We are sorry to learn of the passing away of Mrs. Julia A. Sweeney, widow of the late George Sweeney, formerly of Hatley, but for many years residing in Lowell with her daughter, Mrs. Rachel Gardner, 8 Hastings St. Mrs. Sweeney had attained a good age, probably about ninety years, and retained her mental faculties and her love for all things pure and good. "None knew her but to love her" could well be said of her. That she was not wanting friends in her later home was amply testified by the abundance of beautiful flowers, which were contributed by friends in Lowell and surrounding towns. She leaves one son and family, four daughters and families, besides other grandchildren and relatives to cherish the memory of a truly good woman.

When we were "a kid" we saw a steam wagon which was exhibited at Stanstead and a trip made with it to this place and yet it was many a year before they came into use. Admiral and Mrs. George Dewey, who are passing the summer at the Woodstock Inn, are in excellent health and among many places which they have visited for a summer outing have never found one more satisfactory than this place. They are now planning to return to Woodstock next summer. Admiral Dewey is very popular with the children of this village. He knows practically everyone of them and can call them by name. Last Friday, the admiral received a pleasant call from Senator Murray Crane, of Dalton, Mass.

THE LATE MRS. R. H. FORSYTHE.

The mother of the Collector of Customs at the port of Derby Line, Mrs. Robert H. Forsythe, died at the home of her son on Derby Highlands, Sunday afternoon, the 14th inst. The immediate cause of her death was heart failure induced by other complications brought about by a busy life doing for others.

Mrs. Forsythe was born in Richmond, N. H., April 10th, 1836, of sturdy New England stock, her family name being Boyce. After marrying she spent all of her life up to coming to live with her son, after the death of her husband at Topsham, Vt., and she was buried there beside her husband. There was prayer by Rev. J. G. Hindley at the home here before leaving for Topsham. The family had kept the old home there and before going to the church for the funeral, the body was taken there amid the surroundings her hands and that of her husband had made into a home, and where their two children came to them, only one, the son Everett, remaining.

A large number of friends were present at her burial. A very comforting feature to the family was the fact that a former pastor, and the one who preached the sermon at the burial of her husband, was able to be present and perform the same service for her, Rev. John A. McClellan, of Grafton, West Va., who was providentially present, visiting again the friends living in his early pastorate.

Mrs. Forsythe leaves the one son mentioned two brothers, Denzil Boyce of Waterville, Mass., a man past 85 years, and Henry K. Boyce, of Orange, Mass., 76 years of age.

Rapidly our old people are going into the unknown, the eyes that have looked upon us in the greatest of compassion are closed, the voices that have said the kindly encouraging things to us are still, and it's for us to pass these things on to our children and the children of others.

The Live Stock Journal calls attention to the fact that while automobile enthusiasts are still dreaming, talking and writing of a horseless age, in the United States horses have in the last ten years increased by 6,000,000 head. Statistics give the total number of farm and city horses in the country as 31,000,000, with a valuation of $3,500,000,000. Prices rule higher than ever before, both in Canada and in the United States, and horse breeding despite legislation that has been adverse to the race tracks, grows as a large and profitable industry. The world's output of motor cars for the present year is estimated at 235,000, with a total valuation of $235,000,000. In one state alone of the American Union, Illinois, the two million horses are valued at twenty million dollars more than the world's output of motor cars for the present year. The figures are convincing that mechanical traction has helped, not hurt the horse. If nothing more the development of mechanical traction has opened new and larger fields for his auxiliary use. Every freight car added to the rolling stock of a railway means more work for the draught animal that must be used largely in loading and unloading the merchandise that the car carries.

The Food Value of Beans. Dollar for dollar, Clark's Pork and Beans are much more nourishing than meat. Use them often in the summer-time. They save trouble, money, and give health. W. Clark, Mfr., Montreal.

GOOD BYE TO INDIGESTION.

J. T. Flint, Druggist, Claim Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets as Driving Dyspepsia Out.

The above is a strong statement, but experience right here in Derby Line, proves it to be really true. The evidence is positive, there is no guess work about it. J. T. Flint has been selling SEAVEY'S DYSPESIA TABLETS for some time and many of my customers have been in to tell of the benefits received. One woman says they have increased her weight nearly 10 pounds; another has chronic dyspepsia for years and can now eat anything she wants without any distress afterward.

One man is grateful because SEAVEY'S DYSPESIA TABLETS have cured him of nervousness. Another says it has relieved the pain around his heart. Just think of it, here is a remedy that must cure you of sour stomach, wind belching, dizzy spells, nausea, biliousness, sick headache, and every other form of indigestion or it will not cost you one cent.

Every box of SEAVEY'S DYSPESIA TABLETS in fifty cent size contains 20 days treatment. They will make you feel better right away. They will put new color in your cheeks, they will almost certainly increase your weight, they will give you new nerve force, new energy, new strength, and if you feel run down or low spirited you will see an improvement almost beyond belief.

Just call on J. T. Flint and ask for his honest opinion of SEAVEY'S FAMOUS DYSPESIA TABLETS, try them. If they cure you, you certainly will be glad you spent the money. If they do not help you all you need to do is to tell J. T. Flint and he will go right to the money drawer and pay you back your money.

Utilizing Wasted Food. During the winter just closed the English Salvation Army expected to provide fifty thousand meals from the waste of the warships in Chatham dockyards. For when ships are in port many of the men are away on leave, but the food is still supplied, and has hitherto been counted as waste. On one night alone six hundred people were fed on what would have otherwise been thrown away.

St. Veronica's Handkerchief. "The Handkerchief of Saint Veronica" created a sensation as a pictorial phenomenon, the Saviour's eyes appearing to open and close. It was painted by Gabriel Max, a German historical painter of the Munich school, in 1874.

"JAP-A-LAC"

There are a few attempts to make a paint as good and handy as "JAP-A-LAC," but the Paint Grinders and Mixers never claim to excel it, to them "JAP-A-LAC" is the limit of color making and mixing skill, it is the pace maker of paint manufacturers; and the beauty of this boon to the home, is the fact that anybody can use it successfully, therefore buy "JAP-A-LAC" and use the best.

We have "JAP-A-LAC" in 1/2 pints, pints and quarts in the pressed cup top tin cans, in the following stains and colors:

Misplaced Sympathy.

He was a kind and benevolent old gentleman, who took much interest in little boys.

One day as he was walking along the street he stopped and looked with compassionate sympathy at a lad whose face bore clear evidence of having been in the wars.

"My poor little fellow," he said, patting the boy on the head. "I fear you've been fighting. You've got a black eye. Dear me, now, I'm really very sorry."

"Never you mind about me," said the poor little boy. "You go home and be sorry for your own little boy.
He's got two black eyes."—Human Origin of Arkansas.

The name Arkansas (pronounced 'Arkansaw') was that of an Indian tribe found by the present explorers within the limits of the present State.
About 1685 Frenchmen settled at Arkansas Post. Arkansas formed a part of the Louisiana Territory till 1812, and of Missouri Territory till 1819, when it was organized as Arkansas Territory, including Indian Territory.
On June 15, 1836, it became a State.

CREMATIONS IN ENGLAND.

There Were 855 Last Year—The Number Steadily Increasing.

The movement in favor of cremation in England continues to make slow but steady progress, writes the London correspondent of the New York Medical Journal. During 1909 the number of cremations carried out in Great Britain was 855, an advance of sixty as compared with 1908.

The first crematorium in England was opened at Woking in 1885 and the total number of cremations since that time is 8,121. There are now altogether thirteen crematoria in Great Britain and this number will probably soon be increased. The Cremation Society of England has been very active in its propaganda work and public interest is slowly being aroused.

Recently a cremation society was formed in Edinburgh. The object of the society is to promote the practice of cremation and burial reform by means of meetings, lectures and publications or otherwise. There are already about 180 members, including many well known persons.

Little Worlds.

The discovery of asteroids or minor planets, continues to be made with the aid afforded by celestial photography. Among a vast multitude of stars crowding a photographic plate, one, perhaps, will be seen to have drawn a short, thin line on the plate during its hours of continuous ex-posure. The astronomer knows at once that it is either an asteroid or a comet. Subsequent observations soon decide the point. Only the more interesting ones are afterward observed with attention; but, once discovered, they cannot be ignored, and the rapid growth of the flock becomes an embarrassment. Eros, which at times approaches the earth nearer than any other regular member of the solar system except the moon, and Asteroid No. 568, which at aphelion is more distant than Jupiter, remain, as far as their orbits are concerned, the most interesting members of the entire group, and are kept under constant observation whenever circumstances permit.

Liquid Crystals.

When the discovery of liquid crystals was announced some twenty years ago, many men of science were very sceptical on the subject, and thought that some error must have been made by the discoverer, Professor Lehmann. It was pointed out that the very name "liquid crystal" was self-contradictory. Later, the discoverer continued and extended the study of these crystals, the genuineness of which he seems to have established, although the molecular structure of the peculiar liquids experimented with is not clearly understood. The facts appear to be that certain chemical liquids at particular temperatures exhibit the characteristic crystalline properties of double refraction and dichroism. But exceedingly small disturbances suffice to deform the liquid crystals, owing to their slight rigidity.

Does the Sun Change Shape?

One scientist, as the result of much study on his part of heliometer measurements, said to be confirmed by solar photographs, has made the remarkable suggestion that the sun periodically changes its figure, being sometimes an oblate spheroid, like the earth, with its equatorial diameter exceeding the polar, and sometimes a prolate spheroid, having a greater polar than equatorial diameter.

His idea is that the solar globe is to be regarded as a vibrating body, having an equatorial diameter on the average slightly in excess of the polar, but changing at certain times so that the ratio of the two diameters is temporarily reversed. The period of variability, it is thought, is the same as the sun-spot period. The changes of figure, if they really occur, are so small that only the most delicate observations can make them manifest.

Some Big Chain Cables.

Some of the biggest, if not the biggest, chain cables in the world are those made in South Wales for certain new quadruple-screw turbine Atlantic liners.

The iron bar used in making the links is three and three-quarter inches in diameter at the smallest part. Each link is about twenty-two and a quarter inches long, and weighs about 160 pounds.

When tested for strength, the breaking stress of 265.7 tons required by law, instead of fracturing these gigantic links, simply elongated them about one inch. With the highest stress that the testing-machine could give, about 370 tons, the links showed no signs of cracks.

A Country Doctor's Record.

Dr. James Morris, who was one of the oldest medical practitioners in Scotland, has just died at Dunfer-mline. When he celebrated his jubilee as a doctor some ten years ago he made this statement: "During my fifty years in practice I have attended 50,000 patients, administered chloroform 10,000 times with absolute immunity from fatal results, had 5,000 births (1,000 consecutive cases without a death), made about 1,000,000 visits and travelled about 500,000 miles." Not a bad record for a country medical man.—Westminster Gazette.

To Avoid Serious Results.

After eating a hearty evening meal Edith, aged two and a half years, was taken from the table to be washed.
"You can wash me and rock me," she said, "but don't bend me."—The De-lineator.

WALL PAPER TACKED ON.

When Tacks May Be Preferable to Paste and How the Tacking is Done.

"You never heard of tacking on wall paper? Oh, dear! yes," said Mr. Flatdeweller, "we often do that.
We don't put the paper on with tacks originally, but we tack it on in making repairs."

"You know how the paper curls away from the wall sometimes, stiff and hard with the paste on it? Sometimes if it's left that way pieces of the hard paper may be broken off.
Well, you couldn't very well paste that paper down again, because you couldn't make any paste strong enough to take out the curl and make the paper hold, you might not make a nice job of it around the joints, might get on too much paste and so get some of it on the outside of the paper.
So we just tack down the curled up paper and tack on the pieces that may have fallen off."

"But don't the tack heads show in the paper? No, not at all, not—ahem!
—as we do the tacking. That's where the fine art of tacking on paper, as we practice it, comes in. There's a pattern on the paper and sure to be here and there more or less dark places in the coloring and we simply drive the tacks in the dark spots, where they don't show."

Hidden Streams.

Reference has been made frequently within the past few years to the progress of scientific investigation concerning subterranean streams and rivers. It is a subject of constantly growing importance in connection with the irrigation of desert, or partially desert, regions. The manner in which streams which once flowed on the surface of the earth have buried themselves from sight in places where calcareous rocks abound is well illustrated by the subterranean waters of the valley of Jehoshaphat, near Jerusalem. As Mons. P. Sallier points out, the exploration of these hidden streams in a region covered with places sacred to three religions —Christian, Jewish and Mohammed-dan—is confronted by peculiar difficulties. But enough has been discovered to make it certain that beneath this dry and barren-looking district flows an abundance of water, and some of the fountains famous in Scripture story owe their existence to this subterranean source.

Progress in Turkey.

The Turks, observes a Paris Journal, are becoming more European every day. It is announced that Cheket Pasha has made an order that soldiers are to be supplied with a number of forks. They will not each have one, but they use them in turn; on other occasions they will continue to use "la fourchette de la nature." Although we may be inclined to smile, Chek-et Pasha's order is a sign of progress, for, after all, forks are comparatively a modern invention.

It was in Venice that forks were first introduced some time in the fifteenth century. It was at the time considered a grave scandal to supplant the plans of nature, it being contended that one of the uses of our hands and fingers was to serve the stomach. Queen Elizabeth, we are told, had only two or three forks and spoons in silver. The personages about the court used wooden forks.

Powerful X-Rays.

Before the German Society of Physics, F. Dessauer recently exhibited an apparatus for the production of X-rays of extraordinary penetrating power, his idea being that such rays might prove useful in the medical treatment of deep-seated disease. By employing Roentgen tubes in which the exhaustion of the air is carried to a very high degree, and through which, in consequence, the electric discharge can be sent only by means of a very great tension, he produced rays so penetrating that they readily passed through the bones as well as the flesh, so that a radiograph of the hand made with these rays showed hardly any image of the bones. With ordinary rays the energy at the surface of the body is a hundred times more intense than at a depth of five millimeters in the tissues. With Dessauer's rays the penetration is very much more profound.

Sodium for Electric Uses.

Sodium is an excellent conductor of electricity, and in view of the increasing price of copper and the growing demand for that metal not only for electric installations, but for many other purposes, the idea has been broached that sodium should be tried as a material for electric cables.
Experiments looking to this end have lately been made by Mr. A. G. Bett.
He filled an iron tube 130 feet in length with melted sodium. The core thus formed had a cross-section of an inch and a half. A current of 500 amperes was readily transmitted through it. Mr. Bett thinks that sodium conductors constructed upon this plan may be made cheaper than conductors of copper.

Wood as Strong as Iron.

Recent official tests of the many valuable hardwoods native to Western Australia have made known the extraordinary properties of yate, believed to be the strongest of all known woods. Its average tensile strength is 24,000 pounds to the square inch, equaling that of good cast iron. But many specimens are much stronger, and one was tested up to 17 1/2 tons to the square inch, which is equal to the tensile strength of wrought iron.
The sawn timber of yate is probably the strongest in the world. The tree grows to a maximum height of 100 feet, and has sometimes a diameter of 2 1/2 or even 3 feet.

Game in Germany.
Germany is a country of Nimrods.
There are, we learn, 600,000 sportsmen, which means one gun for every hundred people. Each year fall to the gun, on an average, 400,000 hares, 4-000,000 partridges, 2,000,000 thrushes, 500,000 rabbits, 190,000 deer, 145,000 woodcocks, 40,000 wild ducks, 25,000 pheasants, 22,500 deer, 15,000 quails, 13,500 bucks, 1,400 wild boars and 1-300 bustards. In weight this "bag" represents 25,000,000 kilograms, a kilogramme being 2 1/5 pounds. The monetary value is 32,000,000 francs, or £1,240,000. The sum received for licenses to shoot is 7,500,000 francs, or £1,600,000.—London Globe.

Indian Days.

Marks of Indian days may be found under many old oak trees in southern California, particularly in the mountain districts. It is not uncommon to discover a large stone or boulder with one flat side showing a little above the surface of the ground and with a hole as large as a quart saucer in the center. In such holes the squaws crushed the acorns which were thereby ground into meal for food for the red men.

Pen and Paper.

"Paper," whether of rags or of wood pulp, still takes its name from the papyrus. A "book" is the beech, the wooden rod on which our forefathers cut their runic letters. And a "pencil" is still by derivation "pencil-lus," a little tail, having been originally the name of the Roman painter's brush.—London Chronicle.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mr. Shurtliff of Coaticook was a guest at J. W. Elder's for a few days the first of the week.

Mr. J. W. Elder's house is fast approaching completion. When finished it will be the most modern and up-to-date of any house in the village. It will make up a group of six very fine residences all in a bunch.

Mr. and Mrs. John Renihan from Cassville spent two or three days with their daughter, Mrs. Bert Hamilton, the past week.

The school house known as the Stone school house, about one mile north of the village, is being newly shingled and repaired generally. It has been in a most dilapidated condition for a long time, there not having been a school in this district for many years. The building was advertised for sale at one time but some families in the district objected to its being sold, hence the repairs.

The lawn social on the Methodist Church lawn on account of the inclement weather had to be adjourned to the church. The attendance was rather small owing no doubt to the heavy rain. A good program was rendered and all present enjoyed the evening very much. Refreshments were served and pronounced very fine. The proceeds, which were for the benefit of the church, were not large of course owing to the small attendance. Had the evening been propitious a large attendance would have been in evidence.

Rev. Mr. Brundage, a former pastor, made a few remarks and was listened to with much pleasure, and last but not least, Mr. Sisco sang a few selections which brought a most enthusiastic encore. It was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion.

HATLEY.
As Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Foote of "Rubicon Farm" were returning from Coaticook recently, their horse became frightened by a motor car. Finding a vigorous application of the whip useless, Mrs. Foote sprang to the ground to seize the horse by the head, but was thrown violently into the ditch. Mrs. Clarke was also thrown from the carriage, one of the wheels passing over her body. The frightened animal ran a short distance, but was stopped before doing any damage except the breaking of a spoke of one of the wheels. Both occupants of the carriage were badly bruised and shaken, but thankful to escape without more serious injury. The motorists stopped to render any assistance in their power, which, however, is a pality return for all the harm and trouble caused by this satanic invention.

Mr. Wm. Hodges had the misfortune last week to have his flock of twenty-five sheep and lambs invaded by dogs, nine of the flock being killed outright, and the remainder, with the exception of two, were so badly bitten and mutilated that four have since died. U. S. Judge B. F. Rody who visited his brother, Mr. E. A. Rody, here about three years ago, has been the U. S. District Judge of Port Rico for the last five years, and has recently been transferred to Alaska by President Taft. Judge Rody has shown marked ability in unifying the interests of Port Rico, and recent developments in Alaska called for such a man to straighten matters out in that dependency, and the President selected Judge Rody because of his success in the reconstruction days of Port Rico, one of the lesser pearls of the Antilles. Judge Rody studied law with Benjamin Butler, going to Albuquerque, New Mexico, in territorial days, there practicing his profession very successfully, and was elected to the U. S. Congress from the territory four years; being defeated for the third term because he was not amenable to the ring control. His uprightness and ability attracted the attention of President Roosevelt and he was appointed to the difficult task of the District Judgeship of Port Rico, and his recent promotion shows that he has made good.

NEW IDEAS FOR HATPINS.

Hand Embroidered Ones, Simple to Work, Quite the Rage.

A novel style of hatpin which is becoming quite the rage is hand embroidered. These hatpins are very simple to work, and can be embroidered in colors harmonizing with the hat in which they are worn, and can be further ornamented with beads or imitation jewels.

Take a piece of material, either linen, canvas or perhaps velvet, and trace out the requisite number of circles. Be careful to leave sufficient space between them to allow for turning back the material over the mount for the pin. In each circle a design should be traced or stamped, as elaborate or as crude as you like. It is better not to cut out the circles until they are embroidered, for which purpose the material can be stretched and worked on a frame such as is used for drawn thread work, as this insures the circles keeping their shape.

For a set of hatpins and buttons for a blouse half a yard of material should be sufficient. Buttons and hatpins to match are quite a new feature and have until now been seen only in expensive ensembles. When the embroidery is finished, cover a plain disk or button mould with it and turn the material and stitch it neatly at the back. Then, with another plain piece of material, cover this fastening on and stitch it neatly all round the edge. Sometimes a close, buttonholed edge looks very pretty worked in the same color as the rest of the embroidery.

The large hatpins, which have had such vogue for some time past and have worn shabby, can be used up in this way, when it is quite an easy matter to cover them with a piece of plain material and embroider them. If, however, the ordinary disks are used, the pin should be slipped through the hole at the top before the material is fixed, and a few drops of sealing wax will be sufficient to keep it firmly in position, says Home Notes.

Silk, gold and silver threads and many kinds of beads are used to embroider the pins and buttons, and the idea of having them to match is novel and distinctive.

Women, by One of Them.

(Maxims of Countess Vere de Talleyrand.)

Women never come of age. Reason irritates them, sentiment guides them.

The first thing they know is that they are pretty, the last thing they learn is that they are old.

Woman is a drop of dew which turns to a pearl.

When a woman loves she forgives even crime, when she loves no more she does not even forgive virtue.

A woman is like an army—she is lost if she has no reserve.

BELIEF IN WITCHCRAFT.

It Still Survives in Some Parts of India.

Belief in witchcraft is still so fast rooted in parts of India that unfortunate persons suspected of the black art are not uncommonly done to death.

In Bengal last year several cases of the kind came before the courts. In the Southal Parganahs a woman was murdered by her mother and brother, who believed her to be a witch.

In Palamau a man was killed, as the villagers held that he was a wizard. In another case two women were murdered on the bare suspicion that they had caused the death of three children by cholera. Human sacrifice also is still practiced among the uncivilized tribes of Bengal.

In Angul some Khonds sacrificed a girl as a propitiatory offering against cholera, and in Palamau a boy was enticed into the jungle and killed as a sacrifice. There can be little doubt that any relaxation of vigilance would result in a serious increase of witch killing and human sacrifices.

Why Iron Rusts.

British investigators estimate that the rails of a single railway system in England lose eighteen tons in weight every day, and that the larger part of this loss is due to the effects of rust. The problem of rust is of great economical importance, not only because of such losses as that just mentioned, but also because of the great expense involved in repainting iron and steel structures in order to preserve them. Thus $10,000 a year is spent in painting the great Scotch bridge over the Forth. Recent experiments indicate that pure iron in the presence of pure oxygen does not rust. It appears to be necessary for the production of rust that some acid, notably carbonic acid, shall be present. When iron is subjected to the action of water containing traces of acid, and in the presence of atmospheric oxygen, it always rusts. The rapid rusting of iron in railroad stations is ascribed to the presence of sulphuric acid derived from the smoke of locomotives.

Swarming Bees' Scout.

Swarms of bees are sometimes compelled to take refuge in very remarkable shelters. A peculiar and instructive instance was observed by the writer in the spring of 1908. The swarm flew over a large vineyard which contained low buildings. One of these buildings was constructed of hollow concrete blocks. The swarm flew directly toward a small hole in one of the blocks and disappeared in the interior. No doubt the swarm had rested on a tree or shrub on the preceding day and had sent out scouts to seek a home.

The scout found the little hole leading into the great cavity of the concrete block, and reported their discovery to their comrades. This case furnishes indisputable proof that swarming bees really send out scouts, as they are believed to do, for the little hole could not have been discovered in the rapid and lofty flight of the swarm.—Scientific American.

Photo Wakes Up and Goes to Sleep.

Changeable photographs of an unprecedented novelty, taken after a method perfected by the secretary of the Faculty of Science in the University of Marseilles, M. Estanave, were lately elucidated before the Academy of Sciences at Paris, and are now creating a sensation in the scientific papers.

M. Estanave, it seems, produced what is called technically a "diapositive" on glass of a sleeping woman. By inclining the picture ever so little and then shaking it a trifle, the eyes of the picture apparently open like the orbs of a porcelain doll. In the photograph, moreover, the entire countenance becomes radiant with the most animated expressiveness. When the photograph is inclined to its first position the eyes slowly close once more.—Current Literature.

Why Dumas Fills Quilt Smoking.

The younger Dumas, like M. Maeterlinck, became convinced in middle life of the injurious effects of nicotine, and his conversion was brought about in truly dramatic fashion, he once told an interviewer, "which set out so vividly the evils brought on by smoking that I laid down my cigar (the fifteenth that day, if I remember rightly) and vowed I would never smoke again. This vow I have rigidly kept, and am firmly convinced that tobacco saps the brain as surely as alcohol." Fortunately, tobacco-smokers can point to a long line of distinguished men, from Milton to Meredith, who have lived to a great age with unimpaired faculties in spite of their smoking habits.

The Food Value of Chestnuts.

The fruit of the chestnut tree is nearly as valuable as bread and more valuable than potatoes for dietetic purposes. Two pounds of chestnuts contain 118 grammes of starch and eight of fat.

The annual production of chestnuts in France is over 3,000,000 quintals of 220 pounds. That means food for many workmen. But the hide-tanners keep the product from the food-market by buying it in large quantities for use in their business. Producers make more profit by selling their chestnuts for tanning than by disposing of them for food.

His Own Opinion.

"So," said the head of the firm, "you want your salary raised?"
"Yes," the office boy timidly replied.
"What makes you think your value to this company has been increased?"
"Well, de baseball season's over, and I'll be here a good deal more regular now."

FOR A

Sunday Half-Hour

Theme:

LIFE.

BY DR. ALBERT FITCH.

Text—Enter ye in at the narrow gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction; and many there are who enter by it. How narrow is the gate and straight is the way which leadeth to life, and few there are who find it.

These are the words of Jesus. They are distinguished by their impressive severity. There are always people who are per verse and discontented, and who take no interest in these words, and are in the habit of rejecting them as absolutely inconsistent with their idea of a Christian life.

You and I are the children of the twentieth century; that is to say, we are an easy-going, pleasure-loving generation, and we receive these words, for the most part, if we receive them at all, with an inner prejudice and a definite irreligion. They carry with them a message that provokes a challenge from our twentieth century civilization; they seem to set forth a reflection on the world from the point of view of the new idea, as against the admirable old idea of a past generation, the deeply rooted institution of human nature. It is no wonder that men balk at this idea, when it seems to be out of harmony with present day twentieth century life.

Stones don't roll up hill. They always take the easy path of rolling down hill; a shot does not leave the gun by the butt end, but goes right out at the mouth of the barrel. It takes the way of easiest resistance. So the Scripture tells us to follow the straight path which leadeth to glory. Some Christians never reach the greatest happiness, because they always follow the lines of least resistance—the lines of no resistance. They are living what they think is the perfect life. Is not that the rule of all human development; the survival of the fittest. The strong man dominates the weak man, and he must give in.

Read your history and see the nations and the men who have fallen because they have followed the paths of least resistance; see where they have ended.

On the other hand, see the men who have succeeded because they followed the straight and narrow path. See our modern commercial life, with its one code of ethics for the multimillionaire and another code of ethics for the poorer man—for you and for me. You can see it in our commercial life to-day, wherever we see men getting together enormous amounts of money; wherever you see men putting pleasure before principle, desire before justice, conquest before character, self before one's neighbors, the things of the world before the glory of God.

Whenever you find these things and find men following the easy path, you find that they come to destruction. They have come to the end they set out to reach. On the other hand, true progress has come only when men have been willing to travel along the straight and narrow path. What is the thing that sustains society to-day? It is the thing we call home. The home is simply a group of people who have made up their minds to lead the straight life. Here the individual member sacrifices all for the sake of the group. The father sacrifices himself for his children. Wherever you see a home where there is discord, there you will see a broken home, a disrupted home, one that ends in divorce; one in which the children are moral bankrupts.

That is the whole foundation of our society; that is where we do good to the greatest number; when men agree to walk in the straight and narrow path under any government whether it be that of a Republic or a monarch. Instead of the easy path principle, along the lines of least resistance, there you have a sturdy people. When men endeavor to set forth their own ideas of government independent of other men, such government is not government at all; it sometimes means anarchy.

Why do we build our hospitals to-day? Because we believe in the new Christian civilization. Why do we take care of our old people in homes for the aged and the sick instead of getting rid of them as they did in Sparta of old, by killing them? Because we are a civilized people. Why do we have reformatories now instead of prison. Because we have learned that by simply turning a key on a man and locking him up apart from his fellow-man, we destroy him and he destroys us. We do it for our own property's safety and for the reform of the individual.

There are many, many men, in our own day who find themselves at the end of four, or three, or even one year, not as good as they were before, to whom money and its pursuit are the main objects in life. Some cannot look their own children in the face or their neighbors, or their God, because they have lost their character. But character costs a great price, and everything is sacrificed to attain it.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

The sixty-fifth annual exhibition of the Stanstead County Agricultural Society was held at Ayers Cliff Wednesday and Thursday.

The showing of live stock was superior to that of any previous exhibition of the Society, and in many other respects a tendency towards a higher standard was noticeable.

The attendance, both days, was large—possibly larger than that of any previous year. The number present on Thursday would not be far from 4,000. The grand stand was packed and the Society's dining hall did a flourishing business; some five hundred people were fed Thursday noon.

Marked improvement was shown in the exhibit of fruit and vegetables, both in quantity and quality. In all sections of the horticultural department there was real competition. The judge, J. R. Ball, of Knowlton, had a hard day's work. Asked by a JOURNAL man for an opinion on the department he said, with a decidedly hopeful tone, "O, it is improving." In response to the next question, "How does it compare with the Brome County fair?" Mr. Ball said, "Well, of course it doesn't compare. Why don't you fellows organize a horticultural society? Only 20 members are required to get a Government grant of $100."

Mr. Ball has been in the garden and seed business over a quarter of a century, and he attracted considerable attention by his keen perception and evident knowledge of fruit and vegetables. The largest varieties do not bring the first prizes. Form, color and condition are all important factors. Bruised fruit or unburned vegetables do not win prizes. Then the Society's rules as to number or quantity must be strictly adhered to.

Of the vegetable exhibits some tops were left full length and others were cut close to the roots. Taking exhibits of carrots representing the two extremes Mr. Ball pointed out the "happy medium." He would have the foliage cut off about seven or eight inches above the root and stalks tied twice—close to the roots and near top ends.

While not a judge in the dairy produce department, which includes sugar, honey, etc., Mr. Ball spoke enthusiastically of the exhibit No. 1, comb honey. He had never seen anything equal it; every cell was perfectly filled. The exhibit was made by Arthur E. Curtis, Stanstead.
