GENERAL BOOTH GIVEN A GREAT RECEPTIONAddressed Crowded House at Auditorium Last Night

LEADING PEOPLE PRESENT

Grand Old Man of the Salvation Army Spoke of the Growth and Work of the Army.

Just off the train from a flying trip across the continent, General Booth, the grand old man of the Salvation Army, stepped upon the stage of the Auditorium last evening, showing but little outward trace of the fatigues of his journey which he had just accomplished. The train from Montreal, which was due at seven o'clock, was late, and it was decided to have the General lunch in the city before he proceeded to the Auditorium. A number of prominent Army officers were present at the station to greet him, as well as Hon. Richard Turner and other leading citizens. Capt. Trudel, Chief of Police, was also present with a detachment of the force and the arrangements for the reception were carried out without a hitch. When the General entered the open wagon in waiting to drive to the Auditorium, he was given a hearty cheer by the big crowd present.

At the Auditorium a great audience had assembled, the theatre being almost completely filled with the leading people of the city. On the stage also there was a big gathering, among those occupying seats there being Hon. Richard Turner, who presided; Hon. Judge McCook, Mr. J. Hamilton, Rev. A. T. Love, Rev. I. M. Thompson, Rev. W. C. Clark, Rev. A. J. Lebeau, Messrs. J. Theodore Ross, Col. Turnbull, John C. Thompson, J. G. Scott, W. H. Davidson, J. Thompson, St. G. Boswell, C. P. Champion, A. E. Pfeiffer, T. C. Aylwin, R. Stewart, Ald. A. J. Messervy, G. B. Ramsey, Dr. Harper, D. R. L. Gray, J. Brown, J. M. Johnston, J. H. Clint, E. T. D. Chambers, R. B. Lindsay, W. Brodie, E. Harper Wade, a number of the officers of the cruiser squadron now in port, and others.

There were also a number of prominent officers of the Salvation Army, including Commissioner Coombs, head of the Army in Canada, Col. Pugmire, Commissioner Nicholl, editor of the War Cry, Col. Higgins, Brigadiers Cox and Howell, and Adjutant Owens, whose work in connection with the preparations for the reception here met with such signal success. The Staff Band from Toronto, a fine musical organization, was on the stage and rendered a number of excellent selections.

When General Booth made his entry upon the stage he was received with great enthusiasm, the vast audience greeting him with repeated applause. After a hymn and prayer, the Hon. Richard Turner rose to introduce the General. The visit of General Booth, said Mr. Turner, was an honor to Quebec. He was a man considered without an equal throughout the world owing to the marvelous work which he had accomplished. It was not necessary for General Booth to receive a formal introduction to a Quebec audience, for in this city as elsewhere he was well-known and highly honored.

General Booth, on rising, was given another ovation. He thanked the audience for his warm reception. The evidence of appreciation of a man's work was always pleasing and he hoped that he would always merit the same appreciation. The General then proceeded with his address, an address which claimed the intense attention of the audience throughout.

man was amazed at the action of the woman in the Hallelujah bonnet, and she immediately surrendered. There the Salvation Army officer marched off with her at once, proud as if she had found a treasure. They took her away, washed her and dressed her, and then preached to her the wonderful salvation which, no matter how low a man or woman had fallen, presented a ladder by which they could again climb to respectability. The Salvation Army had done something like this on a very large scale. Thousands upon thousands of women like these were now marching under its banners.

General Booth then stated that he hoped to live long enough to be able to do on a large scale, what was now being done on a smaller one, for the criminal classes. In Canada the prison gate brigade was at work, and instances of what was being done along this line were also given.

The colonization work of the Army was then touched upon by the General in a very interesting manner. Some of the things which had already been done were cited. The people were finding the Army out in this work also, and when farmers wanted help and employers wanted men, when husbands wanted wives and wives wanted husbands, they applied to the Army. One section said the Army was taking away the brains and muscle of the country. The other that it did not want the scum of the old country. He would say that the Army never took one man whom it did not believe would make a good citizen. Twenty thousand of them had already been planted in this country and scarcely any had returned and scarcely any complaints had been heard. The Army was ready to become the servant of any company or any government who desired its services in this work. The time, however, had passed when the Army had to go about begging for a field for its labor in this connection.

Where, asked the General, does the Army now stand after its 41 years of existence? In 62 countries it was at work, and in 32 different languages were its labors pursued. It had 150 regularly trained officers and 50,000 local officers. It published 24 different newspapers. Two hundred thousand hungry men and women were fed every day and 23,000 homeless people were sheltered every night. Its activities were engaged in rescue homes, children's homes, labor bureaus, colonization bureaus, inquiry bureaus and a hundred and one other agencies.

General Booth brought his impressive and eloquent address to a close with an earnest appeal to his hearers on the question: "What have you done with your life?" What would the answer be? He did not ask them if they were a Catholic or a Protestant, a Jew or Gentile. But what he did ask was what are you doing with your life? The General's closing peroration was a specially thrilling and affecting one.

The applause again broke forth with redoubled vigor when the General had taken his seat and it continued for some time. Hon. Judge McCook proposed a vote of thanks to the General in which he said that the enthusiasm, great heart and earnestness of General Booth explained the influence which he had exerted far and wide. He assured General Booth of the sympathy which went out to him and his work from this city, and from men of all nationalities, as he was glad to see some of his French-Canadian fellow-citizens present at the meeting. The General had now reached the November of his life, but all hoped that it would be long before he reached the December.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. John Hamilton, who spoke of the immense amount of practical work done by the Army. He referred to the difficulty of the work which the Army was doing, and said that if the testimony of an outsider like himself could do any benefit to the self-sacrificing and valuable labors, and recital of which they had been listening to so attentively and interestedly, he was proud to do so.

The vote of thanks was then tendered by Hon. R. Turner to the General, who briefly responded. After the meeting the General was driven to the Chateau Frontenac. This morning at 11 o'clock, there will be a civic reception by the Mayor and Aldermen to General Booth, at the City Hall; and the general public will also present their respects at the same time. General Booth will sail for England by the C.P.R. mail steamship Empress of Ireland this afternoon.

The Staff Band of the Army from Toronto, which was playing at the Auditorium last night, was greatly admired, will render a programme at the Y.M.C.A. Hall to-night, when there will be a big meeting of the Salvation Army presided over by Commissioner Coombs. The Staff Band, which arrived yesterday afternoon, were entertained at tea by Staff-Capt. Patterson at his residence, Maple Avenue.

FRISCO'S MAYOR

Found Guilty of Extorting Money From French Restaurant Keepers.

San Francisco, June 13—Mayor Eugene Schmitz was to-night found guilty of extorting money from keepers of French restaurants in this city. This is the first formal conviction in the anti-graft campaign inaugurated several months ago. Abe Ruef, who was indicted for similar offences, pleaded guilty to the charges and appeared as a witness against Schmitz.

When the verdict was announced, Schmitz sat unmoved with his left hand to his chin. He apparently did not understand and asked Barrett: "What is it?" "Guilty," said Barrett. Schmitz's hand dropped to the table, but he showed no other signs of emotion.

The barge Polynesia was in tow of the Australia and escaped injury. The Australia is light and the Bethlehem loaded with grain and package freight. No persons drowned or injured on either boat. Cannot say cause of accident, as it was clear at the time.

BLOOD POISON THROUGH

STOCKING DYE.

Curious Case at Kingston.

While attending to her household duties, Mrs. A. Zamboni, Place-de-Armes, Kingston, (Ont.), struck her ankle against a projection which inflicted a cut. She paid little attention to the wound at the time, but in a few days it became swollen and very painful. A medical man was consulted, and it was then found that the dye from her stocking had got into the wound and set up blood poisoning. Then began a trying period of pain, which had not been for Zamboni might not even yet have been ended. Mrs. Zamboni says: "The doctor ordered certain treatment, which I followed out; but the wound got no better, and refused to heal. It was most painful, and sometimes I could hardly bear to walk. I was almost in despair when a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. It soothed the swelling and inflammation, and the pain subsided. I was quite easy. Then the wound began to heal, and a little more perseverance resulted in a complete cure."

Zam-Buk draws the pain and the poison from a wound at the same time. It heals ulcers, chafing sores, sore feet, bad legs, and varicose ulcers. It cures insect stings, sun-burn, summer rashes, and heat spots, while as a cure for chronic wounds, eczema, prairie itch, ringworm, sculp sores, and sores due to blood poisoning, it is absolutely without equal. All stores and druggists sell at fifty cents, or post-free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

Considered the Offer Made by the C.
Paquet Company Too Low, but Favored Exemption of Taxation.

A meeting of the Civic Finance Committee was held last evening under the presidency of Ald. Duquet, those present being Mayor Garneau, Pro-Mayor Foley and Ald. Drouin, Galipeault, Hogan, Verret, and Bedard, members of the Committee, and Ald. Huard. Before proceeding to routine business Ald. Galipeault asked the chairman if they would receive a deputation representing the C. A. Paquet Co., who were anxious to be heard upon the request of the company who propose to purchase the city property now occupied as the cattle market at the Palais. The chairman read the petition which had been referred to them by the City Council. This petition was supported by another petition from a large number of local lumber dealers. It was decided to hear the deputation which consisted of Mr. C. Paquet, Dr. Gaudreault, G. E. Caron, M.P.P., R. Leduc, Hudon and others.

Mr. Paquet explained that their object was to purchase, as possible, the cattle market to erect factories for the manufacture of all kinds of machinery. The property they require would include the Palais fire and police stations and the extent of land would be about 50,000 feet. Employment would be given to begin with to 300 men. At the present time he takes the entire output of one factory which started work only three years ago and now gives employment to sixty men. There was a splendid market in Quebec for the kind of machinery which they intend to manufacture. The buildings could be erected in about one year.

In reply to Mayor Garneau, Mr. Paquet explained that the company by their first charter had their capital fixed at $50,000, which was subscribed. They then obtained letters patent increasing their capital to $500,000, and out of that amount the sum of $200,000 had been subscribed on condition that the company would get that property. They intend to offer the city $25,000 for the property and would ask for an exemption of taxes for five years.

Mayor Garneau remarked that the price offered for the property meant about 50 cents a foot. He had no doubt that the company would succeed, but as business men they had to look to the future, and asked Mr. Paquet what would become of the property in the case that the company would not succeed. Mr. Paquet replied that they were confident of success, but in the case that they did not the industry would undoubtedly be carried on by others.

Mr. Caron also spoke in favor of the petition and in reply to Alderman Verret, Mr. Paquet stated that the building would cost $50,000 and the machinery a similar amount. When the deputation withdrew, the petition of the company was discussed at length and the general consensus of opinion was unfavorable to the propositions made. Everybody favored the granting of an exemption of taxes to the company during ten years, but as regards the sale of the city property, the Committee was unanimously of opinion that the price offered was far below the value of the land, which was one of the most valuable properties in the city, and quite recently an offer of $2 a foot for 20,000 of that land, was made by another industrial company. If the land was sold the city would have to purchase property elsewhere for a cattle market, and to build a new fire station, and these two buildings alone would cost between forty and fifty thousand dollars.

The question was finally left in abeyance and a sub-committee composed of Mayor Garneau, Ald. Duquet and Verret was appointed to prepare a draft of a report which will be submitted at the next meeting of the Committee.

The request of Mr. J. A. LaRue, who recently bought out the Dominion Shirt Co., asking for an exemption of taxes for ten years was then read. The Committee decided not to grant an exemption but to fix the rate of assessment for the next five years at $265 for the two lots.

The request of the Quebec Central Railway that the city rent them the land now occupied by them at the Levis ferry landing for a term of five years, was granted, but on condition that they pay $300 instead of $200 yearly, and with a proviso that on the 1st May, 1910, the city may annul the lease on giving three months notice to the company, but only in the case that it would be necessary to extend the present Levis ferry landing.

A letter was read from Lt.-Col. Wood informing the Mayor that the sergeants of the 8th Royal Rifles were preparing a programme of sports for the entertainment of the men of the fleet. As His Worship remarked the city will probably also be called upon to entertain the naval visitors, and the Committee decided that the city would do their duty in the matter.

A large number of claims were sent into the Committee by owners of cows which were ordered to be destroyed by the veterinary surgeon. The city has to pay the two-thirds of the value of such cattle, and it was decided to refer these claims to the city advisors.

The Quebec Chronicle

QUEBEC, JUNE 14, 1907.

GENERAL BOOTH.

Only a few days ago Quebec was called on to do honor to the representative of a powerful and friendly people, which had recently vindicated its right to enter into the comity of civilized peoples by force of arms; to-day she is called on to do honor to the representative of another Empire, the Empire of Love, whose foundations are the message "Peace on Earth, and good will towards men." Those who can recall the early days of the Salvation Army, when the venerable and illustrious philanthropist whom we welcome to-day originated it, and remember the ridicule with which it was at first received, the obloquy heaped upon it, and the persecutions which it incurred, may well be astonished at the marvellous success it has achieved, and the great power it has become for alleviating the woes of suffering humanity. This it owes, under Providence, to the broad and Catholic spirit which ignored sects, the unshakable faith, and the unwavering energy of its founder, and to him has been given the love and admiration of the world, and the blessing rarely bestowed, "He shall see the fruit of his labor and be satisfied."

THE PALACE HILL QUESTION.

The action of the Roads Committee on Wednesday evening in deciding to recommend the adoption of the alternative plan of extending the electric car service through St. Sauveur in preference to that of double-tracking Palace Hill is a wise one. In the first place the street is not suitable for a double track; it differs entirely from St. John street in the steepness of its grade, and the nature of its traffic; where an accident from a restive horse might easily be averted on St. John street it would be difficult to do so on Palace Hill under easily conceivable circumstances, if double-tracked; the traffic up the hill is in great measure composed of heavily weighted lumber and coal carts, and the strain on the horses entailed by stopping half way up the incline and then starting again is one which no humane person would be willing to impose on the animals except under very pressing necessity. This necessity does not exist. So far as rapid communication is concerned, there is nothing to prevent the cars on the Palace Hill section from returning immediately; the trouble does not lie with the connecting link but with the Upper and Lower Town services which occasion all the delay. Moreover the laying of a double track would necessitate the tearing up of the street and the temporary blocking of the traffic on it, and, if the proceedings of the Roads Committee are to be our guide, there is quite enough in the way of "improving" the streets contemplated elsewhere, to absorb all the energy of the Roads Committee, and the money of the rate payers, without adding to the list; more especially as the double tracking is likely to be expensive to the city, and involves, according to Mayor Garneau, the removal of the sidewalk opposite the Hotel Dieu, and, according to Alderman Galipeault, the expropriation of certain properties.

The extension of the line through St. Sauveur to St. Malo is not exposed to similar criticism. The double tracking of Palace Hill is a piece of extravagance, and utterly uncalled for if the Electric Car Company were compelled to do their duty and provide a regular five minute service along St. John and St. Paul streets—it is perfectly absurd to talk of rapid communication by running cars up and down the treacherous hill where there are no cars awaiting the passengers of St. John and St. Paul streets. The extension to St. Malo, on the other hand, would be a boon to the residents there, and of ultimate benefit to the city itself as tending to promote the extension of its limits in due time. The Company is bound by its contract to run through St. Sauveur, and should be made to do it; it would not be long before it would find it to its interest to go further. At any rate there is no necessity for it to be allowed to do a thing which is called for at all, is only called for by the defective performance of its duties elsewhere.

LIBERAL SOAP-BUBBLES.

As a result of the Prevost-Asselin fiasco, the French Liberal organ here has been busy discussing the Hon. Mr. Turgeon and his role in the play with its compatriot of Fabrique street, and accusing Senator Landry of having incited Baron l'Epine to give the evidence which he delivered in court. The original question, the utter inefficiency and demoralization into which the mines branch sank under the administration of the Hon. Jean Prevost, is quietly and conveniently dropped out of sight, and the side issues we have named are introduced. It is claimed that Hon. Mr. Turgeon might have had a chance of being Caesar's wife if he had lived in those days and been a woman, instead of a member of the Gouin Cabinet, and that Judge Bosse painted the Lilla Turgeonensis a richer and creamier white when in his charge to the jury in the Prevost-Asselin trial he volunteered the opinion that so far as any personal connection with graft in this case was concerned it did not appear from the evidence that he rested under any imputation of it. This was simply a gratuitous expression of opinion, for it was not Hon. Mr. Turgeon who was then being tried, but Mr. Asselin, and it did not go very far for it was guarded by the limiting adjective "personal" but we suppose that in its present straits the Government party dares well to be thankful for small mercies, and to make the best of them. It may be further observed that supposing Mr. Turgeon was immediately implicated by the evidence given, and supposing that Mr. Justice Bosse had fully and completely exonerated him, and supposing further that he was directly mixed up with Hon. Mr. Prevost in the case, it is noticeable that six out of the twelve jurymen did not take the same view that Judge Bosse did.

As for Senator Landry's alleged colluding with Baron l'Epine and planning out the campaign with him, what has that to do with the matter? A charge is a charge no matter who makes it, and the evidence supporting it is neither increased in value nor diminished by the political opinions of the parties engaged in bringing it forward. Senator Landry, and the Conservatives did nothing immoral or unfair, if, as is alleged, they assisted in having a very serious charge against a governmental department probed to the bottom; in fact it was the duty of the Opposition to do so; and to reprobate such action is simply "playing to the gallery," drawing a red herring across the trail, and endeavoring to escape the consideration of facts by appealing to political passions and prejudices, and making an issue between Liberals and Conservatives. The bad administration of a governmental department, the administration which draws from the head the admission that of nearly three thousand applications entered he was only cognizant of one simple instance, and from the inferior officers the complaint that they are overworked and cannot satisfactorily attend to their duties, is not a party question but a provincial one; it is the concern of every honest man who desires good and effective government, and the proof of this is that the charge against the Government was brought by a Liberal in a journal presumed to advocate the views of that section of the Liberal party which still retains its honesty, and is opposed to grafting methods, and wants clean hands.

If this were the first instance of its kind, the diatribes of Le Soleil against Senator Landry and the Conservative party might wear some appearance of plausibility, though even then they would be merely a substitution of a side issue for the main one, but it is not.

Mr. Parent, who succeeded Mr. Marchand, had not been in office long when an attack was made upon him. Senator Lagris and Senator Choquette, important Quebec Liberals, alleged that brigandage was a characteristic of the department over which he presided. At this time an inter-party campaign against the continuance of Mr. Parent in office was commenced. Three of his colleagues, Messrs. Gouin, Turgeon, and Weir, resigned. Mr. Parent endeavored to patch up his Cabinet, but without success. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, owing to the close relations of the Quebec and Ottawa Governments, undertook to smooth the difficulty over. He appointed Mr. Parent, who had been held responsible by Messrs. Lagris and Choquette for "brigandage," to the high position of chairman of the Transcontinental Railway Commission, whereupon the politicians who had operated against Mr. Parent succeeded to the positions of influence at Quebec. Mr. Gouin, one of the Ministers who had resigned from the Parent Cabinet, became Premier, while Mr. Turgeon, another anti-Parent Liberal, became Attorney-General.

Now comes the "brigandage" charge against some of the men who supplanted Parent. It is of their Administration that the Baron from Belgium tells the story of the proposed "take-off" on the land transaction for campaign purposes. We have thus, in the l'Epine case, a repetition of the accusations made in the Parent case, which charges were a repetition of those developed at an earlier period, when the Quebec Treasury was first invaded for the purposes of the Laurier election fund.

But it is late in the day to hark back to these matters now. It is not

Hon. Mr. Prevost, it is not Hon. Mr. Hon. Mr. Turgeon, it is the Premier himself and his whole Government that is now on its trial. The Premier has now had sufficient time to look into the evidence in the Prevost-Asselin case, and to determine on his course; he has had a meeting of the Cabinet in Council, where the present state of affairs ought to have been discussed, and some resolution arrived at, even if it was not, but he has given no signs of life. What is he going to do? Will he stand by Hon. Mr. Prevost in face of the evidence of the incapable management of his department? Will he stand by Hon. Mr. Turgeon in the face of the suspicion cast on him, notwithstanding the partial whitewashing of the presiding judge, by the equal division of opinion of the jury? Is he going to tacitly do this by taking no action? or will he take measures to have the affair fully and impartially threshed out, without the heat evinced at the last trial, and with the sincere desire to have the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth proclaimed? Or will he trust to luck, and an appeal to party prejudices to give him a clean slate? It is time for him to come to a decision, and a decision is expected by the country.

PRESS OPINIONS.

ITALY'S ADVANTAGEOUS POSITION.—Not long ago King Edward paid a friendly visit to the King of Italy, and the natural assumption is that he did this quite as much for the purpose of promoting and securing the peace of Europe as for the purpose of strengthening the bonds of ancient amity between the two kingdoms. Since that meeting of the two Monarchs, Italy's Foreign Minister has made in Parliament an elaborate explanation of her position among European powers and of the relations in which she stands to them respectively. Naturally enough his statement makes for peace, but so did the German Chancellor's recent pronouncement on a similar theme. The Italian statesman was no more emphatic than the German Prince in his explicit appreciation of the value of the friendship of Great Britain.

The Italian Foreign Minister called attention also to Italy's renewed friendship with France, to which he attached a great deal of importance not merely because Italy and France ought to be friendly as neighbors, but because each of them is now closely bound to Great Britain. In fact their mutual relations are of such a sort that it is hardly a misnomer to apply to them the historical term "Triple Alliance." The mere mention of this term recalls the triple alliance into which Germany, Italy, and Austria-Hungary entered after the conclusion of the Franco-Prussian war, and which still subsists in form and name, to whatever it may amount in substance. According to the Foreign Minister that alliance has been useful to Italy in the past and on the whole, and it is to her interest to remain in it indefinitely.

Membership in two such alliances as the one with Germany and Austria-Hungary on the one hand and the one with France and Britain on the other puts Italy in a very advantageous position to exercise her influence for the maintenance of the peace of Europe. For example, if France were to causelessly attack Germany it would be Italy's duty to break with her and aid Germany. On the contrary, an unprovoked attack by Germany on France would cost her Italy's support and the blow it over to France. In the interest of her own fiscally overburdened people it is her duty to keep down the expense of her armaments, and her alliances with France and Britain have put her for the first time in a position to carry out such a policy. This tends to preserve the peace of Europe and of the world, especially as the old alliance between Russia and France is still as much of a reality as is the Dreikund.—Toronto Globe.

BUT APPOINTMENTS to the Senate are made upon sheer grounds of partisan service, and it is wholly chieftain that the power to create a co-ordinate legislative body could be vested in the leaders of a particular party who for the moment control the House of Commons. We have the result of the system in the Senate which now exists at Ottawa, and it is neither better nor worse than that which has existed since Confederation. It is doubtful, however, if the Senate is to be abolished, the protection which seems to demand representation which their more equal representation in the Senate was intended to afford, and we can hardly force abolition except with the assent of all the Provinces. We have therefore to consider whether it is possible by the system of election in grouped constituencies, by the transfer or partial transfer, of the power of appointment to the Provincial Legislatures, or by such a reorganization of the business of Parliament as will vest special and well-defined duties and responsibilities in the Senate, to create an Upper Chamber which will perform a useful function in the scheme of government. But as now constituted the Senate is the direct creation of party, its members are appointed by the party and for the party, and they serve as the docile agents of the appointing Government. More and more the Senate becomes an absentee body. It sits only for a few weeks during each Parliamentary session. Its members exhibit no public spirit. They are indifferent to their duties, even when they make their occasional visits to the capital. They worship only their own convenience. They worship only their creators on the Treasury benches. They degrade the representative position, and furnish generally an example of indifference, aloofness and cynical neglect of duty and responsibility which is discreditable to the Senatorial body and demoralizing to the whole public life of the country.—Toronto News.

KEEPS RIGHT ON STEPPING.

The Right Sort of Spirit for a Fast Progressing World.

The weight of the human body has a certain relation to height and width, and the expert designer of clothes can get a correct measurement. The variations from the average or normal man are accounted for by occupation and environment. The athlete is heavier than the office man of the same height and width. This accounts for the division into the types of the Semi-ready physique type system. The sturdy coal miner in Fernie and Lethbridge has a better developed shoulder than the equally hardy roofer of Winnipeg.

"Semi-ready" tailoring is not the entire distance to knowing how. It's only a stepping stone, and its makers keep right on stepping.

Why remain home and freeze? You can be comfortably carried for 25¢ by electric power through the city to Quebec's only Rustic Theatre at Montmorency Falls and enjoy a first class Vaudeville bill and dance in parlors of Kent House.

INJUNCTION AGAINST FRONTENAC GAS CO.
Applied for by Quebec Gas Company.

TO PREVENT NEW COMPANY

From Laying Pipes Too Near Those of Old Company—An Interesting Case.

The Quebec Gas Company, through their attorneys Messrs. Pentland, Stuart and Brodie, have taken an action for $10,000 damages against the Frontenac Gas Co. The nature of the writ is for an injunction to prevent the Frontenac Company from laying pipes too near those of the Quebec Gas Company pipes, the latter claiming that, by law, any company laying pipes cannot lay them within a certain distance from those of the Quebec Company. The suit will undoubtedly be a very interesting one, and the Frontenac Company have retained the services of Hon. L. P. Pelletier and Mr. L. A. Taschereau to look after their interests.

MEETING OF ELDERS.
At the close of the sederunt of the Presbyterian General Assembly on Monday morning, the moderator intimated that a meeting of elders would be held at 2.15 that afternoon, but did not know the object of the meeting, as he was not in their secrets. A large and influential meeting was held at the time appointed, and in the absence of Sir Thomas Taylor, elder for Hamilton, Ont., late Chief Justice of Manitoba, Mr. John C. Thomson, elder of the Presbytery of Quebec, was asked to preside. The chairman read the notice for calling the meeting, which stated that the first object was to give the elders an opportunity of meeting one another and becoming better acquainted with each other, and matters which might be for the welfare of the church at large. He then stated that the elders present would be glad to learn that the numbers of the ministers and elders attending the assembly were about equal, which was very gratifying, and he hoped such would continue to be the case at all future meetings of the assembly. The chairman then said that he hoped something would be done in the near future for limitation of the pastorate, and referred to the Methodist Church, stating at the same time that at present the Presbyterian Church was hampered and the spiritual side suffered accordingly by sometimes having pastors whose ministry was a failure, and nothing could be done to remove them unless a specified charge of immorality was brought against them. Several took part in the discussion, and at the close the chairman called upon the Rev. Dr. Wardrop, who stated that he was there not as a minister, but as an elder, having, after a long pastorate, resigned his charge. The chairman suggested that at all future meetings of the General Assembly a similar meeting of elders should be held for the same object as stated above.

The entertainment in the Auditorium will be preceded by a Banquet in the large Gymnasium of the Y.M.C.A. Building for about 500 of the sailors.

FISHERMEN AND FIREMEN.
Messrs. L. P. Grenier, advocate, Narcisse Morin, Jules G. Papineau, and J. Art. Dionne, have returned from a most successful fishing trip in their preserves in rear of St. Raymond. They met with such success that they only left the lakes when there was no more fish to be taken out, and they are now distributing the result of their catch among their friends. On their return trip they reached St. Raymond shortly after the fire broke out on Wednesday last, and rendered invaluable aid in saving the property. Their heroic conduct was highly commented upon. Mr. Papineau in particular succeeded in saving a number of poultry and cattle, which would have undoubtedly fallen a prey to the flames.

DEMISE OF MR. T. MACFARLANE.
Death Comes Suddenly to Chi Analyst of Inland Revenue Department.

Mr. Thomas Macfarlane, 131 McLeod street, chief analyst of the Inland Revenue Department, and one of Ottawa's best known and most highly respected citizens, died suddenly yesterday afternoon of heart failure, while trying to overtake a car near the loop in the Rockliffe rifle range. Death was due to heart failure. The news of his death came as a shock to his numerous friends.

All day he was in his usual good health. The forenoon he spent at the Laboratory on Queen street. In the afternoon he went to the rifle range on a matter of business in company with Mr. Alex. Christie, contractor, of 253 Frank street, and Capt. A. Deroche, of the Militia Department, to decide upon a suitable site of a proposed new building there. At about 5.30 the party started to return, but just missed a car, which was rounding the curve. Mr. Macfarlane started to intercept it but the extra exertion was too much for him and he suddenly fell to the ground. When Conductor Timothy Shields, 435 Laurier avenue, rushed to his assistance, Mr. Macfarlane had passed to the great beyond. Capt. Deroche and Mr. Christie at once went to see what had befallen their late companion, but they found that they could do nothing. The remains were conveyed to the quarters of the Dominion Rifle Association, and laid upon a cot. Coroner Baptie was notified, but did not consider an inquest necessary.

Mr. Macfarlane had been an official whose work had always commended itself and he was about to receive the rest which his labors so richly deserved. He leaves a widow, three sons and five daughters to mourn. The sons are Arthur and Thomas Macfarlane, Ottawa, and Norman Macfarlane, Montreal. The daughters are Miss Jessie Macfarlane, Ottawa; Mrs. J. Fairburn, Toronto, and Miss Lizzie Macfarlane in St. John, N.B.—Ottawa Journal.

Rear-Admiral of British Fleet to be Present at Saturday's Lacrosse Match.

Rear-Admiral Neville and officers of the British fleet have accepted the invitation of the executive of the Quebec Lacrosse Club to be present at the match with the Ottawa Nationals at the Q. A. A. grounds on Saturday afternoon next. The Admiral has promised to start the ball at 3 o'clock, and the band of the flagship will play during the afternoon.

The match promises to be one of the finest exhibitions given here this season, as the visitors from the federal capital are a strong aggregation and come prepared to give the locals a lively tussle. The Quebec team, since the recent changes have been made on it, is going at a fast clip and the Ottawa twelve will find their work out for them. There promises to be a great crowd present.

The team to meet the visitors will be chosen from among the following players:—H. Copeman, J. Early, A.
DeBeaumont, J. Doyle, G. Boivin, J.
McVivier, J. McCormick, J. Malone, S.
Laliberte, F. Webster, D. Power, J.

boury and P. Moran.

A DARK HORSE.

Mr. Frank Coffey, of Sydney, Australia, writes to a friend in Quebec that there is a "dark horse" in the rowing world in New Zealand who can easily defeat either Stanbury or Towns, and does not think he will be lacking in backing to make a trip to Canada and England. The New Zealand athletes (especially footballers) have proven themselves much harder than the Australians.

A RACING COMPARISON.

If anyone doubts the superiority of the thoroughbred horse of to-day over his predecessors of a generation or two ago, says the Westminster Gazette, the records of the Grand National ought to remove his scepticism.
Nearly 70 years ago, in 1838, this race was won by Lottery, a wonderful horse in his day, in 7 seconds under 15 minutes. Nearly 13 minutes was the average time until 1844, when Curcul won in 10 minutes 47 seconds. In the "sixties" and "seventies" there was a marked improvement in speed, although the average duration of the race was about 11 minutes; up to 1890 the time never fell below 10 minutes, and often exceeded 11 minutes; but since that year the time has seldom been outside 10 minutes. In 1893 Cloister simply romped in, winning by 40 lengths in a canter in 9 minutes, 42 2-5 seconds, although he carried the extraordinary weight of 12 stone 7 pounds; and six years later Manifesto equalled Cloister's record by carrying 12 1-2 stones to victory. Thus, within 55 years the duration of this race was reduced by well over 5 minutes; so that Cloister ought to have been able to give a start of a mile and a half and have beaten Lottery over the Grand National course.

Philadelphia, June 13.—An athletic meet was held last week by inmates of the Overbrook School for the Blind.
These, all totally blind, began a contest for supremacy with the Baltimore School for the Blind. In the fast races an ingenious scheme was put in force to prevent collisions and to avoid running off the track. For the full length of the cinder path a wire was strung on each side. On this was a sliding grip or handle. The runner grasped this handle and so could put forth all his speed without other thought. The baseball was thrown 195 feet, the hammer 76 feet and the shot was put over 30 feet.

Sydney, N.S.W., May 25.—One of the modern developments of a race course is the bookmakers' strike, to enforce their conditions on racing institutions.
Last week at Narrandera and Goulburn the ringmen were not satisfied with the fees imposed for the privileges of betting in the grand stand reserve at both places, and as the racing authorities did not comply with the demands of the bookmakers the latter went out on strike.

At Narrandera the ringmen, however, "pooled" the business, and paid the fee for one bookmaker, who did all the betting, with profitable results. The conditions under which permission would be granted to bookmakers intending to ply their vocation at Goulburn had been duly advertised, and upwards of half a score ringmen from the metropolis agreed to the terms and paid the fee and deposit demanded by the club, but on the arrival of the Riverina contingent an effort was made to get the fee reduced to one-half. The club declined to accede to the request, and a strike resulted.

The club officials remained firm, and there was no open betting in the grand stand enclosure during the afternoon, though some of the "strikers" booked a few wagers on "the quiet." The Leager bookmakers, however, benefitted by the strike in the paddock, and did a brisk business over the dividing fence. That evening a conference of ringmen and the honorary treasurer of the club, Mr. C. M.
Shaw, was held, with the result that an amicable arrangement was arrived at, and the strike was declared "off."

The "strike," however, served to impress on the members of the club and racing men generally the necessity for the legalization of the totalizator, and the question of its introduction is likely to become a live one at the coming elections, especially in the rural districts.

At the Police Court Henry Phillips was charged with endeavoring to impose upon Herbert Cripps Clarke at the Goulburn race course on May 11 by fraudulent representation, with a view to obtain money.

The evidence showed that Cripps Clarke and others backed Rydalmere with the defendant for the Werriwa Handicap. Rydalmere won, but the defendant simply returned the stakes, saying he would pay at the Imperial Hotel that evening. When he was laying odds on Rydalmere he had two or three pounds in his bag. His liabilities after the Werriwa Handicap were nearly forty pounds. He was not staying at the Imperial Hotel at the time he told people to meet him there.
The committee wanted him to leave with his money, but he would not do so. He would not contradict anyone who stated that he said he would pay when the numbers were up.

Sergt. McHardy said the reason defendant did not leave the ground was that there was a big crowd round him. It would have been unsafe.
Defendant was sentenced to a month's hard labor.

BRUCE STUART HOME.

Captain of Houghton Hockey Team Talks of International League.

Ottawa, June 13.—Bruce Stuart, one of the best hockey players ever turned out of Ottawa, is in the city from Houghton, Michigan, where he captain-ed the team of that place to victory in the International Hockey League last winter. Bruce is looking as dapper as ever and says he feels as if he had a hundred more years of hockey left in him.

Stuart played centre for Houghton last season, and it was due to his magnificent work toward the close of the schedule the team beat out Pittsburg and Canadian Soo. Bruce spends his summer months in the contracting business in Houghton, where he is in partnership with another business man and carrying on a lucrative trade. In fact, Bruce sports an automobile.

"We had a good team last winter and best of all our fellows pulled together. I will captain Houghton again next year and we are already busy getting our players together.
You can never start too early in that direction."

"I believe we play as fast, if not faster, hockey in the International than you E.C.H.L., or that Manitoba League. We had a game booked with Wanderers when they were in the west, but the Stanley Cup series was so delayed all our ice had gone before Wanderers could fix a date. I guess, however, we will have the chance this year and are now arranging a short tour of Eastern Canada prior to the opening of the league season next year. We will play a series with Wanderers and are anxious to get on a game with the Ottawas in this city."

HOW CHICAGO REPAID THE N. Y.
GIANTS.

Chicago, June 13.—Though vicious at times, the Chicago fan is ingenious, and here are some of the contrivances intended to annoy and irritate the Giants.

Huge yellow kite bearing the word "Mugger" and the form of a baseball player, supposed to be McGraw, attached to an aerial trapeze, performing all kinds of ludicrous contortions over the field.

Cocoanuts thrown at the Giants, on one side of which was a picture of Tinker covered with spikes.

Burlesque songs, with brass band accompaniment, entitled "Cheer Up, Mugger, Don't Be Sighing."

A flock of 19 yellow striped balloons set adrift to commemorate that memorable defeat of the Giants by Chicago at the Polo grounds last year by a score of 19 to 0. Immense fog horns that worked automatically and emitted doleful noises every time a Giant got on base.

Thousands of small yellow flags, bearing the word "Giants."

ORCHARD BROKE DOWN AND CRIED

Under Final, Fierce Onslaught of Defence Counsel

DAYS DRAMATIC INTENSITY

Effort to Convince Jury that Orchard was Falsely Wearing Away Lives of Innocent Men.

Boise, Idaho, June 13.—The lawyers who are fighting to save the life of Wm. D. Haywood and the good name of the Western Federation of Miners, traced their strongest assault upon the character and testimony of Harry Orchard to-day. Carrying the review by cross-examination of his life of crime down to his confession, they bitterly assailed his motives. They had spent several days in stripping him before the jury of every shred of morality, and then suddenly, in a final fierce attack, they strove with every means known to the legal calling to convince the jury that Orchard was committing a crime in falsely swearing away the lives of innocent men in the hope of saving his own.
They used the very language with which the witness answered their questions against him at the constantly and forcibly implied that it was put into his mouth by men controlling him.

This series of efforts to break down the witness' testimony gave to the trial to-day a degree of dramatic intensity, compelling human interest that gripped every man and woman who watched and listened. Orchard's endurance failed when they recited to him the story of David and Uriah, that Detective McPartland related to him when he came seeking a confession. He tried to keep them back, but tears fell from his eyes and he rocked unevenly like a fainting woman.
His voice fell to huskiness and he hid his face in a handkerchief. Then he steadied himself and went on strongly by saying that he became converted and penitent and resolved to make all possible reparation by freely confessing all. McPartland had told him that he was doing a great service for the State, and that States were kind to men who served them. There was no other promise.

"You knew that if you confessed to Steunenberg's murder the State would put you out of the way?" persisted Attorney Richardson.

"Yes, Sir."

"And would do it quickly?"

"I believed they would put me out of the way."

"But somewhere along the line the thought came to you that you could get out of it by laying it onto somebody else?"

"No, Sir; that was not the thought at all."

And here Orchard gave a remarkable explanation of the motives that impelled him to confess. His voice fell, but there was no other show of emotion. Silence by hearers gave every word to the entire room.

"I thought," he said, "of putting myself out of the way, but I put over my past life. I did not believe in a hereafter at all, but I was afraid to die and I thought at times that I had been such an unnatural monster —my crimes had been so great that I would not be forgiven."

"Who told you that?"

"No one."

"Who wrote that out for you?"

"No one, but after I had been sent a Bible and had read it some, I came to the conclusion that I would be forgiven if I made a confession of everything, and I made up my mind to tell the truth about the whole thing."

"So you thought you would make your peace with the future by making some one else hang?" asked Mr. Richardson.

"No, Sir. I think any man can make his peace with the future if he wants to. I believed it was my duty to tell the truth. I did not see any other way, regardless of the consequences to myself or anybody else. I owed it to society, I owed it to God and to myself."

The defense suggested that if Orchard did not get the references to his duty to society, God and himself directly from McPartland or any other person it was suggested to him by the oath he took when he joined the Western Federation of Miners. They read him the oath from the Ritual, but when they did so he expressed the belief that the language had been given to him by the Almighty.

For four hours the defense hammered at his reason for confessing. They sought to show it in the force of example drawn from the immunity of informers in the Mollie McGuire cases, but this the witness would not admit.

Next they sought for it in Orchard's effort to bring Steve Adams to the state and then in his subsequent talks with McPartland and Governor Gooding. Once again they emphasized that the witness twice wrote his testimony and that it was changed by McPartland, Attorney Hawley or anybody else.

After that it was hinted that Orchard placed his future in the keeping of McPartland, that the Pinkerton's went money to his family in Canada, that he had been supplied with dates to strengthen his story and that McPartland trained him as a stage manager would, for his appearance on the stand. But all this Orchard denied.

They then tried to show him a pamphlet, potted, hero-like prisoner, fed from the table of the warden, addressed "Harry" by Governor Gooding and Warden Whitney, given freedom and liberties that no other prisoner ever had, all this consideration implying that he would never be hanged for killing Steunenberg. Then came questions as to how the prisoner had been dressed and groomed for the trial. And last, for a climax, they showed Orchard pleading for and saving the life of Bob Wetter, condemned to death for murder. Orchard admitted that he had appealed to Governor Gooding about Wetter and that later Gooding first reprieved Wetter and then commuted his sentence of death to life imprisonment.

Orchard left the stand at 2.30 o'clock after having occupied it for three hours and a half. Just before he was excused and remanded, the prosecution had him identify the casing of the bomb he planted at the gate of Judge Goddard's house in Boise.

Orchard is to return to the witness chair later because the defence must lay the formal lines for impeach-ing him and the state must still have its re-direct examination.

Immediately Orchard left the stand the state began the corroboration of his testimony about trying to poison Bradley Home, the milk man who sold the milk that was poisoned, and P. L.
McCarthy, the chemist who analyzed the poisoned milk, carried the revolting tale from the discovery, because of its bitterness, that the milk was poisoned, to the analysis, which showed from forty to sixty grains of strychnine in a quart of it. Mrs. J. Swan identified Orchard and connected him with the house. They all confirmed the date as within three or four days of the explosion, and Mrs. Swan swore that she opened the front door to get the morning paper a few minutes before the explosion and saw nothing on the steps. There will be further testimony as to the Bradley incident to-morrow.
