Rotary Lunch Speaker

Official of Canadian Pacific Telegraphs Told of Benefit of Radio to Ships at Sea

With items of interest being discussed, including the proposed Ice Carnival at the Forum, the kiddies party on the 19th of this month, and the Rotary Conference in May, the members of the Westmount Rotary Club met Wednesday noon for their regular weekly luncheon, with President Dr. J. Kenneth Carver in the chair.

W. S. Emery, of the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs, was the guest speaker, and outlined in an interesting and entertaining manner the history of telegraphic communication, stressing particularly the benefit of wireless to ships at sea.

Relating tales of heroism on the part of wireless operators, the laying of the first trans-atlantic cable, the tragic sinking of the Titanic, the speaker told a highly interesting story.

Communication, he pointed out, had been of interest to mankind since the "pillar of fire and cloud of smoke" in the Old Testament. Semaphore signalling was one of the earlier methods, but it was not until recently that any big strides were made in perfecting communication over long distances.

Describing the advance in telegraphy and wireless since the late '80's the speaker lauded the name of Marconi in connection with wireless and its kindred services.

Share Resources Speaker Suggests

Gordon Lapp of Toronto Was Speaker At Calvary Church On Sunday Evening

Canada should be generous in sharing her extensive natural resources with nations not so fortunately endowed, contended Gordon Lapp, of Toronto, National Boys' Work Secretary of the Religious Education Council in speaking at Calvary Church on Sunday evening.

In these days, with world conflict threatening on every side, Canada should make every effort to promote world peace, and in sharing her resources would be attaining towards this end, he said.

There is no such thing as "neutrality," Mr. Lapp stated, and warned against such a "deadly" condition in connection with Canada's work in furthering world fellowship among nations. Certain forces of communism and fascism are to be guarded against very carefully, he warned, and urged the retention of democracy, which is closely interwoven with Christian endeavour. The world today, he said, had more unity of thought than at any period since the days of Rome, and he declared that due to this circumstance an unparalleled opportunity existed to "win the world for Christianity."

Mr. Lapp is a former president of the Boys' Parliament of Ontario.

Rev. T. W. Jones, minister, conducted the service and Gwynn Edwards and Beatrice Botha, representatives of the young people of the church, read the lessons.

Winter Weather Brings Relief To Editor's "Harbinger" Grief

At last ye editor is resting easy; the butterfly situation seems, at last, to be well in hand, though whether it is anything like the proverbial bird in the bush is a matter that time alone will tell. On Thursday last, just as this publication was being "made up"—put together, if you wish—a party called in to let us know that a crow had been seen that morning over Sherbrooke street. For a moment it looked as though the crow question might reach unmanageable proportions, but, thanks to a kind fate, it has taken an insignificant place.

The recent snap of cold weather, we'll bet our only pair of shoes, has conveniently solved the harbinger of spring matter. The several millions (or so we thought) butterflies that were on the verge of becoming a plague locally last week, have no doubt crawled back into their cocoons in an effort to keep warm; and be there any truth to the crow story, we'll wager that he—or maybe they—has gone hurriedly southwards again.

Tuesday was Groundhog day, when the good old groundhog was supposed to hunt for his shadow. We understand that he must have seen it, for, though no positive information is available, since the sun was shining there must certainly have been one. That, by way of being interpreted, means a late spring, which, in turn, means a late winter.

It ought to be, since it only started on Sunday.

Local Girl Is Congratulated By Lord Tweedsmuir On Sketch

Governor-General Thinks Very Highly of Drawing of Himself Recently Done By Miss Barbara Brisbane—Westmount Girl Has Won Acclaim In Art, Sculpture, Poetry and Music

"I was delighted with the sketch. It is one of the best I have seen, and I must congratulate you on the skill with which you have done it."

With these words, Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada writes to compliment Miss Barbara Brisbane, a Westmount girl, on a sketch she recently executed of His Excellency.

The sketch, done after the manner of a portrait, shows His Excellency as he appeared on the platform of the High School of Montreal during his last visit to Montreal. Keenly interested in humane and charitable work, he was attending the Junior Red Cross gathering.

Miss Brisbane is a native Westmount girl, and has from time to time won praise for her splendid work in art, sculpture, music and poetry. She displayed ability along these lines from an early age, and has developed her talent to a high degree in each of these fields.

Miss Brisbane is a teacher at Riverview School, in Verdun. Early last spring, she received written acknowledgment from former King Edward VIII of a poem she composed on the death of the late King George V. The poem was entitled "The King is Dead," and expressed very appropriately the Empire's grief on the loss of that sovereign. The poem was set to music which she composed herself, and was printed in The Examiner, along with a brief article about Miss Brisbane, on April 10th.

P. J. Martin Prepare For Succumbed Banquet To To Injuries M. Duplessis

Local Resident Died Friday Afternoon in St. Mary's Hospital After Suffering Relapse

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon from the Church of the Ascension of Our Lord, of Patrick J. Martin, Oliver Avenue resident, who died on Friday afternoon at St. Mary's Hospital from injuries received when his car swerved into the ditch near Plattsburgh the previous Saturday.

Mrs. Martin was killed in the accident, and was buried from the same church earlier in the week. Mr. Martin was brought from Plattsburgh, where he had been placed in a local hospital, on Tuesday, when he appeared to be in sufficiently good condition to stand the trip. He appeared to be doing well enough until Friday, when he suffered a relapse and died.

His retirement as chief appraiser of the grocery division of the Montreal customs brought to a close 34 years consecutive service as a civil servant. He was born in Montreal and was educated here.

The accident which resulted in the two deaths occurred while Mr. and Mrs. Martin were starting on a motor trip to Florida. In an effort to avoid a bus stalled on the road ahead, the driver swerved the vehicle which crashed in the ditch.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Martin Kiehl of Montreal West, a sister Mrs. Bertha Martin of Chicago and a brother M. J. Martin of this city.

Aldermen Scott, McLeod and Lorimer were appointed to the Library Board, which is under the chairmanship of A. D. Thornton. The meeting was the first at which Aldermen Scott and McLeod, elected to the Council by acclamation in January, were present. The oath of Aldermanic office was administered the two new members by Arthur F. Bell, city secretary-treasurer. It was also the first meeting to be held on a Monday evening, the change from Tuesday having been decided upon at a recent meeting of the Council.

A delegation of residents living on the Boulevard, Renfrew Avenue, Douglas Avenue and Murray Hill, with a petition protesting the proposed tramway bus route on those thoroughfares, was received. It was decided to lodge a protest, on behalf of the City, with the Montreal Tramways Commission at its next meeting, which was on Wednesday morning.

FLOOD FURY FORCES FUGITIVES TO FLEE

Most colonists at the Dress, Ark., farm resettlement project fled when the St. Francis River flooded their homes. The few hardy souls who defied the overflow are seen in this air view clustered about the porch of one of the buildings on higher ground. A boat for flight in extreme emergency is conveniently moored at right.

CWL Plans Alherbreen A Fashion Show Soon

Group Met on Friday — Event to be Held in Victoria Hall on February 18th

A fashion show is being planned by the Westmount sub-division of the Catholic Women's League, to take place in Victoria Hall on February 18th. It was announced at a meeting of that group held in the St. Paul's School hall on Friday afternoon.

The work of the Sisters of Service was told the members by Rev. Sister Shostak; they are often seen, she said, at railway stations and ship docks, busy with bewildered immigrant groups, reassuring and directing them, and advising them in their own tongues.

Sister Shostak told of the different types of newcomers encountered, and the care given them while on their way to join friends and relatives in the west.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. C. H. G. Short, president, after which Mrs. J. G. Cassidy took the chair. Reports of the various committees were read, and Miss Margaret Filion, accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Lebeuf, rendered some vocal selections.

A resolution of sympathy with Mrs. J. Coffey, past national president of the Catholic Women's League, on the death of her husband, was moved by Mrs. W. J. Storey; a resolution of sympathy with Mr. P. J. Martin, in the death of his wife, a member of the sub-division, was moved by Mrs. F. E. Brown (news of the death of Mr. Martin, injured in the same motor crash in which his wife was killed, had not been received at the meeting).

Alherbreen Dance Tonight

The second annual Formal Dance of the Alberbreen Club will be held tonight at Victoria Hall, commencing at 9:30. Jack Bain and his orchestra will be in attendance.

The Club has as its object the staging of unusual and interesting dances. That no insignificant degree of success in this direction has been obtained is evidenced in the number who have mentioned their intentions of attending the event tonight. The club caters directly to the younger set of Westmount.

Member Of Junior Set Is Buried

Mrs. Weininger, Grosvenor Avenue Resident, Died Sunday In 34th Year

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from her late residence, 449 Grosvenor avenue, of Mrs. Goldie Brazer Weininger, who died on Sunday at the Jewish General Hospital.

Born in Montreal 34 years ago, she was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Brazer, and was a popular and active member of the junior circles of the city's Jewish community.

She was the wife of Ben Weininger. Besides her husband, two children, Otto and Norman, survive, as do her father and mother; and five sisters, Mrs. N. Gross, Mrs. N. Litwin, Mrs. M. Ram, and the Misses Jean and Beatrice Brazer.

J. J. O'Grady Explained Rules, Technique Of Debating Monday

"If a man is fool enough to ask you to make a speech, be fool enough to accept him," J. J. O'Grady, of the Confederation Life Association, told members of the public speaking class at the local Y.M.C.A. on Monday night, in stressing the need for practice in acquiring proficiency in this art. Mr. O'Grady's subject was "The Rules and Technique of Debating."

Debating is splendid means of training the mind to be analytical, stated Mr. O'Grady. Debating is of definite value, in that it teaches us many things, trains us to be quick, and besides gives one plenty of fun and experience. It helps one to overcome self-consciousness and nervousness, and arouses the spirit of rivalry, which is a material aid to progress, he stated.

St. Leo's Old Boys Ass'n Met Tuesday

Mock Trial and Physical Drills Enjoyed at Regular Monthly Meeting

The Saint Leo's Old Boys' Association held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, at which about one hundred and fifty members were present.

A mock trial was held, many of the former pupils taking part. Humour was the highlight of this part of the programme, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Mr. Ed. Fuger, Physical Instructor of the Academy, put the Old Boys through some strenuous drills and setting out exercises.

The Association is divided into three groups, comprising pupils graduated between 1906 and 1916, 1916 and 1926, and 1926 and 1936. The officials of the group are as follows:

HONORARY PRESIDENT AND FOUNDER, Rev. Bro. M. Alphonse; president, Mr. Louis Paul Caron; joint secretaries, Messrs. J. M. Desaire, and G. Kennedy; dramatics, Bashford Browne; sports, Eddie Drowden; committee manager, Mr. Cedric Levesque.

All former pupils of St. Leo's Academy are cordially invited to attend these once-a-month gatherings, held on the first Monday of every month. Further information can be obtained from any of the officials.

Delegates Return From The Capital

Chief William Wren Headed Group Interviewing Minister of Justice Regarding Proposals

Headed by Chief William Wren of the local Police Fire Department, Montreal delegates of the Dominion Association of Police Chiefs returned from Ottawa on Tuesday, following a conference with Hon. Ernest Lapointe in the capital city. Representatives from both Quebec and Ontario were present.

A lengthy discussion was held with the Minister of Justice, considering chiefly the "ticket of leave" system and a request that the sale and purchase of old gold be put under close supervision.

In the former matter, it was claimed that too much leniency is shown and that there are a number of cases on record wherein dangerous criminals have been released on parole only to commit further, and often worse, crimes than the ones for which they were originally incarcerated.

Protest Project Locally

Upper Level Residents Oppose Running of Tram Buses Through Residential District

TO SERVE N.D.G.

City Represented In Contemporary Weekly As Acting "Selfishly"

The proposed tramways bus line, to run from the north-western section of Westmount into northern Notre Dame de Grace, bids fair to be a cause of dissension between the two communities that have heretofore lived side by side without misunderstanding or strife.

A delegation of residents from Westmount Boulevard, Renfrew Avenue, Douglas Avenue and Murray Hill appeared before the Council at its Monday night meeting with a petition of protest against the projected "service." A committee was appointed, headed by Alderman B. Panet Raymond and including City Manager P. E. Jarman and City Solicitor J. W. Weldon to lay the city's case before the Montreal Tramways Commission at its next meeting. The date of this meeting had not been established at press time late last night.

One resident went so far as to state that, were the proposed bus route approved and put into operation, it would be necessary for him to sell his property and home on one of the concerned thoroughfares. He had built his home in that district, he stated, because he felt that he would be in a quiet, purely residential territory, and to have a motorbus route plying through the heart of the area.

COMMENT ON CURRENT
Radio Programmes and Stars

By JACK HIRSHBERG

TICKER TAPE

It remained for raging torrents of maddened waters to brush away the artificial gloss with which radio in general is usually clothed and to reveal broadcasting and broadcasters in their true light this week. As floodwaters in the midwestern states crashed through the man-made barriers, carrying death and destruction in their wake, they swept carefully-rehearsed comedy and well-worn dance rhythm off the air, and filled the skies with unscheduled drama in their stead. Verily, the air has pulsed with drama these past few days — drama so thrilling that even the most intrepid worker in fiction could hardly hope to mold a tale so crammed with thrills, excitement, suspense.

Broadcasters blessed with ample power remained on duty day and night, flashing calls for help, appeals for apparatus, messages of mercy, reports of rescue. Amateur operators co-operated with their big brothers in the realm of transmission, operating their makeshift sets from rooftops, boats, and threatened embankments where they collected much-needed information and statistics and radioed these in their confined wavelengths to huge commercial stations who edited the matter and rebroadcast its major content to eagerly-waiting listeners in every hamlet and metropolis throughout the continent. Radio led the work of rescue and rehabilitation while the world caravanned, amazed, awed, astounded.

And with it all studio executives and smooth-voiced artists were not exactly inactive. Let's see what is happening along Radio Row . . .

Charlie Dornberger, back in New York from the New Kenmore in Albany, heads for Florida in an attempt to avoid the current Manhattan heat wave and signs to lead his orchestra for Phil Baker on the famed comedian's network series from Miami. . . Rudy Vallee continues his series of personal appearances in the eastern states, Agnes Moorehead, once ravishing blond siren of the screen, hits the bottom of the ladder and accepts a staff position with a low-powered Gotham station, the resultant stipend a minute fraction of her former income from motion picture work. . . L. S. B. Shapiro, Manhattan correspondent of The Montreal Gazette, captures a contract for the new tobacco-sponsored show through CFCF, and will be heard Sunday afternoons at 5.30 on a nationwide network from the NBC studios in Radio City. . . Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone, famed comedy team of stage and radio, make the step from variety to drama and will co-star in a Radio Theatre adaptation of "Brewsters Millions" through CKAC February 9.

Sally Sage, best-looking songbird to hit town in many a month, flies up from Des Moines and joins Lloyd Huntley's crew at the Mt. Royal Hotel. Athletically inclined, Sally hopes to master the art of skiing, but is dismayed with the lack of snow regionally whereas four feet of snow adorn the highways of her home town in Iowa. . . Frank Parker, the popular tenor once starred by Jack Benny, shifts his scene of activities to the New York stage where he is currently appearing as Wyoming Steve Gibson in the musical show, "Howdy Stranger." Parker has never seen Wyoming, but that makes little difference. Local radio stations cooperate with southern networks and flash appeals for financial aid from the flood-stricken areas, more than $50,000 being collected on the basis of Montreal broadcasts announcements. . . Bob Pierce arranger for Ray Noble, rushes here from New York to add some dash and finesse to the hackneyed efforts of the Bon John Girls at Loew's. . . Jessie Owens, Olympic track flash, signs for a twenty-week one-night-stand tour as leader of a jazz band for an estimated sum of $100,000, and will sing and dance as well as wield the baton. . . Jackie Coogan inaugurates a new series of dramatized programs through NBC facilities from the west coast, the first step on a comeback trail which may again lead him to starring roles on the movie lots. . . Half-hourly station breaks are dispensed with during the weekly broadcasts by the Metropolitan Opera Company, a special ruling by the Federal Communications Commission permitting opera and symphonic broadcasts to continue uninterrupted.

EXAMINER FORUM

In Which

Subjects of General Interest are Discussed

NOTE:—The opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily those of the Examiner, and this newspaper does not accept responsibility for them. They are published for their general interest, variety and originality of treatment.

By HOWARD S. ROSS, K.C., D.C.L.

Sir William Beveridge, head of the London School of Economics, thinks that Great Britain is industrially on the crest of the wave and that a depression will follow—probably in 1938.

"Let us avoid vague abstract words such as 'force', 'arms', 'collective security', 'international police force', and think exclusively in terms of concrete contemporary reality. The contemporary facts are planes, tanks, high explosives, thermite and vesicants. Is it conceivable that we can use such instruments ad yet retain our freedom and free institutions?"—Aldous Huxley.

Lord Horder, physician-in-ordinary to former King Edward condemns "both hordes of barbarians who impose a tard civilization on mankind." He adds: "A plague on both your houses, red or black! When individual freedom has been sacrificed, I see no chance of achieving that control in the spiritual sphere through which alone I think salvation can come to us. What matters the color of men's shirts if these are soon to be their shrouds?"

The Brooklyn-Nassau Presbytery matched the outspoken stand of their Methodist brethren in Syracuse when they protested the action of the president of Queens borough in barring Communists from meeting in public buildings. They deplored "such tendencies which are denials of the right of free expression and assembly." Rev. Warren Darnell said it seemed "totally out of order for a local official to assume the role of a fascist dictator."

"And while talk of the retirement of Mr. Bennett is rife, the question of the successorship to Right Hon. Mr. King is often discussed. The logical choice and the strongest man in the government today is Hon. Charles Dunning, but he is said to be anathema to the Ontario Wing of the Liberal Party. In fact, he was not permitted to secure a seat when he entered the Cabinet as Finance Minister, after the election. Report has it that Premier Hepburn is being groomed to succeed Prime Minister King, and the purchase of The Toronto Globe by his friends was a step in this direction. However, it may be assumed that Rt. Hon. Mr. King is in no retiring mood, and his health being spared, he will function for a considerable time to come. In fact, politics is his avocation in life and he has been successful to the nth degree."—Sydney Post-Record.

Non-Fiction Reading Gains Much Headway in Canada.—A survey of public libraries by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows more than 21,000,000 circulation in 1935. The cost was $2,000,000 or about 18 cents per head of population. The Bureau shows that by spending 38 cents per capita on libraries in the U.S.A., 3.7 books per person are lent there in this year. In Canada with less than half that support, libraries lend two books. In Great Britain the figure is 4½.

Premier Mussolini has decided to abolish existing Italian courts of law, substituting state committees and socializing the legal profession, one of the most important changes in 20th century jurisprudence. Cases involving monetary considerations connected with certain products—such as wheat, automobiles, transportation and the like—will be settled by committees of guilds embracing those products. Labor matters will be settled by labor committees. The lawyer's function will be to ascertain the truth in a case and present facts to the jury clearly without passionate appeals on behalf of a client.

Rev. Dr. Ernest Thomas of the United Church, who is not enthusiastic over admitting women into full ordination as ministers, gave an interview at Ottawa recently in which he said: "An ordained woman minister will be very popular until she is 35 years of age, but after that she will be at a disadvantage, and the church will have to find a place for her." Calvary Church Notes

The coming week-end services in Calvary Church, Greene Ave., and Dorchester St., Westmount, will be of unusual interest, for in addition to the fact that at the morning service all officers and members of committees for 1937 will share in a special service of dedication, the centenary of the birth of the great evangelist Dwight L. Moody, will be commemorated with gratitude and thanksgiving; while at the evening service, the attention of the congregation will be called to the fact that Sunday, February 7th, will mark the 125th anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens, whose writings made so great a contribution in the realm of social ministry.

The preacher at both services will be the Minister, the Rev. T. W. Jones, who will take as his subject at the morning service, "Inspiration and Challenge from the Story of Dwight L. Moody—the Man, his Mission and his Message."

The service of dedication will form a part of the morning exercises of worship, which will be followed by the Communion of the Lord's Supper and the reception of new members into the fellowship of the church.

At the evening service Mr. Jones will preach on the theme: "Social Passion and Evangelical Fervour" as expressed in the writings of Charles Dickens, and in the life work of Dwight L. Moody.

On Monday at 7.30 the members of the Y.P.U. will meet at the church to proceed to St. Andrew's United Church, Lachine, to pay a return visit to the Y.P.U. of that congregation.

On Wednesday at 8.15 the regular meeting of the W.M.S. will be held in the Church Parlors. Mrs. H. F. Sloan will introduce the new study book "Men and Women of Far Horizons" and will lead the discussion upon its message.

THRUST UNHEEDED
The buttonless husband contemplated his jacket, which he couldn't do up. It occurred to him that he might get something done by a little appropriate sarcasm. As he was about to go shopping with his wife, he remarked:
"Oh, by the way, remind me to get some needles and thread while we're out, dear."
His wife gave him a dazzling smile.
"You silly, extravagant man," she said. "You can always borrow mine, you know."

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN

The Island That Was A Ship

ON Ascension Day in 1501, Jose da Nova, Portuguese navigator, anchored off the rocky shore of a small island that stood out almost in the middle of the South Atlantic. He called it Ascension, but it was not until 1815 that a British garrison occupied it. British ships stopped there, and their captains became commanders of the island.

From 1844 to 1922, as a result of this practice, Ascension Island actually was under control of the British admiralty and was listed in the admiralty records as a "ship." It was used officially as a coaling station. In 1922, however, the island was placed under the jurisdiction of St. Helena, some 800 miles to the southeast. Its population is only about 300, and its chief attractions are the many green turtles that are picked up on its shores, and the "wide-awakes" or "sooty terns," that breed on one of the island plateaus.

BOOK REVIEW

by HOWARD S. ROSS

JAWAHARLAL NEHRU
An autobiography with musings on recent events in India. Publishers, John Lane, The Bodley Head, London, G.B., with 13 plates in colotype. Price: 15 shillings net.

This book was written in prison except for the postscript and certain minor changes. The primary object was to occupy the author's time, so necessary in the long solitude of goal life, as well as to review past events in India so that he might think clearly about them. He began the task in a mood of self-questioning and this persisted throughout. If the thought of an audience it was one of his own countrymen. He tried to trace his own mental development. He warns us that the book is wholly one-sided and, inevitably, egotistical and that many important happenings have been ignored and many important persons who shaped events have hardly been mentioned.

The author, one of the most important figures of modern India, was educated at Harrow and Cambridge, and called to Bar. He returned to India to follow in his father's footsteps as a lawyer. The law held great prospects for him; but he very soon became a centre of the great social, economic and political movements which surged through the new India and of which Englishmen at home perhaps hear very little. His ideas and activities brought him into conflict with the British authorities, and he has suffered imprisonment seven times since 1920. This is often the lot of reformers. Nehru, however, bears no malice towards individuals Englishmen or officials, and the 600 pages of this autobiography are remarkable for their quiet restraint and objectivity and for their freedom from any bitterness.

The Society for the Protection of Women and Children has recently issued its report for the year 1936. It is replete with figures and information concerning the work of the Society carried on during the past year. The Society was active in many fields, including legal assistance, civil court cases, juvenile court work, and various social work.

J. J. O'Grady Told Rules Of Debating

turn, by the remaining two speakers, who are then known as "lawyers." This "cross-questioning" form of debating is becoming increasingly popular in both the United States and Canada.

Following Mr. O'Grady's address, the members of the class were called upon to show their prowess in the art of public speaking, and each gave a two minute talk on a controversial subject of his own choosing.

Wilf Spearman, executive secretary, was in the chair, and announced that Lovell C. Carroll would be the speaker next Monday, and his subject, "Special Speech Forms," including toasts, introductions, replies, etc.

SPOKE ON SUNDAY

A strong tendency to blame "the mayor and the council" for civic trouble was attributed to the average citizen of today by Rev. T. W. Jones in addressing a meeting of the Brotherhood Federation in St. Paul's United Church on Sunday. The same average citizen refused to make the welfare of the city and of their homes a living interest, he declared.

It's all very well, to set the alarm of personal complaint, said the speaker, "but unless the 'clock' of our personal interest and our personal loyalties is kept functioning, there can be very little advance in civic, national or international affairs.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH NOTES

On Sunday evening Rev. F. W. Kerr will preach on the "Use and Abuse of Money." He will deal especially with the question that has been the topic for discussion in the Alpha-Omega Society, of how far is a man justified in making all the money he can. At the morning service he will continue his studies in the Fourth Gospel, his topic being "A Blind Man Healed."

At the annual meeting of the congregation held Wednesday evening, Mr. Howard Cliff was elected president of the Board of Managers for the current year. Mr. George Hunter was elected honorary secretary; Mr. Lemuel Custing, honorary-treasurer, and Mr. Allan McDougall, assistant honorary treasurer. Mr. Chas. E. Frosst, Jr., was elected chairman of the Missionary and Church Work Committee.

A financial summary presented to the congregation shows that in 1936, the amount of $24,667 was spent by the congregation for local purposes, while $21,382 was donated to charitable and missionary causes.

Group To Discuss Library Project At King's School

King's Westmount Home and School Association to Hear Miss Kathleen Jenkins and Mr. J. W. Perks Tell Advantages of School Libraries, and Methods Of Organizing and Operating

What promises to be one of the most interesting meetings of the season for the King's Westmount Home and School Association will be held on Monday evening at 8.15, when Miss Kathleen Jenkins, librarian in charge of the Westmount Public Library, and Mr. J. W. Perks, Principal of Bancroft School will be the guest speakers.

It has been proposed that the members of the Association augment the nucleus of a school library by donating books that they enjoyed during their own school days, and that if necessary, the Association donate some of its funds for this purpose.

Miss Jenkins and Mr. Perks will speak on subjects allied with this project. Miss Jenkins is a graduate of McGill and of the Library School there, and is president of the Quebec Library Association. She will speak briefly on the advantages a library affords children, and the many uses to which it can be put.

Mr. J. W. Perks has been instrumental in the establishment at Bancroft School of an excellent library for the pupils' use, and will tell the meeting of the methods employed in forming such a library, its aims and results obtained.

A question-and-opinion period will follow the addresses; anyone interested is invited to attend the meeting.

Delegates

(Continued from page 1) quired to keep a record of all purchases and persons from whom these purchases are made, over a given period. At present, thieves can steal gold objects and melt them down before selling, as no record is kept of purchases, it is difficult to trace thefts. The new system would effectively dampen this practice, and provide a sure and simple system of tracing thefts of gold articles.

In the delegation were Brig. Gen. E. Draper, Chief Constable of Toronto and George S. Guthrie, deputy Chief Constable of Toronto; Deputy Director Barnes, of Kingston, Ont.; Chief Joliat, of Ottawa; Inspector Grant, of the Ontario Traffic Police; A. H. Cadieux, of the C.P.R. Investigation Department, and George Shea, of the C.N.R. Investigation Department.

Popular managing director of the Mount Royal Hotel, who recently purchased, with associates, the Prince Edward Hotel in Windsor, Ontario. Calvary Church Held 60th Annual Meeting

The postponed annual meeting of Calvary Church was held Wednesday night, and the reports of the various officials were read. It was revealed that 56 new members had been enrolled during 1936, making a total of 607 resident members and 51 non-resident. Sunday School enrolment stands at 532, Dr. H. V. Driver, secretary stated.

The church treasurer, T. Haugland, and Reginald Gordon, missionary treasurer, in their statements showed that $9,417 had been raised for current expenses and $2,150 for missionary and benevolent purposes through the regular church channels, while the total income from all organizations, including the W.M.S., was $14,500, of which $3,000 was spent in missionary and benevolent work. Through the diamond jubilee fund of Calvary already $800 had been contributed to reduce the mortgage, the reports indicated.

Officers elected were: Church secretary, Dr. H. V. Driver; church treasurer, T. Haugland; missionary and benevolent fund treasurer, R. E. Gordon; Sunday school superintendent, F. N. Stephen; organist, G. W. Cornish; W.M.S. president, Mrs. F. N. Stephen; Y. P. Union president, Colin McClements; chairman diamond jubilee committee, J. D. Ross.

Chamber Music Concert Proved Very Enjoyable

The Harisay String Quartet, with Miss Olga Guilaroff as guest pianist, rendered, as usual, a very enjoyable programme at the fifth meeting of the Friends of Chamber Music Society held on Tuesday evening in the Windsor Hotel. The Society, which numbers many prominent Westmount residents among its supporters, is seeking more members from this district, and new members may join for the remaining half of the season at a reduced rate. Mr. Charles Hazen, Arlington avenue, is the president.

Haydn's Quartet, from Opus 3, No. 5, was the opening selection. The andante cantabile movement was particularly well rendered, and the artists seemed to take as much interest in playing this selection as the audience did in hearing it played.

Miss Guilaroff, who is all too seldom heard in public, played Schumann's piano quintet, from Opus 44, with taste and delicacy, not failing to give the more vivace parts the necessary strength. Dvorak's quartet, Opus 51, was memorable for the romance movement.

The next concert of the Society will be held on February 23rd.

Westmount High School Notes

By M. S.

Mr. Brian Cook, the well known English lecturer, who is touring Canada as guest of the National Council of Education, will deliver a lecture in the near future before the Westmount Teachers Association at Westmount High. He will take as his subject "London-today and yesterday." Principal Parker is hopeful that he may be able to induce this noted speaker to address the scholars of the Westmount High on a subject that would, no doubt, be of great interest to them.

At last our school is in line to have its own orchestra. It is now probable that action will be taken shortly to carry out the wishes of the scholars in this respect, and it is understood that Mr. H. Norris, musical director is prepared to supervise the organization. The first essential to the success of the orchestra is an interest in music and attendance at every rehearsal.

The teachers and scholars are looking forward to the presentation of three short plays during the second week of March in the school auditorium. Rehearsals are now being held, and judging by the enthusiasm displayed, there is a great treat in store for the entire population. These plays are original and on the humorous side with many incidents that will create much laughter. The preparations for this big night are under the supervision of the Dramatic and Debating Society, while Miss B. Truax has kindly consented to direct the offerings.

Be prepared to spend an evening with William Shakespeare when the court scene from the Merchant of Venice will be enacted by an all star cast composed of fourth and fifth year pupils, as the main attraction of their annual entertainment. This scene, it is said, has been radically altered to give greater scope for humorous incidents and to allow the performers to misinterpret the action as Shakespeare wrote it. The farce is under the direction of M. Greenberg. Comic songs and recitations will round out the programme. This gala offering will be presented on Thursday, February 18.

The prospects for a greatly increased sale of the Westmount High Magazine is most promising. This annual, which is published in June, will give a full idea of the work accomplished during the present year. Prizes will be awarded to the girl and to the boy who secures the largest number of subscriptions.

TIBBETT FILLS UNHAPPY ROLE

A stage stiletto in the hands of Lawrence Tibbett, world famous singer, flashed through the air during rehearsal at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. Tibbett was beset (as pictured above) by questioners eager to fathom the mystery. Investigation absolved him of blunted stiletto cut a two-inch gash in the hand of Joseph Sterzini, 50-year-old choral singer. Five hours later Sterzini died in the hospital. After a performance in Newark, Tibbett was beset (as pictured above) by questioners eager to fathom the mystery. Investigation absolved him of blame.

TITANIA'S PALACE

By Sir Neville Wilkinson

Of fairies and sprites, and such wonderful sights,
We have stories enough and romances;
But I'll tell you one new, which is strange and yet true,
Though t'others are nothing but fancies. —BROME.

Many years ago I sat one day at my easel in Mount Merrion wood. I was drawing the trunk of an old sycamore tree while my baby daughter, age three, played on the sunlit moss by the twisted roots. I was startled by a cry of excitement from the little girl.

"Daddy!" she cried, pointing with her chubby finger to a hole down among the roots of the old sycamore tree, "I saw a fairy queen fly down there; where did she go?"

I replied that if it was a fairy queen she had seen, she must have been returning home to her palace underground, where she and her children, and Prince Consort Oberon, lived happily together among the treasures of Fairyland.

"Can't I see it?" came the quick appeal. Being a fond and foolish parent, I replied, as any one of you as a father would have done in my place: "Yes, darling, I'll show Titania's Palace."

It was a rash promise, for it took me and my little assistant, Tommy Lennon, 16 years of hard work before we completed our task of reproducing above ground the Fairy Palace of our imagination.

At last it was ready to be sent on its travels, and on July 6, 1922, it was opened by Her Majesty Queen Mary with a golden key, and since that day it has travelled without ceasing, all the world over. For her friendess Queen Titania of Fairyland consented to occupy her new home only on condition that it was devoted to the welfare of the crippled children of the human race. She and her subjects are no longer idle sprites who sleep through the daytime and dance the night away in fairy rings under the moonlight.

The Queen herself has adopted a role near akin to that of The Angel of Pity, while the dainty inhabitants of her realm, over which the moon never sets, have become her helpers.

The Palace, with its 16 rooms, filled with the most marvelous treasures of tiniaft, collected from all parts of the globe, has already travelled more than 70,000 miles on its mission of mercy and has already collected more than $330,000 for the helpless little bruised blossoms of humanity to whom it has been dedicated. More than 1,300,000 persons have already paid their respects to Queen Titania during the last 14 years. Starting its overseas adventures in Philadelphia at the Sesqui-centennial exposition, it has since visited almost every great city in the United States. For six weeks day by selling delicacies at the recess period. This sum is being presented to the American Red Cross to aid work in the flood areas.

This quotation, as everybody knows, ends with the words spoken to the cripple: "Arise and walk!" —From the February issue of The Rotarian.

YOUTH CONFERENCE AT CENTRAL Y.M.C.A.

Impressed with the value of "adventure" as a means toward getting a greater benefit and value from life in general, more than 100 local boys and young men disbanded Sunday night last after a three-day conference which commenced Friday. The Older Boys' Conference of Montreal and District conducted at the Central Y.M.C.A. under the auspices of the boys' work committee of the Quebec Religious Education Council is an annual meeting held to discuss and prepare for the organization of boys' work in general in the city.

Victor G. Baker, representing a young men's group from Calvary United Church, was elected president of the conference for the year 1937. Ross Simms was named vice-president and William White, secretary-treasurer. Both the latter represented McVicar Memorial Church of Outremont.

The conference theme was "Life's Adventure" and conference leader was Gordon Lapp, National Boys' Work Secretary of the Religious Education Council. Mr. Lapp who comes from Toronto is a former premier of the Ontario Boys' Parliament.

Opening the conference with an address on "Personal Christian Living" Mr. Lapp recounted the life of the international figure, Nansen as an example of how adventure may be used to promote humanitarian feeling and stronger resolve for a better life. The boys were filled with ideas and suggestions on the improvement of life as a whole on to make living much better and enjoyable.

On Saturday the boys divided into groups to discuss the topic of "Adventure in Personal Living." With the aid of detailed questionnaires they were given a set of standards which they use in making decisions. The boy's doings ended with a banquet addressed by J. M. C. Duckworth. The speaker used the lives of Lindbergh, Kingsford-Smith, Gandhi, Roosevelt and Sherwood Eddy to exemplify the importance of determination and courage in the struggle for existence.

Group discussions on the topics of "Adventure in building a better community," and "Adventure in Wider Fellowship" and an address by Mr. Lapp on "The Greatest Adventure of All" completed the conference agenda.

John Pearson, Boys' work secretary for the Quebec Religious Education Council did much of the preparatory work for the conference.

The Dandy Cleaners, Reg'd, invites your inquiries. The telephone number is WALnut 5255.

Protest

The route is roughly as follows: Along The Boulevard to Renfrew avenue, a turn on Renfrew, Douglas and Murray Hill, and back along the Boulevard to Cote St. Luc Road and thence into northern Notre Dame de Grace. This would provide a means of transporting passengers from the heart of Montreal to northern N.D.G. through Westmount; a transfer could be made from the tram line along The Boulevard to the projected bus route, and thence down the hill.

A contemporary weekly newspaper, covering Notre Dame de Grace, has stated that the Westmount angle is based upon "a selfish" point of view. It is hardly so when one considers that Westmount would be called upon to bear all the disadvantages of such an agreement with none of the benefits.

The district which the projected route would serve is already fed by several tramway routes running over three lines of track, and a bus route. The tramway line along Queen Mary Road to Snowdon and down Girouard avenue; the line along Sherbrooke street and up Girouard avenue; and a thrice-daily service into the territory along the St. Henri-Girouard route. A good motorbus service already exists along Notre Dame de Grace avenue.

That the residents of Notre Dame de Grace desire a more adequate transportation service is no reason for planning to run buses through a quiet, residential district fully three quarters of a mile away. To operate this service would of necessity bring a larger flow of passenger traffic over the existing street car route along The Boulevard from Cote des Neiges Road; this in turn would require more cars at certain times of the day, and it is felt that to make The Boulevard, running as it does through a purely residential district, should not be made into any more of a through highway to the west end than it is, regretfully, at present.

Boys' Brigade Held Enrolment Service At Melville Presbyterian Church on Sunday

The First Montreal Company of the Boys Brigade held its enrolment service Sunday at 3 p.m. in Melville Presbyterian Church at which time the following officers were officially installed: J. Howard Richardson as captain, with Robert Baker, H. K. McKee and O. Channon as lieutenants. Representatives were present from nearly every Montreal Company. All local companies turned out in full.

The address was given by the chaplain, Rev. Wm. Orr Mulligan, who, as a lad, was connected with the 24th Belfast Company of the Brigade. He outlined very vividly the benefits he had derived from the movement and hoped the boys would keep its high standards constantly before them. The official membership cards were presented to the boys by the chaplain, immediately after the service was concluded. A brief outline of the "aims and objects" of the B.B. was given by the president of the Montreal Officers Council, Wm. S. Belsou.

The company is looking forward to this evening when the classes will be continued in efficiency work. Swimming tests will be taken by the Board of Examiners appointed by the battalion and it is expected that a number of our boys will be successful in qualifying for the first award. A life-saving course has been prepared and will commence almost immediately to be run jointly with Company No. 8 of Ephraim Scott Presbyterian Church.

The Women's Social Service Organization held their third anniversary luncheon at the Montefiore Club on Wednesday, Jan. 27th. Rabbi C. Bender spoke on "A Ramble Through Jewish Literature." He mentioned the Bible being more than a religious book, is more often a constitution for civilization dealing with moral, ethical, political and social aspects of life. The speaker then showed the development of the literature of the Jewish people. Following the Bible, which was written in Hebrew, the Talmud was compiled in Aramaic, in a period of several centuries and then continued in Greek, Arabic and recently in German. Crowning all these achievements was the Golden Age of Spain. Miss Liola Logette rendered vocal selections accompanied by Mr. Jacob Rosenmarin. For filling the most booklets Mrs. Machlovitch received a prize which was donated by Mrs. B. I. Fainer. A general report of the year's activities was read by Mrs. Siblin.

Speedy Battleships Being Built By Britain, U.S. Relies On Guns

London.—Great Britain's two new battleships, laid down early in January on Tyne-side and Merseyside, will be unlike any warships ever known before in the British navy.

They will be five knots faster than any dreadnaught Britain ever has had, and probably faster than the famous battle cruiser Hood. They will mount a new type gun of a calibre the British navy has not used previously.

The ships will have 5 inches of armor plate on the decks as protection against the largest known aerial bombs. They will carry far more aircraft for launching from catapults than any existing ship.

In contrast to the two mighty floating fortresses will be two new United States battleships recently authorized. Specifications for these two ships, as made public by the Navy Department, revealed that America will adhere to its traditional policy of putting big guns and heavy armor ahead of speed.

The two U.S. ships, whose keels will be laid early in the summer probably will have a speed of 26 or 27 knots. Britain's new battleships undoubtedly will have speeds well above 30 knots, although it is not known definitely just how fast they will be.

Designs for modern battleships have been constantly under study by the Admiralty construction department in recent years. Twelve different designs have been produced ranging in size from 25,000 tons to fantastic fortresses of 80,000 tons.

Word from Washington is that the two new U.S. ships will not exceed the 35,000-ton limit set by the Washington Naval Treaty, although it no longer is effective.

Since the last naval conference it has been universally accepted that new battleships would be

Film Based On Life Of Great Showman Is Finest Screened

Now Showing At Westmount Theatre Until Saturday— Will Be Seen At Both Seville and Monkland Starting Wednesday Next

In "The Great Ziegfeld," now at the Westmount Theatre until Saturday, motion pictures have picked up the torch where the late Florenz Ziegfeld laid it down and have succeeded in out-Ziegfelding the great Ziegfeld himself. This feature plays at both the Seville and Monkland starting Wednesday.

"The Great Ziegfeld" has everything that a great musical picture should have. It has, in the life of Ziegfeld, a most gripping and perfect dramatic story. In its musical numbers, never before produced on such a scale of grandeur, it has many of the most dazzling scenes ever seen in pictures.

In entertainment alone it rates just about 1000 percent. First, there are William Powell as Ziegfeld, Myrna Loy as Billie Burke and Luise Rainer as Anna Held.

Then there are Virginia Bruce as Ziegfeld's greatest glorified American Girl, Frank Morgan as his rival producer, Nat Pendleton as Sandow, Reginald Owen as Ziegfeld's manager, Fannie Brice as herself, Ray Bolger and his amazing dancing feet, Harriet Hector, and herds of the most beautiful girls ever to smile at you from the screen.

The story opens in Ziegfeld's youth in the dazzling Chicago World's Fair of 1893. It progresses as Ziegfeld himself progressed, massing fortunes, to lose them and build other fortunes. But always in the foreground are the spectacular Ziegfeld productions and his amazingly beautiful show-girls.

The dance numbers never before have been equalled. The direction of Robert Z. Leonard places him among the kings of directors and the photography of Ollie Marsh

THE WEEKLY STORY

TIMELY SIGNS

Mary Calvert was aware of someone standing beside her desk. A covert glance through her long lashes told it was a man. She busied herself rapidly fingering through a sheaf of papers, reluctant to look up and speak.

Another of the endless stream of men looking for positions, she thought. It seemed as though everyone wanted to work for the huge food concern. The man's patience began to annoy her; he stood there without uttering a word, making a sound, not even the usual clearing of the throat to attract her attention.

"Yes?" she said as she finally looked up.

She saw a man of average stature, clear blue eyes framed with a myriad of wrinkles at the corners and having in their depths the peculiar far-away expression of those who gaze into great distances. She had noted that same expression in sailors' eyes yet this man, although his face was tanned deep mahogany, did not appear to be a sailor. When he spoke his voice was startling in its depth. He said: "I would like to see Mr. Antrim."

It was a simple statement in a firm tone that implied its speaker was accustomed to seeing whom he pleased. Mary noted a firmness around the mouth, a set to the chin that spoke of determination. She parried:

"Mr. Antrim is a very busy man. What is it about, please? I'll see if he can see you."

"Advertising— aerial advertising."

"I'm afraid you will have to see our agency about any advertising," Mary answered. "They take care of all that."

"No, I must see Mr. Antrim personally," he responded.

"I'll see him but I'm afraid he will be too busy," Mary said as she arose and entered Antrim's private office. Her judgment did not err. "Too busy," Antrim snapped.

Re-entering the reception room, she shook her head, smiled and informed the man that Mr. Antrim was engaged and could not see him.

"I'll wait then," he said and took a seat before Mary could speak. For a moment she busied herself with papers and then turned to face the caller. Somehow he intrigued her. There was an air of calm confidence about him, a quiet determination that interested her. She wondered why she had smiled at him when she had returned from Antrim's office with the refusal.

"Maybe if you would tell me in detail about what you wish to present to Mr. Antrim I could arrange an interview," she suggested.

The man's eyes lightened, his face broke into a smile as he hunched forward in his chair.

"We have developed a new advertising medium, one that will attract attention wherever we use it and reach millions here in the city. We can tow great signs behind an airplane. It's new and novel to advertise the company's food products. You wait and see—in a few years there won't be a big game or a daylight event where people gather but what you'll see planes towing signs around the spot! I want to get a contract to cover the country for Mr. Antrim while the idea is still new and novel. It's the best idea he's had presented to him yet!" Then, smiling sheepishly, he added, "That is if I can get to see him."

"You say you tow a huge sign behind your plane?" Mary asked, her interest awakening.

"That's it. One about two hundred feet long! Not quite that maybe, but mighty big and long."

For a time he spoke rapidly, explaining his idea. His face was animated, he forgot himself in his interest in the subject. Mary found herself developing a like interest and with a shock she realized she was beginning to feel a desire to help this man.

"You know, you haven't told me your name!" she said. "I went in to Mr. Antrim without it. Good thing he didn't ask me who was calling!"

"Rusty Mahoney's my name."

For brief intervals while Mary attended to her work they continued to talk. She did not have the heart to tell Rusty that his chance of seeing Mr. Antrim was remote. Finally he arose and announced that he had to return to the field but would call in the afternoon of the following day.

After his departure Mary caught herself thinking of Rusty. He was peculiar. For a man possessed of the courage to fly and do the things he had done he was strangely quiet, even shy when speaking to her. She found it refreshing. She felt to wondering how she could help him bring his project before Antrim. She knew that Antrim made it a point to never interview people about advertising unless it was a matter of major importance. She was ashamed of herself that she had not made this plain to Rusty yet she had in some unaccountable way found it difficult to tell him. He was so interested and sincere, so keen about his idea.

The following afternoon Rusty again adorned the "mourner's bench" in the waiting room. Again they talked while he waited for the chance to interview Antrim which Mary knew would never come. Her feeling of guilt increased yet she could not find the words to tell him that his hope was vain. Then, as he left:

"Say," Rusty stammered, "I know you may think I'm pretty forward but— I wonder if—if you have nothing else to do would you care to have dinner with me tonight? There's something I'd like to discuss with you if I might."

Over the coffee that evening Mary found the courage to explain to Rusty that his quest of an interview was nearly hopeless and his best chance was to see the advertising agency. But he showed a stubborn streak. He was going to see Antrim if it took a month!

"Start at the top and you'll get somewhere! Why see the little fellow when the big fellow makes the decision?" Together they began to plan a means of "crashing" Antrim's office.

In the following weeks they found much to discuss in the evenings. Yet Antrim's office remained inviolate. Mary began to sense that by now Rusty's interest in the discussions was far more than selling his idea to Antrim. Time and again he seemed on the point of speaking only to end by stammering some inanity and changing the subject. Mary knew only too well what he wanted to say! And she longed to hear him speak the words. But, strangely, this man of courage was stricken speechless when he tried to say them!

"Rusty," she exclaimed, "I've an idea I think might work! You fly over towing a sign and I'll get Mr.

see it for himself! A demonstration! I'll pretend to be all excited and rush into his office and ask him to look! Have you a sign you can use?"

Rusty's eyes half closed, a calculating look came in their depths, then a slow smile spread over his features.

"Swell, Mary! That's an idea Let's do it! I'll have a sign made up tomorrow and I'll tow it over in the afternoon of the day after!"

Mary could hardly wait. Then on the fateful afternoon as she picked up the phone, she heard Rusty's voice:

"All set? I'm ready and taking off in five minutes. Be over there in about twenty minutes from now!"

Mary watched the clock. Eighteen minutes later she entered Antrim's office.

"Excuse me, Mr. Antrim, but can you spare a minute? I have something I'd like you to see? Just step to the window, please."

Puzzled with this odd request, Antrim arose and walked over to the window. Mary's heart was in her mouth. Suppose Rusty weren't there! She couldn't hear the roar of the motor over the noise of the traffic. Tensely she looked upward out of the open window. Antrim followed the direction of her eyes.

Then Mary's heart skipped, almost stopped and her face became a deep red! Rusty was there! There was no doubt of it! She wished he wasn't! For, high in the sky was a tiny plane towing a great sign and on the streaming banner was the legend: Set in great block letters—MARRY ME? Rusty had found a way to convey the message he was afraid to speak!

"Hummm!" exclaimed Antrim. "It is novel, isn't it?"

It was an hour later that Rusty slid into the office, an eager light in his eyes. Mary steadfastly busied herself with her work. He stepped over by her desk. Then, on a clean sheet of white paper he saw a rough pencil sketch. It was of a tiny plane towing a great sign and on the sign, in huge block letters, was YES!

"Mary!" he exclaimed as he vaulted the railing and took her in his arms. Unnoticed the buzzer from Antrim's office rang and rang. Then, still unheeded, the door to his office opened and they heard his voice:

"Hope you'll pardon the interruption but really, I have some work that must be done, you know."

Guilty they looked up. Antrim smiled. He said: "Come into my office, young man. Your idea seems rather worth the while. At least, you have given me a convincing demonstration of its selling power!"

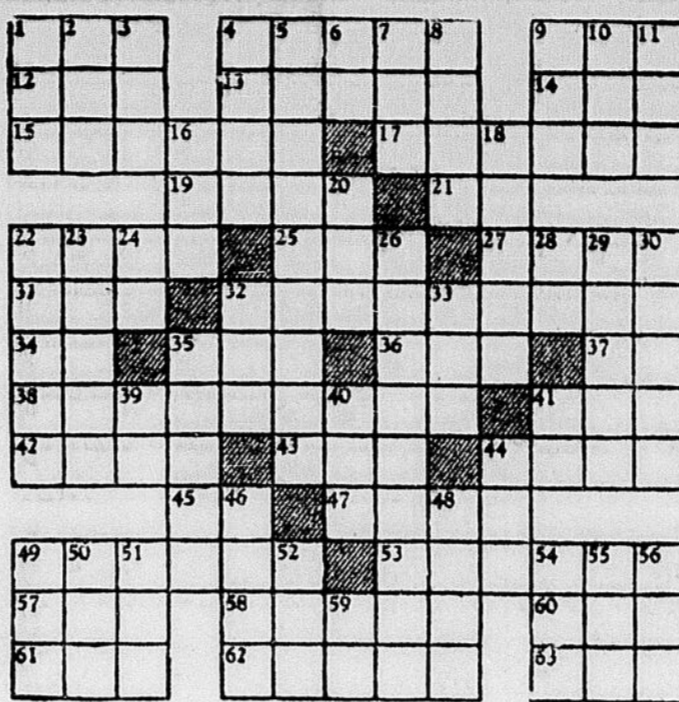

Over 750 reservations have already been made for the banquet to be tendered by the Association of Restaurant Keepers of the Province of Quebec to Hon. Joseph Bilodeau, Minister of Commerce and Industry, on Monday at the Mount Royal Hotel. The banquet will commence at seven o'clock.

What People Are Interested In About Home Building

by DOUGLAS C. WINTER
(Member, Royal Architectural Institute of Canada)
Notre Dame de Grace

ARTICLE 7

Normal people, during their waking hours, like to maintain physical and mental activity not only to keep fit in body and mind, but also for the sheer joy of living in the middle of things. But even the stoutest heart must nightly woo Morpheus, "tired Nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep." Many are greatly surprised when told that they spend about one-third of their lives in bed. In terms of house-planning this means that the bedroom is in use about four times as much as the dining room and two to three times as long as the living room. Yet a study of many homes and house plans would indicate that after the ground floor had been determined the bedroom floor had been left to take care of itself. This is particularly true of many plans published in some of the popular magazines. One bedroom is often given excessive floor space while the remaining rooms are so small that the furniture is cramped and little or no space remains for movement. This is one of the inevitable results of ill-conceived planning due to lack of skill and training in a science which is by no means as simple as it is commonly believed.

In a large house, where the smallest bedroom is of ample size for normal use, it is not unreasonable to make the master bedroom considerably larger and with added amenities. The trouble is that in attempting to carry out some of the luxurious features of the large and imposing residence in a small or average home, some of the really important necessities are bound to suffer. A proper balance must always be maintained between essentials and luxury in home planning, and this is doubly important when funds are strictly limited.

One of the sanities demanded by modern planning is that utility must outweigh other considerations. This does not mean that style and grace have been thrown into the discard, but that they find their truest expression when an object of utility is designed so as to function with the maximum efficiency. Whether one is designing a simple object such as a box or a fork, or something much more complex as an automobile or a house, the primary consideration is, will it do the work required of it in the quickest, easiest and best way. Now, a bedroom is used principally for rest and sleep, but also for dressing, doing the "daily dozen" and more rarely as a sick room. In the majority of homes clothing is kept in the bedrooms. While it is possible to do all these things in almost any room, the maximum satisfaction can be attained only where the room is specifically planned for the purpose; which means that the wall space, doors, windows and closets should permit of the best arrangement of the necessary furniture, that adequate room for movement is provided, that the windows are placed and proportioned to give the best lighting and ventilation and that other features are taken care of ed wherever the furniture is placed. It is a great convenience to have a telephone in the bedroom, and for that purpose the house should be properly wired during erection so that a movable telephone set may be plugged in when desired.

In the larger homes a dressing room or cloir fitted with wardrobes and built-in dressing tables and mirrors is a good feature, but where space is limited their incorporation in the plan involves too much cramping of the bedrooms. The modern tempo of business and its demand for punctuality has invaded the home and makes itself very apparent when the various members of the family are preparing for their departure in the mornings. Not many years ago one bathroom was considered ample for a large home, but to-day it is often felt to be insufficient for the six or seven roomed house. In fact, the provision of only one bathroom will definitely limit the marketability of a house in the better localities. Built-in tubs with showers, ample wash bowls and silent toilet fixtures, tile floors and walls and metal medicine cabinets are now demanded as standard equipment. However, there can be a vast difference in the methods of installation. If properly done no serious trouble will arise for many years and minor repairs due to wear and tear will be easily and economically done. But if the job is skimped or carelessly done, it may look just like first class work, but much trouble, inconvenience and trouble lie ahead. There is a very wide range of good plumbing fixtures to suit all purses and their fittings, which are interchangeable, may be secured in nickel, chromium and other metal finishes. A new type of bath tub has made its appearance which is approximately square in shape with the actual bath on the diagonal and so arranged that one may wash in a normal sitting posture. There is also sitting space at the near corner at the top of the tub and an ample shelf area at the opposite corner for utensils. Other fittings such as sitz-baths, bidets, needle sprays, scales, heaters, built-in towel bars, bath grips, tooth-brush and glass holders, coat and strap hooks, razor blade receptacles and numerous other accessories are obtainable, most of which are essential in a truly modern home.

Opening off the main hall or one of the bedrooms a sunporch arranged with suitable screens will prove a boon to those who like sun-bathing, for use when they cannot get away to the beaches or other resorts.

INDIA WRAPS GOODS IN USED PAPERS

Ottawa. — Where do old newspapers go? This is a logical question when one considers the many millions of copies turned out from the thousands of presses throughout the world. They are liable to turn up in all sorts of places.

Surprising as it may seem, a Canadian making a purchase in one of the bazaars of India may have his parcel wrapped in a newspaper that had performed its function as a newsheet in Canada. Nearly half of the paper imports into India consist of old newspapers.

Music Review

By Critic

The first thing which strikes a visitor to the orchestra this season is the larger number of people who attend from the west of this city. It is a welcome sign that almost always the house is "sold out."

The programme Sunday began with Brahms' "Tragic Overture"; although the music is sombre and does not strive for sensuous appeal, it is hardly tragic, but serious. This composition with its logical evolution created a serene and settled atmosphere against which to show Arnold Bax's Third Symphony, a modern Neo-Romantic composition. The symphony showed what the orchestra could do, Douglas Clarke obtaining the real orchestral effects demanded.

Bax with a full palette at his command introduces startling changes and contrasts. Not only in this way, but in rhythmic and dynamic changes and complexities, the symphony is very difficult to give, and an orchestra a few years old does well even to tackle it, but the Montreal Orchestra gave a performance of this work which should make every Montrealeur proud.

The next item was for violin solo with orchestra accompaniment—namely a violin concerto. The visiting solo violinist was E. Valasek, a very young Hungarian, making his first Canadian appearance with Mendelssohn's extremely difficult Concerto. The difficult passages, he performed creditably, whilst the more lyrical parts showed his ability to go beyond mere virtuosity and interpret five music, with passion not cramped, but intensified in the channels of musical, scholarly restraint. The concert ended with a good rendering of Wagner's Prelude and Liebestod from the opera Tristan and Isolde.

At the next concert the first symphony is to be heard of the greatest composer in Canada—Healey Willan, whose name is well-known in England, and deserves to be known at least as well in Canada.

Every Thursday (9.45-10 p.m.) there will be broadcast from Tudor Hall a short talk with supporting musical programme, to acquaint the public further with the details of the Quebec competition music festival. These will begin on Thursday with Mr. Morris Wilson (Hon.-President), President of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Owing the proximity of Lent the next organ recital by John Reymes-King has been arranged for Tuesday, at 8.30 p.m. Items will also be sung by a Boys' choir.

1. Fugue, Frescobaldi.
2. Jig and Haymakers Dance from "The Fairy Queen" and Trumpet Voluntary, Purcell.
3. Boys' Choir — Hymn 139 (The Passion Chorale). Organ Preludes on: — (a) Tune similar to Passion Chorale, Delphin Strung; (b) Passion Chorale, J. S. Bach; (c) Passion Chorale, P. Kellner.

4. Slow movement from "The Unfinished Symphony", Schubert.
5. The Great Gate at Kiev, (from "Tableaux d'une Exposition") Moussorsky.

6. Boys' Choir — "Brother James' Air".
7. A Sea Song and to a Wild Rose, Macdowell.
8. A Folk Tune, Percy Whitlock.

Westmount And Westhill Seniors Play 1-1 Tie On Tuesday; Game Was Fast

Buddy Hellyer Saved Day—Jack Fry Stopped Many Dangerous Shots—West Hill On Offensive Throughout Contest — Line Ups Given — Future Games Announced

By Doug Laing

On Tuesday the Westmount Seniors played West Hill High School and tied them 1-1. If Westmount had lost to West Hill, the purple and white would have had West Hill trailing close behind. The last senior games are: Feb. 9, at Forum against Strathcona at 4.00 p.m., and Feb. 15, at Forum, against L.C.C. at 4.00 p.m.

Buddy Hellyer saved the day when he took Benison's pass and shot the puck into the nets. Jack Fry did excellent work in stopping many dangerous shots. The West Hill team were on the offensive throughout the whole game, and staged many fierce charges.

Buddy Hellyer was given a penalty at the beginning of the first period for tripping. Fry made a couple of nice saves when the West Hill team put on a lot of pressure. Both the teams were about equal during this period. The second period saw the West Hill team open up with all they had. They pressed the purple and white lads pretty hard for the first five minutes when West Hill's forward line converged on Fry and after an exciting scramble right in front of the nets, Southwick swept the puck into the nets. The Westmount team played with four men on the forward line, and at 15 minutes of the second period Benison, after getting through the defence, passed to Buddy Hellyer, who slipped the puck into the nets.

Doug Small was given a penalty for high stick, and Caldwell, of West Hill, sat in the penalty box for tripping.

MAINLY ABOUT SNOW

Definishun: Sno is that ob- ject of which up to now we ain't had much. Ennywayz, we now have sum, so thats that.

Snow is one of the many forms of water. (Ice, water, restaurant coffee, etc.) It is formed by the freezing of minute raindrops in the air, where no pressure is exercised; this results in the formation of crystals, which group together and fall as snowflakes. It has been said that no two crystal- line formations of snow are the same; of course, they follow the mathematical rules set aside for crystallization of water, but in design, they are all different.

And here we have old man Winter showing off for the benefit of readers of "Mainly About". See his wintry blast; see his cold shoulder; see his wintry mantle; (through the window, over the fireplace.)

Perhaps some of you have wonder- ed—someone is always wonder- ing about something—why snow will crunch under your feet on a cold day, and yet won't on a mild day. The reason is that when pres- sure, in the form of your boot, is applied, the tiny snowflakes will generate heat between themselves, which causes them to melt. If the weather is so cold that this heat is absorbed as fast as it is formed, the flakes remain dry, and rub against one another, causing the crunching noise; if the weather is mild, the heat is not absorbed, and the flakes just melt, which does away with the noise.

Snow as we see it on the streets, is not the same substance that finds its way into snow puddings—and snowbirds are not made of snow. (Just in case you didn't know.) Strange as it may seem, snow-men are! Well, anyway.

We are very fortunate in hav- ing Mr. Denis Dinkelberg as a guest writer this week. Mr. Dinkelberg's uncle Patrick manufac- tures Dinkelberg's famous Digestion Cakes.

It's a funny thing about snow; we're always glad to see it come, and we're always glad to see it go. It has its uses, despite its many disadvantages: it protects seeds, plants, etc., from the bitter cold of winter; it keeps us healthy by cleaning the air; it provides good sport, such as skiing and snowshoeing; and it makes skunks—those little kittens with the B.O.—hibernate. So after all, even if it does make you sweat—espe- cially when you see it piled three feet high against the garage door—it is a good thing.

Next wik, the subject will be "grammar." O rewar!

The Westmount Track club, organized last fall, looks forward to much activity during its first com- petitive season.

2 SNO

By Denis Dinkelberg
Oh, snow is such a gentle thing, It tumbles from above, It lights upon the branches bare And sizzles on the stove—stuv. (pardon us)

It finds its way infallibly into our shoes and socks. That's better than the summertime, When they are full of rocks.

It clogs the cuffs of men's long pants And lodges down your neck; It flows beneath the kitchen door And makes you cry "Aw heck!"

You tramp it through the house and home You leave it in the halls, It makes a splendid weapon When you roll it into balls.

It wets our hats and overcoats It sinks down in our collars And when it clogs our sidewalks up It costs the city dollars.

Record Attendance At Saturday Games Proves Hockey Popular Sport

Preps and Juniors Schedule at Murray Park and Roslyn School Rinks Brings Out Y Members En Masse — G. Harrison and Jack McCreath Winners in Junior — Cocoanuts and Chestnuts Prep Victors

By Stuart Hunter

The boys of Westmount Y proved Saturday that outdoor hockey is their favourite sport by turning out in numbers that have made the four teams of the Preps and Juniors hardly adequate to give each boy a game. At Murray Park among the Juniors, G. Harrison defeated Tommy Greenshields by the score of 4-2. In the second game Jack McCreath was a little better than Don Ellis, defeating him 3-2. As the score indicates, both games were quite close and the final result was never positive until Jim Kearney, the official in charge blew the final whistle.

At Roslyn School where the Preps were holding forth the Cocoanuts beat the Peanuts by 6-2. John Pearson was the individual star for the Cocoanuts scoring four goals. The other two were scored by J. Wright and C. Cameron. G. Henderson counted the only point for the Peanuts. The Chestnuts won the second game from the Walnuts.

The popularity of the outdoor hockey at the Y this year has made it one of the most important parts of the programme. The attendance has become so large that it may be necessary to form some extra teams. If this is found to be the case, Mr. E. I. Taylor, Boys' Secretary, is considering forming a miniature National Hockey League. This would be especially appropriate since each week it is intended to have some famous hockey star up to coach the boys in the proper way to become good hockey players.

Next popular water-sport will be water-skating. He recently patented water-skates; bags of rubber that look like miniature sailboats when inflated. Strapped to the feet, they are used like ice-skates. Better wear a bathing-suit, though.

scored the only goal. Many pen- alties were handed out. Penalties: Low, Kulkin, Dal- leish of Verdun High; Bennett, Fisher of Westmount.

WESTMOUNT HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

By DOUG LAING

Juniors vs. Verdun

On Saturday the Juniors played Verdun High and lost by a score of 2 to 1. The Juniors were handi- capped by the absence of their regular goalie, however, the purple and white's substitute goalie, Penny, saved many shots from slipping into the nets, although it was his first time in goals. Porter scored the first goal, but soon after Hill shot the puck past Penny. Higgins scored the decid- ing goal for Verdun High.

W.H.S.—Penny; I. Fraser, Porter; Wood, Hellyer, Wallace; subs: W. Fraser, Riddell, McRae.

Verdun — Drummond; Moore, Higgins; Hill, Griffiths, Donald- son; subs: Wade, Hunt, Strike.
