World News In Brief

Manila — (AP) — Customs authorities said they arrested a China-born Canadian today on charges of trying to smuggle 22 gold bars worth about $17,000 to Hong Kong.

They identified him as William Ernest Jolliffe, a 37-year-old business man. A customs spokesman said Jolliffe was arrested at Manila as he was about to board an airliner for Hong Kong. They said the gold bars were strapped around his waist.

Vatican City — (Reuters) — The Pope said today the Roman Catholic Church would not object to Protestant and Catholic countries joining in a European political union. But he stressed that no Catholic individual or government may in any circumstances encourage practices or teachings which contradict the moral and religious beliefs taught by the Catholic Church. In a 70,000-word speech to a Congress of Catholic Jurists, he said the over-all good to be obtained by United Nations of Europe would justify a carefully defined degree of religious and moral tolerance.

Yokohama — (AP) — Ralph Desfano, a Boston barber whose soldier son was once engaged to a self-styled cousin of Emperor Hirohito, left for home with his wife today.

They sailed aboard the Japanese ship Hikawa Maru for Vancouver along with the uncle and aunt of the soldier. Sgt. Peter Desfano, 28, created a flurry in Japan when Boston newspapers reported he was to wed the emperor's "cousin" in elaborate ceremony in the imperial palace in Tokyo.

Before the soldier's father and mother arrived, Japanese newspapers revealed that the fiancée was not what she pretended to be.

The soldier broke off the romance.

Six Persons On Missing Plane

Sept. 11, Que. — (AP) — A two-engine Anson aircraft with a pilot and five passengers aboard today was reported missing north of this town, 360 miles northeast of Quebec City.

The plane, which disappeared Sunday night, is the property of CMMK Construction Company, builders of a 390-mile railway linking Sept. 11 and Knap Lake, centre of Ungava's iron ore mining development.

Pilot of the missing plane was identified only as Stapely. Names of the passengers, all CMMK employees, were withheld pending notification of their families.

At Mont Joli, Que., an official said a storm prevented search planes from taking off at Sept. 11, although the weather was clear up the railway line.

Canadian Fish For Korean Aid

Ottawa — (AP) — The Canadian government has contributed 1,000 tons of salt cod valued at $300,000 to the United Nations emergency relief program in Korea, it was announced today.

The fish will be shipped from Halifax and it is expected the shipment will be completed by the end of the year, the external affairs department said.

The relief program was inaugurated by the UN command soon after the outbreak of hostilities in 1950. With 36 countries participating, it provides immediate relief in the way of food, clothing and such things as medicine.

Sub-Zero Weather Hampers Vicksburg Rescue Workers

Vicksburg, Miss. — (AP) — Rescue gangs worked in freezing weather today in a grisly hunt for additional victims of Saturday's vicious tornado that took at least 30 lives.

The temperature dropped to 31 degrees in the heatless city and frost covered lawns and other open ground in outlying areas.

National guardsmen on guard duty built fires from the debris that littered the streets.

The two latest victims died in hospitals today and authorities said at least eight other persons remained on the critical list.

Dawn brought the noise of steam shovels, bulldozers and shovels after a heatless, shivering night for the 23,000 residents.

The most serious cases among the 230 injured were crowded into Vicksburg's four main hospitals, warmed by blankets and electric heaters from the city's homes.

Civil defence and military leaders estimated the damage at $2,000,000.

Heavy Toll Of Children In Theatre

Vicksburg, Miss. — (AP) — The children were sitting at the front of the theatre, as they always do.

The movie was about the south seas, with plenty of action, romance and scenery.

A rumbling shook the building. Bricks and concrete fell. The roof caved in. The theatre became a tomb for living and dead. It took only seconds.

Childish screams sounded, muffled by the roar of a tornado that killed at least 28 persons Saturday night, injured 230 and left Vicksburg looking like a battlefield.

Almost 24 hours later, three little girls were taken from the rubble. They were dead.

At least two others died in the movie house.

Tottering walls hampered searching operations through the mass of wreckage. Rescue workers feared they would find more bodies.

"We were buried about 3 1/2 hours," said Mrs. George Mitchell, in charge of a group of little girls. "It was about an hour after they got my head uncovered before they got me out." She is six months pregnant.

Nine-year-old Roger Powers was sitting in the front row when the theatre collapsed.

"I pinned me under the seats with a lot of other guys. It seemed a long time before they pulled me out. Just my head was sticking out."

And 12-year-old Dalton Glatt was sitting beside his brother, Robert.

"I saw the wall fall in. I jumped under a seat. I thought my brother, Robert, had jumped under, too."

He looked around, but Robert wasn't there. He was killed.

Routine Resumed On Royal Voyage

Aboard The Gothic — (AP) — The light-hearted ceremonies of crossing the Equator and an opening air church service were the week-end highlights as the royal liner Gothic bore the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh toward the Fiji Islands on their round-the-world tour.

The Queen, who crossed the Equator on her South African tour of 1947, looked on Saturday as the Duke lent a willing hand in initiating newcomers to King Neptune.

And his court.

In the blue and white apron of an "assistant barber" of Neptune's court, the Duke gleefully shaved several members of the royal entourage into the ship's swimming pool and got thoroughly drenched himself.

The Sunday morning church service was held under an awning on the forward games deck with the royal party in attendance. The master of the Gothic, Capt. David Aitchison, conducted the service and Vice-Admiral E. M. C. Abel Smith, flag officer royal yacht, read the lesson.

The stop at Fiji will include a visit to the neighboring island group of Tonga, where the Queen will renew her acquaintance with six-foot Queen Salote, who won the hearts of Coronation-day crowds last summer by spending two hours in an open carriage in the pouring rain.

Surprise announcement indicates fresh approach to knotty disarmament issue.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Tucker's Town, Bermuda — (AP) — President Eisenhower flies direct to New York Tuesday to deliver a new western challenge to Russia to join in working out a plan of disarmament and atomic control.

With the backing of Prime Minister Churchill and French leaders at the Big Three conference here, Eisenhower in a major address to the United Nations General Assembly is expected to suggest a fresh approach to the knotty international atomic problem which has been deadlocked for seven years.

The announced subject for the speech is "Perils that Confront the World in this Atomic Age."

The sudden announcement Sunday night that Eisenhower would address the UN overshadowed the shift of the talks today for far eastern problems, including France's war in Indo-China and negotiations for a Korean peace conference, and at British-American efforts to press the French for each approval of the armament of West Germany.

The Big Three talks were due to close late this afternoon or tonight.

The ailing Joseph Laniel, French premier, still confined to bed with a lung infection, also will fly home Tuesday if he is able.

Churchill, the conference host, will take off for London late Wednesday.

Eisenhower and Churchill, along with U. S. Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault, Sunday completed the drafting of a note to Russia, believed to contain acceptance of a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Berlin, possibly in early January.

The draft was sent immediately to Bonn for West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's approval.

In their examination of European problems, Eisenhower and Churchill are reported to have heard a plea from Bidault for new assurances they will maintain their military strength in Europe and will back France's demands for continued close economic union with the strategic border Saar basin, which Germany wants "Europeanized."

These were given as part of France's price for ratification of German rearmament and the projected European Defence Community.

Informants said both Eisenhower and Churchill pledged that, at this time, they have no intention of reducing the effectiveness of American and British forces on the continent.

Eisenhower received the formal invitation to appear at the UN from Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld last Friday when he arrived here. Through previous informal contact, he had let Hammarskjöld know he would accept the invitation.

The White House was scheduled today to give a new count on the number of telegrams and letters it has received.

At noon Saturday, presidential aides said they had received 4,346 telegrams, favoring McCarthy's stand approximately two to one.

On a television forum Sunday McCarthy said "both sides" should message their views to the president.

"This is not a popularity contest between Eisenhower and McCarthy," the senator said. "If it were a popularity contest, he (Eisenhower) would win it 20-1."

Politicians generally attached little significance to the "tell it to Eisenhower" outpouring of telegrams and letters to the White House.

They said McCarthy had selected an emotional topic and had demonstrated that he could bring a vigorous response from the public. On the other hand, the incident showed Eisenhower maintains his pulling power.

An Associated Press sampling of newspaper editorial comment showed them about 5-1 upholding Eisenhower's position, with about one-third of the editorials non-committal.

The ceremony was Claxton's first official act since his arrival in the United Kingdom by air Saturday. Sunday night he and Mrs. Claxton had dinner with Field Marshal Alexander, Britain's defence minister, and Countess Alexander, at their country home in Surrey.

Claxton's schedule called for a visit today to the RCAF bases at North Luffenham, Rutland, and Langar, Nottinghamshire, where he was to have presented Coronation medals to four Canadian airmen. But fog closed in and plans were changed, the minister deciding to fly straight to Germany.

In Germany, Claxton will inspect the new Canadian army headquarters at Soest, comprising four main camps dispersed over some 40 miles of rolling Westphalian countryside. He will also visit RCAF establishments in Germany and France before going on to Paris for the meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization starting Dec. 14.

The Runnymede memorial was opened by the Queen Oct. 17. It was designed as a tribute to the more than 20,000 Commonwealth airmen who fell in Europe during the Second World War and have no known graves. The total includes 3,722 Canadians and 26 from Newfoundland.

Talks Still Dragging On Korea Truce

By GEORGE MACARTHUR

Washington — (AP) — The chief United States delegates unexpectedly skipped today's negotiations with the Reds on a Korean peace conference and instead met with South Korean President Syngman Rhee at Seoul.

As ambassador Arthur Dean talked with Rhee, aide Kenneth Young sat in for him at Panmunjom in a meeting he termed "a move forward."

Young said all points of the negotiations were discussed by both sides but gave no indication of any concrete progress.

Dean represents 16 United Nations member countries and South Korea in the efforts to set up a peace conference. South Korea has been outspoken in its ideas on such a conference, occasionally differing with Dean's line of negotiation.

In other developments:

1. Thirty more South Korean war prisoners refused to return home, making a total of 160 who have snubbed interviews with South Korean officers. Not one South Korean has returned in the five days of explanations.

2. The head of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission said the Communists and the UN command should decide what to do with POWs who refuse to go home if the peace conference does not meet soon.

The UNC insists that they must be released as civilians on Jan. 23 even if the conference is not under way; the Reds insist that they be held until the conference discusses their fate.

The armistice terms give a conference until Jan. 22 to deal with the prisoners, but there is little indication it will get started by then.

At the present rate, the Allies probably will begin explanations to 22 balking Americans and one Briton about Dec. 14 or 15, after the South Koreans are finished.

The peace conference talks resumed today.

The dragging negotiations left Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, repatriation commission chairman, uncertain what he would do with the remaining prisoners if the conference does not begin soon.

Thimayya said he would seek guidance from New Delhi. Prime Minister Nehru already has indicated he feels the two sides should take up the question again.

RCMP set up roadblocks over a wide area in their quest for a young man who left the store immediately after Irene. A police dog was brought from Regina, 75 miles north of here.

Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Mooney of Edgeworth, 10 miles north of Ogema, was found shortly after midnight, only 300 feet from the home of her grandparents.

Her body was brought to Regina Sunday for an autopsy. Death was caused by strangulation. The child also received a severe blow on the head. There was evidence of criminal assault.

The suspect was described as in his late 20s or early 30s, with sideburns narrow at top and wide at the bottom.

Irene, with her parents and a six-week-old brother, drove from their farm home to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Don MacDonald. About 10:30 p.m. she set out for a store on the main street to buy ice-cream. Her body was found near a stable.

New Move To End Strike Is Underway

New York — (AP) — Federal mediators came out of surprise talks with union representatives early today and scheduled new negotiations in the 10-day strike against six major daily newspapers.

Walter A. Magglio, general counsel of the federal mediation and conciliation service, asked both sides to be on hand for the resumption of bargaining sessions at 10:30 a.m. EST. He said they agreed.

Magglio called for the talks after meeting Sunday night with representatives of the AFL Allied Printing Trades Council, whose members have refused to cross picket lines set up by the AFL International Photo-Engravers Union.

The Photo-Engravers struck in a dispute over wages and other contract issues. About 400 photo engravers are involved, and their picket lines have kept out 20,000 employees belonging to the CIO American Newspaper Guild and the pressmen's, stereotypers', printers' and mailers' affiliates of the Printing Trades Council, and other unions.

Sunday brought two key developments in the strike:

1. Resumption of publication by the New York Herald Tribune, the only one of the city's major newspapers not involved in the engravers' dispute. The Herald Tribune, which stopped publication a week ago in sympathy with the other papers, put out Sunday and Monday editions of eight pages each.

2. Spirited activity among representatives of the two sides as mediators twice scheduled joint negotiations which did not materialize. In both cases it developed that officials of various unions involved were meeting secretly and unexpectedly with Magglio and other mediators.

Strikebound are The Daily News, The Times, The Daily Mirror, The Post, The Journal-American, and The World-Telegram and The Sun.

When the walkout started, the engravers were asking a $15 weekly wages—hours-vacation-welfare package. They have since halved the demand. The publishers have offered a $3.75 package. Current base pay now ranges from $120 a week for day work to $131 for night work.

The Herald Tribune is not involved in the wage dispute because its engravings—the metal plates from which photos and other illustrations are reproduced—were made by an outside commercial plant.

Side-Burned Man Sought For Slaying

Ogema, Sask. — (AP) — All available RCMP officers combed southern Saskatchewan today for the sex slayer of Irene Mooney, blond six-year-old who was sent to a store for ice-cream Saturday night and was raped and slain on the way home.

RCMP set up roadblocks over a wide area in their quest for a young man who left the store immediately after Irene. A police dog was brought from Regina, 75 miles north of here.

Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Mooney of Edgeworth, 10 miles north of Ogema, was found shortly after midnight, only 300 feet from the home of her grandparents.

Woman Ends Forty Years In Mission

By KINGSLEY BROWN JR.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax — (AP) — In a dingy dormitory of this city's "poorhouse," Lily James vowed to dedicate her life to making unfortunate people happy.

That was more than 40 years ago, when the pretty girl in the tight-waisted, ankle-length dress hurried to the City Home daily to read to a blind woman.

Since then Lily James has done a good job of living up to her vow.

She has cared for the sick, opened her home to out-of-work teen-age boys, formed clubs for displaced persons, and become a "mother away from home" to seamen.

For the last 12 years she has operated almost single-handed the Missions to Seamen, a hostel financed by the Church of England but open to all denominations.

The "Flying Angels" mission as sailors call it because of its insignia, is a big, three-story building on Barrington street, only a stone's throw from the waterfront.

It has high ceilings, long halls, steep stairs, 18 rooms and 16 beds. Miss James makes all the beds, scrubs and waxes the floors, irons the pillow cases, runs the canteen and finds time to crack a joke.

Her day starts about 9:30 a.m. and usually ends 13 or 14 hours later.

That's quite a lot for a woman who weighs no more than 106 pounds and isn't too far away from her old age pension.

"But I love every minute of it," she says. "I do it because it makes me happy. And I've been blessed with good health."

Miss James' cheeks are naturally rosy, her movements as quick as her smile, and her hair is not grey.

She's done such a wonderful job in welfare circles that George Nowlan, Progressive Conservative MP for Digby-Annapolis-Kings, referred to her last week in the House of Commons.

He mentioned her work and said that it was wrong that the Order of the British Empire should be awarded only to members of the armed forces.

During the First World War, she cared for convalescent veterans at Camp Hill Hospital although she has never had any formal nursing training. After the Halifax explosion 36 years ago, when 1,700 were killed and 6,000 wounded, she looked after 12 adults and 24 children for six months in an emergency shelter.

In 1921 she took her crusade to the big immigration sheds, where for 18 years she made life happier for immigrants and those kept in detention through technicalities.

The first survivors of a torpedoed freighter in the first months of the Second World War were entertained by her. When the first evacuees came from Britain Miss James was there to greet them with candy and fruit.

"My biggest thrill was when the Archbishop of Canterbury visited the mission during the war," she says. "He said to me: 'God bless you for what you are doing for our seamen.'"

Her only hope is that "there'll be a 'Flying Angels' mission on Barrington street after I've gone."

London — (Reuters) — A 42-year-old priest today made this appeal to the people of London: "If you are thinking of committing suicide, phone me and I may be able to talk you out of it."

When he recovered consciousness, he said, he was in the back of the car with the girl bunched in on top of him. Wilson said the man who slugged him drove the car to another east-end laneway.

The bandit stopped the car, went through the girl's pockets, then took her out of the car and placed her in the trunk of another car.

He then drove away, leaving the youth dazed and helpless.

The girl's father joined in the search, scouring roads in the district for hours.

Marion, who works for a photo-engraving firm in Toronto, is five feet three inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, has blonde hair cut short and is round faced.

Youth Slugged, Girl Friend Kidnapped Outside Toronto

Toronto — (AP) — A province-wide search began today for a 17-year-old girl and a man reported to have kidnapped her.

Police of suburban Scarborough Township said they were told that Marion Joan MacDowell was taken at gunpoint from her boy friend's car on a lonely side road Sunday night by a masked man. The boy friend, James Wilson, 19, said he was slugged by what he thought was a gun butt.

Wilson was treated later in hospital for head injuries. Police questioned him most of the night and said they have no reason to doubt his story of the abduction.

Officers said robbery was also involved in the abduction on the city's eastern outskirts.

Wilson was forced to hand over his wallet, containing about $10,

Hollywood—Behind the Screens: Jimmy would have a horrible death in the flaming wreckage of an automobile or in a fall from some dizzy height.

But sudden death wasn't in his script. Lantern-jawed, big-muscled Jimmy died peacefully in bed of leukemia after a two-year illness. He's probably still blushing about it because for 25 years he flirted with death as the greatest movie stunt man of them all.

Jimmy Dundee's specialty was automobile crackups. He'd flip a car over at 60 miles an hour just to show you he could do it. One of his prized possessions was a piece of white marble, chipped off the Lincoln Memorial, when he overturned an auto on its steps for a movie scene.

I don't remember Jimmy ever being injured, or hardly scratched, in his many spectacular auto crashes, or other movie stunts. But a movie director got the scare of his life when Jimmy staggered from an auto crash several years ago. He was holding his stomach and yelling that the pain was killing him.

"What happened, Jimmy?" the white-faced director rushed up asking.

Jimmy stopped yelling, grinned at the director, who didn't know about his sense of humor, and said: "I swallowed my gum."

More Movie Stars On TV
Corinne Calvet was the latest victim of the horrible "comedy" sketches being dished up for movie star guests of Donald O'Connor on TV's Comedy Hour. Ralph (Man Against Crime) Bellamy also was in on the disaster and as one of the smarter private eyes, even Ralph couldn't find the plot.

I'm an O'Connor fan and the boy can't be topped as a hooper, singer and pleasing personality. But the writers of his comedy routines with guest stars are making him look ridiculous.

Fred MacMurray's just about set to sign up for a CBS radio show, "Big Joe Small." It's a comedy about the home life of a detective. . . Paul Muni, who's turned down every movie offer except a Screen Gems TV show, will return to Broadway as the star of "Home at Seven," by R. C. Sheriff, who wrote "Journey's End."

"Crazylegs," the Hall Bartlett movie based on the life of pro grid star Elroy Hirsch, is the year's big surprise on film row. A tremendous box-office click.

Guy Mitchell is taking out ads in New York disclaiming responsibility for Jackie Loughery's debts. . . Paulette Goddard will leave Alpe she shares with Erich Maria Remarque in Switzerland long enough to star in "The Vicious Circle" for Michael Carreras in London. It's a mystery melodrama.

As if things weren't bad enough for Hollywood actors with most studio sound stages idle, a new movie, "Ring Around Saturn," features a cast of "humanettes"—electronically-controlled life-size puppets.

The robots walk, talk, register emotion and do everything that Hollywood actors do. Well, almost everything.

U-Need-Us Club Holds Meeting At The Boundary

Rock Island, Dec. 7.—The U-Need-Us club of the Derby Line Universalist church met at the church social rooms on Tuesday evening with sixteen members and three guests attending.

With the president, Mrs. James Stevens, Jr., presiding, the usual reports were given and accepted following the devotional period conducted by Mrs. Carl Nelson.

Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Ruby Lanthier were appointed to take charge of the coffee hour after the worship service on Sunday morning, December 6. Final plans were completed for the food sale table at the Women's Society Christmas sale and tea.

The next meeting will be the Christmas party to be held jointly with the Women's Society at the church social rooms on December 15.

Dean Palin, of Newport, then entertained the ladies by showing his films taken while in Europe, which were greatly enjoyed by all. The serving of refreshments by the hostesses terminated the meeting.

Friends of Mrs. Frank Haskell are pleased to learn she is able to be out again after being on the sick list.

Miss Joyce Wilson, of Brattleboro, Vt., spent the Thanksgiving week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Wilson, Derby Line. Other guests on Thanksgiving Day at the same home were Mrs. Mabel Puffer and Mr. Albie Bean, both of Newport.

The Derby Line Parent Teachers club will hold a regular meeting at the McDonald school building on Monday evening, December 7, at 8:00 o'clock.

Foot-Long Sewer Rat Is Invader Of Local Home

A Record reader, who shall remain anonymous because she was so frightened and embarrassed by the events reported below, has told us of an incident that is unusual even for Sherbrooke, where field mice trot about in city streets and all manner of creatures come out of water pipes.

This householder, who lives on St. Denis Street, and in one of those houses where the bathroom is on the main floor and the bed chambers upstairs, was awakened after five-o'clock Saturday morning by a curious noise which emanated from the bathroom.

She went down but didn't discover anything so she returned to bed. About one half-hour later, she heard the noise again and this time both she and her husband got up to investigate.

In the toilet bowl was a sewer rat—an ugly monster which seemed to be one foot in length. It disappeared down the pipe.

Later, the entire family was routed from bed and congregated in the bathroom. Brooms and other hastily-gathered weapons failed to catch the speedy beast.

The neighbor's cat was then called in to meet the situation. It was locked in the bathroom with the visitor from the sewers. Later, the family went into the bathroom again to see how the cat was making out.

The cat was discovered crouching in terror before the rat which was "taking five" on its back.

Finally, the assistance was sought of the neighbor's son, a teenager who is said by his mother to be afraid of neither man nor beast.

He cornered the sewer rat and annihilated it with a broom.

Said the lady of the disturbed household: "If I hadn't seen it I would never have believed it. The thing was a foot long."

Policy Mark Set By Imperial Life

Total insurance in force in The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada attained $750 million in November, it has been announced by the company. The three-quarter billion mark was reached during the Canada-wide policyholders' service campaign which had been conducted by the Imperial Life sales force during the past two months.

Illustrative of the generally accelerating growth of life insurance in force in Canada is the record of this 56-year-old Canadian company. It took 23 years for The Imperial Life to reach its first $100 million in force, seven more years to reach its second $100 million. In recent years the company has been adding insurance in force at the rate of approximately $100 million every two years.

C. B. C. Governors Advise Local Paper Be Granted TV Broadcasting Licence

Ottawa.—The CBC board of governors today advised that the government grant television licences to La Tribune Ltd., French-language newspaper in Sherbrooke, Que., and Ralph H. Parker, operator of radio station CFPA in Port Arthur, Ont.

The board recommended for the second time that further action be deferred on applications to operate privately-owned television stations in Peterborough, Ont., and Charlottetown.

Referring to the Peterborough application by Brookland Company Ltd., the board said it "feels that a recommendation on this application should not be made until the next meeting in order that the applicant may ascertain whether very high frequency channel number 12 can be allocated for use at Peterborough."

On the Charlottetown application by Island Broadcast Company, the board said it recommends deferment "for provision of full necessary information by the applicant." The applicant, K. S. Rogers, operator of radio station CFCY, Charlottetown, was unable to attend public hearings on the application last week.

The board's announcement also contains recommendations for new privately-owned radio stations at Camrose, Alta., and Drummondville, Que., but said the government should deny similar applications from two men for a privately-owned station in Corner Brook, Nfld.

Daniel Chantal of Drummondville was the applicant recommended for a 250-watt station at 1340 on the dial.

The television applicants would join 14 other private broadcasters in the television field. Two are on the air — CKSO Sudbury, Ont., and CFPL London, Ont. In addition, the CBC operates stations in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa and plans others in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Halifax.

The board recommended that other applications for stations in Port Arthur and Sherbrooke be denied. One came from Donald C. Clark, Port Arthur business man who outlined to the board last week plans for a station owned jointly by himself and the Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

The second Sherbrooke applicant was Col. Leopold Chevalier, financier and real estate man.

In its recommendation on the La Tribune application, the board said the proposed station "would extend national service coverage as well as providing local service."

La Tribune Ltd., should be

COMMENTS ON PUZZLE NO. 27

EXPLANATION OF MORE DIFFICULT CLUES:

- TIRED is best. It certainly doesn't help when he's TIRED. On the other hand it's expected that he'll be TIRED. It's not so good.
- YEARS is best. The clue implies that this is something a woman can normally be expected to try to hide — such as her YEARS. Women are usually only too anxious to communicate their YEARS. YEARS is not good.
- NOSE is best. "May be found" suggests that this is a matter of taste. A sharp NOSE that some may find quite handsome may be found by others to be displeasing. As regards NOTE, it is universally agreed that a musical NOTE should be of true pitch—not sharp or flat.
- FEW is best. As it stands, "NEW inventions" in this sentence means ALL of them, but in fact it is relatively FEW that meet with acclaim.
- PEACE, certainly, as regards PLACE, it depends what SORT of PLACE, and what he DOES there.
- MOVE is best because MOVE applies best if he's not happy about his JOB. MORE is best because he's not satisfied with his INCOME.
- SEE is best. The mention of "eyes" points strongly to SEE — also, SEW applies practically entirely to women.
- DESK is best. Wood used in a DESK "is generally" well seasoned. It is IMPERATIVE that that used in a DESK should be — there is no "generally" about it.
- STARE is best. A SCARE is likely to shake ANYBODY'S confidence, but a SCARE is a nervous person is likely to be so affected by a mere STARE.
- LEARNED is best as it DESCRIBES a person. LEARNER defines not describes a person.
- RETAIN is best. If she is still a STAR she still HAS popularity; there is no question of REGAINING it.
- CRIMES is best. "Very serious" is superfluous for CRIMES, which are ESSENTIALLY very serious CRIMES. It is the very serious CRIMES, such as murder, that tend to be given prominence.
- POEM is best. A mediocre POEM will CERTAINLY never become immortal, but a mediocre POET MIGHT, eventually, do something which might immortalize him.
- AIMED is best. No matter how well TIMED a blow is, it cannot be a K.O. unless it is AIMED. A well AIMED blow, on the other hand, can mean a knockout even if it is not perfectly TIMED. So AIMED gets the preference of the two.

France Muffed Opportunity

A good many seasoned observers, looking at Europe in the years after World War II, concluded that France could have made itself the leader.

Britain, shorn of big portions of its overseas empire, stripped of capital reserves, its vaunted trade suffering anemia, had to fight the battle of austerity. Its domestic preoccupations precluded real leadership in Europe.

Conquered Germany, its factories battered and its soil under the tread of foreign soldiers, seemed a long way from its old eminence in the economic world. Its overseas markets had been gobbled up by the victorious nations.

In contrast, France was for the most part spared the worst devastations of war. Its productive farms could sustain an energetic bid for European power by French industry, which was fit for new endeavors. With that effort could have come political leadership of a high order.

But France did not seize its opportunity. True, it acquired the burden of the Indo-China war. Yet that was not enough to account for its failure. The evidence strongly suggests that the French simply did not try. Industrialists made no great advances. Farm output did not climb as it might have.

Meantime, Britain after what seemed an interminable series of reversals, finally got a fresh grip economically. In the last year or more, its trade position has improved markedly.

The change in Germany has been even more remarkable. The plodding Germans, cut off by the Iron Curtain from the 18,000,000 people living in the Russian zone, burrowed out of their ruins and went back to work. West Germany's industrial recovery stands as one of the real feats of the postwar era.

As they rebuilt at home, the Germans reached out once more to re-establish lines of trade. By 1952 West Germany had climbed back to third place among major trading countries with an export surplus. Only the United States and Canada ranked higher.

For the first eight months of this year, Germany's trading surplus was greater than for all of 1952. The Germans clearly have regained stature in world commerce, and this in turn has further fed their recovery at home. They are again the economic power to be reckoned with on the Continent.

In France, this is something to lament. Looking back, the French remember how the Germans twice translated economic strength into military; they fear it may happen a third time. And so the French plead continuously for safeguards from America and Britain against this German might.

Admittedly the Germans were free to work without armament burdens. But it cannot be denied that the French let a chance go by to strike a more equal balance in Europe. Consequently, there cannot help but be an admixture of pity in the sympathy we feel toward their pleas for protection.

Moral Tone Declining?

How deep does morality run? It is not an easy question, and perhaps only the philosophers are qualified to answer it with any finality.

The question arises sometimes when disaster strikes a town or a city. Looting may be widespread, and evidence often indicates that it is not confined to "criminals" in the sense of professional wrongdoers.

Now and then a shock is felt when clothes or money or other valuables disappear from a place known to be frequented only by "decent people," meaning people reputed to be honest and well-disciplined.

Possibly the most provocative posing of the question comes, however, when you contemplate the great haul taken out of the North American stores every year by shoplifters.

Some of these, of course, are professional criminals of the most hardened sort, just plying a special branch of their trade. Many others are professionals of a different order — dope addicts who steal to get money to buy narcotics. But there are also thousands of "amateurs."

Who are they? The Washington Post recently delved into the problem in its own city. It found that after the professionals, then housewives, juveniles and grandmothers follow.

It is not a pleasant thought that moving about in Washington's residential society are thousands of women who live as "decent folk" in the eyes of their neighbors, yet steal when a convenient opportunity presents itself.

A Washington detective agency in 1952 apprehended 1241 shoplifters in the retail stores of one food chain alone. This year it is catching them at the rate of 1600 a year. And, naturally, many get away undetected. The housewife is the problem in grocery stores, with youngsters second.

This is a sad, shameful story. No doubt it can be repeated in greater or lesser degree in communities all over the continent. It gives a new dimension to the meaning of "Christmas shopping."

How deep morality goes may be a difficult question. Yet isn't it plain that the asking of it is long overdue?

GOUZENKO WRITES BIG NOVEL — JAP ADMIRAL BACK MEMORIES OF CLAPPER — 1200 MPH QUESTION

Washington — (NEA) — One of the big problems Canadian government officials have had in handling Igor Gouzenko, the former Russian code clerk who exposed the Communist spy network is that he seems to want to cash in on his experience and become another Louis F. Budenz.

As a former managing editor of the Daily Worker who broke with the Communies, Budenz is now considered a leading authority on anti-Communism.

In the eight years since Gouzenko had his 109 Soviet documents before the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, he has been kept under close protection to prevent any Communist attempts to have him murdered or to injure his family. He has lived in at least six different places. His own children are said not to know their real name.

Gouzenko is reported to have refused to testify before the U.S. Internal Security Committee because it would endanger the safety of his family and himself by breaking his "cover" as his disguise is known.

Regardless of this, Gouzenko's cover will be practically broken early next fall when his 300,000-word novel, "The Fall of a Titan," will be published by Norton in New York. Contract for the novel was signed last week. The author has been working on it four years.

Three times as long as an ordinary novel, "The Fall of a Titan" tells the story of the murder of one Mikhail Gorin, a "people's writer" whose career closely paralleled that of Maxim Gorki, Stalin, Malenkov and other Communist leaders appear in the cast of characters.

Any doubt that the war with Japan is completely over on the 12th anniversary of the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor was removed not long ago when Japanese Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura came to Washington on private business and called to pay his respects to former Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Admiral Nomura, it will be recalled, was Japanese Ambassador to Washington on Pearl Harbor day. With Saburo Kurosu, a special envoy from Tokyo, Admiral Nomura was actually discussing with Secretary Hull a Japanese note on peace in the Pacific at the very moment Japanese planes were dropping bombs on the U.S. fleet at the Hawaiian naval base.

Nomura was eager to call on old U.S. Navy friends and Secretary Hull during his recent visit in Washington and he was cordially received.

He Left Us More

Mrs. Olive Clapper, widow of famed Washington columnist and war correspondent Raymond Clapper, is now Washington director of "CARE." She tells this story about Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin:

Early in 1947, shortly after the senator came to Washington, Mrs. Clapper was having lunch with several senators' wives and other guests at the Capitol. Senator McCarthy came over to their table in the Senate restaurant, spoke to the ladies he knew and was introduced to Mrs. Clapper, whom he had never met.

The senator told her how much he sympathized with her over the loss of her husband in the Pacific and said, "You know, before Ray went on that assignment, he came to see me in Wisconsin."

At this point the senator reached in his pocket and pulled out an ordinary yellow pencil. "I carry this pencil next to my heart," he said. "Ray left it on my desk."

Mrs. Clapper says that her husband left Washington on Dec. 26, 1943, and was flown by the Navy directly to Honolulu. He was killed in a crash of two Navy planes on a combat mission over the Marshall Islands, Feb. 3, 1944.

Flying Question

Now that they have it, U.S. Air Force officials are trying to figure out what to do with the 1200-mile-an-hour experimental X-3 supersonic plane which has been nicknamed the Flying Stiletto.

Aerodynamically, the plane is said to be capable of speeds of up to 2000 or 2500 miles an hour. Unfortunately, the engines that have been built for the X-3 haven't the power to fly at those speeds.

One question now is whether to rebuild it so that a more powerful engine can be fitted, or start fresh and build another plane of the same design that would go 3000 mph.

Bible Thoughts

That every man should let his manservant, and every man his maid-servant, being an Hebrew or an Hebrewess, go free; that none should serve himself of them, to wit, of a Jew his brother. —Jeremiah 34:3.

Freedom is alone the unoriginated birthright of man; it belongs to him by force of his humanity, and is in dependence on the will and coercion of every other, in so far as this consists with every other person's freedom. —Kant.

JUST ONE FACET OF SENSE OF FAIR PLAY

THE MATURE PARENT

YOUNGSTERS' CODES ARE LIKE THOSE OF OTHER COMMUNITIES

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
As her parents were abroad, a young friend of ours spent her sophomore high school term in a residential boarding school. One morning I took a train to see her.

On my arrival, I found her and her friends in a high state of indignation. The previous week, their principal had expelled a boy and a girl whose uncontrolled necking had become too troublesome.

Though the students had accepted this action as just, they resented a new rule that resulted from it. They were angry with their principal for making certain remote woody areas of the campus "out of bounds" to all couples after dark.

I still remember what the principal told them in assembly that afternoon when a spokesman for the students had voiced their protest.

"Young people," he said, "our new rule has been made for one reason only — the protection of good will upon this campus. It has not been planned to restrict your sexual interest in each other, but to support it. Within the past weeks, we have all witnessed what can happen to a boy and a girl who refuse to control that interest. We saw a relationship that began with good will between two people end with the refusal to so much as look at one another. We saw defiance of law end in hatred."

JACOBY ON CANASTA

STUDY YOUR DISCARD-PILE RULES

One of the rules that puzzles some canasta players has to do with taking a discard pile that consists of only one card. This is against the rules only when you have a hand that likewise consists of only one card. At any other time, it is perfectly proper.

Let's make this clearer by example. You have only one card in your hand, and the player at your right takes the discard pile and makes a discard (after melding, of course). It is now your turn to play, and the discard pile consists of only one card. You cannot take that one card and meld out.

If you have more than one card in your hand, it is perfectly legal to take a discard pile of only one card. (It is usually foolish to do so, but it is quite legal.) Or, to take the opposite case, if you have only one card in your hand you may pick up a discard pile that consists of two or more cards.

A letter that came to me recently dragged the rule just described into a question that involved a different rule. "My side had several canastas on the board," my correspondent wrote, "including one that consisted of four nines and three wild cards. The player at my right took the pack and discarded a nine. My hand consisted of only two cards — both nines. Did I have the right to take the discarded nine and meld out?"

"If I am allowed to pick up the nine, do I start a new meld of nines, or do I add the three nines to the canasta of nines?"

It seems to me that melding out has nothing to do with the question. Likewise, the fact that the discard pile consists of only one card is a red herring. The vital question is whether a player is allowed to pick up a discarded nine when his side has already melded a canasta of nines.

The official laws permit this. Many players adopt a house rule that forbids it. This is one of the points that most players settle for themselves. Some prefer the official rules, and others prefer their own rules.

If you follow the official rules, there is a very clear answer to this question. The player is allowed to pick up the nine and add it to the canasta of nines.

Treasures Of King Farouk Going On Sale

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington. —(AP) — The Egyptian government has good news for anyone with a yen to own Frederick the Great's snuff boxes or the imperial Easter egg that the last czar of Russia gave his wife.

The treasures of King Farouk are going on sale. Samid Ahmed, the press attaché, said he's convinced this will be the biggest thing of its kind ever.

The auction will be held in Cairo from Feb. 12 to March 31, 1954, and although the Egyptians would like to have buyers there in person, they're also ready to accept bids by mail.

Some of the things confiscated after Farouk was dethroned: Enough stamps to make a collection filling five large safes. Eight thousand, five hundred coins and medals in gold and 160 in platinum. Also four ancient roman gold bars.

Ahmed said the money would go into a special fund "to raise the standard of living and for social reforms."

From The Record Files

THIRTY YEARS AGO

The first hanging in the history of Sweet'sburg was held this morning when Raoul Breuer, found guilty of the murder of Henri Rover, paid the extreme penalty. To the last, he maintained his innocence. Powerful petitions formed in the district and forwarded to Ottawa failed to gain an 11th-hour reprieve.

The Record has received a letter from one who complains bitterly regarding the ventilation system followed at present in the Union Station (now site of the C.N.R. station). "In winter, with the windows closed, it is the most foul and evil-smelling place I know of. . . the only apparent ventilators are a couple of keyholes in the doors."

TEN YEARS AGO

Belief that the war against Germany will be won within a year was buttressed today by the High Command accord reached at Teheran. But the military and naval officials who held this belief forsee at least two more years of fighting before Japan can be forced into the unconditional surrender decided at the Pacific war conference in Cairo.

all three nines to the canasta. There is no limit to the number of natural cards that you may have in a canasta (except that there are only eight of each in a deck of canasta cards). Players who follow house rules will probably forbidd the meld to begin with, so there would be no question of where to put the nines.

Gypsy Gold

By LILLIAN M. MITCHELL

"Gosh, Julie! You are easy-going that gypsy gal a five dollar bill for that Gypsy gold; if that's gold, I'm a busy blonde. But if it should turn the trick, let me have it next, eh?"

Julie Davis nodded. "I didn't buy it from the gypsy. I just crossed her palm with 'gold'—and that in the old days would have been five dollars. But it won't do all the work. She said to do all I could myself and then leave the rest to gypsy gold. Well, me, I'm going downstairs to the drug store and buy a big bottle of perfume and Anthony—she does like fragrance, Cordelia."

"Sure. Men do. Even rich fellows like Anthony who waste three years of a girl's time. I give up. He likes you. He has plenty to marry on. But maybe you've let things drag. A girl has to help some, you know."

At five that night Julie was prompt in leaving the office. Because it was raining, the other girls all stayed at their desks a few minutes to put everything in order. Julie, though, tipped gaily out of the elevator and towards the magazine counter of the office building entirely aware of her new coat and shoes and gloves, her nose well aware of the expensive perfume that surrounded her like an aura.

"You don't look as if the weather had you 'downed,' Julie. Anthony's been in amazement. 'You've had the only smiling face to come out of any elevator in the ten minutes I've been waiting. Kind of doped up, aren't you? Want a cab?'"

But as usual on rainy nights, no cab was to be had and so, shoulder to shoulder, they walked along cheerily until they came to a sidewalk grating that permitted a basement fan to gear. The heels of the new shoes slid unexpectedly between two of the metal strips.

"Ooo-ooh!" screamed Julie. Anthony, both arms about her firmly, held her upright. "I have you, Julie. You're not hurt, are you? You didn't turn your ankle?"

Julie shook her head and stood her ground firmly. Her eyes searching down in that dark space beneath the sidewalk grating. "I'm all right but I lost my gypsy gold piece," she said disconsolately.

He laughed. "Well, if that's all you lost, that's nothing!"

"Nothing?" she eyed him wide-eyed. "Nothing? Why, Tony, it's everything, that gold piece. It's Gypsy gold, Tony."

Obviously he got down on all fours and peered down into the dark hole. He borrowed an umbrella from a passerby and poked the glittering gold piece this way and that fruitlessly. Then the passerby with a glance at his watch said he must get along and Anthony returned the umbrella.

"Come on, Julie," he said coaxingly. "We can't get the thing out in there for keeps. Come on, dear."

Julie only shook her head. "I—I paid five dollars for it, Tony. That is, I didn't really pay five dollars but I crossed the gypsy's hand with gold before she gave it to me."

"Mister, we'll get the thing if you'll give us a half dollar for the job," said two newboys.

"Go to it, kid," said Anthony heartily. "I'll make it a dollar if you're done in five minutes."

Speedily the boys thrust chewing gum into their mouths; grinning at each other they put the damp gum on the end of a long stick and poked.

"Gee, you're a honey," Anthony told her. "You smell so sweet and fragrant and you're such a little useless—losing that gold piece like that! What you need, Baby, is someone to look after you and your possessions. Suppose I hadn't been along now? Julie, Baby, are you going to give me the job?"

"What job?" she asked him gently.

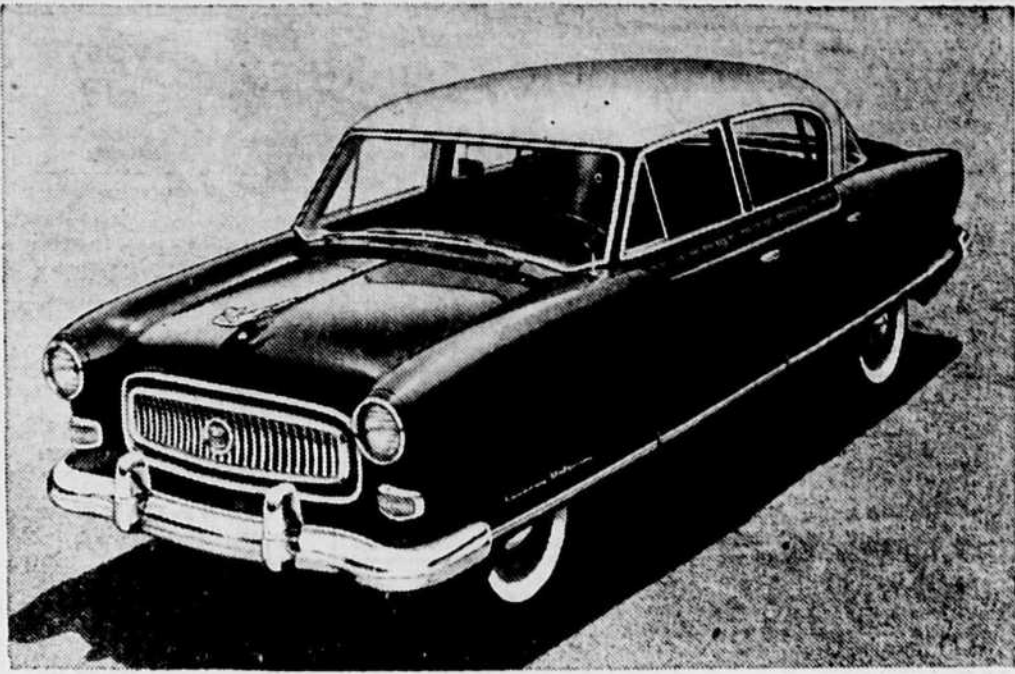

"Of being your husband and looking after everything for you," he murmured.

And Julie, blissfully unaware that the new coat was damp and the pretty collar set already crumpled, looked up at him, the fragrant odor of the perfume still clinging to her as if its work was yet to be done instead of already accomplished.

Good Painting Results

In getting best painting results, it is definitely important to let each coat of paint dry thoroughly before the next one is applied, if the best possible results and maximum protection are to be attained. Don't allow yourself to be hurried into applying second coats too quickly.

All Lit Up

THE NEW 1954 NASH CANADIAN STATESMAN—Numerous mechanical advancements and styling refinements are featured on the new 1954 Nash Canadian Statesman shown above. With the famous continental styling of Pinin Farina accenting the car's length and sleekness, new all-round visibility is provided by the one-piece curved windshield and wrap-around rear windows. To increase visibility, front fenders rise above the hood line.

A newly-designed grille, consisting of two die-casting in a modern ovoid design, highlights the car. It is powered by the "Powerflyte" engine, famous for its outstanding fuel economy and dependability. It is a six-cylinder L-head engine, developing 100 horsepower with a compression ratio of 7.45 to 1.

Like all Nash cars, the Canadian Statesman has the famous Nash-pioneered "Airflyte" construction, in which body and frame are welded together to form a single stronger, more rigid unit.

New Addition To Nash Line Is Announced

Toronto. — Nash Motors of Canada has introduced its complete line of 1954 models, featuring the all new 108-inch wheelbase Rambler four-door sedan.

The entire line has the advanced continental styling of Pinin Farina, Europe's foremost designer of custom-built cars. His styling, characterized by a low, wide and sleek appearance with fenders above the hood-line, has won country-wide acclaim for Nash.

"We believe we have one of the most diversified lines in the automotive industry today—one of which Nash is justly proud," T. S. Adams, general manager, said. "With modern styling and many mechanical advancements, these new models provide the widest selective range ever offered the motoring public in this country by any one company."

Nash models available in 1954 are: Ambassador two and four-door super sedans and custom four-door and Country Club hardtop models; the Canadian Statesman four-door sedan, and Statesman Custom four-door Country Club hardtop; the 108-inch wheelbase Rambler custom four-door sedan; and the 100-inch wheelbase Rambler custom series, including convertible, station wagons, Country Club hardtop and the two-door eight inches to the overall length of the Rambler in designing the Rambler four-door sedan, making its first appearance in the Nash line this year. It has an overall length of 193 3/8 inches, providing ample rear entrance and rear leg-room and providing extra space in the luggage compartment.

A compact custom car on a 108-inch wheelbase, the Rambler four-door sedan combines Farina's continental styling with traditional Rambler economy, performance, comfort and ease of handling. Its regular factory-delivered price includes an attractive continental rear tire mount, Weather Eye conditioned air system, radio, electric clock, courtesy lights, directional signals, foam cushions, custom upholstery and trim and other deluxe features at no extra cost.

The longer, lower and wider appearance of the new Rambler is characteristic of Farina's styling. Front fenders rise above the hood for greater visibility. Fenders continue in a smooth sweep back through the entire length of the body. A distinctive air scoop, an integral part of the hood, provides an additional flow of cooling air to the engine.

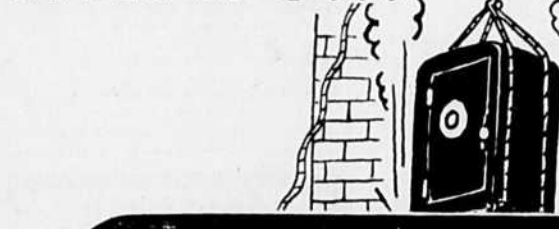

The continental rear tire mount carries the spare tire behind the rear deck, adding a distinctive appearance and allowing more space in the luggage compartment. More than 18 square feet of glass area—including a one-piece curved windshield and wrap-around rear window—gives all-round visibility in the new model.

The Rambler grille is a die-cast unit, which eliminates the rattles common to stamped grilles. The sturdy wrap-around bumpers completely enclose the fenders. The air intake for the famous Nash Weather Eye conditioned air system extends along the entire width of the hood. Die-cast tail lights are mounted on the extreme end of the fenders and extend beyond the rear deck while the fuel tank cap is flush-mounted in the left rear fender.

Power plant for this new model is an improved six-cylinder L-head "Super Flying Scot" engine, developing 90 horsepower. It has a compression ratio of 7.3 to 1, with a displacement of 195.6. Major improvements have been made in the connecting rods, main bearing oil seals, crankshaft and camshaft, exhaust manifold and ignition system.

Gander Airfield Serves Thousands Including Luscious Marilyn Monroe

By JOHN MOSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gander, Nfld. — This sprawling airport is a gateway to the new world for multitudes. In September it served about 58,000 passengers, a summer monthly average. The volume is less in winter.

Gander lies in northeastern Newfoundland, 30 miles from the Atlantic and a natural choice on the air route linking the main centres of Europe and North America.

Since builders began carving the airport from wilderness in 1936, huge expenditures have been made. Britain bore the brunt at the outset, Newfoundland then having a commission form of government under the crown, and Canada the remainder. An unofficial estimate of the total to date would be more than $100,000,000. Further millions are expected to be spent for the immediate future.

TWO-MILE RUNWAY
Longest of the three present runways is more than 1 1/2 miles. Land clearing has started for a new one, ultimately to stretch two miles and cost perhaps $12,000,000. It will be 250 feet wide and the project involves extensive grading on each side.

A major undertaking in the planning stage is renovation of the main terminal, to provide more space and better placement of air lines' offices.

Another big project, a five-year task with more than three years to go, involves a new townsite several miles from the airport. Gander is unique among the world's important airports in that all residential accommodation is near the runways. Living quarters were converted from barracks and the 6,000 population consists entirely of airport workers and their families.

Gander is a federal department of transport show, from administration of aviation matters to what are usually the functions of ordinary town officials—fire department, water, sewage, snowplowing, etc. Airport manager, Eric Winter, heads the set-up. The second in command is operations manager Rex Tilley.

Reports from the 10th (St. Pats) Pack state that Gordon Kinkead, Michael Tinker, Michael Wilcox, Ronald Wilson and Garth McVeigh passed their Tenderpad and were invested into the Pack. A new chum, Bobby Johnson, was welcomed into the 5th (St. Peters) Pack at their recent meeting and was made a member of the Green Six. At their recent meeting the Pack tried out several new games. One is a balloon game while the other is called Round Robin story. By the reactions to these games, they seemed to be enjoyed by all.

Recently the Bulwer-Birchton Troop held an outing in which they mapped a considerable portion of the Salmon River. Endeavours such as this is what keeps the "Out in Scouting."

From Lennoxville comes word that an investiture ceremony was held by the St. Georges Pack and Hilary Dougherty and Matthew Bridger were welcomed. The Troop under Skipper Ernie Trussler has secured two new assistants in the persons of Ronald Bailey and Bruce Gilliam. The Troop at Lennoxville now stands at 25 and several more boys are expected to be placed on the roll shortly. Many of the Lennoxville Scouts have been collecting used toys and books which will be repaired at the Lennoxville Boy Scout Toy Shop.

With winter near and the skating rinks opening in a short while the St. Pauls and the Plymouth Troops have formed hockey teams. To get full enjoyment out of this sport these Troops would like to challenge any other Scout hockey teams.

The 10th, and 1st Packs have made plans for Christmas parties. These parties are to be held in the very near future.

The Sherbrooke District Council has planned a scout-Cub movie night to be held in Trinity Church Hall on Friday evening at 6:30 p.m. "The Loon's Necklace," "By Map and Compass" and "1953 Canadian Jamboree" are to be shown. All Scouts, Cubs, Girl Guides, parents and friends are cordially invited.

The Toy Shop is once again being invaded by a group of enthusiastic boys who have the true Christmas Spirit in mind by repairing used toys for distribution to needy children at Christmas time. Many more toys are needed in order to continue this work. Anyone wishing to donate toys or books of any sort is asked to contact Mr. David Green at 2-2877 or Mr. James Wark at 3-3803.

land and Labrador to a position far out in the Atlantic. At these centres the position of any planes flying in the area concerned is apparent at any given time. The airport control tower is subordinate to air traffic control.

CONTRIBUTING BASIS

Operation of the mobile GCA equipment, owned by Pan American, is financed on a contributing basis by several air lines. Other companies using the facility are charged $125 per landing. The radar equipment is taken to the end of a landing and the incoming pilot is "talked" to a safe descent. At intervals through a day and night the main Gander terminal becomes a commotion of colorful activity when giant air liners discharge their human cargo. Turbaned Indians may thread their way between Dutch immigrants. Tired mothers, with babes in arms, accompany servicemen husbands. Notables appear frequently.

A Newfoundland resident chatted at length with a stranger in the lounge then went to a movie. The star he saw on the screen was the stranger, John Wayne. Another man had a talk with Alan Ladd and didn't realize his identity. The curves of Marilyn Monroe, in person, have been seen here and many other stars have had stopovers.

Newfoundland's strategic situation as the easternmost tip of North America led to development of other airports in this province and neighboring Labrador. The United States has bases at Argentia, St. John's, and Stephenville.

Services at Goose Bay, Labrador, are operated jointly by Canada and the U.S.

Women's League Annual Sale, Tea At Lennoxville

St. Andrew's Church Hall, decorated with evergreen and large red bows, took on an inviting festive air, where the members of the Lennoxville Women's League held their annual Christmas sale and salad tea. Mrs. R. Hunting and Mrs. J. G. Trenholme welcomed the many tea guests and shoppers.

The head tea table was attractively centered with red and white carnations in a crystal bowl, flanked by red and white tapers in matching holders. Mrs. Adams and Miss C. McLeod doing the honors. The small tea tables had tiny white Christmas tree centers.

Mrs. H. Turner and Mrs. H. Fowles were joint tea conveners. In charge in the kitchen were Miss C. Mackenzie, Miss F. Murray, Mrs. E. Morrison and Mrs. Wilson with Mrs. H. Turner and Miss A. McEwen arranging the delectable salads. This group were able to assist in serving by Miss W. Ray, Mrs. G. MacDonald, Mrs. Mayhew, Miss Lois Hunting and Miss E. Cathcart.

Members in charge of the various sales tables were as follows: Food, Mrs. W. J. Beattie and Mrs. D. A. Turnbull; aprons, Mrs. R. Ray, Miss A. Shaw; fancy work, Mrs. R. Norton and Mrs. H. Kendall; candy, Mrs. W. Young and Mrs. G. Matheson.

Police Seize Illegal Game

Municipal police raided a Wellington street restaurant on Saturday afternoon and seized a slot machine. Apparently, it is sometimes difficult to detect operators of illegal machines as the proprietors will only cater to "known" customers. Chief Edouard Moreau said this morning. A number of other restaurant owners are also operating illegal machines and paying their customers over the counter and police are waiting to catch them in the act before arresting them.

Woman's Purse Found In East

Municipal police have in their possession a woman's black velvet purse, containing a sum of money and other personal articles, which was found over a week ago on Park avenue. As yet no one has reported losing a purse, and Police Chief Edouard Moreau has stated that the owner can claim the purse at the station by describing its contents.

CLARENCEVILLE

Mr. A. C. Collin's many friends are pleased to hear that he is recovering satisfactory from his illness.

The Doctor Says

PURPURA IS A DISTURBANCE IN BLOOD'S CLOTTING SYSTEM
By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

Mrs. S. Writes that her 10-year-old daughter has a disease called purpura. Purpura is a disturbance in the clotting system of the blood which I will discuss in this column.

Purpura is commonly known by black and blue spots under the skin or mucous membranes. These spots are hemorrhages through the blood vessels.

Actually, there are several kinds of purpura, the classification being based largely on cause and on which of the various substances that influence blood clotting are disturbed. The treatment, therefore, depends on the kind of purpura, and one cannot answer Mrs. S.'s question in treatment without knowing which kind is involved and how severe it is, since there is a good deal of variation in severity as well as in kind.

We should all bleed to death after any tiny scratch except for the fact that the blood hardens or "clots" when it hits the air. If the blood lacks the power to clot normally there is nothing to stop the bleeding.

The opposite condition exists when blood clots form too easily or too rapidly. The formation of clots inside the veins or arteries is called thrombosis. Such clots shut off the flow of blood through the particular vessel which is involved.

Nature's method of regulating blood clotting is wondrous. At least five substances present in the blood influence blood clotting. They are prothrombin, thrombin, thromboplastin, ionized calcium and fibrinogen. When these substances fail to act on each other as they are supposed to do, the normal method and speed of clotting may be slowed or speeded.

Blood clotting may be modified to some extent. When there is a tendency to ease clotting within the body, a substance called heparin (which is a liver extract) can sometimes be used to delay clotting. A material called dicumol, obtained from spoiled sweet clover, has something of the same effect.

Some Speed Clotting
If, on the other hand, it is desired to increase the speed of clotting because of a tendency to too easy bleeding, blood transfusions, local pressure, and certain substances which can be applied locally, or injected, are sometimes helpful.

For most of us, fortunately, an almost perfect balance between too slow and too rapid clotting exists so that it is only rarely that we can improve on nature in this respect.

West Germany Sees Its Future at Stake During Big Three's Bermuda Conference

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent
Bonn, Germany.—(NEA)—The future of the Bonn Republic as a sovereign European power will be decided in the Big Three talks at Bermuda—now that Moscow has locked the door on German unity negotiations.

The forthcoming meeting of the U.S., Britain and France, to begin Dec. 4, is thus anticipated with greatest interest—and misgivings—in West Germany than in any other country of Europe.

For the Germans themselves the issue seems clear. They hope the three Western chiefs will agree at Bermuda on one of two things:

1. A sovereign West Germany as a partner in the European Defense Community and with France's consent.

2. A speedy end of the Allied occupation without necessarily waiting for French ratification of the European Army treaty.

This was spelled out clearly by Heinrich von Brentano, leader of the Christian Democratic majority in the Bonn Bundestag, in an exclusive interview with NEA.

Von Brentano, next to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, is probably the most influential political leader in Bonn. He is also the most Western-minded. Like Adenauer, von Brentano firmly supports the European Defense Community.

"Creation of the European Defense Community is essential to the whole idea of a united Europe," von Brentano told me.

He said: "We have fulfilled our part of the bargain. Bonn has ratified the EDC treaty. Now it is our fervent hope that the other treaty partners will act without further delay."

Von Brentano voiced the belief that President Eisenhower and Britain's Prime Minister, Sir Winston Churchill, will be able to convince France's Premier that the time has come to act boldly.

However, the German man-in-the-street does not share even von Brentano's mild optimism. West Germans have confidence in President Eisenhower. At no time since the defeat of Hitler has U. S. prestige been so high in the Bonn Republic.

But the ordinary German is not sure about Britain's intentions. He fears that Sir Winston, in his great desire to leave the political arena as the world's peace-maker, may even seek to throw a bone to Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov at the expense of the Bonn Republic.

There is even less confidence in the French Premier's power to make binding decisions on behalf of the French multi-party National Assembly.

Meanwhile, the Germans are, understandably, getting somewhat impatient about their status.

Sovereignty was restored to the West German Republic 18 months ago by the Treaty of Bonn. However, this treaty was linked with the Treaty of Paris setting up the European Defense Community. Neither treaty has so far been ratified by France.

Now the Germans ask: "Why should we be penalized for French internal quarrels by being kept indefinitely in the legal position of an occupied country?"

There is another reason for Bonn's impatience. Like Sir Winston, Adenauer is 78 years old. He is also a man in a great hurry. If he cannot be a new Bismarck and unite Germany in his lifetime, he wants at least to leave the rump Bonn Republic safe in the Western democratic community.

Adenauer—and this is also the view of von Brentano—fears a re-armed Germany OUTSIDE the European community. He is not confident that the young republic could control alone the forces that would be set loose by a straightforward revival of the German army and the arsenal of the Ruhr.

The clock of history has moved on since last summer when the original Bermuda conference was to have been held.

Last July Europeans were hypnotized by the idea that the new Kremlin regime might really be willing to make peace. The Bermuda meeting was to have been but a step leading toward the fulfillment of Churchill's supreme project for a meeting with Malenkov.

Now it is clear that the Russians do not want an agreement on Germany. Their interests are best served by leaving the Western powers to wrangle among themselves while the Kremlin concentrates on consolidating its shaky power at home and in the satellites.

The task of harassing and weakening the West will be left by Moscow to the Cominform's fifth columns and supported by the continued exploitation of the "peace" offensive.

There is no longer any doubt that the Russians will not negotiate seriously until they have improved their bargaining position through a stronger hold on the satellites—especially revolt-ridden East Germany—and full international recognition of Communist China, including her entry to the UN and the Security Council.

With Soviet policy reverting to the old rigid Stalinist pattern, the Western powers have no option but to go on increasing their strength and improving their cohesion.

Building up Western military strength in Europe to include German rearmament will have to be given top consideration by the Bermuda conference.

Research Into History Of Sir Francis Drake

Vancouver — Robert Parkinson seeks to find out if Sir

Francis Drake was the first white navigator to sight Vancouver Island shores. The Berkeley, Calif., historian and member of the Drake Navigators' Guild is making extensive research into the historic voyage of the Golden Hinde.

In British Columbia he studied ancient maps in Victoria archives and at Vancouver museum.

Sir Francis remained for 36 days at Drake's bay, and rammed the Golden Hinde on the beach there. The navigators' guild has gone over every inch of the bay shore seeking remains of the stone blockhouse that Drake built and other relics.

However, nothing has been found to equal in importance the original brass plate that Drake affixed to a tree to commemorate his visit. This plate was found 20 years ago and now is on display in Bancroft Library at Berkeley.

Many historians believe Drake's first landfall on the Pacific coast was near Nootka sound June 20, 1579. He did not land, but continued southward to Drake's bay, north of San Francisco, where he named the land New Albion, and claimed it for Elizabeth I.

An account published by Hakluyt in 1580 describes the location of New Albion as being "on the back side of Canada," a description not relished by many Californians.

Annapolis Royal in Nova Scotia started as a French settlement called Port Royal in 1605.

Do farmers use nickel?

"What about trucks, Dad?"

"Well, you can see the nickel plating on the bumper, grille and headlights of that truck. Nickel is even more important in its gears and other parts that have to be strong and stand a lot of hard wear. Even small percentages of nickel in steel make it strong and tough, and help prevent rust."

"They sure do. There's a lot of nickel right out there in that tractor of Uncle Jim's. I'd hate to think what would happen in rocky ground if that tractor's gears weren't made of nickel alloy steel. Yes, there must be dozens of tractor parts which contain nickel to make them strong and tough."

Jacques Marcotte's Case To Be Decided Today As CAHA To Hand Down Decision In Crucial Affair

Montreal — (CP) — The ownership of an 18-year-old goalie comes up for final decision today at a scheduled meeting of officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

A ruling by the CAHA at the start of the season brought on a bitter dispute that was carried to court without settlement. Now the CAHA has again taken up the question of whether Jacques Marcotte belongs to Quebec Frontenacs or Quebec Citadels.

Marcotte was owned last season by Citadels. Before this season opened he asked the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association to declare him a free agent. His application was granted and he signed with Frontenacs.

Frontenacs are a new team this season in the Quebec Junior Hockey Association, although they are still members of the QAHA.

When the QAHA approved Marcotte's signing with Frontenacs, Citadels appealed to the CAHA. The parent body awarded the goalie to Citadels.

The QAHA maintained it was the sole authority to decide on an intra-branch question of player release. This stand put the QAHA at loggerheads with the parent body. Nevertheless, the provincial branch notified Frontenacs that continued use of the player would bring suspension of the club by the QAHA.

Frontenacs, in mid-November, sought an injunction in superior court in Montreal to prevent the QAHA from suspending them. The petition was refused.

There was talk of further court proceedings by one or both clubs and the QAHA maintained that since the CAHA had stopped in, by overruling a QAHA decision, the whole question was back in the CAHA's hands.

Representatives of the CAHA met Nov. 22 in Montreal with all interested parties. It was agreed to drop all court proceedings and decision of the meeting scheduled for today would be final and binding.

"Boom Boom" Geoffrion Registers Two Goals As Canadiens Rally In Third Period To Down Bruins 4-2

Montreal — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens exploded for four goals in the third period, two by Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, to overhaul Boston Bruins Saturday night and win 4-2.

The Boston Goals, by Dave Creighton and Ed Sandford, came in the opening period. Backed by the brilliant net-minding of Sugar Jim Henry, the Bruins hung to that margin until 8:24 of the final period when Canadiens caught fire and rattled in four goals in less than seven minutes.

Along with Geoffrion's two goals, which gave him 12 for the season, Johnny McCormack and Calum MacKay counted one each.

The fast, rugged game brought 16 penalties, nine to Boston, including a misconduct to Jerry Toppazzini when referee Frank Udvari's ears picked up some unpleasant comment from the Boston Bench. Dick Gamble of Canadiens left the game in the last period with a cut over his right eye that required seven stitches.

Canadiens widely outshot the Bruins 46-18, but were repeatedly balked by Henry until one final period when all four goals were scored from close range.

Creighton's goal came on a rebound of his own shot, and Sandford scored off Frank Martin's pass, while Canadiens were short-handed.

Canadiens outshot the Bruins 14-5 in the second period, but couldn't beat Henry until Geoffrion started the scoring spree at 8:24 of the final with an angle shot on Maurice Richard's rebound.

Montreal was a man short when McCormack tied the score, poking in the second rebound after Henry had balked Richard and Bert Olmstead. Geoffrion's second goal, an Eddie Mazur's rebound, was another.

Scoring — None.

Penalties: Klukay 0:52, Curry 3:52, Mackell 14:50, Toppazzini, misconduct 15:20, Geoffrion 16:25, Harvey 19:16.

Springfield Pulls Upset By Edging Montreal Royals 3-2 In Overtime; Doug McMurdy Gets Winning Marker

Montreal — (CP) — Springfield Indians scraped past Montreal Royals 3-2 Saturday in a Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association game.

After a scoreless first period, Three Rivers jumped ahead in the second frame as Roger Houle rapped in a tally in the first two seconds and Herve Lalonde counted on a relay by Al Souey and Jean-Guy Gendron at 18:49.

But the Frontenacs woke up in the latter half of the final frame with Fernand Turcotte leading off the scoring parade at 13:47. Rousseau scored less than two minutes later, and defenceman Ronnie Fortin chalked up the winning marker with little more than a minute to go in play.

Some 4,000 spectators littered the ice with paper during the last two minutes of the third period when Royals' Orval Tessier fired two goals to tie it up.

John Bobenic, Ed Leier and playing coach Doug McMurdy scored for Springfield. McMurdy getting the winner at 2:12 of the extra frame.

Both goalies were sensational in the scoreless first period, Springfield's John Henderson turning back 10 shots and Montreal's Bob Perreault nine.

Bobenic gave Indians the first tally on a relay from Leier and Bus Gagnon.

In the Third Frame, Leier stole the puck from Glen Harmon, faked Perreault to one side, and slid the puck into an empty net to make it 2-0.

With time running out, Tessier scored Montreal's first goal on a 15-foot angle shot on passes from Gerry Desaulniers and Gary Blaine. With only three seconds left in the period, Tessier connected again slapping in Skippy Burckell's relay.

McMurdy's winning goal was a slow back-hand angle shot.

"Pinky" May Is Named Manager Of Reading In E. L.

Reading, Pa. — (AP) — Merrill Pinky May was named manager of Reading in the class A Eastern Baseball League for the 1954 season Saturday night.

OMHA Managers To Curb Kids' Unruly Conduct

Toronto — (CP) — The Ontario Minor Hockey Association moved Saturday to put a curb on those of its 16,000 frisky young hockey players who have been kicking over the traces.

At its annual meeting, the OMHA, which has jurisdiction over 1,087 clubs and terms itself the world's largest hockey body, ruled that from now on managers or coaches of the teams will be responsible for the conduct of their players on and off the ice.

The record number of 257 delegates—themselves mostly coaches and managers—agreed it was a necessary rule after secretary Jack Christie said the association was getting a "black eye" through the unruly behavior of players on road trips.

In the past no one person has been held responsible, and the buck had been passed around, he said.

Secretary Christie made it clear the managers and coaches would not be held financially responsible for any damage caused by players, but would have to answer to the association for their conduct.

Among those attending the meetings were Fred C. Waghorne, Sr., Toronto, life member of the OMHA; Lorne Miller, Noranda, Que., secretary-treasurer of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association; and Tony Gregg, Wingham, president of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Ted Glendenning Elected President Of Fish And Game

Montreal — (CP) — Ted Glendenning of Montreal was elected president of the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations Saturday at the closing business session of the federation's two-day annual meeting.

Others elected:

"Wedding Off" Dempsey Says

New York — (AP) — Mrs. Estelle Auguste, the rich widow who three days ago announced her intention to wed former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey, said Sunday night "the marriage is definitely off."

"Oil and water do not mix," the 42-year-old Palm Beach, Fla., woman said at her hotel suite here. "You might call him oil and say I'm water—but I've just come to realize it would not work. I am leaving for Florida by air tomorrow. There is no chance that I'll reconsider."

At his Central Park hotel, Dempsey, now 58, wasn't saying anything.

Captain Talbert Names Cup Squad

Brisbane, Australia — (AP) — Captain Bill Talbert today named a four-man United States team to face Belgium in the Davis Cup indoor tennis final here December 17-19.

The American team will consist of Tony Trabert, Vic Seixas, Hamilton Richardson and Talbert. Bob Perry will be sidelined.

The winner of the series will meet Australia in the challenge round Dec. 28-30.

time he turned back the Saints' attacks. Four penalties were imposed for minor infractions in the second frame. Three of these for Bishop's and one for the St. Francis leaving the dressing room with the coach's last words still ringing in their ears. "Let's get out there and win." The Bishop's students took to the ice for the third stanza, determined to get that winning goal.

And they did. At 13:54, "Duke" Hanich fired a sizzling shot into Harry Topping's nets, giving them a 2-1 lead and the victory.

St. Francis fought back hard but to no avail as time ran out. Certainly, the four penalties handed to the Saints by referees Morehouse and Groleau didn't help St. Francis' chances to tie the score.

Mulvagh's Rink Cops Mixed Turkey Bonspiel While Dwyer's Foursome Wins Consolation In Local Event

George Mulvagh guided his quartet to a 12-2 victory over veteran Dave Salls' foursome to win the main event in the turkey bonspiel sponsored by the Sherbrooke Curling Club. In the consolation section of the 'spiel Larry Dwyer's rink emerged the winner over Herb MacCallum's squad 8-5 in a closely fought battle.

The annual competition which commenced a week ago saw 32 rinks battle it out for the Christmas turkeys which goes to the winning rinks. Next week the men will hold their yearly turkey bonspiel and another good crowd of curlers is expected to take part. Entries are being accepted.

Carabins Run Wild, Royals Come From Swamp Varsity 14-3 Behind To Win 3-2

Montreal — (C) — The league-leading University of Montreal Carabins pumped in seven goals in five minutes Saturday night to swamp Toronto Varsity 14-3 in an Intercollegiate Hockey game.

With the score tied 3-3 in the third period, Carabins cut loose for three goals. Then after a rhu- bard that sent two players from each team to the penalty box for majors, the Montrealers rapped in seven fast tallies. They added another in the last half-minute of play.

Vic Marchessault pumped in four of the Montreal markers, Bernie Quesnel collected three and Dagenais and Claude Hotte a pair apiece.

The Carabins took a 1-0 lead in the opening period as Marchessault rapped in his first goal, but Toronto provided a matcher early in the second stanza. The home-team went ahead again to lead 3-1 going into the third period, only to see Varsity once again come back with a pair of equalizers in the first five minutes.

A dispute involving four players at 12:03 brought both teams on the ice in protest, until officials restored order sending Leblanc and Gratton of Montreal and Aulton and Tovey of Varsity to the box for five minutes.

St. Mike's Swamp Citadels 12-2

Toronto — (C) — Toronto St. Michael's majors swamped Quebec Citadels 12-2 yesterday to remain two points behind the league-leading St. Catharines Teepees in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

The game, which started as a tight race in the first period, turned into a scoring spree for the majors when they counted five unanswered goals in the second period and six in the final stanza before 4,314 fans.

Citadels scored first in the opening period but the Irish tied it up before the period ended, went ahead 6-1 in the second and added another six in the third when the Cits counted their final tally.

Ken Linesman fired two goals and assisted on two others to lead the Irish point-getters. Dick Duff drew two goals and an assist and Paul Knox also fired a pair. Jack Caffery scored once and assisted three times. Singles went to Les Duff, Jim Logan, Noel Price, Bill Colvin and Ken Gribbons. Ray Cyr and Mike Ratchford scored for the Citadels.

SPORTSMAN'S DIGEST

Three More Years Before Norway Has TV Shows

Oslo (C) — Norwegians are in no special hurry to get television started here.

Norway's first experimental TV station does not open until next year. Then there will be a two-year study of results before regular television programs are considered.

There's no competition because the Norwegian Broadcasting Corporation, run by a government-appointed body, has exclusive right to erect and operate radio stations and plants in Norway for transmission of both sound and pictures. But television presents new problems because of reception difficulties in the mountainous terrain. The technical tests intended to run for two years are considered necessary to solve these problems.

DEFINITE AIMS

When it does come, Norwegian television is expected to follow the two cardinal rules laid down for radio—the promotion of education and entertainment.

Broadcasting in Norway was started by a private company in 1923, and other companies entered the field later. Parliament in 1933 set up the Norwegian Broadcasting Corporation as an independent state institution which took over the activities of the commercial companies.

With no commercials and no sponsored programs, the national corporation derives its chief revenue from a licence fee paid by listeners. With a fee of about $3 annual revenue amounted to almost $2,500,000 in the last fiscal year. Additional revenue comes from a 10 percent stamp duty on sales of receivers and radio parts. National programs originate in the modernistic "Broadcasting House," mecca for sightseers in Oslo, but regional program centres in various parts of the country provide local features for the national program which runs 11 hours a day. In addition, regional secretaries are in charge of programs transmitted by local stations in other cities.

PROGRAMS FOR SEAMEN

The radio broadcasting covers the country from 27 transmitters in the long and medium wave bands, and five shortwave stations, plus special programs from four stations beamed to Norwegian seamen on the world's oceans. A variety of programs is prepared especially for organized listener groups in town and country; pamphlets covering the different subjects are supplied free of charge, and the "school of the air" supplements the instruction available in elementary and secondary schools.

In line with its responsibility as a public institution the broadcasting corporation presents non-parti-

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York — (C) — By this time it must be generally known that baseball is in trouble, because the sports pages have been full of it lately. We doubt though that the full extent of the dilemma facing the game is fully appreciated.

The fact is that the entire minor league structure is threatened with collapse and baseball as we have known it is in genuine danger.

No set of big league magnates ever met before with as many pressing problems as those gathered here this week. Their wrangle with the players about the pension fund is comparatively small potatoes, though potentially explosive.

Decisions need to be made right now toward relieving the distress of the minor leagues unless the majors resign themselves to eventually drawing their talent from the colleges and semi-pros.

Only five seasons ago there were 57 minor leagues producing players who might eventually help stock the two big leagues. Last season the number had shrunk to 38. In 1948 all baseball, minor and major, did $68,000,000 worth of business. Last year the figure was $49,000,000.

IL TO HAVANA?

The triple-A International League, which has probably sent more players into the big show than any other minor, has only six assured clubs at the moment and almost surely will have to take in Havana, with a 1,500-mile airline hop to remain in business.

The Piedmont League is unhappy because it believes the International League is trying to swipe its best city, Richmond. The big fish are gulping the little fish and nobody wishes to invest in minor league ball any more.

The big leaguers, some of them faced with actual deficits last season, are reducing their farm club holdings as fast as they can in favor of "working agreements" with minor league teams. They get the same benefits as from a farm club without having to pick up the tab.

What the men meeting here will do toward helping the little fellows, if anything, we wouldn't try to guess. On their past record, they will consult their own immediate interests and take a chance on playing the college boys a decade from now.

STILL REAPING THE REWARDS

Eddie Olson of the Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League, the only United States born player to ever lead the circuit in scoring and also be its most valuable player, is still being honored for his feats of last season.

Jr. Canadiens Beat Three Rivers 5-0

Three Rivers, Que.—(C)—Montreal's high-stepping Canadiens today blanked Three Rivers Reds.

Before the game of November 24 in Cleveland, Olson was presented with the Carl Liscombe Trophy emblematic of his point scoring title, by Dick Kroesen, arena president. Eddie showed that he is out after another award by scoring a pair of goals that night and dispelled the jinx which sometimes goes with an honor night.

A few weeks ago, Olson received another trophy, the Les Cunningham MVP presentation.

5-0 to chalk up a Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association victory.

The visitors went ahead 2-0 in the opening period, increased the count to 3-0 in the middle session and added two more for good measure in the finale.

Phil Goyette set the pace with a pair of markers, the others being credited to Andre Pronovost, Claude Vinet and Claude Provost. Pronovost shot the Canadiens into the lead after three minutes of play and Vinet made it 2-0 three minutes before the end of the period. Goyette's first marker made it 3-0 near the halfway mark of the second period. Provost made it 4-0 early in the third and Goyette's second tally rounded out the scoring.

are you a mother duck?

If a duckling should start following you around like a mother, don't be too surprised. Ornithologists say it's all a matter of "imprinting."

"Imprinting" was first discovered by the Austrian naturalist, Konrad Lorenz, who realized that most birds do not recognize their parents by instinct, but by a definite first impression. Thus, when a newly hatched duckling first sees the light of day, anything that moves in a certain manner will "imprint" him, be it bird or beast.

Of course, the first creatures that a bird sees in the wild are its own parents. But if "ma" and "pa" have been frightened away, peculiar things can happen. There are records of geese thinking themselves to be little boats because a boat happened to pass at the proper time for imprinting! The impression is permanent.

Then there was the case of the duckling who became imprinted by a bottle of Molson's and grew up boasting that he was a pint of Canada's finest ale. This, of course, was sheer quackery.

"Imprinting," of a sort, in humans might account for the established preference for Molson's. Since 1786 Canadians have been associating those long green bottles with exquisite flavour and bouquet. That's why more of them say "Make Mine Molson's" than ask for any other brand. That's a fact that can't be ducked.

DISASTER AT SARNIA!

The devastating tornado struck suddenly, causing millions of dollars' damage in minutes — a fearful example of the power of nature.

Most fire insurance policies provide protection against windstorm damage for a nominal additional premium. Wind damage in Canada is not uncommon, and Fire and Casualty insurance companies pay many windstorm claims each year. Tornadoes such as at Sarnia are fortunately rare.

Claims paid resulting from the Sarnia tornado totalled approximately $3,000,000 — an example of how the small contribution by the many who want protection provides full indemnity and compensation for those who do suffer loss.

Mink-Clad Matrons Mob Courtroom To See Paris Passion Murder Trial

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

Paris. — Two thousand people crowded into the Court of Assizes for three days and heard 26-year-old Pauline Dubuisson condemned to life imprisonment for the murder of her 27-year-old lover and fellow medical student, Felix Bailey. It was a difficult verdict for a French jury—but it was Paris' most exciting trial in years.

In deathly silence the public listened to the impassioned plea for mercy of the girl's counsel, Maitre Baudet, which brought tears to the eyes to the public. Even the two hefty gendarmes sitting on either side of the prisoner appeared moved.

The public prosecutor, Maitre Linton, had been merciless. Only death could wipe out this crime, accomplished in cold blood, was his conclusion.

It took the jury—eleven men and one woman—heaved a long sigh. Then she leaned over towards her counsel and smiled sadly, the first time in three days, before being removed from the court.

Scheduled to appear before a grand jury a month before her trial actually began, Pauline had attempted to commit suicide in her cell by slashing her wrist. She had left a letter saying she preferred to die rather than face a public "who had not changed since the howling mob of the Revolution."

The atmosphere was charged with the excitement of a bullfight when the trial opened. The courtroom was crowded, with women in the majority. Many were mink-clad, wearing pert Parisian hats. Others were obviously poor.

All had one thing in common—the desire for strong emotions. They reminded one of their forbears, the "tricotées," women who sat knitting at the foot of the guillotine during the Revolution watching heads fall. Many had stood in line every day, waiting for the court to open, and stood again during the hours-long hearings.

Pauline, throughout her trial, maintained calm. A slender, intelligent-looking girl, she had a wealth of curly chestnut hair framing a deathly pale face and somber eyes framed in long dark lashes. She wore a plain navy suit, white blouse open at the neck.

There was nothing sensational about her, but everyone was conscious of her charm and sex appeal.

It was in 1946 that Pauline met Felix at the Medical School of Lille. She became his mistress four days later. Although their romance was stormy, it lasted three years. But during this time, it was proved, she indulged in liaisons with other men and refused to marry Felix.

Then, at the beginning of 1949, he decided to break away and came to Paris to continue his studies. There he fell violently in love with a young girl, Monique Lombard, and became engaged to her.

"It was then that I realized that I loved him," said Pauline. She did nothing about Felix for 18 months, even spent week-ends with other men. Then one day, receiving no reply to her letters, she came to Paris. The ex-lovers met and spent the night together, but Felix refused to give up his fiancee. Two weeks later Pauline returned, this time with a gun.

"I meant to kill myself before him if he continued to refuse to discard Monique," Pauline testified.

The prosecution swept this explanation aside. Pauline, declared the prosecutor, murdered Felix "without passion, in cold blood, out of a woman's spite for a man who refused her because he loved another."

Evidence showed that the accused had started her love life at the age of 14. Yet she came from a well-to-do middle class family and received a sound education. Her father committed suicide shortly after she was arrested.

Paris devoured every bit of evidence in the trial of the year.

Mr. And Mrs. W. S. Laberee Were Hosts To Members Of Bulwer Farm Forum

Bulwer, Dec. 7 — The weekly Farm Forum meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Laberee.

The members felt they could best show their friendliness to Asiatic people by improving their own treatment of people of other nationalities and color; by sending them equipment to help themselves, with teachers and technicians to show them; by helping in their education and by helping make their living standards better.

People could show them that democracy is better than communism if we all would help raise their standard of living. All could make a greater effort to let them know more about democracy. People could overcome the illiteracy of over half of the people of the world, so they could find out for themselves.

A business meeting was held. It was decided to help buy a film projector in conjunction with nine other Forums, the members sharing the expense.

Mrs. Leslie Richardson and Mrs. Douglas Grapes offered to provide refreshments for the next meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Pinchin. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Laberee, assisted by Mrs. Ralph Todd and Mrs. S. Morrill.

FRANK A. JOHNSTON, OF BULWER

Bulwer, Dec. 7 — Mr. Frank A. Johnston, of Bulwer, Que., passed away at the Sherbrooke Hospital in his 79th year, after a brief illness.

Mr. Johnston was born at Fitchburg, Mass., on September 27, 1875, and was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnston, nee Annis Whitcomb. He moved to Bulwer in 1876, with his parents. The rest of his life was spent at Bulwer.

In 1903 he married Beatrice Alice Milford, of Eustis, Mrs. Johnston died on November 8, 1923. There were five children of this marriage, Lloyd and Kenneth, of Bulwer; Percy, of Victoria Beach, N.S.; John, who died in 1937, and Kathleen, of South Burnaby, B.C.

Prayers were held at the late residence, on November 20th, followed by a service at Bulwer United Church, Rev. A. Hinton conducted the service and paid tribute to the deceased, who had been a faithful member of the Bulwer Church all his life. The choir sang "Rock of Ages" and "Abide With Me," favorite hymns of the deceased.

The bearers were Messrs. Basil Prescott, Earl Gallup, Leamon Lowd, Ivan Herring, Reginald Drake and Everett Parker. Burial was made in the family lot at Malvern Cemetery, Lennoxville.

The largely attended funeral, the many flowers and messages of sympathy spoke of the respect, which the members of the community held for Mr. Johnston.

Besides the children mentioned, he leaves to mourn him two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Kenneth Johnston, of Bulwer; and Mrs. Percy Johnston, of Victoria Beach, N.S.; two grandchildren, Milford and Donald Johnston, also of Victoria Beach, N.S.; and several nephews and nieces.

Among those who attended the funeral services from out town were Mr. Percy Johnston, of Victoria Beach, N.S.; Mr. and Mrs. George Milford and Mr. W. G. R. Hodge, of Albert Mines; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncy Simons, of Manchester, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cantner and Mr. and Mrs. E. Hodge, of Sherbrooke; and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. King and family, of Danville.
