Artist's work is written in stone

ST-ARMAND

St-Armand resident Johanne Mallette is an artisan who has found her place in the world.

Working in an interior porch that serves as a studio in her tiny house on the St-Armand road, the 40-something sculptor transforms pieces of soapstone into decorative art that is sold to private and commercial buyers across Canada.

Mallette said that she has never studied art. Her take on her gift is that 'God liked me'. She describes herself as someone who was never outstanding in school or anything else, for that matter, until she stumbled into carving.

Her career as an artisan began when she studied woodcarving with Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Philipsburg. Bertrand, now deceased, taught Mallette how to work with wood, how to visualize the work inside.

"Then I discovered soapstone and saw how easy it was to carve," she said, displaying the array of hand tools that she employs to bring the Thetford soapstone to life. "I heard somebody say that 'I don't carve; I just take the excess off,'" she said while slowly whittling away chips of soapstone from a large, triangular slab that will one day be a loon.

With no formal art training, Mallette sees herself as fortunate for having discovered an inner talent that she could develop with ease.

The beauty of soapstone is that it is an easy material with which to work.

If diamonds have a 'hardness index' of 10, then marble ranges from 3 to 7 and soapstone, from one to two.

Open Stage with Robert Atyeo

Singer-songwriter Robert Atyeo is hosting a series of Wednesday night Open Stages at the Cliff House Pub in Ayer's Cliff.

The concept gives new performers an opportunity to test their performing abilities in a relaxed but professional setting.

Each evening's show starts off with a 45-minute set from Atyeo, who recently moved to the Knowlton area from Peterborough Ontario. Following this initial set from Atyeo, who has three albums to his credit, musicians who have signed up for a given night will receive their chance to play three or four songs. Atyeo's sound system will be at their disposal and he is prepared to provide advice on the onstage presence or musical delivery for those who are interested in benefiting from his many years in the music business.

The Cliff House offers a free drink to each performer and, along with Atyeo, encourages anyone with a yen to perform as well as friends, family and acoustic music fans to come out to support the Wednesday Open Stage shows.

The Wednesday Open Stage evenings take place at the Cliff House Pub of the Auberge Ayer's Cliff, 1087 Main Street in Ayer's Cliff. There are just two more left, on May 24 and 31. There is no door charge although the hat is passed around to help pay for the cost of bringing Atyeo to the Cliff House. The Open Stage will begin at 7:30 and will run until approximately 11 p.m.

15,000 performances over three days!

71st Festival des Harmonies du Québec this weekend

By Janice Cunningham

There's going to be a whole lotta shakin' goin' on this weekend at the University of Sherbrooke as the 71st Festival des Harmonies du Québec starts up Friday. The festival will last for three days, with bands playing everything from jazz and rock to classical.

A record 10,000 participants from schools across Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick will have a chance to strut their stuff at the university, the 13th time the festival is being held in Sherbrooke. They'll be arriving by the busload Thursday, ready to offer 15,000 performances over three days for judges and the public alike, as instrumental soloists or participants of harmonies (orchestral bands without string instruments), stage bands, chamber ensembles, or combos (small jazz groups of three to six performers).

The original festival in 1929 had six bands, mostly made up of adults. The decision to open the festival to young people was made around 1950 and the FHQ has since then become predominantly a youth festival.

The honorary president this year is Mr. Raymond Tarif, president and editor of the Tribune, and FHQ spokesman for his second year is Hugo St-Cyr, drummer and well-known star of the television program Watatatow.

Soloists, stage bands, combos and chamber music ensembles will be featured all day Friday in competitions at various locations around the university, while the harmonies competition, which involves larger bands of 50 to 100, will be held Saturday and Sunday.

The "chapiteau", a large yellow and white striped tent easily visible from the main entrance, will provide continuous live entertainment and food services for anyone needing rest and refreshment over the three-day festival.

The Expo-Musique at the Centre Culturel Friday and Saturday will allow the public to try out different musical instruments as well as having demonstrations of what's new in the music industry.

A $19 passport allows the holder access to all festival events over the three days and entry is free for children ten and under. The only exception is the special performance Saturday evening at the Centre Culturel featuring the ever-popular Canadian Brass quintet. The admission charge for this show is $20. Parking at the university costs $3.50 for the day.

The Granada will set the stage for a special evening of performances Friday at 8 p.m., with more than 100 musicians including stage bands from the University of Sherbrooke and the Collège Marie-Victorin, the Chavigny Jazz stage band, the Montcalm School stage band as well as others; all for the low price of $5 for adults and $3 for students.

Closing ceremonies and the presentation of awards for the young performers will take place outside the Pavillon Universtrie Sunday afternoon.

For ticket information, phone (819) 820-1000; or try out the FHQ web site at <http://www.harmonies-quebec.com>.

COURTESY CHANTERELLES

Chanterelles in concert

Chanterelles is rehearsing! Entirely composed of women's voices and directed by Renée Larouche, this vocal ensemble is preparing its spring concert.

Since its foundation in March 1998, Chanterelles has nearly doubled, currently counting 21 members.

On May 27, Chanterelles will give a joint concert with the Choeur Leger.

This vocal ensemble from St. Constant is composed of eight mixed voices, and includes children's voices in several songs. As a finale, both choirs will be interpreting two songs together for the first time. The repertoire Chanterelles will be performing is high in colour, spirited and versatile.

And while some will enjoy the folk songs of the concert others will delight in the more classical themes presented.

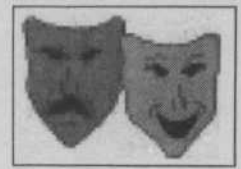

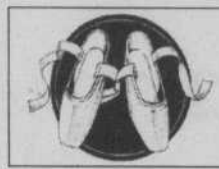

Two original creations will also be performed on this occasion: the first, 'Homage a Chanterelles' written by Renée Larouche as a tribute to the richness and colourful quality of the voices and the bond of friendship uniting these women.

The second piece, also written for Chanterelles, was created by Pierre Laurendeau, musician and composer. Laurendeau, who moved to Sutton two years ago, is the composer of the music from the ballet on trampoline 'Apogee', created by Debra Brown, choreographer of the Cirque du Soleil. 'Asse', is a vibrant cry for Peace, and a song which presents a musical challenge for the singers of Chanterelles.

The concert will take place May 27 at 8 p.m. at The St. Simon Church in Abercorn. Adults, $10, and $5 for children from 5 - 11 years old. Tel: 450-538-5636.

Androcles and the Lion is great fun

Knowlton Players is modern version of strolling minstrels

By Sue Riddell
SPECIAL TO THE RECORD

Androcles and the Lion is a perfect fit for the Knowlton Players! Aurand Harris' adaptation, based on the classic Greek myth, epitomizes all the virtues found in community-based volunteer organizations: Vision, dedication, co-operation, passion, commitment, sacrifice and devotion to the greater good.

The Knowlton Players has been cultivating amateur theatrics in the Town of Brome Lake for more than 10 years and has in that time made positive contributions to many organizations within the community.

Also, the farce is a modern variation of the Commedia dell'Arte style which emerged in the 16th-century, satirizing the human condition. The plays were staged throughout the villages and towns of Italy by strolling troubadours in masks and bright costumes. The dialogue and action was improvised around a given scenario.

The tradition continues in our marketplace - the Knowlton Pub Playhouse - with our troubadours - the generous and enthusiastic Knowlton Players.

The fable tells the tale of Androcles

(Darleen Bell), a kindly slave who runs away from his miserly master, Pantalone (Roger de la Mare at his malevolent best).

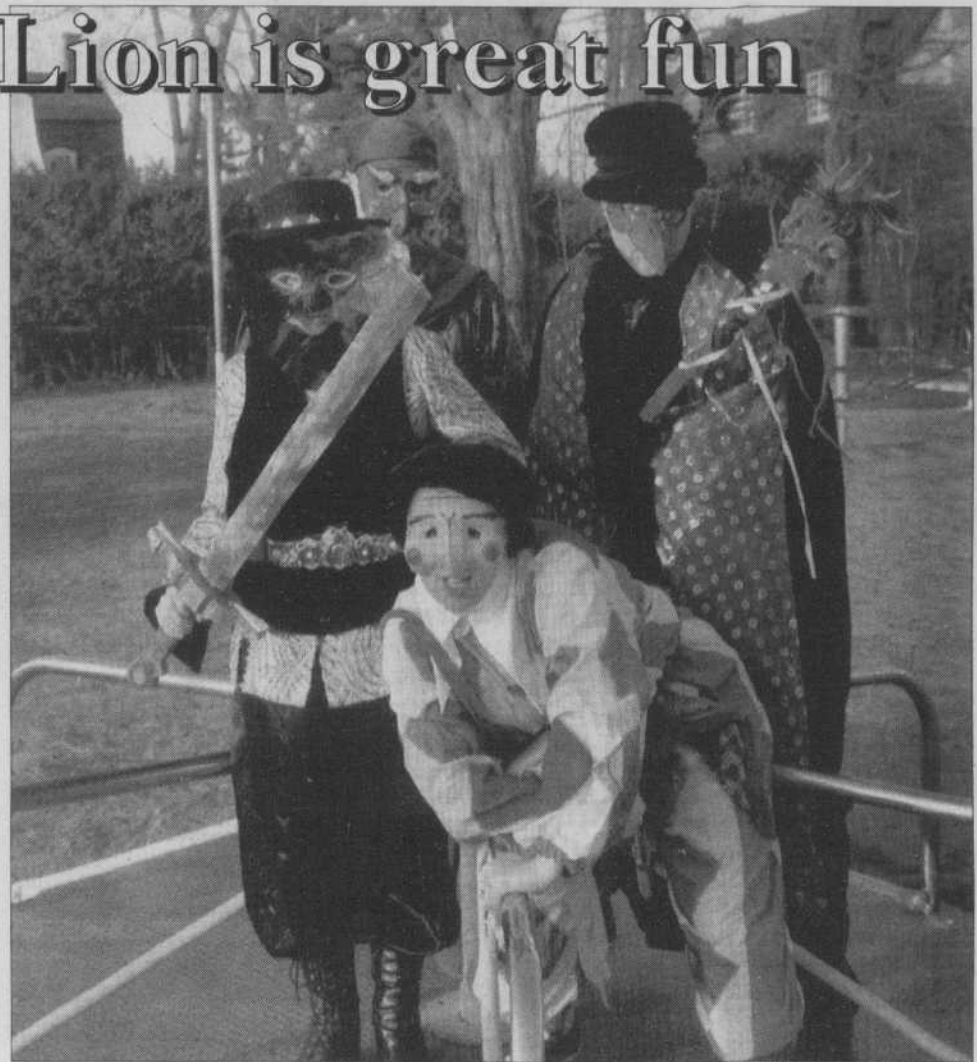

In the forest, Androcles comes upon a ferocious lion with a thorn in his paw. He overcomes his fear of the 'roaring beast' (played with gusto by Jason Westover) and removes the thorn, turning the fiend into a 'pussycat' and friend for life.

As Androcles disentangles himself from an untenable situation with the help of his new ally, he manages, as well, to liberate the young lovers Isabella and Lelio (Marty Carbonneau and Julie Collins) from the loudmouth Captain (Laura Boisvert-Marsh).

Also appearing and adding to the general mayhem were musicians Sidney Brouillette and Barry Dywer, and acrobats Maria Goodman, Sasha Laurent and Joanne Watson.

The director, Christopher Freeman, for the most part kept control of the non-stop action and enthusiastic voices.

Slavery, corporal punishment, man's inhumanity to man - the stuff of nightly newscasts hardly seems fare for families. However, the Knowlton Players takes these themes and wraps them in such a way as to make them digestible and great fun, which is, after all, the 'raison d'etre' of fable (to educate and entertain) and a tribute to the strolling minstrels of this community.

Malette requires no power tools

It is aptly named, for she requires no power tools to work a piece other than an electric milling machine to sharpen knife blades.

Unfortunately, the softness of the stone means that it is much more susceptible to scratching and chipping than harder materials such as marble. However, the stone's rich green and black hues change with the ambient light.

Her works range from small hanging plaques with northern themes that sell between $20 and $80 to larger works, such as free standing sculpture may retail for over $3000. It is her small works, though, that form the bulk of her business.

"My first client was Birks," recalls Malette. "From there, I got into other stores. I was at the right place at the right time."

She was also willing to do the legwork necessary to create the foundations of a business, filling her car trunk full of pieces and traveling to stores in Quebec and Montreal. Currently, she has buyers from coast to coast and maintains a business that helps her to support herself and 11-year-old son Gabriel.

Her future plan includes conversion of a shed to a permanent studio and showroom that she hopes to have completed by the following summer. Once she has adequate display space, she can contemplate applying to one of the area's many art tours, such as the local Tournée des Vingt.

Des grands concerts et de la bonne chanson

Par Guylaine Hébert
COLLABORATION SPÉCIALE

Un grand événement qui témoigne bien de la vitalité et de l'effervescence des arts et de la culture chez nous, c'est incontestablement le Festival des harmonies du Québec qui a soixant-et-onze ans d'existence et se tient à Sherbrooke pour une treizième année. À compter d'aujourd'hui et jusqu'à dimanche, pas moins de 179 harmonies nous permettront d'entendre les plus beaux airs de jazz, de musique populaire et classique au son de cuivres, de bois et de percussions.

En dehors des compétitions et présentations offertes par les quelque 10000 jeunes musiciens et musiciennes qui ont envahi hier le campus universitaire, on compte également une programmation grand public, dont le prestigieux spectacle du quintette de cuivres de renommée internationale, Canadian Brass, demain soir, au Centre culturel de l'Université de Sherbrooke. Cette formation compte, dit-on, une cinquantaine d'enregistrements et parcourt le monde depuis trente ans afin de se produire avec de grands orchestres symphoniques du Canada, des États-Unis, d'Europe et du Japon.

PAROLES ET MUSIQUE

Les virtuoses Jens Lindemann et Ron Romm aux trompettes, Chris Cooper au cor français, ainsi que le tromboniste Gene Watts et le tubiste Duck Daellenbach - qui soit dit en passant sont des habitués des émissions Tonight Show et Entertainment Tonight - offriront aussi bien de grands classiques que des pièces de blues.

Le théâtre Granada sera également mis à contribution, notamment ce vendredi, avec la soirée On jazz au centre-ville. On y entendra évidemment quelques-uns des plus beaux airs de jazz grâce à la participation des six meilleurs stage band universitaires du Festival réunissant plus d'une centaine de musiciens. En somme, de quoi ravir les mélomanes avertis tout en permettant aux profanes de découvrir qu'une harmonie...

Pour ceux qui apprécient le style chansonnier, Olivier Brousseau est certes un auteur-compositeur-interprète sherbrookoïse à suivre. Sur des arrangements qui ne sont pas sans rappeler les années soixante-dix, ce jeune guitariste et chanteur propose de bons textes, dont Paris en bouteille et Goûter au ciel (titre de son premier album). De retour chez lui après une tournée de plusieurs spectacles, Brousseau saura sans doute offrir une agréable performance, ce soir, au Vieux Clocher Sherbrooke.

Il faut également souligner l'excellent récital que nous a livré Claude Gauthier, au Café de Lafontaine, samedi soir dernier. L'artiste ne change pas. Sa poésie d'hier et d'aujourd'hui

Mushrooming art form

By Jennifer Young Painter
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
LENOXVILLE

Lennoxville artist Eileen Drew has her own variation of turning a sow's ear into a silk purse. Drew takes unsightly fungi from tree trunks and turns them into beautiful displays of color and images most would be proud to showcase in their home.

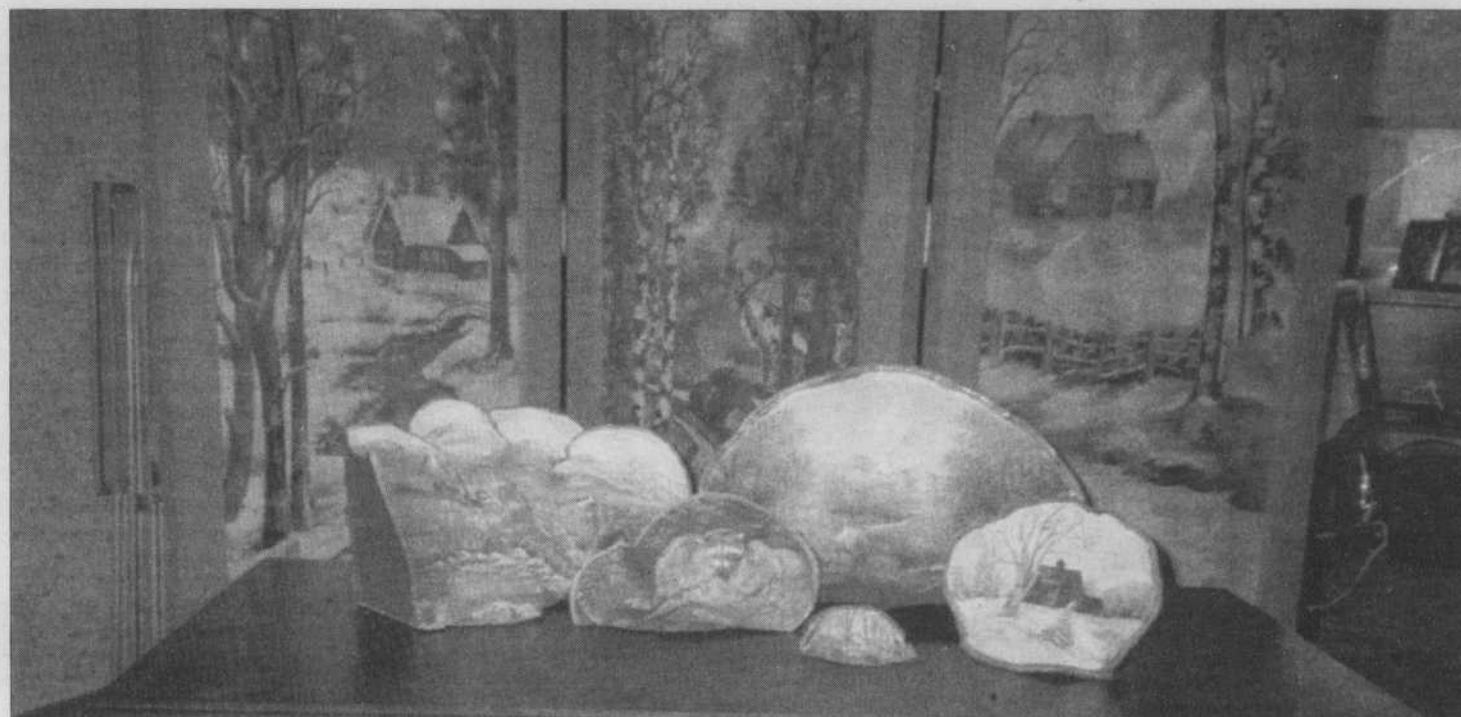

Drew's interest was sparked by her mother's creative endeavours some 40 years ago. "She only did three or four, but as a child I thought it was neat so I took her idea. At first I thought nobody would be interested in having fungus in their house, so I did it for fun - but then people started placing orders," Drew said.

Successful harvesting of the fungi is the first step in creating the art, and Drew says she has had the good fortune of finding people who keep a watchful eye for prime growths.

"I have never picked one myself in 12 years, but people always bring them to me. For some reason when people see them they think of me, I don't know if that's good or bad," she said. Once she has the fungi, she begins the lengthy process of drying it out.

"The drying process takes the most time since the fungi have to dry for a good year. I suppose you could try to use it earlier but I want to make sure they are well dried so that the paint will adhere nicely to the surface and not sink in." Drew says the fungus shrinks during the drying process, so if it's painted too soon the picture will also shrink, creating a new and distorted image.

They are surprisingly heavy when they aren't dry making moving them a bit of a chore to move around. Drew says they lose a lot of weight as they dry. Certain trees produce better fungus and dry quicker. Hardwood trees, she says, are the best while birch trees do not produce good fungus for artwork.

Drew says that she is thankful for the help of husband Donald who cuts the fungi so that they stand firmly to display the murals. Once the surface is sufficiently dried the transformation from fungus to objet d'art begins.

Sometimes the inspiration is her own and in other instances, it is a commissioned work. The texture, size and form of the fungus often dictate the kind of work.

"First you have to carefully map out what you can do because there is not one fungus that is the same - they have bumps and other infirmities that you have to be able to work with," Drew says.

"Once I had one that had a stone directly in the middle of it. When you first see that, well, you wonder what you can do with it. Luckily I had visited Scotland and associated the rock with its rugged beauty so I turned that fungus into a reminder of Scotland. I went out and bought a little sheep and put it on the rock."

Like any art work, it takes a lot of imagination and planning. "I've done scenery and wild animals but I also do whatever it is that people would like me to try."

Drew says a person who owns a farm once asked her to paint a picture of his house and animals, on his land. Of course that takes quite a bit of time but I did my best.

"Another couple took a fungus off an old tree on their property, brought it to me and asked me to paint a portrait of their house on it. I was pleased that I was considered to do this project since it was their own tree and I created something they could keep."

Once painting or portrait is complete, a signature and varnishing is the last step. Drew admits she isn't sure how long the fungus will last and she is very honest with her customers on this subject.

"I tell everyone that I can't guarantee they will last forever but I know they last a long while since I saw one that my mother had painted 40 years ago and it is in the excellent condition," she said.

Of the 300-400 that she has done she is exceptionally proud of the large painting of Scotland she did on a 20-inch fungus that clearly illustrates her eye for detail and fine craftsmanship. The work, frequently featured as the piece de resistance at exhibitions, is chalk full of detail which tell fairy tales in your head. For instance a piper, castle, running creeks and highland cattle can set your mind racing.

"I only go to one craft show, the one at the big red barn or Uplands I guess it's called now. I only go to that one since at every craft show I go home with orders and I don't want to get behind and not be able to make them in a respectable time period."

Drew says that she does not do it for a living but simply for the pleasure she gets in doing them.

"If I did this for money I wouldn't get too far, I don't make them expensive so that people can enjoy them, I go by the price of the paint and how long it takes me to finish them," Drew said. "To be honest I enjoy painting on the fungus but I find it a lot more difficult than painting on a canvas," she said modestly while glancing at life-like portraits she painted for herself of her grandchildren that could very easily pass as photos.

Drew is already busy preparing orders, but is looking forward to the next craft show at Uplands which is usually held near Thanksgiving.

'LAMBS' SEQUEL TO BE RELEASED WITHOUT FOSTER

Director Ridley Scott says he's still surprised that Jodie Foster backed out of the sequel to Silence Of The Lambs.

But as Scott plunges into the filming of Hannibal in Italy with Julianne Moore taking over the role of Agent Clarice Starling, he also insists that the project was never in jeopardy because of Foster's action.

"It would have never happened that the sequel would not go through without her - not in this business," says Scott. In other words, there was too much money at stake.

Scott, whose current Gladiator is cleaning up at the box office, thinks there are two reasons why Foster finally refused to do the new project. One is that she had received the green light to direct a new movie and because she had been waiting to do it for a long time, it had higher priority for her than Hannibal. Secondly, Scott is convinced Foster didn't want to do a sequel anyway.

"But it was still an amazing decision for her to make," he adds. "After all, she could have been done and through with our film by August."

On the other hand, Scott admits there would have been a serious problem if Sir Anthony Hopkins had refused to reprise his Oscar-winning characterization of cannibalistic killer Dr. Hannibal Lecter. More than a year ago, during filming of Titus, Hopkins told reporters he was depressed and fed up over his acting and intended to quit.

Scott suggests Hopkins had good reason to be depressed at the time: the veteran actor had just starred in the disastrous Meet Joe Black.

"Tony's crisis came at the end of a lot of bad decisions. He'd done a lot of movies that he probably didn't like. He probably looked at them and said: 'Oh my God! What am I doing?'"

Scott says Hopkins fell prey to the malaise of all artists who are so anxious to work that they make poor choices. "We all like to work. It's hard sitting around, waiting for good material. You have to be be-able to function, but not necessarily for the money. You have to function for artistic reasons."

Scott says that instead of making so many movies a couple of years back, Hopkins should have gone back to live theatre for a while. "But now he's back and raring to go. And we have this wonderful script by Steve Zaillian."

CENTER STAGE'S AMANDA SCHULL ISN'T NICE TO HER SLIPPERS

Dancer Amanda Schull says her new movie, Center Stage, doesn't exaggerate in the scene where various student ballerinas virtually destroy their new dance slippers before trying them out.

"They cost like $89 a pair and to break them in, you end up tearing them apart," she giggles. Amanda, who recently joined San Francisco Ballet, spends extra money for "special order" shoes but each new pair is still subjected to her own brand of personal assault.

"I break off the back. I cut off the shank, so there's only three quarters of the shank left. That makes my foot look more naturally arched. Then I ask the larger boys in the company to step on them to help me mold them to the calluses and bunions in my feet."

PLANET OF THE APES REMAKE IN THE WORKS

It will be full circle for veteran producer Richard Zanuck when he takes on responsibility for the Fox studio's remake of Planet Of The Apes. Zanuck was president of production at Fox when the original 1968 film was released. The new version will be directed by Tim Burton this summer and will be released in the fall of 2001.

WILLIS WILL STAR IN OUTLAWS

Bruce Willis, Billy Bob Thornton and Cate Blanchett are set to star in Outlaws for MGM. The romantic comedy will be directed by Barry Levinson of Fame and Wag The Dog fame.

Allen gets big time actors

SOUTHAM NEWS

Hugh Grant knows it sounds like a cliché when he says working with Woody Allen was a dream come true. But he says there's no other way of describing his reaction when Allen invited him to star in his new comedy, Small Time Crooks.

"I've always had a few heroes and he's always been one of them to such an extent that it's almost ridiculous," the British actor said in an interview.

Grant isn't the only actor who feels this way. Allen - a truly original filmmaker who continues to work with almost total independence within the Hollywood system - operates on such slender budgets that he generally can't afford to pay his performers more than $10,000 a week, a figure which is laughably small by Hollywood standards. Yet, he has no trouble attracting the likes of Jodie Foster, Goldie Hawn, Alan Alda, John Cusack, Julia Roberts and Michael Caine into his projects.

For Small Time Crooks, Allen even managed to persuade legendary writer-comedian Elaine May to do a cameo; it's her first movie appearance in years. He also brought back such tried and tested members of the Allen acting stable as Tony Darrow and Michael Rapaport to portray two inept bank robbers.

Three More Years of 'Ryan McNeil'

TVDATA

With his new three-year contract, fans of actor Scott Reeves (Ryan McNeil) won't have to worry about him leaving The Young and the Restless any time soon. Unfortunately, the same can't be said for Ashley Jones (Megan Dennison Viscardi). The actress decided not to renew her contract with Y&R. At this time, there were no plans to recast the role. Passions is losing one of its bright young stars. Mary Elizabeth Winstead is leaving the role of Jessica Bennet to work in prime time. She will play Scott Bakula's daughter in a new Fox pilot. Ellen Dolan (Margo Hughes) is expected back on the set of As the World Turns in a few weeks. She gave birth to her first child, Angela Emmet, in April. Both mother and child are doing well.

Former Another World star Matthew Crane (Matthew Cory) and One Life to Live star Robin Christopher (Skye Chandler) surprised their friends when they eloped in April. They have been a couple since working together on AW. And wedding bells were ringing in Malibu, Calif., when Austin Peck (Austin Reed, Days of Our Lives) married his long-time girlfriend, Tara Crespo.
