell and remain of that type. If the cancer begins in the stomach and spreads to the liver, the growth in the liver will resemble stomach cells, not liver cells.

Under normal conditions, the cells of the body divide, grow, mature and die. At present, we do not know what controls this process. Apparently when this control is lost or disorganized, growth occurs which, in some cases, is cancerous or malignant.

There are many theories concerning the cause of cancer, which is another way of saying that there is no satisfactory or generally accepted theory. The disease is not hereditary. In most cases, it occurs after some sort of chronic irritation. This irritation may be mechanical and be produced by broken teeth, teeth which do not meet properly and have sharp edges, and by poorly fitting plates. The irritation may be due to a chronic inflammation, such as infected teeth or sinus, or of the lining of the uterus. Habitual abuse of the stomach may produce a chronic irritation of that organ. Constipation is probably a factor in cancer of the rectum.

It has been shown that any particular type of diet has any influence on cancer. Our present knowledge permits us to say that its prevention in the prevention or removal of types of irritation above referred to. By a regular health examination, these sources of infection may be found and the need for their correction pointed out, which is one excellent reason why everyone should be examined regularly by his family physician.

At present, our only method of cure is by removal or destruction of the growth, once it has developed. If done early, this offers a good chance for cure. It is early treatment which alone, is of value.

The Week At Ottawa

Specially Written for The Huntingdon Gleaner

Thursday last saw the end of the formal budget debate and everyone was glad of it.

This house urges upon the government the consideration of an immediate and substantial increase of the British preference as a step towards freer trade relations between Canada and other nations.

It was defeated 19 to 155. After that vote was taken Mr. Kennedy, of Peace River decided he had to make a speech.

He waved the flag in true campaign fashion. "It is quite true that the word 'safeguard' is not used very much in Canada, but I would like to know just when it has become a crime to use a good British word here in Canada.

And he brought down the House when he continued his play on word phrases in connection with our relations with the United States.

Mr. Mackenzie King, in dealing with that—and I found myself laughing a little when he came to the words "red-blooded," because I thought he would not conclude his speech with out referring to them—said that it was not "red blood" we needed but "cool heads."

The House of Commons likes that sort of a speech every once in a while and the Conservative members cheered Doctor Manion to the echo in the lobbies afterwards.

Pouliot Jumps In. As soon as Doctor Manion finished J. F. Pouliot of Témiscouata decided that this was the sort of debating he liked, so for the next forty minutes he sailed into the Conservative party and all its works, sometimes getting applause from his own benches, sometimes ironical desk thumping from the other side.

He wound up by reading a long newspaper article from the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph which said that a campaign was afoot to divide the federal Conservative Party and make Mr. Cahan leader in Quebec.

Gauthier, an ex-candidate for Dorchester, has been busy himself in the matter. It is known that he has gone through the province arranging meetings of the Conservatives and Quebec was one of the places visited.

Mr. Cahan: Did he not himself suggest that in his correspondence with the United States? Mr. Mackenzie King: When it comes to the working out of any international problem, the success or failure of the negotiations will depend more than anything else on the atmosphere of trust and of confidence and of good will that exists between the peoples who are interested in the particular transaction.

Mr. King Speaks. The Budget debate this year varied from the ordinary discussion so far as speeches by the leaders are concerned. Generally the two leaders finish the debate, but this year Mr. Bennett did not speak and the Prime Minister spoke on Tuesday, but the vote was not taken until Thursday.

The U.S. Tariff. Dealing with the Government's attitude towards the present-day tariff situation Mr. King remarked: "This year, when the government was preparing its budget, it had before it the knowledge which is common throughout the continent, that a neighbouring country was about to make certain changes in its tariff.

Mr. Mackenzie King: Just one, that is right. Let me read it to my hon. friend. But before doing so, may I point this out so as to explain the context: The United States has intimated to us that they felt their western farmers were much interested in the St. Lawrence waterway and they were hoping that our people would be equally interested, perhaps they are.

The Waterways. The rumor that the government might enter into a bartering game with the United States—the St. Lawrence waterways against the tariff rates—has been persistent and has reached such dimensions that the Prime Minister decided he should make a statement: "Of late there has been brought into the discussion of the possible adjustments of the tariff references to the St. Lawrence waterway. Representations have been made to the effect that in some way or other these two questions are being discussed together, that the one question is being made to relate in some measure to the other.

Mr. Mackenzie King: I do not think that I can conceive of no greater misfortune than that the question of the St. Lawrence waterway should be mixed up in an way with the question of the tariff of this country or of the United States.

PEACHES FOR PLEASURE
(By Barbara B. Brooks)

At this time of year—just before fresh fruits are plentiful—canned fruits fill an important place in our menus. Probably the most used canned fruit is the peach. It has a flavour which nearly every one likes and which blends well with other foods.

A simple dessert is made by steaming rice with milk. Put one cup of rice, one teaspoon of salt and three cups of milk into the top of a double boiler and steam until tender. Press into a buttered mold to cool. Unmold on to a glass serving dish and arrange on the top and sides halves of canned peaches which have been drained and rolled in macaroon crumbs. Pour the peach juice around the mold.

Another peach dessert is prepared by draining the half peaches and rolling them in corn flake crumbs. Place them in a baking dish, dot with butter and brown in a hot oven. Serve with a sauce of thickened peach juice, and cook, stirring until thickened. Add one tablespoon of chopped preserved ginger before serving.

Peaches are often used in salad. Sometimes the centers are filled with cottage cheese which has been seasoned. It may be mixed with chopped pecans and chopped preserved ginger. Serve on a bed of lettuce and use a cream dressing.

Canned peaches are delicious with ready-to-eat cereal and are often used for breakfast in this way. They are especially good with corn flakes. Some people chop canned peaches and mix them with honey to serve with hot griddle cakes. The syrup from these peaches may be used for basting a baked ham or for flavoring gelatine desserts.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

World's Greatest Time System. Valuable suggestions as to how and where to spend your Summer holidays. Telephone or call—T. B. PRINGLE, Agent.

Canned sliced peaches are delicious in many recipes. Do you ever make peach cobbler? Mix a rich baking powder dough, roll into a rectangular piece, dot with butter and cover with drained sliced peaches. Roll as a jelly roll, place in a buttered baking pan, pour the juice around it, dot top with butter, sprinkle with sugar and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with cream or hard sauce.

Canned fruit is convenient to have on hand. It adds flavour to many bland foods. It brings color to otherwise uninteresting looking dishes. It gives variety to menus, especially when fresh fruit is expensive.

THE SALARY OR THE JOB

A committee representing the Standard Oil Company, were anxious to secure a manager for a new division of operation to be opened in China. The qualifications were announced, and a young man declared he knew one man who could meet all requirements. He was twenty-eight years old; had degrees from three colleges, had three years' study and practice in the Chinese language and had the full confidence of the Chinese. He was a natural leader. He was receiving six hundred dollars a year as a missionary. The committee asked the young man to go to China and offer the missionary the position at ten thousand dollars a year. The offer was declined. It was raised to twelve thousand, then to fifteen, but was rejected. "What will you take?" the agent asked. The missionary replied, "The trouble is not with the salary; it is with the job. The job is too little. You offer me a big salary with a small job. I would rather have a big job with a small salary. I thank you for the confidence expressed in your offer; but I feel I should be a fool to quit winning souls to sell oil."

More Work Done
Horses Fresher at Night

Long hair makes horses sweat excessively when working. It is practically the same as working in an overcoat. Excessive sweating is weakening. Imagine yourself going to bed in sweat-soaked clothes after a heavy day's work. You would be chilled to the bone. It is the same with an unclipped horse—the sweat-soaked long hair becomes icy cold when the horse is not working and the horse is chilled through and through. A shivering horse gets little rest.

Feed which should provide power is used up to combat chills and fight off colds, and even when given extra feed the unclipped horse soon becomes run down and easy prey to sickness. Long, sweat-soaked hair also gathers dust and dirt and makes grooming a nasty job.

Clipped horses sweat less. They soon dry off and are groomed in half the time. They rest better, have more life, and do more work on less feed. They perk right up after being clipped and are less subject to ailments. Sick horses don't pay. Clipping horses, especially in the Spring, is a big help in keeping them on the job.

FIVE REASONS

Appearance, Performance, Long life, Low upkeep, Price

Five - - Six - - Seven years hence there will be on the road a greater percentage of this years production of Ford cars and trucks than any other make of the same age.

We don't have to qualify or explain that statement - - that's what reputation does for an honest product.

And the Ford is priced Low for the man who insists upon Quality but must also consider Price.

We predict the expenses for Parts and Labor will set a new low record. This is not a factory statement. It's our own and we've got to live in this community.

Gasoline mileage is unusually high. We'll enter into competition anytime, anywhere, with any of them, regardless of size or price, with a gallon tank on the dash.

If there is any doubt in your mind about what Ford has accomplished in these models do yourself justice by putting us into competition, side by side with any or all of them.

We are sorry to report that Mr. Thos. Forrester is ill. Nurse Struthers is caring for him.

Joe Bryson was able to return to school Monday. He has been shut in with scarlet fever.

At the W. M. S. meeting of the United Church the treasurer reported the Easter Thankoffering to date as $68.25. A letter was read from the Presbyterian Supply Secretary mentioning several places needing supplies. Miss Bryson gave a resume of the second chapter of the book "Drums in the Darkness," explaining customs of the African people. Mrs. A. Anderson sang a solo, "Was That Somebody You?" Miss Bazin read a letter from the secretary of the new Dept. on Temperance, stating that the United Church has entered upon a campaign against alcohol, and hoping that our W. M. S. women will give this phase of our work their enthusiastic support and appoint a local secretary. Resolutions approved and passed by the Presbyterian regarding the illegal export of liquor to the U. S. was endorsed by the auxiliary and forwarded to the Senate and House of Commons. Miss Walsh read a letter from Miss B. McNaughton, missionary, on her work in China. Mrs. G. Bistard closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. H. Ovens spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Thompson, Dewittville.

Mr. Webber, Dominion Secretary of the Confederate Brotherhood, Montreal, gave an extremely interesting talk to the men attending the Brotherhood meeting held in MacDonnell Hall on Tuesday evening. His subject was "On the general work of the Brotherhood." 45 men were present at the 7:30 supper served by the men.

Caramel Icing—One and a quarter cups brown sugar, quarter cup granulated sugar, half cup boiling water, one egg white, one teaspoon vanilla, one third cup walnut meats. Mix sugar in water, boil until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water, pour slowly over beaten white, stirring constantly until mixture becomes slightly granular on edge of dish, remove and beat until cool, add nuts, spread on cake.

CHATEAUGUAY BASIN

To mark the 12th anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge a bridge and musical was held at the home of Mrs. W. S. Richardson on Wednesday last, under the auspices of The Julius Richardson Chapter, I. O. O. E. The order stands for unity and loyalty to King and country, and to those ties of Empire essential to our national well being. We have no greater example of such things than the memory of April 9th., 1917, when gallant soldiers from the nine provinces, irrespective of creed or race, stood shoulder to shoulder, on the summit of Vimy Ridge, the storming of which proved to be one of the turning points in the Great War.

A short musical programme was rendered and much enjoyed to which the little Misses Winnifred Hay and Dorothy Barrow, contributed two duets entitled, "Here We Go," "Ding Dong Serve the Bell." Miss Patience Reid, piano solo, "Hark, Hark the Lark" and Miss Boulter sang a group of songs. At the close of the enjoyable afternoon refreshments were served, and prizes awarded to the winners, Mrs. David Dunbar, Mrs. Huntley Boyd, Mrs. Cyril A. Smith and Mrs. L. R. Taylor.

Mrs. A. H. Barrow proposed a vote of thanks to the hostess, and all those who had made the afternoon the success it was.

Mrs. Wm. Drysdale of Montreal, is the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reid at River View.

Mrs. Wm. Wright, who spent the winter in Toronto, Sherbrooke and Rougemont, has returned to town and opened her home for the summer months. She was accompanied by her son, Mr. Robert Wright, who spent the winter in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lang are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.

Allan Jack, who had the misfortune to cut his thumb last week, returned on Monday from the Montreal General Hospital. His many friends are pleased to hear of his recovery.

Mrs. W. S. Richardson and Miss Muriel Pangborn left on Tuesday for Sherbrooke, Que., to attend the Quebec Provincial Chapter annual meeting of I. O. O. E.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Reid, with their little daughter Edna and son Peter of Rougemont visited relatives here during the week-end.

Miss Etta Boulter and Miss Mabel Lang spent Saturday in St. Lambert, in the company of Misses C. and J. Norris. Miss Moore of Hemmingford, Que., is teaching the junior grades in the Julius Richardson School in place of Miss M. Cullen.

Mrs. Robert Craik has returned to the Montreal General Hospital for further treatment. Her many friends are pleased to hear she feels more comfortable.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Percival Hamilton of Montreal, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Barrow at "Bonnie Nook."

Grave anxiety has been felt for Miss M. Cullen, who is a patient in the Montreal General Hospital.

We are pleased to report that Miss Roberta Jack's operation for mastoid has been successful.

ONE BOX ENDED HIS SUFFERINGS

Serious Bowel Condition Relieved by "Fruit-a-tives"

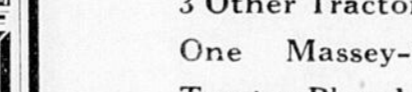

MR. PAGE. Mr. James Page of Cabano, P. Q., was in a very dangerous condition. The Constipation from which he had suffered for five years was undermining his whole system. It was not only ruining his digestion and poisoning his blood, but had also brought on painful piles. Various treatments failed to help him until he tried "Fruit-a-tives," made of intensified fruit juices combined with scientific medicinal ingredients. "One box of this wonderful medicine," he writes, "gave me complete relief. 'Fruit-a-tives' gives results as nothing else does, and I sincerely recommend it to every sufferer. Try this great medicine, 25c. and 50c. in boxes—at dealers everywhere."

ONE BOX ENDED HIS SUFFERINGS

Serious Bowel Condition Relieved by "Fruit-a-tives"

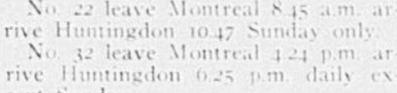

MR. PAGE. Mr. James Page of Cabano, P. Q., was in a very dangerous condition. The Constipation from which he had suffered for five years was undermining his whole system. It was not only ruining his digestion and poisoning his blood, but had also brought on painful piles. Various treatments failed to help him until he tried "Fruit-a-tives," made of intensified fruit juices combined with scientific medicinal ingredients. "One box of this wonderful medicine," he writes, "gave me complete relief. 'Fruit-a-tives' gives results as nothing else does, and I sincerely recommend it to every sufferer. Try this great medicine, 25c. and 50c. in boxes—at dealers everywhere."

CHAPTER XIV

"She came right back up. I heard her tell Mr. Hayward she'd forgot her bank book, and aw, gee, boss, I didn't mean nothing by what I said," Micky Moran protested unhappily. "Honest, she couldn't a-killed him! Why, boss, you only gotta take one look at Miss Ruth to see she wouldn't hurt a fly—"

"Stick to your story, Moran!" McMann barked. "Miss Lester came right back up to her office, you say, Mr. Hayward with her?"

"Now, she told him to wait for her in the lobby, and he did. I took her up and was gonna hold the car for her, but I got a signal from the fifth floor and had to shoot down again. Mr. Hayward was walking up and down in the lobby nervous-like, and looked awful worried when he saw I hadn't brought Miss Lester down with me. Pretty soon—"

"Oh, long?"

"Four or five minutes, I guess, maybe six or seven, I dunno. Micky protested miserably. "Honest, I dunno! Mr. Hayward kept draggin out his watch and lookin' at it, then finally he rushed into my car and told me to shoot up to the seventh floor. We was nearly there when the seventh floor signal flashed on, and there Miss Lester was, breathin' hard, like she'd been runnin' and tears in her eyes—"

"Tears?" McMann interrupted. "You're sure of that, Moran?"

"Sure!" the boy affirmed eagerly. "She'd banged her head against the door and hurt her lip. She was holdin' her handkerchief up to it, and when Mr. Hayward pulled her hand down I could see her lip was swellin' up and gettin' red. Mr. Hayward thought 'Handsome Harry' done it and was raisin' an awful ruckus, but—"

"What did Mr. Hayward say, Moran?" McMann interrupted.

"Gees, I dunno! Somepin about killin' Borden for hurtin' her—just like any guy'd say if he thought—"

"Stick to your story, Moran!" McMann commanded curtly. "Tell me exactly what happened. What Hayward said, what Miss Lester said, what they did."

Micky stuck out his lower lip sullenly. "Gees, I'm tryin' to, ain't I? Mr. Hayward started toward Borden's office and Miss Ruth swung onto him and held him back. She told him it wasn't 'Handsome Harry' that had hurt her lip, she'd banged it on the door, like I told you. And she said if Mr. Hayward wouldn't believe her, she'd take back the promise she'd made him."

McMann's pencil tapped an ominous accompaniment to the slow, painful beating of Ruth's heart. Finally she could stand that slow tapping no longer. She stepped toward the desk. "Please, Mr. McMann! I ask you to believe me what I say. I didn't see Mr. Borden when I returned to my office to look for my savings bank book. The door between the offices was closed, and Mr. Borden was talking over the telephone."

McMann looked up at her from under beetling brows. "And I'm to believe, too, that you spent from four to six minutes looking for your bank book?"

"I did! I had filed it in Mr. Borden's bank folder by mistake, instead of in the folder I use for my personal papers. I looked everywhere before it occurred to me that I had done so. I tell you, I didn't see Mr. Borden, that my lip was bruised against the door when I swung it open. I was in a hurry to rejoin Mr. Hayward—"

"Moran, your car was down at the main floor all the time, you were waiting for Miss Lester, wasn't it? You couldn't have heard a shot if one had been fired on the seventh doorway. I advise you to interview the woman who cleaned these offices Saturday afternoon. She, at least, would have no reason to conceal the murder. The chaps from the morgue will be here any minute now, and I'll phone you a report of my findings after I complete the autopsy. Good day—and step softly, McMann."

Ferber, the finger print expert, shouldered his camera and picked up his kit. "I'll amble on, too, McMann. I'll develop these negatives and send you copies in an hour or so."

As the two men were leaving, Coghlan, superintendent of the building, pushed his way in. "About through with my boys, chief? My elevator service is crippled?"

McMann had risen and was pacing the office, from the air shaft window to the desk and back to the window again. "Get substitutes!" he shouted irritably. "I'm not through with them and get no more time soon—"

By the way, Coghlan, he demanded suddenly, stopping at the raised window and peering out at it. "Who has the office directly opposite?"

The superintendent made a wide detour to avoid the thing that had been on the floor. "Let's see," he considered, scratching his head. "This murder's got me so upset I can't think right clear—"

Ruth had feared that question and its inevitable answer so long that she had no power now to feel more fear than Jack Hayward interrupted, his voice quiet and matter-of-fact: "That's my office, McMann."

McMann looked from the corpse upon the floor to the window near which it lay, then squarely facing the window, he stood for a moment before staggering backward. A choked scream checked his too-realistic pantomime of the falling of a mortally wounded body.

Jack Hayward gasped, as he righted himself, without a glance at the dead man whose last movements he believed he had imitated. "Moran! At what time did Hayward return to his office?"

"He didn't—so far as I know!" Micky Moran retorted.

McMann was nonplussed only for a moment. His pointing finger aimed itself at Otto Pfleger, who had been leaning, silent and sullen against the wall during the entire time he had been in the room. "You, there, tow-head! You run the car nearest Hayward's office, don't you? What time Saturday afternoon did you bring him up?"

Ruth did not scream again. Now that the inevitable had happened strength and courage came to her from somewhere, possibly from the thought that whatever Jack had done, he had done for love of her.

CHAPTER XV

Otto Pfleger hunched his shoulders and ramed his hands deep into the pockets of his uniform. "I dunno—about two o'clock, I guess. I ain't keepin' tabs on them—that's got a right to come and go."

"Isn't there a register record for Saturday afternoon, Coghlan?" McMann demanded. "You require everyone to sign in and out, don't you?"

Coghlan shook his head. "Not until four o'clock Saturdays. Too many tenants coming and going before then—"

"I can tell you almost to the minute when I returned and when I left the building," Jack Hayward settled the question matter-of-factly. "Miss Lester and I went to lunch at the Chester Hotel, and just before dessert was served I discovered that I had left the theatre tickets on my desk. We were going to a matinee. I looked at my watch, found that it was 10 minutes to two, and walked rapidly from the Chester to the Starbridge Building—a distance of only two blocks. I didn't have to wait for the elevator, so it must have been not later than five or six minutes of two when I got off at the seventh floor. I went to my office and—"

"Just a minute!" McMann interrupted. "I'd just a little bit rather have Otto's story before you have a chance to tell him what he remembers. And you might unciench that fist of yours, Hayward. I'm afraid you'll sprain your fingers, and that would be too bad—"

Now, Otto, how long was Mr. Hayward in his office before he went back down again in your car?"

"I ain't saying he was in his office at all," Otto denied sullenly.

"Oh!" McMann pounced. "So you saw him head toward this wing of the building when he left the elevator did you?"

Otto Pfleger shrugged and slouched lower against the wall. "Now! I ain't sayin' he was in his office or he wasn't in his office, because I didn't follow him—see? I ended to my business and that was runnin' my elevator did you?"

"And right now, young man, your business it to answer my questions," McMann retorted. "I may not give you a tip to keep your mouth shut, as Mr. Hayward evidently did, but I can give you a free pass to the jail if you don't open up and spill what you know."

"Mr. Hayward didn't give no tip Saturday—now, nor this mornin' neither! He tips us boys reglar the first of the month, like most of the other tenants do—"

"Aw, all right! I'm tellin' you, if you'll let me! It was about 10 minutes after I took him up before I took him down again, I guess, because I sent my kid brother what was hangin' around in the lobby, over to the drug store across the street to get me a cup of coffee, right after I'd took Mr. Hayward up, and I'd drunk it before he rung for me to take him down."

McMann grinned crookedly as he made rapid notes of the boy's story. "You didn't have any other passenger during those 10 minutes, Otto?"

"Now."

"And when Mr. Hayward left, did you notice anything peculiar about his behavior?" McMann suggested.

Otto glowered. "Now!"

Ruth could have kissed the sullen young towhead for his failure to mention a fact which might yet assume vast importance—that Jack Hayward had returned to his office empty-handed and left it with a heavy briefcase.

"Who else rode in your car between two and four o'clock Saturday?"

McMann prodded the unwilling witness.

"I ain't been taking no memory course," Otto Pfleger shrugged. "But fas as I remember, I didn't take down no passengers from the seventh floor after Mr. Hayward left."

McMann scowled, then turned upon Micky Moran, who grinned cheerfully. "How about you, Moran? Who were your passengers for the seventh floor after Miss Lester's and Mr. Hayward's second trip?"

Micky scratched his thatch of red hair. "First, I brought up Benny Smith, the kid that works here."

To-day the Warmest homes are built like a refrigerator

WHEN you buy, build or remodel your home, take a page from the book of the refrigeration engineer. See to it your walls are insulated . . . that your home is protected against HEAT and COLD and SOUND by TEN/TEST.

TEN/TEST places an impregnable barrier of insulation between the temperature you want and the temperature you don't want. That's why TEN/TEST, used in place of ordinary wood sheathing, keeps your house warm in winter, cool in summer and QUIET all the time. For TEN/TEST is sound absorbing, too.

Before you build or remodel, or buy, be sure to learn more about TEN/TEST. Many a non-insulated home is paying the price of TEN/TEST . . . without enjoying its advantages. Ask your architect or contractor. And write for the free booklet, "TEN/TEST and the Most Wonderful Adventure in the World."

VALLEYFIELD

Miss Gladys Sayles, of Montreal, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sayles over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher of Montmorency were the guests of the former's parents for a few days last week.

Mr. Deerfield, of Troy is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. Lamont.

Mr. Maurice and John Hagen of Massena were visitors to their parental home here on Sunday.

Rev. D. L. Griffith, of Westport, Ont., was a caller at the Presbyterian Manse on Monday.

The Moco Football Club which for many years has worthily upheld the name of Valleyfield in the field, entered upon another phase of activity when on Friday night last they put on a concert.

The Presbyterian church hall was packed. John Lowe esq. honorary president, opened the evening's proceedings in a brief speech he referred to the past history of the club and stated that this year they had entered into the second division and with promotion their expenses would be greater and he warmly welcomed the audience who by their patronage were helping the club.

The National Anthem being sung the chairman commenced the program and we listened to a musical trio by Messrs. Eagen, Bros., and Master O'Neil who rendered selections in such a manner as to make the night a success.

Mr. Harry Whitehead, who for many years was an active player sang a song, "The Son of the Desert Am I." Mr. Whitehead was accompanied by his daughter, Gwendoline. This young lady performed her part in admirable manner and we feel sure that there is a future before her in the musical world.

The chairman introduced Miss Lebeuf, the daughter of the Mayor of Valleyfield, and she sweetly rendered "Good Morning Sue," and was accompanied by Mrs. Robinson. Mr. J. O'Neil took his place at piano and Mr. S. Shane dressed in Scotch costume à la Harry Lauder, brought down the house by singing, (a) "The Sergeant Major," (b) "I'm Eighty in the Morning," (c) "It was all through the wife." A very smart sketch was put on by J. Morin and A. Connell. It took the form of a burlesque showing a little of army life. The lines were very witty and the acting was good. Master O'Neil sang "All by myself in the Moonlight" and met a great reception. The skurl of the pipes was then heard as Pipe Sergeant McDonald, better known to most as the president of the football team and the one especially to whom the club owes a great debt of gratitude. This playing delighted the Scotch and Irish but to suit the English taste Mr. J. McAlpine played very sweetly on the melodeon some old time selections, such as "Rosie O'Grady" etc. Mr. A. Williams followed and sang "In Old Madrid." He was accompanied by Mrs. Robinson. The Moco entertainers comprising of Bros. Eagen, Mr. O'Neil, Sr., Mr. J. Morin, Mr. A. Connell and O'Neil Jr., gave us musical and song selections, entitled—"You can't blame us for that." Miss Eagen favoured us by singing "The Glow Worm." Mrs. David Lowe accompanied on the piano. Then followed Mr. Mark Beale, who rendered in dramatic fashion the song, "The Gauntlet's Down." Mr. O'Neil accompanied him. After a brief intermission the musical trio rendered some old plantation melodies and Mr. H. Whitehead sang "Out where the white-crested billows roll high," his daughter accompanied and carried high ecstasies from the audience.

Then we were favoured by a musical quartette who rendered songs of 1929. Mr. S. Shane sang "The wig wiggle O' the kiln" and Roamin' in the Gloamin'" and literally brought down the house. All tastes were catered to and we heard songs of Ireland and of Wales and of America, when Mr. McAlpine touched the keys of his instrument. "I know a road was given to us" by Mr. A. Williams who has a sweet voice and his accompanist was Mrs. Robinson. Something from the Highlands filled the room when the pipes alytly handed by Pipe Sergeant McDonald began to skurl, and we feel sure that it he would play every Saturday on the football field, victory would always rest with the Mocos.

Miss Eagen, who is always welcome at any concert gave us "The Kerry Pipers" accompanied by Mrs. D. Lowe then followed the musical quartette, who received encore after encore till the chairman had to, because of time bring the concert to a close. A vote of thanks was proposed to the artists and chairman by the Rev. C. Younger-Lewis, and with the singing of "O Canada" the Moco Club concert ended a success in all ways.

Speaking well for the coming season, Mr. and Mrs. C. Orr and Mr. Craig were visitors to Valleyfield on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Frier motored to Ellenburg on Saturday and were the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, returning home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brethour, of Huntingdon, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rowe and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Frier on Sunday.

Mrs. Middlemiss, of Rockburn and Miss Pearl Frier, of Franklin, went to Sawyerville, Que., on Tuesday to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Middlemiss, nee Euphemia Grimshaw, formerly of Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goldie, of Rockburn, were the guests of Mr. Charles Barr and family on Sunday.

Mrs. R. C. Manning, Miss Jean Manning and Mr. James Manning were the Sunday guests of Miss Mary Edwards, who is very ill at Covey Hill.

Mr. Gerald Beaudin, of Champlain, N.Y., was the week-end guest of his mother, Mrs. J. Beaudin.

Mrs. George Miller, of Havelock, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Price one day last week.

Mr. David Cowan and son, Clarence, were the guests of Mrs. M. E. Young on Thursday.

While opening a can of meat with a can opener last Thursday, Mrs. M. E. Young had the misfortune to lacerate all her fingers and thumb of the right hand by the opener slipping.

Mrs. David Cowan and son Clifford of Ormstown, were the guests of Mrs. M. E. Young last Tuesday.

Messrs. Leslie Rutherford and E. Forrester, of Allan's Corners were week-end visitors with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. Milne.

Mr. Raoul Tessier and three friends came from Montreal Saturday afternoon and spent Sunday with Raoul's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tessier.

Mr. Arthur Cunningham spent Friday last in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Sedgewick, of Huntingdon, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Sedgewick, at the home of Mr. Malcolm McNaughton.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milne motored to Chateaugay, N.Y., on Saturday to assist Mrs. Milne's sister, Mrs. Graham, who was having a sale on that day. Mrs. Graham is leaving her farm and going to live in Chateaugay village.

Mrs. Elzear Heineault had a sale at her late home in Dewittville on Tuesday afternoon. The day was most unpleasant and the sale not an exceedingly large one, so there was a very small attendance.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oumintang on account of the death of their new baby last week.

East wind has prevailed for the past ten days or more, and has brought in all sorts of disagreeable weather, snow, rain, hail, thunder, and worst of all the wind itself.

The April meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held in the church on Thursday afternoon, April 25th, when superintendents for some branches of the work remain to be appointed, and six comfort bags are to be filled and sent away to the sailors.

Checker Challenge Cup at Ormstown. This cup has changed hands quite frequently, during the past winter, but the climax was reached Friday night, last, when it changed hands three times in as many hours.

Mr. Edson McWhinnie was the holder when challenged by George McGerrigle; score, six wins and four draws in McGerrigle's favour. Then Arch McCaig challenged the winner, winning by a close margin of one game. Score, four wins, three losses and three draws. Then immediately Mr. Edson McWhinnie again challenged the winner but McCaig retained his hold on the cup.

This is the first shipment to Canada this year, but there are others to follow later.

The Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club held two meetings on April 15. The first at the farm of Mr. Emery Bouchard, one of the most progressive farmers in the Parish of Ste. Martine, a breeder of good commercial grade Ayrshire cows headed by a registered bull. Upwards of thirty farmers attended this meeting.

The second was at the farm of Mr. Irven Watt, Chateauguay Basin, an enthusiastic young Ayrshire breeder who recently has taken over the home farm which in every detail is above the average. Here also is to be found a creditable herd of profitable cows about half of which are registered Ayrshires. Mr. Watt's goal is a purebred Ayrshire herd "as good as the best." After visiting this farm one would expect nothing less. About 45 interested farmers and breeders of the vicinity were present.

These gatherings took the form of breed talk taking as a basis, three cows in each herd and demonstrating what we desire in an Ayrshire cow and why. This department was in charge of Mr. P. D. McArthur, of Howick, Que., President of the Club. Mr. April, Agronomist of Ste. Martine, Que., also a director of the club spoke in a very comprehensive manner of the value of feeds and feeding in order to round out the successful performance of the dairy herd, stressing the point, that not in every case is the same mixture best suited to balance home grown ration, offering to work out a suitable ration for anyone desiring aid.

The right Roof for all Farm Buildings!

Your farm buildings should be protected with the best sheet metal roofing. You make a real investment when you purchase NU-ROOF as this material outlasts the building. It is adapted for all types of buildings—Barns, Sheds, Garages or Residences and may be used for siding as well. NU-ROOF comes in lengths up to 10 ft. and each sheet when laid covers 33" in width. This greater covering area effects a big saving in time, lumber and labor. Only a minimum of supporting wood is required. NU-ROOF is made in "Council Standard," the extra heavy galvanized sheet, also in the ordinary grade. Specify Pedlar's Louvre Ventilators and get protection from dampness and against interior fires. Send us dimensions of your building and we will quote prices on complete job.
