Regan pool plan draws court action threat

CANADIAN PRESS

Federal Sport Minister Gerald Regan's national sports wagering pool has been greeted with a demand for his resignation, a threat of court action from Ontario and an announcement that Quebec will establish its own betting pools.

Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said Tuesday the province will compete with its own wagering system and may withhold the $7.3 million annual payment it agreed to give the federal government in return for Ottawa's withdrawal from the lottery business.

Although Ottawa is prevented by a 1979 federal-provincial agreement from running lotteries, Regan announced Monday the federal government will start a betting pool to help fund amateur sports. He said this would be different in principle than lotteries.

Unlike in a lottery, where the ticket holder hopes he has the winning number to win, a pool bettor will have to correctly select game scores in a professional sport event to win a share in a top prize of up to $1 million.

"We will see whether Ottawa or Quebec is the first to enter the market," Parizeau said in a statement. "I wish my federal colleague luck."

Ontario Culture Minister Reuben Baetz threatened to seek a court injunction against the federal pool or form the province's own sports pool.

He added that the provinces may unite against paying the federal government the $30 million they give it each year in return for staying out of lotteries.

CONFIDENT OF REVENUES

Baetz said he is not worried about the possible loss of lottery revenue in Ontario if the Regan proposal goes ahead because "we can beat them and beat them in the market.

"I'm mostly concerned that we're getting back into the federal-provincial scramble for lottery bucks."

Meanhile, Otto Jelinek, Progressive Conservative MP for the southern Ontario riding of Halton, demanded Tuesday that Regan resign.

He said Regan, while answering a question in the House of Commons last June, promised the government was not planning another gambling program to raise money.

"His intentional misrepresentation of the facts is conduct not befitting his office," Jelinek said in a statement released in Ottawa.

Egypt suspects plot; expels last of Soviets

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egypt has expelled the last members of a vast army of Soviet experts imported during the 1960s over what it calls a Kremlin plot against President Anwar Sadat's government.

Interior Minister Mohammed Nabawi Ismail said Tuesday that Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Polyakov was the ringleader of the plot. Polyakov, six of his embassy staff, two Soviet journalists and a Hungarian diplomat were given 48 hours to leave Egypt.

In the most sweeping development in Cairo-Moscow relations since Sadat ordered 17,000 Soviet military advisers out of Egypt in 1972, the government also said more than 1,000 Soviet experts would have their contracts terminated within a week.

The experts, who work on a variety of projects from steel plants to land rehabilitation and help maintain the Soviet-built Aswan high dam, are the remnants of the tens of thousands who worked in Egypt at the peak of Soviet-Egyptian friendship 20 years ago.

Cairo now follows a pro-Western line and its relations with Moscow have been bitter for years. Western diplomats said, however, the Egyptians may have difficulty replacing the Soviets.

WANTS REDUCTION

The number of Soviet workers in Egypt in recent years has never been officially disclosed by Cairo or Moscow, but sources have put the figure at about 1,500.

Sadat's government, which ordered the arrest of about 1,500 people earlier this month in a crackdown on religious and political opponents, accused the Soviet Union of trying to "cause troubles on the internal front."

Egypt has also ordered the closing of the Soviet military bureau in Cairo and the Egyptian military bureau in Moscow.

Guerrillas take credit

BONN, West Germany (Reuter) — A letter attributed to the leftist Baader-Meinhof urban guerrilla group claimed responsibility today for a grenade and gunfire attack on Gen. Frederick Kroesen, commander of U.S. Forces in Europe.

The Frankfurter Rundschau newspaper quoted the letter, which it received this morning, as saying Tuesday's attack was carried out by the Gudrun Ensslin Commando - named after one of the group's leaders found dead in her prison cell in 1977.

The three-page, typewritten letter described the 58-year-old general, who escaped with slight injuries, as one of the U.S. military chiefs responsible for "imperialist policy from Western Europe to the gulf," a newspaper spokesman said.

The text included a call for attacks on the bases and strategists of the American military machine and ended with the words: "Fight with us. Red Army Faction."

The Red Army Faction was the name adopted by the Baader-Meinhof group during the 1970s when it shook West German society with a wave of shootings, bomb attacks and kidnappings.

The Frankfurter Rundschau said the style of the message appeared genuine.

The left-of-centre newspaper received a similar message early this month in which the Baader-Meinhof group took responsibility for a bomb blast on Aug. 31 at the U.S. Ramstein Air Force Base, in which 20 people were injured.

West German investigators said afterwards they accepted that letter as genuine.

Earlier, West German police defused two six-kilogram bombs placed on a rail line outside Frankfurt used to supply the U.S. Rhine-Main Air Base.

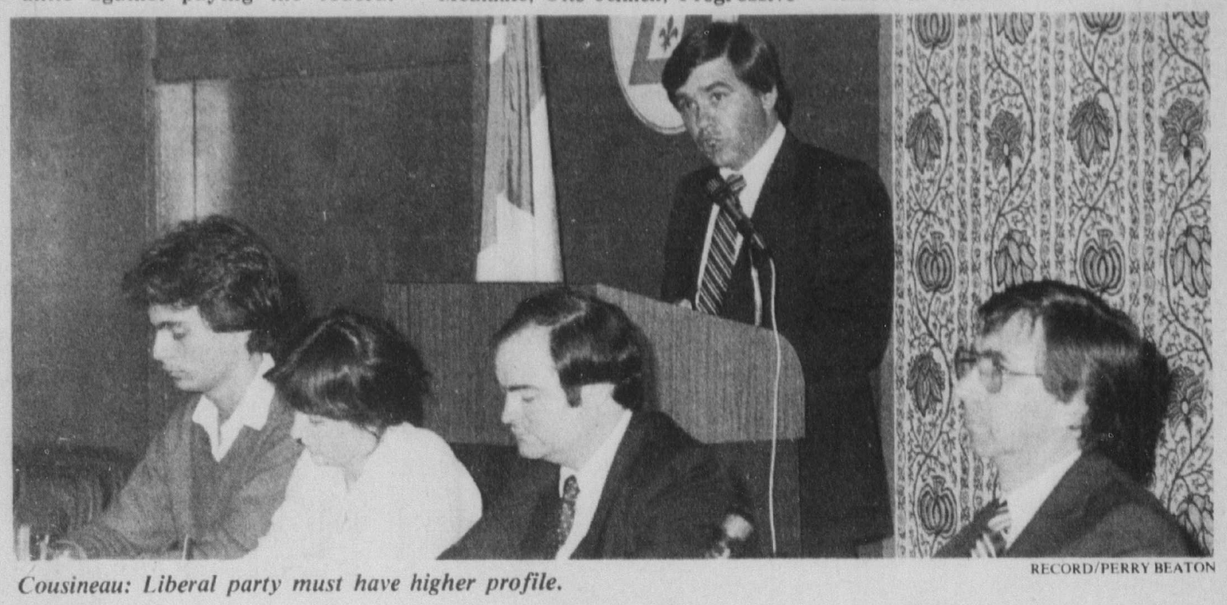

Orford inspector suspended

ORFORD (TB) — Orford municipal inspector Robert Guilbert was suspended by the township council Monday following the alleged dumping of pollutants into a tributary of Lake Memphremagog by his company Modern Septic Tank Inc.

The suspension will be in force until such time as a decision is made by the courts concerning possible prosecution.

The alleged infraction took place August 25 when municipal inspector Stewart Hopps of Magog apprehended the driver of a Modern Septic Tank truck in the act of discharging septic wastes into Castle brook, a tributary of Lake Memphremagog.

Mayor Fernand Lacasse of Magog, where the alleged dumping took place, said in an interview yesterday it was necessary to denounce such practices "... which have the effect of wiping out all the efforts of the last few years made in order to clean up Lake Memphremagog and the Magog river basin.

Cousineau: Liberal party must have higher profile.

RECORD/PERRY BEATON

Cousineau says 'get in touch'

By Anthony Ross

SHERBROOKE — Quebec's Liberal party must have a higher profile and get in touch with the issues concerning Quebecers to provide a powerful opposition and stop the Parti Quebecois from spreading its tentacles further in Quebec society, says the party's new director-general Alain Cousineau.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the local Liberal association at Sherbrooke's Wellington Hotel last night, Cousineau said the party must concentrate on gaining members in the areas where it is presently weak: youth and labor. "We have made some excellent strides in these areas over the last three years but there is still a lot of work to be done," he said.

The message Cousineau delivered was that the party must work on the local level in the individual constituencies to build up grass-roots support through feedback from the people to learn what issues they are concerned with.

"In the past while we were having our corn roasts there were students looking for jobs and old people lining up to get into old folks' homes. We have got to become in touch with their needs and desires," explained the former candidate who was defeated in the April 13 election by Sherbrooke MNA Raynald Frechette.

Cousineau also said it is important for the party to be able to translate its policy to the people so they can understand how the party executive thinks and what the global strategy is.

There will be an executive in Quebec which will have a variety of responsibilities including, strategy, communication, marketing and other functions to co-ordinate the parliamentary wing of the party and deal with the needs of constituents.

"In the National Assembly we must become a powerful opposition and do the research so we can ask questions of the government. Right now in many cases the government has its own backbenchers asking the questions and this is our responsibility," explained Cousineau.

As director-general the former Universite de Sherbrooke marketing professor's job will be to coordinate the party executive and insure these goals are achieved.

"We have to gain a much higher profile in all aspects of Quebec life

Grit offers angry homeowner mortgage funds

OTTAWA (CP) — While the Liberal Caucus was meeting inside, a crowd of over 600 angry homeowners demonstrated on Parliament Hill yesterday to protest government inaction on high mortgage rates, and a Liberal backbencher offered publicly to lend a protest leader enough money to make his payments until the government introduces a new mortgage policy.

The protesters demanded that the government get out of office if it cannot provide immediate relief to hard-pressed consumers buckling under soaring interest rates; while the protest group leader refused the loan offer.

"I couldn't sleep nights knowing I had received help and thousands of other Canadians were continuing to suffer with the same problems and were in danger of losing their homes," said Stan Dion, 29, of Midland, Ont., who took part in Tuesday's bus rally to Ottawa by 600 homeowners protesting soaring mortgage rates.

The offer came from Norm Kelly, member for the Toronto riding of Scarborough Centre, during a live interview on Toronto television station CITY-TV. The station ran a news item before the interview in which Dion said he was about to lose his home because he couldn't afford mortgage interest payments.

Asked what he was prepared to do to help homeowners in danger of losing their homes, Kelly replied: "I'll advance him the money to keep him in his house. . . so he'll have a house for himself, his family and his children until our policy comes down."

Dion said he thought Kelly's offer was a sincere one, but "I think he was goaded into the offer by the interviewer."

Faced with nervous liberal backbenchers and angry demonstrators, the government urged lending institutions Tuesday to put a moratorium on mortgage foreclosures until help can be given to needy homeowners in next month's budget.

"What I'm asking is that the banks and the trust companies continue their concern for individuals who are facing (mortgage) rollover situations."

Transport 2000 to stage nationwide rail cut protests

By Timothy Belford

SHERBROOKE — Canada-wide demonstrations protesting the recent federal government decision to cut back rail service will take place tomorrow.

Transport 2000, a non-profit organization of concerned citizens announced demonstrations in 20 centres across the nation will start at 4:30 local time. While in Sherbrooke, Regional Development Council President Estelle Gobeil says the federal government should be ready for a battle over proposed cutbacks which will include dropping the Montreal-Sherbrooke run and the Halifax-Megantic-Montreal train.

At a press conference yesterday, Gobeil outlined efforts by the Regional Development Office to force a reversal of the decision made July 27 by Minister of Transport Jean Luc Pepin. The office which has been acting as the co-ordinator for several groups in the area, has already presented a report to the Progressive Conservative party task force which visited Sherbrooke August 17. At that time Gobeil told the opposition party hearing, "We won't let the government deprive us in the Eastern Townships of this essential service."

Since the hearing the Development Office, which represents three local MNAs and 10 associations, has written to both Pepin and the provincial Transport Minister Michel Clair demanding a reversal of the July decision. Pepin, who was asked to explain the rational behind the cutbacks, refused the request and also refused to hold an open forum to allow members of the general public to express their opinion.

"Via Rail is viable and necessary for the Eastern Townships," said Gobeil, dismissing the government's argument concerning fuel costs as "a short term decision". "This decision," she continued, ..."risks putting the brakes on progress because if energy indirectly used today on railway permits the reduction of energy needs for transport in general over the course of the next few years, it is amply justified."

She also pointed out the government and Via Rail have both completely ignored the potential for tourism in the Eastern Townships. "Via Rail offers more than 33 excursion fares and nearly 45,000 people have taken advantage of these programs in 1980. Unfortunately the Eastern Townships has not been the object of a single fare reduction."

Another objection to the cutbacks voiced by the council, concerns the effect a reduction of services will have on those least able to cope. Limited income families, senior citizens, those living alone, single parent families, couples without children and those dwelling in vast urban areas are all unlikely to have automobiles and therefore rely to a greater extent on public transportation. "Railway transportation as a public service has an obligation to take into account those not favored with other means of transportation," Gobeil explained.

Asked if the council would take part in local demonstrations as part of the nation-wide protest, the director general of the development agency, Roch Fortin said, "We prefer to deal directly with the MPs and the Ministry of Transport and obtain their decision first."

Provincial Transport Minister Michel Clair who has voiced support for maintenance of passenger service in the Eastern Townships, will be attending a conference of provincial transport ministers September 17 and 18 in Winnipeg. The agenda will include discussion of the proposed Via Rail cutbacks.

Estelle Gobeil and Roch Fortin at yesterday's press conference to announce planned via cut demonstrations.

Feds overestimating Via cut savings — economist

TORONTO (CP) — A federal government employee who was involved in the decision to chop one-fifth of Canada's passenger rail system claims the government is vastly overestimating the $100 million in savings it expects, The Star says.

In a copyright article from Ottawa, the newspaper also quotes the unidentified employee as saying Transport Minister Jean-Luc Pepin deliberately held up the announcement of the cuts until members of Parliament had gone home for the summer.

The employee, whom The Star says would likely lose his job as a transportation department economist if he was identified, said the decision "represents as uninformed and inconsistent an exercise in transportation planning as could be imagined."

The cuts, to be made without public hearings or parliamentary debate, have prompted considerable controversy and led to the formation of a Progressive Conservative committee that is holding hearings on the cuts in affected communities.

The government employee, who says he has been involved since 1979 in discussions of what to do about Via's massive deficits, told The Star there were three choices presented to cabinet: let Via continue all existing services, piling up losses of $300 million a year; chop only the obvious money-losers from the passenger rail system; or make substantial cuts in hopes of saving $100 million over the next three years.

The last option was chosen by cabinet.

"It was Treasury Board President Don Johnston and Economic Development Minister Bud Olson who chose the severe scenario," the employee is quoted as saying. "They did it merely on the basis of how much money they could save.

Pope backs labor, proposes 'just' wages

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul, in his most comprehensive statement on social issues, on Tuesday strongly backed labor unions, urged worker participation in management and proposed a "just" family wage and subsidies that would free mothers from the necessity of taking jobs.

The papal encyclical condemned both "rigid" capitalism and the "collectivist system" that would eliminate all private ownership of the means of production. It suggested a socialist middle ground as a model for economic development.

Central to the 99-page, 22,000-word encyclical was a theme that the pontiff has vigorously expounded during his 35-month-old papacy: Opposition to the "dehumanizing excesses" of modern economic systems.

"We must emphasize and give prominence to the primacy of man in the production process, the primacy of man over things," the Pope said.

The encyclical, a formal policy-setting letter from the Pope to the Roman Catholic Church and the world, was written in Polish, the pontiff's native tongue, and carried the Latin title Laborem Exercens. The Vatican gave it the descriptive title On Human Work.

It says:

— Workers should receive a "just" wage, which the Pope defines as adequate to support the family and allow mothers to concentrate on the care and education of children. Mothers also should benefit from family allowances to enable them to devote themselves "exclusively to their familes."

— Radical and urgent changes are necessary to rescue farmers from the big landowners and "to restore to agriculture their just value as the basis for a healthy economy."

— Multinational corporations are engaged in the condemnable practice of fixing high prices for their products while trying to keep down prices for raw materials and semi-manufactured goods, widening the gap between the rich and poor.

Arrests fail to stop protesters in California

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Undaunted by the arrests of more than 500 of their comrades, anti-nuclear protesters regrouped to reinforce their blockade of the Diablo Canyon atomic power plant today.

About 300 protesters used homemade wooden siege ladders Tuesday to scale two-metre barbed-wire-topped fences around the outside of the plant site, with one man carried over in a wheelchair. Others landed at the station's beach-front in rubber rafts.

More than 700 construction workers, their exit blocked by the demonstrators, had to be taken away from the plant by helicopter.

Police estimated that about 2,000 people took part in the protest altogether, including some who stayed off plant property to avoid arrest.

Demonstrators vowed to return to the $2.3-billion Pacific Gas Electric complex today with more people as police promised to keep arresting the trespassers.

"Our action will continue tomorrow," Jeff Kalbach of the Abalone Alliance said Tuesday night after the demonstrators were arrested. The alliance is a coalition of anti-nuclear groups participating in the demonstration.

"The whole world is watching," chanted many of the protesters as they were arrested for trespassing by an army of law officers.

The demonstrators consider the plant unsafe because it is five kilometres from an offshore earthquake fault. PGE is awaiting approval from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Monday to start low-power testing at the plant, located about halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Those arrested were taken from a holding facility inside the plant's outer fence to a nearby men's prison, where they were booked and released on their own recognizance or on bail of up to $630.

The main wave of protesters, several hundred strong, marched 2½ kilometres from Avila Beach to the plant's locked main gate early in the afternoon.

After scaling the fence, nearly 200 of them planted themselves inside the property.

As quickly as the ladders went up, authorities began to dismantle them with chain saws.

Cheerfully singing anti-nuclear songs, other demonstrators began their sit-in on plant property outside the gate. Still others shouted encouragement from just off the PGE property where they could not be arrested as more than 200 newsmen recorded the event.

About 100 other demonstrators at different sites around the 297-hectare (736-acre) property also used ladders to cross the perimetre fence and were arrested, said California Highway Patrol spokesman Ron Henn.

Dog lovers rush to aid of ugly pooch

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A bull terrier that survived a shipwreck at sea has been rescued again after a wave of emotion swept over Philadelphia dog lovers, who offered to pay for the pooch's trip to Britain.

The first rescue of the dog, called Bosun, came Aug. 28 when she and her owners, Peter Johnson and Letitia Hughes, were rescued from their foundering yacht after it hit a whale in a North Atlantic storm.

All three arrived in Philadelphia on Saturday aboard a Dutch freighter. But the shipwreck shattered their dreams of completing the 13,500-nautical mile journey from Australia to Portsmouth, England.

The British government offered to pay airfare to England for Johnson, 52, and Hughes, 54, but declined to pick up the bill for Bosun. The couple, who lost everything in the wreck, couldn't afford Bosun's flight and the six-month quarantine required by English law.

Dog lovers who read of their plight in newspapers contacted the British consulate in New York and offered to pay Bosun's fare.

"I've never seen anything quite like it," said Jan Hopkins, the vice-consul.

One Philadelphia resident, Roberta vonCantz, offered to pay Bosun's fare, estimated at $250, because "I'm just a sucker for anything on four legs."

"The dog was so ugly that I wasn't sure anyone else would do anything," she said.

Energy-efficient smelter opened in La Baie

LA BAIE, Que. (CP) — A vast, energy-efficient aluminum smelter owned by Alcan Smelters and Chemicals Ltd. and geared towards export production opened officially Tuesday near this community on the Saguenay river.

The $540-million Grande Baie facility, which has been producing ingots since December, will employ 650 workers and turn out 171,000 tonnes of aluminum a year by 1982.

"Instead of the 18,000 kilowatt hours usually needed to produce a tonne of aluminum, we'll need only 14,000 kilowatt hours with the technology used in Grande Baie," said David Culver, president of Alcan Aluminum Ltd., parent firm of the smelting and chemical company.

The company, which was permitted more than 50 years ago to built its own hydroelectric dams, is facing a Quebec government regulation by which it would have to pay compensation based on Hydro-Quebec rates.

Built without government subsidies, the Grande Baie smelter consists of six adjoining buildings, each with 64 electrically heated vats, located on a 960-hectre site.

Alcan also is spending $300 million on modernizing a chemical complex in Jonquiere, 30 kilometres from Grand Baie.

Suburb gets green space

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal suburb short of green space has aquired six square miles of rugged forest at the outcome of a lawsuit against the suburb's former mayor.

But the land is 120 kilometres away and the suburb, Ville d'Anjou, doesn't know what to do with it.

The former mayor, Ernest Crepeault, was convicted of extorting thousands of dollars and ordered to cede to the suburb a forested area he owned 120 kilometres northeast near Shawinigan.

Van driver let off

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police decided Tuesday not to prosecute the driver of a small van in which 24 children were injured in a highway accident in August near suburban Contrecoeur.

The children were on their way to sell chocolate bars when the van went out of control and rolled over serveral times.

The children regularly sold chocolate in Montreal and the suburbs for Wilfred Vilsaint, driver of the van, who split profits among himself and the children.

Workers occupy plant

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty workers occupied the Canada Dry bottling plant in suburban Lachine on Tuesday, upset at having lost their jobs when the plant closed last week.

The workers, among 200 thrown out of work following a lengthy labor dispute, said they would stay until Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Marois intervenes. They left after three hours, however, when a company official agreed to meet a delegation today.

Housing starts drop

MONTREAL (CP) — The number of housing starts in Quebec this year is likely to be the lowest since the Second World War, the Quebec association of housing contractors predicted Tuesday.

Pierre Fortin, the association's economist, estimated a total of 28,000 housing units will be started this year, down from 29,186 last year. Last year's figure was down 30 per cent from 1979.

The association blames the drop in business on high mortgage rates, which ended a mood of optimism prevalent at the beginning of the year.

Plane crashes in lake

MONTREAL (CP) — One man is missing and a second was injured Tuesday in the crash of a light plane in Lake Champlain, which straddles the Canadian-U.S. border south of Montreal.

A Quebec provincial police spokesman said the missing man was believed still trapped in the plane, submerged in about four metres of water.

The cause of the crash and the identities of the two men were not immediately known.

RCMP fight charges

MONTREAL (CP) — Charges against 15 RCMP officers accused of taking part in illegal activities in Quebec during the early 1970s are "oppressive and abusive" and should be dropped, say defence lawyers, who will press that argument when the case resumes in November.

The 15, including two superintendents and a former deputy-director of the security service, appeared briefly in a Montreal courtroom on Tuesday to enter pleas on a variety of charges including conspiracy, breaking and entering and illegal possession of explosives.

Board favours one-way pipe

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Energy Board still favors a one-way natural gas pipeline to Nova Scotia from Quebec City, even though an official from the pipeline company has stated the flow of gas from West to East will be reversible.

In a report last month, the energy board recommended that the pipeline taper in diameter as it progresses east to Nova Scotia. The Nova Scotia government wants a constant diametre so that province can send its own gas west if and when commercial deposits are found off Sable Island.

Controllers get French

QUEBEC (CP) — French-language courses in air traffic control will be given at the junior college in St. Jean, Que., starting in January, Education Minister Camille Laurin announced Tuesday.

A committee made up of federal and provincial officials and representatives of the Gens de l'Air, a group lobbying for greater use of French in Quebec air space, recommended the St. Jean site in July.

In a statement Laurin noted that the establishment of such a program was endorsed by the federal inquiry which looked into the problem of bilingualism and air safety.

Clark visits B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Joe Clark is to fly to British Columbia for a five-day visit beginning Friday, his Parliament Hill office announced Tuesday.

A statement said Clark will be interviewed by commentator Jack Webster on BCTV Friday morning and later that day answer questions from delegates to a B.C. and Yukon Community Newspaper Association conference in Richmond.

Eldorado mine in Namibia

OTTAWA (CP) — Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. says it is not doing anything wrong by processing uranium mined in Namibia, the mineral-rich African country administered by South Africa.

In a statement released Tuesday, the federal Crown corporation said it doesn't buy the radioactive ore, just processes it under contract for foreign utilities, which purchase it directly from mines operated by Rio Tinto Zinc.

PM agrees to meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has agreed to a federal-provincial first ministers' meeting on the economy to be held "in the next few months," his office said Tuesday.

But he has made clear that the meeting will not be held until the federal government presents its budget and its proposals for dealing with the country's troubled economy to Parliament in the latter part of October.

Acupuncturist acquitted

OTTAWA (CP) — Acupuncturist Pierre Gaulin of Ottawa has been acquitted on charges of practising medicine without a licence and of wrongly representing himself as a a doctor of medicine.

County Court Judge H. Soubliere said in a judgement handed down last Friday that Gaulin, appealing an August, 1980, provincial court judgment, could not be found guilty of practising medicine without a licence because acupuncture is not a recognized field of medicine.

Insurance up 35 percent

OTTAWA (CP) — Car insurance could cost as much as 35 per cent more by the end of the year, says a senior insurance industry official.

Jim McCallister, manager of the Insurers' Advisory Organization, which acts as a consultant to the industry, said insurance companies "look like they are not only going to lose on the underwriting of insurance but are going to lose their investment income as well this year."

Reagan asked to bargain

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian union has reminded U.S. President Ronald Reagan of his past as leader of the actor's guild in urging him to bargain with the thousands of air traffic controllers his government has fired this summer.

"It takes a great man to make a decision but a greater one to change his mind," the Union of Energy, Mines and Resources Employees said in a telegram to the president, a former movie actor who led the guild years ago.

Korea gets B.C. coal

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Coal Ltd. has reached final agreement with South Korea for development of the $282 million Greenhills mine in southeastern British Columbia.

Bruce Howe, president of B.C. Resources Investment Corp. and Walter Riva, president of B.C. Coal, a B.C. Resources subsidiary, will be in Seoul Friday to sign a contract with Pohang Iron and Steel Co. Ltd.

Olson fit for trial

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — The man charged in B.C.'s worst mass murder was found fit to stand trial on nine counts of first-degree murder when he appeared in provincial court in Burnaby on Tuesday.

Clifford Robert Olson, 41, has been charged with murdering nine young people whose battered bodies have been found in bushes and bogs throughout southwest B.C. since Christmas.

Socred leadership in doubt

EDMONTON (CP) — A leadership challenge may prompt the national Social Credit party to call a convention this fall, interim party leader Martin Hattersley said Tuesday.

Hattersley said in an interview he received the challenge Monday from John Turmel, Ontario interim Social Credit leader.

"If he wants a leadership convention, I'll fight it out in the open and see what happens," said Hattersley.

Hatfield criticizes feds

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal government has decided it is no longer politically sound to work with any province, New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield said Tuesday.

He told the Women's Canadian Club the federal government has decided it will do whatever the British North America Act permits and cited recent cuts in Via Rail passenger service as an example.

Ignore Montreal: Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce said Tuesday the federal government should ignore a plea from Montreal to provide a site for the proposed Canadian Institute of Aerospace Training and Technology.

Chamber president Jack Hignell said Winnipeg, which Employment Minister Lloyd Axworthy named as the proposed site two months ago, is the ideal spot for the institute and has a long background in aviation.

Inco strike starts

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — A strike by 1,900 Inco employees in this northern Manitoba community began at 12:01 a.m. CDT today, less than two hours after a last-ditch bargaining session that lasted just 10 minutes.

John Bull won't go

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution took the world's oldest working locomotive out of its museum showcase Tuesday for a ceremony celebrating the train's 150th annivereary, but at the crucial moment the old John Bull stubbornly refused to budge.

The 19th-cetury engine had steamed up and down a five-kilometre stretch of track along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in the city's Georgetown section much of the morning. But, with a crowd gathered and the Marine Band rolling its drums for minute after minute, the train stood dead still when the speeches were done and it was supposed to go once more down the track.

Stones concert sparks melee

WORCESTER, Mass. (Reuter) — Bottles flew as a melee broke out among 4,000 rain-soaked fans who tried to get into a small nightclub where the Rolling Stones were playing a "secret" concert.

Eleven people were arrested on minor charges.

The Monday night fracas followed a radio station competition in which one station arranged the concert without disclosing its location and the other managed to find out the name of the club and announced it on the air.

Senate approves O'Conner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate judiciary committee approved Sandra Day O'Connor's historic nomination to the Supreme Court on Tuesday. The 17-to-0 vote clears the way for her Senate confirmation, probably Friday.

The 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge, who is the first woman appointed to the high court, is to be sworn in late this month in time to take her seat with the other justices when the court starts its new term Oct. 5.

Scientists find cancer gene

MELVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Scientists have isolated a gene that may play a part in turning healthy cells into cancerous cells, Newsday reported Tuesday.

The researchers say it may be possible to screen people for genes that trigger tumor growth.

Newsday said the work is being done at Cold Spring Laboratory on Long Island in New York, at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., and at Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

Train accident kills five

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A freight train slammed into a gasoline truck in the rain at a railway crossing Tuesday, dousing four waiting cars with flaming gasoline and killing five people, including an infant.

Six people were taken to hospital for burns. Witnesses said some victims staggered from the burning cars, crying for help.

Volcano spews resources

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — Government scientists disclosed Tuesday the discovery off the U.S. coast of an undersea volcano spewing up what could be rich deposits of metals and sulfides.

"New earth crust is actually being made" at the discovery site 435 kilometres off the coast of Oregon, said Edward Clifton, chief of the Pacific-Arctic branch of marine geology of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Diplomats spurn Cuba

HAVANA (Reuter) — U.S., Chinese and British diplomats walked out of an inter-parliamentary conference in Havana on Tuesday when Cuban President Fidel Castro severely criticized their governments.

Wayne Smith, head of the U.S. Interests Section in Havana, led the walk-out when Castro accused President Reagan of pursuing an aggressive policy "unheard of even in the worst part of the cold war."

Tehran riots claim three

BEIRUT (AP) — Anti-government demonstrators armed with automatic weapons and pipe bombs battled Islamic revolutionary guards Tuesday in Tehran riots that killed three people and injured several passers-by, officials said.

The flareup by leftists opposed to the fundamentalist Moslem regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini came as final candidates were being chosen for national elections to replace Iran's assassinated president.

Moscow wants missile talks

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Moscow is willing to talk with the United States about a "considerable reduction" of medium-range nuclear missile stocks, the Communist party newspaper Pravda said Tuesday.

Western diplomats in Moscow said the proposal, contained in a commentary criticizing U.S. attitudes on arms control, was too vaguely worded to signal a new Soviet initiative.

Solidarity wants say

WARSAW (AP) — Solidarity said Tuesday it wants the right to introduce legislation in parliament and told the legislators they "have no real reason to consider yourselves the choice of the nation."

The independent labor federation's latest challenge to Communist party authority came as the government made an urgent bid to improve tumbling coal production and save the economy from "total collapse."

through the media and in all local regions."

Much of the communication with local Liberal associations will be handled by the MNA but where there is not a Liberal elected the region will be the responsibility of another deputy.

"We will divide up the provincial constituencies among the elected Liberal members so some may be responsible for two or three districts," said Cousineau. "It is essential to use all the resources of the party to give us a concrete direction and build up the grassroots membership and involvement."

Cousineau said communication can also be accomplished through newsletters and political education of the electorate. The actual details and specifics of this plan will be formulated in the coming months by the executive in consultation with other party workers.

According to Cousineau the line of the party must be clearly defined and must be transmitted to the members and the rest of the population. This must be done through a back and forth transfer of information between the local constituencies, the party executive and the parliamentary members in order for the Liberals to be in touch with the present-day issues in the province.

Mister, your cows stink terrible

Every once in awhile some school or other sends a bus load of kids to visit this farm of ours. Their teachers think their pupils should see how the peasants live in this country, I guess. And the youngsters come whooping off the bus, each with a lunch squashed under his arm and the first thing they do is to complain about the awful smell of everything.

"Oh mister! Your cows stink!" they tell me. "And so do your horses! Don't you ever wash them?"

But pretty soon they forget to hold th4ir noses and they romp around the barnyard chasing ducks, calves, dogs -- any creature that will run from them. And when they get to where the cattle are they will go skidding in those peculiar round flapjacks no matter how clearly I warn them.

It is simply impossible to make a city kid believe that no matter what the form of that thing the cow leaves in the field -- whether it's a brown round or a flat white -- it is rarely as hard underneath as it is on top.

On the other hand it's rather interesting to watch a cute little city teacher trying to decontaminate some poor lad's shoe.

Well, I'm sure that it would be a perfectly wonderful day for these youngsters if it weren't for the fact that their teachers insist that this be school work. And eventually the whole lot of them are lined up and taken on a guided tour so that they may learn the reasons for a farmer being the peculiar kind of person he is. Why, in his rather blundering way, he may actually serve a purpose in the world.

Then to top it off, next day when the poor little blighters are back in prison, they have to write the inevitable essay. I know because the other day one of these painfully carved compositions was shown to me. Here it is, written by a fifth grader named Terry.

'A farmer has to work very hard to make money. He grows corn to make cornflakes and cornmeal for the cows to eat. He grows cows to sell to the butcher to make meat. He grows sheep to make wool and horses to pull loads. He grows hens too and he has a rooster with them to make them lay eggs. The man cow is called a bull and he stays behind in the corral. The top board of the corral is very high so he won't jump over it. A farmer has to work hard but he has no boss. He is a very happy man.'

Well Terry, that isn't a bad effort for someone who was probably never on a farm before. But since your teacher is anxious for you to know as many facts as possible, perhaps I should point out a few smaller errors in it.

It's quite true Terry that a farmer has to work hard, but I am not too sure that making money is the main reason for our work. Your teacher may not believe this, but I think that most farmers, myself certainly, must be farming pretty much for the fun of it. If farmers suddenly found a way to make big money, there would soon be a law against it Terry. Farmers have always been peasants. They are supposed to be peasants. Seems that as yet civilization has never been able to afford having it any other way.

Now you take the matter of those cows you mention in your composition Terry. You say we raise cows so tha: the butcher can make them into humburger. Believe it or not there isn't much money in that either, even at today's prices. No, I think the real reason we raise cattle is because we just happen to like them, and because we like to take time out sometimes on a spring morning to look at them knee deep in clover and grunting with fat and without a worry in the world except their saucy little calves.

And I suppose your teacher would be quite surprised if I told her that I don't give two hoots about how much wool I get from my sheep when I clip the underwear off them. It's just that I can't imagine a spring coming to our place without lambs playing king of the castle on the anthills.

Same with those hens you were talking about, Terry. True, we do get the odd egg from them, but if I were to admit the impractical truth the main reason we keep boarding chickens is because we think they're beautiful. We just like to watch them strut their colours in the sun.

And that top plank on the corral-we didn't really put it there to make sure that the bull was kept in solitary. Top planks on any corral are there for sitting, Terry. For sitting and enjoying the sin of being lazy when there's so much work to be done you don't know where to start.

Are we happy then, like you say we are Terry? Yes. Sometimes. Sometimes when we're astraddle of that top plank and forgetting all about the money we aren't earning.

Union morale high as long J-M strike looms

By Stephen McDougall

ASBESTOS — Faced with the possibility of a long strike, the executive vice-president of the union of asbestos fibre technicians and office employees who walked off the job four weeks ago at the Johns-Manville asbestos mine is denying reports that union morale is low and parts of the membership are not supporting the strike.

According to Werner Staeheli, executive vice-president of the Syndicat des Techniciens en Fibre et Employes de Bureau, nobody likes to go on strike, but under the circumstances the 145 members are pulling together.

"Ninty per cent of the members are working with the union in some capacity, from picket duty to getting coffee. We don't see where we are troubled," said Staeheli in response to an article published in The Record September 4.

Staeheli claims more members are opting to join the picket lines and he presents as proof of this the number of cheques being given to members in return for their picket duty. "At the start of the strike, we made out 129 cheques, but now that figure is closer to 140," he said.

But when asked if the prime motive of the picketers was to support the principle of the strike or just to collect the $60 to $70 weekly strike pay, Staeheli said:

"I hope they are not there just for the money, but I can't read their minds. To us, all that counts is their physical presence. This means they are showing support."

Staeheli's biggest complaint about the story was on the question of a petition, signed by 43 union members, three days before the strike was called. The petition asked that the membership reconsider their strike vote held August 5 in light of the layoffs the mine has experienced in the past year.

Staeheli felt the reference to the petition in the story was not grounds to say the membership was split over the strike questions.

He said members who signed the petition "were having second thoughst", but that most of them had reconsidered and were now supporting the strike..

But according to one of the petition's authors, the aim was to make sure all the members knew what they were doing when they gave the executive the power to call a strike without referring to the members first.

"Many members were under the impression that they would be consulted before a strike was called, but what we had voted for was to give the executive sole power over that question," said the petition's author, who asked not to be identified.

The petition asked that the membership should meet to discuss the strike mandate, but the meeting only took place August 19, three days after the strike was called.

The petition's author said there was no use debating the petition, because it was now "after the fact".

Staeheli claimed there was no pressure put on members to reject the petition, even though the vote was taken by a show of hands and not by a secret ballot.

When asked why the latter procedure was not used, Staeheli said that the membership did not request it, but none of the executive members in charge of order at the meeting suggested it either.

According to others at the meeting, that was not the only problem.

One member who was present said the proceedings were all in French and some English-speaking members had trouble understanding what was going on.

"All I remember is a lot of the people in the front row waved their hands, then got up and started clapping and shouting. The vote was over before I knew. It seemed to be railroaded," he said.

Said another member: "I wouldn't call it a vote at all."

Only 114 members appeared at the meeting, although at the time of the strike vote August 5, the membership numbered 167. By the time the strike was called, the number was 145, because some members had just received their day off notices. This meant that up to 54 members were not present at the petition meeting.

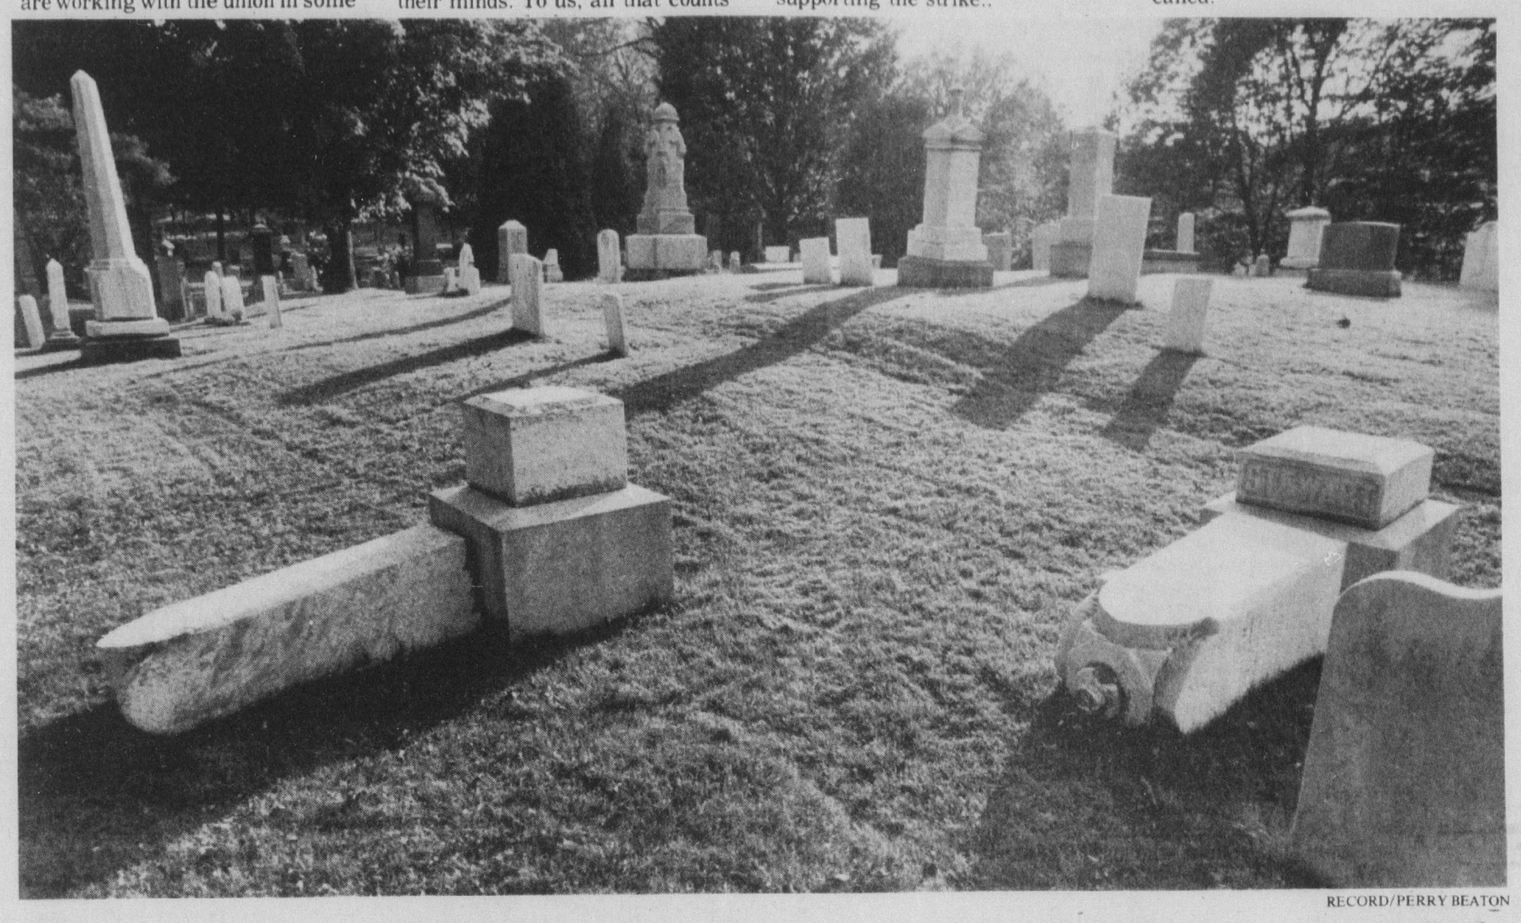

Staeheli could not say how many of those 54 members were bumped into new jobs with the mining union. It is not known which of the remaining members, laid-off but still retaining their vote at union meetings, showed up that Wednesday night.

In Staeheli's own words, "we don't check for these people".

Staeheli also denied that strike pay rates were increased solely to induce reluctant members to join the picket lines.

"The increase in pay was considered a long time ago. And according to the union rules, it is allocated between the third and seventh weeks of a strike."

Staeheli also said if the strike lasts past eight weeks, the union will increase the pay again.

Downtown Sherbrooke graveyard hit by vandals

Cemeteries don't have to be abandoned or in isolated spots to be hit by vandals. St. Peter's Anglican Cemetery, on Prospect Street just west of Queen in downtown Sherbrooke, is the latest victim. St. Peter's official Alfred Hanson said damage may be as high as $1,500. Police are investigating.

Journal owners hurt in van crash

DUFFERIN HEIGHTS (AR) — Stanstead Journal's co-owners and publishers Howard Smith and Valery Cerini were badly injured Sunday afternoon when their van left the road but they insist the paper will come out on time.

Sunday afternoon the couple were driving on route 143 about two miles north of Stanstead when Cerini pulled out to pass another car and met an oncoming vehicle forcing her back into her own lane where she lost control and rolled into the ditch.

Cerini was thrown from the truck and suffered a cracked pelvis, cracked ribs and assorted cuts and bruises. Smith, who remained in the van as it rolled sustained a broken pelvis, broken ribs and a cracked vertebrae. He is still in the CHU but both will recover completely.

"There was a yellow car in front of us. Before Val pulled out to pass we saw a black car down the road but thought it was travelling in the same direction as we were. When we passed the yellow car we realized the black one was going in the opposite direction. Val pulled back behind the yellow car, went into a skid and we rolled over," said Smith.

"I'm not sure how many times we rolled but I counted at least three," he said. "What happened was the black car we thought was initially going in our direction was actually passing going the other way and when we decided to pass it had pulled back into the proper lane and was coming at us."

The truck the pair was driving is a total wreck but fortunately none of the other three cars became involved in the accident.

Smith said the police and ambulance responded quickly and were at the scene within 10 or 15 minutes.

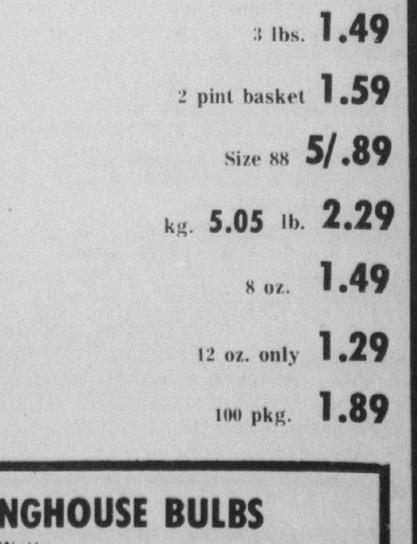

Cerini is back at work at the Journal but is unable to walk because of her cracked pelvis. Doctors say she should be back on her feet within a week or so.

Smith remains in the CHU where he explained the accident in a telephone interview but isn't sure when he will be able to return to work. "The doctors have told me they might be able to put a brace on my back but I'm not sure now," he said. Even if he is sent home shortly it will still be a number of months before he completely recovers.

Craft classes to start

COWANSVILLE — Back in 1942, when Farm Forums were on the wane, a couple of enterprising East Farnham farmers, Lawrence Horner and Fred Shufelt, together with Rev. John Peacock of Cowansville came up with the idea of a school where handicrafts and skills would be taught. The well-known Missisquoi Community School starts its 39th year Thursday, September 24 at 8 p.m. at Heroes' Memorial School, South Street, Cowansville. Classes finish at 9:30 p.m., when everyone gathers in the cafeteria for coffee and tea break.

For the 39th year, the following courses are available: Bridge, Cake Decorating, Chair Caning and Refinishing, Crocheting, Eastern Townships History, Exercising, Flower Arranging, French, German, Gourmet Cooking, Italian, Oil Painting, Sewing, Singing, Tissage Flotte and Travelogue. Information — 263-6504 or 263-7226. Courses are bilingual.

Start at home

Quebec Treasury Board Chairman Yves Berube says he wants the provincial government to stop spending money like it's going out of style. In fact, he says it's gone out of style and he's just doing here what other governments are already doing elsewhere. Good luck to him; Quebec is well-known for a Marie-Antoinette style approach to fiscal handicraft.

Marie-Antoinette, wife of King Louis XVI of France, once even built a miniature village so she and her hand-maidens could play Little Bo Peep without kneeling over.

While most of the money spent by the Quebec government, like any other government, goes for needed services, some of the things they do could be done without. Here are a few suggestions:

The ministers could start by trading in their steam-boat limousines for something a bit more modest. New Yorkers and Olds 98s are nice with their 8-mile a gallon V-8s and hundreds of pounds of un-needed chrome, but a government preaching austerity can do without them.

Then they could do something about their outside travel budget. It's a good thing when the Ministers travel within Quebec to see what's going on in Abitibi or Seven Islands. But do they really have to go on junkets as far away as Senegal, Cameroun and Haiti? Let them pay for their own holidays.

Ordinary MNAs make $33,110 a year in a basic salary, plus a $7,500 tax-free allowance and $5,400 for their Quebec-City apartments. Cabinet ministers start at $71,190, while the Premier makes $83,653. These rates are higher than those of any other provincial legislature. Before they give themselves the raise they are talking about this fall, they should remember those budget cuts.

Reaganomics begins at home. If our elected representatives really want to cut back on spending without affecting government services, they couldn't find a better place to start than their own back yard.

Chinese political prisoner tells story

By Victoria Graham

PEKING (AP) — Liu Qing huddled in his tiny cell, rigid with cold, his 35-year-old body shrivelled and covered with bruises. He closed his eyes against the glaring lights and tried to shut out the ravings of other prisoners in solitary confinement.

One thing, he said, kept him from madness: "I want the people to know the truth."

In the West, Qing would be known as a political prisoner. In China, he is called a counter-revolutionary.

With the help of friends, he was able to smuggle an account of his experiences out of a labor reform camp. The Associated Press obtained a copy of it.

The 200-page manuscript, titled A Dispirited Recollection and Observations: I lodge my complaint before the court of society, provides a rare glimpse into the shadowy world of Chinese prisons and labor camps for dissidents.

It is a report of abusive interrogators who proclaim the law doesn't matter, of torture and of back-breaking labor.

Qing says he wants the story told because "I am just a weak person."

"I have no way to bring my voice to society and get support and sympathy."

TRANSCRIPT PUBLISHED

Qing, a mechanic by trade, says he was not imprisoned because he was editor of the mildly critical, unofficial magazine April 5th Forum, nor for committing a violent crime. His offence was publishing a transcript of a public trial. For that he was sentenced to three years in prison (called a labor reform camp) without a trial and without being officially charged.

In October, 1979, he arranged the tape recording of the "public" trial of dissident Wei Jingsheng, attended by a hand-picked audience, and then sold transcripts of the tapes.

Several friends selling the transcripts at Peking's defunct Democracy Wall were arrested Nov. 11. Qing went to the Public Security Bureau to demand their release. He was arrested and questioned for hours about who made the tapes and why.

When Qing asked what crime he had committed, he was told that selling pamphlets about Wei was "making counter-revolutionary propaganda."

Qing replied that it was a word-for-word account of a public trial.

POUNDS TABLE

Enraged and red-faced, his interrogator pounded the table.

"You must answer these questions," he said. "We have all kinds of ways of dealing with an insignificant person like you. This is an organ of dictatorship."

The next day, Qing protested that detention without legal proceedings was tantamount to kidnapping and went on a hunger strike to demand a public trial.

For the next five months, he remained in solitary confinement in a Peking prison, with only a thin cotton blanket to protect him from cold so severe that it made his joints ache.

Qing was told he had violated a 1949 regulation giving Xinhua, the official news agency, the exclusive right to report news in China. He replied that the story was also reported in the People's Daily, the Chinese Communist party newspaper.

The interrogators changed tack and accused him of having illegal contacts with foreign journalists.

On July 21, 1980, Qing was sent to the Lotus Flower Temple labor camp in Shanxi province for "re-education through labor."

"The labor is really hard, like moving heavy stones," he wrote. But he gave few details of his daily life.

He is still there.

Well-thumbed copy of 'Peter Rabbit'

Editor:

With the advent of cooler weather comes the "silly season" when Merritt Clifton takes out his well thumbed copies of Mother Earth News and Peter Rabbit, and attacks things he knows little about. His commentary in Sept. 9's. Record is no exception.

I wonder after reading it three or four times whether he is attacking Gene Whelan, the quota system, Canadian dairy farmers or just everything in general.

We all admit that Poor Ol' Gene is past his prime (as is his government) but many of the things he says are still true. If you look at farm incomes, you find that most farmers could be scraping by, except for that little bit of profit removed each month by our killer interest rates - that little bit of profit needed to keep the family in food or buy another pair of jeans for the wife. To reverse the blame and imply that the farmer is himself responsible for these interest rates because he isn't efficient in the energy field is straight from the pages of Mother Earth, where non-farmers, quasi-ecologists and bushy-haired urbanites romanticize the good country life.

The traditional 40 acres and a mule required to found a family farm years ago is no more reasonable now, than the wooden sailing ships that brought our pioneers to land. There are better ways to cross the Atlantic and there are better ways to farm. Need we discuss the values of Merritt's mule with a tractor? In order to produce enough to sell for enough to support his family, today's farmer must operate a larger farm than his pioneer forefather. In order to efficiently use his time and energy he has to have a tractor. The size of that tractor is balanced against his cheque book and the work to be done. Few farmers own tractors larger than they can afford — let's not suggest our farmers are too stupid to understand this fact. The little family farm is a thing of the past (its a shame because it was a nice way of life) but then so is the 35 cent gallon gasoline and the 5 cent cigar. Why belabor the passing scene? It's gone!

The quota system was not designed, as Merritt suggests, to increase the consumer's price. It was designed to stabilize the farmer's income by attempting to control the fluctuations caused by over-supply. If a dairy farmer knows how much milk he can produce in a year, and the income he can expect from that milk, he can project his income so that he can live a normal life. One need only talk to U.S. dairy farmers where the price of milk has fluctuated from $6.00 to $14.00 in the last few years. One day they can afford to eat, the next day they are out of business. If the price of milk drops in half, you must produce twice as much milk to keep your same income level (talk about turning the tap off and on). In order to produce twice as much milk you need twice as many cattle. In order to buy twice as many cattle you need twice as much money...and the circle goes round and round.

It is a fact that would-be farmers cannot simply purchase a couple of acres and a mule and go into the milk-producing business. However, there is nothing to stop Merritt from buying an acre of land, his mule...producing eighteen carrots and a gallon of milk, and living happily ever after. If he wants to get into the dairy business however, it will take a little more. There is no limit to quota purchases - however without enough to provide a decent income there is no point. Consequently you must have enough land and enough cattle to produce enough income. Only in a quota - controlled industry can you go into business and have a ready market for your goods. If you are able to produce those goods at a profit, your future is assured - except where interest rates are so high the loan sharks are embarassed.

So don't give us that crap about energy - efficient farms, quasi-communist scares, and Mother-Earth nonsense. Today's Canadian farmer runs a pretty good ship.,

The quota system is designed to protect him. It's not the best system, but it sure beats the hell out of whatever is in second place.

And Gene...well "sometimes he don't talk so good" but he understands the farmer's problems more than Merritt Clifton.

Washington calls MPs 'communists'

OTTAWA (CP) — Some MPs who visited Washington last week say they were branded as communists by some high-ranking Reagan administration officials because they disagreed with U.S. policy on El Salvador.

"If you weren't with the U.S. view you were a communist, one official told us," Flora MacDonald, former Progressive Conservative external affairs minister, said in an interview Tuesday.

"Some of the people were obsessed with that view, that communism is the real threat to Central America," said MacDonald.

Liberal MP Maurice Dupras, chairman of the Commons external affairs committee, echoed the comments, saying "you don't expect that kind of thing from your friends."

"I don't see communists in every back room but they seem to see us as socialists or communists," Dupras said.

They were referring to the outcome of meetings last week with Reagan administration officials undertaken as part of the committee's examination of Canadian relations with the Caribbean basin and Latin and South America.

Six MPs met, among others, Thomas Enders, U.S. assistant undersecretary for Latin American affairs and former ambassador to Canada and J. William Middendorf, U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States.

SENDING MILITARY AID

The U.S., backed by Canada, is currently sending military aid to the junta ruling El Salvador. The junta has spent months battling a bloody insurrection that has claimed the lives of thousands of persons.

The junta is fighting a coalition of mainly left-wing guerrillas who, according to the American government, are armed by Cuba.

Critics of the U.S. foreign policy say free elections planned for next March do not stand a chance as long as fighting continues because political opponents of the regime are being butchered when they come forward.

Dupras and MacDonald said they favor establishment of some kind of international body, perhaps backed by the United Nations, that would monitor a ceasefire in advance of such elections in order to create a climate of stability.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent visited Central America in May on behalf of Socialist International to try and initiate peace negotiations to end the civil war.

Broadbent concluded that the planned elections will be a farce because the military would harass all but right-wing candidates and overturn a victory by the left.

MAINTAINS SUPPORT

External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan has refused requests from the NDP to drop support for the planned March elections.

Dupras suggested that the American tendency to treat the region as an arena for struggle against Soviet communism overlooks local social and political nuances.

The fate of the region should not be left solely to the larger powers, he said, and Canada should be more vocal. The statements appear to place Dupras at odds with Canadian policy.

Dupras and MacDonald singled out Middendorf as being most insensitive to suggestions that U.S. policy was ill-conceived.

Said Dupras: "I thought he was very ignorant of Canadian politics."

MacDonald said that Mexican government officials were much more sympathetic to the plight of the people of El Salvador than the Americans when the committee visited Mexico City earlier in the week.

"There was a recognition of the struggle going on in El Salvador and Guatemala among the Mexicans," she said.

Report urges careful development of North

By Bill Levitt

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal report has urged the Liberal government to quickly settle native land claims and develop a national policy dealing with energy, transportation, conservation and development in the High Arctic.

But the report warns Ottawa against a southern, paternalistic planning approach which "may well aggravate rather than alleviate problems related to the future use and management of the north."

The report was commissioned by the Indian and northern development department two years ago in light of forecasts that by 1990 the Northwest Passage could be full of foreign supertankers plowing year-round through the pack ice carrying oil and gas to eastern ports.

A study group, made up of government officials from several departments, was set up to study regional planning in Lancaster Sound. The sound is an ecological wonderland of wildlife and vegetation which rests at the eastern end of the passage. Some say it also contains rich oil and gas deposits.

The report says southern Canadians and northern native peoples — who hunt and fish in the area — are different, but neither group is inferior or superior.

"If we plan, we must do so with as full an understanding of these differences as possible and with an astute sensitivity to the range of values which underly these differences," the report says in a draft forwarded to Northern Affairs Minister John Munro last month.

MADE PUBLIC

The unedited draft report recently made public by Neil Faulkner, assistant deputy minister of northern affairs, was based on public hearings this summer in Resolute Bay, N.W.T., and Ottawa. Government experts, environmental groups, residents of northern Inuit communities and industry spokesmen took part.

A cabinet document, containing recommendations about how future northern development in the area should be managed, will be prepared by northern development officials.

Jacobs says the document must address itself to land claims.

The Inuit are negotiating with Ottawa a proposal to create a new territory east and north of the treeline — about two-thirds of the N.W.T., where they have enjoyed an overwhelming majority for hundreds of years.

There is also "a clear need for national (development) policy across all departmental sectors of government," Peter Jacobs, the study group's chairman, told Munro in a covering letter dated Aug. 10.

"Balancing the national and regional interests across two cultures is a challenge of national and global importance and one that will be monitored closely.

"Failure to accept this challenge and to deal with it creatively and energetically may well result in environmental and social impacts which far exceed those discussed during the public review."

The report says a planning process will have to accommodate industry and federal government officials who want quick decisions on future northern development so energy self-sufficiency goals can be met.

TIME NEEDED

But "Inuit move to a different rhythm" and it takes people time to adapt to the rapid rate of change in the North, time to acquire the necessary training and education required to participate fully in future development.

Southern time is linear and sequential, northern time is cyclic and repetitive. Understanding the different concepts of time may be the biggest challenge, the report says.

While Inuit seek consensus on issues, southerners debate public issues and matters are resolved by majority votes. Consensus requires more time, is highly participatory and throws together decision makers and those affected.

"Time is essential if we are to understand the concerns of the Inuit, if we are to perfect the technology necessary to support our development proposals and to safeguard the environment of the north," the report says.

In his letter, Jacobs recommends:

— That options be developed which stress future potential use of renewable resources on a sustaining basis and over a considerable length of time.

— That the options include one not to develop industrial activities.

— That the options include the possibility of accelerated year-round shipping of oil and gas through Lancaster Sound.

— That a conservation strategy for all options be reviewed and state priorities as to the nature and location of conservation activities in the region.

Boucherville plant to build engines for trucks

MONTREAL (CP) — A major West German engine manufacturer announced plans this week to build a $78-million plant in nearby Boucherville to manufacture an advanced air-cooled diesel engine.

Klocker-Humboldt-Deutz AG, through its subsidiary KHD Canada Inc., plans to hire 330 people when production of its Deutz 610 AirDiesel engine - designed for commercial vehicles such as pickups and vans - begins in 1983, and expects to produce 15,000 annually by 1984.

If the engine sells as expected, officials see the plant eventually producing 70,000 units and employing a work force of 1,000.

"The medium-duty truck market in North America is behind Europe and other parts of the world in its move to diesel power," KHD Canada president Thomas Erdhuetter told reporters.

"But that transition, motivated primarily by the cost of fuel, has been accelerating rapidly. There is no question that diesel is the power source of the 1980s and beyond for medium-duty trucks."

The federal government, which helped finance the development of the engine at KHD's research facility in suburban Dorval, will contribute $30 million in subsidies to the new plant, while Quebec will add an as-yet undetermined sum.

Monday's announcement came as another German automotive giant, Volkswagen, continues to mull over the location of its proposed Canadian parts plant.

Although Volkswagen is said to be leaning towards Barrie, Ont., the Quebec government has been campaigning feverishly to have the plant located in this province.

"The file is still open on this matter," said federal Industry Minister Herb Gray when asked by reporters when the long-awaited Volkswagen decision would be made.

His Quebec counterpart, Rodrigue Biron, has said Ottawa has a "moral obligation" to force Volkswagen to build in Quebec because only one per cent of the nation's auto parts and eight per cent of its finished vehicles are made in this province.

Biron has already sent a letter to Gray suggesting Ottawa grant tariff exemptions sought by Volkswagen only if the company decides to locate in Quebec. The company wants to ship its parts duty-free to assembly lines in Pennsylvania and Michigan.

The KHD factory is the first of its kind in Canada, and its engine will compete with models produced by General Motors in Detroit, International Harvester and Cummins Diesel.

Unlike most other diesel engines, the 610 AirDiesel engine produces 160 horsepower at a relatively fast 3,200 r.p.m, enabling it to be fitted to conventional drive trains while consuming up to 50 per cent less fuel than internal combustion engines.

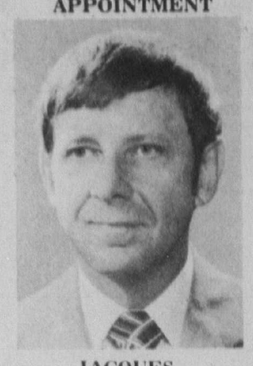

About 40 prototypes of the 6,537 c.c. engine are currently being tested, company officials said. Although there are no firm buyers yet, CN Rail has expressed interest in adapting the powerplant to its fleet of express trucks and the United States defence department may use it in its proposed replacement for its venerable Jeeps.

KHD is also designing V-6 and four-cylinder versions of the 610, as well as looking into how it could use such non-fossil fuels as methanoland sunflower-seed oil.

The company, which builds 170,000 diesel engines annually worldwide, is part of the Klockner Group, which has sales of $9.5 billion.

Hooper appointed to OGIS executive

Harold Hooper, well known in Granby for his participation in Les Loisirs de Granby Inc., has recently been appointed to the Board of Directors of OGIS, a paramunicipal organization that administers the arena and Miner Swimming Pool. His 20-odd years' experience as a member of the Loisirs executive will be of a great help to the OGIS.

Hooper has always been a man hard to beat when it comes to being an active member in the promotion of sporting in Granby. He was secretary-treasurer for the City Bowling League for 15 years. Harold played 40 consecutive years in the league, missing 84 strings out of the possible 3268.

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposals for tax breaks to make housing more affordable and to cushion consumers from the impact of record-high mortgage rates have been revived by the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada.

The program, forwarded to members of the federal cabinet this week, is similar in intent to the mortgage interest and property tax credit plan of the former Progressive Conservative government.

But it would work differently and would have additional options not included in the Tory plan.

The association is proposing changes in the regulations governing registered retirement savings plans or the creation of a new tax-saving device to be known as the registered retirement home equity plan.

OTTAWA (CP) — Markham, Ont., has replaced Oakville, Ont., as the Canadian city with the highest average income but doctors still lead dentists and lawyers as the biggest money earners in the country.

A revenue department report just released and based on 1979 income tax returns shows the average income in Markham was $16,461 while Oakville residents averaged $15,718.

Calgary was third at $15,030, Burlington, Ont., fourth at $14,751 and Edmonton fifth at $14,192.

LDSB discusses confessional changes

LENNOXVILLE — The Lennoxville District School Board, at its regular meeting of September 8, 1981 was addressed by spokesmen of the Townshippers' Association on the findings of last spring's symposium on education held at Cowansville. The Townshippers were urged to consider as a pressing issue action to counter the threat by the current Government to abolish Protestant school boards.

Commissioners were informed that, for the first time, the L.D.S.B. finds itself in a surplus teacher situation. Due to maternity leaves anticipated throughout the year, the teacher in surplus will have regular assignments filling in.

Preliminary figures on enrolment were released indicating a net decline in enrolments over last year of 5,7 per cent. Of great interest were the facts that this is the smallest decline in seven years, and that the full day bilingual kindergartens' enrolment continues to increase, as it has been doing since its integration in 1979. Commissioners are firm in their intention not to close any schools due to declining enrolments in 1981-82, and expect administrators and teachers to do everything in their power to ensure the continuation of the highest possible program quality.

Discussions took place on the future of the old section of the Lennoxville Primary School; with all the implications. Proposed in the press, reportedly from Government sources, is a regional structure which would assume control of all education, Protestant and Catholic, English and French. This would naturally mean that, in our case, control of our system could pass out of the hands of the local English-speaking population. Commissioners were asked to be prepared for action which may be necessary should these drastic steps be taken.

In other news, the Council was informed that the free milk program will be continued in 1981-82. Summer maintenance has been completed and commissioners reported on their visits to their schools.

Tobacco curing tested

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A type of curing that may reduce tar in tobacco and make it safer to smoke is being tested.

Abner Schepartz, a U.S. department of agriculture chemist in Athens, Ga., said tests at two tobacco research laboratories show that ozonization significantly reduces components that form possible tumor-causing hydrocarbons in cigarette-smoke tar.

Ozonization treats ground-up tobacco leaves in a watery suspension with ozone, a byproduct formed by sending an electrical charge through oxygen.

At the Tobacco Safety Research Unit in Athens, Schepartz said he was able to use the process to reduce hydrocarbons 36 to 70 per cent under laboratory conditions.

He said ozone oxidizes and destroys unsaturated tobacco-leaf components or lipids, such as solanesol, fatty acids and sterols, which lead to the formation of some hydrocarbons in cigarette tar.

But Jesse Lam, an agricultural engineer working on the project in Oxford, N.C., said the Athens test was performed with hastily-assembled equipment and might not have yielded accurate results.

TAR REDUCED

Results at a unit lab in Oxford showed reductions of 18 to 36 per cent. Both tests were conducted by Schepartz.

Since then, he said researchers have made adjustments, although it may be six months before they have results on current tests.

Tobacco used in the tests did not go to a regular curing barn. Instead, it was ground up in a water slurry, 4½ kilograms of tobacco to 45 kilograms of water, then dried.

Lam warned that the initial encouraging results should not prompt farmers to begin changing their curing methods.

Doctors seek blood disease-retardation links

BOSTON (AP) Doctors studying victims of a blood disease common among people of Mediterranean descent believe they have found clues to the genetic defect that causes some baffling forms of mental retardation.

Doctors from Oxford University in England spotted a genetic mutation in three males with a form of the blood disease thalassemia. And, barring "a remarkable coincidence," they say this damage also explains why the people were retarded.

The victims suffered damage to their 16th chromosome, a section of the body's genetic instructions that until now has not been linked with mental development.

"It's a clue to look there carefully for cases of so-called nonspecific mental retardation," said Dr. Robert Koler, one of the researchers, now at the University of Oregon Medical School.

The study, directed at Oxford by Dr. D. J. Weatherall, was published last week in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The three victims, all mentally retarded and of northern European descent, had a form of thalassemia called hemoglobin H disease. The disorder is common among people of the Mediterranean and Southeast Asia but extremely rare among northern Europeans.

People with the disease are anemic. They do not produce enough hemoglobin, the oxygen-carrying material that makes the blood red. But ordinarily, they are not retarded.

MISSING GENES

Healthy people have four bits of genetic coding called alpha-globin genes. In those with hemoglobin H disease, three of the genes are missing.

Ordinarily, both parents of victims must have thalassemia. But these three people were different: Their mothers carried genes for the disorder, but their fathers were normal.

For these youngsters to have the disease, the doctors say, they must have been victims of a genetic mutation either in their fathers' sperm or in the early stages of their embryonic life.

"It suggests that something happens to chromosome 16, which is where the alpha-globin loci are, that does more than just interfere with their production of hemoglobin," Koler said.

Doctors are not sure why the youngsters were retarded. It may have been because they were deprived of oxygen before they were born. But the cause might also have been other changes in the 16th chromosome that so far have not been detected.

If their mothers had not carried the genetic trait for thalassemia, the doctors said, they probably would have been born with mild anemia and their underlying genetic defects might not have been discovered.

For thousands of Canadians, arthritis research is paying off.

Quiz tells children if they're depressed

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old girl who is a daily reader of the Chicago Sun-Times. A while back I saw an article that told about how kids can be depressed.

I didn't pay a lot of attention to it when I read it, and now I wish I had. I have a friend who seems so sad since her father died a few months ago. I think she is in a depression. Please, Ann, try to find that article. It had a quiz to help kids tell if they were just unhappy for a little while or truly depressed. Thank you for a lot of good advice. I have been reading your column since I was nine. — Your Admirer In Glencoe

Dear Ad: The quiz you asked about was supplied by Dr. Mary Ann Tabrizi of the Columbia University Medical School. Here it is: Please note that a depressed child will answer yes to more than half the questions and will say he feels the symptoms two or three times a week -- or all the time.

(1) Do you feel sad?
—depressed?
—down in the dumps?
—empty?
—very unhappy?
—have a bad feeling inside more than two times a week?

(2) Are you having less fun in some or many of the things you used to enjoy, such as:
—playing with your friends?
—going outside?
—reading books?
—watching TV?

(3) Even though you are trying hard to pay attention at school, is it more difficult to:
—listen?
—remember what you learn?

(4) Is it taking more than one hour to fall asleep at night?

(5) Do you wake up in the middle of the night or early in the morning and have trouble falling asleep again?

(6) Is your life so unhappy or painful that you wish you were dead?

(7) Do you think about killing yourself?

(8) Has anyone told you lately that you look sad?

(9) Have you been having trouble going to school?

Any child who tests himself and comes out "depressed" should talk to his parents about this. Depression is a condition that can be helped with medication. No one has to accept these painful feelings and surrender to them.

Adults can take this test, substituting "work" for "school," and see how they come out. Remember, depression is an illness that is treatable. If you can't afford a private therapist, look in the phone book under "mental health" for local, county, state and federal agencies that can help you. And don't overlook the excellent service agencies in the larger cities. (Salvation Army, Family Service Assn., Catholic Charities, Jewish Federation... and on and on.)

CONFIDENTIAL to Disillusioned, Disenchanted and Feeling Used: I'm sorry about your trouble but I still believe it pays to be decent to people. Don't let that nut sour you on the Ten Commandments. What else can you name that still works after 3,000 years?

Report: Group homes accepted

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Most people living near group homes are satisfied with their neighbors and are not even aware the homes are nearby, says a survey of 349 people done in Kitchener-Waterloo.

The 62-page report, entitled Loving Thy Neighbor, is the first research in Canada on the issue of neighborhood acceptance of group homes, says Ernie Ginsler, executive director of the Kitchener-Waterloo Social Planning Council.

Most of the 18 homes in the survey contained children in residential care because of mental retardation, juvenile delinquency, emotional or psychiatric problems.

Research showed people under 40 who live in rented premises and know few of their neighbors are more likely to accept group homes than older homeowners who know many of their neighbours.

The study, done this summer with an $8,000 federal grant, was conducted by three university students who randomly interviewed people living within 140-metres of existing group homes.

Their findings include:

— Ninety-three per cent were satisfied with their neighborhood as a place to live.

— Only 46 per cent surveyed knew there was a group home in the area.

— Of those who expressed feelings towards the homes, two-thirds made positive comments.

— One-third did not know what a group home was.

— Of those who knew what a group home was, 80 per cent said they could accept group homes for physically handicapped and mentally retarded people. Only 26 per cent said they could accept homes for juvenile delinquents.

"Considering all the publicity about group homes over the past couple of years, I was quite surprised to find that over half the people didn't know a group home was in their neighborhood," Ginsler said. "It obviously doesn't disrupt the neighborhood in an appreciable way."

When people recalled problems with group homes, the incidents often occurred more than two years ago, before the province introduced stricter licencing standards, Ginsler said.

"But if someone had done something at a group home years ago — if a child had kicked in a window — it was well remembered."

He said a "happy byproduct" of the research is that it counters some of the arguments used to block the establishment of group homes — that neighborhoods will deteriorate due to neglected upkeep of group homes by residents and that property values will fall.

Group home proposals for mentally and physically handicapped children in Kitchener and nearby St. Jacobs were stalled recently by neighborhood opposition.

Social planning council members say the report is a timely breakthrough on the group homes issue since the Ontario government has embarked on a program of removing handicapped children, juvenile delinquents and psychiatric patients from institutions.

No fuss needed for good food

Kay's kitchen korner

BY KAY TAYLOR

Here are two of those quickly prepared meals without fuss we all appreciate at times. Both recipes originate in B.C.

COUNTRY STYLE MEAT CASSEROLE

In a saucepan brown ½ cup minced onion with 1 lb. ground beef
Stir in ½ cup corn syrup
8 oz. can tomato sauce
One-third cup vinegar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Bring to boil. Cook 8-oz. noodles, macaroni or spaghetti as package directs.

In two quart baking dish arrange alternate layers with meat and grated cheese.

Top with 1 lb. can tomatoes and cheese slices. Bake at 350 degrees F. for one half hour or until bubbly.

\+ + +

ONE POT MACARONI AND BEEF

1½ lbs. ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
2 cups uncooked elbow macaroni
2 (7½ oz.) cans tomato sauce
1½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce

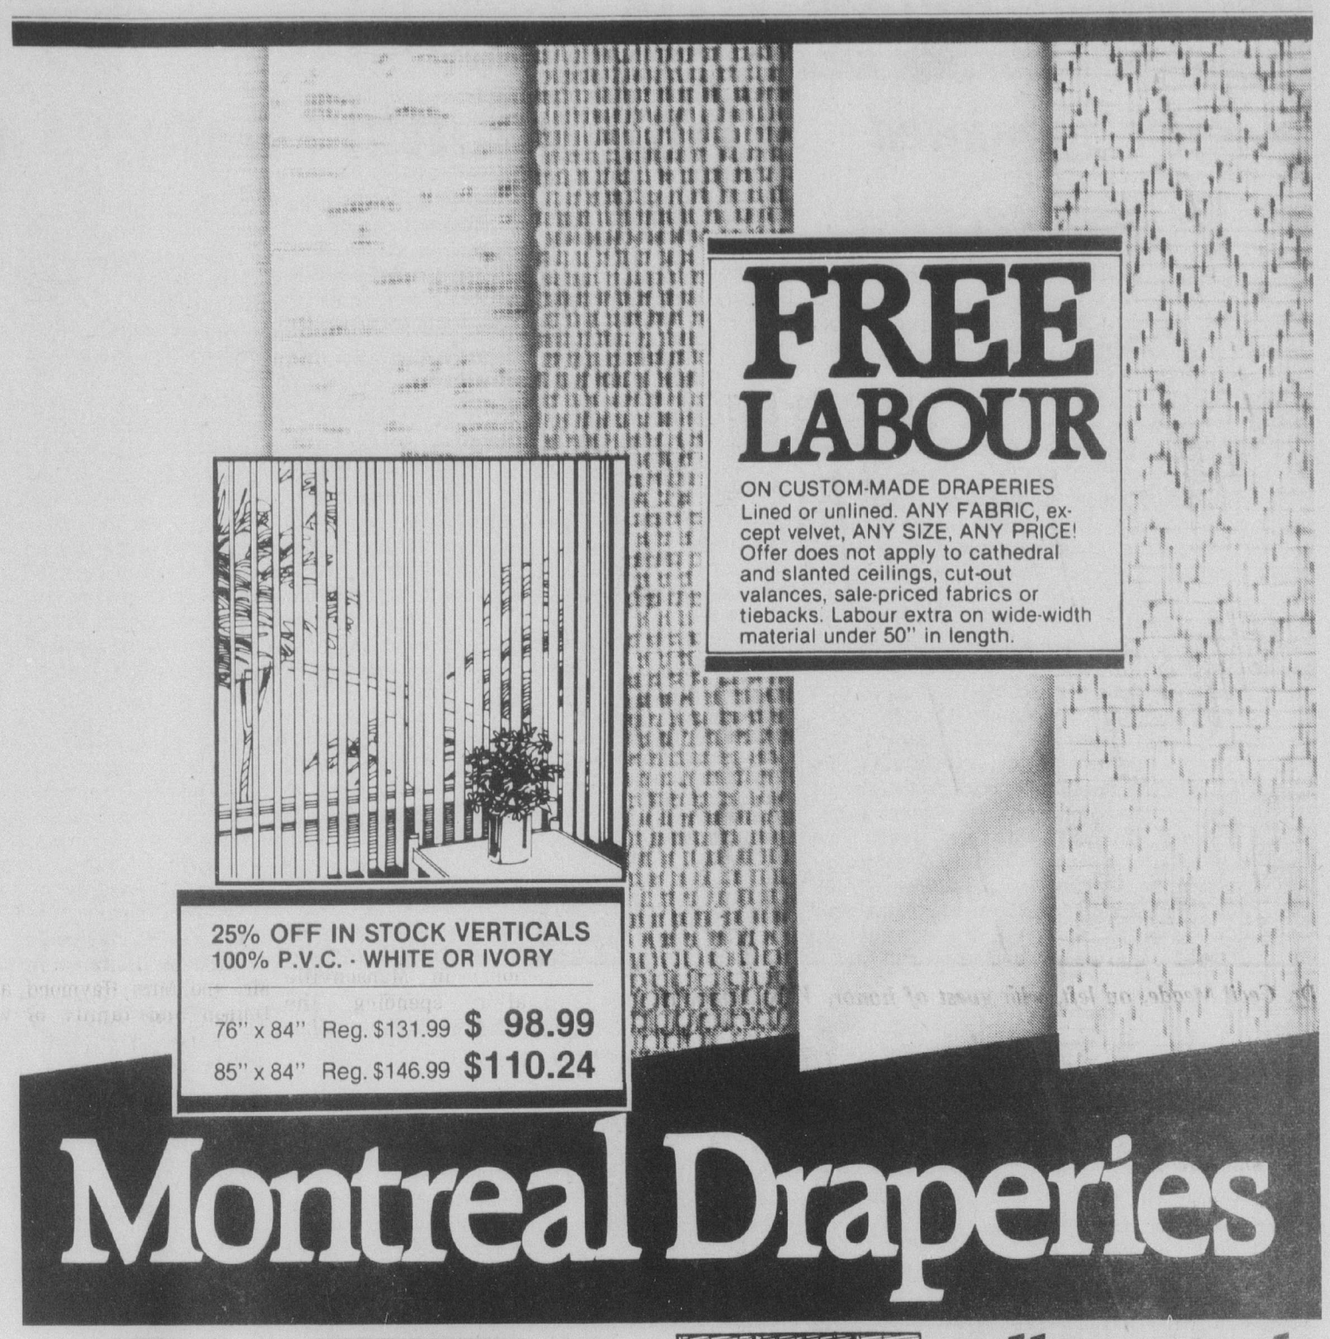

Brown beef with onion and green pepper over medium heat in large skillet.

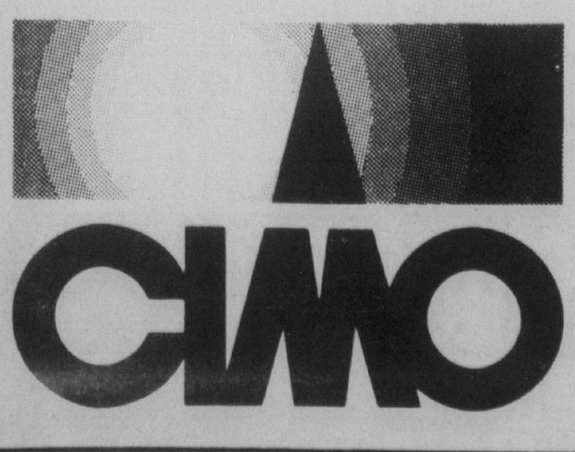

Pour off excess fat. Add uncooked macaroni and remaining ingredients. Stir well.

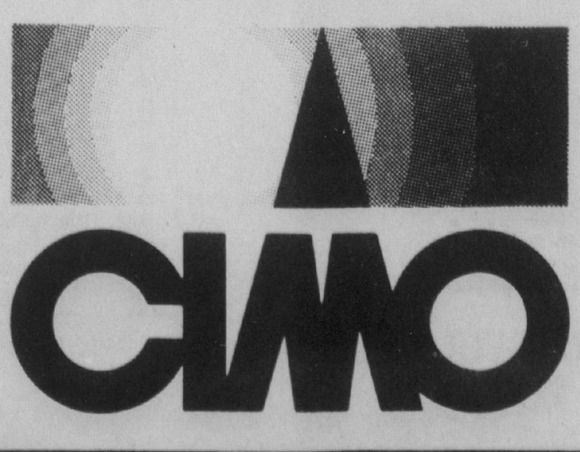

Cover; simmer 25 minutes or until macaroni is tender. Stir occasionally adding more water if necessary.

\+ + +

Hint: Dust a measuring cup with flour before measuring molasses or syrup. Every drop will come out.

Cecil Meade holds eighth annual Meditation-Social

Late August, Dr. Cecil Meade held his eighth annual Meditation-Social in the Philosophical Gardens and in his Baldwin's Mills home. Over 50 guests took part in the various activities of the day, including many from Chile and Vietnam. For International Year of the Handicapped Dr. Meade welcomed as guest of honor Vicki Lapointe, 13, of Lennoxville whose maternal grandmother was from this area. Proceeding to the Chapel of Cosmic Love, Roman Catholic prayers for peace were offered by M. Jacques Martin, of Sherbrooke in French; and by 11-year-old Nguyen Thu Tho in Vietnamese. The host then asked a moment of meditation for peace, in the name of all religions, while listening to the Eternal Source Voice of the brook.

The main ceremony was the planting of a fern to the memory of Terry Fox in admiration of his heroic marathon attempt to cross Canada to raise money for victims of cancer. The planting was performed by Karen Bouldman and Leah Markwell. Dr. Meade also recalled the recent death of Greg Scott, 11, of Ontario, a friend of Terry Fox, who - also with one leg taken by cancer - followed Fox for six miles on his bicycle. In front of the fern mound was a stone cross made so it could also represent a man with but one leg.

Guests then gathered at the beach where a feather was wafted onto the water in an AmerIndian gesture for peace, by a part-Indian local maiden. Dr. Meade told all present that it might be well to recall that all the Americas were once Indian territory and that more attention paid to their fitting culture might ease some of the petty political tensions that threaten to pull both our country and our province apart.

Moving to the playground, the highlight of the games period was a round of soccer. The cultural hour proved very lively also and the host played, by request, several of his piano compositions. A pure delight for later guests was the singing of German folksongs by Lili Bouldman and Gerry Cappon.

Obituaries

MRS. MAY COUGHTRY
of West Brome

Friends and relatives were saddened to learn of the sudden death of May Florence Coughtry at the B.M.P. Hospital, Cowansville, on Sunday, August 23, 1981.

May Florence Coughtry was born in West Brome on May 1, 1901, only daughter of Dennis Derby and his wife Minnie Darrah.

On May 30, 1922, she married William Coughtry of West Brome and resided there until her death. She was predeceased by her husband, the late William Coughtry on June 12, 1975.

During her lifetime she was a very active worker in the Red Cross units for World Wars II. She was a loyal supporter of the Church of the Ascension for which she was Organist and Sunday School teacher for many years.

The funeral service was held at the Church of the Ascension on Wednesday August 26, with the Rev. J. Serjeantson officiating.

Interment took place in the family lot in Pettes Cemetery, West Brome.

The bearers were four cousins, Robert Edwards, William Edwards, Douglas Edwards, Gordon Darrah and dear friends Arthur Riley and John Griffiths.

H. RUFUS STEVENSON
of Bishopton

Funeral Services for Rufus Stevenson, Bishopton, Que., who passed away at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Sherbrooke on August 27, 1981, were held on Aug. 29 at Bishopton United Church, with internment in Gould Cemetery. Rev. Carl Gustafson officiating.

Born in Wakefield, Que., Jan. 29, 1901, he lived the greater part of his life on his farm in Bishopton, He is survived by his wife, Jemima MacDonald, a son Francis, his wife Dorothy Dunn, a daughter Stella, her husband Ray Todd, six grandchildren, Gordon, Cheryl, Gail and Susan Stevenson; Kathy and Brent Todd, and a brother, Bill Stevenson of Toronto.

The bearers were Clyne MacDonald, Howard Beaton, Gordon MacAulay, Keith Bennett, Roy Harrison and Henry Nicholson.

Numerous generous donations to charities were received and gratefully accepted.

The funeral arrangements were under the very capable management of the Bury Funeral Home.

MISS ETTA MACKAY
(Formerly of Milan)

Miss Etta MacKay passed peacefully away at Queen Elizabeth Hospital, Montreal, on Tuesday Aug. 18, 1981, in her 86th year.

She was born in the Middle District Township of Winslow, the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacKay, who, after selling their farm, bought a home in Milan Village where Mr. MacKay passed away.

Etta taught school for several terms in the Eastern Townships, after which she took a Secretarial Course and went to Detroit, Mich., from where she retired, moving to Montreal later.

She was predeceased by her parents, her sister, Carrie who died in 1908 and is buried beside the parents in Stornoway Cemetery. Mary, Mrs. Dalgleish died in New York, Katie, Mrs. Roderick Morrison died and is buried in Montreal, Annie, Mrs. Alex Macdonald died in Detroit and is buried in Gould, where Etta is also buried. She is survived by two nephews, Stanley and Roderick Morrison of Montreal.

JAMES WHITE
of East Farnham

James White, husband of May Johnson White, passed away on Friday, August 28, 1981, at the B.M.P. Hospital, Cowansville, where he had been a patient since the middle of July.

Mr. White was born in England on April 7, 1899, and emigrated to Canada when 14 years old. His first work was as a farm helper and later became a skilled carpenter. In 1942 he married May Johnson Carter, widow of the late George Carter and came to East Farnham to live. There were no children by this marriage but he was a loving father to his step-children.

Besides his wife May, he leaves his step-children, Edith (Mrs. Leo Collin), Dorothy (Mrs. Toralf Sandstad) and Albert Carter, all of Cowansville, Mary (Mrs. Douglas Rowse) and Clifford Carter of East Farnham, with many dearly loved step-grandchildren.

The funeral service was held from the Chapel at Desourdy-Wilson Funeral Home, Buzzell Ave., Cowansville on Monday, August 31, at 2 p.m. with Archdeacon Wallace Sparling officiating.

Interment was at Riverside Cemetery, East Farnham, with the following bearers: Albert and Clifford Carter, Marcel Lachance and Carl Carter.

In Memoriam

BUZZELL — In loving memory of Richard, husband, father and grandfather, who passed away, Sept. 16th, 1980.
Those we love don't go away
They walk beside us every day,
Unseen, unheard, but always near
Still loved, still missed, still very dear.
Always remembered by
LOUISE (wife)
GLADYS, ROBERT and CATHY and his
GRANDCHILDREN

DAME — In loving memory of my dear sister, Alice Dame who passed away Sept. 16, 1977.
Sweet are the memories silently kept,
Of one we love and will never forget.
I treasure these with love sincere,
As time goes by from year to year
Sadly missed by,
BEULAH and DON
(sister and brother-in-law)

GOODENOUGH, Alton — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away ten years ago on September 16, 1971.
To hear your voice, to see you smile,
To sit and talk to you awhile
Would be our dearest wish to-day
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered
PEARL (wife)
MARLENE and DAVID
(daughter and son-in-law)

Card of Thanks

PAGE — We wish to acknowledge with heartfelt thanks, the many beautiful cards, mementos, flowers and good wishes that were showered on us on Sunday, August 16th, 1981. Those who came from near and far to offer their personal congratulations on this day, our 60th wedding anniversary, making this an occasion to be long and fondly cherished. To our family and those who may have shared time and costs in putting it all together, we add a million thanks. Your caring and devotion has been most deeply appreciated. We would like each and everyone to accept this as a very personal thank you from both of us.
GERMAINE and
GORDON PAGE

COUGHTRY — We wish to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to relatives, friends and neighbours for their kind gestures and thoughtfulness during the sudden death and burial of our mother, the late May Florence Coughtry. Thanks to the pall bearers, Rev. J. Serjeantson, Dr. Lincoln, to those who sent floral tributes, donations, food, cards of sympathy, visitation, your kindness will always be remembered.
EMMA and EVELYN
COUGHTRY

WI meeting

FORDYCE — The September meeting of the Fordyce Women's Institute was held at the United Church Hall on September 2.

The President, Mrs. Norma Sherrer opened the meeting by all repeating the Collect, Salute to the Flag. Motto: "Patience is something you admire in the driver behind you, but can't put up with the driver in front of you."

Roll call was answered by 25 members telling how they had recently made someone happy by doing something for them. And from this roll call it was obvious that the members have shown many acts of kindness to all people both young and elderly.

The Secretary, Mrs. Mabel Ingalls read minutes of the July meeting which were approved as read. Business arising from the minutes included a dessert card party to be held on Sept. 16 in the United Church Hall at 12:30. Bridge and 500 will be played, with prizes given and admission charged.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Irene Williams gave the treasurer's report with a favourable bank balance.

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Anna Louise Bromby reported she had sent Thank-you notes to Ayer's Cliff W.I., Granby Hill W.I., and Abbotsford W.I.

Convenors reports:

Home Economics: Mrs. Kay Paquette read, "Carry summer's fragrance over into winter; Agriculture: Mrs. Hattie Bowling: "Canada is involved in third world agriculture.

Welfare & Health: Mrs. Marion Harvey: "Carrots may beat cancer.", ACWW: Mrs. Elsa Syberg: ACWW and N.D.P.

Four members contributed to the birthday box. On Sept. 23, the Semi-annual will be held at Stanbridge East, at 1:30 with Mrs. Verna Patterson as delegate for Fordyce. An alternate delegate will replace Mrs. Patterson if she is unable to go. Hymn of all Nations was sung. Forty dollars was agreed upon to be paid to the county assessment. It was agreed that Fordyce branch would consider putting on a skit at the Provincial Convention.

Pennies for Friendship were collected by giving five cents for every clock in your home.

The program for the month was Publicity and Mrs. Verna Patterson read a poem which she had composed, titled "The Vacant Sugar camp".

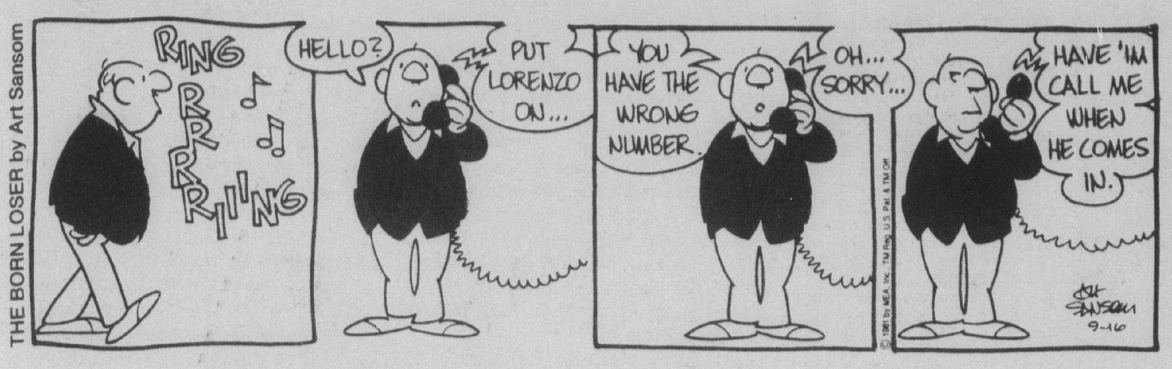

The President concluded the meeting with all repeating the W.I. grace, after which, the hostesses, Mrs. Bowling, Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Morrison served delicious refreshments.

Expos split with Cards

By Terry Scott

MONTREAL (CP) — Faced with a split or a widening gap, Montreal Expos settled for the former Tuesday night.

After all, a split of their National League baseball doubleheader with St. Louis Cardinals left Montreal 2 1-2 games out of first place in the East Division. A double defeat would have widened the gap to 4 1-2 games.

"I don't even think about that," said Expos reliever Woodie Fryman when asked if the possibility of dropping that far back had frightened him.

"All I know is that we've got to go out and win two games tomorrow. Winning one doesn't do you any good."

Except, of course, if a 4-3 triumph erases a 3-2 setback in the opening game, as was the case Tuesday night.

Fryman's work during the long evening was limited to one pitch, but itmay have been the most crucial of the game.

Fryman entered the contest when the usually-dependable Jeff Reardon left with the bases filled and two outs in the ninth. He threw a sinker that Steve Braun tapped back to the mound for the final out.

"I was ready," said Fryman. "I knew there were some left-handed batters coming up.

"He (manager Jim Fanning) wanted to give Jeff a chance to get out of the inning because he's done a good job for us."

Bobby Ramos's run-scoring single off starter Mark Littell, 1-2, had provided the Expos with a 2-1 lead in the fourth inning, but it was an RBI single by Andre Dawson and a fielding error by St. Louis shortstop Mike Ramsey that led to two fifth-inning runs, the second of which was the margin of victory.

Bill Lee, 3-4, spaced eight hits over the first seven innings to earn the victory after Bill Gullickson, 4-8, had lost the opener.

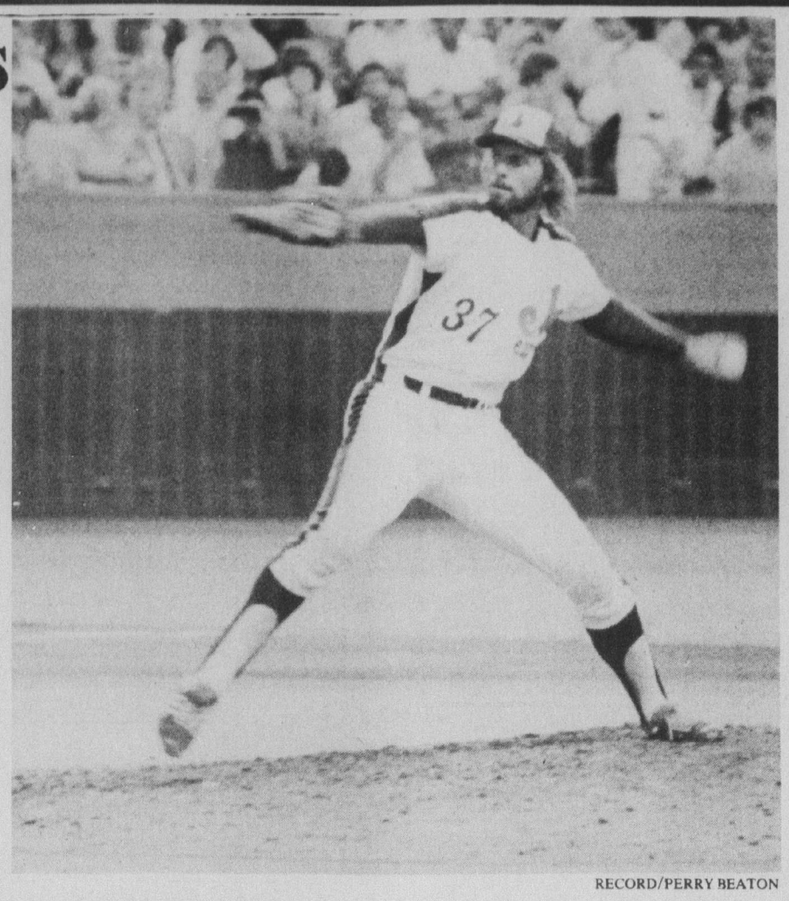

"Lee threw almost 80 pitches in the first five innings," said Fanning. "But he's the type who will always tell you he's fine because he's such a great competitor.

"(Pitching coach) Galen Cisco asked him about pitching the seventh inning and he said he was OK. But there were two line drives in that inning — one hit hard to left field and another to second base."

Reardon was touched for George Hendrick's 16th homer of the year and an RBI single by pinch-hitter Dane Iorg closing the margin to 4-3 in the eighth.

In the opener, won by John Martin, 6-3, Iorg's two hits were overshadowed by Garry Templeton's four singles, two runs scored and one RBI.

"Don't judge me on one game," said Templeton. "Just give me a chance to play."

RECORD/PERRY BEATON

Bill Lee earned the win in the second game of last night's doubleheader split.

Leonard-Hearns fight richest purse to date

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — One sports a boyish, toothpaste-ad smile and is nicknamed Sugar. The other appears broodingly sinister with his piercing stare and is known as Hit Man.

When Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns enter the outdoor ring at Caesar's Palace tonight, the awe of the fight will be greatly enhanced by their contrasts — some real, some illusory.

It's Leonard, the World Boxing Council champion, and his flashy speed against the explosive power of Hearns, the World Boxing Association 147-pound king. In what has become the richest fight in boxing history, it's Leonard, one of the wealthiest and high-profile figures in sport, versus a man hungry for recognition.

As fight time neared, however, each fighter seemed determined to dispel parts of their myths.

Leonard, winner of 30 of his 31 pro bouts with 21 knockouts, claimed he was every bit as hungry as Hearns, saying, "I love the profession and I love to win. I haven't lost my concentration since I lost that first bout with (Roberto) Duran."

HEARNS CHANGES IMAGE

Hearns, unbeaten in 32 fights with 30 knockouts, stressed people will discover he can box as well as hit with power, and he also seemed bent on changing his image as the villain.

Microphone in hand, he turned crowd-pleasing showman during his workouts, and he paid special attention to the kids who attended his training sessions.

Hearns, 22, of Detroit, seems to have some physical advantages over Leonard, 25, of Palmer Park, Md. The 6-foot-1 Hearns is three inches taller, and has a four-inch reach advantage.

"I am confident," said Hearns. "This is the big chance for me to make my mark in the world.

"I know he's a good fighter, but I know my capabilities. I'll start out boxing him, looking for some way to put him out. When I find it, I will put him out, whether it's the first round, the third or the 15th."

LEONARD CONFIDENT

Leonard said: "I'll beat Thomas Hearns. I've had this vision of the fight where he gets frustrated because he can't hit me and he starts coming in and I knock him out."

"What I have to do is dictate the pace of the fight and dominate every round," said Leonard, who also holds the WBA junior middleweight title.

The contrasts between the two fighters, their undeniable talent, and the fact the bout will unify the 147-pound title have helped make it the most lucrative fight ever. The only undisputed title currently belongs to middleweight Marvin Hagler.

Promoters are talking about gross revenues of about $40 million and a net income of almost $30 million. Leonard will get at least $8 million and perhaps as much as $13 million. Hearns will get about $5 million.

Als sale denied

MONTREAL (CP) — Bill Putnam, executive vice-president of Montreal Alouettes, has denied published reports that Vancouver-based Nelson Skalbania has sold his majority ownership in the Canadian Football League club to a group of western Canadian businessmen for $1.

A Montreal newspaper reported Tuesday that such a transaction had been completed. The newspaper said it had obtained its information from "reliable sources."

However, Putnam described the report as being without basis in fact.

"Anything is possible," Putnam said. "Nevertheless, I believe Mr. Skalbania would consult his partners if he envisioned making such a decision.

"I spoke to Nelson on the telephone last night (Monday) and asked him about the report," said Putnam. "He said it was completely false."

Putnam said he did not know the whereabouts of the ever-moving Skalbania.

EDMONTON (CP) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden, five-time Wimbledon champion and six-time winner of the French Open, will headline a select 16-man field in the Edmonton Tennis Challenge scheduled for Oct. 8-12.

Borg, currently ranked No. 2 in the world behind John McEnroe, will be joined by two other top-10 ranked players in the $300,000 (U.S.) tournament. The winner will pocket $80,000.

SHERBROOKE (AR) — The swimming pool at the University of Sherbrooke will be open Monday to Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. For information on the opening hours and other information concerning the pool one can call 565-5673.

MILBY (AR) — The Ladies section of the Milby Golf Club will be holding their annual Harvest Buffet September 26 at 7 p.m. All members and their friends are invited and tickets can be purchased at the Pro Shop or from a member of the executive.

In the club championship Jocelyn Smith was the overall winner with a low gross of 157 for the two days of competition. The senior champion was Kay Thompson who carded a low net 69 followed by Autree Roch with a 71. In the business girls division Linda Smith was the winner with a low net of 65 and Ginette Dion was the runner-up with a 67.

CAHA picks national squad

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty players selected to Canada's national junior team were announced Tuesday by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The players, selected from a group of 47 prospects that attended a national training camp in Kingston, Ont., Aug. 23-31, will attend a pre-championship camp in Winnipeg before the opening of the world junior hockey championship in Minnesota, Dec. 22-Jan. 2.

Dave King of Saskatoon, who will coach the squad, said selecting the team wasn't easy.

"The calibre of player was high and with only a brief training camp to base our evaluations on this made the selection process difficult," he said. "We were looking primarily for players with skills which would be most suitable against European competition."

In addition to the 20 players, five players will be added to the roster before the Winnipeg camp. These players will be evaluated based on their performances in the first half of the 1981-82 season with their respective club teams.

Two players, Tony Tanti of Oshawa Generals and Geoff Wilson of Winnipeg Warriors, were injured for most of the national training camp and will be watched closely up until the December camp.

Among the players selected are goaltender Mike Moffatt of Cambridge, Ont., defencemen Fred Boimistruck of Capreol, Ont., and forward Mike Moller of Red Deer, Alta., all considered strong candidates to capture berths with their parent National Hockey League clubs.

The 20 players elected, including their hometowns and 1980-81 teams:

Goaltenders: Mike Moffat, Cambridge, Ont. (Kingston Canadians); Mike Sands, Mississauga, Ont. (Sudbury Wolves).

Defencemen: Randy Velischek, Montreal (Providence College); Fred Boimistruck, Capreol, Ont. (Cornwall Royals); Tom Thornbury, Woodville, Ont. (Niagara Falls Flyers); Eric Calder, Waterloo, Ont. (Cornwall Royals); James Patrick, Winnipeg (Prince Albert Raiders).

Forwards: Mark Morrison, Tswassassen, B.C. (Victoria Cougars); Rick Chermonaz, Port Alberni, B.C. (Victoria Cougars); Jean-Marc Gaulin, Trois Rivieres, (Sorel Eperviers); Mike Moller, Red Deer, Alta. (Lethbridge Broncos); Dave Berry, Burnaby, B.C. (University of Denver); Dan Miele, LaSalle, Que. (Providence College); Ross Lambert, Swift Current, Sask. (Princeton University); Newell Brown, Cornwall, Ont. (Michigan State University); John Newberry, Victoria, (University of Wisconsin); Paul Cyr, Victoria (Victoria Cougars); Mitch Lamoureux, Nepean, Ont. (Oshawa Generals); Troy Murray, St. Albert, Alta. (University of North Dakota); Steve Tsujiura, Coledale, Alta. (Medicine Hat Tigers).

NASL franchises fold

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North American Soccer League is at T minus 19 and counting. But this T doesn't stand for time — it's teams.

The NASL lost its second franchise since the regular season ended last month when California Surf ceased operations Tuesday.

Atlanta Chiefs' franchise had earlier informed the league of its decision to close down and, said league sources, both Washington Diplomats and Dallas Tornado are endangered franchises.

Jacksonville Tea Men were rescued Tuesday — for the time being — when owners agreed to post a $150,000 bond required by the league.

"Each team is required to post a $150,000 bond by midnight Tuesday, indicating their ability to finance a team and faith in the league," NASL spokesman Vince Casey said.

Casey said the league will not divulge the names of the teams posting the bonds until midnight tonight.

"Without mentioning names it is safe to say the future of some teams are in doubt at this time," Casey said.

The Surf's future is nonexistent.

Team officials would not comment on the folding of the franchise, which moved to Orange County from St. Louis in 1977 and played its games in Anaheim.

California had a 11-21 record this season, failing to make the playoffs.

Washington's future seems equally bleak.

The father-and-son team of Jimmy and Duncan Hill admit the team is up for sale, but there are few buyers willing to purchase a team finishing $1 million in the red last season.

The Diplomats were actually the NASL's Detroit Express in 1980, but the Hills moved the team to Washington this season when the original Washington Diplomats folded after the 1980 campaign.

The Tea Men moved to Northeast Florida last November, hoping to find support they didn't get in New England. The club has lost $7 million since 1978, including about $1.7 million in Jacksonville.

UCW meeting

BIRCHTON — The September meeting of the local UCW, was held at the home of Mrs. Heather Turchyn, where the President, Mrs. Murdo MacKinnon, led in the opening with the Purpose, after which Mrs. Basil Prescott conducted the worship period with an interesting and impressive exchange section from the gospel of Matthew, and a closing prayer.

The minutes of the June meeting were accepted as read; three thank you notes were read; as was a letter from the foster child; and a request that the Christian Children's Fund, monthly, be raised from $15. to $18.

A petition form to be signed and sent to Ottawa regarding reinstatement of Canadian native women's rights, was completed, and the invitation was readily accepted from the Bulwer UCW to join them in an evening of slides of The Harrington Harbour recent visit by some of our Presbyterial.

Mrs. Prescott, Mrs. MacKinnon and Mrs. Nutbrown gave impressive reports of their time at Summer Event at Bishop's.

Members were reminded to have their talent money ready to hand in at the November meeting, Mrs. Turchyn said that a new order of cards, etc., had been received, and that new catalogues were available.

Mrs. Prescott reported on a meeting to formulate plans for the Fall Rally which takes place at the Bulwer Community Centre on September 22, from 9:00 a.m.

The Fall Tea and Sale was set for October 24, with the following committee: Mrs. Turchyn, Mrs. Nutbrown and Mrs. Todd, with Mrs. Murray to look after the advertising.

After the Mizpah Benediction, Marie showed some very interesting slides, modern, historic, local and western.

As usual, refreshment time passed very pleasantly, thanks to the companionship and Heather's tasty lunch.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In today's hand Fred Karpin shows where "more pressing business" makes it imperative that the drawing of trumps be deferred.

South is in a fine four-spade contract. He has to lose two clubs and a spade and expects to have little trouble making his contract.

West opens the queen of clubs and East signals come-on with the nine. Then West shifts to the three of hearts.

If South doesn't bother to think he will win that heart and lead a spade. West will take his ace and lead the deuce of clubs to his partner's ace or king. Then East will lead a heart. West will ruff for the fourth defensive trick.

If South stops to think he will find a chance to foil West's plan. He wins the heart in dummy and leads the king of diamonds. Then he discards his last club. West will have to win. He will lead a club and South will ruff. Then South can go after spades and make his contract.

This play only succeeded because West held both the spade and diamond aces. One chance in four, but that is a lot better than no chance at all.

Note that if West had opened his singleton heart, South would have had no way to make his contracts.

Your Birthday

September 17, 1981

You should be extremely fortunate in finding new ways to further your financial lot in life in the year following your birthday. However, you'll have to be patient and give time for each to develop.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If need be, count to 10 before losing your temper over someone's thoughtless remarks. If you sound off it could make the other guy look right. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your curiosity is intense today. You could be tempted to stick your nose into places where it doesn't belong. Watch out: It could be punched.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Disregard the opinions of others. If you try to explain your viewpoints in rebuttal your intense nature could be misinterpreted as argumentative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Friction with coworkers can be avoided today if you don't take their moodiness too seriously. Use your talent for laughing things off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't misinterpret a friend's independent behavior as disloyalty. He or she should be allowed the same freedom of expression you deem necessary for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you react in kind to the crankiness of another member of your household, you'll only be setting off fireworks. Stay cool and let the sparks die down.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Coworkers might do some aggravating things today, but it won't be worth getting into a confrontation over them. Deal with the situations calmly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The possibility of yielding to your more extravagant tendencies is great today. If you can't afford to splurge, leave the credit cards at home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Watch whose toes you step on today. You'll have little patience for those who fail to do things exactly the way you wish them done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless you find a release for your nervousness today, you could become so frustrated you'll pick a quarrel over just about anything. Try to stay busy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before committing yourself to a group activity today, assess the cost both in time and money. The event might not warrant the outlay.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although there is nothing wrong with having strong ambitions, the way you attempt to realize them today may be. Guard against a domineering tendency.

Brompton Road Women's Institute

On Tuesday afternoon, September 8, Mrs. Irene Decoteau very kindly opened her home on the Scotch Road, where the executive and members of the Brompton Rd. Women's Institute were pleasantly entertained. Mrs. Lillian Sayer joined her daughter in being joint hostess.

The President, Mrs. Eunice Brown, in opening the meeting, welcomed all members present, also two guests, Mrs. Hattie Bell, and Mrs. C. Colton, she then invited all to join in repeating the Collect for Club Women. This was followed by Roll call: Say a sentence of at least ten words in French, or pay 25 cents. 15 members answered, showing that many are bilingual.

Motto: There is no age limit to education.

The secretary, Mrs. Beth Cullen read the minutes of the August meeting and these were accepted as read. The President, Mrs. Eunice Brown, had received a generous donation from those who had organized a 25th wedding anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. Alton McElrea. This was given in appreciation for the use of the Community hall for this most enjoyable event. Mrs. Brown, in turn, gave this to the Treasurer, Mrs. June Westman.

Correspondence, read by the Secretary, Mrs. Beth Cullen, included a thank-you from Mrs. Dorothy Hadenko for gift, received a letter from Mrs. Darlene Sabella for which the secretary was requested to send a reply; a verbal thanks from Mrs. Lillian Sayer, for gift received which had been delivered by Mrs. Eunice Brown. The financial report given by the treasurer, Mrs. June Westman, proved to be very beneficial.

Convenors reports: Agriculture, Mrs. Myrtle Sage, absent; Mrs. June Westman filled in, by stating that Mrs. Gwen Parker had put a call through, requesting help for the School Fair, which is to be held September 19 in the Lennoxville Elementary School. Volunteers to help are Mrs. Irene Decoteau. Mrs. Betty Emery and Mrs. Mary Decoteau, Mrs. Myrtle Sage, a loaf of sandwiches.

Citizenship: Mrs. Edna Hatch, nothing to report; Education: Mrs. Frances Mackay, Bursary for A.G.R.S. Mrs. Edna Hatch moved that a bursary be given Level 3 Math. This was seconded by Mrs. Betty Emery.

Home Economics: Mrs. Irene Decoteau read a recipe for zucchini pancakes, also gave cheese tips, also an article, Housewife 35 years of age goes on strike. This was more help for her, with chores.

Publicity: Mrs. Annie J. Goodfellow stated that reports of August meeting had been sent to The Record and County publicity convenor.

Sunshine report received from Mrs. Margaret Smith, three get-well cards had been sent. Stamps and Provigo slips were handed in by Mrs. Dorothy Hadenko.

Welfare and Health: Mrs. Betty Emery announced that cancer dressing station date is to be Oct. 5.

Mrs. Eunice Brown announced Townshippers Day on October 3rd in East Hatley (to the attention of all present). She then called on Mrs. Edna Hatch, to give the report of the Sherbrooke County quarterly meeting held in the Huntingville hall, Wednesday, August 12. All enjoyed Mrs. Hatch's detailed and splendid report, and she was thanked by the President, Mrs. Eunice Brown.

Books on Champlain College courses which Mrs. Annie J. Goodfellow had received were given to the members.

Floating prize, given by Mrs. Margaret Nadeau won by Mrs. Eunice Brown.

Pennies for Friendship collected by the Treasurer, Mrs. June Westman.

After the President Mrs. Eunice Brown adjourned the meeting, all were invited by the hostesses to enjoy a most delicious salad meal, cookies, cakes and ice-cream and a most enjoyable social hour was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Hattie Bell and Mrs. C. Colton assisted the hostesses in serving.

Motto for the October meeting: If you can't have the best, make the best of what you have. Roll call: Supplies for the hall. Programme: Silent auction, money to be given to the Quebec extension fund. Hostesses: Mrs. Annie J. Goodfellow and Mrs. Margaret Smith, place to be announced later.

Golden Age Club meets

MANSONVILLE (OJ) — The Golden Agers met at the Town Hall with a good attendance, on September 1. Door prize won by Kenneth Lamorey.

500 winners were Martha Sargent, Yvonne Cote, Jerry Carrier and Porter Knowlton. Game winners: Annie Macdonald, Flora Jersey, Emile Dubuc, Lawrence Smith and A. Fiori.

A get-well card was signed and sent to Mary Barnett who has been a patient in the B.M.P. Hospital. Kate Newell was presented with a beautiful African violet on behalf of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Emile Dubuc, Daytona, Florida, will be returning to their winter home, having spent the summer with Mr. and Mrs. George Hamelin. They also visited Evelyn's mother, Mrs. Bernice Hamelin and other relatives in the vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Aiken visited Verlie's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Waldron at the Sherman Residence in Scotstown.

Lunch was furnished by the club assisted by Flora Drouin and Minera Lamothe.

Those celebrating September birthday are Leon Lamothe, Leon Eldridge, Rolland Fontaine, Rudolph and Lena Tomuschat, Angelina Fiori, Winston White, Toni Lamothe, Clifton Jersey, Hazel Jones and also Mary Miller of Montreal a former resident and member of the club.

\+ + +

The Mansonville Golden Agers met at the Town Hall for their meeting on September 8. Door prize won by Raymond Bedard, and 500 winners were Maud Mossa, Yvonne Robin, Leon Lamothe and Jerry Carrier. Game winners: J. Laliberte, J. Fontaine, Minerva Lamothe, Elsie Knowlton, Iris Milroy, R. Pouliot and Ethylin Burnham.

A basket of fruit was presented to Leon Eldridge from the club in honor of his 90th birthday.

Golden Agers are reminded of St. Paul's Flea Market sale on Sept. 19, and donations for the Golden Agers table will be appreciated.

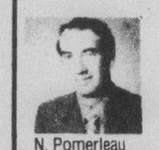

Lunch was furnished by the club, assisted by Minerva Lamothe.

SCOTSTOWN
Mrs. F.B. Mayhew
657-4747

Correction in September 4th Record on Congratulations for Mrs. N. George Scott on her 97th birthday on September 5. It should have been Mrs. N. George Scott, (nee Louise MacIver, formerly of Scotstown). She was the daughter of John S. MacIver.

Citizens of Scotstown were shocked to read in the Record of the death of a former Scotstown man, Wilbur Ross Taylor of Mattawa, Ont., who had just recently moved to Kanata, Ont. Deepest sympathy is extended to his wife the former Maude L. Pearson and to his daughters, Dorothy, Eleanor and Marion and their husbands and children, his sister Mrs. Marjorie Woodside of Lachine and his brother Carroll Taylor of Drummondville and other relatives.

Mrs. W.A. Ladd and Mrs. F.B. Mayhew attended a planning meeting for the U.C.W. Rally one afternoon at the home of Ileana Burns in Island Brook. The Rally will be held in Bulwer on September 22.

Mr. Herbert Gibson recently visited Mr. Ralph Smith in Island Brook one afternoon.

Mrs. William Zaslowsky and Tammy of Brossard spent a few days with Mrs. George MacDonald.

Attending the United Church service on September 6 were Mr. and Mrs. William Black from Philadelphia, Pa. His grandfather John Black had owned a store on Victoria St. years ago. His father was John C. Black who also lived in Scotstown. Mr. and Mrs. William Black were in town five years ago. They also visited the Riverview Cemetery where members of the Black family rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale MacIver and Ricky spent a recent weekend with Mrs. W.K. Gordon and also visited Mr. and Mrs. John N. Mackenzie. Returning to their home in Lennoxville, they left Ricky for a few days with his grandmother, Mrs. Gordon.
