Patients From All Parts of District Accorded Care at Barrie Memorial Hospital

Hospital Completes Year With Financial Reserve of $1,872.53—Committees All Co-operate to Make Hospital Operate Smoothly and Economically

Barrie Memorial Hospital held its annual meeting in the town hall on Wednesday afternoon. President R. E. Walsh made no personal remarks other than that he enjoyed his year in office, which he thought at the start of the year would require a great deal of time as well as worry. "Due to the excellence of the personnel in the hospital, the ladies' work committee, the willingness of the executives to work, it was really a pleasure to fulfill the office as hospital president during the past year. Without further remarks about the hospital's activities, I believe you will gain all the information you desire as the respective reports are given by the officers," said Mr. Walsh.

Mr. H. H. Chambers, treasurer of the Barrie Memorial Hospital, presented the financial report as audited by Mr. W. L. Carr. The statement indicated that the hospital had enjoyed a year of activity. Though the expense of operating such a hospital points up, the revenues were sufficient to show a reserve surplus of $1,872.53. The depreciation allowed on real estate was three per cent, and on the contents of the hospital 15 per cent, while 10 per cent of the receipts was set aside for bad or doubtful accounts. This figure is, of course, subject to change from year to year, and it is yet too early to state whether or not the figure is too high or too low. The total hospital assets are valued at $34,855.76. The financial statement of the Barrie Memorial Hospital appears in another column of this issue.

Medical Superintendent's Report
Dr. T. J. Quintin presented the Medical Superintendent's Report. Extracts from the report are as follows:—

During August, Miss Sillars resigned as Lady Superintendent due to ill health, and in her stead Miss Luella McKell assumed the office. The work of Miss Sillars in the organization of the hospital was greatly appreciated by the Board of Management, and we are indeed sorry she had to leave. Miss McKell has ably carried on and I feel she is deserving of the thanks and appreciation of all those who have been cared for and associated with the work of the hospital.

The statistical report of the hospital shows that 350 patients were admitted to the hospital and that 24 were cared for in the "out-patient department" who had not been admitted to the hospital, making a total of 374 patients.

Surgical patients numbered 163 and were in hospital 1,739 days; medical patients numbered 90 and were in hospital 1,191 days; obstetrical patients numbered 50 and were in hospital 510 days; babies born numbered 50 and were in hospital 510 days; total, 3,950 days.

In addition to the above there were 108 visits to the hospital by patients who were receiving treatment from the hospital as a follow-up.

Number of patients X-rayed in the hospital, 71; number of patients X-rayed but not admitted to the hospital, 18; total, 89.

Distribution of Patients

Distribution of patients was as follows: Ormstown, Allans Corners, Dewittville, St. Louis de Gonzague, Anderson's Corners, 116; Huntingdon, St. Anicet, 56; Athelstan, Glenmont, Franklin Centre, Rockburn, St. Antoine, 34; Hemmingford, Barrington, Covey Hill, 29; Howick, Riverfield, Aubrey, 50; Valleyfield, St. Stanislas, 7; Dundee, Cazaville, 7; St. Chrysostome, St. Clothilde, 14; Ste. Martine, 1; Beauharnois, 2; Montreal, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, 5. The statistics show that 51,232 meals were served and 20,993 articles laundered.

Comment: The above would seem to show that the hospital has succeeded in meeting a need in the Chateauguay Valley as it would seem that practically every section has benefited through the service of the hospital.

Approximately 10 per cent of the patients were charitable cases and many people received the benefit of hospital care who, I feel sure, would never have agreed to being sent away from the district for such care.

Medical Board: The medical board has met regularly, with the exception of the month of August, under the chairmanship of Dr. J. R. McEwen. The workings of the hospital have been discussed and a general inspection made on the occasion of each meeting. The presence of Dr. J. C. Moore, who is the honorary chairman of the board, has always been very welcome and his keen interest and support of the hospital has been greatly appreciated.

Board of Management: Your board of management has been very faithful in attendance at meetings and has given much thought and thought to the problems which come up each month for solution.

Committees Function Willingly
Sub-Committees of the Board of Governors: These sub-committees of your board of governors have assisted.

P. J. Lefebvre Passed Away Monday Night

Was Prominently Identified in Church, School, Municipal Business and Social Circles

An estimable and worthy citizen and business man of Huntingdon died at his home on Monday evening in the personage of Phil J. (Kit) Lefebvre, in his 62nd year. Mr. Lefebvre had been in poor health, having endured several severe sicknesses during the past ten years. A few years ago he suffered from a coronary thrombosis, from which he made a commendable recovery, but suffered another attack at a later date, and a third and fatal attack some ten days ago. It was all evident to his family and physician, Dr. H. R. Clouston, that his condition was serious, and still more so on Friday night when he suffered a slight stroke. Over the weekend he appeared to be resting comfortably and his heart indicated he had strength. Evidently the stroke along with the thrombosis was more than his heart could endure and he passed away Monday evening.

Mr. Lefebvre was the eldest son of Ferdinand Lefebvre, and with his father for many years operated the merchant tailoring business of F. Lefebvre & Son. Phil Lefebvre, better known to many as "Kit", made it a practice to make one or two trips a year through Western Canada soliciting orders for suits and overcoats amongst former Huntingdonians. He made these trips to Western Canada for thirty-five consecutive years.

Mr. Lefebvre was an unusual good tailor and from the measurements he took of customers (Continued on page 5)

TWO VICTIMS OF BEAUHARNOIS TUG SINKING RECOVERED

Two bodies, apparently submerged for a lengthy period and believed to be those of men employed aboard a Marine Industries Limited tugboat which capsized with the loss of nine lives at Valleyfield last November, were recovered at the Beauharnois powerhouse on Saturday, Dr. O. E. Caza, district coroner, reported.

Employees of the Beauharnois Power Company discovered the bodies at the control gates late Saturday afternoon and evening. It was expected that the bodies of the other victims would also be recovered at the same spot in the near future.

Positive identification has been made of one of the bodies, Dr. Caza said, and the family of Captain Albert Mondor, hot on top of that, one of the two shift captains in charge of the tug, will claim his remains. The other victim recovered is believed to be Leo Lemoine, 27, of St. Hyacinthe, although formal identification has not been made in this case.

Five crewmen were saved when the tug "Aberdeen" capsized in the Beauharnois Canal in a high wind on November 1. Nine were trapped aboard. Four bodies were recovered within the next week but rescue operations failed to locate the other victims.

Due to the swift current in the canal, officials are of the opinion that the other bodies, unless caught in debris of the tug or other obstacles in the canal, will be found at the powerhouse control gates at Beauharnois.

78 Pigs Saved From Fire at Evans Bros.

Lightning Believed to Have Struck Piggery Sunday Night

Sunday night around 9 o'clock, a bright flash of lightning and one terrific clap of thunder was heard and hot on top of that, word came that fire had broken out in the piggery on Evans Bros. farm. In the building is a boiler for the cooking of the pig feed, but no fire had been in the boiler since morning so it was generally felt such was not the cause of the fire, and especially so when it was noted that the fire appeared to have started in the opposite end of the building. Neighbours saw the fire first and informed the Evans household, who had retired, whilst Mr. Evans was away from home when the fire was first noted.

In the piggery were 78 pigs, fortunately all were saved. The neighbours rendered valuable assistance through valuing the pigs and the spreading of the fire. The building was recently renovated. Insurance to the extent of $200 was carried on the building.

Nine Cows Die At Farm of Frank Sherry

Well Water Believed Contaminated Due to Spring Thaw

Mr. Frank Sherry has suffered a severe loss through the death of nine cows due to poisoning. On April 7th four cows died, on the following day another three cows died. Dr. Gaw and Dr. Boyer were called to the Sherry farm and made an investigation to see if they could arrive at the cause. It was thought at one time it might be that water from the milk cooling system might have been the reason, as the water in the water tank had been changed and the old water might have been drunk by the cows. Dr. Boyer took samples of the well water and sent them away for analysis. The report on samples of water has not yet been received. On April 13th water from this well was again used and after one cow had eaten its meal it was given a drink of well water and died immediately. The ninth cow died on Monday the 14th.

It is now believed the well has become contaminated, although it would be hasty to say it is until such times as the water analysis is received from the city. A building near the well was removed last fall for what was felt would be improvements about the property in general. It is thought that in moving the building refuse about the ground got to the well with the spring thaw.

Mr. Sherry's cows were all fresh and would represent an average loss of $80, each or $720 in all.

War Services Drive Expected To Reach $4,000 by Weekend; Some Canvassers Yet to Report

Secretary-Treasurer J. O. Michaud's Report Shows That Huntingdon County Has Already Subscribed $3712.92—Quota Has Been Fixed at $3,000 by Headquarters—Urged Generosity in Last Days of Drive

Mr. J. O. Michaud, Secretary-Treasurer for the War Services Drive in Huntingdon County, reported on Monday afternoon that he had already received the sum of $3,712.92 as this county's share for this worthy cause. Mr. Michaud said that there were about ten canvassers whose reports had not yet been turned in due to the bad roads in the country. One report has yet to be received from one street in Huntingdon.

Montreal headquarters for the War Services drive set Huntingdon County's minimum quota at $3,000 in this campaign and secretary-treasurer J. O. Michaud intimated that the returns to date clearly indicated that $4,000 would be subscribed, to surpass the objective by $1,000. Contributions are pouring in regularly and the organizers earnestly hope that many who failed to donate when the canvassers solicited at their homes will not fail to bring in their donations this week, or at their earliest possible convenience.

Mr. Michaud gave the Gleaner the amounts handed in by each canvasser in their surroundings. The canvassers who reported to Mr. Michaud to date are:—

Paul, Elgin, $23.00; Ross Fraser, Franklin $28.05.

The Treasurer for this campaign has been working continuously on this benevolent work for the past three weeks. Tired and weary, Mr. Michaud said: "I have a headache today and I think I will have it until this campaign is all over. I earnestly hope that headquarters will not ask us to start another one next week."

Mr. Michaud's task in this campaign is not an easy one. Individual cards have to be checked with each canvasser when a report is made and another check with the cards takes place when the treasurer makes a deposit. Later a detailed report must be forwarded to Montreal headquarters indicating the individual donations of every citizen in Huntingdon County. The tabulating of all these figures and names certainly lead to much confusion, but Mr. Michaud's capabilities and experience in such work blend well for the general success of the drive.

The Gleaner will reproduce next week the names of canvassers in other sections of Huntingdon County who have not been able to make a report to date.

Industrial Production Survey Headed by Lt.-Col. W.G.E. Aird

Survey to Supply Data as to Available Sources For The Producing of War Work Even on Part Time Basis

All of Canada's industrial capacity which can be utilized for war production is being organized through a national survey undertaken jointly by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, with the approval of the Minister of Munitions and Supply. For this purpose, all the provinces have been zoned into industrial areas. The counties comprising the South-west District Zone are Vaudreuil, Soulanges, Beauharnois, Laprairie, Huntingdon and Chateauguay (in part). Including the cities of Valleyfield, Huntingdon, Rigaud, Hudson, Ormstown, Howick, Coteau du Lac, Coughawaga, Beauharnois, Chateauguay, Vaudreuil, Melocheville.

Lt.-Col. W. G. E. Aird of Valleyfield has been appointed chairman of the South-west District Zone. Col. Aird indicates that he is hopeful that all manufacturers in this zone will be able to receive a questionnaire on the industrial survey would immediately fill in the questionnaire if they have not already done so, and that other manufacturers who had not received the questionnaire would immediately get in touch with him, so that they too could make known their machine tools which could be made available to the Department of Munitions and Supply, even on a part-time basis, for subcontract work.

"The importance of this survey cannot be over-emphasized," stated Col. Aird, "because the willing and enthusiastic co-operation of industry, both large and small, will not only provide the Government with available information but will also enable the Government to introduce effectively the 'bits and pieces' policy adopted by Great Britain and more recently by the United States, whereby sub-contracts can be formed out by the prime contractors or war work to various plants in order that the Dominion's industrial capacity can be utilized to the fullest extent."

"We are not merely making an inventory of the industrial capacity of this area," stated Col. Aird, "but equal in importance to the former is the continuous work by which it is hoped that the Department of Munitions and Supply will be able to ascertain from time to time what capacity is available in this area and be able to make use of it. Thus, it is in the interests of local industry themselves to lend their full co-operation so that war orders can be directed towards this zone as and when available."

VALLEYFIELD OFFERS MUNICIPAL BUILDING TO QUEBEC GOVT.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce at Valleyfield asked the Valleyfield Council, at their regular weekly session on Wednesday evening, what they intended to do in regards to the Textile School for Valleyfield. The junior body urged the council to pass a resolution asking that a delegation be appointed and meet Hon. Hector Perrier as soon as the council definitely decided to offer the municipal building for the proposed textile school. As the finance meeting the council agreed to offer this building on the condition that the provincial authorities accept it as it stands and that they contribute towards its completion.

The following were granted permits: J. H. Parker, Immeubles Vincent & Co., Isidore DeRepentigny, Daniel Lefebvre, Henri Degre. The Montreal Cottons Limited asked the council to repair the sidewalks on Dufferin and Gault streets.

Marcel Chasse was granted permission to canvass for funds for his softball club. The Shawinigan Water & Power Co. were urged to take greater care in placing posts for erection of electric lines.

Tenders were received for a sprinkler and that of A. Tremblay of St. Timothee for $450 was accepted.

DUNLOP DESCENDANTS NOW NUMBER 13 SERVING IN ARMY

As we occasionally hear of "The Family Tree" one just naturally thinks, well that family is interested in their many relatives and want to get them all straightened out as to "who's who." In the Saskatoon Phoenix of April 3rd appears a "family tree" that is entirely different from anything we have ever seen. It is a tree that bears fruit for the Armed Forces of His Majesty the King. The family tree shows the lineage of William Rayburn Dunlop, father of Mr. J. K. Dunlop of the Beaver. In place of having all the descendants appear on the tree, only those who are serving in the Army appear, but this number is considerable for they aggregate thirteen. There may be other family connections that can hold up such a record of loyalty to King and Country, but this is the first brought to our attention.

Huntingdon, Wed., April 16th, 1941

He who gives himself airs of importance, exhibits the credentials of impotence.

Please Get Prepared Now, Visitors Are Coming

WELCOMED rains have fallen, the sugar season is over and now the warm spring days welcome you out to view your premises with a critical eye. For weeks the dirt on our main streets has been such that it was impossible to keep the stores clean and the excessive sand from the winter that lay on the walks made it unpleasant even for walking. Let us now get busy and clean up the sidewalks, the roadways, wash out the dirt from the stores and get the paint brushes into action.

The great number of soldiers training in this section of the province, as well as the industrial development, means we will have a greater number of visitors to this section than in any previous year. Let's give the visitors a favourable impression of our trading centres as well as our countryside. More than once, mention has been made of the excessive number of ugly advertising signs that are plastered against walls, fences and often too profusely in business places to attain their desired objective, viz: selling goods. Advertising to be effective and to produce results must be made to appeal to the eye, so as to create the desire to buy. If you have an overdose of advertising signs in or about your place of business, place some of them to one side and reproduce them after the ones you have retained in prominence have served their purpose.

About your home surroundings you can count on it the householders will be obliged to do more of the work themselves than in past years, as labour is difficult to hire. Start in at your cleaning and tidying up early so as to get everything in spic and span order and then a little effort put forth regularly will keep your home environment as you wish it to be.

Not Labor Leaders But Gangsters

At least 200,000 men were idle in the Ford plants throughout the United States as a result of the C.I.O. strike. Another army was doing nothing at the International Harvester factories. When workers at strike-blocked smaller concerns throughout the country were added and also those in affiliated industries hit by the stoppage of supplies to or from the strike-bound plants, more than half a million workers have been involved.

No official estimate of losses is yet forthcoming from Washington but even a school-boy must realize that the total will compare with that involved in a staggering military defeat. Another fortnight of strikes and the loss in equipment may equal that which the British were forced to destroy or abandon at Dunkirk. Loss of war production from strikes in the United States is said greatly to exceed lost output in England due to air raid alarms and destruction.

If the suspicion that German agents are helping to foment the disturbances proves as well founded as was the case in the first Great War, then Hitler must be gratified indeed with his progress so far in the Battle of America.

In this fomenting of sabotage Hitler has an effective ally in Josef Stalin, whose world-embracing red network of Communist agents, propagandists and saboteurs has been made available to the Nazis.

But there is more than Nazi and Communist activity behind these strikes. At least an equal factor is the rise of a powerful, gangster-type of "labor" leader, who borrows his methods from the racketeers. These men have no more sympathy for the aims and aspirations of the working man they profess to represent than Al Capone had for the florists or laundrymen of Chicago. They bear no resemblance to Sam Gompers, Ernest Bevin or Tom Moore. They are out solely for personal power and profit. They use gangs of thugs to start strikes and to set one honest worker slugging another in murderous riot. The strikes are designed simply as a bludgeon to force workers into submission so that these "leaders" can mulct jobholders of enormous fees for joining unions, and indeed for the privilege of working at all.

Previously amazingly indifferent to the squabble between the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O., the American public is now aroused. A recent Gallup poll indicated that 52% of a representative cross section of the American people blamed strikes as the chief reason for delay in defense work. Some 68% believed that labor unions were hindering not helping the nation's effort to arm. Some 85% favored compulsory arbitration of labor disputes.

In Canada and Britain the majority of labor leaders are giving loyal support to the war effort. The country appreciates their patriotism. But the gangsters among U.S. "labor leaders" have their agents in Canada, men who must be watched. Their activities are doing honest labor great harm.—(Financial Post).

The Same Old Story

At different intervals we are told by some of our alert subscribers of some proof-reader's mistakes which have appeared in the Gleaner and how simple it must have been to let such an error slip by. Incompetence was the first solution of this regular reader. Naturally these remarks were made before other readers who in turn acknowledged the statement of their friend. There is nothing in the world that is more beneficial to anyone in any trade than constructive criticism. It helps in every way, and we are certainly appreciative of the remarks made and hope that the same mistakes will not happen again. However, before proceeding further it might be well to acquaint some of our readers with the trying work of the proof-reader and how easily a slip can be made. Of course, no good newspaper is complacent about typographical errors, which despite the utmost vigilance can escape detection until the paper is on the street. It is then too late to make the correction. But the mistakes found are generally not very serious—in fact most of the time they are trivial.

It has often been repeated that proof-readers are born and not made. They must possess an indefinable, innate aptitude for the work. Without that certain something, one can no more become a proficient proof-reader than a tone-deaf person can become a virtuoso on the violin. The small proportion of printer's errors that escapes the watchful eye of a really competent proof-reader is a source of wonderment to those less gifted, but who have attempted to correct proofs themselves. But the best of them will inadvertently let a mistake slip through once in a long while. Perhaps this is due to what has been called "proof-reader blindness"—something which afflicts some proof-readers momentarily from time to time. During the brief moment of one of these almost instantaneous lapses, an error will slip by unnoticed, which at any other time would have been caught. And how glaring it seems when it is pointed out!

Proof-reading demands the most extreme mental concentration—and every slip made is recorded in printer's ink for all the world to see. It is one of the most exacting vocations in the world. Yet, nearly everyone who ever headed his class in spelling at school believes he could easily become a first-class proof-reader.

This is one of a series of editorials specially designed to acquaint our readers with the various functions of the Press in a democratic community.

The Freedom of the Press

GR EAT men of history who have left us the legacy of democratic government all seem to have been of one mind, that the preservation of freedom depended to a large degree on the preservation of the freedom of the press. That is why in all truly democratic states a free press is more than just a tradition—it is an essential principle of democracy. One of the prerequisites of an autocracy is the abrogation of the freedom of the press, because this freedom has essentially, through the centuries, shown itself to be the one great force which has seen to it that the freedom of the individual has been preserved. When freedom of the press is abolished, other freedoms go with it. There is little need at this time to stress that point. There are so many poignant and tragic examples in the world today of a subservient press, that it must be obvious to any intelligent person that the freedom of the press is synonymous with the freedom which is democracy.

There have always been those, who, often for reasons of personal aggrandisement or lust for power, would rob the press of this precious jewel in the crown of liberty. There have been others who cry out for personal freedom of expression, but who would deny this right to the press. It has been claimed that this freedom can become license, but this is one of those half-truths which unthinking people are likely to accept at its face value.

Actually the press enjoys a freedom which gives it no privilege above the individual. It must conform to the laws of the state. Its freedom is bound by the laws of libel and slander. It certainly offers no greater opportunity for defaming any person or institution, than does the inherent right of free speech with which every citizen is endowed as a birthright. Abraham Lincoln in a debate on the constitution once said: "The liberty of the press is the tyrant's scourge; it is the true friend and the supreme supporter of civil liberty." The principle of freedom of the press, as it exists today, is the result of a long and bitter struggle between those who believed in civil rights and constituted authority, and those who feared the exercise of these rights.

It is significant that the first amendment to the Bill of Rights of the American Constitution, adopted in 1791, is one that relates to the freedom of the press. It reads: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or the prohibition of the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the peoples peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances." The very word of this amendment places freedom of the press on the same level, and of equal import with freedom of religion, of speech and of assembly.

A Rhode Island State provision sums up the question of a free press in a few words when it says: "The liberty of the press being essential to the security and freedom of the state, any person may publish his sentiments on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty, and in all trials for libel, both civil and criminal, the truth, unless published from malicious motives, shall be sufficient defense to the person charged." Many other democratic countries have passed similar legislation, because from a wide study of the dangers of a subservient press, they have learned that a free press is the best assurance of a free country.

To be fully comprehended, the freedom of the press must be accepted by democratic peoples as a typical example of the privileges they enjoy as individuals in a democratic state. To abolish the freedom of the press, is to invite the abolition of all freedom for the individual.

Chronology - of - Chateauguay, Beauharnois and Huntingdon Counties From Manuscripts of The Late ROBERT SELLAR

GEORGE SAYER (Continued)—Brown at once concluded to close the bargain, which he did on his return. We went back to Elliott's, and visited Huntingdon next morning. James Percy, father of Sam, lived where Boyd does, and Robert where the road is. There was a small building at the head of the rapids where Old Goudge taught school that year and in 1822. We went back the same way, but that fall, Brown sent John Wilkinson and me to do the settlement duties, accompanying us. We put up a rough shanty, roofed with boughs. Brown went up to Dundee to see Col. Davidson and one morning in getting up we found a foot of snow had fallen. This frightened us and we started for Lacolle. That time I saw two scaffolds in MacParlane's woods, covered with deer, killed by the Indians who were still out hunting. I never saw a hunter or fisher. Old Palmer shot the last wolf in my time. There were very few when I came. Next spring my brother and I moved over and took up the three lots, my father following. We had two cows, some young beasts, and a pony. I got some grass from Elliott and with tree-tops they managed through the winter of '22-'23. That fall, Wallis came in, and also Cameron put up the frame of his grist mill. Brown never did any good after his opposition to Cameron. It cost him $800 to dig the canal, and after all, he had to finish it. (To be continued)

Appeal Made For 115,000 New Recruits—Culture of Coarse Grains in West Encouraged and Be Used For Feeding Hogs

ALTHOUGH this is the Easter recess of Parliament and the halls of the Dominion Legislature will be deserted until April 28, when the session reconvenes, it isn't exactly a holiday for either members of the Government or for the individual members of Parliament. Some cabinet ministers who have been under heavy strain for some time are taking a short rest away from the capital. The Prime Minister will spend a few days in the United States and will see the President either at Warm Springs, Georgia, or Washington. In this hour of world crisis there are lots of important matters for the heads of the two countries to discuss, and even if the meeting resulted in nothing more concrete than an exchange of views on world affairs, meetings of this kind help to foster still further the co-operative spirit and understanding between the great English-speaking democracies. Cabinet ministers during the recess will spend more time in administration of their departments. Immediately after the adjournment of the House, heads of the three combatant services, Macdonald, Ralston and Power, issued an appeal over the radio for 115,000 new recruits, 72,000 for the army, 35,000 for the air force, and 9,000 for the navy. The minister of agriculture, Gardner, will spend much of the recess in making the Government's wheat policy clear to the farmers throughout Canada and in explaining the regulations governing the policy. Members of Parliament representing farming communities will also discuss the farming policy with their constituents.

Wheat Discussions Continue Discussions on the restricted wheat acreage and bonus scheme will undoubtedly continue after Parliament meets again. Sittings of the Commons just before adjournment were given over to debates on this subject. (Continued on page 7)

MORE RECIPROcity (Granby Leader-Mail)

MANY Canadians are convinced that the present stringent regulations which prevent Canadians visiting the United States will sooner or later work to Canada's serious disadvantage. Border municipalities in the United States have been hard hit by the regulations which prevent Canadians from visiting the United States while Americans are urged to come to Canada.

The Newport (Vermont) Merchants' Association have discussed the matter and forwarded to Premier Mackenzie King a communication setting forth their recommendations to improve international accord.

Commenting upon this, the Esoumb Standard says: "Newport citizens are to be commended for tackling this problem, and others along this strip of the border should back a move of this kind. Canada has a perfect right to restrict her citizens from travelling into the United States, but there is injustice in asking their people to stay home, but do everything in their power to encourage foreigners to visit their country. They want and have secured enormous trade relations with this country, but the citizenry are almost forced to stay at home. Our motors, money, materials are all right. It's perfectly okay to spend all the money you want in the Dominion, but when the table is turned about, their people meet with a stone wall at the border. The time is rapidly approaching when thinking people shall demand reciprocity, or else..." "The Newport men have the right

Feminine Fancies

Dahlia's Whatnots

THIS is Good Friday and Haydn's "Passion" is on the air. Amidst thoughts of conflict and carnage, one is reminded that the world owes much beauty and blessing in the shape of Easter music to the great German composers. These were German nationals in a literal sense, but their art has made them citizens of the world. The spoken language of a people bars it from every other race that speaks a different tongue, but music is a language which unites, and not only through the ear and understanding, but also through its humanizing appeal to the heart. It goes without saying that this is especially true of the music of our Christian festivals.

If there had been no black Good Friday there would have been no sung Easter Sunday. But there is no room for reasoning in the grief that is crushing the hearts of the many who are bereaved by the hazards of war right now at this Easter. Such we seem particularly cruel these spring days when ordinarily the mind would be filled with hopeful plans and thoughts of Nature's renewal. One can only cling to the belief that "Sometime we'll understand."

Many consider Hitler a superman. As Christians, we must strive not to think of God as a super-Hitler. By the wisdom of both heaven and earth, it is borne in upon us that ultimate victory demands the triumph of spirit over flesh. It is heartbreaking to think of many of the best and bravest being sacrificed in young manhood. Yet none of us but believes that of all the sons of women, Jesus and his disciples had the most successful careers, and Jesus died the most disgraceful death known to his public at the age of 32 years, while the majority of His disciples were publicly executed. Stephen faced not the bullets of the firing squad, but the stones of the mob, yet the torture was sooner over than in an instrument camp.

After I had mourned over the ruin of a young Highlander's career owing to drink, the Irish part of my heredity was pained over the similar fate of one Patrick McGaffin, another of our Canadian soldier boys who, according to his own statement in court, didn't know till after he had sobered up that he had fatally wounded another man in a tavern. And was not the poor fellow fighting for his country? At least his drinking helped to swell that fine big surplus about which Ontario has been bragging. What matter if Patrick's poor sister, Victoria, did faint when she heard the judge sentence her brother to be hanged on May 30? Some people think that the case will be tried in a Higher Court to which the Judge of quick and dead will summon some smug, satisfied people as material witnesses.

On Sunday Rev. Dr. McCutcheon of First Baptist Church, Montreal, said that many church people rested on the formalities of religion and were suspicious of any sign of enthusiasm. This attitude hinders progress in every sphere of life, especially in education and politics. The British people rested inside of bands of red tape and were suspicious of the brilliant Churchill's enthusiasm till it was almost (we are hoping not quite) too late.

Dr. Ralph Meadowcroft remarks that this generation of young people are so busy having a good time that they are not, and never can be, happy.

There was an ad in a Montreal paper about a room to let, said room being described as "excessively clean." Now that is as it should be when housecleaning is finished, but, generally speaking, it smacks a little too much of the operating room in a hospital and the adjacent region of the many mansions a trifle too much to invite relaxation and the elevation of the male roomer's feet to the satin comforter.

COCONUT FOR MENU SIMPLE OR LUXURIOUS

W HETHER it is one of the most ambitious desserts you want to attempt—or the simplest, coconut has a place. Take for instance, Coconut Cream Pie, a triumph of culinary art adored by men especially. It takes a bit of doing to make a successful pie crust and then really good coconut to achieve the perfect filling. But if you don't want to fuss, mixing dozens of little tricks with coconut to make plain dishes look and taste like special treats. Have you ever tried Peach Dreams? You fill peach halves with a mixture of sweetened whipped cream and southern style coconut (the long lacy shreds in moisture-proof cartons), flavored with almond extract. Sprinkle additional coconut over the top and you have a delicious and beautiful dessert. Simple isn't it?

Try combining coconut with any fruit-cup, sweetened and flavored with lemon or lime juice if you like zesty zest. Besides the standard use of coconut for cake frostings, it's grand to decorate home-made sandwiches, sprinkled on cereals. Plain, toasted or tinted, you will discover new uses for it all the time.

But supposing you still want to make a Coconut Cream Pie, here's the recipe.

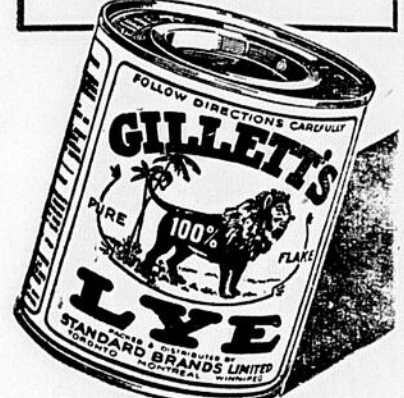

COCONUT CREAM PIE
 4 tbsps. sugar 2 c. milk
 1 can southern 1 baked 9-inch style coconut pie shell
 2 tsp. vanilla 5 tbsps. flour
 3 egg yolks 2 egg whites slightly beaten 1/4 tsp. salt
 4 tbsps. sugar

Method: Combine sugar, flour and salt in top of double boiler; add milk and egg whites, mixing thoroughly. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from boiling water; add 2-3 can coconut and vanilla. Cool slightly; then turn into pie shell. Beat egg whites until foamy throughout. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Then continue beating until mixture will stand in peaks. Pie lightly on filling; sprinkle with remaining 1-3 can coconut. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 15 minutes, or until delicately browned. This pie may be served by substituting a thin thin cream topping for meringue. Use 1/2 cup cream, whipped in place of 2 egg whites and 4 tablespoons sugar. Spread whipped cream on cooled pie filling. Sprinkle with remaining 1-3 can coconut.

DANGEROUS HIDEAWAY

By Minna Wesselhoef Glidden in "Our Dumb Animals"

T H E old adage, "Truth is stranger than fiction," is no bromide to Ted Speer's mother, in Medfield, Massachusetts, U.S.A., not since 13-year-old Ted came home 18 months ago, flushed and happy, cuddling a small ball of black and white fur.

"Look, Mom! A baby kitten. Found it in the woods, with its brothers and sisters. Can I keep it? And can I get the others?"

Ted's mother took one look at the fluffy lump in Ted's dirty hands. A pointed snout protruded from the fur.

"Good gracious, Ted, that's not a kitten. It's a skunk! Of course you may get the others, nor keep this one."

But Ted pleaded, and the little skunk was cute, and harmless looking. And probably hungry. If Ted kept it in the cellar the baby skunk could stay, for a while anyway. Ted named him "Jimmy."

Jimmy didn't keep to the cellar, however. Everyone liked the gentle creature. Ted's parents with cautious reservations which precluded absolute trust. The huge cat, "Jumbo," took to the small skunk instantly, stalking the little animal and batting at its plumpy tail, which held a deadly fascination for the tiger cat. Even "Tiny Tim," the canine treasure of the household, liked the skunk, and the beagle and the dreaded animal were close friends.

Came December, in the second winter of the young skunk's life. "Was the night before Christmas, and all through the house not a creature was stirring," except Jimmy the skunk. He crept softly into the deserted living room.

The next morning the skunk was missing. Anguish tore at Ted's heartstrings, threatening to dim the joys of Christmas, but curiously roused Tiny Tim to action. Within five minutes the little hound was in a deeply overfuffed chair, sniffing and whimpering. Jimmy the skunk had crawled into the depths of the upholstery of his favorite chair and was holed in for the winter.

He was still there when this story was written. Tiny Tim often sniffs and whimpers at the chair. Ted misses his pet. But with the joyous optimism of youth the boy and the dog fear nothing and plump victoriously on the stronghold of the hibernating skunk.

Ted's parents do not share the sublime faith of Ted and Tiny Tim. To their friends they stoutly maintain that Jimmy's domestication has deodorized him, and rejoice in the prospect of an open winter or early spring, or both, suggested by Jimmy's late hibernation. But the recent earthquakes worried them regarding the effect on Jimmy's nervous system. And there may be worse earthquakes. And terrific fumigation.

Quebec province has been lashed for its backwardness in the war effort.

But now Mr. Lash, Director of Information, declares that Quebec has played a highly creditable part in enlistment and other respects. However, it is unreasonable to compare the Dominion's accomplishment with that of the U.S. It is more just to compare Canada with Australia. The latter's population is only 7,000,000 against our 11,000,000. Australia's active force totals 100,000 men, with a defence force of 250,000. On a comparative basis, Canada should have 143,000 men overseas and 400,000 for defence. Actually we have 60,000 overseas, and 250,000 reserves for defence. The main reason for differences in war outlook is, of course, that Australia is almost wholly British by heredity and sentiment. Also Australia equipped its overseas force fully from its own factories, even to tanks, while Canadian divisions had to wait till they got to England to be fully equipped.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

THE HON. CAIRNE WILSON

ONE thing and another has halted for a time the flow of children evacuated from the Mother Country; but if that flow of little refugees ceases for good, it will not be the fault of a determined woman who is one of Canada's best known leaders, who was, in fact, the first woman ever elevated to the Senate of the Dominion of Canada.

Some people have called the Hon. Cairne Wilson the "mother of lost causes." Her present cause, which she is determined not to lose, is the National Committee on Refugees and victims of political persecution. Her object is not only to get as many refugees as possible cared for in Canadian homes, but to impress the need of caring for them on citizens of the United States as well. And if any woman can do that, Cairne Wilson can.

She is the exact opposite of the cartoonist's notion of a feminist leader. Senator Wilson is a dark-haired, attractive woman; beautifully groomed, beautifully spoken, and a person of great charm. She is a successful wife and mother. Her skill as a housekeeper has earned her a more than local reputation. During the house she is one of Ottawa's most gifted hostesses.

Mrs. Wilson was born in Montreal fifty-six years ago. Her father, Robert McKay, was a senator, and she was born with the smoke of politics in her nostrils. Her husband, Norman Wilson, served a term as Liberal Member of Parliament for Russell, but then business claimed Norman Wilson, and his wife discovered that she was the real political genius of the family. For years she organized, made speeches, and rallied the women of Canada. Her services to her party and her services to public works in general were such that, when Alex. Smith, M.P., suggested her for senatorship the suggestion was taken seriously.

At that time there was only one lady member of the House of Commons, and women in public life at Ottawa faced serious obstacles. But although a special measure was necessary in Parliament, to the Senator Cairne Wilson went. And since that February in 1930 no member of the Senate has given more tireless service to the country.

Yet with all this, Senator Wilson has led a busy home life. As the mother of eight children, three sons and five daughters, as the mistress of an eighteenth century manor house in Rockcliffe, just outside Ottawa, she has enough to do to keep an ordinary woman busy all her waking day. But Cairne Wilson takes these duties as a matter of course. Her country and the causes she has undertaken can summon her from any pastime or pleasure.

The Y.W.C.A., the League of Nations, women's clubs, have all claimed part of her generous support. But into no cause has she put more of her persuasive energy than into the refugee cause.

WEDDINGS

Moneypenny-Brooks

A very pretty wedding took place at twelve o'clock noon, on Saturday, in the Franklin Centre United Church, where the decorations were carried out with potted plants and ferns, when Gertrude Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman M. Brooks, was united in marriage to Mr. Stewart Charles Moneypenny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moneypenny. The Rev. T. F. Duncan officiated.

To the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. Wm. Gibson of Rockburn, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her away. She wore a floor length gown of white silk with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a corsage of white sweet peas, and was attended by her sisters, Miss Myrtle Brooks, as maid of honor, dressed in pale blue organdy over satin, with small flower hat to match, and corsage of pink sweet peas, and Miss Wynona Brooks as bridesmaid, dressed in maize organdy over taffeta with matching hat and corsage of orchid sweet peas.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Harry Moneypenny, Jr. The ushers were Messrs. Merle and Morrison Brooks, brothers of the bride.

After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where Rev. Duncan proposed a toast to the bride and groom, to which Mr. and Mrs. Moneypenny fittingly responded, and then led the way to the dining-room, where dinner was served to the immediate families. Later Mr. and Mrs. Moneypenny left amid showers of confetti for Montreal, where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride travelled in a navy blue dress with a serene blue coat and navy blue accessories.

Presbyterian Y.P.S. The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was held Friday evening in the church hall. The attendance was large and a most successful business and social evening was held. The members of the United Y.P.S. were guests of the evening. At the close of the business and devotional hour Miss Ruth Sills, retiring secretary, was presented with a Y.P.S. pin as a slight token of esteem on the part of the members for her untiring efforts during her term of office. In presenting the pin the president expressed regret on behalf of all present that Miss Sills found it necessary to resign. He said that much of the society's success had been due to her enthusiasm and foresight. Miss Sills fittingly thanked the president and said that she would long treasure the pin as a symbol of true friendship and happy memories forever associated with the Y.P.S. Following the presentation the chairs were moved aside and soon the hall resounded with cheers and peals of happy laughter as one game after another was played. But fun and holiday mood invariably sharpens the appetite and this occasion proved no exception. The situation, however, was solved to everyone's complete satisfaction and presently all were gathered around huge dishes of delicious maple sugar on snow. A long time later young men and women, sticky, sweet and happy, feeling that they couldn't eat another bite of sugar, joined in singing many of the old time favorite community songs. Mr. Huntley Greig, president of the United Young People, moved a vote of thanks to their host for a most enjoyable evening. This was accepted by Mr. Alvin Griener, on behalf of the Y.P.S. Cattle Demand Amongst U.S. Buyers Good

Pedigree Cattle Bring Much Better Prices Than Grades—Pedigree Worth $20.00 to Farmer

The cattle population of the Beatharnois District is dwindling. Not so many years ago the bovine population numbered in excess of 70,000 in this District, but according to the Health of Animals Branch, Huntingdon, it is now down to 39,303. Huntingdon County bovine population numbers 26,009; Chateauguay County 21,385; and Beatharnois County 12,409. During the past winter some 300 head of cattle were sold to United States buyers and at the present moment 180 head have been sold to U.S. buyers and will be shipped just as soon as they have passed their health tests. Indications point towards a big demand for purebred cattle amongst American buyers. Purebred cows are selling for $100 to $110, whilst grade cows sell for $75 to $80. It is said that a cow which has a pedigree will bring $20 more than she would without her papers, says Dr. Boyer. Farmers who are selling cattle for export should check their pedigree papers over with care, and at the same time make certain the tattoo marks on Ayrshire cattle are distinct. When errors are found, or the tattoo marks not distinct, that cattle should be passed the American customs as grade cattle which means a duty is imposed, the equivalent to 1 1/2% per pound. A farmer who recently sold a cow for export was obliged to pay $15.71 because the tattoo mark was not clear.

Military Dances!

I had an opportunity to observe a dance in the High School Gym. St. Andrew's Club entertained their friends in response to an invitation a number of soldiers from Chateauguay Camp attended. Only a limited number are permitted to accept such invitations. A very well-behaved and presentable group were present on this occasion, to them a most welcome diversion, owing to recent quarantine on account of measles.

It would seem that some understanding of the proper etiquette at such unusual events for this community should be established. The attitude of some of the local maids contributed to a noticeable feeling of restraint. In some cases soldiers were refused as partners... and they politely refused. This was no doubt due only to shyness and nothing personal could have been intended. However, some of the boys were unhappy about it and complained. It is a pity that such a well-organized and better organized communities. We must all admit that our under-populated area is faced with a heavy responsibility. The solution and proper handling of these new social problems calls for all possible tact and understanding. It will be a great pity if this community earns a reputation for lack of hospitality and a civil treatment of the boys in uniform. Local boys returning on leave from Newfoundland report that great kindness has been accorded them by the citizens of St. John's. Many times they were entertained at house parties, week-end leaves, etc. Young boys from other provinces now in training at Huntingdon Camp lack no doubt welcome invitations to spend leaves on local farms. Many residents have friends and relatives in Western Canada and boys from particular districts might be found inquiring at the Camp by telephone.

Militant Madge—

Mrs. Madge Macbeth, President of Canadian Authors Association, in addressing Notre Dame de Grace Women's Club, at a luncheon, gave the assembly the words: "Women have given soft," she said, "with easy living. Canadian women need to stiffen their spines... we cannot afford to show kindness to foreigners at the expense of our own people. We must be proud of our so-called economy, whereas they have sacrificed little or nothing. Should we become one more German-occupied country our conquerors would consider us an inferior race, needing less food, less clothes and less culture. We are fighting for an honorable past and a future when there will be more ease in thinking and less ease in living." Mrs. F. H. Sproule, a former President of the Club, in introducing the speaker, gave a sketch of the great accomplishments of Madge Macbeth as a Canadian Woman of Letters. Visiting With Stars. A letter from Mrs. F. H. Sproule is so interesting that I'm going to forego all scruples and quote: "I am enjoying The Gleaner... getting better all the time. Who writes the Biographies? They are fine. Mrs. Pat Thomson asked me to lunch at the Winter Club to meet the celebrated actresses Florence Reid and Violet Hemming, who played at St. Majesty's in "Night Must Fall."

MAIL BAG SLIT AND CUT OPEN AT ATHELSTAN

Tuesday night, Mr. Albert Cairns, who acts as courier between Athelstan Post Office and the Railway station had an annoying experience. Mr. Cairns had a locked bag in his care and as he went into the station the bag was removed. Upon investigation they found the bag in an out-house, the top cut and side slit. The contents of the bag appeared to have remained intact. Detectives have been investigating, but so far little or nothing has been revealed. It is generally felt some person covetous of the courier's position performed the despicable act.

WOMAN'S BODY IS FOUND NEAR JAMIESON'S LINES

The body of Mrs. Maude Price, 55, who had been missing since April 8, was recovered from Chateauguay River on the American side of the border near Jamieson's Lines Saturday. The woman disappeared from her home at North Burke, N.Y., and a search had been in progress since her son, Chester Badger, had reported his mother missing. Her body was found by a searching party of neighbors and U.S. state police from Malone at a point about three miles north of the woman's home. This discovery was made by John Doherty of Jamieson's Lines, just south of the United States border.

MODERN HOMES FOR MODERN BABIES
Plastic Furniture in Streamlined Designs Does Not Elbow Old Favorite Nursery Rhymes Out of Young Decorations

IT LOOKS as if even babies would eventually be swathed in cellophane, so completely are we all going over to synthetics and plastics. But where do these clean practical materials fit more properly than in the nursery, where pristine freshness is of such vital importance?

Fragile Mesh

The most modern and incredibly hygienic nursery we've encountered was designed by a brilliant pair of pioneers in plastics—Paul Bry and Jo Kim. And for all that sceptic perfection, the room manages to have charm too, which is important where babies are concerned. Tenite is the plastic in this case—it is woven into a fragile looking transparent mesh which is used for sides and ends of a very new sort of crib made with barrel hoop ends of bleached walnut with pale blue leatherette trim. Novel also is an arrangement for a sliding cover of clear transparent plastic sheeting that can be pulled up on tracks in the hoops to cover the crib partly or completely and keep out drafts and dirt.

Plastic Veneers

But don't worry if you can't go in for such a combination of fair-land and laboratory. There are many other new and modern things for new and modern children—an important commercial line of nursery furniture has some alluring new pieces with a plastic veneer finish in a linen weave effect—very streamlined and young looking with enamel decorations in blue and red. This group is available with either crib or youth's bed—the latter with a propeller design on the footboard. Also included in the group to add as the child grows older is a pilot desk with a radio and electric clock built in, a chest with secret compartments, a chair like those on a trans-continental air liner, a vanity like a stewardess desk.

Out of Sight ...

These cabinets in a baby's nursery were designed by Paul Bry, with doors of woven tenite, a new transparent plastic material that is washable and wonderfully practical for such use.

ment styles than can be used all through childhood. For enduring grown-up furniture looks gay and babyish against papers with nursery rhyme illustrations for their motifs. Our pet among these is one with Jack climbing his beanstalk all the way up the wall. A fantasy of animals and children in delicate shades of blue was inspired by and named for Gertrude Stein's "The World is Round."

that is not enough, is not even fair—but conscription of all manpower, for all the effort which is required from the nation.

One hundred thousand men are required in the manufacture of shells. The various plants need to take on many more men, and today they can only get them by hiring those who seek hire.

I believe we should be told, you can best serve at this, and you must serve that way; many others believe differently. They believe that men will voluntarily offer themselves in sufficient numbers, but practically all believe that the best possible use should be made of our abilities, and that full information of what is required should be made available to each one of us.

Balkan Battles Can't Lose War For Anyone Except Hitler—"War on Position" Appears to be Aim of Allies Which Nazis Abhor

By DONALD C. MACDONALD

It is more difficult to make a balanced commentary on the Battle of the Balkans than any other phase of this war. In its reaction to the events of the past few weeks in this corner of Europe, public opinion has alternately plunged into the depths of pessimism, and soared to the heights of optimism, so often that the average onlooker is quite bewildered.

Three weeks ago we had become reconciled to the Yugoslav sell-out to the Nazis—another conquest by telephone. Then a wave of rejoicing swept through the democratic world with the news of the coup d'état at Belgrade, overthrowing the government which had given in to Germany, and setting the stage for German invasion of Yugoslavia, as well as Greece. It is the course of the war since, in which connection we have permitted wishful-thinking to supersede what we knew was inevitable, that has left so many people down in the mouth.

FACING FACTS

The best observation I've come across in this respect has been that of Ralph Ingersoll, editor of the New York paper PM, who is one of Britain's staunchest admirers. Mr. Ingersoll wrote: "The Greeks have been driven from Thrace, Salonika abandoned. The northern plains of Yugoslavia are gone, the southern mountains have been split with panzer divisions.

"Across the Mediterranean the Axis has recaptured the stage on which Gen. Wavell performed the feat of swallowing up Graziani's army.

"So it's bad news!

"So what?"

"The Axis victory in Africa," Mr. Ingersoll points out, "will not bring them back Graziani's lost armies. Or Ethiopia. Or Eritrea. Or put their submarines under the Red Sea again.

"And what's happened in Greece and Yugoslavia? No one expected either Thrace or Croatia to be held. The Serbian and the British armies have retreated as everyone knew they would have to retreat—being outnumbered and out-equipped—into the mountains. But a couple of weeks ago we were resigned to the old Yugoslavian sell-out... would that have been better?"

"What in the world did we expect to happen? The unprepared Greeks and a couple of mechanized divisions—and the Greeks with three fronts to man—chopping up a carefully planned blitz with 500,000 men behind it? Go on! We hoped—but what did we expect? A battle in the Balkans can't lose the war for anyone except Hitler...."

Italian satellites, had pushed in from Austria and Northern Italy in the extreme northwest, but they had proceeded no further than Zagreb, the old Croatian capital; a glance at the map will indicate how limited that advance is. In the north-east, Hungary, now led by a government more willing to co-operate with the Nazis than the suzerain Count Telesi, has driven in for gains that are inconsequential in the east, in spite of the claims within a day or so of their attack, the Germans did not reach Belgrade—an open city in any case—until the close of the week. All throughout the northern area and in the foothills of the mountains, the Serbs are re-organizing, and their counter-attacks may prove to be monkey-wrenches tossed into the delicate and precise mechanism of blitzkrieg warfare.

It is in the south that the real danger lies—but there, too, for the moment at least, the German attack is stalled. By sending panzer divisions away ahead, as was done in France last year, the Nazis have been able to split the mountain forces by extending their lines. But that technique has succeeded in the past, first, because such rapid advance, so far ahead, led to demoralization among the defenders who felt they had lost already, with his lines so extended, was in an exceedingly vulnerable position; secondly, on level plains, the infantry and heavier machines of war could follow up quickly behind the swiftly-moving panzer advance.

WAR OF POSITION

For the moment the war has settled down to a war of position. The big question is whether the Allied forces can hold it as such. If they can, the situation will become very hopeful, for the Germans have always planned to avoid war of position, which would use up their precious stores, especially of oil, and to do so by a quick lightning thrust, backed by such might that it is irresistible. Once they have been able to consolidate their position they may be able to bring such forces into play that further advance cannot be halted. That is an eventuality which the next few days may produce, for it would be folly to underestimate the terrific might and ingenuity of the German army. On the other hand, the British forces have been in Greece for a month or more. Apparently they deliberately chose the position where they now stand. Reports at noon today (Monday) tell of further reinforcements. They are under the guidance of Gen. Wavell, and they come no smarter, as the Nazis themselves have acknowledged on more than one occasion. All these factors may combine to nullify the Nazi mechanical advantage, and then, when they have the long delayed Japanese push southward in the Far East, with the probability of immediate American participation? The next few weeks may indicate how truly this is a world war.

IS THE BLITZKRIEG STALLING?

Neither of these techniques have worked as effectively in Yugoslavia. Although the Germans were able to run far ahead, they did not effect a complete demoralization of the defenders; nor, as was the unhappy experience in France, have they been able to roll up millions of fleeing refugees to intensify the confusion. Although disorganized by the great strength of the Nazi attack, once it had swept by, the Serbs have been able to consolidate their position, and at present, their counter-attacks are causing the Germans no little worry. Secondly, apparently the Greco-British strategy has

Facts of Interest To Movie Fans

Orson Welles and Preston Sturges Make "One-Man" Films

ONCE upon a time, someone decided that two heads were better than one and talked about it. A couple of years later, Hollywood heard the proverb and took heed. And Hollywood never does anything by halves. So, from that time on, they used not two heads—for that could never be called colossal—but as many heads as would fit into one office, whenever they wanted to do anything. I am quite willing to agree that, in most things, such a pooling of opinion brings forth rich fruit. But I do not believe that any creative work ever has the solid punch when six people do it that it has when one brain does the work.

To get to the point, I disagree with the set and certain Hollywood tradition that if a screen play is to be good then anything from three to six people have to write it. How much better might they have been if one man had conceived them?

You see, in listening to one proverb, that ancient Hollywood mogul had missed another, the one about too many cooks and a resultant unsatisfactory broth. Occasionally, we get a blatant example of what the system's fault is when we find a movie that doesn't seem to know quite where it came from, where it's going or just how it intends to get there. That's when the writers, taking the easy way, say to each other, "You do a reel; then I'll do a reel; then Tom, here, can write a reel or two."

So I don't like screen play collaboration and I don't believe that the screen should depend upon novels for its stories. Right I believe that the screen's best stories should be those written expressly for the screen and that these stories should be written by one author. And the proof of it is Preston Sturges and Orson Welles and all the triumphant army which, I hope, will follow them. It took Mr. Sturges years to prove his point. Even then, when his studio allowed him to write and direct "The Great McGinty" they would gamble no big "names" in his cast, nor no great amount of money, comparatively, on its production. It was a hit, as was "Christmas in July." And now, Mr. Welles comes

WEK-END SITUATION

Ralph Ingersoll wrote that last week at a time when the news was blackest, and there is every reason to believe that he stated our case at its very worst—much worse than we now know it to be. For example, I have before me a map, carried by the New York Times in its Sunday edition, indicating those portions of Yugoslavia which the Nazis had actually occupied. At last week-end, most of the northern plain, whose loss we are quite reconciled to, was still in Yugoslav hands. The Nazis, and their

Casualties among the civilian population are greater than ever in the history of warfare and there is every indication that they will be substantially larger as the days roll by.

FEED GRAINS CROP

The total crop of all feed grains in Canada for 1940, including oats, barley, rye, corn, buckwheat, peas, and mixed grain, but not including wheat, amounted to 10.9 million tons. This crop was almost the same in amount as that of the previous year. At the same time, however, the number of grain-consuming animal units on farms (all classes of live stock and poultry converted to an animal unit basis) was increased by ten per cent, thus the supply of grain feed per animal unit has been reduced to 0.68 tons, compared with 0.75 tons for the previous year.
