

A MASS MEETING.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF ORGANIZING A WINTER CARNIVAL.

A Strong Committee Appointed to Wait on the Mayor.

The Carnival Committee met last evening at the Windsor Hotel. L. A. Wilson presided. Those present were W. A. Wilson, E. H. Dunham, Jos. Youngheart, Fred. Lamonth, M. Cochenhaler, T. Butler, A. L. Rinfret, Jno. Lewis, A. D. Fraser, G. W. Clarke, J. M. Fortier, W. A. Weir, and J. J. Barry. The secretary, W. A. Weir, reported that prospects were good for a carnival. Then M. Cochenhaler proposed, seconded by W. A. Weir, that a sub-committee be authorized to obtain subscriptions for the winter carnival. Quite naturally there was a long discussion.

Mr. Cochenhaler's motion never passed for the following amendment was carried: Moved by A. L. Rinfret, seconded by E. H. Dunham, that a sub-committee be appointed to wait upon the Mayor to ask him, in view of the residence in Montreal of His Excellency the Governor-General during next winter, to call a mass meeting of the citizens for the purpose of organizing a winter carnival.

A straightforward resolution was drawn up as follows:

To the Mayor of Montreal:

Sir:—The undersigned having been appointed at a meeting of citizens as a committee to promote a winter carnival and to take steps to the calling of a mass meeting of citizens, humbly request that you be pleased to call a mass meeting of citizens for such purpose.

The meeting was signed by all present. Afterwards the following committee was appointed to wait upon the Mayor with the requisition:

A. D. Fraser, G. W. Clarke, J. M. Fortier, W. A. Weir, L. A. Wilson, G. Boivin, H. Hogan, H. S. Dunning, and Jos. Youngheart.

NOTES FROM QUEBEC.

Mailboxes Released From Jail—Funeral of the Late Mr. Tourangeau.

Quebec, Oct. 12.—Elias Mailloux, who was sent to jail a year ago, in connection with the famous forgery perpetrated to the prejudice of the Provincial Treasury, was liberated to-day. Mailloux, the fugitive stonemason and accomplice of Mailloux, is said to be in Lowell, Mass.

The funeral took place at the Basilica to-day of A. G. Tourangeau, late postmaster and was very largely attended. The chief mourners were Adolphe Tourangeau, son of the deceased, Messrs. Jourdain, Fiset and Feges, relatives, and a host of friends followed.

The announcement of the nomination of Hon. E. T. Paquet to the vacant position of the late Mr. Tourangeau is not confirmed yet.

A fairly attended Agricultural Convention was held yesterday at St. Anne, Montmorency County, at which were present the Hon. Messrs. T. C. Casgrain, Deaubien and Chabois, Provincial Ministers; Archbishop Jégin, A. Turcotte, Mayor for the County, and other prominent citizens.

The recent rains have caused floods in the Portneuf district, which was somewhat damaged. The water of the St. Anne River is very high and is said to have risen nearly 30 feet at the bridge at St. Alban, where the terrible landslide took place last spring.

Lambert, Guerin and Gagnon, injured in the recent accident on the Q. M. and C. Rv., are in the same dangerous condition. Gagnon is suffering from injuries which are almost too horrible to describe.

M. J. Murphy, of the Provincial Railway Department, met with a painful accident the other day. While driving down Cote d'Abraham his horse bolted and ran foul of another vehicle throwing him out of his wagon to the ground.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Martini-Medford Rifles for the Militia.

[Special to the Herald.] Ottawa, Oct. 12.—The Militia Department have decided to send out ten of the new Martini-Medford rifles to the principal shooting regiments in militia service. Indeed the work of doing so has already been commenced by the Department. Some twenty-three regiments will be supplied in all, making 230 in all. The object is to have the new arm thoroughly tested. Major General Herbert, as is well known, is a strong advocate of the rifles, and he desires to have it placed in the hands of every militia man in the country as soon as it is possible to do so. On the other hand there are many good marksmen who do not so far approve of the new rifle, whatever they may do after having had time to become better acquainted with it. The tests made during the Dominion Rifle Association meeting were, on the whole, satisfactory.

Among the Montreal regiments which will each get ten of the rifles are: The 1st Prince of Wales Rifles, 5th Royal Scots, 34th and 6th Fusiliers.

The following officers leave to-night to be present at the unveiling of the Macdonald Monument at Toronto to-morrow: Sir John Thompson, Hon. Mr. Bower, Sir Charles H. Tupper and Messrs. Wallace and Wood. Sir Adolphe Carron left last night for Toronto. Mr. Bower, Mr. Patterson will also be in attendance. The latter is out of town to-day, and is thought to be in Kingston investigating the recent Hazing affair. Judge McGrover left here to-day for Kingston in connection with the Hazing enquiry. He has got a son a cadet in the college.

It is reported that Major General Herbert will leave for Winnipeg on Monday next. He intends going soon at all events.

An interesting case is going on in L'Orignal before E. P. Johnson, justice of the peace. Isidore Proulx, M.P. for Prescott, presented David Bertrand, an aspirant for parliament, general whose hopes were crushed last general election by Proulx, on a charge of obtaining nine tons of hay under false pretences by giving a cheque for $71 in the bank. The case was adjourned till the 22nd inst. In the last general election Proulx got the Liberal convention nomination, but Bertrand also ran as a Liberal.

Solmer Park. Sir Charles Wombell's menagerie of performing animals made a big hit at Solmer Park last week, over 15,000 people attending the two performances. The success was so great that a re-engagement was made, and to-morrow, both afternoon and evening, the performances will be repeated. Besides, Lavigne's Band will give an instrumental concert.

NEWS FROM BROOKVILLE.

Negotiating for the Street Railway Charter—General Booth.

[Special to the Herald.]

Brookville, Oct. 12.—The prospects of a street railway for Brookville are being revived. W. H. Comstock, who is also president of the Toronto Aqueduct Company, holds a charter for a horse railway in Brookville which does not expire for several years yet, and he is willing to dispose of it at a nominal figure, providing the road is constructed. A firm of American capitalists are negotiating for the charter, and their representative, Mr. Wilgus, has been here several days looking into the scheme. He wants a twenty year franchise, exemption from taxation, and a right to run Sunday cars. If this be granted, an electric line will be built on the storage system, running to the cemetery at the west, the Union Depot at the north, and the new asylum at the east of the town. This, of course, would be dependent on an act of Parliament allowing the change in the charter from horsepower to electricity. The matter will come before the Council shortly, but it is not likely a Sunday service would be allowed.

Gen. Booth was given a hearty reception by the Mayor and Citizens' Committee last night, and he addressed an immense crowd in the Wall Methodist Church on "Darkest England." The party left for Gananoque this morning.

AGAINST THE MACHINE.

YESTERDAY'S NOMINATION PROCEEDINGS AT COOKSHIRE.

Great Enthusiasm Displayed on Behalf of Mr. St. Laurent, Liberal Candidate.

[Special to the Herald.]

Cookshire, Que., Oct. 12.—Mr. St. Laurent, Liberal, and Mr. McClary, Conservative, were nominated here at Parliament. The Machine had sent to Quebec for orators but it received a very severe throw down at the hands of Messrs. Stevens and Dandurand. Thus far nomination day here has been considered as a Conservative convention and the Machine had everything their own way. Their astonishment to-day when Mr. St. Laurent was nominated surpasses all description. Until the last moment they had expected no opposition and they collapsed when Mr. St. Laurent's name was brought out. They had such well-known speakers as Messrs. Flynn, Pope, Hackett, Chicoine, Frechette, etc., whom they expected would carry the meeting by storm, but their speeches were received very coldly by the voters who had come here from all over the county.

The scene when Mr. St. Laurent was nominated being described. For fifteen minutes the widest enthusiasm ever seen at a political nomination here prevailed. The whole crowd arose as one man and cheered for the Liberal candidate. It reached the climax when Mr. St. Laurent arose. His speech was received with applause and cheers. Messrs. Dandurand, Geo. W. Stevens, M.P.P., of Montreal, also spoke in favor of the Liberal candidate, and were very well received.

The most pleasing sights of the day were to see the opponents of the Machine working hand in hand with the Liberals. They will stand by their word and work against the Machine's candidate. The bosses are trying to conciliate them by promises, but they will no longer hear them.

THE COOKING SCHOOL.

Yesterday the first of a series of demonstration lectures on every day dinners was given at the cooking school.

Miss Miller prefaced her lecture by remarking that the great need of the day was plainly cooked food which would be nourishing and within the reach of those of ordinary means. Her course is intended to supply this want, and the dinners, while comparatively inexpensive, are, if daintily prepared and served, appetizing enough to suit the most fastidious housekeeper.

The bill of fare for the afternoon comprised: Potato soup, smothered beef, stuffed tomatoes, cod fish, jelly, an whipped cream. At the close of the lecture the various dishes were passed around, and those who tasted them were more than satisfied with the result of an afternoon at the Cooking School.

THE STRIKE INVESTIGATION.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Carol D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor and Acting Superintendent of the Census, returned from Chicago to-day. The report of the Strike Investigation Commission, of which he is Chairman, will be presented to the President the middle of November. Copies of the evidence taken during the investigation are in the hands of each of the three Commissioners for their consideration.

Messrs. Wright, Worthington and Kernan will meet within two or three weeks to compare notes taken as a result of their consideration of the evidence and will then complete their report.

ENFORCING THE ALLEN LAW.

Buffalo, Oct. 12.—The trial of James Corcoran, of Lockport, who is charged by Inspectors De Barry and O'Brien with violating the law forbidding the importation of contract labor, was held before Judge Wallace on Friday, November 30.

The Inspectors claim to be able to prove clearly that Corcoran personally brought two men from Canada and that two more were brought over by his agents. The imported Canadians took the places of American citizens who, were discharged, it is alleged.

A SAN FRANCISCO SCANDAL.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Ethel Marion Berry Hertzlet, the daughter of an eminent London musician, has brought suit for divorce against General Spencer Hertzlet, son of Sir Edward Hertzlet, formerly secretary to the Earl of Beaconsfield, and at present librarian of the foreign office in London. The wife alleges infidelity and desertion, and asks for the custody of their three children, now with their father in England. The Hertzlets came here in 1885.

DIED IN ENADOR.

San Francisco, October 12.—News has been received here of the death at Iza Del Oro, Ecuador, on September 19, of Col. Thomas M. C. Cunningham, well known throughout this country. He was the Guatemalan correspondent of several English and Eastern papers as well as the Associated Press during the war between Guatemala and Salvador. Col Cunningham was a grandson of Governor John Brown of Ohio.

OBITUARY.

London, Oct. 12.—John Nichol, LL.D., professor of Metaphysics and English literature is dead, aged 61 years.

BREVITIES.

Richard Mason, 40, a boiler-maker by trade, numbered Police Station No. 5 for Protection Thursday night and yesterday he was found to be so sick that he was taken to the General Hospital, where he is now being treated.

DEATH OF W. R. ELMENHORST.

PRESIDENT OF THE ST. LAWRENCE SUGAR REFINERY.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION BROUGHT ON BY BUSINESS TROUBLES.

His Death Caused by a Shot From His Own Revolver.

One of the saddest suicides the press has ever been called upon to chronicle is that of Mr. W. R. Elmenhorst, the well-known president of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery.

At half past ten yesterday Mr. Elmenhorst's man servant returned from an errand and entered the stable when he found the dead body of his master shot through the right temple and a revolver lying close by. Doctors were at once summoned and the body removed to the house. His personal physician, however, as death must have been instantaneous.

There is absolutely no reason which can honestly be assigned as the cause for the terrible deed. It is true that about twelve months ago Mr. Elmenhorst lost a great deal of money in stocks but it was thought that much of this was recovered in other financial speculations.

Nervous prostration has undoubtedly had much to do with the taking of his life. During the past summer he spent some time in fishing and shooting, and his companions on those trips state that he was so terribly upset and prostrated at times that it finally became necessary to come home.

Since then he has evidently been worried a great deal but why, no one knows. It was but a few days ago that Mr. and Mrs. Elmenhorst decided to spend the winter in Italy. They were to sail in a few days, for Naples and it was hoped that the voyage and absence from business worry would soon bring Mr. Elmenhorst back to his old self.

The deceased gentleman was born in London, Eng. He was of German parentage and was about fifty years of age. In his early manhood he went to New York and soon became identified in the sugar refining business. Prosperity waited on him, and he was shortly afterwards married to Miss Donner, of Danzig, Germany, who with four children survived him.

Just twenty years ago Mr. Elmenhorst came from New York to Montreal, and soon afterwards became President of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery, which honored position he has held from then until this day of his death.

He was of an extremely quiet disposition. Took no part in politics or public affairs, but spent much of his spare time with his family in his beautiful residence 334 Peel Street.

Mr. Elmenhorst was a member of St. James Club and the Montreal Hunt, but in neither did he take much interest. He was a business man above all, and his place in the financial world of Montreal will not be soon filled.

THE NEWS OF CHANGE.

On Change the news was at first received with incredulity, and when confirmed, with dismay and amazement. The deceased was so well known and highly respected, that his death came as a personal bereavement to many an interest.

The coroner will hold an inquest at the house this morning at 9 o'clock. The funeral will take place Monday afternoon at two o'clock from his late residence.

ILLICIT LOVE AND CONSEQUENCES.

Buffalo, Oct. 12.—Mary Meuga, a mild-mannered little Polish woman, appeared before Judge King this morning and asked for a warrant for petty larceny against her former boarder and lover, Matthias Kamecki. She told a remarkable story to the judge, how her lover and she had attempted the murder of the husband last winter by pushing him off a canal bridge, but he had escaped alive. After that Kamecki had quit her. She wanted him arrested for stealing some of her husband's shirts.

A CURIOUS FIND.

A Bundle of Woman's Clothing at the Central Police Station.

The officials at the Central Police Station are puzzled over a peculiar find in the station doorway last night. About 10:30 a constable coming in found a bundle wrapped up in waterproof cape. He picked it up and took it to the station, where its being opened it was discovered to be filled with a curious collection of freshly laundered garments, including a pair of shoes and other articles which might constitute the complete wardrobe of a poor woman. Every article was neatly packed, and on some of the garments was marked the name in India ink "Marie Brazza."

The question is where is Marie Brazza? The most natural supposition is that she is in the bottom of the St. Lawrence river. It is thought that some poor girl tired of life—perhaps for other reasons, went down Jacques Cartier square and jumped off the wharf. This, however, is the opinion of the police. Why she should have left the clothing at the Central Station is a mystery which could have been a freak of insanity.

GLEASON VICTORIOUS.

The Herald Mare and the Black Devil, Victims of His Skill.

Professor Gleason had a packed house last night, for everyone interested in horsemanship was anxious to see the outcome of the second battle between him and the mare now known to fame as the "Herald mare." This time it was the professor's night. The spunky little mare had evidently come to the conclusion, after serious consideration, that there was nothing in fighting, so after a few coy attempts at imitating a kangaroo she consented to go quietly in single file. The professor then broke the highly spirited of a handsome black and hit her up double with the Herald mare. She allowed her cracks to be fired off without displaying any more emotion than a pale-faced schoolboy. "The Black Devil," as the stallion Thunderbolt is called, proved an easy mark for the Herald mare, and she won in a short time. After a few lessons he not only allowed a revolver to be fired off at him, but he displayed an obvious liking for it.

Considerable interest was excited by a bet of $50 a side, made by Prof. Gleason and a gentleman among the spectators that the Professor could not drive inside of an hour three horses to be ridden by the letters. The money was deposited at the Herald office this morning.

After the performance Prof. Gleason displayed his admiration for the Herald mare by purchasing her at a good figure.

Booth at Gananoque.

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 12.—General Booth arrived here from Brookville at 5 p.m. to-day. He was to have arrived at 4 p.m., but was delayed in consequence of a fine driving blowing out of the boiler of the steamer hired to convey him here. The disabled condition being observed from the wharf, the steamer Antelope went to their relief and towed them up to the landing. The General was given a warm civic welcome, and had a big meeting in the evening. Kingston is the next stopping place.

MADE A BIG HAUL.

SMART WORK BY TRAIN ROBBERS IN CALIFORNIA.

TWO MEN GET AWAY WITH MANY THOUSANDS.

Train Hands Made to Assist in the Work With Guns at Their Heads—Gold and Silver the Booty.

Sacramento, Oct. 12.—The east-bound Southern Pacific overland train due here Friday night was held up by two men about six miles below this city last night. The train robbers then covered the engineer and fireman with guns and compelled them to accompany them to the express car. Messenger Page shot twice at the bandits. The engineer and fireman called to Page to open the door as the robbers were going to shoot them if he did not and they were prepared to blow the car with dynamite. He complied with their request in order to save their lives and the robbers looted the car of four bags of gold, the value of which is not known. Then they ordered the train to open the door and it ran toward the city. When the robbers left the engine they set it on a wild run toward the train, but at the time it had reached there the steam had run so low that the collision caused little damage. The robbers then made their escape.

It was a well planned and skillfully executed robbery. The robbers stayed in the track-walker on his tricycle, about 9 o'clock, tied his hand and foot, stole $5,500 and left him helpless at the side of the track.

With the track-walker's lantern the robbers signalled No. 3 to stop. Engineer Scott allowed, but did not come to a full stop, until the explosion of dynamite bombs under the engine warned him that it was useless to proceed further. By this time the robbers were on the engine.

They sprang up from opposite sides of the track and began shooting at once. The robbers ordered the train to stop, a number of shots were fired before anybody knew what it was all about. The robbers made the engineer and fireman dismount, and walked them back with rifles at their heads, to the rear of the express car, where the robbers were ordered to unstrap the train. This was done speedily and before the expressman, mail clerk or any of the train hands knew what was going on, the engine was speeding ahead and drawing only the two forward mail cars.

HARD PRESSED BY USURY.

PITIFUL CASE OF PIERRE SULPICE CHAPUT, A COAL WEAIGHER.

$50 MOUNTS TO $500 IN ABOUT TWO YEARS.

Will Be Jailed Unless He Pays What the Superior Court Orders Him Not to Pay.

Over $500 is the penalty which Pierre Sulpice Chaput, coal weigher, has had to pay for borrowing $50 some two years ago at 8 per cent. per month, and he is not out of the woods yet.

Yesterday morning C. A. Barnard, of Doherty, Sicotte and Barnard, presented a petition to Judge Barry in the Circuit Court, in the case of Louis Napoleon Demers, advocate, versus Pierre Sulpice Chaput, which set forth that a rule for contrainte par corps (imprisonment) had issued, ordering Chaput to be arrested and detained in the common goal until he had paid the amount of a judgment, rendered against him on May 17th, 1894.

This rule was declared absolute by a judgment of the Superior Court, rendered on the 12th of September last, which set forth that he had paid the amount of the judgment, which was for $25, and he declared his readiness to pay the costs. Since the issue of the rule of the Circuit Court, a seizure has been issued, on behalf of the Banque Nationale, by Fortin and Lavigne, and Chaput stated in his petition that he was desirous of avoiding arrest and he did not want to lodge in the common goal.

Chaput is now employed by Labreque, Cousineau and Co., coal merchants. About three years ago he was employed by Demers, and he was without money to pay for his family—a wife and three children. He paid a visit to the office of L. N. Demers. There he made a note for $50, receiving in exchange about $45, the balance being borrowed at 8 per cent. per month. The rate of interest on the note, which was endorsed, was 8 per cent. per month, or 96 per cent. per annum on $50 whilst Chaput only received $45, making the rate of interest still higher. The interest for one year was $48. At the end of two years the interest with incidental expenses brought the total amount to more than $200, and the debt of $50 still remained; for Mr. Demers was still the holder of that little bit of promise, which blossomed so beautifully and bore a heavy interest.

Ottawa, Oct. 12.—The Capitals are not through with the Shamrocks so far as the trophy played for on the 6th is concerned. Since the champions refused to play them a return match here they have been anything but satisfied and felt they were not treated squarely. Now they intend to make the Shamrocks play or forfeit all claim to the prize and are going about it in this way. The match in Montreal was played under senior league rules and the agreement between the clubs for that match was consequently signed according to league by-laws which say that in the event of a draw the match must be played over on the visiting club's grounds and the gate divided equally. They claim the Shamrocks must adhere to the rules even though it were an exhibition match, and have therefore written referee Brophy to give a decision accordingly. It is quite evident that the Capitals want another match here of the cup. They prefer a match though and would not like to win by default.

The Star Lacrosse Club.

Ottawa, Oct. 12.—There is some underground work going on in the Star Lacrosse Club which is seriously reflecting on the well known ability of Captain Halpin. He has been shelled but by whom has not yet been made clear to him. He worked hard for the club all season and no small account of the team's success is due to his abilities and interest in the boys. Some of the players are dissatisfied over his removal but will play under P. Lewis to-morrow against the Young Shamrocks.

The Jersey-Hibernian Match. The National grounds at Lachine is the place selected for the Jersey-Hibernian match. Jersey players and members are requested to meet at Dufferin Square at 1 o'clock p.m. sharp, as buses leave at 1.20 p.m.

The Standard-Garnet Draw. At a meeting of the Independent Junior League held last evening it was decided that the Standard-Garnet draw should be played off on October 20. The ground has yet to be selected.

Whiting, Lidgate, Neilson, Hornes, Miller, King, Campbell, Doig, Stening, and G. Porter, reserve. The members are requested to meet at the Grand Trunk Depot at 6.30 Saturday morning.

Manager Shillington of the Ottawa Club Resigns. [Special to the Herald.] Ottawa, Oct. 12.—Mr. R. Shillington, Manager of the Ottawa Football Club, has sent in his resignation. The team has shown no interest in practices and refused to turn out as they should. Scarcely any of the players were out this week to prepare for to-morrow's struggle against Ottawa College.

The Mohawks' Team. The following will represent the Mohawks in their intermediate match with the Scots on Beaver grounds: Benvie, Henderson, McManis, McKenzie, Bush, Murray, Wyke, Levasseur, Binning, White, Ogan, Hyams. The team will meet at 3.30 in Victoria Square.

Philadelphia Defeats Washington. Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—Philadelphia defeated Washington 3 to 1 in the professional football match to-day.

RUGBY.

No Thanksgiving Game in New York. New York, Oct. 11.—New Yorkers will be compelled this year to eat their Thanksgiving turkey minus football game. The great annual 'Rah! Rah!' festival at Manhattan Field will be indefinitely postponed, and all because the delicate pigskin chasers of Yale want a long rest between their struggles with Harvard and Princeton.

Manager Cable, of the Yale eleven, who was interviewed in New Haven yesterday, said there was no possibility of a Yale-Princeton Thanksgiving Day football game. Yale, he stated, had notified Princeton of this at the preliminary meeting of the Intercollegiate Football Association in New York on October 5.

Yale had also informed Princeton that the eleven could not meet before December 5, ten days after the Yale-Harvard game at Springfield, but Princeton refused to compromise by playing on Saturday, December 1, and Yale would probably agree to it to play on that day.

It is evident, therefore, that the collegians will leave New York in the lurch for football on Thanksgiving Day, as with the Yale-Princeton game cancelled off, the Yale-Princeton game will be no chance for a first class scrimmage. In defence of Yale's action it is set forth that at the close of last season Yale, while conceding a fairly earned victory to Princeton, decided that the chances of the blues should not be endangered by the necessity of playing two such matches, as those against Harvard and Princeton last year within five days of each other.

This year, therefore, an attempt was made by Yale to arrange an earlier date than that named for the Harvard game. Harvard, however, feeling that she was not in a position this year to change the date to an earlier one, and thus possibly weaken her own chances against Yale, refused to accede to Yale's request. This left Yale the only alternative of arranging a later date than usual for the game with Princeton.

Carbuncles Large as Hen's Eggs! Mrs. NANSIE GOLDMAN, of Philadelphia, King William Co., Va., writes as follows: "For about eight or ten years my father, Col. T. U. Fogg, of the war, was laid up with carbuncles, the worst that I ever saw. He tried everything he heard of, his doctor could do nothing for him. Had six or seven carbuncles at a time, as large as hen's eggs. He got so weak he could not walk. He could not do much step. In 1872 he had his bed put in the middle of his room and got on to it and was unable to get well. He saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advised for all blood diseases. Before he had taken half a bottle of 'Discovery' he was able to walk. Two bottles entirely cured him. He is now 73 years old, and enjoys good health."

THE KENNEL. The Judging at Dog Shows. The London, Eng., Licensed Victuallers' Gazette hits the nail on the head regarding the judging of dogs, and gives some interesting reading in the following, says the Advocate: It is high time that some steps were taken to ensure that only gentlemen who have a knowledge of foreign breeds should be selected to judge them. We remember once watching a class of foreign dogs being judged by a friend at a K. C. show. He awarded premier honors to a dog the like of which we had never seen nor heard of before. Upon asking him what breed it was, the judge (?) jocularly replied, "Another I know." And he didn't know.

Another little reminiscence of foreign dogs will bear telling. Two judges were jointly officiating in awarding the prizes in a variety class. The class was as large as one we can call to mind at any show. Each judge admitted to the other that there were several dogs in the class of which they were entirely ignorant, even as to the breed. It was therefore decided to call in one of the all-round judges to assist them out of their difficulty. To their amazement Mr. All-Round also didn't know to what breed one or two of the specimens exhibited belonged, but, said he, "that doesn't matter, if we know nothing of the breed it's safe to assume the owners know no more, and it will be all right to give 'em each a very highly commended card."

Upon this declaration of please-everybody-and-do-justice-to-nobody policy, the two original judges politely declined the services of Mr. All-Round, and made up their minds to struggle through with the awards as best they could under the circumstances. Eventually they agreed as to how the prizes were to be awarded in all but one instance. There was a whapping big animal in the class of noble and commanding presence. If he was any distinct breed, he was undoubtedly a fine representative of it; but how to determine that was a puzzle. They were within an ace of giving the dog first prize when the happy idea occurred to them to ask the owner what breed it was. No greater stroke of luck ever attended any judge than this was the determination to ask that simple question to the two judges referred to.

The owner was asked, and at the top of his voice replied, "Well, you are a couple of fine men; coming here to pose as judges and don't even know the breed. You're a couple of—frauds." Here was a peculiar opportunity of getting out of a peculiarly perplexing predicament, and it may be sure it was grasped. "Leave the dog, sir," said one of the judges, "we refuse to judge the dog after your disgraceful language." They had the man turned out of the ring. It was not long before they learnt upon what a precipice they had been standing. The noble-looking dog had been entered for the purpose of playing a trick upon the judges. It was a Great Dane out of a rough-coated St. Bernard. Of course the judges were complimented upon their good judgment in having "spotted" it as a cross-bred 'un, and it will be readily understood, they didn't let it be known that if the owner had only told them it was a Timbuctoo hound, or some such fairy tale, it would have been the recipient of highest honors.

THE RING. Corbett-Fitzsimmons Fight Will Not Be Allowed in Florida. New Orleans, La., Oct. 12.—The City Item here is in receipt of a telegram from Governor Mitchell, of Florida, in answer to a query as to whether the Corbett and Fitzsimmons fight would be allowed to take place in Florida. The following is a copy of the reply received from Governor Mitchell: "Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight will not be allowed to meet in Florida even if Legislature has been convinced for the purpose of preventing the fight."

Louge and Tony Delar, on tandems, rode a half mile flying start and paced for one quarter in 52.3 seconds, beating the world's record two seconds.

TURF AND TRACK. The G. J. C. Row. Honest, gentle old Sir Frank Smith is about going to do the trick. White winged peace is getting ready to brood over the Ontario Jockey Club. Mutual friends brought Mr. Hendrie and Mr. Patterson together at the Hunt Club races on Saturday, and it is believed the status quo ante was restored. Now, if nobility tries to raise the ante, things will be all right. And this is as it should be. It will require the united efforts of all lovers of racing to keep the sport up to the standard for the next few years. The services of neither gentleman should be lost, for the critical time is coming. Therefore we sincerely trust that all old scores will be wiped out, that Messrs. Torrance and Mead will join in the general good fellowship, and that there will be union between the gentlemen, and union between Toronto and Hamilton in the cause of good sport.—Toronto Advocate.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12.—The northern bound passenger train on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, which left here at 7 o'clock to-night was held up near Quantico. The engineer and fireman were forced from their engine and the engine was cut loose and sent ahead. The express car was then entered, the messenger covered with pistols and the safe blown open and robbed. The runaway locomotive was stopped at Quantico by obstructing the track. It is stated that there was an unusually large amount of money on the train, probably $50,000. The robbers, seven in number, were masked. The railroad company has offered $1,000 for the arrest of the perpetrators of the deed.

A STATE OF SIEGE. Lourenzo Marques in Great Danger of a Kafir Massacre. London, Oct. 12.—A despatch to the Times from Cape Town says that the Portuguese town of Lourenzo Marques is in a complete state of siege. All the streets on the land side of the town are barricaded to prevent, if possible, the entry of the Kafirs, who are in arms against the Portuguese. Guns are mounted at the barricades and a guard is kept by seventeen Portuguese marines. Four hundred soldiers form a cordon from Beares to Reuben Point. The despatch concludes with the statement that the town will be at the mercy of the natives if they make an attack. The authorities are doing their best with the inadequate means at their command to protect the place.

IRISH IN AMERICA. The Split at Home Nothing Compared to the Situation Here. London, Oct. 13.—The Times to-morrow will contain extracts from the report of the Clan-na-Gael convention, from the Chicago Times of Sept. 29th. In a leader commenting on this report, the Times says that the split in the Irish party in Ireland is deep and complicated enough, but is nothing to the ramified feud which rends the party in America. The balance sheet of the Clan-na-Gael, the Times adds, teaches that administrative expenses of the Irish patriotic associations are amazingly high.

The Day in Wall Street. New York, Oct. 12.—The Evening Post's Wall Street Review says: "From the standpoint of Wall street speculation, which is well known to be the popular ground of judgment, this week's aggressive financiers have been really unlucky. European politics might have drifted into a critical complication. Gold shipping houses might have decided to discontinue in demand for sterling bankers, have found it practicable to sell their own 'gold bills.' Both of these incidents were possible and neither happened. The logical outcome of such upset expectations was today's market recovery. The gains in prices were pretty well distributed, and their relative magnitude gave a fair means of covering the short interest's present location. Aside, however, from this retreat of local speculators, there was nothing significant or interesting in the market."

YACHTING. Lord Dunsen Will Build an American Cup Challenger. London, Oct. 13.—Field, says Lord Dunsen has practically decided to build a new challenger for America's cup. It will be a cutter of 300 tons, or a trifle longer. The paper adds: This perhaps under the circumstances is the best decision as we have no yachts that a 70 footer could fairly be tried against. We understand Lord Dunsen has not communicated with the New York Yacht Club yet, but the conditions that ruled last year's matches will probably prevail.

Both soldiers are members of Company "A," Thirteenth Infantry, which came here last week from Oklahoma. Sergeant Schuler sat at his desk writing. Sergt. Marriott in the next room loaded a rifle, came into Schuler's presence, aimed the gun and fired. The ball passed clear through Schuler's body. The Captain hearing the shot came running and heard Schuler say: "Stop the pain if you can, and put Marriott out of arrest."

M. J. Adler, of 75 Blenny Street, is the lowest-priced, first-class tailor in the city. HOWARD A PRISONER. Levi P. Norton's Alien Conchman Likely to be Transported. New York, October 12.—John James Howard, who, it is claimed, came to this country as a contract laborer, having been engaged in England by Hon. Levi P. Norton to enter his employ as a coachman, was taken to Ellis Island this afternoon. He was in charge of Prentiss C. Dodge, the immigration inspector of the District of Vermont, who made the arrest. This was the first official knowledge Dr. Senner, the commissioner of immigration, had of the arrest of the Englishman. Ashley Cole, Mr. Norton's private secretary, and Frank Platt, of the firm of Tracy, Boardman and Platt, asked permission of Commissioner Senner to see Howard. Dr. Senner said he had no power to give such permission in the absence of instructions from the Treasury. Howard is a prisoner, and though not confined in the Immigration Penitentiary, is under close surveillance. It is expected that an effort will be made to-morrow to have Howard's case brought into court, otherwise he will be sent back to England on the steamship Paris next Wednesday.

Philadelphia Defeats Washington. Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—Philadelphia defeated Washington 3 to 1 in the professional football match to-day.

RUGBY. No Thanksgiving Game in New York. New York, Oct. 11.—New Yorkers will be compelled this year to eat their Thanksgiving turkey minus football game. The great annual 'Rah! Yale had also informed Princeton that the eleven could not meet before December 5, ten days after the Yale-Harvard game at Springfield, but Princeton refused to compromise by playing on Saturday, December 1, and Yale would probably agree to it to play on that day.

Before he had taken half a bottle of 'Discovery' he was able to walk. Two bottles entirely cured him. He is now 73 years old, and enjoys good health."

THE KENNEL. The Judging at Dog Shows. The London, Eng., Licensed Victuallers' Gazette hits the nail on the head regarding the judging of dogs, and gives some interesting reading in the following, says the Advocate: It is high time that some steps were taken to ensure that only gentlemen who have a knowledge of foreign breeds should be selected to judge them. We remember once watching a class of foreign dogs being judged by a friend at a K. C. show. He awarded premier honors to a dog the like of which we had never seen nor heard of before. Upon asking him what breed it was, the judge (?) jocularly replied, "Another I know." And he didn't know.

Another little reminiscence of foreign dogs will bear telling. Two judges were jointly officiating in awarding the prizes in a variety class. The class was as large as one we can call to mind at any show. Each judge admitted to the other that there were several dogs in the class of which they were entirely ignorant, even as to the breed. It was therefore decided to call in one of the all-round judges to assist them out of their difficulty. To their amazement Mr. All-Round also didn't know to what breed one or two of the specimens exhibited belonged, but, said he, "that doesn't matter, if we know nothing of the breed it's safe to assume the owners know no more, and it will be all right to give 'em each a very highly commended card."

Upon this declaration of please-everybody-and-do-justice-to-nobody policy, the two original judges politely declined the services of Mr. All-Round, and made up their minds to struggle through with the awards as best they could under the circumstances. Eventually they agreed as to how the prizes were to be awarded in all but one instance. There was a whapping big animal in the class of noble and commanding presence. If he was any distinct breed, he was undoubtedly a fine representative of it; but how to determine that was a puzzle. They were within an ace of giving the dog first prize when the happy idea occurred to them to ask the owner what breed it was. No greater stroke of luck ever attended any judge than this was the determination to ask that simple question to the two judges referred to.

The owner was asked, and at the top of his voice replied, "Well, you are a couple of fine men; coming here to pose as judges and don't even know the breed. You're a couple of—frauds." Here was a peculiar opportunity of getting out of a peculiarly perplexing predicament, and it may be sure it was grasped. "Leave the dog, sir," said one of the judges, "we refuse to judge the dog after your disgraceful language." They had the man turned out of the ring. It was not long before they learnt upon what a precipice they had been standing. The noble-looking dog had been entered for the purpose of playing a trick upon the judges. It was a Great Dane out of a rough-coated St. Bernard. Of course the judges were complimented upon their good judgment in having "spotted" it as a cross-bred 'un, and it will be readily understood, they didn't let it be known that if the owner had only told them it was a Timbuctoo hound, or some such fairy tale, it would have been the recipient of highest honors.

THE RING. Corbett-Fitzsimmons Fight Will Not Be Allowed in Florida. New Orleans, La., Oct. 12.—The City Item here is in receipt of a telegram from Governor Mitchell, of Florida, in answer to a query as to whether the Corbett and Fitzsimmons fight would be allowed to take place in Florida. The following is a copy of the reply received from Governor Mitchell: "Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight will not be allowed to meet in Florida even if Legislature has been convinced for the purpose of preventing the fight."

Castello to Meet Peckham. Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 12.—A Washington, D.C., despatch to the Express says a match has been arranged between Hite Peckham, of Buffalo, and Castello, of Toronto, Ont., for a fifteen-round go for a purse of $500, of which $400 to the winner. The date of the meeting has not been decided upon.

THE WHEEL. Wanderers Road Race To-Day. The green road race of the Wanderers Bicycle Club will take place this afternoon at 4.00 p.m., on the Back River Road, starting near the new Shamrock grounds. The ride to Chambly has been cancelled on account of the road race, a ride however will leave the club-room at 3.30 p.m. in order to ride out to the race. Members are reminded that to-night at 8 p.m. the nomination meeting takes place. Fixtures for the week: Saturday, 13 October, 3.30—Ride out to starting point of race. Saturday, 13 October, 4.00—Road race. (Green). Saturday, 13 October, 8.00—Nomination meeting. Monday, 15 October, 8.00—Cote St. Michel. Thursday, 18 October, 8.00—Athletic Club house. Saturday, 20 October, 3.00—St. Laurent.

Another Record Gone. Sacramento, Oct. 12.—In the bicycle tournament at Agricultural Park yesterday Charles S. Wells, paced by tandems with flying start, rode a half mile in 52.5 seconds, beating the world's record 4.5 of a second, the previous record being 57.2 by John S. Johnson at Springfield, Mass. T. Louge and Tony Delar, on tandems, rode a half mile flying start and paced for one quarter in 52.3 seconds, beating the world's record two seconds.

TURF AND TRACK. The G. J. C. Row. Honest, gentle old Sir Frank Smith is about going to do the trick. White winged peace is getting ready to brood over the Ontario Jockey Club. Mutual friends brought Mr. Hendrie and Mr. Patterson together at the Hunt Club races on Saturday, and it is believed the status quo ante was restored. Now, if nobility tries to raise the ante, things will be all right. And this is as it should be. It will require the united efforts of all lovers of racing to keep the sport up to the standard for the next few years. The services of neither gentleman should be lost, for the critical time is coming. Therefore we sincerely trust that all old scores will be wiped out, that Messrs. Torrance and Mead will join in the general good fellowship, and that there will be union between the gentlemen, and union between Toronto and Hamilton in the cause of good sport.—Toronto Advocate.

Morris Park Races. New York, Oct. 12.—The attendance at Morris Park to-day was very light and the card unimpressive. Second race, mile, selling—Adelbert, 99 (Clayton), 10 to 5; won; Countess, 96 (G

MUSICAL MATTERS.

I spoke last week of the growing tendency of people to rely too much of the verdicts of musical critics and to attach too much importance to their opinions.

There is of course, not a bit of use in generalizing over this fact but a word of warning may not be out of place.

The popular taste is unstable, and the popular idol is neither immortal nor inerent.

Farwell concerts are things that artists should indulge in sparingly, for the public do not like being imposed upon.

Montreal I suppose likes to be up to date, even in artistic views, and there is a rumor going around musical circles that it has recently had such a sensation.

To those to whom musical statistics are interesting the following items from a recent number of the New York Evening Post will be interesting:

German composers have not been idle during the past year. According to an official announcement (communications of the Society of German Music-sellers) as many as 10,372 musical publications were issued in Germany in 1893.

According to a recent pamphlet by Albert Soubis, the records of the Paris Opera-Comique show that from 1835 to 1893 four operas had over a thousand performances.

As was to be expected, the rumor that Mascagni had been engaged to come to New York to conduct some of his operas has proved a mere fabrication.

The fact for adulterous and murderous one-act operas, which is now fortunately on the wane, has led to the production in Berlin of a "parodical opera" in "one-half an act," entitled, "A Nicely Family," and consisting of the plots of "Cavalleria," "Pagliacci," and "Mara" amusingly mixed up and burlesqued.

Madame Nordica has been attracting some attention lately in connection with her New York engagement under Abbey and Grau, and she is reported to have accepted figures below her own estimate of her merits.

Miss Olla Tarbutt made a favorable impression this week. The violin is a graceful instrument for a young girl, and in her hands the illusion lost none of its significance to eye or ear.

A Grand Shoe Exhibition. No boot and shoe dealer of Montreal, or perhaps in the Dominion, can as justly lay claim to the finest exhibition of boots and shoes for ladies as dining room from 11.30 a.m. to 2.30 p.m., cor. McGill and St. Paul Streets.

MUST PAY $100,000.

The Dilemma of St. Henri - Legal Proceedings Against the Street Railway.

The St. Henri Municipal Council last evening received notice from St. Cuneogonde that it must pay the $100,000 and interest remaining due on the Water Works.

In answer to a complaint from the Council, Mr. Cunningham, of the Montreal Street Railway, wrote to say that he was not aware that the Company was expected to lay any track in this summer in the western section of St. Henri.

This shows the kind of planes we sell, for the old square American pianos bought of us 25, 30 or 35 years ago, we are giving half original price.

Miss Marie Evans, of "Wildwood," Florida; Miss Kathleen Patterson, daughter of the Honorable J. C. Patterson, Minister of Militia; and Miss Evelyn Wall, sister of Madame Bergeron, are resident pupils for the winter at Madame Angelis Waters' Musical Academy.

Daniel Doyle, Murray Street, who met with a serious accident while driving on the Lachine Road about two weeks ago, is now convalescent.

Hotel Victoria, Quebec. The most centrally situated hotel in the city. Fine large sample room. First class in every respect.

Sherbrooke House, Sherbrooke, P.Q., is the best hotel between Portland and Montreal. Everything new.

Irish Catholic Temperance Societies. Sunday evening there will be a reunion of all the Irish Catholic Societies, temperance, in St. Ann's Church at 7 o'clock.

The Montreal de Commerce comes to hand this week with a group picture of the members of the council of the Chambre de Commerce for the district of Montreal.

LIFE BECAME A BURDEN.

THE WONDERFUL NARRATIVE OF A PATIENT SUFFERER.

The After Effects of La Grippe Developed into Inflammation of the Lungs and Chronic Bronchitis - After Four Years of Suffering Health is Almost Miraculously Restored.

(From Le Monde, Montreal.) Mrs. Sarah Cloutier, who resides at No. 405 Montcalm Street, Montreal, has passed through an experience which is worthy of a widespread publication for the benefit it may prove to others.

"There was," said Mrs. Cloutier to the reporter, "a constant rattling sound in my throat, and in the winter I was in death would have been a relief. I could not attend to my affairs nor to my house, and had it not been for my niece, on whom I relied, I cannot say what would have become of me. It was in vain that I tried the numerous remedies given me by various doctors, and when I think of all the money they cost me I cannot but regret I have ever tried them. I had read frequently of the cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I felt that they must contain the truth, for if they were unfounded none would dare to give the names and addresses of the persons said to be cured in the public manner in which these are given in the newspapers.

I decided to try Pink Pills, and none but those who were acquainted with my former condition can understand the good I have derived from their use, which I continued until I felt that I was completely cured. As a proof that I am cured I may tell you that on the first occasion of my going out after my recovery I walked for two miles on a hill road without feeling the least fatigue or the least pain for breath, and since that time I have enjoyed the best of health.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are offered with a confidence that they are the only perfect and unrivalling blood purifier and nerve restorer and that where given a fair trial disease and suffering must vanish. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent by mail on receipt of 50 cents a box or $2.50 for six boxes, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y. Beware of imitations and always refuse to buy substitutes alleged to be "just as good."

IN THE PALAZZO.

The soup was succeeded by a few vegetables, then by a plate of macaroni, and accompanied by a bottle of the red country wine. It was a simple repast, soon over, but seemed quite sufficient to Benedetto Campbell, who was as yet inexperienced in the carnivorous appetites of her own people.

"Ecco!" it said, "no dawdling about after Ino has gone; hearest thou, Detta: Thou must come straight home. There is no end of this English misery to be tried on thee. Saints help me! What is the use of it? I cannot see. To deck a child out like a duchess, in order to go to their country of England, where, so they tell me, the sun never shines, and where indeed it is daylight but half the year round. But there, the Maestro's money burns a hole in his pocket."

"Thou wilt strut about like a young parrot among thy new relations," remarked Pippo, teasingly. "Thou wilt be an English maw then. But thou must not throw me on any more but at people's heads, or thy friends, may I, will turn thee out into the streets."

"I will never be an English maw!" cried the girl, crimsoning. "Oh, yes, thou wilt," pursued her tormentor; "thou wilt learn to talk that English which sounds as if a man had swallowed his own tongue and were choking with it in his throat, and thou wilt become affected and miming, and wilt say, 'Oh, shoo-king!' and wilt walk like this!" And Pippo proceeded to give an illustration of his idea of the English feminine mode of progression.

Detta's eyes were full of tears of mortification. But Pippo's career across the courtyard was brought to an abrupt conclusion by the application of his brother's foot to his person. He fell somewhat heavily upon the stone pavement, and picked himself up howling.

"Ah Dio!" exclaimed Annunziata, running out, "when will you two have done quarrelling?" She glanced toward Benedetto. "Alto!" she said, half to herself, "but it will not be a bad thing when the girl goes home to her own people, for it is about her most times that they find cause to fight."

"Come, Detta," said Raffaello, holding out his hand, without noticing either his brother's bewailings or his mother's remarks. But Detta, after a moment's pause, ran back and stuffed something into Pippo's hand.

"It is a caramel which Ino brought me," she whispered, "but I don't want it. Don't cry, Pippo. I am sorry he hurt you." "Then she ran on hastily, and putting her hand in Ino's, passed with him out of the courtyard. The old palazzo which was their home was situated upon one of the many side streets leading out of the Corso, and there were seen passing their way down this little thoroughfare. The narrow pavements were crowded, and the bright sunshine gleamed upon the merry crowds that jostled each other up and down in front of the long line of jewel shops.

A ragged, smiling boy stood at the corner playing a fiddle, surrounded by a circle of dancing children; a group of soldiers was marching briskly past, and a carriage full of tall English women, with baedekers on their knees and glasses on their noses, was patiently trying at a snail's pace to make its way through the heedless pedestrians.

"Guarda!" cried the coachman, loudly cracking his whip while the English women bent forward in evident surprise and some disgust to observe how slowly and carelessly these easy-going Southerners move out of the way. And Ino smiled slightly as he saw Detta glance toward the carriage and its occupants, and felt her grasp tighten upon his hand.

He knew well enough what was in the child's mind. She was still silent as they went up the steps leading to the capitol, and passed onward toward the Palatine, between the lines of those grand historic ruins which had their birth in the period of the greatest and the most corrupt magnificence the world has ever known, and which still speak even to the present nineteenth century with a romantic force claimed by few other ruins.

The sunshine lay golden upon the broken columns of the Forum, and fell upon the little lichens that hung from the great gray wall surrounding the Caesars' palaces, ruthlessly displaying every rent and crack in the time-worn masonry, the architects of which had passed away into dust nearly two thousand years ago, leaving behind them no personal immortality, but only a record which should defy Time and point for ages with a silent finger to the pages of the past—to their story of crime, of luxury, of mad splendors, and of barbarous triumphs.

"Then at last the young man broke silence, using as he spoke the same singular, so picturesque and pretty in the Italian tongue, but which sounds harsh and unnatural to English ears, and therefore shall not be translated here.

"Detta," he said, "do you know who is to take you to England next week?" "No," she replied, wistfully, looking up into his face.

"Oh, I am glad—so glad!" "The Maestro is very kind, Detta; his generosity is almost too much. What do you think he said to me last night? He called me into his room," Ino said, "I want to take a talk with you; and then he asked me if I would take you to London. I am blind, you know, Ino," said he; "I could not take care of the child or myself, and I have no one else to send. But I have money, a little sum that I do not want. I know I can trust her with it, Ino; and if you like to go, there is enough for you to stop a few days after you have left her at her school, and to go about and see something of the wonders of our great English capital. Is it not good of him, my Pippocino?" continued the boy, his eyes sparkling. "London is full of sights, they say. I shall go to all the picture galleries, and observe the English style of art."

"It is very nice for you," she said, a little sadly. "And before you go back, you will see me again and see me once more, will you not, Ino?" "That I will, Carina; but cheer up, little one, perhaps this English life may be better than you expect."

Benedetta clasped her hands with a gesture of despair. "I hate it all, Ino! I shall never be an English maw. I feel as if my heart would break when I am so far away from Rome, and with no one to speak a word to me of my beautiful Italy!"

"We will not forget you, little one. You must write to us. The Maestro and I shall miss you sadly. But, who knows? Some day perhaps you will come over to see us, a grand young lady, dressed like those that we see every winter in our churches and gardens, but with no one to speak a word to me of my beautiful Italy. Ah, how pleased would the old Maestro be, Or, perhaps, in a few years; when I am a great sculptor, and have made for myself fame and name, I shall come more revisit this rich, clever, foggy England of yours, and present myself to call upon the Mess Campbell who was my Pippocino in days gone by. But perhaps she will be too proud to know me then!"

"She flung away his hand passionately. "Ino, Ino," she said, with a sob in her voice, "how can you tempt me so?"

"I did not mean it, little one; I know your goodness of heart," and he stooped and kissed the quivering, childish features. Raffaello Bartolomeo was, as he had said, a sculptor, or rather hoped to become one. During the last year only he had been promoted from studio attendant to workman at the rooms of a Roman artist of position. He had, however, disexecuting one or two little bits of modeling of his own composition, and his master had been heard to express a favorable opinion as to his merits. The young man's whole heart was in the profession, and nature had endowed him with the imaginative mind of the artist-creator. His somewhat poetical disposition was of the kind that continually indulges in day-dreams far above and beyond its surroundings, while his manners and appearance had but little affinity with those of the class from which he was sprung.

As he walked along now, the small head, with the clear-cut, refined profile, proudly thrown back, the slight young figure straight as a poplar—picturesquely dressed in his short velvet jacket, a crimson sash around his waist, and the little jaunty cap set far back upon his clustering curls—many an eye turned toward him approvingly in the crowded streets. For who appreciates the charm of personal beauty more than the Italian himself, accustomed as he is to the highest standard in every outline of both the nature and the art that surround him from childhood, as well as in the features of his own most beautiful race? THE COMMERCIAL SITUATION.

A large number of eastern business men have but a scanty knowledge of the rapid progress that is being made in the greater Canada beyond Lake Superior.

It is not so long since the bursting of the Winnipeg real estate bubble filled the east with feelings of distrust in the entire Northwest, and it is but a short time ago since a bank manager, in establishing an agency in Winnipeg, felt called upon to explain to the shareholders that the country was really pretty solid after all.

A hundred years ago the fur traders penetrating west of Lake Superior were exposed to all the horrors of starvation, had to take their supplies of food with them, and anxiously await on their return to the grand Portage the succoring canoes sent laden with provisions to relieve their sufferings.

To-day, however, all is changed. A vast wheat area is under cultivation, herds roam the higher plateau, the whistle of the locomotive is heard in the land, and the bank manager's office is to be found where once the dusky savage bartered with the factor and the employes of rival companies sought each other's lives.

A few days ago Mr. D. R. Wilkie of the Imperial Bank of Toronto, took a jaunt out to British Columbia to locate an agency. The Bank of Montreal has been in the Province some time. The Banque Jacques Cartier has just opened an agency at Edmonton, while a few enterprising eastern houses have been sending their travellers more and more frequently into the districts where Laverendrye, Mackenzie and others acted as pioneers.

Bit by bit the Dominion of Canada is being united by a hundred bonds of interest, and although we cannot but deplore the fact that our population is not increasing as it should, Canadians can look forward to a commercial unity that will react favorably upon the political and national life.

Wheat and cattle are not the only important products of the West. For some years there has been a growing output of dairy produce, such as cheese and butter, the bulk of which, however, is consumed in the vast territory wherein it is produced.

The mountains of British Columbia await the development of their mineral riches, which capital alone can aid, and in many ways there are opportunities in the far west, which, if known to and availed of by the somewhat congested older provinces, would do much to bring about the healthy circulation of money and a speedier growth of the country.

The wet weather of last week very materially checked the movement of wheat in Manitoba. Rain and snow have stopped threshing, and in some localities a good many stacks have been damaged.

According to the Winnipeg inspection returns for September the crop is practically all high grade. It is a pity that there should be room for questioning the excellence of the standards. Prices in Manitoba country markets are from 38c to 41c, and at Fort William 54c to 54c.

The receipts in Montreal during the past week were 212,244 bushels, against 57,191 for the week before, and No. 1 hard Manitoba is nominally at 62c. There has been a better country demand for flour during the week, due, it is said, to farmers having curtailed their wheat production in favor of other crops.

The receipts at Montreal were 32,443 barrels, against 23,762.

The egg market is firm, but not active. Butter is still very much under the weather, and it is said that the competition of Australian butter will greatly impede Canada's winter trade with Great Britain.

The receipts of cheese for the week were 55,686 boxes, against 49,371 the week before. The boom is apparently over, and the market feels heavy, with the cable declining.

The consignment of apples for the Liverpool market from Montreal for the week ending October 6, was 15,629, and for London and Glasgow, 9,009, making a total of 24,638 barrels.

The sales in Liverpool last Monday were disappointing, the average of 8,800 barrels being only 7s 6d. The rapid increase in exports is shown by the fact that the total shipments from Canada and the United States last week were 84,000 barrels, against 50,000 the week before.

A good deal of interest is at present manifested by onlookers, in various branches of the iron trade. Makers of bar iron in this city have been led to reduce prices considerably by the cutting in of an outside concern, and a really bitter war is in progress.

So also in the cut nail trade, whose various combinations have never yet held water for any length of time, a most serious competition is going on to secure or hold customers. There has been some activity in pig iron, the sale of about 250 tons of Summerlee being recorded.

Allied branches also show some activity. In the hide trade there is also a good deal of competition, and dealers are paying pretty high for supplies. Leather is quiet, except for fine grades, and while boot and shoe men are not at present very busy, they have been sending out their travellers with a somewhat heavier line than usual of fine goods.

In the grocery trade the chief centre of interest seems to be tea, for which prices are firm, with the likelihood of an early rise. The demand is good. Sugars are quiet, syrups in fair demand, and molasses steady.

The regular vessels with raisins are now on route for Montreal, the Draconia with 60,000 boxes on board being expected next week. There is said to be fair improvement in the volume of business transacted by dry goods houses, especially, of course, in winter goods. Woollens are firm. The retail trade is also active. The strike of the employees of the Dominion Cotton Mill at Brantford may be noted. They object to the recent reduction of their wages.

The local money market is still easy with call loans at 4 and discounts at 6 to 7 per cent. Exchange remains firm. The Stock Market has shown a good deal of activity, but prices have declined several points towards the close of the week.

The Montreal Bank statement has been very acceptable to the public, as the bank shows net earnings in excess of last year, while it discloses a falling off in discounts and a material increase in specie and Dominion notes.

The subscription for the Toronto loan of 3 1/2 per cent. by a Montreal syndicate is looked upon as indicating that Canada is becoming wealthy enough to float her minor loans at home.

If this is the case, depositors in banks will shortly have to bid farewell to their 4 per cent. interest, but it appears to us that it will be some time yet before the practice of floating loans at low rates of interest will be established in Canada.

We have lots of use for our money in the development of the country, and the returns upon legitimate business ventures will be long sinking as low as 3 1/2 per cent.

DR. HOLMES.

Dr. Holmes, who passed away the other day at the age of eighty-five, was the teacher of a doctrine which is well worthy of every general acceptance.

There was nothing of the sage in Dr. Holmes' manner; he was never oracular nor over-wise; yet by example and by precept he taught all his life-long and never with more effect than in his last few years; the possibility of retaining something of the mental freshness and cheeriness of youth even to an extreme old age.

Men who are busied with great enterprises seem to regard it as allowable to freeze up when the years of youth are past; and they pass through a grumpy middle life to a querulous and irritable old age.

Dr. Holmes' message has always been that the things which alone make life in this world tolerable—companionship, love of the beautiful in nature and art and the catholic soul which is interested in all that affects the human life—need not fade with one's youth.

To keep young in heart despite growing years and burdensome care is the lesson which in a thousand ways the genial autocrat has taught his subjects. "To be seventy years young," he wrote to Mrs. Howe on her seventieth birthday "is sometimes far more cheerful and hopeful than to be forty years old."

Dr. Holmes was no dilettante dabbler with the problems of life, so that he did not theorize ignorantly. He was always an exceedingly busy man. He early built up an extensive medical practice in Boston; was for over fifty years a hard working professor in Harvard University; was the author of many monographs and works on professional questions; was for many years the most popular lecturer on literary topics in America, and he turned out in addition a vast amount of general literature, all of it good and some of superlative excellence.

To do all this work and not to wear out, but to keep in the frosts of an octogenarian existence the blithe note of youth in daily conversation and published work marked him as a very uncommon man in his generation.

The reason for his joyous temperament was doubtless a confirmed habit of looking at the best of things, and an avoidance of those blistering trivialities of life which warp the mind more than do the great trials and responsibilities. What a broad, cheery, generous view of life, and its duties, does the autocrat take, looking at them across the breakfast table or over the tea cups! His good sense, his generous judgment, his practical sympathy all stand out so clearly in those three precious volumes which embrace the breakfast series and which are now obtainable in pretty and cheap form. They contain the cream of his wit, wisdom and poetry; and there are no works in the language which have a more valuable message for the present work-a-day generation.

Keep Your Buttons On. Gentlemen need have no fear of keeping their pantaloons in good order by the use of the scientific suspender, which is now being sold by the well known and popular gentleman's furnishing goods house of Munroe Brothers, 2246 St. Catherine Street. This suspender, which is made upon a scientific basis, is the very thing that has been long looked for. By the use of this article of wear, any movement of the body, no matter what, will be given away to, owing to the construction and material used in its make up. No dress suit is complete without a pair, because it will never wrinkle or disfigure the shirt bosom, and is easy and the most comfortable to wear.

If you patronize M. J. Adler of 75 Bleury Street for your clothes you will get the full value of your money.

A BRICK FRONT.

MERCHANTS BANK OF HALIFAX PERMITTED TO ERECT ONE.

APPROPRIATION FOR PAYING NOTRE DAME STREET WEST WITHDRAWN.

And a Large Portion of It Placed to the Account of the Permanent Loan.

A special meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon. There were two orders of the day. These were adopted after a long discussion, extending over three hours.

Ald. Robert, seconded by Ald. Lefebvre, moved the adoption of the first order of the day, the report of the Finance Committee recommending the granting of the petition of the Merchants Bank of Halifax to put a brick front on their new building at a corner of Notre Dame and Seigneurs Streets; the city clerk and city attorney to be instructed to draw up an amendment to by-law 207 in accordance with the report, the said amendment to be submitted to the Council at its next meeting. He stated that the brick proposed to be used was not ordinary brick, but pressed brick, a handsome decorative material which cost more than stone. Its price was $32 a yard. The object of the bank people was not to save money, but to put up a pretty structure.

Ald. Prefontaine presented two petitions, one from a number of proprietors in the neighborhood of the question, and another from some one who claimed to speak for the Rodier estate, who owns 50 lots on Notre Dame Street. Both favored the proposed terra cotta material.

Ald. Costigan remarked that it must have been hard work to get signatures to the petitions, since they had been obliged to go to people outside the city and ask them to sign it. Others had signed it who owned no property at all in the neighborhood. The Montreal Rolling Mills, the signature of which had been attached to the petition in St. Cuneo. As to the Rodier estate it was administered by two brothers, and these had personally asked him to oppose the Finance Committee's report. It was not this special sort of brick he opposed; he was opposed to the changing of the by-law because it would open the door to the use of cheap brick. The brick would spoil the appearance of the street. The first storey was in stone; let it be finished in that material, and the pressed brick be used on the Seigneurs Street side, so that people could see what it is like. It would not be fair to those who had been obliged to stone up to the present that the by-law should be amended.

Ald. Brunet spoke in favor of the motion, although he regretted, he said, that Montreal clay could not be used in making this terra cotta brick.

Ald. Stevenson vigorously opposed the motion. The bank people and their architect were well aware of the by-law prohibiting the use of brick on Notre Dame Street, but they felt that they could rely on the inaction of certain aldermen to change the by-law in their favor, and they drew up their plans in defiance of the by-law. Half a dozen brickmakers had told him that as soon as the by-law was amended they would insist that their material should not, as now, be used exclusively in gables or side-walls. What was the use of terra cotta but burned clay? Talk about its being as beautiful as Solomon's Temple at Jerusalem. That was all rubbish. It was simply burned clay. Ald. Brunet and other brickmakers would, if the by-law were passed, reap a benefit.

Ald. Leclerc, speaking as a working man, expressed himself in favor of the motion. Ald. Stevenson did not object to the importation of Scotch red stone, which did not benefit labor in this country. He denied the statement of Ald. Brunet, that terra cotta could not be made in Montreal. We had an abundance of stone here which could be easily crushed and made into terra cotta. Thus a new industry would be introduced on the island of Montreal. For this reason he supported the motion.

Ald. Smith did not believe that by-laws were like the laws of the Medes or the Persians, which altereth not. A costly building enhanced the value of the property of the city.

Ald. Nolan opposed the report. The money for this terra cotta would be spent in Toronto. If stone were used it would be spent in the island of Montreal. If the people asking for the change in the by-law were poor the aldermen in favor of the present would take no interest in the question. But because it was a rich bank that wanted the change certain aldermen were heartily in its favor. Would Alderman Prefontaine take the trouble to go round and get signatures to the petition if the people concerned were poor?

Ald. Prefontaine denied that he had any personal interest in the matter. He espoused the cause because it was just. But he nevertheless admitted that he had received information on the subject from the bank's architect and the petitions from the bank's manager. He moved the vote be added to the motion granting the bank permission to go on with the work pending the discussion of the amendment to the by-law.

Ald. Rainville—"That's out of order. As long as the by-law exists it must be conformed to."

The motion was carried by 20 to 5. Ald. Prefontaine jumped up when the figures were announced and suggested that, as amended by-law had already been drawn up, be at once discussed.

Ald. Nolan—"Ah, you had everything out and try."

The Mayor refused to allow the amended by-law to be taken up. It will be the first order of the day at the next meeting of the Council.

The second order of the day was now reached—"To reconsider the resolution of the Council of the 19th January last, 1894, for an appropriation of $139,670 to pave Notre Dame Street West."

Ald. Smith requested that his name be removed from the Finance Committee report recommending this reconsideration. He had signed it under the impression that the money would revert to the city treasury, but he now understood that it would be used to pave other streets in other parts of the city.

Ald. Costigan, seconded by Ald. Fouy, moved that Ald. Smith be allowed to erase his name from the report, and after a long discussion the motion was lost by 13 to 12. Had Ald. Turner voted with his reform colleagues, instead of on the other side, the motion would have been carried by the same vote.

Ald. Loyal opposed the motion. To what object was it to be devoted? He had heard that it was to be spent in paving six streets in St. Mary's Ward, two in Hochelaga Ward, two in St. Jean Baptiste Ward, and three in St. Gabriel Ward. What was to be done for St. Antoine Ward?

Ald. Kennedy—"And St. Ann's Ward." Ald. Loyal—"Let the representatives of St. Ann's Ward speak for it. I am concerned at present with St. Antoine Ward. I object to this money being stolen from St. Antoine Ward to be used in St. Antoine Ward."

Ald. Hurteau resented the word "stolen." Ald. Loyal substituted the phrase "taken away." It was time that something was done for St. Antoine Ward. There are streets in this ward which have not been touched by the Road Committee for twenty years. Many of the streets between St. Antoine and Notre Dame Streets were in a bad condition. Some time ago the Chairman of the Finance Committee stated that St. Antoine Ward had received more than its share, according to the assessment roll.

Ald. Loyal—"I say so still." Ald. Loyal—"The Finance Committee and the Road Committee evidently think that nothing should be done for St. Antoine Ward. Not long ago $300,000, which had been voted for St. Antoine Ward, was taken away, then $30,000 was taken away, and now nearly $150,000 is to be taken away."

Ald. Costigan observed that the variation of this money was a breach of faith with the West End members.

Ald. Nolan also protested against it. Ald. Hurteau explained that the money would be used for urgent work in other wards. The Finance Committee would be careful in spending the money. The same sum would be set aside for the original purpose next year, out of the permanent loan. He still held that St. Antoine Ward had received more than its due. In two years $1,824,000 had been spent in it. Ald. Hurteau then proposed to add to his motion that $100,000 of the sum in question be placed to the account of the permanent loan.

Ald. Loyal—"St. Antoine Ward pays one-third of the taxes of the whole city. During the last few years $6,000,000 had been spent in permanent improvements in the city; and I say that $1,824,000 was never spent in the Ward in two years."

Ald. Smith maintained that it would be unwise to spend the money now, with winter coming on, even if we had it. On Mr. Dufresne's showing, the Council had now over-appropriated $180,000.

Ald. Rainville—"I am going to vote against this motion because I think it is bad financing."

Ald. Penoy entered a protest against the wrangling between the representatives of different wards and different sections of the city. There should be harmony between all sections and classes and nationalities.

Ald. Hurteau's original motion was carried by 15 to 8. The addition to this motion was taken as a separate proposition, and this was carried on the same terra cotta material.

Stole from the C. P. R. For several months past the C. P. R. have been losing a lot of freight from their cars in the vicinity of the park of St. Jovite. Their freight shed had also been twice broken into and a lot of merchandise stolen therefrom. The Cure's house and several stores also were burglarized about two weeks ago, but no trace of the burglar or burglars could be found. Two days ago the company called in the services of Detective Carpenter of the Canadian Secret Service Co., and that officer went out to the place on Thursday morning. After four hours' hard work he got a slight clue, and following it up he had one Gregoire Tremblay, a resident on the outskirts of St. Jovite, in custody. A large quantity of the stolen goods was found secreted in and around the house, and a lot of stuff was found secreted at different points along the line. Detective Carpenter took his man to the prison at St. Scholastique, where he will be tried next week.

Trial by an Assessor. Justitia writes to the Herald: "It is proper in view of the so oft reiterated complaint against the Chief of Police, for general neglect of duty, that he should spend some of his time (so much required in visiting all the his various outlying stations, all over this city, sitting on the Bench as a judge, and especially among his people who are brought before him by his own Police Force. This is not British justice, or fair play; he should not be both judge and jury."

Investigating Usury. The Chambre de Commerce held its weekly meeting yesterday afternoon, Mr. H. Laporte presiding. Several matters of routine business were disposed of. The committee appointed to inquire into the matter of usury by money-lenders reported progress, and were instructed to continue their labors. A report on the subject of the proposed commercial museum was also received.

The lectures will be given in the Windsor Hall on November 6, 7, 8 and 9.

WORLD-WIDE NEWS

UNITED KINGDOM.

The report of the Commission on the Unification of London recommends that the old City be merged in a new city under a new Corporation, which bears an ugly resemblance to the London County Council. For the new Corporation will be the County Council as it is, with the representatives of the City doubled in numbers, a paid and permanent chairman head of its staff, and a stipend chairman who shall be called Mayor.

Lord Carrington is enabling an interesting experiment to be tried at the village of Tyler's Green, near Cambridge. He has offered fifty-five acres of farm land to the villagers for distribution into small holdings, and twenty-seven applicants have come forward. The Land Colonization Society is co-operating with Lord Carrington, and is to be the direct purchaser from him; the applicants will acquire the full property in their holdings by paying for the next four years a little more than double the present rent of the land. This is a very practical way of testing the desire for small holdings, and also of bringing them within the reach of such men as wish to have them.

Several letters have appeared in the Times advocating reformation in England, and Mr. C. Brinsley Marley now writes on the advantages of Ireland in this respect. Ireland, he says, is perhaps the part of the United Kingdom where trees do best once they are protected from the south-westerly gales. He has tried himself nearly every variety of tree, both deciduous and coniferous, and has found that none which do not thrive, except perhaps the elm. A report was issued by a Swedish Government forester a few years ago, and he pointed out that in the west of Ireland there were large tracts of land, practically unfit for agriculture, but which would be of great value if planted with timber. The wood-land scenery of Spenser's "Faery Queen" is no doubt drawn in Ireland. The Irish oak was used as ship's timber, and its vast beams supported the roofs of some of our cathedrals.

Dunboy Castle, one of the oldest and finest residences in Ireland, took fire on Monday, Sept. 17, and the entire building, together with valuable paintings, has been destroyed. The castle, which is the property of Mr. Harry Puxley, and was occupied by his son-in-law, Mr. Stoddart, is situated at the mouth of Berehaven Harbor, on the western coast of the county of Cork. The fire, which was caused by a fire in the kitchen, was extinguished by the fire engine, but the damage was so extensive that it was necessary to demolish the castle. The castle was built by the Earl of Dunboy in 1680, and was one of the finest residences in Ireland.

EUROPE.

A man named Corneo, an Italian, was convicted on Wednesday at Paris of having forged bank of England notes to the amount of £1,000,000, and was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment. The difficulty has arisen concerning the publication of the official list of prizes obtained at the Chicago Exhibition by Italian exhibitors. The grand jury having awarded two prizes to the Pope, the Italian Government is placed in the dilemma of either comprising them in their list, or in which case to refuse to accept them, or to treat as an Italian subject, or leaving the name of his Holiness out of it, thus ignoring the distinction conferred on his two exhibits and making the publication incomplete.

A telegram from Rome received in Paris says that the Governments of both Austria and Germany are using their influence to bring about a reconciliation between the Italian Government and the Papacy. Among other signs of returning confidence in Italy, there have recently been large purchases of different classes of State bonds which have for a long time been neglected, the deposits in the savings and deposit banks are increasing, and the railway returns especially from goods traffic, are rising steadily. Industries of all sorts show a marked impulse.

The arms given up by the Sicilians during the state of siege are to be restored to them, General Mirri having declared order to be re-established.

A public prosecutor and a Judge who had been collecting information respecting brigandage in the province of Calabria were travelling to Lania, accompanied by two policemen, when they were surrounded by a band of brigands, headed by a notorious chief named Papakypitopolis, for whose capture the Government had offered a reward of 20,000 drachmas. The public prosecutor had been particularly active against the brigands of Central Greece. He and the Judge were carried off to prisoners, but were released after a letter to the Nomarch of the province setting forth the demands of the brigands as to ransom. The authorities at once sent out 100 soldiers, who overtook the band and, after a fierce fight, killed them all. The public prosecutor was, however, killed by the brigands, and the Judge was wounded so severely that he died shortly afterwards. In the fight one sergeant was killed and three soldiers wounded.

An ex-diplomatist, who has long known the Emperor William and has seen him several times since his accession, says: "Nothing is more interesting to observe than the aversion characterizing the German Emperor. As a descendant of the Hohenzollerns he is religious and a soldier. As the son of an English Princess, the navy and colonies interest him most of all after the army. You see how fond he is of the sea, but he likes colonies still more. You noticed at the time of the treaty between Great Britain and the Congo State how he fired up even against England, and would have shrank from nothing to prevent the emigration of Germans to foreign lands and to direct the emigration to German African colonies. Do you know what he is now contemplating?—the enactment of a law extending military service from 45 years of age to 55. Leave to emigrate to foreign colonies will be refused to any one under 55, which will advance an age for emigrating, but every facility will be given to those going to the German African colonies. You see what a resolute way this is of peopling those colonies."

The Reichsanzeiger at Berlin publishes a report on the excavations which have been conducted during 1894 at Hissarlik, the hill in which Dr. Schliemann made his remarkable discoveries on the site of Ancient Troy. The Emperor William granted 30,000 marks out of the Prussian Royal Treasury for the purpose of carrying on and bringing to a close the investigations of the scientific men engaged in the work. Their principal task this year has been the laying bare of the entire fortified wall in the sixth layer of the ruins and the removal of debris from the buildings discovered within the enceinte of the western and eastern portions of the fortification. This object has been accomplished. In the portions brought to light the city walls were found to be in a remarkable state of preservation. Besides numerous doors, towers, and buildings in the inner citadel a large number of store-rooms have been excavated in the sixth layer, and countless articles of pottery, most notable among which is a fountain, have been found, while many graves belonging to the ancient Greek period have been laid bare. The results of this year's work are regarded as being of the most satisfactory character. In the majority of cases, says the report in conclusion, so well preserved and striking in their appearance are the buildings in the sixth layer that the remains of Ancient Troy must be classed among the most noteworthy architectural antiquities in the world.

J. T. Holmes, postmaster here in 1872, was convicted of robbing the mails of registered letters and sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. He served two years in jail, and was then released on payment of the shortage. To-day Holmes carries a letter from the penitentiary to a clerk in his office, who is now serving a sentence in the Michigan Penitentiary for counterfeiting, containing a full confession of his robbery twenty-two years ago, and absolving Holmes from all blame.

Mirabeau Lamarine Towns, a well-known lawyer of Brooklyn, with a predilection for rhyming, and a member of the Constitutional Convention, has fallen heir to property valued at $150,000, by the employment of this gift in the service of Michael Broome, an eccentric Irishman, who lived in Queens County and who owned considerable real estate. Several years ago Broome entered Mr. Towns's office and asked him to take a case and sum it up in rhyme. The lawyer complied with the request, and after some time, winning all the cases, much to the gratification of his client.

Three young women were ordained to the deaconate and two clergymen were ordained to the priesthood in Grace Episcopal Church quite recently by Bishop Potter, who said that this double ceremony was the first of the kind in the history of the American church, so far as his knowledge went. The young women had been pupils in the New York Training School for Deaconesses. They were Miss Fannie W. Kennett, Miss Katherine Stillman, and Miss Elizabeth Webster. The two candidates for the priesthood were the Rev. Ralph Howard Baldwin and the Rev. George Lawrence Nicholas.

The latest rumor about the Eiffel Tower is to the effect that it is to be removed from Paris to Baltimore at a cost of $500,000 and set up over the latter city as an ornamental and speaking monument commemorating the first time it was held there in 1877. The rumor lacks confirmation; it is understood, however, that the Tower is to remain at Paris for the great exhibition of 1900.

The steamships St. Louis and St. Paul, which are being built for the American line in the yard of Messrs. Cramp at Philadelphia, will be launched next month to join the line between Southampton and New York early in the coming year.

Madame Modjeska is travelling this season in the most palatial hotel car that has ever been constructed. It was built for Mrs. Langtry, but used very little owing to her failure to return to the States. The latter paid five thousand eight hundred pounds for it. It was built especially for Mrs. Langtry, and its ceiling is of robin-egg blue satin, the walls of tufted plush of the same color, and the floor inlaid in art designs of expensive woods.

At the forty-second annual session of the International Typographical Union, the President, W. B. Prescott, of Indianapolis, said: "The success of our Convention has been called upon to mourn the death of two friends and benefactors, Mr. Anthony J. Drexel and Mr. George W. Childs. It is superfluous in addressing union printers to refer to the many excellencies of our departed friends. They occupied a position that was unique in their relations to organized labor. Though the printers of Philadelphia had previously had manifestations of their good will, the unconditional donation of $10,000 to the International Union eight years ago insured a warm place in the hearts of trade unionists in general and our fraternity in particular. Under these circumstances it is appropriate and seemly that our Convention should demonstrate our appreciation of their worth. Philadelphia Typographical Union has undertaken the task of erecting a suitable memorial to Mr. Childs, and, while believing that it would be better to have the memorial embrace the name of Mr. Drexel also, it is hoped that this Convention will co-operate in this project by donating a suitable sum, so that this tribute to their memory may be commensurate with our respect and a credit to the craft."

WORLD OVER.

Admiral Bowen Smith, who has been cruising in the South Seas in the flagship Orlando, has been interviewed at Brisbane regarding the situation in Samoa. He states that both factions were armed and watching each other. He was fully convinced that neither side intended to do any harm to the whites, but that the proper policy was to enforce it, absolutely a dead letter. Owing to the small amount of fighting once began serious consequences might ensue. So long as the warships remained the whites would be perfectly safe. The treaty Powers, the Admiral is of opinion, are all three working loyally together to maintain peace and had decided not to land any men so long as foreigners were not interfered with. The navy and colonies interest him most of all after the army. You see how fond he is of the sea, but he likes colonies still more. You noticed at the time of the treaty between Great Britain and the Congo State how he fired up even against England, and would have shrank from nothing to prevent the emigration of Germans to foreign lands and to direct the emigration to German African colonies. Do you know what he is now contemplating?—the enactment of a law extending military service from 45 years of age to 55. Leave to emigrate to foreign colonies will be refused to any one under 55, which will advance an age for emigrating, but every facility will be given to those going to the German African colonies. You see what a resolute way this is of peopling those colonies."

The Reichsanzeiger at Berlin publishes a report on the excavations which have been conducted during 1894 at Hissarlik, the hill in which Dr. Schliemann made his remarkable discoveries on the site of Ancient Troy. The Emperor William granted 30,000 marks out of the Prussian Royal Treasury for the purpose of carrying on and bringing to a close the investigations of the scientific men engaged in the work. Their principal task this year has been the laying bare of the entire fortified wall in the sixth layer of the ruins and the removal of debris from the buildings discovered within the enceinte of the western and eastern portions of the fortification. This object has been accomplished. In the portions brought to light the city walls were found to be in a remarkable state of preservation. Besides numerous doors, towers, and buildings in the inner citadel a large number of store-rooms have been excavated in the sixth layer, and countless articles of pottery, most notable among which is a fountain, have been found, while many graves belonging to the ancient Greek period have been laid bare. The results of this year's work are regarded as being of the most satisfactory character. In the majority of cases, says the report in conclusion, so well preserved and striking in their appearance are the buildings in the sixth layer that the remains of Ancient Troy must be classed among the most noteworthy architectural antiquities in the world.

The Governor-General of Indo-China telegraphs that pirates have attacked a train en route for Phu Lang Thung. They tried to derail it and failed, the train continuing its journey but the engineer, a Chinaman, was killed, and the pirates carried off M. Chesnay, a contractor, and M. Lognon, his employe. The pirates are being pursued into Baoday by Colonel Gallien. This attack has been made in spite of the patrol along the railway line, some 1,200 men being occupied in this business.

In his report on the trade of Jeddah and Hodeidah, Consul Richards points out a somewhat curious anomaly in freights. The imports from British India are larger than those from all other parts of the world put together, but many of the goods imported are of purely British manufacture. The extraordinarily high rate of freights from London or Liverpool to Jeddah, as compared with the very low rate to Bombay and the low rate from Bombay to the Red Sea, makes it cheaper to take goods to Jeddah via India than direct to a British port via Suez or Aden. Further, little or no discount can be obtained by the Red Sea importer from London merchants, while wholesale firms in India give him comparatively favorable terms. Thus, cotton and iron goods, copper, tin, &c., are always imported from England through Bombay.

Sir H. H. Kitchener, the British Consul in Egypt, last week addressed formal remonstrances to Ali Pasha Sherief to deliver up the three slave girls who were taken to his house at the beginning of last month, but subsequently disappeared, in order that they might appear as witnesses at the Pasha's approaching trial. The three girls were handed over to the Sherief, having been brought from All Pasha's house. Ali Pasha has now made a full statement admitting that he purchased slave girls and suing for pardon. He has also resigned the post of President of the Legislative Council and of the General Assembly.

It is now stated that the French authorities have invited the Egyptian newspapers enjoying French protection to mitigate the violence of their attacks on English officials.

Mr. Glaisier, chairman of the Palestine Exploration Fund, writes as follows:—"Our veteran correspondent in Jerusalem, Herr Braunthorn von Schickel, reports that, owing to the stoppage of the mail, the celebrated 'Tombs of the Judges' and the ground about them are in the market for sale, and has sent us a carefully drawn plan showing the size and boundaries of the several plots. It would be lamentable if these extremely interesting tombs were to be quarried away for building new houses in the locality, as is very likely to be the case should the property pass into the hands of the speculator, or if they should be fixed upon as the site of one of the new settlements which are springing up all round the Holy City. Possibly some of our readers interested in preserving archaeological remains in Palestine may desire to purchase these tombs and save them from destruction."

It is very difficult to obtain a portrait of Ranaivavaona, Queen of Madagascar, as it is against the law of the country for hands. She was crowned in November, 1883, and was crowned in the unfortunate position of being at loggerheads with the French, and is in hourly expectation of having another long war in her dominions.

Incident of a Wedding Trip.

The wife of a well known New Yorker told an incident of her wedding trip the other evening as illustrating the fretfulness of a man who has only recently abandoned selfish bachelorhood. They had only just begun their bridal journey. On that afternoon the train left the track and began to lurch along the ties. It happened at that moment that the newly married husband was walking on the aisle of the car away from the seat where his bride sat. He knew that part of the railroad very well, and he was terrified at having the train leave the track there, for they were upon a bend on a steep and lofty embankment. With a thought of nothing but the peril which threatened the train he dashed off to the door. He was on the platform already, careening and wavering, and in another instant he would have leaped, when unconsciously looking back at the danger he was leaving, he saw his wife. Instantly he turned and dashed back into the car. He was just in the nick of time to reach his wife, for already the car was tottering.

"Hold on for your life!" he cried to her. "We are going headlong over the bend." "Hold on for your life!" he cried again. "We are going over." "Hold on for your life!" he cried a third time, and though the bride couple were cut and bruised terribly, they were more fortunate than many others, for the death list after that wreck was a long one.

"But my husband," she said, in telling the story, "could not seem to forgive himself for having forgotten me for a second, while I could understand it perfectly. He wasn't used to looking after a wife, and if you want to know the truth," she added, with a smile, "I was glad that it all happened as it did, for I don't believe that a man who was caught in danger with his wife would desert her, but it takes a brave man who has got out of danger to go deliberately back into it. He was that danger better than anyone else in the car, I suppose, and he must have felt we were both lost. Yet he came back to me, and that was how I learned, on our wedding day, that my husband, if he was forgetful, was also brave."—New York Tribune.

Loie Fuller's European Successes.

Loie Fuller, who is now bewildering the crowned heads of Europe by her serpentine dance, cables from Scheveningen, Holland, that she danced at Antwerp under the patronage of the royal family. The khedive of Egypt and his brother, Prince Mohammed Alim, and suit were present. On Wednesday, in the Palace of Arts and Sciences, at The Hague, I danced before the Grand Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Weimar; Queen Johanna Albert, sister of the German emperor, and granddaughter of the Queen Victoria; Prince Max of Baden and the Princess Schaumburg-Lippe. I was invited to the royal box. The crowned heads examined my butterfly costume and were much surprised at its simplicity. They admired most, however, my new fire and angel dances. They said they had seen imitations of my dancing in London, but had never seen anything comparable with my new dances. I am invited to dance for the little queen of Holland when she returns to The Hague from the country. I am also to dance for the queen of the Belgians."

PROVINCIAL FINANCES.

G. W. STEPHENS'S SPEECH IN REPLY TO THE LAST BUDGET.

ACTUAL EXPENDITURE COMPARED WITH ACTUAL REVENUE.

Criticism of Mr. Hall's Loan of '92—Thoroughly Approved.

G. W. Stephens, M.P.P., in reply to the budget speech of the Hon. J. S. Hall, Minister of Finance, on the 10th, made the following address:—"It has been the custom for the predecessor of the day to show up his predecessors in as bad a light as possible, and by the manipulation of figures, and by ringing the changes on ordinary and extraordinary expenditure, to produce a result creditable to his financial ability, and to discredit the policy of the previous Government. It is in accordance with party traditions and requirements, but I shall endeavor to present the question exactly as it stands. I shall therefore compare actual expenditures with actual revenue. What the taxpayers want to know, is whether the revenue and expenditure balance, or whether we are annually spending more than our revenue. The total disbursements from 1877 to 1893, were $42,006,701. The actual receipts for the same period, exclusive of loans, were $25,159,105, showing a deficiency during that term of $16,847,596. The only way to meet such deficiencies is by loans. We have borrowed since the 1st July, 1882, $10,359,833 which leaves a balance to be provided for of $6,487,763. These figures are cited from the 'Annual Comparative Statement,' and show an annual deficit from 1877 to 1893, averaging $1,200,000. Mr. Hall tells us that within about eighteen months of office, the administration has succeeded in restoring equilibrium in our finances—let us examine this statement. On reference to Mr. Hall's printed speech submitted to the House during this session, (pages 13 and 14), his estimate of receipts and expenditure for 1894-'95, shows a deficit of $656,150 for the coming year. This does not look like equilibrium. Again he says on page 19, that we have reduced the expenditure in round figures, by a little over three-quarters of a million annually. On reference to the figures quoted by the Hon. gentleman on page 11 of his speech we find the total expenditure in—

1891	$6,027,638
1893	6,583,777

According to his own figures the total expenditure of 1892 exceeds that of 1891 by $1,714,006, and the year 1893 exceeds 1891 by $558,955. The present Government have reduced controllable expenditure for the current year $308,275, but they have neutralized this economy by reviving railway subsidies to a greater amount, as I now shall show hereafter. On reference to the statement of the public debt, on page 19 of the public accounts, under the heading of temporary loans and deposits, there is an awkward item of $3,469,946, which completely destroys this theory of equilibrium.

1891	$5,312,907
1893	6,061,070
1894	6,342,561
Total	$25,867,207

The actual revenue exclusive of loans during the same period was—

1891	$3,537,407
1892	3,457,144
1893	3,453,403
1894	4,373,313
Total	$14,821,367

This shows an average annual deficit of $2,760,222 on the operations of each year. It is immaterial to the taxpayers whether the expenditure is ordinary or extraordinary. Increased indebtedness is the result.

If this extra expenditure had been made on a capital account which was bringing in an adequate revenue, there would be more satisfaction derived from the item. The expenditure has been made upon railways which do not contribute any sum of importance to the revenue of the province. I am quite aware that under certain circumstances higher taxation may be levied to the advantage of the province. In the Province of Quebec, the limits where increased taxation is a benefit have long since been passed. In the city of Montreal for instance, Municipal taxation caused by the reckless extravagance has reached the figure of 30 per cent. on the rentals in certain sections of the city. In the country districts, in a large number of cases, the property is exempt from taxation altogether, so that the latter has to bear a double load of taxation. The rural population will not consent to increased taxation. What the country wants is a return to the business practice of confining the total expenditure to the actual revenue of the Province. This talk of ordinary and extraordinary expenditure only serves the purpose of deceiving and confusing the public. We can only return to a sound financial position by basing our expenditures upon our actual revenue. No country can be prosperous upon a policy which is constantly increasing its debt.

For which economy they are entitled to the fullest credit. The population of the Province was in 1870, 1,191,516; in 1890, 1,483,535. In 1870 there was no public debt, and the total expenditure $1,633,716. In 1893, with an increased population of 2,070,000 our net debt is $18,333,787. Our total expenditure in 1893 was $6,342,561, with an ordinary revenue of $4,373,363. An attempt was made in the House this session to impose a tax upon the rural districts. Only six members in the House voted for it. They were city representatives. The rural districts are already groaning under their load of taxation. As a result, the extra taxation falls almost entirely upon the cities. The total amounts of licences and special taxes collected from the Province amounts to $1,456,042, of which amount the city of Montreal alone contributed $985,435. The city of Montreal has for some years past been under a reckless regime of civil government and its civic indebtedness is over 21 millions; so that the limit of taxation has been reached in the cities as well as in the country. The following table shows the expenditure in—

Legislation	$130,000	$198,000
Civil Government	14,000	17,000
Administrational Justice	20,000	25,000

Public Works	20,000	25,000
Miscellaneous	20,000	25,000
Total	$200,000	$270,000

The increase in population since 1870 does not justify our increased expenditure. A comparison of the cost of legislation in 1890 and 1893 establishes this fact. By a return to the expenditure of 1870 there would be a saving of $364,000 per annum. Combine the office of Minister of Agriculture and Public Works and save $25,000. Abolish the Board of Health and save $20,000 annually. Discontinue the grants for Colonization Roads, Miscellaneous Charities, Surveys, and save annually $140,000. Abolish Spencer Wood and save $15,000 per annum, which is about the average paid for repairs and maintenance of Spencer Wood. Rearrange and consolidate the departments in Quebec. Here is $834,000 of economy to be effected, enough to dispense with the new taxes. The Government need not stop here. The system of indiscriminate expenditure for contingencies in the departments, if overhauled with vigor would produce good results. The machinery provided for our Government was copied from the imperial system and is too expensive for us. It requires to be modified and adapted to our particular needs.

There is no reduction of three-quarters of a million here, and these are the official figures. That error will creep into statements of the various Provincial Treasurers is evidenced by the following facts occurring with the experience of the present Treasurer. On page 16 of the Budget Speech of 5th Dec., 1893, the liabilities are stated to be $33,981,446. This is incorrect, for in this amount is included $2,018,446 of lapsed railway subsidies, so that the amount of liabilities should be $31,962,999. The assets are stated to be $11,029,766. But there is an additional sum of $2,540,213, the Dominion Subsidy of 47 Vic., Cap. 4, which must be added, making a total of $13,579,979 assets, leaving a net debt of $18,383,020, instead of a net debt of $22,251,650 as stated by Mr. Hall. Again the Financial Statement of the Hon. Treasurer submitted to the House on the 20th May, 1892, shows that the floating debt amounted to $8,530,708. This statement was embodied in the Statute Book of 1892 as an excuse for the new scheme of taxation.

It is demonstrated clearly that the amount was exaggerated. That in this amount, $4,431,896 of lapsed subsidies were included, and that the real floating debt was $4,098,812. This pretention of the opposition has been partly verified by the cancellation this year of a loan of $2,018,446 of lapsed subsidies. Since that date this Government have revived the subsidies of the Lachine and Hochelaga Railways—

Quebec & Lake St. John	48,000
Metabetchouan to St. Ch. Contume	330,000
During the present session to the Montreal & Sorel Railway	116,000
And to the Quebec & Lake St. John Railway	100,000

If no more subsidies are revived there is no doubt the estimate of the opposition in regard to lapsed subsidies will be verified. The debt of the Province has been created to a great extent by expenditures on Railways and Railway Subsidies. We have spent on the—

Q. M. & O. Railway	$13,394,000
Subsidies to other Railways	8,469,856
Balance remaining due on subsidies	2,774,757
Total	$24,638,613

We have received on account of the sale of the Q. M. & O. and the grant from the Dominion—$ 9,994,000

Our debt having been created for Railway Companies, it is but fair that they should contribute their quota to the general burden. They only contribute in 1891-'92, the sum of $5,675, and in 1892-'93, the sum of $9,737. The Statutory Tax is half of one per cent upon the amount of subsidy, which is not sufficient. Our financial trouble arises largely from generosity to railway projects. The subsidy system is at the root of our political corruption and extravagance. What is styled our ordinary revenue and expenditure never have embarrassed the Province, inasmuch as between 1887 and 1893 the total ordinary expenditure was $26,541,463; and the total ordinary receipts were $25,159,105; deficit, $1,382,358. The Government should resolutely set its face against all further subsidies to Railways. It is high time that all subsidies should be discontinued, and the Government should take strict and prompt advantage of lapsed subsidies and cancel them. With a diminishing population and heavy taxation, prudence demands that no expenditures be made which are not strictly necessary.

The reductions in controllable expenditure which the Government has made during the year, appear to be as follows:—

MR. HALL'S LOAN OF 1892.

The loan of 1892 was made to retire a previous loan of 20,000,000 francs, equal to $4,000,000. In order to affect this, there is a preliminary discount of—$255,400.00. This amounted to a charge of 30 frs. on each 500 frs. bond, of which there were 42,554. Travelling expenses— 3,000.00. Stamp— 3,603.00. Half per cent commission for payment of the coupons, 2 years— 1,822.00. Quarter per cent commission allowed for payment of the capital— 11,389.00. Printing, estimated— 1,000.00. Insurance— 100.00.

Total—$276,393.00. Which amounts to 7 per cent for two years, or 14 per cent per annum of expenses, which with 4 per cent interest payable on the loan makes 7 1/2 per cent interest for the loan. In this calculation, no account is taken of the possible loss on exchange which on the last loan amounted to $14,016.00. The loan is a two years loan.

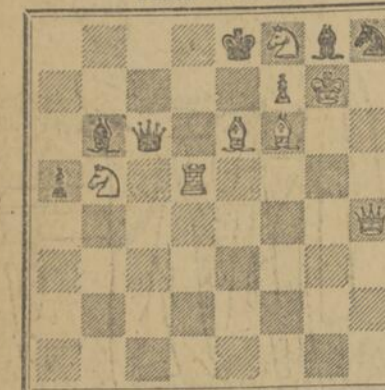

Under Article 3 of the Contract of Loan, the Province binds itself to issue a loan before the 31st Dec., 1894, the proceeds of which shall be devoted to the payment of the loan of 1892. If this loan is not effected on the 31st Dec., 1894, the Government must retire the loan before the 15th day of May, 1895, by moiety, the titles of a consolidated loan not exceeding 40 years, sufficient at 40 to reduce the 42,554 bonds maturing on 15th July 1895. The lenders will make arrangements with the Province as to the price at which these bonds are to be sold. Failing an understanding, they will proceed to realize upon the bonds by public auction in Paris or London, on the 1st of March at latest.

Article 4 provides that the lenders will not sell the aforesaid bonds, if the

(c) Owing to his omission on the eighth move, White's game is now rather cramped...

The Third Time Ex-Vice President Morton Builds His Cow Barn.

It was a year ago, on the night of Aug. 2, 1893, that ex-Vice President Levi P. Morton's great Guernsey cow barn, at Rhinebeck-on-the-Hudson, was burned to the ground...

How Four Crows Got a Meal.

In a garden a dog was eating a piece of meat in the presence of four covetous crows.

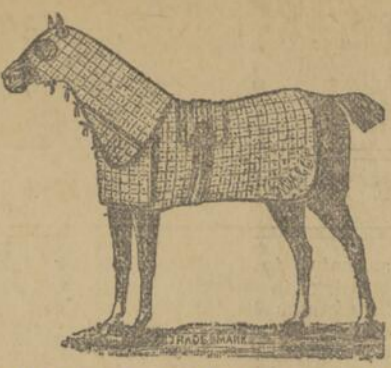

They evidently said a great deal to one another on the subject, and now and then one of them tried to pull the meat away from the dog...

At last a big, strong crow succeeded in tearing off a piece, with which he returned to the tree where the others were congregated.

A long pow-wow now ensued, which ended in all four crows flying down to the dog, the leading crow dexterously dropping the small piece of meat within reach of his mouth.

The dog immediately snapped at it, unwisely letting go the big piece, which was seized by two crows and carried to the tree, where it was devoured, with much fluttering and hilarity...

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

The Trotting Dog.

The accompanying illustration is from an excellent photograph of the trotting dog Major and his running mate Bob, owned by Master Tommy Turner of Brantford, Ont., who also appears in the picture. Major, who is considered one of the best trotting dogs in the country, was bought for 50 cents, but his owner has just refused $200 for him. He has been in about 40 races, matched against ponies, roadsters, running dogs and foot runners, and has taken first money in all but two of them, getting second place in those. Major's principal race was at the Six Nations Indians' fall fair, where he left six of the fastest Indian foot runners from 200 to 300 yards behind in 1:34. He is a square trotter and was never known to break. His owner is willing to match his team against any trotting dog with a running mate in the country. Bob is a yearling by Major.—Buffalo Express.

How Australian Boys Catch Crabs.

Travelers who have spent any time among the natives of Australia will find that the boys of that country earn money in the most curious way ever heard of. In some parts of the country fishing is quite an industry. Among other things caught are crabs and crayfish.

But instead of catching them in nets, as we do, boys are employed, and this is the method: A boy wades out where the crabs are thick. Thrusting his foot out, he gives prominence to his big toe, which, wagging about in an enticing manner, he uses as bait.

In a short time he gets a bite, and quickly drawing up his leg he breaks off the crab's feelers and throws them into a basket which is slung over his shoulder.

Every now and then a deep sea visitor strays into the crab settlement, and seeing the tempting bait lays hold of it. Then there issues from the owner of that bait an unearthly yell, and all the boys come running out to stare, entirely regardless of their anatomy and leaving the poor boy with a "bite" to battle with the unmerciful catch as best he can.—Boston Globe.

Mamma's Story.

"Now, mamma, tell me a story, please." "Well, what shall the story be?" "The Three Little Bears." "No, mamma, dear.

Please tell the story I love to hear 'Bont when you was little, like me." "Very well. When I was less than four"— "No, mamma; half way there."

"Oh, yes! I went when the moon was bright." "Your papa took you, one starry night"— "You are right. He carried me."

"And he said"— "No; first he hugged you up." "He hugged me up all tight, and he carried you straight to grandma's door. And said, 'Can she stay all night?'"

"Oh, yes! And so he left me there"— "And next day when you saw your mover you found the best little brover, and he is my Uncle Jack!" —Mary L. Paine in Youth's Companion.

An Old Catch.

There is an old catch, so old that it is doubtful if the boys and girls of today have heard it, and it is better than guessing the height of a man's silk hat, which often causes so much amusement at evening parties. It is this: A man went to a blacksmith and asked him to shoe a horse. He agreed to do so if he was paid 1 cent for the first nail, 2 for the second, 4 for the third, and so on, doubling the amount each time. How much did the man have to pay? There are 83 nails, so take a pencil and figure it out. If you haven't heard the problem, the answer will surprise you.

It Makes Fun.

A game that is very absurd, but creates fun, is called "It," and all must be in the secret but one, who leaves the room. Upon his return he questions each player to discover what has been agreed upon for his mystification. He is told that it is a person, and many are the contradictions and great is his dilemma until he finds that "my right hand neighbor" is the object selected. Each person questioned having a different "right hand neighbor," the confusion is very amusing to all but the bewildered questioner.—Philadelphia Times.

Troubled.

If it were not for fairies, this world would be drear. (I'm sure they are true—heigh-ho!) The grass would not tangle, The bubbles would jangle, And things would be stupid and queer, you know, And everything dull if the fairies should go. (I'm sure they are true—heigh-ho!)

I love to believe in the godmothers' mice And Hoppy's "Thumby, heigh-ho!" And it's cruel in Willy To call me a silly. If brothers would only be nice, you know, Not tease and make fun, all my troubles would 'Ed believe in the fairies forever, heigh-ho! —M. M. D. in St. Nicholas.

Deafness.

An essay describing a really genuine cure for deafness, ringing in ears, etc., no matter how severe or long-standing, will be sent post free. Artificial ear-drums and similar appliances entirely superseded. Address, Thomas Kempe, Victoria Chambers, 19 Southampton Buildings, Holborn, London.

Build Up.

When the system is run down, a person becomes an easy prey to Consumption or scrofula. Many valuable lives are saved by using Scott's Emulsion as a tonic and restorative.

A SOAP BUBBLE PARTY.

Happiness Galore, Although Many Pipes Were Broken in Pursuit.

"Mamma! oh, Mamma! See what Phillip Jay brought, see it is a piece of cardboard with a real pipe tied to it—what pretty blue ribbon. Read it, Mamma, quick!" As soon as mamma could explain to the breathless little girl that it was an invitation to play soap-bubbles with her little friend Lenore Jay, that afternoon, she danced off to show her treasure and tell her next door neighbor about it. She found he had an invitation, too. Both children could scarcely wait for the time to pass until it was at the hour for meeting at Lenore's.

Mrs. Jay had provided plenty of pipes, and a bowl of soapsuds on the hardwood floor of the dining room, and there they merrily and safely amused themselves and Lenore, the baby, all the long, bright afternoon. A little before 5 o'clock, Mamma, Jay and Phillip came in with cookies and lemonade. Later, as the little guests wandered homeward looking for flowers and ripe berries in the hedges and gathering the sweet wild roses, they agreed that it was the nicest party they were ever at, for as they said, "soapsuds doesn't hurt calico and gingham. It didn't matter if the pipes did break, and it was so much fun seeing who could make the biggest bubble." How much happiness there can be at a soap-bubble party is vividly depicted in the accompanying illustration.—American Agriculturist.

Two Interesting Babies.

This seems to be the year of interesting babies. There is that one, as you know, the little Prince Edward, born to the Duke and Duchess of York, making the fourth in the direct line of succession to the throne, the first and only baby in English history who was ever born while three of his predecessors were still living.

And now there's another baby almost as interesting, the little daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Peary, born way up in Greenland, further north than any white child ever dreamed of being born before.

The relief party which went out to find Lieut. Peary found him safe and sound, and the baby quite a year old. The little one cooed back with his mother, while Lieut. Peary stays another year to complete his work.

Lieut. Peary, by the way, has not been much more fortunate than the rest of the Arctic explorers this year. Mr. Wellman, you remember, lost all his boats and equipments before he came home. Dr. Cook lost his ship, the Miranda, and all the trophies his party had taken. Other explorers have lost their lives, for the Arctic regions this winter have been harder to explore than ever. The floating ice has been tremendous, filling even the seas that are sometimes open. Lieut. Peary says that the storms and the cold have been the worst known for years. It is doubtful whether any white man ever encountered any to equal them.

Even the dogs were frozen under the snow during the storm when the Lieutenant and his men were making an exploration. Some of the dogs were frozen to death, and others were frozen so fast to the ice that the men had to chop them loose. The wind blew at the rate of 48 miles an hour, and the thermometer fell to 60 degrees below zero. This was when the party had encamped on an ice cap 5,000 feet above the sea. Still there are people who love an Arctic expedition better than anything else in the world.—Little Hamilton French in New York World.

They Comforted Each Other.

Johnny and Daisy go to school together, and are very fond of each other. One day in school the teacher asked Johnny to define "signal."

"Signal is a young seal," answered Johnny. "Signal means a small seal," quickly said the boy below Johnny, and Johnny had to go down the class.

Everybody laughed except Daisy, who gave Johnny a look of sympathy. Soon afterward the teacher asked Daisy what is meant by "stem" when you use it in the sentence "to stem the current."

"It means," said Daisy, "when mamma takes the stems off the currents to make plum pudding."

Then the whole school, except Johnny, laughed at Daisy. After school Johnny put his arm around Daisy's waist and said:

"If it doesn't mean that, Daisy, it ought to." And Daisy replied: "I'm sure, Johnny, a small seal must be a young one." And so they were both comforted.

Children's Sayings.

It was a hot day and the ice cart on its rounds attracted the usual crowd of thirsty youngsters clamoring for "the pieces." Ray's mamma, who had dressed him in a clean white suit, was shocked when he made his appearance, wet and dripping. "Oh! You naughty, bad boy; just look at that nice, clean suit, all dirty so soon! I believe I shall have to give you a good whipping."

"Taint dirt," bawled Ray; "it's jess only ice juice, and I'll dry up pretty soon, if you won't whip me."

What the Teacher Wanted.

"Papa," said little Tom one day when he came home from school, "teacher says you must have me 'assinated.'"

"Yes, sir. She says every child must be 'assinated' before he comes back to school, because smallpox is in town."

News of disasters on the road, owing to bad business, begins to come in. Eugene Canfield and George Richards closed season and disbanded their "Circus Clown" Company at York, Pa., Sept. 29.

There is an old and oft-times true saying around theatrical folks—"A man is never appreciated in his own town." As a rule this may be true, yet there is another old saying something like this:

"It is a poor rule which does not apply both ways." I cannot say anything more applicable in the case of our townsman, "Al" Hart, who has made a tremendous hit as "Wang." While he has had to stand or fall by comparison with such artists as Hopper and Stevens, I am glad to see that the critics in Montreal have weighed him and found him not wanting, but "all wool and a yard wide." Mr.

Hart has certainly a bright future to look into. He is still young and above all possesses those talents so seldom found in one man, musical and dramatic, which go to make the real artist. It is only about 27 years ago when "Al" first said "Mamma," and his success in his profession would do credit to many who have struggled for a man to play "Wang" of the fickle public. When he left Montreal he became a member of the "Clippers Quartette" and joined Thatcher, Primrose and West's Minstrels, and assisted in making that troop famous. Mr. D. W. Truss was then manager for the minstrel firm and when he was looking about for a man to play "Wang" he only paid a tribute to deserving talent when he decided upon "Al" Hart. After playing three seasons with Thatcher, Primrose and West Mr. Hart joined the forces of Messrs. Rich and Harris and was sent with James Powers in "A Straight Tip." He remained with this company two seasons and was then engaged to support the late Kate Castleton in "The Dazzler." His great success in this company placed his name among the first comedians of the American stage. His success as "Wang" is beyond all question, and I, with all my friends, wish him continued good luck and prosperity.

A New York friend writes me as follows: Dear Fry, Since I last wrote you E. H. Sothorn has been seen in Jerome K. Jerome's play, "A Way to Win a Woman," the new St. James Hall has been opened and Chauncey Oltrott has made a success in a new drama called "The Irish Artist." Jerome's play, which was done at the Lyceum, shows the author's skill, but it is an improbable story. It however furnishes young Sothorn with a very strong part, which a good actor could never have raised into a great success. As no one has ever accused the gentlemanly son of his distinguished father of any such thing, it may be inferred that Mr. Jerome's play did not make the hit it might. But all the same, Mr. Jerome will have to do better if he wishes to maintain his reputation on this side of the Atlantic. What was once the San Francisco Minstrel's Hall, but which since then has had a half-dozen different names, was opened on Saturday night by Alexander Comstock with an old-fashioned burnt cork performance. It was indeed very old-fashioned, some of the jolly jokes going back to the days of George Christy, Dan Bryant and Nelse Seymour. It was modeled after the style of the San Francisco Minstrels, but unfortunately lacked the talent of Birch, Backus and Wambold, and the revival was in no way a success. Negro minstrelry is played out any way. The old negroes have gone to the place "where the old negroes go," and too many of the generation that knew them have joined the "great majority." The young people of to-day neither know nor care for daisy songs any more than they do for Shakespeare, and St. James Hall will probably be known by another name pretty soon, if the owner does not pull down the costly little theatre, which has never been "a winner."

"The Irish Artist," in which Chauncey Oltrott made a singing success, is a really pretty Irish comedy, one of the best I have ever seen of its ilk. It has no red coats, no process servers, no violence, and for once and only once, I have seen an Irish play, the plot in which might possibly have taken place. It is the work of Augustus Pitou and George H. Jessup, and it I have a fault to find with it, I would say that the dialogue was neither as witty nor as bright as any we are made to suppose Irish dialogue ought to be—I have almost forgotten another new play, which was done on Monday at the People's Theatre in the posed to regularly incorporate this association the prospectus of which has already received the signatures of a very considerable number of the leading directors of theatrical affairs in the metropolis. The main object of the new association is to promote certain very much needed reforms, and to protect its members against existing abuses. Among the matters to be attracted are the bill-board channels of waste and fraud, the simultaneous booking of competing companies in the same field, and, in fact, the numerous other sources of annoyance and loss as they at present exist. It is recognized among the thinking theatrical managers of the country that the amusement business is one of the few of any importance in all America that is at present unorganized. It is quite possible that the new association may, in the early future extend to other cities. The present scheme is quite the most carefully thought out and thoroughly prepared undertaking that has thus far been made known in connection with the business of theatrical managers.

The Academy is to have a big attraction on October 22 and week. "Davy Jones," that capital comic opera, made famous by Agnes Huntington, is booked, and I am told that the production is simply immense.

The lovers of music in Montreal have a rich treat in store for them in the grand operatic concert arranged for the evening of November 15th in the Academy of Music, and in which Madame Melba, Madame Scaldi, M. Maugiere and M. Pol Plancon will be the principal soloists. M. Bevington, one of the musical directors of the New Metropolitan Opera House, New York, and a most accomplished musician and composer, will lead an orchestra composed of picked musicians from the Grand Opera orchestra. The fame and ability of these great singers is so well-known to the lovers of good music and song in Montreal that the mere announcement is sufficient to attract attention, and secure interest in the musical feast in preparation.

If the balance of Keogh and Davis' attractions are as bad as "On the Bowery," it is time they went out of the business.

There is absolutely no chance for one word of criticism, "On the Bowery" is (you know the word) from one end to the other.

Miss Alice Warner who has signed for four years with Chas. Hoyt sprained her ankle the other night while dancing at her dance. She will be unable to dance for some time Mr. Hoyt has given her the position as second leading lady in "A Temperance Town."
