"New Life" Mission Concluded Sunday Evening

With a congregation so large that chairs had to be brought in to accommodate the crowd that packed the large auditorium of the United Church on Sunday night, the "New Life" preaching mission, held for the past two weeks, came to a close.

The guest preacher for the evening was Mr. John Boles, of Ottawa, a former Shawville boy, who not only gave the message, but sang the hymn "Into a tent where a gypsy boy lay" illustrating his hymn by beautiful colored drawings.

The service was largely musical, with several duets sung by Mr. and Mrs. Ivan McGee, of Ottawa formerly of Fort Coulonge; a solo by Mr. Wilmer Hodgins, an a duet by Miss Kay Woodley and Mr. Glenn Hodgins.

On Tuesday night the auditorium was crowded, when Mr. John Boles again preached, and sang "His eye is on the sparrow" with colored paintings. The "Good News" radio quartette sang half a dozen numbers that were much enjoyed by the large congregation present. On Friday evening he illustrated the hymn "Jesus Saviour pilot me" in the same way.

During the services of the week there was a large attendance every night and on Wednesday and Thursday nights, Rev. Chas. Dawes, of Aymer, Que., was the preacher, illustrating his powerful messages on "The trinity of God and the trinity of salvation", with many musical numbers on the piano and the accordion.

These services of the second week fittingly followed the messages of the previous week, given by the two Shawville district boys, Messrs Wm. McDowell and Leslie Dean.

During the two weeks the pastor, Rev. A. F. Fokes, was in charge of the services with Mrs. Edgar Hodgins presiding at the electric organ and the piano, assisted by Mrs. A. H. Horner, Mrs. B. Little and Mrs. Alex Kilgour. At different times, solos were sung by Mr. Glenn Hodgins, Miss Kay Woodley, Mrs. B. Little, Mrs. Alex Kilgour, Mr. Everett McDowell, Miss Fay McDowell and Mr. Wilmer Hodgins. Duets were sung by Misses Maisie McTiernan and Muriel Riley, Miss Woodley and Mrs. A. D. McCredie and Miss Woodley and Mr. Glenn Hodgins, and there were trios and quartettes.

BIRTHS

McColgan—At Quyon, Que., on Tuesday, Jan. 13, 1948, to Mr. and Mrs. E. H. McColgan—a son.

O'Neil—At Toronto, Ont., on Tuesday, Jan. 6, 1948, to Mr. and Mrs. W. J. O'Neil (nee Hazel Zacharias), a son.

Neville—At Pontiac Community Hospital, Shawville, on Wednesday Jan. 7, 1948, to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Neville, a daughter—Faye Louise.

DIED

Mayhew—In hospital on Monday, January 12, 1948, Gary Emile Mayhew, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Mayhew, of Breckenridge, Que., age six months. The funeral service and interment was held at Charteris on Wednesday afternoon.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Turner, were in Ottawa for a few days of the past week.

Mrs. Harold Hayes, of Ottawa, spent the week-end at the home of her sister, Mrs. Gordon Brownlee.

Misses Betty and Joan Hodgins, of Ottawa, spent the week-end at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hodgins.

Mrs. Alex. Olmsted and daughter, Judy, of Aymer, Que., spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin McDowell.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Brunton, who have been visiting friends in this community left Saturday, to visit in North Gower, and Kenmore, Ont.

Mrs. Arnold Corrigan and son, Mr. Clayton Corrigan, of Ottawa, visited at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Lawrence Wilson, during the past week.

Mrs. Jack Pembroke, president of the Women's Voluntary Services, Montreal, who was guest speaker at Monday night's meeting of Shawville Women's Institute, was the guest of Mrs. G. G. McDowell, while in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillis Thompson left Monday to take up residence in Ottawa. Mr. Thompson's position as accountant in the Shawville branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been filled by Mr. Andrew Taylor. Mr. Thompson will continue service in the Sparks Street branch of the Bank in Ottawa.

Rev. Wm. Dickson, Mrs. Dickson and children, Douglas and Dorcas, returned Saturday evening from visiting Mr. Dickson's mother at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and other relatives, since November. Mr. and Mrs. Dickson are awaiting call to go to China as missionaries. They are presently at the home of Mrs. Dickson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Chisnell, in town.

Shawville and Bryson Play Tie Game

Bryson and Shawville fought to a 3-all tie in a Pontiac Hockey League game at the Shawville Arena on Friday night.

For this game the Bryson mentor, Tom Morehead used four or five players from Ottawa and Valley towns, but steady blocking on the part of the locals prevented the Morehead gang from chalking up a win.

Renfrew Defeat Shawville

Gaining a three-goal lead in the first period of a regular Upper Ottawa Junior Hockey League game Renfrew defeated Shawville on Friday night at the Shawville Arena by a score of 6 to 3.

The game was witnessed by a fairly large crowd, and while the locals came out on the short end of the score sheet, they showed a vast improvement over the initial appearance in the opening game at Renfrew.

Renfrew held the balance of play in the first session by notching three counters and holding the locals scoreless. In the second frame Shawville held the edge, scoring twice to Renfrew's lone tally, and passed up many scoring chances when close to the nets.

Renfrew came back strong in the final period to add two more and Shawville added another to make the score 6 to 3 for the visitors.

The line ups—
Renfrew—Goal, Utronki; defence, Cook and Campbell; centre, Mosco; forwards, Lemenchick and Haggerty. Subs: Regan, Chaput, Grace, Neville, Londeau, Williams Gilmour.
Shawville — Goal, Thomson; defence, Hobbs, Harris; centre, McCredie; forwards, W. Hobbs, McKay. Subs: Shore, Vaughan, Garrison, Martin, Kingdon, Hodgins, Campbell, McTiernan.
Officials: Walter Smith of Shawville and L. Lemenchick, of Renfrew.

FARM FORUM NEWS

NORTH CLARENDON FORUM DISCUSS MARKETING

The North Clarendon Farm Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Emmerson on Jan. 5th, when the group discussed Co-operative Marketing. An after-discussion re. the new United Kingdom contract and the resulting increased meat prices, prompted the group to try, like the small boy caught in the jam cupboard, to explain the situation to our consumer friends, in an

Open Letter to Consumers

Did you know that the butter for which you now pay 70 cents per pound, is storage butter of July and August, for which we producers received 52½ cents per pound butterfat, as of July, 1947? Is it the producer who is profiteering?

Did you know that of a 16 cent increase in the price per pound of certain cuts of pork, but 7 cents goes to the producer? What of the other 9 cents? Does the producer get it? Echo answers No!

The producers are now being threatened by the Government with oleomargarine imports, and with the bogey of decreased consumption of their products, unless the price goes down! But—

Is there decreased consumption of cigarettes? Is there decreased consumption of gasoline?

Prices of these modern "necessities" have risen too!

Give the producer the benefit of the doubt! Find out the true facts before you lay all the blame at the farmer's door!

MRS. HILLIS GRAHAM, WYMAN, HEARD OVER C.F.R.A., OTTAWA, 12.15 p.m. SAT., JAN. 10th, 1948.

On a broadcast presented by the Eastern Zone of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and the Western Quebec Counties of the Quebec Council of Farm Forums, Mrs. Hillis Graham, of Wyman Farm Forum, was heard asking questions about the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, who have been holding their annual meetings in Toronto during the past week.

Mr. R. A. Stewart, of Almonte, Ont., who was re-elected president of the O.F.A. on Friday, answered by explaining "The Ontario Federation of Agriculture is an overall organization which just lives up to its name. It is a Federation of existing agricultural organizations within the province. As of January, 1948, it comprises 39 community, co-operative and educational associations and 42 county units. In its turn it is the Ontario Provincial Unit of the Canadian Federation of Agricultural Producers. So, you see, we extend from the farmers on the back concessions through our county units, right through the provincial and national field into world organization".

Also heard on the broadcast were Mrs. A. N. Coughlin, of Cobden, Ont., reporting for the women's organizations and Howard Ferguson, of North Augusta, reporting activities of the junior organizations.—Pontiac Committee of Farm Forums.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Jan. 30th, over C.F.R.A., Ottawa
A quiz broadcast will be presented over Station C.F.R.A., Ottawa, Friday, Jan. 30th, 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. Six farm people from Quebec and Ontario and the audience will take part.

Farm Forums are asked to send their quiz questions to Mrs. C. A. Campbell, Pakenham, Ont., before January 25th. Anyone wishing to attend this broadcast may do so on application for tickets to Mrs. C. A. Campbell, as there is room for only 200—get your tickets immediately.

Shawville Women's Institute

The January meeting of the Shawville Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. A. G. Brough on Monday evening of this week.

Motion, by Mrs. MacLean seconded by Mrs. W. E. Shaw, that the Institute send $25.00 to "Save the Children Fund".

Mrs. Brough, Mrs. Drummond and Mrs. A. Horner were appointed to be in charge of packing a box of used clothing for the "Save the Children Fund".

Motion, by Mrs. Caldwell seconded by Mrs. Wilson, that the secretary write for information about the Blue Cross Hospital Plan.

Mrs. Caldwell, Mrs. Draper and Mrs. Prendergast offered to send the personal parcel for February.

Mrs. J. Pembroke, president of Women's Voluntary Services, Montreal, gave an interesting talk on her work.

Mrs. McCredie and Mrs. A. Horner sang a duet "The Voice in the Old Village Choir."

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Brough, Mrs. Prendergast and Miss J. Shaw.

Synopsis

Chapter XXI: El Caballero Rojo rides to meet the settlers. He advised them to return home. Clark Weber—one of the three in the wagon—who has heard of the reward on Valdez' head, attempts to capture him.

Chapter XXII

If Michael Valdez noticed the sneer of Clark Weber's face, he gave no sign. Nor did his manner change when he noticed Weber's hand sliding beneath the seat blanket, his body inching forward as if he sought to look around the girl beside him, and yet see behind her.

Tense silence reigned for half a minute. Then Weber spoke decisively.

"Why do you try to frighten us? What does it mean to you whether we go or stay?"

"Frighten you?" Valdez's tone was mild. "If good advice scares you, then Madre de Dios help the three of you—when you're settled down there." He nodded toward the valley below, lit up by leaping scarlet flames.

"You'll never nail one of us to Don Attero's Cross!" Weber challenged sharply. "You'll never set any of our buildings afire! Because you've seen your own last sunrise!"

Few men could have snatched out and leveled a six-gun as fast as Clark Weber did while he pronounced that sentence of death. But even faster, Valdez's gaudily gloved hand flashed out from where it had dangled near his holster. Gun metal caught the moon's silvered rays. Flame leaped forth. Lead crunched into Clark Weber's gun. He cried out in pain as his weapon slid from limp fingers.

Valdez tolsted his smoking Colt. His eyes above the neckerchief and his voice were still mild when he said:

"If you see that again, hombre, do it faster—and not when you are looking straight at me."

The girl recovered her power of speech, looking at El Caballero Rojo as she asked a question.

"You're sure that—"

"I've told you what I know," the strange apparition said.

Valdez backed El Cielo into the shadow of a rock and horse and rider disappeared. There was no sound, for he had gone as silently as he had come.

For long awed moments the trio on the wagon seat did not move.

Then suddenly, with a harsh ejaculation, Clark Weber jumped to the ground and retrieved the gun that had been shot from his hand. The hand itself, he saw, had been no more than scratched, but the shock of the bullet had done what El Caballero Rojo had intend it to do.

"Curse him," Weber growled. "The next time—"

"He might not be as generous Maxon finished for him. "He was only trying to help us. Why did you draw that gun on him?"

"Because he's worth money—plenty of it—dead or alive," Weber growled surlily, angered even at the girl he professed to love. "I'd heard enough about him—and now that I know he is in these parts, I see how we're going to make it quick, paying the balance due Bartle on our land."

"With this man's body?" Chet Maxon demanded savagely. "You won't pay anything I owe—or Ellen owes—with blood money. You mean you'd really stoop that low, Clark—after he went out of his way to ask us to expect trouble?"

"Warned like fun!" flared Weber. "It wouldn't surprise me to know he crucified that man he said was on that cross, and set that fire we saw. Whether he did it or not, I'm paying more attention for a while to get that red-headed Mex outlaw than I am to farming."

Without a word Chet Maxon picked up the reins. The wagon creaked on. Even before it turned the bend and stopped near the ghastly cross, the silence of fear and disillusion dropped like a clammy blanket over the plodding settlers.

On Chet Maxon's side of the trail stood the ghastly cross. On his sister's side, far below, glowed the ember of the fire they had seen, but which now was dying down. It was as if some mocking son of Satan had prepared the welcoming signs.

Only an hour before, young Burr Aldman, nicknamed "Straw" because of his red-gold hair and freckled face, had been sitting across the table from his father, a hard-working tobacco farmer in Deep Water Valley. Burr, the son, was hard-working also, and he and his father had been figuring on their prospects. There was elation in both their hearts as they reached the conclusion that the contents of their crammed drying shed would sell for enough to take up the next note on the farm.

"One thing we ain't figured, son," the old man told Straw ominously. "The fellers who are raising all the ructions in this here valley and burned Mike Chapman's drying shed. They killed Steve Ransom, too. We ain't taking no chances with them coming after us, so tomorrow morning we start baling and hauling that tobacco out of here."

But that had been an hour ago. Now young Burr Aldman was kneeling so close to the smoking ruins of the shed that he could feel the heat from the ashes. And stretched before him on the ground was his father—his life's blood draining from a stomach wound.

"I told you, son," old Aldman gasped. "It wasn't only Chapman and—Ransom they wanted riddance of. Them beemen ain't stopping at—anything till they've run out—every tobacco man in the valley."

Straw Aldman was twenty-one. Or he had been up to minutes before. He was like a man of forty or more now, as bitter as gall, with but one purpose in life—to find the man who had tossed that torch into the drying shed; the man who had fired point-blank at his unarmed father who had tried to stop the arson.

"Yes, Dad," he wheezed out. "Peefmen. Curse 'em! I'll pay every one of them back, coin for coin, till either lead or rope stop me."

"No, son," the farmer's weak voice protested. "That's not the way. The thin, for you to do is to get out of this hole of the devil. See—Russ Bartle. He'll help you find somebody to buy the farm. He's a good man, son. He'll help you. But get out of this Deep Water Valley. Start as soon as your brother Sam gets back home. You and Sam pull out of here tonight. Promise me that, Burr."

"All right, Dad," the young man said reluctantly. "I—I hate like all thunder to make a promise like that, but—"

He stopped short, staring at his father. For the next moment old Aldman died, stretched on the soil that nature had touched with such a prodigal hand.

The red-headed young man staggered to his feet. His weary eyes to the smoldering ash-heap. Then shifted from the corpse of his father suddenly his teeth clicked together as he spun on his heels, snatching out the six-gun that was tucked beneath his belt. But as swiftly he remembered.

"That you, Sam?" he called hopelessly.

When there was no answer and he still heard approaching footsteps,

Record-Breaking Baby is 1,000th to be born this year in St. Joseph's Hospital, Chatham. The little girl shown here with her mother, Mrs. Frank Phelan of Stanley St., Blenheim, arrived Christmas Eve and was walked up and down the ward corridor by Santa Claus himself.

ANNE HIRST Your Family Counselor

Sister's Children Invade Girl's Home

A YOUNG GIRL is about to declare war on her married sisters. They, with their children, invade her private life in such a way that she cannot enjoy her own home. I quote from her letter:

"Suppose you had an army of married sisters, each of whom brings back home the trials, worries and cares attendant upon every marriage. Suppose their children, paraphernalia, et al, visit your home 365 days a year as surely as the sun rises? Suppose their code of thinking to be: 'Want to take a job? Step out any day? Why not? Palm the children off on Mother. She's always home, and you don't have to pay her!'"

"Suppose you could never ask your friends in because your living room is perpetually cluttered with diapers, rattles, blankets, booties and toys? Suppose you're tired of bumping into carriages, playpens, velocipedes? Suppose you hesitate to bring your young man home because it's too much like taking him into a day nursery, or projecting him into a young matrons' society with their one-track conversation?"

"Suppose your parents were weary unto death of this, but believe it their duty to be helpful if it kills them?"

"And worse, suppose your heart is broken to see your home's furnishings abused just because they are unpretentious? (My sisters have beautiful homes of their own.)"

"Suppose they never consider knocking when they drop in any hour of the day or night, or whether it is convenient for you to receive them? (We, however, must observe all proprieties when visiting them.) Suppose they all, including the small fry, feel that they have a real share in this home, without owing it a particle of respect?"

"And suppose your point-blank request that they stay away occasionally meets with visits of redoubled length and clamor?"

"Talking is not going to change them. We can't pull up stakes and leave. I suppose we must wait till the children grow up before we can have peace. And by then I'll be middle-aged and these children will be bringing home the next generation to again his six-gun was flung upward. His finger danced on the trigger.

"Keep coming!" he commanded. A slight figure in ragged overalls came to the dying glow of the ruins. Straw Aldman glowered, then slightly relaxed. This was not the killer of his father, the man who had set fire to the drying shed. He had managed to get one glimpse of that man, a distant glimpse, as he had rushed from the house at the sound of shots. That fellow with the torch and gun had been taller than this ragged figure, had moved like one who was much older.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. R. Barclay Warren

What We Know About God
Isaiah 40: 28-31; John 14: 8-14.

Golden Text—But without faith it is impossible to please him. For he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him—Hebrews 11:16.

A youth leader said, "If you want to keep young, stay around young people; if you want to get old, try and keep up with them." How truly he spoke! But Isaiah summons us to a source of strength greater than the springs of youth. "Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall; but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary, and they shall walk and not faint." Not only is the Eternal God, the Creator of the earth, a Being of unlimited strength but He is able to give of His strength to those who call upon Him. There are times when we need to soar as with eagles' wings above the confusion and din of a sin-torn weary world. But it is equally important to be able to walk and not faint. The mother of the little children often feels the need of moral strength and courage to carry on the humdrum duties of everyday life. She doesn't ask for eagles' wings to get above them but for strength to walk and not faint.

Isaiah also says of God "There is no searching of His understanding." He who can trust the infinite wisdom of God in the hour of stark tragedy has a strong consolation.

Many who think well of Jesus Christ regard God the Father as a stern, austere Being who is not nearly as sympathetic with humanity as His Son. This is a false notion Jesus said, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." His words and works are of the Father who dwelleth in Him. Would you know

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I clean windows and glass easily, and also give the glass a nice polish?

A. By using a lintless cloth dipped in a solution of two table-spoonfuls of household ammonia to two quarts of water.

Q. How can I give an added gloss to the linen?

A. A gloss can be produced by making the hot starch with soapy water. This also prevents the iron from sticking to the goods.

Q. How can I improve the flavor and the texture of fudge?

A. Both the flavor and texture will be improved if a small spoonful of cornstarch is added.

Q. How can I distinguish fresh fish from spoiled fish?

A. By looking at the gills and the eyes. The gills of fresh fish are red and the eyes are clear.

ISSUE 2—1948

what God the Father is like? Then read the life of Jesus and become acquainted with Him as your personal Saviour and you will know the Father.

The lesson closes with a challenge. There is a great work for us to do. It is to tell the world about Him. Jesus regards this as in a sense greater than the miracles which He, up to that time, had wrought. There is also the challenge to pray. Dare we accept it? "If ye shall ask anything in my Name, I will do it." God lives and rewards those who in faith, diligently seek Him.

Bees Help Increase
Clover Seed Yield

Experiments have been undertaken at the Dominion Experimental Station, Prince George, B.C., to determine the value and the need for bees in the seed production of alsike clover. It was found that where honey bees were present the yield of alsike seed was twenty times as high as where no bees were present. In the fields where both native wild bees and honey bees were present in large numbers the seed yield of alsike was four times as high as here only the honey bees were available for pollination. The result shows the value of honey bees in the seed production of this crop, and indicates that beekeeping could well be adopted in conjunction with alsike seed production against the time when native pollinating insects may be reduced to insufficient numbers.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

You know how we always think the best part of going away is the coming home? In just that same way don't you think the best part of Christmas and New Year's is the well-it's-all-over feeling that you get in January? So many weeks we have ridden the crest of a wave—a wave of preparing, of giving and receiving, of going and coming; of over-indulgence in Christmas fare—that to find ourselves once more in calm waters, as it were, is something we can really appreciate—in fact we remember with relief that it is now eleven months until Christmas!

And after the Christmas tree is divested of its trimmings and come to its inglorious end of providing a little extra kindling wood, and the Christmas cards are looked over and read over again, and then stored away—because we don't know what else to do with them—the Christmas gifts put into regular use, if that is possible, and children returning unwillingly to school—then begins the housewife's brief spell of Paradise. There will be other busy times, she is sure, some of the family will inevitably develop winter colds and coughs—but we hope nothing worse—but right now is the after season lull, and we have time to enjoy the monotony of ordinary everyday work.

Yes, we can rest! Seems to me I heard a chorus of protests following that last remark. "Rest," I hear you say—"rest, with all there is to do in this house!" All right . . . all right . . . I know you are busy—so am I for that matter—but you know it is quite possible to rest as we work. "Rest is not quitting the busy career, rest is the fitting of self to one's sphere."

Rushing around comes natural to youth; it is part of its restless energy, but too often this same sort of almost perpetual motion continues through life with nerves being the main motive power driving us on when common sense is telling us to stop, or at least slow up. We women, I think, are the worst offenders. And why? Because we let our families become too dependent upon Mother doing this and Mother fixing that. And believe me, I have noticed that this same situation is reaching alarming proportions in the present acute housing shortage. It exists in the country as well as in urban districts. Married couples live with their parents, grandchildren come along, and it is still "Mother" who bears the brunt of the load. In some cases the young married bread-winner has a job away from home. And then who is it that gets his breakfast, and endures his early morning grouchiness? You know as well as I do, don't you? Mother has always looked after her children so she goes right on with the job, irrespective of wives, husbands and grandchildren. And the children, in the great majority of cases, unthinkingly allow her to do it.

Honestly, I just about see red when I notice the weariness of so many not-so-young women these days, and I know it is because they are over-worked, over tired and too good to their families. Oh, I know it is not so easy for the young folk either—but they at least have youth on their side—youth and the hope of a home of their own at some future time. Surely it should be possible for young and old to realise some of the difficulties peculiar to each and thus come to a fairer family agreement regarding work and responsibility.

Our little Whisky is, at present, quite a distraction to serious thinking. She is tearing around the room like a wild thing—now here, now there, in and out around the furniture and then back to her newest "teaser"—an empty spool hung by a string from the handle of the door. If you have a kitten and want it to play just try that little trick some time. It is as good as a circus to watch.

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

By HARRY MURKAR

Many times during the past year, we have been asked who Susie is? People ask is she real? Is she a figment of the imagination? Do those Susie stories ever materialize? The answer to them all is YES. The only Susie story that was written last year, that didn't actually happen was the one Susie herself wrote, when we were up north on holidays.

There are many incidents that happen in the life of your reporter and Susie that never appear in print. The reason being: that few people would believe them. For example we went over to Susie's house the night after she had the Christmas tree up and decorated. Trying to help, we got down under the tree to plug in the lights. In so doing, we pulled the tree over with a thundering crash! Susie came running to find yours truly buried under green branches with his you-know-what protruding with icicles and snow decorating it, and making a beautiful picture. Do you believe that? We didn't think so, but it's the truth!

Then, a few weeks ago, we took Susie for a ride in the country. Now we happen to be one of those unfortunate who were blessed with bad teeth as a child; even though mother fed us on milk and fruit juices, etc. Well, we now support an upper plate of store food-mashers. Getting back to the story, Susie and I were riding along, both of us munching away at apples. A piece of apple skin got lodged in my throat. I started to hack and choke. "I—I—I," I gasped, "will try and get home and get a drink". But the choking got worse and I was getting blue in the face. Finally I pulled up on the edge of the road. "Hit me on the back," I yelled at Susie, jumping out of the door, and at the same time jamming the set of molars in my pocket. I coughed! Susie slapped my back! Finally the piece of apple skin gave ground and up it came. "Whew!" I grinned at Susie, forgetting to put the teeth back. Susie looked; her eyes popped out and she pointed at my mouth, "Where are they? What happened to them?" she cried. Suddenly I thought of my gaping, gummy grin, and promptly slapped the artificial choppers back into place. Now don't say it—that one is true, too.

One reader asked, why do you always make Susie appear to be cross and out of sorts. She always seems to be mad at you or something, and almost always talks to you in a sarcastic manner. Well, dear reader, to tell you the truth, I only write about the messes that Susie and I get into. Actually we have a lot of fun and have many memories of good times—and a scrap book to prove it. You may remember the story about the bike hike, the flat tire and the rain. Those things happened and we have pictures here to prove it. As a matter of fact, the taxi driver who brought us home always greets us with—"well, it looks like a nice day for a hike, I think it's going to rain."

Susie is not really as cross or hard to get along with as I make her appear to be. Why, in fact, last Christmas she gave me a watch, and this year she gave me a cigar. Hmmm, there's something wrong there some place. Oh, well, she probably was broke.

Looking back over last year's files we notice a number of Susie stories. The first was in March; about the Egg and I. Then in April we reported on the sucker fishing. The next was in June and this was written by the little lady herself. She tried to expose me, but it was all a line of guff. In August we did a story on our sailing experience. What a day that was! Then in September it was the bike hike. And in October we helped put up venetian blinds. That was the last of Susie for last year.

Well, as we told you a few lines back, she's a great kid. You'll hear more of her this year too. Why, just now, she brought us a cup of tea and a toasted bacon. And another thing, dear reader, those stories were really on the level. So the next time you read a Susie story, stop wondering about her. She really exists and how! She just belted me over the ear for writing this. I didn't notice her standing there reading over my shoulder. I hereby retract what I said. Ain't she ignorant?

Good Eating The Scotch Way

In the lowlands of Scotland the lassies once wore broad bonnets called scones. Whether these bonnets gave their name to the buns, or whether the buns inspired the bonnets was never recorded by the Scotch. Either way, scones make superlative eating, especially when ready-to-eat bran is used to give them a nut-like taste.

For a festive touch, use cranberries as a filling for these tasty triangles.

Jelly Scones
 1 1/4 cups sifted flour
 3 teaspoons baking powder
 3/2 teaspoon salt
 1 tablespoon sugar
 1/2 cup ready-to-eat bran
 1/4 cup shortening
 2 eggs
 1/2 cup light cream
 1/4 cup cranberry sauce or your favorite jam or jelly.
 Sift flour with baking powder, salt and sugar; add bran. Cut in shortening. Separate one egg; beat the egg white slightly, then measure out 1 tablespoon and keep for glaze. Beat remaining eggs and add to first mixture with cream. Stir until dough follows fork around bowl. Roll out on lightly floured board to 1/4-inch thickness; cut into 2 1/2 inch squares. Place 1 teaspoon cranberry sauce in centre of each square; fold diagonally and press points together. Moisten edges, crimp with fork. Brush with reserved egg white; sprinkle with sugar. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) about 12 minutes.

 Yield: 12 scones.

The King's Coaches

Neither of the two principal carriages used in the Royal wedding procession was originally intended for Royal use.

The Glass Coach was made in 1881 by John W. Peters, to the order of the Lord Mayor-elect of London, Sir Whitaker Ellis. It was bought by the Crown in 1911 for use at the Coronation of King George V, and since then it has been used by Royal brides. It is so called because there is rather less wood in its bodywork than in the other coaches of the Royal Mews.

It is rather less ornate than the Irish State Coach. This coach, once the property of a Lord Mayor of Dublin, was admired and bought by Queen Victoria during a visit to Ireland in 1852. It is normally used by the King for the opening of Parliament.

The State Coach proper, which was built in 1761, weighs four tons and is, of course, unsuitable for a trotting procession.

Near the Mark

The teacher was trying to give her small pupils a mental picture of a barrel without disclosing the name of the article.

"The object I have in mind", she explained, "is large and round, being nearly as big one way as the other, and if laid on its side and started at the top of a hill, it would roll to the bottom. Now, who can tell what it is?"

A little hand went up, and the teacher said, "All right, Marjorie; what do you think I was describing?"

"My daddy!" came the unexpected reply.

90 pc. HOUSING LOAN STUDIED IN QUEBEC

Quebec, Jan. 10.—Le Soleil said in a newspaper story today that insurance companies and Quebec's Caisses Populaires (co-operative people's banks) are studying a Provincial Government plan for housing loans.

The newspaper said that under the Government proposals, loans up to $8,000 or 90 percent of the amount required by a builder would be advanced by the companies and the banks.

Both loans and interest of 3¼ or 3½ percent, would be guaranteed by the Government and the loans would be repayable over a period of 30 years or more.

Conditions imposed on builders, said Le Soleil, would be that a borrower must own property and have $500 of his own to invest in a house.

The paper said the companies were interested in the plans and ready to co-operate.

(Premier Duplessis indicated to a labor delegation here last week that the Government would introduce during the Legislature session starting next Wednesday a measure to relieve the housing problem.)

FARM INCOME 1947 MAY EXCEED 1946

Cash income received by Canadian farmers from the sale of farm products and from supplementary payments during the first half of 1947 amounted to $753,865,000 as against $730,983,000 and $647,138,000 for the corresponding periods in 1945 and 1946. The increase in this year's semi-annual cash income estimate is a reversal of the downward trend which has been in evidence since the record year of 1944, when the cash income from January to June amounted to approximately $766,000,000. There was a substantial increase in 1947 from the sale of grains and other field crops, largely attributed to generally higher prices for grains and larger marketings of wheat and barley in Western Canada. There was an increase of about 8 per cent in cash income from livestock and livestock products. Income from sales of cattle, calves, sheep and lambs showed a reduction but was more than offset by the increase from sales of hogs, dairy products, poultry and eggs.

Although it is expected that total cash income for the entire 1947 season will exceed that of 1946, some tapering-off of cash receipts is likely during the latter half of the year. This assumption is based on the extremely unfavourable weather conditions which prevailed during the seeding season in Eastern Canada and during the critical growing period in the Prairie Provinces.

Answering Your Questions ABOUT IMPORT CONTROL

MOST of the countries which are Canada's regular customers have not recovered sufficiently from the war to pay, in the normal way, for all the goods they need, despite extensive help from this and other countries. Nor are they able to send us enough of their goods to balance accounts—or to pay us in the kind of money which we, in Canada, can use to buy goods in other countries.

At the same time, Canada has been buying more goods than ever before from the United States and other countries demanding U.S. dollars. This is because these goods were not obtainable elsewhere and because of demand pent-up during the war.

Buying from the United States or U.S. dollar areas must, therefore, be temporarily reduced until our trading again becomes normal.

To meet this emergency, purchase of goods and services or expenditures for travel, which must be paid for with U.S. dollars, are now subject to control.

IF YOU ARE AN IMPORTER OF CONSUMER GOODS and wish to find out what goods are (1) prohibited, (2) subject to quota, or (3) unaffected by controls, see or write your nearest Collector of Customs and Excise.

IF YOU WISH TO IMPORT GOODS SUBJECT TO QUOTA and wish to establish your quota authorization to import, or need special information, consult your nearest Collector of Customs and Excise. Quota application forms (E.C. 1) and instructions for completing them, are available at all Customs Offices. These applications must be filed with the Collector of Customs and Excise.

IF YOU WISH INFORMATION ON THE AMOUNT OF YOUR QUOTA. After your application has been filed with your Collector of Customs and Excise, all correspondence about the establishment of quotas or cases of exceptional hardship through import prohibitions should be directed to Emergency Import Control Division, Department of Finance, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa. Quotas are issued on a quarterly basis and any unused portion may be carried over into the following quarter.

IF YOU ARE AN IMPORTER OF PRODUCTION PARTS, STRUCTURAL STEEL, stone, machinery or other capital goods or automobiles, and wish to know the import restrictions in these classifications, write or see Emergency Import Control Division (Capital Goods), Department of Reconstruction and Supply, 385 Wellington Street, Ottawa.

IF YOU INTEND TO TRAVEL OUTSIDE CANADA and wish to know about foreign exchange available for this purpose, consult any bank or the Foreign Exchange Control Board at Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Windsor, Vancouver. If you wish information about personal purchases of goods made during travel outside Canada, consult the nearest Collector of Customs and Excise before departure.

IF YOU ARE A MANUFACTURER, WHOLESALE OR RETAILER and wish information about excise taxes, or about the list of goods to which they apply, consult the nearest Collector of Customs and Excise.

IF YOU NEED OTHER SOURCES OF IMPORTS consult the Foreign Trade Service, Department of Trade and Commerce (Import Division), Ottawa, regarding your supply problems arising from import quota restrictions. Through the Trade Commissioner Service, the Import Division is endeavouring to arrange increased supplies from the United Kingdom and other "non-scheduled" countries.

IF YOU ARE A HOUSEWIFE and wish information on available alternate foods which have comparable nutritional values to those now prohibited or subject to quota, informational material which has been prepared by the Nutrition Division of the Department of National Health and Welfare may be secured from your Provincial Health Department or local health unit.

The administration of these emergency import controls is the responsibility of various departments of the Government. The above information is given to aid Canadian citizens in complying with the new import control regulations with a minimum of inconvenience in their business and personal affairs.

Tractor Drivers Face Many Perils In Frozen North

Under the flickering northern lights, the caravan of the snows moves steadily forward on its path across the frozen lakes twisting along forest trails. The gleaming headlights of a red or yellow tractor search out the way around the bends of the portage roads, seeming something more than mere machines, Lyn Harrington writes in The Christian Science Monitor.

Behind them in serried ranks come the sleighs, their runners squeaking over the frosty snow, or slipping along noiselessly over "sugar-snow." A series of tractors, each pulling its own group of sleighs, lurches and pitches through the night and all the long day. They carry tons of provisions, oil, kerosene, plaid wind-breakers, and dressed lumber into the distant posts of the Hudson's Bay Company, to the northern missions, to free-traders and to the Department of Indian Affairs.

Leave Barrels

Throughout the north of Canada tractors have taken over the freighting job, formerly done by horse-power. In those days freight swings carried as much food for the horses as pay load. Today they carry fuel oil, leaving caches of steel barrels here and there along the route. The massive tractors transport infinitely more than horses could. And though the costs of such transportation are high, they are still considerably less than freighting by air.

Tractor trains are one of the most important features of the pioneer life still being led in many parts of the country. Many tractor swings launch out into the wilderness, breaking their own trails as they go. Steadily they plow their way out across the fields of ice and snow and slush which are the numerous lakes of the north. They may carry in food and goods, or may travel in light, returning with loads of mining concentrates, furs, pulpwood or frozen fish for the markets of the world.

SHORT STORY

A Perfect Alibi

By ANN HARRIS

"BUT, sergeant," Gilson insisted, "last night at midnight I was alone in bed. He—" pointing to a pompous individual sitting near, "he didn't see me at that hour. He couldn't, unless he was up in my room."

The other sneered, "Yeah," he said, "you were home in bed. Your ghost, I suppose, was walking about at midnight."

The sergeant raised his hand for silence. He had known Frank Gilson, who he was questioning with regard to a burglary of the night before, as a quiet family man, employed as a mill accountant for a number of years, and always honest and trustworthy. He was loath to believe that Gilson had now turned to burglary, breaking into a hardware store, cracking the safe and robbing it of $2,000.

The mills, however, had been closed for nearly six months, and Gilson may have been driven to theft through need. He had a family to provide for.

Although Howard Crossley, the pompous one who claimed to have seen Gilson fleeing from the vicinity of the store at midnight, was a newcomer to the town, yet he was respected by all who know him.

The sergeant knitted his brows. It was a case of mistaken identity he felt sure.

"Maybe," Gilson spoke up, "Maybe he robbed the safe himself."

"What?" Crossley shouted. "How dare you intimate that I would do such a thing?"

"Why did you say that?" the sergeant asked Gilson.

"Well," Gilson replied slowly, "one day last week I saw him examining the back windows of the store. He noticed, too, that I was watching him. That is why he is now accusing me. It was through the back windows you say the burglars got in."

Crossley sprang to his feet. "You lie," he cried hoarsely, "you never saw me near the windows."

THE sergeant told him to be quiet.

Crossley apologized.

"Now the man you saw near the store," the sergeant asked Crossley, "you are sure was Gilson? Perhaps you made a mistake."

"I made no mistakes," Crossley replied firmly. "It was he."

Deanna Sings In Seven Languages

Although she doesn't speak any foreign language, Deanna Durbin has sung in seven languages while making multi-lingual versions of her pictures during her ten-year screen career. In her recent film, "I'll Be Yours," in which she returns to singing parts, Deanna had to sing in English, Spanish and German. Her method of learning a foreign language song is to have the lyrics spelled out phonetically. Then, with the aid of music, she learns the correct pronunciations very quickly. "But," she says, "if it weren't for the English version, I shouldn't have the faintest idea what I was singing about."

Listed in the order of difficulty she experienced in learning them, the languages in which she has sung to date are Chinese, Russian, German, French, Latin, Italian and Spanish. "English is not a good singing language because it has so many hard sounds," Deanna declares. "I always have trouble learning to sing 'English lyrics correctly.'"

Not a Marked Copy

The newlyweds were giving their first turkey dinner. Since her husband was a novice at carving Mrs. Newlywed insisted on his learning to carve from her new cook book, lest he display his ignorance before the guests.

The turkey was later placed before the inexperienced host, who was plainly at a loss to know how to begin.

"Go on, dear, carve it. You know exactly how to do it," whispered the loyal young wife.

"Of course I do, but I can't find any of the dotted lines," came back the troubled answer.

where to run with my face covered?"

"I didn't say you covered your whole face," Crossley snapped. "I said the right side. Your left eye was open and I guess you could see with that."

"What are you laughing at, Gilson?" the sergeant broke in. "Unless you can prove where you were last night, it may go hard with you."

Gilson made no reply but took off his spectacles and wiped them carefully. Suddenly he pulled his left eye out of its socket and handed it to the sergeant.

The eye was glass.

"He was slinking close to the building."

Drivers Warned Fall and Winter "Danger" Periods

Of the 688 persons killed in traffic accidents in Ontario in 1946, more than one-third lost their lives in the last three months of the year, according to a survey made by the Ontario Department of Highways.

Urban accidents in Ontario start upward in autumn and rise until after the year-end. The last quarter of the year is the worst period for traffic accidents in the cities and towns. Motorists and pedestrians are urged to use every precaution to meet the extra traffic hazards imposed by the fall and winter months. Though there is less travel in the last quarter of the year than in the summer months, this condition is offset by bad weather and poor visibility. Darkness comes sooner and the rush hour finds thousands of employees homeward bound in the twilight. Slippery streets caused by frost, ice, rain or fog are additional hazards, and the first freeze-up in Ontario each year always results in a sharp increase in accidents.

Training of homing pigeons starts when they are about four weeks old.

Sports-And One Thing or Another

By FRANK MANN HARRIS

Coming away from an alleged hockey contest, played with absence of Christmas or any other sort of spirit during the recent holiday season, a veteran onlooker at sport—who had peacefully snoozed through most of the final period—came out with a crack which we think worthy of repetition.

"The difference between a bad hockey game and a punk baseball game is this," he said. "In baseball, no matter how little the hired hands feel like playing, they know that they have to keep on until one side gets at least 27 of the other guys out. But in hockey, if the boys are feeling a little tired, they realize that as soon as the clock ticks off sixty minutes, they're through for the night."

We personally feel that there's a lot in what he said; and that the present-day custom of seldom if ever playing overtime, but settling for a split of the points at the end of the regulation hour, has done modern professional hockey more harm than any other single feature you could mention. If the hockeyists knew they had to play to a finish—or that no points would be awarded to either side in case of a tie—there would probably be a whole lot more real action for the cash customers.

..Maybe you've already heard it; but we rather enjoyed this criticism of American and Canadian radio made by a noted French commentator. After being on this side of the Atlantic for some months he wrote, I hear so much said and sung about LOVE on your air-waves that I'm always expecting the announcer to advise listeners to send in for free samples."

We have already written about the danger of United States football—and, to a lesser degree, our Canadian variety—becoming nothing more or less than outdoor basketball. If you happened to listen to the broadcast of the National League championship game between Philadelphia Eagles and Chicago Cardinals, you'll probably realize what we mean.

The Eagles have one of the finest forward passers in the game; and their attack was built around him to such an extent that you might have thought that line-plunging, end-running—any method of advancing the ball except through the air—had been done away with. He attempted no less than 44 forwards in an hour's play, and even the fact that he completed 27 of them for an average of better than 10 yards gain per pass, doesn't do away with the fact that it isn't football. Although neutral at the start, we were glad when Cardinals—sticking to a ground attack—finished on top.

But the hold football has on its devotees is shown by the figures—more than thirty thousand paying almost a hundred and sixty thousand dollars to shiver through it. Chicago is by no means situated in the lanana belt; and sitting outdoors there for several hours on the 28th of December isn't most people's idea of a pleasant way to spend an afternoon. Being slightly screwy isn't absolutely essential for a football fan; still, it undoubtedly helps.

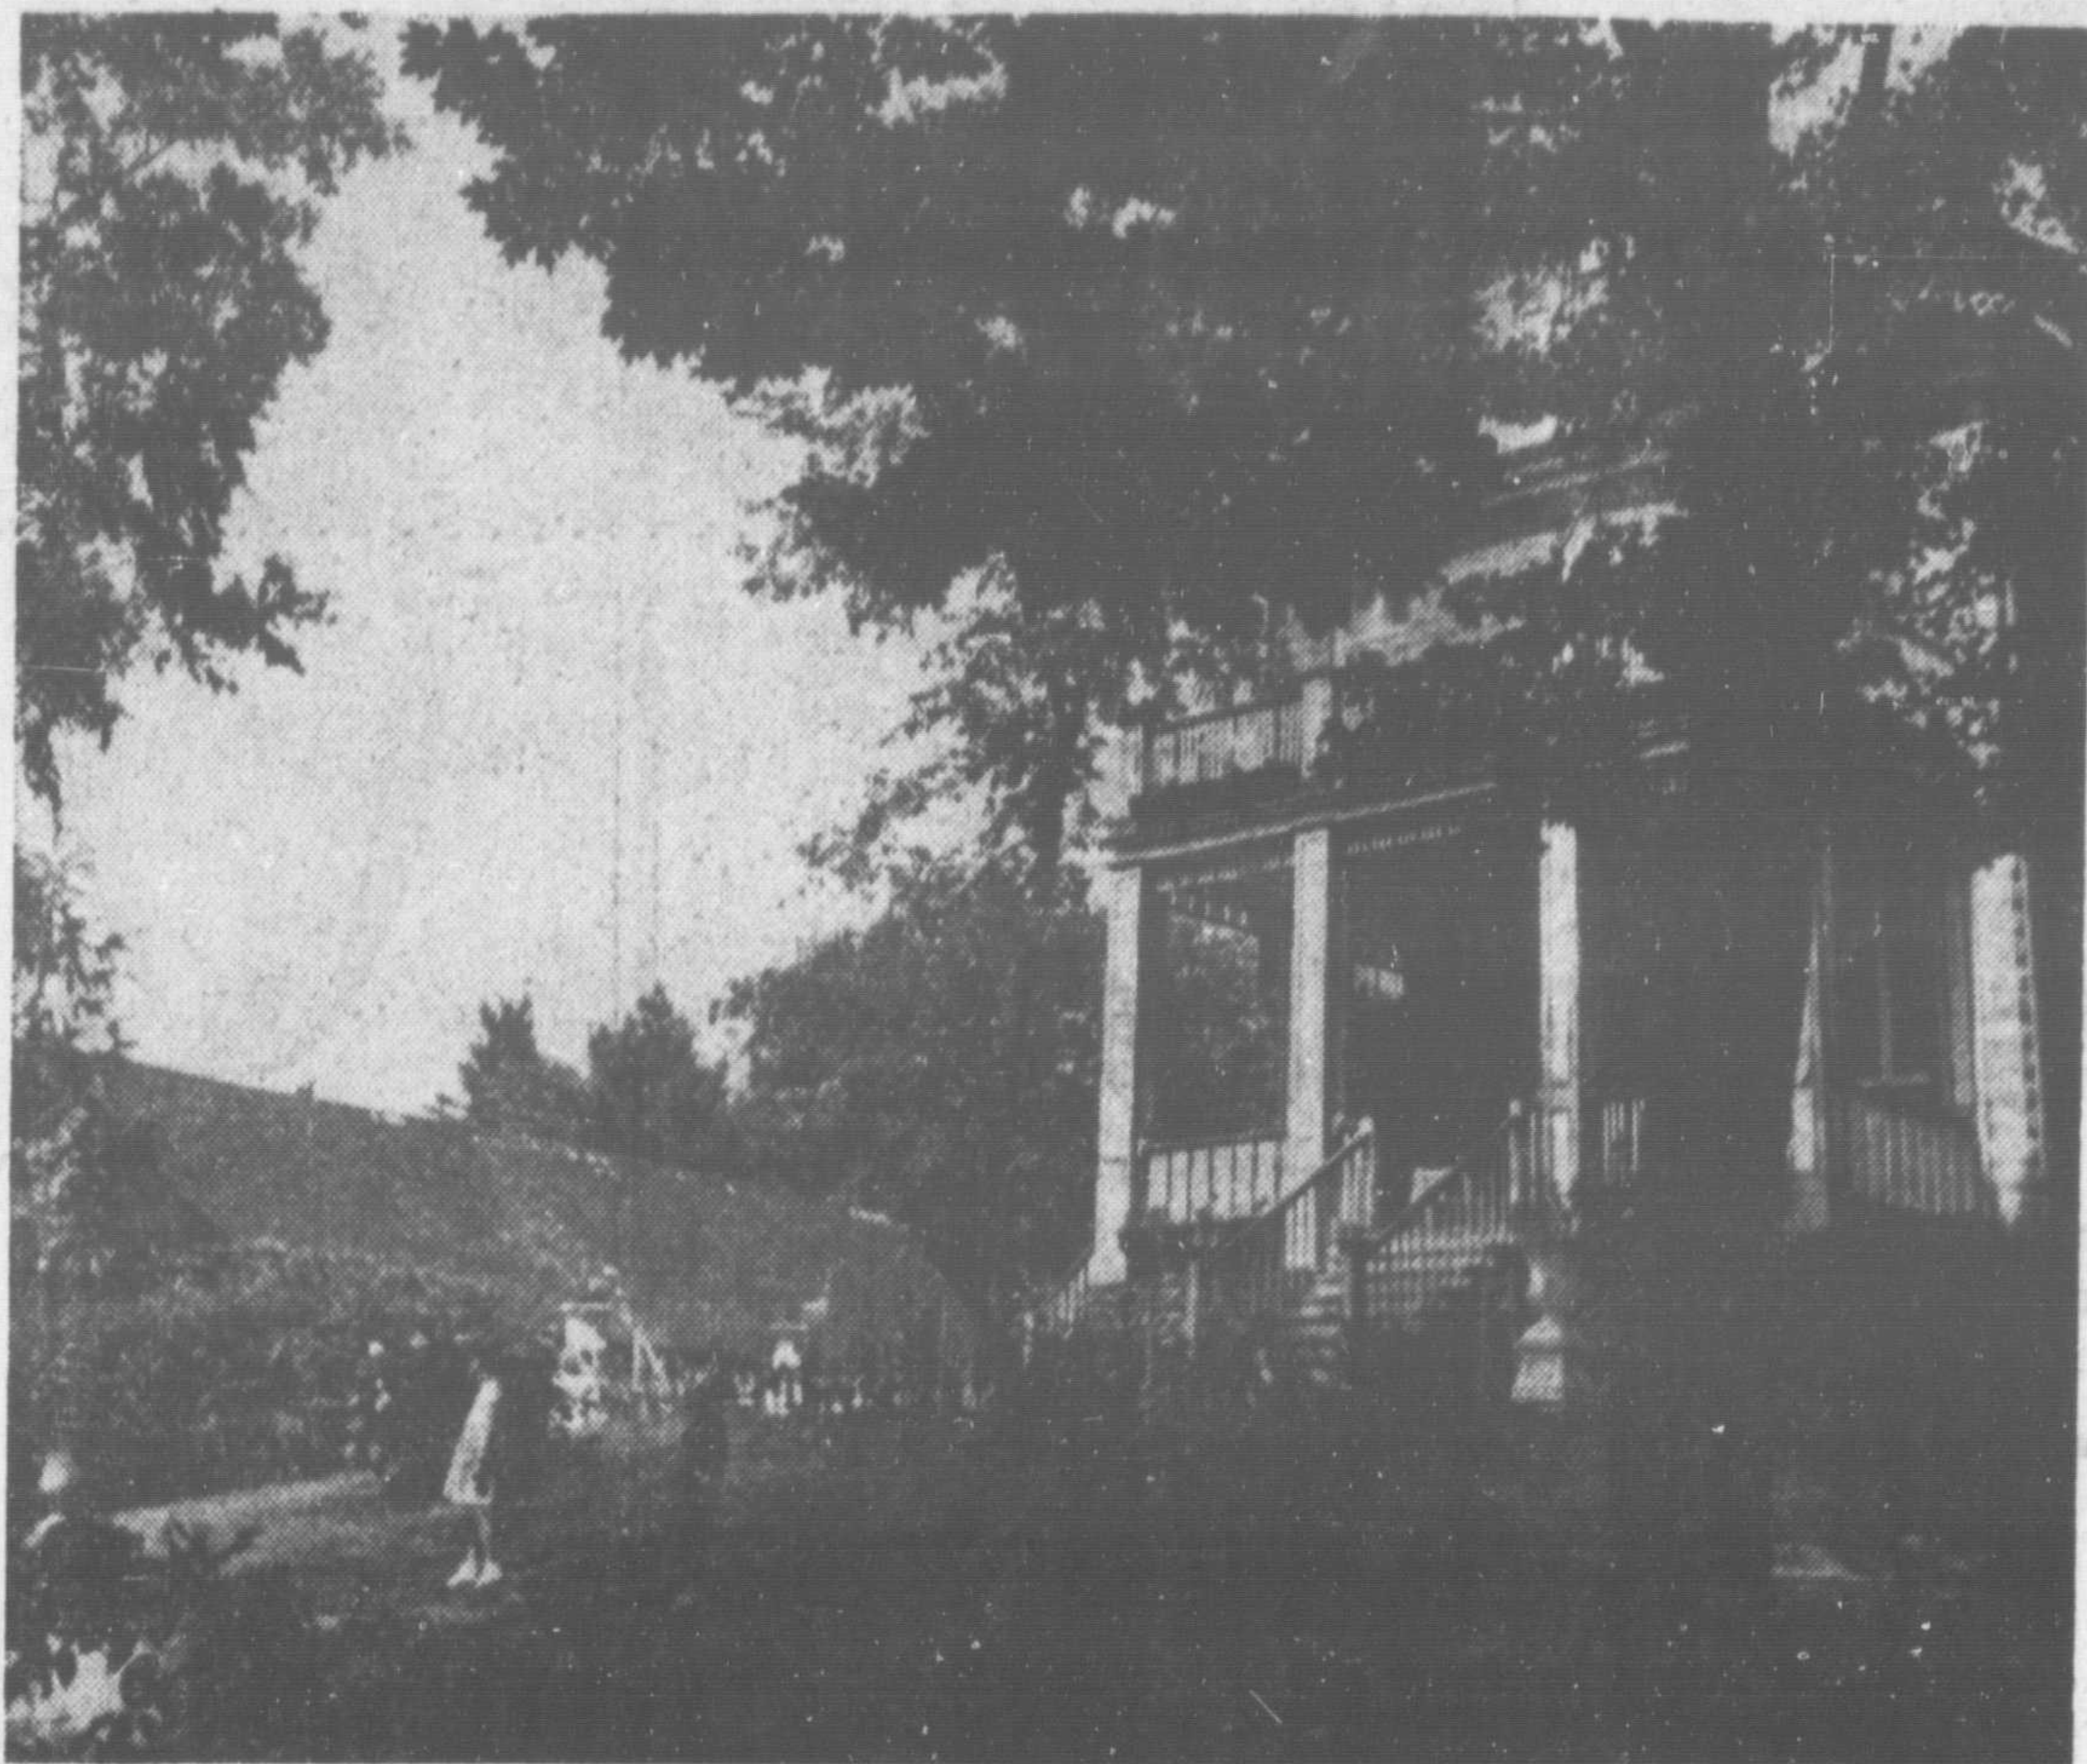

During the Christmas season an acquaintance of ours made an assault on the poetic muse which we pass on to you without comment: "Good King Wenceslaus went out. On the Feast of Stephen; So did I—just like a light—Now the score is even."

A scrutiny of National Hockey League figures at the year's end is rather revealing—although just what it reveals we'll leave to our readers. Leading the loop in number of goals tallied we find—of all teams—the Chicago Black Hawks. Smallest scorers—with 26 less goals to their credit—are the Montreal Canadiens. Even the Maple Leafs, sitting fairly comfortably on the top rung, were a couple of goals back of the Black Hawks' mark.

It is, of course, in the "goals against" column, that you find the real story. While Turk Broda had been forced to dig rubber out of the twine a mere 67 times, the unlucky wights condemned to servitude in the Chicago goal had been beaten for a total of 124. And while Canadians—taken on their offensive efforts—show signs of making Frankie Boucher's prediction come true by dropping out of contention, Bill Duran and the rest of their rear-guard are still mighty tough to beat; and so long as they are, the Fluttering Frenchmen can't be counted out.

The moral would seem to be that you could take the old proverb "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches" and, simply by changing one word—"name" to "goaltender"—make it fit the sport of hockey more closely than a 32 sweater on a 38 torso.

The density of population in some parts of the Nile Valley is greater than any country in Europe.

It Didn't Look Like This Just A Few Years Ago—What a little well-planned remodelling will do to even badly run-down farm properties is vividly portrayed in the National Film Board picture "Farm Homes Beautiful" reviewed in the accompanying article. Above is an "after-taking" shot of one such home.

Farm Homes Beautiful

The West's and Simpson's are two typical farm families of Eastern Canada. During the depression, they ran into low prices for their produce, and hard times. There was no money to spare; the farm fences fell into disrepair, the buildings went without paint; and trees, shrubs and flowers were luxuries they just couldn't afford.

Today, however, things are different. Conditions have improved the farmer's lot, and he can now pay some attention to these details, which, although they can hardly be said to increase the farmer's income, do help to beautify the farm home.

In Natural Colors
There are probably many farmers who would like to beautify their homes and grounds; but where do they go for suggestions? There are many manuals and pamphlets on the subject, but one can get a good, general idea of what can be done by seeing the improvements made by the West's and the Simpson's, in a film very recently produced by the National Film Board for the Department of Agriculture, entitled, "Farm Homes Beautiful".

"Farm Homes Beautiful" is a twenty minute film, produced in natural colour kodachrome. As it opens, you see a disappointing panorama of a number of farms in eastern Canada which have had to do without repairs for many years. Trees and flowers are entirely absent, and the air of disrepair, engendered by broken fences and unpainted buildings seems to have led to general untidiness and carelessness.

These Farmers "Do Something"
The camera moves on and finally comes to rest on the farms of the Simpsons and the Wests. These families have come to the conclusion that the time has come to "do something". The Simpsons decide first that their lawn has possibilities; at least, they decide that a lawn would have possibilities. They clear the space that can be used for this purpose, and they fertilize it. A flower border is dug and shrubs are planted around the house. Then, so that the family can appreciate the fine view they have created, they cut down a few of the trees that hindered their view—trees that had grown unsightly and unwieldy. Next, since the house is brick, the Simpsons tear down an old wooden verandah that was in tumbledown condition and no longer served any useful purpose; it had been left standing because it had "always been there".

The Wests tackle the job of beautifying their home in much the same manner. The materials they use come for the most part from their own farm property. Steps leading up to the doorway are made from stones hauled in from the fields. Cedars from the woodlot form the hedge—plus a few shrubs obtained from a nearby nursery. To finish the job around the house, a number of wooden window flower boxes are painted brightly, to add freshness and colour. Around the other side of the house, and old wire-fence, which has long since outlived its purpose and is getting in everyone's way, is torn down and discarded—in a similar manner to an old, weather-beaten toolshed, which through the years has evolved into an unsightly junkhouse.

Small Cash Outlay Needed
Many farmers might think that the changes necessary to improve the look of their farms and homes involve extensive outlays of cash. But this is not necessarily so. A great deal of the success of such programmes comes from using ordinary common sense and in laying out a plan beforehand. This way, lanes, fences and flower borders can be arranged for the greatest convenience. Young trees can be used for backgrounds against the farmhouse, and can serve the purpose of concealing the foundations, if this is desired. Shrubs can help here too, because not only do they improve the appearance of pathways, but they can also hide the necessary eyesores.

A whole section of the film is devoted to the decorative value of such flower bed favourites as lilacs, hollyhocks, daisies and iris. Sample layouts of flower beds are clearly shown, as well as overall plans showing the relations between such flower beds and the farmhouse and its trees and shrubs.

To the farmers who might already have seen the film on the rural film circuits in Ontario this fall and winter, "Farm Homes Beautiful" has provided the germ of an idea on farm beautification—and some practical suggestions as well.

The Whites Lead

Popular belief that the yellow races comprise the bulk of the earth's population has been debunked. The "white" Caucasoid races have a larger membership than have the Mongoloid and Negroid races together. The present day world's population of 2,500 million is about 52 per cent Caucasoid, 40 per cent Mongoloid and but eight per cent Negroid.

Furthermore, the "white" races rapidly are widening the gap. Anthropologists estimate that during the last 300 years, the Negroids have increased 100 per cent, while the Mongoloids have increased 200 per cent. But the extremely prolific "white" races have multiplied themselves 700 times!

Your Handwriting and You

By Alex S. Arnott

Writing Habits

Many writers subconsciously write their every day habits into their writing. The writer with a quick temper has the habit of making the letter "t" cross with the finish of the stroke like the point of a weapon, as a dagger or spear. There are three excellent examples of this type of "t" shown in the illustration for you to study and recognize in your correspondence.

When you go fishing you take along the type of hook you will need to catch the fish of the size and kind you are after. Likewise, the writer whose habits are to acquire things, to reach out and grasp, to hang on to ideas and principals, will make hooks in the writing as shown in the second illustration. Notice that there are three sizes of hooks—small, medium and large, indicating the extent to which the writer will exercise will power to obtain and acquire. The larger the hook, the more and the bigger are the things the writer desires to acquire.

Domineering persons have a way of indicating that they wish to have their own way by making strokes heavier at the last than at the beginning. These strokes, when examined closely, take the shape and form of a club, something to use in getting others to bend to the writer's will.

The reader should keep in mind, however, that a very small portion of writing with one example of the above signs does not necessarily reveal these characteristics. Several or many of the signs should be observed before a decision is made. When you see a number of these signs in one writing, you know the writer has formed the habit, but an occasional hook, pointed or club like "t" bar may not be taken as a permanent feature of the writer's character.

Double Insult
The dentist, after long and futile efforts to collect a bill for the false teeth he had made for a patient, finally took the matter to court. Facing the judge as one whose exasperation has reached its height, he said: "Not only did he refuse to pay me, your honor, but he had the effrontery to gnash at me repeatedly with my teeth!"

BRISTOL BUSY BEES W. I.

The January meeting of the Bristol Busy Bees Institute was held on Friday evening, Jan. 9th, at Pine Lodge. Twelve members were present.

Mrs. D. A. Macfarlane reported that three Christmas cheer boxes were sent. A picture and a calendar were received from Mrs. T. Brown, of Lanark, Scotland. A letter of thanks for a parcel received from Mrs. Brown was also read.

Another parcel of food was reported to have been sent to Mrs. Jennings in London, England.

The sum of $25.00 was given to the Institute County Hospital Fund. It was moved by Mrs. R. Russell and Mrs. G. McMillan, that this society exhibit at both Shawville and Quyon Fairs.

Mr. David Beatty gave a short address which was much enjoyed.

After the meeting adjourned a bean supper and skating party took place and a good sum of money was realized.

VOTE FOR LIQUOR AND BEER AT RENFREW

Renfrew, Jan. 7—Establishment of Government-operated beer and liquor stores in Renfrew, dry since the last local option vote in 1910 was voted by a slim majority today as an estimated 80 per cent of the town's 4,300 eligible voters cast ballots.

Requiring 60 per cent of the total vote cast on each of seven questions up for vote, the beer store question barely crept over the line with 60.91 per cent of the total vote. A little more substantial was the 62.9 per cent vote given the liquor store query.

Voters at all polls soundly trounced the other five questions appearing on the ballot cards. They were: Establishment of men's beverage rooms; women's beverage rooms; licenses for beer and wine with meals; and establishment of cocktail lounges.

Dr. W. A. Brown, chairman of the Renfrew Citizen's Temperance League, remarked first, "The town should be dry!" A meeting of the league would be held shortly, he went on, to check on whether any irregularities had been noted at the polls. No recount would be asked for, despite closeness of the "wet" victories unless any were found.

IN MEMORIAM

Wilson—In loving memory of a kind and loving husband and father. Samuel J. Wilson, who entered into life eternal Jan. 19th, 1946. One precious to our hearts is gone, A voice we loved is stilled; A place made vacant in our home Which never can be filled. Fondly loved and sadly missed. Wife and Sons.

Johnston—In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law, Jack Johnston, who entered into rest Jan. 2nd, 1945.

Dear brother you are not forgotten, Though on earth you are no more; Still in memory you are with me As you always were before.

Ever remembered by Lorena Morrison.

Johnston—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Thomas George Johnston, who passed away Jan. 16th, 1942.

"Grant unto him eternal rest."
Sadly missed by
Wife and Family.

Drew—In fond and loving memory of a dear husband and father, Samuel Drew, who died Jan. 11, 1947.

Time takes away the edge of grief, But memory turns back every leaf, Without farewell he fell asleep, With only memory left to keep, And while he sleeps, a peaceful sleep His memory we shall always keep.
Wife and Family.

Wilson—In loving memory of my dear grandfather, Samuel J. Wilson, who entered into life eternal January 19th, 1946.

My fondest hope from day to day,
My prayer each night is this;
To meet you again where we'll part no more.

In heaven that land of bliss,
Fondly loved by little granddaughter,
Jessie Wilson

Howard—In loving memory of a dear father, John Howard, who passed away Jan. 3 1946.

Past his suffering
Past his pain,
We cease to weep
For tears are vain
He who suffered is at rest.
Remembered by daughters,
Edna and Elsie.

Smiley—In loving memory of our dear son, Merline Smiley, who passed away, January 20, 1937.

God has taken home our darling,
Placed a bud among his flowers,
Taken back the babe he lent us
To a better home than ours.
Sadly missed by parents,
Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Smiley.

with my
WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES?

Make those
WARTIME SAVINGS your
PEACETIME BACKLOG...
this easy way

Now that your War Savings Certificates are beginning to pay off, why not keep this backlog of security intact. Use this money to create a "Fund for the Future" — a welcome asset in time of opportunity, a ready resource in time of need.

Here's a way to ensure that this money you've already saved doesn't slip through your fingers. Endorse and mail your maturing certificates, as described on the back, to Ottawa . . . then, when you receive your cheque, place it in a B of M Savings Account.

Better still — let the Bank of Montreal take care of all redemption details. Just bring all your War Savings Certificates to your nearest B of M branch. As each one comes due over the next few years, we arrange to get the cash for it and credit its full face value (which includes the interest) to your account.

Under this arrangement, there's no need for you to go to the fuss and bother of endorsing each individual certificate — the Bank will attend to this for you.

You'll find this service will save you time, trouble and worry. And while your Savings Account is growing — your War Savings Certificates will be in safekeeping. You'll be surprised at the low service charges, too.

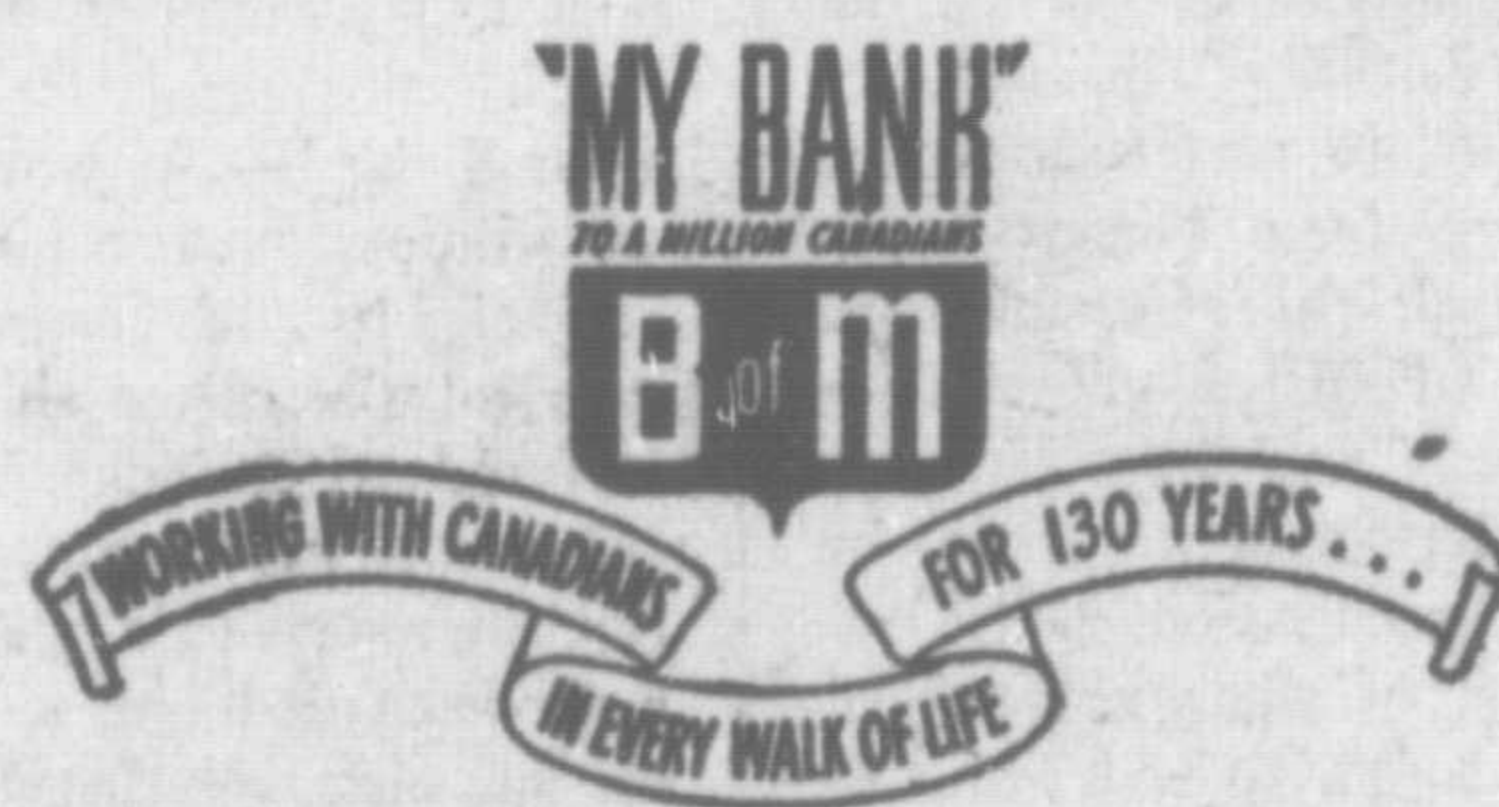

A backlog of security today is your guarantee that you will get the things you want most tomorrow. Hold on to it — add to it — and do a real dollar-building job for the future.

We'd like to help you plan this. Just bring in your War Savings Certificates now . . . we'll do the rest.

If you haven't a savings account with us, we'll gladly open a special one for you.
