MASSED GERMAN ATTACKS FAIL TO BREAK REDS

Nazis Suffering Huge Casualties In Twin Attacks

Official Russian Communiqué Declares that Iron Defences of Odessa Are Repulsing All German Efforts to Take City While Defenders of Leningrad Report that Nazis Have Been Thrown Back.

Moscow, Sept. 6.—(P)—The Red army's defence ring around besieged Odessa was said today to have withstood heavy assault, while at the opposite flank of the Russian-German battlefield the militia-reinforced Red troops battled grimly to hold Leningrad.

Along the entire battlefield between the two fiercely-guarded citadels fighting raged on without let-up, the Soviet mid-day communiqué said, as the war neared the end of its eleventh week.

The communiqué declared Red Army defenders of the big Black Sea port at the Southern end of the battle-line had been joined by Russian sailors, and military reports from the port said citizen soldiers, too, were taking part in the defence.

Without specifying on what front, the war report said units of the Fifteenth German Division had been beaten back with 700 killed and 200 captured. Russian forces were said to have seized eighteen cannon, eight howitzers, six tanks, an armored car and quantities of light arms and ammunition.

Meanwhile sabre-swinging Cossack cavalrymen were reported raiding deep behind Nazi lines.

The Soviet Bureau of Information said that the Cossacks, striking in force and sometimes remaining behind Nazi lines for days, were hacking down enemy infantry reinforcements, cutting communications, burning supplies and raiding enemy headquarters.

Dispatches from the far-stretched battlefield depicted the civilian-reinforced stand at hard-pressed Leningrad, long-attached Kiev and pocketed Odessa as writing a new chapter in the fighting line.

At Leningrad Red Army counter-attacks were said to have thrust back the Germans and retaken four towns at approaches to the city.

A military report from Odessa said Soviet naval forces as well as armed townspeople were standing with the Red Army in the last defence thrown up in a semi-circle around the besieged port.

A special correspondent of Izvestia who reported he went to the port by sea said 82,000 volunteers from the city's 500,000 population had taken place in the fighting line and that work units, ripping cobblestones from the streets, had completed defence works.

(The Nazis have claimed Leningrad and the rail-line town of Schlusselburg, twenty-five miles East, under artillery fire, and Finnish reports said flames from Leningrad were visible at the Finnish-Russian

Commission To Conclude Evidence In Arvida Aluminum Strike Today

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL (Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Chicoutimi, Que., Sept. 6.—(P)—The Royal Commission investigating a five-day strike at the Aluminum Company of Canada plant at nearby Arvida hoped to complete its evidence-taking today, clearing the way for summing up of evidence by counsel next week. The inquiry began two weeks ago.

At yesterday's hearing, Inspector J. D. Lemieux, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, produced a list of forty-eight accusations against persons who were alleged to have taken a more active part than others in the strike last July. The list had been prepared by the security officer at the plant.

Inspector Lemieux referred to the names on the list by number during his evidence, with the list in the hands of the Commission. He said that many of the accusations had proved to be false but that some were true. They ranged from picketing to speech-making, molesting of workers and delivering food to strikers in cars.

Gerard Picard, Secretary of the Confederation of Canadian Catholic Workers, described to the Commission what he had done in an effort to end the strike quickly. He arrived at Arvida July 26, two days after the walk-out started.

NO LIMIT PLACED ON BRITISH FINANCIAL HELP FOR SOVIETS

Edinburgh, Scotland, Sept. 6.—(P)—Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared today that Britain would place no monetary limit on her financial assistance to Soviet Russia.

Describing British assistance to Russia as gladly given, he said in a speech that the Russians "have told us they would not wish any such financial help to be provided as a gift, but they have asked for credit insofar as the help we give them is not matched by supplies they send us."

He said Britain was "standing up well" under the strain of a daily expenditure of 12,500,000 pounds sterling (approximately $55,000,000) and expressed confidence that further taxation in the current financial year can be avoided if inflation is prevented.

HARRIMAN EXPECTED IN LONDON FOR PRELIMINARY CONFERENCE

London, Sept. 6.—(P)—An authoritative United States source said today that W. Averell Harriman, head of the United States mission to the three-power conference in Moscow, is expected here soon for preliminary conferences with British officials.

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE

Montreal, Sept. 6.—(P)—Members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union went out on strike in eighteen shops in the Montreal district last night, it was announced from Union headquarters.

The walkouts followed decision of the chairman of the industry who investigated a wage dispute. The Union did not announce the number of workers involved.

Picard said that he "explained to company officials that the situation appeared serious and I said that if something could be done despite the illegality of the workers' position, it might be possible to reach an agreement hurriedly."

He said company officials offered to meet a committee of eleven from the strike on Saturday night and Sunday morning I met the committee of eleven and defended the conditions before them. They accepted them but said that evacuation of the plant would be the most difficult.

"They went to the plant and took out those who were believed to have the most influence and brought them to see me. They also told me of the dangers of evacuation, but Sunday morning I went to the plant and talked to the strikers, explaining that the committee urged them to leave the plant."

"I explained the three conditions of the company, and soon after everybody left the plant."

Picard expressed belief that working conditions and wages were responsible for the strike.

CLAIMS ITALY IN CONDITION FOR INVASION

King Peter of Yugoslavia Is Convinced that British Invasion of Junior Axis Partner Would Succeed.

London, Sept. 6.—(P)—Refugee King Peter of Yugoslavia, a tall, shy youth, celebrated his eighteenth birthday today, convinced the time is ripe for a British invasion of Italy.

The King has definite ideas about the prosecution of the war and the part he can play in it.

"I believe the British should invade Italy," he confided to an interviewer. "I think the time is ripe."

"I have no regret about the decision I took to fight it out with Hitler," he added, while strolling through the garden surrounding his mother's country house seventy miles from London.

He has been residing with Queen Marie since June, when he arrived in Britain by plane with only an extra suit, shoes and a pair of pajamas. About Britain, he said:

"If I can't be with my people in my own land, I would rather be here."

King Peter is preparing to enter Cambridge this fall, but he appears to be interested more in becoming a Royal Air Force pilot. He indicated his hands have been itching to get at the controls of a plane ever since his arrival.

He told recently of his flight from Yugoslavia to Athens when he piloted the plane most of the way because the pilot was exhausted from three straight nights of aerial combat.

Peter became King of Yugoslavia March 27 in a military coup d'etat that preceded the Nazi invasion of his country. Normally he would have assumed the throne today.

Vichy, Sept. 6.—(P)—Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan gained more power in the Vichy Government today when a sweeping reorganization attached to his office Marshal Petain's administrative service.

Darlan's office thereby took over direction of a proposed network of Commissars of Public Power, a new General Staff of National Defence and other new services.

Gen. Henri Dentz, Vichy's Near East Commander due here today from Syria after his release from British custody, was expected to head the new General Staff. Dentz led the defence in Syria against the British and Free French forces last spring.

Jean Jardel, who worked under Yves Bouthilliers, Minister of National Economy and Finance, was moved into the post of Secretary-General to the Vice Premier.

The three were not identified immediately. Neither was the Nazi sergeant.

The first German warning read: "In case of a new criminal attack a number of hostages corresponding to the gravity of the act committed will be shot."

Paris, Sept. 6.—(P)—The execution of three French "hostages," in reprisal for an attack on a sergeant of the German army of occupation in France last Wednesday was announced by the Germans today.

The executions—first of the reprisals threatened by the Nazis in an effort to halt attacks on troops of occupation—were announced in all Paris newspapers and in notices plastered on walls throughout the city.

The hostages—taken from among thousands of Frenchmen held in prisons, were lined along a wall and shot by a German firing squad.

The German announcement said: "August 22, as a result of the assassination of a member of the German army, it was announced that for any new attacks hostages would be shot."

"Despite this warning a member of the German army has been the victim of a new attack September 3. Inquiry has shown the guilty party could have been none other than a French Communist."

"As reprisals for this dastardly action three French hostages have been shot."

Attack On U.S. Destroyer Likely To Produce Sharp Expansion Of North Atlantic Patrol Strength

By ELMER DULMAGE (Canadian Press Staff Writer)
While it has failed entirely to arouse the United States people to a call for a "shooting war" against Germany, the attempted torpedoing of the destroyer Greer is certain to have immediate and far-reaching effects.

This incident on the North Atlantic is by no means one that will carry the United States into the war. The people have not been shocked by what took place because, once President Roosevelt assigned naval forces to defend Iceland, it was clear to them that vessels carrying supplies to Iceland must inevitably come up against Nazi warships.

But the attempt to sink the Greer in broad daylight, when visibility was good and the markings of the destroyer plainly to be seen, brings home to Washington a necessity to protect more fully United States shipping to and from Iceland.

If the Germans have decided to shoot it out with American naval units on the Atlantic, engaged in what is called "patrol" work, then the U.S. Navy is certain to bring forces to bear capable of handling the situation.

That may mean considerably larger naval units will shortly appear in the Atlantic with consequent expansion of United States efforts, in conjunction with those of Canada and Great Britain, to clear North American waters of Nazi submarines. Thus, the issue, will be left squarely to Hitler.

United States isolationists insist Hitler wants to avoid trouble with the American Government. The Greer incident hardly supports such a claim but the isolationists will have their full answer in the next few months when United States vessels, probably protected by substantial naval units, ply the ocean lanes to Iceland. Hitler can attack if he chooses.

The New York Times today declares United States merchant ships must be armed and sent into supply service from which they now are virtually barred by the Neutrality Act. The Times demands action to assure the safe carrying of war supplies to Britain.

"It is time to arm our merchant ships, to remove the last restrictions imposed on them by the so-called Neutrality Act, and to give them the protection of our navy," says the Times.

The grim battle of the Atlantic, so costly for many months, seems now to have turned in Britain's favor. In a speech this week Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, said July sinkings of British ships were the lowest for any month in more than a year.

In a dispatch today from Reykjavik, Drew Middleton, Associated Press staff correspondent, says it is reported there that not a single merchant ship has gone down along the Northern route from North America to Britain in the last seven weeks.

Faced with vastly improved aerial protection for the shipping he hopes to destroy, backed by United States patrols, Hitler is finding the Atlantic strongly guarded.

(Drew Middleton of the London Bureau of the Associated Press, who covered the British Expeditionary Forces in France and reported subsequent war developments in Britain, has arrived in Iceland. He tells in this dispatch of military activities on the North Atlantic island.)

By DREW MIDDLETON, (Associated Press Staff Writer)
Reykjavik, Iceland, Sept. 6.—(P) The number of British, United States and Norwegian forces on this Atlantic ocean island today exceeds the number of trained troops Britain had to repel invasion in the summer of 1940, after the Dunkerque evacuation. Censorship does not permit disclosure of the number of men or the amount of equipment.

Within a few short months this island has been turned into a Gibraltar of the North. It bristles with guns, airfields dot the countryside and warships of Britain and America patrol the surrounding waters.

Newly-arrived observers are impressed with defences of this key-stone in a communication arch over which arms and materials pass from America to Britain. Gibraltar itself and Malta in the Mediterranean are scarcely more strongly-held than this barren land, which is half again the size of Eire.

In planning the defences of Iceland no possibility has been overlooked.

The island is within range of troop-carrying planes based on the European continent, and the long nights would afford protection for a hostile flotilla creeping down past Greenland to effect a landing in the North.

British and American officers have studied these problems, and

DUKE OF KENT SPENDS QUIET DAY IN QUEBEC

No Official Programme Planned for Stay of Duke of Kent with Aunt and Uncle in Ancient Capital.

Quebec, Sept. 6.—(P)—A day of rest at the summer residence of his uncle, the Governor-General, ahead of the Duke of Kent today, after a busy month of inspecting British Commonwealth Air Training Schools across Canada.

The Duke's official schedule for the day was bare. It was believed he would spend the day with his aunt and uncle, Princess Alice and the Earl of Athlone, and dine with Sir Eugene Fiset, the Lieutenant-Governor, in the evening.

Yesterday the Duke chatted with scores of soldiers, airmen and war workers in a muddy, six-hour tour that took him to Royal Canadian Air Force and army establishments and through an arsenal manufacturing small arms ammunition.

The Duke started his tour of the day with an inspection of the arsenal, where he showed great interest in the work, pausing often to question men and women workers about the operation of their machines.

At No. 4 Manning Depot of the R.C.A.F. the Duke chatted with airmen and inspected all parts of the station. After lunch he visited Valcartier military camp, twenty-one miles from here, and an R.C.A.F. temporary manning depot within the camp limits.

Midway through the tour, officers informed the Duke that the amphibious plane which brought him here Thursday from Halifax was scheduled to be in the hands of a younger brother discharged. The bullet lodged in the older boy's head.

Keen Interest On Next Jap Move To Halt Oil Traffic

Arrival of Two Heavily-Laden United States Tankers at Vladivostok Regarded in Washington as Direct Challenge to Japanese—Blockade of Port Barred by Treaty of Portsmouth Ending Russo-Jap War.

By LLOYD LEHRBAS (Associated Press Staff Writer)
Washington, Sept. 6.—(P)—United States officials watched the North Pacific today for any sign that Japan—after failing to stop the first two American tankers carrying oil for Russia—would attempt to blockade Vladivostok by declaring a "safety zone" across the sea lanes between the chain of Japanese islands which almost encircle the Siberian port.

International law authorities said that aside from involving the traditional American policy of freedom of the seas, any such action by Japan might be interpreted by Russia as a violation of the Treaty of Portsmouth, which ended the Russo-Japanese war September 5, 1905.

(In reply to Japanese representations against the oil shipments the Soviet has informed Tokyo that any attempt to interfere with trade between the United States and Russia would be considered an unfriendly act.)

If the Japanese intended to take any action to prevent American oil deliveries to Russia, it was said, they missed at the start by failing to intercept the tanker L. P. St. Clair, laden with 95,000 barrels of high octane gasoline, which docked at Vladivostok Thursday.

A second American tanker, the Associated, was reported to have arrived at Vladivostok yesterday with a cargo of aviation gasoline.

Still another tanker was said to be due in the Russian port tomorrow on Monday, but in view of the precedent set in the cases of the L. P. St. Clair and the Associated, diplomatic quarters here believed no effort would be made to intercept the third vessel.

As an alternative method of stopping shipments of war supplies to the Soviets, the Japanese Cabinet is reported to be considering a proposal to close the waters around Japan by declaring a "safety zone" through which foreign vessels would be allowed to pass only by Japanese permission.

International law authorities reported that the Russo-Japanese Treaty of 1905 contains a provision which should guarantee freedom of passage to Vladivostok through one of the major sea routes between the United States and Siberia.

They reported Russia ceded the Southern half of the island of Sakhalen to Japan with the understanding that neither Russia nor Japan would "take any military measures which may impede the

Stern Diplomatic Move By United States Will Follow Attack On Ship

Government Seeks to Clarify Identity of Submarine Which Attacked Destroyer Greer as Preliminary to Next Move—Wholesale Submarine Hunt Likely to Result from Declaration of Roosevelt.

ADMIRALTY REPORTS ANOTHER ITALIAN TROOP SHIP TORPEDOED

London, Sept. 6.—(P)—The Admiralty reported today the 11,398-ton Italian liner Esperia had been torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine off Tripoli.

A communiqué indicated the steamship was serving as a troopship in saying that "liners of this type are used by the enemy as troopships."

The Admiralty said the Esperia was in an exceptionally strongly protected convoy consisting of destroyers, torpedo boats, motor torpedo boats and flying boats.

A second communiqué identified a smaller merchantman as one of the Ramb class, owned by the Italian Government, which displace about 4,000 tons but are capable of 18.5 knots and have been used by Italy for Indian Ocean commerce-raiding.

ANOTHER RIFLE VICTIM

Matane, Que., Sept. 6.—(P)—Eleven-year-old Anselme Morissette was killed yesterday when a gun in the hands of a younger brother discharged. The bullet lodged in the older boy's head.

VICTORY EMBLEMS ARE ERECTED

The city authorities have erected large galvanneal signs bearing the V for victory emblem and three dots and a dash at all the entrances to the city and at the principal intersections. It was learned today from City Clerk Antonin Deslauriers. The signs will remain in place until final victory has been achieved.

PLAN FOR COLD WEATHER
Washington, Sept. 6.—(P)—The United States Army has ordered extensive supplies of equipment for operations in cold climates. Contracts awarded by the War Department call for 1,200 snowshoes, 35,000 snowshoe bindings, 39,000 ski bindings, 136 Arctic socks, 15,000 ski type trousers, 160,000 parkas, 68,500 pounds of ski wax and 1,350,000 overcoats.

Speedy Senate-House Compromise Sought For New U.S. Tax Measure

Washington, Sept. 6.—(P)— Jubilant over the Senate's sixty-seven to five approval of the record $3,583,900,000 United States tax bill yesterday, administration leaders strove today to hurry along the adjustments of differences between that measure and similar legislation passed by the House of Representatives.

The bill, which would bring an estimated 4,911,000 additional persons under the income tax structure and thus raise an extra $303,000,000 of revenue, was rushed through the Senate in three days.

Both proponents and opponents said the measure was only a step toward paying the huge defence bills of the United States. The House Ways and Means Committee has estimated that all federal expenditures would exceed $22,000,000,000 during the next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

Existing taxes, plus the Senate-approved levies, are estimated by treasury experts to yield about $13,500,000,000 during the next calendar year. Chairman Walter George (Democrat, Georgia), of the Senate Finance Committee predicted the total federal income would approach $15,000,000,000, however.

To obtain fast Senate approval of the tax measure leaders had to make two important concessions:

1—They dropped a Finance Committee amendment, estimated to raise $50,000,000 a year, which would have prevented husbands and wives in community property states from dividing income for tax purposes.

Washington, Sept. 6.—(P)—An effort to fix officially the nationality of a submarine which attacked the United States destroyer Greer was indicated today as the Government's next step toward clarifying the incident preliminary to possible stern diplomatic action.

Although Washington authorities were tight-lipped on the question of nationality, word came from Reykjavik, Iceland, where the Greer put in with her cargo of mail yesterday, that the submarine had been described there as a German vessel.

Authors of this description, which passed both Reykjavik and London censors, were not given, but the implication was that the destroyer's officers might have gathered some evidence bearing on the vital matter of what country should be held accountable for the action.

Such evidence, if found conclusive here, would settle one of the two principal uncertainties still involved in the incident and, through diplomatic protests, might lead to clarification of the other one—whether the attack constituted a deliberate attempt to sink an American vessel in what would amount to a challenge to American policy of keeping hostile craft out of the sea lanes to Iceland.

If such was the purpose, United States reaction appeared to have been made clear beyond doubt yesterday when President Roosevelt declared to his press conference that a hunt was on for the sea raider and American ships had instructions to "eliminate" it.

Obvious difficulties of identification promptly gave rise to speculation that the hunt and "elimination" policy might result in a general drive by warships of the Atlantic patrol to seek out and destroy hostile craft operating along the Northern sea lanes.

The particular submarine which launched several torpedoes at the Greer Thursday with such poor aim that all but one already have paid the price of its assault as a result of counter-attack by the destroyer.

A dispatch from Reykjavik last night said that officers and crew of the Greer reported they might have sent the attacker to the bottom. According to their dispatches, the destroyer, aided by reconnaissance of British planes, located the submarine and dropped powerful depth charges into the depths in which listening devices indicated the sub had taken refuge.

Normally evidence of wreckage comes to the surface but officers of the destroyer said that the attacker could have sunk without leaving a trace in the deep water.

Three possible explanations were

WAR BULLETINS

Berlin — Inhabitants of German-occupied Lithuania have been made subject to the labor draft under terms of a decree issued by the Reich's Commissioner for the East.

Managua, Nicaragua — A German request has been made to Nicaragua to close her consular offices in Germany and Nazi-occupied countries and Nicaragua has directed the Germans to withdraw their consular offices in this country, President Anastasio Somoza announced.

Berlin — The Germans claimed today their bombers attacked the Suez Canal area last night, causing damage and fires at the Ismailia airport.

The night before, the Germans said, a 10,000-ton ship and another of 4,000 tons were destroyed by bombs dropped on the canal.

(There was no British confirmation of German Suez raids.)

NOTICE

Honorable Mr. Edgar Rochette, Minister of Labour of the Province of Quebec, in conformity with the provisions of Section 5 of the Collective Agreement Act (4 Geo. VI, chapter 24, amended by 5 Geo. VI, chapter 60), hereby gives notice that he has received a request of extension of the collective labour agreement relating to the barbers and hairdressers trade which territorial jurisdiction comprises the municipalities of Farnham, Cowansville, Bedford and Sweetwater.

The notice of extension of this agreement has been published in the Quebec Official Gazette of the 24th of August, 1941, in the following manner: Pursuant to the provisions of section 5 of the Collective Agreement Act (4 Geo. VI, chapter 24, amended by 5 Geo. VI, chapter 60), notice is hereby given by the Honourable Mr. Edgar Rochette, Minister of Labour, that the collective labour agreement mentioned hereunto presented to him a request to the effect that the collective labour agreement entered into between:

ON THE ONE PART: C. A. Bernard, J. Lacoste, W. Casavant and Henri J. Giguere, master barbers and hairdressers, of Cowansville and Sweetwater; G. Levesque and B. Messier, master barbers and hairdressers, of Bedford; J. R. Renou, master barbers and hairdressers, of Farnham; E. Dulong and Lionel Martin, master barbers and hairdressers, of Farnham;

AND, ON THE OTHER PART: J. B. H. Larocque, Jean Alain and R. Cote, barber and hairdresser, of Farnham; J. B. Larocque, Arthur Dubois, Wilfrid Bouchard, Maurice Gendron and Rene Racicot, barber and hairdresser, of Farnham; T. St. Laurent, barber and hairdresser, of Bedford; J. G. Gauthier, barber and hairdresser, of Farnham; and the employees of the trade, concerned according to the following conditions:

I. Definitions: For the purposes of the present agreement, the following terms shall have the significance hereinafter given to them: a. The words "barber-hairdresser" designate any person, male or female, who shaves, cuts, trims, clips, fixes and sings the hair, cleans the head with a shampoo, gives massages on an embelishes the face, the skin, the scalp, the hair and treats the hands and nails.

G. For each supplementary journeyman barber-hairdresser, $8.25 for each working hour, plus a 50% commission on all gross receipts exceeding $20.00 made by him during any one working day.

H. The wages mentioned in subsection "a" of this section shall be paid at least every week.

I. Every employer in a barber-hairdresser parlor who lodges and boards his journeyman barber-hairdresser or apprentice barber-hairdresser shall charge to them more than $2.00 per week for lodging and not more than $4.00 per week for food.

J. Rates to be charged: Every artisan or apprentice barber-hairdresser shall charge to those retaining the service of the said barber-hairdresser parlor at least the following rates: Shave $0.15 Haircut, adults of both sexes $0.35 Haircut, children of both sexes of less than 16 years of age, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday $0.25 Haircut, children of both sexes, less than 16, on Saturday $0.35 In addition, extra charge to those more than 16 for children of both sexes of less than 16 years of age) The first four days of the week $0.25 Shave $0.15 Haircut for ladies, complete, with scissors $0.50 Haircut for ladies, with clipper only $0.30 Singing of hair $0.25 Ordinary shampoo $0.25 Dry shampoo $0.35 Special oil shampoo $0.50 Hairdressing, complete, with rose $0.50 Bonnet massage $0.50 Massage-lotion $0.25 Pivert, Chealand and Roger Gallet lotion $0.25 Pivert, Chealand and Roger Gallet tonic $0.25 Neck shave $0.10 Haircut, at home $0.50 Haircut, at home, with clipper only $0.35 Scissors sharpening $0.15 Teaching institutions are governed by one provision of the present decree and are not considered as homes.

VI. Apprenticeship: A. Before the beginning of his apprenticeship, the apprentice barber-hairdresser shall ask the Parity Committee an apprenticeship booklet in which shall be inscribed the service specifications of such apprentice with each employer. B. The apprentice barber-hairdresser shall give the Parity Committee his photograph the size of which to be determined by the said committee. This photograph shall be attached to the apprenticeship booklet and shall remain in the possession of the Parity Committee until the apprentice has been accepted for the duration of the apprenticeship. C. No apprentice shall be accepted if he is younger than sixteen years of age, older than thirty and he must have completed the sixth year of the elementary grade. D. The duration of the apprenticeship shall be three (3) years in a barber-hairdresser parlor as defined in subsection "a" of section I of the present agreement; the apprentice, who has obtained a journeyman barber-hairdresser's certificate may keep his apprentice's booklet in which his service specifications as journeyman barber-hairdresser shall be inscribed. Such information shall prove that the journeyman barber-hairdresser has arrived at the apprenticeship period required by the agreement and that the said journeyman is holding a certificate of competency as journeyman in a barber-hairdresser parlor. H. The number of apprentices per barber-hairdresser parlor shall be the following: Per parlor of four (4) regular journeymen, two (2) apprentices. The employer in a barber-hairdresser parlor shall be considered as a regular journeyman barber-hairdresser if he practices the trade himself. I. The wages of the apprentices shall be as follows: First six months $ 2.00 Second six months 4.00 Third six months 6.00 Fourth six months 8.00 Fifth six months 10.00 Sixth six months 12.00 J. The apprenticeship for the trade governed by the present agreement shall be exclusively in the barber-hairdresser parlor. VII. Artisan: A. An artisan barber-hairdresser's certificate may be issued to any person who has completed a period of at least three (3) years as journeyman barber-hairdresser and who has undergone successfully the special examination required by the Parity Committee. B. No one but an artisan barber-hairdresser, holder of the certificate mentioned in subsection "a" of this section shall have the right to operate as an artisan barber-hairdresser. C. The period to be served by the journeyman barber-hairdresser mentioned in subsection "a" of this section shall be established by the apprentice booklet defined in subsection "a" of section VI of the agreement. The journeyman barber-hairdresser already holding his certificate of competency at the time of the coming into force of the decree may obtain a journeyman booklet from the Parity Committee. He must prove his years of service with an affidavit and undergo the examination required before obtaining the artisan's certificate. D. A certificate of employer in a barber-hairdresser parlor may be issued to any person who has completed a period of at least three (3) years as journeyman barber-hairdresser and who has undergone successfully the special examination required by the Parity Committee. E. The certificate of employer in a barber-hairdresser parlor, owned by a person, company, partnership or corporation, shall be opened under the active and permanent direction of a journeyman holding a certificate of competency as barber-hairdresser according to the provisions of subsection "a" of the present section. VIII. General provisions: A. B. Curtains or blinds in each barber-hairdresser parlor shall be raised before the opening and after the closing time of the parlor, and all day on Sunday and holidays mentioned in the present agreement to allow the checking, from the outside, of the said parlor. C. No employer shall have the right to diminish the wages specified for the regular journeyman barber-hairdresser on a week with a holiday. D. Any one operating, whether in partnership or as a firm, a barber-hairdresser parlor shall, upon request of the Parity Committee, present a certified copy of the registration of such partnership or firm name proving the personality of the owner or owners. E. No artisan or employer in a barber-hairdresser parlor shall have the right to employ a person who is not registered in the Parity Committee. F. All remunerations shall be made in conformity with the provisions of the decree and all contracts on a commission basis shall be illegal unless it implied higher remuneration than the minimum rates mentioned in the decree. G. No establishment shall have the right to offer or give services, rationales, to apply rates or schemes for the purpose of reducing the rates established by this agreement to give articles to lower the rates or to attract customers by means of contemplating the reduction of the said rates. H. No artisan or journeyman shall have the right to practise his trade in places or establishments not designated in subsection "a" of section I of the present agreement, unless he has previously obtained a permit from the Parity Committee. IX. The Committee charged with the enforcement of the present agreement shall assume the rights and obligations of the Parity Committee charged with the enforcement of decree No. 762. X. The decree shall become effective from the date of its publication in the Quebec Official Gazette and shall remain in force for a period of one year (1). It shall then be renewed automatically unless one of the parties to the agreement gives the other, in writing, notice of its intention to repeal same, at least 60 days before the date of its expiration. During the thirty days from the date of the publication of this notice, the Honourable Minister of Labour shall receive the observations of the interested parties and shall endeavour to present a report to the Parity Committee.

GERARD TREMBLAY, Deputy Minister of Labour, Department of Labour, Quebec, August 30th, 1941.

500 TEACHERS IN TOWNSHIPS GET T.B. TEST

More than 500 teachers in the Eastern Township district have received instructions from the Department of Health at Quebec to report for a medical examination to determine if they have any traces of tuberculosis and that they must have their certificates showing that they are free of any contamination before assuming their teaching duties.

The conduct of the examination in this district is being made under the supervision of Dr. P. P. Beaudry, director of the Provincial Government, and it is learned that a small number of cases have already been determined. Presence of the tubercular germ automatically prevents the teachers from assuming their duties until such time as they are given a clear bill of health.

Obligatory examination of all teachers, both religious and laymen, has long been a subject of discussion in this province, many objecting to such legislation, but for some time past there has been a change of opinion on the matter and it received the approval of both legislators and educationists.

More progress has been made in educational hygiene in this province during the past few years than during a quarter of a century but many leading physicians believe that there is still need for a greater effort along these lines.

Persons queried on the matter were all in favor of even more strict legislation governing such examinations under present world conditions with the recurrent danger of an epidemic of some nature as a result of war.

Donald Bozer Reported Killed And Edmund Asselin "Missing" Overseas

Two New Royal Canadian Air Force Casualties Well Known in Sherbrooke—Sgt.-Pilot Bozer, Son of Chief of Police T. D. Bozer, of Lennoxville—Pilot-Officer Asselin, Montreal, Was Born in Bromptonville.

Two more young men who are well known in Sherbrooke have been added to the rapidly increasing casualty list of the Royal Canadian Air Force Overseas. They are Sergeant-Pilot Donald Bozer, of Lennoxville, who has been announced killed in a crash, and Pilot Officer Edmund T. Asselin, of Montreal, who is reported missing as the result of air operations on September 4.

Sergeant-Pilot Bozer, 25, is the son of Thomas D. Bozer, Chief of Police of Lennoxville, and Mrs. Bozer, Enlisting in the R. C. A. F. last July, he was trained at Mount Hope, Ont., and Saskatoon, after leaving Manning Pool, graduated last February and went Overseas in March.

Formerly employed by the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Ltd., in Lennoxville, Sgt.-Pilot Bozer attended Lennoxville High School and graduated in 1934. He was a noted athlete, having played football and hockey in school, intermediate hockey for Lennoxville, football for Sherbrooke Athletics of the Quebec Rugby Football Union and softball for Lennoxville in the City League.

Pilot Officer Asselin, son of Councilor J. O. Asselin, Chairman of the Montreal Executive Committee, is a nephew of Mrs. J. H. Blue, of Sherbrooke, and Ashton R. Tobin, of Bromptonville, and a grandson of Mrs. E. W. Tobin, of this city. He is twenty years old.

Born in Bromptonville, P.O. Asselin was educated at Bishop's College School, Lennoxville, and Loyola College, Montreal, and in March 1939, he was assigned to active duty in March soon after receiving his wings.

If Winter Comes Can Aldermen Be Far Behind—Cleaning Up Banks Of Magog River?

Several years ago the view of the Magog River from the East side of Dufferin Avenue Bridge might have been a sight for sore eyes, but today it is just a sight which makes you sore.

For some time now citizens have complained that the disgraceful condition of the banks is such that it does not embellish the beauty of this particularly attractive spot but rather makes it an eyesore both for local residents and for visitors. The latter are more likely to realize the condition because few of them pass over the Dufferin Avenue bridge without stopping.

In response to a number of complaints, the Record last week published a photograph of the site and drew the attention of the Mayor and Aldermen to the condition which existed and urged that prompt action be taken to clean up the banks.

But in spite of these repeated complaints the condition of the banks today is worse than last week.

In all fairness to the Mayor and Councilors, however, it is quite possible that they did not see the photograph published in the Record last Saturday. At that time they were guests of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company finding out what makes the turbines turn at La Tuque and admiring the beauty of the odd speckled trout on the side.

Because of their love of the great outdoors it is still all the more impossible to understand how the Councilors have failed to clean up one of the nicest outdoor spots in Sherbrooke.

Of course, being lovers of nature, they might be waiting to let nature take its course and expect that when the level of the water rises that it will wash away the debris on the banks.

According to Superintendent Gaston Masse of the Gas and Electricity Department, the chances of the water level mounting are pretty slim, so that more or less eliminates that possibility.

There is one consolation for the citizens, however. Winter will probably do something about it before the Aldermen get around to it.

WILLIE DUSSAULT SAYS:

Fall is the ideal time to institute a thorough check-up in your home, for with winter in the offing, your comfort depends on the weather-tightness of your home just as your happiness depends on its convenience. Examination for possible faults should be systematic in order that all repairs be made before serious damage occurs. Probably you are aware of some things that need fixing, but a thorough check either by yourself or by a competent builder may reveal others. Six basic parts of your house should be periodically checked so that you can keep comfort at the maximum and repairs bills at the minimum: walls, ceilings and floors; basement; plumbing; electrical installations; insulation; exterior. I should be glad to help you in this and to give you an estimate of costs. I have an organization of expert workmen capable of doing the whole job.

Missing Man Was At Station While Police Dragged River

Unidentified Man Who Asked Local Police for Protection Yesterday Afternoon Proved to Be Object of Exhaustive Search in St. Francis River—Had Spent Previous Night in Cell While Stream Was Being Dragged.

A most unusual solution has been provided for the "mystery of the missing body" supposed to be locked in the bosom of the St. Francis River after an unidentified man ran into the stream about two miles from this city between Sherbrooke and Lennoxville on Thursday morning.

While police dragged and searched the river throughout Thursday afternoon and well into the night, the would-be suicide was very much alive and well, and was far from being drowned. He spent Thursday night in a cot at the Marquette Street Police Station.

While Provincial Police continued the dragging operations Friday morning, the unknown man was still very much alive and well. Sub-Inspector Edmond Laramee and his dragging party were all set to go out again yesterday afternoon when municipal police authorities announced that they had the man.

Authorities said he came into the station on Thursday night to sleep, and that no particular notice of him was taken, since several transients sleep there every night.

He came back to the station yesterday afternoon at about two o'clock and asked for protection. Since such requests are unusual so early in the day, the police became a bit suspicious, and with a little prodding the man came out with the story of his escapade. He is reported to have asked to be put in jail for six months.

The unusual proceedings of Thursday morning came to light when the Lennoxville Canadian National Railways station agent communicated with the local department at about eleven-forty-five o'clock.

He reported that an unknown man had made two attempts to have himself run over by a Sherbrooke-Island Ford freight train. When the train was going through a cut near an abandoned gravel pit about two miles from this city, the engineer saw the man lying on the track. The engineer and fireman got out of the engine cab and chased the man off, whereupon he ran into nearby woods.

Climbing back into the train to move off, the two trainmen were not

FURTHER SACRIFICES CALLED FOR

Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, has announced that the people of Canada are to face further restrictions on the supply of durable goods for civilian consumption in an effort to increase the quantity of raw materials available for the defence industries, many of which report that their expansion activities are somewhat hampered by a shortage of materials required for the manufacture of shells, guns, planes, etc.

But it is to be hoped that any curtailment move will involve two principles—that it be applied equally to all sections of the population, and that it be sufficient to be effective. If the first is lacking, there is bound to be growing discontent in all quarters, one section naturally becoming rather vexed if they are forced to give up luxuries and even necessities only to find that their neighbors, through some sort of influence or privilege can go along in the same old manner.

If the restrictions are not sufficient to be effective, they will serve no purpose and only breed discontent. They must accomplish the purpose desired, otherwise they will defeat their own ends. The people are prepared to go the whole way, or at least the vast majority are ready but they do not want their efforts nullified by some less considerate and patriotic individuals who are unwilling or unable to sacrifice any of their own privileges for the common good.

This has been one of the principal criticisms of the present administration's war effort to date. It has put forward many fine projects and launched many fine schemes, but it has been lax in carrying them out, plan after plan meeting defeat or at least experiencing a rough passage owing to the unwillingness of the Government to take a firm stand. It has been too prone to listen to the demands of noisy minorities rather than consider the general needs of the country.

THE GREER INCIDENT

Exactly what the commander of the German submarine which attacked the United States Destroyer Greer bound to Iceland with mail for the United States troops there, had in the back of his mind may never be known, and from certain reports emanating from Washington he may never be heard from again as the commander of the attacked vessel did not take the affair in very good spirits and reacted in a manner which may have left the marauder at the bottom of the Atlantic. But whether the attack was a case of mistaken identity or whether it was a deliberate move to scare off the United States convoys, it will have the result of moving the United States one step closer to actual participation in the war.

No one expects actual hostilities to develop over the Greer incident, but President Roosevelt has made it clear that the United States Government does not consider it of minor importance and that it is determined to take definite action to see that the offence is not repeated, and to "eliminate" the offender if it is discovered. This is likely to result in a series of incidents taking place with increasing frequency to the point where an actual if undeclared naval war will be underway between United States and German vessels. The only alternative to this will be for the Reich to recognize the new position occupied by the United States as the result of the protective moves in Iceland and Greenland and not interfere with United States or United States convoyed vessels in these areas.

Of course, the possibility exists that Germany may be finding itself in a critical position as the result of the aid being extended to Great Britain and Russia by the United States and has decided that drastic steps must be taken to stop the flow, even if it involves the United States entry into the war. Perhaps the Fuehrer, who is a noted gambler, has decided to tackle the United States now when he has some military power left, rather than to wait for a later date when he is weaker and the United States stronger.

In any case, the Greer incident is unlikely to cut down in any way the flow of armaments from the United States to Great Britain and Russia, and may even serve to increase the production.

PROMPT ACTION NEEDED

The decision of the regular life and fraternal insurance organizations operating in the Province of Quebec to discontinue making loans or cash surrender settlements to married policyholders where the wife is named as the beneficiary draws attention to a piece of Quebec legislation which should be amended at the earliest possible moment for the general good of all concerned. The decision of the companies follows a judgment of the Quebec Court of Appeals which declares that neither the husband nor the wife, jointly or separately, could properly obtain such privileges when the wife was the beneficiary.

The judgment was based on an interpretation of the Husband and Parents' Life Insurance Act adopted in 1878 when loans on life insurance were unheard of, and as a result it is considered that an amendment to the Act will be necessary at the next session of the Legislature if the Quebec laws are to be brought into line with those of the other provinces and states and to give Quebec residents the same privileges as enjoyed elsewhere.

Policy loans have become a major factor in the economic situation of the country, being one of the established means of obtaining credit, and any law which restricts these privileges unduly for any group should be changed without delay. If special legislation is necessary, the Government should give the companies an immediate pledge that the required measure, made retroactive, will be introduced and thus pave the way for the restoration of normal business methods.

Medals were awarded to the opening of the Knowlton Academy to the following pupils: Harold Ralston, Frances Lenore Wilson, Harry Shufelt, Gilbert Dryburgh and George Savage.

At the annual meeting of the Brome Lake Boating Club, the following officers and directors were elected: W. R. Grainger, J. R. Kennedy, F. L. Nunns, F. N. Williams, Rev. E. M. Taylor, J. E. Fay, and J. M. Webb.

Taking advantage of the opportunity to combine business and pleasure, the Eastern Canada Passenger Agents' Association met in Sherbrooke and were guests at the Sherbrooke Fair.

The Sawyerville School has re-opened with the following staff of teachers: Principal Stanley Scott; Miss Mabel Cromwell and Miss Cora Percival.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The Son of man shall come in the glory of His Father with His angels, and then He shall reward every man according to his works.—Matthew 16:27.

God gives to every man the virtue, temper, understanding, taste, that fits him into life, and lets him fall just in the niche he was ordained to fill.—Cowper.

EVENING AT NEWPORT

Garden at twilight under a green sky, And with the sea lapping beyond the hedge, Quiet now after a blue and restless day, Throwing its waters gently on the ledge Of the opposing rock. The palace dog Slowly descends the steps, and there we drop Our pillows down, and seat ourselves to watch The goldfish in the pool glide out and stop, Then circle underneath the lily pads, How green the grass is under the still sky! How shine the flowers within their formal beds! How soft the twilight drops, where you and I Sit silently and count the moments falling! There are few sounds, no turning gulls are calling, No insects hum—nothing but sky and sea, Garden and quiet, blessing you and me.

—A Jacqueline Shaw.

The Importance Of Foundations

Prof. the Rev. H. C. Burt, Lennoxville.

1 Corinthians III, 11: "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

Time and again we hear it said—and indeed it cannot be repeated too often—that the world's confusion and misery today is the result of a general falling away of "modern man" from the "faith once for all delivered unto the saints." By this I do not mean "the faith as envisaged by Rome or Canterbury, or Geneva; but the Christian idea, as such, as taught the Corinthian Church, by him who is spoken of as a "master-builder"—the very first man to preach Christ in that metropolis.

When St. Paul left Corinth he sent from Ephesus his friend Apollos to carry on the work. Now Apollos, often impugning his authority, and even defaming his character! These glorified Peter, and tried to enforce upon the Gentiles the worn-out ritual of the Mosaic Law. There were others who supported Paul, and others still who acknowledged the authority of no human teacher. Thus early, there had happened to the Church at Corinth what has happened and is happening in the Christian Church ever since. And yet they were all "Christians," all recognized the one Divine Head, and held certain great doctrines derived from Him, as a bond of union. The broadest and deepest diversities at Corinth were still within the Body of Christ, and did not run down into the foundation! That was only One—Jesus Christ.

Thus, St. Paul would not recognize as Christians those that deny the Divinity of our Lord, looking on Him as possibly, slightly superior to Apollos or Paul. Such people are not on the "foundation," in the Apostle's sense of the term. Experience shows that, as a rule, they do most for the furtherance of Christ's work who have a definite creed and settled Church attachment. The attitude of many people towards Christianity is irrational, for, if it is true at all, it must be the greatest of all truths! With many a man in these days it is little short of a crime to err in a matter of business. How carefully he informs himself about the state of the market, the rise and fall of stocks and shares! But when it comes to religion, he is satisfied with a minimum of conventional conformity, and on such a flimsy foundation the whole superstructure of his faith is built! It may be that, many years ago, in a Christian home, the "foundation" of the man's faith was well and truly laid, but no attention has been paid to it since; the mutations of a worldly life have gathered until at least even the man himself hardly knows whether the foundations are still there!

We are reminded of the man in the parable who built his home on sand. He is quite aware that sand is not the ideal foundation for a home, but merely shuts his eyes to the fact that the foundation of a building is a matter of prime importance. The building of a house is compared by our Lord to the profession and practice of religion. Thus, a house is for rest. It is our place of abode, our home. Similarly, religion is the resting place of the soul. A house is for shelter from the elements, so religion is the soul's shelter from care, and fear, and temptation. A house is for comfort, its ideal is happiness and peace, so is it with religion. Certain "broad-minded" individuals sometimes assert that it does not matter what a man believes; but the truth is, nothing matters so much, as what a man believes!

Herr Hitler believes that the German State is God and himself its Prophet. Race, with him, has become a Religion. On this "foundation" he has built up his regime of falsehood, murder, and tyranny. Ludendorff, Germany's greatest tactician in Kaiser William's War, became under Hitler a pagan follower.

FROM THE PEN OF E. T. WRITERS

TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS, THE DUKE OF KENT

We hail your welcome visit to our home As one more act of British grace; Another beacon hung in friendship's demer To cheer and unify our race; Another symbol of the growing ties That urge and bind enlightened men To cultivate the comradeship that lies Half-hidden to our blinded ken. None but acute intelligence can steal Into the yearning hearts of men; None but the kindly-seeking soul can feel. And fruitfully new hope again; This you exhibit in your daily life Among our varied types and breeds, Restoring confidence where doubt was rife, Instilling hope for daily needs. We thank you and your England for these signs Of unity unmarred by rift, This co-adhesiveness in right's designs To win for freedom's upward lift. We thank your condescending sense that worth Is found in every grade of life And must be saved to beautify the earth And win us from debasing strife. We pledge full fealty to your noble kin, Our well-beloved King and Queen; God grant them fortune until we win Return of freedom's unsoiled sheen.

"Doesn't this ship tip a great deal?" "Not that I've noticed, ma'am. She leaves that to the passengers."

"What is the most pathetic picture in the world?" "A horse fly sitting on a radiator cap."

"Decidedly a suspicious-looking fellow," muttered Mr. Smith. All the Smith family gathered in the drawing room and focussed their attention on a shabby man who was eyeing the house furtively.

"I guess he's a burglar reconnoitering," said 16-year-old Charlie. "More likely one of Madge's admirers," drawled 21-year-old Albert. "Mother, always charitable, did not think the young man looked a criminal."

"Father," whispered Charlie, "he's making for the side door." "Father looked uneasy. "Come on, Albert," he said, with forced sprightliness. "Let's see what his game is."

"You found the young man leaning over the side gate—sniffing." "You the boss here?" he asked Mr. Smith. "I am."

"Well, I fancy the back of your house is on fire." It was.

Smith: "Why does Yearwood look so weebezone?" Jones: "Well, his wife demanded two-thirds of the family window-box garden for her flowers and only let him have the remaining third for his string beans and tomatoes."

TOURING FOURSOME FINDS GOOD BRIDGE IN ALL SECTIONS

At St. Louis our motor trip came to an end. It is necessary to rush back to New York, so Waldemar von Zedwitz, Mrs. McKenney, and I returned by train. Mrs. Albert Rockwell continued on to Warren, Pa. in her automobile.

During the train ride back, a discussion arose between us as to where we had found the best bridge. We agreed good bridge is played throughout the United States.

There are Master players in every territory. So while I cannot say where the best bridge is played, I am going to give you what I think was the best bridge hand of the entire trip.

South took the first trick with the spade ace and West won the second with the king.

A low diamond lead was won in dummy and a heart lead brought out the ten and queen. Another low diamond lead was pounced upon by North, who led a third spade. South came through with a brilliant coup by discarding the king of hearts.

This discard left declarer unable to establish the hearts without let-

OBITUARIES
MRS. REGINALD MERRIFIELD, OF BARNET, VT.
North Hatley, Sept. 6.—The death occurred in the Sherbrooke Hospital on Sunday morning, July 27, of Amy Alberta Johnson Merrifield. She had been in failing health for some time and came here from Barton, Vt., on July 1 for the summer months, but her condition became worse and she was taken to the Sherbrooke Hospital on July 12. Eldest daughter of Hanson Latorst Johnson and the late Phoebe Bennett Johnson, she was born on June 24, 1893, in the old home where her father was born. On September 7, 1927, she was united in marriage to Rev. R. A. Merrifield in the Minton United Church. Of this union one child was born, Lloyd Laforest. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Merrifield went to Breckenridge, Que., for one and one half years, going from there to South Stukely. In 1931 they went to Brooks, Me., and to Barnet, Vt., in 1936. D.D. of Northridge, of St. Andrew's Church, Sherbrooke, assisted by Rev. Chauncey A. Adams, of Burlington, Vt., Secretary of the Vermont Congregational Conference, and by Rev. Dr. Read. The casket, which was covered by a profusion of beautiful flowers, was borne to its last resting place in the Reedville Cemetery by old schoolmates and intimate friends, Harold Lord, Henry Parker, Charles Pitman, Charles Rublee, Fred Conner and William Bean. FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

The Hidden Treasure

BETTY and Bobby were delighted when their father and mother decided to take a cottage at Mirror Lake.

Mirror Lake is round and reflects the trees and banks just as though it were a looking glass.

In front of the cottage, there was a fine, sandy beach where the children loved to play. Betty had lots of fun rolling her hoop, but Bobby was more interested in building forts and houses in the sand. He had a little flag to stick in the top of the fort when it was done, and a small, stuffed dog which Aunt Jane had just made, answered nicely for a sentinel on guard.

Betty could not see any sense if there was nothing inside of the forts or back of them, to defend.

"What's the use of having a fort?" she protested. "If there are no Indians or enemies to keep away? And besides, we haven't any guns to put in the fort!"

Bobby looked troubled.

"There are treasures inside this fort," he defended stoutly. "Way down to deep you can't see 'em. And wait."

He ran back on the shore and returned with some round sticks which he thrust into the sides of the little mound.

"There," he said, "those are guns, and if anybody comes round here trying to take this fort, I'll shoot 'em!"

"You couldn't shoot very hard with a stick," scoffed Betty. "Let's dig a well and bring some water from the lake in our little sand pails and fill it up."

"All right agreed Bobby, 'the people in the fort might need a drink.'"

The children went busily to work.

"Oh, see!" cried Bobby, "the water is coming into our well of its own self!"

Sure enough the sand at the bottom of the little hole they were digging was getting damp.

"I wonder where it comes from," asked Bobby.

Betty thought a minute.

"It comes from the lake, of course. It soaks through the sand. I know because the sand is like a sponge and takes the water up. It comes creeping, creeping along either on top or underneath."

The children wailed, thinking that a lot of water would run into their well, but it didn't. So they took their pails and filled up the hole with water.

"There," said Bobby, "now the people in the fort can drink all they want to."

"Oh," squealed Betty, "just look! The water is going down fast!"

Sure enough, soon there was only a little puddle at the bottom.

"I know what's happening," Betty declared. "The water is soaking into the sand at the sides of the well. It runs out just as we thought it would run in."

"If we could put some cement and stones inside the well like the one over at the farmhouse, the sand wouldn't tumble in, and the water wouldn't run out. I'll tell you something sparkled and threw out tiny rainbows which made her blink.

She put her fingers down cautiously and picked up a handful of the fine, clean, white sand, and there lay a ring with a sparkling stone in the back of it, held by two little green-gold dragons.

Betty slipped the ring over her thumb, but it was much too large. Perhaps it would make a bracelet for her doll. The sand was embedded in the prongs which held the stone, so Betty went down to the edge of the lake and washed it and rubbed it on her little, checked play suit. The stone sparkled more than ever. She went back and pol-what," continued Bobby, his eyes sparkling. "I'll go and ask Muvver for that little piece of stove pipe under the edge of the cottage. Then we'll put a lot of little stones in the bottom, and the water can't get away."

"Let's have the well right in the middle of the pile of sand where the fort is," urged Betty, "for it is softer to dig there."

Bobby looked disapproving, but he knew that Betty would have her own way, and it was going to be fun to see if the new well would really hold water.

Betty kept on digging. After while she stopped to rest as it was warm working in the sun. As she peered into the hole she had made,

SCHOOL THINGS!

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

LOOK at my new BROWN school bag!" cries BROWN-haired Teddy. "See it zips open like this and the inside is RED!"

"Oh," cries YELLOW-haired Susie May. "I have something new for school, too! These three pencils, one RED, one BLUE and one GREEN. And a new YELLOW notebook to write in!"

Teddy wears a BLUE sweater and GRAY (use BLACK lightly) trousers. His tie is RED and his socks are BLUE. He wears BROWN shoes.

Susie May wears a PINK (use RED lightly) dress with a white collar. Her socks are PINK also, but her slippers are BLACK. Her hair ribbon is BLACK.

"I want to go to school, too!" says BLACK-haired Polly, looking on. Polly wears a light PURPLE dress and darker socks of the same color. Her shoes are BLACK.

"You'll go next year, Polly," says Teddy. "Then you can get a set of school pencils and notebooks, too."

"That will be fine!" says Polly. "I think school is nice, don't you?"

"Almost as good as vacation time!" says Susie May.

The rug on the BROWN floor is light BLUE with a darker BLUE border.

Teddy has his books on a YELLOW stool with BROWN legs. The walls of the room are light GREEN, and the curtains a darker GREEN.

All three children have PINK cheeks and lips.

Henry Hudson

ABOUT three hundred and thirty-two years ago in the month of September a small Dutch craft sailed bravely upon the water of the great Atlantic. This little boat had been sent out by a Dutch East India Company with the object of finding a shorter route to the Orient. The commander of the Dutch craft was an Englishman named Henry Hudson. He believed that the northern-most part of the recently discovered new country was water and that he could sail through it to China.

Among his possessions this hardy adventurer carried a letter from his friend Captain John Smith which told him how Smith had explored the Chesapeake the year before and of the belief that the coveted passageway might be found a little farther northward. This letter strengthened the navigator's hopes and so he guided his little boat, the Half Moon, along the New England coast searching for an opening. At last he found what he was looking for—an indentation in the coast line—so Hudson turned his boat into this new water and sailed as he thought westward.

At first the sailors were misled into believing that they still sailed the ocean because the water continued to be salty, but finally they found themselves in fresh water and knew that what they had believed to be a continuation of the Atlantic Ocean was really a river. This they named after their leader, Hudson, and entered the country planting the flag of Holland on its soil.

When Hudson returned to report his discoveries he was detained in England by King James, who determined that so great an English voyager should not be employed by foreigners to discover new lands for them. He wanted to use Hudson's talents to further English ends. And so the next year Hudson set forth in an English ship.

While in the great bay which was mutiny among the crew and the sailors set, Henry Hudson and his son with a few other men drifted in an open boat while they returned to England. On arriving the crew were sent to prison and an expedition sent out to search for Hudson, but the navigator was never again seen nor heard of.

There are many superstitions and legends arising from the strange disappearance, and the one which is perhaps most widely known, helps to explain the terrific thunderstorms which are heard in the Catskill Mountains. Wanderers lost in these mountains during such storms are known to report that they have seen Henry Hudson and his men playing Nine Pins on the mountains, and that the rolling of balls and the falling of the pins cause the loud noise of the thunder heard below on the earth. How true this is you may judge for yourself, or if you have read Washington Irving's "Rip Van Winkle," you may have already formed your views.

The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING.
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.

FOUR NEST BIRD HOUSE

MANY times has the writer seen bluebirds, swallows and other birds busily inspecting and noisily discussing new and old bird houses in the fall of the year. Next spring, old houses and houses that were new last fall were in demand while houses made just before being put in place were seldom occupied the first year. I suppose the weathering of the house during the winter destroyed the evidences of human contact. In any case the writer is convinced the fall rather than the spring is the time to put bird houses out, so this rather odd house is offered at this time. All the pieces but the back support are 1/4" thick.

Get out one lower side 6" x 13", one 6" x 12 1/2", one partition 6" x 12 1/2" and two 6" x 6". Also one roof 9 1/2" x 16" and one 8 1/2" x 15 1/2", and two pieces 12" x 13" for the back and front. Assemble as shown, nailing strongly with 4d common nails, especially the back for that supports the box; do not nail the front yet. Nail the roof in place as shown. Make the support 3/4" x 3" x 26" and fasten it to the nest with 1 1/2" No. 8 screws driven through the back into the edges of the roof, of the bottom sides and of the partitions.

Bore 1 1/2" holes through the front as shown and make the steps about 3/4" x 4 1/2" long from a branch with an under brace as suggested, and fasten and fasten to the front. Fasten the front with 1" No. 8 screws driven into the lower sides of the box and the partitions so it may be removed for cleaning out the house. Paint in any colors, though I have never noticed that birds preferred a painted house to that that was well weathered. Tack a piece of roofing paper 4 1/2" x 9 1/2" over the joint in the ridge to prevent leakage and fasten the house to a building, a tree or a post as convenient.

Why Bees Buzz

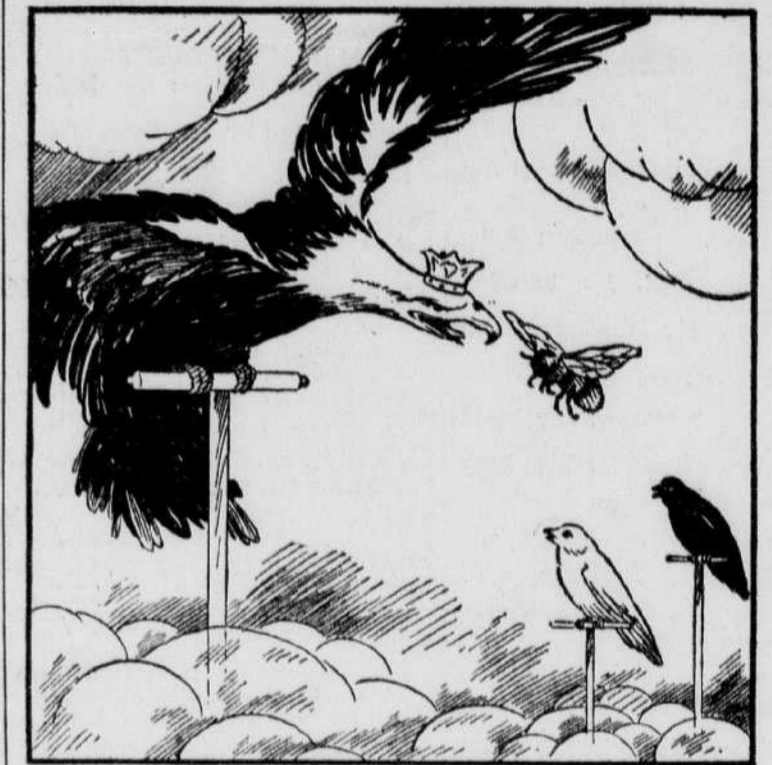

IN the ancient days, so the Mongolian legends relate, among the high powers that ruled in the heavens was the King of the Birds, who made the laws for man and beast to obey. One day this mighty one called to his lofty throne three of his swiftest winged messengers: a white bird, a Black bird and a bee. "I have a mission for you," he announced. "Your fight shall carry you down to the earth, and there within the space of time of one year and a day you shall find out for me which flesh makes the best food. In one year and a day return before me and tell me of your findings." So the three messengers bowed to the king's command and together they spread their wings and flew away.

When they reached the earth they held a council and decided that they should separate and meet again before they returned to the throne of the King of the Birds.

The King of the Storm was surprised and shocked. He had great admiration for man and did not want to see any harm come to him. "My friends," he said, "you are mistaken. You must not carry that report to the King. Have you not tasted of the flesh of the snake?" But no! they had forgotten all about the snake!

"How lucky that I chanced to meet you," said the King of the Storm, "else you might have made a great mistake. You should certainly taste the flesh of the snake, you should go back at once for you have never tasted anything so delicious in all your lives." But they could not go back for the time was up and the King of the Birds was waiting on his lofty throne. "Then," urged the King of the Storm, "take my word for it, I am sure my taste will best please your King."

The two birds were willing but the Bee was obstinate. Man had

The Bee Flew Up To The King And Tried To Speak

One new into the fields, one flew into the woods and one went into the swamps and for a year and a day they searched the earth testing all kinds of flesh to see which would make the best food. The year and the day passed quickly for when one is engaged in work time flies, and the last day found the three at the appointed place to talk over their experiences before returning to the King of the Birds.

"There is no doubt about it," chirped the Black bird, "worms form one of the best diets and I shall tell that to the King."

"Oh no," trilled the White bird, "insects make much better food, and I shall tell that to the King."

"But you both are wrong," said the Bee and then they all three began to quarrel.

Finally the Bee interrupted them and said: "Our time is nearly up. We must tell the King something. I suggest that we say that the flesh of man makes the best food. Man has shown no friendship for us. He has driven me from the flowers; he has put scare crows in the field to frighten you off, he is proud and disagreeable and I do not like him. Let us tell the King that man's flesh is the best food." The birds listened in silence to this long speech, and as they could think of no good arguments to advance they agreed and immediately set off to so advise the King.

On the way the three encountered the King of Storm and he asked them what luck they had had on their travels and what flesh they had found to be the most delicious. "That of man," chorused not been kind to him and he wanted to see man suffer. Let the others say what they would he would report that man's flesh was the best no matter what they may say, so they argued back and forth and up. Even now the time grew shorter but the Bee grew more and more stubborn and would not give in. At last the birds became enraged and they fell upon the Bee and cut out his tongue to put a stop to the argument. Then they all hurried away to the King of the Birds.

The King of the Birds was impatient and weary of waiting so he demanded their report at once. "I have been looking for you for several days," he said, "tell me without delay what flesh makes the most delicious food."

The White bird and the Black bird spoke in chorus! "The flesh of the snake!" they cried. The Bee flew up to the King and tried to speak. "The flesh of man," he was trying to say but the only sound that came from his mouth was a noise that sounded like "B-z-z-z-z."

"The Bee has lost his voice," said the birds, "but he is trying to tell you that he agrees with us."

"B-z-z-z-z," said the Bee angrily but that was all he could say and since that time the Bee has not been able to speak but can only buzz.

THE JUNIOR COOK

PEACH PUDDING

Peel and slice 6 or 7 good sized peaches.

Put the sliced peaches in the bottom of a baking dish and sprinkle with one cupful of sugar. One-half cupful of sugar and one-half cupful white corn syrup will do nicely if desired. The dish should be one that can appear on the table as the pudding is served at once, as cooked.

Sift together 2 times:

1 cupful of flour.

1 teaspoonful of baking powder.

1/2 teaspoonful of salt.

With the fingers work in two teaspoonfuls of vegetable oil.

Add one-third cupful of milk or enough to make a soft dough.

With a small spoon drop small lumps of the dough over the top of the peaches till all is used.

Bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven.

Serve at once with cream and sugar.

In this recipe the peaches taste very fresh and are delicious.

Opinions Of Market Dealers Differ On Volume Of Trade

There seemed to be a difference of opinion regarding the tone of trade yesterday at Lansdowne Market. One dealer who specializes in eggs said that the demand was considerably restricted and another whose forte is the vegetable market corroborated this contention, blaming the heavy rain for keeping the usual numerous buyers away.

Table with market prices for various goods including Butter, Eggs, Apples, Peaches, and various meats. Includes sub-sections for Dairy Market, Fruit Market, and Vegetables Market.

Attractions at the Local Theatres

Jon Hall and Philip Reed battle for the heart of Dorothy Lamour on a far-away Pacific isle in "Aloma of the South Seas," opening tomorrow at the Granada Theatre.

At The Granada

The stars of "Hurricane," Jon Hall and Dorothy Lamour, are reunited again in "Aloma of the South Seas," Paramount's Technicolor story of a tropical paradise island, which begins tomorrow at the Granada.

At The Premier

"Roar of the Press," which begins as the major attraction at the New Premier Theatre tomorrow, is a photodrama of newspaperdom that packs all the excitement and romance of the press world and yet carries an authenticity that films on this subject have unfailingly lacked.

BIG LEAGUERS BACK IN TRENCHES TODAY

Brooklyn And St. Louis Resume Pennant Scrap

Dodgers Engage Giants and Cards Meet Reds in Three-Game Series—Last Intersectional Warfare of Season Gets Underway Tuesday—Pirates and Reds Split Doubleheader—Browns Top White Sox 3-1.

These are the dog days in baseball. One pennant already has been won. The other race has narrowed down to two teams. Kids you never heard of are getting their chance in big league lineups. And open dates keep more teams idle than there are playing on any given day.

Since Labor Day there have been only fifteen ball games in the major leagues. This is just a temporary let-down, of course, and all of the clubs are slated to swing back into the trenches today.

The rest of the show will be a close-up of the National League stars—Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals. Both were idle yesterday and Brooklyn's one-game lead naturally, was unharmed.

There are some other minor conflicts to be straightened out—matters such as the tie of the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox for second place in the American League and the struggle between Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates for third place in the National.

Today Brooklyn battles New York Giants in one game and tomorrow in two. The Cards have Cincinnati Reds on their hands for the same schedule.

Monday all clubs in both leagues have an open date and then Tuesday the last intersectional warfare of the season will get underway. After the Dodgers have played two games at Chicago and St. Louis has entertained the Phillies in a pair, the Cards and Dodgers will get at each other's throats once more.

The three games at St. Louis Thursday, Friday and Saturday might go a long way toward settling things, and they might not. But they're the games everybody is waiting for now.

Leo Durocher is grooming his Dodger pitching staff for them. Fred Fitzsimmons is slated to pitch the first game. Whitlow Wyatt will work the second and Curt Davis the third.

Billy Southworth will counter with Ernie White and Howard Pollet in the first two games and if these two left-handers get along all right he may throw another southpaw, Max Lanier, at the Dodgers in the final game.

LEN DODSON IS TOP FIRER IN TAM O'SHANTER

Swashbuckling Ozark Vagabond of Bunkers Out in Front with Sub-Par 133 for Thirty-Six Holes.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Golf fans, meet the young man from the Ozarks, a swashbuckling vagabond of the bunkers who'll bet you on anything, any time, anywhere—and probably make you like it.

He's the laughing boy of professional golf today, for he's leading the $11,000 Tam O'Shanter golf championship with a 36-hole total of 133—and has a great chance to come in tomorrow night with the $2,000 first prize money.

Where he finishes, however, he'll continue to rank as golf's Dizzy Dean—a likeable, happy-go-lucky chap whose story-spinning and show-making ability make him the game's most colorful personality.

Dodson, who had a seven under par 65 in the opening round, added a 68 to his record yesterday for a 133 total, only three shots under the P.G.A. record. Three shots back, as the field headed into today's third round of 18, was Byron Nelson, of Toledo, who had a 69 yesterday for a 136.

Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., leading money winner of the year, blazed his way back into the picture with a second round 66 for a 139 total, one shot ahead of the 100 aggregates held by Al Hulse, of DeKalb, Ill., who had a second round 71, and Henry Ransom, of Fort Worth, Texas, who held a pair of 70s.

In all, eighteen players bettered par of 141 for 36 holes, among them Vic Ghezzi, at 142; Craig Wood and Lawson Little, with 145.

The field was cut to 85 players with the lowest scores for today's and tomorrow's rounds.

Joe Louis didn't seem a bit worried about Lou Nova's "bullet punch" when they met to sign the contract yesterday. Joe resolutely he can take care of the situation with his "same old punch."

IN SPORTING VEIN By ALLAN BRYCE

One of the most spectacular athletes ever to attend Sherbrooke High School, a husky, raw-boned giant who went on to make football history at Boston College, has met tragic death in the service of his country.

Albert Horsfall, a flying cadet in the United States Army Air Corps for eight months, apparently was at the stick of a plane which crashed with another machine during a training flight and then plummeted to earth. His body was found in a swamp near Mobile, Alabama, on Tuesday.

Known when here as "Horsie," Albert was an easy-going, likeable figure who got a great kick out of life. His inborn competitive spirit led him to see action on the gridiron, the basketball court, the cinder track and the ice. At football he was a standout. His bullet-like forward passes were the talk of the Eastern Townships in the "go-go" days.

When Sherbrooke High School used to win football games, and his piston-like legs used to carry him for long gains and time again. One afternoon at Lennoxville, S.H.S., handed Bishop's College School a terrific pasting largely because Horsfall was tossing the ball thirty, forty and fifty yards at a crack, and the bewildered purple and white lads were heard to snarl, "How can we beat a basketball team?" as the Sherbrooke ends pulled down the long passes for first downs and touchdowns.

He was a talented guard in basketball, with wonderful ability in starting plays and getting the ball away from his own end.

Although he could hardly skate when he came to Sherbrooke, before he left he was out there playing defence in hockey for the school and not doing too badly at that.

The Air Corps has lost a fine man, and many Sherbrooke people a good friend.

Another well known hockey player and all-around athlete, Barclay Westgate, of East Angus, joined the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Barc began his hockey career in 1932 with the original East Angus Middlets, climbed into juvenile ranks and then performed with the senior club when East Angus won the Eastern Townships championship in Lon Nova even quicker.

Mauriello is a splendid heavyweight prospect, which is precisely what Promoter Mike Jacobs is looking for.

Such a keen judge as Jimmy Bronson, who seconded and had a hand in the development of Gene Tunney, doubts that he can miss.

The boy who stirred up so much trouble for the rough old campaigner Lesnevich, the other evening, has been boxing less than four years and as a professional for no more than two.

In that time he has sprouted from a welterweight to the 170½ pounds he weighed for the Roaring Russian.

Mauriello stands 5 feet 10½ and is still growing rapidly. He'll be an inch taller and a heavyweight in another year, and at his current rate of progress will be ready for the Louis' and Novas in two, which would put him way ahead of schedule.

Naturally, Mauriello still lacks poise and knows little of the finer arts such as feinting, but that will come, and because he is a sharp puncher and a gambler he's going to be a pleasing heavyweight.

What is most important is that he is simply crazy about his work. He likes to fight.

What old-timers liked best of all was the way Mauriello handled himself when Lesnevich dropped him for the first time in his career with a left hook to the chin in the second round. The white-skinned Italian coolly took nine on one knee and got up to protect himself well.

Mauriello dropped Lesnevich, who also can take it, twice in the latter rounds. . . . proved himself a router.

As a matter of fact, Referee Eddie Josephs gave him 10 rounds and the decision. It was the judges who gave it to Lesnevich.

Mauriello plays baseball, which is the mark of the true athlete. He performs at second base for a semi-professional outfit at Van Cortlandt Park, and is a good hitter there, too.

Tami Mauriello, who thought he was champion, may attain his goal as a heavyweight.

SPORT FLASHES

Fred Fitzsimmons is looking around Brooklyn for a good spot to open a bowling establishment.

People you know: When Al Peill says one of his fighters should retire, he's not fooling. . . . He recently turned down an offer of $1,000 for Lou Ambers to fight Ray Lunny in San Francisco without even telling Ambers about it. . . . Ted Williams brought a new pistol back with him from the Red Sox' last Western trip and wants to practice with it in Fenway Park before games. Some say that's why some of the lights on the scoreboard were out the other day. . . . Del Baker and Jack Zeller of the Tigers both figure the Cards will beat out the Dodgers, though they agree it would be a fine thing for baseball to have Brooklyn in the World Series. . . . TWO VETERANS OPPONENTS AT FOREST HILLS

Helen Hull Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, Long-Time Rivals and Wightman Cup Team-Mates, Meet in Semi-Final.

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The most dramatic of the four semi-final matches in the United States men's and women's tennis championships at Forest Hills today is practically certain to be the one between that grand veteran from California, Helen Hull Jacobs, and her long-time rival and Wightman Cup team-mate, Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of New York.

It might seem to some folks as if it were only yesterday when Helen came out of the Coast to begin her long series of duels with pig-tailed Helen Willis, but it has been a lot longer than that. That was back in the fabulous '20s and "Helen the Second" today is a mature woman of 33.

Always noted for her tireless running, Helen seems to have lost little of her stamina. And if she is a step slower, she makes up for it with an uncanny sense of anticipation and a hard, flat forehead drive that she didn't have back when she was a youngster and which frequently pulls her out of difficulties.

If she gets Mrs. Cooke today—as she should—then it probably will be Helen against Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, in tomorrow's final. Miss Betz, seeded No. 1 in the tournament, should prevail over Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, in the other women's semi-final.

Of the day's two men's semi-finals, the easier to call the result appears to be the one between Bobby Riggs, the 1939 champion, and Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif. Riggs looked like a million in trouncing Frankie Parker 6-4, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2 yesterday, and he figures to be a few too many for Schroeder.

Schroeder eliminated Bryan Grant, Jr. in four sets yesterday because of his ability to take charge of the net and almost literally chase the Atlanta veteran off the court.

In the opposite bracket, it is defending champion Don McNeill against Frank Kovacs, the tall boy who "has everything." Kovacs scored three straight victories over McNeill this summer prior to the championships.

YVAN COTE IN FINAL

Yvan Cote entered the men's singles final in the East Sherbrooke Tennis Tournament by scoring a 6-1, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Hec Preontaine last night at the Tuque Rouge Court, and will meet Majella Charest for the championship some time next week.

Tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock the Misses Andree and Louise Triganne will tangle for the ladies' title. The match will be played at Tuque Rouge.

INTER-CLUB MATCH TO BE PLAYED TOMORROW

Six members of the Laval-sur-Lac Golf Club, of Montreal, including Marcel Pinsonnault, who yesterday won the "Wings for Britain" tournament, will play here tomorrow in a friendly match against six members of the Sherbrooke Country Club, and in all probability a large gallery will follow the players around the course.

White, Pollet Give St. Louis Mental Edge On Other Teams

New York, Sept. 5.—The injury-riddled Cardinals are quietly confident that they will outstagger the "D" -ers in the run down the stretch.

They bank on the young southpaws, Ernie White and Howard Pollet, to put them across.

"White and Pollet give us the mental advantage the left-hander has on the left-hand batter," says Warneke.

"And National League power bats from the left side of the plate. Fourteen of the first fifteen hitters bat left-handed."

Warneke has been pitching for fourteen years, and he still can't understand why a left-hand hitter is more allergic to a southpaw than a right-hand batter is to a right-hander.

"The right-hand pitcher can make the ball do just as many funny things and sling it just as swift," explains Warneke, "and the left-hander also has to get the ball over the plate in the strike zone."

"Still a lot of left-hand batters can't get a healthy foul off a southpaw."

"I have come to the conclusion that this is largely mental. 'Why, I'll show you left-handers pitching straight as a string in batting practice and left-hand hitters unable to do a thing with them.'"

Warneke suspects Carl Hubbell at his peak would win thirty games in the elder circuit as its batting orders are set up at the moment. The same would go for Johnny Vander Meer if Cincinnati's double no-hitter could fasten a headlock on control and throw it for a fall.

Pollet appears to be the finest left-hander to come out of the Texas League since Will Bill Hallahan and Hubbell.

Pollet, a product of the American Legion ranks of New Orleans, is only 20, but has the poise of Old Hub himself.

Catcher Gus Mancuso traces the youngster's polish to the teachings of Eddie Dyer, who manages the Houston club with which Pollet made an incomparable record. . . . 20 victories last season and this, a no-hitter and an earned-run mark of 1.18. Dyer once was quite a pitcher himself.

White is the faster because he is so exceptionally fast," elucidates Mancuso, "but Pollet throws a live ball. He has the greater variety of stuff. . . . a fine change of pace."

Pollet has stood up remarkably well under pressure. Remember that every hitter he looks at is a total stranger to him. He's got to throw what we tell him to throw and let it go at that. He'll be better the second time around and can't miss improving. Maybe he'll find out something about hitters we have overlooked all these years."

Players tell you Whizzer White would be even more formidable if he developed a better curve and other stuff to go with his hard one.

Billy Southworth had better keep his tow-headed Iron Man out of the bullpen, too. He looked tired in being shelled by the Giants at the Polo Grounds the other evening, when he started with only two days' rest.

The nine best National League hitters the Cardinals face are left-handed, and the St. Louis outfit is ready for them with White, Pollet, Max Lanier and Clyde Shoun.

Billy Southworth could lead with a left-hander every day, and Howard Pollet, the new ace, may be the strongest Card of all.

BEARS RECORD 99TH VICTORY IN SHAG LOOP

Christopher Heaves Newark to 4-3 Win Over Syracuse—Jersey City and Baltimore Split.

Russell Ormand Christopher, tall righthander, has toured baseball's minor league circuit in one under par, and his work this year with the International League's pennant-winning Newark Bears will serve as a fair approach to the major league cup.

Christopher started his baseball career with the Class "A" West Texas-New Mexico League in 1938, advanced to a Class "C" league in '38 and spent last year with the Western International League, a Class "B" circuit. His record of 16 victories against seven losses with the Bears this season testifies to how well the 23-year-old rookie made the jump from "B" to double "A" competition.

Last night Christopher gave the Bears their 9th triumph with a seven-hit assault on Tom Sunkel and Gene Lambert, Gene Corbett showing the way with three singles for a perfect night.

The victory kept Newark's at-home record against the Chiefs spotless for eight games.

In the only other games played Jersey City Giants and Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader cut short by rain. Baltimore won the twilight game 5-4 and the Little Giants took the nightcap, which was halted at the end of five innings 3-1.
