John Leach, of Sandy Creek, Fatally Injured Burned in Gasolene Explosion

Burned from the waist up, when flames from a smashed oil lamp he was carrying exploded a gasolene drum and destroyed a garage and blacksmith shop at Sandy Creek, 35 miles north of Shawville, at 12 o'clock Friday night, John Leach, 50, died six hours later in Pontiac Community Hospital, Shawville, Saturday morning.

Mr. Leach, owner of the blacksmith shop and garage, ran from the building with his clothes a mass of flames after he was sprayed with the contents of the exploding gasolene drum. Friends and relatives rushed to his aid and extinguished the flames. He was then taken by automobile 35 miles to hospital where he was treated by Dr. S E. McDowell. He died at six Saturday morning.

Estimate of the loss was unknown but it was believed valuable garage equipment and tools were lost when the garage and adjoining blacksmith shop burned to the ground.

Mr. Leach also owned a shingle and saw mill which was undamaged although it was close by the other buildings.

Mr. Leach left his home shortly before 12 o clock midnight to inspect the premises with an oil lamp. While he was passing through the garage, the lantern struck a gas drum and smashed. The drum exploded immediately, blowing the end out and spreading flaming gasolene over Mr. Leach and parts of the garage. Before the blaze enveloped the structure, friends were able to remove an automobile to safety from the garage.

Mr. Leach had been a resident of the district for many years and is survived by his wife and several sons and daughters.

The funeral was held from Sandy Creek to Otter Lake R. C. Church and parish cemetery.

Lacks Fresh Water

Enriched by the salt waters that brought commerce to her ports in earlier history, modern Sicily has been impoverished because of lack of life-giving fresh water. Winter floods and summer drouths are farming hazards. Even the largest river, the Simeto curling southeast around Mt. Etna across the Catania plain, cannot be counted on for year-round navigation. The Anapo, considered remarkable because it usually survives the summer with enough water for rowboats, is also an oddity for its marshes of papyrus, the grass that in Egypt gave men paper and paper's name. Papyrus grows wild nowhere else in Europe. Sicily's yearly thirst has been blamed for the island's poverty and attendant evils, such as brigandage and the outlaw gangs of the secret Mafia organization, as well as the heavy emigration.

Ice Cream Ingredients

Cream, milk, milk solids, sugar, and sometimes eggs, form the basis of all ice cream. Vanilla, chocolate, berries, fruits, and nuts are added as flavors. The typical proportion of ingredients in the basic "mix" is about this ratio: 80 per cent cream and milk products, 15 per cent sugar, 4.5 per cent flavor, 0.5 per cent stabilizer. A small amount of edible stabilizer is sometimes included by ice cream manufacturers to prevent the formation of gritty ice crystals. Pure food gelatin is often used for this purpose. The solids content of the mix ranges as follows: milk fat, 10 to 14 per cent; milk-solids-not-fat, 10 to 11 per cent; sugar, 12 to 15 per cent, edible stabilizer, 0.2 to 0.5 per cent.

The evening was spent in games and songs. A purse was presented by little Miss Shirley Somerville, while an address was read by Miss Audrey Black.

Although taken very much by surprise, the bride and groom thanked their friends in a few very appropriate words.

Refreshments were served by the ladies present.

MARRIED

PECK—SCHROEDER

On Tuesday afternoon, May 23, Olga Freda, daughter of the late Rudolph Schroeder and Mrs. Archibald Tanner, of Thorne, Que., was united in marriage to Delbert William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Peck, of Cawood, at the Parsonage of the Shawville United Church with Rev. A. F. Fokes officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her step-brother, Victor Tanner, wore a gown of powder blue crepe, cut street-length with blue felt hat and matching accessories, and a shoulder knot of white carnations.

She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Hazel Peck, whose dress was of old rose crepe with matching accessories. The best man was the bride's brother, Rudolph Schroeder.

After the ceremony supper was served to the immediate friends of both families at the home of the bride's mother, and later a large reception in their honor was given at the home of her brother, Rudolph Schroeder.

The young couple are to reside at Cawood.

Shipyard Dollars

Shipyard dollars are finding their way into the economic current of every state in the Union. Shipbuilding is currently on the greatest scale the world has ever witnessed. Our privately operated shipyards employ well over a million workers. Their weekly earnings substantially top the durable goods industry and general manufacturing rates. In 1943, our payrolls will be very close to three billion dollars as compared with an estimated 1½ billion for 1942.

Shipbuilding for deep sea service is no longer confined to coastal areas. Substantial tonnages of naval, coast guard and commercial vessels are being built in our Great Lakes and river shipyards. This means that shipbuilding wage dollars are being earned, spent and saved in over two dozen states. Shipbuilding generates the employment of another million workers in the allied marine field, thus being responsible for additional payrolls of about two billion dollars.

Greenhouse Crops

Higher fuel cost, lower returns, and flower diseases that attack the vegetable crops are the major problems of vegetable production under glass that a florist is apt to encounter. On the other hand, the vegetables require less labor than the flowers.

Important greenhouse crops are tomatoes, leaf lettuce, cucumbers, radishs, together with beet greens and bunching onions. Cucumbers and radishes, however, because of their low vitamin and food value, are now classed as unessential vegetables and their production is not recommended.

Lettuce, beet, onion, and radish seed is usually sown in September to February or April for winter and spring crops. Tomatoes, the most important greenhouse vegetable, are best sown in November or December for a spring crop. The lettuce, beets and onions are the most satisfactory winter greenhouse crops.

OTTAWA REPORTS

That Temporary Reduction In Butter Ration Is Necessary In Order To Build Up Reserves.

Canadian butter production in the first four months of this year is nearly eight million pounds below the output for the same period last year, and reserves must be built up for winter months, according to K. H. Olive, dairy administrator, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. (Butter coupons 62 and 63 were valid on May 18, but the pound of butter obtained with these coupons must last for three weeks until June 8.

Indications are that for the present at least, Canada has reached peak milk production. At the same time consumption of fluid milk has reached an all-time record with sales still increasing. Large supplies of evaporated milk are needed for infants and those living where fluid milk is unobtainable. Substantial quantities of milk powder are required for the pound of this product that goes in every prisoner-of-war parcel and the requirements of our armed forces and ships' stores must be obtained from Canadian production. In addition, Mr. Olive points out, Canada has to meet the requirements of the new United Kingdom contract for 125 million pounds of cheese as well as provide cheese for the home market.

"Total demand for dairy products exceeds total supply, and it is the job of the Board to allocate available supplies in the way which will best meet nutritional needs," Mr. Olive emphasizes.

Trade figures just released here show that for the first two months of the present calendar year total Canadian exports to French possessions were $6,156,000 as against only $240,000 in the same period in 1943. Countries to which these were shipped included Morocco, Algeria, Corsica and Tunis. Free France, represented by the French Committee of Liberation is included in five agreements which Canada signed recently in connection with granting of mutual aid by Canada to the Allied Nations.

Importation of new potatoes will not be authorized while 1943 domestic stock of good quality is available, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced. Total storage charges which may be added for the period up to May 31 are 40 cents per 75-lb. container; 52 cents per 100-lb. container. The last storage increase which will be effective June 1, amounts to a total of 50 cents per 75-lb. container and 65 cents per 100-lb. container.

Application of sanitation, isolation of diseased birds, and general good management will result in fewer losses from blackhead in young turkeys says H. I. MacGregor, Poultry Division, Central Experimental Farm. He advises that all sickly turkeys should be removed from the flock as soon as signs of disorder appear. If they recover, they should not be returned to the flock but kept separate and fattened for market.

Any farmer whose profits during the year on all his farm operations, after deducting the proper allowances for expenses, amount to more than $5000 is subject to an excess profit tax, acording to a statement issued by the Income Tax Department to the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. Such a farmer is entitled, in calculating his tax, to deduct from total profits a salary allowance for himself of not less than $2500 and not more than $5000, if he works full time on his farm. The exact amount he will be permitted to deduct is at the discretion of the Minister of National Revenue, who is guided generally by the recommendations of the local income tax inspectors. In the case of a partnership, the partners are permitted to deduct a salary allowance for each of them, according to what the Minister deems proper.

5 Great Qualities Make John Bull

Edgar Granville, Independent member of the British Parliament for Eye, in a speech last week said Britain during the last five years has exemplified five great qualities:

"At Dunkerque—courage; in the blitz—endurance; after Singapore—faith; for the invasion—determination; for the future—thrift."

He said "they add up to the character of John Bull."

There are now almost 100,000 men in the Fighting French land forces.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PAUL IN EPHESUS

Acts 19:1—20:1; Ephesians.

PRINTED TEXT, Acts 19: 8-10; Eph. 2:4-10, 3:14-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—We are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them. Ephesians 2:10.

Memory Verse: He hath made everything beautiful in its time. Ecclesiastes 3:11.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—The visit of Paul to Athens described in Acts 19 took place about A.D. 53 or 54. The Epistle which he wrote to the church at Ephesus was written about ten years later.

Place.—Paul wrote the Epistle to the Ephesians from his imprisonment at Rome, Ephesus being one of the great cities of what was then called Asia, now known as Asia Minor.

Labor In Ephesus

"And he entered into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, reasoning and persuading as to the things concerning the kingdom of God." The subject of Paul's preaching was all that related to the kingdom of God, the new dispensation, the doctrine and church of Christ. By 'persuading' is meant 'endeavoring to convince.'

Summary of Work

"But when some were hardened and disobedient, speaking evil of the way before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, reasoning daily in the school of Tyrannus.

The final manifestation of the hardened heart is to speak evil of the Christian faith. For three months Paul continued his exhortations to stoney-hearted hearers, but when their obstinacy turned to hostility, he left them. Paul separated his disciples, for there could be no fellowship between believers and unbelievers and continued reasoning daily in the lecture hall of Tyrannus.

All Heard The Word

"And this continued for the space of two years; so that all they that dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks." The result of this prolonged labor was that all who inhabited Asia heard the word of the Lord. Paul is at the height of his great missionary activity.

"But God, being rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us." In the previous verses Paul has described the dark and hopeless state of the Gentiles—'dead in trespasses and sins', the children of 'disobedience and of wrath'. What a contrast is introduced by the little word 'but'. Darkness gives way to light, despair to hope, wrath to mercy. Sinners though we were by nature and practice, God loved us.

Saved By Grace

"Even when we were dead through our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ (by grace have ye been saved'." God in his grace has quickened, has saved those who have truly believed.

"And raised us up with him, and made us to sit with him in the heavenly places, in Christ Jesus." The true Christian as a member of Christ's mystical body, though toiling and suffering on earth in the body, is, in the life of Spirit with Christ in Heaven.

"That in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus." Throughout eternity we shall ever be making new discoveries of God's love and grace.

The Gift of God

"For by grace have ye been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not of works, that no man should glory." Paul states clearly and consistently that by works no man can be saved, therefore, since salvation cannot be of merit it must be of grace, it must be a salvation which God in mercy provides.

Daily Obedience

'For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them." Our life is to consist not in the occasional doing of a good work here and there, but is to be a course of daily obedience.

Prayer For Power

"For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father, ... that ye may be filled unto all the fulness of God."

Paul prays that believers may be strengthened in the inner man—in heart, mind, and soul. The idea is that spiritual firmness and vigor may be given, that we may withstand all evil, bear trials cheerfully. As the body needs to be strengthened every day with nourishing food, so the soul needs to be strengthened by supplies of Divine grace. This strength is given to us through the Holy Spirit who dwells within us and is to us as Christ Himself. Paul's prayer is that his converts may be 'filled' with all moral and spiritual qualities which God designs His people to possess. He desires that we may be full of His love, joy, grace, wisdom, power and glory.

China has 5,000,000 armed soldiers, including 800,000 guerillas and 600,000 regular troops, operating in supposedly enemy occupied territories.

Garden Notes

GARDEN PESTS

Beginners are inclined to worry too much about insect and other garden pests, experienced gardeners believe. True, there is almost one special insect for every plant that grows in Canada. As a rule, however, if we keep our garden growing and healthy through regular cultivation, in many cases the plants will outgrow most of the damage. But some dusting or spraying is advisable to ward off heavy attacks. Usually we can purchase ready-mixed materials. The important thing is to get these applied just as soon as damage or pests first appear.

ON GUARD

The small garden, both flower and vegetable, but more especially the latter, is very subject to pest damage. Sparrows may pounce on the lettuce, cut worms girdle the tomatoes, grubs attack the carrots or beets. One must be on guard continuously because if we are not ready to go into action the instant the attack occurs, it will be too late. Indeed with certain pests like sparrows, starlings and cut worms it is best to be prepared in advance.

Often a scarecrow or a few bits of fluttering rags, or a little brush spread over garden or lawn will scare away birds. In some cases lettuce and such tempting lines are grown under a wire netting, which is removable for cultivation.

Paper collars around the stems of tomatoes and cabbage just above and below the surface of the soil will protect against cut worms, but a poison mixture secured from any seed store is better. Special dusts can also be purchased for protecting cabbage, celery, cucumbers and melons.

A good general guard against pests is cultivation. Cut worms and many other grubs don't like to be stirred up.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

in London, Ontario, there is the grave of an unknown woman who claimed the rights of a princess of the British Royal family? No re-records exist to prove or disprove her claims, yet it is clearly stated on her grave stone that she is the daughter of George 4th as pictured in an Associated Screen movie short.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Discouragement over our present unsettled weather led me to look up last year's seeding dates and I find we sowed our first spring grain on June 12. This is May 15, and we have one field sown and about two acres in another field so I guess there is still hope — except that it is raining again! It is too bad the weather doesn't stay fine long enough for the farmers to finish seeding because the men say the land is in ideal condition and any grain that has been sown is growing splendidly. It is difficult for farmers to know how to work to the best advantage. In some cases where neighbours have agreed to work together one man has his seeding done while the other hasn't started. That is likely to happen any time and the one who is left has to be a pretty good sport to take it. Co-operative farming is a fine thing in principle but if the weatherman doesn't co-operate too there is just a chance the scheme may create a little bad feeling. It just depends on what plans have been made beforehand and how willing each man is to take chances — and accept the result!

* * * *

The country is really lovely these days. Of course it is always lovely in the spring but this year I honestly believe it is the best yet. I don't think there was ever a year when the grass, the trees, and the shrubs looked so fresh and green. Nor was there ever a year when the grass grew so fast. Or do I just notice it because I have it to cut? It takes about three hours to mow all the grass around here — and that is without clipping the edges. Saturday I had it about half done and then had to leave it to go to town. When I came back Partner had finished it. After all, a shower of rain has its advantages.

* * * *

Do you mind if I say a word or two about chickens in general and mine in particular? You don't think I had better? Well, perhaps not, because what I might say wouldn't be fit for publication anyway. You see my chickens are now seven weeks old and high time they were roosting. To encourage them I took away their first low roosts and replaced them with the proper ones, slanting them in the approved fashion and placing wire-netting underneath to force the chickens to perch on the roosts instead of going into a huddle on the floor. When it was nearly bedtime for the chicks I went out to see what they were doing. I was very well satisfied because about half of them were roosting and I thought that was pretty good for a start. A little later I went back to shut them up for the night and every last chicken was on the floor! Some of them were even under the wire-netting. How they ever got there is more than I know. If only chickens could be trained like dogs.

* * * *

And that brings me around to the subject of Tippy — and chickens. The other day I thought I heard a suspicious noise going on outside. On investigation I found Tippy stretched out on the grass with a chicken between his front paws. I noticed he kept giving it a wee bite as if it amused him to hear it yip. To my surprise the chicken wasn't hurt at all and jumped up and ran off as soon as it was released. And then it was Tippy's turn to yip and yelp. Since then he has left the chickens alone although I often see him watching them with longing eyes. I'm not taking any chances.

* * * *

Tippy loves to be with me when I am working in the garden — and I have been out quite a bit lately, what with cutting grass and setting out shrubs. I bought a few new ones last week and transplanted some of the others. One of the new ones is witch hazel, which according to the catalogue blooms outside in January and February. That sounds too good to be true — but it will be interesting to see what happens. But oh dear, if one could only be in two places at one time. The more I work outside the more my work in the house gets behind. The paper in the dining-room is half off and looks awful. It is a terrible wall to scrape — I don't seem to make any headway at all. Wouldn't somebody like a job?

PENSIVE WINS TOP MONEY

When Pensive won the Preakness, just as he won the Kentucky Derby, he became the year's top money winner, with earnings above $140,000. With Conn McCreary up, he outraced Platter, who won second place, and Stir Up, who came in third. Pensive's triumph added $60,701 to his winnings.

Booms And Nets To Guard Harbors

Chiefs of Britain's Boom Defence Service today are engaged in working out detailed plans for protecting the European harbors they expect the Allies to be using shortly. Theirs is the job of erecting steel booms and nets across occupied harbors to keep out enemy submarines and torpedoes. Men of the Boom Defence Service accompany invading armies in ships specially built to maintain nets which weigh from three to 30 tons.

MOTHERCRAFT HEALTH NOTES

A Daily Diet For Expectant Mother

Diet throughout pregnancy should be sufficient, good, simple, digestible and nutritious. It is not necessary for the expectant mother to eat excessively large amounts of food. The quality of the food is more important. Natural foods prepared with as little cooking as necessary, are essential.

A day's diet should include: fruit, such as oranges, apples, prunes or raisins, figs, dates, grapefruit, bananas. A cereal — whole grain wheat cereal or rolled oats. One tablespoon whole bran may be added for constipation. Milk — one pint at least of fresh whole milk, buttermilk or skimmed milk. Vegetables, especially green ones, such as lettuce, spinach, cabbage, asparagus, etc. — two servings besides potatoes. A small quantity of meat, fish and an egg. Butter, cheese and cod liver oil. Sugar and sugar products should be restricted, especially if mother is overweight. At least two quarts of water must be taken daily. Alcoholic stimulants should not be taken unless medically advised.

Early in pregnancy the mother should see her dentist as teeth often decay during pregnancy and an extra supply of mineral salts and vitamins are necessary so that the forming child will get what it requires without depriving the mother.

TABLE TALKS

Make This Receipe a "Regular"

This week's recipe describes a hot, healthful and delicious dish that tried once will be a "regular" on your table.

Corn En Casserole

2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1¼ cups milk
1½ cups Bran flakes, finely crushed
2 cups canned whole kernel corn, drained
1 egg, well beaten

Place green pepper, onion, and 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan and cook gently until tender. Add flour and seasonings and stir until smooth. Add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add ¾ cup flakes, corn, and egg. Turn into greased 1½ quart casserole. Melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter and pour over remaining ¼ cup flakes. Toss lightly to mix. Sprinkle over top of corn. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

MAKE IT INTO A DRESS

When a man's shirt is so worn at the neck and cuffs that it can't be worn, there is still plenty of material to make a cotton dress or apron. Where possible, use the buttons or button holes down the front—it saves an hour's work. Two worn shirts of contrasting color can often be combined to make a smart cotton frock for your eight year old daughter.

● SERIAL STORY

Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

Last week: Chandra warns Christine to be on her guard, urges her to come to him for advice. Christine believes that he is a fake. After the show ends, she remains. Chandra comes to her at once.

CHAPTER V

"I am glad you waited," Chandra began with a direct simplicity Christine had not expected.

"No doubt," she said icily, "this was a fair exchange: But don't you think you might have let me in on the plot?"

"Miss Thorenson"—his smile was tired—almost, if seemed to Christine, worried—"I suppose there's no way of convincing you that I really want to help you?"

"So you do know my name! . . . But then, of course, you've had me followed by some of your spies ever since I got off that train—perhaps even before. . . . And if you're a Hindu, I'm the Duchess of Windsor. . . . Well, I'm fed up on theatrical tricks. What I'd like is some real triple-threat facts—if you've got any."

"Then, Miss Thorenson," the "swami" told her with a gentleness so persuasive that, for the moment, Christine's stern young skepticism was almost broken down, "you were very unwise to register at your new address under an assumed name. I see for you a very real danger."

"Well, Mr. Chandra—or whatever your real name is," Christine said, "since I seem to have no secrets from you, you couldn't suggest, I suppose, exactly what it is I ought to do—aside from inspecting my baggage for an unmentionable object presumably placed there by a person or persons unknown?"

"I could suggest—but it would do no good," he told her wearily, "that if you find—what I have reason to think you will—you communicate with me at once, by a messenger I will gladly place at your disposal. I shall then be in a position to advise you."

"Thanks a lot," Christine flashed. "I'l take my chances on the persons unknown."

As she marched out, she glanced at her watch. . . . After 11, and she was a good two miles from home. Well, she needed a brisk walk to clear her mind after all that hocuspocus.

Of course the idea that she could be in any danger was just funny. The whole scenario was ridiculously clear—beginning with that telephone girl—and all so crude and bungling.

Yet, in spite of her bravado, Christine jumped when a voice said at her shoulder, "it would be you. Don't you know that no girl with eyes and hair like yours is safe from unwelcome attentions on this Boardwalk at night?"

"So it seems," Christine said when she could control her voice. "No doubt if you had your way curfew would ring at sunset for every woman under 80."

The bareheaded young man must have run up the stairway from the beach, for he was breathing quickly, and his hair was rumpled.

"Well," he went on with such infectious pleasure that Christine found herself feeling for the first time that day that it was marvelous to be young and alive, "maybe I'll be able to enjoy my meals now. When I called the Crestview this afternoon, they told me you'd checked out. . . . But let's get out of this mob."

They had been standing just in front of Christine's "studio." As they moved on under the lights of the Twentieth Century Pier, Christine stopped short in the midst of the crowded, noisy Boardwalk.

"But"—she cried—"why you're drenched!"

The sleeves and front of his coat and shirt were dripping, trickles of water ran down his light trousers, and his shoes were sodden and caked with wet sand.

"Oh, that?" He glanced down with some embarrassment. "I got pretty close to the surf-line, and a big one caught me amidships."

Christine was not an introspective young person. She was no more capable of analyzing her sudden lift of spirit than she had been of understanding that her restlessness and lonliness of the earlier evening had not been entirely due to worry about Cousin Emma's strange desertion. She only knew now that she felt more at home with this tanned stranger whom she had met barely 24 hours ago—more warmly glad to see him—than she would have felt with any one she had known a lifetime; and that her pleasure in being with him again was as right and natural as the clean sea breeze.

"I'm cold, too," he was going on plaintively. "Something hot to eat would feel right good at this minute—and Decker's is just a comfortable walk along the Boardwalk. That's the one place in Surf City that doesn't reek with fried potatoes. . . . And I hate eating alone. Come on, Miss Thorenson," he wheeled with an engaging grin, "be a good scout."

"I'd like to, only"—Christine laughed for the first time that day—"except that the fellers call you 'Bill,' I don't know your name."

"I answer much more docilely to 'Bill,' but if I forgot to mention it, the rest of it's Yardley," he told her. Then he added with something behind the smile in his eyes that made her catch her breath, "I hope you're going to like it."

While they were waiting at the table Bill had found by a window that overlooked the sea, Bill said, "It occurs to me that there's a lot about me besides my name that you don't know. I raise horses for a living—mighty fine horses. But the market wasn't too good this year; so I took over the riding school here. You see, I've had a handicap over you all along. When I heard you say you were Mrs. Talbert's cousin. I knew you wouldn't be interested in lifting my watch."

"If you'd known the whole truth," Christine said wryly, "you'd probably have kept your hand on that watch. . . . Not that I'm not Mrs. Talbert's cousin; but there've been occasions—not so long ago—when a nice 17-jeweled watch would have made my fingers itch."

"Christine," he said abruptly, "something's worrying you. Why not get it out of your system?"

"You'll probably laugh," Christine hesitated. "I hope you will. . . . I've had a feeling all along that I ought to; but somehow my sense of humor doesn't seem to be working this week-end."

Yet when she did tell him the whole story of that preposterous day, he did not laugh.

Instead, he frowned over his cigaret, "So Chandra took a hand? . . . That bird cuts a pretty wide swathe. People come here to consult him about everything from the baby's first tooth to the outcome of the presidential election: financiers, successful writers and artists and actors; political bosses, social registerites. They say he used to be an actor. He's probably part psychologist, part mystic, part shrewd business man, and part stage manager. I've never heard of his being involved in anything really shady. In fact, if Chandra told me to go home and look under my bed for Barnum's elephant, I'm not sure I wouldn't take a chance."

They had left the restaurant, and had strolled back to the Twentieth Century Pier. Suddenly Bill broke off, "Look — there's something wrong!"

On the Boardwalk just ahead a crowd was milling about, interspersed with figures in uniform.

Afterwards, Christine remembered that everything that happened during the grim hours that followed had much the quality of an unreal but none the less terrifying dream.

Canals Used With Rails For Transport Supremacy

More than a century ago—on July 4, 1828—two men turned spades which started a rivalry between railroads and canals. President John Quincy Adams broke ground for the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, and Charles Carroll of Carrollton began construction of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The rivalry continued until the outbreak of World War I.

Canal traffic reached its peak in the 1850s, declined when the railroads crisscrossed the country. Canal transportation was cheap, but it was also slow, and railroads made their bid for business with the new element of speed.

In 1917 pressure on rail facilities by troops and war supplies revived canal transportation as a natural supplement to railroads. But the revival was short-lived. Post-war development of motor transport and the rapid extension of motor highways diverted public interest in canals.

The current World war has given canals new life. Rail lines are jammed. Troop trains are tailed by flatcars loaded with jeeps and landing barges. Freight trains bulge with food and clothing, iron and steel and coal, materials for building munitions plants and plane factories, timber from forests and scrap from the four corners of the United States. Motor transportation is hampered by spotty gas shortages.

King's Fashionable Estate Made a Victory Garden

King George's "Victory Garden" was harvested after a very successful season.

The "garden" was on his estate at Sandringham, Norfolk, where, as all over Britain, every available acre has been converted to farmland. The golf course, for instance, was plowed up for a large crop of oats; six acres of lawn in front of the house itself were under a crop of rye; and where brightly colored flowers once filled ornamental beds, beets and parsnips now grow.

Thanks to comprehensive planning, carried out with the help of the Norfolk agricultural committee, the king's estate showed heavy yields: potatoes gave up to 12 tons an acre and wheat 60 to 70 bushels an acre.

Altogether, 1,433 acres were farmed, of which 977 were under the plow; of these 977, some 539 were added after the war started. Most impressive section of the newly plowed land was the 476 acres which have been reclaimed from the Sandringham marshes. Reclamation has involved extensive ditching and draining operations, but the land is now producing potatoes, peas, beans, mustard, wheat and oats.

Wages Rise

An impartial examination of figures compiled by the bureau of labor statistics shows that since August, 1939, average weekly wages of workers in manufacturing establishments throughout the country have gone up 82.4 per cent. Living costs in this period (August, 1939, to June, 1943) have increased less than 27 per cent. In other words, the rate of increase in wages has been three times as great as the rate of increase in the cost of living.

In the past two years, average weekly earnings of manufacturing employees have increased nearly 54 per cent—from $28.08 in April, 1941, to $43.35 in June, 1943. Only about half of this gain was due to overtime payments. While average weekly earnings increased 54 per cent, hours worked per week increased only 11.5 per cent, the number of hours for these two periods being 40.0 and 45.2 respectively.

Waterfowl Migration

More than 25 million migratory waterfowl of various species patronized federal refuge areas during their southward journey last fall, according to a report made by the Fish and Wildlife service.

This figure is based upon the total waterfowl utilization of some 90 national wildlife refuges during the September-December migration period, as reported by field personnel of the service.

Mallards ranked the most numerous among the nation's wildlife guests during this period with about 11½ million, followed by pintails with nearly 6 million, baldpates, 898,900; green-winged teals, 726,000; blue-winged teals, 600,000; and shovellers, with 576,000.

Wash Off Mud

Never let mud dry on your shoes. Wash off all mud and sand with warm—not hot—water. While the leather is still wet rub with oil or grease to prevent the leather from being stiff and hard when dry. Stuff the shoes with crumpled paper to hold them in shape and to absorb inside moisture.

WHAT IS WANTED

You can remedy this critical paper shortage by saving every scrap of Waste Paper, namely: wrapping paper—store bags—cardboard — cartons — corrugated board—old magazines and books—envelopes and letters — newspapers. These represent the raw material for making vitally needed Paper containers.

HOW TO DO IT

Tie securely in separate bundles. (The little time you take will save thousands of man hours.) Then dispose of it through your local voluntary Salvage Committee or other War Voluntary Organization, or sell it through any known trade channels, your pedlar, dealers or others. The important thing is your Waste Paper moving to the mills.

Stews, Salads, Soups— Carrots Are Good in All

The carrot is an all-purpose vegetable. It can be used in stews, pot roasts, soups and chowders. It goes into vegetable loaves, into sandwiches, and into salads.

Raw carrot is one of the best salad joiners. You can shred the carrots or cut them—in slender sticks, in thin round slices, or in cubes.

Shredded carrots and cabbage make a simple salad that's in season throughout the year. Use a salad dressing to hold the vegetables together. You may add ground peanuts for variety. Shredded carrot in a molded gelatin salad is a great favorite, especially if you use a fruit—perhaps home canned peaches or oranges when they are in season.

For sandwiches with crunch and flavor, use grated carrot with chopped raisins, prunes, home dried peaches or apples and salad dressing. Or, just use creamed butter with carrots chopped fine.

Dry Cleaning

If you insist on home dry cleaning, the Safety council recommend the following procedure:

Use a non-flammable fluid, even if you're just taking spots out of a garment. (Products advertised as non-explosive may still be flammable.) When possible keep your hand out of the solvent by using a hand type suction washer.

Do the cleaning outside the house on a day when there is enough wind to carry the vapors away. Dry the garments outside the house. Keep children and pets away. The importance of care in dry cleaning cannot be overemphasized. Don't arrive for your date with St. Peter ahead of time.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

Future Aircraft

British pilots decidely like jet-propelled aircraft. Highly experienced and critical test pilots say they are easily flown, very responsive to controls, and the high-speed rotary power units are so smooth and vibrationless in operation that they prefer them to orthodox types. Their advantages are many, according to the men who fly them. To begin with, the power produced is applied directly. There is no transmission gear of conversion mechanism. Thus the power plant is simplified, weight is considerably reduced and loss by friction is avoided. Then it does not need high-grade aviation gas as fuel. Paraffin, diesel or tar oil can be used in its stead and so-called "safety" fuels can be used without any loss of efficiency. There is no complicated supercharger, with gear shifts, clutches and boost control. Only a simple fuel-injection system is required. Also the vibration is reduced, the airscrew is eliminated, saving further weight, simplifying control and reducing complication. Predictions are that with the coming of this British gas turbine, the design of future aircraft will be revolutionized. Turbines are being kept in mind for high-speed, high altitude passenger aircraft, and for the huge transport planes now being planned.

Mosaic of Photos To Aid Invaders

The British have announced that Allied invasion planners have had the benefit of a minute detailed mosaic of 3,000 miles of continental invasion coastline, put together from pictures made by the RAF.

Five hundred thousand pictures were used in the mosaic. They were taken by reconnaissance pilots flying seven miles high at six miles a minute, sometimes diving 400 miles an hour toward the "subject."

RHEUMATIC Pains! WASH THEM AWAY!

DOES YOUR BODY ACHE?

Here's quick relief from miserable neuritis, rheumatic, arthritic and lumbago pains—Drink water abundantly and rely upon "B'WELL" herbal remedy as an internal cleanser. RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Government Issues Garden Pamphlet

Incidental to any vegetable garden are diseases which affect the crops, and insect pests, but the methods of control are not difficult. These are described in brief, easily understood terms in the new edition of "The Wartime Garden". This pamphlet can be obtained by writing to Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. It is not only useful to the recruit to wartime gardening, but the experienced gardener will also find it valuable for frequent reference.
will also find it valuable for frequent reference.

Another feature of the new edition of "The Wartime Garden" is a table indicating the best kinds and varieties of vegetables to grow, the amount of seed or plants required for garden rows of 50 feet and the probable return obtainable. Another table shows the time to sow seed or set out plants for every region in Canada.

Stalin Doesn't Want 'To Own Europe'

Forrest Davis, Associate Editor of the Saturday Evening Post, quotes Marshal Joseph Stalin in a Post article published not so long ago as saying that the Soviet Union has no desire for the lands of its neighbors.

In the first of two articles, "What Really Hapened at Teheran," Mr. Davis says Mr. Stalin made a sweeping declaration at Teheran of "his desire to conciliate his neighbors, saying flatly that he had no desire to own Europe."

Mr. Davis says Mr. Stalin added that "his country is only half populated and the Russians have plenty to do at home, without undertaking great new territorial responsibilities."

Mr. Davis has not disclosed the source of his information.

'Floating Hedgehogs' Aid Nazi Defenses

"Floating hedgehogs"—guns and antiaircraft batteries mounted on naval units—have been added to Nezi anti-invasion defenses in the English Channel and the North Sea, says the Weekly Military Review published by the German High Command.

"This increase in defenses has become necessary because of intensified air warfare from Britain," the Review said.

The "hedgehogs" apparently are an adoptation of the "Floating Island" fortresses established off the British coast as a defense measure earlier in the war, but are equipped with some sort of motive power.

The third was a publisher. He left $500.

Fourth was a waste-paper merchant. He left $50,000.

A Poet's Prophecy

Thomas Gray who wrote "Elegy Written In A Country Churchyard" was a prophet as well as a poet, comments the Stratford Beacon-Herald. For more than two centuries ago—in 1737, as the records show—he penned a remarkable prediction at Cambridge. Gray called it "Luna Habitabilis"—in the light of today it could be termed fulfilled prophecy of Allied air supremacy in this year of tremendous climax in global warfare. Two hundred and seven years ago, Thomas Gray wrote these words:

"The time will come when thou shalt lift thine eyes
To watch a long-drawn battle in the skies,
While aged peasants, too amazed for words,
Stare at the flying fleets of wond'rous birds.
England, so long the Mistress of the Sea,
Where winds and waves confess her sovereignty,
Her ancient triumphs yet on high shall bear;
And reign, the Sovereign of the Conquered Air."

Air Cadets To Get Supervised Flights

Arrangements are being made to give "familiarization" flights in R. C. A. F. aircraft to senior cadets who qualify in accordance with requirements, the Air Cadet League of Canada announced recently.

Cadets will receive flights as a reward for faithful attendance at squadron parades and progress in training. A waiver form signed by his parents must be obtained by each cadet who qualifies and is recommended for flights by his commanding officer. Trips are expected to be of 30 minutes duration or less and will be carried out within a radius of 20 miles from the station.

Without making much noise about it, the Air Cadet League of Canada has done a remarkable job. In three years about 29,000 Air Cadets have been enrolled in 370 squadrons, and this has all been done through the enthusiasm of civilian sponsoring bodies, such as schools, service clubs and business firms.

United Nations And Axis Struggle For Supremacy In Southern Italy

WHERE ALLIES LAUNCH ALL-OUT DRIVE

Map shows where Allied 5th and 8th Armies in Italy have opened an all-out offensive along an 85-mile front from Casino to the Tyrrhenian Sea. It is believed to be the first of coordinated blows from the west, south and east planned to squeeze Germany out of the war.

The mighty Allied offensive, opened in Southern Italy two weeks ago, differs from previous attacks of the Eighth, Army. Our task now is to assault and break through in turn a series of natural defensive positions strongly held and long prepared, each of which the Germans will cling to until forced out.

Our immediate objective is the Gustav Line which has been fortified for many months past, and includes modern concrete defense works in many places.

Behind this lies the Adolf Hitler Line, another strong natural defensive position, which German military engineers prepared for months past, strengthened to the utmost, and which Hitler's troops will be ordered to hold to the last man. The defenses we now are attacking are the strongest the British Army has encountered in the present war.

The fact that Hitler gave his own name to this second line beyond the Gustav defenses indicates its strength, and Nazi belief that it will not be broken.

Anticipating the onslaught, the enemy has strengthened these defenses, specially the Hitler Line, with steel and concrete, using his own men and thousands of Italian laborers.

The Germans also cleared civilians out of an area behind the front at least 20 miles deep, which now has become an arena of a slugging match unrivaled in Italian history.

May Be Turning Point

This battle may be as much a turning point as was the Battle of France. In 1940 disaster came swiftly because one side had a major superiority in weapons, including the weapons of treachery and ruthlessness.

The Germans won by their excess of airplanes and tanks, taking over from General de Gaulle a technique of automotive warfare. They also won because the French were divided, with the minorities of the extreme left and the extreme right showing no will to resist.

Now the Nazi superiority in weapons, in Italy and everywhere else, has passed. Some of the United Nations weapons are now superior in quality. In quantity and in productive capacity the United Nations have an enormous advantage. Our supply lanes are open, subject only to minor loss by submarine action. British factories are comparatively safe from Nazi attack. American factories entirely safe. German factories and supply routes enjoy no such immunity. For many months they have been under attack and for a month under an air assault of unprecedented magnitude. In Italy itself the railways below Florence are reported out of commission.

Variety Of Troops

The most impressive aspect of the whole offensive is the wide variety of troops participating in the struggle. There are Americans, and Frenchmen, and Canadians, and Australians, and New Zealanders, and South Africans, and Poles, and Indian Empire troops, and Italian, and to the north around Trieste even Yugoslav partisans. And many of these national divisions must again be subdivided. The American troops include Japanese; the French troops include both Metropolitan Frenchmen and North African natives; the British include Englishmen, and Welshmen, and Scotchmen and Irish volunteers; and the Yugoslav partisans include Croats, and Slovenes, and Serbs and other Balkan nationals.

True United Nations

From all the corners of the earth there have been gathered together men of many nations, of many races, of many shades of color, and of many creeds, to form a true United Nations army which has flung down a challenge to the German "master race." Any army in which so many different units can fight as a single whole—in which for instance, French infantry can advance under cover of American artillery directed by British target-spotting planes—is a triumph of military organization and command. But it is more than that. It is a symbol of the human spirit which the Nazis never understood—the spirit which united all these men in a common struggle against a common danger to their liberty and self-respect.

First War Food Agency Earned $60,000,000 Profit

A study of the United States food administration in World War I shows that this war agency, established to aid orderly marketing of grain and flour earned a profit of $60,000,000 and employed about 11,000 persons to carry out its task.

Principal key positions were filled by volunteer workers and at the height of its activities on July 15, 1918, only four persons were carried on the payroll of the food administration at a salary in excess of $5,000 annually.

The food administration itself, exclusive of the various boards, had only 1,338 paid employees in Washington and 1,583 in the field. The average Washington salary was $1,274, while field salaries averaged only $988.56.

Total expenditures of the food administration amounted to $7,862,669,000 which included the cost of the temporary buildings erected to house its activities. Of that amount, only $3,793,000 was paid out for salaries to both permanent and temporary employees. The total volume of purchases of all supplies made by the food administration during its existence aggregated more than $7,250,000,000.

Size of Vermont

Crowded Sicily is about the size of Vermont but has more than ten times as many inhabitants. Two of Italy's largest cities are Sicilian. Palermo, the capital, normally with more than 400,000 people, ranks sixth on the city roster, and Catania, with about a quarter-million, ranks 11th. The port of Messina, however, with fewer than 195,000 people, is one of Italy's most important ports because of its situation at the Sicilian side of the ferry link with Italy.

Of all the seaside cities that surround the island's thinly peopled mountain core, none has had a more varied history than Syracuse. Now a port of some 50,000 inhabitants, in the days of Sicily's Grecian glory this was Europe's largest city, with more than a million inhabitants.

Volcano a Barometer

An oddity is the fact that Mt. Etna, Stromboli and Vesuvius, Europe's most active volcanoes, lie in a direct line. No doubt this geologic axis was formed by some prehistoric upheaval and is responsible for the many ruinous earthquakes, tidal waves and eruptions with which southern Italy and Sicily have been visited throughout history.

Mariners have used Stromboli for thousands of years as a lighthouse and barometer. By judging the "plume" above the crater, sailors predicted changes of temperature and wind. Probably for this reason the isle was regarded as the abode of Aeolus, god of the winds. It was here that Ulysses stopped and asked Aeolus to bind in a great bag all the "bad winds."

Onion Harvest

When three-quarters of the tops of onions have broken over, many commercial growers break over the rest themselves. Then as soon as the tops begin to dry, the onions are pulled and placed in windrows to cure. Later they are bagged or crated and placed near a building or at the edge of the field to finish drying, and given some protection against rain. When the onions are sufficiently cured for storing, the tops may be removed and the onions placed in crates or in large-mesh bags which allow free circulation of air.

Perishable Meats

It is well to keep in mind when purchasing any of the variety meats—liver, heart, kidneys, tongue and sweetbreads—that they are very perishable. Buy just enough for the immediate day's use and keep the meat cold until you are ready to cook it. If you are so fortunate as to have a large freezing compartment in your refrigerator, these meats can be purchased in quantity and kept frozen for almost a week. However, they must be used as soon as they are removed from the freezing compartment.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of William J. Dagg who passed away May 30, 1938.

Its only a grave but it still needs care,
For the one we love is sleeping there ;
Some may forget him now he is gone,
But we still remember no matter how long.

Wife and Family

In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Finan, who passed away June 4, 1643.

His weary hours and days of pain ;
His troubled nights are passed,
And in our aching hearts we know
He had found sweet rest at last,

One year has passed since that sad day
God called the one we loved away.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Sweet and true to the end of his days
Sincere and just in heart and mind,
A beautiful memory left behind.

I had a nightmare...

I dreamed that I paid $5.00 for a haircut and $50.00 for a pair of cardboard shoes. I dreamed that we had no wartime controls on prices, profits or wages, and that we hadn't had the sense to organize the distribution of supplies all the way down the line . . .

I dreamed that because everyone was making more money and spending it, prices were skyrocketing.

all the stores looked like "fire" sales . . . with people scrambling to buy before prices went still higher . . .

panicky people were buying things they didn't need, and hoarding everything they could get their hands on . . .

I dreamed that everybody had to fight to get more money . . . and that in this mad race, wages and salaries were falling behind.

I dreamed the hand of everyone was against his neighbour, with each of us blaming the other fellow for his troubles.

with everybody for himself . . . no matter what it cost in the long run . . . and no matter how it hurt the war effort.

THEN...THANK GOODNESS—I WOKE UP!

to realize with relief that I live in a country where things are sane and stable . . . where the cost of living has been kept within bounds.

to realize that prices and wages—production costs and selling prices—are inseparably linked together.

to realize that without the safeguards that have headed off inflation, my nightmare might have become a reality!

to remind myself that the danger is still pressing and that we must continue to hold firm . . . and that means everybody must play fair and do his part by not trying to get some temporary, fancied advantage at the expense of his fellow-Canadians.

This advertisement is one of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing further increases in the cost of living now and deflation later.

Police Solve Labor Problem

Manpower problems hit Honolulu earlier and harder than they did in the States, resulting in the municipal police department playing a unique roll in attempting to solve manpower problems, according to information to the American Municipal association. The police department created a new "vagrancy detail" which during 1942 "returned to old jobs or placed in new work 2,917 men who left their places without release." The detail arrested 328 persons who refused to return to work and 748 vagrants unwilling to work. On the other hand, 203 job hunters applied for and received police assistance in finding employment.

Nearly one million barrels of oil annually have been produced in recent years from Scotland's shales. This is an insignificant part of Britain's oil requirement, even in peace time. It is important to the British because it is domestic and independent of overseas events. It represents a source for oil, at present uneconomical, that scientists predict may supply the world when free-flowing wells have been exhausted. In China, Australia, India, France and other almost oil-dry regions, as in Britain, oil expensively extracted from coal, shale or peat is important in the limited domestic production.
