

DESTRUCTIVE STORM.

Terrible Havoc Wrought in the West Indies.

HUNDREDS ARE DEAD.

40,000 Are Reported to Have Been Rendered Homeless.

London, Sept. 14.—Advices were received here late tonight saying that a terrible hurricane has swept over Barbadoes, in the Windward Group of the Lesser Antilles.

Thomas, Danish West Indies, Sept. 14.—According to the latest report from St. Lucia, the storm which broke upon the island Sunday night developed almost unprecedented violence, being accompanied by a tidal wave, and tremendous rains.

Guadeloupe, the French island in the Leeward Group, has experienced very heavy weather. Nineteen deaths are reported, and there have been destructive landslides.

A boat from the Island of St. Vincent, a hundred miles west of the Barbadoes, arrived today at the Island of Grenada, and reports that St. Vincent has experienced the most violent and destructive cyclone ever known there.

The amount of property destroyed in St. Vincent cannot yet be estimated. Every small house is down and many large ones have been destroyed.

Saloons on Plebiscite Day. A Question Whether or Not They Must Be Closed.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—One question which is agitating a portion of the public mind here at present is whether saloons shall be closed or not on the 20th inst., when the plebiscite on prohibition is to be taken.

Prohibitionists are clamoring that they would be closed and the anti's are contending that the plebiscite is not an election at all but merely an expression of opinion on an abstract question of morality and does not come under the election law at all.

Meanwhile, an attempt has been made to get an expression of opinion from the minister of Justice, but without avail.

TO EXECUTE A TITLE OR PAY $20,000 DAMAGES.

In the Superior Court yesterday, an action was instituted by Geo. H. Allen, of the village of Lake Weedon, mill owner, against Wm. Price, of the City of Quebec, to compel him to execute a title or pay $20,000 damages.

The Follies of Fashion.

Necklaces, rings, amulets and girldes are old ornaments, but the modern bracelet is comparatively new. In the early Biblical times jewelry was symbolical, connected with religion, each form turned out by the jeweler having a meaning.

It is difficult to imagine a lady of Queen Victoria's time going to court with such an ornament round her neck. Huilulit as may be the confession, the woman of the present hour would rather have diamonds—sham stones, if real ones were out of her reach.

An Anomaly. There is an anomaly in town, an anomaly which should receive an ovation as a role of times long past.

The young woman modern old maid aunt happens to have older brothers and sisters who have mothers and who do not live in their native town.

The Model Hostess. A woman may possess wealth untold, she may have the kindest of hearts and the brightest of minds, but unless she has absolute control of her feelings there will be some time in her career as hostess that she will display annoyance or furr, and the contagion spreading to her guests, will cause an otherwise successful entertainment to die out in undignified failure.

Neatness in Dress. There is an exquisite charm about a neatly dressed woman. She does not wear her hair twisted up carelessly, as if just about to fall over her shoulders.

A NEW ALLIANCE.

'Tis China and Japan This Time.

Marquis Ito on His Way to Peking to Arrange Matters.

Peking, Sept. 14.—The Marquis Ito, recently Premier of Japan, arrived at Tien-Tsin yesterday and is expected here shortly.

The marquis, it is asserted, is charged to examine into the possibility of China recovering her lost ground and developing a useful ally.

MYSTERY AT JOLIETTE.

C. P. R. Station Burned and $350,000 Taken From Safe.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—Last Friday the C. P. R. station at Joliette was burned down, and a strange discovery was made when the safe was examined to see if its contents were intact.

It was found locked and in good condition, but upon being opened, the sum of $350,000 was missing.

ROOMS ARE CROWDED.

Serious Condition in the Protestant Schools of This City.

MORE SPACE NEEDED FOR ELEMENTARY PUPILS.

Commissioners Are Considering the Matter—Parents May Be Called Upon to Send Their Children to the Schools of Their Own Wards.

The Protestant schools of the city are in an unusually crowded condition at the opening of this school year, and the commissioners have the serious problem before them of how to relieve the present condition of affairs.

The total number of pupils enrolled at the opening of the schools was 564. This number if distributed equally through all departments, would give about the authorized number of 36 to each room, such, however, is not the case.

Mr. H. D. Lawrence, chairman of the Protestant Board of School Commissioners, spoke of the seriousness of existing conditions in conversation with the Record this morning.

TO HOLD PHILIPPINES

U.S. Cabinet Decides to Make This Demand

Concessions May Be Made Later as Circumstances and Developments Warrant.

Washington, Sept. 14.—As the first fruits of the cabinet's decision to instruct the peace commissioners to demand everything in the Philippines at the start and let any concessions be left to circumstances and later instructions, Senator Davis and Whiteley Reid arrived at the White House at an early hour and were closeted with the President, obviously to talk over their mission with him and receive orally an outline of the Administration's programme for the commission's work in Paris.

President Gilman of Johns Hopkins University was another early caller. He is one of the members named for the committee to investigate the conduct of the war, and if the President's explanation of the scope of the committee's duties makes it practicable, he will probably be willing to serve.

DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT?

Address by Rev. Mr. Luckens at Jenckes' Machine Shops.

Rev. Mr. Luckens addressed the employees at Jenckes' Machine Shops at noon yesterday, on the subject, "Does Prohibition Prohibit?"

In answering this question we rely chiefly on the testimony of competent witnesses, living in the state of Maine, where prohibition has existed for forty years.

It is not possible for any law against evil to entirely suppress that evil, in human society. There are laws against theft and murder, yet these crimes are common, but no one thinks of repealing the laws on that account.

Appeal Allowed to be Issued in Five Cases.

Women and Tips. Women don't give tips as readily as men, don't subscribe as liberally to miscellaneous objects, like bargain counters better than men do, are more alert in saving small sums, cheapening domestic service and household supplies and such matters. Why? Not because they are meaner than men, but because they have less money and more time. The average man who earns money and has it to spend is an economist of time. Minutes are of more value to him than dimes or "nickels." He pays readily for prompt service, does not consider small differences of price, but expedites his progress through the day by any minor disbursements that seem expedient. If he is a hardworked man, he likes to save thought and bother as well as time, and would often rather pay than think. He is apt to consider, not always wisely, that his time and thought are more profitably spent in earning money than in saving it by driblets.—Harper's Bazar.

Scarcely Complimentary. The incumbent of a country vicarage had long a thorn in his side in the shape of a crusty old farmer, who delighted in opposing and annoying the vicar in every possible way. The parson, having been offered another living, accepted it, mainly to escape his tormentor. Taking leave of the parish, he called upon the farmer and was surprised and even touched by the man's evident regret and sorrow for his departure. "Why, I thought you would be glad to get rid of me," exclaimed the vicar. "The farmer shook his head solemnly. "Nay, nay," he said in a broken voice. "You see, sir, I've lived here for nigh on 40 years, and my experience of our parson is that there's never a bad un goes but a wuss un comes."—Pearson's Weekly.

HON. S. A. FISHER

Speaks of the Market Prospects in Great Britain.

Hon. Sydney A. Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, who has recently returned from England, speaking of the market prospects for Canadian products in Great Britain, said: "The market for almost everything we produce on the farm is almost unlimited—provided it is first-class. There is so much offered of the second and third class that Canadian goods of those classes must be sold at little or no profit. In every line particular attention must be paid to selection, packing and to the peculiar tastes of the consuming classes. Englishmen now understand that our butter is of the first quality, it being brought to the market in first-class condition. This has produced a general impression that we have greatly improved the character of our butter, whereas we have in reality improved our facilities for carriage, enabling the butter to be placed on the market practically in the same condition as when made. "As regards bacon, there is a market for all we can produce. On all sides there is a demand for Canadian bacon, which stands on a par with, if not a little higher than the Danish product. Canadians will find it profitable to turn still more attention in this direction. "Vast quantities of foreign fruit find their way to Britain, and against very fierce competition in this line the Canadian has to struggle. If sent in cold storage our pears and peaches can be sold at a profit. And our better apples have no rival in the English market. Care in selection, and neatness in packing are essential to secure profitable sales. We can get good paying prices for almost anything that is first-class. "Eggs from Canada are securing a good reputation, and the business is growing satisfactorily. In poultry meat we have made no impression as yet, and will not until Canadians learn how to feed their poultry. The most of the poultry we send to England compares to the best poultry meat on the markets there as a store steer would to a well-fatted bullock. To secure any hold on the English market Canadians must coop and feed their chickens before killing. "Mr. Fisher was much pleased with his visit and with the warmth of his reception. He confidently hopes for material results from his visit in increased trade. The English people are today profoundly interested in Canada—interested in it as they have never been interested in a colony before. They are not treating us in a patronizing way, but in a spirit of comradeship, such as a father for a grown-up son. They have been moved to take this new attitude towards things Canadian by the influence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, by the Canadian pro-British tariff, by the treatment extended by Canada to the West Indies, and by Mr. Mulock's bold stroke for Imperial penny postage. For the English people are today distinctly Imperialistic in their sentiments, and they welcome Canada's actions as tangible evidence that their brethren across the sea are at one with them. Their fancy has been struck by the fact that Canada has played her own game in this matter—that what she has scored she has made off her own bat. "During a flying visit to France Mr. Fisher visited the Agricultural College at Grignon, near Versailles, which appeared to him to be the best of the kind, next to the Guelph College, that he had seen. He also made an examination of the French system of agricultural demonstration stations. At Paris Mr. Fisher found it utterly impossible to secure any modification of the terms offered to Canada by the Exposition authorities, and the matter is, therefore, left in the hands of the Imperial Commission, of which the Prince of Wales is head. The demand for space at the Exposition is so great that the management practically does not care if the English colonies are not represented. "Of the many public men with whom the minister came in contact Mr. Chamberlain impressed him most strongly. The colonial secretary appears to have a wide knowledge of Canadian affairs, and Mr. Fisher, in a somewhat long interview he had with him found deeply interested in many matters affecting the Dominion.

SET THE CITY ON FIRE.

Jack Sheppard Responsible for the Destruction of New Westminster.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 14.—Mad or drunk was the fiend who set fire to the beautiful city of New Westminster and destroyed four millions worth of property. The police say they have him in the toils. His name is Jack Sheppard, an apt pupil of his illustrious namesake, who burnt Newgate. Sheppard, who is erratic in mental temperament, has before threatened "to do for Westminster" and Mr. Kennedy had him promptly brought before the Police Magistrate who held court in a tent surrounded by the smoking ruins of the destroyed city, the prisoner's alleged handy work. "Are you guilty or not guilty," said Mr. Corbould, the Magistrate, of setting fire to the city of New Westminster? The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was sent to gaol for one week pending an investigation. Thus the last incident in a strange

A GAMBLER'S NERVE.

NAILED HIS CARDS TO THE TABLE WITH HIS KNIFE.

Then Calmly, but Rapidly, Atwood Pulled His Revolver and Turned to Pay His Respects to the Man Who Had Shot Him From Behind. "The coldest nerve I ever saw displayed by any one," said the gray haired, young looking man, "was Jack Atwood's when, after being shot at from behind, he paused to nail his poker hand to the table with a bowie knife before turning and drawing his own revolver to return the fire. "Atwood was a queer fellow in a good many ways. Physically he wasn't much to look at, but he had dandified habits that seemed curiously out of place in a man whose business kept him constantly in association with the roughest men in the country at the time—I am speaking of the lumbermen on the upper Mississippi 30 years ago—and who was, in fact, as wild as the wildest of them. "He was a good deal of a politician and violent article that appeared in the local papers. There had been a great deal of scandal about a member of the state legislature from Minneapolis—call him Davis—for some time before the fight that I speak of, and Atwood had been among Davis' most violent critics. "This particular night there was quite a crowd of Bill Galloway's gambling house on the east side of Minneapolis, near the old Fort Snelling road. Atwood was playing poker with four other men. Two were lumbermen, friends of Atwood's, and the fifth was a St. Paul man, a stranger to me. It was the first game I had ever seen played with $10 goldpieces for chips. Of course for the heavy betting they used paper money, for as the ante was one chip and it took two to come in there was not much chips enough to bet with when the big hands came. Limit games were not much in vogue in Galloway's place at any time, but the table stakes usually meant a few hundred dollars at the outside, and this was the largest I had ever seen up to that time, for each player had a good sized wad, and there must have been $12,000 or $15,000 in sight at least. "Nothing special occurred for over an hour, when there came a jack pot which was opened for $100, and somewhat to my surprise all the players came in. It was a jack for five chips in the first place and $200 in the center before the draw. The second surprise came when each man drew two cards, excepting Atwood, who stood pat. They were holding their cards close, so none of us around the party knew what any player held, but it appeared later that Atwood had four jacks. "The opponent put up another hundred on the strength of his three of a kind. The next one raised it $100. The third did the same thing and so did the fourth. He was the St. Paul man, and he had caught a fourth seven spot, while the others had not bothered. Atwood made it a thousand to play. One, two and three dropped out. Three of a kind was no kind of a hand for that struggle, and that is what each of them had. The St. Paul man was delighted, though he tried hard to conceal it, and he came back at Atwood with another thousand. He was ahead of the game, having about $6,000 in front of him at the beginning of the deal, while Atwood had only about half that. That left him enough to raise $1,000 more, and he did it promptly. "I suppose I'll have to call you," said the latter, "seeing it's table stakes, but I'm sorry you haven't more money with you." "I have $2,000 in the bank," said Atwood. "If you care to take my check, I'll stand another raise." "Checks were not in great favor at Galloway's, and the St. Paul man hesitated naturally enough, but one of Atwood's clients spoke up. "I'll cash your check for you, Jack," he said, and just then the shot came. "The entrance to the room was midway between the faro and the poker tables, and Atwood sat with his back toward it. Davis had entered the room noiselessly and had fired as soon as he saw Atwood. Shooting from behind will ruin a man in any community, and I don't suppose Davis would have done it if he hadn't been half drunk and half mad with rage as well. He probably wouldn't have missed his shot, though, if he hadn't been drinking. I was watching Atwood closely and hadn't seen Davis enter. As it was, I saw the left end of Atwood's mustache disappear at the instant the shot rang out and a red streak show on his cheek, but he didn't turn his head. He reached down as quick as a ferret and drew a knife from some where below the line of the table top, laying his cards face down on the table with his left hand at the same instant. "The game stands as it is," he said without a quaver in his voice as he drove the knife through the cards and the balze cover, deep into the wood, with a vicious stab. Then just as quickly he removed his hip pocket and stood facing around with a revolver in his hand leveled at Davis. "Two other shots rang out as he rose. They were fired by Atwood's friends, but fortunately they hit nobody. Another man had seized Davis' gun as he was trying to shoot again, and there was a scuffle going on in a moment, with three or four men on a side, all of whom, however, were trying to force Davis out of the room. Atwood held his fire, seeing that there was a group of men in front of him and stood still as he saw the struggle going on. When he saw that Davis was being pushed out at the door, he smiled, but didn't say a word. Perhaps I ought to say in gratitude. Smiles too pretty a word for his face. "When his enemy was outside and the door was closed, he put the pistol back in his pocket and felt of his cheek carefully. It was bleeding very slightly, but he wiped it off with his handkerchief and turning back to the table, said as coolly as ever: "All right, Jim. Give me the money and I'll write you the check in a moment." "He was the least excited man in the room. The St. Paul player looked at him steadily as Atwood's friend was counting out the bills and then exclaimed with an oath: "I don't believe I care about raising you again. It's a call." "The hands were shown, and of course Atwood took the pot."—New York Sun.

Healthy Instincts and Habit—Wifehood and Motherhood—A Modern Tragedy. Coffee as a Medicine—The Follies of Fashion.

John Oliver Hobbes (Mrs. Pearl Craigie), a London lady who has won distinction in writing for the stage and in producing clever books, is a daughter-in-law of Mr. Ernest Craigie of Montreal.

Pearl Mary Teresa Craigie, nee Richards, was born in Boston. Her first fore name, she is inclined to think, was suggested by that of the heroine of Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter." On her father's side she has pride in tracing back to an original ancestor bearing her name who migrated to the United States in the reign of Queen Anne, and when showing you several family portraits Mrs. Craigie may possibly remark that the representative heads of the four generations preceding her father's belonged to the church, and notably her grandfather, Dr. James Richards, the founder of the Theological Seminary in New York state. A bust, by Birch, of her mother, to which your attention may be attracted, elicits from your hostess the information that Laura Hor-tonse Arnold was the great-granddaughter of the Mr. Peter Spearwater who before the Declaration of Independence represented Shelburne for 25 years in the con-your life and health: Man, like the animals, has been born with healthy instincts, and those things which act against his well being in eating, drinking, sleeping, clothing and living are the modes and customs which have been acquired through a persistent training and imitation.—Grace Peckham Murray, M. D., in Harper's Bazar.

Give Popular Pills A Fair Trial.

Some people expect that a well-advertised remedy, like Popular Pills, is going to perform a miracle. They've been ailing for days, perhaps weeks; yes, even months. Their symptoms betoken that they're afflicted with the kind of ailment Popular Pills is designed to cure. They purchased a box of the Pills and commenced taking them according to directions: One at a time to start with; in time taking two; then increasing to three after each meal. There are sufficient Pills in a box to last, say nine or ten days. At the expiration of this time, though they feel considerably benefitted in health, because of the reason that Popular Pills hasn't effected a complete cure, they stop taking them, and declare that "the Pills are no good anyway." By degrees their health gets back to the low ebb it was before they commenced "doctoring."

The days of miracles are past. No human agency ever yet—nor is it likely such ever will—possess the power to accomplish miracles. Whether or not remedies compounded by human beings, like Popular Pills, will effect permanent cures depends largely upon the individual who seeks to be cured. It will be a very mild case, indeed, that will succumb to one box of Popular Pills. It will be a very severe and complicated case that will require more than from six to one dozen boxes ere the individual can proclaim the cure to be permanent and lasting.

British justice assumes a person accused of a crime to be innocent until he is proven to be otherwise. Fair minded people will give any remedy an impartial trial ere condemning it. That's all we ask—a fair trial. If you feel benefitted after taking the first box of Popular Pills, get another, another and still another box until you feel you're in the condition that no more Pills are required.

Mrs. Pearl Craigie.
In the House of Commons sitting at Halifax. Mrs. Craigie was married in 1887 to Mr. Reginald Walpole Craigie of the Bank of England, and she has one son, born in 1890. Although Mrs. Craigie was brought up in Europe, studying under private tutors and attending classes in Paris and at University College, London, she makes no secret of her love for America, to which she has paid repeated visits, while she chats pleasantly to you of the many illustrious men whom she has met who have assisted in making it the great country it is. With pardonable pride she refers to some of her own relatives, Cyrus Field, David Dudley Field and Stephen Field, cousins of her father, who have made their mark. One great attraction possessed by Mrs. Craigie is that, in spite of her extensive reading, she is not the least "bookish," but takes the most charming interest in the frivolities of everyday life, while adding to its brightness by her optimistic spirit, and when telling you that she has few real dislikes, she may also laughingly add that she rides neither a hobby nor a "biko."—Montreal Star.

A Modern Tragedy.

With a Shakespearean incident might easily rise to the heights of sartorial tragedy. Even between the very crude outlines all women can perceive the pathos of the situation. The heroine is a woman whose new frocks are not so many but that she generally has several old ones on hand. One year ago she had a dress skirt made, and a very pretty one it was, too, but in spite of its prettiness it was a victim to the prevailing contamination of the times—it had no pocket.

The woman, as was her habit, even though she knew how futile it was, searched carefully all over for a possible pocket, but in vain. As was also her habit, she didn't have a pocket put in, for whatever reason there seems to be a reluctance upon the part of most women to have this done. Once unpocketed always unpocketed seems to be the rule where dress skirts are concerned. The woman accordingly put the skirt on and wore it just as it was, which also means that she entered upon an era of pocket handkerchief losing. For one whole year now has the woman worn the skirt, not incessantly, of course, but more or less continuously, while the pocket handkerchiefs she has lost, thanks to it, during that period are unnumbered.

The other day the woman thought that she would have the skirt "made over." This time a dressmaker in the house was deemed sufficiently skillful to attend to it. The first thing she did was, of course, to rip the skirt apart, and one of the first articles she said as it was brought to light an article as capacious as it was unmistakable was, "Why, dear me, Mrs. Blank, I thought you said this dress had no pockets!"—Philadelphia Times.

Popular Pills . . . Will

Strengthen And Purify the Blood

Cure all female weaknesses, suppressions of the periods; restore pale and sallow complexions to their natural, healthy glow; cure all diseases arising from mental worry, overwork, etc. They go to the root of the disease.

And bring all the organs into healthy activity again. They were, at one time, the favorite prescription because they really benefitted, and actually cured many suffering from the diseases enumerated above and others that had their origin in a weak or diseased condition of the blood. The sole right to manufacture and sell these pills has been purchased by the Popular Medicine Company, Sherbrooke.

48 pills in a box; 50 cents a box; 6 boxes for $2.50. We prefer to sell these Pills through your dealer. If he shows no disposition to get them for you send direct to the Popular Medicine Co., Sherbrooke, Que.

Successful substitutes? No, Madam? No, Sir! Such things are not compounded.
