

DAYLIGHT RAIDS ON ENGLAND ARE INEFFECTIVE

Nazis Run Into Strong Barrage Of Defence Fire

Last Night's Attacks on London Caused Casualties "Rather Less Than on Previous Nights"—British Launch Counter-Assaults on Nazi-Held Channel "Invasion Ports."

London, Sept. 21.—(P)—Hitler's air raiders, inaugurating the third week of mass assaults aimed at London, roared through Channel mists and drizzling rain today but ran into a storm of anti-aircraft fire along the Kentish Coast.

One group of raiders appeared over the Capital after a night-long series of attacks and British counter-assaults on Nazi-held Channel "invasion ports." Anti-aircraft guns blazed away for a short time in Central London, the first formation of raiders soon disappeared and the brief raid alarm ended.

Three of the raiders over Kent retreated in the face of heavy British fire, one of them jettisoning its bombs in the sea. Later a lone Messerschmitt fighter tried to steal in above the clouds, only to turn tail when it was accorded a hot reception by the ground batteries.

Additional raiders dropped bombs near two Southeastern towns and bomb fragments fell in several districts. One German bomber, apparently ringed by anti-aircraft fire, was finished off near the South-east coast by a fighter.

An official announcement said last night's attacks on London caused casualties "rather less than on previous nights." East, Central and South London and the Thames area bore the brunt of the 14th consecutive dusk-to-dawn assault.

One heavy bomb fell early this morning in South London near a famous football field, demolishing twelve houses and causing a number of casualties. It left a huge crater in a roadway.

Another high explosive caused widespread damage and inflicted casualties when it struck an apartment house at the edge of a historic Thames-side town.

The Government's announcement said that in other parts of the British Isles there was very little night activity.

British defenders, reporting a "marked improvement" in English Channel weather this morning after three days of gales and high waves, scanned the Straits of Dover for any sign of a German thrust by sea.

The southwest wind subsided considerably and visibility was reported fair, although the sea was somewhat rough in mid-channel.

Observers on the cliffs said the Royal Air Force concentrated a heavy assault on the Dunkerque and Calais areas of coastal France, where the Germans are reported gathering men and machinery for an invasion attempt.

Although the watchers said the sound of bombing and anti-aircraft fire did not reach the intensity of attacks of the three previous nights, bright bursts of flame rose from the coast to indicate new fires here had been set.

The fourteenth consecutive night of German assault on London brought only two raids instead of the continuous hammering which has characterized most of the previous attacks.

After a lull in the middle of the night, the Nazis returned to strike anew, and at least half a dozen large calibre bombs exploded in Central London early today.

An official communique said preliminary reports indicated casualties were "rather less than on previous nights."

Most Londoners remained in their shelters during the interlude in the night bombing.

As in recent nights, the Germans

BULGARIANS IN FORMAL ENTRY INTO DOBRUJA

Demands Greece Be Forced to Return Thrace and Macedonia, Lost to Bulgaria in Last War, Heard.

Varna, Bulgaria, Sept. 21.—(P)—Flag-decorated border villages today welcomed the vanguard of Bulgarian officials and troops reclaiming Southern Dobruja, lost in war and regained from weakened Rumania without a fight after twenty-eight years of dispute.

While today's formal entry into Dobruja extended Bulgaria's Black Sea front to the North, many Bulgarians clamored for similar expansion to the South.

They urged that Greece be forced to return Thrace and Macedonia, which Bulgarian lost in treaties after the last war, cutting her off from the Aegean Sea.

Although complete occupation of the territory ceded by Rumania is expected to take ten days, Bulgarian officials said the first section would be occupied in twenty-four hours after the dynamiting of the old frontier markers at 9 a.m. (2 a.m. E.D.T.)

Argentina Begins Five-Year Defensive Rearmament Plan

Vast Programme, Which Will Make Country Top-Ranking Military Power of South America, Includes Development of Internal Sources of Munitions Supply—Will Cost Approximately $330,000,000.

By HAROLD MILKS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Buenos Aires, Sept. 21.—(P)—Argentina is working at top speed on a five-year rearmament programme to cost 1,100,000,000 pesos (about $330,000,000).

Settlement of the recent political crisis precipitated an army large purchase scandal gave the go-ahead signal for the vast programme and technical experts now are preparing details for presentation to the National Legislature.

The directing heads are Gen. Juan Tomas, Minister of War, and Navy Minister Mario Fainat, appointed to the cabinet by Vice-President Ramon Castillo, acting with full powers from the ailing President, Roberto M. Ortiz.

It is known they have borrowed heavily from the lessons learned from France in specifying heavy, purchases of modern aircraft, anti-aircraft artillery and mechanized equipment.

Paralleling the five-year plan of defensive rearmament to make Argentina the ranking military power of South America is a supplementary programme for speeding internal development of sources of supply for small arms, munitions, gun powder and small warships.

Well-informed sources say the most pressing item is obtaining some 500 new warplanes of all types for the army and navy, which would be more than double the present air strength.

These informants say at least one-third of the proposed expenditure to be made outside the regular annual budgets—will go for aircraft.

Heading the army requirements are at least 150 modern fighter planes to augment the present force

CANADIAN RED CROSS WORKS ON DESPITE BOMBS

Members of Maple Leaf Club Continue All Night Helping London's Injured After Own Home Hit During Raid.

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Sept. 21.—(C.P.-Cable).

It can be told now how Canadian Red Cross workers, while raiders zoomed across London, turned their damaged building into a makeshift casualty station and worked by torchlight into the dawn bringing relief to helpless victims of Nazi bombs.

When a bomb fell during a night raid near the Maple Leaf Club which the Red Cross operates for Canada's Overseas Forces the girls were thrown from their beds.

All the club's windows were blown out. Plaster fell from the walls. The girls hastily pulled on slacks and joined air raid precaution workers in the task of restoring order to the disorganized street.

A nearby building was flattened by the bomb.

Under the direction of Miss Pat Tuckett, a Toronto nurse, the small staff treated casualties and provided hot refreshments for firemen, police and A.R.P. workers who toiled in the wreckage of the bombed building.

Working at Miss Tuckett's side were two other Torontonians, June McLaren and Faith Watson.

"We were shot from our beds when a bomb hit," said Miss Tuckett. "A thick cloud shot up, causing us to think it was gas but it proved to be mortar dust. Luckily everybody in the building escaped without a scratch."

"We just pulled on our slacks over our night dress when the A.R.P. asked if they could bring in an old woman for treatment. They kept bringing them in."

The blast had knocked out the lights. Torches were lit and through the night there was a steady stream of casualties.

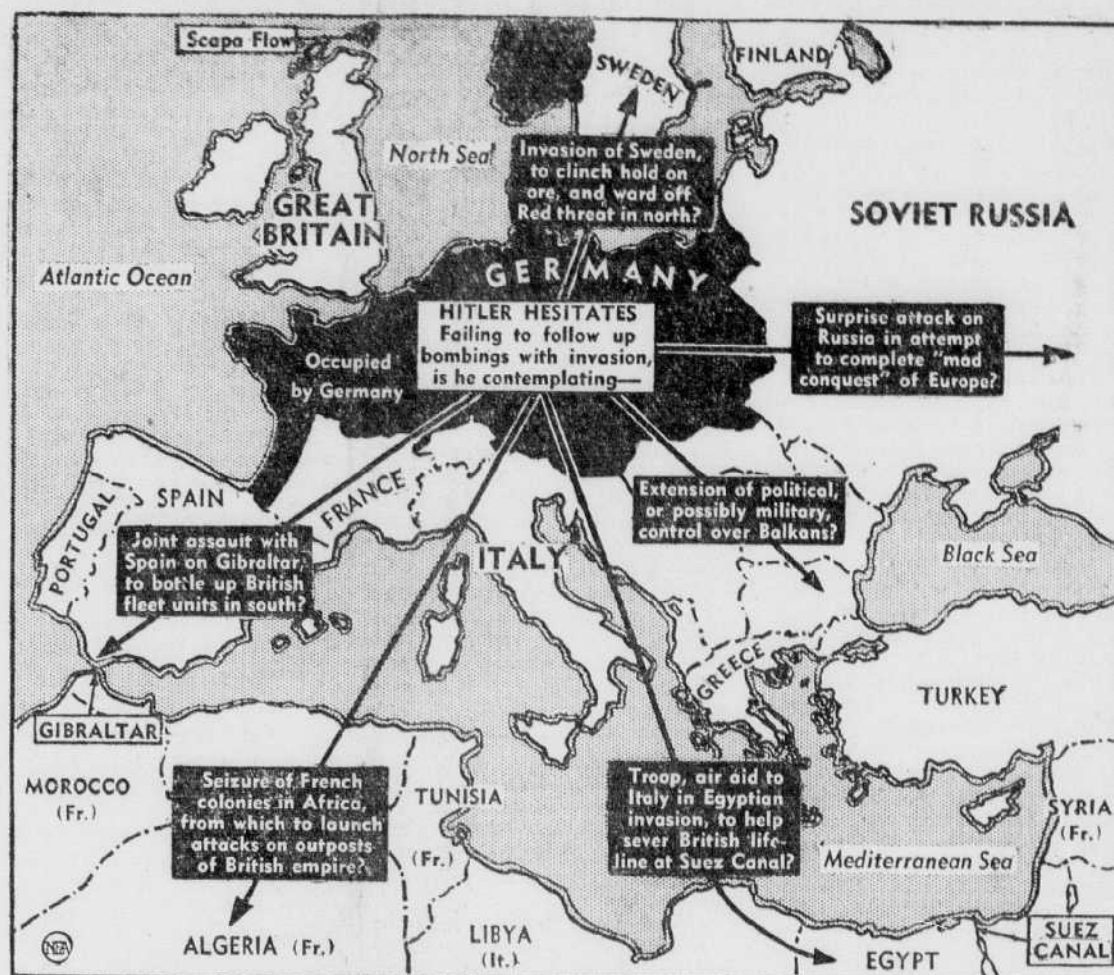

The girls made tea, and when there was a lull in treating the injured, begrimed A.R.P. workers came in for "something hot," and went out again to dig in the ruins.

A group of Canadian privates who had been sleeping in the Maple Leaf Club aided the girls. Among them were Douglas Campbell and James Williams, of Toronto, W. R. Boyle and W. Isavitch, Saskatoon, and F. G. McGuire, Prince Albert.

When dawn came the Canadian

LIEUT. DAVIES AGAIN BESTS NAZI RAIDERS

Leader of Demolition Squad of Royal Engineers Extracts Fuse from Time Bomb Before Removing It to Marsh.

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Sept. 21.—(P Cable).

The "de-stinging" of a Nazi time bomb which ironically landed in the grounds of the German hospital here is the latest exploit of the dare-devil Demolition Squad commanded by Lieut. Robert Davies, formerly of St. Catharines, Ont.

The bomb, which was hauled from its crater by block and tackle after Lieut. Davies had crawled in the hole and sandwiched himself under the missile to remove the fuse like a dentist calmly extracting a tooth.

The bomb was then taken to outlying marsh country and detonated where it could do no harm.

After completing the most recent of his many gambles with death, Lieut. Davies slumbered soundly for half an hour and then took his small squad of Royal Engineers to another part of the city to crack another high explosive egg.

NAVAL BASE RAIDED

Alexandria, Sept. 21.—(P)—Nine persons were injured in a raid of Italian bombing planes on this British Mediterranean naval base early today. Most of the bombs fell harmlessly into the sea.

The last raid made off in the direction of Aboukir, where a few other explosions were heard.

Naval anti-aircraft guns and search defences forced the planes out to sea after a forty-five minute alarm.

LAST OF CREW FROM INCEMORE SAFE ON SHORE

Remaining Twenty-Three Sailors Brought to Gaspe by Salvage Tug, While First Seventeen Rescued Still on Anticosti Island.

Gaspe, Que., Sept. 21.—(P)—Fragged by hunger and privation, 22 crewmen rescued from the British Incemore which grounded Sunday night on Anticosti Island during a fog, were brought here yesterday on a salvage tug.

For two days before arrival of the tug, they said, they had been unable to eat or sleep while giant waves crashed over the vessel, gnashing her steel plates on rocks, flooding her engine room and holds, and destroying her stores of provisions.

Seventeen other members of the ship's crew, rescued previously by breeches-buoy, remained on the island with Captain J. Clark to assist in salvaging the freighter. The men brought here are to travel by train to an east coast Canadian port.

Crewmen said the Incemore suffered considerable damages on the rocks but was not considered a total loss. Her cargo, from England for various Canadian ports, suffered heavy damage and there was 10 to 12 feet of water in her holds.

5-YEAR PROGRAMME PLANNED IN FRANCE

Vichy, Sept. 21.—(P)—Two hundred unemployed workers in unemployed France will be given jobs on a vast new public works programme expected to take five years, the Government announced today. The work will include improving and lengthening rail lines, rebuilding bridges, and extending telephone and telegraph service.

WAR BULLETINS

London—The radio station at Germany's great port of Bremen went off the air at 10:15 a.m. (5:14 a.m. E.D.T.) today and was still silent at 1:30 p.m.—a possible indication of a sustained Royal Air Force bombardment.

London—A bomb which struck an East London factory early today also damaged adjoining houses, making a number of residents homeless. While they were inspecting the damage, three more bombs fell, killing one person and injuring another.

London—Casualties during last night's German air raids on London apparently were "rather less than on previous nights," the Government announced today on the basis of preliminary reports.

London—An 11th naval contingent from Newfoundland arrived at a British port today.

Tension Mounts As Japs Manoeuvre Fleet To Add Force To New Demands

Crack Chinese Government Troops Reported Massing Along Borders of Kwangsi and Yunnan Provinces Ready to Move into French Indo-China Should Japan Resort to Force.

Hong Kong, Sept. 21.—(P)—Japanese warships have been moving into Tonkin Bay "since yesterday morning" as a "persuasive gesture" to back Japanese negotiations for military rights in French Indo-China, the British-owned newspaper China Mail, reported today.

At the same time Chinese sources said that crack Chinese Government troops were massing along the borders of Kwangsi and Yunnan provinces ready to move into French Indo-China if Japan should resort to force.

Reports from the southwest said that Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, Chinese Minister of War, had twice visited Yunnan Province in the past week to supervise the military preparations.

Chinese Government officials in Chungking were represented in Chinese despatches as convinced that Japan's primary ambition in Indo-China is to usurp French authority there, with securing of a backdoor route for invasion of Yunnan a secondary objective.

The Chinese press said the Japanese demands delivered to French authorities included:

First, Hanoi and Langson to become Japanese military bases, Hanoi and Laokay to become Japanese air bases; Aiphong, Tonkin Bay and Kwangchow to be leased as Japanese naval bases.

Second, Indo-China tariff rates to be revised in order to effect close Japanese-Indo-Chinese economic co-operation.

Third, the number of Japanese troops to be allowed passage through the colony to be unlimited.

Highly connected Japanese quarters here said Japan was ready for military action aimed at seizing the whole of Indo-China should the latter demand be refused.

Meanwhile, Chinese despatches said Thailand has threatened to cancel its non-aggression pact with Indo-China unless the French Colony accepts Thailand's demands for disputed border territory and for guarantees of fair treatment for Indo-China's Thai minorities.

REPORT DEMANDS OF JAPAN NOW MODIFIED

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Sept. 21.—(P)—An impending crisis over Japanese demands for military facilities in Indo-China apparently was averted today as French and Japanese officials resumed conversations.

The French Colonial Government announced the Japanese had "modified the range" of demands which caused the collapse of negotiations yesterday in the wake of a 72-hour ultimatum submitted by Japan.

"It is believed these conversations will terminate in an agreement taking account of the interests of both sides," the French communique said. "It is emphasized that during these negotiations Indo-China's territorial integrity and French sovereignty over the country were never open to question."

The announcement came only a short time after Maj.-Gen. Issaku Nishihara, head of the Japanese mission, had said he was leaving for home and that his departure could be interpreted as heralding a "crisis." Nishihara remained here with some of his staff, but it was not announced whether others who had already departed for Haiphong would return.

Highly connected Japanese quarters in Hong Kong said Japan was ready for action aimed at the seizure of the entire French Colony should the demand for passage of an un-

Vital Australian Elections Will Decide Way Country To Pursue War

Canberra, Sept. 21.—(P)—Australia's wartime election takes place today, and commentators agree that it is the most vital in the history of the Commonwealth.

Arrayed on opposite sides are the Coalition Government of Prime Minister Menzies, combining the United Australian and Country parties, and the Labor Party under John Curtin.

Labor was split, however, into several dissident groups.

All of the 273 candidates contesting the 74 seats in the House of Representatives and the 65 candidates seeking the 19 Senate seats pledged themselves to pursue Australia's war effort to the full. The choice before the electorate consequently was not on the war, but on the ways in which the parties wish to pursue it.

A new House of Representatives and half of the Senate is being elected under the Commonwealth's system of proportional representation. It may be several days before decisive returns are available.

The election resulted partly from Mr. Menzies' desire to form a National Government. Labor refused to participate, although shortly after the war began the Australia and Country parties joined forces.

Labor's strength in the current election has been undermined by an intra-party feud which left the main group under Mr. Curtin without the support of nine House of Representatives members who formed a dissident wing in support of J. T. Lang, New South Wales Radical leader. A third Labor faction is contesting seats in New South Wales, where 1,500,000 of Australia's 4,000,000 voters live.

Some observers believe the middle class vote will not be attracted to Labor because of the party's hesitant attitude, until recently, to the war effort.

Labor in turn is stressing some of the Government's admitted blunders, such as belated port rationing and unsuccessful press regulations.

Response Of Small Subscribers Assures Loan Will Go Over Top

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—(P)—Individual subscribers who took sixty per cent. of the bond issue for Canada's First War Loan last January have been at it again this week. As a result, it is expected the $300,000,000 bond issue for the Second War Loan will be oversubscribed when books close at noon today.

The Bank of Canada announced last night that reports from all parts of Canada indicated a heavy volume of small subscriptions yesterday such as had been noted all week and officials hoped for a "substantial oversubscription" of the issue.

Less than $6,000,000 remained to be subscribed Thursday night when latest figures were disclosed. Yesterday's sales will be added to today's and the grand total announced after closing of the books, after the two-week campaign. The first loan for $200,000,000 was oversubscribed by $60,000,000.

Canadians are offered another means of helping in the war effort by loaning their money in small amounts to the Government under a new campaign announced last night by the National War Savings Committee.

It will be a national "Smash Hitler" campaign in which an army of 2,000,000 regular "war savers" will be sought.

The Committee has developed a special pledge form which will be delivered by mail to 2,500,000 householders from coast to coast. Using this form, a bank depositor will be able to instruct his or her bank to invest in one or more war savings certificates on the 15th of every month.

Once the pledge is signed and handed to the bank, the regular purchase of War Savings Certificates becomes automatic.

Prices Firm In Dull Trading On Lansdowne Mart Yesterday

Although produce continues plentiful and in full season, local vendors yesterday reported trade to be quiet on the Lansdowne Market, with little change in price of any commodity. Eggs were steady with an abundant supply on hand.

The market still had a full supply of fresh fruit and vegetables, with the addition of pickling vegetables and preserving fruits. Blueberries are out of season, and cauliflower demanded a higher price because of their larger size and finer quality, with radishes taking on a two-cent increase because they are now cultivated in hot-houses.

On the other hand the vegetable market remained steady with the appearance of preserving pears, greenbeans and plums. No. 1 pears were offered at fifty-nine cents and No. 2 were sold for forty-nine cents in six quart baskets. New hard cucumbers were prevalent but local leaf lettuce is quickly disappearing to be replaced by the iceberg variety which is more tender.

For quite some time the provision market has kept a surprisingly steady level, featuring chickens and lamb in full season. Veal is scarce.

of Compton County Health Unit.

Waymer S. Labaree, of the Compton County Health Unit, was the guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Ascot Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. S. Fearon on Moulton Hill.

Mr. Labaree spoke on the work of the Health Unit and also on the subject of infant mortality, its causes and means of prevention. The speaker was introduced by the President, Mrs. W. T. Pearson, and extended a hearty vote of thanks for his splendid address by the convenor of the meeting, Mrs. J. A. Woodward.

During the business session the sum of five dollars was voted to the Red Cross Society. Tentative plans were made for catering to the ploughmen's banquet which will be held next month. Mrs. F. R. Mitchell was appointed convenor of this event and her committee will be composed of Mrs. J. A. Woodward, Mrs. R. S. Lipsey, Mrs. W. S. Richardson and Mrs. W. T. Pearson.

The correspondence included an appeal from the Sherbrooke Hospital and it was arranged that donations of fruit and vegetables will be collected for them at the residence of Mrs. W. S. Richardson at the Experimental Farm today.

In response to a communication received from E. Alex. Sim, regarding the Sherbrooke County Community School being held at the Lennoxville High School for eight weeks, two members, Mrs. D. MacElrea and W. A. Cox, were appointed delegates to the school.

It was decided to invite Miss Edna Riddle, Demonstrator at Macdonald's College for Quebec Women's Institutes, who is in the Eastern Townships in connection with the Community School, to attend the next meeting of Ascot Women's Institute, in order that the members might have the opportunity of meeting her. It was planned that there will be stamps instead of books will be given by the branch this year as prizes at the Ascot Consolidated School.

Members were reminded of the Home Nursing classes which will be held at Milby, in the near future, under the auspices of the Milby Women's Institute and several of those present indicated their intention of taking advantage of these classes.

The roll call of the meeting was "How to Be Healthy."

Mrs. D. MacElrea, Convenor of Agriculture, gave a splendid address of the Sherbrooke County School Fair at Lennoxville, and Mrs. W. T. Pearson, county convenor of Canadian Industries, described the fine Canadian industry exhibit shown by this branch. It was in the form of a miniature farm and its produce.

Mrs. S. Fearon and the assistant hostesses, Mrs. J. A. Woodward and Mrs. H. Woodward, served a delicious luncheon, assisted by Mrs. D. Fearon and Miss Rose Galvin.

Mrs. D. MacElrea will entertain the members at their next meeting in October, when it has been planned that a visit will be paid to the Canadian plant at Sherbrooke prior to the business session.

NOYES LASHES OUT AGAINST NAZI TACTICS

Noted British Poet Contrasts
Treatment Children Receive from English-Speaking
People and Nazis.

By KEN CLARK,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Ottawa, Sept. 21.—(P)—The gesture of Canadians and Americans in offering sanctuary to children of the United Kingdom is in startling contrast to the gesture of the Nazis toward children, Alfred Noyes, the British poet, said in an interview today.

"The Polish children," he said, "were thrown into trucks and rushed from one part of Europe to another. Tens arrived with dead and dying. The French children were freed on by machine guns and along the beaches at Weymouth our own children were machine-gunned."

"Put that in contrast with what Canada is doing, what the English-speaking people are doing, and you have a perfect example in one act of the difference between the causes."

Mr. Noyes is on a lecture tour through Canada under the auspices of the National Council of Education. Proceeds will go toward the fund for the evacuation of children.

In appearance young and rather like a lawyer than the conventional idea of a poet, Mr. Noyes sat lively and easy in the back drawing room of his Ottawa host, Duncan Campbell Scott, and discussed with candor poetry, politics and morals.

Nazis Run Into Strong Barrage Of Defence Fire

struck first with incendiary bombs to set fires to guide them to their targets.

South London suffered heavily from the fire bombs. Scores of houses sprang up, but they were extinguished in rapid order. The Government said dwellings and industrial premises were damaged.

A church hall in Central London and a factory next door were among the buildings set afire. Authorities said scores of persons who had taken refuge in a cellar under the hall were unhurt.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire rising all about the city marked the first raid.

In the latter hours of the second raid there was sporadic firing of anti-aircraft guns near the centre of the capital, where several times the raiders glided in from great height to drop projectiles from just above the clouds.

Towns in Southeast England and the coastal area also were bombed, but the attacks there were reported lighter than usual.

In a region just East of London, anti-aircraft guns destroyed two German planes within five minutes of the first raid.

The first plane exploded in flames after a direct hit, and the second, flying toward London, was blown to pieces by the gunfire.

Three large bombs fell on the Southwestern quarter of London during the night. The first wrecked practically every house in one street, killing two persons and injuring others seriously.

Another bomb crashed through several floors of a large block of flats, but most of the occupants were safe in shelters. The third missile damaged a house. One of the blasts shattered windows half a mile away.

A famous old arch in Southwestern London and an adjoining warehouse were burned out by incendiary bombs.

Some five hundred persons, mostly children, who were sheltered in vaults under the church, were shepherded to another shelter before the fire spread.

limited number of Japanese troops be denied. These sources said Rear Admiral Jean Decoux, Governor General of Indo-China, was insisting on restricting the number of troops passing through the colony.

The exact nature of the Japanese demands remained a secret. Originally, Japan sought permission from the French Government at Vichy to move troops through the colony in order to strike a blow at China's "back door" supply routes.

Vichy granted "limited facilities" for troop and naval movements, with the understanding that details were to be worked out here. At the conferences here, however, Japan made new demands.

About one hundred Japanese nationals were evacuated yesterday in pursuance of Japan's announced intention to avert "unfortunate incidents" when troops march into Indo-China. The Chinese Government of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek has threatened to invade Indo-China should Japanese troops be permitted to enter.

All are welcome.

"Matter" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, September 22nd.

The Golden Text is from 1 John 5:21. "Little children, keep yourselves from idols."

Among the citations which follow the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." (Gal. 5:25).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We must destroy the false belief that life and intelligence are in matter, and plant ourselves upon what is pure and perfect. Paul said, 'Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh.' Sooner or later we shall learn that the fetters of man's finite capacity are forged by the illusion that he lives in body instead of in Soul, in matter instead of in Spirit." (Page 222).

Two Superior Court Actions Were Taken Under Advisement

Rocks on Sand Hill Farm Brought Ulderic Breton to Court Against Tremblay and Bonin, Contracting Firm, Seeking One Hundred Dollars Damages—Two Local Residents Unable to Live Peacefully Without Boundaries Between Adjoining Properties.

Numerous stones on a Sand Hill in the summer and fall of 1938 they farm and two local adjoining properties figure in two Superior Court cases which have been taken under advisement by Mr. Justice Hector Verret. In the case in which the stones form the basis of dispute Ulderic Breton, of Sand Hill, is seeking one hundred dollars damages from Tremblay and Bonin, local contractors, while the question of boundaries between the Sherbrooke properties brought Laureat Laliberte and Joseph Etienne Breton, both of this city, into court.

Declaration of the Sand Hill farmer points out that the defendants were building a cement bridge across the St. Francis River near Lennoxville and that they were in need of stones. Aldric Tremblay, the plaintiff asserts, went to Breton's farm in search of stones, and on the farm was a row of rocks which served as a division and fence between two fields.

Tremblay, according to the plaintiff, asked him to give him all the stones on the property, and Breton assented, but only on condition that all the stones be removed, to which Tremblay agreed. The fact that only the finest stones were removed, Breton states, caused him to suffer damages since the dividing line was completely destroyed.

35TH BATTERY OFFICER LEADS SALVAGE WORK

Lieutenant Donald K. Dawes, Former Bishop's Student, Commanded One Hundred Canadians in Urgent Service.

Lieutenant Donald Dawes, of Montreal, a former University of Bishop's College student, who went overseas with the 35th Battery, had command of a detachment of one hundred Canadian soldiers who laid their weapons yesterday to carry out urgent work of salvage after a residential suburb of London had been damaged by one of the most lethal of German bombs, a Canadian Press dispatch relates today.

Son of Kenneth T. Dawes and Mrs. S. M. Dawes, the Canadian lad enlisted for active service at the outbreak of war and went overseas last December. He is twenty-one years old.

The suburban town was asleep when the destructive missile was dropped, but someone only eight civilians were killed. Workers had learned long ago that the fact no military objective is located in the settlement would not keep it from the shadow of death darkening the British skies. It had been bombed before. The workers and their families now sleep in shelters.

Many of the workmen's tidy cottages, which, with their flowerbeds and trees, line the streets of the little place, were damaged when the bomb let go. Four of them were splintered into matchwood. Others were damaged beyond repair.

When high-explosive tore up the cottages debris was flung so widely that six Canadian officers strolling a distance from the spot were cut by flying glass.

A detachment of Canadian anti-tank unit marching back to camp after a night exercise in the field passed near the scene of havoc soon after dawn revealed its great extent. Lt. Dawes was left in command of a section detailed to help in urgent work of salvage.

Willing Canadian hands helped clear the wreckage of houses and their humble furnishings from the streets. Others carried belongings that can be used again to the more fortunate homes which were thrown open to the scores not so fortunate.

The Commencement Exercises of the Sherbrooke High School will be held on Thurs., Sept. 26 at 8.15 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all parents and friends of the school.

Cafeteria supper, Pky. Hall, Sept. 26, from 6 to 7.30 o'clock. Everyone welcome.

There's an advantage to winter. Winter is when you begin to appreciate the value of a well-built home. Winter is when the word "Home" takes on new significance—winter is the season when the family spends its time at home.

It's a wonderful feeling to come from the heart of a storm to the heart of the home. To bask in the cheerful warmth of an open fire, to feel sheltered from the cold, wet snow by a newly shingled roof, to enjoy security from relentless winds from behind impenetrable doors and windows.

Now is the time to prepare your home for winter. Let me help you in the selection of quality, inexpensive building materials that will insure your comfort and your family's health during the winter.

Daylight Saving Time To Be Continued "Indefinitely"

This autumn Sherbrooke will not revert back to Standard Time as has been its custom each of the twenty-five summers in which the city has adopted Daylight Saving Time. The reason for this decision, taken by the Dominion Government, under the War Measures Act, is to reduce the chances of a shortage of power for industries.

Sherbrooke, which is included among the other industrialized municipalities in Ontario and Quebec affected by this ruling, was to have changed her time next Saturday. Now Daylight Time will continue indefinitely.

Early in the week a meeting of the City Finance Committee will take place and will adopt a resolution to this effect, which will come up for ratification at the next City Council meeting two weeks from now, said Mayor Joseph Labrecque, who was questioned as to Sherbrooke's decision on the time measure.

The Mayor declared that power, formerly used to light offices, buildings and factories during the later part of fall and winter afterwards will now be utilized solely for the purposes of production.

This move, based on a recommendation of H. J. Symington, Power Controller for the Department of Munitions and Supply, will release an estimated 189,000 horsepower of electrical energy for industrial purposes throughout Quebec and Ontario. It is expected also to stagger the hours at which generation plants are required to deliver peak loads.

The order, directed to "all individuals, firms, corporations, except transportation and telegraph companies," stated no definite limit on the period during which Daylight Saving Time will continue and no special consideration has been given municipalities which have already reverted to Standard Time.

The reason for the ruling here is the conserving of power, while in Great Britain, where the Daylight Saving period was extended last year, it was to give workers an opportunity to get home before the blackout.

It is the first instance since 1918 that Daylight Saving has been the subject of General Dominion legislation. It was general throughout Canada that year under a Dominion statute but since then has been adopted only on the initiative of municipalities concerned.

INSPECTION OF S. F. R. TAKES PLACE MONDAY

Major-General T. L. Tremblay to Visit Local Unit for General Survey—Third Church Parade Tomorrow.

For the first time since its mobilization as an active service unit six weeks ago the Sherbrooke Fusiliers Regiment will have a general inspection, when Major-General T. L. Tremblay, C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., A.D.C., Inspector General for Eastern Canada, will visit the regiment on Monday.

Accompanied by members of the staff of Military District No. 4, Major-General Tremblay will be welcomed by Lieut.-Col. M. W. McNulty, Officer Commanding the local regiment, on his arrival in Sherbrooke at 9.30 in the morning.

A general review of the whole unit with pipes and drums will next take place in front of the grandstand on the Exhibition Grounds, with Major-General Tremblay taking the salute. Following the review the unit will break up into sections, platoons and companies for a display of the military knowledge they have learned to date, performing several manoeuvres, arm drills and exercises.

The visitors will inspect all sleeping quarters, mess halls, canteens and headquarters, carefully examining the various files and reports.

Keyed up at this coming important event the regiment will have a further chance to perfect its military bearing when it holds its third church parade tomorrow.

Assembling at the barracks on the Exhibition grounds, the unit, under the command of Lieut.-Col. McNulty, will march down Park Avenue and King Street. At the corner of Bowen South and King it will be joined by the Sherbrooke Harmony Band, led by Prof. Charles Delveuve.

At King and Wellington Street the regiment will be split into two sections, the Catholics, under Major Aime Biron, turning South along Wellington and up Galt street to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and the Protestants, under Major B. D. Lyons, marching North along Wellington Street and up Frontenac to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

After special services have been held in both churches the two sections of the regiment will reform about noon at the corner of Frontenac and Goodhue Streets, for the march back to the barracks.

MAN IS HELD ON FORGERY COUNT AT SWEETSBURG

West Brome Resident to Stand Trial in Magistrate's Court on Charges of Passing False Cheques.

Sweetsburg, Sept. 21.—Residents of this district are hoping that an epidemic of false cheque passing and forgery has been ended with the arrest of Earl Perry, 35, of West Brome, who is in the local jail awaiting trial on several charges of forgery.

In recent weeks storekeepers in Cowansville, Granby and other surrounding localities have been victimized, and it is reported that Perry would purchase a certain amount of merchandise and then present to be cashed a worthless cheque for a large amount.

One merchant in Cowansville is reported to have been defrauded of some $42. Perry is expected to go on trial before Judge J. H. Lemay in Magistrate's Court here on Tuesday.

GROCERIA IS ROBBED DURING EARLY MORNING

Thieves Enter King Groceteria, Making Off with Cigars, Cigarettes and Beer.

Municipal Police are today pressing an investigation into a robbery which occurred late last night or early this morning at the King Groceteria, 40 King Street West, when thieves broke into the establishment, owned by A. S. Nault, and made off with a quantity of cigars, cigarettes and beer besides seventy-five coppers which remained in the cash register.

The janitor, Joseph Xasterooler, who lives directly across the street, first noticed the theft about seven o'clock this morning as he was coming up the store before it opened, and immediately telephoned the manager, A. Berthold, who in turn notified the police.

According to Mr. Berthold, the thieves first attempted to chisel the wooden frame around the rear entrance to reach the bells and succeeded in forcing one open but upon seeing there were two more to un-latch and still another door to break through, they changed their plans and, breaking through a small rear shed door, crawled through the cellar window and came up the cellar stairs which leads into the back of the store.

The manager states that the proprietor, who lives over the store, was not aware of any suspicious sounds during the night.

LOST LIFE AS TRUCK SWERVED OFF HIGHWAY

Gabriel Bernier, Montreal Truck Driver, Fell Asleep at Wheel and Was Crushed to Death at Melbourne Ridge.

Melbourne Ridge, Sept. 21.—His skull crushed and his body mangled, Gabriel Bernier, twenty-nine-year-old Montreal man, met instantaneous death here early yesterday morning when a large fruit truck which he was driving left the road, careened into a ditch and smashed into a huge elm tree.

The truck was so badly smashed that the engine and the back of the truck were driven together, and Bernier was jammed in so tightly that work of extricating the battered body took about two hours.

It is believed that Bernier, who had left Montreal at two o'clock with a load of fruit sent by the Richmond Fruit Company, of Montreal, for delivery in Richmond, Windsor Mills and Bromfield, fell asleep at the wheel, because the road was perfectly straight at the point where the truck left the highway, and where there were no soft shoulders that might have caused the vehicle to swerve out of control.

William Frank, a Melbourne Ridge resident, was bringing his cows in from the field when he noticed the truck pass. A minute later he heard a crash, and upon investigating saw the wreck. Hurrying home, he telephoned for help and also summoned Dr. C. E. Manning, of Richmond.

A verdict of accidental death was rendered by a coroner's jury investigating the fatality under the direction of Dr. George Letendre, of Danville. The jurors were G. Cormier, E. Dubois, A. Beaudoin, F. Froulx, A. Lacombe and F. Dunn.

First Group Of Men Receiving Notices Of Military Training

One Thousand and Thirty-Three Sherbrooke Men Will Be Examined Within Next Few Days to Decide Whether They Are Physically Fit to Begin Training on October 9.

A group of 1,033 single men and childless widowers between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-four in Sherbrooke are gradually being notified by the Government to prepare themselves for military training under a proclamation of the Governor-in-Council.

These notices instruct the recipients to visit a doctor and submit to a medical examination within a clear three days of notification and, if found to be fit, a second notice will be sent to report to an indicated military training centre under the Department of National Defence for a period of thirty days. More than likely all the local men will be sent to the N.P.A.M. training camp under construction on the Drummond Road.

This utilizing of the information obtained from national registration has taken less than a year and official announcement of this achievement, which reflects the ever-accelerating tempo of Canada's war effort, came today from Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services. Mr. Gardiner stated that 45,000 single men and childless widowers throughout Canada were receiving these notices and outlined a few of the preparations made.

The services of all qualified medical practitioners throughout the Dominion have been enlisted by Mr. Gardiner so that there will be no delay in determining the physical fitness of the men called upon. Under this plan, there will be a "line-up" of waiting applicants. Men may visit their own or any conveniently located physician. Doctors have received detailed instructions concerning the physical standards set for the Canadian Active Service Force and for the Non-Permanent Active Militia.

During the medical examination, men will be called upon to state whether they have ever suffered from such disorders as rheumatism, tuberculosis, heart disease, stomach trouble, rupture, varicose veins, ear, eye or nasal trouble, nervous, mental or social diseases and if they have ever been rejected for military services. In his report, the examining physician will certify the man's physical category.

Under the National War Services Regulations, any physician who makes an inaccurate statement or signs an inaccurate certificate will be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction, for imprisonment or to a fine or both. Likewise, heavy penalties will be imposed on any eligible individual who, having been sent a notice of call, fails to report for a medical examination. It is the aim of the Minister and his deputy General L. R. LaFleche, who is responsible for the execution of the plan, that the selection of the men shall be scrupulously impartial.

With the convenience of applicants in mind as well as speedy efficiency, Canada has been divided into thirteen administrative divisions, each with a board comprising a judge as chairman, supported by two representative citizens and also a divisional registrar who will act as secretary and to whom any person seeking information as to procedure may, and should, apply.

The Eastern Townships have been divided between two districts, "E" and "F," with headquarters in Montreal and Quebec, respectively. In "E" division are the electoral districts of Drummond - Arthabaska, Shefford,

FRIENDS HONOR BRIDE-TO-BE AT FOSTER SHOWER

Foster, Sept. 21.—Miss Winnifred Mount was the guest of honor at a shower held at the home of Mrs. F. G. Johnson and Mrs. C. D. Johnson prior to her marriage. Miss Mount, who with her parents, the Rev. H. P. and Mrs. Mount, and sister, Miss Verna Mount, had been invited to attend a Guild meeting, was taken by surprise when she was ushered into the living room to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Miles Rhicard.

Contests were enjoyed after which a beautiful wool blanket and a spread were presented to the guest of honor who thanked her friends appropriately. A dainty lunch was then served with Mrs. Miles Rhicard and Mrs. James Code pouring tea. The room was decorated in pink and white while a beautifully decorated wedding cake was set in the centre of the table.

Those present were Rev. H. P. and Mrs. Mount, Miss Verna Mount, Mrs. S. E. Booth, Mrs. Miles Rhicard, Mrs. E. Gibbs, Mrs. E. W. Taylor, Miss Emma Hunter, Mrs. W. A. Inglis, Mrs. Fred Loe, Mrs. Jesse Allen, Mrs. C. A. Dixon, Miss Jessie Cook, Mrs. N. N. Crowhurst, Mrs. William Robinson, Mrs. J. N. Code, Mrs. R. E. Allen, Mrs. W. G. Knowlton, Mrs. J. N. Snodgrass, Mrs. M. D. Hastings, Mrs. A. B. Young, Mrs. A. L. Chamberlain, Mrs. L. P. Durrell, and the Misses R. Barton, Beth Hastings, Mary Chamberlain, Mary Allen, Phyllis Allen, and Veronica and Anthea Cadbury.

General Notes

A large company of Frontiersmen, of Montreal, who with their wives were spending the week-end at Bromel Lake Lodge, attended the service at the Bishop Carmichael Memorial Church on Sunday morning. Appearing very smart in their uniforms they marched from the church to the lodge. Following the service a luncheon, to which Mayor W. A. Inglis and Rev. H. P. Mount were invited, was held at the Lodge. It is hoped that this will be an annual event.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Mills and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cotter and daughter, Gladys, have returned to their home in Quincy, Mass., after having been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dickson and son, Arthur, have returned to Montreal after spending the holidays here with Mrs. Dickson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rhicard.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. John Loe passed away on Saturday at the age of two months. The child developed pneumonia and lived only a short time. The funeral service was held on Sunday with the Rev. H. P. Mount officiating.

Mr. Charles Stowe has enlisted in the artillery and is stationed at St. Johns while Mr. Clifton Stowe is with the Tank Corps at Camp Borden.

Mrs. J. Graves and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Graves and son, Preston, of Granby, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Tanner.

Private Alden Inglis spent a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Inglis, after being a patient in the St. Johns Hospital for the past eight weeks. He has now returned to duty with the Grenadier Guards.

Mind Your Manners

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1—Is it good manners to refer to another man's wife as "the ball and chain"?

2—How should a wife refer to her husband when speaking to a servant?

3—Is it a good idea when talking to a writer, painter, or musician to say "Your work (or your playing) reminds me of so-and-so's," naming a big name?

4—Is a good approach to a new acquaintance, "Do tell me about your work. It sounds fascinating"?

5—Does a person of good taste ever gush over a newly-made acquaintance?

What would you do if—
The person to whom you have placed a telephone call says "Thank you for calling"?

(a) Say, "That's all right. Good-bye"?

(b) Say, "Goodbye"?

ANSWERS

1—No. Especially if there is any chance she might hear of it.

2—"Mr. Brown."

3—No. For anyone doing creative work strives to express his own individuality, and doesn't want to be compared with others.

4—No. It sounds trite and insincere. And no one wants to start in and tell you about his work. If you want to know something about it be specific in your questions, or ask him about just one phase of his work.

5—No. No matter how important the acquaintance is.

Best "What Would You Do?" solution—(b).

Ruth Millett Wonders What German Women Are Getting Out of Nazi "Glory"

German women are dopes.

The German men get something out of being cogs in Hitler's war machine. That is, the soldiers do—while they live.

They wear uniforms and goose-step and feel important. Even the humble clerk, turned into a soldier, can feel like a man of destiny.

And they eat well—the soldiers. And when they have leaves, they have fun.

They are men playing a spectacular role in a showy drama.

But what do German women get? They stay home and eat frugally, work like men, have nothing to wear, have no say-so about anything, not even about their own children.

They are told to have more and more babies, who will, in a few years, be taken from them and molded into the necessary parts of a war machine.

Since the influence of the home has been suppressed in favor of the influence of the state, women have lost their real importance in the world.

They have but one function that is recognized as important—the function of breeding.

Their men have no real time for them, belonging as they do to the state. And if a woman loves her husband, she goes through all the agony that women of any country or race go through when their men are off at war, facing death.

They haven't even the consolation that comes from thinking "When this war is over—then there will be peace." They are living, not in a country, but in a war machine.

Yes, they are dopes—because they have let men take away everything that matters to women—and give them nothing in return.

Fond parent: "Now what's the matter?"

Child: "Boo-hoo! Billy dropped the towel in the water and he's dried me influence of the state, women have better than I was before!"

Attractions at the Local Theatres

At The Granada

Universal's new frontier action epic, "When The Daltons Ride," with Randolph Scott and Kay Francis in the leading roles, starts tomorrow at the Granada Theatre.

The Dalton boys, most famous of all the Mid-Western outlaws, are recreated on the screen by Brian Donlevy, Broderick Crawford, Stuart Erwin and Frank Albertson.

Tracing the careers of the Daltons from their ranching days, the film carries them through a series of daring exploits climaxed by the celebrated raid on Coffeyville, Kan., in 1892, when the gang was destroyed while staging the only double bank robbery in frontier history.

Miss Francis plays the first outdoor role of her career, appearing as the winsome telegraph operator in Coffeyville, a character based on the real-life sweetheart of one of the Daltons. Scott is seen as a frontier lawyer who befriends the Dalton boys and helps bring a group of land company crooks to justice.

"Private Affairs," the added attraction, is a breezy new film with Nancy Kelly, Robert Cummings, Hugh Herbert and Roland Young in the chief roles.

At The Premier

"Main Street Lawyer," a drama of self-sacrifice and loyalty, is the feature attraction of the double bill which will be seen at the Premier Theatre from Sunday through Tuesday.

Briefly, the story centers around Abraham Lincoln Boggs, a small district attorney with big time ability. Boggs is content to serve his small public, eager to interpret the law with common sense and humanity rather than by exacting to the line of text book statutes. His daughter, Honey, is really an adopted child, daughter of a woman sent to prison by Boggs. Boggs has raised the child as his own.

Marco, a gangster indicted in the big city, discovers the truth about Honey, has his lawyer secure a change of venue to Corinthia and blackmail Boggs into throwing the case.

From this point, the film moves exciting and touchingly to a rousing climax. Director Dudley Murphy has guided the film wisely, and it moves swiftly and engrossingly.

Edward Ellis plays Link Boggs, and gives as memorable performance. When they make awards out Hollywood way at the end of the year, Ellis Link Boggs deserves full consideration. Anita Louise, as Honey, and Robert Baldwin fill the romantic lead capably.

On the same programme the colorful era in United States history following the Civil War will be recreated in "Covered Wagon Days," the added attraction.

Randolph Scott and Kay Francis in a scene from "When The Daltons Ride," starting tomorrow at the Granada Theatre.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

The Haunted School-House

EVERY child in Cloverland was thrilled to the marrow almost all the time, and no wonder! The school had been moved to the Dixon Place, and the Dixon Place meant just one thing to Cloverland people, and that one thing was Spooks!

The school had to be used by the Danville children as well as the Cloverland ones, and that is why it was moved to the spot midway between the two small villages. The Dixon Place had been closed and for sale for ever so long and the location was just right.

But it is a kind of a spooky would burn it. Then Lorrie got a bright idea. "Let's hide in the woods and give the others a scare," he said, and, of course, Jack agreed.

He went to the woods to hide a hatchet he had brought, when suddenly he stopped and called: "Jack!"

Jack came hurrying up, and looked at what Lorrie was staring at. The boardwalk between the schoolhouse and the woods, which had been perfectly all right the day before was all torn up. There were long marks on the up-pered, and the two boys hastened into the dense woods along the brook.

"I bet they saw us!" said Jack. They seemed to hear somebody following them, so they ran still further into the woods, keeping close to the brook, so as not to lose their way. They had gone even further than they meant to when, all of a sudden they heard a baby crying.

"Gee!" exclaimed Lorrie, looking back at his brother. "That's queer. There isn't a house inside a mile of here and still I hear a kid bawling, don't you?"

Jack did not reply, but he looked scared and Lorrie suddenly remembered the ghost.

The cry sounded again not far off. Jack caught hold of his brother's arm, but Lorrie shook him off.

"I want to see a ghost, honest I do," Lorrie whispered. "You go back, if you like. But maybe you'll wish you'd come along."

Jack decided at once to stick to his brother, and looking around he found a good stout club. Somehow it made him feel safer. They began moving slowly in the direction of the cry. As they moved they heard another cry, further off, and Jack said:

"It's luring us deeper and deeper in."

They suddenly came to a very strange place which they had never seen before. The brook made a sudden turn there and near the bend was a tall rock, pointed at the top like a crag, only it wasn't as large as a mountain crag. Just as they came in sight of it, Lorrie said: "Woof!"

Then he turned around, looking a little white, but grinning. "I saw it," he said.

They hastened back to the schoolhouse, but when they got there their friends had cleared off. Jack ran out in the road and shouted after them.

"Come back!" he called. "It's all right! Lorrie saw the ghost!"

Back hastened the two girls and Matt, full of questions. Lorrie was grinning broadly.

"You saw the ghost, Lorrie?" exclaimed Kathleen.

"What was it like?" cried Matt. "Oh, tell us!" cried Dian.

"Yep," said Lorrie. "I saw the ghost. It's a cat and it cries like a baby. It's a panther!"

You should have seen them all jump then! The brush wasn't cleaned out that day, but soon the men took hold and cleaned it, and went on a wild-cat chase. After a day's chase they found and shot the largest panther ever seen in that neighborhood. It apparently was the last of its kind as no one ever saw or heard one from that day.

"I'm glad the mystery is

Lorrie Suddenly Remembered The Ghost

place," said the young teacher, Miss James, to her mother. "I hate to stay there after school hours. The woods behind it look so dark and matted, different from any other woods about here, and the brook is all filled up with branches and brush and stuff and I wish somebody'd clean it out and make the place more attractive."

If Miss James felt the spell of the place, the children certainly felt it more! The story of the Dixon ghost had to do with a child, you see. And this is how the story ran:

Once years ago, when the Dixons lived there, they had a little adopted child with them and one day, when nobody was looking, the child tumbled down the well. When the well was dragged a large black cat was found instead of a child. The rescuers put the cat on the ground, and it came to, and dashed into the woods screaming and crying like a young child. A spook, as sure as you're born! The Dixons had evidently done something to please the child, for the ghost began to haunt the place in the most disgraceful manner. It went screaming and crying around the house on dark nights; it set fire to the barn and tore a big hole in the roof and scared the family so that they all moved away.

"My opinion is, and always will be, that Dottie's own mother came and kidnapped her," said Mrs. James. "That's what I'd do if somebody was to go and adopt one of my children. You can't tell me that a child could turn into a black cat!"

Miss James laughed and agreed with her mother, but even so, there was something creepy about the new schoolhouse. She decided that the underbrush in the brook which ran close to the house must be cleaned away.

Everybody in the school was very fond of the teacher, so it was not long before three of the largest boys and two of the largest girls decided to give their teacher a surprise.

"She never hangs around after school," said Matt Price. "We can put in several hours Saturday afternoon and clean out the brook and the brush back of the woodshed."

"I'll be there," promised Lorrie Biggs, "and so will my brother Jack."

Kathleen Andrews was sure she wouldn't be afraid with these three stalwart boys along, and her chum, Dian Wilson, was the kind who liked to be thrilled and scared.

That Saturday afternoon on which the five had agreed to meet at the schoolhouse, was a smoky, gray day, with falling leaves and a chilly breeze that somehow chilled one's bones. Lorrie Biggs and his brother got there first and instead of sitting around, they decided to start work at once. They cleared quite a lot of brush, dragging it to a place near the road where they turned soil, like rake marks. The new turned earth showed tracks, big round tracks. Lorrie burst out laughing.

"I bet some of the others are here and trying to scare us!" he exclaimed.

"Well," said Jack, "I shouldn't think they'd have gone as far as tearing up the boardwalk and the grass."

Lorrie bent over the tracks. "It's a joke, I'm sure," he muttered.

Just then they heard voices and saw Kathleen and Dian coming and beside them walked Matt.

"Quick, let's hide!" Lorrie whispered.

BEVERAGE SERVER

THE server may be made of $\frac{3}{4}$ " waterproof plywood; while the outlines may be sawn with a coping saw, the use of a scroll or hand saw will automatically give square edges. The edges left by a scroll or frame saw are seldom even partially square and it is not an easy job to straighten them satisfactorily. Also two or three bottoms or shelves may be sawn at once which will save much time.

Saw the bottom and the shelf and smooth edges with file and sandpaper. Mark the $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 2" mortises A in the shelf to receive the ends of the handle posts B; make these posts of $\frac{3}{4}$ " plywood, and be sure they fit the mortises closely. Place the mortises $5\frac{1}{2}$ " apart and in the center of the shelf, being sure the shoulders rest squarely on the shelf as at Z. Fit the $\frac{3}{4}$ " x $2\frac{1}{2}$ " x $5\frac{1}{2}$ " stretcher C, glue and brad together as shown; place the posts and the $\frac{3}{4}$ " x $6\frac{1}{2}$ " dowel handle together, hold the latter with brads and drive screws through the plywood shelf into the post shoulders Z.

Make the bearing D $\frac{3}{4}$ " x $2\frac{1}{2}$ " x $6\frac{1}{2}$ " as indicated; glue sparingly and brad through the bottom; put the assembled handle and posts in place and drive $1\frac{1}{4}$ " No. 6 screws through the bottom into the bottom shoulders Z.

Naughty Cora and Poor Dolly

ON Cora's fifth birthday her grandmother gave her a beautiful doll. In fact, it was the very nicest doll that was to be found in the city.

The day that Cora received the lovely doll she was very proud of her and handled her very carefully so as not to soil her lovely blue silk dress which was trimmed in pink ribbon bows and white frills. And on her head dolly wore a most becoming hat trimmed with pink roses. And dolly's hair was soft and brown and curly, real hair that one could comb, you know.

Cora, for the time being, very proud of her doll, decided to give her a very nice, aristocratic name. She called her Pearlina. Of course, grandfather smiled when Cora told him her doll's name, and her mother said: "Oh, you don't want to call her that, dear. I guess you were thinking of the name Pauline, weren't you?"

"No, mother, I wasn't thinking of Pauline at all. I named her Pearlina because it is such a pretty name. And I want her name to stay Pearlina, too."

So Cora's dolly's name remained Pearlina. And for days and days Cora never went anywhere without Pearlina, carrying her tenderly and proudly in her arms. Everyone whom Cora met—that she knew—she would tell about Pearlina, and like a loving mother would uncover the doll's face so that the chance acquaintance might have a look at her.

But after a few weeks the novelty of Pearlina wore away. Cora would go to play with her little friends, forgetting Pearlina altogether until some girl would ask: "Where is Pearlina? I haven't seen her for ever so long?" Then Cora would tip her nose in the air and say: "Oh, Pearlina is such a bad child! I just leave her at home as punishment, you see."

All the time that Cora was saying these naughty things about Pearlina she knew she was misrepresenting her dolly, for never a better dolly lived than Pearlina. And she was such a neat little lady, too, was Pearlina. She had a way of staying clean and tidy even when tossed about by the careless Cora.

But one day Cora decided to take Pearlina for a walk in the park. She dressed her up in her best frock and hat and put her in a pretty doll carriage. After walking along several of the shady walks, Cora decided to rest awhile beside the fountain. She sought out a bench and sat down. She drew her dolly close to her side and began scolding her in a very cross voice. "Now, Pearlina," she said, "if I hadn't brought you out here with me I could run and romp. But here you are—always in the way, and I have to remain here to watch you. You certainly are a very naughty child."

As Cora talked so crossly to Pearlina a puppy came along and listened a bit. He seemed to know just what Cora was saying, for he looked pityingly on Pearlina. The poor dolly had really dropped her beautiful head, so miserable did she feel at being treated so unkindly by her little girl mother.

Cora was too busy watching some children at hide and seek to notice that the doggie walked slyly up beside Pearlina's carriage and was watching her intently. He seemed to say: "Never mind, Dolly. I know how you feel about being treated so cruelly. And if here with me I could run and romp. But here you are—always in the way, and I have to remain here to watch you. You certainly are a very naughty child."

Cora was too busy watching some children at hide and seek to notice that the doggie walked slyly up beside Pearlina's carriage and was watching her intently. He seemed to say: "Never mind, Dolly. I know how you feel about being treated so cruelly. And if here with me I could run and romp. But here you are—always in the way, and I have to remain here to watch you. You certainly are a very naughty child."

As Cora talked so crossly to Pearlina a puppy came along and listened a bit. He seemed to know just what Cora was saying, for he looked pityingly on Pearlina. The poor dolly had really dropped her beautiful head, so miserable did she feel at being treated so unkindly by her little girl mother.

HIGH SCHOOL GRID TEAM STARTS DRILLS

Many Old-Timers Turn Out For Football Wars

Malcolm Dunsmore Takes Over Coaching of Seniors, with Elton Butler Moving Down to Junior Squad—Nominations for Members of Athletic Association Made Yesterday—Enthusiastic Rally Held.

Although for a time there was some doubt as to whether Sherbrooke High School would be represented on the gridiron this fall, the question has now been decided, and the maroon and white aggregation has commenced practising on the Parade Grounds.

Earlier in the fall, members of the School Board had debated the football situation, and since it was felt that a cadet corps was needed there was a movement a foot to sacrifice the grid game in favor of drill team will be in operation.

Malcolm Dunsmore is coaching the School's senior team, while Elton Butler, former first team mentor, will handle the juniors. Dunsmore, now teaching here, will be remembered for his brilliant play with Bishop's University a few years ago, and under his tutelage S.H.S. should make a terrific attempt to regain its lost prestige as a football power in the Eastern Townships.

Although several members of last year's team have been lost, among them Lorne Campbell, now at Stanstead, and Lorne Arnold, at St. Pat's, there are a good number of old-timers turning out again, including kicking half Jeff Wilson, Paul Fountain, Donald Ives, Jim Jackson, Gordie Ross, Bruce Burbank, John Colton, Philip Hovey and Ralph Vineberg.

COMEBACKS ARE SPARKING BIG LEAGUE CLUBS

Bartell and Rowe, of Tigers, Smith and Bell, of Indians, and Fitzsimmons, of Dodgers, Surpass Youngsters.

Remarkable comebacks are sparking the drives of pennant-bound major league clubs.

When the Cubs traded shortstops with the Tigers at the Cincinnati meetings last December, Gabby Hartnett remarked: "I just got rid of Dick Bartell and his two bad legs."

"Wait till you see Billy Rozell," cut in Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox.

Bartell reported as sound as a dollar... has been the life of the Detroit party. The Chicago National paid Rozell off for the remainder of the campaign the other day... handed him his unconditional release.

Schoolboy Rowe was sent to Beaumont to doctor up his arm in 1938 following two dismal years.

The big right-hander captured his 12th victory of the season in Washington the other afternoon... is somewhere near the strident which made him the hero of Detroit's pennant-winning years of 1934 and '35.

Bartell's pins and Rowe's arm give the Bengals a good chance to score again.

Al Smith had to be talked into remaining in baseball by Steve O'Neill of Buffalo, in May, 1939. Even the Phillies had passed Smith along. But the southpaw developed a screwball, copped sixteen straight in the International League, and has bagged 13 games for Cleveland this trip, the majority of them key engagements.

Without Smith, the Indians hardly would be leading the American League procession.

Beau Bell has helped to keep the Tribe on the warpath after two lean seasons in St. Louis and Detroit.

Ernest Natoli Lombardi batted .287 for Cincinnati in 1939, which is poor for him. Ernie Lombardi heard the boodlers, though he didn't have it coming.

Schnozzle Lombardi was stunned when Charley Keller of the Yankees collided with him in the tenth inning of the world series payoff. Lombardi was lampooned throughout the entire off-season for his celebrated "snooze" to go all the way around on a single.

There was talk of trading him. Lombardi made no explanation... advanced no alibi. His bat, mitt and arm spoke for him instead.

The result is that the Reds have run off with another piece of bunting.

The comebacks are not confined to the loftier clubs.

Julius Solters got going again under Jimmy Dykes.

Brooklyn didn't care whether Dixie Walker ever reported, but here is the American League discard bidding for the National League batting championship.

Fred Fitzsimmons was listed as a coach at the outset, but at 39 he has turned out to be just about the most valuable pitcher on the Dodgers' payroll. But Freddie has won 13 and lost two and has an opportunity to break the National League record for a pitcher's winning percentage—.875, established by Deacon Phillippe in 1910.

Burgess Whitehead was viewed as an extremely doubtful quantity in March, but he made the Giants' infield by filling in nicely at third base.

Kicked around a little, Johnny Rizzo found the home run range with the Phillies... leads the club in batting and runs driven in.

Johnny Rizzo bounced out of the doldrums when he struck rock bottom.

Bears Rout Jersey City To Enter International Final

Newark Bears have travelled a familiar trail to the finals of the Governors' Cup playoffs and from there they have reached the final.

Bears crushed the Little Giants 17-5 last night to sweep the best-of-seven series, 4-0. They can spend the next few days resting and waiting for the winner of the Rochester-Baltimore series now tied at two games each.

Last night's victory marked the fourth consecutive year that Newark has reached the finals.

Baltimore Orioles exploded three homers in downing the champion Rochester Red Wings for the second straight night, 9-5, to deadlock the other half of the playoffs.

The fifth game of the series will be played this afternoon at Baltimore.

BIKE RACING IN DOLDRUMS, PEDEN MOANS

Big Torchy, Recognized as World's No. 1 Cyclist, Will Attempt to Stir Up Interest in Washington Jaunt.

Washington, Sept. 21.—May be it's because of the war, but Torchy Peden says bike racing is in the doldrums.

The big Victoria, B.C., rider, recognized as the world's No. 1 cyclist, is going to do what he can to stir up interest in the sport when Washington's first international six-day bike race opens in Riverside Stadium tomorrow night.

He probably won't win the race as the new stadium track is on the small side for the six-foot, 2 1/2-inch Canadian. As he put it: "A big track is best for me. The little fellows are better on the turns. I usually can wear 'em down on the final day but it's easier when I have more straightaway, like in Madison Square Garden."

As to what's the matter with bike racing?

"It might be European conditions," says Peden. "You see, there aren't many good Americans in the business. I'm a Canadian, and a lot of others are Canadians, French, German and British. They're a bit busy at the moment."

In Sporting Vein

Michael Stenson's prediction that the Provincial Senior Hockey League will fold up this season despite the decision made last week-end to continue as a six-team circuit will be under fire tomorrow when league officials meet again to talk over the situation in Montreal. When Mr. Stenson heard that the P.S.-H.L. had decided to continue last week he was flabbergasted and utterly taken aback, and hastened to say that a change in plans would be made. Since then the Quebec Senior Hockey League has refused to play an interlocking schedule with the teams in Horace Bovin's loop, and this may hasten an announcement of the dissolution of the Provincial hockey.

As for Sherbrooke, the talk now concerns intermediate hockey, and fans are even now looking forward to a bang-up intermediate outfit. There is no reason why this city cannot round up a crack intermediate team, one that will be operated with much less expense than were the Red Raiders for the simple reason that no lengthy jaunts around the Province and into the United States will be necessary, at least until the time comes to consider play-offs or exhibition encounters.

The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association's decision to meet in this city to organize its winter campaign shows that Sherbrooke is definitely recognized in the hockey firmament and speaks wonders for the influence of Albert W. Reid, this district's representative of the Association. As a matter of fact, this will be the first time the Q.A.H.A. has met outside Montreal to organize its winter campaign. The sessions will be held here on September 29 and 30.

News that the Sherbrooke High School football team will operate again this fall is certainly good news, because there is no reason why a war should affect the athletic activities of high school lads. With Mac Dunsmore at the helm you can bet the team will be well drilled in the fundamentals of the game—tackling, blocking and proper linework—and that's the medicine they need.

REDS' HURLER HURTS ARM IN PULLMAN DREAM

Whitey Moore Dreams He Is Engaged in Wrestling Match—Shatters Window of Berth at Exciting Point.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Lloyd (Whitey) Moore, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, awoke in his Pullman berth yesterday with an injured arm.

Moore said he dreamed he was engaged in a wrestling bout. So realistic did the match become that Moore shattered the window of his berth.

Slight cuts will be healed within a few days, reported Dr. Richard Rohde, team trainer, but Moore won't be able to hurl until next week when the Reds meet the Cardinals in St. Louis.

U.S. FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS ON COOL NOTE

Baseball Still Big Sporting Noise as American Gridgers Move Off Marks Today with Several Games.

New York, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Not exactly full blown, what with most games of the warm-up variety and baseball still the big show, football nevertheless arrives in every section of the United States today.

Nearly all conferences still have a week or two before opening championship campaigns. The Rocky Mountain group, however, gets underway with Western State and Montana State tangling at Bozeman. These two teams did not meet last year.

There's a slight intersectional flavor in the first football dish, too. Boston College entertains Centre's Praying Colonels at Newton, Mass., and Hardin-Simmons takes a trip to Shreveport to get together with Centenary.

Except for Boston College's Centenary-raiser, none of the better-than-average Eastern teams swings into action.

Thirty years as an Illinois blacksmith forged a pair of horseshoes with an iron four-leaf clover in the centre of each. One he sent to big Ed Walsh, the old Sox plying star. The other he put away until he found someone he deemed worthy of it. Now it hangs over the locker of Ted Lyons.

Two teams in a Minnesota rural league are having the very devil of a time deciding the season's honors. For the last two Sundays, Glenwood and Villard have played extra-inning tie games. They will go at it again tomorrow.

Washington may give Boots Pfenberger another chance in the majors.

Today's guest star. Bob Stedler, Buffalo Evening News: "If Steve O'Neill does not manage Buffalo next season, it is likely he will have the Jersey City job in spite of the fact that it is a Giant farm club. After all, Mayor Frank Hague is the boss there."

Interest in the American League man is so widespread, the scoreboard at Ebbets Field has no room for National League news these days.
