Screaming pickets greet Rusk in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Screaming anti-war pickets clashed with police in a sporadic running street battle Tuesday night as they protested a speech-making appearance by State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Police counted at least 46 persons arrested. They estimated the number of demonstrators at 3,000. Five policemen and an undetermined number of civilians were injured.

The violence broke out in front of the New York Hilton Hotel where Rusk was addressing a dinner meeting of the Foreign Policy Association.

Renewing his offer to the North Vietnamese government to "negotiate today without condition," Rusk said "if a representative of Hanoi would make himself available anywhere to discuss peace, I would be there."

He chided opponents of the war who, he said, "would brush aside a security treaty as a scrap of paper," urging his listeners to "reflect soberly on the dangers which would arise if it should be discovered that our security treaties do not mean what they say."

DEPARTS FROM TEXT

Departing from his prepared text he took note of the demonstrators and challenged "'those who carry the banner, 'Peace in Vietnam,' " to produce a representative of North Vietnam willing to negotiate.

Heavy police guards prevented the demonstrators from effective harassment of the dinner proceedings.

On Times Square, theatregoers found themselves trapped in stores and restaurants as the crowds of demonstrators swarmed over the sidewalks and taunted mounted police. The windshield of one cab was kicked in.

The crowd cheered when the moving news sign on the Allied Chemical Tower said: "Demonstrators Picket Secretary of State Rusk" and yelled obscenities when a later item said, "Johnson says U.S. Peace Offer Shows Who is Interested."

On Sixth Avenue, a group of some 200 youths linked hands and blocked traffic at several intersections between 51st and 44th streets.

Running along sidewalks and into streets, the mostly young, long-haired demonstrators hurled plastic bags of red liquid at police and passing cars.

State department security men brought Rusk to New York from Washington ahead of schedule and he slipped into the hotel at 4:55 p.m.

Trains collide head-on near Drummondville

DRUMMONDVILLE — (Staff) — The CNR Quebec to Montreal Rapido train and a CNR freight train collided head-on between St. Germain and St. Eugene near here at approximately 8:45 this morning.

A spokesman for the CNR public relations department in Montreal said that no one was killed "but a number of people have been injured."

The injured were taken to the St. Croix Hospital in Drummondville.

There have been reports that one of the diesel engines caught fire after the impact of the collision.

A CNR spokesman said that three diesels were derailed but he didn't know whether they were from the Rapido or the freight train.

It is reported that eight members of the Drummondville QPP are at the scene of the accident along with members of the Drummondville Civil Defense.

The accident took place about five miles west of Drummondville.

The cause of the accident isn't known but the CNR public relations spokesman said the trains were near a passing switch.

He said the reason that there was no serious injuries was that the trains were probably travelling at a reduced speed approaching the switch.

The spokesman said it is possible that some snow or ice became jammed in the passing switch causing it to malfunction.

He added that there were probably no cars derailed besides the three diesels.

Communication between the accident scene and other areas is difficult as there are no telephones near the accident and all phone calls have to be made from Drummondville five miles away.

The CNR spokesman said that buses had been provided to transport passengers to Montreal from the accident scene.

Vandals' sentence deferred

SWEETSBURG WARD — — (Staff) — Floyd Ling, 19, and Brian Dyball, 18, Knowlton, will be sentenced November 16, for wrecking gravestones in the Anglican Cemetaries in Brome and Knowlton, October 24.

Sentence originally scheduled for November 14, was delayed due to the absence of Crown Prosecutor Claude Noiseux, who had been called to Appeal Court in Montreal. The duo were remanded to cells pending sentencing.

Jacques Meunier made a bid for bail for Dyball, who has been incarcerated since November 3. Judge Gerard Normandin refused the request.

NWT told to abolish separate schools

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Northwest Territories council was told Tuesday it will be asked to abolish the separate school system and secularize all schools in the Territories.

Duncan Pryde, 31, of Bathurst Inlet, told the council at the second day of sessions in this new territorial capital that Roman Catholic schools had created "needless bigotry, needless trouble, needless expense and needless religious prejudice."

He said separation of schools on the basis of religion was inherently wrong.

"The religious segregation of school children is on a par with racial segregation or any other form of segregation and, as such, is to be condemned in the Northwest Territories."

IT'S FUN — This morning's snow storm brought hours of pleasure to those under 16 while it meant inconvenience to city motorists and commuters. Sherbrooke's numerous hills were difficult for motorists and bus drivers to manipulate. Most city buses were about five or 10 minutes late on their routes. Shown here taking advantage of the storm are, from left to right, Francine Bernier, Julie Laurendeau and Diane Bernier. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

An early snow storm blankets ET region

A surprise, early season snow storm dumped approximately three to four inches of snow on Sherbrooke and the surrounding Eastern Townships regions last night and this morning.

The Goverment of Canada weather station at East Angus reported scattered snow flurries were expected throughout the day.

Temperatures are expected to plunge to a low tonight of 10 degrees above zero.

Thursday is expected to be cold with snow flurries.

The Sherbrooke Roads Department said that graders were out on the city hills, sanders were working on the roads, and sidewalks were being ploughed throughout most of last night. Work began at 5:30 this morning, and conditions were extremely slippery.

The Sherbrooke police department reported that there were 20 minor accidents, since yesterday morning.

Magog police reported three minor accidents this morning that may have been caused by snow conditions. Danville police reported two accidents, and Windsor police reported one.

Yves Forest supports hanging

OTTAWA (CP) — Two more MP's who voted against the abolition of the death penalty 18 months ago said Tuesday they will support a compromise bill now before the Commons as the debate on a Government motion continued in the House of Commons.

But Yves Forest, Liberal MP for Stanstead, declared his opposition to any move to abolish the death penalty.

Registrar - General Turner and Auguste Choquette (L—Lotbiniere) joined J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Digby - Annapolis-Kings), who spoke last Friday, in accepting the compromise move.

The three lawyers all voted against a bill April 5, 1966, that would have abolished the death penalty for murder.

The bill put before the House by Solicitor - General Pennell would reserve the gallows for murderers of working prison guards and policemen.

Among the 27 speakers so far in three days of debate on second reading, 14 have said they will support the bill and 12 have said they will oppose it.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River), a retentionist in the last vote, didn't commit himself. Seven of the nine Liberals who spoke said they will support the bill.

The Conservative score is 7 to 4 against.

All three NDP speakers have favored the bill while opposition has come from a Creditiste, a Social Credit member and an independent MP.

The last executions in Canada took place in December, 1962, when the Conservative government was in office.

Mr. Turner said that while he voted against abolition last time, he had supported an amendment that would have restricted execution to murderers of police and prison guards.

While he now advocated abolition "intentionally and emotionally," he felt the majority of Canadians are probably retentionists.

COMPARABLE PROBLEMS

He said the questions raised by capital punishment are as difficult as those posed by divorce and abortion, other areas of probable statutory change in the present session.

In divorce, the instinct against legislating morals collided with the belief that the family unit is fundamental to Western society.

Stanfield takes seat today

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who takes his Commons seat for the first time today, says his party will seize any opportunity to defeat the government and thus force an election.

It would be an "act of patriotism" if the Conservatives could oust the Liberals, who had lost the confidence of Canadians, the 53-year-old former Nova Scotia premier said in an interview.

The government now holds exactly half the occupied Commons seats.

Standing in the Commons: Liberals 132, Conservatives, 95, NDP 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit, 4, Independent 3, vacant 1—total 265.

Mr. Stanfield was to be sworn in at 10:30 a.m. S MP for the Nova Scotia riding of Colchester-Hants in the office of Commons Clerk Alistair Fraser.

TAKES SEAT AT 2:30 P.M.

He will take his front-row place as Opposition leader when the Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. after Speaker Lucien Lamoureux declares: "Let the honorable member take his seat."

Prime Minister Pearson in the Commons Tuesday paid a handsome tribute to Michael Starr, interim Opposition leader since the House resumed its session Sept. 25.

He congratulated Mr. Starr on the way in which he had carried out his responsibilities and said the MP for Ontario is held in the regard and affection of all MPs.

Mr. Starr said he almost felt like a blushing bride.

Mr. Stanfield said the Conservatives will apply the most pressure on the government on the issue of the administration's "mismanagement" of its financial operations.

TAX BOOST A CONCERN

The major concern for Canadians in the next month or so would be inflation and the government's proposed tax increase, as yet unspecified, he said.

He said the most important problem facing Canadians is national unity.

He suggested the Canadian public can help politicians—provincial as well as federal—by accepting generally that it is only fair that there be French-language schools outside Quebec.

Confederation Train brings Canada's history to Sherbrooke

The Confederation Train, the Centennial Commission's travelling showcase of Canada from the dawn of history to the present, arrives in Sherbrooke on November 16. One of the major attractions in the celebrations of the Centennial of Canadian Confederation, the train will be on exhibit here for four days.

During its stay, it will be located at the Sherbrooke Lower Yard along Grand Forks Street where its six exhibit cars will be on display to the general public between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m. daily. It will leave early November 20 for St. Johns, the next stop on its 331-day journey across Canada.

The gaily - painted 15-unit Confederation Train is no ordinary one. It's a sight and sound adventure through Canadian history that took three years to plan and another one to build.

Unusual lighting and sound effects, artifacts and historic documents, life - like displays and colorful photography all blend in one continuous exhibit to give visitors a vivid description of what Canada means.

Visitors will pass through a primeval forest. They will walk through a darkened mine shaft, over a section of early railway track, into a wheat field. They will experience the sensations of taking steerage passage to Canada on a sailing ship, of living in the hectic years of the roaring twenties, and of fighting in two world wars. They will pause for a moment of reflection in the Chamber of Confederation.

Historic items on display range from Joseph Howe's printing press and Louis Riel's pistol to Amundsen's anchor and a Viking sword. All artifacts — more than than 100 — have been collected from every corner of the country.

Some of Canada's top creative talents were involved in the train's creation. Writers were called on at the outset to help set down the broad themes it illustrates.

Dozens of the country's most prominent artists, designers and sculptors helped to bring the ideas alive. All worked under the supervision of the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission.

There is a great deal for visitors to experience. They can touch the exhibits, press buttons that start brief, recorded explanations in either English or French, try to balance along a railway track, hear sounds and smell the smells of wartime.

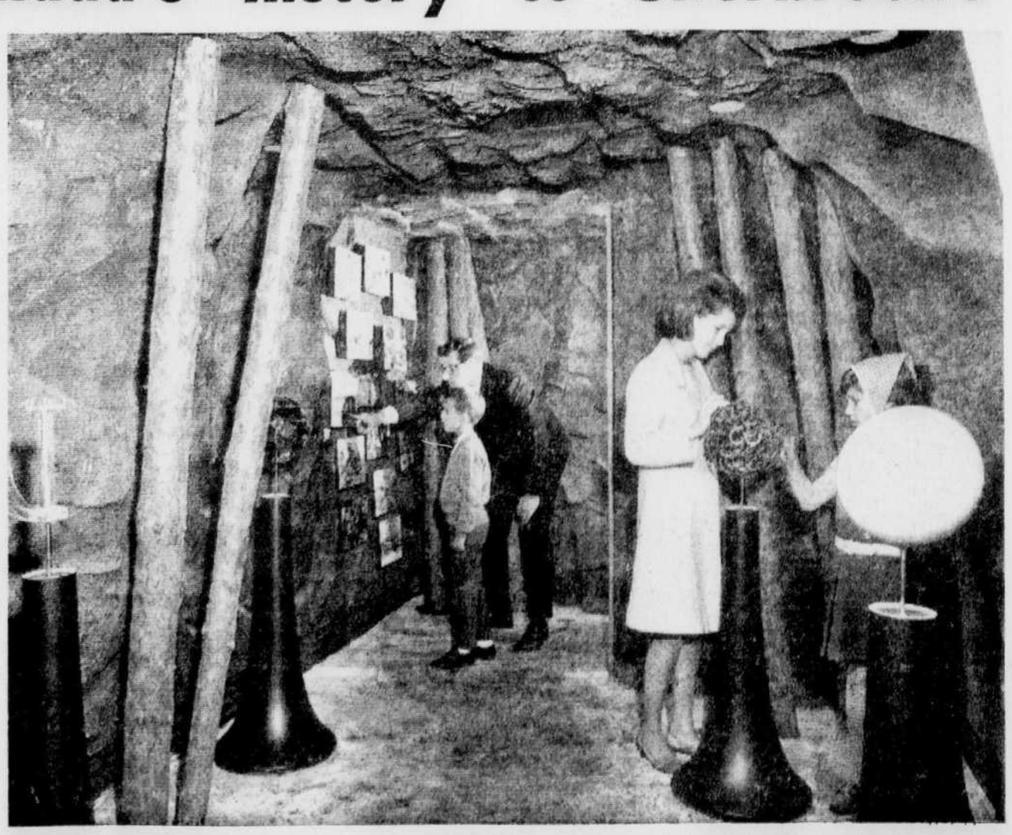
All this is the surprise that awaits visitors as they pass scarlet - coated RCMP escorts to enter the train.

Altogether, the train is staffed by a permanent team of 26 men under the supervision of the train manager and his assistant. This group of specialists includes exhibit attendants, electricians, mechanics, other specialists and a seven - man RCMP contingent, which is responsible for the train's security.

In addition to the six exhibit cars, the train is made up of two diesel engines provided by the two national and seven service cars, which have sleeping, dining and baggage facilities.

The train's 83 exhibit stops will be in 63 of Canada's major cities and towns. The number of stops exceeds the number of cities because centres like Vancouver, Toronto, and Montreal will accommodate the train at different stations during the visit.

The train was officially opened in Victoria on January 9. It worked its way eastward until it reached the Atlantic Provinces, October 26. Then it swung back into Quebec before completing its itinerary in Montreal on December 15.



TIMBERED INTERIOR of a mine shaft on the Confederation Train creates a dramatic background for displays of Canada's precious metals and a photographic montage of the Klondike gold rush.

Shirley Temple loses her election

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star attempting a political debut, was defeated Tuesday for the Republican nomination for Congress by Paul N. McCloskey, Korean war hero who advocates American disengagement from the Vietnam war.

McCloskey, 40, Navy Cross and Silver Star winner, faces Democrat Roy A. Archibald, 47, in a Dec. 12 runoff election for San Mateo County's 11th District seat, vacated through the death of J. Arthur Younger, a Republican.

Mrs. Black told her supporters: "I will be back. This was my first race and now I know how the game is played. I plan to decicate my life and energies to public service because I think my country needs it now more than ever."

With 564 of San Mateo County's 575 precincts counted Tuesday, McCloskey rolled up 50,634 votes to 33,015 for Mrs. Black.

DISTANT DEMOCRATS

Archibald polled 14,645 votes against 8,546 for Edward M. Keating, his nearest Democratic rival.

LBJ loses control for three major reasons

WASHINGTON (CP)—There are three main causes for President Johnson's loss of control over Congress and the resulting do-little lable the Congress now bears.

One factor is a reaction to his spectacular successes with the 89th Congress of 1965-66 which did almost everything he asked and sometimes more.

Another is the sour mood of the nation, restive over the Vietnam war, civil rights, rising costs and federal and state tax demands. The president's public popularity is down and some Democrats are keeping their distance.

Finally, the system of government contributes to the malaise.

Often the U.S. government is called a form of checks and balances. There are more checks than balances now for the president from Congress. Party discipline, always weak by Canadian or British standards, is badly split in both the Democratic and Republican ranks.

American humorist Will Rogers used to say that as a Democrat, he belonged to no organized party. Today, that tends to be true of both parties, although rallying will occur as the 1968 election nears.

DIRKSEN HIS ALLY

In the Senate, the president's strongest ally is the Republican leader, Everett Dirksen of Illinois. Dirksen is a Johnson loyalist.

Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, the president's nominal spokesman in Congress, is a restrained but persistent critic of the Vietnam war while Dirksen is anything but. Mansfield sees the president less than Dirksen.

There is some Republican grumbling that Dirksen will have to begin showing more independence to strengthen Republican party unity for next year's presidential and congressional elections.

The administration has been at war with the Senate foreign affairs committee over Vietnam for two years. The Senate finance committee has a majority of Democrats and Republicans on a trade-protectionist kick, despite strong government pressure to maintain its freer-trade policies.

But the real disintegration in party discipline, which has a traditional pattern to it, is in the 435-seat House of Representatives.

The president in 1964 won a hands-down majority for his party and had the support of many Republicans who favored progressive legislation on civil rights, medicare, social welfare and even some congressional reforms. He lost 47 house seats last year.

PARTY LINES SPLIT

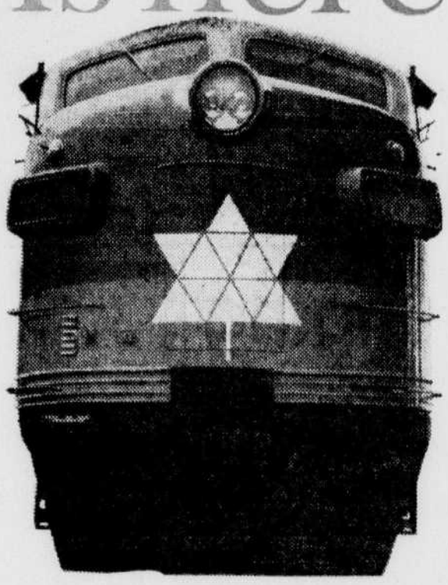
Technically, he still has a Democratic working edge of 60. In fact, southern Demorats have resumed their old alliance with Republicans to block many of his major legislative requests.

"We are in the beginning of one of those well-defined, recurrent legislative crises that are the characteristic expression of our peculiar divided government," writes Washington journalist Richard Strout, a veteran observer.

The president's major defeat came when the House voted by 238 to 164 to cut spending by $6,000,000,000. Otherwise, it said, there would be no tax increase as requested by the president to ward off inflation.

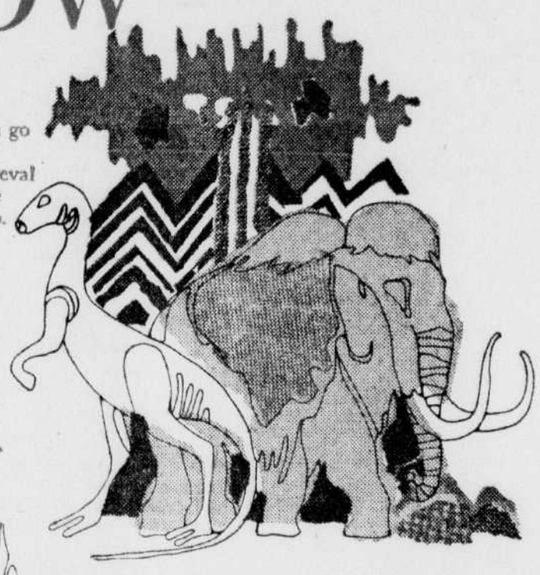
This was the kind of vote that would instantly have brought a cabinet fall in Parliament, with an election," says Strout. But there will be no election for another year and, because of a crisis in confidence, a "lot of Democratic House members who would normally support Mr. Johnson have cut loose from him and are out to save their own skins."

The Confederation Train is here tomorrow



The most exciting and unique train you have have ever seen. Everyone in town will be coming. Make sure you don't miss the train that brings Canada to you!

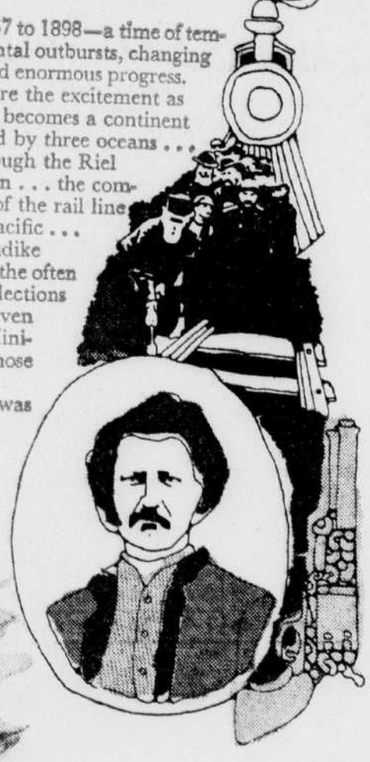
1. In the first exhibit car, you go right back to the creation of the Continent—walk through a primeval forest and hear the sounds of life that existed millions of years ago. Then you see how the ice age came crunching down, changing and shaping our country. This is how Canada was formed—and you'll see it happening!



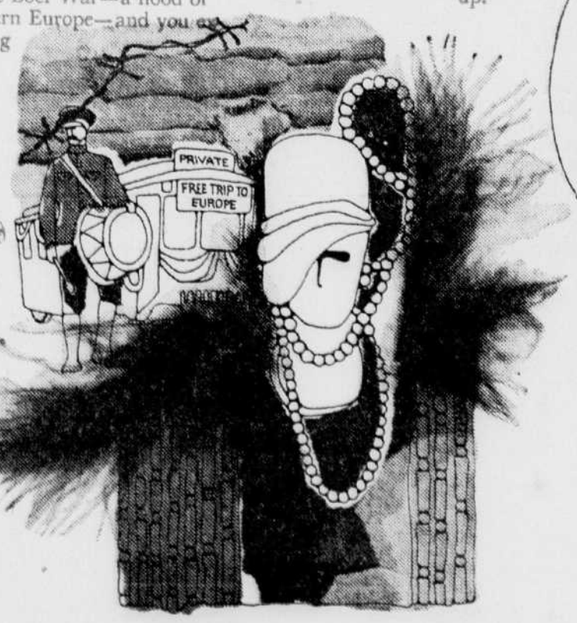
2. Have you ever wondered how it must have been to be an early explorer of Canada? These men were real adventurers! Here, you realize, perhaps for the first time, the tremendous magnitude of their explorations. Then came the settlers, and you share their discomfort and dreams as they cross the ocean in the hold of an immigrant ship.

3. Now you discover, as the early settlers did, that life in the New World was not quite what you'd been led to believe. The difficulties were numerous. You begin to appreciate how much Confederation meant to Canadians as you move from the confusion of settlement life into the stillness of the Confederation Chamber.

4. 1867 to 1898—a time of temperamental outbursts, changing ideas and enormous progress. You share the excitement as Canada becomes a continent bordered by three oceans . . . live through the Riel Rebellion . . . the completion of the rail line to the Pacific . . . the Klondike rush . . . the often stormy elections of the seven Prime Ministers of those times Canada was growing up.



5. The coming of the twentieth century—the Boer War—a flood of immigrants from Eastern Europe—and you experience the frightening din of trench warfare as seen from a dugout in World War I. The twenties roar in with flappers, peep shows, player pianos and a Mack Sennett movie. Suddenly, the stock crash—the bleakness of the thirties ending, in 1939, with newspapers proclaiming "Canada at War with Germany!"



6. The second World War—Canada begins producing warplanes, tanks and ships while her heroes fight and die abroad. Prime Minister Mackenzie King announces the war's end. Now Canadians turn anew to science, politics, medicine, industry, the arts and international affairs. Our achievements in these fields give every indication that our greatest era is about to begin...

May return to federal PC party says Allard

Maurice Allard, Member of Parliament for Sherbrooke said Monday he would be prepared to enter into negotiations with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield by June 1968 concerning his return to the ranks of the federal Conservative Party.

Mr. Allard, who has been sitting in the House of Commons as an independent since his re-election in 1965 was addressing the first formal meeting this year of the Bishop's University Conservative Club on the subject of why he quit the party and his political future.

On the subject of his return to the Conservatives, Mr. Allard said, "I am strongly tempted to do so, but I think it would be better for me to wait six months and watch developments."

He said he did not know Robert Stanfield personally, but felt he was an intelligent man of democratic leanings since he has already perceived the merits of Quebec's grievances against Ottawa and the rest of Canada.

He then turned to the reasons for his leaving the Conservative party, attributing his departure from the ranks to the "personality cult" which former P. C. leader John Diefenbaker was developing in the party.

"Mr. Diefenbaker," he said, "was behaving like a dictator and controlling the members of his party in the House to such an extent that they were not following any substantial or coherent program."

He lashed out at Mr. Diefenbaker for not retiring from the house after his defeat at the convention last year, saying, "His die-hard obstinacy can only serve to undermine Mr. Stanfield's control over his group."

Mr. Allard maintained Mr. Diefenbaker's presence in the light of his avowed refusal to accept the two nations concept was hurting the chances of acceptance of special status for the province, not only in the cultural, but also in the financial and economic fields.

He said that during his tenure as party leader, Mr. Diefenbaker had closed his eyes to the problems of Quebec. "The Conservative Party was no longer the Conservative party," he said. "It was the Diefenbaker Party: one boss, one nation, one idea (his own), one intelligence (his own), one everything."

"Elected members in his party were so dominated by him," said Mr. Allard, "that they were sunk in a dismal bog of intellectual slavery, they were becoming immune to all spirit of democracy, they were not producing any original ideas and they were losing touch with the people."

He suggested a housecleaning be done in the Conservative cabinet of the future and that only the hardest working and ablest members be chosen rather than the most blindly docile and mediocre ones as was the case under Diefenbaker.

Mr. Allard came out strongly in favor of the two nations concept. "We often do our thinking in terms of the two mentalities the two languages and the two cultures," he said.

The meeting will be divided into four sections: campaign conference, annual meeting of the members of the Quebec division, provincial council meeting and the board of directors meeting.

On Friday, Nov. 17, at 1 p.m. the campaign conference will open with a talk on cancer research by Dr. R. M. Taylor, executive vice-president of the Canadian Cancer Society and executive director of the National Cancer Institute.

His talk will be divided into two parts: the progress in cancer research and the role of the National Cancer Institute.

George Pifher, secretary-treasurer of both the National Cancer Institute and the Canadian Cancer Society will follow with a talk on the aims and objectives of the Canadian Cancer Society along with the relations between the National and provincial societies.

Joseph C. Clapinson, national campaign chairman, will then speak on the projected annual campaign.

At the present time the society is raising approximately $5 million annually and in five years time hopes to have this amount raised to $8 million.

Following Mr. Clapinson, Roland Gagne, the general campaign chairman will speak on the necessity of funds.

The conference will continue with a talk by Marcel Gay, provincial chairman of the extension committee, on the expansion and maintenance of the provincial section.

A panel discussion will round out the conference.

The discussion will be on campaign receipts with J. C. Lebel, vice-president of the Canadian Cancer Society, acting as moderator.

Panelists will be as follows: canvassing, house to house, Mrs. L. Schooner, president of the Pierreville section; subscriptions, employees, Feraud Dubois, president of the Montreal section; industries and corporations, Ivan Saunders, vice-president of the Sherbrooke section; special names, Dr. Jacques Letellier, president of the Sherbrooke section and local publicity Gregoire Mercure, campaign chairman, Drummondville section.

The society's brief to the commission on health and welfare will be presented by Guy Angers after the panel discussion.

Mr. Angers is the executive director of the Canadian Cancer Society.

At 7 p.m. a dinner will be held in the Salle d'Armes. The guest speaker will be Dr. Gerald LaSalle, Dean of the faculty of medicine at the University of Sherbrooke.

On the Saturday, Nov. 18, the day will open with the annual meeting of the members of the Quebec division at 9 a.m.

The provincial council meeting will follow along with the board of directors meeting.

At noon there will be a reception in the Salle l'Echanson followed by a luncheon at 1 p.m.

The annual meeting will end with a film presentation Saturday afternoon.

ROTARY FOUNDATION WEEK — The Sherbrooke Rotary Club celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Rotary Foundation last night at their weekly meeting at the New Sherbrooke Hotel. For this special occasion, two Rotary Foundation award winners were presented last night as guest speakers. Seen above from left to right, discussing the Foundation are: Reino Hjerppe, from Finland, a Foundation Fellow who spoke on his country; Lorne Thomson, vice-president, who presided over the meeting; and Frank Jenne, Rotary Foundation award winner from Lennoxville, who will leave with his family next autumn for Hartfordshire, England, to study printing technology.

Says independent Finland seeks good relations with East, West

Finland's major goal today is to preserve its independence and to remain friendly with both the east and west, Rotarians were told last night at their weekly meeting at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

The principal guest speaker was Reino Hjerppe, Rotary Foundation Fellow from Finland, now studying at the University of Rochester, who informed Rotarians of his country's background.

The second guest speaker of the night was Frank Jenne, Rotary Foundation Technical training award winner from Lennoxville, who will leave for Hartfordshire, England, next year in the late summer to further his studies in printing technology.

Mr. Hjerppe, who obtained his Master of Arts degree at Helsinki University in Finland, said in reference to Finland's relations with the Soviet Union, that Finland wants to stay impartially outside the interests of the big powers.

He said that 1967 is the 50th anniversary of the independent republic of Finland, coincidental with the fact that last night the Rotary Club celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Rotary Foundation.

Finland will celebrate Independence Day on Dec. 6 and Mr. Hjerppe expressed hope for all Finns that in the second half of their first century of independence the country will confidently develop and build its industries and foreign relations.

He told Rotarians of Finland's history, saying that at one time it was connected with Sweden until the War of 1809, after which the Russians won the control of the North European country.

Finland was granted independence in 1917 and in the late 1930's, Mr. Hjerppe said, relations with the Soviet Union worsened and a war broke out in 1939 which lasted until 1940 and the Finns lost much territory as a result.

In 1942, another war between Russia and Finland put a heavy burden on the Finns once more, as they lost more valuable territory and had to pay war reparations to Russia, when the war ended in 1944.

There are nine political parties in Finland's Parliament and Mr. Hjerppe said these added color and interest to Finnish politics.

Southern Finland's climate is similar to that of Canada, Mr.

Plead guilty to thefts

Two young Sherbrooke men pleaded guilty in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions yesterday to three charges of theft.

They appeared before Judge Redmond Hayes.

Jean-Rock Morin, 21, was given a suspended sentence and ordered to post a $200 bond to keep the peace for a year and Bernard Bergeron, 19, was sentenced to one month in prison.

They pleaded guilty to stealing a car wheel worth $50, property of Mrs. Maurice Cooney; one complete car wheel worth $25, the property of Rejean Vanasse; and one cushion, a flashlight, a pair of pliers and various personal papers which belonged to Hubert Pepin.

The offences were committed on or about the night of Nov. 13.

Bergeron has a previous record, dating back to 1966, and as a result, he received the stiffer sentence.

This was Morin's first criminal offence.

Judge Hayes told Bergeron he was warned the last time he appeared in court to post a bond to keep the peace and he received a suspended sentence.

He said that Bergeron had already receive the clemency of the court and he did not take heed so now he must suffer the consequences.

Bergeron said he was organizing himself to get a job and Judge Hayes retorted that he would have to organize himself when he got out of jail.

Judge Hayes said he gave Morin the same chance that Bergeron got in 1966.

Two 18-year-old Magog youths pleaded guilty to a charge of simple assault and were given suspended sentences.

Gilles Audet and Gilles Plante were ordered by Judge Hayes to post a $200 bond to keep the peace for a year and not to appear in court again.

Neither of the two had a previous record.

They were accused of assaulting Normand Dubois in Magog.

Sherbrooke students protest Vietnam war

Approximately 200 French-language post secondary school students joined forces yesterday for Sherbrooke's first public demonstration against the war in Vietnam.

The students gathered at the Cenotaph on King Street hill and laid a wreath during the calm demonstration which started at 1:30 p.m. and ended at 2:15 p.m.

Police directed the traffic around King Street as they had been advised of the demonstration.

There was no shouting, no songs and no slogans from the students of St. Charles Seminary, who organized the demonstration, l'Ecole Normale Notre Dame de Sacre Coeur and l'Ecole Normale de l'Estrie.

The group dispersed in a quiet manner following speeches by Abbe Jean Mercier, principal of l'Ecole Normale Notre Dame de Sacre Coeur, and Michel Pilin, vice-president of the General Association of Students of the Seminary of Sherbrooke, who was responsible for the demonstration.

Mr. Pilon said the demonstration proves that students want the cessation of man killing man.

Mr. Pilon declared: "What justifies our presence here, what commands us to be here, is the tragedy in Vietnam."

A new look is planned for town of Lysander

LYSANDER — (Staff) — Residents of Lysander and environs will see the town take on a new look this summer.

The facelifting includes the construction of a large picnic and parking area on both sides of the River Thames which is scheduled for completion by next summer.

In addition an asphalt road to link Inverness Village and Ste. Agathe de Lotbiniere will go under construction next spring. And from the new road there is an excellent hard surfaced road which leads directly to the Quebec Bridge.

This new road, when completed, will reduce the distance from Inverness to Quebec by about 10 miles.

Support Young Canada's Book Week

Young Canada's Book Week, which opens today, has for its purpose impressing upon parents the importance of providing their children with the best in reading and with giving the children the pleasures that may accrue from the study of books, both current and from the past.

Children's books, as part of all great literature, take into account the realities of human condition.

In their earliest encounters with myths and folk tales children come face to face with the uniquely human facts of fear and hope, doubt and reassurance, love and hate, and in their solutions, discover something of the human values and judgments which are part of the pattern of life.

No matter how wide the field of knowledge, no matter how diversified the interests, no matter how vast the Universe of Man's discovery, he will take his human nature wherever he goes.

And part of the need of that nature, along with the urge to creativity and discovery which drives him on, is the joy of recognition and familiarity, which gives to all he does a relevance with the world that produced him.

Scientists themselves have stated that it is through the development of their imaginations that today's children may be best prepared to face the complexities of the world which lies before them, a world in which the most profound scientific discovery can become obsolete overnight.

In providing the children with the best of reading, adults should remember the old quotation:

"The joys of the purse may be lost or stolen; those of the heart may turn to sorrow; but the joys of the mind will be with you to the end of your journey."

National building code needed here

Action by the Sherbrooke City Council to bring the local building by-laws into conformity with the National Building Code, the basis used by most lending organizations in determining the financial assistance they will render to prospective builders is a step towards halting the steadily spiralling construction costs.

Grim experience has shown that many of the requirements of the local code are too severe and result in excessive costs, while permitting many other abuses.

Even at the time it was first adopted there were many complaints that some of the provisions were unrealistic while others failed to take into consideration many of the advances in construction technology that made them obsolete when they were enacted.

Despite certain revisions in 1961, most of these basic objections still remain.

By realigning the provisions of the Sherbrooke by-law to meet the requirements set by the national code, prospective builders of commercial or residential property will find themselves able to adopt standards in effect elsewhere.

Local building codes may have proved sufficient in the days when most mortgage funds were generated in the immediate district in which the loans were made, as the lenders knew local conditions first hand and very often the character of the prospective borrower was more important in determining the amount of a loan than the material security offered.

But the present day practice whereby the loans are made by institutions whose head offices are located thousands of miles away makes it essential that local building requirements agree with those effective elsewhere in the country.

Readers say:

Record story could be misleading

Dear Sir,

To avoid misunderstandings which might well arise from your story on the English Department of Sherbrooke University (Nov. 9), would you be good enough to publish the following corrections.

1) I did not say that "Canada does not have two cultures." What I did say was that from the several divergent cultures of Canada a single cultural mystique was beginning to emerge. The development can be observed in the striking parallels between French-Canadian and English - Canadian Literature. I also said that if Canada becomes more dynamic as a nation, and if a deeper mutual understanding between the two major ethnic groups in Canada can be achieved — which is, incidentally, the objective of the Department's program — there is reason to believe that the single cultural mystique will establish itself.

2) Wayne University is not in New York. It is in Detroit.

3) Mr. Douglas Gordon Jones has not written two novels. He is the author of three books of poetry: Frost on the Sun (Contact), The Sun is Axeman (Toronto), Prases from Orpheus (Oxford). His work is in several anthologies, including The Oxford Book of Canadian Verse and Ralph Gustafson's Penguin Anthology of Canadian Verse.

4) Our professors are not recruited from "every level of university life." We have simply tried to have a variety of academic backgrounds.

5) My book, recently published by Basil Blackwell and Mott Ltd., Oxford, and to be brought out in an American edition by the University of California Press, is entitled The Romaunt of the Rose and Le Roman de la Rose.

6) The Department does not offer 21 courses in the comparative literature, only five. The rest of the program is made up of more or less standard courses in French, French - Canadian, English, English-Canadian and American literary works.

I appreciate the interest you have taken in our Department, and I trust the above corrections will not present too great an inconvenience.

Yours sincerely,
RONALD SUTHERLAND
Director
Department of English

Let's go mod with modern monument

Dear Sir:

I have been following with interest the articles in your newspaper concerning the Sir Alexander T. Galt memorial.

Needless to say I was disappointed the Galt home could not have been preserved but now that a memorial is to be erected let's keep our thinking young — let's go mod. I'm sure Sir A. was a mod in his day.

We, who are interested in preserving his memory, are well past the Go-Go age and if we can't shake our bones like the young of today we surely can think young and modern.

If a bust of Sir Alexander was erected I'm sure it would create no stir but take the proposed memorial and I can vision the following conversation in showing off our historical sites:

"This is the A. T. Galt Memorial. He is Sherbrooke's Father of Confederation What is it supposed to represent? That's your guess. Looks like a bunch of bananas. Some say they are crescents. Possibly Sir A. had high ideals and was always reaching for the moon. Wonder just what his accomplishments were?"

The memorial could stimulate interesting discussions. I never pass Henry Moore's Lady in Three Parts, in Montreal without trying to puzzle that one out.

So give us something in Sherbrooke to puzzle our minds over and stimulate our interest in modern art.

Credulity always in fashion

Government will probably make changes to laws on lotteries

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Henry Fielding, the irreverent author of Tom Jones, may have said it all in 1732 when he wrote:

"A lottery is a taxation
"Upon all the fools in creation
"And heaven be praised
"It is easily raised
"Credulity's always in fashion."

As a means of raising taxes, lotteries have little currency in the era of a billion-dollar budget.

But credulity is as fashionable now as it was in the 18th century, and it is driving Canada towards more liberal gambling laws.

Justice Minister Trudeau has said he will introduce amendments, during this parliamentary session, to the Criminal Code sections on lotteries.

"I would not want to say how we are dealing with it," he replied, when asked for details.

However, it's a good bet that the provinces will be given the authority to allow lotteries for worthy causes.

This might check the money that now goes out of Canada for foreign lotteries such as the Irish Hospital sweepstakes.

MIGHT HIT RACKETS

It would also help get racketeers out of domestic lotteries that continue to boom despite prohibitive laws.

Former RCMP commissioner Clifford Harvison says in his book The Horsemen that gangsters are "the chief beneficiaries" of present statutes.

Other advocates of a more liberal law have included at least two provinces—Quebec and Manitoba—and former justice minister Lionel Chevrier.

Quebec has had lotteries legislation on its books since 1934, awaiting the expected federal move that will enable it to operate a provincial lottery.

Mr. Trudeau himself says he has "no moral objection" to lotteries. Like Fielding, he tends to look upon them as an irrepressible assertion of human gullibility.

"I don't think they are a progressive way of taxing the people but there are certainly other advantages," he has said. "Many people do gamble in that way and I don't think there is anything wrong with it.

"In fact, I think the money raised is rather small. But there may be something to be said for keeping it in the country rather than having it go outside."

COULD SEIZE WINNINGS

The Irish sweepstakes swag this year was $13,245,092 but only $2,435,496 found its way to hospitals.

Canadians win hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in this sweepstake. Although the winners are well publicized, a Criminal Code clause that would allow the government to seize their winnings has never been invoked.

A Senate-Commons committee recommended in 1955 that sweepstakes prizes be confiscated.

The Ontario attorney-general's committee on gambling law enforcement rejected such a move in a 1961 report, saying it would arouse "widespread public resentment."

Instead it recommended that it be made an offence to publish the results of such lotteries.

There are legal lotteries in Canada now because of exemptions in the Criminal Code.

Religious and charitable organizations have run bingos and draws for years to raise funds. The law says such bodies may hold money games in places used "occasionally" for the purpose. The word "occasionally" gets a varied interpretation from one province to another.

PROS REAP PROFITS

The Ontario committee said bingos are run by professionals and profits exceed $1,000,000 a year in the province. Part of the proceeds go to sponsoring churches or service clubs in most cases.

"Such an operation obviously offers a great attraction to the criminal underworld," the report said, recommending stricter limits and more control.

Federal law also exempts chartered social clubs from the gaming laws under certain conditions, a loophole that police say allows big-time gambling.

Agricultural fairs also are exempted, accounting for all those wheels of fortune and other games.

What Commissioner Harvison describes as a statutory "hodge-podge" prohibits other lotteries.

He contends that new laws probably wouldn't increase gambling but could force out gangsters, give bettors protection and provide some revenue.

At present, there isn't much recourse for the man who finds his sweepstakes ticket is counterfeit, his hockey pool is rigged, or that the organizer of the office draw has run off with the funds.

POOLS POPULAR

An illegal lottery exists where three essential elements are combined: a "consideration," or fee; a prize; and chance.

Nevertheless, sweepstakes thrive, commercial pools are common and every major event from an election to a championship game is the occasion for illegal office draws.

Advertising ducks the law by injecting the element of skill—"the skill-testing question" that supposedly erodes pure chance into promotional contests.

Although pari-mutuel betting at the track is legal, thousands use bookies. While police have asked that off-track betting be legalized, Mr. Trudeau has ruled this out.

In the face of wholesale evasion or contempt, the opposition to lotteries has been giving way to cries for clearer law.

The Lord Himself organized a lottery according to the Book of Leviticus. Chapter 16 records his instructions to Moses to have Aaron "cast lots upon two goats: one lot for the Lord, and the other for the scape goat."

"And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the Lord's lot fell and offer him for a sin offering.

"But the goat, on which the lot fell to be the scape goat, shall be presented alive before the Lord. . . ."

STATES HAVE LOTTERIES

Prohibition of lotteries in 1699 didn't stop English punters. Today's law gives them a wide field.

In the United States, the Louisiana lottery grew so powerful that interstate laws which still exist were passed in the 1890s to cut it down.

New Hampshire and New York have revived the state lottery under strict control with revenue earmarked for education.

However, ticket sales in New Hampshire have decreased steadily since its sweepstakes began in 1964, despite prizes up to $100,000 in two drawings.

Centennial year still interesting

Foreign interest in Canadian goods

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Canada's Centennial Year is almost over but it continues to arouse British and French interest in things Canadian — from the economy to culture.

Canadian art is "now something to reckon with," writes critic Bryan Robertson in The Spectator of London. Back from a visit to Canada, he terms it well ahead of Britain as far as government financial backing for the arts is concerned.

Gerard-Jean Froment, writing about the Canadian economy for Le Figaro of Paris, follows other recent French comment by stressing what he calls the opportunities for the businessmen of France in areas of Canada outside as well as inside Quebec.

"Already, federal Canada for some years has been seeking to free itself from the excessively heavy economic influence of the United States," writes Froment.

"Only Europe seems able to help in this undertaking and we (France) are part of Europe."

"Political motives still enjoy precedence over economic necessities" but it could turn out to be regrettable if French businessmen concentrated on Quebec as against Ontario, which is larger in terms of population and material output.

EXPO WAS KNOCKOUT

Robertson, in his Spectator comments, called Expo 67 "a visual knockout, marking the artistic and technological coming-of-age of Canada."

The British critic is well known in his own country as a promoter of young painters and sculptors.

The significance of Expo also is given big play by Jacques Michel, an architectural specialist writing for France's most influential newspaper, Le Monde.

Le Monde, which recently had high praise for Marshall McLuhan and literary critic Northrop Frye of Toronto, gave Michel space in four successive issues to spell out at length the architectural achievements of Expo.

He called them a key to what is in store for cities and homes the world over. But his specialist eye also took in the structural additions to Montreal itself.

Michel says the Canadian city epitomizes current trends in world architecture, which have builders burrowing into the earth as well as scraping skies.

The French commentator points to Montreal's new underground shopping centres and thoroughfares, and to its sparkling subway. These subterranean accomplishments, he writes, show how a city can resort to "controlled environment" techniques in its struggle against rugged winters.

Newspapers in both Britain and France made much of Expo's bettering of the 50,000,000 mark in final attendance.

This "may remain unchallenged for some time," said the London Daily Telegraph. "Japan, which is to stage the next international exhibition in 1970, will find it a hard figure to beat."

Another London paper, The Daily Mail, announced plans to "show Britain the triumphs of the British pavilion," a winner of wide acclaim at the Montreal fair.

With official co-operation, The Mail is highlighting top features of the pavilion in the 1968 edition of a home equipment show it sponsors annually.

Robertson, in analysing Canadian art, says Canadians generally belong to a still-expanding society. As such, they remain "idealistic, uncorrupted by that surfeit of achievement and cultural or technical glamor which is making the Americans these days so blase."

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

A certain Samaritan . . . when he saw him (the man who had fallen among thieves), he had compassion on him. (Luke 10:33).

PRAYER: Father, send us with real compassion among the troubled and depressed of the world. May we give ourselves to them in such a way that we will get a glimpse of their despair and their hurt. Through Jesus Christ we pray. Amen.

CUBA'S FUTURE GENERATION — These youngsters, smiling and enjoying a block party in Havana, are destined to become Cuba's new post-Castro generation. Their future is being planned to continue the revolutionary tradition, a way of life that authorities say has wiped out the thousands of prostitutes and gamblers that flourished during Batista's heyday.

Future of Brome County — 3

Tourism, a major defence

Tourism and recreation today stand as Brome County's major defence against decline following the collapse of agriculture, its traditional economic base and lack of industrial growth.

But tourism, in order to be of positive influence on the economy, must be both massive and at least bi-seasonal winter and summer. Because tourism is such an unreliable sector of the economy, stronger, more imaginative and dynamic public and private action is needed to control it than is necessary in other businesses.

If Brome County does not wish to remain perennially unstable, or find its character and charm eroded by unscrupulous exploitation, then the development of tourism demands wise planning on a broad scale, and rigid self-discipline.

The area will have to encourage the influx of large sums of private capital to be backed up by public action. The construction of first class hotels, ski - slopes, artificial lakes, marinas, golf courses, theatres, roads, and others, can only be undertaken if private individuals are willing to risk large sums of money in the tourist industry. The county must show by its determination to come up with a successful combination in tourism that such risks are worth taking.

Above all, it must show that it can attract tourists for more than one season opening the way for permanent, first-class hotels and restaurants.

Sutton could take action to build a lake, hiking paths, lookouts and cabins in the mountains, publish tourist information, and to attract some kind of summer festival, theatre, sports event or fair. The possibilities for camping, fishing, hunting and development of a game reserve could be investigated, classified and developed.

To accomplish this, it is essential that Sutton town and township cooperate closely, that they conduct a survey on possible locations for a lake and that they be prepared to borrow money for ambitious investment.

This is the third in a series of six discussion papers prepared by the Brome County Rural Development Association.

And as tourism and recreation develop in Brome, both the private and public sectors must organize and set up enforceable standards to preserve the charm of the county. Strict zoning must be enforced, subsidies awarded to encourage tasteful construction, tax concessions made to promote beautification, and public money spent to build parks, walks and monuments.

A Recreation and Tourism Association could be established to promote tourist activities and maintain professional standards. A tourist investment fund to aid private developers could also be launched. Some form of support of the farming sector by the tourist sector should be considered, perhaps through the tax structure to preserve picturesque small holdings.

And several specific projects should be given high priority: lake - front zoning by all municipalities on all lakes and ponds; energetic pollution control; creation of a large recreational complex around Vale Perkins and from Vale Perkins to Sugarloaf Knowlton's Landing, Owl's Head and Leadville, encouragement of "alpinisme" especially in Sutton; establishment of a regional hotel school and construction of new access roads.

With sound management, the areas around Promont, Sutton and Orford could perhaps develop into the type of integrated recreational complexes needed for high - quality tourism. Potential for further tourist centers exists around the Bolton Centre - Trouser Lake-Foster Mountain - St. Etienne area.

If the problem is attacked as an integrated whole on a large scale and if proper investment is forthcoming, Brome County may escape most of the undesirable effects of an economy based largely on recreation and tourism.

And if Brome County is viewed primarily as a recreational area, other less profitable sectors of its economy take on a new importance as being essential to a recreational and tourist economy. Some farming is highly desirable both to keep the area beautiful and to operate as "dude ranch" facilities for visitors, and to provide high-quality local produce such as cheese, honey, beef, lamb and ducks, that can be sold to tourists at a profit.

Well managed forests are equally important, and a maple festival could become a major attraction. The commercial sector will grow along with tourism, and the general attractiveness of the area might encourage enough small industry to establish here to soak up the surplus labor force.

Proper land use is also essential to prevent pollution of our lakes and streams, and this must be subsidized if necessary. In short, an integrated economy revolving around tourism and recreation appears a distinct possibility.

Winds of change come to county of Cornwall

MEVAGISSEY, Cornwall (CP) — Cornwall, a granite peninsula with a rigorous history of self-reliance, is battered by winds of change more troublesome than the Atlantic gales that hit the country in winter.

From the Tamar River on the east to craggy Land's End, Cornishmen seem perplexed and divided by the swift growth of their chief industry, tourism. Intruders with alien ideas erode traditions but become ever more essential if Cornwall is to earn a living.

In Mevagissey, a post-card fishing village planted between towering headlands, a young merchant and an old fisherman express Cornwall's quandary.

"The best time in Cornwall nowadays is June, before the tourists come, or in autumn, when they're gone," says the young man. "But of course we couldn't live without them," he adds hastily, like a superstitious person touching wood.

The older man reminisces about recent days when fishing was still Mevagissey's mainstay, laments the desertion of young people "to work in England" and grumbles about outsiders with Yorkshire and posh London accents cluttering up the harbor front with knick-knack shops.

Then the old man apologetically explains he has given up regular fishing to take "English visitors" on sea jaunts, because the money is better and the life easier.

CLINGS TO PAST

Until lately, Cornwall was the most remote of English counties, in attitude as well as geography. As far from London, for example, as the Scottish border, the Cornish were further isolated on their 75-mile-long peninsula by their native Celtic background.

The last inhabitant reputed to have used Cornish as his first language was buried in 1891 on the edge of Penwith Moor. But the county still echoes with the burring dialect, unique idiom, exotic place-names and a list of early-Christian saints forgotten elsewhere—Mabyn, Ives and Breock, Enoder, Erth and Austell.

Even now, a local guide book refers to England as a separate state and a publication of the British Central Office of Information finds it necessary to point out that "Cornwall is politically part of England."

The railway crossed the Tamar from Devonshire a century ago, but Cornwall remained essentially isolated for generations. Fishing was the main calling and thousands of tons of pressed and salted pilchards were exported to feed the poor of Italy, a grade now reduced to 100 tons a year as Italian tastes alter.

The county also lived off dairy farming—famous for its clotted cream—and from the produce of early-season market gardens blessed by a Gulf Stream climate. China clay quarried boomed as paper makers discovered clay's benefits as filler and coating. Tin mining declined, but the export of hard-rock mininge ngiport of hard-rock mining engineers to Malaysia, South America, West Africa and Canada continued.

Visitors had always come to find enchantment on the wild cliffs and surf of the north shore or the gentler coves in the south. But less than a decade ago, most vacationers were confined to resort towns reached by railway and organized for tourists, such as Newquay.

The sudden boom in private motoring—to more than 9,000,000 cars in Britain from 2,000,000 in 10 years—overwhelmed the unprepared outports. Villages like St. Ives, renowned for its artist's colony, have taken on a Coney Island atmosphere at the height of summer.

Like it or not—and many don't—Cornwall's 347,000 citizens are hosts each year to 2,000,000 visitors. The county Tourist and Holiday Association estimates vacation business approaches an annual value of $150,000,000, making tourism the county's top industry.

Sparks fly between both Cornish and immigrant businessmen eager to cash in on the tourist bonanza and natives anxious about the county's dependence on the vacationer's purse.

The village of Polperro kicked up complaints from merchants when it barred non-resident vehicles from its steep, narrow streets last summer, a dispute fuelled by the knowledge that a shrewd Yorkshireman was running the compulsory parking lot outside town.

Activities of the London-based National Trust, which has bought up 12,000 Cornish acres including 60 miles out of 320 miles of coast land for preservation, have aroused complaints of outside meddling.

But county fathers would welcome outside help from the government, especially aid for the reviving tin industry, so Cornwall could reduce reliance on the tourist.

Asbestos news

Store clerk strike threat averted as contract signed

ASBESTOS — A strike of store clerks in the town of Asbestos was averted, last week by a last-minute agreement between the employees and employers.

Workers were to go out on Friday morning at opening hours but the agreement was reached by a vote of members at 12:30 a.m. when 88 per cent voted to accept the employers offer.

According to the Labor Code, the workers could have legally walked-off their jobs, November 5.

Stores affected would have been groceries, hardware, and furniture.

Principal points gained by the employees were: a 42-hour work week; retroactive pay loss of $160, since June, payable in the next 30 days; a $7 per week raise effective now and an additional increase of $5 per week effective June 1, 1968. The employees have five paid holidays. Employees off-duty, called to work are to be paid a minimum of three hours at a premium of time-and-a-half rate.

The employers will particiate in making part payment of a group insurance plan.

The agreement is in effect for a period of two years. The two parties have been negotiating since June 21, when the old contract expired.

Magog Scouts, Guides hold a church parade

MAGOG — (Special) — The only attention paid to Armistice day at Magog last weekend, was that shown by the 4th Lake Magog Boy Scouts, Wolf Cubs, Girl Guides and Brownies, who held a church parade at St. Luke's Church, after which they laid a wreath at the city cenotaph.

At St. Luke's, Rev. Sydney Ripper welcomed the boys and girls, saying it was gratifying to see so many of the city's various religious denominations joining together in one service.

The parade began at the Princess Elizabeth High School at 10:30 a.m., proceeding along Bellevue, Merry, Main and Pine Streets.

THE QUEBEC SCENE

Picard report a big flop

MONTREAL (CP) — The Picard royal commission inquiry into waterfront operations in the St. Lawrence River's three main ports was nothing short of a gigantic flop, in the opinion of some of the men who run the stevedoring companies.

While they are charged with seeing to the administration of the terms of the commission's report—officially a binding contract between the longshoremen and the shipping companies—they claim they had little to say in its conception.

The stevedores are the contractors in waterfront cargo operations. They contract with the shipping companies to load and unload ships and with the longshoremen to perform the tasks. The work contract which the Picard report constitutes is between the shipping companies and the longshoremen.

This is the way it has always been and this is how the two sides apparently want it to continue, a source in the stevedoring business said Tuesday.

The bickering and the charges and counter-charges of bad faith that have marked relations between the International Longshoremen's Association and the Shipping Federation of Canada since the Picard report was tabled Nov. 1 stem directly from the vagueness of the report, he said.

Expo playground

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau says he is pondering the possibility of a "great winter playground" on the site of Expo 67 as well as a permanent summer exhibition.

Speaking on a CBC television program Monday night, Mr. Drapeau said it would not be possible to offer the centre to the public this winter but he hoped the project might begin in 1969.

New department

QUEBEC (CP) — The board of governors of Laval University has accepted the principle of setting up a department of social and preventive medicine in its medical faculty.

The decision was reached by the board and the university administration Monday after studying a report of a commission.

Changes urged

MONTREAL (CP) — Reform Jewish leaders urged Tuesday that United States selective service laws be extended to protect the rights of all conscientious objectors.

Some 3,000 delegates to the 49th biennial general assembly of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations overwhelmingly approved a resolution supporting an extension of the right of conscientious objection to those whose objection is founded on "other than a traditional theistic or conventional religious basis."

Review record

MONTREAL (CP) — Crown witness in the Georges Lemay trial, now in its third week, was subjected Tuesday to searching cross-examination by Lemay's lawyer on the dates and places involved in his own past convictions.

Jacques Lajoie, 46, took the witness stand last Thursday to testify against the 42-year-old Lemay, alleged mastermind of a $633,605 bank break-in here in 1961. He gave a detailed account of the robbery and defence lawyer Rene Maranda began his cross-examination Tuesday.

Birds a menace

MONTREAL (CP) — A member of the National Research Council says Canada's major commercial airlines have lost $2,000,000 in the last five years because of birds striking aircraft.

Harrison F. Lewis of Ottawa, a member of the council's associate committee on bird hazards to aircraft, says in a report in the International Civil Aviation Organization's magazine that airlines lost that sum as a direct result of more than 1,000 bird-aircraft collisions.

New agreement

QUEBEC (CP) — A provincial government spokesman said Tuesday an agreement in principle has been signed that will facilitate the reciprocal circulation in France and Quebec of each other's government publications.

In a statement, he said the agreement had been reached between la Documentation Francaise and the Queen's Printer in Quebec, the two relevant agencies.

Hjerppe said, with an average yearly temperature of 40 degrees.

The population of Finland is 4,700,000 and the Finns call their country Suomi, which has no literal meaning.

He said that it is a bilingual country, five percent of the population being Swedish-speaking.

He said Finland's economy has caused some to say that Finland is a country standing on one leg of wood.

He said that Finland is known for its exports of wood and paper products, but that great strides in Finland are being made in other industries, notably the metal industry.

He said he was impressed with our area's two modern universities.

Frank Jenne, who is one of only 50 Rotary members in the world to win a Rotary Foundation technical training award, this year said he applied for the award because he wanted to prepare himself to teach students at the future regional school near Lennoxville.

For the past six years, Mr. Jenne has been active in youth work in Lennoxville and he said it was his interest in youth that prompted him to consider teaching and eventually applying for the Foundation award.

He said the Foundation covers all travelling, living and educational expenses for the successful applicant.

He said the Foundation provides many various technical fields to choose from and that the men who receive the award are expected to promote international good will and understanding, both at home and abroad.

He gave a few statistics on Rotary, saying he was proud to learn that there were 12,868 Rotary clubs in 134 countries with a total membership of 618,000 men.

He thanked the Rotarians for their sponsorship in aiding him to obtain the award.

Seated at the head table last night were: Wright Gibson, who said grace; Lyman Tomkins; Doug Stevenson; Frank Jenne; Edward Perry, who thanked the guest speaker; Lorne Thomson, vice-president of the club, Reino Hjerppe; Tom Leonard, who introduced the speaker; Hugh Doherty, Bruce Bishop and Don Patrick.

AN EARLY SNOW

Main and St. George Street this morning, tying up traffic for a considerable period of time. No one was injured.

No schools were reported closed because of the snow conditions.

Most of the Sherbrooke buses were late by 10 or 15 minutes this morning due to the poor visibility and slippery state of the roads.

Bus drivers had difficulty manipulating the numerous hills around the city but no serious accidents were reported.

The Provincial Department of Roads sent out crews early this morning on ET highways. Reports stated that the roads were slippery with poor visibility, but approximately 20 trucks with road equipment were working to get the roads back into shape at 6 a.m. this morning.

Reports from the Cowansville area said that the highways were slippery but that the highway department trucks were working on them.

Traffic in the Cowansville area was said to be normal with no increase in the number of rear-end collisions.

There were no reports of schools closed in the area.

Judy resists temptation to fire another volley at CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Judy LaMarsh Tuesday stoutly resisted all temptations to fire another volley at the CBC board of directors.

Appearing before the Commons broadcasting committee, she also sidestepped an invitation to start a row with CBC producers who kicked up a giant broadcasting fuss last year over the Seven Days program.

Harold Stafford (L—Elgin) asked Miss LaMarsh whether she agreed with him that the producers never should have been allowed to take their case against management to the Commons committee.

"I just get out of one controversy and you're trying to get me in another," answered a smiling Miss LaMarsh.

Miss LaMarsh has been pelted with questions from opposition MPs since Nov. 1 when she said on the Pierre Berton television show that there is rotten management in some parts of the CBC.

SURVIVES INQUISITION

Mr. Stafford, a St. Thomas, Ont., lawyer, tried several times without success to have her comment on the press release.

At one point she did say that her criticism of CBC management had done some good. Some members of management had been awakened "and that is helpful, very helpful."

She chided MPs for condemning the CBC in last week's Commons debate on the government's broadcasting bill.

Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton Strathcona) said the minister's remarks were "sheer effrontery." MPs had a duty to reflect the views of their constituents.

CRC DOESN'T PHASE HER

Replying to questions of MPs before the committee gets down to clause-by-clause study of the bill, Miss LaMarsh:

—Said she was not wedded to the name Canadian Radio Commission as a title for the new broadcasting regulatory body proposed in the bill.

—Said she thought the cabinet might agree if the committee decided to do away with the 48-hour ban on political advertisements on TV and radio prior to election day.

—Stood firm on the proposed $100,000 fine for private broadcasters found guilty of breaches of the new act. It was an indication of the government's determination to wipe out any such offences.

—Said federal government views on educational television probably will be placed before the committee this week. They would be the starting point for a long committee study, she hoped.

Miss LaMarsh also revealed that she had been instrumental in having the CBC cancel plans to bring Alfred von Thadden to Canada for a program.

Only sure way of beating Riders is to monopolize the ball, says Coach Sazio, Jackson is key man

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Ralph Sazio says the only way for his Hamilton Tiger-Cats to beat Ottawa Rough Riders in their two-game, total-point Eastern Football Conference final is to monopolize the ball.

He may be setting his conference champions more of a task than appears at first glance as they prepare for Sunday's opener in Ottawa's Lansdowne Park.

The 2 p.m. EST game will be televised nationally by the CBC.

The Ticats hope to generate a lot more offence than they showed in winning 10 of their 14 league games, including wins over Ottawa in two of three meetings.

Even in losing two of three, the Riders outscored the Ticats 48-46—losing 16-14 and 22-17 before winning 17-8.

In their 10 victories, the Ticats managed only three lopsided scores-all against weak teams.They beat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 31-4 and Montreal Alouettes 19-1 and 26-4.

The secret of Hamilton's success this year has been defence, the toughest in the league allowing only 195 points. Ottawa allowed 207 points.

On the attack, only last-place Montreal scored fewer points—even though Hamilton end-place kicker Tommy-Joe Coffey won the conference scoring title with 107 points—as Hamilton picked up 250 compared with Ottawa's leading 337.

Ottawa's big threat is the arm of quarterback Russ Jackson and the speed of receivers Margene Adkins and Whit Tucker, along with the running of full back Bo Scott and half Ron Stewart.

Neutralizing Jackson has been the aim of opposing coaches all season and Sazio is no exception.

Hamilton has been more successful than any other team and it may be the difference by the time the second game of the set—scheduled for Hamilton Nov. 25—is over.

On the season Hamilton's pass defence was the stingiest in the Canadian Football League, allowing 2,543 yards-against passing.

The key man in the Hamilton defence is slender, Garney Henley. In this series he'll probably be assigned to watch Adkins and the battle between the two should be one of the series' highlights.

But Henley is ably supported by as fine a defensive backfield as there is in the league in Bill Redell, Ted Page, Bob Krouse and Dave Fleming.

They picked off 20 enemy passes during the season and helped the defensive line gobble up 20 of 24 opposition fumbles, compared with 19 of 24 by Ottawa.

The defence finally jelled late in the season when Ron Brewer came out of retirement to take over at middle linebacker and defensive end Billy Ray Locklin came back to his all-star form of the previous season.

These developments allowed Dave Viti to concentrate on his duties at the other end position and allowed tackles Angelo Mosca and John Barrow to concentrate on stopping the opposition running and menacing the opposing quarterback.

Sazio has added Allen Smith, lately with Buffalo Bills of the American League, to his backfield to replace injured Dick Cohee. His running game since Sept. 17—when Cohee was hurt—has relied almost entirely on Willie Bethea.

Beavers end losing streak, edge Tigers 4-3 in overtime Bouchard pots winning goal

VICTORIAVILLE — Sherbrooke Beavers finally made it and they did it the hard way last evening when they eked out a close 4-3 win over Lou Poliquin's Tigers in the only game in the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League.

It was the Beavers first victory since their opening game with the Granby Vics, Oct. 8. In their last three games the Beavers played well but failed to chalk up any wins. Last night's victory is a sweet one since it came against the Tigers, who held the lead in the loop for several weeks.

Gaston Bouchard potted the winning tally in the overtime after being set up by Lionel Robidas and Jean-Guy Lapierre, a newcomer to the ranks. It came at 6:43 of the overtime period.

The Beavers were forced to come from behind since the Tigers jumped into a 1-0 lead in the opening frame on a goal by Andre Bessette. In the middle session they made it 2-0 before Jean-Pierre Lafond potted Sherbrooke's first marker.

In the final stanza the Beavers forced the play going all out. Pierre Lepage with the aid of Jim Beckman and Jacques Lampron knotted the count. The teams kept battling away and when Marcotte was thumbed off a couple of minutes later the Beavers went to the attack but Claude Hardy, in the Tigers' net, was having good evening and and turned them aside.

Andre Gagnon came up with another good performance. Time after time he smothered the Tigers when they got away from his mates. His key saves gave his men more drive and they kept battling away.

Pierre Thibeault finished off a ganging play to put the Tigers out in front once again. Bessette and Elwell drew assists on the play. This was the sign for the Beavers to go all out and they kept driving blasting at Hardy.

With less than five minutes left to play the Beavers came through to knot the count. Jean-Pierre Lafond potted his second tally of the evening with the aid of Robidas and Pepin. For the balance of the frame both sides played it close to force the overtime.

It was wide-open hockey in the extra time with both sides trying to get the big one. Gagnon and Hardy kept things under control and were stopping everything which came their way. It was nice hockey and one club was bound to pot one as both sides were coming close.

With three minutes or so left Gaston Bouchard managed to beat Hardy from close quarters after being set up by Lionel Robidas and Lapierre. For the balance of the game the Beavers threw up a stone wall clearing at every opportunity in order to protect their slim lead.

When the buzzer announced the end of the game the Beavers swarmed on the ice to smother Andre Gagnon and they were a very happy bunch of players at upsetting the Tigers, one of the top clubs in tht loop.

The two teams will meet again Thursday evening in the Sports Palace while in the other tilt on the agenda will see St. Hyacinthe travelling to Granby to take on the Vics.

The Beavers had two new men in uniform in Jean-Guy Lapierre and Hughes Veilleux and both turned in good jobs. The executive is hoping that transfers for Remi Fleury and Ron Snider will arrive in time to dress for tomorrow night's tilt.

Eddie Shack returns to Garden in new role, Bruins seeking first place, one point behind

Fast Eddie will be back in Maple Leaf Gardens tonight and the fans wil probably love him—at least until he decks his first Toronto Maple Leaf.

Even when he was feuding with Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach, Maple Leaf fans last year continued calling "We want Shack! We want Shack!"

But this year as Toronto and Boston Bruins battle for the lead in the National Hockey League, Shack is with Boston and apparently more subdued than when he "only had a couple of minutes a game to show myself."

Eddie has been playing on a line with rookie Derek Sanderson and veteran Tom Williams and so far has managed four goals and an assist in 12 games.

The Bruins are a point behind Toronto, New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings—all tied for first with 17 points. But the Beantowners have three games in hand on the Leafs.

New York and Detroit are idle tonight, but Thursday the Rangers visit Philadelphia Flyers and the Wings are in Oakland to play the Seals.

In other games tonight, Montreal Canadiens visit Minnesota North Stars, Chicago Black Hawks are in St. Louis against the Blues, Philadelphia is in Pittsburgh to play the Penguins and Los Angeles Kings are in Oakland.

At the end of last season, when the Bruins got Shack in a trade for Murray Oliver who has four goals and nine assists in 15 games for Toronto, Boston general-manager Milt Schmidt passed off a remark about the crowd loving Eddie.

"We didn't get him to entertain the fans. He's a pretty fair hockey player."

What Schmidt got was the man Boston has been looking for for a long time to lift the team when it's down.

Tuesday, watching Shack cut fancy circles and entertain Toronto faithful who went to see him practice at Maple Leaf Gardens, Schmidt observed:

"He hasn't stopped skating all out since the first day he arrived at spring training.

"He led the guys around the rink the first day and it's been like that ever since."

The Boston players were a little concerned about him at first, but his concentration on hockey since joining the club and his boundless spirit have quickly won them over.

But even he is concerned about his production after scoring 26 goals for Toronto in 1965-66 and 11 last year while seeing only infrequent duty.

He's playing an unfamiliar left wing, which could account for part of the problem, and observes "well, maybe I could get going better . . . four goals so far."

The Leafs will be without three big players in defenceman Allen Stanley, centre Dave Keon and left-winger Frank Mahovlich.

Mahovlich is recovering from acute depression that sidelined him early this month and will be out possibly until the end of next month. Stanley is in hospital at Bloomington, Minn., where he is recovering from an eye injury, suffered Saturday, and will be out about two weeks. Keon, hobbling with a charley horse in his right leg will miss at least tonight's game.

Ottawa fans seem more interested in Grey Cup tickets than Sunday's game, demand big and supply small

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders have a two-game total-point series opening this weekend with Hamilton Tiger-Cats for the Eastern Football Conference, but fans here seem more concerned with the Grey Cup ticket situation than the immediate fate of their team.

In some ways, their concern is understandable. The Riders have been in the EFC final seven times in the last nine years, meeting Hamilton six times in that span.

But the last Grey Cup game played here was back in 1939—28 years ago.

With a new grandstand just opened this year, Lansdowne Park now can seat 27,484 customers for a football game. For the Grey Cup Dec. 2, there will be an additional 3,800 extra seats along the south sideline.

The new grandstand, on the north side of the field, has 14,842 covered seats. An open stand on the south side holds 7,301 and the remainder of the regular seats are in the end zones.

IT'S CFL PROBLEM

But ticket distribution for the Canadian Football League championship is a CFL matter, not up to the host club, and so far Ottawa fans are limited to 6,000 seats.

This is less than half the number of season ticket subscribers and less than a quarter of the 27,085 fans who turned out for a scheduled game against Hamilton Sept. 17.

The Riders also will get a share of the new sideline seats, possibly as many as 1,000, and if they win the EFC title they get an additional 1,000 of the general seats.

But this still will not be enough to satisfy Ottawa fans.

Sam Berger, the team president, says: "There's a great deal of dissention among fans and we're making a great many enemies.

"If we get into the Grey Cup and win it, some of the fans who can't get tickets may forgive us. But if we lose, we could be in trouble for ticket sales next year."

As team president, Berger can get only 10 tickets for himself, and already has personal requests for close to 1,000.

Berger had hoped to get some tickets returned from teams in the West, but early reports indicate that all those will be sold by Western teams. In Vancouver, the B.C. Lions reported earlier this week that all their tickets have been sold.

Meanwhile, the Riders returned to the practice field Tuesday to get ready for the Hamilton series. Coach Frank Clair gave the players a day off Monday, but most of them turned up for film sessions to study the Hamilton players and plays.

College soccer loop ends in three-way tie

Defending champion Loyola Warriors and Royal Military College will share the Ottawa St. Lawrence Intercollegiate Athletic Association soccer title this year.

The decision in favor of the two schools as co-champions was taken by conference executive members in an effort to solve a three-way tie for first place that existed when Loyola blanked University of Ottawa 7-0 last Saturday.

Third school in the unprecedented triple tie was Sir George Williams, who, like RMC, had finished the season a week earlier. All three obtained 11 of a possible 14 points in a single round-robin schedule.

Both Loyola and RMC ended with identical 4-0-3 records and they also played to a 1-1 deadlock in their only meeting. Sir George Williams finished with one more win but had the misfortune to lose to RMC.

The executive contacted by secretary Keith Harris felt that the loss eliminated Sir George from title consideration. However, they couldn't find a way to separate the defending champions and RMC.

The executive decision, though, hasn't necessarily closed the book according to Harris. He expects the matter will be thoroughly aired again at the semi-annual meeting.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Roughriders and Stamps clash Saturday, passing vs running weather could be big factor

CALGARY (CP)—It could be one of the strangest Western Football Conference finals in history if Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders play true to form in their best-of-three series that opens here Saturday.

Both teams have shown a tendency over the 16-game schedule to come from behind for their victories, Calgary in winning the conference championship and Saskatchewan in coming second.

Both teams finished the schedule with 12 wins and four losses, but Calgary got the nod because they beat the Roughriders in two of three meetings.

The 2 p.m. MST (4 p.m. EST) game will be nationally televised by the CTV network.

Saskatchewan won its way into the final by beating third-place Edmonton Eskimos 21-5 last Saturday in a sudden-death semi-final.

But over the season the Riders won six of their games after trailing the opposition at one point or another, while Calgary did it five times.

Even in the game that decided the western championship, Calgary and British Columbia Lions exchanged the lead five times before the Stampeders prevailed 35-30.

One of the big questions for Saturday's game is the weather and its affect on the passing of Calgary quarterback Peter Liske, this week named the CFL's outstanding player.

The weather office Tuesday said it wasn't yet prepared even to take a guess.

"The long-time mean temperature for Nov. 19 is 36 degrees but that doesn't mean much. We've been above normal in Calgary for a few days. They should have played Monday. It was 59."

The fear in Calgary is that a bitter winter day could affect the performance of Liske. But he says cold isn't major factor.

He has said wind could affect this game more than cold but in a 40-mile an hour wind at Regina Oct. 22, Calgary won 19-11 as Liske completed 24 of 35 passes and for 269 yards and two touchdowns.

Calgary has relied on the passing game all season while the Roughriders have had a more balanced attack, led on the ground by George Reed with 1,471 yards—more than all Calgary rushers combined.

Reed is one of the players listed by Saskatchewan coach Eagle Keys as bruised after the semi-final game Saturday but the bumps "won't stop anybody from playing Saturday."

Keys also said defensive tackle Ed McQuarters, named CFL Lineman of the Year, was bothered by a sprained ankle. Al Ford was still suffering from rib injuries and Dale West a sore shoulder.

Jerry Wolman is in financial troubles now

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Wolman once said it took friendly creditors and friendly banks to raise him from a bankrupt grocer to a multimillionaire sportsman and financier. Tuesday, he called on both to keep his diversified empire from tottering.

Wolman sold his interest in Philadelphia Flyers of The National Hockey League several weeks ago, but still owns the new $12,000,000 Spectrum where the club plays.

The owner of Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League confirmed at a news conference he was in financial trouble because of a cash shortage and time.

Surrounded by his lawyers and business manager, the chain-smoking Wolman said:

"My assets are many, many, many dollars more than my liabilities. I can get the cash if I get the time."

Sherbrooke Minor Hockey group completes schedule, to sponsor teams in five different sections

The newly-formed Sherbrooke Minor Hockey Association has completed its schedule for the coming year. They will field teams in five categories. Mosquito, Pee Wee, Bantam, Midget and Juvenile. A total of forty-eight teams. Unfortunately, it will go without a English team representation in three categories, Pee Wee, Bantam and Midget.

St. Pat's, a name synonymous with minor sports, cannot find enough players to ice teams in these categories. A general lack of interest among English parents was apparent from the beginning. Sherbrooke High decided they would rather continue playing in an inter-scholastic league as in the past. The disappointment in their withdrawal from the Association was keenly felt.

A movement to bring together French and English boys playing side by side was frustrated. The Association will survice and flourish if it is comptently managed by dedicated people or it will not deserve to. It will, of necessity assume a predominantly French character by virtue of the English opting out.

Manager and coaches are needed. It is imperative that to insure your children proper coaching that we have a list of interested people to choose from. Failing this, we are obilged to take those who present themselves as coaches. This does not leave the Association any freedom of choice. Do not just assume that your children are in good hands, come and see.

Mosquito and Pee Wee games are slated Saturday so that parents may come and see them play, and, we hope, take part.

Waterloo Sages and Cowansville play to 7-7 tie

COWANSVILLE — (Special) —Cowansville Dynamiques and Waterloo Sages battled to a 7-7 stalemate in a regular fixture of the Eastern Townships Commercial Hockey League. In their previous encounter they played to a 2-2 draw.

Cowansville held the lead throughout the early stages but saw it slip away with the persistant checking of the Sages in the late of the game.

Germain Ouellette and Roland Dubuc paced the home side with two markers apiece. Pierre Lussier, Andre Duhamel and Alain Laroche were the other Cowansville marksmen.

Marc Dufresne, Gilles Coutu and Andre Duranleau tallied twice for the Sages. Gilles Valcourt rounded out the scoring when he potted the other goal for the Sages.

Cowansville Beavers finally end losing streak by holding Iberville to 5-5 stalemate

COWANSVILLE — (Special) — A crowd of 1,100 was on hand when the Cowansville Beavers broke their five-game losing streak. They battled the front-running Iberville Wolves to a 5-5 draw in a regular Quebec Senior B Hockey League game.

Rejean Dufour's marker with nine minutes remaining enabled the Beavers to pick up their first point in six contests. Yvon Letarte once again turned in a fine job in the nets for the Beavers.

Maurice Lemothe broke in alone on Letarte in the opening minutes of play only to be outfoxed by the agile Cowansville netminder. Following this save the Cowansville squad roared back to control the play in Iberville's end. Richard Doyon finally potted the puck in the net when he broke in on left wing after taking passes from Real Jodin and Jacques Primeau.

Gyslain Potvin scored his first of the evening when the Wolves hemmed in the Beavers. He lifted the disc over Letarte who was down on the ice. Real Cournoyer went off at 12:20 for tripping and the Wolves stormed to the attack but the Beavers held on.

Jean-Noel Audette and Eddie Harrison both had excellent chances but Letarte came up with the big saves. The period ended with the score tied 1-1. In the middle session Jacques Avervill's first goal of the season put the home team out in front once again. Two minutes later Real Cournoyer pushed the Beavers further ahead. With a two-goal advantage of Beavers stopped skating and Iberville took charge.

Jean-Noel Audette, Serge Guerin and Gyslain Potvin scored within a minute to put the Wolves ahead 4-3. The buzzer sounded with the visitors holding a slim lead. The Beaver defense was partly responsible for all three goals as they backed in on Letarte to block his view.

Serge Guerin potted his second goal of the evening just after the opening face-off to put the Wolves ahead by two goals. Following the tally the game was delayed for half an hour caused by power failure.

When the power restored the Beavers went to the attack and Pierre Perrault's blistering slap-shot eluded Andre Carrier. This goal fired up the home club and they buzzed all over the Iberville club. Dufour's goal with nine minutes left in the game knotted the count and the home crowd went wild.

Cournoyer picked up his second penalty for tripping at 15:15 and the Wolves sent on their sharp-shooters. For two minutes Letarte and his mates were kept on the hop but they managed to weather the storm and held on to earn a well-deserved tie.

HUNTER'S BEST FRIEND TOO — Known to hunters as the little river duck dog, this dog is registered with the Canadian Kennel Club as the Nova Scotia tolling retiever. It is considered just about the best friend a hunter can have. The name "tolling" is derived from the Middle English meaning of toll — to draw or entice, and has nothing to do with the ringing of bells. Called Canada's only truly native dog, pooch entices curious ducks to within shooting range. (CP Photo)

Family fetes Border couple on anniversary

DERBY LINE — Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Young were dinner guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Comtois in the village. Later on returning home they were surprised to find about 25 relatives, neighbors and friends awaiting them to celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary.

The couple received congratulations and a social evening was spent. Amusing games were played and chatting was enjoyed. Mrs. Young's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Winter, Stanstead, were among the guests and as it was their 28th wedding anniversary they were also extended good wishes.

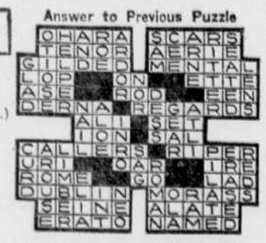
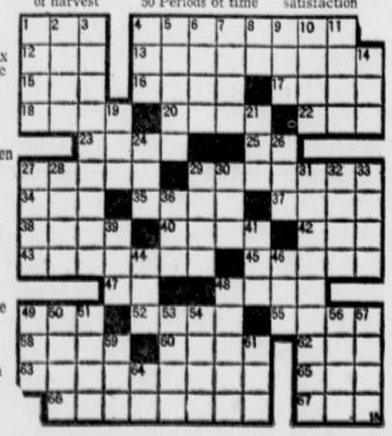
Answer to Previous Puzzle





John James is studying History, Economics, English Literature... and People!

John studies all kinds of people . . . shopping people! People who want something more than just items to put in their shopping buggy. People who like a little extra attention when they shop. And people who shop happily on their own. People in a hurry. People who have time to stop and chat. Newcomers who don't know "where to find it". Old friends who already know where it is. John's getting to know them all . . . and their needs. "People" are a big subject to study. Especially when added to your regular school curriculum. But, Dominion's "part-timers" like John have what it takes to make a success of both. These are the "part-timers" that Dominion chooses to be "full-timers" . . . "part-timers" who know you and your needs. Say hello to our "part-timers" in your favourite Dominion this week. Hope you don't mind being part of their study.
And all this time you thought they just stocked shelves and carried out groceries!

West Brome craftsman consultant for restoration of Louisbourg fort

By JOHN MacCAGHEY
(Record staff reporter)

WEST BROME — (Staff) — Eilif Olsen, Brome Iron Works, West Brome, returned to the Eastern Townships in July, following a 25 month sojourn in Cape Breton as the consultant on hand forged metals used in the reconstruction of the Louisburg Fortress.

Mr. Olsen, a native of Denmark, said that he was approached following his work on the construction of L'Abbaye St. Benoit du Lac, where he executed the majority of the metal work.

A brief idea of the construction of the original fortress may lend an idea of the enormity of the reconstruction envisioned by the Federal Government.

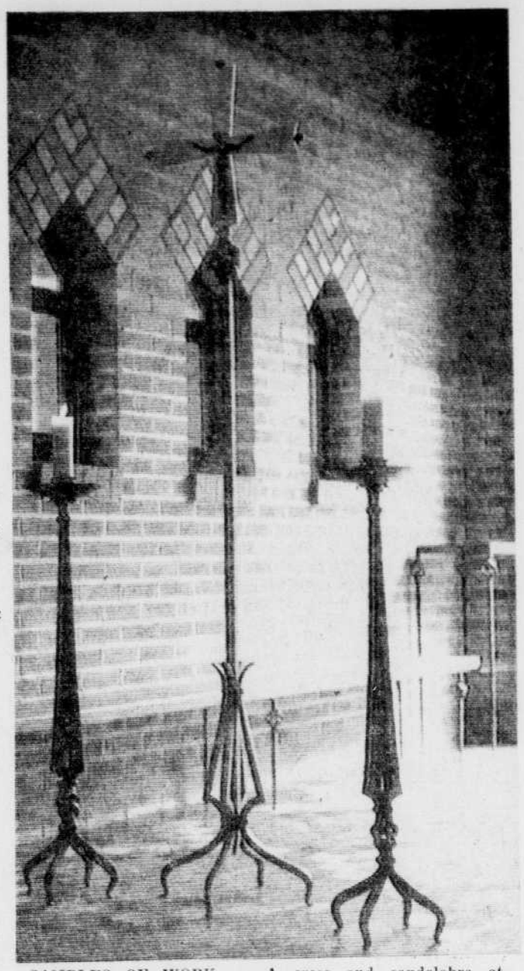
The fortress began in 1713, following the Treaty of Utrecht, which ceded Cape Breton to France, with England retaining the rest of what is now known as Nova Scotia.

In 1745 a group of New England irregulars captured the fortress following raids on the New England coast that were deemed piracy. This expedition was with the sanction of the British government and commanded by William Pepperell, a name well-known on the eastern seaboard today.

The fortress was restored to the French following the Treaty of Aix La Chapelle in 1748. Reports say that damages incurred had been repaired by either the irregulars or British garrison troops sent out to occupy the "key to the continent."

In 1758 the British, with General Amherst at their head, undertook a siege that saw Louisburg capitulate, leading to the conquest of Quebec in 1759. James Wolfe was a staff officer under Amherst.

Meanwhile, one shouldn't forget Mr. Olsen. His impressions of the project indicate a tremendous pride in the restoration of the original stone fortress of any magnitude in Canada. He said that the project was "imbued with an excellent spirit of cooperation that extended from labor to management."



SAMPLES OF WORK — A cross and candelabra at L'Abbeye St. Benoit du Lac, by Eilif Olsen led to him being chosen as a consultant on the restoration of Louisbourg fortress, Cape Breton.

Mr. Olsen's prime function at Louisburg was to select and train personnel to hand forge authentic reproductions of all the metal work used during the original construction of the eighteenth century structure. He said that he interviewed and examined over 100 candidates, finally, selecting six. He predicts that they will be the top artisans in hand forged metals, in Canada, for some time to come.

Mr. Olsen said that his greatest personal thrill, other than seeing the progress made by his men, was the reconstruction of objects, such as locks, that were unearthed by archaeologists.

Discussing the workings of the locks, Mr. Olsen said: "People of today consider the craftsmen of yesterday as being inferior to those of today. This is not the case, their workmanship was excellent, considering the tools then available."

One captures a vague idea of the enormity of the restoration project when it is considered that Mr. Olsen and his men, had by July 1967, manufactured 65,000 hand forged nails, varying in size from one to ten inches. Unfortunately visitors to the site want souvenirs, nails are the most frequent gift.

The crew produced over 1,000 pentels — metal retainers that were placed between the stone to provide a base for door hinges. Forty-eight fire place dampers went into the Governors wing alone. Padlocks, doorlocks and keys stagger one's imagination.

Mr. Olsen stressed that "each item was hand forged, and as absolutely accurate a replica of the original as possible."

Mr. Olsen's waxed enthusiasm about his crew, saying that they "were willing to work, learn, eager to be taught new skills, and not afraid of giving an honest day's labor for their wages." Mr. Olsen said that some of the men had been miners, fishermen or farmers prior to training. His summation of the group was "a fine group of eager men."

Mr. Olsen then added that another main area of production was in the manufacture of joist hangars for the massive timbers — 10 feet and over, for the cross beams, used in all the buildings. All hand forged.

Mr. Olsen could not estimate the cost of the restoration, yet Louis XV, purportedly remarked at the 18th century costs, saying "when will I see the walls looming over the horizon?"

Mr. Olsen added that the restoration of Louisburg is the first major complete task of its kind undertaken in Canada, and estimates twenty years for full completion. Louisburg does not classify as a "star fortress," such as the Quebec citadel, yet is considered to have been the largest of its type ever constructed.

Mr. Olsen said that one of the prime factors in completion of the restoration is Cape Bretons notorious climate. He said that most of the buildings are heated and shelters provided where possible to allow the overall crew of 200 to work during the worst of the fickle weather. His personal description of the weather was "tremendously bad."

Visitors to today's Nova Scotia might enjoy the knowledge that a banquet held by James Wolfe, prior to the assault on Louisburg in 1758 cost a mere 98 pounds, twelve shillings and sixpence, gratuities included.

Wolfe was apparently as magnaminous prior to victory, as the British were following the fall of Louisburg and Quebec. Ironically the party took place on May 24, 1758.

Although Mr. Olsen has completed his training stage, of the workmen required to complete the intricate hand forged works, his interest in the project has not waned. He is retained as a consultant, and revels in thoughts of seeing the project completed. In the meantime he is carrying on at his forge in West Brome, wondering if another like challenge will come his way.

Eilif Olsen, left, examines a quarter section of the fleur de lys that will be placed on top of the Louisbourg Chapel following restoration. Aubrey Harris, Louisbourg, one of the men Mr. Olsen trained in the art of hand forging, looks on.

Mrs. Russell Wells was guest speaker at the regular meeting of Lennoxville W.I. in the club room, Town Hall, Queen Street.

Mrs. Wells, the local school nurse outlined the work carried out during the year as to dental services, eye care, free milk and hot lunch project which was organized by this branch some years ago.

Mrs. Wells told of the many other sponsors of these projects, such as the Junior Red Cross, CNIB, Child Welfare Clinic and many organizations.

These projects are only part of the daily care of pupils and home consultation done by the school nurse as vaccinations and anti-polio immunization is also carried out at the school as well as other examinations.

Mrs. Wells also had a question period and was thanked by Mrs. Nell Tracy.

Mrs. Rupert Porter president conducted the business meeting and being Welfare and Health day the roll call was responded to by each member donating a small Christmas gift for a cancer patient. Twenty-four parcels were received.

A letter of thanks was received from Peter Hopkins who had received a prize donated by this branch at the Lennoxville High School.

Mrs. Allan Mack read an article regarding the effect on turkey raisers in Canada due to the dumping of turkeys from the United States and a clipping on Smog in Ontario.

Mrs. Gilbert Patrick read an article entitled Canada on the Move by Land Sea and Air.

Mrs. Sterling Parker reported 72 registered for the French conversation courses.

Other classes will be held if enough express their desire. This branch registered for a rug making course but 20 names must be received before a class can be formed in any craft or course. This is open to all citizens not just club members. More items for the handicraft and gift table for the coming bazaar which is to be held Nov. 30 are needed.

Mrs. George Povey noted that C.A.C. was stressing the need for a date stamp on all frozen food packaged and asked for volunteers for cancer dressing work.

Cards were sent to sick and bereaved.

Much time was taken up with plans for the annual Christmas Bazaar and salad tea to be held in St. George's Church Hall, again this year.

Mrs. Gilbert Patrick, Miss Kathleen Atto and Mrs. Charles McKee were named to convene the tea room.

A sale of home baking will be featured with Mrs. Wilson Beattie and Mrs. Ralph Mosher in charge and Mrs. J. Edward Perry and Mrs. Hugh L. Wallace at the handicraft, gift, novelty and apron table.

In keeping with the day's program it was decided to sponsor one child for three months through the hot lunch fund at the local school.

The next meeting will take the form of the Christmas party with exchange of gifts and a prize given for the most artistically wrapped gift.

The mystery parcel donated by the president was won by the guest speaker Mrs. Wells.

A letter from the provincial president, Mrs. J. Ossington was read and discussed.

At the close a delicious tea was served by the hostesses Mrs. Allan Mack, Mrs. Charles McKee and Mrs. Gilbert Patrick.

ASCOT WI

Ascot Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Austin Church in Lennoxville, Nov. 9. The president, Mrs. Harold Robertson, was in the chair and after welcoming the members she thanked Mrs. Church for her hospitality.

Roll Call was answered by naming A Foreign Country Where There is a WI and it was again demonstrated that the WI is a far-flung organization.

Following the reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report correspondence was read. This included letters of thanks from the Parks Commission, the recipient of a wedding gift and those who had received cards when they were ill. A letter from the QWI, president, Mrs. Ossington was read and containing resolutions passed at the FWIC convention at Guelph, Ont. Members are asked to act upon these Resolutions.

Reports of the standing committees were given and for citizenship Mrs. William Pearson spoke of the several freedoms enjoyed by individuals and groups. Next year is to be observed at the UN as International Year in an effort to ensure that all over the world these freedoms become real rather than apparent. Mrs. Pearson mentioned the distribution of the centennial medals describing the medal and the ribbon on which it is to be worn. Members were reminded of the Armistice Day services.

Mrs. Wentworth Richardson, Home Economics, reported having attended a recent meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers.

Education, Mrs. Camille Bernard asked that members pass on to her any literature or books on education which might stimulate discussion in the branch.

A letter from the provincial convener of welfare and health was read by Mrs. T. Devany. It contained worthwhile information about the prevention of accidents and suggestions as to what to do in an emergency which threatened health or life.

Mrs. Donald McElrea gave a progress report on the card marathon which she is convening and final plans were made for the card party to be held on Nov. 16 at St. George's Church Hall.

Members gave each cash donations which will be sent in the form of a cheque, to the Maplemount Home for use in purchasing Christmas gifts for the children there. Advertising space has again been taken in the Lennoxville High School's annual publication The Lyre.

Brief talks were given by each member who had been to Expo. There was a wide variety in the choice of a favorite pavilion but all marvelled at the splendid job that had been done in keeping the site immaculately and spoke admiringly of the courtesy and spirit of comradeship that prevailed everywhere.

Tea was served by the hostesses Mrs. Church, Mrs. W. Howe and Mrs. Ashley Hatcher.

Members were reminded that there will be an exchange of gifts at the next meeting which will be held on Dec. 14 at the home of Mrs. Paul Sylvestre, Dominion Experimental Farm, and they are asked to also bring a gift for the cheer baskets.

Wedding held in Danville

DANVILLE — St. Anne's Church here was the scene of the recent wedding of Lorena Campbell Barnard, 115 Water Street, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Campbell to Ralph J. Campbell, of Ottawa, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Campbell.

Rev. Canon Ferland officiated with Miss Lorraine Roux as organist and Leonce Pelletier was soloist. The floral setting was autumn flowers and leaves by Rev. Sister Eugenie, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her cousin Lorne Cassin, of Ottawa, the bride chose a two-piece semi-tailored blue wool boucle suit with a mink hat and tan accessories. Her corsage was pink Delight roses. Best man was Morris Campbell, of Waterloo.

The reception was held at the bride's home. A buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. Leila Heath. The bride's table was centered with roses, mums, white tapers and the three-tiered wedding cake.

The couple will live at 1878 Haig Drive, Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests were from Ottawa, Waterloo, Melbourne, Richmond, and Asbestos.

Single and pregnant

BIDDEFORD, Me. (AP) — Linda, a 20-year-old college honor student, is shy, single and pregnant.

The child's father, also a student, didn't want marriage and Linda considered dropping out of school and having an abortion.

Instead, she turned to the sister servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary who operate St. Andre Home, the only licensed home for unwed mothers in the state.

"St. Andre's has been a second home to me," Linda says, "I'm a Protestant but I'll never forget what the sisters have done. I've been able to keep up with my studies and will graduate with my class.

"My biggest regret is that I'll never know my baby, but it's better that way I guess."

The home has accommodations for 35, and girls of all faiths are accepted. The home operates on private and church funds and receives $8,500 annually from the state. No one is ever turned away because she can't afford it.

Sister Elizabeth Cyr, executive director of St. Andre's and the only Roman Catholic nun in Maine who is a professional social worker, says most girls are in the seventh month of pregnancy when they arrive at the home.

125 ADOPTED

Of the 130 babies born last year at St. Andre's, only five were kept by their mothers, Sister Elizabeth says. Adoptions are arranged through state or private agencies and the home itself.

Babies are placed in homes of the same faith as the parents.

Nuns serve as "group mothers" and counsel the girls during the difficult weeks before birth.

Regular household chores and light recreational activities keep the residents of the home occupied.

Sister Elizabeth says the work the nuns do at the home is "wonderful but frustrating—because the best time to reach these girls is before they get in this predicament."

"We need crusaders," she added.

ALWAYS GROWING

The rate of natural increase in the world population—births minus deaths—is just over two per cent a year or a net gain of 70,000,000.

Trips abroad are just part of her routine

OTTAWA (CP) — For Alice Girard, president of the International Council of Nurses, several trips a year to Geneva, London or Paris are "just routine."

The first Canadian president of the world-wide organization, Miss Girard is also the first woman dean of nurses at the University of Montreal.

As president, her official duties range from representing the council at such functions as the recent opening here of the Canadian Nurses' Association headquarters to attending ceremonies abroad.

During the first half of her four-year term of office, which began in 1965, she attended the 75th anniversary of the Nurses Registration Act in South Africa. Next on her agenda is a possible South American visit.

The International Council of Nurses consists of 63 national associations, of which Canada is third largest.

With few rules, a BC school stresses learning not teaching

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) — Nobody worries if a student is late for class, or skips it altogether, at Campbell River Senior Secondary School.

Students wear mod clothes. The corridors hum with the fantastic 50 on the pop charts. Senior matriculation students are permitted to smoke.

Sound like an educational revolution?

It is, says school principal John Young who sparked the change from "a typical institution run for the convenience of the administration to a student-centred school providing the best possible learning environment."

The school stresses learning rather than teaching. The responsibility of mastering courses rests with the students. Class attendance is not compulsory for most of them.

The scheme, dubbed the "responsibility plan" when it started two years ago, has won wide attention for this Vancouver Island school.

Students attend classes when they wish, but the key, says Mr. Young, "is that students are there by choice rather than compulsion, a fact which undeniably improves the learning environment."

And most students attend all of their classes.

"We know if you trust kids and treat them like human beings they will behave responsibly. It's as simple as that.

"And it works. We have no disciplinary problems in the school."

NO DETENTIONS

There are no detentions and no harsh words are spoken between students and teachers.

Instead, intensive counselling is provided for students who can't live up to the responsibility required by the relaxed rules.

Desks are placed in semi-circles instead of rows. Students discuss their courses in small groups—often without supervision.

This makes them "active learners rather than passive recipients of teaching."

Students have made the transition from the old system so well that many have forgotten what school used to be like, says their principal.

"Everyone treats everybody with respect around here," said one student. "We feel sort of an obligation to do well."

"I know I wouldn't be in school anywhere else," said a girl who "spent three years in the detention room" when she was in junior high but now "gets along fine."

"This is the first time in my life I've come to school and not had a teacher screaming at me," said another student. "I can't help but get nearer my teachers."

The teachers have adapted to the rule-free system "with a sigh of relief" as one of them put it.

"We don't want to be watch-dogs or policemen."

Re-establish Cos as center of world medicine

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two University of British Columbia doctors are playing leading parts in an international scheme to re-establish the Greek island of Cos as the home of world medicine.

Dr. Oscar Sziklai, a forestry faculty genetics expert, and Dr. William C. Gibson, a professor of medical history, plan to raise funds for a monument on Cos dedicated to Hippocrates, the father of medicine.

They plan to do this by selling seeds, from the legendary sycamore tree under which Hippocrates is said to have written his books. The seeds are to be sold to physicians around the world.

Dr. Sziklai recently returned from Cos and brought with him a collection of 100 of the seeds. Two pounds more, 500,000 of them, were later shipped to Vancouver.

It was Dr. Gibson who originated the idea of raising the money by sending the seeds to doctors around the world. He said he isn't sure whether the seeds will be allowed to germinate, and saplings sold, or whether the seeds will be encased in plastic for sale.

The movement is planned to build a 1,200 seat lecture theatre, plus restaurant facilities and a hotel on the island, as part of the Hippocrates monument.

Dr. Sziklai said the objective is to raise $50,000 in two years. He estimated the number of doctors in the world at 3,000,000.

Hallowe'en party sponsored by Student Council

AYER'S CLIFF — The Student Council of Ayer's Cliff High School sponsored a Hallowe'en party at the school for grades one to six. The gym was decorated in the Hallowe'en motif, including a "real scary" spook-house.

First on the program was the grand march after which children in costume were divided into two groups to be judged. Prizes were awarded as follows:

Grades 1 to 3: Best costume, Barry Wintle, a Teddy Bear; second, Lynn Down, an Indian Princess; most original, Charlie Scott, a Pine tree; Funniest, Scotty Piercy, an old lady.

Grades 4 to 6: Best costume, Greg Norrie, Indian; second Mark Vedanayakam, Devil. Most original, Peter Scott, Square Box; Funniest, Melanie Drew, Prince.

Martin Vedanayakam received the prize for highest points; Randy Little, prize in musical chairs. Charlie Scott, Greg Norrie and Peter Scott won prizes in bean guessing contest.

The children also dunked for apples, visited the spook house and were given treats.

The UNICEF collections, made before the party were taken to the school.

The Student Council is to be congratulated on arranging the party for the children.

COWANSVILLE —

The 500 Club was entertained by Mrs. Pearl Brock, with Mrs. Gerry Parent as co-hostess. Prizes were won by: First, Mrs. Therese Pagerie; second, Mrs. Gerry Parent; third, Mrs. Rose Domingue. Mrs. Marjorie Cabana gave a floating prize which was won by Mrs. Rose Domingue. Refreshments were served by the co-hostess.

The Fellowship Club will be holding a card party on Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. in the United Church Hall, Main Street.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

The late Jimmy Maier was a great bridge player and a particularly effective one. In tournament play skill is essential. In rubber bridge play skill helps a lot, but ability to land on your feet when the going is tough is even more important.

Today's hand shows Jimmy's effectiveness at its peak. If you wonder why he opened with four spades in third seat — the answer is that even the greatest players incur penalties on occasion. Jimmy had opened with one club out of turn.

The bidding reverted to North who had to pass and continue to pass. East passed also, and it was up to Jimmy to decide what to do with his big hand. Here is where effectiveness became all important. He might have settled for a low club bid or tried three no-trump, five clubs or six clubs, but like all effective players Jimmy had a great fondness for the spade suit. Anyway, he selected four spades as his bid.

Opening lead—♥ 6

As you can see, four spades was a happy choice. Three no-trump won't make unless the defense falls apart. Five clubs can't make at all, but five spades is unbeatable.

East was also an expert but one who could not match Jimmy for effectiveness. He felt that Jimmy was going to make four spades. He also remembered that Jimmy had bid a club when he opened out of turn. Maybe a double would drive Jimmy out of his good spot into a bad one.

Jimmy didn't fall into the trap. He didn't know what would happen at four spades, but he was sure that East would not have doubled unless he could take care of five clubs. He passed and made his doubled contract.

"Beautiful, just beautiful," chortled North.

"Not so," replied Jimmy. "I should have redoubled."

What do you do now?

A—Bid four no-trump. If your partner holds two aces you want to be in six diamonds. If he holds one ace you want to be in five. If he holds no ace you will be down one trick at five diamonds, but this is most unlikely.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three diamonds, partner has bid two no-trump over your two hearts. What do you do now?

About television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The combination of a couple of real pros, Frank Sinatra and Ella Fitzgerald, singing everything from The Lady is a Tramp, to Ode to Billy Joe resulted Monday night in a mighty fine hour of musical entertainment.

Sinatra, it appeared, was in high good humor and in excellent voice. He even took on Old Man River as a solo. Miss Fitzgerald, who sometimes seems a bit uncomfortable before the cameras, was at ease and relaxed and, vocally, a match for the star of the NBC special.

The program suffered, as so many of them do, in those awkward moments when the singers are between songs or climbing on stools and finding it necessary to exchange a little banter. The conversation is usually pretty stiff and silly. Sinatra would do well to take some lessons from his clansman, Dean Martin, who really handles it nicely.

HONDO EXPIRES

ABC has decided, after all, to drop its new western series, Hondo, after the Dec. 29 show. It will be replaced the following Friday with a new series, ABC Operation . . . Entertainment.

Operation . . . Entertainment will consist of variety shows taped before audiences of servicemen.

Still another change comes on New Year's Day when Bob Young, now an ABC correspondent in London, takes over Canadian-born Peter Jennings' spot on the network's early news show. Jennings, former CBC newscaster, who wanted to return to reporting, will become a roving correspondent.

EAST FARNHAM —

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Blue, Sawyerville were overnight guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Andrew McEwing, Mr. McEwing and Miss Hilda McEwing. Another brother, Mr. W. A. Blue, Cowansville, was a luncheon guest at the McEwing home. Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, Farnham Centre, were recent guests at the same home.

Mrs. George Hobbs was in Waterloo on a few days to visit Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Basinet. She accompanied them to Fitch Bay and called on Mr. Harold Waid.

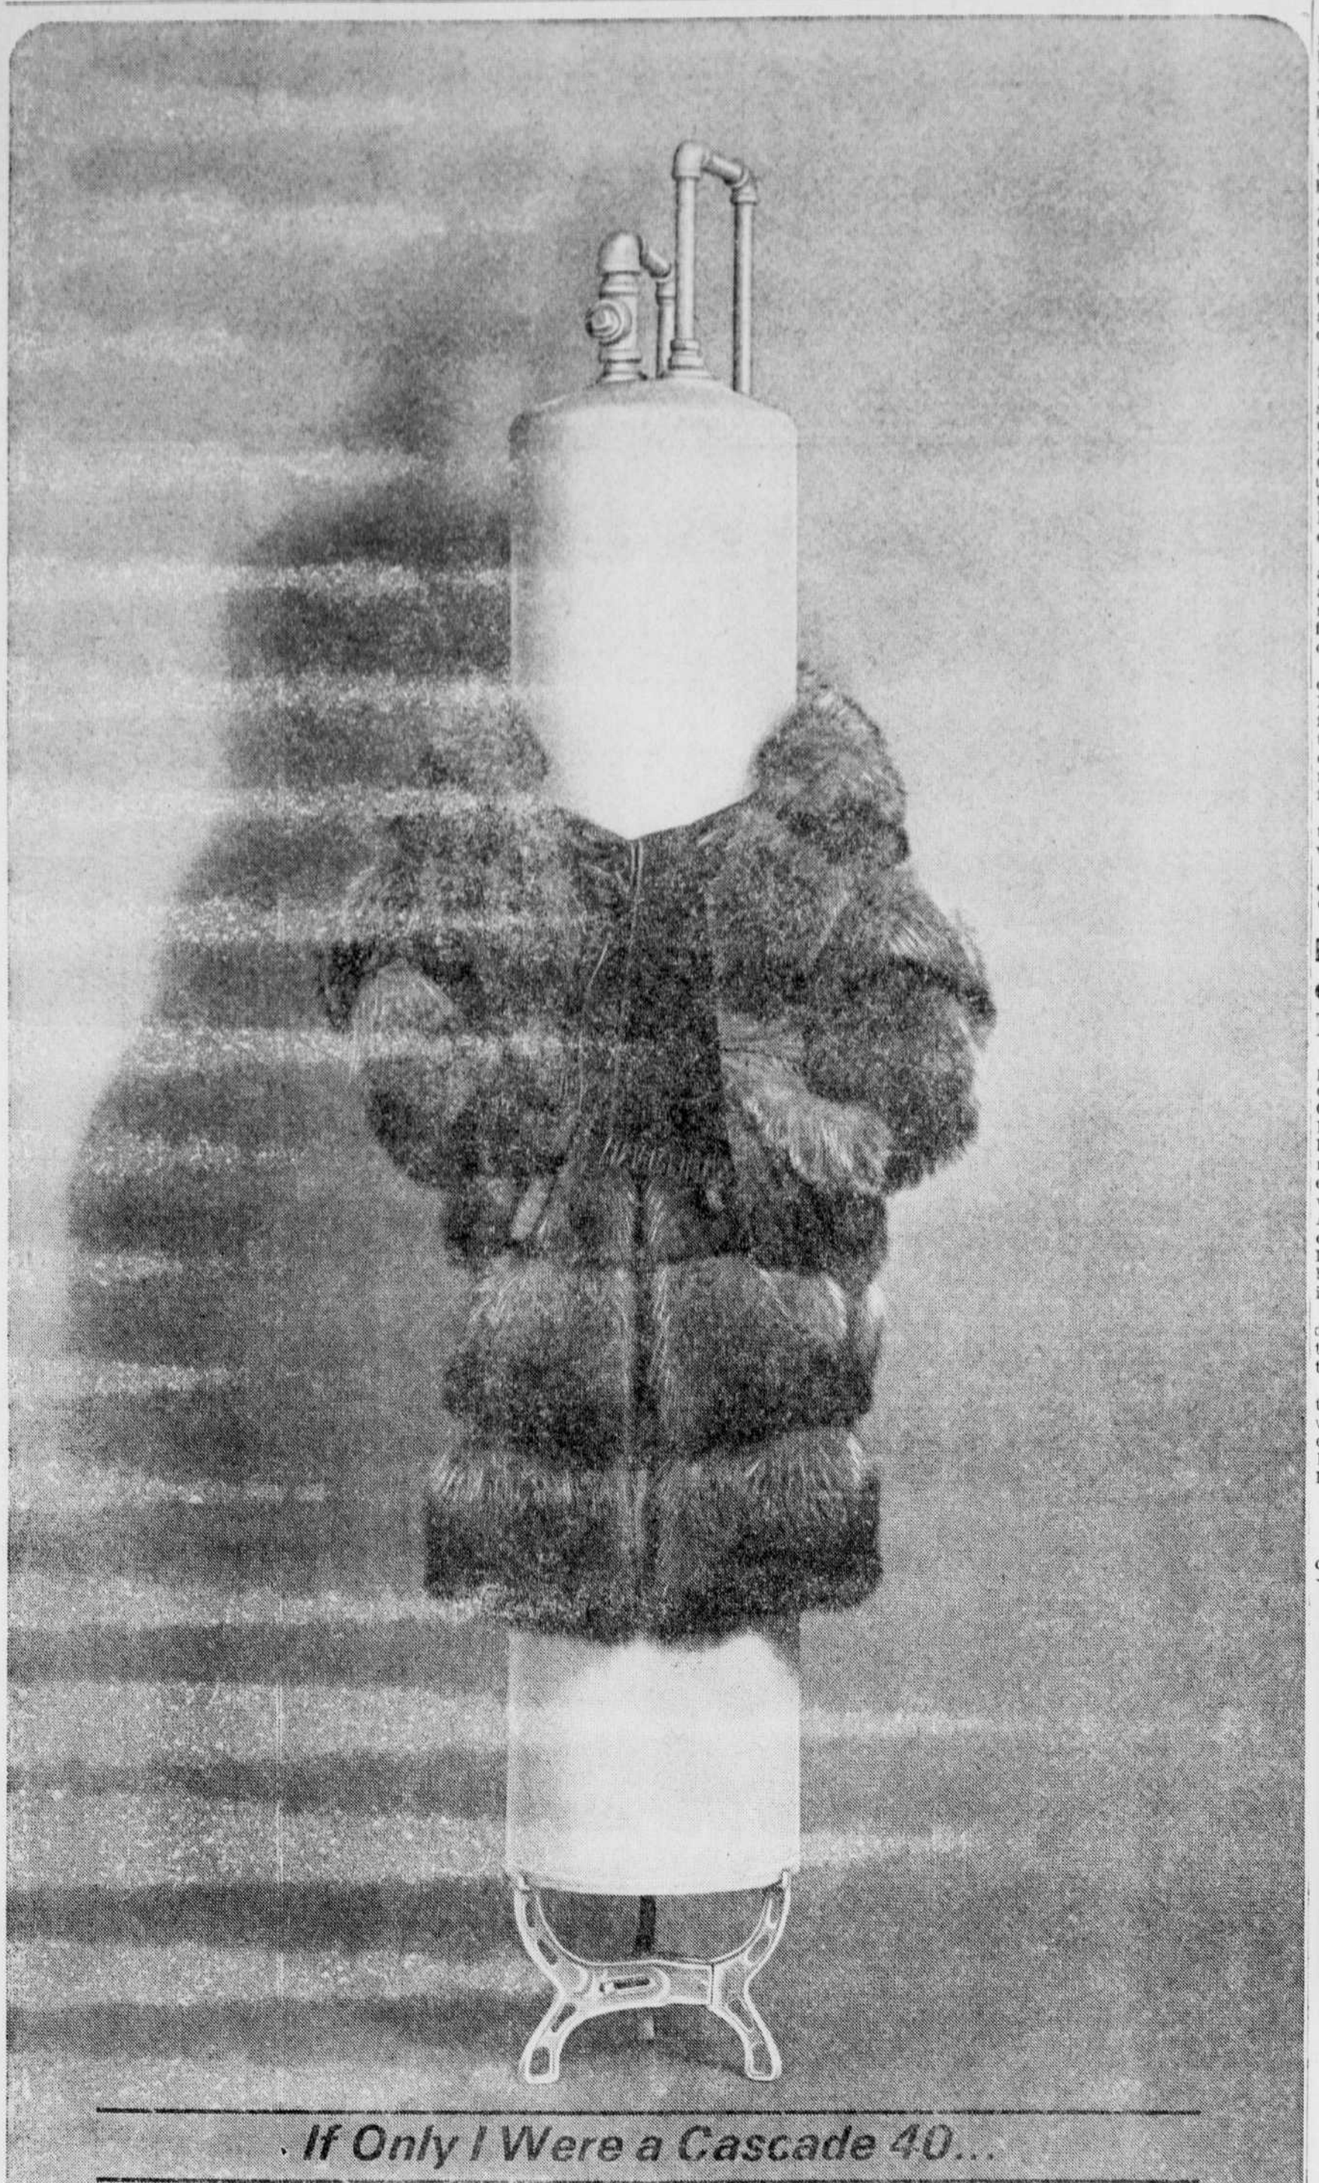
RECORDS EXPECTED

The United States anticipates record crops of soybeans, rice, peanuts and feed grain in 1967.



W.I. displays centennial rug at Cowansville

COWANSVILLE — The Women's Institute held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Bibby on South Street, with Miss MacIntosh as cohostess. Fourteen members and three guests were present.

The president announced that the WI centennial rug, which had been on exhibition at the Art Center during the month of October, is now being shown at the Treasure Chest on Main Street. It was agreed that money from the sale of tickets on the rug, along with the ticket stubs, should be turned in on, or before, Dec. 5.

Miss MacIntosh read a letter from Mrs. Ossington, Provincial president, about resolutions passed at the F.W.I. convention at Guelph concerning a proposed revision of the Criminal Code of Canada. The meeting voted unanimously that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Federal MP for Brome-Missisquoi.

Get-well cards were signed and sent to two members who are ill. A letter from Mrs. Miner, thanking the W.I. for the flowers sent her after her accident was read.

An interesting demonstration of needlepoint was given by Miss Dalpe, who showed some finished work, dozens of patterns and designs, and explained the stitches. Several of the members also showed their own finished pieces.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses and a social hour was enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held on Dec. 5 at the home of Mrs. Gibson on Main Street.

French ladies entertain for English group

ABBOTSFORD — Another pleasant afternoon was spent on Nov. 1 at the home of Mrs. Gregoire Choquette when the French ladies of St. Paul d'Abbotsford invited their English neighbors to join them in a friendly cup of tea. Refreshments were enjoyed from 3 to 5 p.m. About 30 English ladies attended with as many or more French ladies present from Abbotsford, the North Road, Papineau and surrounding areas.

Everyone was met at the door and their names pinned on their dress, then each made their own introduction.

The tea was in return for get-to-know-your-neighbors better, which the English ladies held earlier at the home of Mrs. Hamilton Marshall for the French ladies.

Three fifths of an inch causes flap

NEW YORK (AP)—Three-fifths of an inch is creating a flap in the U.S. tobacco industry and presenting American smokers a bewildering choice of cigarettes.

The three-fifths is roughly the extra length of tobacco added to king-sized filter cigarettes to make them 100 millimetres long.

One count places at 35 the types of 100s on the market, including plain and menthol versions of the same brand.

"The public's interest in longer cigarettes exceeded the industry's expectations," said a spokesman for one manufacturer.

The 100s leaped from two per cent of all cigarette sales in the first quarter of the year to 12 to 15 per cent now, says tobacco analyst John C. Maxwell Jr. He estimates they'll average about 10 per cent for the year.

This means that smokers will consume around 53,000,000,000 100s of an estimated 532,000,000,000 cigarettes produced this year.

The 100s—about four inches long—cost a cent a pack more retail.

TEST NEW GIMMICKS

Among the new gimmicks being test-marketed for 100s is a 50-50 cigarette—half filter and half tobacco—and one with a squeezable menthol capsule in the filter.

It hasn't been all fancy packages and slick ads for the 100s. U.S. Surgeon-General William H. Stewart has urged the cigarette industry to withdraw them from the market.

"As research findings continue to confirm and to strengthen the scientific evidence incriminating cigarettes as a health hazard," Stewart told a Senate committee, "It is unconscionable that the cigarette industry should introduce and heavily promote the 100-millimetre cigarette which cannot help but increase the hazard."

The tobacco industry maintains there's no scientific proof that smoking is a health hazard.

Is a still longer cigarette in the works?

"There's a practical point beyond which you can't go," said one industry source.

But apparently 100-millimetre isn't that "practical point." Liggett and Myers has introduced a still longer cigarette—101 millimetres.

Rags-to-riches story doesn't apply to all who came to Canada in late 1800's

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada's first cross-country railway was a recent marvel of engineering prowess when it bore a travel-weary group of European immigrants west. Most were impoverished; some were literally in rags.

American orator Thomas Paine could have had them in mind when he said: "Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must, like men, undergo the fatigue of supporting it."

Seventy-five years after this bewildered little group carved Canada's first Ukrainian settlement out of the Alberta wilderness, they and those who followed have met Paine's terms.

A rags-to-riches story does not apply to all who moved to Canada, starting in 1892-94, and whose descendants now comprise about 10 per cent of Alberta's population.

But the early settlers—numbering 38,000 in Alberta and Saskatchewan by 1903—have provided Canada with politicians at all levels of government, educationists and virtually all types of professionals and tradesmen. And Ukrainians are widely represented in agriculture, a discipline in which they excel.

DRAWN BY LAND

The Ukrainian settlers had left their central European homeland where inherited land leases had reduced, through succeeding generations, the farms owned by absentee land barons.

The prospect of operating 160-acre farms on untouched land—and of gaining ownership within a few years—attracted them by the score.

Two examples of early success were men who moved their families to the Star district near Edmonton in 1894. One man's total capital was $18 and the other's $6. By 1900 they were operating farms with capital values of $4,373 and $2,850 respectively.

The Ukrainians' prosperity in Canada was not immediate.

A report by the North West Mounted Police on settlement conditions in August, 1897, included:

"Nicola Hyhyrcyuk, 3, children, 1 horse, nothing else; Hyroy Hyhyrcyuk, 4 children, nothing at all; Paulo Gudzan, 2 children, 1 cow, nothing else."

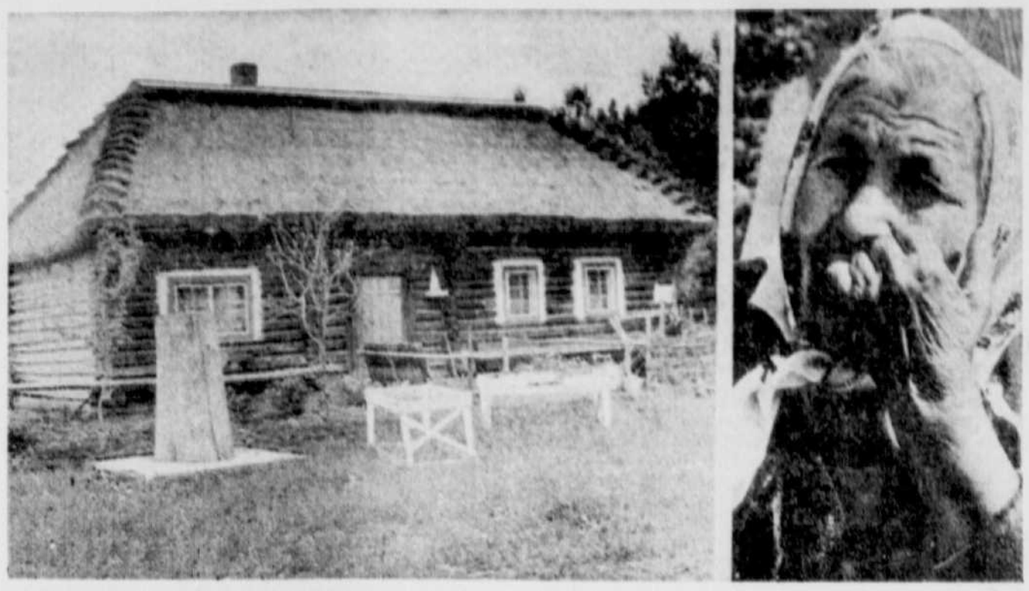
An NWMP report a year later showed that hardship had taken its toll:

"Giorgi Melnyk has one horse, one cow and four children. His wife had twins about two months ago and caught cold from laying on the ground. He started to take her to Edmonton (about 30 miles away) once, but had not gone any more than a quarter of a mile before she started to groan and say she could not stand being taken that distance."

Mrs. Melnyk died a short time later.

The reports accompanied requests for federal assistance. Although a reluctant government had already provided most settlers with the cost of passage from Europe to Winnipeg, it was eventually granted.

Passage from Winnipeg to Edmonton, almost 1,000 miles, was provided on credit to many by the Canadian Pacific Railway. This and the federal assistance prompted a rash of uncomplimentary articles in eastern newspapers.



SLOW CLIMB OF UKRAINIAN SETTLERS — An early Ukrainian log home with thatched roof at a museum in Elk Island National Park near Edmonton has been preserved to tell its own story of first settlers in the area. The gnarled hands and weather-beaten face of Mrs. Meron Tkachuk (right) seem to reflect the Ukrainian's long climb toward today's relative prosperity. For most settlers the climb typified the rags-to-riches cliche of North American life. (CP Photo)

Half a century later, they carried glowing tributes to Steven Juba, son of a Ukrainian immigrant, when he was elected mayor of Winnipeg in 1956.

Sir William Van Horne, president of the railway, said in an 1899 interview in the Montreal Star that every settler by that time had paid back every cent.

"Don't you think people whose sense of honesty is so keen that they will pay a railroad corporation a debt that they could easily have got out of are a good class of colonist to get hold of?"

PIONEER WAS MP

Among the descendants of these pioneers were Michael Lukovich of Edmonton, Canada's first Ukrainian member of Parliament; Senator Paul Yuzyk of Winnipeg, whose academic and professional record fills an almost unprecedented 1½ pages of the Parliamentary Guide; and the Kostask family of Vegreville, Alta., who by 1921 had sent all their children to university. Among nine persons related to the Kostask family there were 10 university degrees.

Widely-respected family names of Ukrainian origin include Shandro, in farming, medicine and law; Holubytsky, medicine; Fedunetz, agriculture; and Lazerowich, law.

Former Edmonton mayor William Hawrelak holds extensive business interests and is considered by acquaintances to be "a very wealthy man." There were numerous farmers on whose land oil was discovered in Alberta's oil boom of the 1930s. Today their families are among the wealthier farmers and businessmen in Alberta.

Activities at Stanstead College

The highlight of last week's news is the Athletic Banquet and the presentations of awards here on Wednesday evening, the eve of the long half-term weekend.

Dr. Harold Vaughan, Toronto, Ont., secretary of schools and colleges of the United Church of Canada, was the speaker at the athletic assembly in Pierce Hall. His talk was based on a motto from the Bible: "I will make a man more precious than fine gold." "Men cherish gold," he said, "so do industries, but are we as particular of ourselves? The ingredients of manhood is much more precious, character, gratitude, thanksgiving, appreciation is more precious than gold. We often forget to do what we can with what we have everyday," he said, and advised the students to take opportunity day by day and make the most of it and in the end the quality of manhood that is more precious than gold. He congratulated the football and soccer teams, all the boys on their successes, and laced his inspirational serious talk with humorous stories.

PLAYED 42 GAMES

Raymond Lester, headmaster, in his opening remarks, said this autumn season of sports has been a season of seasons; there's never been a season like it. The five teams played 42 games and of the total there were only five losses. He commended the players, coaches and the school on the whole for terrific team spirit.

A. J. Philip, director of athletics, was emcee and he called upon coaches of the teams to say a few words and the awards were presented.

The speakers were Peter Boyd, speaking for the intramural teams of volley ball, soccer, played by boys not on the regular teams. He also commended Andy Schwab on his cross country efforts. William Patterson spoke of the junior soccer team, referring to it as a good season which won them a trophy. They were winners of the Eastern Townships League. The coaches, he said, had admired the gentlemanly attitude of the players.

D. Alves spoke for the J. V. soccer team with reference to the high calibre of the players. Mr. Alves said he hopes we can maintain these standards throughout.

Brian Denney, speaking for the junior football coaches, said they were happy to have had a successful year. Five games were won and they had two losses.

LEAGUE WINNERS

Barry Gallant, speaking for the coaches of senior soccer, said it had been a pleasure to work with the team this season; there had been good co-operation with each other. Forty-seven goals were scored and they too were Eastern Townships League winners. It is interesting to note this is the first time in the history of the school that Stanstead has beat Ashbury of Ottawa.

Bob McConnachie, senior football, noted they had played seven games, scored 242 points and had 16 points scored against them. This points to a remarkable season. The boys played with a sense of pride, they made a real school effort with determination, they were faithful to practice and played with a devotion to their school.

In conclusion of the program, there was great ovation when Mr. Lester said that when the ski season is here the boys will have a day off for skiing in appreciation of their excellent sports season.

Doctors say that a low-heeled shoe is best for standing or walking. High-heeled shoes tend to throw the posture off balance and increase strain on the lower back.

Improvements for Orly Airport

PARIS (AP)—Paris airport authorities are mapping sweeping improvements for Orly terminal and construction of a separate Orly West terminal. A brand new Paris North airport will be built as small but historic Le Bourget airport is phased out to make room for housing.

Raymond Guitonneau, director-general of the Paris airport, says everyone was surprised when the present Orly terminal, opened in 1961, reached its capacity of 6,000,000 passenger is 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 by 1969 expected to boost its capacity to or 1970.

The second phase will be Orly will be a $20,000,000 undertaking.

The second phase will be Orly West, after which the present terminal will be renamed Orly South.

Orly West, on the same airfield but separated by several hundred years, will be linked to Orly South by shuttles or subways.

Paris North should open in 1972 with a capacity of 5,000,000 or 6,000,000. Other phases will follow as Le Bourget closes, probably in 1975, and needs require it.

Doctor's fees continue to rise sharply in US

WASHINGTON (AP)—Doctors' fees, which have increased spectacularly in the United States in the last year, are likely to continue rising sharply, government officials say.

And doctors' incomes—tops among professions—are increasing even faster than their fees.

Federal officials express concern about doctor fees and other medical costs. They are encouraging such changes as more group practice by doctors and use of more physician assistants. But they say it will be years before such changes have a major impact on fees.

The medical-cost outlook for the American public appears grim.

Demand for doctors' services is expected to increase by one-third between 1965 and 1975, said a report on medical costs submitted to President Johnson earlier this year.

The supply of doctors for the period is expected to increase by only 17 per cent, and not even that much for family doctors.

Doctors' fees increased for years at about the same pace as wages. But in 1966, they jumped 7.8 per cent. And the latest Bureau of Labor Statistics figures show an increase of 8.9 per cent from August, 1966, to August this year.

A writer's notes

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Golden eagles, noted for their sharp eyesight, can see a moving rabbit half a mile away—or about half the distance a middle-aged man can spot a pretty girl in a mini-skirt.

Planning to serve champagne at your daughter's wedding? If you buy domestic champagne any year is fine, but if you're really splurging with French champagne among the better vintage yields are those of 1957, 1959, 1961, 1962 and 1964.

No wonder elephants usually plod around with their heads hanging down—each of their two ivory tusks weighs about 55 pounds.

Veterans of the Second World War sometimes complain that so few people seem interested in tales of their experiences. The reason is simple: Half the people now on earth were born since the end of that ghastly conflict—and therefore have no memory of it. To them it is already "old stuff."

Personal touch: The phone company says more executives today are making their own calls rather than channeling them through secretaries. This not only saves time—it also makes the person at the other end of the line feel more important.

No gum, chum: An amendment to the British Post Office Guide prohibits the sending of chewing gum by mail to the Soviet Union.

Forest labor: Sugar maple trees seem to work harder than coffee trees. The maple tree yields 15 gallons of sap in a season, which boils down to about half a gallon of pure syrup. But the lazy coffee tree matures only about 2,000 berries, not quite enough to make a pound of roasted coffee.

It was actor John Barrymore who observed: "You never realize how short a month is until you pay alimony."

The Doctor Says

by Dr. WAYNE BRADSTADT

Q — What is the cause of piles? What methods other than surgery will get rid of them?

Do they turn to cancer?

A — Piles are inflamed or varicose veins at the outlet of the bowel. They may be caused by an inborn weakness of these veins and they are aggravated by straining at stool and by pregnancy.

In milder cases, astringent suppositories will cause them to shrink but, when, as so often happens, a clot forms in the hemorrhoid, it must be removed. A simple incision and removal of the clot relieves the pain but usually leaves the victim with a skin tab which may make it more difficult to keep the area clean.

Some piles have been successfully treated by cutting off their circulation with a tightly constricting elastic band but this method is not suitable in all cases. Another treatment that may be used is injection of the vein with a solution that will obliterate it but this method is of value chiefly as a stop-gap in persons with heart or kidney disease or some other reason that would make operation a risk.

Surgical removal is still the only sure cure. Piles do not predispose to cancer but cancer in that region may aggravate the hemorrhoids.

Q — What is the difference between internal and external hemorrhoids?

A — Internal hemorrhoids involve the veins of the rectum well - above the outlet and external hemorrhoids involve those close to the outlet. In general, internal piles are painless and the external type are painful. Piles in either location may rupture and bleed.

Q — What is polycythemia? What causes it and what can be done for it? What effect does it have on life expectancy?

A — In this disease, the opposite of anemia, there is an excess of red blood cells. The cause in most cases is unknown.

In some, however, it is caused by emphysema, silicosis and other diseases. The standard treatment for many years has been to remove a pint of blood two or three times a week until the cell count returns to normal.

More recently, several drugs have been used in carefully controlled dosage to destroy the red cells. These include radioactive phosphorus, Natulan, and pipobroman (veracyte).

No drug should be given until an effort has been made to discover and remove the cause.

There is no cure but, when treatment is skillfully controlled by a doctor, the victim can expect a nearly normal life span.
