BRITISH ROYALTY ENTER U.S. TODAY

Canada Gives Up Visitors For Four Days

British Ambassador and U. S. Secretary of State to Head Party Welcoming Their Majesties at Niagara Falls Tonight—Seven Ontario Towns in Gala Attire for Brief Visits by King and Queen.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—Canada surrenders the King and Queen to the United States tonight at the middle of the arched span linking the two countries below the mighty cataract.

Canada will give up its Sovereigns for a four-day visit to the United States at 10:35 p.m., E.D.T. today, five minutes after a twenty-one gun salute roars at the end of a three and one-half hour visit on the Canadian side of the Falls.

When the Royal train pulls into the old station here after crossing the International bridge, the King and Queen will be descended and greeted by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador to Washington, who will present State Secretary Cordell Hull and Mrs. Hull. The Royal party and Mr. Hull's reception committee then will enter for Washington.

The actual reception to the King and Queen will take place in a polished and refurbished private room in the station. Its walls and those of the station have been hung with flags and bunting of Britain, Canada and the United States.

The Royal train will be pulled to Buffalo by a New York Central Railroad locomotive. At Buffalo that engine will be replaced by one of the Pennsylvania Railroad giants which will haul the twelve-car train to Baltimore and Washington.

Before the King and Queen return to Canada June 12, Their Majesties also will visit New York and the Hyde Park, N.Y., home of President Roosevelt.

As a salute to "her international sister city," Detroit sent Mayor Richard Reading and council members to Windsor's official reception, held on an arc-lighted platform near the railway station.

The King and Queen shook hands and chatted briefly with the Detroit Mayor, the second American in an official capacity to meet Their Majesties on the Canadian tour. The United States Minister to Canada, Daniel C. Roper, was presented at Ottawa.

The Royal Salute was fired by the 26th Field Battery of Samaria to mark Their Majesties' arrival and the King's Standard was broken from a flag pole.

The King, wearing a grey, pin-striped suit, helped the Queen alight from the train. Her Majesty wore a rose-tinted beige dress, with matching hat and fox fur neckpiece. Cheers rose from 100,000 persons crowded about the station, and on the river an anchored ferryboat, filled with spectators who paid five dollars each, sounded its shrill whistle in welcome.

Demand Resignation Of Admiralty Over Handling Of Thetis Disaster

London, June 7.—(AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express today called for the resignation of Earl Stanhope, First Lord of the Admiralty, in connection with the loss of the submarine Thetis.

"It is the opinion of the Daily Express that Lord Stanhope has failed to give the leadership which the country demands of its ministers," the newspaper declared.

"He should have flown to the scene of the Thetis disaster to take command of the situation as well as to voice the sympathy of the nation."

The 17 submarine Thetis foundered last Thursday in Liverpool Bay with loss of ninety-nine of the 103 men aboard.

Lord Stanhope told the House of Lords yesterday the public had not realized the difficulties of the rescue work and said fast-shifting tides made it impossible for divers to work efficiently around the sunken craft.

Swollen by gifts from the King and others of the Royal family, a fund for relatives of the Thetis dead reached about $100,000 ($463,000) today. The King's contribution was $100.

ROYAL TRAIN BEARER WEDS NOTED AUTHOR

London, June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—Raimund von Hofmannsthal, Austrian-born author, today married Lady Elizabeth Paget, who was train-bearer to Queen Elizabeth at her coronation.

She is twenty-two years old and the second daughter of the Marquess of Anglesey.

Von Hofmannsthal formerly was the husband of the heiress Alice Astor, whose father, John Jacob Astor, died in the Titanic disaster.

This marriage was dissolved recently. Von Hofmannsthal's father was the late Hugo von Hofmannsthal, well known as the author of the words to the opera, "Der Rosenkavalier."

Two 165-foot Coastguard cutters and three smaller boats will begin patrolling the waters near the Fort Friday morning. At the same time hundreds of troops will search adjacent territory and clear it of unauthorized persons.

So minute are the precautionary arrangements that the soldiers detailed to the special duty will even be provided with head nets to protect them against poison ivy and mosquitoes.

In Washington the city fathers fingered an empty purse and looked with a regretful sigh at the gorgeous blossoming of flags along Pennsylvania avenue in honor of the King and Queen.

All the money they had to spend on decorations went into the six hundred red, white and blue banners and the British and United States shields being placed beneath them on the lamp posts.

They will give Their Majesties a brightly lit lane down which to drive tomorrow with President and Mrs. Roosevelt after official welcome ceremonies at Union Station.

The saddening note arises from a last minute turn of affairs which has given them another street to decorate—if they could.

For the benefit of the thousands who may not get a glimpse of Their Majesties in the initial procession, a sort of second parade has been planned, more or less as an afterthought, from the White House to the British Embassy before tomorrow afternoon's garden party.

Instead of whizzing by in a motorcade, police escort, the Royal Continued on Page 2, Col. 6.

VILLAGE FIRE FINALLY COMES UNDER CONTROL

Final Estimate of Damage in St. Esprit Fire Exceeds $100,000—Nine Homes and Other Properties Destroyed.

Rimouski, Que., June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—Wisp of smoke curled skyward today over the hamlet of St. Esprit as villagers extinguished the smouldering embers of a fire which destroyed fourteen buildings and threatened to wipe out the settlement, thirty-five miles south of here.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle most of the way yesterday as two hundred volunteers, weary after nearly twenty-four hours of continuous fire-fighting, sought to halt the slowly-spreading flames. Eventually they did, but not before the fire which started Monday had caused damages estimated roughly at more than $100,000.

Telephoned reports reaching this town two hundred miles down the St. Lawrence river from Quebec last night said the flames, which originated in a small brush fire near the colonization settlement, destroyed nine homes, the tiny Roman Catholic church, the presbytery, a general store, a boarding house and a saw mill housing thousands of feet of lumber.

High winds, sweeping heavy clouds of smoke down on the firemen, hampered efforts to control the blaze. A half-dozen families vacated their homes but returned when the flames were reported "under control" and the danger past.

DEATH FOILED AMBITION TO SEE MONARCHS

Grizzly Bear Fighter and Great War Veteran Died in Vancouver Military Hospital Shortly After Royal Visit.

Vancouver, June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—J. M. Christie, who lived through a hand-to-hand struggle with a grizzly bear and survived the Great War, died here without realizing his last ambition—a glimpse of the King and Queen when they were here May 29.

"Christie the Bear-Hunter," as he was known in Yukon folklore, was in Snaughnessy Military Hospital when Their Majesties visited there, but was too ill to see them. He died June 1, aged seventy-two.

"You have no business to be alive," doctors in Dawson, Y.T., told Christie in January, 1909, when he reached the northern post three months after a grizzly had gnawed his head and arm. But he went overseas in 1914, won a commission and the Distinguished Conduct Medal and Military Cross.

Christie's tussle with the bear near Rouge River, three hundred miles from Dawson, took place in October, 1908, as he followed the tracks of a wounded moose only to find the grizzly thirty feet away and charging.

Two shots from Christie's rifle didn't stop the attack and a moment later the bear had his head in his jaws. Christie managed to wrench his head free by shoving his arm into the grizzly's mouth and a few minutes later his bullets had fatal effect.

His jaws broken, his face torn to pieces, his right wrist shattered, Christie staggered seven miles back to the cabin he shared with George Crisfield. He wound his jacket around his bleeding skull, knotting the sleeves to support his broken jaws.

It was two months before Christie was strong enough to make the trip to Dawson with his partner, Al. Continued on page 2, Col. 5.

VILLENEUVE TO EXTEND VISIT ON CONTINENT

Following Short Trip to Rome to Report on Dedication of Church, Quebec Cardinal Will Visit Several French Religious Centres.

Saint Die, France, June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—Members of the staff of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, said today that the Canadian prelate would go to Rome to report to Pope Pius on his dedication of a Basilica at the birthplace of Joan of Arc at Domremy last Sunday and then return to France for a visit of several weeks.

The Cardinal will return to France about June 15 and stay until about July 4, staff members said. It was considered likely that during his stay he would attend special religious services at Paray-le-Monial.

Cardinal Villeneuve originally planned to visit the Diocese of Langres, birth place of Jeanne Mance, who founded numerous charitable institutions in Quebec during the seventeenth century.

The death of Monsignor Lamy, Bishop of Langres, in an automobile accident two days ago is expected to result in postponement of the Cardinal's visit, however.

Cardinal Villeneuve made a rapid automobile tour of the provinces of Alsace yesterday, visiting the Cathedral of Strasbourg and the Sanctuary of St. Odile and receiving cheers from residents of villages along his route.

The Papal Legate returned last night to this small town, where he attended a banquet given by town officials.

Perspiring Europe Today Troubled By Dazzling Heat, Drought And Dust

London, June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—Dazzling heat, drought and dust in some areas, troubled perspiring Europeans today.

Crop talks took precedence, for the moment at least, over talk of diplomacy. On the streets, temperatures were quoted more frequently than air fleet totals.

The London Courts judges discarded their wigs. A few Members of Parliament appeared without vests.

In France men walked the streets in their shirtsleeves. Italians rejoiced that the wheat crop would be saved.

Prime Minister Chamberlain left his umbrella in its hall stand and wore a gray top hat. Noel Coward drank chilled lemon juice at a garden party.

In London, the thermometer showed eighty-four degrees, the warmest June figure in three years. A third day of heat in Paris brought eighty-nine. In Italy, temperatures generally were above eighty.

A hot spell in Germany with temperatures near ninety was welcomed by farmers. The crop situation was reported by the German Statistical Bureau as progressing favorably despite a late winter.

Dust, churned up across the great plains of Russia, scratched the

Slaying Of British Official Increases Anglo-Jap Tension

British Representatives Scout Claims of Japanese that Former Shanghai Police Inspector Killed by Jap Marines Had Threatened Japanese Officers—Action on Hospitalization Jumps Indignation.

Shanghai, June 7.—(AP)—The death of a British subject of injuries inflicted by Japanese marines created a serious situation today.

Japanese charged that the Englishman, R. M. Tinkler, who formerly was Inspector of Municipal Police here, fired upon a Japanese officer and threatened his men when they entered a British cotton mill in the Pootung district to stop a fight between strikers and non-strikers.

"This case is not a mere issue involving pointing a gun by a Briton at Japanese," a Japanese Embassy spokesman declared. "It involves lawlessness towards a Japanese officer in uniform. That Japanese marines should have disarmed Tinkler and manhandled him is explicable under the circumstances."

"We are surprised he was not shot and killed on the spot," British sources privately charged the Japanese had misrepresented the facts. British officials made no statement but were investigating.

Adding to British indignation was the fact Tinkler was taken to the Shanghai General Hospital in Japanese dominated Hongkew, rather than to a hospital in the International Settlement.

CLAIMS RUMANIA TO MAINTAIN FREEDOM

Bucharest, June 7.—(AP)—King Carol told the opening session of Rumania's new Cooperative Parliament today that "we want peace but not at all cost."

Amid applause of his white-uniformed deputies and senators, King Carol declared the nation's budget was balanced, and that the army was being strengthened with credits from trade treaties with Great Britain, France and Germany.

He asked for the support of Parliament, but added that under the 1928 constitution which set up his experiment in Fascism the Government is responsible only to the King.

Last-Minute Plea for Presidential Intervention on Part of Nine Hundred Refugees Fails After Cuba Refuses Admission.

Miami, Fla., June 7.—(AP)—Their aimless odyssey apparently ended, 907 Jewish refugees were reported on their way back to Germany today aboard the liner St. Louis, which wandered along the Florida coast for five days while welfare agencies sought to gain permission for them to land in Cuba.

Their hope crushed by the Cuban Government's refusal for the second time to give them asylum, the refugees renewed an appeal to President Roosevelt for last-minute intervention. "Help them, Mr. President. Of the 900 passengers, more than 400 are women and children," a passenger committee wiredless from the German liner.

The ship reported to Tropical Radio shortly before midnight it had set its course for Europe.

Montreal, June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—H.M.S. Berwick, flagship of the American and West Indies squadron of the Royal Navy, will arrive here June 26 for an eight-day visit.

It is the first time a pledge of co-operation actually has been voiced during the long and complicated negotiations and was apparently intended to reassure Russia of Britain's determination and good faith.

Mr. Chamberlain explained: "It is not intended that the full military support which the three powers will agree to extend should be confined to actual aggression on their own territory."

"It is possible to imagine various cases in which any one of the three governments might feel its security indirectly menaced by action of another European power."

"These cases have been reviewed in detail and I hope it may be possible now to suggest a formula acceptable to the three governments which, having regard to the interests of other states, will ensure co-operation between those powers in resistance to aggression."

This reference to indirect aggression was designed to counter the Russian attitude toward German intervention in Latvia, Estonia and Finland similar to the intervention in Czechoslovakia last March which led to the Republic's partition.

The Soviet has told Britain that if Germany attempted to undermine the constitutional authority in any of the Baltic countries, Russia would move troops into their defence. Technically that would be aggression on Russia's part, but actually, Russia claims, it would be a move to protect her small neighbor states from being swallowed by the Reich.

"There remain one or two difficulties to be resolved," Mr. Chamberlain said, "in particular the position of certain states which do not want to receive a guarantee on the ground that it would compromise the strict neutrality which they desire to preserve."

This was interpreted as a reference to the Baltic states which have Continued on Page 2, Col. 6.

Disappointment Tinged Welcome Of Royal Visit To Border Districts

Windsor, Ont., June 7.—(C.P. Cable)—Memories of a tumultuous greeting to the King and Queen thrilled Windsor anew today but it took a lot of consoling to ease the disappointment of 30,000 school youngsters who at the last minute had to forego a promised close-up visit of Their Majesties.

Before the roars of the Border City's international welcome had subsided, police and train authorities decided last night that the special stop at the children's stand on the way out of the city must be cancelled because of danger to the children's lives.

Darkness had fallen and the Royal train then was more than an hour behind schedule. It was feared a special stop would invite disaster with the thousands of youngsters trying to jam their way up to the train and the possibility some would crawl under the cars.

The children waited in the stand through a hot, sunny afternoon, they whooped and yelled as the train entered the city and again as it approached the stand on the way out. But as it moved on without stopping—although the King and Queen stood on the platform waving—the youngsters' shrieks of delight turned to cries of disappointment and some wept.

Mayor David Croll, who with other civic officials had planned to ride the Royal train from the station reception to the children's stand, expressed regret over the cancellation. The Mayor announced Monday that the special stop had been arranged.

Windsor's 150,000 population was nearly tripled for the Royal visit, thousands coming from Detroit and other points across the border.

The blue and silver royal train traced the course of the Detroit river as it rolled into the Canadian National Railway station. Thousands roared their cheers along five miles of the right-of-way and from boats of all sorts. Throaty sirens and shrill whistles joined the chorus. Behind the water Detroit's lighted skyscrapers gave the King and Queen their first view of an American city on the Royal tour.

The special train, delayed by welcoming demonstrations clear across Western Ontario, was almost an hour late arriving. And instead of spending a scheduled fifteen minutes Continued on Page 2, Col. 6.

Empire Freedom And Unity Is Symbolized By Royalty

Realization They Are Free People of Country Linked to Empire by Crown Will Bring Homage from Thousands of Canadians When King and Queen Visit Sherbrooke, Rotarians Told by Retiring District Governor.

"Because they realize they are free people of a country linked to the British Empire by the Crown and what it symbolizes, thousands of Canadians will pay homage to King George and Queen Elizabeth when they visit Sherbrooke next Monday, Leroy Rice, of Barre, Vt., retiring District Governor of the 195th District of Rotary International, declared last night in a stirring address before the Sherbrooke Rotary Club in the New Sherbrooke House.

Since the Statute of Westminster became law, giving to each unit of the Empire complete autonomy, it has been the Crown that has held the Empire together, Mr. Rice pointed out.

"Thousands of persons will cheer wildly when Their Majesties pass through Sherbrooke, simply because the people are seeing a King and Queen, or because the Queen is beautiful—although, gentlemen, she is very beautiful indeed—but because the people realize that the couple symbolize the unity of the British Empire, mother of the world's freedom," he said.

"French-speaking Canadians are loyal to the Empire because they do not feel that their liberties are cramped or that they lack the chance to take advantage of their opportunities," Mr. Rice believed. There is no attempt to curb individualism in any country under the British flag, he added.

Himself Canadian-born, Mr. Rice, a Barre clergyman, considered it particularly significant that President Roosevelt, speaking at the opening of the Thousand Islands International Barge, had promised an attack on Canada would not be a matter of indifference to the United States, and that now the King and Queen are to visit the republic.

"It is wise in these times of strife, to show the friendliness of democracies," he said. "Certain nations in Europe are bound to realize the significance of the visit being made by Their Majesties."

"Never in the history of Canada and the United States have friendlier feelings existed between the two countries than at the present time," Mr. Rice declared.

Referring more particularly to Rotary International, which he said stands for "hands across the international borders," Mr. Rice believed that the set-up of the 195th District was ideal, inasmuch as it includes clubs from Quebec, Vermont and New Hampshire.

"In this district lies a continuous challenge to our principles and ideals," he said.

Mr. Rice is to be succeeded in July as District Governor by George Ewing, now president of the Sherbrooke club. Declaring that Mr. Ewing had never made any attempt to win the Governorship but that all the clubs in New Hampshire, where turn it was to appoint a leader, desired that the Sherbrooke club should have the honor, Mr. Rice pointed out that the local organ has created kindly feelings throughout Vermont and New Hampshire towards Canada.

"In the 195th District there are fifty-one American clubs and only two Canadian and in Mr. Ewing we are dramatizing all that Rotary preaches," he stated.

Much of the fine spirit at the Montpelier spring conference was due to the deities from the Sherbrooke club, he said, adding that no club in the district has displayed more of the Rotary spirit than the local organization.

District Governor Rice was introduced by District Governor-Elect Ewing and thanked by Past President D. J. Salls. A number of guests present, including the Chantecler, noted local male chorus, were introduced by Rotarian Francis Hove and thanked by Past President Rosaire Samson. During the evening two sections, heartily applauded by the members, were given by the Chantecler under the direction of their leader, Hector St. Pierre.

Two New Yorkers Taken In Custody By R.C.M.P. At Waterloo

Arrest of two individuals charged by the New York State police with grand larceny was made by members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, three at Waterloo, and the duo who waived extradition were deported to New York via Rouses Point.

Harvey Plets, alias Plets, alias Plets, alias Pitre, and his wife, Ruth Plets, were taken in custody in a room which they had rented in the Eastern Townships village by Constable Murray Smith and Constable J. Charon, of the Supt. detachment of the R.C.M.P., who were accompanied by Chief Tetreault, of Waterloo, and Cpl. Ficke and Sheriff Reinhard, of the New York State Police.

According to Cpl. J. R. Lemieux in charge of the Sherbrooke section of the R.C.M.P., the two were charged with stealing jewelry and articles, including a motor car, from a New York broker with whom they had obtained employment. Following the theft, they headed straight for Canada. The stolen car was wrecked on the way and they had to finish their journey to Waterloo by taxi.

Investigation at the border revealed the trail which led to their arrest, Cpl. Lemieux said.

Cpl. Lemieux has succeeded Sgt. T. S. Moore, retired on pension, as head of the Sherbrooke section of the R.C.M.P. He was stationed in Sherbrooke for four years and at Thetford Mines for a similar period.

The loan will be made over a period of fifteen years starting with June 1, 1939, and the bonds will be redeemed in series every year from June 1, 1940, until June 1, 1954.

RATHER EXPENSIVE AID

With the German and Italian troops finally withdrawn from Spain, the cost of the aid given by the totalitarian powers to General Franco can be partially computed. According to official Italian reports, which are not exaggerated, the campaign cost Italy $500,000,000 in cash, 3,132 lives and over 10,000 wounded. Of these 2,000 are permanently disabled and will have to be maintained by Italy as long as they live.

To what purpose was this expensive aid, Mussolini, probably helped by the stiffening attitude of Great Britain and France, has lived up to his promise not to demand Spanish territory, so the best he can achieve is his avowed intention of establishing a Fascist Government alongside him in the Mediterranean Sea. This he has obtained, if it is worth anything.

On the economic side, he seems determined to recoup himself for the expenditures he has made through obtaining certain much-needed supplies from Spain. The Reich has already received something on account in the form of oranges which have been very scarce on German tables for a long time.

But if the obtaining of materials was the basis for the conflict, Italy certainly went about it in a rather costly way. She admits losing some three thousand men, but as this figure is essentially for home consumption, and it is known that the Italian forces took some terrific hammerings, it can readily be believed that the casualties were actually very much heavier. And it is likely that her supplies will be in no way facilitated, for the Spanish Republic Government would have been just as ready to sell Mussolini what he requires to the extent of $500,000,000 as is the present Nationalist regime, and the country would have been in better shape to make deliveries.

From surface indications, Mussolini has lost the war but is unable to admit it, in view of the losses and sufferings of his people who have traded their lives and blood for commerce.

NEW POULTRY BILL PASSED IN BRITAIN

The new Poultry Industry Bill recently passed by the British Parliament is of particular interest to Canadians in so far that many of its main features are based on Canadian policies. The bill calls for the setting up of a Government-appointed commission which, with the assistance of two advisory committees, will virtually control all branches of the poultry industry. Advising on stock improvement and marketing control will be the major task of the respective communities.

Registration of names and premises, notification of disease, compulsory grading of eggs and table birds, control of imports marking of all cold storage eggs, and penalties for non-compliance with the new conditions are among the bill's outstanding features. The bill was compiled by a technical committee appointed by the Poultry Reorganization Committee for England and Wales. The members of the technical committee based several of their recommendations on what has been done in Canada, particularly in regard to the Record of Performance and the Hatchery Approval policies which have been in operation in the Dominion for twenty years.

The new marketing scheme in the bill is substantially a replica of the methods followed in Canada. Speaking to the Bill in the British Parliament, the Minister of Agriculture stated that the Government was of opinion that a factor contributing to the difficulties of the poultry industry in Great Britain was the lack of organization in the marketing of home-produced eggs and poultry.

ANGLO-PORTUGUESE CO-OPERATION

The announcement of the conclusion of a new agreement between Great Britain and Portugal calls attention to the somewhat unique position of these two countries which have been on friendly terms ever since 1373, the strength of this friendship being proved during the Great War when a substantial Portuguese Expeditionary Force appeared on the Western Front.

The importance of the newly-announced friendship agreement between the two countries is that the British are assured of friendly ports of call in southwestern Europe, which are of great strategic importance due to the possible attitude of General Franco and his Spanish fascists.

Although situated in close proximity to the most troublesome area of Europe, Portugal is one of the happiest and most prosperous nations in the world, and celebrates the three hundredth anniversary of its independence this year with tremendous celebrations. One of its functions in this observance is the visit of President Carmona to Portuguese East Africa, which is under British protection and the neighboring Union of South Africa.

The economic history of Portugal during the past ten years is astonishing. Portugal had been in a state of chaos and unrest since the assassination of King Carlos in 1908 and the dethronement of his son Manoel two years later when a republic was proclaimed. In 1928 the country had a floating debt of $93,000,000 and a professor of economics at the old University of Coimbra, Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, was practically railroaded into the position of Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, with practically dictatorial powers which were the only terms upon which he would agree to serve. Dr. Salazar organized Portugal's finances like a careful housewife who was determined that expenditure should never exceed income. By economies and clever financing, beginning at a time when no country would give Portugal a loan he created a surplus of $14,000,000 the first year and has produced a surplus every year since; an achievement in financing unequalled by any other nation. Today the Treasury has a balance of over $30,000,000. In the previous one hundred years the budget had only been balanced thrice. An immense amount of social work has been carried out and the Government has improved roads, hospitals, schools, a modern navy, and important hydro-electrical projects. At the same time an expansion of agricultural production and improved conditions among the farming population in this land, which is almost entirely agricultural, have been undertaken.

Professor Salazar also devised a new constitution which, when voted upon, was supported by over ninety-five per cent of the people. When ministers of finance want to know how to balance budgets, it would appear that Portugal would be a far more profitable country for investigation than Australia.

Members of Parliament, in all their statements, hold that they are working one hundred per cent for the farmers. Let them prove that by fixing a decent price for butter. The fact is, however, that the farmers are betrayed by a members at Ottawa. Many members criticized the Tory Government for not fixing a price for butter. Yet butter is still practically on the same level. Why do they go back on their words? When they adjust the butter situation in Canada, they will adjust the most vital question, one which is causing real terror to a very essential element of the population of Canada—as element which has a right to live and a right to a just and honest reward for their labors.

This question has been the cause of the downfall of one Government. Do these gentlemen wish to wait and see it cause the downfall of the present Government? The butter question in Canada and they will bring happiness to thousands of homes, and, incidentally, a reward to themselves as members of the House of Commons.

Yours truly,

Frost and fire caused considerable damage in the Eastern Townships yesterday as the growing season got well under way. Hardest hit were the villages of Stanstead and Sutton where bean and tomato plants were badly nipped. Falling sparks ignited the residence of Adam Oliver at Cowansville and it was only through the prompt action of the fire brigade that no serious damage was done. And wondered why—until
We understood it was made zigzag
To break the force of the hill.

A road straight up would prove too steep
For the traveller's feet to tread;
The thought was kind in the wise design
Of a zigzag path instead.

'Tis often so in our daily life—
We fail to understand
That the twisting way our feet must tread
By love alone was planned.

Then murmur not at the winding path;
It is our Father's will
To lead us home by the zigzag path
To break the force of the hill.

A FIXED PRICE FOR BUTTER

To the Editor,
Dear Sir:—The farmers of Eastern Canada are determined to take all possible means for adjusting the farming situation. All who are acquainted with that situation are far from pleased with present prospects, especially as regards the sale of butter.

This product has become a poker deal and at the expense of the producer. The discouragement of the production of butter has been the cause of much of the unemployment in Canada. Those in power are well aware of what damage the watered stocks caused in 1929, and how the farmers in this country met with defeat in their efforts in this Christian land of Canada.

Today Canadian farmers are met by another misery, namely, trust companies buying and hoarding butter. The Governments of Canada have been asked, through a delegation, to offer a remedy for the situation which is demanded by all Canada. The Government now in power has been asked to give to Canadian farmers a price of thirty-five cents a pound on all butter produced in Canada, which alone will give to the farmer a very modest profit, instead of giving the whole profit to the trusts and nothing but inevitable loss to the farmer.

Members of Parliament, in all their statements, hold that they are working one hundred per cent for the farmers. Let them prove that by fixing a decent price for butter. The fact is, however, that the farmers are betrayed by a members at Ottawa. Many members criticized the Tory Government for not fixing a price for butter. Yet butter is still practically on the same level. Why do they go back on their words? When they adjust the butter situation in Canada, they will adjust the most vital question, one which is causing real terror to a very essential element of the population of Canada—as element which has a right to live and a right to a just and honest reward for their labors.

This question has been the cause of the downfall of one Government. Do these gentlemen wish to wait and see it cause the downfall of the present Government? The butter question in Canada and they will bring happiness to thousands of homes, and, incidentally, a reward to themselves as members of the House of Commons.

THE SPEED OF OUR NAVY

(Moncton Transcript)

It would appear that some people in Washington have exploded, or they would prefer to call it "debunked," a myth regarding the Canadian navy. It is really not an old myth, as myths go, and had its beginnings when President Roosevelt made a short visit to British Columbia and was received with the same acclaim that had marked his earlier visit to Quebec.

The story—which we certainly never heard until after its refutation—was that when President Roosevelt crossed Puget Sound he travelled in the United States destroyer Phelps and was met by the Canadian destroyers Skeena and Fraser. The Phelps was then one of the latest additions to the American navy, a palpitating razor blade sliding through water at a speed no less than thirty-seven knots. When the Skeena and the Fraser came out to meet it, the story went around the Phelps that the Canadian boats had asked by radio "At what speed are you proceeding?" and when told thirty-seven knots replied: "Sorry, that lets us out. Our best is seventeen."

With pride enhanced in their own navy, the American correspondents probably felt that it was not quite the thing to make fun of their hosts' old tabs and so that is the reason that the debunking comes as a surprise to Canadians.

The debunking occurred when the Skeena and the Saguenay led the Empress of Australia up the St. Lawrence at a much higher speed than their alleged seventeen knots maximum.

Obviously only landlubbers were fooled with the yarn, for a naval man would naturally look at Jane's Fighting Ships, the recognized authority on such matters. There the speed of the Phelps is properly given at thirty-seven knots. The Skeena, it would appear, was built in 1930, and thus is comparatively new when the reliance which the British place on the much older H.M.S. Hood is considered, and of the ship of the Skeena class it says: "These ships exceeded thirty-seven knots on trials with ease."

One of the most interesting things in the world is rumor, and without a doubt it is the most uncertain.

It would be rather enjoyable to follow these floating suggestions to their various sources and be able to definitely learn their mysterious course.

Often a story will be heard that at the most is only a vague statement of some possible happening. An hour later the same tale will be unfolded on some street corner, but only an expert would recognize that the basis of the two is identical.

Just how these embellishments became associated with the original is practically impossible to determine in most cases. The majority of rumors have a limited circulation, but quite often a story with very little foundation will travel around the world in such a short time that it seems beyond possibility. We have all heard of the weird kind of the tom-tom in the African jungle, which carries news with a sureness and rapidity equalled only by telegraph, and of the smoke signals of the American Indians and the Australian aboriginals. Of course there can't be a similar system whereby each latest news, scandalous and otherwise, add whatever he would to improve the general appearance, and then pass on the decorated version to the next Peeps, but at times this appears to be the only explanation.

Almost every activity is affected by rumor, some to a very great extent, such as the daily newspaper, the stock exchange, and shipping concerns. The first mentioned is continually interested in tales that are too important to be ignored. Some of the greatest scoops in the history of journalism had their origin in rumors.

Going further and examining individual cases of rumor, we find inexplicable instances of stories that have caused widespread alarm or occasionally extreme celebration that, when probed, proved to be, as slang usage would have it, "the bunk."

People whose sudden appearance dispelled the statement of their death, the man who found himself so popular until it was definitely learned that his rich uncle did not die and leave him a fortune, and, anyway, he hadn't a rich relative. Many, many, however, can explain just how this "rumor business" works, and it isn't likely that anyone will.

FROM THE PEN OF E. T. WRITERS

THE "SMILING" QUEEN.

We stood waiting, excited, shy,
For Their Majesties to pass by;
Hearts throbbing, eyes so keen,
When we beheld our smiling Queen.

Stately and noble, we saw our King,
While people cheered, and bells did ring;
Charming, gracious, a pretty scene,
When we beheld our smiling Queen.

Long will our thoughts around them linger,
Our King and Ruler, we'll remember;
But dear to our hearts, since we have seen,
Is our smiling and beloved Queen.

This is hand No. 17 of the 1939 World Bridge Olympic contest, conducted by the American Contract Bridge League. Each hand involves a definite problem in bidding or play.

1. Should East open the bidding with one spade or one heart?
2. What is the most probable line of bidding on his hand, and what is the correct final contract?
3. After winning the opening lead with the ace of diamonds, what should East play?
4. Has East a safe way of making six spades?

North dealer—Neither vul.

1. When holding two major suits of equal length, you should bid the higher ranking suit first. Here, however, East holds six hearts and only five spades, and should therefore open the bidding with one heart.

2. East should open with one heart, and South is justified in overcalling with two diamonds. West shows his club suit with a bid of three clubs. North must pass, and East then shows his second suit by bidding three spades. When West jumps to five spades, East should go to six spades.

3. East should lead a small trump, and then play the king of clubs from dummy, discarding his losing six of diamonds.

4. East has a fairly safe line of play. He should be careful to count his tricks. When South wins the ace of clubs and returns a diamond, East should ruff and play a small heart, winning with dummy's ace.

On the queen and jack of clubs, he discards two hearts. When North ruffs the ten of clubs, East overruffs and cashes the king of hearts, discarding a club from dummy. The last four tricks are won by cross-ruff.

considerations, there would be fifty per cent more elevator space and equipment at Lake Superior ports than is necessary for the handling of that grain. But the investment is there, the established currents of trade are centered in a pull in that direction. Another cogent reason is that Vancouver is without ability to quote in futures prices on the Vancouver Grain Exchange. Trade is purposely handicapped. The wonder is that we do as much business as is now transacted here.

Vancouver's goal is to establish itself as the cheapest port of call for the present situation of trading designed to give extra profits to traders because they patronize the east-bound route, is unfair to this city and to the farmers who could do better by the Pacific outlet.

Canada's exhibit at the World's Fair (Brantford Exposition) is a good one in many respects, but it was not adopted, unfortunately, in connection with this Dominion's official participation in the New York World's Fair. The Canadian pavilion there was opened in due course, somewhat late it is true. But there was no special complaint on that score, as tardiness seems to have been a general failing with the notable exception of Great Britain.

The principal complaint is not in the slowness so much as in the place of opening. Generally it is conceded that Canada's building has been put in such an out-of-the-way spot that it is rather hard to find. This is explained, in part, by the fact that construction of the edifice was not started until December 6 last when, presumably, there was not much land left for allocation.

This is most unfortunate, whatever the reason. Canada as a "good neighbor" of the United States might have been expected to have one of the most imposing buildings at the Fair, and certainly one of the most prominently situated. Failing that, it would have been better—perhaps it would have been the best scheme from the start—to have had Canada's official exhibit in a wing of the British Building following the examples of Australia and New Zealand.

RESUME

His attempts to help Willie Heyward, society drunk sentenced to die for the murder of Broadway beauty Dolores Gonzales, earn Private Detective Guy Johnson a year in Sing Sing. En route to serve his prison sentence, Guy escapes his guards. As a result he finds himself saddled with Edwina Corday, goofy poetess who insists on sharing his danger for the thrill of it. After innumerable adventures, Edwina saves Guy from the police by pretending he is an English actor with whom she has eloped. Guy's only clue to the real murderer is the half of a dime he found next to Dolores' body. The clue opens up two possibilities: Vivian, Willie's wife, wears a half-dime on her charm bracelet. An item in a newspaper Personal Column is signed HALF-A-DIME. Guy watches the Personals and at last gets a real clue—for Half-A-Dime writes someone urging her to come to the Saugerties Theatre and see the husband she thought was dead. Guy's theory is that Vivian framed Willie for Dolores' murder so that she might inherit his ten millions dollars; but that HALF-A-DIME the husband she thought dead, is blackmailing her. He and Edwina set out for Saugerties by boat.

CHAPTER SIX

CAN THIS BE LOVE?

Guy Johnson leaned over the rail of the small tug he'd chartered and stared moodily at the little town on the shore. Why had Wilson, the tug captain, moored the boat here, he wondered?

"Guy?"

Edwina's voice called to him from the cabin. "Yes?" he answered. "Aren't you going to sleep?" "No." "Gimp's only gone to shore to get supplies," she comforted. "You ought to get some sleep." "There's no use resting," she continued from the cabin porthole. "I wouldn't do any good to go ashore now. It won't be Wednesday before morning and you can get an early start, all refreshed. I'm sure HALF-A-DIME hasn't been murdered yet—I just feel it. Please stop worrying."

"I don't like dames who don't understand."

"Thanks," he said shortly. For a few seconds there was silence. Then Guy turned and made for the cabin. "Mind if I come in?" he asked.

"Not at all," she said hesitantly. He entered the cabin and found her sitting on the bunk dressed in men's pajamas and a sou-wester and wrapped in a blanket.

"Are you cold?" he asked. "No. Just comfortable. What are you going to do in Saugerties—mean—your first step?"

"Get a job as an actor." He eyed her appraisingly. "Your sunburn is very becoming."

She pulled the blanket closely about her. "Thank you," she replied and forced a smile.

He opened a cupboard and took out a bottle of whiskey. "You mind?" he asked.

"Not if it'll calm you." She reached over and turned on the small radio.

"Say when," he called as he poured a drink.

"Oh—no more for me, please." He stared at her. "Why not? It's good for you."

"I—I don't drink."

"Oh, come on," he said impatiently. "A little one. It will kind of break the ice—"

Her face went suddenly blank. "I'm sorry. But I never drink. Really."

"Oh, you don't, eh?"

"No." "Scrupulous, eh?"

"Sort of—"

"You just write poetry?" he questioned coolly.

"That's all," she replied flatly.

He downed his drink. "Some honeymoon," he observed and sat down on the bunk beside her. She jumped to her feet immediately and with the blanket trailing her made for a chair.

"You didn't finish telling me about the time you were press agent for those midgets," she observed brightly. "Please tell me—I'd love to hear—"

"Listen, sister," he interrupted. "You don't have to change the subject on me. You can relax. I never work overtime on this sort of thing. Life's too short."

"I don't understand—" she began nervously.

"I don't like dames who don't understand," he retorted grimly. He poured himself a second whiskey.

"You're being a little crude, Mr. Johnson," she observed frigidly.

"I would like you to realize," he replied, "that when a lady attaches herself to a gentleman for two days like a porcupine plaster and goes so far as to tell two cops, two newspaper reporters, a cameraman and a tugboat captain that the gentleman is her husband, he's got a right to come to certain minor conclusions—even if he isn't a detective."

"I'm sorry about your conclusions," she answered primly. "But couldn't you just think of me as if I were Sherlock Holmes?"

"Alright," he acquiesced. "Have it your way—you're Sherlock Holmes." He picked up an old corn cob pipe from the tugboat rack. "Here's your pipe," he snorted.

She glared at him furiously, then shrugged her shoulders. She got up from her chair and walked to the radio and turned the dial. The music died down and a man's voice came through the speaker:

"Special Bulletin," called the announcer's voice. "Broadway's doomed playboy, Willie Heyward, awaiting execution for the murder of Dolores Gonzales, assassinated suicide in the death cell at Sing Sing tonight—"

"What?" cried Guy and jumped to her feet.

"Heyward swallowed a handful of sleeping tablets," the announcer continued. "Prompt medical attention saved him from cheating the electric chair—"

Edwina, her face pale, turned off the dial. "Oh, that's awful," she said. "If he should kill himself before you proved his innocence."

"Yeah," he said flatly. "That's the kind of breaks I always get. He'll start swallowing spoons next."

"Well, whatever happens," she soothed, "you'll have nothing to reproach yourself with."

"I won't, eh?" he countered angrily. "If that coon kicks off before I break the case, I'm out a hundred grand. But that's me—everytime I get near a pile of dough somebody drops a butterfly net on me."

She stared at him shocked silence. "You mean to say that all you're thinking of is getting paid for this?"

"Listen, stupid," he retorted. "I'm in this for the dough and nothing else. Willie signed a paper that says he'll pay me a hundred grand if I find the real murderer—and I'm gambling fifty years in jail against that hundred grand—"

"You can stop yelling," she shouted. "I understand now—perfectly. I was quite wrong in thinking you were different."

"Different from what?" he roared and poured himself another drink.

"I'm a little disappointed to find you an ordinary, greedy young man."

"You're pretty disappointing yourself, if you ask me," he muttered.

She smiled at him wistfully, suppressing her fine sense of disillusion in a manner she hoped would devastate him. "I thought there was something fine in you—I thought I saw something daring and poetical under your coarseness."

"Lady," he interrupted quietly, "you're full of prunes."

"But as it turns out," she continued, "you're just the average New York woman chaser—the kind who whistles at girls on street corners—"

"Oh," he observed calmly, "so I've been chasing you, eh?"

"Who has no belief in anything beyond his own dull, greedy desires," she mused.

"Kindly take the mush out of your mouth," he interposed coldly.

"People who believe in decent love and high adventure, are mushy, aren't they?" she asked in high disdain.

"Who's talking about love?" he demanded. "You wouldn't even take a drink with me!" He began removing his coat and shirt.

"What are you going to do?" she cried in terror.

"I'm going for a swim," he retorted. "And if you try to follow me, so help me, I'll drown you—"

"Follow you?" she shrieked. "I follow you—"

"Yeah. You've been following me like a tattoo mark for two days—and I want no more of you—"

"Indeed?" she cried. "Well, your company has pulled a little, Mr. Johnson—"

"If you'll excuse me—" he said with elaborate politeness, and exited from the cabin.

For a moment she sat, dumbstruck. Then she leaped to the porthole. She saw him climb cautiously down the side of the boat and lower himself gingerly into the water. Then, holding his clothes high out of the water with one hand, he started swimming toward shore.

CONFINED ABED BY LUMBAGO In Pain for Weeks

Acting on his principle of "when you know a good thing tell your friends about it," a man who has had very bad lumbago pains writes as follows:—

"I suffered from lumbago, and for weeks could scarcely move in bed. I had treatment, but it did not ease the pain very much. A friend said, 'Why not take Kruschen Salts? Take them every morning, and you'll likely get relief from that pain in your back.' So I have taken them every morning for some time and I am in fit condition for my work again—thanks to Kruschen."

Why is it that lumbago, backache, rheumatism and indigestion in many cases yield to Kruschen Salts? Because it is a combination of several mineral salts that are vital for your body's well-being. Each of these salts has an action of its own. Stomach, liver, kidneys and digestive tract are all benefited and toned up to a high state of efficiency.

Firestone SAFETY PROVED AGAIN IN INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY RACE!

FIRESTONE TIRES HAVE BEEN THE CHOICE OF THE WINNING DRIVERS FOR 20 CONSECUTIVE YEARS!

New Firestone CHAMPION TIRES

From their 20 years' experience in building tires for racing cars, Firestone engineers have developed an entirely new kind of tire—the Firestone Champion—named as a tribute to the champions of the speedway.

THE ONLY TIRE MADE WITH SAFETY-LOCK CORDS

Everything in this great tire is new and different. New Safety-Lock cords are more compact and cooler-running. A new and advanced method of Gum-Dipping locks cords and plies together, making the tire 35% stronger. 2 extra cord plies under the tread lock body and tread together. Beads are rust-proofed and tied in. Every part of the tire is locked and interlocked into one unit of amazing strength.

NEW GEAR-GRIP TREAD

Because of this extra strength, Firestone is able to use a deeper, wider, tougher Gear-Grip tread. Scientifically designed and with thousands of sharp-edged angles that bite through road film, rain and mud, it is a marvel for long mileage, non-skid protection and quick, safe stops. See the nearest Firestone Dealer today and have him put new Champions on your car—they cost no more than ordinary tires.

New CHAMPION LEAKPROOF TUBE

Another new Firestone achievement that increases the mileage up to 25%. A cured-in rubber valve stem and a special lining that seals the inner surface prevents air seepage. Same price as ordinary tubes.

REDER RIFLES RIDE TO PROVINCIAL PEAK

Humble Three Rivers For No. 5 — Saints Bow

Sherbrooke Batters Down Three Rivers 11-6 to Hurdle St. Hyacinthe and Park in Provincial Baseball League Driver's Seat—Granby Swamps Saints 11-1, Barton and Heath Homering—Sorel Capitalizes on Fourteen Hits and Six Quebec Miscues for 10-3 Victory.

Putting together effective twirling and timely hitting, the local Provincial Baseball League team has ridden the crest of a five-game winning streak from a spot near the bottom of the standings to first place in little more than a week.

Hitting in the pinches, Sherbrooke stepped into the throne room last night with an eleven-six victory over Three Rivers here, displacing St. Hyacinthe, leaders almost since the season started, as the Saints bowed eleven-one at Granby.

Granby smashed out fifteen hits, ten of them in two innings, to swamp St. Hyacinthe, Fletcher Heath and Vince Barton hit home runs for the winners while Tom Rankin gave up only five hits for his third victory of the season.

At Quebec, Sorel, last year's champions, capitalized on fourteen hits and six Quebec errors for a ten-three triumph. Dow and Sullivan held the Athletics scoreless until the eighth inning.

The first six squads in the loop are tied up almost as closely as the Dionne Quintuplets and their favorite brother, Sherbrooke has eight wins and four losses for a .667 percentage, while St. Hyacinthe is half a game behind, eight triumphs and five setbacks giving them a mark of .615. Three Rivers is eight and six for .571 while the Red Sox have won seven and dropped six for .545. Sorel has six victories and five defeats for .545 while the sixth-place Athletics have split twelve for a .500 pace.

Approximately five hundred paid to watch last night's tilt between the locals and the Trifluvian nine, the result of which sent the Reder Rifles skyrocketing into the driver's seat. In weather that seemed sub-zero six elbows trudged to the hillcock, Lefty Bob Lumiansky received credit for his third win of the season although relieved by Charlie Kittredge in the eighth. John Reder finished off when Kittredge got into trouble in the final stanza. McCaffrey started for Three Rivers, and was tagged for the loss. The "Balloon Man," Jim Skelton, took over in the fourth, and in turn was relieved by Moose Clabaugh when Empire Prince tossed him out of the park in the seventh.

Sherbrooke played heads-up ball in the field and when on base took advantage of every opportunity to scuttle around the paths. Three Rivers committed four miscues and the local horde took full advantage of the bobbles to pile up their eleven markers. The Trifluvian hurlers gave up nine free tickets to first between them, and their generosity turned out to be a boomerang.

Lumiansky was touched for eight safeties, all singles with the exception of Dutch Prather's triple in the first, in the seven and one-third innings he toiled. He gave eight bases on balls and sent four batsmiths down swinging.

Umpires Prince, at the plate, and Carmel, on bases, found themselves in for a tough evening at the hands of Lloyd Stirling's mouthy mob. With the manager leading the way, the Trifluvian kicked up a fuss at every opportunity. Skelton, the bat boy and another player were thumped out of the park.

Pacing the Sherbrooke attack were Johnny Zuberli, who leaped out a double and single in three official trips to the platter, Johnny Ayvazian, who hit two for six, and Joejo Crowley, who doubled and singled to drive in three runs. Zuberli has hit safely seven times in his last ten times at bat, and has boosted his batting mark to .303 after a prolonged slump. Moose Clabaugh and Red Hoffer led the visitors with two safeties each.

Lumiansky sent Sherbrooke away to a one-outing lead in the second inning. When one away Al Kasso was handed a walk, Ayvazian fled out to Leo Maloney in deep centre but Lumiansky landed on a McCaffrey special and smashed it far past Maloney in centre for a double, sending Kasso in with plenty to spare.

The fifth saw the locals pick up five more runs on four bases on balls and two hits. Catcher Chris Schearer poked out a single to start the outburst and to second when Kasso stroled to third on shortstop Gene Sullivan's error off Ayvazian and home when Lumiansky received a base on balls.

Crowley scored Kasso and Ayvazian and sent Lumiansky to third on a hit that rattled off the left field fence, one foot below the top, and under wraps. McCaffrey trudged to the showers after that one.

Skelton, a three-ring circus, entertained all and sundry from then until the middle of the seventh, but his antics failed to stop the locals' march. He walked Zuberli to fill the sacks again.

Leo Manion fled out to short left, the runners holding their positions, but Skelton walked Cote to force in Lumiansky. A fielder's choice scored Crowley, forcing Cote at second, and Schearer, up for the second time in the inning, ended the uprising by flying out to left.

Hoffer singled in the fifth to score Popper Malin, who had walked, and Corrigan, who had singled, but Sherbrooke went ahead eight-two in the sixth. After Manion forced Zuberli at second, Cote received a base on balls. Varanese singled in Manion, sending Cote to third, but Schearer forced Varanese at second. Cote raced home from second on Corrigan tossed down an second in an attempt to catch Schearer stealing.

Three Rivers got to Lumiansky for three tallies in the seventh, two singles, a walk and an error by Manion allowing Hoffer, Luther and Clabaugh to dent the platter, but Sherbrooke came right back to do the same thing in their turn at bat.

Ayvazian singled, went to second when Lumiansky sacrificed and scored on Crowley's single. Zuberli singled Crowley in, then, caught off first by Skelton's deceptive motion, galloped all the way to third when Dutch Prather threw into the outfield in an attempt to catch the local second sacker at the keystone corner. Manion poked out a long sacre, fly to centre and Zuberli trotted home.

Kittredge took over in the eighth after Lumiansky had allowed a run and stopped Three Rivers cold, while in the ninth, with the sacks loaded and now away, Reder singled in and retired the invaders one, two, three, aided by sparkling catches by Ray Cote and Crowley in left and centre.

ROYALS UPHOLD REPUTATION OF PARENT OUTFIT

Burleigh Grimes' Montreals Bid for Recognition as Daffiness Boys of International Baseball League.

That famous Dodger influence apparently is extending even down to the International League. It's cropping up at odd times in the doings of Montreal Royals, whose only connection with Brooklyn is a working agreement and Manager Burleigh Grimes, who used to pilot the Dodgers.

The latest evidence is the way the Royals, playing their first night game at home, followed the Brooklyn pattern by dragging it out thirteen innings—just as the Dodgers and Chicago cubs went fourteen innings under the lights a short time ago.

But there are other signs. They started out like a four-alarm fire, dwindled down to a seventh-place smudge and now they seem to be working their way upward.

They didn't gain anything last night, however, for they departed from the pattern by losing the overtime night contest while Brooklyn had won. After leading 2-1 at the start of the ninth, they slowly folded up and let Syracuse Chiefs pull out a four to two decision.

Johnny Kroat and Jack Tising were largely responsible for the victory that sent Syracuse into fourth place, one percentage point ahead of Baltimore Orioles, who dropped a 3-2 decision to Buffalo. Kroner drove home the tying run with a ninth-inning trip, and then doubled to start the winning rally. Tising did a fine job of relief flinging to earn his second victory in three days.

Rochester's league-leading Red Wings ran their winning streak to nine straight by hammering out an 11-7 victory over the third-place Newark Bears, while Jersey Giants were the three to one victims when Toronto ended an eight-game losing streak. Buffalo's victory over Baltimore was its first in seven games.

THEY'RE LOOKING 'WAY BEYOND THE BALL

Ralph Guldahl, left, and Sam Snead are directing their sights far beyond the ball they're lining up at Fresh Meadow Country Club, Flushing, L.I., where they played in the Goodall Round Robin tournament. Guldahl seeks his third straight title and Snead is a red-hot contender in the National Open at Philadelphia, June 8-10.

CALVERT SHOULD BE READY BY SATURDAY

Montreal, June 7.—(P)—Trainer Bill O'Brien of Montreal's International Baseball League Royals said today that pitcher Paul Calvert of Sherbrooke's Provincial League club has "a slight cold in his arm but will be ready to pitch in a couple of days."

Calvert, once with Royals, has pitched only five innings with the Sherbrooke club since the start of the Provincial League season about a month ago. O'Brien said the pitcher, who also once received a tryout with New York Giants of the National League, had "consulted" him yesterday.

"It's very slight and he should be ready to pitch by Saturday," O'Brien said. "I have two pitchers and a catcher from the St. Hyacinthe club who are receiving treatment and they will be all right shortly also."

Local Outfit Boasts Nine .300 Batsmiths

Sherbrooke's Provincial Baseball League squad is batting the horse-clip at a terrific clip, boasting a .297 team average. The excellence of that mark will be seen when it is learned that last year Sorel, who won the loop batting crown, finished the season with an average of .285, and Sherbrooke, second best hitting outfit, ended up with a mark of .271.

Nine of the local players are hitting over the .300 line, Babe Drisko, Paul Calvert, Cliff Johnston and Bob Lumiansky, pitchers; Leo Manion, first base; Al Kasso, right field; Watson Goebel, catcher; Louis Varanese, third base; and Johnny Zuberli, second base.

Actual batting leader is Manion, popular first sacker, who has hit safely fifteen times in thirty-four trips to the plate, has collected three doubles and one home run and has knocked in twelve runs. Manion is hitting at a .441 clip.

Drisko, with four safeties in eight trips, and Calvert, with one base-knock in two trips, are hitting .500, while Cliff Johnston and Bob Lumiansky are cracking the leather at .333 clip.

Al Kasso is holding up the reputation of the outfielders with a .340 mark; Walt Goebel, husky catcher, is hitting .333; Louis Varanese, dependable third sacker, is batting .311 and Johnny Zuberli, who has suddenly recovered his eye, has surged up from the depths for a mark of .303.

New York, June 7.—(AP)—Harry Cooper is the real hot tip around Philly as the boys go to the post in the United States Open golf championship.

Some of the best minds among the scribes say Joe McCarthy really can do something for baseball by winning the pennant by thirty games. Then the rest of the American League might wake up and do something about it.

Eddie Mead says Joe Louis and Tommy Farr would do $700,000 in London if Farr beats Len Harvey for the British Empire title.

Giants Plaster Five Homers In One Frame

Terrymen Answer Critics with Seven-Home-Run Attack that Smashed Two Records, Tied Three Others and Quashed Cincinnati Reds, National League Leaders, 17-3—McCarthy Men Humiliated for Second Successive Day by Detroit Tigers, 6-2.

Apparently you can tease a New York Giant just so long and then he comes—a Giant.

Heckled by unhappy fans for wishy-washy hitting until their ears burned, New York Giants rose yesterday and answered their critics with a seven-home run attack that smashed two records, tied three others and completely quashed Cincinnati Reds, National Baseball League leaders, 17-3.

Never have the major leagues seen anything like that fourth inning uprising when Harry Danning, Frank Demaree, Burgess Whitehead, Manuel Salvo and Joe Moore blasted out a home run apiece to the right field stands.

That many home runs in one inning established a new record. And coupled with a pair of homers by Moore and Mel Ott earlier in the game tied
