

Housewives, a farmer and Capt. Brown ET thespians

By MARGUERITE SMITH
(Record staff reporter)

The secretary sits quietly — her face immobile as carved ice. The farmer's wife deftly works on the secretary's face, changing lines and contours with bold almost professional strokes as she dips her brush in and out of the make-up pot.

In another corner of the room, a pretty teenage schoolgirl paces up and down the floor, her lips moving silently... she stops in front of a long mirror and makes gestures back at herself.

And on stage, an English seaman surveys props and set decor with the critical eye of an artist.

He's Capt. Edward Brown. He's the man who heads and is responsible for the Ayer's Cliff Drama Club, a non-profit, non-professional, community theatrical group.

Capt. Brown, or Ted as his friends call him, is a jack of a number of artistic trades. His tiny studio in his Ayer's Cliff home is packed full with his oils and watercolors, mostly landscapes, which he has exhibited in Ayer's Cliff, Granby, North Hatley and Knowlton.

"I've been interested in painting every since I was a boy," he says when you ask him about his work.

"I don't consider it work and only since I came to Canada have I made any money out of my painting."

Before coming to Ayer's Cliff about four years ago Capt. Brown, a professional sailor, worked for the port of Bombay, India for 30 years. He piloted ships in and out of the port and during the last five years was deputy commissioner of the Port of Bombay, which simply means he administered shipping.

It was in Bombay that Capt. Brown became interested in the theatre. He was chief decorator and stage designer for the Oxford and Cambridge Society which produced mainly Shakespeare and Sheridan plays, the proceeds of which went towards sending Indian boys to university. He also took minor parts from time to time.

The first winter that Capt. Brown spent in Ayer's Cliff, a group of villagers became aware of his talents. They intended to produce a Christmas play and asked Capt. Brown to take a part in it. After he began reading his lines, the group was convinced that here was a man worth hanging on to. So they voted him president and producer.

Capt. Brown then drew up a set of rules and named the group, the Ayer's Cliff Drama Club.

Then he got down to work. With only a dozen or so for a cast, the Drama Club can only perform one act plays.

The Captain put to use another of his talents and began writing and rewriting one act plays for his cast.

He wrote a play on Expo and one of the most popular of his endeavors was the Massawippi Review, a lively skit on the Indian, French and English Canadian settlers.

The Massawippi Review played for three nights in Ayer's Cliff then went to Bury, North Hatley and Stanstead where it drew an impressive crowd at the Opera House.

The Ayer's Cliff Drama Club's cast is made up of housewives, a farmer, a florist, a trucker, a teacher and a part-time secretary.

"It's an excellent thing for knitting a community together," says Capt. Brown, and he points out that it gives those with a certain amount of creativity a chance to give vent to it.

Amateur theatre is not without its laughs — that catastrophic moment when the unexpected happens and what seems at the time a small disaster resolves itself — giving the cast something to look back on and chuckle about.

"The leading man took suddenly ill for the first play the drama club ever put on," recalls Capt. Brown.

"I had to substitute at the last minute and missed three pages of my script not realizing it until the curtain came down.

"It was the Easter play and I was Joseph who built the cross on which Christ was to be crucified.

"When Rufus, the villain, revealed the purpose that the cross would serve, I said, 'I can't stand it any longer... I must go.'

Your weekend weather

Wintry but mildly so

This weekend should be another two-day spread for the hardy. Skiers, who for two weeks now have been enjoying the rolling slopes of the Townships, won't be let down.

This morning's snowflurries will change to occasional rain and wet snow by late afternoon as a frontal system moves through the area.

Saturday's outlook is for more flurries and a chance of sunshine by late afternoon. Saturday should be mild: an excellent day all around. The mild weather will leave Saturday evening and Sunday should be clear and colder.

The five-day, long range forecast for the area is for average daytime temperatures in the 30s and nightly temperatures between 20 and 25. Monday, seasonable temperatures are expected.

Winds northwesterly today at 15 mph. High today and low tonight, 40 and 20.

Fiery issues flare in week

FRIDAY - November 15, 1968 — A French-speaking Canadian on the Lennoxville Police force resigned Friday, alleging that Lennoxville Police Chief Russell Wells insulted his sanity, legitimacy and ethnic origin. Constable Yvon Paquin also charged that Chief Wells hit him on the arm with his fist. Mr. Paquin told the Record Friday he officially resigned, writing two letters of resignation. A meeting later in the day between Mayor Cecil Dougherty, members of council and Mr. Paquin proved fruitless. Mr. Paquin refused to withdraw his resignation at the insistence of all present.

Three men accused of beating a man and his wife with a baseball bat pleaded not guilty to various assault charges when they appeared before Judge Benoit Turmel in Court of Sessions.

The assault occurred at 2:25 a.m. Wednesday at the Lake Park Hotel in Deauville.

Gilles Robert, 28, of Magog, Donald Burke, 30, of Sherbrooke, and Jocelyn Frappier chose a trial by judge and jury.

The city has decided not to increase the number of taxi permits in Sherbrooke.

City Clerk Henri-Paul Emond told the Record Friday that the decision was made in closed session of council.

Sherbrooke now has 75 taxis and this number has not increased for a number of years. Six drivers approached council recently pointing out that the city could have better service if the number of permits were increased.

J. A. Blanchette, MP for Compton - Frontenac from 1935 to 1958, died at his home in Chertville as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 75.

Driver burned

SATURDAY - November 16, 1968 — A father of 11 children was killed when the tank truck he was driving collided with a school bus and exploded into flames. The bus was occupied only by the driver, who was severely injured.

Jean Berard, 37, of 187 St. Louis Street, Windsor, was burned alive in his truck after the explosion.

The accident occurred on the road leading to Valcourt, opposite MacKenzie Beach, at 4:30 p.m.

The school bus and a car, also involved in the collision, were destroyed by the fire and early estimates place the damage at $50,000.

The reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the murder of Roland Giguere was boosted to $700.

The Sherbrooke Daily Record donated $100 to the cause, and CKTS and CHLT radio each donated $50.

This is added to the original $500 bond offered by Pat's Restaurants Inc., Douglas Patrick, president.

Anyone wishing to donate a cheque or cash to the reward total should contact the police at 569-3711.

About four per cent of a group of 3,336 Sherbrooke primary school students surveyed in a study need psychiatric help, it was revealed Saturday by Dr. Jules Lamarre, director of the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Sherbrooke.

He was speaking Saturday to 150 social workers attending the Sherbrooke Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association's Saturday at the University of Sherbrooke's new medical centre on Stoke Road.

Dr. Lamarre said the report showed 10 per cent of these students have problems adjusting to school work and one per cent will miss a year in school if they don't receive psychiatric help.

the market and the department is aiming to reduce accidents.

The police radar patrol cars will be stationed all over the city and will move from one spot to another about every 30 minutes.

Educational and economic problems facing this province received an airing at a series of Liberal party rallies held in this district over the weekend.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Stanstead County Liberals Association held at Magog, Dr. Victor Goldbloom, MLA for D'Arcy McGee riding in Montreal, presented a series of proposals for improving educational conditions in Quebec, claiming that the failure of the Union Nationale government to follow logical and aggressive policies during the past two years had produced a state of chaos in the educational field.

Robert Bourassa, MLA for Mercier, addressed a series of Sherbrooke meetings, starting with a visit to the students of the University of Sherbrooke at noon and winding up with a talk at the Sherbrooke Reform Club.

Raps council

MONDAY - November 18, 1968 — The difference of opinion between Sherbrooke Mayor Armand Nadeau and city budget chief Marcel Savard concerning Mr. Savard's work and ideas on the city's budget was diplomatically criticized by the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce directors in a letter to Sherbrooke council.

The letter stated that it is unfortunate the incidents at Sherbrooke City Hall last month received so much attention in the newspapers.

The directors say the bad publicity could weaken the confidence of outside interests in Sherbrooke's financial situation.

Quebec Deputy Minister of Labor, Real Mireault, acting mediator in the Domtar Pulp and Kraft Paper Co. strike, met at 3 p.m. Monday with company officials and representatives of the 1,200 striking employees.

The meeting in Quebec was arranged by the mediator in hopes of ending the four-month-old age wage conflict.

According to observers in Quebec, Mr. Mireault was to announce a new proposal Monday which would be acceptable to both Windsor and East Angus mill employees.

Sherbrooke City Council decided Monday night to ban parking on both sides of King St. East in Sherbrooke between the Aylmer Bridge and Bowen Street between the hours of 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Mondays to Thursdays and all day Fridays.

Parking was also banned permanently in two or three parking spots in front of the Central Building on King Street West, across the street from the bus terminus.

Council also banned left turns on Galt Street for cars driven in both directions, east and west, at the Galt - Laurier Streets intersection in the South Ward.

for Bell Canada says before this happens, banks will have to be in a position where their work volume will require an automatic program.

Mr. Sullivan told the Sherbrooke Rotary Club Tuesday night that banking by telephone is now being used on a trial basis in Delaware.

Last offer

WEDNESDAY - November 20, 1968 — Raymond Pinard, director - general of Domtar Kraft and Pulp Paper Co., Ltd., said Wednesday morning that negotiations between the company and the union representing its 1,200 mill and office workers, have been indefinitely discontinued.

No new date has been scheduled for negotiations to reconvene, Mr. Pinard said in a Record interview.

Tuesday in Quebec City, an offer of 35 cents per hour wage increase spread over a period of three years, was turned down by the union.

Mr. Pinard said today that Maurice Bellemare, minister of Labor, is reported to have said in Quebec City that 35 cents is the last offer the government mediator will make.

The new parking spaces for buses on King Street West at the King - Wellington Streets intersection have helped circulation improve as much as council had hoped when it made the decision to move the buses' parking spaces further down King West from the intersection.

The buses' parking spots are now opposite Depot Street. Now there is another free lane of traffic, close to the curb, making it no problem to turn onto Wellington.

An English - language cadet corps will begin in Sherbrooke shortly, sponsored by the Sherbrooke Hussars RCAC, it was announced by Lt. - Col. James Strickland.

In order that young men from 13-16 years of age get some idea of what today's militia is like, and the role played by the Sherbrooke Hussars, the regiment held an open house.

Well-known

THURSDAY - November 21, 1968 — The death occurred Thursday morning at Youville Hospital of Marcus Trenholm Armitage, a former Sherbrooke mayor and alderman and prominent local businessman, following a lengthy illness. He was 84.

Keenly interested in public affairs, Mr. Armitage was elected to the Sherbrooke City Council in 1931 as an alderman for the North Ward, a position he held until 1938 when he was elected mayor by acclamation. This term continued until 1940.

An increase of 35 cents per hour spread over three years, $65 retroactive to every employee if the strike ends and an initial increase of 15 cents per hour are the terms Deputy Labor Minister Real Mireault has suggested for the 1,200 striking employees of the Domtar Pulp and Paper Ltd., in East Angus and Windsor.

The employees are supposed to decide this week whether or not to accept or reject the government mediator's offer, which is reported to be his final one, but a strike leader said Thursday the employees would vote against accepting the offer.

Domtar employees want a 35 cent increase per hour spread over two years. When the strike began employees were earning an average hourly wage of $2.96.

The expansion of the Charex credit card system to Sherbrooke was announced yesterday by representatives of Banque Canadienne Nationale, The Royal Bank, The Imperial Bank of Commerce and The Toronto - Dominion Bank at a press conference held at Le Baron Motor Hotel.

The introduction of the Charex plan to Sherbrooke is the second move in as many days by the four chartered banks to extend their new credit system, to major urban centres in Eastern Canada.

The Charex credit card plan is an all purpose credit card concept. For some time, each bank had been looking individually at credit card plans.

Legion Ladies Aux. meet

NORTH HATLEY — A general meeting of the Legion Ladies Auxiliary, United Branch 242, North Hatley, Waterville, was held at the Community Hall recently.

Mrs. James English, president, was in the chair, and opened the meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Fortin and the treasurer, Mrs. W. Woodward, gave a satisfactory report.

Reports were heard from all committees, the welfare committee stating that fruit and cards had been sent to the sick.

The chairman of the finance committee reported on a well-patronized rummage sale, and also a much enjoyed Armistice dinner, served to veterans and their ladies, at the Legion Home. Plans were made by the chairman of the entertainment committee for the children's Christmas party, and also for the Christmas dinner for members of the auxiliary.

The chairman of welfare announced that the annual Christmas salad tea would be held at the Legion Home Dec. 7.

At the close of the meeting coffee was served by the hostesses, Mrs. G. Price and Mrs. E. Wells. The hostess' gifts were won by Mrs. Simon Kezar and Mrs. Guy Meigs.

A.C.W. plan tea and sale

Mrs. Mick Goodin was hostess at her home on Nov. 13 for the Anglican Church Women with a good attendance of members.

Mrs. Roy Desruisseaux opened the meeting with prayers and the regular business was dealt with.

Final plans were made for the Annual Christmas Tea and Sale to be held this year in the United Church Hall on Nov. 29. Committees were appointed to look after different duties at the sale tables and a convener in charge of the tea and kitchen duties.

Members spent the afternoon working on articles for the fancy work tables.

Out of the cold

TUESDAY - November 19, 1968 — Bishop's University students took a step out of isolation at a meeting when the Students Association voted two to one in favor of joining the Union Generale des Etudiants du Quebec.

With enough people recruited from the libraries and the students union to form a quorum the pro UGEQ faction headed by external affairs chairman Simon McInnes, led a one and one-half hour debate which finally resulted in an 88 to 46 vote in favor of seeking membership.

Bishop's, which has just over 1,000 students, is the last Quebec university to join the student organization founded in 1962 by the province's three French - language universities.

Raymond Guertin, 39, of Sherbrooke, was found guilty in Court of Sessions yesterday to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

He was fined $100 and court costs or 30 days in jail and his driver's license was suspended for six months.

Judge Benoit Turmel also will render a verdict January 3 in the case of non - support against Guertin. The charge was laid by his wife who has been separated from the accused since July 31 after 12 years of marriage.

The man who was responsible for the concept, design and construction of the Bell Telephone Pavilion at Expo predicts that in 10 years time banking by telephone will be in Canada's largest centres such as Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Fatal accident

SUNDAY - November 17, 1968 — A 61-year-old man was accidentally killed Sunday afternoon when bullet from his son's rifle struck him in the head while the two were hunting at Pine Mountain, Kingsbury, near Melbourne.

Dead is Maurice Ewing, of 138 Rankin Street, Windsor.

The accident was the first hunting mishap since the beginning of the season in a 30 mile area of Sherbrooke.

Denis Ewing, in his 20's, told the police that his father was wearing a grey hat and he mistook him for an animal.

Speedy Sherbrooke automobile drivers who frequently use the city's streets to race their cars had better beware.

"Everybody standing in the wings became excited and frantically whispered, 'for God's sake Ted... don't go now!'"

However, Capt. Brown had no other choice than to leave and that's exactly what he did.

"It went well considering the cast was only amateur."

Capt. Brown is a master at improvisation. Referring to the same incident, he said that on such short notice with a script of 500 words, he had to play some of it by ear.

"I can talk a lot — so I just gabbed on and on," he added thoughtfully.

Members of the Drama Club shrieked with laughter following a boo boo by one of their female members who always is so precise.

"She always learns everything perfectly down to the last word," said the Captain.

She was talking to the other women about Jesus being prisoner and her lines were supposed to be:

"Whether there will be an 11th hour bid to save him, I do not know."

Instead, she said, "whether there will be an 11th hour to save him, bid, I do not know."

The Ayer's Cliff Drama Club begins to get ready for a play two months before production.

Rehearsal is held once a week and says the Captain, "twice a week if we're slipping."

After expenses are covered, the club donates all its proceeds to charitable causes.

Members of the club are everyday people who have this outlet for releasing their talents twice a year, at Christmas and Easter.

Among its cast are Bill Morgan, a local florist and his wife, Jean; Claire Kennedy, a part-time secretary and housewife; Sam Macdonald, a farmer; Bob Hill, a trucker; George Thomas, a teacher; Imogene Browning, Joan Crook, Dorothy Saanum, Jessye Pierce and Audrey Gale, housewives.

Musical director, Norma McKinnon, has what Capt. Brown describes as a natural talent.

"Norma is wonderful... she really is... During preparations for the Massawippi Review I wanted to use some old songs. I sang and hummed them and she followed along, writing them on paper like shorthand. Then she played them back to me and they were perfect."

The Ayer's Cliff Drama Club is now in the midst of preparations for its next production, The First Noel, written by Capt. Brown. The Captain describes it as being a nativity play interspersed with carols.

The production is scheduled for Dec. 7 and 8 at Ecole St. Barthelemy Roman Catholic School.

Stanstead clergy hear of Pope's ban

STANSTEAD — (Special) — Father Geoffrey Keating, a professor at St. Michael's College in Burlington, Vt., was the guest speaker at the Stanstead and Vicinity Association of clergy meeting held at Stanstead College Monday. Rev. Philip Gaudine, chaplain of the school was the most. Other guests were clergy and ladies of the Sherbrooke and vicinity Association of clergy.

Father Keating spoke on the encyclical of Pope Paul VI on birth control. He read newspaper clippings and other materials noting, "We are fundamentally in a revolution, the Roman Catholic Church in a period of transition," and referring back to the reformation period. He noted the reactions of the encyclical in three parts — defence of the teachings, the doctrine principal that prohibits use of contraceptives, and of pastoral direction.

The encyclical has a lot of positive elements which a few years ago would have been considered lenient he said. Summing it up, Father Keating said that from August to now the image of the church has been very well shattered, there is joy to some and sorrow to others.

Bishops, priests and laity of different countries accept the encyclical differently. People make up their minds according to their conscience. To pinpoint issues the encyclical brings into focus the question of natural law — understanding of man.

It is man's problem and he must solve it, he must appeal to divine providence. Natural law is an outlook rejected by young people and contemporaries, he said, noting the conflicts between young and old and the whole problem of conscience.

Throughout his talk from the first history of Christianity to the present, Father Keating, gave the need for understanding and faith.

The speaker was introduced by Father Joseph Dussault and thanked by Rev. Geoffrey Joyce, the president of the Stanstead and Vicinity Association.

Each of the two groups held a business session. Rev. James Brooks, Waterville, presided as chairman for the Sherbrooke Association meeting and Mr. Joyce for the Stanstead meeting.

Rev. Finley Brown reported for the radio devotions each morning from Newport, and said it had been brought to his attention that these devotions were much enjoyed by a large listening audience.

Less than 10 per cent

To devalue French franc

BONN (CP) — West German Finance Minister Franz Josef Strauss said today the French franc will be devalued.

He told reporters outside a meeting of the West's 10 wealthiest countries that the French cabinet will decide the extent of the devaluation.

Informants said after Thursday's 17-hour session that it appeared the franc would be reduced either by 10 per cent, from 20 U.S. cents to 18 cents, or by 15 per cent to 17 U.S. cents.

But in Paris, a well-informed source said earlier today the French government had accepted a proposal that the franc be devalued by less than 10 per cent.

A spokesman for the office of French Premier Maurice Couve de Murville said in Paris there would be no announcement until after the French cabinet meets on Saturday.

In Paris, a well-informed source said the French government has accepted the principle of a devaluation of less than 10 per cent. He said it was feared a larger devaluation would produce chaos in the French economy and cut too sharply into the buying power of French consumers.

To bolster the new value of the franc, the Group of 10, the leading non-Communist countries, was reported near agreement on conditions for standby credits totalling nearly $3,000,000,000.

Devaluation of the franc would be a severe blow to President Charles de Gaulle, celebrating his 78th birthday today. A week ago, he said devaluation would be "the worst possible absurdity."

Premier Maurice Couve de Murville went to the Elysee Palace this morning to discuss the currency with de Gaulle.

OFFER CREDITS
West German sources said $1,400,000,000 of the credit offer for France would come from West Germany, the U.S., Italy and Britain. West Germany would contribute $600,000,000, the United States $500,000,000, Italy $200,000,000 and Britain $100,000,000.

He said another $600,000,000 would be put up by Canada, Japan, Belgium and Switzerland and another $985,000,000 would be advanced by the Bank of International Settlements.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson of Canada said in an interview this morning that Canada would contribute to any support fund, but declined to say how much.

Benson also said devaluation of the franc would pose no great problem for Canada.

"Our trade with France is not exceptionally large," he said. Also representing Canada at the talks here is Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada.

The crisis resulted from the large-scale exchange of francs for West German marks by speculators acting in the belief that France would have to devalue her currency because of economic setbacks stemming from last spring's worker-student crisis and that the West Germans would have to increase the value of their mark because of the heavy surplus they have piled up from exports.

Throughout the Bonn meeting, the West Germans refused to revalue the mark although many experts are convinced it is bound to come.

Violins play after Commons speech

OTTAWA (CP) — The violins played for Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey in the Commons Thursday, as they must have played for few cabinet ministers since Confederation.

Mr. Mackasey blistered management in a blunt speech for failing to meet its "moral obligations" to the worker in an era of technological change, then heard the sweet music of praise from both sides of the Commons.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said he was "quite impressed" by Mr. Mackasey's performance.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) said Mr. Mackasey deserved praise for "his very fine statement."

"I hope the kind of thinking that is evident in this debate becomes a reality in the Canada of today and tomorrow," the Newfoundland MP said.

AGREE ON NEED
There appeared to be a wide Commons consensus that workers need better protection against the threat of losing their jobs through automation.

The tone of the discussion, as the Commons dealt with the labor department's revised estimates for the current fiscal year, was strongly pro-labor—so much so that Mr. Knowles said he felt he ought to address the chair and the MPs as "Brother chairman, brothers and sisters."

There were breaks in the music.

Opposition Leader Stanfield accused the labor minister of "lecturing" management and the public.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) engaged Mr. Mackasey in an argument as to how much Prime Minister Trudeau knows about poverty.

Mr. Hees said the government is indifferent to poverty, partly because Mr. Trudeau had "never experienced it."

NEES NOT POOR
Mr. Mackasey suggested that Mr. Hees has also been quite well-to-do. If there is a Canadian who is concerned about poverty, "it is the present prime minister," the labor minister said.

A longshoreman and a business owner before he entered politics, Mr. Mackasey also had complaints about labor—over work stoppages, lack of communication within the labor movement and "exorbitant demands" by some unions—along with exorbitant profits by companies.

"Legislation defining and emphasizing management's responsibility to its employees in the area of technological change is overdue," he said.

He said he is committed to such legislation.

Mr. Mackasey blasted the Ford Motor Co. for giving more than 300 workers in Windsor, Ont., only one week's notice of dismissal.

"One week to adjust mentally to the impact of layoff, one week to seek out help and advice from the unemployment insurance commission and from the manpower centres, to find out if they qualified for additional benefits or, in too many cases, if they qualified for any type of benefit."

"I believe that management cannot expect the respect of labor and the full co-operation that is needed unless it begins to assume the moral obligation that technological change and increased productivity involve."

Help for home-buyers

MONTREAL (CP) — Former Conservative MP Heward Grafftey said Thursday direct subsidies for Canadian home-buyers likely will be a key recommendation of the federal government's housing task force.

Mr. Grafftey, who was asked by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield to follow the force headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, told a local service club that these subsidies will probably be laid under a joint federal-provincial program.

"Rather than continuing present practices of segregation through public housing as we have known them, the government may have to subsidize home ownership, rather than subsidizing rents as it now does."

Such a program could affect home buying and building from early next year, Mr. Hellyer announced in the Commons Wednesday that the task force's report should be ready for the government by mid-January of 1969.

Mr. Grafftey, who represented the Quebec riding of Brome-Missisquoi for nine years until he was defeated by a slim margin in the June 25 federal election, said he was "appalled" by what he saw during his travels across the country with the task force.

Members include a female secretary and a teleprinter operator.

Bernhardt says he devotes about 40 per cent of his time to the press side of his operations but a great deal of his time also is devoted to fund-raising and emphasizing the Biafran viewpoint in personal approaches to prominent authorities in Switzerland and elsewhere.

Covered in his Biafran press mailing list are about 2,000 persons, including all members of the British House of Commons and other parliamentarians elsewhere.

Satisfactory
MONTREAL (CP) — Energy Minister Greene was reported to be resting satisfactorily in Royal Victoria Hospital Thursday after being admitted Wednesday suffering from what his Ottawa office described as "extreme fatigue."

Nigeria has missions and embassies all over the world to put its case but Biafra had nothing before we started up," says Bernhardt in explaining the purpose of the Biafran Press Division known as BOP.

But he feels BOP has been only partially successful—"otherwise Britain and the Soviet Union would have stopped sending arms and the war would be over."

"However, we have helped to make people aware of Biafra's problems and the dangers it faces," he says. "We have accelerated interest in its cause."

Reidy declined to say how much Biafra paid Markpress but maintains "it certainly is much less than the Nigerians have to pay their main public relations people in London."

Nigeria also employs a small Geneva firm to state its views but this firm makes little impact compared with the regular broadsides fired from Bernhardt's organization.

BOP, in effect an extension of Biafra's information department, also organizes free trips to the Ibo heartland for visiting journalists. Dozens have made the trip and more are planning to do so.

One of the puzzling aspects of the BOP operations is the attitude of the traditionally neutral Swiss government.

Not a word is said about such BOP headlines as "British government plans to build Nigerian air force," "Nigeria sets up concentration camps" and "Red Cross parcels feed Nigerian troops."

Swiss officials say there is nothing to stop a Swiss from carrying out such work. However some observers have suggested that if any local firm accepted a contract from a country with less public sympathy in Switzerland, the official attitude might be more frigid.

Sympathy for Biafra runs high in Switzerland, particularly in German-speaking regions.

Flames blast out of death pit

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A new explosion, sending flames shooting upward like a flash of lightning, hit the coal mine today where 78 men have been trapped in burning passageways for two days.

The blast at 2:50 a.m. EST shook the company store more than four miles away.

It was the latest in a chain of explosions that started Wednesday morning and trapped 78 of the 99 men working the early shift in the Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine. The other 21 either escaped or were pulled from the mine.

Leonard Gross, publications director for Consolidation Coal Co., Mountaineer's parent firm, pinpointed the explosion at the intake shaft on Mod's Run, one of the many passageways of the sprawling mine complex spread over a seven-mile area.

"There has been no assessment of the intensity of the explosion," Gross said. "However, it was reported that flames erupted from the portal."

He said this was the spot where experiments have been under way in trying to control the fire in the mine shafts by cutting off the oxygen.

At 4:30 a.m., another light explosion, called a "pop off" in the coal fields, occurred. It was also on Mod's Run.

The larger explosion came nine hours after another blast—small but forceful—sent fire and smoke churning from another mine entrance.

Officials termed that blast—just before 6 p.m. Thursday night—"a setback" in rescue planning.

Vice-President William Poundstone of Consolidation Coal Co. told a news conference before the latest blast that there was still hope that the trapped men were alive "but there is no reason to be optimistic."

At daybreak today, the 78 had been in the mine for 48 hours, not counting their work shift before the first blast. They had to contend with heat and smoke and the possibility of a buildup of deadly methane gas.

Swiss help Biafrans to win battle of words

GENEVA (CP)—As the war continues to rage in divided Nigeria, thousands of messages chatter out on teleprinters around the world stating the case for the besieged Biafrans.

Based in a suburb of this lakeside city, Biafra's publicity machinery steadily holds its own on the second front—the battle of words.

Under the title Biafran Overseas Press Division, news from the front is relayed here via Lisbon and distributed by teleprinter and cable to some 400 news outlets in Western Europe, Britain, North America and the Soviet Union.

The press division is run by Markpress, a Swiss public relations office owned by H. William Bernhardt, 54-year-old American who obtained the Biafran account through long-standing friendship with several prominent Ibos. Born in Hoboken, N.J., Bernhardt has lived in Switzerland for the last 17 years.

RUNS THE DIVISION
Tim Reidy, 27-year-old Australian from Melbourne, runs the press division with part-time help from a British journalist, Peter Dewhurst, 47. Other team members include a female secretary and a teleprinter operator.

Bernhardt says he devotes about 40 per cent of his time to the press side of his operations but a great deal of his time also is devoted to fund-raising and emphasizing the Biafran viewpoint in personal approaches to prominent authorities in Switzerland and elsewhere.

Covered in his Biafran press mailing list are about 2,000 persons, including all members of the British House of Commons and other parliamentarians elsewhere.

News in brief

Pause to mark

WASHINGTON (CP) — Throughout the United States, many people paused today to mark the fifth anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

From Dallas, Tex., where the 35th president of the United States was slain, to the New York home of his remarried widow, Jacqueline Onassis, special masses and other services were planned.

Bomb bursts

MONTREAL (CP) — A small home-made bomb exploded early today in the basement of the downtown Eaton's department store. There were no injuries, but police estimated the damage at about $25,000.

The bomb, the third to go off in Montreal in less than 36 hours, had been placed in one of the lockers available to shoppers for temporary storage of their purchases.

Study justice

LONDON (CP) — A Quebec royal commission on the administration of justice is busy studying the machinery of British law after a tour of European continental countries ranging from Sweden to France.

The three-man commission, with secretary Jean Sirois of Quebec City, had a long meeting Thursday with Lord Parker, Chief Justice of England. It has been in Europe since Oct. 11.

Sigh with relief

ATHENS (AP) — Greeks sighed with relief today after their military government, apparently bowing to worldwide pressure, decided to let Alexander Panagoulis live.

The regime decided Thursday night not to shoot the 30-year-old army deserter, sentenced to die for plotting to overthrow it.

Students were demonstrating abroad and appeals for clemency had come in from UN Secretary-General U Thant, Pope Paul, the United States and many other countries.

University's classes continue despite student occupation

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Classes at Simon Fraser University Thursday continued unimpeded by militant reform-seeking students who occupied the administration building on the troubled campus Wednesday night.

The situation appeared deadlocked late in the day. At a noon-hour meeting, the students decided to continue the occupation, which started following a university senate meeting Wednesday night.

SFU administrators, locked out of their offices by the 100 to 150 students inside, were reported mapping out tactics at other buildings on campus in this Vancouver suburb.

The administrators won a minor victory late Thursday morning—they regained control of the university's switchboard which the demonstrators had used to telephone releases to the news media.

Police have so far steered clear of involvement in the student sit-in.

The militants—for the most part members of the radical Students for a Democratic University—stormed the administration building after losing a battle for sweeping reforms in admission practices and improved education financing.

PRESENTS DEMANDS
Student senator Donn Korbin of the SDU presented the demands to the senate meeting, which rejected them by a vote of 30 to 3. He left the meeting and returned a short time later with a large contingent of SDU supporters.

Shouting through a bull-horn, Mr. Korbin demanded that the senate cease its deliberations because it did not represent the will of the 5,000 students attending SFU.

The senate adjourned and its members left unmolested. But the students remained, chain-locked the doors and covered the windows with paper.

The SDU, whose aims closely resemble those of the radical Students for a Democratic Society in the U.S., recently lost control of the SFU student council to moderates.

The moderates have not yet said anything formally about the occupation, though some individual members said they disagreed completely with the SDU's occupation tactics.

RIVALRY CAMPAIGN
Confusion reigned at the campus late Thursday afternoon. Student leaders of both viewpoints were outlining their positions to groups of followers in lecture halls and the cafeteria.

The occupation was the latest round in a long history of confrontations involving students, faculty, administrators and the provincial government.

Though the campus is little more than 38 months old, it has gone through one permanent and two acting presidents, a chancellor and a spate of governors, senators, faculty heads and professors.

The main issue as the students see it is more say by them in such matters as courses, admission requirements and representation on the senate and board of governors.

The professors, in turn, have been concerned about tenure, academic freedom, overcrowding and autocratic tendencies on the part of the administrators.

And the administrators have been complaining about a lack of funds from the provincial government as well as the disruptive influence of student militants.

Receive second new hearts

Two patients received new hearts for the second time Thursday after earlier transplants failed.

Everett Thomas, 47, the longest-surviving heart transplant patient in the United States, received a second replacement at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston, Tex. His condition today was listed as satisfactory.

Darrell Hammarley, 56, received a second heart at Stanford University Hospital in Stanford, Calif., after the first replacement began beating erratically within six hours. His condition today was given as fair.

Hammarley, a retired airline pilot from San Jose, Calif., was the first in history to undergo a second heart transplant. Dr. Norman E. Shumway, a pioneer heart transplant surgeon, was in charge of the surgical team.

HEADS BOTH TEAMS
Dr. Denton E. Cooley headed the team operating both times on Thomas, who received his first donor heart May 3 in the world's ninth heart transplant.

Thomas, an accountant, was discharged from the hospital last summer and began work as a trust consultant for a bank in Houston.

He was readmitted to the hospital last month and it was announced he was showing signs of rejecting the heart. His condition was reported as serious shortly before the second transplant.

The hospital did not identify Thomas' second donor—a 47-year-old woman who died of a brain hemorrhage. The first was a 15-year-old girl.

The Stanford donors also were not named.

Going to Paris soon

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Thursday night he will visit Paris in January to meet President de Gaulle of France.

Mr. Bertrand told reporters he will spend "about one week" in France and will spend "a couple of days" in London during the trip.

Exact dates of the trip had not yet been established but it was possible that he would leave the provincial capital around Jan. 18.

The visit is expected to be among topics of a meeting today between Mr. Bertrand and Paul Beaulieu, Canada's ambassador to France who is paying a courtesy call on the premier.

Reasonable changes in Legislative practises

Quebec residents, even the 20 members of that august body who will lose their jobs as a result of the measure, will be nearly unanimous in their approval of the bill tabled in the Legislative Assembly Wednesday to abolish the Legislative Council — the last appointive provincial upper house in Canada.

Ordinary citizens will approve the measure as ending an archaic element in the legislative process that has never served a useful purpose while the 20 members should be well content to retire on virtually full pay, with a pension guaranteed for life and suitable provision being made for their widows.

And the provincial treasury will save $40,000 a year by the timing of the measure because four seats are vacant.

Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia which had Legislative Councils at the time of Confederation abolished these institutions years ago without any serious disturbance and there is no reason for alarm in the Quebec decision.

Objection may be offered in some quarters over a provision in the bill changing the name of the Legislative Assembly to the National Assembly of Quebec and substituting the titles of president and vice-president for those of speaker and deputy speaker of the Lower House.

But in themselves these changes only represent an exercise in verbal gymnastics and perhaps are logical when it is considered that 99 per cent of the business carried on in the provincial parliament is in the French language.

Certainly the title president, even in English, more nearly represents the duties of the chief officer of the Assembly than does Mr. Speaker or Monsieur l'Orateur.

Men with good memories can recall when the only girls' magazines in town were in the barbershop.

In The Twilight Zone

Remarking that among the various groups in our nation, only the taxpayer is without a slogan, one commentator suggests it might be appropriate for him to carry a placard reading "Sock it to Me," marking his acceptance of the inevitable.

Since the dawn of taxes the ordinary individual has been the Underdog and is one of the millions of Companions in Nightmare seeking to carry out the Mission Impossible in escaping the Dragnet of the tax collector.

Most of these People in Conflict will agree that It Takes a Thief to dream up the Fantastic Voyage which the Minister of Finance is prepared to lay out for him on his Journey to Outer Space financially.

But As the World Turns it approaches The Edge of Night.

And before they are completely overtaken by Human Bondage the taxpayer may resort to Gunsmoke and prove themselves The Avengers.

Build a better mousetrap, and the public will clamor for something with which to battle some other pest.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The number and size of rings formed on tree trunks are an accurate index to a tree's age and an area's climate. The World Almanac says. In wet years the growth ring is wide and in dry years it is narrow. Thus an aged tree can reveal to a dendrochronologist, one who dates objects or events by reference to tree rings, both the age of a tree and climatic patterns.

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It's all but beyond belief how, in this new and different Parliament, with its many new and different personalities, the traditionally explosive Daily Question Period has been defused.

There was the time — back for a well-remembered 28 parliamentary years — that the Question Period crackled with excitement and sizzled with surprise.

It produced floods of political blood, sweat and tears.

From the horses on the defence department payroll at Petawawa and the "zombies" going over the wall at London of the 40's — to the first preliminary pops of parliamentary pipeline explosion that blew the government out of 22 years of power in the 50's — to co-writing of the super-secret budget by Bay Street experts, the Rivard crime carnival and the Munsinger sex and security scandal of the mid-60's.

Those were perhaps the most spectacular of the parliamentary fireworks that lighted up the political skies after a single question or a persistent series of enquiries in the Commons touched off their fuses.

But there were others, less sensational, scores, hundreds, perhaps even thousands of them that made the Daily Question Period come alive as a lively time of snap, crackle and pop politics.

QUIET TIME

All that has seemed to have come to a well-ordered end when the new Parliament went quietly into business last September 12.

Dignity and decorum and a fine-mannered "after-you-Alpha" air have descended upon what, so recently, dependably and entertainingly, used to be an excitingly uproarious House.

It has been what has to be the involuntarily co-operative of the two men who set the pace and tone of the Commons. Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield.

The prime minister did this part in the defusing of what, until now, traditionally has been the political bomb of the Question Period by excusing, in shifts, members of his 28-man cabinet from attending it.

He called it the "roster," then, deciding he didn't like that label, banned its use.

He argued, and with some good reason, that all that high-priced (at an annual $35,000 per copy) ministerial help didn't really HAVE to be in the Commons every day, sitting there wasting time while waiting for opposition questions that often didn't get asked.

The Conservative leader did his part in the hushing of the once-raucous DQP into the quiet time it has become by simply not objecting long or loud enough to the prime minister's cabinet-swing-shift.

Can you imagine former Tory Leader Diefenbaker, that human thunderclap, or his now-retired right-hand-man, ex-Conservative Defence Minister Gordon Churchill, standing still for a cabinet "roster"?

Not old Churchill who used to wake up angry to get madder by the minute!

INFORMATION PLEASE

But going more or less quietly along, protesting more in sorrow than in anger against the prime minister's now-you-see-them-now-you-don't part-time House plan for his cabinet, the Opposition has somehow managed to oblige him further.

The ruling Conservatives — yes, they DO have some noisy rebels who object — have made the fatal mistake of misunderstanding what the Daily Question Period is all about.

In all innocence they seem to think that an opposition MP asks a question of the government minister for the simple purpose of securing information.

Dief the Chief never made that mistake in his years in the Opposition — nor did Paul Martin, Jack Pickersgill, Lionel Chevrier, Paul Hellyer, nor even that old diplomat Lester Pearson when they sat on the loser's side of the Commons.

To all of them, the Question Period was the one traditional-hallowed time to roust the cabinet, to sock it to the prime minister and the cabinet and to create as much chaos and confusion in the ranks of the government as was possible within the frequently bent and sometimes broken parliamentary rules.

But even worse now — the Conservatives have taken to asking the government just the kind of questions it hopes and prays will be asked.

Like the other day when the government was asked, in all earnestness, if it was doing its very best to fulfill its commitments and obligations.

Questions like that are made in political heaven for good little governments on their best behaviour, and the cabinet falls all over itself "assuring" one and all that everything is well in this best possible of all administrations.

The House of Commons these days can often have all the sound and fury of a minut.

But then, hopefully, who knows that perhaps there isn't an explosion quietly ticking away in the back of some opposition MP's mind.

"Okay, wise guys . . . !"

Perspectives and Prejudices In a backhanded way, the critics pay compliment to the church

A character in a novel by the English writer, Stevie Smith, makes this ironical observation: "Really, some of the people who go to church are just as good as those who stay away."

In our time criticism of the Church has become almost a minor industry. There is extensive exposure of the Church's faults and failures and inadequacies by out-spoken critics, both outside the Church and within it. Much of this criticism is valid and salutary, but much of it has degenerated into a petty censoriousness, a censoriousness that never really gets beneath the surface, a censoriousness that often leads its practitioners into pomposity and pretentiousness.

The charges made against us church people are often quite valid. Many of us are not quite what we profess to be. We often make a show of piety on Sunday that is not adequately reflected in our actions the other six days of the week. We readily slip into little hypocrites and evasions. Yes, much of the criticism of the Church and her people is justified.

But are not the critics, in a backhanded way, paying the Church a compliment? They seem to assume that somewhere in the Church there is a fundamental excellence, even though so many of its members fail to live up to it. But, on the other hand, implicit in this line of thought there is a serious misunderstanding of the nature of the Church.

In the New Testament the Church is never conceived of as a wheatfield which must be kept free of all weeds. (See Jesus' parable about this: St. Matthew 13:24-30). In the New Testament, and in the mainstream of Christian thought through the centuries, the Church is never idealized as a society of the spiritually immaculate and the morally impeccable. The New Testament understanding of the Church, the community of faith, is that it is a group of sinners who confess that they are sinners and who strive by grace of God in Jesus Christ, to turn from self and sin to God and his purposes for man.

In the New Testament usage, the terms "sinner" and "Saint" are not opposites; they overlap almost completely. A "sinner" is not a person irredeemably alienated from God. A "Saint" is not a person of almost superhuman purity and excellence. In biblical thought, we are all sinners; that is, each of us is afflicted with a tendency to put self at the centre of things and to shove God and other persons to the edges of life. And in biblical thought a saint is a sinner, an ordinary sinner, who by his commitment to God is striving to do something about his sin, striving to overcome his self-centredness.

Saintliness is not a static condition of personal excellence it is, rather, a steady struggle against the forces of sin in one's life. In the New Testament the mark of the saint is not achievement; in the New Testament the mark of the saint is commitment, commitment which issues in striving for the purposes of God.

There are, indeed, some people who go to church to have their self-esteem coddled and to reassure themselves that they are among God's chosen few. They seem to think that by the accumulation of virtue-points they are enabled to matriculate in the Kingdom of God. And they tend to be dreadfully censorious of others, both their fellow church-members who do not measure up to their high standards of piety and propriety and those terrible sinners who never come to church. A minister was once challenged by an official of his congregation because he welcomed at the services some persons of unsavory background. The minister asked, "But didn't Jesus forgive the woman taken in adultery?" "Yes," replied the irate official, "but I don't think any more of him for having done it."

The cause of Jesus Christ is seriously hobbled by the presence of sour saints in the Church. But the strength and the hope of that cause is in the presence in the Church of large numbers of New Testament saints, sinners who admit they are sinners and struggle valiantly against their sin to serve God's purposes.

THE PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM THE UPPER ROOM

A bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench; he shall bring forth judgment unto truth. (Isaiah 42:3)

PRAYER: O God, our heavenly Father, help us not to become discouraged. Give us Thy word of grace and the strength of Thy spirit that we may endure when we have burdens or hardships, when we feel that our powers are gone. Help us to trust in Him who gives us power for all things we are asked to do. Amen.

Bygone days

TEN YEARS AGO
Industrial nurses were told last night that they belonged to one of the most important groups in industry.

The statement was made by P. R. Lauzon, personnel manager of the Paton Manufacturing Co. Ltd., Sherbrooke, in an address to a meeting of industrial nurses of the Association of Nurses of the Province of Quebec here.

"Industrial nurses belong to the most important group of people in any industry, whether it be textile, metallurgical or a steel plant," Mr. Lauzon said. "In closing, Mr. Lauzon said that "an industrial first aid attendant must be observant, resourceful, must have sympathy and perseverance to perform her job properly."

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO
Jack Dunfield was elected president of the Kiwanis Club at the club's annual meeting held in the New Sherbrooke Hotel last night.

Mr. Dunfield succeeds Gilbert Rheaume who will continue to hold office until the new year. The 1954 slate of officers in addition to the president follows: first vice - president, R. L. Bishop; second vice - president, Joseph Faucher; treasurer, Len Curtis.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
DANVILLE — The regular meeting of the affiliated Danville and Asbestos Home and School Associations was held in the Danville High School.

Mrs. W. J. W. Smith, the Danville president, was in the chair. This was the second affiliated meeting which has been held and was a great success as there were 45 members present.

After the business meeting, two very interesting films were shown by Mr. Rothney. The banner was won by Grade II.

French Canada says: School occupation won't help progress

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Granby La Voix de l'Est— Ever since student protest began in Quebec, the education department has been studying the problem of co-ordinating the education system with the demands of the labor market.

As Education Minister Cardinal says, this problem must be attacked with the intent of making the development of education responsive to that of the economy. However, while it is possible to modernize counselling services and to reform courses designed to provide quality instruction and answer as closely as possible the demands of the labor market of today and tomorrow, it is difficult to develop the province's economy to the point where it will offer choice jobs for all young persons receiving professional training.

Despite the efforts of the industry department to persuade businessmen to invest in Quebec, the amount of private investment still is inadequate.

We would like to point out that . . . occupation of colleges, self-administration by students, student power and other formulas thought up by young persons who don't know where or how to act, will not help to launch Quebec along the path of progress. The acts of violence which forced the closing of the Chicoutimi CEGEP (junior college) do not contribute to improvement of the lot of students going out on the job market.

The roles must not be reversed. The student's task is to learn . . . while that of politicians, businessmen, economists, those who believe in the future of Quebec, is to study and take whatever measures are necessary to assure (that the student acquires knowledge). To the politicians belong the tasks of creating, by their initiative, sufficient job potential and stimulating the expansion of the economy.

If there is one thing to be hoped, in these circumstances, it certainly is that people should cease complicating their task. When people are continually setting up roadblocks, there's no progress.—Roland Gagne (Nov. 15)

Montreal La Presse—For those who have long followed the controversy surrounding the choice of either Montreal or Winnipeg as the site of the Air Canada overhaul base, the action taken by the Quebec Federation of Labor and interested Montreal municipalities belongs to ancient history. This is a result of the fact that the federal government has for 10 years now been unable to take a decision on the matter.

The arguments have always been the same or almost the same. They consist in pointing to and endorsing the conclusion of different reports of experts given a mandate to study the question. In actual fact, the airline's opinion, supported by the studies of a number of experts, always comes down to the same assertion—good sense dictates that the base be located in the Montreal area.

Manitoba, and the Winnipeg press in particular, attempt, with equal fervor, to negate these conclusions more or less by taking issue with their anticipated practical effects. Their position is based on a consideration we find easy to understand: Closure of the Winnipeg base will serve to weaken the economy of the region.

As far as Air Canada is concerned, the entire question boils down to a matter of finding whether or not . . . the stated dictates of pragmatism will find their application, for in terms of efficiency, economy and advantages of all sorts, Montreal offers more attractive prospects than does Winnipeg.

The QFL holds Quebec MPs partially responsible for the inertia of the government. The MPs defend themselves. . . . But we are at a loss to find a means by which they might be forced to produce results, in conformity with the pragmatism preached by their leader.

Even though chauvinism may well dictate that we make a vigorous defence of Montreal interests, as far as this question is concerned, arguments of a purely technical nature are quite sufficient, for this kind of argument always is the most convincing.

The first container ships are beginning to arrive in the Port of Montreal. It's a shame that these ships are not built in our own shipyards, but it is pragmatism, based on economic considerations, which dictates that they be built elsewhere. And it is in the name of this same sense of pragmatism that those responsible must begin to find a solution (concerning the overhaul base) which is to the benefit of a province that is home for half of Canada's skilled unemployed.—Guy Cormier (Nov. 15)

Montreal Le Devoir—J. T. Thorson, a former president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, has written to the prime minister saying the bill concerning the status of the official language of Canada appears to him to be contrary to the constitution and that such legislation would be invalid if Parliament adopted it. It is presumptuous that the government did not present Bill C-120 without taking the precautions concerning its validity, but an error is not impossible . . . and it has happened in the past where federal bills have been declared unconstitutional.

Mr. Thorson claims that Article 133 of the BNA Act limits the obligatory use of French and that Parliament does not have the power to modify this article in the constitution by giving French an official status in fields where it has never had any up to now.

The initial premise of Mr. Thorson's argument is incorrect. He maintains that this bill amends the constitution. One can say in a general manner, principally in British law, that all bills have an influence on the constitution. The BNA Act, in reality, is only part of our constitution.

Mr. Thorson suggests that the Supreme Court of Canada be consulted on the validity of the bill concerning the official languages. This does not appear opportune to us. In the constitutional crisis across the country, the reform of the Supreme Court is a point on which agreement is general. Prime Minister Trudeau himself has affirmed on various occasions the necessity of such a reform. Even if no one questions the personal integrity of the judges who make up the Supreme Court, the court is not accepted as an impartial arbitrator in constitutional conflicts because this tribunal is an organization of central power and its members are exclusively nominated by the federal government.—Paul Souriol (Nov. 16)

Strikers say nay

WINDSOR, Que. (CP) — Striking employees of Domtar Pulp and Paper Ltd. here and in nearby East Angus have rejected government conciliation proposals aimed at ending the walkout which began July 18. Described Wednesday as "final" by Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare, the proposals would have given strikers a 35-cent hourly increase spread over three years plus a $65 lump sum payment. Decision to reject conciliation proposals came during general meetings Thursday evening of the 750 Domtar employees here and of about 450 employees in East Angus. Union negotiators have been seeking a 35-cent increase over two years.

ET Senator backs investment bill

OTTAWA — (Special) — Declaring that the bill was a major and important measure designed to provide reasonable control and supervision in the interest of the investing public, Senator Paul Desruisseaux, of Sherbrooke, moved in the Senate Thursday afternoon that Bill S-17 entitled "The Investment Companies' Act" be referred to the Senate Committee on Banking and Commerce. Sen. Desruisseaux was speaking on second reading. The bill, he said, was designed to extend government supervision such as now exercised over banks, insurance, trust and mortgage companies to other companies who borrow money from the public for investment purposes. The recent collapses of several companies of this type have pointed out the danger existing from the present lack of supervision over these corporations, primarily finance and acceptance concerns. The Act, he said, will be administered by the Department of Insurance and will thus come under the direction of the Minister of Finance.

GOING UP — The 260 men working on the construction of the ET Regional High School are working long hours to finish the school for September 1, 1969. Yesterday, large trucks rolled through the muddy paths, men hammered and sawed and the buildings seemed to grow every hour. The school gymnasium, not seen in the picture, is nearly completed. The school is located near Lennoxville. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

By DENNIS FINLAY (Record Staff Reporter)
Work on the Eastern Townships Regional High School in Lennoxville is progressing famously. Edward Perry reports, and workmen are determined to finish the school in time for it to open September 1, 1969. Mr. Perry, director of the ET Regional School Board says the 260 construction workers on the site will work through the winter to complete the school's five buildings or blocks. Mr. Perry says the workers are off to a great start because they laid the foundations for all the buildings during the summer. The men started working on the project in June. Yesterday, one construction foreman told the Record that the building "had to be finished" by September 1, 1969. He said it was stated in the contract that it must be finished by then and he said he was assured it would be. The five buildings, or blocks as Mr. Perry called them, include a gymnasium block, three house blocks and one administration block. The gymnasium block is nearly completed. The exterior of this building is up and this should be the first building finished if work continues at its present pace. The North Block and the South Block are progressing rapidly and Mr. Perry reported that these buildings will be covered with roofs in the near future. The school is being designed for 2,700 pupils. Mr. Perry says the building is years ahead of other schools, including regional schools, not only in structural concept, but also in philosophy concerning the students. The school will be divided into five houses, he explained. About 450 pupils will call a certain house their headquarters. They will not be classified by geography or intelligence, he added, but will be sent to each house at random. In this way, he said, there will be no Sherbrooke house, no Lennoxville house, no prestige house, no slow house. Mr. Perry also stressed the factor that students studying all types of courses will mingle together in their house. A student will spend all five years of his schooling at the Regional School in the same

BLOOD DONOR TROPHIES
— Following yesterday's Red Cross Blood donor clinic at the University of Sherbrooke, trophies for the highest percentage of donors at the various clinics were presented. MISS KAREN'S CORNER

On the radio Kindergarten called PROGRAM 5 on CKTS next week I am going to start the class thinking about the problems of traffic, and a bit about travelling on a bus. One of the problems of a radio classroom will have to overcome with your help. I want the pupils to "Look to the left and then to the right before they cross the street." At this point I am not going to ask them to select the left hand from the right hand side, but it is something that I would like them to learn. Since I cannot see the class or show which side is correct, I would like the assistance of the family in teaching the pupils. Some children will find it very difficult to remember which is left and which is the right. (See Miss Karen on page 7)

Sunday Sermon Subject for November 24, 1968

The view that a man is much more than a physical machine will be re-affirmed at the service in Christian Science churches this Sunday, in the reading of the week's Bible Lesson on the subject "Soul and Body." One confident expression of faith will be this verse from Psalms: "Why are thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God." Supporting passages from the denominational textbook will include: "Instead of God sending sickness and death, He destroys them, and brings to light immortality. Omnipotent and infinite Mind made all and includes all. This Mind does not make mistakes and subsequently correct them. God does not cause man to sin, to be sick, or to die." ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy).

Canadian Bible Society meet

DANVILLE — The Danville Branch of the Canadian Bible Society held its annual meeting on Nov. 10 in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, beginning with a short service of worship in which Mr. Fournay of St. Andrew's, Rev. J. A. Johnson of the Advent Christian Church, Rev. Douglas Hawkins of Trinity United Church and Rev. L. G. Westman of St. Augustine's Church all participated.

Rev. Norman Pilcher, field secretary of the Canadian Bible Society of Montreal was the guest speaker and showed slides entitled "This is the Vision. It was a modern concept of the work of the Bible Society and religion in the modern world."

Some 15 members of the AYPAs of St. Augustine's Church were guests for these slides. Under the chairmanship of the president, Mr. Chester Perkins, members heard reports of last year's work as well as a partial report of the results of this year's canvass, which has not been completed at the moment, but so far the canvass had proved most encouraging.

NELSON NORMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bullard, Lennoxville; grandson of Mrs. Greta Harrison, Kinneair's Mills, and of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Massey, Cape May, N.J. He is the great-grandson of Mrs. Tessier Harro, Kinneair's Mills, and of Mrs. Pearl Bullard of St. Pierre Baptiste. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

All comforts of home at correctional centre

REGINA (CP) — Even in a prison, there's no place like home.

The director of a recently established family therapy program at the Regina Correctional Centre reports that inmates' families on visits to a special housing unit bring children, cook and even scrub the floors.

The plan was started this year in an attempt to bring families into the rehabilitation process. A $20,000 duplex, built on prison grounds, permits private overnight visits by wives or parents. Family therapist David Macknak says such visits are just one part of a counselling program that includes interviews with family members.

The housing unit has two separate apartments complete with television and kitchen appliances. Surrounded by a lawn and flowers, it looks like any suburban home. The emphasis is on re-creating a family setting as close to normal as possible.

Mr. Macknak said food at first was prepared in the prison's kitchens and taken to the unit.

WASHED THE FLOORS

"However, that broke up the family atmosphere we were trying to create. There's a family ritual to cooking. Now, before the family arrives, we stock up the fridge.

"While a family is using the unit, I'm the only one who meets them. Their only contact with the institution is myself.

"They leave it cleaner than they found it in most cases. We even had one wife who washed the floors. Some families bring in their own food, especially if the inmate has some favorite, such as pastries or a special dish."

The house is used about once a week and most visits last one night. Mr. Macknak encourages mothers to bring their children and says most do.

Granny practises yoga

EDMONTON (CP) — Twice a week, Rebecca Rooney stands on her head for a full minute, then touches her toes with no apparent stiffness.

"It's wonderful," says the 72-year-old great-grandmother before going on to the next yoga exercise.

"Friends keep asking me how I manage to look younger and healthier all the time. When I tell them, they can hardly wait to start practising yoga."

Her instructor, Friedel Khat-tab, says elderly people benefit the most from yoga.

Like other students, Mrs. Rooney underwent careful scrutiny and 10 days of lessons before Mrs. Khattab decided on her fitness for the exercises.

Also exercising was Margaret Robinson, who has suffered from a spastic left side since she was seven years old.

"My back has never felt better," says Miss Robinson. "Practically all my life it has given me trouble. After sitting at my desk for two hours it would be really stiff. Not now, though."

For and about Women

Many attend Lenn'ville bazaar

A number of Lennoxville and area residents crowded into St. George's Hall recently to attend a salad tea and Christmas bazaar sponsored by the Lennoxville Women's Institute.

Mrs. Raymond Pariseau and Dr. Kathleen Atto were in charge of decorations.

Mrs. Neil Tracy, WI president and Mrs. Lillian Stewart welcomed the many guests and shoppers.

Pourers at the head tea table were Mrs. Rufus Dunn, Mrs. Gilbert Patrick, Mrs. Lillian Stewart and Dr. Kathleen Atto. Mrs. Marion Porter was in charge of the tea room, and the waitresses were Mrs. Lyman Rothney, Mrs. Warren G. Ross and Mrs. Sterling Parker.

Mrs. Earl Findlay, Mrs. Francis Smith, Mrs. Gilbert Patrick and Miss Susan Parker were in charge of the preparations and arranging of the menu.

Mrs. Lawrence Parker was in charge of the tea tickets. Mrs. Lewis Eager the drawing, and Mrs. Gerald Cascard UNICEF cards, notes and calendars.

The food table featured home baking—jams, jellies and pickles.

Mrs. Ernest Cote, Mrs. Raymond Pariseau, Dr. Kathleen Atto and Mrs. E. Louise Atto served.

Mrs. J. Edward Perry and Mrs. Hugh L. Wallace were in charge of the fancy work, novelties and knitting where many chose that special hand-made gift to tuck away for Christmas giving.

A drawing was held and the winners were Mrs. Charles McKee, Mrs. H. F. St. Dizier and Mrs. Howard Kerr.

The Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament, 580 Dufferin Avenue, announce a Mass, Monday at 7:30 p.m. This Eucharistic celebration will replace the monthly English and French Holy Hours. Homily in both languages. A visit to the renewed chapel will follow. All are invited to attend.

Honey gingercake for Christmas

Gingerbread is one of the world's most venerable sweets. Egyptians, Romans and even the Goths loved it. But it took medieval monks to perfect the art of using the fragrant dough artistically.

Today, there are many ways to use the dough artistically. Here is one, perfect for Christmas parties.

HONEY GINGERCAKE
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground allspice
½ cup shortening
½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup honey
1 egg
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
Orange whipped cream

Beat batter ½-minute. Turn into 2 well-greased, lightly floured, 8- or 9-inch square cake pans. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes. Let stand in pans 10 minutes. Turn out onto wire racks to finish cooling. Put together in layer cake fashion with orange whipped cream. Garnish with grated orange peel and shaved chocolate, if desired.

ORANGE WHIPPED CREAM:
Beat 1 cup heavy cream until it stands in soft peaks. Stir in 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon grated orange peel and ½-teaspoon pure vanilla extract. Nine to 12 portions.

Women's interests emphasized at agricultural exhibition

Freeze-dried farm produce will be presented as one of the popular food items of the future at the 17th National Salon of Agriculture and Food Industries scheduled for the Maurice Richard Arena Feb. 6 to 16.

Special emphasis on women's interests, both as farm wives and urban consumers, will feature the program of the 10-day exhibition which last year attracted more than 175,000 visitors.

"Women, who form a substantial part of the visitors, will not be asked to remain passive spectators," Henriette Rouleau, vice-president of the salon, said today. "We are going to have more participation in the program than ever."

She said symposia meetings and panels organized by various women's groups will give life to the Communications theme of this year's salon. The purpose will be to bring rural women and urban women, farm wives and consumers together to interchange ideas and make their problems and needs known to one another.

Orchids not costly if grown at home

TORONTO (CP) — Although most people think of orchids as expensive plants, members of the Southern Ontario Orchid Society claim they're not—if you grow them.

Helen and Walter Norman grew their first orchid 13 years ago and today have 800 plants and several species.

Mr. Norman says that while orchids need a temperature between 65 and 75 degrees and a humidity of 50 per cent or better, this climate is not expensive to maintain. He uses fluorescent lighting.

He suggests the important thing in raising orchids is selecting one of the more than 50,000 varieties that is suitable to the temperature in your home.

Eleanor Lyons says a greenhouse isn't necessary in growing orchids.

She has 20 orchid plants under fluorescent lights on a table in the sunroom of her parents' house. Pans of water under the table maintain the humidity.

Bill Winter uses basically the same method as Miss Lyons but has a small fan circulating air because his plants are grown in a small, closed room.

The Horse is ahead of all hopes

God bless David Rittenhouse for he may now revert to the ranks of those who spend their nights in peaceful slumber and pleasant dreams.

By HUBERT BAUCH
(Bishop's Correspondent)

The worries and anxieties of the past two months (real or imagined) are things of a by-gone era. The horse is in, a good length ahead of all expectations. Julius Hay's reputation as a dramatic genius has made a beachhead in North America, and the Bishop's Fall Major Play promises to be a red letter day on the local entertainment calendar for years to come.

tion of the play.

Out of a cast of 30 people he brought 30 distinct characters whose individual personalities combined to create a unified whole. Every detail of the production was obviously well planned and the little extra personal touches here and there were simply icing on a well-baked theatrical cake.

All this was accomplished in one fell swoop when the Bishop's Dramatics Society last night opened its three-day run of Hay's satirical comic farce The Horse.

Undoubtedly there are great strings of superlatives which could appropriately be trundled out at this time to describe the evening of superb entertainment provided by the cast of The Horse, but simple justice and expediency demand that first credit go to Mr. Rittenhouse for his excellent direc-

On the surface, the play appears as a delightful farce and a generally merry romp in the best Restoration tradition. Beneath the comic shell, however, Hay uses his incisive wit at every opportunity to skewer the figure of the universal tyrant.

The tyrant in this case is Caligula, played to the hilt and beloged by Paul Burrows, also known locally as the elastic Paul Burrows.

That much is historical fact, but under Hay's pen the narrative develops complications as Caligula seeks to find a wife for his new four-legged first officer. He chooses the beautiful Amiana, daughter of his banker, then promptly proceeds to develop insatiable desires for her himself.

Unknown to Caligula, Amiana has protracted an amorous liaison with Selanus, the horse's groom and when the mad emperor attempts to woo her by disguising himself as the horse, he is tricked and soundly beaten in the bargain.

Greg Benton, however, deserves top honors in the caricature department as he combines a credible bumbling banker picture with a good natured (and highly authentic) takeoff on a certain Bishop's faculty dean.

Steven Bourke as Selanus the groom and Bill Nethery as the former consul who was ousted in favor of the horse, play straight men to the seemingly endless parade of oddballs with adequate aplomb, while Marielle Green manages to keep her acting abilities from being upstaged by her impressive cleavage as she plays the part of Caligula's mistress.

Also worthy of mention are the Teuton guards led by Doug Harpur who landed another blow on tyranny through the seemingly innocent vehicle of slapstick comedy. A bit of undue upstaging though by the one with the funny sword, but the Rowan and Martin interjection is pure genius.

The play itself moves along at a healthy clip. There is no lag in the action, rather it seems to come in waves, each scene seeming to outdo the one that preceded it.

Michel Bernier's seemingly simple set serves as a highly functional backdrop to the action which literally spills over the thrust stage. The costumes designed by Donnie Rittenhouse on the other hand burst forth in a blaze of color, lending a certain life of their own to the production.

The driving rock music provided by Jonathan Churcher and company in The Pure Greece (pun purely intentional) also fits perfectly into the ancient Rome setting within the context of The Horse.

The lighting, skilfully handled by Derek Oppen, goes a long way in the creation of the mood of the production, especially the orchard at night effect and the strobe light during the beating of Caligula.

Andrea Jellicoe deserves a hand also for her part as assistant director, as do Ron Taylor who handled the technical coordination, and Andy Mooney with his hard-working stage crew.

but turns in her usual delightful performance as do Howard Hughes, Peter Miller and Bruce Retallack in their roles as the sniveling senators. Their characters are comic exaggerations of familiar types, but each emerges as a refreshing vignette.

Steven Bourke as Selanus the groom and Bill Nethery as the former consul who was ousted in favor of the horse, play straight men to the seemingly endless parade of oddballs with adequate aplomb, while Marielle Green manages to keep her acting abilities from being upstaged by her impressive cleavage as she plays the part of Caligula's mistress.

Also worthy of mention are the Teuton guards led by Doug Harpur who landed another blow on tyranny through the seemingly innocent vehicle of slapstick comedy. A bit of undue upstaging though by the one with the funny sword, but the Rowan and Martin interjection is pure genius.

The play itself moves along at a healthy clip. There is no lag in the action, rather it seems to come in waves, each scene seeming to outdo the one that preceded it.

Michel Bernier's seemingly simple set serves as a highly functional backdrop to the action which literally spills over the thrust stage. The costumes designed by Donnie Rittenhouse on the other hand burst forth in a blaze of color, lending a certain life of their own to the production.

The driving rock music provided by Jonathan Churcher and company in The Pure Greece (pun purely intentional) also fits perfectly into the ancient Rome setting within the context of The Horse.

The lighting, skilfully handled by Derek Oppen, goes a long way in the creation of the mood of the production, especially the orchard at night effect and the strobe light during the beating of Caligula.

Andrea Jellicoe deserves a hand also for her part as assistant director, as do Ron Taylor who handled the technical coordination, and Andy Mooney with his hard-working stage crew.

Katherine Gordon is somewhat limited in her role as Amiana, but turns in her usual delightful performance as do Howard Hughes, Peter Miller and Bruce Retallack in their roles as the sniveling senators. Their characters are comic exaggerations of familiar types, but each emerges as a refreshing vignette.

Greg Benton, however, deserves top honors in the caricature department as he combines a credible bumbling banker picture with a good natured (and highly authentic) takeoff on a certain Bishop's faculty dean.

right hand. As you teach them, remember to give the child a lot of praise.

I know that many of the pupils living in the country do not have the daily problem of crossing the street, but it is one they might encounter when they are in school. The same is true of stop lights. When you bring your child into town, try to take a minute to let the child watch what happens at the corner where the stop-lights are. Show them how everyone stops for the red light. I will be emphasizing this fact during PROGRAM 5 more than what the green light means. Obviously it is more important for the child to stop at the right time, than to go.

I will also talk about going for a bus ride, but not on a school bus yet. I want to establish the idea that the bus driver works at being a friendly person who looks after his bus and his passengers.

As part of the theme about traffic I will tell the class about the traffic policeman and how he does his job. I have two songs about policemen, and both bring out the idea that the policeman is a friend who can give help when anyone is lost. I definitely do not think that he should ever be presented to the children as a threat if they are not good.

As homework on Monday I will ask the pupils to request that you take them to watch a traffic light, and on Tuesday I will ask them to draw a traffic light and show the colors. Wednesday I will tell them a story about a red bus and I will ask them to draw the red bus, and a big greyhound-type of bus as well. There is no special assignment on Thursday, but on Friday I will ask each pupil to learn his proper home address, and this obviously means that you will have to help him. A town address is fairly easy to understand, but for a child to give an easily understood rural address that will help someone get him home will take some thought.

LA CREMERIE DE WEEDON LIMITEE

Notice of Meeting of Holders of First Mortgage Serial Bonds Series "A"

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the holders of First Mortgage Serial Bonds, Series "A", (hereinafter referred to as the "Bonds") of La Cremerie de Weedon Limitee (hereinafter referred to as "Company"), issued pursuant to the provisions of a Trust Deed dated August 7, 1963 (hereinafter referred to as the "Trust Deed"), passed before Mre Simon Laliberte, notary, by the Company in favour of Administration and Trust Company (hereinafter referred to as the "Trustee"), will be held at the office of the Trustee, 10 St. James Street, Montreal, on the 20th December 1968, at 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon.

This meeting is convened for the purpose of allowing the Bondholders to be informed of the default of the Company under the Trust Deed and of the taking of possession, effected by the Trustee, of all the Mortgaged Premises securing the Bonds and to adopt one or more resolutions for the following purposes, namely:

1. Considering, approving, confirming and sanctioning the actions taken by the Trustee for and on behalf of the Bondholders with respect to the enforceability of the security created by the Trust Deed, to the Taking of possession and to the carrying on of the business of the Company;
2. Considering and, if thought fit, approving the measures to be submitted for continuing the carrying on of the business of the Company, for making any additional loan for that purpose to be guaranteed by the Mortgaged Premises securing the Bonds and to rank ahead of the said Bonds and for selling in whole or in part the Mortgaged Premises securing the Bonds, as well as any other measures or decisions deemed necessary or advantageous and authorizing the execution of any and all documents that may be necessary for these purposes;
3. Considering and, if thought fit, appointing, by way of an extraordinary resolution, a committee of Bondholders and delegating to such committee the powers set forth in the extraordinary resolution to be submitted to the meeting including, without limitation, the power to appoint advisers or other assistants and to pay out of the Mortgaged Premises securing the Bonds the expenses and disbursements necessary to administer same as well as those of the committee whose members shall be entitled to receive a reasonable compensation, such expenses and disbursements constituting a privilege upon the Mortgaged Premises ranking ahead of the Bonds.

This notice is given pursuant to the provisions of the Trust Deed to the intent that all resolutions adopted at the meeting or any adjournment thereof shall, if adopted in accordance with the provisions contained thereunder, be binding upon all the Bondholders whether present or absent. The Trustee has made regulations for the purpose of allowing the Bondholders to be present at the meeting or any adjournment thereof without producing their Bonds and to vote thereat by proxy; copies of such regulations and forms of deposit certificated for the Bonds and of instrument of proxy may be obtained on application at the office of the Trustee in Montreal, 10 St. James Street.

DATED at Montreal, this 22nd day of November 1968.

Obituaries

MRS. CHARLES CHAPMAN OF WINDSOR

WINDSOR — The death occurred on Oct. 18, 1968, at the Wales Home, Richmond, of Mrs. Charles Chapman, a former esteemed and one of Windsor's oldest residents, at the age of 87 years, after an illness of long duration having suffered several strokes and was hospitalized a number of times in Sherbrooke Hospital and St. Louis Hospital, Windsor.

After returning, it was later found necessary for her to enter the Knowles Rest Home, Melbourne, where she remained for a number of months before leaving to become a resident at the Wales Home.

Aunt Annie, as she was affectionately known, was born in Waterville, Que., daughter of the late Moses McCourt and his wife Mary Wood.

She received her early education in Waterville and after leaving with her parents to reside at Windsor at the McCourt Homestead, she continued her education at a neighborhood school. She was the last surviving member of her family and a descendant of one of Windsor's first settlers.

Mrs. Chapman with her sister Miss Isobel McCourt as young ladies left for Troy, N.Y., where they were in the millinery and dressmaking business for eighteen years.

In 1908 she married Charles Chapman of Troy, N.Y., formerly of Windsor and following their marriage they returned to Windsor where they purchased the large Hadsell home on Dearden Street, where Mr. Chapman was employed at the Canada Paper Co. until his death in 1947.

The deceased was a staunch member of St. Andrew's United Church and a member of the U.C.W. Mrs. Chapman was very ambitious and energetic having many talents for organizing entertainments, for church work, also, being much in demand as an elocutionist, and as a practical nurse.

She is survived by a daughter Betty, Mrs. Norman Campbell, Pinpoint, and Lila, Mrs. C. C. Hayes, Toronto, Ont.; Hazel, Mrs. Wesley Miller, Elmsworth, Alta.; Florence, Mrs. M. Sears, Magog; Rhoda, Mrs. H. Leonard, Sherbrooke; Mary, Mrs. L. Paige; Pearl, Mrs. A. Smeltzer; Ethel, Mrs. D. Jondreville, Windsor and Carl Frame, Shawinigan whom she took into her home on the death of their parents. Mrs. Hayes was the only daughter of the late Mr. Harvey Frame and his wife, Lizzie McCourt. The others were the family of the late H. Frame and his wife, Maud Collett of England. A number of nieces and nephews also survive.

Mrs. Chapman was predeceased by four sisters, Isabel McCourt; Bessie, Mrs. J. Watson; Minnie, Mrs. E. Hatch; Lizzie, Mrs. H. Frame and three brothers, M. W. McCourt, J. McCourt and Thomas McCourt.

The remains rested at the A. Boisvert Funeral Home where prayers were held on Oct. 21 at 1:30 p.m., prior to the funeral service in St. Andrew's United Church at 2 p.m. with Rev. R. A. Cameron of Richmond and Melbourne United Church officiating.

Mr. Cameron spoke comforting words to the family and paid tribute to the life of the deceased.

The hymns sung by the choir were "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "Abide With Me", favorites of the deceased. Mrs. Irwin Robinson was at the organ and played softly prior to the service and as the casket was being borne from the church by the bearers Lloyd Clayton, Melvin Clifford McCourt, Grant Watson and Ernest Todd, nephews.

Many friends and relatives were in attendance. Interment took place in the Windsor Cemetery.

Those who attended from a distance were from Pinpoint, Toronto, Hampstead, Shawinigan, Granby, Magog, North Hatley, Sherbrooke, Winnipeg, Man., Montreal, Danville, Melbourne, Richmond, Greenlay and Lennoxville.

CAROLYN MAY BADGER of West Brome

WEST BROME — A tragic accident in West Brome on Oct. 20th took the life of Carolyn May Badger, wife of David W. Badger.

The funeral service was held at St. Paul's Anglican Church on Oct. 22nd with Rev. W. Davidson, Brome, and Rev. T. E. R. Nurse, Knowlton, officiating. Burial was in the Duboyce Cemetery.

The pall bearers were Donald and Tom McGovern, brothers of the deceased, and Brian and Fred Badger, brothers-in-law. The hymn, "The King of Love my Shepherd is", was sung by the choir accompanied by Mrs. W. Frizzle.

The deceased was born Carolyn May McGovern on Sept. 22nd 1948 and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McGovern. On July 6th of this year she was married in Brome to David W. Badger. Her short life had been lived in Sutton and East Hill and at the time of her death she was employed at the Pine Gables Rest Home in Cowansville. Besides her husband David, she leaves to mourn, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McGovern, four brothers, Donald, Tom, John and Peter McGovern, and one sister Sharon, Mrs. Angus Bruce, Montreal, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hastings and many other relatives.

Relatives attending the funeral came from Worcester, Mass., Sherbrooke, Montreal, Sutton, Waterloo, Pointe Claire, Valois, Beauport.

RODERICK THOMAS MACLEAY of Richmond, Que.

RICHMOND — The death occurred at the Wales Home, Richmond on Oct. 26, 1968 of Roderick T. MacLeay, a former well known and esteemed resident of Richmond after an illness of short duration, at the age of 92 years.

Mr. MacLeay was born at Flodden, son of the late Thomas MacLeay and his wife Jeannie Margaret Neilson, both were pioneer families of the area.

Roddie received his early education at the local school and spent his boyhood days in this vicinity. He was a faithful member of Knox Presbyterian Church and Sunday School at Flodden, and later attended Chalmers United Church in Richmond. As a young man he came to Richmond and entered the employ of the G.T.R., later the C.N.R. Railways as fireman and later engineer, and in 1916 was transferred to Montreal.

In 1939 Mr. MacLeay had the honor to be appointed as engineer for part of the journey across Canada by their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, later he was invited to take the Royal Train to the World's Fair in New York City.

Mr. MacLeay later was transferred to Kingston, Ont., for a short time, returning to Montreal where he retired in 1941. He was recalled to act as instructor at which position he remained a few years, after which he moved to Morgan, Vt., where he resided until 1963 when he returned to Richmond, and entered the Wales Home as a resident until the time of his death. Roddie was well known to possess a splendid character and his amiable disposition made him popular with both old and young.

He was married twice. In 1900 he married Miss Jennie Stalker, Flodden, who predeceased him in 1908. Of this union two sons and a daughter were born. In 1915 he married Miss Helen Fyfe of Scotland, who predeceased him in 1944. Two sons and a daughter who died in infancy were born of this union.

Mr. MacLeay was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers from which organization he received his 50th year pin, also a member of St. Francis Lodge No. 15 A.F. and A.M., also receiving his 50th year jewel. He was a charter member of Westmount Chapter No. 9 O.E.S. and was one of the early Worthy Patrons of that Chapter.

Prior to the funeral Oct. 28th the members of St. Francis Lodge No. 15 A.F. and A.M. visited the funeral home and held their impressive memorial service, also Connaught Chapter No. 4 O.E.S. members visited the home in a body.

Surviving are four sons, Gilbert T. MacLeay, Ste. Agathe des Monts; Roderick D., Pointe Claire; William G., Mobile, Ala.; George D., Morgan, Vt., and one daughter Jean, Mrs. R. E. Findlay, North Bay, Ont.; a brother Mr. George V. MacLeay and sister Mrs. Anson Bricker, Richmond, 9 grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and a number of nieces, nephews and other relatives.

The remains rested at the S. L. Lockwood Inc. Funeral Home, where prayers were conducted by Rev. R. A. Cameron on Oct. 29, hence to the service at Chalmers United Church at 2:00 p.m., which was largely attended. Mr. Bruce Kerr was organist and the hymns sung were "Just As I Am" and "The Lord's My Shepherd."

The casket was reverently borne by Messrs. Percy Frazer, George Walker, William Murphy, Lloyd Fuller, Ashley Stalker and Lloyd Roberts.

Mr. William Wright, Assistant Grand Chief of the B. of L.E. and Mr. John Rieucetti, Special Representative of the B. of L.E. of Montreal were present at the service.

Interment took place at St. Andrew's Cemetery, Upper Melbourne, Mr. Cameron officiated at the committal service.

MR. GUY A. LITTLE OF INVERNESS

INVERNESS — On October 31, 1968, the district was saddened by the sudden death of a highly respected citizen in the person of Guy Aylwin Little, husband of the late Clara Mary Appleton and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John K. Little, of Lower Ireland. He was in his 82nd year.

In May 1913, he married Clara M. Appleton who predeceased him May 2, 1955. Those left to mourn his loss are his only daughter, Alice, Mrs. Lorne Kelso, three grandchildren, Lorraine, Mrs. E. Learmonth; Janet, Mrs. R. Dempsey; and Ronald Kelso; one great-grandson, James Dempsey; his brother-in-law, Mr. James Appleton, who has made his home with Mr. Little for many years; his cousin, Mrs. J. J. Mackenzie, Finch, Ont.; who lived with Mr. Little from infancy; one nephew, Mr. Gordon Little, Keene, N.H. Two sons died in infancy and one brother Ernest Little predeceased him.

On November 2nd a short service was conducted in the home by Mr. J. Bodkin, student minister, under the direction of Robert Couture, Funeral Director of Laurierville. The remains were conveyed to the Adderley Presbyterian Church, where an impressive service was conducted by Mr. Bodkin assisted by Capt. W. Joslin, with Mrs. W. Dacres as organist. Two of the deceased's favorite hymns were sung, "Unto the Hills" and "O God our Help in Ages Past." A large number gathered at the home and at the church to pay their last respects.

Mr. Little had been a faithful member for sixty years of the Inverness Oddfellows Lodge No. 51 having received his Sixty Year Jewel. His brother Oddfellows of the district held their funeral service at the home on Friday evening at 8:30 p.m. At the time of his death Mr. Little was a Manager and Trustee of the Presbyterian Church Board. The many floral offerings and contributions to the Adderley Cemetery Fund were silent tokens of the esteem in which Mr. Little was held.

Interment took place in the family plot in Adderley. The bearers were Allen Little, Forrest Wright, Kenneth Kelso, Leonard Henderson, Sydney McKee and Hubert Cook.

Among those attending the funeral were relatives and friends from Bradford and Lyndonville, Vt., Ottawa, Montreal, North Hatley, Ayer's Cliff, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Bulwer, Burchton, Danville, Breakeyville, Theford Mines, Kincair's Mills and the surrounding area.

Bury

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Dods, of Ontario, have returned home after spending a few days guests of Mrs. Dods' mother, Mrs. Edith Whitehead.

Mrs. Russell Dougherty was a weekend guest of her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Benjamin and family in South Woodbury, Vt., and also visited her sister, Mrs. Vincent White and Mr. White in Morrinstown, Vt. She had accompanied Mrs. Arthur Olson who was also visiting friends in that vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Beauchesne, Victoriaville, were recent callers of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. G. Stokes.

Miss Kathryn Bennett spent the weekend at her home here. Mrs. Thos. G. Stokes spent a day in Montreal visiting her sister, Mrs. J. E. McKeown who is a patient in the Montreal General Hospital having suffered a heart attack.

Cleveland W.I. hold meeting

CLEVELAND — Members of the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Alfred Smith for their November meeting.

The roll call was answered by members buying poppies. The monthly drawing brought by Miss Flora Fletcher was won by Mrs. Gladys Perkins.

A wreath was purchased and placed on the Cenotaph, Armistice Day.

The report of the county meeting was given by Mrs. Alfred Smith.

Copies of the Federated News and the conveners' outlines were handed out.

A member, Mrs. Clarence Pease, who is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital, is to be remembered with a plant.

Conveners' reports: Home economics, Mrs. Charles Johnston, read a paper; welfare and health, Mrs. Alfred Smith, gave a remedy for burns; citizenship, Miss Flora Fletcher read a paper. Prizes of $2 each are offered to the three grades six at St. Francis High School for greatest effort and improvement in their school work.

Members drew names for the exchange of Christmas gifts.

Agriculture convener, Mrs. G. Perkins conducted a quiz on jumbled names of vegetables with Mrs. Lottie Osborne and Mrs. Royce Taylor having most correct answers.

The December meeting will be held with Mrs. Royce Taylor on Dec. 7.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the meeting.

For a fun time, journey to Amsterdam

Travel

PHOTOSCENIC CANADA — The Province of Ontario has numerous historic sites for the travelling picture taker, among them is the Ste. Marie I Fort near Midland, Ontario.

Re-construction of this famous Canadian site and as you can tell by this photo, offers excellent material for your home movies or photo album.

Six thousand North Americans had a day free of charge in Amsterdam, Holland's exciting capital, last fall and winter.

These visitors were not winners of a lottery, but participants in a "Day On The House In Surprising Amsterdam," the unique travel bonus program that gives everyone a full fun-packed day free of charge in one of Europe's most popular cities.

This unusual offer is being made this year again to all North Americans who depart for Holland anytime between September 15, 1968 and April 1, 1969. Indeed, this is the seventh year in a row that Amsterdam has given a Santa's pack of gifts to those who visit during the fall and winter.

This year there will be 20 gifts in all, to help visitors enjoy themselves in Holland's canal-studded capital, including everything from cocktails to cultural attractions, gourmet meals and free snacks and sightseeing.

To qualify for a "Day On The House" is easy. All you need is a hospitality certificate. These can be obtained upon request from travel agents, or from the Netherlands National Tourist Offices in New York, San Francisco and Toronto. These certificates will be redeemed for coupon booklets at the Amsterdam Tourist Office in the heart of the city, or at the airport desk of the tourist office. As visitors go about exploring and getting acquainted with the city of Amsterdam, the coupons are exchanged for the many gifts on the list.

Who is eligible for this travel bonus? All North Americans arriving in Amsterdam 24 hours after their departure from the United States or Canada, and those who sail to Holland directly from the United States, can participate in this budget stretching plan. Travelers who make Amsterdam their last port of call before boarding intercontinental flights, can also participate in "Day On The House."

In addition, those who are in transit but have a stop in Amsterdam during the 24-hour time requirement can cash in their certificates at the airport desk and use them when they return to Holland.

The gifts on the list for a "Day On The House" include visits to the Rijksmuseum, which houses the famous "Night Watch" by Rembrandt and other Dutch masterpieces, to the Stedelijk Museum to see a glowing collection of van Goghs, and to the Rembrandthuis, the great painter's former residence, and now an intimate museum with some of his most sensitive sketches.

But, travelers do not live on food for thought only, so there are other temptations of the gourmet variety on the list. Included here, is a "welcome to Holland" cocktail at a posh bar in a deluxe hotel, and a choice of two sumptuous feasts — a continental style dinner in an atmospheric restaurant or a rijsttafel, an exotic Indonesian feast of 15-50 different dishes, served with steaming rice.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? "Death" (de Dood) is the name of this windmill in Zaandam, Holland. It is one of the Zaan area's few windmills in working condition and its sails seem to spin in defiance of the modern world. Zaandam was a major ship-building center 300 years ago, and Czar Peter lived here in 1697 to learn the art of shipbuilding. The area now is highly industrialized but a number of historic buildings and windmills have been reconstructed to recreate the Zaandam that Czar Peter knew.

Air-sea formula designed for the best of both

While airlines and steamship companies generally compete for the traveller's dollar, they get together at times to make the best package deal available to Canadians, according to Michel Baron, new General Manager of Air France for Canada.

Mr. Baron was referring to the air-sea cruise in the Caribbean which has been planned for Canadians at the minimum cost of $382 in co-operation with Traveline, which owns and operates the M/S Dalmatia — Queen of the Caribbean.

The air-sea formula, the Air France official points out, saves two days of sailing in currently cold winter weather for anyone who used to leave on a Caribbean cruise from a North American port. "Within a few hours," he explains, "an Air France jet will take you from New York to Guadeloupe, where you will be welcomed and transferred aboard the M/S Dalmatia."

This modern ship was built in 1965. She is 385 feet long and has a speed of 20 knots. She is registered at 5,500 gross tons and is fully air-conditioned and stabilized. She meets the highest sea safety requirements. While the M/S Dalmatia has a total passenger capacity of 325, cruises are limited to 260 in order to permit the maximum in shipboard comfort and service. The first day of the one-week cruise is spent out at sea, making Canadians definitely forget about their severe winter weather and enabling them to fully appreciate the gay atmosphere and great comfort of their new floating paradise. They can benefit from the golden touch of the sun, swim at will in the pool and inhale the healthy sea air.

The following day the M/S Dalmatia reaches her first port of call in a fascinating tour of the island. It is Curacao, a tropical Dutch treat, reminiscent of old Holland, a shoppers paradise, where imported products of all kinds are available duty-free at rock bottom prices.

The second stop is La Guaira, the port city of Caracas, capital of Venezuela, the birth place of Simon Bolivar, The Great Liberator. Among the attractions are the captivating architectural mixture of ultra modern and spanish colonial, many fine restaurants, an elaborate race track and the nearby beaches.

Next is Trinidad, the most cosmopolitan centre in the Caribbean, with turbaned Hindus, red-frezzed Moslems, Chinese in oriental robes, Spaniards, Frenchmen, Portuguese and others. It is the home of Calypso and the beat of the big steel band. The scenery is gorgeous with plenty of beautiful birds and hillsides

The price of the air-sea cruise of Air France and the M/S Dalmatia includes return air fare, air-conditioned cabin and shower or bath, all meals plus evening snacks, deck chair, the free use of the swimming pool and other facilities, and entertainment aboard.

Departures are scheduled from Montreal every Sunday. Additional information is available from all travel agents.

Stage coach days over

You don't have to change at New York

Too few Canadians know that Boston air fares are the same as New York fares for passengers flying from Montreal to "almost every point in the U.S.A.," an airline executive said today.

Harold J. Canvin, Canadian region director of Northeast Airlines, said that travel agents are "having their trouble" selling Boston as an air passenger transfer point because the public does not realize this simple fact.

"Maybe it's because we in the trade use travel jargon like "common-rated" instead of simple English," he said.

"I think our Canadian views about travel to the States are conditioned by history — somehow attitudes haven't really changed since stage coach days. Eastern Canadians think you have to go to New York to go almost anywhere in the U.S. Actually, because of air traffic delays at New York, Boston is a more sensible point of transfer to many cities deeper in the U.S.A."

Canvin noted that Boston has only one airport whereas a trip via New York often requires passengers to transfer from Kennedy to LaGuardia airport to make connections.

To October 21 this year, Northeast has carried more than 128,101 passengers on its Montreal-Boston route, he noted, compared with 87,868 in the corresponding period of pre-Expo 1966.

BOAC flies into Pacific's big market

MONTREAL — More flights, new equipment, a new gateway and a brand new service sum up recent BOAC announcements concerning the airline's increased activities in the Pacific.

Beginning next April BOAC will increase its mid-Pacific 707 services from San Francisco to Honolulu, Tokyo and Hong Kong from three to five a week in each direction. Later there will be a daily service on the route.

Later in 1969 the airline will begin Super VCIO services between Los Angeles, Honolulu, Fiji and Sydney. At present BOAC operates 707 jet services three times a week on the South Pacific route from San Francisco.

A news service, across the roof of the world between London, Anchorage, Tokyo and Osaka, will begin March 31, 1969 using 707 jetliners. The thrice-weekly service will provide the only same-plane service from Europe to Osaka, Japan's gigant industrial centre and site for the "Expo 70" world exposition.

Commenting on these announcements, a BOAC spokesman said: "With these developments BOAC has shown its determination to continue as a major Pacific carrier by providing a more comprehensive network of services to and through the region than any other competing carrier."

The new VCIO services from Los Angeles to the South Pacific marks the debut of the VCIO in the Pacific and the change in the South Pacific gateway in North America from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

"The BOAC spokesman said: "The move has been made because of the tremendous growth in population and industry in the Southern California area. Los Angeles is also an ideal West Coast port of call in view of the continuing expansion of trade between North America and Australia."

The BOAC spokesman said, "The move has been made because of the tremendous growth in population and industry in the Southern California area. Los Angeles is also an ideal West Coast port of call in view of the continuing expansion of trade between North America and Australia."

This shift in gateways is a major bonus for travellers from Eastern Canada to the South Pacific, who will have their choice of several direct or non-stop services to Los Angeles from Toronto and Montreal with good connections to the BOAC Super VCIO services.

Though a federal Conservative by tradition and conviction, I became like so many others an emotional Trudeauite, captivated by the vitality, intelligence, charm, the je ne sais quoi of the man Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

It was therefore with considerable interest that I began to read John D. Harbron's THIS IS TRUDEAU, an interest that I maintained throughout, emotions were pulled this way and that as I read the biography.

That a man in his late forties should be called to account for the opinions he held in his youth, Communistic or not, seems the height of stupidity. Mr. Trudeau is what he is, not what he was — if he ever was what his detractors claim. Many brilliant, intelligent, intellectuals cut wide swaths along many trails before they reach El Dorado and if there are mysteries surrounding Mr. Trudeau and some of his activities it seems to me that everything Mr. Trudeau did and thought — serious, profound, frivolous — has made the man a Prime Minister that Canada and the world notice with a special awareness.

All this is inherent in the book. On the other hand, certain present political policies are disquieting to me at least, e.g., the Prime Minister's apparently avowed intention to make Canadian politics more American. Among other reasons to avoid discrimination! This is to laugh. If he carries these ideas far enough, I'll be a Trudeauite in some other country.

A biography that can infuriate right, left and centre and still keep the biographer lively, human, intriguing and honorable is well worth reading. Such is THIS IS TRUDEAU.

Jottings

BY BLUEBELL PHILLIPS

This jottings should be entitled 'I Nearly Made It' or 'A Mishap That Was Almost a Hap.'

As I have mentioned before, my late father was interested in politics so when the then Governor-General visited Prince Albert my sister who was about four was chosen to present flowers, not to the Governor-General's lady but to the lady-in-waiting at the public reception in the park.

My six-year-old self hovered between envy and pride.

Kathleen made her way up the steps of the decorated bandstand, presented her flowers, made her courtesy, turned around and walked forward instead of backing off as she had been rehearsed. As she got to the Governor-General, she realized her mistake and clamped her hands over her mouth.

Even from where I was standing I could see the tears of mortification brimming from her enormous grey eyes. The Governor-General with a tender, amused smile swept the little figure in her white dress and stared petticoats to his knee. He talked with her a moment, gave her a kiss and sent her on her way forwards.

Ever since, I have wished I could sit on a Governor-General's knee. A few years ago, the Authors annual convention was held in Ottawa and among other elegant functions, the delegates were entertained at a reception in Rideau Hall.

Our beloved and esteemed late Governor-General Vanier was too ill to stand to receive his guests so he sat, with his charming wife standing at his side.

I was near the end of the line — saving the icing as usual. Just as I moved to shake hands a large battleship of a woman pushed herself in front of me, knocking me almost onto the Governor-General's knee; only the aide-de-camp's quick hand saved the Governor-General and prevented me from fulfilling a life-long ambition.

Perhaps for my hundredth birthday an arrangement could be made — a happening, not a mishap.

The coin

by j. e.

charlton, f.r.n.s.

An attractive two-inch bronze medallion has been struck to commemorate an important milestone in Canadian history, the unification of all three of Canada's armed forces — Army, Navy and Air Force — into one combined united force in February of this year.

The obverse illustrates the new insignia of the Canadian Armed Forces in the centre field and the lettering Unification of the Canadian Armed Forces, February 1, 1968 around the circumference. This insignia was approved by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth and is composed of the crown over an oval background, surrounded by a wreath of ten stylized maple leaves. Superimposed on the oval are the traditional emblems of the services — the Navy fouled anchor, the Army crossed Crusader Swords and the Air Force Eagle.

The reverse side of the medallion depicts three traditional maple leaves with the insignia of the Army, Navy and Air Force superimposed. Struck by the Wellings Corporation, the medallions are hand finished in antique bronze and are available to collectors either with or without special presentation cases.

Record high prices were realized for Canadian medals while coins and tokens in most cases sold above catalogue value at the recent Sotheby auction sale in Toronto.

Despite substantial mail bids, practically all of the material was bought by floor bidders who included some of the leading numismatists and dealers from Canada and the United States and one dealer from London, England.

A local newspaper reported that the total realized of $48,685 was a record for coins and medals in Canada.

Gives factual story on the Eskimo's life

ESKIMO OF THE CANADIAN ARCTIC, Victor F. Volentine and Frank G. Vallee; McClelland and Stewart Ltd.; 241 pages; $2.45.

The Canadian Eskimo — now about 12,000 — is increasing faster than the natural average. Housing and living conditions improve and job opportunities increase.

For generations contact with the southern world remained minimal. Whalers, Hudson Bay traders, missionaries and the occasional anthropologist. During the past 20 years, this contact has intensified.

Eskimo social structures are reeling under the impact.

Eskimos had gradually changed from hunters of food to fur hunters under the spur of trade with Hudson Bay. Now they are becoming wage earners.

They have gravitated to communities where work is available: trading centres and dew line sites, and live in some of the poorest housing in the nation.

Government supported co-operative projects help. By loans and cash subsidies, Eskimos are assisted to improve their own living conditions.

The co-op, is, of course, used for other purposes. The best known are Cape Dorset and Povungnituk where carving and print-making flourish.

All co-operatives get non-Eskimo assistance and guidance; but their real strength depends on a core of committed Eskimo leaders.

The co-op, is, of course, a southern import but presented to the Eskimos in terms of their traditional group-sharing customs.

They can be used to soften the unfair position of hunters whose kills must still be distributed among the members of the community. Wage earners, on the other hand, need not share their incomes.

In some communities, the co-ops purchase meat from hunters and so spread the resources of the community more equitably.

Democratic representation strikes at the prestige and power of the elders. Fortunately, younger Eskimos respond quickly to the need for change and to the unexpected challenge of leadership.

Music on Records

By Elisabeth Gustafson

RACHMANINOFF: Concerto No. 3 in D minor, Op. 30. Alexis Weissenberg, pianist, with Georges Pretre conducting the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. RCA Victor stereo LSC-3040.

This year marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the death of Sergei Rachmaninoff, composer and one of the great piano players of our century. One is tempted to say the greatest. Concerts in homage to Rachmaninoff on this anniversary are already underway. The present record is part of this general homage: on it Alexis Weissenberg and the conductor Georges Pretre, join forces with the Chicago Symphony in an interpretation of Rachmaninoff's third Concerto.

On the sleeves of the record, Weissenberg writes of what the Concerto has meant to him, in contrast. On discs, even the in my life... I still think it is the most gloriously written concerto for piano. His dedication shows itself in his interpretation. His interpretation is passionate and loving. But try as one can, it is impossible to dislodge from the memory the playing of the Concerto by the composer himself. Inevitably, any other interpretation suffers lyricism is too long drawn out, old Rachmaninoff recording with its imperfect surfaces, still takes pride of place. One listens to a new disc wondering where that exact inevitable phrasing has disappeared to.

This is music at the centre of late Romanticism. Any overwrought interpretation, and the music becomes rhetorical. Weissenberg and Pretre don't escape this dangerous marginal approach — too frequently the playing halts for emphasis, the lyricism is too long drawn out. Still, the achievement remains. This is a homage one accepts. One should accept it on its own terms and forget Rachmaninoff as his own interpreter. The trouble is, one can't.

SCHUBERT: Octet in F major for Strings and Winds, Op. 166. Members of the Melos Ensemble. Angel stereo 5-36-529.

Here on records again is that wonderful, gay, bold, indescribable Octet in F major by Schubert. Anyone who has not made its acquaintance and does, will have a friend for life. And the chances are that he will have got into such close friendship with Franz Schubert that he won't ever do without him. Only a metaphorical way of writing? Try this Octet and see.

The Melos Ensemble is a chamber group of players from London. They do moderate justice to this masterpiece of Schubert. The Octet demands more bite and exuberant vitality. The present approach is deliberate. But the traversal has merit, lyricism, tone and intonation. The Melos Ensemble loves Schubert too.

DEBUSSY: La Boite a Joujoux and Printemps. Ernest Ansermet conducting l'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande. London stereo 15042.

Debussy's children's ballet 'The Toy-Box' is the record to tuck under the Christmas tree for the youngster (and the older too). You will not find the music in better hands than in those of Ansermet and his Geneva musicians.

Ivor Whitehouse Collecting

in the Townships

The collecting of stamps which feature famous paintings continues to be the most popular topical, although the Olympic stamps issued this year sold very well.

There are some older stamps from different countries in Europe that are no longer cheap, these stamps were well designed and produced and show many of the masterpieces in the famous art galleries of that continent. It is unfortunate that some of the smaller countries of the middle east have issued such a large number of stamps with paintings, these are quite expensive in mint condition although readily available in cancelled-to-order sets at low prices.

The formation of a miniature art gallery in your home from these stamps is very rewarding. Some of the most beautiful art stamps are those issued to commemorate the Christmas season and for the most part these feature the Nativity scene as painted by well-known artists. Should you be looking for an extra sideline collection these art stamps could be just what you are looking for.

A six-cent Sports Series stamp providing recognition for curling, the roaring game, will be released by the Canada Post Office, January 15, 1969. Postmaster General Eric Kierans announced recently.

The new issue, horizontal in format and having dimensions of 40 mm x 24 mm., will mark the debut of David Eales, a young native of Toronto, Ontario, as a designer of Canadian stamps. Mr. Eales attended Oakwood Collegiate in Toronto prior to spending three years at Central Technical School of Art in the same city studying for his chosen vocation. He is currently employed in a commercial art studio in Toronto.

The British American Bank Note Company Ltd., Ottawa, will combine steel engraving and photogravure to print the Curling stamp in three colors on a white background for a total press run of 24,500,000. Customary First Day Cover Service will be provided by the Postmaster, Ottawa 2, Ontario.

Principal elements of the design are engraved silhouetted figures of four players in action poses. Two in the upper left segment are sweeping in advance of the Rock as it approaches the Button in the centre of the House; a third member of the sweepers' rink, located front and centre, is calling the sweep and a fourth figure to the right represents the opposing Skip poised to sweep the Rock out of the House.

STAMP COLLECTORS and CHRISTMAS

The Christmas season is fast approaching and you should order your philatelic gifts early — after all, and we may as well be honest about this, most albums, stock books, packets and accessories are imported and so stocks in Canada are usually depleted very quickly. We will try to fill all orders from stock, or from Canadian jobs but we would like your help. A Scott Catalog could be just what your gift should be. May we take this opportunity to thank you in advance for your help. The Whitehouse's of

in the Townships

By Charles Catchpaugh

Providing ski lessons for community children is a commendable effort, and we find more and more groups taking this task on. The last such venture I've heard of was that of the Mt. Sutton Ski Club last Saturday evening at the Horizon Hotel in Sutton. Jack Westover, president of the Sutton Ski Club was auctioneer, and proceeds will be used to provide instruction for the pupils of grades six and seven of the Sutton schools. Items auctioned were donated to the club. My only regret is that I wasn't present to hear Jack as a "super seller", as I'm sure he got a lot of kidding, but in all truth, our friend Mr. Westover is one of the hardest workers for the hundreds of us who enjoy skiing.

I'm sorry I couldn't mention this auction beforehand, but the notice of it only arrived after the weekend was history, thanks to improved mail service!

Every year old-timers in the ski industry turn important corners, and one of these is being registered this year by Eric's ski shop, which celebrates 20 years of continued service to regional skiers. Located now in the Wellington Hotel on Wellington South, Sherbrooke, this business has always carried the standards originally set for it by Eric Schiller, one of the most devoted men to skiing known in this part of Quebec.

Congratulations Mr. Schiller!

Why not mini-skirted ski sets?

Last winter I laughingly suggested to a Sherbrooke fashion house that they do the ridiculous, and put minis on the slopes for spring skiing. This was all in fun, and the idea never materialized, but later I gave the joke some serious thought. It occurred to me, that most slacks worn by women skiers are barely more than leotards, as they usually fit skin tight, and what's left for the imagination has few fringes. Why then, couldn't a stylist take an insulated pair of leotards, add a mini skirt and come up with a new ski fashion that might be a hit, and cover some of the bulges that make some of today's slacks shocking or delightful, depending on watcher or wearer. I'm still laughing, but wish some talented dressmaker would take me up on the gamble that such a creation could set a new fashion pace.

Do I hear offers?

Tomorrow evening Jean Lessard, who operates the ski shop at Mt. Sutton, will stage a fashion show for his centre's club, beginning at 8:30 p.m. The program will have five professional models from Montreal displaying the latest in skiwear, besides some of the new equipment that will be making a debut on the slopes this winter.

Besides providing a good evening's entertainment, this show will be a great financial boost to the Sutton Ski Club.

Each year when the ski season opens, some poor soul has an accident, and the news media go wild, broadcasting the first ski accident of the winter, but hundreds of skiers like myself wonder why they make such a big thing of these events. We never hear of the first snow-mobiling mishap, the first swimming accident, the number one hunting casualty. Could it be that skiers have better protection provided by ski patrolers than do those in other sports, or is it the sadistic outlook some news hunters have for skiers? Granted, skiing is a risk sport, in fact it's one of the few so-called sports where the participant takes chances, and it's evident the public enjoys playing against the odds, but the publicity accidents gets, would almost tend to discourage skiers and would-be skiers from playing the game.

Prospects for this weekend are good. The weather man suggests the weather could stay cold, and there's a possibility of more snow.

The doctor shortage is now an emergency

By HEWARD GRAFFTEY

KIWANIS FARMERS' NIGHT — The Kiwanis Club of Waterloo was host to 17 farmers recently, at an evening sponsored by the Carnation Company in Waterloo, and organized by Dale Smyth, chairman of the Agricultural and Conservation committee. A film was shown on the Process of Evaporating Milk, and the speaker was Mr. Dahms, a farmer, who is associated with Macdonald College. A buffet lunch followed the evening's program. Shown above, left to right are: Malcolm Juby, representing the Carnation Company, Mr. Dahms, Dale

Smyth, and Fred Marsh, president of the Kiwanis club. As well as 17 Kiwanians who attended, two guests were there — Nelson Richards, formerly a member of the Waterloo Kiwanis Club, and T. Evans of Carnation. (Record photo: Marcel Cote)

Some days ago the federal government announced its policy on medicare, and last week 57 top men in every major area of medical science reported that Canada's medical research efforts are less than a roaring success. The two questions are inter-related.

The group of 57 proposed a well-planned and well-financed national program to improve the picture by 1973. Positive and far-reaching suggestions were put forward — involving governments, universities and health groups.

At first glance, it might seem only the quality and standard of medical services and care are affected by an under-financed and inadequately staffed research effort. Such is not the case.

Poor research certainly affects medical standards across the country. Yet equally significant, it accelerates the pace of the serious and growing doctor shortage already facing Canada.

For the past few years, Canada has been running out of doctors. Unless swift action is taken, the situation will become intolerable within two years.

This would be true even without the increased demands put on medical personnel which will come with the implementation of medicare.

Already, in smaller centres, the old "family doctor" who passes on is not being replaced. Emergencies become nightmares for many rural people as the nearest doctor is invariably found at a medical centre in a built-up area — perhaps 30 miles away.

In urban areas, "house calls" are becoming a thing of the past. If you are lucky enough to get an appointment, you can take your place in a crowded waiting room, eventually to be ushered into the office of a rushed and overworked physician.

A host of factors have been operating behind the scenes to lead up to this situation. Some critics have pointed to the closed-shop policies of the Canadian Medical Association which deny swift and proper accreditation of immigrant doctors. Others have found fault with restrictive admission practices of the university medical schools.

Glib criticisms and easy answers, however, will do little to solve a problem which is fundamental and which has been with us for some time.

In March of 1966 I placed on record in the House of Commons the fact that in 1965 hundreds of qualified applicants were turned down at our medical schools. Graduating from these schools in 1965 were approximately the same number of doctors that the schools had produced 10 years before. Not only were we producing the same number of doctors to service a much larger population — but 400 of the 1000 1965 medical graduates left the country.

Furthermore, I noted the situation no longer existed where many doctors were coming to Canada because of dissatisfaction with conditions (be they medical or political) in their own country.

The situation is the same today. Not only do we lack medical schools, but some of the existing schools, recently, have barely met proper accreditation standards. Today Canada ranks 20th in the world in its doctor-population ratio.

It was long before my 1966 speech, however, that I had become aware of the problem. In the early 1960s, as a backbencher in the Diefenbaker Government, I worked on a brief with Dr. Wilder Penfield of the Montreal Neurological Institute and arranged a meeting for him with the prime minister. The meeting was about the regular endorsement by government of medical research in general, and at his famous institute in particular.

Penfield pointed out that the M.N.I., like other institutions, was heavily endowed initially by prestigious American foundations, but that this was no longer enough. Meaningful research, he argued, could not be carried out on an ad hoc, year-by-year grant basis.

Then, as now, in the whole area of research — including industrial research as well as medical and military work — our government spends only one dollar per year per scientist, compared with $5 in the United Kingdom and $10-15 in the United States.

What does research have to do with an imminent doctor shortage?

We have at present a little over 1,000 teachers in our medical schools, but if we want even to maintain present standards into the 1970s, we must have twice that number of teachers, and more schools.

Yet our medical teachers continue to move to the United States.

One major reason is that they are drawn southward by the important research being done in American medical schools. In 1965, the U.S. federal government provided assistance to medical research amounting to one billion, three hundred million dollars — which was about 90 per cent of the total. In the same year the comparable amount in Canada was only fifteen million dollars.

While our medical schools and the Canadian Medical Association should re-evaluate their policies, the federal government too should look again at its policy of cutting back on research, realizing that lead to costly dilemmas in a few years time.

The province of Ontario is now part-way through its five year plan, involving some three hundred million dollars, to enlarge existing medical schools and construct new ones. But these schools will be mere shells — unless there are teachers to staff them.

Excellence in research attracts teachers, and the difference between excellence and inadequacy in Canadian medical schools comes down, quite simply, to realistic federal expenditures. Something in the nature of a "Drive for Medical Manpower" should be launched by Ottawa.

Since the shortage of doctors is an emergency nearer at hand than many people seem to think, the federal government will have to act swiftly. It is logical. The same government that implemented medicare has a responsibility to see that we have in Canada the personnel to carry it out.

Cemetery company elects officers

SOUTH BOLTON — (Special) — A meeting of the South Bolton Cemetery Company was held on the evening of November 12, with seven members present, the small number due to the first storm of the season.

Officers were elected as follows: Morris Burbank, president; Mrs. Percy Bloomfield, secretary-treasurer and Willis Willey, vice-president. The directors are: Mr. and Mrs. Murray Cameron, Mrs. Hilda Hill, Burton Tracy, Albert Cameron and Russell Coates.

It was decided to have a bee in the spring of 1969 to do the necessary work in the cemetery.

Inquiries were made on permanent plantings of flowers on the graves and this was opposed by the members due to the additional labor involved in the upkeep of the grounds.

Appreciation was expressed to Howard Burbank who collected $164 in the area towards the upkeep of the cemetery. Sincere thanks are extended to the donors.

In lieu of flowers for the late William Plim a donation of $5 was made by the Royal Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary Branch 165, Sawyerville, Que., and of $3 from the L.O.B.A., Sawyerville, both donations gratefully appreciated.

A luncheon snack was served at the close of the meeting.

Esophagus Obstruction May be Vomiting Cause

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

(Last of Three Related Articles.)

Q—What would cause one to vomit when drinking water on an empty stomach? The water has been tested and is O.K.

A—This may be a sign of obstruction in the esophagus or the outlet of the stomach and should be checked by X rays. In a very sensitive person, it may occur when ice-cold water is downed very rapidly.

Q—In a recent column you recommended walnut juice for vitiligo. How much should I take at a time? Is vitiligo caused by a vitamin deficiency?

A—The cause is unknown and has no relation to vitamin deficiency. The walnut juice is used externally as a masking cosmetic.

Q—What are the usual symptoms of a klebsiella infection? Is it fatal? What is the treatment?

A—Klebsiella pneumoniae is a germ that is often found in the normal mouth, nose and digestive tract. Under certain conditions, this germ may cause pneumonia, sinusitis, peritonitis or infection of the bladder or middle ear. Acute klebsiella pneumonia may be rapidly fatal but more often the germ causes a chronic cough, weakness and anemia. When the disease is recognized and treated promptly with appropriate antibiotics it can be cured.

Q—I have warts on my neck. What causes them? Will they go away without treatment? Would sunbathing help?

A—Warts are caused by a virus but they are only mildly contagious. Often, after several years, they may disappear spontaneously. Whatever remedy was being used at the time may therefore be erroneously credited with the cure. Sunbathing will not help. Freezing with a cryoprobe that carries liquid nitrogen at a temperature of —321 degrees is a reliable method of cure that is rapidly gaining favor.

Q—Would a severe case of typhoid at the age of 14 leave any bad effects that would show up in later years?

A—Early diagnosis and prompt treatment usually prevents complications from this disease. In some victims joint pains or gall-bladder disease coming on several years after an attack may be a result of the infection.

Q—In a recent column you said a person who has glaucoma should not take Isordil. What adverse effects would it have?

A—This drug, given to relieve angina pectoris, causes an increase in the pressure inside the eyeball and thus aggravates glaucoma.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

South looked at the dummy and decided that luck was surely running against him. He had one consolation. Had he used Blackwood he would have found that his side held all the aces and kings and might have gone all they way to seven.

Due to the fact that West held the remaining hearts and East the diamonds, there was no way for the player who won that red suit trick to lead the other red suit. He would have to lead either a third club or a fourth card in his own long red suit. Either way South would be able to ruff in one hand and discard his remaining red suit loser from the other.

This result would come from good luck. On the other hand South was certainly unlucky to find North with exactly the same number of cards in each suit that he himself held. Put a third club in the North hand and the slam would be a spread.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

George Coffin lists today's hand under "Q for Quandy." He points out that once in awhile you will be faced with a pure guess.

He doesn't show the East and West hands as we do, but you get to three no-trump and the queen of hearts is opened. You win the heart lead in dummy, cash the ace and king of diamonds and lead a spade toward your king-jack-10.

It was too much to expect that East and West could possibly go wrong in discarding on the five rounds of trumps. However, there was a way to make the contract.

South should have drawn two, three or four rounds of

If you choose the king play and it works, you will make 10 tricks. If you choose the jack or 10 play and it forces the ace, you will make 11 tricks. Thus, when you play low you are giving yourself a chance for an extra trick. One extra trick doesn't mean too much at the time but over the years extra tricks mount up.

Then, there is another reason for playing low here. Some bad players hate to hold back an ace and there is a chance that if East did hold the ace he would have played it. On the other hand no one would go up with his queen if he did not have to.

This hand also brings up an interesting point in play. Some years ago some nameless player invented the "queen over the jack" theory. The idea is that due to imperfect shuffles, signs of the zodiac or something, the queen is more likely to be back of the jack than in front of it.

There is nothing to the theory but it has an advantage for the unlucky player. If he always plays the queen over the jack, he will be right half the time. If he tries to guess, his percentage of success may go down.

Bishop's University deserves credit for interest in ET

In the past few weeks this corner has been coming out with some generally low blows both against the students and the administration of Bishop's University. The purpose of this column is not to apologize, but to present a few of the constructive aspects of what is happening at Bish.

To begin with, the dramatics society has scored a North American first with the presentation of The Horse by the great European playwright Julius Hay.

The production, directed admirably by Professor David Rittenhouse, also began a new tradition in that it was the first fall major play at Bishop's. It was a success both in the establishment of the new tradition and in the introduction of Hay to a North American audience.

Credit is due to everyone who was associated with the production and as well as the acting of the play. It demonstrated the strong interest of Bishop's students in dramatics and generally enhanced the theatrical tradition of the university in general.

The Social Service Committee of Bishop's is also making a contribution to the townships in its own right.

It began from a core of interested people on campus and has developed to the stage where Bishop's students are giving of their own time to take weekly trips to elementary schools all over the ET to assist teachers as well as giving students a new perspective on school life.

The women's society, which over the years has been playing a more and more active part in the life of the university, has branched out into a new field

The Red Cross, which is always in need of interested persons, found a great number at Bishop's last Wednesday when it sponsored a blood donor clinic which drew a great proportion of the student body to participate in a project for a worthwhile cause.

The Bishop's Gaiter hockey squad this year promises to provide unlimited entertainment for the area's sports fans with their high powered squad which promises to be a strong factor in the Ottawa St. Lawrence Athletic Association.

Local scoring stalwart Willie Mitchell and his productive partner Bill Murray have departed from the Massawippi scene, but the Gaiters this year still feature a strong array of talent led by Don Liesemer, a former Quebec senior league star and a number of local lights including Jeff Planche, Ronnie Desjardins and Dick Haffenden.

At this point, it is only fair to mention Mike Kelen's revamped New Democratic Party club.

While using the NDP label as a respectable front, Mike has in fact come up with a loose association of students who come out for discussion periods with comparatively off-beat speakers.

The group has so far touched the delicate subject of the Biafran crisis as well as the new left movement in the United States. Discussions have been fervent, people have become interested and a movement has been started which can only benefit the university and the community in the long run.

Above and beyond, the students at Bishop's have finally decided to involve themselves with the general student movement across the province by joining the Union Generale des Etudiants de Quebec.

Finally, after two years of complete isolation, Bishop's students will be able to make their voices heard on a provincial level and they will be (if they so choose) a part of the educational revolution which is going on at the present time.

HIGH Times

HIGH TIMES CORRESPONDENT Edith Bailey from Bury High announces that a new skating rink is being built at the school. Students are also in the midst of preparations for Christmas exams which begin Nov. 25.

Congratulations go to Jean Murray, Robert Bake and Danny Waldron on writing the best essays in the Remembrance Day contest. Danny Waldron's essay was chosen as the best of all and he read it at the Remembrance Day service. The Country Cousins supplied music for the barn dance sponsored by the Red Cross which was held November 1.

Mike Noiseux, of the soon to be established Mother Blues Raps coffee house in Magog, has sent out a plea for any "old furniture that people want to get rid of," coupled with a call for financial donations.

Mr. Noiseux says the Mother Blues will be a non-profit club "devoted to producing good music in the area and where no alcohol beverages will be sold."

He says the age limit will be 16-years-old. There will be tables for those who want to sit and just dig the music, and there will also be a dance floor for those who want to groove.

Some of the performers to be featured at the Mother Blues Raps includes: The Penny Lang Trio, Harrison Tabb and The Body of Soul, and The Albert Failey Blues Band and Generation.

Mr. Noiseux says the coffee house will open, "in a few weeks."

Anyone who wants to pitch in and help make the Mother

Blues Raps a success can contact Mr. Noiseux at: Gordon's Newsstand, 423 Main Street West, Magog, Quebec. Mr. Noiseux may also be reached at 843-9047.

Brenda Jewett, a grade eight student at Mansonville Intermediate high school reports that last week was a busy one for all students.

Brenda says the students made murals, masks, and cardboard construction which were exhibited Saturday, November 10.

The students earned "a satisfactory amount of money from this exhibit, and the parents and friends enjoyed seeing the work."

The grade eight class travelled to Montreal Friday, November 15, to see the production of Romeo and Juliet.

Debra Heath, president of the student council, Council Secretary Nancy Knowlton, and Staff Advisor Miss Norma McLean, attended a student council provincial conference in Noranda, Quebec, from November 14 to 17.

Mrs. Ray W. Gardner relayed the week's news for Brenda.

Rev. Russell Horsburgh speaks at Rock Island

ROCK ISLAND — (Special) — Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh, of Toronto, Ont., Executive Director and co-founder of Youth Anonymous, will visit and speak Nov. 27 at the Youth Center in Rock Island at 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Horsburgh will also be entertained at Stanstead College for dinner at 6 p.m. and afterward will speak to the students and staff in Pierce

Hall. Mr. Horsburgh has been associated with youth work the past few years, during which time he has not had smooth sailing. It is hoped that as many youth and as many persons as are interested in youth will make a very special effort to come to the Youth Center to attend and hear this message of Mr. Horsburgh.

Former young speed freak receives help from hippy haven

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lithe, strikingly attractive blonde named Sue edged shyly into the upstairs office of Cool-Aid, Vancouver's independent hippie welfare agency.

A bearded young Cool-Aid staffer jumped up from behind his cluttered desk and threw his arms around her, planting a kiss on her cheek.

"You made it," he smiled. "How are you? How do you feel?"

"Fine," answered Sue, her voice barely above a whisper as her eyes darted around the room from one face to another. "I'm okay."

She had just taken her first bus ride in months—from downtown Vancouver to the ramshackle, unpainted old home in the heart of the Kitsilano hippie district that houses Cool-Aid headquarters.

When the Cool-Aid staffer first encountered her, she was suffering from what was later diagnosed as acute schizophrenia complicated by drugs—methedrine, LSD, hashish.

Before that she had spent a year in a mental hospital after running away from home. At 18, Sue had experienced more sorrow than most people face in a lifetime.

INSTILLED NEW HOPE
Cool-Aid steered her to a psychiatrist after convincing her there was still hope, that life doesn't really come through the gleaming tip of a hypodermic syringe.

The psychiatrist, who donated his time for Sue's case to Cool-Aid, drew her slowly out of a deep withdrawn depression. And now she seems headed in the right direction.

The bus ride was her biggest victory to date—three months earlier she wouldn't have made it.

"We're damned proud of her," said Cool-Aid leader Ray Chouinard, 21. "It took her months to get to the point where she could ride a bus—she was scared, she was terrified."

Sue turned to Cool-Aid because she couldn't cope with the services offered by the "straight society." There were too many forms to fill out, too many police and she claimed her previous experiences with conventional welfare agencies were impersonal and degrading.

Cool-Aid, said Mr. Chouinard, did what it could for Sue with no police involvement and no red tape. They got her a place to stay, a doctor to see.

SOCIAL EXPERIMENT
And they'll get her a job when she's ready for one, if they can. In the meantime, Sue is welcome to use all the facilities of Cool-Aid for as long as she wants, with no strings attached.

Mr. Chouinard, a husky six feet, five inches, said Sue is just one of hundreds of cases his 18-member staff handled this year.

Cool-Aid, also known as the Greater Vancouver Youth Communications Centre Society, was launched in October, 1967, from a telephone booth at the Retinal Circus, a West End discotheque.

Mr. Chouinard sees Cool-Aid as an extremely important social experiment, a kind of grassroots guerrilla welfare operation. He says it shows what a subculture or minority group can do for itself when ignored or oppressed by big government.

He said the going was tough during the first few months. There were problems with the police, battles with city hall and many difficulties with provincial and city welfare agencies.

"But we had something that none of the other agencies had," said Mr. Chouinard. "Cool-Aid came from within the hip community and the kids trust us."

FIND RUNAWAYS
Runaway children constitute the main portion of Cool-Aid's stock in trade. The cracked plaster walls of the headquarters office are covered with long blue missing-persons sheets giving descriptions of young people missing from homes as far away as California and Newfoundland.

Instead of raiding Cool-Aid, policemen from throughout British Columbia now check in regularly by telephone or stop at the office to see if children reported missing have surfaced in the Kitsilano district.

The people who work for Cool-Aid know everybody there is to know in the hippie community. And it doesn't take them long to locate teenagers who have left home if they're in Vancouver.

The usual procedure is to have a long talk with the runaway, then straighten things out with police and parents if possible or refer him to another agency.

About 80 per cent of the kids Cool-Aid locates head for home; less than 20 per cent of them return to the streets again.

Cool-Aid also offers free medical services to the estimated 20,000 young people forming the city's hippie subculture. Dozens of doctors, dentists, psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers have offered their services free to Cool-Aid.

NEVER CLOSES
Cool-Aid, said Mr. Chouinard, is "always on the brink of financial disaster." Donations trickle in. The Rotary Club recently gave them a $5,000 grant which went to buy the house, and churches occasionally help out financially.

Cool-Aid is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"I get up at 9:30 or 10 a.m. and start handling calls," Mr. Chouinard said. "I hardly ever get to bed before two in the morning. It's tough, but it's worth it in terms of the contribution we feel we're making."

Robert Bentley, supervisor of the Children's Aid Society youth division, said he is "very pleased with the way we and Cool-Aid have worked together."

Peter Fleming, a John Howard Society counsellor, said Cool-Aid is doing "a very important job."

"They are able to communicate with the increasing problem of runaway kids and drugs in a way we are not able to."

Youth Club

SUTTON — The Sutton Youth Club have moved into their newly remodelled quarters over the Sutton Town Hall.

These youths are collecting used toys to be repaired which will be given to needy children for Christmas. Anyone having toys, that they would like to give, please contact Rev. K. A. Thomson and they will be picked up. Also if any one has a used pool table in fairly good condition for sale, please notify some of the members or Rev. Thomson.

At the regular meeting on Nov. 14, one dozen Hymn books with large print were voted to be purchased, and will be given to the Edith Kathan Home at West Brome.

Come along young folks on Thursday evenings and join the Youth Club at their new quarters. You will enjoy a few hours of fun.

GENERAL NOTES

Grades 9, 10 and 11 of Sutton High School enjoyed a trip to Montreal, Nov. 15, where they took in the show of Romeo and Juliet.

St. Leon parish Youth Centre

MELBOURNE — The regular meeting of the Melbourne Township Youth Centre executive was held on Nov. 5 with Rev. J. VanderWal presiding.

The social committee reported that the third amateur photography class had been held and another was planned. Movies are planned and a Christmas party is to take place on Saturday, Dec. 7.

A report on the library was read. The library has been open every Thursday under the care of Barbara Boisvert, Carole Parent and Patty Hughes. Mrs. F. Converse thanked the three girls for their faithful work. Mrs. Converse stated that there was a special need for children's books. Twenty-five dollars was voted to buy books.

Mr. VanderWal welcomed Ben Hannan, executive director of the YM-YWCA in Sherbrooke. Discussions, directed by Mr. Hannan, were held on problems encountered in running a Youth Centre. The executive, at the invitation of Mr. Hannan, continues the discussions on Nov. 13 at the YM-YWCA in Sherbrooke.

RAMSHACKLE HEADQUARTERS—Cool-Aid, Vancouver's independent hippie welfare agency, operates from this battered house in the city's hippie district. Cool-Aid, also known as the Greater Van-cover Youth Communications Centre Society, was launched in 1967 and specializes in locating young people who have run away from home. Ray Chouinard, 21, who heads the agency sees Cool-Aid as an important social experiment. He says it shows what a subculture or minority group can do for itself when ignored or oppressed by big government. (CP Photo)

Hatley Centre hold Que. W.I.

NORTH HATLEY — The November meeting of the Hatley Centre branch of Quebec's Women's Institutes was held in the Community Hall on Nov. 5. Sixteen members responded to the roll call with a gift for a child at the Dixville Home. Three pairs of gloves for the same purpose were donated by a friend.

Following the opening exercises, the president, Mrs. A. Marlow, conducted the business meeting. The correspondence contained an invitation from the Ascot W.I., to attend their meeting to be held in the Lennoxville Town Hall, Nov. 20.

In the conveners' reports, Mrs. L. Naevé submitted a request from the girls of the High School, for sponsorship of a Home Economics class they are organizing. The branch agreed to sponsor this group providing the class made the necessary arrangements with the Community Club.

The sunshine committee reported sending a basket of fruits and juices to Mrs. Naevé who was ill, and she expressed her thanks.

Mrs. A. Cheal will serve as representative to the Community Club. It was voted that in lieu of the prizes usually given to grades one through seven at the local school, a book or books be donated to the school library. Mrs. Naevé agreed to be in charge. Mrs. Marlow reported on the success of a recently held card party, and thanked all the members who participated.

Mrs. R. McLellan, as chairman of the committee that organized the UNICEF Halloween collection and party, gave a full report. Children from both the Catholic and Protestant schools canvassed the community, and with the donations received from local organizations and individuals, after expenses, $153.91 was cleared to forward to UNICEF headquarters. Following their canvass, the children met at the school and had a party, enjoying games and refreshments. Rev. Digby Buxton, Mrs. K. Price and Mrs. V. Wilson served as judges of the children's costumes. Prizes were awarded to: in the pre-school group, Peter Taylor, Heather Little, and for the funniest costume, Jeffrey McVittie. In grades one and two, Eric Longenecker and Allison Bennett were the prize winners. In grades three and four the prize winners were Steven Piercy and Amanda Cunningham. In grade 5, 6 and 7, Hugh Notman and Lisa Sharman were the winners. Her report was discussed briefly, and it was agreed that if the W.I. is to be responsible for the organization of this event another year, they will make plans earlier.

The program for the meeting was in charge of the convener of citizenship, Mrs. A. Cheal, who conducted a scrambled word quiz about well-known Canadian Women. Mrs. G. E. Bennett was the winner. Mrs. W. Shaw conducted an entertaining and profitable penny sale. Each member had contributed two new items for the sale.

It was voted that the subscription to the magazine of C.A.C. be renewed, and that the annual fee to the Q.W.I. Service Fund be paid. It was decided to purchase a lock for the cupboard at the Community Hall, and to ask Mr. W. Shaw to be responsible for purchasing the lock and putting it on the door. A donation was received from a member.

It was announced that the Christmas meeting will be held at the Community Hall, with an exchange of gifts among the members. Mrs. W. Shaw, Mrs. Hobbs and Mrs. H. Parsons will be hostesses.

Following adjournment, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. A. Thwaites and Mrs. P. Wilson.

THE BORN LOSER

Country notebook

By WALKER RILEY

Macdonald College

At this moment, it looks as if this first snow has come to stay. If it has, our crops and our plants were caught unprepared, too. Leaves are still green on some of the maples and willows. Our neighbour has roses blooming, and ripe raspberries. The grass and clovers are still lush and green under the snow. They have had no chance to harden off.

Winter hardness in plants is a hard thing to pin down. Why some plants survive, and why they survive some years and not others, may be a combination of many factors, or it may be the result of one particular condition.

According to Dale Smith, at the University of Wisconsin, who specializes in these things, plant losses in the winter are usually the result of temperature working with free water in or on the soil, or in the plant itself.

The most obvious cause is killing by simple low temperatures. The crowns and the roots of the most winter-hardy varieties cannot withstand prolonged exposure to temperatures as low as 5 degrees F to 15 degrees F without injury. Their only chance of survival is insulation from lethal air temperatures. The soil has insulation value, and the air itself is one of the best insulators. Snow with all its little dead-air spaces, trapped in a vegetable cover, is a very effective insulator for the soil and the plants.

Ice, on the other hand is a poor insulator. The change in temperature in ice is 90 times more rapid than in air, and four times more rapid than in water. Deep soil freezing can be expected when ice formation is followed by sub-zero temperatures.

Alternate freezing and thawing can heave plants from the soil. Root breakage is not a serious factor; the damage is done by exposing the crown and roots to freezing and drying. Ice crystals may form around the crown and force the roots out of the ground, or a whole layer of soil may be heaved up by a sudden hard freeze.

Good surface drainage, some sort of surface insulation, and the use of fibrous-rooted grasses all help to reduce the risk of loss from heaving.

Ice sheets may smother plants, as well as causing low temperature injury. Plants cannot survive many days encased in ice; injury is proportional to the length of time under ice. Anything that will keep the ice from making direct contact with the soil or plant, like stubble will help reduce the injury. On the other hand, spreading manure on the snow often creates an ice sheet.

If plants go into the winter in a state of growth, without hardening off, winter killing is more likely. Prolonged spells of mild weather during winter can also start plants growing again, and lose hardness. Late spring frosts can catch plants after the hardiness period is finished. In some years, warm drying winds can cause early spring damage.

Moisture content of the soil affects soil temperatures and therefore survival. But it is not a simple relationship. On one hand, dry soil has a greater insulating value, but on the other hand, soil moisture carries a lot of latent heat.

Fertility of the soil has a very marked effect on plant survival. Potassium and phosphorus increase hardness, while high nitrogen, conditions reduce hardness. Lime correcting soil acidity conditions, also plays a vital part.

Cultural practices can also result in winter killing of plants. Seeding certain species late in the fall does not permit proper establishment before winter. Cutting or grazing during the period in the fall when root reserves are being built up causes serious damage. Too frequent grazing or cutting during the summer depletes root reserves.

Some species and varieties are more hardy than others; many stands have been lost using non-adapted varieties. Winter also takes its toll of the older plants.

I suppose it is a sign of a warped mind. I find a perverse delight watching a big city founder in the first snow of the winter. Six inches of snow falls, and it takes on the dimensions of a national emergency. The newspapers howl, "Worst traffic jam in history in unexpected storm."

Street maintenance departments go into a flat spin; motorists line up at service stations for snow tires; nine out of ten people remember they threw their overboots into the ash can last April. It could well be the first time in living memory that snow has fallen.

Maybe it is just nostalgia for the "good old days". But I remember the winter's snow as part of the natural course of events. Even if we didn't always welcome the first fall, we expected it, and we were prepared for it. If a three-day storm blew, we put an extra block in the fire, and pulled the chairs a little closer. We built kitchen subboards or cleaned out calf pens. And we didn't panic.

If the snow was too deep, we went over top of it. Sooner or later, we knew the warm spring sun would shine and the snow would go without help from us. It never occurred to us to shovel all the snow off our domain, pile it onto trucks, dump it in the river, and pretend it was summer all winter.

But come to think of it, the farm is not immune to the winter's storms now, either. The same relentless clock ticks away in town and in the country. Hydro wires look awfully frail in a storm. Milk trucks expect a bare road. Next August's milk cheque will be smaller if the A.I. technician can't get through. The school bus has to get home. And it is a long haul between the oil well in Alberta and our furnace.

Come to think of it, too, mine could have been one of the cars stuck on the Autoroute, or caught for the night on Mercier bridge. And my overboots went into the ash can last April, too.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Winter can wreak havoc with your shrubbery

By MR. FIX

Trees and shrubs around your house need special protection if they are to survive a severe winter. Aside from the sentiment involved, they represent a real investment and should be protected from damage.

Materials needed are not difficult to obtain and many are right at hand. Rope, wire, burlap, hardware cloth, stakes, piles of leaves, even sawdust are among the materials you will find useful. You will not need all of them, perhaps not many of them at all and it is likely that you will find ways to improvise.

Know what you are trying to prevent and you will be able to figure out the best ways to proceed.

At the ground level, frost-heaving will cause roots near the surface to be exposed. The subsequent exposure can be killing.

A little higher up, starving rodents will chew off the bark, nibble on buds on the ends of branches.

Over-all wind damage can result due not only to the severity of the wind but the drying effect as well. On the protected side of the house the plant can suffer from sunburn even though it is winter. The sun may start the sap rising and some real cold might the new sap will expand when it freezes, causing plant cells to burst.

Know what you are trying to prevent.

Before doing anything else make certain that plants are well-watered. Keep watering until the ground starts to freeze. Keep the earth moist in spite of freezing temperatures by mulching which provides insulation. Leaves make an excellent mulch. Chop them first with your lawn mower so that they don't mat down too heavily.

Sawdust, wood shavings, grass clippings, chopped corn cobs, peat moss—all make good mulching materials. Mix them if you don't have enough of one. Pile several inches deep and two or three feet out from the trunk.

To prevent small, hungry animals from gnawing on tender trees and shrubs, use wire screen (the coarse hardware cloth variety) as a shield. Make a cylinder of the material, keeping it several inches away from the trunk. Bury the lower end several inches into the ground so that animals cannot burrow under it. When planning the height, try to remember how high snow will drift in your area. A small animal can sit on top of drifts.

Young trees can be wrapped in burlap part way up the trunk, both as protection against animals and against wind damage.

Make a windbreak (which will also keep out some of the sun) out of lengths of snow fence or pieces of burlap tacked to posts driven into the ground. This also will protect the plants against drifting snow.

The multiple stems of some trees, such as Chinese arborvitae and some junipers, should be tied together with soft string or cloth so that snow will not spread them apart. Wide-spreading evergreens (yews and spruce) should be propped up with scrap lumber in the event of a heavy snow. Shake off excess snow as soon as possible.

Newly planted trees should be heavily watered, mulched, staked and held in place with a loop of wire. Cover the wire with a piece of hose to protect the tree.

Social notes from Cowansville

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Ball, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. R. Loader called on Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pettus, Mr. Karl A. Mizener, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bates, Knowlton.

Sagueneens down Beavers 4-3, marks locals 13th loss of season

CLINE SCORES — Bruce Cline, (16), playing coach of the Sherbrooke Beavers, is seen after he fired the puck into the lower corner of the net to tie the game 3-3. On the right are two Chicoutimi players watching Claude Cyr trying to make the save. Chicoutimi finally won the game 4-3 last night in the closing seconds of the final frame. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Chicoutimi Sagueneens scored with 37 seconds left in the third period to edge the Sherbrooke Beavers 4-3 before 2,500 fans at the Sports Palace last night in a regular game of the Provincial Senior Hockey League.

Ottawa's Eastern Canada Nationals handed the league-leading St. Hyacinthe Gauls another defeat last night, downing the Gauls 5-4 in St. Hyacinthe. In Granby, Bob Bedard came through with another standout performance scoring three goals and leading the Vics to a 10-3 romp over the Victoriaville Tigers.

Jacques Begin's blueline drive at the 19:23 mark of the third period, which eluded Beavers' goaltender Jacques Monette, resulted in Sherbrooke's 13th defeat of the season in 17 outings. Last night's loss was Sherbrooke's seventh defeat this season by a one-goal margin. Sherbrooke has yet to beat Phil Watson's Sags in four meetings so far this season.

The first period opened slow with the Beavers unable to muster much of an attack. The pace quickened in the second period and the final 20 minutes was by far the most interesting part of the encounter.

period Gagnon allowed three goals and turned aside 10 shots. Chicoutimi's third goal of the period irritated an irate crowd even more than the poor showing of the Beavers up to that were Sweeney and Sara-Bournet. First period goals for Chicoutimi were scored by Munger, Morrisette and Gravel. Sherbrooke's efforts finally paid off at the 7:30 mark of the final frame when Cline, on passes from Sweeney and Robidas, evaded the count 3-3. Fired up, the Beavers attempted to move ahead. Time after time Claude Cyr was Johnny on the spot, though, stopping the Beavers cold.

A bench penalty to the Beavers for having too many players on the ice proved fatal as Chicoutimi beat Monette, winning the game 4-3. Cyr, in the Sags' net, stopped a total of 24 shots in the game while the duo of Gagnon and Monette turned aside 25 drives.

Top men for the Beavers offensively were Normand Sara-Bournet with a goal and an assist while newcomer, Bill Sweeney also tallied once and passed for another goal. Coach Bruce Cline got into the scoring melee, beating Cyr once and assisting on Sweeney's goal. Robidas and Lagueux also picked up assists.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

The nonchalance of the Beavers in the first period showed on the scoreboard as the Sags moved to a 3-0 lead before the Beavers realized they were in a hockey game.

Gagnon was removed after the first 20 minutes in favor of Jacques Monette. In the first point. The goal was scored into an empty net as Langlois and Gagnon lay sprawled on the ice thinking they had covered the puck.

Down three goals the Beavers went on the attack in the second period, scoring two goals. Sherbrooke goalkeepers

The Gumper blanks Flyers as Habs slide into first

Remember Gump Worsley, that fat little guy who has made his living as a National Hockey League goaltender for so many years now?

Well despite his age and rotund physique, Worsley still is efficient enough to play goal for a team which now leads the Eastern Division.

The 39-year-old netminder picked up his first shutout this season and the 36th of his NHL career Thursday night to help Montreal Canadiens defeat Philadelphia Flyers 3-0.

The victory, watched by 11,269 fans at the Spectrum in Philadelphia, moved the Canadiens one point ahead of the runner-up New York Rangers in the East.

The shutout was especially gratifying to Worsley because Rogatien Vachon, younger and slimmer, has played more frequently than Worsley the last couple of years.

Some fans had even dismissed Worsley as a second-stringer, destined to play only if Vachon was injured or ailing.

In other NHL games Thursday, Boston Bruins moved back into third place in the Eastern Division with a 4-1 triumph against Los Angeles Kings and Pittsburgh Penguins downed Oakland Seals 3-1.

SCORE FOR MONTREAL

The Canadiens, defending Stanley Cup champions, received goals from Bobby Rousseau in the first period, John Ferguson in the second and Gilles Tremblay in the third.

Worsley kicked out 22 Philadelphia shots in recording his second victory in as many nights. He was in goal Wednesday when the Canadiens edged Detroit Red Wings 3-2.

The Canadiens held a definite advantage in play, firing 49 shots at Philadelphia goaltender Bernie Parent.

Jean Beliveau picked up one assist for the Canadiens to move into a second-place tie with Red Berenson of St. Louis Blues in the scoring race. Both have 26 points, six back of the Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

The Bruins moved one point ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs with their victory against Los Angeles in front of 14,618 Boston fans.

Fred Stanfield scored two goals for Boston and Eddie Shack and Phil Esposito added one each. Bill Flett scored the Los Angeles goal.

DOMINATE PLAY

The Bruins dominated play, outshooting the Kings 35-19. Los Angeles had only one shot on Boston goaltender Gerry Cheevers in the second period.

The Kings took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Flett's goal, then the Bruins took over. The loss left Los Angeles in fourth place in the Western Division.

A crowd of only 3,056 at Pittsburgh witnessed an unusual sight—a Penguin victory.

Defence man Leo Boivin scored on a 60-footer at 5:58 of the second period to break a 1-1 tie and give the Penguins their third win in 17 attempts this season.

Despite the victory, the last-place Penguins trail fifth-place Oakland by three points in the Western Division.

Gene Ubriaco and Dunc McCallum scored the other Pittsburgh goals while Norm Ferguson tallied for the Seals.

There are no games scheduled tonight, but all 12 teams see action during the weekend.

Riders are favored in EFC final

TORONTO (CP) — What kind of a man does it take to tuck a football under his arm and run headlong into 12 tacklers?

"I think about hurting the first tackler that hits me," says Jim Copeland, Toronto Argonauts' kick-return specialist.

He is thinking about hurting as many Ottawa Rough Riders as possible Saturday when the Argonauts meet the Eastern Football Conference regular-season champions in the second of the two-game total-point final. Toronto won the opener here 13-11 Sunday.

The game is scheduled for 2 p.m. EST at Ottawa's Lansdowne Park, with the series winner representing the EFC against Calgary Stampeders, the Western Conference champions, in the Grey Cup here Nov. 30.

FEELS CHANCES GOOD

Copeland, 29, a 185-pound native of Windsor, Ont., lives in Bramalea, a Toronto suburb, and works for a television company. He feels the Argonauts have a better-than-average chance of upsetting Ottawa Saturday. Ottawa is favored by 10 points.

"I guess this club just woke up one day and realized what was ahead. Now they don't want to miss the Grey Cup. You know, I was thinking how great it would really be. Calgary hasn't been in the Canadian final for so long that their players don't know what it means."

"There must be a lot of players, who have been around the Canadian league for six or 10 years and not been to a Grey Cup. It would really be something if we both made it."

The last time Calgary made the Grey Cup was 1949 and Argos haven't been there since 1952.

Saturday's game will be televised nationally by the CBC.

Imlach bars Haggert from dressing room

TORONTO (CP) — Manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs has barred Bob Haggert from the team's dressing room apparently because of the former trainer's connection with the National Hockey League Players' Association.

Imlach refused to allow Haggert into the dressing room Wednesday night or into the Maple Leaf Gardens' press room.

Haggert was Imlach's trainer for eight years before quitting last July.

"Sure I'm disappointed," Haggert said Thursday. "But what really disturbs me is that Imlach did not have the guts to tell me himself. He had to use a 65-year-old man, Tommy Naylor, to inform me."

"This is what smells. He tells Tommy that he'd be fired if he was ever caught talking to me." Naylor, a long-time Maple Leaf trainer, phoned Haggert at home Tuesday evening to tell him of Imlach's instructions.

Als sell Nick Testa and four players to Eagles for draft choice and cash

TROIS-RIVIERES — Sherbrooke Alouettes Baseball Club traded playing-coach Nick Testa and four other players to the newly formed Eagles of Trois-Rivieres of the Provincial Baseball League.

This deal caught the other six clubs in the Ellivson circuit off guard. Each time it came to the Eagles to pick a player from Sherbrooke they passed. After the second trip around they announced they had completed a deal with the Alouettes and named the players secured.

Players protected by the Alouettes were: Erasmo Felipe, Juan Sabater, Jim Ridley, Willie Madison, Gilles St. Onge, Pedro Sierra, Carmen Lemma, Andy Occhionero and Alfred Gendreau, a new hurler to join the Als.

On their first trip the Eagles picked up Frank Pignataro from Drummondville; Al Pietrewicz from Granby; Juan Mermon from Lachine; Walter Witowski, Plessisville; Ray Korn, Quebec; and Kenny Kaiser from the Thetford Miners.

In their second pickings they took Bill Borelli from Drummondville, Anselmo Correa from Granby; Caledonia Coss, Lachine; Claude-Denis Fortier, Plessisville; Don Manning, Quebec; while Thetford lost Carlos Thorne.

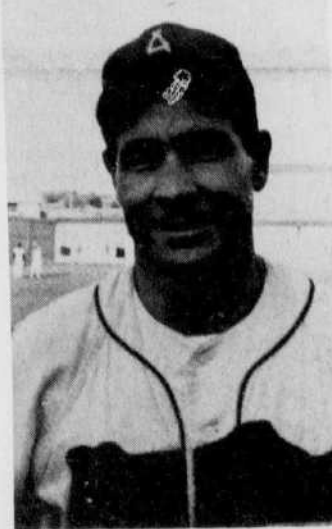

Portland, Maine—Johnny Bean, 131, New York, outpointed Irish Beau Jaynes, 132, Lowell, Mass., 10.

Los Angeles—Rafael Herrera, 119, Mexico City, outpointed Lemmy Bruce, 119, Los Angeles, 10.

Hunting and fishing in the E.T.

By NORM NICHOLL

What might be termed the end of the hunting season has passed, with the exception of rabbit and the balance of the migratory hunting which will close December 15th.

Once again it is time for hunters and government officials to weigh the total kills and the number of hunting licenses sold, plus a tabulation of hunting fatalities that took place during the past hunting season.

Before going into this portion it might be time to look at what will probably be the final total deer kill for the eleven districts and the research station at Labelle.

	Bucks	Does	Fawns	Total
Labelle (Registration and research station)	117	124	123	364
Chicoutimi	5	4	3	12
Gaspé	261	236	61	558
Hull	682	549	136	1,367
Montreal	204	173	75	452
Quebec	302	269	128	699
Rimouski	470	362	139	971
Sept-Îles	2	2	0	4
Sherbrooke	601	483	369	1,453
Temiscamingue	3	3	1	7
Trois Rivières	18	13	1	32
Total	2,548	2,094	913	5,555

(45.9%) (37.7%) (16.4%) (1.0%)
Total kill plus Labelle: 2,665 2,218 1,036 5,919

Now if we were to add another 10% to the above figure we might be able to project the kill at being near 6,500. I have used this only to take care of poaching (jacking) and deer shot and not found.

Even by this method I am sorry to have to write that the deer kill would still be below the 1967 figure kill of 6,876. In comparing figures from 1968 to this past season the peak kill was obtained in 1962 when 16,185 deer were taken.

The time has come not only for biological studies which are underway, but, for positive action in the field of poaching deer and moose, and, in fact all game.

There have been groups working on changing the statutes with this in mind. Today there seems to be an emphasis on forming commissions to study this or that and then another formed to study the report of the previous committee, each having to investigate the other. What's happening in the interim period? NOTHING.

For instance the biologists who are studying deer in the area north of Montreal. Are they not using some of the material used by their predecessors? Surely there can't be too much difference in deer habits from one year to another. Yet this study is slated to take at least two years. What happens in the meanwhile?

The closing of one district for hunting to rebuild the deer herds is not feasible. Hunters merely move their activities to another area, concentrating more hunting pressure on the other area.

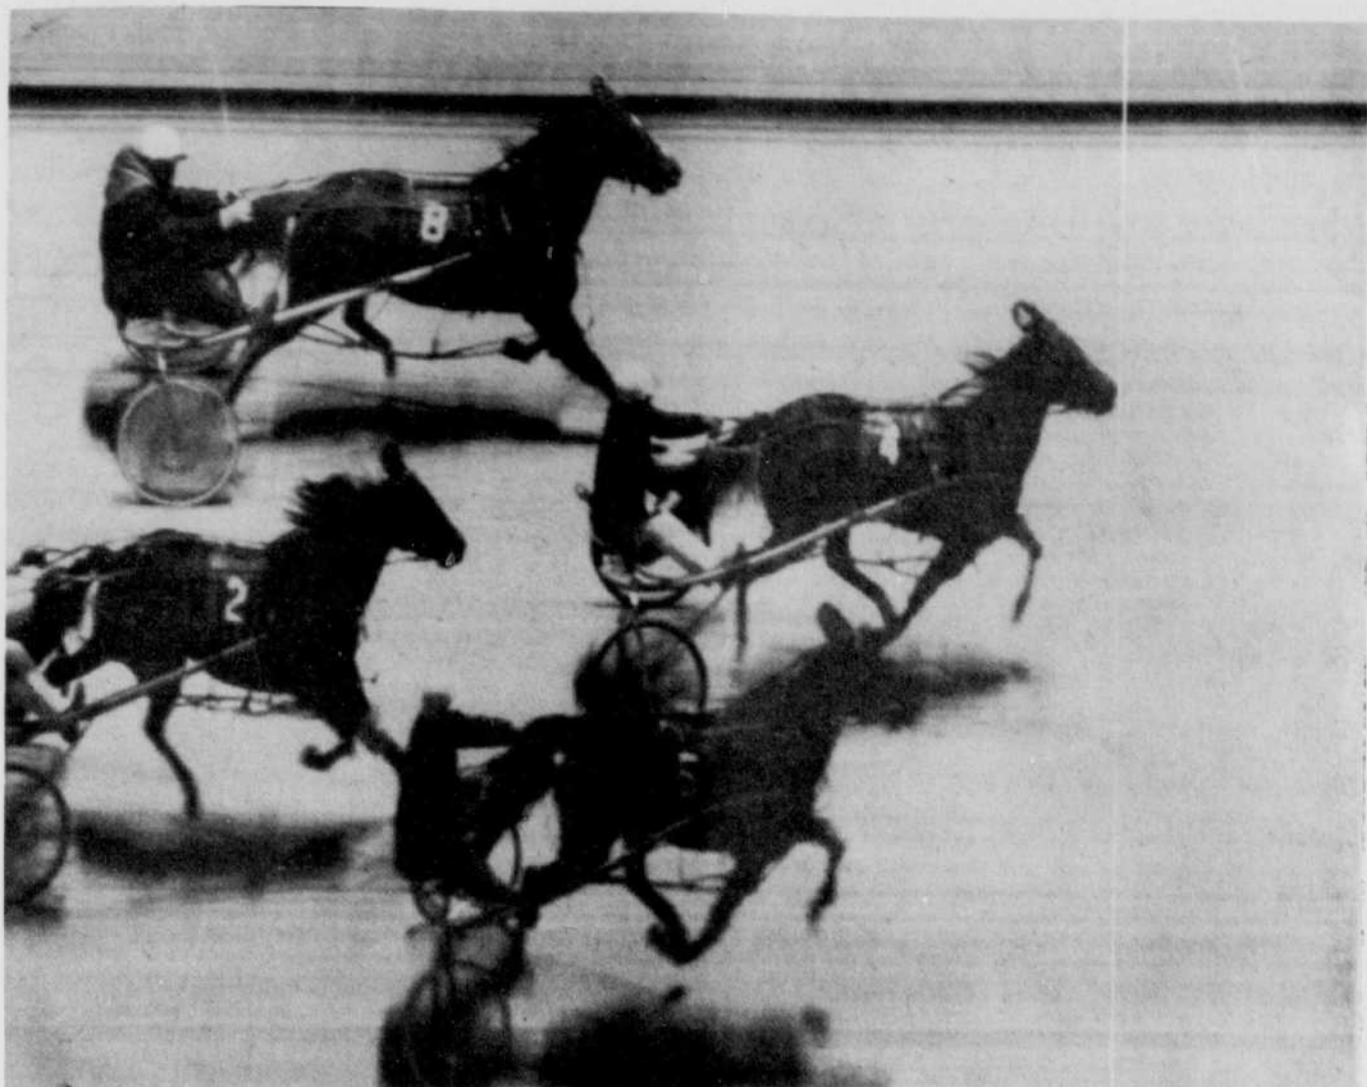

As for poaching of game, reports from hunters who were moose hunting tell of other hunters saying that in order to get a moose the only time to hunt is at night. Jackers of deer laugh at the fines levied by the laws.

One thing for sure any game must be able to find forage to live on during the critical winter months. The commercial value of cedar has during the past few years increased. Therefore, forage in winter yards is reduced causing hardship if the winter is hard on the animals. The time has come for the government, whether it be the Lands and Forests or the F & G branch, to find some way of encouraging the proper cutting to ensure proper forage for the winter months.

These are only some of the questions which I hope will be discussed at the upcoming Quebec Wildlife Conference when the panel discusses the future of deer in Quebec.

On December 1st, Memphremagog Conservation Fishing Club Inc. will be holding their annual Oyster Supper at the Union Hotel, Magog, commencing at 6:30 p.m. While oysters in all forms will be featured there will also be ham and cheeses served at the buffet supper. Tickets can be purchased now from Club directors or at the door.

Lake Massawippi F & G Protection Club Inc., will be holding a general meeting this coming Wednesday evening at the Connaught Inn, North Hatley commencing at 8 p.m. sharp.

DRIVING FINISH — Claude Grenier is seen teaming Armand Aubin's Lou Adio under the wire to cap the main dash on Thursday's card at the Sherbrooke Race Track. Buster Huckins with Ozark Plutoocrat, (5), finished second with Sam

Fabi close with Shawnee Wann, (8), and Borderview Fonda, owned by the Bellevue Stables of Quebec, a tight fourth. The next card at the local oval will take place Sunday afternoon. (Record photo: Ron Jenne)

Lou Adio wins main dash last night, balanced card Sunday

A field of eight pacers will go to the gate in the main dash on Sunday's card at the local oval to battle it out for the major share of the $325 purse. Armand Lessard, racing secretary, has lined up a field of 80 horses to compete on Sunday's card.

Three trots are on the card while the rest of the seven dashes are all pacing events. In the big trot, which is slated as the eighth on the card, eight of the best steppers at the track will clash.

Buster Huckins and his Rebel Land Mite has drawn the pole position which should give him a slight edge on the field. Mark Tona is next with Express B, Tom Lucky, Melody Smoky, Dolly's Champ, Beatle Mir and Gordon Ibafe completing the field.

Ralph Babbin with Gordon Ibafe should be a heavy favorite despite his trailer position in the field. In his last start he emerged the winner over the field. He beat out Claude Grenier with Beatle Mir a photo-finish but this time he seems to have a little more competition.

J. P. Theroux with Dolly's Champ and D. Normandin with Express B will be making their initial start at the local oval and are unknown but could provide plenty of opposition. Guy Jutras will be teaming Melody Smoky and he must be given plenty of consideration.

Florent St. Denis will be team Go Cash and could be right in the thick of things in the big trot. Buster Huckins with Jon Scott is another good choice especially after finishing first last Sunday in 2:13.4. If the track is in good shape it could be a tough fight the whole way.

Guy Jutras is still the top reinsman at the local oval with his healthy average of 358 for his 102 starts this season. Buster Huckins is in second spot with 320 while Fern Desrochers follows with 318.

Gilles Jutras and Robert Jutras are staging a close battle for fourth spot in the standing with only a fraction of a percentage point separating the two, .303 to .302. That completes the top five at the track.

Robert Jutras has started the most times this season going to the gate 334 times. Gilles Jutras follows with 324 while after that it drops to Clement Chabot with 279. All the rest of the Big Ten drop down to 174 for Wendle Mosher, who has an average of .260.

REMEMBER WHEN
The National Hockey League began its first day of operation 51 years ago today—in 1917—after a meeting in Montreal. Frank Calder was president and secretary-treasurer.

Chuckwagons and saddles already on way to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — There were square dances, gaudy cowboy shirts, Indians, spurs, horses and hot flapjacks served from chuckwagons on Toronto streets 20 years ago.

On Nov. 26, 1948, 300 football fans arrived from Calgary to support their Stampede in the Grey Cup game the next day to decide the Canadian football championship.

The Alberta foothills contingent, bursting with pride on Calgary's first trip to the Grey Cup contest, rode a special train 2,500 miles—three days and two nights—to do it.

The western blow-out, which reached a frenzy when the Stampede's upset Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7, changed the Grey Cup picture forever. A swinging party had been added as an accessory to a football game.

The discreet confines of the Royal York Hotel, traditional headquarters for Grey Cup Week festivities, reverberated to the sound of western music and the clang of cowbells while Toronto girls were lassoed by whooping cowhands.

In a post-game celebration, Calgary fans set up the goal posts in the Royal York lobby, which was so crowded that two guitar-playing merrymakers stood on a table for fear of strumming someone's eyes out.

One enterprising individual was busy sawing up the goal posts and selling souvenir slices for $1 each. But when the singing started he gave up money for music.

Toronto residents obviously liked what they saw. When the Calgary herd returned the following November to cheer the Stampede in the 1949 Grey Cup game—Montreal Alouettes won 28-15—they were greeted with cheers.
