WEATHER
SNOW OR RAIN
Sunny becoming cloudy this evening. Occasional snow or freezing rain beginning late evening. Mild. Light winds. High today at Sherbrooke 32. Outlook for New Year's Day: Occasional snow or rain.

World News In Brief

With the main New Year's celebrations still to come the holiday week-end already has brought violent death to seven persons in Canada.

A Canadian Press survey from midnight Friday to early today showed three persons killed in fires, two in traffic accidents one child drowned and another accidentally shot. The province of Quebec reported three persons killed, Ontario showed two dead, and one each died in British Columbia and Nova Scotia.

Rangoon, Burma, Dec. 31.—(Reuters)—More than 200 persons were feared drowned when a boat capsized in the Salween river near Moulmein, 150 miles east of Rangoon, according to reports reaching here yesterday. The cause of the disaster was not reported.

Manila, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Army sources today reported seven communist huts and a 17-year-old girl were killed in week-end skirmishes in central Luzon. It brought to 24 the number of rebels killed last week.

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 31.—(Reuters)—A left-wing Cairo newspaper has offered a reward of $2,700 to the Egyptian irregular who kills "red-faced thief Erskine"—Gen. Sir George Erskine, commander of British troops in Egypt.

The newspaper, Al Gomhour Al Misry, also offered $200 to anyone who kills a British officer. It lovingly dwelt on the swarthy Egyptians' insulting phrase "red face" to describe pink-complexioned—or ruddy—Englishmen.

The paper claimed to have "led the people's campaign against the Red-faced thieves in the canal zone" and to have encouraged the "heroic commandos who every day on behalf of the Egyptian people kill many red-faced officers and other rangers."

Ste. Marguerite Station, Que., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Despite the frantic rescue efforts of a young Montrealer, two persons died and three others of a skiing party were injured when fire swept through a two-story wooden building Saturday.

The heroic attempt of Jack Shackleton of Montreal almost cost him his life. Badly burned, he tried to fight his way back into the flaming house and finally had to be knocked out by a neighbor.

The dead: Ann Erych, 22, Montreal; Joan Warner, 20, Montreal.

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Any peace in Korea may be followed by some new "communist treachery," there, Secretary of State Acheson says, or be offset by a major Red aggression in southeast Asia or other border areas.

"It is hard to say that any one year is more critical than another," Acheson told a meeting of Jewish war veterans, "but it seems to me certain that we will have it in our power in 1952 to take action, or to withhold action, which will have a decisive effect upon the cause of peace."

Parliament Rises At End Of Often-Stormy Session

Ottawa, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The fifth session of Canada's 21st Parliament, called primarily to deal with domestic legislation, ended Saturday on an international note.

One of the last acts of members was to ratify a resolution endorsing the entry of Greece and Turkey into the North Atlantic alliance.

The measure was unanimous approval—a sharp contrast to the treatment given many of the bills at the 79-day session, marked by lengthy and at times heated and acrimonious debate.

The session was prorogued at 6:50 p.m. EST by Chief Justice Thibault. Deputy Governor-General, Date for opening of the regular 1952 session was tentatively set for Feb. 7, but that date can and probably will be changed later by the government.

Widespread Search Is Made For Three Missing U.S. Aircraft With 68 Aboard

Claxton Is In Korea To Visit Troops

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton of Canada today reached an advance Korean air base.

Claxton, on his way to visit Canadian forces in Korea, made good time against strong headwinds on his trip from Tokyo in a plane borrowed from the United States air force.

The R.C.A.F. plane in which he made the trip from Canada to Tokyo was grounded yesterday in Japan because of engine trouble. A new engine has been ordered from Ottawa and will be flown to Japan. The Canadian plane will be ready in time to take Claxton and his party back to Canada.

The Defence Minister was met at the Korean airport by Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of the 25th Canadian infantry brigade, and Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army. Then he headed for the front.

Mr. Claxton, in Tokyo, yesterday told a press conference he took "a cautiously hopeful view that Korea cease-fire negotiations will continue." Claxton said this view extended also to possibilities of the outcome of the talks.

He held the conference shortly after a 45-minute talk with Gen. Matthew Ridgway, United Nations supreme commander. Also present was Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe. They arrived by plane Saturday.

Later the two ministers, Ridgway and other high-ranking representatives of the U.N. command visited in inter-Commonwealth cemetery at Yokohama.

Lapointe placed a wreath in memory of 138 Canadians who died in the Pacific theatre during the second world war. The dead mostly represented men of the Quebec Royal Rifles and Winnipeg Grenadiers.

Claxton then placed a wreath in memory of the seven Canadians who died of wounds in Korea.

Claxton said "I've seen cemeteries throughout Europe, and as fine as they are I've never seen one like this." Lapointe added "it is certainly one of the most beautiful settings I've seen."

Interviewed later, Claxton said Ridgway had words "of highest appreciation for the performance of Canadians in battle."

Tokyo, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Defence Minister Claxton and his party were showered with oil Saturday. Claxton had just alighted from the big R.C.A.F. plane at Haneda airport to meet Gen. Matthew Ridgway, United Nations supreme commander, when one of the aircraft's engines started acting up and sped off in all directions.

Ridgway also got it.

40 Passengers And Crew Members Disappear On Pittsburgh To Buffalo Flight

By The Associated Press

The disappearance of three planes with 68 persons aboard Sunday and Saturday gave the United States one of its grimmest aviation week-ends. At the same time, a search continued for another craft lost earlier with eight men aboard.

In addition, a fifth airplane limped 300 miles into San Francisco after it reported engine trouble on a flight from Honolulu. Forty persons were aboard a non-scheduled C-46 transport which disappeared Saturday night on a Pittsburgh-to-Buffalo flight. The plane, owned by Continental Charters Inc., became the object of a wide land-water-air search over its route and the Great Lakes.

An air force C-47, with 27 aboard, has not been heard from since yesterday afternoon when it was 20 miles west of Phoenix, Ariz. The last contact was a radio request for landing instructions during rain and mist.

The C-47 was en route from Hamilton air force base, Calif., to Goodfellow air force base, Tex. An aerial search was to start at dawn.

In another Arizona air incident, an air force F-51 Mustang was reported missing. The F-51 pilot, believed to be the only person aboard, was last heard from yesterday as he sought permission to land at Tucson.

Meanwhile, at Red Bluff, Calif., 60 air force and civilian planes made a futile search yesterday for a C-47 military craft which vanished Wednesday on a flight from Spokane, Wash., to Travis A.F. base, north of San Francisco. It was the first time weather permitted an extensive air hunt for the C-47 and its eight passengers.

Ten men were aboard a military C-97 when it reported two engines in trouble on a Honolulu-to-San Francisco flight yesterday. An air force rescue plane escorted the C-97 to the Travis base after it radioed for assistance.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Murky weather hindered a great land-air-water search today for a missing transport plane with 40 occupants which disappeared Saturday.

The twin-engine C-46, owned by Continental Charters, Inc., of Miami, left Pittsburgh Saturday night at 9:47 p.m. EST on a non-scheduled flight to Buffalo, N.Y., with seven crew members and 33 passengers.

The plane, purchased from the U.S. government about six months ago, had a three-hour gasoline supply for a 190-mile trip expected to take one hour.

Capt. Alexander Wozniak of the U.S. air force, in charge of the aerial search. He had 180 planes at his disposal.

Capt. Wozniak directed planes to cover a 100-mile wide path, 50 miles on each side of the intended route. R.C.A.F. planes were ordered to scour Canadian territory near the U.S. border. A U.S. Coast Guard plane from Salem, Mass., and Coast Guard boats covered Lake Erie in case the missing aircraft went down in those chill, choppy waters.

Bad weather conditions delayed the start of some phases of the air search.

More than 300 persons aided state police and foresters in a ground search of the area at the southern tip of the Allegheny national forest about 18 miles north of Brookville, Pa., and 100 miles north of Pittsburgh.

Continental Charters was ordered to halt all take-offs from Buffalo airport.

Parks Commissioner James F. Hanlon announced the ban "in the interest of the flying public."

Rumors that the plane had been found hampered search parties. Hundreds of the curious jammed roads about 100 miles north of Pittsburgh after one report.

Churchill And Party Sail For U.S.A.

Southampton, England, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The liner Queen Mary, carrying Prime Minister Winston Churchill to the United States for talks with President Truman, put out to sea today—three days late.

Delayed first by the heaviest Atlantic storms in years and then by a balky anchor, the 81,000-ton luxury vessel finally got away at 11:53 a.m. (6:58 a.m. EST).

She originally had been scheduled to sail with her 1,104 passengers last Friday.

Churchill and his party of 35, including Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, had been waiting on board since 45 minutes after Saturday midnight.

Hope of sailing yesterday was dashed when the port anchor became jammed in its housing. Workmen cut through a plate in the housing to release the jammed fluke, then replaced the plate.

Final tests on the anchor were complete in mid-morning. Even then, fog in the harbor raised doubt whether the big ship could get underway with the tide. Not until 10:30 a.m. did a Cunard official announce:

"The Queen Mary will sail at noon."

By that time the fog had lifted and the harbor was calm.

Passengers gathered in the main lounge of the promenade deck last night to hear carols.

TO THE NEW YEAR

By Elsie Karlin

We cannot tell with certainty
The course that you should steer;
But make our trip around the sun
A happy one this year.

Guide us so we see the moon
And stars along the way.
Follow paths that hold for us
Some sunlight every day.

Lead us quickly through the clouds
And storms that block our view
Then let us linger to enjoy
A rainbow's lovely hue.

Time, you have so much to spend
We have but little here.
So make our trip around the sun
A happy one this year.

U.N. Accuses Communists Of Planning War While Negotiating Korean Truce

Man-Flown Bombers May Be Obsolete

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The United States may be starting to build the last of the man-flown bombers.

When these big planes reach the obsolete age, a new generation of guided missiles and pilotless aircraft is expected to be ready to take over the long-range aerial bombardment jobs.

But, airmen familiar with planning for the future, told a reporter today that doesn't mean the current new heavy-weight bombers will be out of date soon. There are still a lot of bugs to be worked out of the push-button bombers.

The air force has two heavy jet bomber type projects: The Boeing B-52, now undergoing tests, and the Consolidated Vultee B-60—the swept-wing, all-jet successor to the

Missionary's Burial Place Is Desecrated

Hong Kong, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The first burial place of St. Francis Xavier—a hallowed Roman Catholic memorial to the Jesuit missionary called "Apostle of the Indies"—today lies desecrated and in a state of disrepair.

Chinese communist commissioners from North China last May drove away two American priests from the mission on Sansan (St. John) Island off the South China coast. It was there that St. Francis died of fever in a straw hat Dec. 2 or 3, 1552.

The island, about 60 miles below the Portuguese port of Macao, now is behind the bamboo curtain, sealed off from the western world. The two resident priests at the shrine, Fathers John Joyce and John Brown of New York, were escorted from the island under Red military guard.

St. Francis arrived on the island in August, 1552, after a two-year stay in Japan. In the midst of his endeavors to preach the faith he was taken ill and died, worn and white-haired at 46.

His faithful Chinese servant, christened Antonio, buried St. Francis.

Allies End Year In Strong Position On Korean Front

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 31.—(AP)—One year ago tonight powerful Chinese communist forces began an offensive designed to push weary allied troops out of Korea.

It seemed that the communists might succeed.

United States Eighth Army morale was at low tide. In November and December the infantrymen—victims snatched from their pockets by the new aggressor—had withdrawn miserably southward from far inside North Korea.

Price Fixing Ban Given Royal Assent

Ottawa, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The man behind the retail counter now has full freedom in setting prices for the customer.

It is against the law for minimum prices to be dictated to him otherwise than by the law of consumer demand.

Parliament's action Saturday in giving royal assent to the government's anti-price-fix bill means that each handler, down the line from the manufacturer to the final buyer, may name his own prices independently on each article he sells.

The practice of some manufacturers or intermediate dealers setting prices for the retail trade on a variety of articles is outlawed. The legislation specifies particularly that sellers refusing to meet set price levels are not to be shut off from supplies.

The penalties for violation range up to two years' imprisonment for individuals and to $25,000 in cash fines for corporations.

The measure is not expected to make a big dent in the cost of living. That is conceded by the government, which sponsored it, and emphasized by its opponents.

The terms of the 500-word measure are simple, despite the hundred of thousands of words that have exploded over it in the stormy debate that started Dec. 17 and resulted in the fall session of Parliament spilling over before Christmas.

It says that resale price maintenance—the practice of a manufacturer or dealer telling anyone the prices at which his goods are to be sold—is illegal. It applies to the fixing of set prices, minimum prices, mark-ups or discounts.

A person breaking the new law is subject of a fine of $10,000 or two years in jail. A corporation may be fined $25,000.

The enforcement is in the hands of officers of the combines commission, which deals with violations of the combines investigation act. The new law is a measure is an amendment to that act.

Under the act as it stood before Saturday, there could be prosecutions against "horizontal" combines, those in the same level, such as manufacturers. The change now outlaws a "vertical" combine—one in which the price may be set down from the manufacturer at the top to the retailer at the bottom of the distribution line.

While advocates and opponents of the new law are agreed that its direct effects on the cost of living will not amount to much immediately, they disagree on the long-term impact on the economy.

The government in the Commons advanced the idea that resale price maintenance tends to hold up prices at higher levels than would prevail under conditions of pure competition. The Progressive Conservatives, who led the long fight against the bill, held it would leave small retailers vulnerable to cut-throat competition from price-slashing big outlets.

Justice Minister Garson, who sponsored the bill, said the size of mark-ups in many price-fixed lines leaves room for efficient retailers to pass on consumers the savings from their efficiency. Opponents replied the bill will open the little business man to take it on the chin from the larger stores' use of "loss leaders"—the selling of items at abnormally low prices to draw in customers.

HOT-ZIGGEDY CHARM ON WAY FOR HOLLYWOOD GLAMOR STARS

Hollywood—It's bad news today for ostriches.

about to turn the fashion clock back to the days of Norma Tamadge, Blanche Sweet and Nita Naldi.

They'll wear ostrich feathers trailing from their bustles and they'll carry fans made out of the tail plumage of the long-necked, goggle-eyed birds.

Really, it's enough to frighten Sally Rand.

Jane explained her fashion-flash.

It's a last-ditch effort, she said, to regain some of the glamor that caused the peasants to nudge each other as they came out of the movie house playing "Birth of a Nation" and say:

"Hey, that's a movie star, by heck."

Jane flipped the yellow, frayed pages of a movie magazine published in 1924 and pointed to Pola Negri wrapped in a tiger skin cape and clenching a foot-long cigar holder between her teeth.

AT THE GRANADA

"Snappy, huh?" said Jane.

I agreed.

"That's what we've lost in Hollywood," Jane sighed. "You can't tell a movie queen from Dagmar on TV, or somebody's secretary. It's awful. We've got to get back to what the girls in the silent era had."

"They dressed the part. They wore everything but the kitchen stove, but they looked like movie stars."

Plenty Warm

There was a picture of Mae Murray sporting a skirt of peacock feathers on the next page.

"Nobody else in the world dressed that way," she said. "Stars snapped their fingers at what other women were wearing. They knew that the minute they started looking like Mrs. Jones or Mrs. Smith, they were dead and movies were dead along with them. People called the stars 'overdressed.' They accused them of having vulgar tastes."

"But they packed the theaters to see them. They trampled over each other to get a peek at a star wearing a dress made out of pearls or dragging a train made out of fox skins."

"It was fabulous. The stars and their designers were out to jolt the public. A star would wear anything that would create a sensation."

Jane skipped to photographs of Viola Dana, Corinne Griffith and Alice Terry, all peering out from under hats that hit them just above the eyebrows and swathed in feathers, furs and yards of beaded stuff.

"Something happened," said Jane, clucking her tongue.

What happened?

"Stars forgot that they had to be different," Jane wailed it. "They decided to crash high society and they began to tone themselves down. Then they got an urge to be just like everybody else. Homey and folksy, you know. Hollywood became crowded with Just Plain Bills and Just Plain Jills. And then . . ."

And then?

But Comfortable

"The sloppy era hit with a bang. Women who were selling glamor on the screen started wearing slacks and blue jeans. They began to show up at night clubs with their hair uncombed."

"They wore bargain basement dresses. You couldn't tell the stars from the tourists. Sometimes, though, the tourists looked more glamorous."

"It was murder, that's what it

Jud Darrell's Muskie

Butch Malone wanted to sleep that night, but he couldn't. He kept thinking of the muskies in Big Dog, and of how Jud Darrell was sure to find some way to get at 'em. It was midnight when he drove back to the Anamo Club.

There was only one way out to the poplar pill' that kept the muskies out of Little Dog, and if a man tried goin' any way except that he would sink neck deep in mud. Butch started to walk out the path. Then somebody says:

"Stay where you are, Bub, or I'll cut loose on you."

"It's me, Butch Malone," says Butch.

"Oh. Come on, Butch."

Butch walked out to meet Catbird Fletcher. Cat had his goose gun in his hands, and from where he stood he could watch both the path and look into Little Dog. The moon shone over the water so a canoe or boat tryin' to come up from the lower end would be seen for sure, and there was nothin' in sight.

"Anything doin'?" says Butch. "Not a thing," says Cat. "Keep your eyes peeled," says Butch.

was Jane snorted, "and Hollywood was being stabbed right in the box-office region."

She'll probably get some dirty looks from movietown males for saying it, but she blamed a large part of the Slovenly Sue trend on the flicker boys.

And not just Marlon Brando and Montgomery Clift, either.

"The producers and directors are just as bad," Jane fumed. "They come on the set wearing flaming Hawaiian shirts, faded denims and sneakers. You can't blame actresses for going sloppy, too."

"I know a producer who was given an appointment in the studio gallery for still pictures. They had to keep calling his home to remind him to wear shoes and a tie."

One of these days, Jane vowed, she'd show up at a movietown glitter den in a get-up out of Barbara LaMarr's book and give the sightseers something to talk about when they got back to Kansas City.

She studied a photograph of Zazu Pitts in the 1924 movie magazine.

"Hey, look at Zazu," giggled Jane. "A Spanish shawl around her shoulders and a rose between her teeth. Wow!"

Report from an Acapulco spy: "Hedy Lamarr is the only one who walks around town in shorts. But with her legs, why not?"

St. John's Sunday School Christmas Program Was Varied And Attractive

Waterville, Dec. 31.—Despite the stormy weather, parents and friends turned out to watch the children of St. John's Sunday School, as they presented their annual Christmas entertainment, in the Jubilee Hall, on Friday evening, December 21.

Rev. Mark Beaufoy opened the program with a prayer, and announced the following items:

"Carol Sweetly Carol." Pupils of the S. School; "Welcome, Christmas." The Beginners; "Real Christmas," Pauline Cormier; "O Little Town Of Bethlehem," Pupils of the S. School; "Santa's Mistake," Joyce Williams; "Who'll Arrange It," by four boys; Piano Solo, Marjorie Feller; "A Secret," Jane Hopcraft; "A Hard Job," Jimmie Meigs; "A Splendid Idea," Eddie Feller; "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town," Pupils of the S. School; "Christmas Wishes," The Primary Class; "The Proof," Henry Pessig; Recitation, Shirley Harden; "It Isn't What You Get," Alfred Cormier; "Silent Night, Holy Night," Primary and Juniors; Drill, six boys and six girls; "The Reason Is Quite Clear," Gloria Brown; "Christmas Bells," seven girls; "Heart Gifts," a play by the Juniors; "While Shepherds Watch Their Flock," Pupils of S. School; "Christmas Again," Pauline and Alfred Cormier; "Good Night," by Norma Williams; Benediction, by Rev. Mr. Beaufoy; "Jingle Bells," Entire School; Santa Claus arrives. "God Save the King."

At the close of the program, Santa Claus turned up to distribute gifts and candy from a beautifully decorated and lighted tree, which brought forth cheers and laughter from the children.

Behind the efforts of the youngsters were the following ladies: Mrs. Fred W. Ayer, musical director; Miss Mildred Smith, who directed the "play" and recitations; the teachers of the Sunday School, who deserve full credit for their untiring efforts at all times, Miss N. MacMaster, superintendent, of the Sunday School, Mrs. Fred Pessig, teacher of the Junior Department, and Mrs. Hubert Meigs, teacher in the Primary Department.

Those who donated candy were Mrs. Fred Burton, Mrs. A. Hopcraft, Mrs. Fred Ayer, Mrs. Maurice Cormier, Miss Mildred Smith and Miss Irene Parsons.

Rev. Mr. Beaufoy graciously thanked all those who had helped to make this Christmas event such a happy one.

General Notes

Mr. Gordon Wolfe, of Sherbrooke, was an overnight guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell.

Butch. We're up against Jud Darrell.

"He can't do nothin'," says Cat. "He didn't do anything, anyhow anything Butch could tell about, for the next ten nights. Cat was on guard every night, and for sure Jud had not tried to tear out the poplar pill'."

Butch couldn't figure it out. For the first time Jud Darrell hadn't done somethin' he said he would do. Butch decided to drop around and see how Bill and Mary were taking it.

He got to their place at noon, just in time to see one of their dudes tryin' his best to hold up a 40-pound muskie while Mary took a picture of him. When Mary turned to Butch, her eyes were sparkling like the North Star on a clear night.

"Oh, isn't it wonderful! Every one has caught his muskie, and all big ones! Butch, we're filled for the rest of the season and taking reservations for next year!"

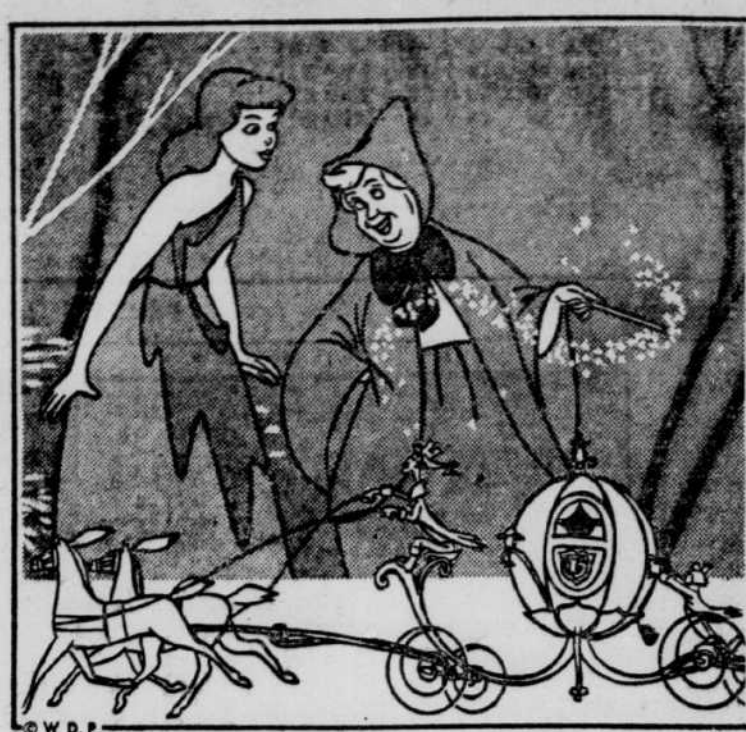

"Uh," says Butch, swallowin' his adam's apple.

He knew for sure that Jud Darrell had never been near the poplar stakes that kept the muskies locked in Big Dog, but he didn't have to go look at 'em to know for sure that those stakes weren't there any more. The shores of Little Dog were pine and spruce, which don't make for very good eatin', and poplar bark is almost a beaver's favorite grub.

A dozen or more hungry beaver, all turned loose in Little Dog at the same time—

Many Receptions Will Be Held Here Tomorrow To Mark Start Of New Year

Civic, military and religious receptions will feature the start of New Year in Sherbrooke.

From 10:30 a.m. tomorrow a steady round of receptions will be held, starting at the city hall and ending up in the evening at the Social Club.

Mayor C. B. Howard and the aldermen will be hosts to the citizens of Sherbrooke at the city hall reception, then will go to the Archbishop's Palace at 11.15 a.m. and after that to the Seminary and Mont Notre Dame.

The commanding officer and officers of the Sherbrooke Regiment will hold their annual New Year's day reception from 11.15 a.m. until 1.30 p.m., and from 1.30 p.m. until 3 p.m., there will be gatherings at the radar unit, the 33rd Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment, R.C.A., and the 35th L.A.A. Battery.

The Sherbrooke Fusiliers will hold their reception from 3 p.m. until 7 p.m., and the Social Club gathering will be held from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Another annual reception, and the one that probably will draw the largest gathering, will be the President's Reception at the Sherbrooke Snow Shoe Club.

This evening promises to be an unusually quiet one in Sherbrooke as only private parties and house gatherings will be held. Customary New Year's eve gatherings have been curtailed because of regulations banning the sale of liquor after 10 p.m.

A number of local churches are planning services.

There will be holy communion at St. Peter's Anglican church at 11.30 p.m., and another service will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

At the Grace Chapel there will be a religious film and singing at a service that will continue from 8.30 p.m. until midnight and the newly-opened Pentecostal church at Lennoxville will hold a watch-night service from 10.30 p.m. until just before midnight.

A holy hour will begin at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church at 11 p.m., culminated by midnight mass.

Nurse Coming Here For Visit Has Disappeared

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 31.—Disappearance of a pretty Army nurse on her way to visit her aunt, Mrs. Alfred Savage, in Sherbrooke, Que., has civil and military police, making an intensive investigation. The 26-year-old nurse has not been seen since she left the hospital December 24.

When Lieut. Louise Elizabeth Sanson, of Stanley, N.B., did not report back to Kingston Military Hospital for duty, on December 27, hospital authorities contacted the Savage family only to be told that they had not seen her.

In a statement this morning Mr. Savage said he and his wife had been told by Mrs. Sanson, that her daughter would have a few days' leave either at Christmas or New Year's and would in all probability spend her holiday in Sherbrooke. When she did not arrive for Christmas they presumed her leave would be for New Year's and consequently did not worry until hospital authorities started checking on her whereabouts.

"She is a very conscientious girl," Mr. Savage said, "and not the type to wander off without notifying the hospital or her relatives if she was delayed and unable to report for duty." He expressed the fear that she had suffered a loss of memory or met with foul play.

According to hospital information, she and another nurse took the same taxi to the station in Kingston and separated to take different trains. This was a week ago and there has been no trace of her since.

Miss Sanson, who has a brother in the Air Force, and is a niece of General Sanson, was not in uniform.

Her father arrived in Montreal early today to aid in the search.

Carol Service Is Held At St. Paul's

Commemorating the nativity of Christ and the advent of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," members of the Church of St. Paul the Apostle took part yesterday afternoon in a candlelight Carol Service, under the direction of their pastor, Rev. A. V. Ottwell.

The Church was decorated with pines and evergreens, blending with the soft glow of the candles to create the true Yuletide atmosphere, while the deep religious significance of the season was portrayed in readings by the Pastor and in the reverent singing of the choir.

Although small in number, the choir was well balanced musically and gave a most creditable performance. Excellent diction was one of the outstanding features and the accompaniment of Mrs. Pearl Robinson at the organ added greatly to the success of the program.

Solo parts were ably handled by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Smith, Charles Taylor and Mrs. E. Hough.

Following is the program in detail:

Choir procession; Hymn "When Christ was born of Mary" (Choir and congregation); Prayers; "On Christmas Day" (No. 41 of Caleb Simper's Christmas Carols); Reading—Isaiah 9: 2, 6, 7; Chorus—"He Shall be Great"; Reading—St. Matthew 1: 18-21; Chorus—"My Soul doth Magnify the Lord" (Magnificat); Reading—St. Luke 2: 8-14; "See Amid the Winter's Snow" (Choir and congregation); Reading—St. Luke 2: 15-20; Carol "The Wondrous Story"; Reading—St. Matthew 2: 1-11; "Arise, Shine! Thy light is come"; Carol "The Star of Bethlehem"; "O Little Town of Bethlehem"—Choir and congregation; Carol "Gold, Frankincense and Myrror"; Reading—St. John 1: 1-5; 9-14; Carol—"Ring Out, O Bells"; Collects and Benediction; Hymn—"Unto us a Boy is Born." Choir and congregation; Recessional.

Soldier From Birchton Takes Part In "Bingo" Game That Wins P.O.W.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
With The Canadians in Korea, Dec. 31.—(CP)—The Sergeant's voice rang over the wireless set with a cryptic "bingo!"

"Fine," radioed back the major from his command post. "Bring the card back and we'll check it." It was a game of chance, all right—but of a sort. The "card" was a Chinese prisoner and "bingo" was the code word for the night to indicate that the sergeant's patrol had caught one.

In addition Sgt. C. H. Cole of St. Mary's, Ont., had delivered his platoon out of a cunningly-set communist ambush and had personally killed at least one Chinese during the night's fighting.

The patrol was from the 2nd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, one in a long series of attempts to take a prisoner.

The R.C.R. had gone out in three and four, in sections and in platoons. Once they got into such a tough scrape with Chinese manpower one position that they lost tempers, forgot their mission and killed the five enemy in it instead of persisting in the cunning required for capturing.

This night's patrol switched plans in mid-gambit when two Chinese were reported near a group of houses 500 yards ahead. The two, it turned out, were decoys.

Cole split his platoon, took one half forward with him under L/Cpl. H. J. Hilden of Little River, N.B., leaving the other behind as "firm base" under Cpl. Sam Harbison of Birchton, Que.

Sixty yards from the thatched mud houses Cole saw six men in the dimly-lit interior of one and through the doorway of a second, another five.

Deciding he would need a stronger party to take them he dispatched Pte. T. W. Stack of Petty Harbour, Nfld., the "get-away man," to bring up Harbison's group.

Stack had barely got away when nine Chinese sprang up ahead of him, though to bar his path.

Cole twiggled, picked out the one who he judged to be the leader, and with one shot felled him.

That momentarily disorganized the group, but the exchange of fire brought into action not only the men in the houses but another group on the far side of the village.

The Chinese, in fact, had worked an ambush. They already had closed the trap on three sides.

Gathering his men together Cole pulled them out of the jaws of the pincer, withdrawing toward the R.C.R.'s main line.

There he radioed his company commander, Maj. Bill Hill of Pointe Claire, Que., asking this artillery fire be brought down on the house. Hill said he would, but added: "we're still playing bingo." He ordered Cole to prepare an attack on the settlement with his combined sections.

The attack went in under a barrage laid down by the entire divisional artillery, whose fire was directed by Maj. Patrick Leask of Montreal.

And then the communication went out.

The aerial of the wireless set carried by Pte. D. W. Carley of Trenton, Ont., was abbreviated by rifle fire and its hand set was fouled by dirt and snow.

Cole took on himself the responsibility of ordering the attack to go in, and during the approach carried his hand set, putting the pieces in his pocket after cleaning them with his handkerchief, and then in the cold night air, reassembled the delicate mechanism.

He had Cole in touch with Hill again just as the final assault went in with slight opposition.

Then moaning inside one of the buildings attracted Cole's attention.

Inside was a Chinese, wounded but volatile.

Cole got on the set and messaged his "bingo!"

The major was sceptical. "Will it live? If not we're still playing," he said.

The men checked. It would win. Hill ordered the "card" to be checked.

Meanwhile Capt. C. J. Thiel of London, Ont., organized a medical reception for the prisoner, whose wounds had been given emergency dressing by the platoon.

Said Hill: "never did a Chinese have a reception committee like this waiting for him before."

Quite a game, bingo, the way the R.C.R. played it. And Cole had the winning card.

Pierce Hall Of Stanstead College Is Almost Complete Loss Following Fire Today; Much Equipment Saved

Stanstead, Dec. 31.—Pierce Hall, a cultural landmark of the Eastern Townships, was heavily damaged today by a fire that was still burning at press time.

The fire broke out at about 8.30 a.m. and despite the efforts of the Rock Island and Derby Line fire departments, aided by many volunteers, the two-story building was almost a complete loss.

The roof collapsed a little more than an hour after the fire was discovered and the front left-hand corner and part of the right hand side caved in later.

Dr. E. C. Amaron, principal of Stanstead College, said that most of the musical equipment was saved, along with the records of the department.

Despite the spreading flames, members of the college staff and other helpers, entered the building and removed more than a dozen pianos and other musical instruments. Some of these people received cuts and burns, but no serious injuries were reported.

A memorial pipe organ, which had been dismantled and removed from Pierce Hall when Stanstead College itself was destroyed by fire on May 28, 1938, was lost. Also burned were a grand piano, a small piano, a movie projector machine and a radio.

Cause of the fire is not known. It started in the front of the building, closed up for the holidays and among the first persons to turn in the alarm was Mrs. Amaron. The Rock Island department responded and at first it appeared that the building could be saved.

As the flames spread, however, the Derby Line department also was called.

Hoses were attached to all hydrants in the vicinity and water also was pumped from the nearby Tomitobia river.

Pierce Hall was built in 1901, just 50 years ago, and was scorched, but otherwise undamaged by the spectacular fire that destroyed the college 13 years ago.

Head of the E.T.C.M. is Dr. R. deM. Tupper, whose own records, as well as those of Miss Edie McAdzen, also of the Conservatory staff, were saved by Dr. and Mrs. Amaron and their son, Roy, a McGill University student at home for the holidays.

Most of the equipment that was saved was on the ground floor and the fire at first was confined to the upper part of the building, making it impossible to save much from there. It was estimated unofficially that at present prices it will cost approximately $100,000 to replace the loss.

ENTERING A NEW YEAR

The year 1951 closes and the year 1952 opens with one great question dominating the minds of all men: Will the serious tension now existing between the East and West intensify or be abated during the twelve months ahead?

On the answer to this question rests most of the hopes and fears of the human race. Should there be an easing of the crisis, mankind can turn its activities to the improvement of the lot of the individual and of the nation. The many discoveries of science, including the much-debated atomic energy, can be turned from the production of new and deadlier instruments of war to the provision of additional sources of energy for use in industry and medical science. Should the position deteriorate, everything that civilization holds dear must be concentrated upon establishing a defensive position capable of repelling any assaults upon these factors.

A review of the past year reflects the concern felt over the international situation. In the economic field, the nations of the world, and especially those of Europe, have found their efforts toward recovery and improving the living condition of their people gravely undermined by the necessity of devoting an important proportion of their material and human resources to defence purposes. Even in the more prosperous North American countries, the people have been forced to make substantial sacrifices in the defence effort.

WINTER ASKS MORE FROM HEART

Death by heart disease is the most common of fatal ailments. The present rather intense winter is aggravating the situation because people are more inclined to exert themselves in cold rather than in hot weather. Also the heavier clothing worn means more effort to walk or work outside.

Heart disease is particularly sinister in that it catches people off guard, whether at their work or other accustomed pursuits. Obviously, special precaution should be exercised in view of the various seasonal hazards.

Winter rules to avoid overstraining the heart are listed by the New Jersey Heart Association as follows:

"Don't overdo snow-shovelling, particularly if you're over 50 and used to sedentary work. When burdened by heavy bundles, hail a cab or ride the bus. Don't try to struggle through snowstorms or heavy winds. When furnace-tending, take it easy. Walk up and down stairs slowly.

"Avoid overloading when you sit down to the holiday table. When brisk, snappy weather makes you feel 'full of pep,' don't be fooled. No matter what the activity, try to perform slowly, deliberately and with frequent pauses."

An instinctive sense of caution in keeping with the foregoing might be expected to be felt by anyone with "a heart condition." All too often, however, it happens that people with a tendency to heart trouble, particularly those in middle age, are unaware of it. Submission to examination is advisable, especially when curious symptoms — such as sudden stomach distress — are noted, though not immediately associated with the heart. Prompt medical attention may save a life.

Everyone is affected to a varying degree by tension and time, and winter imposes special strains on the human system. A satisfactory condition of the heart should not be taken for granted. Nothing could be more important than to be on one's guard to assure it.

CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS SET

— NOW ALL THEY NEED IS IKE

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent
Washington — (NEA) — "Eisenhower for President" headquarters opened here in a $45 a day, sixth-floor Shoreham hotel suite, complete with everything except a candidate.

The regular, national headquarters for the new Crusade in America is in Kansas City, but Washington will be the "working" headquarters, it was explained.

The Washington quarters consist of a big living room, nice dining room with bay window, two bedrooms, bath and kitchen. There is a nice Southern exposure. Dixiecrats please note.

A few desks have been moved into this plush residential suite, lending a somewhat incongruous note. The office staff was a little vague on which desk would be Eisenhower's.

Who is putting up the money for this headquarters? Pennsylvania's Sen. Jim Duff, who presided at the opening, said he didn't know.

He said it would be necessary to ask Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts, the campaign manager, for details.

Like General Eisenhower, Senator Lodge wasn't present at the opening. Clarence V. Beck, former Attorney General of Kansas, is treasurer of the Eisenhower campaign. Senator Duff said he was sure there were no large contributions of money.

Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas wasn't present at the grand opening, too. He is to be manager of the Washington headquarters. But he got caught in a Kansas snowdrift.

All Is Rosy Optimism

There was no indication that this was considered symbolic or prophetic of the manner in which the candidate might be buried under a snowdrift of votes, come convention or election time. Just the other way around. All was rosy optimism.

Nobody had sent around any flowers, which usually go with gala inaugurations. But on the walls were red and blue posters and streamers, "We Like Ike!"

And they gave out campaign buttons reading "I Like Ike." Things also were cooking in the kitchenette. Hot coffee for free.

Official campaign literature isn't ready yet. But on the walls were a couple of big bulletin boards, filled with magazine and newspaper clippings.

They were headed, "Inside Ike." "Why Eisenhower Will Run." "Eisenhower is Available Says Senator Carlson." "Ike For President Opens Los Angeles Headquarters." "Ike Can Carry Georgia." "Eisenhower on First Ballot Says Senator Lodge."

A statuesque receptionist named Nancy White, with a big smile on her face and ribbons in her hair, decked the ribbons with campaign buttons and gave the photographers a workout.

Senator Duff, just back from a 20,000 mile tour of the U.S. reported a great grass roots movement for Eisenhower.

Technicolor was really necessary to do justice to the opening ceremonies. An end wall of the huge living room was covered by three wide red, white and blue (artificial) silk drapes. Against the center white drape was a four-foot-by-six-foot photo of Ike.

He was in civilian clothes, wearing his famous smile and looking ever so much like a candidate.

No Comments From Microphones

There were three microphones in front of the photo. But they never came to life. Not even whispered "Yes" "No" or "Maybe!" The picture gave only silence. So big Jim Duff served as mouthpiece.

"Could the General's silence on the question of his candidacy be considered as giving his consent to the campaign to make him President?" Senator Duff was asked.

The Senator said "Yes!" He pointed out that in 1948, when the question of Eisenhower's candidacy came to a head in Vermont, the General issued an unequivocal statement, taking himself out of the race. This time there has been no such statement.

But when asked, "What is the most definite assurance General Eisenhower has given any Republican leader that he would be a candidate?" Senator Duff had to dodge the question. His advice was to ask Senator Lodge.

Senator Duff did add, however, that, "If I were not confident of General Eisenhower's availability, I wouldn't be here myself this morning."

Where would he be?

"I'd be in Florida, fishing."

PRESS COMMENTS

JUDICIAL BLACKMAIL

Toronto Globe and Mail

The Hungarian court which levied fines aggregating $120,000 on four United States airmen forced down in Hungarian territory, like the Government, is a Moscow puppet. It is as corrupt in its conceptions of legal procedures as any within the ring of captive states behind the Iron Curtain. And remembering the fate of Cardinal Mindszenty, reports of "confessions" are worthy of no greater credence than the sincerity of peace drives organized in the Kremlin.

The "fines" are a pseudo-legalistic device to obtain American dollars, to support Communist enterprises in Europe, by methods no better than blackmail. At best, such fines are a return to the practices of the Dark Ages when kings, princes and great generals were held for ransom by enemy states engaged in war. But the United States is not at war with Hungary. In the modern context the fines are most comparable to the ransom levied by kidnappers.

Such practices merely incorporate the techniques of gangsterism into the jurisprudence of totalitarianism. They bear no relation to the former Hungarian concept of justice, which was modelled largely on the British pattern. Nor will the ransom money be used for the benefit of the state, whose loyal citizens are being starved or deported in droves, and whose industry is being converted into totalitarian arsenals under Russian supervision.

The U.S. airmen were forced to land after being fired on by Soviet fighters. That they were being held prisoner in Hungary was belatedly reported after their capture. The decision to try them in secret and impose high ransom for their release was also a Soviet device.

Soviet-led communism is establishing a more or less formal code of its own under which it is making use of prisoners for bargaining purposes. In Korea prisoners of war are being used to barter for territorial advantages which the aggressors there failed to win by force of arms. In Hungary the barter of prisoners, held with less justification, is placed on an in-lieu-of-trade basis. In both cases, the holding of prisoners for sale is barbarous and repugnant to the civilized nations — including those whose peoples are being held in subjection by their Russian "liberators."

Canada's Atomic Study Proves Of Value To Scientific World

(Editor's Note.—This is the fifth in a series of articles on Canada's atomic-energy project. It is written by an American reporter with an eye to the project's possible importance in relation to United States development.)

By FRANK CAREY

Associated Press Science Reporter
Chalk River, Ont., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Canada is moving fast on the highway of atomic progress as it follows "atoms with tail lights."

These atoms include radio-active isotopes "hotter" from a radiation standpoint than those now produced by any other country, as far as is known.

And, scientists of the Dominion's atomic energy project also are turning up information of potential importance to the entire scientific world by studying fundamental atomic "rays" which provide the "tail lights" on the atoms.

Such activities are made possible by the fact that a device around which Canada's whole program revolves—an atomic "furnace" or reactor—is unique among all known reactors in the world.

It's the world's champion concentrated producer of "neutrons"—invisible atomic bullets which are basic to all nuclear research and development. That is, it can generate more of them in a given time and area than can any other reactor.

Canada is producing enough radioactive isotopes to sell them in Canada and other countries, including the United States.

Dominion scientists contend that their extremely "hot" isotopes—25 compared with those of lesser "specific radioactivity"—allow greater ease in accomplishing certain industrial jobs employing isotopes.

They explained this is because certain of their isotopes can be prepared in smaller sizes than isotopes produced in other reactors—and yet the Canadian brands can emit better defined and more intense beams of radiation.

This is important, they say, in using such isotopes for detecting minute flaws in industrial equipment, such as castings and other machinery parts, and also in over-land oil-carrying pipes. Rays from the isotopes, passing through a piece of machinery, record such flaws on X-ray film.

And they say their ability to make such "smaller and hotter" isotopes offers potentialities for better treatment of deep-seated cancers with

JUD DARRELL'S MUSKIE PATH

By JIM KJELGAARD

When Butch Malone, the warden of Black County, stopped at Bill and Mary Gartner's resort on Little Dog Lake, one of the two dudes stayin' there was readin' on the front porch and the other was sittin' on the pier catchin' bluegills. He was catchin' 'em as fast as he could get his hook in the water, and throwin' 'em back in, because Little Dog has any amount of panfish.

Then Mary Gartner came out of the kitchen, where she was fixin' lunch, and says, "Hello, Butch."

"Hello, Mary," says Butch. "How's business?"

As soon as he said that he wished he hadn't, because nobody needed three eyes to tell that business was awful. But didn't like that because Bill and Mary were a swell pair of kids who had stuck every cent they had or could borrow into this place, and they were goin' broke fast.

"We have rooms to spare," says Mary. "Send anybody out if you know anybody to send."

"I will," says Butch. "Only he didn't know anybody to send. You could catch panfish on any lake, and what drew the money crowd was muskies, of which there were none in Little Dog."

Of course, when he sold the place the real estate agent had said there were lots of muskies around.

In a way that was no lie because there was plenty of 'em. Only they were all in Big Dog Lake, and they couldn't get into Little Dog on account of poplar sticks bein' driven across the neck of water that separated the two. Nor could Bill and Mary's dudes fish in Big Dog. That was owned by the Anamo Club, a lot of rich men who had a few dozen pet muskies each.

"Stay for dinner, Butch?" says Mary.

"You bet," says Butch.

He was quick to say that because Mary Gartner is one of those cooks that can make hash like somethin' key and turkey taste like somethin' you dream about. The Gartner had everything they needed to make their muskie resort pay—except muskies.

"Where's Bill?" says Butch. "Oh, he's out," says Mary. "It's no secret to you that we must do something and—Bill's gone to see a fishing consultant."

"A what?" says Butch.

"A man who has guaranteed to bring muskies in plenty to Little Dog, and we don't pay him a cent until he succeeds. It's a good deal."

"Uh-huh. An' just who is this fishin' genius?"

"His name is Darrell," says Mary. "Jud Darrell. I think he's part Indian."

That told Butch Malone all he had to know. Jud Darrell was not just part Indian. He was also the slickest, meanest character he'd ever left tracks in a Black County swamp, and he just couldn't be caught.

Anyhow, every warden that had been in Black County for the last 20 years hadn't been able to catch him. It was plain as bear tracks on fresh snow.

Bringing the muskies meant he aimed to pull out the poplar sticks that blocked the muskies in Big Dog, and if he did that the muskies would sure go into Little Dog where there were a lot more panfish for 'em to eat.

Butch knew he had to work fast. Most every rich man in the state, and a lot from other states, belonged to the Anamo Club. If Butch let Jud Darrell tamper with their pet muskies there was sure to be a howl that would be heard right into the middle of the conservation department offices, and a warden named Malone was likely to be looking for another job. Butch went from Bill's and Mary's right to the Anamo Club.

"Keep watchmen busy day and night," says he. "Especially night. See that they don't let anybody tamper with those sticks that keep your muskies locked in."

"What's up, Butch?" asks the supervisor.

"I heard," says Butch, sort of off-handed as if he didn't care, "that Mary and Bill Gartner hired you to bring muskies back into Little Dog Lake?"

"That they did," says Jud. "That they did. I get a hundred or fifty dollars when the muskie fishin' is good."

"You wouldn't be thinkin' of stockin' Little Dog with the muskies from Big Dog, would you?" says Butch.

"Butch," Jud looked hurt, "that would be breakin' the law! You know very well that the Anamo Club's got a state permit to keep their lake blocked off from Little Dog."

"I suppose that would stop you?" says Jud Darrell, "that I do not intend to touch the muskies in Big Dog. Good enough?"

"No," says Butch, and walked off.

TOO MUCH SUSPICION CAN BE DISASTROUS

When today's hand was played in a team match, one declarer made his contract because he accepted the obvious; the other declarer was so busy looking for traps that he found a way to go down.

At both tables the bidding was the same, and the opening lead was the deuce of spades. Each declarer hopefully put up dummy's jack but was disappointed when the East covered with the queen. Each declarer won the trick at once for fear of a shift to hearts.

Here the two declarers parted company. One of them decided to set up the clubs, and the other decided to set up the diamonds. It was apparent that five tricks were needed in the minor suits. The club suit alone would furnish five tricks if each opponent had exactly two clubs. The odds were 3 to 2 against a 2-2 club break.

The East altered course by driving out the ace and king. This would give the opponents time to set up and cash their spades. The defenders would therefore get two top diamonds and an unknown number of spades.

The successful declarer decided that West's opening lead of the deuce of spades was a simple, orthodox fourth-best lead. West had three spades higher than the deuce and could not have any lower. The only spades 4-4, the opponents could win only two spade tricks. This declarer therefore went after the diamonds and let the opponents take two top diamonds and two spades.

The unsuccessful declarer suspected darkly that West had led the deuce of spades from a five-card or even from a six-card suit. He was therefore afraid of losing three or more spade tricks if he went after the diamonds.

This innocent fear induced him to try for the clubs. Unfortunately for him, the clubs did not furnish five tricks, and he had to fall back on the diamonds anyway. In the meantime, however, he had set up a club trick for the opponents, they took that as the setting trick, together with two top diamonds and two spades.

Q—The bidding has been:
North East South West
1 Heart Pass 1 Spade Pass
3 Diamonds Pass ?
You, South, hold: Spades K-J-7-5, Hearts 4-2, Diamonds 9-6-3, Clubs Q-J-8-7. What do you do?

A—Bid three no-trump. This bid does not guarantee a club stopper, but does indicate that the spades are two spades. That you have no raise for either red suit.

Allie Reynolds Cops
Player Of Year Award

New York, Dec. 31.—(P)—Allie Reynolds, double no-hit righthander of the World Champion New York Yankees, yesterday was named player of the year by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Reynolds, 21st player to win the player of the year award since it was first presented to Bill Terry of the Giants in 1932, enjoyed his most successful season despite adversities that threatened to sideline him indefinitely.

Although hampered by bone chips in his right elbow, the 32-year-old Oklahoman won 17 games and lost only eight, hurled seven shutouts including two no-hit, no-run games and added another victory in the World Series against the Giants.

Stanley's Operation
Proves Successful

New York, Dec. 31.—(P)—Allan Stanley, 25-year-old New York Rangers defenceman, underwent a successful operation Saturday on a shoulder injury suffered in last Wednesday's National Hockey League game with Detroit Red Wings.

Hospital authorities last night described Stanley's condition as "good" and his doctor said he would be out of hospital in two weeks. However, it will be at least two months before the Rangers captain, a native of Timmins, Ont., returns to the team.

The operation was described as a plastic repair of an acromioclavicular separate of the left shoulder. It did not require skin graft as reported earlier.

The Rangers announced Saturday the acquisition of Clare Martin from Chicago Black Hawks to replace Stanley. Martin is a 30-year-old 190-pounder from Waterloo, Ont.

Sporting News Names
Baseball Selections

St. Louis, Dec. 31.—(P)—The Sporting News today announced its annual selections as the No. 1 men of the year in major league baseball—George Weiss, outstanding executive; Leo Durocher, outstanding manager; and Stan Musial, outstanding player.

It was the second consecutive title for Weiss, general manager of the world champion New York Yankees. He was credited with reaching and winning their third straight World Series.

Durocher was picked as the inspiration behind the rags-to-riches rise of New York Giants, National League pennant winners last season. It was the second such honor for Musial, National League batting champion two years running. The St. Louis Cardinal slugger also won the player title in 1945.

WEEK-END STARS

Don Raleigh, New York, whose goal late in the third period Sunday gave the Rangers a 2-2 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Al Rollins, Toronto, who racked up his third shutout of the year Saturday as the Leafs blanked Boston Bruins 4-0.

Maurice Richard and Paul Meger, Montreal, who each scored two goals Saturday to pace the Canadiens to a 7-2 victory over New York.

Gordie Howe, Detroit, whose two goals gave the Red Wings a 3-1 decision Saturday over Chicago.

Halifax Sea Gulls
Invade United States

New York, Dec. 31.—(P)—Halifax Sea Gulls, outstanding pee-wee hockey team in the Maritimes, successfully launched a three-game United States tour yesterday by coming from behind to defeat New York Pee-Wee Rovers at Madison Square Garden.

The Sea Gulls, who are managed by a woman, Mrs. T. P. Lusby, finished strongly as the Rovers tired in the third period. At one point the New York team led 3-1.

The first, 3-2 for New York at the end of the second and the Sea Gulls scored three goals without a reply in the third. All periods were 12 minutes long.

Don Caldwell opened the scoring for Halifax with an unassisted 25-footer at 1:08 of the first period. Dick Jacoby tied it for the Rovers.

George Gilbert and Tony Romano tallied for New York in the second before Kenzie Martin scored for Halifax on a pass from Don Grant.

Grant also assisted on the first goal of the third period, by Don Hill. Al Mulky got the fourth Halifax goal on a passing play with Jack Douglas and Stewart Healy scored unassisted.

Five penalties were handed out—three to New York and two to Halifax. Granville Kelly and Caldwell were the Halifax penalties, all of which were 1½ minutes in keeping with the short periods.

The Sea Gulls, all of whom are 16 and under, meet New Haven Pee-Wees in the Connecticut City today and play Belmont Hill School Pee-Wees in Boston New Year's Day.

Doug Bentley Named
Coach Of Saskatoon

New York, Dec. 31.—(P)—Doug Bentley, 35-year-old former National Hockey League star centre, has been appointed coach of Saskatoon Quakers of the Pacific Coast League, it was announced last night.

Bentley, who dropped out of hockey after starting his 15th season this year with Chicago Black Hawks, will take over from Frank Edolfs, temporary playing-coach, who now returns to his defence post with New York Rangers.

Edolfs has been filling in with the Quakers, a farm team of the Rangers, since Bill Cook came to New York to coach the Rangers, replacing Neil Colville.

Bentley started this season with the Hawks as usual but then decided to return to his farm in Delisle, Sask. It was reported that he had agreed to play on the stipulation that he not be used on a full-time basis, and that he quit when he found he was being used as a regular.

Bentley had 531 scoring points—five of them this season—before he dropped out. The scoring total is highest among the players then in the league.

East Edges West In Charity Football Tilt

San Francisco, Dec. 31.—(P)—Ohio State's Vic Janowicz, Michigan State's Al Dorow and Princeton's Dick Kazmaier blended their talents yesterday to give the East a spectacular 15-14 triumph over the West in the annual Shrine Charity Football Classic.

A capacity crowd of more than 60,000 saw the East score a field goal in the first quarter, a touchdown in the second, and another in the third. The West counted in the third and fourth quarters.

Janowicz, kicking a 32-yard field goal put the East into a lead that was never relinquished. Janowicz also scored the third-quarter touchdown.

Dorow and two-time All-American Kazmaier alternated in a pass-throwing and catching combination such as seldom been equalled in the 27 East-West games that have netted more than a $100,000 for the Shrine Hospital fund for crippled children.

After Dorow hit his receivers, including Kazmaier, for telling gains, the East strategy switched the pitching to Princeton's gridiron hero—and Kazmaier passed the ball into a teammate's hands.

It was Kazmaier who whipped a 20-yard pass to Dorow in the

Two Universities Drop
Football From Schedule

San Francisco, Dec. 31.—(P)—Two well-known Roman Catholic universities announced today they are dropping intercollegiate football in 1952.

They are University of San Francisco, which fielded an undefeated team this season, and Loyola University of Los Angeles.

San Francisco, formerly St. Ignace College, first started playing football in 1892. It quit and resumed the game a number of times but has fielded teams steadily since 1924, excepting the war years.

Rev. William J. Dunn, president of U.S.F., said the school decided to drop football because "present conditions have created an abnormal strain on the resources of private colleges and universities."

Loyola had a poor season, winning only 3 of their 9 games. Rev. Charles S. Casassa, S.J., president of the school, said in a statement:

"By reason of the event of a national emergency in this country, Loyola University deems it expedient to cancel its football program."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, Dec. 31.—(P)—The first North American hockey team to play in Japan was a North Battleford, Sask., club which went over 15 or more years ago.

Upon arrival, the Canadian players were surrounded by a group of young men with notebooks and a wide assortment of questions.

In the first game they discovered that the interviewers who had asked so much about their style of play, weren't newspaper men but members of the opposing team.

Today a bunch of kids from New York's Metropolitan League will leave San Francisco for the second hockey invasion of Japan and no doubt they'll encounter a few surprises.

They're mostly Manhattan and Brooklyn boys who seldom have played hockey anywhere but on the Garden rink.

Two of them, Richard Svoboda and Eugene Scott, are products of the local "Pee Wee" program. The other night when the Rangers game was delayed, Tom Lockhart rounded up the Japan-bound squad to play an exhibition period against Manhattan Arrows.

One of the boys broke a finger in this clash and burst out crying because he thought he couldn't play in Japan.

"What the heck?" growled Lockhart. "He'll be able to hold a stick in about a week and we couldn't take the trip away from him because he tried to help out."

developments proved the attack against the 6th ROK division (10th Corps) was a strong secondary effort, while the main effort was again made at the west.

"During the last 24 hours, the enemy executed a series of attacks with heavy weapons against the 10th Corps and the 1st Republic of Korea Corps."

The appearance of U.S. troops and tanks in the area took the enemy completely by surprise and he immediately began a withdrawal.

"The Eighth Army executed a perfectly timed counter-offensive, (which) . . . the enemy . . . was powerless to halt."

"Of the 21 Chinese divisions making the original assault, 16 had suffered approximately 50-per-cent casualties."

"During the June, continued attacks by the Eighth Army wrested valuable terrain from the enemy and continually kept him off balance."

"The 10th of July, the beginning of the peace talks, the army line ran from the Han river in the west through the base of the 'iron triangle'—Chorwon and Kumhwa—east across the Hwachon reservoir, across the southern rim of the punchbowl to the east coast south of Kumsong."

"Throughout the remainder of the year, the army has conducted a series of limited-objective attacks designed to keep the enemy off balance, destroy his potential, force the premature commitment of his reserve and the displacement of his artillery and armor."

tions delegation—was mentioned in a Congressional committee hearing. Canada, labelling the charge was "unimpressive and unsubstantiated," told Washington of her "surprise, regret" and "annoyance" at the way Mr. Norman's name had been "dragged" into a committee hearing. She asked that the Congressional official who publicized the charge be rebuked.

Then, making her position even clearer, this country pointedly announced that Mr. Norman would be Canada's principal adviser at the American-sponsored Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco.

Another spat developed a few weeks later when Congress adopted legislation banning the import of dairy products. Canada quickly registered another protest, pointing out that the prohibition violated the Geneva trade agreement, to which both countries were party, and threatened this country's dairy industry. The U. S. promised to repair the damage.

Other factors on the international scene enhanced Canada's growing stature in world relations during the year.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, of which Canada was one of the founding countries, decided to make Ottawa the site of its general meeting, the most important since the defence alliance came into being. Delegations from the 12 member-states converged on this capital for the week-long sessions.

Earlier in the year, the military chief of the organization, General Eisenhower, visited Ottawa to discuss N.A.T.O. problems with Canada's defence chiefs and the federal cabinet.

Another front-rank visitor during the year was President Auriol of France. He came to Ottawa from a visit to Washington and addressed a joint session of the Houses of Parliament.

Canada pursued her policy of vigorous support of the United Nations during the year and Canadian representatives played an important part in U.N. deliberations both at New York and Paris, site of the late-year General Assembly.

As 1951 moved to a close, this capital prepared to welcome Prime Minister Churchill of the United Kingdom, making his first visit to this country since he met at Quebec with the late President Roosevelt in the dark days of wartime. He visits Ottawa in January after a stay in Washington with President Truman.

U.N. Accuses

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 31.—(P)—Communist troops stubbornly to to an allied hill position on the western front today in the face of a United Nations counter-attack now in its fourth day.

The battle for the snow-covered hill west of Korangop was hand-to-hand at times, in temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero.

U.N. forces were driven off the hill Friday by a battalion of Chinese Reds supported by 10 tanks or self-propelled heavy guns.

An Eighth Army briefing officer said allied troops backed by four tanks and low-flying planes failed to knock the dug-in Reds off the hill in a week-end attack.

N. forces moved again Monday. The Eighth Army communiqué said, but a new snow storm curtailed aerial operations.

The battle raged 30 miles north of Seoul, less than 10 miles north of the truce-talk village of Panmunjom.

The Reds hit allied lines at four points in the same general area near midnight Sunday. The Eighth Army said. All were beaten back.

Elsewhere along the frigid battle front there were only light contacts as patrols moved between the lines.

Army Aid Sought
To Break Up Ice

Montreal, Dec. 31.—(P)—Civic officials at Riviere des Prairies have asked for aid from army engineers to break up ice jams that have caused disastrous floods in the north end of Montreal. They have not yet received a reply.

Flood waters rose 10 inches yesterday when a dam's service gates were opened after water began pouring over its top. The water then piled up a new ice jam in the stricken area.

Officials said the water went down six inches during the night. Evacuation has been stopped.

It is feared that if the present warm spell that has hit the city continues, the sluice gates might have to be opened again, adding further danger of more ice jams and a rise in water levels.

Francis in a crude coffin on the hilltop overlooking the bay.

Later the Saint's remains were removed to Malacca and still later to Goa, the Portuguese colony off Southwest India. He was canonized in 1622.

The first tomb remained a revered memorial. Portuguese missionaries erected a stone monument over it in 1639. A chapel was built on the site in 1700 by two Jesuit fathers, Turcott and Laureati. Several times the memorials were destroyed or fell into disrepair but always were restored.

Two years ago, the Chinese communists took the island. It was not long before the American resident priests were expelled.

Francis Xavier was born near Pamplona, Spain, in 1506, the youngest son of a Basque nobleman. He aided in forming the Jesuit order and became a missionary in Southeast Asia in 1541.

sung by choristers from Winchester Cathedral. Churchill dined with Earl Mountbatten, Fourth Lord of the Admiralty, who has been appointed commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean fleet effective next May.

In a New Year's message to the Primrose League, a group of Conservative party leaders, Churchill said 1952 "presents us with momentous challenges and opportunities." He added:

"Broad our first task must be to win peace through a policy of strength. The liberties which we prize, and which our ancestors won for us in the struggles of many centuries, are threatened by an alien doctrine, which is quick to exploit weakness but pauses before strength."

The task at home, Churchill said, is "to rebuild the material wealth which was sacrificed in the defence of freedom in two world wars."

London, Dec. 31.—(P)—Floods today added to the havoc caused by 100-mile-an-hour winds which swept Britain over the week-end, leaving at least 12 dead and hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage.

Weather experts say it may prove to be the worst storm of the century. Highest wind recorded in Britain was a 10-mile-an-hour blast at Turnhouse airport, Edinburgh. Gusts of 90 miles an hour were common throughout the isles.

Floods were reported sweeping through Kent, where wind-whipped seas tore a 30-foot gap in the sea wall at Dymchurch and endangered hundreds of homes, shops and farms which lie below sea level. Troops finally closed the gap with sand bags.

In the raging ocean, 300 miles off Ireland, Capt. Kurt Carlsen waited alone in his 6,700-ton ship Flying Enterprise, out of New York.

The 40 crew members and 10 passengers were rescued from the storm-disabled ship with its 40 degree list, but Carlsen refused to leave her.

Latest deaths reported were three men who died of exposure after losing their way on the bleak Inverness moors. Searchers hunted for the body of a fourth member of the party.

Deckhands were blown off their feet near Hull and drowned. At Dysart a 13-year-old boy was killed when a light pole fell on his hut. A man who tried to rescue him collapsed and died.

At St. Ives in Cornwall, winds piled mountainous sand drifts which reached the rooftops. Entire streets were impassable.

Reno, Dec. 31.—(P)—Hundreds of winter sports fans were snow-bound today in the high Rockies and Sierra Nevada by blizzards that killed at least one man.

Three men were reported missing, presumably trapped in snowy slides.

Another was rescued alive after two hours under a snowy avalanche.

Transcontinental highways were closed in the mountain passes of Colorado and along the California-Nevada state line.

Among the hundreds stranded in Sierra Nevada winter resorts were the former New York Yankee star, Joe DiMaggio, his divorced wife, and their son. They were caught at Sky Tavern, on Mt. Rose, 20 miles southwest of Reno, along with 80 other skiers.

A dozen other Sierra Nevada resorts were isolated. None was in danger. Resorts reported guests enjoying their predicament—with ample food and drink.

In Colorado 500 persons, mostly skiers, were twice trapped by the winter storm. Snow plows reached them Sunday at 11:34-foot-high Berthoud pass. But as the caravan of 200 autos moved out, new slides sealed the pass again.

A Colorado state highway patrol officer said a huge slide buried a truck carrying three men Sunday night. One was said to have escaped. The other two were reported missing. None was identified.

An avalanche 65 miles southwest of Reno buried two California highway department workers, their two snow plows, James Swafford, 37, Camille, Calif., was killed. Frank Kreek, 28, was dug out alive.

Fear was expressed for the safety of Joe Carson, 35, a maintenance man at the Squaw Valley ski resort 40 miles southwest of here. He left his cabin shortly before two avalanches thundered down the mountainside. Two search parties failed to find trace of him.

Buses, trains and planes were all reported late in Denver because of the snows. Pilots reported bucking 100 mile an hour winds.

There are several arguments advanced against keeping on building bigger and bigger bombers, including these:

1. Heavy bombers are getting too costly in money, manpower and materials.

2. Guided missiles, when improvements are attained in guidance systems, can do everything the heavy, strategic bomber does at less cost.

Using the B-52 as an example, military aviation officials make these points:

As combat planes go, it will last a long time (perhaps five or 10 years) because the design of the aircraft appears to be about the maximum that can be expected. Different type engines may be used in the same frame.

The standard jets are growing progressively more powerful and faster. And designers are gradually getting more fuel-mileage out of them.

Despite the optimism about longevity of the big bombers, no one disregards that ascendancy of the guided missile. Most of the big aircraft companies are working intensively in their own missile-research laboratories.

Canada should be producing the guns, rifles and other equipment which she had shown she could produce so effectively in the last war.

Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) foreign affairs spokesman for his party, supported the addition of Greece and Turkey to N.A.T.O. and said that uncertainty and hesitancy only serves as an "open invitation" to aggression. The risk of the new step was not too great.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the move was essential even though it extended Canada's N.A.T.O. commitments.

Solomon Low, Social Credit leader, said there is no doubt that risks are involved in the inclusion of Greece and Turkey into N.A.T.O. because both countries occupy key and strategic positions, anything that happened in that area now might send Canada to war.

Mr. Pearson said the inclusion of Greece and Turkey was "not provocative" and threatened no one "except the aggressor." The move did not extend the "nature" of Canada's obligations under the Atlantic pact, though it did extend the "area" of those obligations.

He said it is hoped that Germany can be associated with Western European and North Atlantic defence through the creation of a European defence force. Progress already has been made in that direction.

As for Mr. Drew's request for rifle production, Mr. Pearson said Canada has been doing all she can to achieve a standardization of weapons. It would not be sensible to embark on a program of rifle production only to find that that weapon was not the one finally agreed upon.

A "good deal" of progress on standardization might result from Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Washington next month.

To suggestions that N.A.T.O. had not moved quickly enough, Mr. Pearson said he felt that much progress had been made in the two years since the organization first was founded. It had a military force and a supreme commander.

Canada was meeting her commitments under the Atlantic pact and would continue to do so.

The speech from the throne referred briefly to the fact that the Canadian troops in Korea are fighting with "valor and distinction" and to the dispatch of an army brigade to Europe.

Reference also was made to the gratification of the Canadian people at the King's recovery and to the transatlantic tour of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Listed among the measures passed was the government's measure to outlaw the fixing of retail prices by manufacturers. It was adopted by the Commons Friday after the Progressive Conservatives called an end to a seven-day fight against the measure that sent the session beyond the expected Christmas adjournment.

BABY CONTEST

Many Fine Gifts Will Be Presented To First Baby Born Here In 1952

Sherbrooke merchants, in co-operation with the Sherbrooke Daily Record, will mark the arrival of the first baby born in 1952 in a Sherbrooke hospital in generous fashion, presenting an assortment of valuable gifts to the parents.

These gifts range from credit certificates to high chairs and bunting bags and the mother of the 1952's first boy or girl will be assured of an auspicious welcome for her baby.

To avoid any confusion, only babies born in the Sherbrooke Hospital, St. Vincent de Paul or Hotel Dieu will be considered. The official hospital record of the time of birth will determine which baby receives the gifts.

NEW YEAR NOT NECESSARILY JANUARY 1

Accustomed as we are to celebrating New Year's day on the first of January, we are apt to agree with Charles Lamb that "No one ever regarded the First of January with indifference."

But on second thought—or perhaps because we would like to pick on Mr. Lamb a little because our English teachers warned us that we couldn't possibly amount to anything if we didn't like the Essays of Elia—we venture a few observations.

To begin with, prior to September 14, 1752, England and her American colonies regarded January 1 with indifference, at least as far as New Year's day was concerned, because New Year's day was observed on March 25.

For that matter, many people who continue to use the Gregorian calendar still commemorate traditional feasts, including New Year, in accordance with ancient calendars not at all congruent with the one presented to the world by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582. . . . example:

The Jews observe a 10 day New Year season at the time of the autumn equinox. The observances begin on Rosh Hashana and end on Yom Kippur; Rosh Hashana commemorates the day of Creation and is also the annual day of Judgment, with that judgment being irrevocably sealed on Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement); therefore, the spirit of penance dominates the solemnities.

Pena is also a feature of Hindu observances, solemnized in accordance with the ancient lunar calendar during the spring equinox.

The Moslem calendar (dating from 626, A.D.) is unique: the 12 months of the year begin with the approximate new moon without any intercalation to keep them geared to the seasonal equinoxes. Thus, the months—and New Years, too—retrograde through the entire year in about 33 1/4 years.

Going back to the Gregorian calendar in 1752, Mr. Lamb's grandfather could have told him—and probably did—about the flagons of ale which went round on New Year's eve, March 24-25.

Outside Work

Husband Objects To Wife's Taking On Part-Time Job

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is wonderful to me and we have a darling 2-month-old daughter. Now our first serious disagreement has arisen. I would like to take a job Saturday evenings at my profession, which is nursing, and Neil, my husband, objects. I claim a wife is entitled to one night a week for outside interests, otherwise she tends to become stagnant and a housewife bore. I feel Neil can take care of the baby one night a week, that giving some time to my profession will help people, and that the money I earn will be helpful in obtaining some of the "extras" we could use.

Neil claims that since he works evenings and the week ends are the only time we can all be together, I should prefer to be home then.

Who is right?

J. W.

ANSWER: You presented a very fair and complete picture of both sides of your problem, so it almost seems mean to me to come up with a decision in favor of your husband. My conclusion that you are better off home is based on Neil's working schedule. Since Saturday is the only night he can be home, for the sake of family unity you should take advantage of it to remain with him—not be on a job. When your baby is older and can be left with a baby-sitter without qualms on your part, you will feel free to take on a nursing assignment.

YOU NEEDN'T BECOME STAGNANT. The one argument of yours with which I disagree is the assumption that this one night of working will prevent you from becoming stagnant. No wife and mother ever gets into that slump unless she wants to. Our daily lives are so replete with opportunities to observe, to learn, to assimilate, that no one need become dull.

By all means meet new people; your little daughter will aid you there. The most fruitful means by which a young mother acquires friends is through sessions in the park or playground where the small Susies and Jimmies are being aired. If you live in a small town lacking these facilities, the super-market will usually provide the gathering place, but no matter what or where it is, here the mothers gather to exchange point for baby carriages. Here the mothers gather to exchange not only notes on the latest formulas, or Junior's dental achievements, but also opinions on community projects, local politics and world affairs—much as their men do at various places of business.

Don't ever look upon homemaking as a boring business. If you tackle it with such an attitude, you'll miss the exhilaration of the most exciting job on earth. It has its dull moments, true, but the final achievement of a happy family well fed, well housed and intelligently reared is something to work for.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My trouble is that my boy friend is a mama's boy. I am 15, he is 16 and he isn't allowed to go out at night. His father thinks he is too young. When he was in the hospital, his mother said he couldn't have visitors. I managed to get in to see him anyway, but his mother didn't like it. He wants to continue going with me without his parents knowing of it. Should I agree?

D. J.

ANSWER: A miss as possessive as you are at 15 is an oddity. Both you and your boy friend are still children, and in his mother's eyes he certainly isn't old enough to have the freedom you seem to enjoy. His parents are the natural arbiters of his time for dating and are quite right in not permitting him out whenever he wants to go—especially on school nights. His mother was also right in trying to restrict visitors during his illness. Forcing yourself into a sick room was a foolproof method of incurring her dislike.

Your intentions may be good, but your system is all wrong. Stop the clandestine dating, and wait until you're both a little older. The lad's mother may then forget how thoughtless you have been, and welcome you more warmly.

DEAR MISS DIX: We are three college co-eds each interested in the same question: How can we tell if a boy is running after us or our father's money?

X. Y. Z.

ANSWER: Assume it's the money, since your question—certainly not on the college level of intelligence—indicates three shallow, vain females who have nothing much to offer in the personality department.

WATERLOO

The spirit of Christmas, this year, was greatly enhanced in Waterloo, by the singing of carols by the Glee Club Singers, under the competent leadership of Miss Margaret Hamilton, and the C.G.I.T., with their leader, Miss Gwen Hughes, who sang on separate occasions at the homes of shut-ins and other citizens, who deeply appreciated their kindly act.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Nadeau and children, Louise and Robert, of Montreal, spent several days at Christmas time, with Mr. Nadeau's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nadeau, Portland avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Brodeur, of Montreal, arrived on Saturday to spend New Year's Day with the former's mother, Mrs. J. E. Brodeur and family, Queen street.

"Stonegate," picturesque in mounds of snow and frosted trees, was a revelation to a certain number of guests, entertained by Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Bayne, on Christmas and the accompanying days, at their country home in Melbourne. Christmas trees, holly wreaths, garlands of evergreens and pine garnished the interior of the home, well equipped with open grates and myriad lights which completed the setting for the Yuletide festivities.

The weather lent itself to invigorating outdoor sports, tobogganing, a first experience for some, being the most popular. The week-end and Christmas Day visitors at "Stonegate" were Miss Annie Bayne, sister of Dr. Bayne, his niece, Miss Joyce Bayne, attending Albert Business College, Belleville, Ont.; Miss Gloria Conliffe, nurse-in-training in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal; and Mr. David Conliffe, student in theology at the University of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, all of Barbados; Dr. Ronald Bayne and Dr. Cecil Dillingham, of Boston, Mass.; and Dr. and Mrs. J. A. MacLeod, Henneker street.

The Doctor Says:

THROMBOSIS CALLS FOR PROMPT ATTENTION AND LONG BED REST

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

A clot or obstruction in one of the blood vessels supplying the heart muscle is called a coronary thrombosis or coronary occlusion. An attack of coronary thrombosis can cause sudden death quite unexpectedly as in the case of Mrs. D.'s brother, who was found in the morning in his room. Mrs. D. said "his room was only a few yards from mine, but I did not hear a sound. He had not known he had a bad heart, nor did we. He was 55 years old, and had been active up to that time." Tragic occurrences of this kind happen all too often but there are an enormous number of people who have suffered a coronary thrombosis and who have recovered to a remarkable degree.

Any living tissue which is deprived of its blood supply will die. Consequently, that portion of the heart which is supplied by a blood vessel which is shut off by a clot will perish.

If the area involved is a large one, therefore, the heart cannot continue and this is why sudden deaths occur.

If the area is small and the heart is allowed to rest, two things begin to happen. The heart muscle which has been killed is replaced gradually by strong scar-like tissue.

Also, other blood vessels begin to take over some of the functions of the closed-off coronary artery so that a new blood supply becomes established.

A long period of rest in bed must be faced by the victim of a coronary thrombosis. For best results this period of rest must be followed by slowly increasing activity—also for a long time.

If the other portions of the coronary arteries are in reasonably good condition, the heart can make a good recovery from the damage which it has suffered.

This is, of course, true particularly in those who have suffered a coronary thrombosis comparatively early in life.

Of course, carelessness about health or unrestrained activity is not justified, but it should be remembered that many victims make remarkably good recoveries. Symptoms Usually Severe

There are probably some who have suffered an attack of coronary thrombosis who have not even known that they have had such an attack.

But, the symptoms are usually severe enough, consisting of pain, paleness of the skin and weakness so that medical help is obtained promptly.

Expert advice is extremely important as the pain may disappear in a short time even without treatment and give a false sense of security. Doubtless many tragedies result from ignoring such warning signals.

VALLEYFIELD BRAVES SHUTOUT SHERBROOKE SAINTS 5-0

Aces Remain On Top Of Loop With 3-2 Win Over Chicoutimi; Cats Drop Two To Montreal Royals

Quebec Aces remain on top of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, winning one game over the week-end, defeating Chicoutimi Saguenays 3-2 Sunday.

They have 44 points and are followed by Montreal Royals who trounced the lowly Shawinigan Falls Cataracts 7-1 in both games played over the week-end. The Royals have 39 points.

In third position are Valleyfield Braves lost to Ottawa on Saturday 4-3 and then recovered with a 5-0 win over Sherbrooke Saints. In fourth spot are Ottawa Senators with 36 points followed by Chicoutimi with one point less.

Tied for last position are the Cataracts with two losses to their credit over the week-end and Sherbrooke Saints with one. They have 25 points apiece.

At Quebec Sunday, both teams battled through a scoreless first period with both sides missing good scoring chances.

Gaudreault sent the Aces into the lead at 18:22 of the second period on passes from Leclair and Kraiger. Tremblay further put the Quebec squad in front with Jean Beliveau and Martial Pruneau assisting.

Leclair made it 3-0 for the Aces after five minutes of play in the final period with Grozier giving him the pass.

Chicoutimi seemed to catch fire at this point and Claude took passes from Roy and Moore for a goal, followed 51 seconds later by another Saguenay tally with Franche netting from White and Moore.

Although the Chicoutimi team applied constant pressure after this they were unable to get the equalizer.

BRAVES BLANK SAINTS
The Braves jumped into a 2-0 lead in the first period at Valleyfield Sunday. Larry Kwong took passes from Coriveau and Deslauriers at 19:09. Schmidt added another 37 seconds later with Irvine and Kwong assisting.

Play went from one end of the rink to the other in a desultory middle frame with penalties the only highlight. Six penalties were handed out including two majors and a misconduct.

The Braves continued their first period drive in the last stanza with three goals. They poured the power on a disorganized Sherbrooke team and Saindon, Joannette and Bessette hit the cordage in that order.

The Montreal Royals took over second spot with two wins over the Shawinigan Falls Cataracts with a 7-1 score in both games.

On Sunday the game was a rough and ready one with 19 penalties being handed out.

Fern Perreault paced the winners with two goals. Jerry Deslauriers, Billy Gould, Bob Fryday, Cliff Malone and Dugger McNeil scored singletons. Ralph (Bucky) Buchanan scored the lone Shawinigan marker.

Waterloo Downed Richmond 5-2 In Wide-Open Intermediate Fixture; Morneau Led Winners With Two Goals

Richmond, Dec. 31.—The Maroons, of Waterloo, chalked up a 5-2 verdict here yesterday afternoon over the Richmond Phantoms in a regular fixture of the E.T. Intermediate Hockey League.

Morneau led the winners with two goals while Mercier, Fausse and Charbonneau accounted for the others. For the home team Cabana and Bissonnette were the marksmen.

Jacques Emond was injured in the opening frame when hit on the head by a hard shot by Moore, one of the Maroons' defencemen. He was forced to leave the game for repairs and failed to return. It required five stitches to close the gap.

Mercier tallied the first goal in the opening period, the only one to give Waterloo the lead. Bissonnette drew a penalty for tripping and just before he returned to the ice Fausse registered the Maroons' second tally. About half way through the period Bergeron, Waterloo, was given the nod for hooking and during his absence Charbonneau caught the whole Richmond team flat-footed to make it 3-0 for Waterloo.

Desrochers was the next to get the nod but his mates held the fort until he returned. With both clubs at full strength Cabana teamed up with E. Emond to tally Richmond's first marker.

In the final period no penalties were handed out by the referees. Morneau beat Dussault for Waterloo's fourth tally. A few minutes later Bissonnette and Cook teamed up together to make it

4-2 for the visitors. Morneau came up with his second goal just about half way through the period and although the home team tried they just couldn't beat Belanger in the Waterloo's net, who was kicking aside everything that was tossed at him.

Granby Trounces Knowlton 7-3 To Extend Lead In Memorial Loop; Two Games Scheduled For Wednesday

Knowlton, Dec. 31.—Granby lengthened its lead in the Memorial Hockey League yesterday by coming from behind in the third period to trounce Knowlton 7-3. It was Granby's fourth victory in five games and Knowlton's third loss in three starts.

Knowlton held a 3-1 lead after two periods of play but Granby's better balance told in the final session as they rapped home six goals without reply.

Brodeur, with two goals and an assist, paced the Granby players. Ray Mullins scored two goals for Knowlton while other stars on the Knowlton lineup were Geoffrey and Garth Hadlock.

The other game scheduled for yesterday, between Covansville and Bedford, was washed out by the mild weather.

Next scheduled games are Wednesday when Covansville and Granby meet and Farnham plays Bedford.

Frank Sedgman, Ace Aussie Net Star, May Hold Key To Whether U. S. Will Recapture Davis Cup

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Frank Sedgman hinted Saturday night that he will remain an amateur for at least another year — bad news to the Americans whose hopes of gaining the Davis Cup next year are dim enough even if they don't have to battle Sedgman.

"I hope to play for Australia in next year's Davis Cup competition," said Sedgman in responding to a toast at a dinner given by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia for the Aussie and American teams.

There have been hints making the rounds both ways — that Frank will and will not turn pro — but this was the first definite statement on his part.

There is no amateur tennis player in the world today capable of extending the young Australian ace when he is at the top of his game. That is the chief impression gained last broiling week at White City watching the Australians plaster a 3-2 defeat on Capt. Frank Shields' gallant U.S. laddies.

Still another notion, which can't be proved, is that the final score might have been 5 to 0 if the Australian selectors hadn't suffered a brain wave and named Mervyn Rose to play singles instead of Ken McGregor.

Sedgman and his pretty fiancée, Jean Spence, attended the American team's "victory" party and both were beseeched to pass up the professional game. Both appeared to be listening.

Not only does Sedgman stand head and shoulders above any player the U.S. has to offer at the moment but back of him Australia boasts a group of amazingly fine youngsters who will be ready for Davis Cup play within another year or two.

Ham Richardson, the best junior in the U.S., suffered the shock of his young life on his present visit, Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall, both 17, have taken turns beating Ham's ears off. Ian Ayre, at 22 the fourth member of the Aussie Cup team, is equally a brilliant prospect. It might be a long time before the Davis Cup returns to the United States.

St. Francis And Superior School Register Wins In Juvenile Loop

St. Francis Juveniles maintained their unbeaten streak in the Sherbrooke Juvenile Hockey League yesterday afternoon when they chalked up a 3-1 win over the Optimists while the Superior School downed the Technical School 4-2.

In the curtain raiser of the twinbill, Hamel tallied the first goal in the opening frame for the only marker of the frame as both teams battled on even ground. In the middle session Lebel added one more to put his club out in front 2-0 after accepting passes from Poulin and Langlois.

Three majors and two misconducts were handed out by the referees when the players staged a general free-for-all. After the rumpus both teams settled down to hockey. In the final period, Pepin registered the third goal for the Saints and just before the end of the session Pinard saved him from a shutout when he tallied

If a thing of beauty is a joy forever, a good idea is a good idea for a reasonable length of time, at least. And hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent annually by hundreds of thousands of people who think collegiate football on New Year's Day is a good idea.

The fabulous Rose Bowl game started out as a supplement to the Tournament of Roses when the first east-west game was played on January 1, 1902. Of course, it might have been a better idea—from the California point of view—if the barnstorming University of Michigan had not barnstormed to a 49 to 0 victory over Stanford.

This might have had something to do with substituting chariot races for the football game in 1903. Originally run with amateur drivers, the chariot races became professional affairs after the first few years, and the public lost interest. The year 1916 brought a return to collegiate football via a contest in which Washington state defeated Brown University.

Prior to dedication of the Rose Bowl in Arroyo Seco, the games were played in Tournament Park. In 1923, the bowl in Arroyo Seco was dedicated with an original seating capacity of 85,000. Recent enlargement made it possible for a paid attendance of 112,294 in 1949.

The tremendous success of the Rose Bowl classic has "mushroomed" various "Bowl" games from coast to coast. Among the many, there are the Orange Bowl, the Sun Bowl, the Sugar Bowl, the Gator Bowl, Hawaii's Pineapple Bowl, and even Alaska's Ice Bowl.

All these "Bowl" games are rapidly becoming a great American New Year's tradition, but the daddy of them all, the Rose Bowl game, continues to be the outstanding collegiate sporting event of the season.

STOCKED UP FOR THE NEW YEAR . . . Why a kitten stuffed inside an old sock should symbolize the New Year is anybody's guess. The baby, however, is a sure thing. He's ready to get up on his two chubby feet and say "Happy New Year, everybody."

Traditions Are Set Universally

One thing about New Year traditions, they are universal, irrespective of calendar variations or the race and creed of the observants.

Endeavoring to get the New Year off to a good start, the Chinese pay up their debts on New Year's Eve. And the English claim it's a good idea to start a savings account on January 1, since what you do on New Year's Day is indicative of what the ensuing year will be like. A round loaf of bread dipped in honey symbolizes Jewish hopes for a smooth (the roundness of the bread) and prosperous (the honey) New Year.

The same spirit of hospitality and sociability that makes the Wassail

Year's tradition, but the daddy of them all, the Rose Bowl game, continues to be the outstanding collegiate sporting event of the season.

West Shefford English School Presents Program

West Shefford, Dec. 31. — From many enthusiastic comments of those who attended the closing exercises of the English School here, on December 21, it was an outstanding success. No one could doubt, but it was the kind of a program, at which, the teacher, Mrs. Clifford Matthews, excels in presenting and the children apparently enjoyed performing their recitations, action songs, drills, and playslets. This Christmas entertainment, which is now an established "annual" was an object lesson in what with trained skilled leadership concentrated on a few, seven in all, can achieve.

After the arrival of Santa, and the presentation of gifts, tea was served and with the singing of "God Save the King," the Christmas entertainment of 1951 ended and holidays began for the teacher and pupils.

Mrs. Matthews, the former Winona Lawrence, daughter of Mr. E. Malcolm and Mrs. Lawrence, deserves the heartiest congratulations on this fine piece of work. Her work as a teacher, abundantly suggests that she is one of the most gifted and capable.

Christmas At The Boundary Churches

Derby Line, Dec. 31—The traditional and beautiful candlelight service was held in the Derby Line Universalist Church on Christmas Sunday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, and was attended by a large number of townspeople and friends home for the holidays.

The service commenced with Mrs. G. Patton at the organ and Louis Marois on his violin, playing a duet selection, and the Processional hymn, "O Come All Ye Faithful." This was followed by prayer and the singing of "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Rev. Mr. Vickery read "Anna the Mother of Mary," by Kahili Gibran. At this part of the service the choir under the direction of Mrs. Patton, and made up of soprano, alto, tenor, and bass voices, accompanied by the violin and organ, presented the "Carol Cantata," which everyone agreed was very beautiful as in solo, duets, quartets and all together they sang the Christmas Story of the Birth of the Christ Child, and which showed many hours of practice on the part of the singers and musicians. The "Lord's Prayer" was repeated and Rev. Mr. Vickery offered a prayer for peace in this troubled world, among men.

With Mrs. C. A. Bacon and Miss Linda Holland, of the choir, lighting their candles from two placed before the choir loft, they began the ceremony of lighting every person's candle, and later as the congregator, went homeward they carried these lighted candles into the night that others may know the spirit of Christmas.

The church was festive with poinsettias flanked by large red, lighted candles in green holders, in each window. At the front of the church were numerous red lighted candles in evergreen trimmed stands, and on a table before the choir loft were more candles in silver holders and a bowl of American Beauty roses.

In the morning the Christmas worship service was held at 10.30 o'clock, when Rev. Vickery delivered the Christmas message to a large congregation.

As Christmas Day was ushered in, it found this church filled with worshippers at the midnight service, hearing the message of the real "Spirit of Christmas" the birthday of Christ.

CHRISTMAS MASSES. As Christmas Day was ushered in, the church of "Our Lady of Mercy," in Rock Island, was in the midst of the celebration of midnight mass which was sung by Rev. Father George Guay and special music was sung by the choir. The same was taking place in

By DOROTHY BOYS KILIAN

Roger took one hand off the wheel of the convertible and started to put it around Sue's waist. She edged away. "It takes two hands to drive on these snowy roads," she explained, laughing nervously.

Why had she drawn away, she wondered. Mightn't she have expected Roger to be pretty cocky? Maybe it was because she felt guilty as she saw that they would soon be passing Grandma Mason's farm. She remembered the scene at her home several nights ago.

"Oh, Johnny, I'm sorry, but I won't be able to go with you this New Year's Eve."

Johnny, her acknowledged escort ever since they had been juniors in high school, looked incredulous. "But, Sue, we always go out to Grandma's watch party. Hasn't it been fun other years?"

"Yes, it has," Sue had agreed. "But Roger Tremaine—you know, the boy whose folks come to that big lakeshore cottage every summer—wrote to ask me to spend New Year's Eve with him. His family is coming up for a country holiday."

"We're running into a snowstorm," Roger exclaimed as they suddenly became engulfed in a swirling white cloud. We'd better put the top up."

He pressed the proper button, but nothing happened. Then he jerked the car over to the edge of the road, got out and tugged at the folded-back canvas. "Frozen shut," he growled disgustedly.

Roger climbed back into the car and raced the motor. The wheels spun hopelessly. "Now what!" he groaned.

"You got out of the track when you pulled over," Sue said. "Look out, or we'll sink in so deep we'll never get out."

"We're running into a snowstorm," Roger explained, to press his foot on the accelerator, while the wheels settled farther and farther down into the snow.

"I give up," he said finally. After a few moments of uncomfortable silence Roger grumbled, "That's the trouble with this God-forsaken part of the country. If we were anywhere around Chicago a hundred cars would have come along by this time."

"Yes, but most of them wouldn't stop; and we'd be spattered with dirty slush instead of covered with clean, white snow," Sue snapped. "Say," Roger interrupted excitedly,

St. Edward's Church in Derby Line, with the Christmas mass celebrated by Rev. Father Armand Fortin.

Both of these churches were filled with residents of these border communities, their relatives and friends, who had joined family circles for the feast of Christmas.

STANSTEAD SOUTH CHURCH. One hundred and ninety-six persons filled the little white church just north of the American border on Christmas Sunday morning, where Canadians and Americans together worshipped and listened to the Christmas message of "Peace Among Men and Nations."

A full choir sang a number of beautiful cantatas with solos sung by Mrs. Kenneth Rice and Mr. C. B. MacLean, and Mrs. Rice and Mr. George Cowles sang a duet.

Sunday school children of St. Stanstead South church, participated in the service as with Mrs. Marilyn Taylor at the piano, the small boys and girls under the direction of Miss Pauline Ladd, sang "Silent Night," followed by the very youngest lisping the "Lord's Prayer." Then all the school together sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Rev. T. W. Tyson delivered the Christmas message, based on the text, "Joy and Peace in Bethlehem," and told the story of the birth of Christ, who was born in a manger, in such a simple way that the children grasped the meaning of Christmas when we celebrate the birthday of Christ.

For this service, Mrs. H. Demick and Miss Agnes Greenwood had effectively trimmed the front of the church with baskets of evergreens and poinsettias, while before the pulpit on the communion table was arranged "The Bethlehem Scene" and candles, by the Tyson family and Mrs. O. Watson.

A CHRISTMAS PARTY. Approximately one hundred and twenty-five children and young people, many accompanied by one of their parents, gathered at Stanstead South church hall on Friday evening, December 21, for the annually held Sunday school Christmas party.

Supper was served by the "35" Club with the hot chocolate being made by Mrs. A. Judd and Mrs. R. Wheelock of the Helping Circle. Supper was followed by all singing Christmas carols and songs under the direction of Mr. A. C. Cowles, S. S. superintendent. Old Santa arrived and assisted by the Sunday school teachers, gave a gift to the children, and to every child he gave a box of candy and an orange.

The hall was festive with Christmas decorations and in one corner stood the traditional tree all aglow with colored lights, tinsel and ornaments.

Pipeline To U. S. Completed But No Gas Flows

Edmonton. — A pipeline to funnel Alberta natural gas to Montana defence industry has been completed. But not a cubic foot of gas has been delivered.

Nine months ago Charles E. Wilson, United States defence mobilizer, requested the gas as an "essential defence production emergency" measure. The Alberta Legislature put through a special bill to provide the gas, breaking for the first time the province's no-export policy.

Construction crews pushed through the 75-mile, $3,500,000 pipeline from the Pakowki Lake field in southeastern Alberta to Shelby, Mont., from where the gas was to be piped to the Anaconda Copper Mining Company's plants at Butte.

The line is standing idle because the United States federal power commission has not yet granted a permit for importation of the gas. Coal interests have opposed the move.

The bill passed by the Alberta Legislature permits export of a maximum of 43,800,000,000 cubic feet of gas over a five-year period.

Work on the pipeline began in July and was completed in time to allow most of the construction crews to get back to their homes for Christmas.

Although the southeastern Alberta rangelands appeared to be flat, easy country for pipeline construction, the crews found it far from that.

"We used more dynamite on that edly. "A car is coming. See those lights, glimmering way down the road,"

"It's Johnny!" Sue screamed, her voice still with relief. "For the love of Pete," Johnny boomed, climbing out into the road. "Are you two trying to commit suicide or something?"

Sue laughed hysterically and practically hugged his outstretched arm. "Roger's car is stuck, the top is stuck."

"And now I'm stuck with two extra passengers," Johnny finished. "Well, climb aboard, everybody. I can take you only as far as Grandma's though. I wouldn't venture any farther than that tonight, even in old faithful here." He patted a battered fender lovingly.

"That's plenty far enough for me," Sue exclaimed. She was already climbing into the front seat. "You'll find another robe in the back seat," she said firmly, as Roger started to turn the front door handle.

Johnny looked at Sue, and a slow happy smile spread over his face. "Sure, Roger, hop in," he said heartily.

"On second thought, I guess I'll stay until you send a truck back; might not be able to find the car again in the drifts," Roger smiled weakly. "Could I borrow one of those robes, though?"

"Sure thing," Johnny climbed into his car and handed out a heavy one. "It'll only be a few minute's wait."

As the motor began to roar, Sue slid over and put her arm through Johnny's. "I hope you've made mistakes sometimes, too," she said falteringly.

"Listen, darling," Johnny answered warmly, giving her hand a squeeze. "Didn't you ever hear that all's well that ends well?"

INVERNESS

Messrs. George Lowery and Kenneth Lowery motored from Hamilton, Ont., and spent the long week-end and Christmas Day with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lowery.

Messrs. Philmon Turcotte and Herbert Wright, accompanied Mr. D. A. Appleton, who was taken very ill to the Jeffery Hale Hospital, in Quebec, on December 24. He was operated on that same evening.

Miss Mabel Little, of Dundas, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Little and two children, of Henderson Vale, spent Christmas Day with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Little.

Mrs. Clara Hill, of Lennoxville, who spent a few weeks visiting her old friends here, has gone to visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. James Moore, in Kinnear's Mills, before returning to her sister's home, in Lennoxville.

line than on any pipe I've worked on," said one worker, back in Edmonton. "We kept running into huge boulders and rock that had to be blasted out."

Dry river beds proved deceptive. Heavy machinery bogged down in the soft bottoms and had to be pulled out by "cats" and trucks. Some grades were so steep that large vehicles had to be lowered down them by winches.

The line, built by Canadian Pipeline Corporation, runs from a point 20 miles south of Foremost, Alta., to Shelby, where it joins the Montana Power Company's lines.

Permission to build the line was granted after the Anaconda Copper Company said it faced a "crisis" in production caused by dwindling supplies from the Montana Kelvin-Sunburst field. The gas was to be used in processing copper, zinc and other materials needed for defence.

The U.S. federal power commission has held lengthy hearings on the application for an import permit, but no decision has been announced.

Meanwhile, the Alberta petroleum and natural gas conservation board has been hearing six other applications for export permits. Alberta policy has been to bar export until gas reserves exceeding the province's foreseeable needs have been proved. The Montana project was the first exception.

YOU'LL BE SORRY — With the heavy burden of 1951 weighing upon his old shoulders the passing year embraces with compassion the infant 1952 whose time draws near to take up the cudgel in his year-long box with the world.

ROYAL TOUR 1951 — Canadians thronged the royal route across Canada and back during the visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. The royal couple are shown here on Oct. 8 when they arrived at Dorval Airport, near Montreal, by air from England. Some 10,000 miles and 37 days later they departed by steamship from Portugal Cove, Nfld., after visiting 71 cities, towns, villages and hamlets.

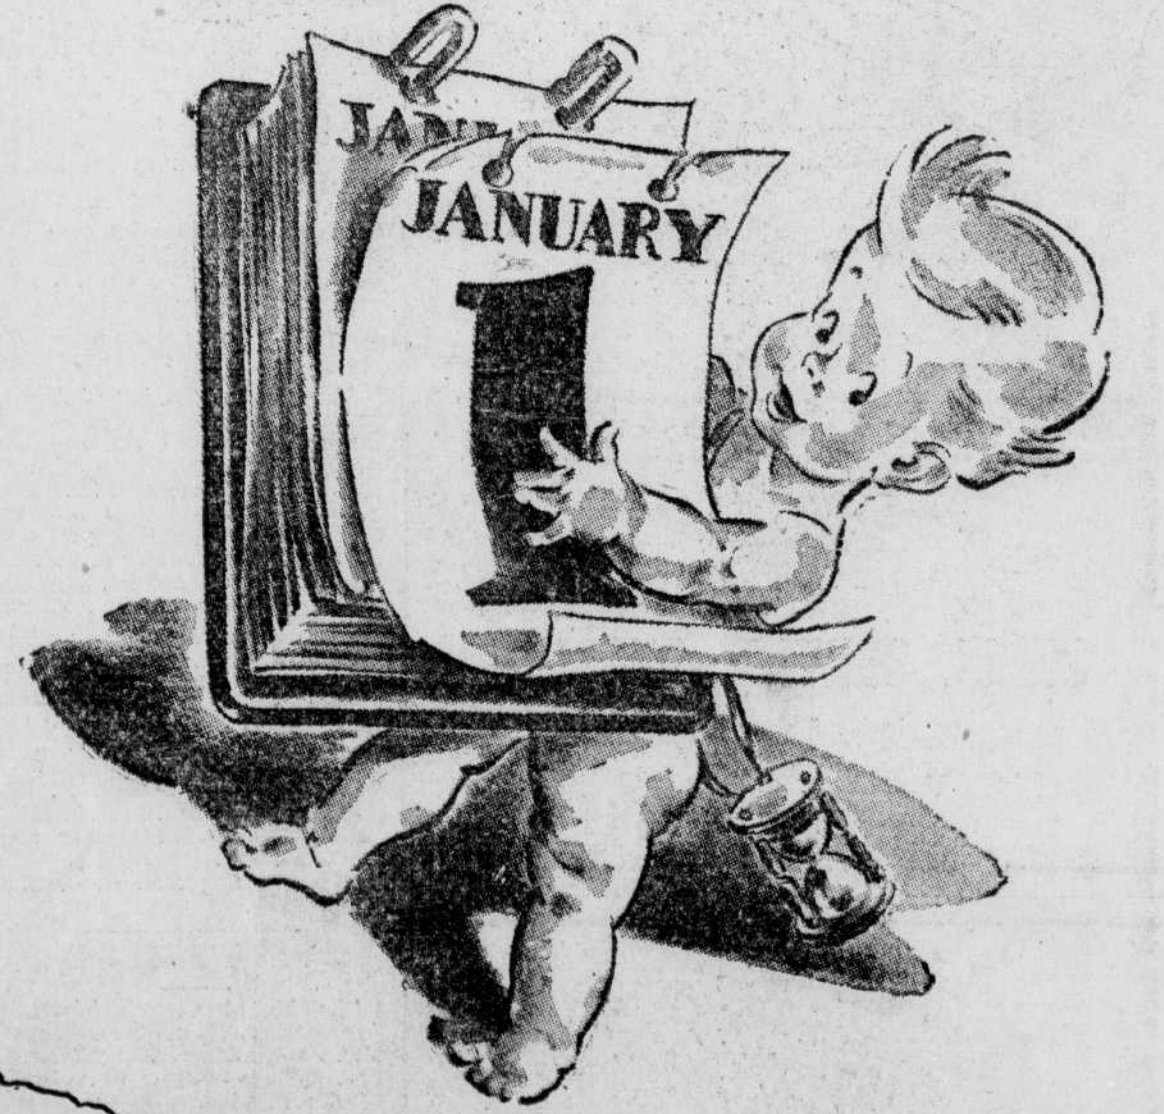

We hope the coming year brings fulfillment of your fondest hopes.
