CONSTITUTIONAL CONFERENCE

Quebec: Too much at stake to end in failure

PREMIER BOURASSA

QUEBEC (CP) — With one week left before the federal-provincial constitutional conference opens in Victoria, reliable sources in Quebec and Ottawa indicated Monday that the two governments would not permit the talks to end in failure.

One highly-placed source in Quebec City said there are too many interests involved for either side to permit itself not to understand the other.

A source close to Premier Robert Bourassa said the premier was "neither optimistic, nor pessimistic, but realistic" about the outcome of the constitutional conference.

Federal and provincial sources have confirmed that Quebec is proposing an amendment to article 94A of the British North America Act which would give provinces "absolute legislative preponderance in the wide area defined by Quebec as social policy."

A federal source said: "By this same proposed amendment Quebec, nevertheless, wants to assure that federal participation in programs of support and income security would not be lost."

GIVES JURISDICTION

Article 94A entitles the federal government to legislate in areas of old age security pensions and additional allowances, including those for surviving dependents and invalids regardless of their age. The article adds:

"No federal law based on this article should interfere with the application of any present or future provincial legislation in these areas."

It has been indicated that the current interpretation of this article gives the major role to the provinces in matters of social policy.

Quebec includes, however, many other areas in what it terms social policy. Some of these areas are family allowances, social welfare, manpower training and unemployment insurance.

In a recent interview, Claude Castonguay, Quebec social affairs minister, said that it was not too important to know which of the two levels of government administer programs of social policy.

"If it's a question of finding out who sends the cheques, it's not too significant," he said. Quebec was insisting, however, on "the priority of conception" of social policy measures.

An element of agreement between federal and provincial points of view could well lie in a constitutional amendment which establishes the obligation for close consultation between the two levels of government on all matters of social policy, one federal official said.

ANNOUNCES AGENDA

Prime Minister Trudeau announced in the Commons Monday the agenda for the Victoria conference to be held June 14-15.

Discussions will involve five main topics—the constitution, social policy, conference opening procedures, other matters and the closing procedure for the conference.

An authorized Quebec government spokesman said that the "constitution" topic includes several matters already discussed at previous meetings of the permanent constitutional conference, started in 1968.

These include a formula to patriate and amend the constitution, a constitutional declaration of human rights, constitutional guarantees granted to the English and French languages across Canada, a reform of the Supreme Court and reform of the Senate.

As far as social policy is concerned, the sources indicated that it is a question which affects the minimum welfare of every citizen of Canada. For this reason no government can block negotiations on the sharing of powers in this area simply because of government pride.

With their eye on the Victoria conference, Liberal members of the Quebec national assembly will hold three or four caucuses this week to formulate their point of view on the attitude Premier Bourassa and his delegation should take next week in Victoria.

In old age pension field

Proposed amendment to be thrashed out

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposed amendment to the federal government's constitutional powers in the field of old age pensions will be one of the topics at the Victoria federal-provincial conference, Prime Minister Trudeau said today.

He told the Commons that an amendment proposed by one province is being considered by the federal government and the other provinces.

Despite opposition questions, he declined to name the province which proposed the amendment or to give details on the amendment.

Tax burden may shift to wealthy

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP) — The federal government's anti-inflation policies created unemployment but were aimed at a more widespread problem, Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said Sunday.

He told the Laurentian regional council of the federal Liberal party that "inflation affects everyone while unemployment affects only a minority."

Mr. Goyer said that the rate of unemployment 10 years ago was 4.5 per cent but now a rate of 5.5 per cent should be acceptable.

The solicitor-general told the meeting the next federal budget will have the two fundamental objectives of "taxing the richest people more and removing the possibility of profiting from weaknesses in the law by use of accountants or other specialists."

There will be no tax increases for 600,000 taxpayers, he said. Provisions dealing with expense accounts in the federal white paper on tax reform might be modified.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Mr. Goyer said "he didn't make any predictions as to the budget," to be presented by Finance Minister Edgar Benson June 18.

If the government followed the same line of thought in its tax bill as it did in its tax white paper, the tax burden would shift to the wealthy.

But the white paper "would not necessarily be presented as such" in the budget.

Provisions of the white paper such as those dealing with expense accounts "could be changed."

beyond saying it would change Section 94 of the British North America Act.

Section 94 permits the federal Parliament to make laws on old age pensions but also states that no federal law shall affect the operation of a provincial law in that field.

The conference, to be held June 14-16, is to discuss constitutional matters primarily.

Opposition spokesmen, evidently assuming the amendment was proposed by the government of Quebec, asked the government to restate its position on federal-provincial jurisdiction in the field of income support and social services.

Mr. Trudeau said he will repeat at the conference federal objections to any proposals that would prevent the federal government using money from the wealthier provinces to aid the poorer ones.

But, in response to a question from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, Mr. Trudeau declined to say specifically whether the federal government will oppose the proposed amendment.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the government would oppose the change to Section 94 and would take the same position it did in its white paper on income security.

Mr. Trudeau said yes to the second part of the question, but said only that the possibility of approving the amendment would be discussed at the conference.

He said the amendment had been circulated among provincial governments two months ago but none has yet indicated agreement with it.

The prime minister said he could give the House neither the text nor the substance of the proposed amendment because of an agreement that all conference papers are to be confidential.

He assured New Democrat Leader David Lewis that any agreement reached at the conference would be submitted to Parliament.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, noting that Prime Minister Trudeau and Quebec Premier Bourassa met Sunday, asked whether Section 94a was discussed at the meeting and whether any additional power granted to Quebec would also be granted to other provinces.

Mr. Trudeau said he did not want to give details of the discussion but if an amendment was passed the federal government's stand would be that all provinces should be on an equal footing.

The difficulty with the proposed amendment, he said, lies in the federal government's feeling that certain federal powers are necessary to redistribute wealth. Federal policy, as stated in the December white paper on income security, was that it was in the national interest that the federal government maintain some jurisdiction in that field.

Cholera deaths may have reached 10,000

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian government said Monday that malnutrition, as well as cholera, is taking a heavy toll of lives among the more than 4.7 million East Pakistani war refugees in eastern India.

Health Minister Uma Shanker Dixit told Parliament that a majority of the refugees were "arriving in a condition of exhaustion caused by malnutrition."

He said "it appears" the refugees had also brought the cholera germs with them from across the border.

Dixit said he could give no detailed statement of deaths attributed to all causes but said 1,250 persons had died of cholera as of Friday and there were 9,500 confirmed cases of the disease.

Dixit's figures contradicted a statement issued Saturday by his health ministry saying that 2,000 persons had died of cholera as of last Thursday.

Health officials in the cholera-affected areas around Calcutta have said the death toll has reached at least 4,000.

Unofficial sources in touch with the refugees camps claim 10,000 have died from the disease.

Dixit said various international relief agencies have been approached to help supply medicines, such as vaccines and saline water used to treat the disease.

Dixit rejected suggestions from some members that the Pakistani government had unleashed "germ warfare" and was purposely polluting rivers and wells near the border areas to spread cholera.

But in the upper house of Parliament, Dixit's deputy, D. P. Chattopadhyaya, said Pakistani authorities were throwing the bodies of cholera victims into rivers near the border, bringing symptoms of the disease to "our side."

He said about half the refugees had been inoculated against cholera. But he added that there was a shortage of saline water.

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Egg producers to protest

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 500 Quebec egg producers will demonstrate before the national assembly in Quebec City Wednesday to protest the provincially-operated marketing agency's slowness in marketing their eggs, a spokesman said Monday.

Raymond Laliberte, president of the Professional Egg Producers Association, said the marchers, who account for more than 50 per cent of the province's egg output, are angered with FEDCO's slowness in grading and marketing their eggs to supermarkets and stores.

He said the farmers are not opposed to FEDCO seizing eggs from other provinces as was done last week, but they wanted to be able to grade their own eggs before selling them to the agency.

FEDCO was created by the provincial government to control egg sales in the province and all Quebec egg producers have to sell their eggs to the agency, which then grades and markets them.

Forest fire danger high

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec lands and forests department said Monday the danger of forest fires was high throughout the province with one fire burning out of control in the Lake St. John region.

The department said there were 25 forest fires burning in the province over an area of 19,640 acres.

The only fire out of control was at Lac Albanel, about 160 miles north of Quebec City. Another blaze at Lac Chibougamau, about 300 miles north of Montreal, was brought under control Monday.

The department said there had been 419 forest fires to date this year in the province, compared with 279 at the same time last year.

Requests medical supplies

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, currently doing missionary work in Africa, has requested that medical supplies be sent to aid East Pakistani cholera victims. Such supplies would be provided by an organization set up to aid him in his work with lepers.

Andre Verret, executive director of Cardinal Leger and his Endeavors Inc., said Monday the organization will send $35,000 worth of medical supplies to the refugees flooding into India in the wake of the civil war in Pakistan.

Mr. Verret said he spoke to Cardinal Leger by shortwave radio Sunday. The Cardinal, working with the sick and poor in Cameroon, had heard of the cholera outbreak in the Calcutta area.

Cardinal Leger is former Roman Catholic archbishop of Montreal.

Council, police brotherhood reach compromise

By DAVID MAGIL

SHERBROOKE — City council and the Sherbrooke Policemen's Brotherhood kissed and made up last night.

Both sides seemed pleased with the recommendations made by a tri-partite study commission appointed May 19 to look into conditions at police headquarters on Marquette Street.

The study commission came up with six recommendations, all of which were accepted by council.

1. The police force will be allowed to use the basement of St-Patrick's School during the 1971-72 term. Renovations to the basement will be of a permanent basis.

2. Police force members will be able to use St-Pat's gymnasium during off-school hours.

3. The city will sign a letter of intent promising conversion of the whole school into new police headquarters beginning July 1, 1972.

4. Patrol cars will be able to park, when convenient, in the teachers parking lot at the school during the 1971-72 term.

5. The Estrie Regional School Board will be responsible for the upkeep of the school until July 1, 1971.

6. The existing police headquarters will undergo a touchup to make it more bearable for force members during the next year.

The six recommendations are a compromise between the original positions of police and council. Both sides seemed pleased but not ecstatic with the recommendations.

Counc. Romeo Quintal, who chaired the study commission, was the most enthusiastic of all. He thanked everybody except his mother and termed the recommendations "a compromise solution which we arrived at by looking at the problem in a sincere and positive way."

Sherbrooke Policemen's Brotherhood president Marc Chatelet was more reserved than Mr. Quintal.

"At the beginning we took a hard-line position but the attitude shown by city council's representatives (Councillors Quintal, Tony Pinard and Carl Camirand) convinced us to compromise," Mr. Chatelet said.

"We must admit that, over the years, council has been the first and foremost to try and improve the problem of our headquarters," the brotherhood president added.

The agreement by both sides to the study commission's recommendations last night marked the temporary end of a dispute which had been simmering for 27 years.

CAME TO A HEAD MAY 18

The dispute came to a head May 18 after council voted to rent St. Patrick's School to the Estrie Regional School Board for the 1971-72 term. Council had earlier committed itself to convert the school into new police headquarters beginning July 1, 1971.

Confronted with what they considered to be a unilateral and arbitrary move on the part of the city fathers, the policemen decided to take drastic action.

Force members boycotted the Marquette Street headquarters they referred to as "filthy and uninhabitable" and set up shop in a trailer parked outside.

The brotherhood also gave council 24 hours to find a solution to the problem which they claimed had "dragged on for 27 years."

Council acceded to the latter demand and called an emergency meeting May 19.

Both sides stated their cases forcefully at that meeting and the tripartite study commission was born.

The commission included three representatives from council, three representatives from the brotherhood, one representative from the St. Patrick School parents' association and two taxpayers.

The commission met three times before it arrived at its compromise recommendations, Counc. Quintal told last night's meeting.

SEEMED MILES APART

Council and the brotherhood seemed to be miles apart at the time of the emergency meeting May 19.

Mayor Marc Bureau told the meeting council had to take many points into consideration when deciding whether or not to postpone conversion of the school into new police headquarters.

Among the determining factors affecting council's decision, the mayor said, were the lack of acceptable alternative facilities for the 457 students then attending St. Pat's and the $50,000 accruing to the city from the additional year's rental to the school board.

Mr. Bureau contended the added monies would enable council to do a more effective job of converting the school into police headquarters.

The mayor revealed only $60,000 had been budgeted for the conversion and said recent revised estimates showed the actual cost to be in the region of $100,000.

A police spokesman at the May 19 meeting warned council that if no solution to the existing problem were to be found, police would once again boycott headquarters and would also petition the Quebec Police Commission to launch a public inquiry into the condition of the Marquette Street station.

The spokesman pointed out Sherbrooke's Police Force had been housed in the same quarters for 27 years. He added a one-man study of the police force in 1967 by Montreal police inspector Adolphe Tremblay suggested the police headquarters be modernized.

As a result of that study council bought St. Patrick's School from the Sherbrooke Catholic School Commission in 1970 and committed itself to begin converting the school to a new police station in July 1971, the spokesman continued.

He said the police were protesting not for the sake of protesting but rather because they felt they had a legitimate grievance which could be easily remedied.

"We have waited long enough," he concluded. And the Sherbrooke police will wait a bit longer before they are comfortably installed in their new Belvedere Street headquarters.

Simple life is often best medicine

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 71 years old and taken for 50. My hair is not gray and there is plenty of it. I don't go to the doctor for a medical checkup or take any pills, but live the simple life. My 88-year-old father-in-law has been with us for several months. He had a hard life and he and his wife fought like two tom cats with their tails tied together and thrown across a wash line. When he came he had so much medicine that his dresser looked like a drug store. The first thing I told him was to throw all those pills away.

I have never seen a man eat like this one. He amazes me. He eats twice as much as I do. He sits out in the sun every day and you should see his tan. I told him to start walking around for exercise. He went right from HELL to HEAVEN and no one knows it better than he. Before he came it he got a bath once a year he was lucky, scared to get into the tub. He loves the shower. The pants he had on would have stood up by themselves. He is a different man. Frankly he will probably outlive me. I am under the tension of having him under my feet 24 hours a day.

On the way down to Florida I stopped at two nursing homes and saw some relatives and friends. How pathetic. Sitting and waiting and paying $100 a week. What's the answer?

Now this is for your own information. I sure as hell am not looking for anything including a doctor. If I go, there won't be much gone. I have no illusions about this hereafter junk. I will be just like the mules I used to drag out in the fields. I will be put under and nine chances out of 10 go back to the earth—period.

good one, but the spade finesse is wrong and there is no play for four spades if a heart or club is opened.

When the hand was played in a rubber bridge game in Fort Worth, Texas, the bidding went just this way. West made his normal opening lead of the jack of diamonds.

South won in dummy and studied the hand for some time. He intended to try for a club discard on the third high diamond, but he wondered if he shouldn't play the ace of trumps first. It was just possible that this play might catch a singleton king of trumps or find king-small of trumps or a small singleton in a hand with just two diamonds. It would cost him a trick if the diamonds went three times and the trump finesse was on.

South decided to cash that ace of trumps and it was well that he did so. East did hold a singleton trump and only two diamonds so that without the trump play he would have been able to ruff the third diamond and keep South from getting a club discard.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19)—Even though you're tempted to snoot about always say what you think.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—But your foot down instead of drifting along with present situation. It's time to stretch things out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Be careful about putting your trust in persons who are too self-interested. You'll be the loser every time.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—You have nothing to gain by stubbornness, so know when to give in and when to persist.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Prepare for the future—it will be the present much sooner than you think. Be optimistic.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Bid yourself of a romantic notion about an unobtainable acquaintance. Get out and meet new people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Be alert to what is expected of you and try to comply with reasonable requests (that ignore unreasonable ones).

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—The element of the unexpected keeps you on your toes and excited. Just the kind of day you relish.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Is your darndest to avoid conflict at home and on the job, but it won't be easy under today's negative rays.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—A pleasant day but not a particularly exciting one. You'll get a lot of trivial matters cleared up finally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—It is not beyond the realm of possibility that you'll make an important move of some sort in the near future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—Avoid those who plot you but don't be suspicious of everyone. Secret agreements work out, but avoid "leaks."

NEW STANDS FOR LOTO-QUEBEC — At a press conference Monday afternoon, Loto-Quebec announced the design of new stands which will be placed throughout the city during the summer months. Wellington St., Victoria Zoo and other sites were mentioned. City council gave permission to install the stands which are the first of its kind in Quebec. Now in agreement with proposals, mayor says

LENNOXVILLE (WC) — After a strenuous session with principles laid out in the Tesser White Paper on municipal regroupment, Lennoxville Mayor Cecil Dougherty is now in agreement with some of the paper's proposals.

"I had to object like hell to get the paper modified but now it's down to earth," the mayor told the monthly meeting of the Town Council last night.

He pointed out that the town wanted to retain its identity; that it wanted to conserve the things the council had worked for.

"We will still be able to do this. The areas where the White Paper's ideas will be most useful will be in pollution, sewage, town planning and police work," he said.

Council will be up early this morning to inspect possibilities of installing sewage and water services to the P. L. Lunch and the Marquis Motel. Normand Bolduc, proprietor of the motel, approached council last night to install the services on the northern area of Queen Street. The CNR is pushing Mr. Bolduc to correct the stagnated area.

Council decided to meet at the site this morning at 8 a.m. to examine the area.

A petition signed by ten Lennoxville residents was presented to council last night. Harold Nutbrown, H. O. Blunt, E. Raverst, D. W. Johnson, Gerry McKinley, G. Raverst, R. E. Blake, L. Taylor, J. Hadley and Harold Turner noted the deplorable condition of the property at 6 Academy Street, filled with "old cars and junk."

Council will give the property owners 15 days to clean up the mess. If not cleaned up, a fine of $40 a day will be assessed. Council passed a motion to accept the full responsibility of the Centennial Wading Pool as soon as it is completed by the Optimist Club. Expenses which the town will incur are cost of a life-guard and the maintenance of the pool. Estimated cost is $800 yearly.

Council received a letter from the Township of Ascot accepting Lennoxville's proposed annexation of part of their territory.

Council refused a request from Raymond Carrier for an extra taxi permit. Council believes that there are already enough taxi cabs in Lennoxville.

Mr. Carrier's request will be held on file and if the need for more livery taxi service arises, his will be the first to be considered.

Council received a request from two chimney cleaning firms to have sole rights in Lennoxville. Since Council has

Red Cross donors awarded

SHERBROOKE (WC) — The final touches of the Sherbrooke Chapter Red Cross Blood Clinic held May 17-20 in the basement of the Sherbrooke Cathedral were added Monday afternoon at local Red Cross headquarters on King St. West.

Trophies were awarded to the different groups that had the most members give blood.

When all the figures were tabulated 1,770 people contributed to the blood clinic.

The special trophy to the industry which had the most employees donate blood went to the City of Sherbrooke. The city won the trophy for the seventh time; 79 donors showed up. The Public Works department totalled 39 of the 79 donors.

The trophy for high schools went to St. Francois High School. There were 30 donors out of 85 eligible students in the school of 35 per cent of the possible donors.

The class B trophy for industries with 50 to 150 employees was won for the 12th time by S. W. Hooper Ltd. Of 65 employees, 15 gave blood for a 23 per cent average.

The Sherbrooke Seminary won the trophy awarded to the private school that had the most number of donors. Thirty-seven students out of a possible 170 gave blood.

The next blood clinic in Sherbrooke will be held November 14 at the Belvedere Street Armory. Other clinics are scheduled to take place Nov. 5 at the St. Vincent-de-Paul Hospital, Sherbrooke CEGEP on Nov. 16 and at the University of Sherbrooke on Nov. 18.

Council report

SHERBROOKE (DM) — There are "unCatholic" activities going on in broad daylight in city parks, Counc. Romeo Bergeron told council last night.

The South Ward councillor revealed many residents living near Racine Park have phoned him to complain about the goings-on.

Mr. Bergeron called for increased surveillance by police at the park. He refused to define what the "unCatholic" activities were at the meeting but later explained people are drinking beer in the park at all hours of the day.

Mr. Bergeron's demand for increased surveillance was seconded by councillors Tony Pinard and Carl Camirand but was met with a gentle rebuke from Mayor Marc Bureau.

"I did the same thing when I was a bit younger," the mayor revealed.

Mr. Bureau advised the three councillors to notify police director Edouard Moreau if they felt the situation was getting out of hand.

Council spent a while talking about noise pollution last night. West Ward Counc. Tony Pinard had a complaint from a number of residents within his area. They objected to the fact that employees were beginning work at 5 a.m. in a very noisy fashion in a residential district.

City manager Richard Fabi suggested to council that the noise problem be dumped in the lap of the city's legal department.

Mayor Marc Bureau told council noise pollution is a problem afflicting many major cities and added solutions are being sought.

The discussion seemed to be going nowhere until Counc. Romeo Quintal jumped into the fray.

Counc. Quintal told the meeting the city's early-morning work policy is no different from that of any other big city. Work is done early in the day, Mr. Quintal explained, so as to leave city streets free for traffic during normal business hours.

As for the particular case brought up by Mr. Camirand, Mr. Quintal revealed he had looked into the matter and had found the excessive amount of noise was caused by a malfunctioning piece of machinery.

"It's an unavoidable event which occurs once or twice a year," he said.

In spite of Mr. Quintal's claim that everything is all right, council finally mandated the city's legal department to see if any improvements can be made to Sherbrooke's existing anti-noise by-laws.

Notre-Dame-de-Rosaire Park will be operable this summer thanks to an impassioned plea to his fellow councillors by Counc. Roger Gingues last night.

The West Ward Park, which fell to the city's austerity ax last November, will be maintained by the city during the summer months.

Counc. Gingues reminded his colleagues that the Omnisport organization is presently taking an inventory of the city's recreational facilities and suggested there is a possibility Omnisport will recommend the park be used again.

Mr. Gingues suggested the cost of re-converting Notre-Dame-de-Rosaire into a functional park will be prohibitive if the park is allowed to be unused this summer.

As a result of the West Ward representative's remarks, council voted to maintain the park in good condition until Omnisport's study is completed.

Council turned down a request from the Pioneer Scouts to use the basement of fire station number 2 on Prospect Street. Municipal Manager Richard Fabi informed council that the firemen need the space.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce's information kiosk, which at the moment is smack dab right in the middle of the King Street West interchange, will be re-located on King West near the Elite Restaurant.

CITY HALL MARKS—Counc. Romeo Quintal will take ex-councillor Luc Lamoureux's place on the committee responsible for conversion of St. Patrick's School into new police headquarters. Three councillors were nominated last night to sit on consultative committees to the Regional Development Council. Counc. Roger Gingues will sit on the industry committee and Counc. Romeo Bergeron on the regional territory committee and Counc. Romeo Bergeron on the tourism committee. The hiring of an industrial relations agent was again postponed last night. Counc. O'Bready told council the great number of applications necessitated a further delay.

Plans unveiled for unique French-language CEGEP

MONTREAL — Plans were unveiled Friday for a new French-language CEGEP where students will be encouraged to learn on their own and at their own speed.

Education Minister Guy St-Pierre told a press conference that the college, the first of its kind in Canada, will be used as a pilot project for reform in all of Quebec's educational institutions.

Called Montmorency College, the new CEGEP will feature the latest in audio-visual techniques. It will de-emphasize the lecture and encourage student initiative in the learning process, St-Pierre said.

The $15,000,000 college will be located in Chomedey-Laval, and will begin admitting students in Sept. 1973. Administrators expect enrollment to reach 4,000.

Minister St-Pierre called the CEGEP a "library-college" and said it had been patterned after a number already in existence in the United States.

Students at the institution will spend only about 20 per cent of their time in lectures, with the rest devoted to personal projects, study and research.

St-Pierre said that this flexibility would allow students to participate more actively in their own learning process, and at their own speed.

PERSONALIZATION
"It is an attempt to personalize the educational environment" so that students can have more independent contact with their teachers, the minister said.

The concept of a library-college is to provide an institution where materials such as books, resource personnel, and audio-visual apparatus are available to the student.

The student is expected to take the initiative in learning with whatever help the library-college can provide him.

NO GRADES
He can work individually on a project or as part of a group, and can utilize any of the laboratories, seminar rooms and other facilities available. Students will be evaluated periodically by professors familiar with their work.

The key to the whole system is flexibility, St-Pierre said, so that the students and the administrators can best meet each other's changing needs.

Administrators hope to set up a direct telephone system to the college so that the institution can be of educational service to the people of Laval as well as the students.

would like to take this opportunity to invite all registered dog owners to join with them in making this show, the first since 1928, a huge success, by entering their dogs in this contest and allowing the public to admire the high calibre dogs here in the ET.

Dr. Papageorges and Mr. Farrar, representing the Centre Hospitalier Universitaire, both have a definite interest in the medicine of the sports world, which they see as a special field of their own.

Tragic reminder

Violent death stalked the Eastern Townships and the rest of Canada over the past weekend.

The toll of those killed and the number of friends and relatives who are now bereaved casts a pall over the gloriously fine weather we have been experiencing and serves as a sombre reminder of the dangers of the summer holiday season.

It is brutally ironic that one of the best weekends of the year from the point of view of weather should produce such a devastating series of accidental deaths. At the same time, however, the coincidence is understandable.

The opportunity to take advantage of the beautiful weekend weather after as hard and long a winter as we have passed through contributed greatly to the sense of abandon which many must have felt.

For many the warning comes too late, but others should take heed now and endeavour to take extra care from now until the end of the summer, when our roads and highways are crowded with vacationers, both of the week-long and weekend variety.

The message of the past weekend is clear. Death takes no holiday.

Trouble in paradise

The good life in Sweden is not so much of a good life after all. This is the irrefutable conclusion which must be drawn from our recent series of articles by Tom Green, editor of The Winnipeg Tribune. Sweden has long been held up as the supreme example of a Socialist system that really does work — a country where the population is prosperous and happy and where labor-management relations are ideal.

Now, it appears, the Swedish bubble has burst. The country is no more immune to labor strife than any other nation. The image of a contented people is largely illusory.

The problems in Sweden no doubt come as a rude shock to Socialists elsewhere. The NDP government of Manitoba, for example, has been striving to model itself after the Swedish system. Now it should be having second thoughts.

In exchange for cradle-to-the-grave security, the Swedish people have paid a heavy price. They pay the highest taxes of any industrialized nation — 41 per cent of the Gross National Product. Inflation is rampant — 50 cents for a loaf of bread, more than a dollar for a can of fruit juice.

The Socialist government may claim impressive security benefits for all, but that doesn't alter the fact that the Swedish people, not surprisingly, crave the additional pleasure of having a little money left in the pocket.

Furthermore, another sacred piece of Socialist dogma, equality for all, is taking a buffeting. The government is learning, to its chagrin, that its citizens may pay lip-service to the concept, but become notably hostile if their wallets become affected. Not surprisingly, Premier Palme's efforts to hold down the salaries of professional workers while increasing those of blue-collar workers have significantly contributed to labor strife in Sweden.

It was always a myth that Socialism constituted perfection. Even a government which espouses so-called democratic Socialism can't attain its objectives without regimentation and a suppression of individual initiative, incentive and ambition. The warts and blemishes were bound to show up in Sweden eventually. They have finally done so, with a vengeance. All this bares the essential flaw of any Socialist system — its failure to understand people and to acknowledge the vagaries of human nature.

Trudeau baffles the Opposition

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — Digging for motives and implications of the Prime Minister's Russian policy, opposition MPs are laboring under a cluster of severe handicaps.

They have to formulate their questions and criticism of the PM's performance in the Soviet Union so as not to create the impression of opposing or deploring what Mr. Trudeau portrays as a major breakthrough in detente efforts. This puts them in a defensive and apologetic position which is complicated by fear of misrepresentation of arguments based on the record of Soviet perfidy and brutality as "Red-baiting."

To mount an effective attack from such a defensive and apologetic position requires skills the opposition MPs do not possess. They lack the intellectual sophistication and the self-assured smoothness of Mr. Trudeau's style. They also, with one or two exceptions, do not have a sure-footed grounding in international affairs and their homework on specific issues leaves much to be desired.

Faced with the dexterity of a mind steeped in dialectical sophistry they are babes in woods full of ideological and semantic poison ivy.

All the Prime Minister has to do in these circumstances is to goad his critics into verbal traps and then watch the anger of their helplessness, bewilderment with a smirk of condescending superiority on his face.

For example, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield rose the other day to ask whether the Government was unilaterally departing from the detente course charted collectively, with Canada's concurrence, by the North Atlantic Alliance.

It was an important and well-founded question, for the NATO objections to the so-called Brezhnev doctrine of "limited sovereignty" which the Kremlin used to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia, and the insistence on a satisfactory Berlin settlement as the basis for further detente steps, were not mentioned in the documents Mr. Trudeau signed in Moscow.

The PM said the Brezhnev doctrine was not discussed. This left Stanfield speechless. When he recovered from his astonishment that this central detente issue was not even mentioned in Trudeau's talks with Brezhnev and Kosygin, he came back with supplementary questions. But by that time he was so agitated by the enormity of such an omission that he mixed up the Moscow protocol and the final communique and sounded virtually incoherent.

Sample: "May I ask the Prime Minister whether, in view of the declaration, which differed significantly from the NATO declaration in that it made no reference to the so-called Brezhnev doctrine, am I to understand that he agreed to this declaration without any discussion with the Soviet Government as to whether it was precluding itself from invoking the so-called Brezhnev doctrine when it made a declaration assuring the territorial integrity and inviolability of frontiers? Did the Prime Minister agree to such a declaration differing from the NATO declaration without inquiring as to what it meant?"

At this point The Speaker intervened and gave the floor to the Prime Minister.

Mr. Trudeau (mockingly apologetic innocence in his voice): "I have not heard the question, Mr. Speaker. The leader of the opposition was just going to ask it."

Pandemonium in the House and a flustered Stanfield trying to repeat his question, getting more entangled in the jungle of "declarations" and finally snapping in frustration: "Mr. Speaker, it is all very well for those people opposite to joke about something they do not understand."

Hilarious laughter on the Government side of the House, cries of "shame" from the Tories, and Energy Minister Joe Greene shouting across the aisle: "What did you say, Bob?"

Mr. Stanfield: "Mr. Speaker, what I am saying is that the Prime Minister is refusing to answer my question."

Bedlam in the House, the exhilarated Grits mocking the fuming Tories, The Speaker calling for order, the public galleries having fun...

Order restored, Mr. Trudeau (in his what's — the use-of-talking-to-a-bunch-of-blockheads-tone): "The protocol I signed speaks for itself. There is no reference in there to the Brezhnev doctrine. I did not feel it would be a very sensible venture on my part to go into this matter. We signed a protocol for continued agreement. We signed a protocol which both sides hope will lead to a de-escalation of the arms race in Europe. I did not go into all the past doctrines and practices of the Soviet Government and they did not ask Canada to justify its past ventures..."

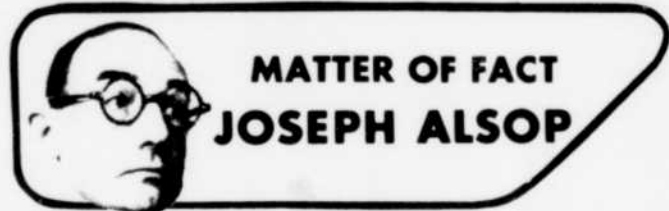

What past Canadian ventures? What was the Prime Minister implying? Was it yet another of his recent attempts to make it appear as if there was not much difference between Soviet totalitarianism and Canadian democracy? Was he saying that Soviet domestic and international crimes had a Canadian equivalent?

No one interrupted him to ask, to pin him down to specifics. When the question was raised later, Mr. Trudeau ignored it and had no difficulty getting away with it. And he knows that the disoriented, pitifully ineffective probe of what he is doing with Canada's foreign and defence policy will soon peter out, and that the majority of Canadians probably don't give a damn anyway.

If that proves to be the case and Mr. Trudeau wins another election, Canada may find itself sliding under the wing of the Brezhnev doctrine with a system of government comparable to Soviet "federalism" in a not too distant future.

"Oh, Mr. Trudeau! I'm just dying to see the part where you were taken for a ride..."

WASHINGTON — It is an astonishing thing for a great nation to risk its future on the particular meaning of the absence from a photograph of sheds of a particular shape. But that, as briefly stated in the last report in this space, is just what the United States is now doing, at least in part.

Hence the subject is worth pursuing, particularly in view of the dubious encouragement may have drawn from the alleged "important progress" in the SALT talks. For the point is that if the absence of those sheds is being misinterpreted, the nuclear-strategic balance between this country and the Soviet Union is very much worse than is generally supposed.

The story starts long ago, with the Soviets beginning deployment of their SA-5 or Tallinn missiles. As the designation SA-5 reveals, the Tallinns were then officially classed with the series of extremely efficient Soviet anti-aircraft missiles. They still have this classification, too.

There are several things to be said about this classification. The Tallinns are very large and thus very expensive. They can reach altitudes well above the earth's atmosphere, where airplanes do not operate. The 1,200 Tallinn launchers are further deployed in a pattern that all but duplicates the pattern of the even denser deployment of undoubted AA missiles, like the SA-2s. And incoming missile warheads, slowed by their descent, are rather easier to hit than incoming airplanes.

From the first, therefore, there was a question whether the Tallinns did not constitute an ABM system masquerading as an AA system. The government analysts were deeply divided as usual. Those who fought for the AA classification at first took the position that the Tallinns could not have an ABM role, since the necessary guidance radars were lacking.

This first line of defence soon had to be abandoned, however, because the Soviets began deployment of their enormous Henhouse and Doghouse radars. Since these are relatively vulnerable, incidentally, they are now being supplemented with very much newer, far more advanced radars, which are near-maneuverable.

When the first line of defence fell, the next argument was that the Tallinns could not be ABMs because the Soviets could not possibly have the advanced computers needed to marry the big radars to the Tallinn system. For unknown reasons, however, this second line of defence also had to be abandoned; and so we came to those sheds above-mentioned.

The absent sheds are the third line of defence, because the Tallinns can hardly be concealed ABMs, unless they have nuclear warheads. The Soviets have always stored nuclear warheads in a recognizable manner. And the right storage sheds are missing from the Tallinn system — although, to be sure, the Tallinns would certainly carry nuclear warheads quite different from all the other, very much large Soviet nuclear missiles.

There you have the facts. There are three things to be said about them. In the first place, a rear-guard action against the facts is plain in the long fight to maintain the Tallinn's classification as an anti-aircraft missile. And such actions are always warning signals in our strange American bureaucracy.

In the second place, if the Tallinns happen to be ABMs instead of anti-aircraft missiles, the alleged American strategic concept of assured destruction will have another huge hole knocked in it. For the Tallinns, if ABMs, will then have a damage-limiting capability sufficient for fatal reduction of our "assured destruction," if the Soviets succeed in their current drive to gain the power to strike first.

In the third place, then, we have here another case of playing Russian roulette with the national future on an enormous scale. No American in or out of government, including the embattled analysts on both sides of the "SAM-upgrading" controversy, can tell for sure whether the Tallinns are anti-aircraft missiles or ABMs. But suppose there is even one chance in six that the Tallinns are ABMs. Then basing all national plans on the opposite assumption is still precisely like Russian roulette.

This is why it is idiotic to say, as it is now fashionable to say, that "we cannot always take the worst case." If the whole national future is at stake, and there are also very reasonable arguments for the worst case, it is always Russian roulette to do anything but take the worst case.

For these are life-and-death matters for the Republic. And so they can remain, except in the unlikely event that the SALT talks produce an ironclad agreement on offensive-defensive arms limitation.

Dear Sir:
I would like very much to have the following published in your Readers Forum. It was sent to the CBC Director Feb. 4.

The Director,
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation,
P.O. Box 500, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir:
I would like to add my voice to the complaints which must be pouring in to your office regarding the presentation on Wednesday, January 27, of the CBC's version of The True Story of the Megantic Outlaw.

When I was attending boarding school, in the days before World War I, one of the boarders came from Lake Megantic, and his version was one of the favorite tales told after "lights-out."

The first time I came home for a weekend, I asked my father about Morrison. He said, "The story your friend told was quite true, and furthermore, your grandfather was selected for jury duty on the case and he refused to act. His reason, which is still on record, was: 'Gentlemen, I cannot act as juror, as my sympathies are entirely with Donald Morrison.'"

My grandfather was H.E. Bieber, of Willowdale Farm, Lennoxville, and he had not been in Canada ten years when the events in what were known as "The Morrison Case" took place.

I have seen blue movies at smokers, but I have not seen anything to equal The True Story of the Megantic Outlaw, the obscene language, the near nude scenes, and all that goes with this production is an absolute disgrace, and most certainly does nothing to portray the mode of life amongst the Scottish settlers of Megantic County. The way the whole story is twisted to provide a cheap, nasty, sexy, dirty and sensational tissue of lies is truly disgraceful.

Not only is the CBC traducing our early Scotch settlers, but the tax-payers are paying out good money for the production of this filth, as I am told that this effort was not produced without considerable expense.

If the CBS turn their hand very often to this type of "true story", I hate to think what they could do to other heroes and heroines of Canadian History, such as Laura Secord, Madeleine de Vercheres, and even such fictional characters as Anne of Green Gables, Pollyanna and Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. Even Elsie of the Elsie Books might not pass without a smirk.

I feel very strongly about this libel of our Scottish forebears. I have lived most of my life amongst the descendants of the original Scottish settlers in the Eastern Townships.

I trust that you will give my letter your consideration,
Yours very truly,
ARTHUR H.H. BIEBER

Concerned patient

To Whom It may concern:—
I have heard a rumor to the effect that there are certain people in the area, namely the directors of the hospital in Granby, who are desperately trying to have the Quebec government close the Brome - Missisquoi - Perkins Hospital in Cowansville, so that the city of Granby may build or add on to their present hospital.

Is there any truth to this rumor? If so, what can the citizens of Cowansville do to prevent such an action, a stupid and drastic action in my opinion.

As of the above-quoted date, I am a patient at the BMP Hospital. Perhaps I am being overly sensitive to the suggestion that the BMP Hospital close its doors.

It is really a practical idea, especially when you stop and think of the recent expenses incurred during the re-modeling of this hospital, the number of people that would be unemployed as a result of closing its doors, the greater distance that would be involved in travelling, the general inconvenience to the population of Cowansville and its surrounding areas?

I, for one, would like to be counted among those who, I am sure, will oppose any action to have this hospital closed. It is a necessity in this community and I cannot possibly conceive of anyone condoning a suggestion such as the aforementioned.

To all the citizens of Cowansville and the surrounding areas, stand up and be counted, and oppose the idea of closing the Brome - Missisquoi - Perkins Hospital.

Yours truly,
(Mrs.) LESLEY B. CLARK
Cowansville

Council will also ask for tenders to pave the rest of the Post Office lot as well as Wilson Street. The council would also like to buy a steam roller, to help in street paving.

Council refused to give donations to both the Cancer Society and the Sherbrooke Hospital campaign. "It is up to the individual to support local financial campaigns," was the council's response.

Alderman Robert Nichol was named pro-mayor for the next three months.

How do YOU look?

An absolute must in good fashion grooming is a full-length mirror. This may seem an odd prerequisite, but without this helpful aid, how can you tell what you look like, to yourself and to others?

After all, one does dress to please others or at least should, and without this knowledge of the overall picture, can you really go out in public completely satisfied?

The full-length mirror has several advantages, besides the obvious. It shows yourself from top to toe, reflecting the absolute truth, good or bad. In order to have a successful outfit, accessories should blend in without detracting from the look you want to present. With a mirror any discrepancies come forth.

As mentioned in Friday's column, time and money are wasted if an outfit is not quite right for you, especially if one has not got the figure of a fashion model. Here again is another asset of a full-length mirror. If one's figure has a few extra curves, certain styles do not flatter as they should. If one saw oneself at all angles, especially the rear-view, there would be fewer fashion flaws polluting beautiful downtown Sherbrooke.

The odds and ends of good grooming are also magnified when little stains, torn hems and split seams show up. Nothing detracts more from a smartly dressed woman than an unnoticed run in her stocking.

Of course, the first question one would ask would be the price, but many pennies are spent on unnecessary purchases that could be saved up for a mirror within one's budget. Instead of that extra snack at break put the money back in your purse.

Now that we are on the subject of mirrors, let us look at their respective reflections.

In today's world, the cry of the women's liberation movement is loud although not always clear. "We must be liberated, free from the ancient bondage that has exploited our potential." Some cry, "We have been wasted." This is true, but along more narrowly defined limits, many women have been going to waist. Everyone, except for those lucky few, must watch their diet. No clothes, no matter what the cut or material look their best covering too great an expanse of womanly attributions.

Therefore the full-length mirror gives helpful little hints just in case one needs a reminder now and then of the difference between going to waste and going to waist. When you think about it, there really is not too much difference between the two!

It is very easy to stimulate the imagination to produce a picture of oneself, pleasing to the eye and conscience. To stroll through the avenues of restaurants, desserts, Saturday-nights-out with this somewhat misconstrued idea is not only wavering on the path to success but actually hazardous. To take a firm grip of the situation by brave denial of those scrumptious delights is the only method of prevention against the battle of the bulge.

There is an old Russian proverb: "Little drops of water wear down big stones." Remember this when the moment of decision comes. An extra calorie a day means a pound is on its way.

Marriage applicants should be trusted

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am all for human rights, equality and all that jazz, but the queers are taking over the world and I resent it. This is what happened to my sister last week.

Wilma and her fiancé went to the Court House to take out a marriage licence yesterday. The County Clerk looked at her in a very odd way. She couldn't understand what was wrong. Finally he said, "Are you sure you're a female?" My sister almost fell over dead. Her fiancé was ready to invite the guy outside. She replied, "What in the world are you driving at?" The clerk said, "Last week we had two gay couples in here trying to get marriage licences. Lord knows how many of those characters have fooled us."

Wilma got so mad she was ready to take off her clothes right then and there. Finally the clerk said, "O.K., but I hope you see my problem." My sister and her fiancé got their licence but it sure ruined their day. What do you think about this, Ann Landers? How can decent people be protected against such insults?

Another Cal. Earthquake
Dear Quake: Government is already doing too much prying. The County Clerks should take the marriage applicants' word for it.

Dear Ann Landers: My son is 29 years old and lives with me. His father died ten years ago and I need the room and board money, but I'm beginning to wonder if it's worth it.

Nickey makes $132 a week take-home pay. He gives me $80 a month. He gets good breakfasts and big dinners. I do his laundry (shorts by hand) and I keep his suits pressed.

He uses the telephone, plenty of hot water, gas, lights, and has a TV in his own room. Nearly every day he asks me to buy him shaving cream, or blades, mouthwash, toothpaste, a bottle of aspirin, adhesive tape, hair cream or after-shave—it's always something. He expects all this for his $80 a month.

When he has company I am supposed to prepare the refreshments and serve them as if I was a maid. Sometimes he doesn't even introduce me.

When Nick gets mad he doesn't talk for three days at a time. I'd like your advice on whether I should ask him to leave. The headache isn't worth the extra dollars.

—New Jersey Troubles
Dear N.J.: Your advice is in the last sentence. I couldn't have said it better myself.

Dear Ann Landers: Call my letter "The Confession of a Foolish Mother"—but please print it for other mothers who don't know any better.

Our 17-year-old daughter became pregnant by a 19-year-old boy. Elsie was crazy over Ray and I now believe she got pregnant on purpose. Ray didn't want to get married but I practically put a gun to his head. It is one year later and they are both miserable. Ray is never home and Elsie is a nervous wreck. He is a rotten husband and has no interest in their little girl. Eventually, Ray will leave for good and I'm beginning to think the sooner the better. I hold myself responsible for this mess. Please tell mothers everywhere that a forced marriage is always a mistake.

—Wish I Hadn't
Dear Wish: A word from someone who has been there is worth heeding. Thanks for writing.

Can your child hear?

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — If you think your child has a hearing problem, the sooner you do something about it the better, says Errol Davis.

"The most important thing is to get them early, between birth and age three. If we miss them until they are four years old, we've missed one of the important time spans in developing normal speech."

Mr. Davis is an audiologist, consultant for the Canadian Hearing Society and a teacher at the University of Toronto medical school.

An audiologist tests hearing and helps choose hearing aids. Audiologists use electronic testing equipment and computers to help sift results.

He says many people believe a baby cannot be tested, but "a child can be tested at six months — not completely accurately, but fairly accurately."

Mr. Davis says a young child's whole outlook can be affected by poor hearing.

"How he relates to other people for years often depends on what he hears from his mother."

"If he can't hear, his concept of what's going on around him can be different from anyone else's."

RESPOND TO NOISE
He says deaf children will often manipulate things well, be quick at picture puzzles, but be lost when they try to deal with abstract things.

Mr. Davis says a deaf child may dance to a loud stereo set or respond to a loud noise because he can feel the vibrations. He might be able to hear a very loud sound or he might be able to hear sounds in a low range.

"Parents gesture when they talk to a child, and the child will begin to gesture so if he doesn't begin to speak, he can still make himself understood."

Apart from such clues as a discharge from the child's ears, the signs that a child does not hear well may not be immediately obvious, but they are there.

If his responses to the things people say are often inaccurate, he may have a hearing problem. If he does not seem to know someone has come into a room unless he can see them, he may have a hearing problem. If he is late talking or has poor speech and language development, he may have a hearing problem.

START IS IMPORTANT
"Sometimes it is medically correctable, sometimes not. But it is important to get a hearing aid if necessary and the parent should know how to help a child with a hearing problem."

"How you start with a child is going to determine his future, whether he goes to an ordinary school, a school for the deaf or a class for the hard of hearing."

Mr. Davis recommends taking a child to an ear specialist or a hearing and speech centre where he can get the best testing possible and advice on a hearing aid.

The Canadian Hearing Society can help with information and guidance for parents. Their head office address is 60 Bedford Road, Toronto 5, Ont.

Information about special training programs for parents and pre-school children is available from some school boards, hospital clinics or the society.

There are groups called Parents of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing in many cities.

BULWER — Fifty-six relatives and a few friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Pinchin, on Sunday May 30, to help them celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Pinchin were surprised when carload after carload of relatives kept arriving.

Their son Douglas pinned a corsage of pink carnations on his mother, and their daughter, Dorothy, pinned a white carnation boutonniere on her father. Their son Ronald was also present at the celebrations.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Merrill arrived with a three-tiered anniversary cake, decorated in white with pink, topped with pink carnations and lily of the valley, in an iced glass with a silver 25 on the front. The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Merrill, the matron of honor of twenty-five years.

Marjorie Merrill and George Pinchin were married in the Bulwer United Church on May 25, 1946.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinchin received several gifts and cards. When George thanked everyone, he mentioned that their children had given he and Marjorie a trip to England, last fall, to visit his mother and other relatives. This was their 25th anniversary gift to their parents.

Pants are still in

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Pants seem to be the thing for spring this year — pant-suits, pant-dresses, knickers, gaucho pants and, if you're lithe enough, hot pants.

Whatever else they predicted, fashion experts included pants in the spring scene in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press.

The single exception was a fashion commentator in Toronto who said every woman who would wear pants already has them in her wardrobe. She predicted an upswing in the demand for dresses.

The biggest news is the briefest version of the pant styles, the hot pants. Some say they represent the last gasp of the mini-fanciers. Whether that's true or not, they will be worn in all kinds of styles, with or without accompanying skirts.

A Toronto manufacturer says he is making them in double-knits to sell before his cotton-knit and duck versions. They are appearing in jump-suits and overall styles and in satin with covering ankle-length lace skirts.

SWEATERS ARE CLOSE

More-conservative pant outfits continue to sell well. An Edmonton buyer says 50 to 60 per cent of the sales in his dress department will be pant-dresses.

A Montreal buyer says print jersey and knit dresses in shirt styles are doing well because they can be worn alone or teamed with pants.

Close-fitting sweaters, long or waist-length, are also much in evidence.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 Days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special)—This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. It has made people slim, attractive and feel young again. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories and offices throughout the U.S.

Word of its success has spread like wildfire. This is the diet that really works. No pills or drugs. We have testimonials in our files reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first 4 days, but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1 1/2 pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you partake of foods formerly "forbidden" such as big juicy steaks, roast or fried chicken, rich gravies, spareribs, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are full and still lose 10 pounds in the first 10 days plus 1 1/2 pounds every two days thereafter. The secret behind this new "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. The grapefruit acts as a catalyst (the "trigger") to start the fat burning process. You eat as much as you want of the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and bloat are gone your weight will remain constant. A copy of this very successful diet plan including suggested menus can be obtained by sending $2 to Grapefruit Diet. MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. If after diligently trying the diet plan you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days and 1 1/2 pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Fill out the coupon, mail it today, and you will receive your diet rush via first class mail. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth, while enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners.

MARTIN H. ALLISON of Bury Death has claimed another life long resident of Bury in the person of Martin Allison, whose death took place on April 24, 1971, at the Sherbrooke Hospital after undergoing surgery. He was in his 75th year.

Born in Bury on October 11, 1896, he was the eldest in a family of four born to the late Henry Allison and his wife Ida (Emery) Allison. He was a direct descendant of William Allison who came from England and settled here in 1835, one year before the greater influx of settlers came in 1836.

As a young boy, Martin attended the little red school house at Hardwood Flat, some two miles distant from his home. In May 1917 he was married to Gladys Clark, and they took up their married life on a farm on the Victoria road, the former property of his maternal grandmother Mrs. Charlotte Potter.

Four children were born of their marriage, Greta, Preston, Clayton and June. For some years he carried on the farm, but during World War II he enlisted in the R.C. Service Corp. and served for two years in England.

Returning home he resumed his farm work as well as taking on the duties and responsibilities of foreman of the Roads Dept in this area, which position he held for 16 years, following he served in the same capacity for four years in the municipality of Bury.

In 1962 he gave up farming and moved to a home in the village where they have since resided. His industry was proverbial, he was never one to shirk a duty however irksome. Although in recent years he did not enjoy good health he continued to make his garden, care for his flowers and do the little chores necessary to the upkeep of a home, up to the day previous to entering the hospital.

He was a member of the Canadian Legion, Branch 48, Bury, and one of his most cherished possessions was a Plaque of Merit for Outstanding Service to the Legion.

Ever the loyal friend and obliging neighbor, kindhearted and generous, his chief interest was in his home and family, especially devoted to the welfare of his grandchildren.

While his remains rested at the Bury Funeral Home, many friends from far and near came to pay their final tribute of respect. With Rev. M. Jones officiating prayers were held at the Home, from thence to St. Paul's Church where the funeral service was held.

With Mrs. R. Mayhew at the organ, two hymns were sung by the choir. The Old Rugged Cross and Now the Laborer's Task is O'er. Many Legion and Auxiliary members were in attendance. The profusion of lovely flowers bore further evidence of regard. Acting as bearers were six old friends and Legion members, Howard Grey, Clayton Grey, Bill Harper, George Everett, Allan

PARTICIPANT IN NEW BOWLING LEAGUE

Organize bowling for handicapped

SHERBROOKE (WC) — Loneliness, inactivity and withdrawal from society are some of the problems the handicapped of Sherbrooke and region are faced with. The Sherbrooke Recreation Club for the Handicapped (Club de Loisirs Pour Handicapés de Sherbrooke) is trying to solve these problems by organizing different activities which will orient the handicapped towards a fruitful existence.

The club has organized a bowling league which is held every Friday afternoon at the St. Jeanne d'Arc Center at the corner of Fairmount Street and Galt West between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.

"It is a sport which is played elsewhere by the handicapped. We wanted to start something especially for wheelchair stricken people," Gerard Cote, secretary of the club told The Record.

The league, which is open to all handicapped in the area, will be in operation every Friday throughout June. The bowling league will be disbanded when the center closes for the summer but will resume activities at the beginning of September, says Mr. Cote.

Anyone who wished to join should phone Denise Loubier at 569-8052 for further information. The cost to each player is 70 cents per week. "We pay the price as anyone else using the bowling alleys," Cote said.

Some of the handicapped are unable to afford the 70 cent luxury each week. The organizers of the activity, reaching into their own pockets so that others can enjoy themselves. Sponsors are needed so that others can join.

Another problem that has to be overcome is transportation. "Each week I have to find someone to lend us his mini-bus and then I have to find someone to drive it," Mr. Cote said.

Next year, the club would like to have a financial campaign to raise money so that a bus specially built to carry the handicapped can be purchased.

The center has built ramps so that the handicapped can go up the steps. They have also brought carpets to lay over the entrance of the bowling alley. Wheelchairs can be supplied if needed.

SPORTS

Horton, Worsley among those left unprotected

MONTREAL (CP) — Some well-known National Hockey League names were omitted from the protected lists filed by the 14 clubs Monday night in preparation for today's intra-league draft.

In addition, Montreal Canadiens put the names of veteran centre Jean Beliveau and left winger John Ferguson on their list, despite the fact Ferguson declared his resignation last week and Beliveau has indicated there is only a 50 per cent chance he will return next season. The Canadiens did not protect defenceman Marshall Johnston, recently acquired from Minnesota.

First year professionals are exempt from today's draft, and therefore did not appear on the roll. Also four clubs which lost goaltenders in last season's expansion draft—Montreal, Philadelphia, St. Louis and California—could not lose a goalie.

Boston Bruins, runaway leaders in the East Division last season, did not protect left winger Wayne Carleton.

However, the Hawks protected eight defencemen, including rookies Jerry Korab and Paul Shmyr.

DROP GOALIES

Detroit Red Wings left Tom Miller off their list, while Los Angeles Kings dropped Doug Robinson, Matt Ravlich and Larry Mickey from theirs, along with goalies Wayne Rutledge and Jack Norris.

Minnesota North Stars went with rookie netminder Gilles Gilbert in place of 40-year-old Lorne (Gump) Worsley. The Stars did protect right winger Bob Rousseau, but the veteran forward is believed ticketed for New York Rangers as part of an earlier deal that sent Bob Nevin to New York.

The Rangers in turn left veteran right winger Ron Stewart and defenceman Tim Horton off their roll.

Jean-Guy Gendron and Cliff Schmutz were missing from Philadelphia Flyers for today's draft, while Pittsburgh Penguins dropped goalie Al Smith, to make room for Roy Edwards, picked up in Monday's interleague draft by the waiver route. The Penguins also dropped veteran right winger Andy Bathgate.

Veteran winger Bill Sutherland was not protected by St. Louis Blues, and the name of Bill Plager was also omitted, while brothers Bob and Barclay remained.

Toronto Maple Leafs did not protect forward George Armstrong.

Veteran goalie Charlie Hodge was unprotected by Vancouver Canucks, as were John Schella and Ray Cullen. California Golden Seals dropped Dick Mattiussi and Mike Laughton.

To make announcement later says Pollock

MacNeil denies resignation report

MONTREAL (CP) — General manager Sam Pollock and Al MacNeil both denied Monday night that the latter has resigned as coach of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The pair were commenting on Montreal newspaper reports Monday which said MacNeil, who took over from Claude Ruel last December and brought Montreal the Stanley Cup last month, had advised Pollock of his decision to quit.

"I'm still coaching Montreal Canadiens and unless I get fired in the next five minutes, I still am," MacNeil said.

Pollock said theoretically three things could be written about the Montreal situation:

—"That when these meetings are over MacNeil still will be coach;

—"That Al will remain in the Montreal organization—not as chief scout or general manager;

—"Or he could decide to retire from hockey."

"You could write any one of those things and maybe there's a good chance one of them would be right," Pollock said.

The newspaper story Monday said MacNeil had found his position "untenable" and had told Pollock he no longer wanted to coach the National Hockey League club.

"Al and I have talked twice," Pollock said.

NEITHER SURE

"Neither of us are sure right now what's best.

"We want to talk the whole thing over and when a decision is reached we'll hold a press conference—one way or another.

During the Stanley Cup playoffs, centre Henri Richard publicly chastised MacNeil for benching him and called MacNeil "incompetent and the worst coach I ever played for."

Pollock said if an announcement cannot be made this week he would like to have it decided by next Monday or Tuesday.

Asked if he was under any pressure from the club to reach any decision on his future MacNeil said:

"No, they're not pushing me. I have not resigned yet. I don't know whether I would like to coach next season, but I think Canadiens will be a good team next season."

There have been reports for some time that MacNeil would be replaced by Scotty Bowman, former general-manager-coach of St. Louis Blues.

Bowman said Monday he has not been offered the job.

Bench-clearing legislation approved

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's rules committee Monday approved legislation aimed at putting more teeth into league efforts to stop bench-clearing by players that in the past has led to massive on-ice brawls.

Scotty Morrison, NHL referee-in-chief, said the committee will retain the rule that the first player to leave the players' bench or the penalty box to join the fight on the ice will cost his team a bench minor.

But for the coming season, the committee agreed to an addition to the rule.

From now on, Morrison said, the first identifiable player to leave the bench or penalty box to join an altercation will receive a game misconduct penalty.

A game misconduct carries an automatic $100 fine, with the automatic sentence subject to review by league president Clarence Campbell, who may take further disciplinary action.

JUDGED INDIVIDUALLY

Any other players who follow the leader over the boards and incur a minor, major or misconduct penalty for subsequent actions on the ice will also be subject to a game misconduct penalty.

Further action can be taken by Campbell as he sees fit.

Morrison said the league president will judge each offender individually and thus the committee steered clear of any automatic punishment for the offence other than the $100 fine.

"Mr. Campbell does not want to be bound by anything automatic, such as a one-game suspension for a first offence or a two-game suspension for a second," Morrison said.

"We feel that this rule now has some teeth in it and now a coach will think differently if there's a chance he'll lose a player for one, two, three or more games, in addition to the remainder of the game in which the offence occurs."

The rules body also agreed that, in future, all penalties incurred by goalkeepers must be served by a player on the ice at the time of the infraction. Previously, a fringe player could be sent from the player's bench to sit out the netminder's penalty.

EXPAND LINEMEN'S DUTIES

The duties of the linemen were also enlarged. They now are empowered to report to the referee the circumstances of a player deliberately displacing the net from its anchor posts to prevent a goal being scored. The infraction carries an automatic minor penalty.

The committee decided that in a case where a goalie who knocks the net from its anchors with an opposing player in a clear breakaway position, a penalty shot will be awarded.

Morrison said several proposed rule changes were either deferred to a later meeting or turned down.

One proposal that was deferred has already been considered by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Morrison said.

It is that any goaltender who leaves his crease during a fight on the ice, whether he takes part in the altercation or not, be assessed an automatic two-minute minor penalty as well as the $100 fine that the NHL currently charges for the offence.
