ALLIED FORCES ENTER NAZI REDOUBT AREA

Western Allies And Russians Near Meet In Three Sections

United States Forces Enter Bayreuth, Deep Inside Great National Redoubt Planned on as German Last Ditch Defence—Nearest 9th Army Forces Last Reported Forty-five Miles From German Capital.

Paris, April 14.—(P)—The U. S. 9th Army fought slowly forward on the outer defences of Berlin today and other Americans to the south besieged Leipzig, neared the Russian lines and plunged deep into the German national redoubt by entering Bayreuth.

Gen. Bradley's armies by-passed Leipzig and tightened the siege arc around the great Saxony city where 1,000,000 German civilians have been reported awaiting the Americans. The closest troops last were reported four miles away.

The 3rd Army plunged into Bayreuth and onto the approaches of Dresden and neared the great traffic centre of Chemnitz.

The 1st and 9th Armies virtually eliminated the Ruhr pocket, taking 114,000 prisoners from the 150,000 originally estimated as trapped.

The nearest 9th Army troops last were reported forty-five miles from Berlin. Those east of the Elbe were encountering profuse fire from flak batteries guarding the capital and making slow progress on the flat Brandenburg plain.

Three of Bradley's armies were less than 100 miles from the Russian lines. The U. S. 3rd Army was within eighty-eight miles of the Soviets, the 9th was ninety miles and the 1st—fighting for Leipzig and beyond—was reported ninety-five miles from the Red armies flushed with the conquest of Vienna, a victory which also breached the German national redoubt, at its East end.

In Holland, Polish troops under 1st Canadian Army command had cut their way to within seven miles of the North Sea, while British troops of Gen. Crerar's army were fighting through embattled Arnhem, house by house.

Canadian units advanced against relatively light resistance at most points along their 250-mile front in The Netherlands.

The Germans fought without a cohesive front and without a cohesive command. The rear of the mass of their armies along the Oder was being penetrated by the swift advances of American armies which gained thirty or more miles in a day.

Brunswick (population 201,305), Jena (55,000) and the Dutch bastion of Assen (20,000) fell. With the loss of the aircraft centre of Brunswick, Germany had lost half her fifty-eight cities of more than 100,000 population.

Magdeburg (334,358) was ringed by 9th Army army and fast So was Annaburg (50,000), a gateway to the Dutch fortress where up to 200,000 Germans are trapped. The last Germans were being driven from Dortmund (537,000) in the Ruhr.

The 1st Armored Division of the U. S. 3rd Army reached the Saale River twenty miles north of Halle (220,362) and by German account was fighting in that city.

The German pocket in the Ruhr, which produced three-fourths of Germany's war material as late as 1942, was wiped out as a military problem with less than a fourth of the original area to be mopped up. Of the captives, 74,000 were taken by the 1st Army. Hundreds more dirty and discouraged Germans were streaming out.

Great cities in the Ruhr were near capture. These included Dusseldorf (339,000), Wuppertal (398,000),

Powerful Soviet Forces Now Drive Into Hitler's Redoubt

London, April 14.—(P)—Powerful Russian forces, released by the fall of historic Vienna, mounted new drives today aimed at Prague and the Nazis' mountain fortifications in Southern Germany.

The Austrian capital on the Danube fell yesterday to the combined weight of the 2nd and 3rd Ukrainian armies under Marshals Rodion Y. Malinovsky's and Fyodor I. Tolbukhin after a week-long siege that resulted in the capture of 130,000 Germans, by Moscow account.

Vienna, second city of the so-called Greater Reich and bulwark of the invasion routes to Bavaria, little more than 100 miles away, was the tenth European capital occupied by the Red Army and the eighteenth liberated or conquered by the Allies.

Moscow said that between March 15th and April 13th, eleven German tank divisions were smashed as Russian forces closed in on the Austrian capital, and the Soviet radio last night said the Viennese had "saved the honor of the Austrian nation" by assisting in the liberation of the famed city of song.

The Viennese celebrated their liberation with public dances in the city's squares. The streets were hung with Austrian and Soviet flags as the populace saluted the Red Army with "unconcealed joy," a Moscow broadcast reported.

Meanwhile, Malinovsky's troops northeast of the capital captured the war centre of Hodonin in a surge across the Moravian border that carried to within thirty-two miles of Brunn (Brno), Czechoslovak arms centre. The Soviet forces were storming the Morava River along a 14-mile stretch and driving forward on a 25 miles' front in this sector.

Tolbukhin's tanks were rolling back the Germans across Austria west of Vienna between the Danube and Drava rivers. Berlin already has reported a wholesale withdrawal of enemy troops on this wide 170-mile front.

Tolbukhin was driving hard toward Berchtesgaden, Hitler's Bavarian mountain stronghold, but perhaps more significant was Malinovsky's push into Moravia, which with Bohemia is the last arsenal for the crumbling Wehrmacht.

Drew Planning To Advance Ontario General Election

Toronto Circles Convinced That Ontario Premier Will Seek To Avoid Conflict With Federal Vote, Called for Same Day as Legislative Elections.

Toronto, April 14.—(P)—Progressive Conservative circles suggested early this morning the possibility of Premier George Drew of Ontario advancing the date of the Ontario general election from June 11 to June 4 on the grounds that a simultaneous Dominion-Provincial election June 11 would be "confusing."

These circles, who said they were speaking unofficially, said they understood the writs for the Ontario election had not yet been issued and there would be no legal reason for Mr. Drew not to adopt this procedure.

Some Progressive Conservative circles said that by advancing the date for the Ontario election, Mr. Drew would "outwit" Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who they said, had deliberately picked June 11.

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Ottawa, April 14.—(P)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced yesterday in the House of Commons that the Dominion general elections will be held on Monday, June 11, the same day as the Ontario general election.

In a lively but good-humored exchange with Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, Mr. King twitted the opposition with receiving the announcement with gloomy faces while Mr. Graydon declared they received with delight.

It will be Canada's first general election in twenty years and will be the first that Mr. King in 18 years of office has allowed a Parliament to run its full constitutional five-year term. The life of Parliament expires April 17.

The last time this happened was the term of the Conservatives under R. L. B. Bennett which ended with the general election of 1935.

While prospects are for the election being fought while Canada is still at war with Japan if not with Germany, the election probably will be a peaceful one in that the issues to be debated will relate to post-war matters.

The last election in 1940 was fought under war conditions, but in the period of what was known as the "phony war," when the armies remained static on the French border and the German Luftwaffe did not launch their push in the west.

The Liberal Party, led by Mr. King for more than 25 years, goes into the contest after 10 years of

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID ROOSEVELT

ALLIED CHIEFS MAY MEET WITH NEW PRESIDENT

Truman May Seek To Establish as Soon as Possible Same Type of Contact With Churchill and Stalin as Roosevelt Possessed.

By JAMES F. KING

London, April 14.—(P)—The thorny problems of liberated Europe and the possibility of Russia's entry into the Pacific war may force a new meeting within a few months of top Russian, British and American leaders to acquit President Truman with the Big Three's plans—some of them secret.

Some quarters believed President Truman might accompany Edward Stettinius, United States Secretary of State, here for the conference of Anglo-American-Soviet Foreign Ministers scheduled to follow the San Francisco meeting.

On one of the toughest diplomatic spots in history, President Truman faced the problem of representing the United States in dealing with two of the world's shrewdest statesmen, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

This world crossroads of diplomatic change has defied the opinion that Mr. Truman would want to establish as soon as possible the same type of first-hand contact with Messrs. Stalin and Churchill which the late President Roosevelt had developed.

Back of this reasoning was the argument that the Big Three's close relationship, eliminated a vast amount of red tape and made possible quick policy decisions on issues which may have their counterpart during coming months in the Pacific campaign.

It was expected, however, that some weeks would intervene before such a get-together, a delay necessitated by the immediate job of the new President to consult with Mr. Roosevelt's advisors and co-ordinate their information.

Although there was no tendency here to regard Mr. Roosevelt's death as a permanent blow to the future of the grand alliance, there was speculation that the death might slow a solution of some ticklish political issues such as that involving formation of a new Polish government.

But it was believed it would have little impact on prosecution of the war, either in the east or west, since both have emerged from the planning stage and now are in the hands of military and production chiefs.

TO NOMINATE PEARKES
Victoria, April 14.—(P)—Frank H. Davey, President of the Nanaimo Federal Progressive Conservative Association, announced here last night that the name of Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., will be placed before a nominating convention at Duncan today to choose a candidate for Nanaimo constituency in the June 11 Federal general election.

Simple Ceremonies Mark Services In National Capital

By HOWARD FLIEGER

Washington, April 14.—(P)—Wartime Washington, steeped in sorrow, offered a last sad farewell today to Franklin Delano Roosevelt—its first citizen for a dozen epochal years.

It was a capital clad in mourning—a hushed, sombre contrast to the carnival atmosphere of other Roosevelt home-comings—which awaited the ten-car special train bringing Mr. Roosevelt's body here from Warm Springs, Ga., where he died Thursday.

The bustle of government was stilled for the day, closed by a proclamation of President Truman calling the country to prayer.

Arrival of the funeral train signalled the start of a month's memorial in the armed services. But War Production Chairman J. A. Krug asked no interruption in war industry.

President Truman—thrust with bewildering suddenness from relative obscurity into a position of world eminence—headed the official delegation meeting the Roosevelt train at 10 a.m., E.D.T.

He will accompany the body of his predecessor to Hyde Park, N.Y., for burial tomorrow.

Representatives of Congress, the judiciary and the cabinet arranged to accompany Mr. Roosevelt on his last trip down historic Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House.

Two non-commissioned officers each from the army, navy, coast guard and marine corps were designated pall bearers here. Units of all the armed forces, including women, were assigned places in the funeral procession to accompany the casket-borne casket.

Funeral rites impressive in their simplicity were arranged for 4 p.m. E.D.T., in the gold-appointed East Room at the White House. It was there just twelve weeks ago today that Mr. Roosevelt, with bowed head, attended Divine services on the inaugural day which started him on his fourth term as President.

The Episcopal order for the burial of the dead was the funeral service for the White House ceremony, attended only by the family and those associates and friends who could be accommodated in the East Room.

There will be no state funeral. The usual pomp and ceremony of high-office funerals was reserved almost entirely to the processions which accompanied the dead President from one place to another. The

TRUMAN UNABLE TO BE PRESENT AT CONFERENCE

Statement There Will Be No Change or Break in U.S. Foreign Policy Issued to End Uncertainty Among Foreign Diplomats.

Washington, April 14.—(P)—

President Truman decided today that he probably cannot attend the San Francisco Conference, but he emphasized anew that he will follow the Roosevelt foreign policies.

The late President Roosevelt had planned to address the conference, called to draft a plan for a world organization. It became known that Mr. Truman does not expect to attend.

This decision was attributed to the tremendous new duties so suddenly thrust upon him, rather than to the lack of enthusiasm for the work of the conference.

A statement reflecting the President's foreign policy views was issued by State Secretary Stettinius upon authority of Mr. Truman. It emphasized the President's support for the plan to organize a world system aimed at keeping the peace as well as his determination to maintain in force the other basic foreign policies of his predecessors.

"There will be no change of purpose or break of continuity in the foreign policy of the United States Government," the statement said. It evidently was intended to end uncertainty among foreign diplomats and leaders who knew little about Mr. Truman.

The President will expand on the brief, general statement Monday when he outlines his international policies to Congress—and to the world by radio.

Mr. Stettinius said there would be no faltering in the accomplishment of victory and peace ends "for which Franklin D. Roosevelt gave his life."

In two public statements, last night and today, the Russian Ambassador, Andrei Gromyko, emphasized the hope that the United States would carry forward the plans and policies of President Roosevelt in waging the war and trying to organize peace. An undercurrent of uncertainty as to whether the country actually would do so threaded through his remarks.

The same attitude was common though less intense all along Embassy Row and among delegates gathering here en route to San Francisco.

ALL SERVICEMEN TO HAVE FEDERAL VOTE

Ottawa, April 14.—(P)—Every member of the Canadian armed forces will have a vote in the Dominion general election June 11. Special legislation for taking the soldier vote was passed by Parliament last year and preliminary arrangements have been completed since that time.

Link Of Allied Forces Not To Establish Immediate V-E Day

By JAMES M. LONG,

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Paris, April 14.—(P)—The German army, still fighting fiercely in the east, no longer has either a cohesive front nor a coherent command in the west. The long-awaited Allied link-up severing Germany in the middle is near—but that does not mean that the war in Europe will end at that time.

There might still be military fighting on into next winter, but it was not likely that it would still be regarded as an active phase of the European war.

V-E day will come, according to the best available opinion here, somewhere between the Allied link-up and the end of subsequent fighting. And it will come by Allied proclamation, and not by German surrender.

Events since Gen. Eisenhower's fortnight ago predicted that the Germans would continue to fight as best they could until the last inch of their country has been overrun have only served to underscore the Allied supreme commander's words.

He declared then that the Nazis would not quit; there would be no formal surrender; that victory would probably be announced by proclamation.

But it is hardly likely that Eisenhower alone could or would proclaim such a V-E Day. It would be proclaimed by a joint agreement with Marshal Stalin, and it could hardly come, whatever the success of the clear-up in the west, until the eastern front, too, had collapsed.

There is no disposition here to believe that even splitting Germany in two would cause the collapse of a minion general election June 11. Fighting fronts as the German command disintegrated into separate pockets of major resistance. These fronts already are forming. One, perhaps the weaker of two, is shaping up in the north in a great arc backed up against the Baltic Sea and trying to hold the northern ports and railway to Berlin.

The other would be a great arc in the south centred upon the "national redoubt" of Naziism—the hideaways of mountainous southern Germany and northern Austria between Lake Constance and Berchtesgaden.

The arc in the north would probably break into more than one pocket, particularly if the Allies in the west continue their edge toward Hamburg and Luebeck.

It would mean there would be the Berlin arc to clear out, the northern ports, the flooded fortress of western Holland—perhaps eventually even Denmark and Norway. The farthest-most and best naturally guarded of these three—Norway—and the heart of the southern German redoubt might take months to clean out, especially if the Nazis held on there just long enough to make one pocket. It is not suggested that the Germans would necessarily be able to do that with any degree of success. The speed of the Allied race through middle Germany and the force of the Russian drive into the southern flank from the east is bringing the end near, even faster than the Germans had calculated.

But, by the very nature of the Allied break-through in the centre, considerable Wehrmacht forces are actually being folded back into these arcs.

It seemed clear that, just as surely as victory would not be proclaimed on the day of the east-west link-up, neither would the proclamation be withheld until the last shooting on German soil was over.

The situation created is virtually without military precedent—a people beaten and unable to quit, a power defeated and unwilling to surrender; and the prospect of one side eventually having to announce that it had won a war.

The War Today

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(Substituting for DeWitt Mackenzie)

President Truman and State Secretary Stettinius have proclaimed "no change" in United States foreign policy. There is one place where they may have a hard time making the proclamation stick.

Of all his personal diplomacy, President Roosevelt's policy regarding Russia probably depended more directly on him than any other.

Labels are likely to prove inaccurate. It may not be strictly correct to term the Roosevelt Russian policy as "co-operation at any cost," but it sometimes appeared close to that and also was probably the foreign policy which drew more domestic criticism than any other.

Entirely aside from those who always want to "get tough" when anyone fails to abide strictly by what Americans consider their country's ideals, there has been a more complete expression of fear that by yielding to Russia on certain points affecting small nations, the United States has been storing up a whirlwind.

This "no compromise on virtue" attitude probably has been held in check, to a great extent, by widespread knowledge that Mr. Roosevelt was far better informed on the subject than anyone else, that his motives were unquestionable, and that there was no course except to trust him.

Mr. Roosevelt obviously thought that the maintenance of machinery for co-operations among the Big Three was more important than anything else. He seemed to feel that in yielding now he could hope for enlightened changes later.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt was right remains to be seen. He was conducting a campaign something similar to the one against isolationism in the United States, Russia's policy, at best, is self-sufficiency against any enemy. Mr. Roosevelt could hope that once she felt herself out of danger she would co-operate in eliminating danger for all, and after that she might relinquish some of the hegemony over her neighbors that she now feels necessary. Those who disagree fear any compromise on principle, lest Russia, learning what she can do by flexing her muscles, become insatiable.

Messrs. Truman and Stettinius cannot expect, for a time at least, to enjoy the same public confidence regarding Foreign Affairs as did the Roosevelt-Hull team. Those who disagreed with Mr. Roosevelt, but felt incompetent to go to the mat with him and his unique store of information, may now be expected to become more insistent.

"No change" may be diligent-guarded watchword. Whether it can be accomplished is another matter.

"Presenting Lily Mars" Opens As Feature At Premier On Sunday

Chief attraction beginning tomorrow at the New Premier Theatre will be Judy Garland in "Presenting Lily Mars," in which Miss Garland is seen in a story really new for her and is teamed with Van Heflin. He plays a Broadway producer and she a girl who wants to go on the stage and sets out to ensnare him.

Her trials and tribulations with comical complications provide human interest, drama and comedy. Beautiful song numbers and spectacular musical presentations run the production. Exotic Maria Eggerth, who plays a love rival for Miss Garland, sings Russian and gypsy numbers with spectacular effect. Miss Garland revives that great old favorite, "Every Little Movement," and then goes modern with "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son." Musically as well as dramatically the new picture, directed skillfully by Norman Taurog, assures a hundred per cent entertainment, plus.

Richard Carlson is effective as the harassed young playwright of Bowditching's story. Fay Bainter and Spring Byington play the mothers of the principals who wisely conspire in the tangled romance of their offspring. Connie Gilchrist and Leonid Kinsky add comedy and Bob Crosby and his band in person providing lilting musical interludes.

The staging, which includes interior shots of swank New York night clubs and fashionable theatres, is eye-filling as are the costumes worn by Judy and Miss Eggerth. The other picture will be "Raiders of Sunset Pass," starring Eddie Dew with Smiley Burnette and Jennifer Holt.

Simple Ceremonies

Actual funeral ceremonies were patterned in the simplicity which Mr. Roosevelt had fixed as his own way of life in war-time.

The President's widow, his daughter, one son and four daughters-in-law, all of whom were present at the funeral, probably will make up the family party at the funeral.

Presidential Secretary Jonathan Daniels said Brig.-Gen. Elliott Roosevelt—the second son—is expected from London. He said Col. James Roosevelt, eldest of the Roosevelt boys, probably would be unable to reach Washington in time. The other two sons, John and Franklin, Jr., are on naval duty and cannot get here. Anna Boettiger, only daughter of the Roosevelts, has been living at the White House.

Separate Senate committees were named to attend the services at the White House and at Hyde Park.

The Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, will represent King George at the White House rites, it was announced yesterday.

Foreign Secretary Eden left the United Kingdom by air yesterday to represent the British Government today.

Prime Minister King, a long-term friend of the late President, said in Ottawa yesterday pressing war matters would prevent him from attending today's funeral service, but that he would be present at the burial tomorrow at Hyde Park.

MEMORIAL TO ARCHDEACON IS BEING PLANNED

On Sunday, January 21st last, the congregation of St. Matthew's Church, Quebec, remembered with gratitude their former Rector, the late Archdeacon Frederick George Scott, whose funeral had been held in the same church just a year before, and at that service an Archdeacon Scott Memorial Fund was begun for the purpose of erecting an organ or some other memorial worthy of this great churchman, soldier, poet, patriot and humanitarian, where he spent so much of his ministry.

The present Rector, Rev. W. W. Davis, now reports that good progress is being made and the members of the parish are quite willing that it should be solely their own tribute to their late beloved Rector. Many people outside of St. Matthew's, however, have asked to be allowed to contribute to the fund, anxious to have received, for instance, from veterans at such widely-separated points as Riverbend, Que., and London, Ont. It is felt, therefore, that the late Archdeacon does not belong exclusively to any one parish or to any one community and that, for this reason, all those who may desire to contribute to the Memorial Fund should be allowed to do so. Accordingly, the Committee is anxious that this fact should be made widely known; the treasurer, to whom enquiries and contributions should be sent, being Mr. William Dunkerley, 10 Dickson Ave., Quebec, Que.

While the erection of an organ has been tentatively set in view, the actual form of the memorial has not been finally decided upon and will, of course, be determined by the amount of the fund when it is closed.

B.C.S. PLAYERS WILL PRESENT TWELFTH NIGHT

As in past years, the Players' Club of Bishop's College School is again going to present a major play this season. The play chosen for this year's production is one of Shakespeare's best known comedies, "Twelfth Night," which is believed to have been written at about 1600, is a play which is bubbling over with the spirit of joy and fun. The action is dynamic and it usually carries both players and audiences forward. The best character by most critics is believed to be Malvolio, the steward in Olivia's household, and the success of the play depends to a great deal on this part, which will be acted by R. Miller.

B. Day, who will be remembered for his great performance in last year's play, "Charley's Aunt," will take Sir Toby Belch's part, while H. Evans is going to be Sir Andrew Aguecheek. Olivia's part will be taken by C. Milling, and Maria will be acted by J. Lawrence.

Apart from these five major characters the cast will be as follows: Orsino, Duke of Illyria, P. Evans; Sebastian, Viola's brother, D. Lawrence; Antonio, a sea captain, D. Faerman; Valentine and Curio, attendants to the Duke, N. Solomon and G. Furse; a sea captain, P. Allmond; Fabian, J. Sewell; a clown, M. Wallace; a priest, I. Calder, and Maria, M. Evans.

Mr. Lewis Evans is in charge of the play and L. Walls is the stage manager.

The play will be presented to the public on the night of April 19 in the school theatre.

TRAINING FOR LOCAL UNIT IS NOW UNDER WAY

Training for the 2nd (R) Bn. The Sherbrooke Regiment for the 1945-46 period has commenced and the Commanding Officer, Colonel B. D. Lyon, holds great expectations for the forthcoming year.

The Regiment has never been better supplied with training facilities than at present, while additional equipment is expected shortly. Parades will continue to be held Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week, and the training programme should be found enjoyable as well as educational.

At the moment, special attraction is found in the D. and M. course under R.Q.M.S. Price. Men and officers on this course really seem keen, and all agree that it is time well spent. What one has to know about maintenance, driving, and mechanics of army transports cannot very well be kept in a nutshell—yet once mastered, it knowledge which any man should find useful for other purposes than military.

The N. C. O. course, advanced training, recruits, and firing on the indoor range, complete the picture of the two-hour period of training. Strains of music issued from the band room on Tuesday night were typical of the general feeling of expectancy regarding "V" day. The band have every intention of being prepared for an important engagement in what appears will be the very near future.

continuous power and will be faced by a different set of opposition parties from previous elections. Strongest of the opposition parties in the House are the Progressive Conservatives led by John Bracken, former Premier of Manitoba, who has yet to contest a federal election, either personally or as national leader.

In 1940, this party, led by the late Hon. R. J. Manion, campaigned as the "National Government" Party on a platform of bringing men from all parties into a wartime government.

The Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation, a party less than 15 years old, enters the 1945 contest with a more widespread and stronger organization than in 1940 and with the prestige of recent gains in provincial elections behind it. Its leader, Mr. Coldwell, is an experienced Parliamentarian.

The Social Credit Party remains where it was in 1940, a powerful factor in the Province of Alberta, but with no elected members in the Federal House outside that province. However, it has a national organization and a national leader, Hon. Solon Low, ready to put candidates in the field elsewhere.

In the Province of Quebec the Liberals, recently troubled by inter-party splits, the conscription issue, face opposition from the Bloc Populaire, led by Maxime Raymond, and an Independent group led by Frederic Dorion, member for Charlevoix-Saguenay.

"His Excellency the Governor-General has expressed me to say that he is willing to approve a recommendation to have Parliament dissolved just as soon after the conclusion of its business as possible," Mr. King announced.

Canada's Wartime Lubrication Needs Important To British American Oil

"It might indeed be said that British-American Oil literally greased the skids for Hitler's downfall," stated J. H. Wark, Sherbrooke representative for the British American Oil Co. Ltd., in an interview with the Record, as he told of the tremendous development of the company's Clarkson Refinery and its contribution to the success of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

In June and July, 1940, stated Mr. Wark, the first eight schools of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan were opened in Canada. It was then realized that a demand such a training programme would make on Canada's refining facilities, high octane gasoline and aviation lubricants could not be made without additional refinery equipment of special design. Realizing this problem, and at the request of those entrusted with making available the petroleum products necessary to Canada's war effort, the British American Oil Co. Ltd. decided to undertake an expanded construction programme at the Clarkson Refinery, financing the project entirely through their own resources.

Mr. Wark emphasized that the timeliness of the company's decision in expanding the great Clarkson development is apparent when it is considered that Clarkson's aviation products have been steadily available for the needs of the Air Training Plan which contributed in no small degree to the downfall of Hitler. In addition to their material contribution to the war effort of the Dominion, British American Oil Co. Ltd., has also felt a direct share in the fight for Freedom through the enlistment of over 550 employees of the company in the armed forces of Canada.

The history of B. A., which is an all-Canadian company with 96% of its shareholders in Canada, dates back to 1906. With its own refineries in Montreal, Toronto, Clarkson, Moose Jaw and Calgary, and numerous branches and distributing agencies in all important areas, the company has had a steady and consistent growth, until today it is one of the major refiners and distributors of petroleum products in Canada.

The British American Oil Co. Ltd., Sherbrooke branch was established in 1921, stated Mr. Wark, and the company followed this up with the establishment of various other Eastern Townships branches shortly after.

Looking back over the past quarter century, Mr. Wark recalled the share that B. A. had played with the automotive industry in the development and expansion of Canada. In mining and manufacturing plants, he said, the company has supplied a proportionate share of all the fuels and lubricants that have been used. In addition, he mentioned the fact that many of our highways and city streets are paved with asphalt produced in the Montreal refinery of the company.

Before the war nearly all the lubricating oils were imported, said Mr. Wark, and B. A. realized the necessity of controlling its own source of supply of crude oil. In 1924 they began operations in the U. S. field, and today the company is carrying on in all the principal producing oil fields in eight States, from California to Illinois, and in Canada, has a big development in the Turner Valley in Alberta.

Now, he said, the completion of the Clarkson Refinery makes it possible for our markets to be supplied with the finest oils, refined wholly

MRS. F. WEBSTER IS REMOVED BY SUDDEN DEATH

The death early last evening of Mrs. Frederick W. S. Webster, occurring a few hours after she was taken to the Sherbrooke Hospital suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage, came as a distinct shock to her many friends in this city and removed one of Sherbrooke's esteemed and well-known citizens. Mrs. Webster had appeared in her usual health yesterday and had even been down street earlier in the afternoon.

Mrs. Webster, a devout member of St. Patrick's Church where she took a keen interest in all affairs pertaining to the welfare of the parish, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McManamy, of Sherbrooke, and received her education at the local Mont Notre Dame Convent. She was married in 1915.

Mrs. Webster leaves her husband; a sister, May; Rev. Mother Superior of the Marianopolis College in Montreal; two brothers, Daniel J. McManamy and William McManamy, both of Sherbrooke; a sister-in-law, Mrs. William McManamy, of Sherbrooke; a brother-in-law, Edward Wright, of Westmont; three nieces, Mrs. Paul McKenna, of Sherbrooke, Mrs. Frederick Baldwin, of Sherbrooke, and Miss P. McManamy, of Montreal; and three nephews, Emmett McManamy, of Montreal, Gerard McManamy, of Sherbrooke, and Captain Eugene McManamy, United States Medical Corps, Overseas.

in Canada by Canadians, a distinct achievement, indeed.

Commenting on the recent announcement of British American Oil for its new alloyed Peerless Lubricating oil for the benefit of Canadian motorists and industry, Mr. Wark said that it focussed entirely new interest on the activities of the company. Produced in their new Clarkson Refinery by the latest methods known to the petroleum industry, British American is indeed proud of this contribution to the advancement of the petroleum industry in Canada. It is an indication of what is to come, he concluded.

Two E.T. Lads In R.C.A.F. Bomber Get Best Of Nazi Fighter-Plane

The story of how two Eastern Townships lads in the R.C.A.F. reversed the tactics of aerial warfare and got the best of a Nazi fighter-plane is told in an R.C.A.F. release, headed "With Canadians Flying in the R. A. F."

The story concerns Lieut. M. W. MacDonald of Pitch Bay, skipper of a Halifax bomber, and F/O J. G. M. Baillargeon, of Sherbrooke, who was a member of the plane's crew.

Over the German target of Ruseheim, Baillargeon had just dropped his bombs when MacDonald spotted an Me-110 attacking another bomber a short distance away.

Seeing his chance, MacDonald swung his big bomber into a position near which the fighter must pass as he broke off his attack, on the first plane, and, when the German zipped by, the Canadian mid-upper gunner was able to rake the Hun with a murderous fire, from his combined eight Brownings. When last seen the Messerschmitt was spinning down apparently out of control, but it is not known whether the fighter was definitely destroyed or not.

Baillargeon and MacDonald have not always been so fortunate during the 28 missions they have completed over major targets. Once over Magdeburg they were attacked by a Junkers 88, but managed to shake it off by violent evasive action.

Another time a direct hit by flak almost put them out of action, but, despite 10 inches knocked off one propeller blade, a hole punched in another and the remaining one wrinkled, while smashed holes, punctured gasoline tanks and a gaping wound in the starboard wing tip completed the damage. MacDonald managed to bring the crippled plane back from Scholven-Buer to base with all members of the crew safe.

A far cry from his former job with a Canadian bank, is the roar of motors and sound of battle while thousands of feet in the air over enemy territory, yet this intrepid young Canadian has turned out to be one of the best.

Joining the R.C.A.F. as a clerk at a Training Command I. T. S. in Quebec in June 1940, MacDonald decided that there was more to be done in the air, so, two years later, he re-enlisted as a pilot, arriving Overseas in July, 1943. The tour of operations he recently completed were started in July of the following year. Among missions completed were ones to the Ruhr Valley, Magdeburg, Hannover, Frankfurt, Chemnitz and Worms, all of which were listed as "hot" targets.

Lieut. MacDonald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William MacDonald, of Pitch Bay, who also have two other sons on Active Service overseas.

GUILD SESSION AT LENNOXVILLE WELL ATTENDED

St. Monica's Guild held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. N. Hunting, Main Street, with fourteen members present. The usual opening was carried out. No financial report was given as the treasurer was ill in the hospital. A donation was given for the payment of the Easter church flowers.

It was decided to present a play entitled "Hitay Fever" in the early part of June and the salad tea to be held on May 10th will be served from 5 to 7 p.m. instead of the usual earlier hour of from 3 to 5 p.m.

The prizes for the bridge marathon recently completed were given out. The winners were Mrs. L. M. Watson and Mrs. L. V. Parent, whose score was 35,460 and the runners-up were Mrs. R. H. Stevenson and Mrs. C. Parkin, score 30,650.

The next meeting is to be held the first Tuesday in May instead of the regular date the second Tuesday in the month and will be at the Rectory on Main Street.

After adjournment a very pleasant part of the meeting was enjoyed in the presentation of a beautiful coffee table as a shower gift to Miss Della Sterling, a member who is taking up house keeping in the very near future. The delightful evening was brought to a close by the serving of refreshments by the hostess.

W.M.S. SESSION

The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church held their Easter thank offering meeting in the Scott Hall and had as their guests members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Church. Mrs. W. J. Lane presided.

The meeting was opened with soft music with Mrs. P. Walton at the piano Mrs. E. C. James was in charge of the worship period, the topic being "A Living Hope."

Business included a notice of the annual Presbyterial to be held in Magog. Delegates named to this meeting were Mrs. E. W. S. Nutbrown and Mrs. Smith. The study book which is used by these two groups, "West of the Date Line," was taken up by Miss G. Stevens and Mrs. J. Morrison, Mrs. L. V. Parent, introducing the subject. Each gave a synopsis of a chapter. Afternoon tea was served by several of the members with Mrs. W. H. Abbott pouring tea.

Y. SUPPER CLUB HEARS ADDRESS BY MISS AMARON

Miss Estelle Amaron was guest speaker at a meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Business Girls' Supper Club held at the Mackinnon Memorial when the Y.W.C.A. Quinlan Club and the Tri-Hi Club were guests for the occasion.

The usual business meeting was cancelled, and Miss Ula Roarke, President of the Supper Club, introduced the speaker and welcomed Mrs. George Carr, President of the Y.W.C.A.

Miss Amaron held her listeners spellbound with her descriptions of her work with the Y during six years spent at Colombo, Ceylon. She told of leaving Ceylon in August, 1944, and travelling through Egypt, Italy and England, visiting various Y war service centres in these places. She was thanked by Miss Emily Odell.

During the evening, a sing-song was led by Miss Ruth Oliver, assisted by the Supper Club pianist, Miss Mildred Corcoran, and the girls visited informally with Miss Amaron, who recounted interesting incidents of her visits with Canadians whom she met during her trips.

It was felt that the visit of Miss Amaron was an inspiration to continue on with the growing importance of Y.W.C.A. work here, and members felt proud to be part of the world-wide fellowship.

BEEF CATTLE EXHIBITS OPEN TO PROVINCE

Beef cattle exhibits at the Sherbrooke Diamond Jubilee Exhibition August 25th to September 1st will be open to the entire province, it was announced today. Due to the fact that there are no beef cattle exhibits at the Quebec Exhibition, Sherbrooke is regarded as a provincial fair for these classes and large entries are expected in the Shorthorn, Hereford and Angus sections.

The dairy classes, according to W. G. MacDougall, chairman of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee, will be open to exhibitors from the Eastern Townships only, and an increase in the prize list is expected to bring back many of the former exhibitors who were not seen at last year's fair. Dairy cattle include Ayrshires, Holsteins, Canadians and Jerseys.

The prize list for heavy horses has also been increased, particularly in the harness classes, and an extra class has been opened for commercial firms exhibiting teams and singles, and commercial horses will be barred from the regular section. Additional classes have also been added to the light horse section.

The classification for poultry has been revised and a new section for utility breeds—Plymouth Rock, New Hampshire, Wyandottes, Leghorns and Rhode Islands—has been added, in which birds will be judged more from their utility standard than from the view point of appearance.

The prize lists for fall crops, vegetables, flowers, fruit and ladies' division, such as cooking and sewing, have been revised and brought up to date, while in the Maple Sugar Department two sections, one for syrup and the other for sugar, have been opened for producers who have never shown at the Sherbrooke Fair.

FORMER PRISONER OF WAR LIBERATED

WO/1 Veasey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Veasey reside at 18 Laurier Avenue, Sherbrooke.

REGULATION ON FIREARMS' USE TO BE ENFORCED

As the result of the accidental shooting of 16-year-old Jeannine Courtemanche Thursday noon, Chief of Police Moreau announced today that Municipal By-Law 410 forbidding the use of firearms within the city limits will be strictly enforced.

Upon investigation it was found that the shot which penetrated the wall of a house and struck Miss Courtemanche had been fired from a 22 calibre rifle in the hands of a twelve-year-old boy, who was shooting at bottles on the south shore of the Magog river at the time. The estimated distance the bullet covered was 2,400 feet.

The boy's mother admitted her son had been firing the weapon when questioned by police. As yet no action has been taken against the lad.

The victim who is in the St. Vincent de Paul hospital is reported to be progressing satisfactorily. She was wounded in the left thigh.

THE FEDERAL ELECTION CALLED

The announcement of Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the people of Canada will go to the polls June 11 to elect a new House of Commons removes the uncertainty which the prospects of a general election have thrown over the Canadian political picture. That a Dominion-wide vote would be held during the current year was a foregone conclusion, but the refusal of the Prime Minister to make any definite commitment as to his plans have prevented businessmen and politicians alike from taking any definite action on a wide list of projects which were dependent, to a more or less degree, upon the composition of the Government which will administer the country for the next three or four years.

One rather surprising feature of the date announced is selecting the same date for the Dominion election as that previously announced by Premier George A. Drew for the Ontario vote. But, then, this may be a good political move, as it will remove a certain moral danger the Liberal party might face in the event that the Drew administration were returned to office in the largest Province of the Dominion a few days or weeks before the federal vote was held.

Of course, it may result in a wonderful complication of federal and provincial issues, but there is no basic reason why two sets of elections cannot be held the same day. In the United States, elections for all offices are held the same day with no serious repercussions.

ARCHDEACON SCOTT MEMORIAL

On the first anniversary of the death of the late Venerable Archdeacon Frederick George Scott, the congregation of St. Matthew's Church, Quebec City, his former parish, took steps to launch a fund to provide some suitable tribute to his memory.

The purpose of the Fund was to erect an organ or some other memorial worthy of the great churchman who was known and beloved throughout Canada. The original purpose was to have this memorial solely a St. Matthew's parish project.

However when it became known outside the limits of the parish that such a memorial fund had been established, admirers of the late Archdeacon from many sections of Canada expressed a desire to contribute.

In view of the response, it was decided by the originators of the fund that the appeal would not be restricted to the people of St. Matthew's, but that anyone so desiring might contribute.

Mr. William Dunkerley, 10 Dickson Ave., Quebec City, is Treasurer and will be pleased to accept any contributions or to answer any questions regarding the fund. While an organ was tentatively set, the exact nature which the memorial will take will, of course, be determined by the amount subscribed.

Archdeacon Scott had many friends and admirers throughout the Eastern Townships and it is certain there are many who will welcome the opportunity of paying tribute to his memory.

This appeal is strongly commended to our readers and it is hoped that the Record may be instrumental in furthering the cause so that a fitting memorial may stand for all time in tribute to a great churchman, soldier, poet, patriot and humanitarian.

JUST A SHELL OF BERLIN

The imminent fall of Berlin, which many competent observers believe may come over the weekend, coupled with the cry of Propaganda Minister Goebbels that Germany has lost the war, brings attention to the question of what will be the direct military result of the capture of the German capital. The chief benefit of this will be, undoubtedly, that the Western Allies and the Russians will join forces, for the general over-all strategy of the United Nations appears to be that Berlin will be entered from both sides almost simultaneously, thus disposing of the ticklish political problem of who should take chief control in the Reich in the event that one party made an unusually early entry.

As for any military value Berlin itself might be, the general belief is that it has already been written off by both sides. Allied fliers, taking a low level look at the city this week, with not a single shot fired at them, report having not seen a single soul at large anywhere. Berlin evidently has become a ghost city and it once contained over four million people. Which raises the question: Where have all the civilians gone? Most of them have evidently fled to Bavaria which must now be an over-congested Province of Germany.

The pulverization of Germany continues apace and it is unlikely that the nightmare will end until the Nazi leaders show more sense than they have displayed to date and finally ask the Allies to call the war off. Germany is being laid into dust and ashes as no other in world history. Carthage was destroyed, but Carthage was only a city. In this conflict, one great city after another is suffering worse than what happened to San Francisco many years ago by earthquake and fire. Many will recall the horrendous scenes of that visitation, the recovery from which was rapid. But there is a permanence in the destruction of German cities and one can only speculate how long the period will be before there can be recovery, if there ever will be recovery at all.

No matter what the peace terms may be, the armed forces are writing off a good job now, against the nation in Europe which has for so long made war its creed. For once the Germans must realize that it has not paid off. Within their own country there will be misery and suffering for years to come, and when Germans poke their noses elsewhere through the world, they will be regarded as vile people. They will wear sack-cloth and ashes when they come hence again, fawning and cringing, no doubt, for sympathy. But they will have neither remorse nor regret for having been a scourge to mankind. Their only sorrow will be that they lost the mad gamble, that fate and destiny played them a dirty trick. They are showing that even now. Retribution is falling on Germany with a heavy hand every hour. The midnight hour will soon strike, if it has not struck already.

IT MAKES LITTLE DIFFERENCE

London circles are reportedly seriously concerned about the reports that Adolf Hitler has been assassinated or that he is dying from an incurable illness. These reports, which lack official confirmation although released by British Government circles, continue in their customary vague way to say that Heinrich Himmler organized the assassination or that he has seized power in the serious illness of Der Fuehrer. Exactly what is behind these reports is uncertain, but it is not advisable to place too much credence in them, as they are obviously the promotion of the German propaganda agencies for some reason best known to the queer Hun mentality.

To many people the story smacks of the opening of a campaign to facilitate the escape of Hitler and his cohorts to some prepared hiding place. The unconfirmed stories will probably be followed by further reports which may "confirm" the tale and even go into the details of the funeral given the German leader. Having officially disposed of himself, the Nazi chief might then place himself in the care of a plastic surgeon who will so rebuild the features of the one-time ruler of the Reich that nobody could recognize him. Then the task of taking up life anew, either inside or outside Germany would be a comparatively simple matter.

The recent discovery of the gold and foreign currency reserves of the Reichsbank in the German salt mine indicates that the high Nazis were preparing some such plan but the seizure of the money by the Allies may somewhat interfere with their schemes.

But even if Der Fuehrer is dead, it is difficult to see how the event will materially change the general conduct of the war. If he has been disposed of in any way, it is safe to assume that he will be replaced by somebody as determined and bitter as himself. Certainly the record of Heinrich Himmler, whom the reports say has taken his place, is nothing to lead the Allies to believe that he will shorten the war by a prompt surrender or that he will do anything to liquidate the Nazi party or to modify its doctrines. Known through occupied areas as Heinrich the Hangman, he has been the one largely responsible for the spreading reign of terror across the Continent and to his credit—or dishonor—can be placed the murder chambers and torture halls of the concentration camps. He, as much as anyone, is due for an uncomfortable time when Germany surrenders. Thus he may be expected to continue the German resistance to the last ditch.

Whether Hitler is alive or dead, whether the Nazi leaders have gone insane or whether they are still governed by the mentality of brutality, the Allies will have to defeat the Germans on the field of battle. There is no prospect of any surrender on the part of those responsible for the administration of the remnants of the Reich.

YEH, HE MUST FEEL PRETTY LOW TODAY

The Permanence Of The Joy Of Easter

Prof. the Rev. H. C. Burt, M.A., D.C.L., Lennoxville.

St. John XVI, 22: "And ye now, therefore, have sorrow, but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice; and your joy no man taketh from you."

At Easter time Winter loses its grip, and Spring comes to the fore; control has passed from death into life. To quote Psalmist: "The mountains and hills break forth into singing, and all the trees of the wood rejoice!"

Easter is heir to the ancient Jewish Passover, commemorating Israel's transition from slavery to freedom. So our great Festival harks back to the time when the Jews were, for the most part, a pastoral people. To them the return of Spring, the most beautiful season of the year, marked a great event in their national life. Moreover, the approach of Spring introduced the harvesting of the barley crop, the First Fruits of which were offered in the Temple with joy and gladness.

The words of the text were spoken just after the Last Supper. The Master in these few precious hours before His betrayal and condemnation spoke to His disciples no more in the language of metaphor or parable, but with the utmost openness and directness. In that short space of time many great truths, formerly only half suspected were brought into the fullest light.

In the words quoted above, the Lord speaks of the sorrow His death would cause His followers, and of the abiding, triumphant joy that would be theirs when He arose from the Tomb!

How sorely they needed this word of consolation to steady and strengthen their hearts in the coming days of blood and disaster! We can get some idea of the glory of the Easter message to the followers of Jesus by thinking of the joy that would be ours, if we should learn over the radio today that the Powers of Darkness in Europe no longer stood in the path of world peace and progress—and that VE Day had actually dawned!

The apostles' joy was the joy of Love. These true servants of God loved much because they have been forgiven much. It is only natural that the love which was the measure of their sorrow for the Master's death should become also the measure of their joy in His Resurrection.

Their joy was also the joy of Faith. They had had their dark hours of doubt and perplexity. Strange and disquieting questions had risen in their minds; but now all these were laid to rest. Nevertheless, would they entertain the slightest doubt of Christ's power and love.

Theirs, too, was the joy of Hope. "Not backward are their glances cast, But forward to their Father's home." With vision purified of earthly dross, they look forward to the future of the Church of Christ, and can see the Gospel of the King.

PRESS COMMENTS

THE WAR DOES IT

The Printed Word. Lately, the respectful "Sir" has vanished from the railroad porter's vocabulary. A traveller on the Toronto-Montreal pool train reports that his instruction to the porter to call him in time to get off at Montreal West was acknowledged with an "Uh huh." No slur on Montreal West appears to have been intended. It was merely a weary recognition of the traveller's eccentricity.

Perhaps, says the traveller, there will be more politeness when the railroads again have to compete for business with the private motor-car. Like other businesses, they are having their personnel problems and it is not surprising that the amenities of travel are no longer observed by the porter.

The traveller is willing to murmur to himself, "There'll come a day" and put up with things as they are. Nevertheless, he adds, enough is enough, and we've betide the first porter who calls him "Mac."

How true, even today, are the Saviour's words: "Ye now, therefore, have sorrow, but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice; and your joy no man taketh from you!"

So if always is, Life is even alternating light and shadow, gladness and sorrow, gloom and splendour. After the awful gloom of the Master's betrayal and death comes the imperishable joy of Easter tide.

In this uncertain world, with its manifold changes and chances, what is life without Christ but sorrow unmingled with joy?

But when the Master comes, there will be day without night, light without shadow, life without death. The sorrow of a long and weary waiting will give place to an abiding peace—and a joy that no man can take from us!

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenney, America's Card Authority

THE SMOTHER PLAY WINS SMALL SLAM

(This is the last of six articles on the smother play, the most difficult play in bridge to recognize.)

Here is one of the most complicated hands of the smother play. I suggest that if you want to really enjoy this hand, you lay the cards out.

West, of course, was quite wise in not doubling to give away his king of hearts, but it did not make any difference.

The opening lead was won with the ace of clubs, the queen of trump played, and West refused to cover. Now the deuce of trump was led and dummy's eight spot finessed. The king of spades was cashed and then a low spade to declarer's ace. The losing club was ruffed in dummy, a low spade was ruffed in dummy, thereby seemingly setting up West's king, as West had it protected, while dummy's ace was a singleton.

The diamond ace and king were cashed and now a low diamond ruffed by the declarer. A small spade was led to dummy's queen and the last diamond returned.

East won this with the jack and the heart trick.

The declarer discarded his losing spade.

At this point, the declarer had the jack and ten of trump. Dummy had the ace of trump and a spade. East had to return a club and the last diamond returned.

East won this with the jack and the heart trick.

Wives Should Exert Wiles

Should Compete With Secretaries
By Using Same Technique

I get many tear-soaked letters from wives who ask: "Why do married men fall in love with their secretaries?" Ah, that is one of the modern problems to which no one knows the answer, unless Miss Pothooks herself has inside information on the subject that she does not publicize for the benefit of her sisters.

All that we know for certain is that there seems to be some sort of a conjure in the job that makes an office the happy hunting ground for a girl in search of a husband, and that a typewriter is first aid to matrimony.

The facts prove it, for when the old bachelor decides to take the fatal step, it is not nearly always with his secretary? It is not his secretary who consoles the widower for his departed Maria? And think how often the office wife leads the home-wrecking crew.

INEXPLICABLE PHASE
If all secretaries were glib, blonde, with a come-hither look in their eyes, we could understand why middle-aged bosses were not proof against their youth and charm, but such is not the case. Just as often they are no better-looking, nor more glib than the wives who are forsaken for them, nor the single ladies who are passed up by eligible bachelors and widowers for them.

So there we are, with the riddle still unguessed. Of course, the easiest solution of the mystery is to say that propriety does it, but if propriety is such a force for driving a man and woman together in an office, why not in the home, where it seems to act as a repulsion instead of an attraction?

I think it is because the secretary knows that she has to be on her best behavior and watch her step, if she wants to keep her good paying position; whereas the wife is aware that she cannot be fired from her job without scandal and alimony, and she doesn't have no bother about even treating her husband with common politeness unless she feels like it. Many a man falls in love with his stenographer because she pours the oil of flattery on the stabs to his vanity that his wife gives him.

Another lure of the secretary is that she and the boss have a common interest in his career. She knows all the inside workings of his business. She shares in his hopes and ambitions. They can spend endless hours in discussing them. And shop talk is the most fascinating talk in the world.

But it is the rare thing for the wife to know anything about her husband's affairs, or take any interest in them except for the money they bring her. Most of them are even jealous of the "old office" and consider that they are ill-used because their Johns spend so much time at the shop instead of taking them to afternoon cocktail parties. And when Friend Husband tries to explain anything about what his real interest in life is, they yawn in his face.

Still another reason why wives so often lose out to the secretary is that they fail to meet competition. They forget that in these times, when every office is chockablock with women, that they are brought in daily comparison with pretty young girls who are on their tiptoes to please the boss; so when they come down in the morning in a soiled and slouchy housecoat, with cold cream on their faces, and pick a breakfast table fight with their husbands, who go forth to spick-and-span secretaries who yes-yes them, the things happen that do happen. All of which should be tips to wives.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

Mrs. S. A. Belmont gave a charmingly arranged children's party at her home on Howard Avenue for her little daughter, Mary Ann, who was celebrating her third birthday.

The tiny tots, many of whom were accompanied by their mothers, included Derek and Brock McLeaon, Beverly and Elizabeth Muir, Marcia and Douglas Calhoun, Marjorie Robins and Char Brundage. The tea party, scheduled from four until six o'clock, began with games on the lawn, where the children and their mothers enjoyed the pre-spring weather. Later tea was served in the dining room, where Mrs. Allan Muir did the honors at the table around which the small guests were seated, and admiringly gazed on the "Easter Bunnies" and other seasonal decorations so artistically arranged by their hostess. The three lighted candles on the birthday cake also attracted the children's attention while they were enjoying the dainty refreshments provided for the happy birthday party.

HOW TO COMBAT
Rheumatic Pains

Rheumatic pains are often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints, causing excruciating pains. Treat rheumatic pains by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Take regularly Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite kidney remedy.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt

HE DID NOT DIE IN VAIN

We in Canada share deeply in the sorrow of our American neighbours, in the death of their great President. The very fact that he has died on the eve of his great triumph lends to his death both its tragedy and its consolation. For it is not an unrelieved tragedy—this sudden passing at the very hour when his labors are nearing the time of harvest. There abides in this fact a certain dramatic fullness, a certain inner appropriateness, a certain perfection of farewell. He wearied in the great effort, and not in idleness. He has fallen in the fight, like one of his own soldiers. He gave his life for his country as he helped mould the future of the entire world.

ZELLER'S LIMITED

FRIEND OF CANADA

LEADER OF HIS COUNTRY

STATESMAN TO THE END

We share the sorrow of our American friends in the death of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

He was, indeed, a leader of all men, who valued freedom and decency.

May the inspiration that guided his steps linger with us as we seek the Victory for which he so valiantly fought and died.

"Can I borrow half a dollar, please? We're organizing another major league and all we need is a ball!"

DO YOU BUY THIS
WHEN YOU CAN AFFORD THIS
... OR THIS?

WHAT WOULD THAT EXTRA BOND MEAN?

Would it mean not redecorating the house this year?

THERE'S A FELLOW IN A SLIT TRENCH WHO WOULDN'T MIND CHANGING PLACES WITH YOU

Would it mean putting off that extra week's vacation?

THERE ARE BOYS OVERSEAS WHO HAVEN'T BEEN HOME IN FIVE YEARS

Would it mean nothing more than signing your name to a larger cheque?

THOUSANDS OF CANADIAN FIGHTING MEN ARE BUYING BONDS OUT OF THEIR PAY

WHATEVER it may mean to you, in cold fact that extra Victory Bond you could easily afford means that money you do not immediately need is in a safe, readily accessible place and is earning a good rate of interest.

It means just this: that when you buy that extra Bond, Good Citizenship and Good Sense go hand in hand.

S.H.S. AND Y's MEN PLAY DECIDING TILT OF SEMI-FINAL TONIGHT

Odds On Game Even With Both Teams Having Won One Fixture

The odds on tonight's game between the Y's Men and the Sherbrooke High School at the MacKinnon Memorial have been established as even with neither team being ranked as a favorite to win the semi-final round of the E. T. Basketball Association playoffs.

Tonight's fixture is the third and deciding encounter, the Y's Men having won the first game and the Sherbrooke High School the second of the best of three series for the right to meet Stanstead in the league final.

In the first game, the competition was very close and the Y's Men won out by a 21-19 count which indicated that they would have a tough time of it when they met the High School on their own floor.

Predictions proved to be right and when the Y's Men tackled the S.H.S. boys at the High School gym, without the services of Doug Wootton, they lost out to their younger rivals by a 32-25 count.

As in the first game, the second fixture was played at a terrific pace. In the second game, the pace was too much for the Y's Men and they were in the second half to lose out after leading at half time by a 17-14 count.

They might be well advised to keep the situation well in hand tonight for they can't afford to take any chances with their better-conditioned rivals in the deciding game.

Reports have it that the Sherbrooke High School cagers are highly confident of taking the fixture and the semi-final, and are already formulating their plan of attack to be used against Stanstead.

As Bill Hammond, of the Y's Men stated, "We're going to win this series first and then figure out what methods to use against Stanstead."

Hammond, whose consistent high scoring has assured him of a spot on the all-star team, is of the opinion that the Y's Men can take the S.H.S. boys tonight.

He states that with Doug Wootton, "who played a sweet game for us last Saturday," at guard, the Y's Men will be too much for their opponents.

The High School, however, are not to take things lying down and are also making plans for disposing of their arch rivals tonight. Practices have been held regularly and the boys are reported to be in top condition.

Starting for the High School tonight will be Robin Stewart and Doug Martin as forwards, with John Waldie at centre. Harold Drew and Johnny Colter will line up at guard.

Amby Wootton, assistant coach at the High School, will also be on hand to relieve on the forward lines while Lewis Greenberg, Bud Jackson and Bill Bascom will also be out.

Against this line-up, Y's Men Coach Amby Aston plans to throw his first line-up of Bill Hammond, Halley Evans and Moon Mullins, assisted by guards Doug Wootton and Lorne Murphy to take care of what ever opposition the S.H.S. cagers can put up.

A small reserve will also be on hand for the Y's Men with Dick Wilson and Charlie Cruchon ready to go in at any time. Creighton Nutbrown, out with an injured knee and away for a while, will not be able to play. It is thought, however, that he will be back for the series with Stanstead if the Y's Men go through.

DETROIT WINGS BEHIND 8-BALL IN CUP SERIES

Toronto, April 14.—(P)—Detroit Red Wings, trailing three games in the Stanley Cup hockey finals with Toronto Maple Leafs, are behind the well-known eight ball. They know it and Leafs know it.

The Wings yesterday turned out in force for a spirited workout in preparation for tonight's fourth meeting of the clubs. Leafs, who registered shutout victories in the first three games and need only one more victory to capture the trophy, held a tight workout attended by only a few players.

Following Thursday's night's 1-0 set-back, Detroit officials enclosed themselves in silence. Any steps—and drastic ones are in order—planned in an effort to alter the situation, are a "1" secret.

But Gerry Couture, 19-year-old University of Saskatchewan student who made a surprise appearance in last night's battle is not expected to appear. Couture is scheduled to appear with Moose Jaw Canucks in the opening game of the Memorial Cup finals against Toronto St. Michael's majors in the afternoon.

League officials were more talkative. "If we come out running, we'll finish it up tonight," Maj. Conny Smythe of Leafs said. "But we'll have to be hot to do it."

Leafs suffered no injuries in Thursday's battle and are expected to use the same lineup that has held the Wings scoreless for 180 playing minutes. Victory tonight would bring the 52-year-old trophy here for the first time since 1942.

Doreen Ross, lanky Rand centre, provided the spark for the home team's attack as she chalked up a total of six points, all on field goals. Her two baskets in the final quarter were actually life-savers for the Rand.

Marg Earnshaw, Rand guard, also shared the scoring spotlight, chalking up a total of five points, consisting of two field goals and one free shot. Jean Beattie was right behind with four points, having banged in two quick field goals at the very start of the game, before Richmond could get organized.

Peggy Wilcox finished off the scoring with two points, having dropped a field goal through the netting.

Joan Harrington paced the Richmond scorers with six points, her two field goals in the third quarter

Rand Girls Edge Richmond By 17-14 To Enter Playoff Final

Snatching victory in the last few minutes of play, the Rand girls last night gained a close 17-14 triumph over Richmond to capture the semi-final series of the E. T. Girl's Basketball League playoffs in two straight games and earn the right to meet the Y.W.C.A. in the best of three final for the league crown.

The Rand girls had won the first game of the series at Richmond by a 16-14 count and competition in the game last night was just as close as was evidenced in the initial encounter.

Far behind by a 12-5 deficit at half time, the Richmond girls put up a plucky battle and at one time were ahead by a 14-12 score. In the first half of the game, the Rand guarding kept the Richmond girls bottled up but the second half saw the roles reverse and Richmond break through for six points in the third quarter to bring the count to 11-12.

A successful free shot by Janet MacIntosh and a field goal by Joan Harrington gave the visitors a temporary 14-12 lead but Doreen Ross sank a long one to even the count at 14-14.

On Isabel Irwin's foul, Marg Earnshaw provided the winning margin when she sank the free shot to put the Rand ahead 15-14. Doreen Ross then settled the issue with a basket from the ten-second line and the Rand walked off the floor with 17-14 victory and the right to meet the Y.W.C.A. in the final series.

First quarter score stood at 4-3 for the Rand with the lead being extended to 12-5 by half time. At three-quarter, Richmond had closed the gap to 11-12 but failed in the home stretch in their bid to stave off elimination.

Joan Harrington paced the Richmond scorers with six points, her two field goals in the third quarter providing the spark for the Richmond splurge and her final quarter two-pointer fiving Richmond a temporary lead.

Isabel Irwin, firing from centre, accounted for four points while Janet McIntosh chalked up three points on a field goal and a free shot. Barbara Fee drew the other Richmond point, scoring once out of eight free tries.

Richmond drew only three fouls from Referee Bill Hammond while the Rand had a total of nine called on them.

BRONX BOMBERS AND SENATORS TANGLE MONDAY

Washington, April 14.—(P)—The opening game of the basketball season here Monday between New York Yankees and Washington Senators will be dedicated to the memory of President Roosevelt.

Club officials said today that the crowd, expected to be capacity, will "stand a full minute in silent prayer and tribute to this great man" who frequently befriended the game.

No other change will be made in the inaugural day programme "because Mr. Roosevelt would have wanted things to go on as usual," the baseball people said.

PITTSBURGH IS REPORTED SET FOR GOOD YEAR

Muncie, Ind., April 14.—(P)—Nobody seems to know what's ailing Frankie Frisch, but there certainly is nothing wrong with his Pittsburgh Pirates, who seem destined to give the champion St. Louis Cardinals a terrific run for their money this season.

Manager Frisch—variously reported as suffering from water on the knee, arthritis and rheumatism—is just about the only expected not yet back from last year's Corsair clan.

Compared with other major league clubs which have surrendered varying numbers of key performers to the armed forces, the Pirates have not lost a single man since the 1944 season closed.

What's most important, the Pittsburgh collection of 4-F's and other deferred players is formidable—even by peacetime standards. It includes the starting pitchers, topped by Truett (Kip) Sewell, a 21-year winner last season; a seasoned, well-balanced infield; a speedy, experienced outfield, and a catching staff that includes a couple of the best receivers in the business—Al Lopez and Spud Davis himself.

In his first workout, Sewell indicated his famed "bloop" pitch is still a puzzler to batters. He should be a checkmate to the Cards' ace, Morton Cooper, and after those two, the Pirates may hold the pitching edge if Max Burcher and Elwin (Preacher) Roe (13-11), Fred Ostermuss (13-8) and Nick Strincevich (14-7) all get off on the right foot.

The Pirates may get a "Musial" punch at the plate in Jim Rippie, who batted .312 to pace the club last season. He'll be in centre this season, shifting from left where Frank Colman (.279) is due to take over.

Sherman were high scorers for Toronto, while A. MacKay and W. Drapala led the Macdonald team.

TORONTO CAGE SQUAD TOP MACDONALD 33-27

St. Anne de Bellevue, Que., April 14.—(P)—Toronto West-End Y.M.C.A. last night defeated Macdonald College 33-27 in the first game of the Canadian intermediate basketball two-game total-point semi-finals. Second game will be played here tonight.

Playing a fast game, both teams were evenly matched. Macdonald edged out Toronto in the half-time 17-16 score. The "Y" boys made up for lost time in the last half and overpowered the collegians.

Sports World Cancels Events Out Of Respect To President

New York, April 14.—(P)—Sportsdom paid its respect to Franklin Delano Roosevelt yesterday by announcing a virtual cessation of activity until after his funeral.

Only the Pacific Coast League, where all games were postponed; the Women's American Athletic Union swimming championships in Chicago and the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs in Toronto planned to carry on.

Prayers will be said before the "Play ball" cry at each of the coast games.

In Chicago, A.A.U. Executive Lyman J. Bingham said inability of contestants to change their train reservations for the return home made it impossible to delay the meet. However, this afternoon's events shifted to the forenoon, leaving the funeral hours devoid of athletic action.

The national dinghy races, to be held at the Larchmont, N.Y., Yacht Club of which the late President was an honorary member, were set over to April 21 and 22.

Ford Frick, President of the National Baseball League, asked his club owners to cancel all their exhibitions for today, the day designated by President Truman as a day of national mourning.

Promoter Mike Jacobs postponed last night's New York fight card, topped by a 10-round bout between Jake LaMotta and Vic Delicourt, for one week.

Boston, April 14.—(P)—Gus (Pell) Mell, 132½, 18-year-old Montreal slugger, pounded his way to a split decision over Sal Bartolo, 128½, of Boston, N.B.A. Featherweight champion, in a 10-round non-title boxing bout last night before 8,789 persons at the Boston Garden.

Sherman were high scorers for Toronto, while A. MacKay and W. Drapala led the Macdonald team.

RICHMOND BOYS CHALK UP 25-7 WIN OVER RAND

Ian Hume's Richmond cagers last night swept to an easy 25-7 win over the Rand in an exhibition game played at the MacKinnon Memorial. Paced by Norm Noel, who gained eight points, the visitors had little difficulty in disposing of their rivals.

Leading at halftime by an 11-1 margin, the Richmond men went on to double their score and more in the last half to win out by a 25-7 margin. Earl Davies also turned in a good game for Richmond, chalking up a total of six points.

Time can never erase his efforts to bring about a complete and lasting peace for this troubled world. His death, at the very dawn of the Victory for which he so gallantly fought, reminds us that his services for the cause of freedom went far beyond the limits of race and bounds of nationality. He was truly a champion of the right—a defender of the faith—a statesman in every sense of the word. He was our friend.

We join with Canadians everywhere in expressing our deep and profound sorrow for the people of the United States in the loss of one who carried out the good neighbor policy to its full.

A LETTER FROM THE DEAD

CHAPTER XXIV

There was the ache of tragedy in the house in Louisburg Square. All the servants had gone but Simms and he hung on with dogged loyalty. There was little for him to do. I think he hated to leave the curious fustiness of the old house. Pat was in bed of nervous collapse, and I heard the discreet rustling of the nurse's uniform as she glided to and from the kitchen with her nourishment trays.

Charley arrived, and as if by mute consent, we gravitated towards Phineas Hudson's study. On a desk that looked like a spinet was a quill pen and beside it in the bronze inkwell an ordinary red pen-holder such as one could purchase in the five and ten-cent store. Beside the pen lay a thick volume with a leather cover and on the cover the simple gold letters: JOURNAL.

Feeling like a ghoul I opened the volume. I turned to the last notation. Execrable weather and me off to the Ledges. The cumulative consequences of one ill-considered act are staggering. Not the least of which is the necessity of exposing my vulnerable body and spirit to the rigors of Sandy Point in November.

Something or nothing? There was no telling. What ill-considered act? Whose? Then there was the notation on April 30th: Today concluded satisfactory arrangements with W. Typical Hudson embroidery, but a little less clear.

This cryptic entry was anything but clear. W. might be Woolf, but what the embroidery was I could not fathom. But the next notation stopped me. It concerned the death of his wife and after it was a lapse of a month. It simply said:

Beatrice gone. What shall I do? Go. Give me strength. I closed the journal.

"I'm no detective," I said to Charley, "and I've no stomach for this."

We went into the library and sat through the gray hours of the morning, smoking and waiting for someone to put an end to our uselessness. It was the post-man who started it all rolling again. Merely by dropping the mail through the slot and ringing the bell. The letter caught my eye at once. A long white envelope, who goes to a better world velope and written across the face in clear, bold script was Phineas Hudson's name with the appendage Esquire added as a kind of ironic flourish. And in the lower left hand corner were two words that the writer had written large and underlined for emphasis: Personal—Urgent. I felt a tingling at the roots of my hair. I carried the letter into the study, its thickness teasing my palm, and passed it to Charley.

"You're the legal half of this firm," I said. "What about it?" Charley looked at me silently, then stared up at me. Excitement leaked from his eyes, betraying the dead calm of his voice.

"That's Phineas Hudson's signature."

And his finger was resting on the address on the envelope. "But it can't be," I said. "He's dead."

Charley slit open the long envelope. An insurance policy and a note. Nothing more. Charley glanced at the note, read a line or two, then stopped.

"This seems to be personal," he said. "It's for Pat."

"Pat's asleep," I said. "You'd better read it all."

The letter was signed by Phineas Hudson—a strangely moving message to his daughter which he had addressed to himself for reasons that came clear in the note. "Dear Pat,

So many times I've heard of people who have forgotten to say goodbye, and I've seen the heartache that this neglect has caused. The occasion seems to have arrived for me to take my leave of you. If I am wrong, I can intercept this letter myself and avoid feeling incredibly foolish and sentimental. If I am right—God bless you, child, and from the bottom of my heart I wish you all the happiness that the world can hold for its own.

Don't worry about me. If I greatly cared to live, I should not be attempting what I have in mind. The insurance policy is one I had forgotten. It's small enough to help you a little, but not big enough to hurt. Remember, Pat, no false gods. And no stickiness about your 'poor my eye at once. A long white envelope, who goes to a better world and, thanks to a little tardy vision, knows it.

With all my love,

Father."

"And he could have told us so much," said Charley as he folded the note.

"It was against his policy," I said. "What you're ignorant of, you needn't lie about. Let me see that note a moment."

One sentence interested me: "If I greatly cared to live, I should not be attempting what I have in mind."

I read it aloud. "What do you suppose he meant by that, Charley?"

Charley shook his head. "If I didn't know he was murdered, I should say suicide."

"I wonder if he really had the diamonds?"

"If he did," Charley answered darkly, "I hope he took them with him."

But he hadn't. And what we had lived dangerously in the fringes of was now dumped squarely into our laps. I have tried since, desperately but unsuccessfully, to erase the memory of those next forty-eight hours. They scarcely come under the head of pleasant reminiscences.
