Fresh distrust of U. S. intentions

Jingoism strong in Panama

WASHINGTON — (TNS) — The man in the elevator said of Panama: "Looks like those people are getting out of hand down there. We'll just have to go in and straighten them out."

I imagined the ghost of Teddy Roosevelt booming: "Bully for you!" And I remembered the choleric cries of the British Tories when Nasser grabbed their canal in 1956: "We'll fix those wogs in 24 hours."

Despite the bomb, the U-N charter and all that, good old jingoism is still going strong.

But because it is no longer considered sporting for big countries to use Palmerston's gunboat or Roosevelt's "big stick," the present Panama crisis has left Uncle Sam up the canal without a paddle.

The closer you look at it the worse it gets. American troops have killed Panamanians on what is supposed to be Panamanian soil. This has brought shouts of "Yankee assassins" from unfriendly countries, sharp criticism from otherwise friendly Latin nations and smug disapproval

By GORDON DONALDSON from reformed colonialists in Europe.

It has aroused fresh distrust of U.S. intentions and its Alliance for Progress plan for social and economic reform in Latin America. Panama, under president Roberto Chiari, was following the plan loyally by trying to reduce poverty at home and by shunning subversion from Cuba.

It has brought a breach in diplomatic relations with Panama and the strongest demands yet that the U.S. give up the canal.

It has placed President Johnson in a very awkward position during an election year. He has to weigh the claims of jingoism at home and diplomacy abroad. For the Panama affair involves three political catch words—the flag, the anthem and Cuba.

It took the American battleship Oregon 71 days to steam from the west coast around the horn to Cuba during the Spanish-American war. Which convinced Theodore Roosevelt that a canal must be dug across the Central American isthmus.

Panama was then a province of Colombia, which had refused Teddy's offer of $10 million in gold and a quarter million a year rent for the canal site.

Suddenly Panama was no longer a province of Colombia. Suddenly its people revolted and set up their own republic. Whether or not Roosevelt organized the revolt, he sent gunboats to support it. It took him 72 minutes to recognize the new state and 15 days to sign a treaty giving the U.S. control of the Canal Zone "in perpetuity."

Rent for the canal is now up to $1,930,000 a year, but the Panamanians are not happy; the U.S. still draws four million in annual profit.

After six people were killed in riots in 1949, President Eisenhower granted Panama "residual" or "titular" sovereignty over the Zone. Nobody knows just what this means. The State Department explains that the 1902 treaty gave the U.S. all the rights of a tenant who had leased the property. Only this lease runs forever.

But the Panamanians were allowed to fly their flag on some civilian sites in the Zone. President Kennedy later increased the number of sites.

The 36,000 American civilians who live in the Zone, call themselves "Zonians", and discriminate against the natives, resent the dual flag system. Their teenage children provoked the present riots, which have killed 20, including three American soldiers, and injured hundreds.

Freedomites to stay

Agassiz shacks now home

AGASSIZ, B.C. — (TNS) — A collection of shacks on the fringe of a gravel pit has become home for 500 nomadic Freedomites and neither gale nor blizzard nor deluge will dislodge them.

Their strange and stubborn vigil outside the fences of Mountain Prison, where several score of their kinsmen are jailed on terrorist charges, could go on for 10 years.

Fasting in prison and camp has stopped. The campers are no longer pressing for any particular action by the government, although they would still like an inquiry into the means by which the men in the prison were convicted, and, of course, they want them released.

Aside from the wholesale flouting of building and sanitation laws represented by the camp itself, the group has established a record of scrupulous respect for the law.

Far from being explosive, the situation has settled down to the point where it is hard to see when, or how it will ever change. Some of the prisoners have more than 10 years to go before their sentences are up. There is nothing to indicate that the campers can not and will not stay right where they are until all their kinsmen are free.

They have little money, but the way they are living involves little expense, and the longer they stay the more jobs they are likely to find. It is hard for outsiders to imagine how they can find any satisfaction in just squatting outside the prison day after day, but as long as that is what they want to do with their lives there is nothing to stop them from doing it.

Some of the implications of a long stay are rather disquieting to the municipal authorities. Next year, under B.C. law, adult Freedomites will be qualified to vote in municipal elections. There are probably more of them than the 250 votes which elected the reeve last December.

If she acquires a bit of property before next September,

Big Fanny Storgoff, the Freedomites' spokesman, would be eligible to be reeve in 1965.

Then there is the matter of the 1966 census. If the Douks aren't gone by then, they'll push the population of Kent municipality over the 2,500 mark, and the local ratepayers will become responsible for a share of police and social welfare costs—some of which they are now exempt. If, in the meantime, the Doukhobors have been accepted on the social welfare rolls, the cost could be staggering.

At present, the sect members get no welfare payments as such; the authorities contend that they are on the move and not properly settled anywhere. However, they get food vouchers from the Salvation Army, and the provincial government picks up the tab.

Recently a Mountie gave a new-comer at the camp a dressing down for erecting a wooden building without a permit. The Doukhobor meekly went to the municipal police office and asked for one—a request that couldn't possibly be granted since the structure was illegal on several counts. The embarrassed policeman, who hadn't thought for a moment that the Doukhobor would pay any attention, had to send unofficial word back to the camp that it was all a mistake.

Meanwhile, the Doukhobor, carrying the sect's present law-abiding policy to the limit, had already taken his house down.

NY WORLD FAIR HAS PIRATE AURA

NEW YORK — (TNS) — The "world's fair" that New York will open this year is expected to be quite a contrast to its distant, but legitimate Canadian cousin at Montreal in 1967.

For one thing, not very much of the "world" will be attending the New York fair. This is because the Bureau of International Exhibitions, the agency which supervises world fairs, has not approved the New York venture (the BIE has fully approved the Montreal fair.) Many countries, including Canada, have shied away from participating in the New York fair since lack of BIE approval has given this fair a "pirate" or "wildcat" aura.

Many of the so-called "national" exhibits of the New York fair will not be sponsored by the governments of the countries concerned but by private business groups.

Perhaps the biggest difference between the Canadian and New York fairs is that the Canadian exhibition in 1967 has some pretense to being a dignified international exhibition with educational and culture value. In contrast, the New York fair seems to be nothing more than a commercial moneymaking venture with all the crassness that American commercialism often entails.

The profit motive will be present throughout the fair's 645 acres (the Montreal fair has 500 acres), partly because that most of the fair's estimated 150 or more exhibits have been set up by commercial companies to advertise their wares.

Even the U.S. government exhibit will be somewhat of an advertising venture — perhaps propaganda is a better word.

Fair officials had hoped to get the very successful science pavilion that the U.S. government operated at the Seattle World's Fair.

But Washington said no, and instead the U.S. pavilion at the New York fair will stress the pioneer spirit of the American way of life.

In addition to the U.S. pavilion and the various exhibits put up by private American firms, certain U.S. state governments will also be sponsoring exhibits. These include Alaska; Arkansas (stressing that state's industrial and recreational achievements); Florida; Hawaii (costing $3.5 million and having a native village); Illinois; Louisiana; Maryland; Minnesota (stressing outdoor living); Montana; New Jersey (telling the state's 300 year history); New York; Oklahoma (stressing water development); West Virginia (land of relaxation pavilion) and Wisconsin (dairy products).

The Soviet Union was all set to build a pavilion but Washington asked for similar exhibition rights in the USSR and the deal fell through.

The United Arab Republic has an exhibit, but Israel is not officially represented at a fair being held in the largest Jewish city in the world.

However, a group of American Jews are backing an "American-Israeli" exhibit which will stress the history of the Jewish people in relation to the Holy Land.

This will be one of a number of religious exhibits. The others are sponsored by the Vatican, the Mormons, the Christian Scientists and Billy Graham. There will also be one pavilion called the Protestant and Orthodox Center, representing 16 denominations.

For those who don't like their religion so formal, the fair is providing a "garden of meditation."

The symbol of the fair is the "Unisphere," the gleaming 1-story steel globe which is part of the U.S. Steel exhibition. The globe is supposed to represent "peace through understanding."

Gears up for assault

Science to attack the headache

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Heady with victory over gravity, tooth decay and the atom, laboratory science appears to be gearing up for an assault on mankind's oldest ailment — the headache.

But no matter what anybody predicts about the campaign, don't be too quick to throw out your ice bag and pill bottle.

A human condition that has stumped men of good will for at least 5,000 years is not likely to yield easily to a bunch of moderns, just because they have found a way to end the human race in 43 minutes of strategic bombing.

Nevertheless, the battle has been joined from the National Institutes of Health to the more courageous pharmaceutical houses in what may become one of the major embarrassments in the age of science.

It is a peculiarity of the headache that while almost everybody has had one, nobody can say for sure why it started, why it went away or, for that matter, what it is that hurt.

For one thing, the brain itself — our most highly organized tissue of nerves — is insensitive to pain. Only in cases of obviously organic ailment does a study of the brain reveal anything about the headache — for example, a tumor can be seen.

The first report from the battlefield by the Ad Hoc Committee of the Classification of Headache of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness lists 15 major types of headache, from migraines to cranial neuralgias.

Seemingly different causes can lead to the same type of headache. One man's "Monday" headache is frequently another man's "weekender"; one housewife's "summer" headache can be another's "Christmas Day."

Headache subtypes are so varied that they are often named by their describers rather than their descriptions. Yet it is questionable as to what benefit accrues to the hero who can tell on the morning after whether he has Bing's headache or Horton's all this goes as far to explain the nature of headaches as do certain headache-provoking pill commercials on television.

Gives direction to expansion

New industry department makes itself felt

OTTAWA — (TNS) — The new Department of Industry established only last year is already making itself felt on the Canadian economic scene.

In its six months of existence, it has stepped up defense sharing with the U.S., has cleared the way for a $30,000,000 heavy water plant to be built in Nova Scotia, and has divided the functions of the Queen's Printer in line with Glassco Commission recommendations.

It is also giving direction to ward economic and industrial expansion in Canada.

In the current fiscal year, the new department is operating on a budget of only $665,000, almost entirely to be used for administrative purposes.

"We've only made a start so far," says Industry Minister C.M. Drury, "but I'm pleased with what has been accomplished. The department presents a challenge."

MET OBSTACLES

It hasn't all been smooth sailing for Mr. Drury. His plan to increase auto parts production in Canada has run into obstacles, and the threat of retaliation by the U.S. but it has not been shelved.

Under this program, which is expected to provide an additional 50,000 jobs in Canada, the Government is striving to reduce its imports of auto parts from the U.S. by $200,000,000 a year. For every $1 worth of parts Canadian manufacturers export, importers can bring in $1 worth of U.S. parts duty-free.

The U.S. government has strongly protested. So have U.S. parts producers.

The Department of Industry was established early in the session just ended, in line with an election pledge of Prime Minister Pearson. Mr. Drury, 31, a prominent Montreal industrialist, businessman and lawyer, was a logical choice to head it.

WILL BE MERGED

When Mr. Pearson appointed him to head the Department of Defense production, he said Mr. Drury would also be responsible for the new Department of Industry after it was established. The two eventually will be merged.

Ten main functional branches come under the department: aircraft, chemicals, clothing and textiles, electrical and electronics, food products, machinery, materials, mechanical transport, shipbuilding and wood products.

The Industry Department is responsible for defense development and production sharing with the U.S. It is in charge of defense exports to friendly countries, and coordinates Canadian activities in connection with the research, development and production program of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

One of the department's most important functions is the procurement of all defense supplies for the armed forces, Mr. Drury says.

Scouting and Cubbing

By KEN BARTLETT

Sometimes people begin the year by turning over a new leaf, but over in Waterville there is a Scout Group, the First Waterville Pack, which started the month with a good portion of new unit. For last Wednesday Akela Fred Pessig invested no fewer than six Cub Scouts in his Pack. Those saying the Cub Law and repeating the Cub Promise were Barry Millmore, Denis Hodge, John Ball, Jim O'Malley, Allan Noury, and Michael Hartwell. Recently the Pack had their annual party-called "Pinatta" in Spanish which has come to be a tradition in Waterville.

The idea was brought from Mexico by the late Bob Gale and has been perpetuated by his successor Akela Pessig. All of us who knew Bob Gale, and admired his ideas live on. Incidentally at the party, there were also Brownies. And of course at a "Pinatta" the main object is to bat down the goodies, which are suspended from the ceiling by cords. It sounds like a lot of fun.

Last Friday, in what must have been the stormiest night of the winter, the First Sherbrooke Pack held a sleigh drive. The route was generally supposed to have been the Spring Road outside Lennoxville, but they are not quite sure whether they were on the road or in the fields, but in the end all went well. Everyone turned up in Lennoxville, including Akela Jean Humphries, two other leaders and twelve boys. The evening ended with cocoa and cookies and a good time was had by all.

The Fifth Sherbrooke Pack has been busy passing badges. Three of the mothers have been brought in to the act by certifying that their sons were capable of passing the House Orderly Badge. The Cub receiving the badges are Geoffrey Boisvert, Robert Ross and Ronald Berwick. There are apparently some budding artists at the Fifth and those receiving their Artist's Badge are Mark Allison and Craig Bishop. Akela Durrant also introduced the Pack to a new Chum in the person of David Lyon.

SCOUTING AROUND . . . We learned there is to be an Akela Club Meeting at District Cubmaster, Dick Tracy's home, Deacon St. Lennoxville, Thursday, Jan. 23rd. . . there was a meeting of the Executive Council Jan. 6th and plans for next meeting of District Council were discussed. . . Friends of former local Scouters Dick Pearson will be interested to learn he is with the "Bell" at Smiths Falls, Ont. The January Newsletter from Quebec Headquarters states there is to be a new group "C" Section for older Scouts—somewhere between present Scouts and Rovers. We will all watch this with interest because something has to be done to interest boys of to day, who seem to grow up faster than their fathers did. It is just a trial scheme, and we will see what happens.

Student separatists stage a 24-hour fast; march downtown to honor Marcel Chaput

Sixty-five placard-waving separatists from the University of Sherbrooke and the Sherbrooke Seminary staged a demonstration in downtown Sherbrooke last night following the beginning of a 24-hour fast by some 20 students.

Spokesmen said the purpose of the demonstration was to promote the cause of Quebec independence, to awaken a "lethargic" Sherbrooke population to the idea of separatism and as a gesture of respect for the suffering of fasting Marcel Chaput.

The threat of a counter-demonstration by Bishop's University students which organizer

By IRWIN BLOCK
(Record staff reporter)

Gatien Fredette said he had received did not materialize as the demonstrators proceeded in orderly fashion behind a billowing fleur-de-lis from the university campus to downtown Wellington and King.

The demonstration, believed to be the first of its kind ever held in Sherbrooke, attracted the attention of many Friday night shoppers as the long line of students moved slowly and silently through the packed downtown area.

The demonstrators were instructed at the beginning of the march that they were to obey the commands of Sherbrooke police and in the event of any trouble were to refrain from offering any resistance.

The students carried placards reading "Independence costs, but it pays", "A people half-free is a people half-enslaved," and "Chaput suffers for the liberation of his people".

Among the students were two university professors, Andre Collinge and Armand Parent, both of the faculty of arts. Mr. Parent said he would join the 20 fasting students, while the other said he could not because of his health.

The demonstration and fast was organized by four arts students, Gervais Fournier, Robert Dion, Gatien Fredette and Yves Levesque. They acted as spokesmen for the group.

They said that none of the fasting students or demonstrators were members of Chaput's Parti Republique du Quebec. A number of the students were members of the University's Cercle Nationaliste.

The demonstrators said they were opposed to fasting for gaining money. They said they were also opposed to fasting as a means of gaining independence at this time.

"No one is being jailed for being a separatist. We still have all the means of a democratic society at our disposal such as the press, pressure groups, and public meetings," Professor Parent said.

While not approving the principle of Mr. Chaput's fast, they sympathized with the suffering of a "man who espouses the same end as ours".

The group sent a telegram this afternoon to Mr. Chaput imploring him to stop his fast, expressing their fear for the life of the separatist leader who they prefer "alive to dead."

The demonstration broke up at 9:00 p.m. with the 20 fasting students planning to spend the night at the Boite a Chansons on King Street.

This morning the students were again to go into the streets and march back to the university campus where the students were to end their fast.

The fast began yesterday at 12:00 noon when the students sat at an empty table in the cafeteria bristling with students on their lunch hour.

The telegram set to Marcel Chaput was read to the several hundred students in the cafeteria and it was greeted with warm but not over-enthusiastic applause.

Copies of the telegram were later distributed to the student body and to passers-by as the march worked its way through the streets of Sherbrooke.

The fasting students spent the rest of the afternoon discussing the future of the French-Canadian nation and the goals of separatism.

Doctor cleared in damage suit; driver ordered to pay $37,340

The Superior Court has ordered 22-year-old Jean Paul Mercier of Compton Station to pay $37,340 to the family of his 17-year-old friend, Roger Veilleux who was struck in the face and hurt October 7 when he was a passenger in a car driven by Mercier which spun off the road and struck a fence in North Hatley.

The judgment handed down January 17 by Gaston Desmarais clears Doctor Gordon Loomis of all responsibility in the $99,690 joint suit. Dr. Loomis was represented by Paul Gervais.

The plaintiff included Doctor Loomis in the suit on the grounds that his fence post, which pierced the crashing Mercier vehicle's windshield striking his son's face, was too close to the road.

The judgment the suit placed sole blame for the accident of Jean Paul Mercier. Mr. Mercier, says the report, was "solely" responsible because of his "carelessness" and "maladroitness" in connection with the accident.

The judgment stated that the Mercier car was being driven too fast (at 45 miles per hour) and that his brakes were defective at the time of the accident and furthermore that Mr. Mercier knew they were.

Mr. Mercier, who was represented by Pierre Fournier, is to pay $37,340 as follows:

—$30,000 for permanent partial incapacity, scars and disfigurement;
—$2,600 for temporary total incapacity;

—$800 for suffering and inconvenience;
—$2,500 future medical expenses;

—$1,440 on a personal demand from Mr. Mercier covering medical costs, ambulance charges, and travelling costs.

In clearing Dr. Loomis the statement said in part that the provincial government was long aware of the lay-out of the Loomis property and noted never before had it been responsible for accidents.

"Nothing indicates to the court that the presence of the hedges on the edge of the route constitutes a danger and could have been the direct cause of the accident caused by the fault of the defender Mercier," the judgment adds.

WATERLOO HIGH SCHOOL'S — Debating and Public Speaking Association was held Jan. 9 to Armand Russell, M.L.A. for Sherbrooke, who coached members of the association-sponsored mock parliament. The affair was considered an unqualified success, with Speaker Ted Jackson, Lieutenant-Governor Norman Singfield, Sergeant-at-Arms Fred Sheppard, Premier Bill Johnson, Separatist Leader Graham Worden, Narrator Morna Flood and Pages Jenny Ray and Joyce Norton.

NORTH HATLEY HIGH SCHOOL — Students' Council is sponsoring the film RIO BRAVO, starring John Wayne and Ricky Nelson, tonight starting at 8 p.m. Admission is 50 cents and refreshments are to be served.

SUNNYSIDE HIGH SCHOOL students have been having uproarious noon hours and recesses the past week by holding slave auctions. This is private auction for girls only and they bid for boys. The bids, the first of the week started from five cents to 70 cents with an average of 45 cents each by mid-week. This auction began on January 14 and ended Jan. 17. The money goes into the Student Council fund. After the auction the boy becomes the slave of the girl who made highest bid for the week of January 20 through 24. Some unusual entertainment is planned by the girls as a reward to the boys. It sounds like fun, it is fun and we hear the girls have thought up some great ideas for their slaves the coming week. This is sort of retaliation for the situation of a few weeks ago when the girls were slaves to the boys prior to Sadie Hawkins week.

ST. PATRICK HIGH SCHOOL in Sherbrooke is busy with judo and journalism, correspondent Richard Wilson reports. Physical education instructor, Mr. Mercier is the judo expert and has been giving demonstrations in the art to the students. Recreation periods have been enlivened by the antics of enthusiastic judo students who have, so far, managed to escape injury. All equipment has been installed and is being put to good use.

Devotees to the philosophy that the typewriter is mightier than the judo hold, the staff of the Green and White Review, are hard at work, driven by their better-than-ever policy. Hopes are high that they will produce a truly outstanding yearbook.

Letters sent to Chamber of Commerce City replies to criticism

The City of Sherbrooke has now capital investment budget, year near completion.

Mr. Langlois singled out important projects recommended by the LaHaye report for the central business district which the Chamber had charged was being overlooked.

Among the city plans are: a King Street West elevated expressway, Montreal-Terrill St. Bridge, Acadie Street Viaduct, bridge over the St. Francis River, Wellington St. North wall, a civic centre.

Traffic circulation improvements are provided for in the report, the city services director said. Among them: Wellington Street North and Wellington St. South parking lots, the two bridges and Acadie St. viaduct.

In response to the Chamber's criticism of downtown train tracks as traffic obstacles, Mr.

Langlois replied that lengthy transactions have been made on talks with Claude LaHaye and Ottawa government officials. They are the purchase of the P. E. Beaulieu property for $37,659.60; the purchase of the Armitage property for $22,000; and the purchase of the Murray property for $32,100.

The letter notes that evaluation of the expropriation costs does not include provision for possible damages.

A separate estimate has been prepared on the total amount of damages possible, the report says.

The letters conclude with an offer of Mr. Langlois' assistance for further details.

Mr. Langlois insisted on the competence of municipal evaluators and backed his statement up by reference to the Public Works Board, which he said, highly commended them.

To date, the letter says, three

Just like temperamental actors

Baby-photographer relationship tricky

When the day comes to march junior off to the photographer for that lovable sentimental portrait for the grandparents, you will probably have to settle for what comes up.

Sherbrooke can boast of quite a few capable photographers in this line, but capability still does not eliminate the effort that goes in to getting that shot.

Today's discussion will concern some of the antics the baby and photographer go through to obtain the necessary portrait.

These lovable little things girdled in rubber pants and blowing forth bubbles from their pudgy wee mouths can create quite a stir, mostly at the wrong time.

They carry on like temperamental actors. You tell them to sit this way or that way and what happens? You guessed it — just the opposite. You ask them to close their mouths, when they do, it slams shut like a spoon of medicine were coming their way.

When you try to get a smile from the little . . . you have to resort to ingenuity, patience and quick action. In fact by the time you have all the necessary equipment for the laugh department you will have all the artifices of the witch doctor.

Your subject should be placed on a suitable surface. If they are old enough to sit up by themselves it would be advisable to use a coffee table or a backless chair. Surfaces such as coffee or card tables are perhaps safer than a stool as it gives the tykes more leeway.

This should be placed eight or nine feet from the wall. The wall should be non-textured, and pastel coloured. The distance between subject and wall is to eliminate shadows which will create an unwanted pattern.

The lighting can be photo-flood or flash. More than one light will add depth and roundness to the picture. One can also use a bounce flash which would envelope the whole scene in a soft even light. I recommend flash so as to eliminate the possibility of movement from your fast-moving subject.

If the child is too young to sit up, by throwing a neutral coloured blanket over a group of pillows one is able to form a resting place for the young baby. . . Many effective photographs have been taken using this technique.

Studio photographers have the advantage of varied lighting arrangements under controlled conditions. However the young sitter sometimes reacts in different ways to this land of odd looking shapes and people. Sometimes they are interested; more often they are not. This is where the photographer has to go into his act.

Many of the pros in the world of baby photography such as New York's Miss Bannister have fabulous collections of stuffed animals of all sizes and descriptions, a variety of noise makers and rattles which can create produce the patience.

One of my favorite laugh getters for the young set (I

Camera talk by

also get laughs from the older set) involves a very simple manoeuvre. Place a light white handkerchief over your face and blow profusely into the air. I never could figure out whether it was the handkerchief or my face which did it, but the technique has proved to be rather effective.

I find the most suitable camera for the job is the twin lens reflex. Miss Bannister uses a Rolleiflex and or a single lens reflex. The reflex type camera gives you the subject at all times which enables you to take advantage of fast changing expressions.

The smaller type camera allows more freedom of movement also changes in camera position are easier to obtain.

Academic world supplies local amateur thespians

The academic world seems to be an unending source of supply of amateur actors for the local stage.

Of the cast of the forthcoming Lennoxville Players production of "Separate Table", to be performed on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, January 30, 31, and February 1 under the sponsorship of the Lennoxville Wing of the Sherbrooke Hospital Ladies Auxiliary, six are school or university teachers, and three are pupils.

David Hilldrup and John Ando, who have leading roles, are professors at Bishop's University; Robin Allen, and John Clifton teach at B.C.S., and Jane Clifton at King's Hall, Compton. Sheila and Freddie Fisher, and Jocelyne Blais, attend local high schools.

Two leading roles are played by housewives. Anne Bedard, who, when not on stage, also finds time to coach basketball and Susan Guest, who double as a Librarian at Bishop's. A third housewife, Janet Angrave, carries a supporting role.

The remaining three parts are played by Eileen Dollin, Dorothy Hewson, and Diana Glass, representing the varying occupations of doctor's secretary, music teacher, and secretary-in-training.

Dress rehearsals are imminent, and the stage is constantly alive with the efforts of the backstage crew to paint, decorate, and furnish the setting, and to produce appropriate costumes and properties. John Cowans is Stage Manager, and Marguerite Cowans is in charge of set decoration and make-up. Betty Jeffers is producing the costumes, and Ron Owen is in charge of furnishing the set. The prompters are Judy Woolerton, and Wendell Beattie, Sheelagh Shearon, Vi Padden, John Wright and Bill Ferris are technical assistants.

The play is directed by Edna Perry and produced by Lewis Evans.

Grave menace to Canadian economy

Probably one of the greatest threats to the Canadian economy and an improvement in the standards of living is the attempt by some politicians and some businessmen to group the country into tiny segments.

This is evidenced in many forms ranging from the "Buy at home" cries being raised by certain groups to the decisions of some provincial and municipal governments to restrict their purchases to goods produced in their particular localities and to limit the awarding of contracts to firms located "at home."

Very often this results in the establishment of branch plants or the opening of new industries designed to come under the buy at home edicts. Generally these plants are inefficient in their operations but assured of a restricted market they continue in operation. The loser is the taxpayer called upon to meet the higher tax bill to meet the expanded costs and who must meet the higher prices resulting from reduced production runs, the key to lower prices.

In the international field the results may be even more tragic. In most lines of industry Canada already faces the problems of a limited market requiring that a substantial portion of its production be sold abroad. This can be achieved only if manufacturers are allowed to make the most efficient use of the home market. To establish, for political reasons, eight or ten plants where one could suffice to meet the demand, undermines the competitive position abroad. At the same time it renders Canadian producers more vulnerable to imports from countries with a greater production potential, with a consequent rise in unemployment.

Actually all section of the country probably would benefit more from a free exchange of goods than by attempting to localize every line of industry.

Haydn S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

Some improvements are intolerable

The countryman has seen many spectacular improvements in the last half century and is opposed to them. He would like an old-fashioned telephone on the kitchen wall and a chance to ring central and say, "Morning, Mabel, if John Adams is home, I'll talk with him a minute."

He would like a chunky Morgan mare instead of a mechanical contraption with a portable watering trough; he would like a woodburning kitchen stove with a chance to sit before the oven and toast his toes.

One has learned to live with most improvements. But this idea of motorized shopping carts for the big supermarkets is going too far. According to the news item, these battery-powered carts can go two and a half miles per hour. One sits on a seat hitched to the cart, and cruises up and down the aisles while selecting the week's supplies.

We can tolerate most of the side issues of food shopping: music, swimming pools, banking service, nurseries for babies, free coffee and other inducements, but by Jove, a man in his sixties is going to write to his MP.

It is difficult enough to keep out of the way of exuberant children playing hide and seek up and down the aisles. We don't begrudge them their fun, but if eight and 10 year old lads get to racing motorized carts around the store, a man will be leaping for his life.

We feel that all men over 40 should get together and petition for legislation. The government will do more for taxpayers to tackle a problem like this than to exhale so much hot air on other subjects. We rather enjoy the big markets that lead us to impulse buying, but this scheme of motorized shopping carts fills us with jittery trepidation.

Other papers say:

Short-sighted policy on Canal Zone

It is going to be very easy for Americans, if they don't watch out, to blame the Panama affair chiefly on Castro and the Communists. They would then miss the main point and comfortably evade their responsibility.

The Communists are always there. As the Panama correspondent of this newspaper reported, and Secretary Rusk also said, the violent ones were ready with riot techniques and Molotov cocktails to provoke and orchestrate any false move on the United States side. They are not only established in Panama, but their readiness at the canal shows a discriminating judgment in the matter of American weak spots.

They could have read the columns of this newspaper, for one source, and concluded that Panama was an admirable spot to bore in. For many years we have been reporting the unfortunate state of affairs both in the Canal Zone and nearby Panama. It was an interlocking of weaknesses. A shocking gulf between a few ruling families who run Panama and the working class of the country was all too convenient for a chauvinist brand of North American who tended to gravitate there. He was probably a minority among Americans who meant well, but he was influential. He wrapped the flag around his own special interest in an easy colonial job and wanted only a weak country alongside, with cheap labor for his garden and kitchen which was nevertheless forbidden by American troops to compete for his job.

As Panamanians got more restless both the canal authorities and the ruling oligarchy were increasingly at odds. But it was too often the case that neither really wanted a modern Panama in which a colonial type of privilege and the special position of the oligarchs would both be doomed. So both tended to defeat progress and the restlessness grew.

This newspaper has often, and particularly during the Suez crisis, said that some reasonable form of international sharing of responsibility for this international waterway was overdue. But the issue was not faced and will not be this time, unless something better is done than to hunt for the Communists everyone knows are there.

As for Panama itself, it needs to have key Americans stop finding ways to continue the status quo, and become genuinely interested in a well-run country on the doorstep of the canal.

Pirate treasure 'gold rush' on

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (Reuters)—The Caribbean's annual "gold-rush" hunt for buried pirate loot is on.

Treasure-seekers have been converging on these tropical islands with snorkel and skin-diver gear, diving rods, charts where X marks the spot, or just faith.

On the Windward and Leeward Islands, the prizes are rich and rare, if local legends are any indication.

On St. Thomas, chief of the American Virgin Islands, the hopeful still hunt for the fabulous loot of Edward Teach, the dread pirate known as Blackbeard.

Off the volcano-crowned Isle of Nevis, skin divers can look for remains of the buried town of Jamestown.

The island's first settlement was overwhelmed by a tidal wave April 30, 1680, and on rare occasions a spire can be seen below the sea.

On Guadeloupe the visitor may trace the exploits of Capt. Antoine Fuet, whose corsairs were credited with capturing more than 800 ships between 1794 and 1798. The booty from them won him his nickname of Captain Moidores, from the name of an old Portuguese gold coin.

The PRAYER

Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. (John 8:12.)

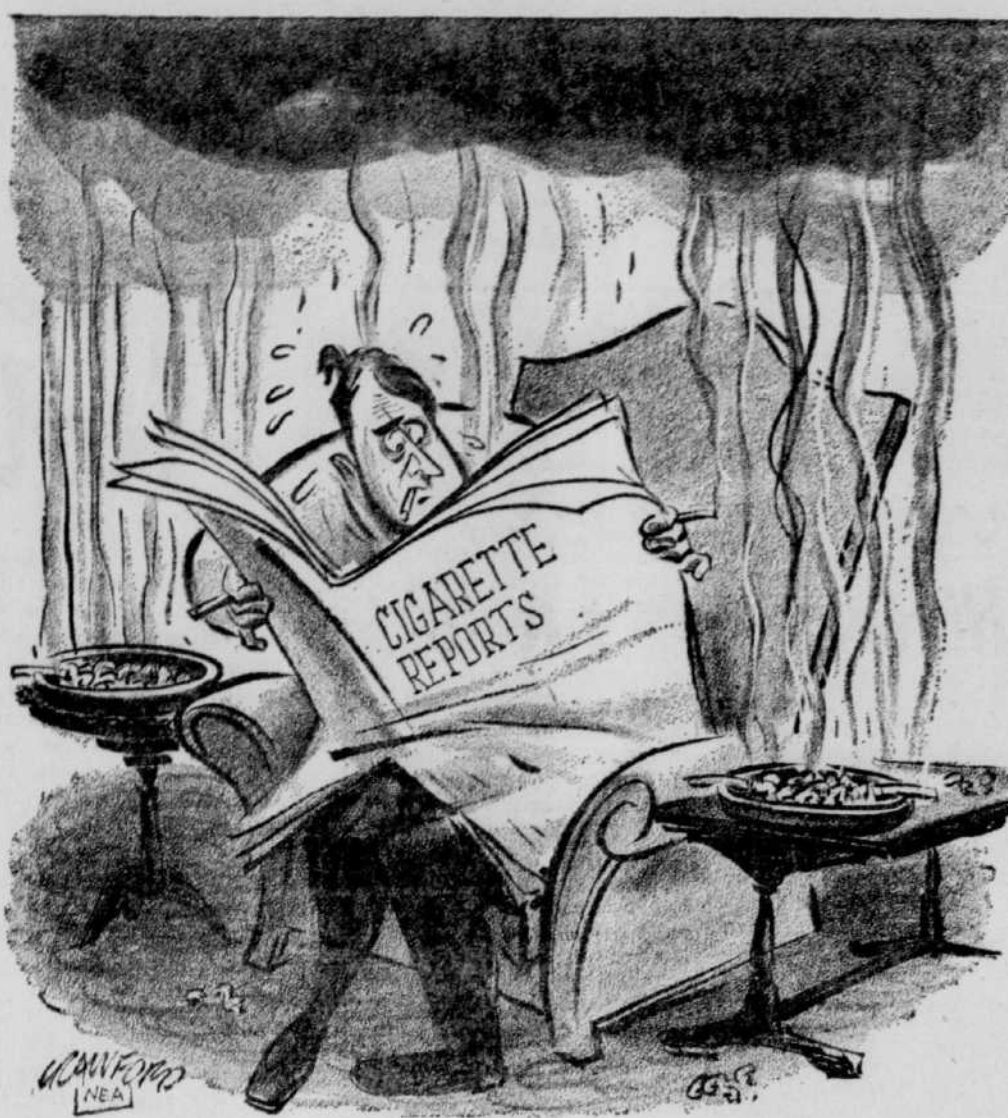

"PRAYER: Dear Lord, we thank Thee for Jesus Christ, the greatest teacher of all. Help each of us to become His loyal follower in order that others may be able to learn about Him and accept Him as their Savior. In His name we pray, as He taught us, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

doubloons and Louis d'Or were found washed up on the shore from two Spanish galleons which foundered off its rugged cliffs.

On St. Lucia, an Aztec princess was said to guard a Spanish galleon's gold sunk in 100 fathoms offshore. She was the bride of the captain, Don Escobar, who was bringing her home in the San Fernando when it foundered on a reef in 1597.

Here in Grenada there are tales that in certain wooded parts of the island you may stumble on an age-old oaken door, locked with a great padlock. But no one has ever got the padlock off or found the door again.

And at Telescope Point, near where the island-hopping airplanes come in to land, it is said that pirate treasure lies buried on the shore. But just as the treasure-seeker has uncovered the brassbound chest and is wrestling with the lid, so the story goes, a great sea sweeps in, drags him into the deep and drowns him.

Adventures with God

He transcends hardened arteries and will not forsake the senile

Are the senile responsible for their actions and lack of faith? The answer is NO according to a group of Christian men and women many of who have watched loved ones pass through the experience of losing their grip on God due to physical changes.

One of many touching letters reads: "When I was young I had a deep and abiding faith but now that I have grown old I feel that the Lord has turned a deaf ear to me. I pray for the guidance of the Holy Spirit but get no co-operation. The Bible says that God does not forgive sin against the Holy Spirit (what-ever sin that may be)."

In the case of this writer we were able to attribute his spiritual failure to hardening of the arteries.

PROVE FAITH

Many mighty men of faith have been reduced to doubting before their minds finally gave up the struggle to prove their faith. Not a few of them reverted to childhood, not recognizing their kin and friends. Ministers and Sunday School teachers who have turned many to righteousness have gone through the process of doubt and deterioration as the physical chemistry changed.

Some have questioned the reality of their faith and conversion. But our Lord, while in the frailty of the human clay, cried: "My God, My God why hast Thou forsaken me?"

He, of all men, knew that God would not suffer His soul to see corruption and yet He winced and experienced moments when He lost a sense of the consciousness of God's presence.

But few would question the validity of His relationship to God and God's concern for His only begotten Son.

READY TO HEAL

I have heard many healers state that healing has been made possible through the atoning death of Christ and that He is ready to heal all our infirmities.

All healing, whether by prayer, surgery or other means, is of God. In the last analysis only God heals. Men may remove the cause or apply the antidote but nature or God has to operate to effect a cure.

But healing is only a temporary experience for everyone who has ever been healed by prayer or medicine has later passed through the process of death.

According to the Bible, death was conquered when Christ rose from the grave and yet men, women and children are dying every day.

Why? Because the body has not yet been redeemed. Only the souls of men have been rescued.

And, say the Scriptures in Romans 8:21-25: "For the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption... waiting for the redemption of our body."

LAST ENEMY

I believe that God does touch certain bodies and heals them. But it is only for a period before the last enemy is on their trail again and sooner or later they die. Albeit, in hope of resurrection.

It is not within our jurisdiction to sit in judgment upon those who are tempted of the devil to doubt God and fear He has forsaken them as the mechanism of the body degenerates and limits their powers of reasoning.

If God makes allowances for the very young and the mentally handicapped so He will make allowances for the old who have trusted and served Him fully in their years of health and vigor.

It behooves the saved and the still alert to undergird aging saints and to try to understand their predicament and encourage them to leave the matter with God and assure them of His love and care even when they cannot feel His presence.

Chemical changes in the human body do not change ones relationship to God. If one has been once born again into His spiritual family, He will not suffer that soul to see corruption.

REDEMPTION

But there is no such promise for the body. It is doomed to the humiliating experience of death unless and until the Lord descends from heaven with a shout to resurrect it. Until then "the whole creation groaneth, waiting for the redemption of the body."

I am convinced that even if age reduces me to dotage that God will keep that which I have committed to Him in days when reason and faith ruled.

And He will undertake for me as He does when I am unconscious in sleep and horrible dreams trouble me.

The aged often cannot recognize their own blood relations and it is quite possible that the same reactions obtain in the spiritual realm.

"BUT THE LORD knoweth them that are His" and I believe that His love and provision spans the periods when memory and health and faith fail.

Kohl, the name of the cosmetic used from earliest times by eastern women to darken their eyelids, is in no way derived from or related to coal, the mineral. Kohl is usually composed of finely powdered antimony, but burned almond shells or frankincense are also used. The Arabic word Kohl (from which is derived alcohol) means to stain.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — It strikes me that all this bilingualism jazz would be more meaningful if the government and Parliament went the whole bit.

Instead, while they're ever so eager to have the civil servants speak French, and to fertilize Toronto culture with French language broadcasts, there's no great rush among our elected servants to learn French. Indeed, there's less enthusiasm than there was a year ago, when a small but significant number of Commons were taking French lessons.

One of them, now a cabinet minister, admits to having thrown in the towel, with the comment that "With all the guff that's coming out of Quebec, I'm sick of hearing French."

Politically, of course, this is heresy, and would make this minister, if identified, a good bet for appointment as ambassador to Patagonia in the cabinet shuffle the PM is supposed to announce on Monday.

There's a good deal of resentment in the civil service against the pressure to learn French, and against the surmised penalty for refusal or failure: no promotion.

Prime Minister Pearson sets a good example — he has worked on his French, and it has improved remarkably. But he doesn't threaten his ministers and Liberal MPs with a freeze on promotions unless they learn French. Perhaps he dares not risk a palace revolt.

So Parliament plays at bilingualism with simultaneous translations to an ear plug at each desk — a system that Quebec MPs applauded when the late government put it in. Only now are they realizing that nothing kills a desire to learn another language like disappearance of any need to do so.

This system is employed in both the Commons and the Senate, and when French is spoken everyone at least knows what is being said. So on this score it's the lesser of two evils.

One is entitled to wonder how much bilingualism is a policy of this government, and how much it's only a shibboleth for sweeping French-Canada in the next election. Or to put it another way, would Mr. Pearson have committed the government and nation to this policy if he had 175 seats in the House?

As I've written before, I'm in favor of Canadians being able to speak French. And English. And Spanish. And German. And Russian. The better we can communicate nationally and internationally, the more peaceful and the more prosperous this country and this world will be. So it's good for Canadians to learn a second language, but with our MPs so far it's been a case of do as I say, not do as I do.

I would like to see the school that the government is establishing in Hull, Que., for instruction of civil servants in French made compulsory for members of the Commons, including ministers, with English courses for MPs whose English is poor.

It's a waste of time to urge the septuagenarians and octogenarians in the Senate to study French. But Mr. Pearson would give his policy of bilingualism a big fillip if he let it be known that after the start of the centennial year, Jan. 1, 1967, only persons fluent in both official languages would, as official phraseology puts it, be "summoned to service in the Honourable the Senate."

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By HUGH DOHERTY

COPELAND: Clarinet concerto, Benny Goodman, soloist, Aaron Copland conducting the Columbia symphony strings, Old American Songs, William Warfield, soloist; Columbia Symphony Orchestra (COLUMBIA stereo MS 6497) — The clarinet concerto is a gently lyrical but spare work, very much in the style of Stravinsky at his most economical. There are traces of jazz improvisation in the concerto, since it was written for Benny Goodman, but they only make a brief appearance. The songs, drawn from authentic early American sources are arrangements of everything from hymns to children's nonsense songs. In them, Copland displays his gift for imparting vitality and freshness to music. William Warfield's singing catches the spring spirit of Copland's composition.

THE DREAM DUET: Anna Moffo, Sergio Franchi sing: Lover, Come Back to Me, Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life, You are Love; I'll See You Again, Indian Love Call, Some Day, Will You Remember, Sweethearts, One Alone, Yours is my heart alone, My Hero, A Kiss in the Dark (RCA VICTOR stereo LSC - 2675) — Together, pretty Anna Moffo and handsome Sergio Franchi look like a dream duet. And their singing is as appealing. Good music for casual listening.

The Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland came into being on the 1st of July 1964 and on that date the stamps of those two countries were withdrawn from sale and replaced by stamps serving the new federation. On the 19th of December 1962 the British Government announced that Nyasaland would secede from the Federation. The country of Nyasaland was re-established on the 1st of November last year and a set of revenue stamps overprinted for postal use was issued. The new stamps for this country were made available to the public on January 1st of this year and are attractive pictures of the natural resources of this far away land. The 1/2-d shows a mother and child and is symbolical of the place the family occupies in Nyasaland. The 1-d features the Chambo, a type of fish found in the lakes, these fish form a valuable source of animal protein in the food and is eaten fresh dried or smoked. The Zebu Bull is shown on the 2-d stamp, the Zebu being a breed of cattle which are kept throughout the country and provide meat and milk, it is interesting to note that these beasts are used as oxen. The 3-d features Ground Nuts which are grown as a cash crop and as a source of food, about 36,000 tons of these are grown annually, we know these as peanuts. The 4-d shows a fisherman and draws attention to this important part of the country's resources. The tea industry is featured on the 6-d stamp and this is the most valuable industry to Nyasaland. The 1/ pictures tropical pine which is now used for building purposes and has become a valuable export. The 1/3 draws attention to the raising of Turkish tobacco and while this is a new cash crop it is hoped that it will become important to the economy of the country. The cotton industry is featured on the 2/6. The 5/ shows Monkey Bay on beautiful Lake Nyasa. The 10/ stamp depicts the mahogany tree while the pound value features the Nyalá a species of small antelope. The stamps are in multicolour and certainly add another page to the history of Africa and they draw attention to the many problems that exist in the emerging countries.

Last month the Royal Philatelic Society of Canada was discussed briefly in this column and several questions were raised about the activities of this national society. There were a number of readers who wrote for membership applications and enquired about the Society. The President, Dr. G. M. Geldert of Ottawa, has this past week written a letter to the writer about the paragraph. We must agree some of his statements, especially about the need for more members and increased support for the Royal if we are to accomplish the goals set by the Society. Attention is drawn to the cost of membership, this is only four dollars per year and is the lowest of any national group. Members receive a good magazine, The Canadian Philatelist, the January-February issue having just been published. This magazine will keep you in touch with all phases of Canadian philately and so ensure intelligent collecting of our country's stamps. The Sales Circuit operated by the Society offers a great variety of stamps, Canadian, general foreign and British, and at the present time the books are well presented and worthy of your patronage. The cost is low when one realizes that he can support the national group, receive a bi-monthly magazine and share in the sales books for the cost of a few packages of cigarettes. Additional supplies of membership applications are on hand and your help is needed for the hobby and you if need the Society for your own benefit, contact the writer at Dixville, Que.

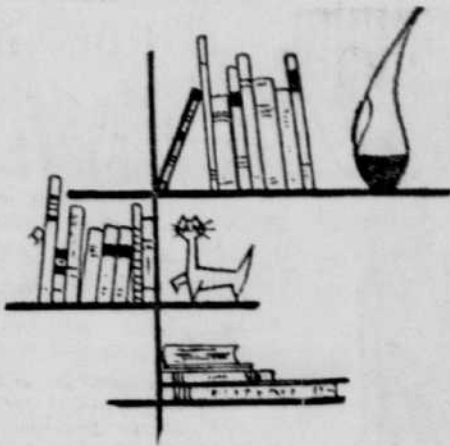

The St. Francis Collectors Club held their annual elections last month and R. B. (Bob) Mess of Lennoxville will once again be the President of this active organization. Mrs. Geo. Foreman of Sherbrooke is the Secretary and Fred Smith the Editor of the Club Bulletin. This Club is able to look back on a year of varied events, a picnic the beginning of July that attracted a large number of guests, they were the guiding club in the stamp show in November that surprised even the most ardent supporters by its success and throughout 1963 provided the members with programmes aimed at the beginning and the advanced collectors. Bob Mess has quite a collection of Canadian pre-cancels and finds this field to be most fascinating, in fact, he has a very good write-up on this phase of the hobby and a number of the local clubs have had him as a guest speaker. It is the study of stamps that adds so much to collecting. Join the club in your area and learn about the collecting habits of others and at the same time you may be able to trade some of your surplus stamps for the ones you need.

A faithful reader of this page who hails from Waterloo is often kind enough to write me such encouraging words as: "I find that your comments (in JOTTINGS) stimulate my thinking..." I am, of course, delighted to be told these things but the real truth of the matter is that this particular reader more often stimulates me than I do her. Though she may be quite unaware of it a good number of my columns have been based on things she has written to me. And this week's is no exception.

A few months ago she wrote: "As I look through books, read many years ago, I find some liberally underlined passages and I am very interested. Some of these passages which seemed important then have remained so through the years, while others now seem so ridiculous. I might mention Emerson and Carlyle as example of the first kind and Bulwer Lytton's historical novels of the second."

Spurred on by this comment I dug out some of my old books. The first thing I discovered was that I seemed far more prone to underline poetry than prose in my impressionable youth. The second thing I discovered was that some of the things I had then underlined now seemed not just ridiculous but downright bewildering! Take for example these words I found underlined in Alexander Pope's THE RAPE OF THE LOCK: "And sip, with nymphs, their element, all tea." Can you tell me just what significance that could have even to a romantic school girl?

Wrote then bewildering, it proved frustrating to discover that while I was underlining such unexplainable words in THE RAPE OF THE LOCK, I was completely ignoring AN ESSAY ON CRITICISM by the same author. Surely in view of my present weekly foray into the field of literary criticism it would have made a lot more sense if I'd underlined: "Tis hard to say, if greater want of skill. Appear in writing or in judging ill."

I don't know what this delving into past reading tastes proved for my Waterloo reader but all it did for me was to disprove another line I had painstakingly underlined and that was Wordsworth's contention that: "The Child is father of the Man!"

Another linking of publishing firms will take place in July of this year when the books of Heinemann Ltd., and their associated companies will be stocked, sold and serviced by William Collins Sons, of 10 Dwyer Road, Don Mills, Ont.

English and German editions of Grace Irwin's SERVANT OF SLAVES have recently come out while the American - Canada edition published by McClelland & Stewart has gone into a second printing.

Amy Bissett England, Montreal poet has written the words and Dr. Claude Champagne the music for several new children's songs which they hope will be brought out by their New York publishers for Easter. Mrs. England's first song book is still selling well.

It is interesting to note that the books dramatized on the Ontario School Broadcasts "Canadian Bookshelf" this past year included works by such well-known authors as THE ROVER by Thomas Radford, THE GOLDEN TRAIL by Pierre Berton, THE CURE SEARCHERS by Max Braithwaite and MY UNCLE JOE by James McNamee.

RAGS OF GLORY

History not sacrificed for plot

RAGS OF GLORY, by Stuart Cloete, Collins, 576 pp. $5.50.

While RAGS OF GLORY is an historical novel, it is a most unusual one, for in writing it Stuart Cloete has not taken it upon himself to alter historical events or to change the personalities of his historical figures to suit the purpose of his plot. Therefore, this novel should be enjoyed by the historian as well as the lover of the novel.

RAGS OF GLORY is set in London and South Africa between 1899 and 1902. Mr. Cloete has succeeded in telling the story of the Boer War from the point of view of both Briton and South African by creating an interlocking plot in which the characters from both these groups are drawn towards each other by the very existence of the war itself. The South African group is headed by Catalina van der Berg, the widow of a South African farmer. Servas and Doetie, her two sons, join the Boer army, and it is through their eyes that the reader is presented with the Boer viewpoint. Captain John Turnball of the Queen's Own 2nd Hussars heads the English group of characters. His relationship with Elsie Smith, the young British prostitute, with whom he falls in love, and Elsie's remarkable friendship with Lady Finch-Haddley, founder of the Finch-Haddley Field Hospital, has provided Mr. Cloete the opportunity to paint an astonishing picture of the various social levels in Victorian London.

Mr. Cloete has added a formidable bibliography of books written about the Boer War, as well as two maps of South Africa designed to aid the reader who is not familiar with the area. One can only say that RAGS OF GLORY is an excellent novel which deserves to be widely read.

Everyone unpleasant, but good

BRIDE OF PENDORRIC by Victoria Holt, 320 pages, $4.25 Collins.

For the purpose of allaying suspicion from the guilty party, a flaw in characterization arises in this mystery story. We come to feel as each new person we meet displays unpleasant characteristics, that the people at Pendoric and environs are a nasty lot. To discover in the last chapter that under this facade of unpleasantness they are well-meaning, long-time friends is disturbing.

This is particularly so in the case of Rachael Bective. Pictured throughout as a sinister, ill-dispositioned old maid who wishes Favel out of the way so she can marry Roc, Rachael ultimately appears as a good family friend who has proven herself by keeping a confidence with which she could have caused a great deal of unhappiness.

Despite this the book is fascinating. The bride, Favel, comes to Pendoric, a mansion on the Cornish coast and is immediately caught up in a series of events so similar to those preceding the mysterious death of Barbara, the last bride of Pendoric, that we read on avidly to learn her fate. The plot is skillfully developed with subtle mysterious happenings—violin music resounding throughout the corridors, faces appearing at windows in a vacant part of the house, the door of the vault ominously closing with Favel locked inside. Soon the reader shares Favel's nervousness and is as relieved as she when the mystery is solved.

Victoria Holt has written something more than a mystery story. Within the structure of the mystery a tender love story unfolds making it a romantic novel. In addition, many passages of description are delightful, causing one to feel that Miss Holt knew and loved the Cornish coast.

Nurse heroine chills hospital

DR. SCOTT, SURGEON ON CALL, by Elizabeth Seifert, Dodd, Mead & Company, 239 pages, $4.25.

Doctor and nurse stories are particularly popular, as a quick glance at a television programme guide or at the title on the shelves of a bookstore will verify; Miss Seifert herself has written more than forty stories about the medical profession, and has a good background for writing in her chosen field having studied anatomy, physiology and medical dietetics and having been a clinical secretary in a hospital; therefore, both in this novel and in others of hers I have read, there is a very authentic "feel" of the hospital. In one respect, Miss Seifert's expert knowledge rather gets in the way of the story as there is a great deal of time devoted to hospital routine and to what is wrong with whom, with people who have little to do with the story except that each incident is used to point up some facet of a doctor's or nurse's abilities and personality.

The main character in Miss Seifert's latest novel is not Dr. Scott, the handsome red-headed neurosurgeon, but Mrs. Jodie Pelligrin, a beautiful woman and an expert nurse and a cold, selfish egotistical person with an eye on the main chance and with no compunction about how many people she hurts as she tries—and all too often successfully—to get what she wants. Jodie's cold and calculating personality gives the whole novel an arctic temperature and I found it almost impossible to whip up any enthusiasm for her and her machinations; my one thought when "one man believed in her" was that it was more than she deserved and just about what he deserved if he were such a fool.

The coin

Canadian silver dollars of 1948 and 1947 continue to rise in price and dealers are now paying more for these coins in nice condition than the average selling prices shown in 1964 catalogues.

Recently I made a survey of a few dealers to see how much I would be offered for a 1948 silver dollar and the three varieties of the 1947 silver dollar.

As I had expected, the highest prices were offered by a nationally-known dealer who has a large clientele in Canada and the United States.

The 1948 coin, for which I had paid $35 in 1958, and which had been in an album in my safety-deposit box since that time, brought offers of $175 to $185.

The coin was brilliant with a mirror-like surface but had slight scratches, caused by being in a mint bag. However, if this coin had been in circulation or had not been carefully kept, the price offered would not have been as high.

A 1947, blunt 7, which is the most plentiful of the three 1947 silver dollars, which had some wear on the hair lines of the portrait, varied in price from $25 to $30.

The 1947 with a long, or pointed 7, which is very scarce, was valued at the same price by each of the dealers, $110. This coin, too, was in nice condition, with slight wear and a slight edge bruise.

On the other hand, a 1947 with a Maple Leaf after the 7, while it had slight wear, had several edge defects, and was valued at from $50 to $70. If this coin had been perfect the price would have been higher.

When I bought the pointed 7 and the 7 ML in 1957, the owner of the two coins would not sell them separately because of the edge defects on the 1947 ML, and I purchased the two for $35, which was a high price at that time.

Most collectors have favorite dealers from whom they buy and when they have coins to sell it is natural to approach the same dealers.

However, if you do not know dealers in your town and you have coins to sell, shop around.

You do not have to sell your coins to the first dealer you approach, and a dealer does not mind your returning to him with your coins if you have not been able to obtain a better price elsewhere.

On the other hand, do not expect dealers to pay high prices for common dates, and do not expect them to buy coins that are easily found in circulation.

Today's recipe
Sophisticated teenagers seem to be turning to coffee recipes. Particularly at parties they say they enjoy coffee drinks.

This Mocha Frosted Punch is a perfect party concoction — a combination of instant coffee, chocolate syrup, milk and ice cream, zipped up with sparkling club soda.

Just to make doubly certain all your teen-age guests have a wonderful time, serve a platter of brownies, too.

MOCHA FROSTED PUNCH
(Makes about 3 1/4 quarts, or 30 servings, 4 ounces each.)

2 cups cold water
1 cup instant coffee
1 cup chocolate syrup
1 quart milk
1/2 gallon vanilla ice cream, softened

1 large bottle (28 or 29 ounces) club soda

Add cold water to coffee. Stir until dissolved. Blend in chocolate syrup, milk and ice cream. Just before serving, stir in the club soda. If desired, additional vanilla ice cream may be floated on the punch.

For and about Women

Search on for mother of the year

In every corner of Canada there are extraordinary mothers doing extraordinary things. These mothers would not call themselves special, nor would they consider what they are doing as special. But to a child, a neighbor, a husband, a friend these mothers are extra-special. And one of these women, somewhere between Vancouver Island and Newfoundland, will be chosen as "The Canadian Mother of the Year."

This outstanding mother will be brought to Ottawa on April 29 for an all-expense-paid tour of the nation's capital. She will receive an award plaque from one of the nationally prominent judges and a specially-designed Mother's Day Award bouquet from another judge. She will be honored at a luncheon attended by senators, members of parliament and other leading Canadians.

The Canadian Mother will also be able to wire to anyone she selects, anywhere in the world, a bouquet identical to her special-award bouquet. And for each of the following twelve months, she will receive an exquisite flower-of-the-month bouquet from the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

For the fifth consecutive year this unique search is being made to find the most worthy mother to be named "Canadian Mother of the Year." Last year hundreds of letters were received from coast to coast nominating women for the title.

The 1963 Canadian Mother was Mrs. Winifred Gutsell of Toronto. She is a tiny woman with an enormous love for children and has raised 24 foster children, most of them physically or mentally retarded, along with her own two sons. With the blessing of the Children's Aid Society she has had as many as four foster children in her home at one time. Besides caring for and loving children, Mrs. Gutsell makes time for hobbies: carpentry, oil painting and photography.

There are many women like Mrs. Gutsell in every Canadian province: mothers who look after their homes and children with devotion yet make time for volunteer work in the community; teach Sunday School; act as den mothers and Brown Owls; knit socks for the Red Cross; visit shut-ins regularly . . . showing their love for people in countless ways.

Anyone may nominate a Canadian mother for the honor of being named Canadian Mother of the Year.

Simply write a letter stating her name and qualifications for this award to: FTD, Box 4044, Ottawa, Ontario. All nominations must be postmarked by March 31, 1964.

"THAT LOOKS LIKE ME" said the 1963 Canadian Mother of the Year, Mrs. Winifred Gutsell of Toronto, as she looked at this painting in Ottawa's National Gallery.

Mrs. Gutsell was elected to the coveted title by a panel of eminent judges for her "motherly love and devotion" in caring for 24 handicapped children, besides two of her own. The search is now on to find the 1964 Canadian Mother of the Year. Canadians are invited to nominate worthy mothers who have distinguished themselves in the service of their community.

Fashion message for 1964:

Soft is the spring

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK—(NEA)— The current fashion showings in New York prove that girls will be girls, the sportive look notwithstanding. The spring message is the return of the soft look in everything from dresses to coats.

Reminiscent of the '30s, that most elegant and feminine fashion era, the shape has been put back into clothes. Even skirts are fuller and have a swing and a flair.

The bias cut that molds the figure so beautifully bows in again after a long absence. Ruffles, too, are back in a big way on suits, blouses and even raincoats.

Jaunty capes in many styles are waiting to be tossed over separates, sheath dresses or suits. They add a charming, feminine touch to any ensemble.

Pin stripes, bold floral prints, whites, many shades of beige, navy and pastels are on the color scene to add their measure to the soft message of spring '64.

And every lass in the fashion picture will look as fresh and lighthearted as spring itself. (NEA).

Filmy chiffon, cotton lace, crisp organza, light, airy wools add soft mohair are some of the fabrics that enhance the total soft look.

LENNOXVILLE U.C.W.

The annual meeting of the Lennoxville United Church Women was held recently in the Ladies' Parlor, with the president, Mrs. A. B. Lovelace in the chair.

A short service of worship on the Epiphany theme The Light of the World was conducted by Mrs. E. Warner and Mrs. R. Porter.

Various items of business were dealt with, including the distribution of funds raised throughout the year. Reports of the past year's activities were then given by the five Unit leaders and the chairmen of standing committees.

These included money-raising projects such as a musicale and tea, a sugar-on-snow party, a harvest tea and sale, a home bridge, a strawberry social and band concert, children's bazaar, catering for various functions. The U.C.W. as a whole sponsored the Spring Thrift Sale and the very successful two-day Christmas Bazaar.

Community and social services also played an important part in the year's activities, bales of clothing for use overseas were sent to church headquarters, gifts to Norway House blankets to Maplemount Home in Cookshire, food hampers distributed, contributions made towards school lunches, volunteers provided for the Cancer Dressings Clinic and two children aided through the Canadian Save The Children Fund.

Within the church, funds raised by the U.C.W. were used to renovate and equip the kitchen. Members also provided a supper for the choir and youth leaders, and served meals or refreshments at several Presbyterial and congregational functions. A Church Vacation School with over 125 children attending was held in July, and an Audio-Visual Workshop for Christian Education Leaders presented in September.

Delegates from the Lennoxville U.C.W. attended the Summer School for Women at MacDonald College, a Workshop at Granby, the Presbyterial Fall Rally and other Presbyterial meetings, and the annual meeting of the Canadian Save The Children Fund.

At each meeting of the U.C.W. and most of the Monthly Unit meetings, programs on a variety of subjects were presented. These included illustrated travel talks, musical programs, discussions on "The Meaning of Christian Love, What Protestants Believe, The Meaning and use of Prayer, special reports from delegates, and many others. Short but carefully planned services of worship on various timely themes opened each meeting.

Many other activities were included in the reports given at the annual meeting, and the president concluded by thanking the members for their assistance and co-operation during the year.

In a special ceremony, Mrs. T. A. Judson presented a Life Membership in the U.C.W. to Mrs. D. Hadlock. In verse specially composed for the occasion, Mrs. Lovelace recounted Mrs. Hadlock's biography, and mentioned her many and varied contributions to the work of the U.C.W.

The incoming president, Mrs. S. Rowe dealt briefly with new business, and reminded the members of the World Day of Prayer on February 14th. After adjournment refreshments were served by the members of Unit 2.

The following slate of officers was presented by Mrs. N. Smith, Chairman of the Nomination Committee and installed by Mrs. D. Ross, president of the Quebec — Sherbrooke Presbyterial U.C.W.: past president, Mrs. A. B. Lovelace; president, Mrs. S. Rowe; vice-president, Mrs. N. Flint, recording secretary, Mrs. H. McLeod, corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. A. Judson; treasurer, Mrs. D. Baldwin.

The chairmen of standing committees are as follows:

Christian citizenship, Mrs. W. J. Lane; community friendship, Mrs. R. Tolhurst; Christian Education, Mrs. E. Warner and Mrs. J. Williams; finance, Mrs. D. Baldwin; flowers, Mrs. D. McElrea; literature, Miss F. McCurdy; membership, Mrs. A. P. Campbell; nominations, Mrs. G. Bryant; publicity, Mrs. A. B. Lovelace; program, Miss E. Bassett and social functions, Mrs. H. J. Robertson.

Stewardship, Mrs. F. Ross, supply and social assistance, Mrs. G. Sutherland and Mrs. L. Davidson.

Mrs. D. Hadlock was nominated as U.C.W. representative to the Committee of Stewards, and Mrs. S. Rowe appointed to the Official Board.

ST. MARGARET'S GUILD CHURCH OF THE ADVENT

The annual meeting of St. Margaret's Guild, was held at the home of Miss F. Knapp, Hubbard Avenue with the Rev. R. Jervis Read presiding.

The Guild prayers were repeated, and the minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved.

The treasurer, Mrs. J. Wark, gave a resume of the year's finances, which were very gratifying.

The members were greeted by the passing of Mrs. E. Buck, in June, honorary president.

The rector gave a short talk on church events which had happened in the past and present. He also thanked the members for the work being done.

Election of officers resulted in Mrs. W. Oakley being named honorary president; Mrs. R. M. Loughheed, president; Mrs. J. H. Wark, treasurer; Mrs. S. H. Bachelder, secretary; Mrs. F. J. Saunders, first vice-president and Mrs. A. Carrie, second vice-president.

As this concluded the annual meeting, Mrs. Loughheed took the chair for the monthly business meeting and thanked the members for their continued support.

Annual and monthly dues were paid, also dime card money.

Activities planned are talent money for February and a food sale in the near future.

Notice was given the members that Miss Winnifred Gray, will give a lecture in St. Peter's Church on Thursday, January 23rd, on missionary work, also that the World Day of Prayer will be held on February 14th, in the Baptist Church, Portland Avenue.

The hostess served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. L. MacCallum, of Randboro, who was her house guest.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Wark, Bowen Avenue, February 4th.

Balding does it again shoots a 67 sub-par in Bing Crosby event

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Canada's Al Balding shot his second great sub-par round—a 67—in Bing Crosby's $80,000 golf tournament Friday. He leads at the midway point with a 133, 11 strokes under par for 36 holes.

The lanky 39-year-old Canadian PGA champion from Toronto toured the Monterey Peninsula Country Club course in just one more stroke than he took over Cypress Point Thursday in the first round.

He pulled ahead of Australia's Bruce Devlin, the French Open champion, as players from the Commonwealth continued to dominate Crosby's clambake. Devlin put a 67 Friday with his opening 69 for a 136 total. He also played his second round over Monterey Peninsula, a 62-64 yard seaside layout with a par of 35-37-72.

In shooting his five-under-par round Friday, Balding started with a birdie by sinking a 2 1/4 foot putt on the first hole. He dropped putts of 12 and 15 feet on the third and fifth but went over par on the seventh by hitting into a bunker. He promptly canned a 22-foot putt on the eighth and made the turn three under par 32. He birdied the 13th and 14th, the latter with a 30-foot putt but three-putted the 15th. On the par-5 18th, he hit the green in two shots and took two putts. When Balding finished the nearest United States golfer was five strokes back.

BALDING PLEASED
Balding, obviously pleased, nevertheless felt his score could have been better.

"I felt I had a lot of good chances," he said. "I left some just sitting on the lip of the cup. But I had some good putts that went in, too. I was driving the ball as good as I can."

Bob Nichols, the only United States golfer among the top four first-round finishers, sagged to a 73 second round and 140 total.

Art Wall, winner at San Diego last Sunday, shot a 69 for a 145 total.

Balding opened his five-under-par effort with a birdie by sinking a 2 1/4-foot putt on the first hole. He dropped putts of 12 and 15 feet on the third and fifth but went one over on the seventh when he hit into a sand trap.

He sank a 22-foot birdie putt at the eighth to make the nine-hole turn in a three-under-par 32. He birdied the 13th and 14th, the latter with a 30-foot putt, then three-putted the 15th. On the par-5 18th, he hit the green in two shots and took two putts.

Toronto may reclaim Kent
TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs Friday sent defenseman Kent Douglas, last year's National Hockey League Rookie of the Year, to Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

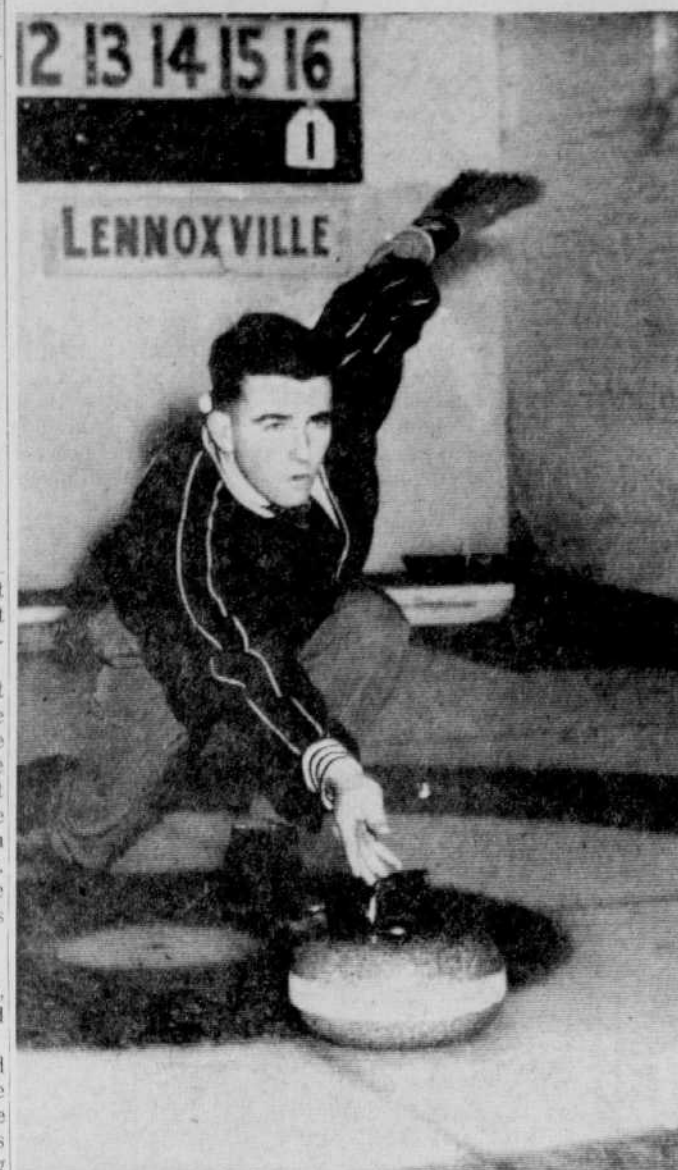

Arne Brown of the Americans was called up as a replacement in what the Leafs called a move to strengthen their defensive platoon.

The Toronto defence looked weak Wednesday night when the Leafs lost 5-4 to New York Rangers and Sunday night when they bowed 6-3 to Boston Bruins.

Douglas has been instructed to play himself back into condition at Rochester.

Dirty Canadians booed and lose in Moscow

MOSCOW — Canada's Olympic team was defeated 2-1 Friday night by Russia's second-string team in an exhibition hockey game which saw the Canadians' rough-and-tumble play booed by the Soviet sportswriter.

The Canadians had been scheduled to play the Soviet Olympic team which beat Canada 8-1 Wednesday, but instead the Russians decided to face the young Canadians with their reserves.

Rev. David Bauer, the Canadian coach, said of Friday's loss: "The boys played better tonight than the first time out. On the first night they were pretty tired after a long journey here. Tonight they had time to limber up."

"That was one reason for the close match. The other was that the Russians were playing their second team."

George Swarbrick of Moose Jaw, Sask., scored in the third period on a pass from Terry O'Malley of Toronto for Canada's lone goal. Russia scored in the first and second periods.

CANADIANS JEERED
In both Moscow matches the hard checking of the Canadians drew whistles and catcalls from Russian fans. And they always cheered wildly when a Canadian got the worst of a tussle—which was most of the time.

Allan Starodub of the Soviet Union's Dynamo team was the only Canadian to receive cheers from the fans in Canada's 8-1 loss on Wednesday.

In the first six games of their 10-game pre-Olympics European tour the Canadians have won three, tied one and lost two.

They got their three wins early in the tour in Germany by defeating E. V. Fuessen twice—9-5 and 4-1—and E.R.C. Mannheim 13-0.

They got their first win in the National Hockey League when they defeated the Boston Bruins 4-1 in their first game.

Boston Bruins won't roll over and play dead. Rookies are turning in two-goal performances. Veteran defencemen are tripping over their own feet. New York Rangers are going on scoring sprees. Bottom teams are knocking off the leaders.

Even the dressing rooms aren't safe any more.

Jacques Plante, nimble New York netminder, stepped on a nail in the dressing room at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday night and may miss two weekend games because of the injury.

This week the last-place Bruins registered their first two-game winning streak since last February. They beat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-3 and Detroit Red Wings 5-1. Gary Dornhoefer, a 20-year-old rookie playing only his fourth game since being called up from Minneapolis of the Central Professional league, helped them to the win over Detroit by firing two shots behind Roger Crozier in the Red Wing net.

New York Rangers surprised everyone including themselves by running up a 5-0 lead over Toronto and finally winning 5-4.

HODGE HAD EASY NIGHT
To complete a week of bottom over top, second-place Montreal Canadiens beat league-leading Chicago Black Hawks 1-0 and only allowed the Hawks close enough to the Montreal net to fire 18 shots against Charlie Hodge.

Tonight three "second-division" clubs play on the home ice of the three league leaders. Boston is at Toronto, New York at Chicago and Detroit at Montreal. It's no time for home town fans to relax.

Sunday Montreal moves to Boston, New York goes to Detroit and the Hawks remain at home to take on Toronto.

Just three points separate the top three teams, who all have played 40 games of the 70-game schedule. The slumping Hawks have 51 points, the Canadiens 50 and the Leafs 48.

Only Chicago and Boston, at the top and bottom of the heap, now are using regularly the goalies who started the season.

New York probably will use Gilles Villeneuve from Baltimore of the American Hockey League until Plante's foot heals. (Plante will be released from a Chicago hospital today, and the Rangers said he might be ready by tonight.)

OTHERS ALTERNATE
Montreal has retained Hodge since Gump Worsley was hurt in October. Worsley was sent to Quebec Aces of the AHL. Detroit has been alternating Crozier and Terry Sawchuk, and Toronto announced Friday that Don Simmons will try to hold the fort for another week while Johnnie Bower rests his swollen hand.

Simmons has allowed 11 goals in the last two games. Bower gave up only 12 in his last nine appearances. The comparison, however, is not strictly fair. Toronto's defence has never played worse than it has this week.

Bets on west AFL all-star
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The attack-minded West remains favored to defeat the defensively rugged East in the American Football League's annual All-Star game Sunday.

The East may be hampered by an ailing starting quarterback Jack Kemp of the Buffalo Bills, who has been troubled by a severe cold the last few days. He is expected to play, however.

The East defence will have its hands full trying to stop an offense built around quarterback Tobin Rote, who led San Diego Chargers to the league's championship.

But the East remains optimistic.

"It's going to be a hard day's work but I feel we can beat them," said Tom Sestak, Buffalo tackle.

The East also has some top offensive stars—Kemp and his alternate, Babe Parilli of Boston Patriots, with fullback Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo, Larry Garrison of Boston and Billy Mathis of New York Jets.

Boston's Ed Johnston is the only NHL goalie who has appeared in every game this season. Chicago's Glenn Hall was replaced by Dennis DeJordy for five games and part of a sixth.

Fleming fines now total $175
MONTREAL (CP) — Forward Reg Fleming of Chicago Black Hawks has been fined an additional $100 for his conduct towards referee Vern Buffey in a game Jan. 4, president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League announced today.

Fleming's fines for the incident now total $175. During the game, at Toronto, Buffey assessed him with misconduct and match misconduct penalties. The former carries an automatic $25 fine, the latter $50.

The incident, near the end of the second period, occurred when Fleming was designated by Chicago coach Billy Reay to serve a minor bench penalty against the Hawks for delaying the game.

Campbell said in a statement announcing the additional fine: "Instead of proceeding to the penalty bench, Fleming charged at referee Vern Buffey, berating him for his decision. The facts of the incident were not in dispute and were shown clearly on the film of the game."

The Granby High School rink skipped by Hans Bornhoff last night took the lead in the Eastern Townships Regional School Curling Playdowns, winning all of the three matches they played Friday.

Competition between the seven schools continues today, under the sponsorship of the Province of Quebec School Curling Association.

Sherbrooke High and Drummondville High each chalked up two wins, but Drummondville was handed one loss, having played three games. Sherbrooke, with only two matches played, retained a clean record of two played, two won.

Scores Friday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. on the three rinks of the Sherbrooke Curling Club were: Drummondville High 10, St. Patrick High, Sherbrooke, 5; Granby High 13, North Hatley High 4, Sherbrooke High 7, Lennoxville High 1.

In the second round, played from 4 to 6 p.m., Granby took Lennoxville 14-2; Sherbrooke High beat Drummondville 5-3; and St. Pat's took Sutton High school 9-2.

In the evening matches, Drummondville took North Hatley High 7-3; St. Pat's beat Lennoxville 6-3 and Granby continued their winning streak, downing Sutton 7-3.

Dick Lopes leads Hans Bornhoff's Granby powerhouse, with second Bob Shanks and third Ricky Robson.

The Drummondville team is skipped by M. Christman with lead B. Millar, second D. Messier and third W. MacDonald.

Robert Cadman is the Sherbrooke skip, while John Williams leads, Bruce Dunsmore is second and John Mawhood is third.

St. Patrick High School skip is John Keenan who is backed by lead Robert Corcoran, second Paul Delorme and third Brian O'Boyle.

Stuart Green skips the Lennoxville High squad. Joe Schmidt is lead, Bill Aird is second and Lindsay Majury is third.

The North Hatley crew is skipped by Hugh Montgomery who takes to the ice with Ronald Smith, lead, Thomas Carroll, second, and Richard Hatrick, third.

The Sutton delegation is skipped by Bernard Boule with lead Jeffrey Townsend, second Delbert Boule and third James Bailey.

Cigarette salesmen switch to skis; their station wagons turn ambulance
MAGOG — Three years ago, the Canadian Ski Patrol approached Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Limited, the cigarette manufacturers, with the question, "Can we have your blue and white station wagons every week-end for duty at the ski slopes?"

For the first year these station wagons were available in Ontario on a test basis. Rothmans representatives who were out selling cigarettes during the week changed into distinctive Rothmans ski uniforms on Friday evenings to head for the ski slopes. The operation was a success. Last year this service was extended into Quebec Province.

Four station wagons worked closely with the Canadian Ski Patrol in the Laurentian zone. Each Saturday and Sunday morning, the station wagons reported to ski patrol leaders at pre-arranged points, and stood by to transport injured skiers from the slopes to medical clinics.

In recognition of their help, Rothmans of Pall Mall was awarded the Canadian Ski Patrol Special Award for "Outstanding Service."

This year Rothmans have increased the number of Station Wagons from four to nine which are on duty every week-end. These vehicles are available in the Laurentians, Mt. Orford, the Gatineau and at Mont St. Castin near Quebec City.

When transformed for emergency duty, these vehicles are clearly identifiable with an amber light and a sign over the roof. As injuries are reported to the ski patrol, the patroller administrators first aid and the injured skier is then carried to the Rothmans emergency vehicle for transportation to a hospital or clinic. Then the station wagon returns to its assigned station on the ski slope.

Each Rothmans representative on Ski Patrol duty is a specially trained driver, and Rothmans representatives assigned to Ski Patrol duties are undergoing special first aid training given by the Canadian Ski Patrol.

Last week fourteen Rothmans men completed the first of these First Aid courses, which entitles them to wear the Canadian Ski Patrol badge on their ski patrol uniforms. These men are now members of the patrol.

Alec Graham, Canadian Ski Patrol operations officer for the Laurentian zone was the instructor to these drivers.

J. H. Bilodeau, Quebec Division Manager, Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Limited said, "I am delighted that all our candidates have passed their Canadian Ski Patrol emergency first aid course."
