Wind change threatens oil-soaked coast

ARICHAT, N.S. (CP) — The battle against oil pollution on Nova Scotia's East Coast continued today, seven days after the Liberian tanker Arrow ran aground on Cerberus Rock in Chedabucto Bay and began spewing oil into the sea.

Most of the oil leaking from the tanker—now broken in two—has been drifting out to sea south of Cape Breton Island, pushed on by light northerly winds. But the weather office forecast the wind would shift today, blowing out of the southeast at 25 miles an hour.

"It's the worst possible thing that could happen," said an official of Imperial Oil Ltd., which had the tanker under charter. A southeast wind would push the oil back into the bay where pollution damage to the shore and sealife could reach major proportions.

The coast at nearby Cape Auget and on the opposite side of the bay, west of Canso, already is covered with heavy bunker oil. Hundreds of water birds are known to have died.

An Imperial Oil official estimated 350,000 gallons of oil had leaked from the tanker since it went aground with a cargo of 3,800,000 gallons last Wednesday.

'Worst thing that could happen'—oil exec

Wildlife officers said they had spotted hundreds of dead birds during their tours of the shoreline. The birds, coated in black oil, are almost unrecognizable among rocks along polluted sections of the coast.

The disheartening weather forecast was the latest in a series of events that have frustrated the experts working to keep damage to the environment at a minimum.

It had been hoped oil aboard the 11,379-ton Arrow could be pumped off to another tanker. But Saturday the vessel began breaking up on the rocks, snapping steam lines being used to heat the oil tanks—a necessary move before pumping the thick oil could begin.

When the tanker broke in two Sunday it was hoped the stern section, with nine sound tanks containing one-third of her total cargo, would slip away from the rocks and could be towed away.

But the stern remained caught. Two tugs were unable to pull her off Monday, despite a high tide.

In the Commons Monday, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said he hoped the stern section would be towed to sea at high tide today and sunk off the Continental Shelf.

Imperial Oil, the transport and fisheries departments and the fisheries research board have been co-ordinating their efforts to get rid of the oil. Imperial has called in a pollution consultant from Boston, two demolition experts from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Dr. Richard Warner from Memorial University, St. John's, Nfld., a marine biologist.

Mr. Jamieson was to arrive today to take a first-hand look at the operation.

The bow section, about two thirds of the ship, was anchored on the rocks, oil seeping into the sea. However most of the cargo remained inside, held there by water pressure through holes in her bottom.

Late Monday navy divers, demolition experts and others were experimenting on how to burn the oil. A small slick was fenced in a boom and sprinkled with small glass balls, designed to hold heat by trapping gases in their rough edges, thus promoting combustion. But there was still the problem of igniting the oil.

At the public wharf here, fishermen cleared oil from their boats.

"This is going to be bad for the fishermen," said one, stopping to lift three dead ducks from the deck of his vessel. However, Dr. Warner said bunker oil is less toxic than other oil compounds for animal life.

Corexit, a chemical dispersant, was being sprayed on the oil to break it down into small particles.

Dr. Warner said Corexit was not particularly harmful to adult fish, although it could affect plankton, microscopic organisms living near the surface on which fish feed.

He said it was fortunate the spill had not occurred in September when lobster larvae are near the surface, possibly setting the industry back five years.

Young not disheartened

Price control talk produces big zero

OTTAWA (CP) — Slow progress was made Monday at the first closed session of a conference on price restraint between the government's prices and incomes commission and leaders of Canadian industry.

Dr. John Young, chairman of the commission and of the conference, told reporters the meeting "didn't settle on anything," but he is not downhearted. The conference dealt with detailed questions of interpretation, and will only reach the point of trying to get a broad consensus later.

He gave reporters two descriptions of what it is the commission wants from the business leaders, and though reporters found differences in the two, Dr. Young said they meant the same thing.

One goal is to have business keep its price increases well enough below cost increases to be plainly "on-side," so that any outsider looking at the pricing policy of Canadian industry will see that profits are not being increased.

He put it another way in saying that the revenues derived from any price increases should be not more than any cost increases.

Questioned about the apparent difference in these two formulas, Dr. Young insisted that the first was the commission's goal, and the second merely another way of stating it.

DIFFER ON GOALS

There is some conflict between the commission's main thrust and a proposal made by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. It has proposed to its members that manufacturers would be justified in raising prices only if their net profits decline because of cost increases.

Asked whether the CMA's formula is acceptable, Dr. Young said the conference had a vigorous discussion, which was useful and worthwhile, but did not settle anything.

The conference resumes today with private committee sessions before a closing plenary meeting in open session.

Prime Minister Trudeau opened the meeting Monday with a promise of further government measures to restrict over-expansion in the industrially rich parts of Canada, and more help to the industrially underdeveloped.

George Haythorne, former deputy minister of labor in the federal government and now a member of the prices commission, told reporters:

"We made it very clear that if expectations change because of a meaningful reduction in the rate of price increases, ... this is going to have a significant effect on the demands of labor for increased wages and salaries."

Need $250,000 to solve east ward water crisis

SHERBROOKE — East ward alderman Romeo Quintal yesterday asked council to approve a $250,000 equipment expense to help solve the water shortage in the ward.

The expense, Mr. Quintal told council, will be to buy equipment for a water connection between Bowen St. and the ward's 7,000,000 gallon water reservoir.

For the last 10 days, the water level in the ward's reservoir has been dropping steadily by four inches a day.

Last week, city engineers had informed council the east ward would be out of water within the next 20 days unless something was done to help restore the reservoir's normal water level.

At first, engineers had feared a broken water connection somewhere in the ward's underground water supply system.

But reports received yesterday confirmed the ward's water consumption rate was too heavy, considering the city was supplying water to both the Sherbrooke Medical centre and the municipality of Ascot North from the east side reservoir.

"It's a simple case," said Mr. Quintal, "the people in the east ward are just using too much water."

"How is it that the ward holds out during the summer," asked west ward alderman Hilaire Beliveau.

"It must be a broken connection," repeated Mr. Beliveau, while city engineer Frank Mascolo noted it wasn't.

In the words of experts, the east ward's water shortage is due to the inadequacies of the existing water pumping system, which, in view of the ward's rapid development in recent years, can no longer meet predicted requirements.

The water shortage is the first testimony of conclusions drawn

A WEEK ON PLANES

Nationality nightmare for girl nobody wants

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ranjan Vaid, a 22-year-old Asian girl without a country, was flown to Africa and back to Europe Monday, trapped in a nationality nightmare. After an odyssey of 12,000 miles, she still apparently had nowhere to go.

Miss Vaid, of Indian origin, left Nairobi a week ago to live with her brother in London. But Britain would not take her and Kenya, where she was born, does not want her back. Since Britain refused her entry Feb. 3, she has been virtually living on airlines.

She holds a British passport but was stymied by quota restrictions on Kenyan Asians.

She arrived in Nairobi late Monday night aboard a West German Lufthansa flight from Johannesburg, South Africa, and took off just after midnight for West Germany, via Athens. A Lufthansa official said efforts would be made again in Frankfurt to get her aboard a plane for London.

Reporters at the Nairobi airport said she looked "very frightened." She told a reporter she had not slept all day and was worried about what was going to happen to her.

by an independent water study recently, which had suggested the whole of the city's water supply system be overhauled to meet new requirements.

Although city council has openly recognized the growing necessity of overhauling the water system, it is uncertain whether available money resources will be enough to induce council to even attempt such an undertaking this spring.

Added to equal inadequacies in the city's sewage system, the overhaul would cost the city an estimated $2,500,000.

Security web on Russian, arrested as spy

SEATTLE (AP) — Tightest secrecy was kept Monday around a Russian employee of the United Nations arrested here on espionage charges.

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, sent here the top consular officer from its Washington, D.C., embassy to confer with Aleksandr V. Tikhomirov, who is being held in city jail pending a preliminary hearing Wednesday.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the state department rejected a Soviet argument that diplomatic immunity applies to the case.

State department spokesman Carl Bartz told reporters that Tikhomirov is entitled only to "functional immunity" which is strictly concerned with his official tasks.

In New York, diplomatic sources at the United Nations said the Soviet Union lodged a protest Monday with Secretary-General U Thant against the arrest. The Soviet Union claimed diplomatic immunity for Tikhomirov, who has been employed in the UN secretariat since 1965.

Vadim I. Kavalero, first secretary and consul from the Soviet embassy staff, arrived Sunday night and talked for 30 minutes with Tikhomirov.

U.S. Marshal Charles Robinson said Kavalero made inquiries Monday about the $100,000 bond set for Tikhomirov, but gave no indication whether it would be posted.

Kavalero flew here the day after Tikhomirov's arrest after the state department had waived certain technicalities for the trip and granted Kavalero consular access to the imprisoned

ONE-WOMAN SHOW OPENS — Opening a week-long exhibition of her drawings at the Sherbrooke Seminary, Joyce Schweitzer Cochrane discusses one of her works with Sherbrooke artist Frederic Doyon, after a press conference at the school yesterday. In her first show, open every night until Friday, Miss Cochrane presents a series of drawings done in France last May, with a collection of her work from the last three years.

Pad and pencil; lost artists' tools

By DAVE MARROTTE

SHERBROOKE — "I take my sketch pad and search for moving people and things to capture on paper. This is the essence of my work."

Opening a week-long exhibition of her drawings with a press conference at the Sherbrooke Seminary yesterday, school professor Joyce Schweitzer Cochrane told reporters that this year, drawing will again be ignored as an art.

"It has been ignored in past years and is slowly disappearing from the art scene," she said.

"In drawing, I articulate my thoughts. This contrasts with the fast moving world of today."

Miss Cochrane, who visited France on a government scholarship last May, shows in her collection a series of drawings on various aspects of the French culture, with half of the exhibition devoted to Quebec.

Born in Philadelphia, Miss Cochrane came to the province in 1953 and has been teaching here for more than seven years.

Now a professor at the Sherbrooke Seminary, the artist shows in her first exhibition, scenes of Paris, its churches and cathedrals, with her impressions of the Louvre and Rodin Museum.

In the section on Quebec, there are country scenes, sketches of Canada's people and a group of intricate drawings showing national stars including Nana Mouskouri and Feux Follets dancers, performing on stage.

Open to all, the exhibition is open every night this week, from 6:30 to 10 p.m., until Friday.

Of the future, Miss Cochrane says she is planning a return visit to France this April to continue from where she left off last May.

Masse wants tailored constitution

TORONTO (CP) — Marcel Masse, Quebec's minister for intergovernmental affairs, Monday told a Toronto audience that Quebec is not interested in the patchwork of the Canadian constitution.

He urged the drafting of a new constitution that would take into account the province's situation and aspirations.

Mr. Masse was addressing a group of Torontonians at bilingual Glendon College.

Earlier, the Quebec minister spoke to students at Scarborough College during a lesson on French Canada.

In a prepared text released to the press before delivery, Mr. Masse said that for the majority of Quebecers the constitution is nothing more than a simple anachronism.

Referring to the recent formation by the federal government of a joint commission to study the constitution, Mr. Masse emphasized the obvious opposition between the federal view and the Quebec government's.

"Quebec now wants its proper identification," said Mr.

Masse, "and in order to have it it must also possess the means."

"These means are not only on a cultural order but also on an economic level."

"Those who want Canada to develop wholly," he said, "must respect Quebec's aspirations and for Quebec to develop normally, there are two solutions, one wrong and one right."

"The first consists of putting Quebec completely at the feet of Ottawa with bound hands...."

"The second is to have a dynamic Quebec, being the best and the most realistic."

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Fill Your Leisure Hours With Interesting Hobbies

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

A famous doctor once said that the secret of his successful life was work. I hope that on this Labor Day in the midst of modern technology we are not losing sight of the blessing of stimulating work and its attendant feeling of accomplishment. To the young man it brings hope, in middle age it brings confidence and to the aged it can bring peace of mind.

One must not, however, let it become the whole of life. When the normal work day is finished you should leave your job behind completely. If a man can't finish his work in eight hours, he either has too big a job or he is a poor organizer. Carrying a brief case home every night may turn it into a grief case and lead to insomnia, a heart attack, an ulcer or high blood pressure. For this reason, it is essential to have one or more hobbies with which to fill your leisure hours—preferably ones quite unlike your daily occupation.

Using a part of each day for recreation will in the long run enable you to return to your work refreshed and will increase your efficiency. Working at a job you like is life's greatest pleasure. As John Mason Brown so wisely put it: "Existence is a strange bargain. Life owes us little; we owe it everything. The only true happiness comes from squandering ourselves for a purpose."

Q—What does a routine medical checkup consist of?

A—It should include a careful history of past illnesses and of any symptoms you may have at present, followed by a thorough physical examination and such tests as urinalysis and complete blood count (red cells, white cells and hemoglobin). Depending on your age and symptoms, other tests may be necessary, such as proctoscopy, electrocardiogram, chest X ray and blood chemistry.

Q—Forty years ago I contracted amebiasis in the Orient but the diagnosis was not made for six years. Now I must take treatments for it periodically. My doctor is giving me Entero-Vioform. Could this drug harm my heart in any way?

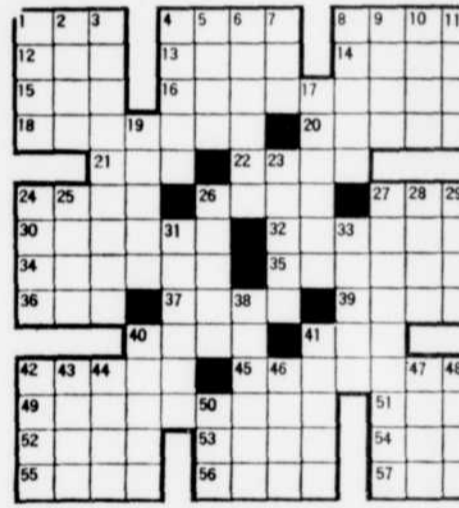

A—This drug should not be taken by anyone who is sensitive to iodine. It will not damage your heart.

Deacons, baptism studied at church union talk

WINNIPEG (CP) — A report on doctrine came under the scrutiny of a commission studying union of three Canadian churches Monday.

Questions asked at the seventh meeting of the general commission on church union centred on deacons and the laying on of hands suggested for baptism and confirmation rites.

Rev. Dr. D. M. Mathers of Kingston, Ont., the United Church co-chairman of the special commission, said the group of 21 members came to believe the diaconate "has a future."

He said the commission envisaged a diaconate made up of teachers, doctors, social workers and others who might not want to become ministers but "want to be commissioned by the church—it might provide a home and a rationale for persons who perform various services for the church."

In the Anglican Church, the diaconate is a form of internship for the ministry. In the United Church, it is a post where various non-pastoral services are performed.

There was no mention of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) which joined the union talks for the first time this session.

DIFFER ON BAPTISM

Where that church differed in doctrine was in the rite of baptism. Only adults are baptized in the Christian Church while the Anglican and United Churches will perform the rite with infants.

Canon R. R. Latimer of Toronto, the Anglican executive commissioner of the union commission, said if and when a union of the churches is effected, persons baptized as infants would be accepted by the Christian Church congregations.

He said it probably would be possible under union that Christian Church congregations could continue to baptize only adults.

Canon Latimer said statements at the meetings represent views of liberals and conservatives from all the denominations, but "there has been no denominational split."

The doctrine commission came up with a resolution on the role of women, but asked the advice of the general commission for further study on the matter.

The motion said there is no theological reason to preclude women from the ministry, but Dr. Mathers and Canon E.G. Jay of Montreal, his Anglican counterpart, said there had been one dissenting vote on the matter.

It came because one member of the doctrine commission believed that because Jesus was a man and the disciples were males there was no theological principle to include women.

Should the motion pass the general commission at a later meeting and be included in formation of a new church union, it could be possible for a woman to rise to the office of bishop, Dr. Mathers said later.

Earlier the commission dealt with a report on the church in the world and a requested critique of the report. The critique said the report came up with little to define dimensions of the future and the mission of the church.

Recommendations of the executive on the matter and a report of an executive subcommittee are to be dealt with Tuesday night.

Commission meetings are to wind up in Winnipeg Wednesday with the next general meeting scheduled for October.

The commission is working to formulate a plan for union by 1972.

COLLAPSES AT MAGOG — The former Western Tire Store building at Magog fell prey to recent heavy snows, and collapsed, as shown in the above picture. No one was injured in the cave-in, which occurred in the middle of night recently. No estimate on damage is available so far.

50-year-old by-law Council promises decision soon on pubs outside hotels

SHERBROOKE — Will city council change a half-century-old by-law and let taverns and pubs operate outside hotels?

The decision should be known soon in the recent request made by two Sherbrooke businessmen seeking permission to operate a pub at 455 King St. East.

Council met with the group yesterday, and in the words of spokesman Roland Lamoureux, "a 50-year-old by-law restricting taverns might have been the answer at the time, but it isn't anymore."

Mr. Lamoureux, an attorney, told council the recent referendum in section F-16 of the city's east ward indicated taxpayers did not object to a change in zoning regulations to let a pub operate.

On Dec. 1, 1969 city council adopted regulation No. 1952 changing zoning regulation No. 1071 to allow the operating of a "tavern."

Another spokesman, notary Michel Lamoureux, said there was a basic difference between a tavern and a pub, not in the nature of principle, he said, but in the nature of operations.

operations in bigger cities, Mr. Lamoureux said it was non-sensical for the city to maintain a municipal regulation dating back to 1921.

By-law 425, Mr. Lamoureux said, legislates in the field of taverns, but it says nothing about pubs, which, he indicated, are two different things.

Last week, a delegation of local hotel owners had voiced their opposition to letting a pub open in Sherbrooke.

Stressing the amount of tax money hotels contribute to the city's finances, and emphasizing the number of jobs that were being made available, the hotel owners asked council to consider the difficulties hotel owners face.

But the delegation at city hall yesterday warned that the application of by-law 425 provides hotel owners with a "monopolistic control over the city's hotels and taverns."

Council indicated it would render a decision when all of the facts had been weighed and analyzed.

Judy hit for $2,500 for libeling reporter

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court Monday awarded a Vancouver open-line moderator $2,500 damages and court costs as a result of a libel suit against former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh.

Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the B.C. Supreme Court handed down a 10-page judgment marking the award to Ed Murphy of radio station CKWX and formerly an Ottawa radio reporter.

Mr. Murphy was described in a section of Miss LaMarsh's book, Memoirs of a Bird in a Gilded Cage as a "brash young radio reporter... heartily detested by most of the press gallery and members..."

The description was read into evidence during the first day of a libel trial which ended here Jan. 19.

Chief Justice Wilson said Mr. Murphy's name was tarnished in the mind of the ordinary reader of the book.

He said it was a precedent-setting case under English law because it is the first time in a libel case that the libel did not hurt the professional standing of the plaintiff.

Referring to Vancouver newspaper advertisements that appeared during the trial, he said an explanation from CKWX about the campaign to promote Mr. Murphy's show must be taken with a grain of salt.

The ads read: "Say what you like... Ed Murphy stirs things up."

Station spokesmen said they were planned before the trial.

The statement about Mr. Murphy, 40, appeared in hard-cover editions of the book but not the paperback editions, both published by McClelland and Stewart, of Toronto.

During the trial Miss LaMarsh testified that she hardly knew Mr. Murphy but she wrote stories that "destroyed my friends and brought some of them to their death."

European talks start pollution

STRASBOURG, France (Reuters) — Delegates from more than 20 nations got down to work on the problems of pollution and conservation Monday night after hearing speeches from three European princes.

More than 300 delegates and observers are meeting here for the first European conservation conference.

Among the opening-session speakers was Prince Philip, who called for drastic political action.

Philip's call was echoed by Belgium's Prince Albert of Liege. And Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, hammering away on the same theme, declared: "There are times, ladies and gentlemen, when toes have to be stepped on in order to get action."

French Agriculture Minister Jacques Duhamel proposed a two-pronged program to beat pollution.

First, he proposed the formation of a European anti-pollution fund for severe cases such as the fouling of international waterways on the Continent.

He also proposed European co-operation in the education of young people about pollution problems. This could be done, he said, by creating a European ecology diploma for university students and organizing competitions on the subject for younger children.

Prince Charles attended the opening session as an observer.

Canada, U.S., U-K. Plan hazard data exchange

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada, the United States and Britain moved Monday for more regular exchanges of information on such matters as hazards of birth control pills and food additives.

"We thought we might as well get ahead of the crises and start discussing the problems ahead," said Dr. Roger Egeberg, U.S. assistant secretary of health, at a news conference.

The talks took place against a recent background of government actions on birth control pills and such food additives as cyclamates, a chemical sweetening, and brominated vegetable oils.

Canada has announced a ban next July on citrus-flavored soft drinks which contain about 10 times the amount of brominated vegetable oils that is acceptable to the federal food and drug directorate.

Tests with the oils in rats showed heart tissue damage although there is no evidence of injury to humans.

Dr. Egeberg said the United States contemplates similar action but "we want a little more information."

Both countries have applied progressive bans on use of cyclamates following evidence that large amounts can produce bladder cancers in mice.

The U.S. acted within hours of informing Canada that a cyclamate ban was to be put into effect. Canadian authorities then took similar steps.

COULD REDUCE DANGER

Blood clotting and similar problems with some kinds of birth control pills were first documented in Britain where the government issued warnings to doctors that the hazard could be made smaller by using pills with low estrogen content.

Sir George Godber, Britain's chief medical officer, told the news conference his country expects to produce more detailed information on the oral contraceptives problem.

Dr. Ross Chapman, who heads the Canadian food and drug directorate, said the officials exchanged a variety of scientific information on these and other matters and surveyed present and future policies. They will meet again probably at three-month intervals.

Dr. Egeberg said the regular exchange is not intended to withhold information from the public about hazards but to ensure that government had adequate information before taking action.

The talks also covered the prospects of Canada-United States action "one of these days."

on air pollution as a trans-border problem and eventually action with Britain, he said.

The officials also had a brief "philosophical" exchange about "how far along the path of lessening punishments" some governments had gone with respect to marijuana.

Answered roll call for 20 years

SHERBROOKE — Reg Bishop hasn't missed one in 20 years.

A member of the Sherbrooke Kiwanis Club since 1948, Mr. Bishop has attended club meetings as a regular member for 20 years without missing even one. He was officially congratulated last night.

Kiwanis president Jack Drummond made the presentation, handing Mr. Bishop the 20-year perfect attendance award at the club's weekly meeting.

Twice past president, Mr. Bishop has been active in all club fund raising projects and community services, acting as committee alderman.

Three new members — Walter Adam, Claude Gosselin and Ashley McLellan — were inducted during last night's interclub meeting, with six Waterloo members joining the group.

AT CITY HALL

Lights for notorious corner?

SHERBROOKE — After a record number of 28 auto collisions at the corner of Galt and Pacific streets over the past six years, city council is considering traffic lights.

A report submitted yesterday by the city's engineering division said traffic lights at that intersection would be the most logical addition to help solve circulation problems at the now notorious corner.

Council will discuss other traffic problems with representatives of General Electric Company, when the latter meet here to demonstrate new traffic equipment.

Mayor Marc Bureau announced yesterday elections in his south ward would be held on March 1.

Labelling the election as a test case, Mr. Bureau said this would be the opportunity to see whether elections on a Sunday will work out for next fall's general elections Nov. 10.

Nominations will be held on Sunday, Feb. 22 at city hall. West ward alderman Hilaire Beliveau said yesterday the amount of money spent by the city in renovating the existing city hall was getting out of hand.

A proposal by city manager Richard Fabi to spend $11,000 for an air ventilating system was sent back until council had a clearer view of things.

Council asked that a warning system be installed in the Technical Services building on Galt St. West in case of fire.

Describing the building as a box, alderman Everett Nicol said renovations made inside did not make it fireproof.

In addition, council agreed to have all documents inside the Technical Services building micro-filmed and stored in the main safe at city hall.

In the north ward, the street section linking De Rouville St. and Place de Rouville will be changed back from Dupuis St.

In order to minimize confusion and to render satisfaction to residents of that area, council voted in favor of removing Dupuis St. from the vicinity.

New v.p., director at Page-Sangster

SHERBROOKE — It was announced recently by Mr. F. J. Sangster, president of Page-Sangster Inc., that James E. Stansbury has been appointed a vice-president and Director of the Sherbrooke printing firm.

Well known in Montreal and Eastern Townships advertising and printing circles, Mr. Stansbury has for the past 10 months served as Sales Manager for Page-Sangster Inc., and will continue in that capacity in addition to other management responsibilities.

Until January 5th of this year, he was President of Stansbury Advertising Ltd. in Montreal. At that time his agency was acquired by Tandy Advertising Ltd. Mr. Stansbury has been named Vice-President and a Director of Tandy and will also serve as Manager of the agency's Montreal Office.

At the present time Mr. Stansbury lives in Rosemere, Que., but plans to move his family to a home in the Eastern Townships at the end of the present school term.

Mr. Stansbury is a past-president of the Advertising and Sales Executives Club of Montreal, a former director of the Institute of Canadian Advertisers and of the Association of Industrial Advertisers.

He is a member of the Canadian Club, Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, Rosemere Golf and Curling Clubs and the Sherbrooke Country Club.

Violence not rewarded

Advocates of violence to achieve social reforms and those who would "crack down on the dissenters" might both profit from a study of what happened in Japan.

Despite the fact that the word "violence" is used so often to describe North American society, students in Japan are much more violent than North Americans, says a visiting professor from that country — and far less successful in achieving their aims.

Like their confreres on this continent, Japanese students are interested in changing their educational system, says Shigeharu Matsuura, a doctoral candidate in education at Boston College. But they have won fewer victories than their American counterparts.

He thinks this is due in large measure to their use of violence for its own sake. Tactics such as the throwing of Molotov cocktails and their involvement of civilian bystanders in demonstrations have helped perpetuate the rigidity of the Japanese educational system.

"The Conservative party has become more powerful than ever", says Matsuura, "partly as a reaction to students and their university take-overs, and now has the backing of the average citizen. As a result, many of the educational ills remain."

Chief among them are the extraordinarily demanding college entrance examinations and the complete dominance of faculty and administration in university matters. Most young people spend as much energy preparing for the examinations that once they get into college, they become indifferent students.

American students, he finds, are most enthusiastic about learning. An important reason may be that they have not been exposed to that same demanding and rigid discipline as Japanese students, including a heavy burden of homework from primary grades on up.

Really a push not jump

A reasonable explanation for the fact that Canadians have to pay higher taxes than residents of the United States has been offered by Federal Deputy Finance Minister R. B. Bryce during his recent appearance before the Commons finance committee.

Canada, he said, has a more extensive welfare system than does the United States which coupled with lower relative productivity combine to force higher tax rates here.

But his explanation for why Canada has a more extensive welfare system than the Americans is not quite as acceptable.

He told the committee that Canadians have chosen to have a greater percentage of gross national product accounted for by services and payments by the government.

The more likely explanation is that Canadian politicians gave enticed Canadians into the belief that they should have a more extensive welfare system.

Especially during election periods, Canada's politicians have been telling the people of this country that they should have this or that welfare scheme. The impression was created, which added to the politicians' lustre, that the government would look after the bills, politicians' lustre, that the government would look after the bills.

Things were made to sound so good that the voters forgot they would have to pay in the form of higher taxes eventually.

The deputy finance minister seems to have said that people jumped when, as a matter of fact, they were pushed.

How go the Wafflers?

How goes the Waffle manifesto group within the New Democratic Party? Two weekends ago, the party's federal council created a committee of 11 to carry out a policy review, apparently with the aim of melding and tightening the differing points of view which emerged at the October convention in Winnipeg — differences symbolized by Professor Mel Watkins and deputy leader David Lewis.

Neither Watkins nor Cy Gonick, the Winnipeg professor a mpp who backs the Watkins Manifesto were at the particular sessions which launched the committee. They are considering the merit of it. Perhaps by the time you'll read this they will have expressed their views. As an aside, Gonick had a long piece on the answers Canada must make to American economic penetration in a recent issue of the New York Times.

Professor Watkins has been responding to invitations to speak at campuses across Canada. These bids come from campus organizations rather than from the NDP. But he uses the opportunity to help create or to further Waffle groups on the campuses he visits. He says that the basic group in Toronto is not campus-centred although he finds that both nationalism and radicalism is much more alive and self-conscious in the universities among students and faculty than they are elsewhere.

The executive of the Waffle group is presently awaiting the results and collation of a questionnaire before setting the time and date for a gathering or conference later this year on both policy and further organization.

At first sight the make-up of the 11-man committee seems to indicate a majority that would be critical of the original Watkins manifesto, or at least of its rhetoric and stridency.

DOUGLAS FISHER

My information is that the Wafflers have about 400 people on their mailing list and organizations in each province except Quebec and the Maritimes. A Quebec group is forming at the moment. Some of the recruits join directly, by-passing the NDP, some, it is said, are ex-Liberals. My understanding is that a like-minded group is about to break out in the Liberal Party, probably at the forthcoming Young Liberal conference in Ottawa.

Some old regulars in the NDP attribute the main genius and drive of the Wafflers to Jim Laxer, an Ottawa-based graduate student. Laxer is a considerable person as a writer and user of irony. He appears occasionally on an Ottawa TV station under the pseudonym of Talleyrand, poking fun at the conventional mores in government and politics. He tends to the opinion that he cannot find a group to work with within the present and traditional constituency arrangements of the NDP, that his constituency is with like-minded academics and students on a provincial and preferably a national scale. To compensate for the strategy of the party hierarchy in shutting persons like himself out of deliberations on policy it is necessary to create a parallel grouping, loosely within the party but not of its formal structure. He believes that much of the party research is ad hoc and negative.

The Wafflers are looking forward to a teach-in in Toronto on March 6 and 7 which will feature Mel Watkins, Walter Gordon and Michel Chartrand. The theme of the teach-in will be the Americanization of Canada.

The Wafflers have engaged Jackie Brown, the wife of Tommie Douglas' executive assistant, for a six month period to convene and organize their activities. The funds for this — some $2,700 — are being raised from members of the group. Meantime, each cell is concentrating on developing background and position papers on most of the issues of present politics, with a special emphasis on domestic matters. All in all the Wafflers would seem to be making substantial progress on their own although it can not yet be described as sensational.

Some further comments on the Toronto Star, what its publisher, Beland Honderich, calls "the reporter's paper."

My column about some possibilities of hypocrisy on this claim was hardly on the streets before I had a call from Star reporters, confirming the shaping and use of material in the Star to conform to its Liberal theology. One example given is rather funny.

It had to do with a bank of photos of Star men who were covering a certain big political story. In the first edition one of them was dressed with a turtle-neck sweater. In a later edition he appeared with a collar and tie, painted into the picture by a retoucher in the photo department. Anything to present the right, neat image.

The more I hear about the Star's treatment of reporters the more necessary I think it is for the Senate committee on the media to search out and have "in camera" sessions with some of the paper's reporters.

THE ART BUCHWALD COLUMN

Battle of the braid

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's decision to dress up the White House police force in puritanian dress uniforms with gold braid, black leather belts and black vinyl hats trimmed with gold has shocked every minor power in the world.

When Prince Rainier heard about it, he said to his lovely wife, Princess Grace, "This means war."

Princess Grace said, "Surely the President of the United States would not be foolhardy enough to start something with us, knowing the size and design of the palace uniforms we have stockpiled in the cellar."

"Look at these photographs of the White House guards. Do you think I'm going to stand by and let him make a fool of me?"

Before Princess Grace could answer the question, the Prince of Liechtenstein telephoned and said, "You've seen them?"

"Of course I've seen them," Prince Rainier exploded.

"Are you ready to retaliate?"

"We've just had a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Tailors and they have recommended that unless the President withdraws his uniforms in 48 hours, we're going to use solid gold striping on our blue velvet pants."

"My God," said Prince Rainier, "isn't that against the Geneva Convention?"

"Geneva Convention be damned."

ARE YOU WITH ME?

The Prince of Liechtenstein said, "When the President put Balkan braid on his White House gatekeepers, the Articles of War went out the window. All I want to know is, are you with me?"

"Yes I am," Prince Rainier said. "As a matter of fact, we have been working on a top secret uniform which glows at night."

"Good grief, Rainier, you're not going to use that to retaliate with!"

"I have no choice. If Nixon tries to destroy our tourist business, he must suffer the consequences. I have to ring off now, the captain of the Vatican guards is calling."

"Now, fellas — how many of you know the score from 'Student Prince'?"

Prince Rainier pushed a button. "Yes, Captain. I was expecting your call."

The captain said, "The Vatican is for peace, but I think we must act at once."

"What precautions have you taken?" Rainier said.

"We've put white mink trimming on our vests, lapels and helmets. We've also doubled the silk in our capes."

LOW ON BOOTS

"Good show, Captain. How are you fixed for patent leather boots?"

"We're low. The French sold all their patent leather to Libya."

"I'll see that you get some," Rainier said.

Princess Grace was beside herself.

"Rainier, there must be a better way than this. Can't you get on the hot line to President Nixon's valet and warn him of what you're going to do?"

"It's too late," Prince Rainier said. "Luxembourg has fired up its sewing machines and will soon have blue piping on everything. San Marino is obligated to go to Luxembourg's aid and provide her with brass buttons. Andorra has escalated the peaks on its caps by three inches and the Swiss custom inspectors have switched from Alpine green to Nelson Eddy-red tunics."

Princess Grace ran to the window.

"Rainier, look outside."

"That's our doomsday uniform," Rainier chuckled as he waved to his guards. "It was developed by a top secret defector who was formerly the head doorman at the Loew's State Theater in New York City."

Three Bedford churches join in observing Week of Prayer

BEDFORD — On Sunday afternoon, Jan. 25, the ecumenical meeting of the three churches, St. Damien's, the Wesley United Church and St. James Church was held in St. Damien's Church, in observance of the week of prayer for Christian Unity. In the absence of the Rev. Father Despars, priest of St. Damien's Church, who has just returned from a stay in hospital, the welcome was extended by Rev. Father William Miclette of Ste. Jeanne d'Arc Church, Stanbridge East.

A choir of mixed voices, the members of whom came from the three churches, with Paul LeBlanc as conductor and C. Dery as organist, with their vocal selections added much to the beauty of the service, the opening hymn was Vous Qui Sur la Terre Habitez. (All people that on earth do dwell) The lesson was read by Rev. W. R. Lake of the United Church. Mr. Lake, in his address stressed the point of the good neighbor, speaking in French and English, while the profession of faith was recited in both tongues. Rev. Mr. Sparling of St. James Church took as the text of his address, If the salt hath lost its savor.

Prayers were recited by the three clergymen for rulers, lively Christian faith, for a responsible community and for spiritual insight. The collection was taken up by the church wardens, Gregoire Gingras and P. Boulay. The closing hymn was Jesus Shall Reign, Wh'er'er the Sun, after which Rev. Father Miclette invited the congregation to adjourn to St. Joseph's Convent, where tea was served. Ladies in charge were: St. Damien's, Miss L. Beauvais, Mr. G. Gignac, Mrs. P. Boulay, Mrs. Andre Tougas, Mrs. L. Clark, Mrs. N. Galipeau, Mrs. A. Messier and Miss Rita Beauvais; Wesley United, Mrs. William MacArthur, Mrs. Claire Smith and Miss Dorothy Perault; St. James Church, Mrs. Roy Cook, Mrs. John Cook, Mrs. Arnold Callaghan, Mrs. Eric Jones and Mrs. S. Cauldwell.

There was an excellent attendance at the service and the meeting of the members of the town's congregations was an enjoyable event.

Iron Hills Ladies Guild gives reports at annual meeting

IRON HILL — On Jan. 21 Mrs. Rodger Mason entertained the Ladies Guild of Holy Trinity Church at her home.

The meeting was opened with the Lord's prayer by the president, Mrs. Hazel Rumsby. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Andrew Howard in the absence of secretary, Mrs. Annie Mason. The financial report, read by the treasurer, Mrs. Stanley Mount, showed a profitable year. The Sunshine convener, Mrs. Tom Wilson, also read a report showing a real achievement for 1969.

Rev. Wilmur Davidson joined the ladies and the minutes of the last annual meeting were read.

Mrs. Rumsby thanked the men for their help during the year, especially Rodger Mason and William Mason who had helped in all undertakings.

Mr. Davidson then asked for nomination for new officers for the coming year. Mrs. Gordon Rumsby was re-elected president, Mrs. Rodger Mason, vice-president, Mrs. Annie Mason, secretary, Mrs. Stanley Mount treasurer, and Mrs. Tom Wilson was re-elected convener for the Sunshine Club.

A buffet supper was enjoyed. Hostesses were Mrs. Rodger Mason and Mrs. Charlie Welch. During the meeting the men enjoyed a game of 500 in the kitchen.

Chamberlain-Daviau

ROCK ISLAND — The marriage of Carole Diane, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denis Daviau, to Mr. Gary James Chamberlain, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chamberlain, took place on January 31 at 2 p.m. at Our Lady of Mercy church.

Father George Guay officiated for the double ring, bilingual ceremony.

Mrs. J. M. Thomson played the organ music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Raymond Gobeil, uncle of the bride, who sang "Mother at Your Feet We're Kneeling", and Ave Maria during the signing of the register.

The bride was escorted by her father to meet the groom at the chancel. She was wearing an ensemble of white peau de soie. The floor length A-line gown had a round neckline and high rise waist. The sleeveless dress was topped with a matching coat lined with taffeta.

Guipure lace edged the front, caught with a bow at the waist and encircled the cathedral length train which draped from fullness at the back waist line. Lace also banded the long sleeves and accented the front of the gown. Her chapel bouffant veil of illusion was held by a cluster of peau de soie petals and borealis. She carried a matching peau de soie muffed adorned with red sweetheart roses in sunburst style.

Miss Monique Daviau, sister of the bride, and Miss Wendy Chamberlain, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. They were dressed alike in pant ensembles of orchid crepe, the tunics having long bell sleeves, with a cross front and featuring a sash of deeper orchid peau de soie. They wore silver slippers and carried colonial bouquets of white button poms edged with silver.

Louise and Gisele Daviau, twin sisters of the bride, were train bearers. They wore mint green wool basket weave pant dresses with long bell sleeves and rolled collars edged with white guipure lace. With a matching green bow in their hair, they wore corsages of white poms.

Mr. Larry Lyonnais was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Terry Chamberlain, brother of the groom, and Mr. Ronald Farley.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Daviau was attired in a dress of majestic blue crimpolene having lace bordered bell sleeves, under a coat of pinto wool with a fox collar. Her accessories were in silver and she wore a pink carnation corsage.

Mrs. Chamberlain, mother of the groom, was in a two piece blush rose crimpolene worn under her brown wool coat having a mink collar. She wore toning accessories and a corsage of blush rose carnations.

The reception was held at the Canadian Legion Memorial Home in Stanstead where the Legion Auxiliary catered for a family style turkey dinner. The bride's table was centered with a wedding cake, beautifully decorated by Mrs. Horace Doyon in white with pink roses and green leaves. It was topped with a miniature bride and groom under a half arch of flowers.

Organ music during the dinner and later for dancing was played by Mrs. Sidney (Babe) Flanders.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain left by car to spend their honeymoon in West Palm Beach, Florida. The bride travelled in a dress of forest green lace over matching taffeta under a brown coat with lynx fur collar and cuffs. Her accessories were brown and she wore a corsage of red roses.

They will reside in Stanstead. Miss Dawn Chamberlain, sister of the groom was in charge of the guest book. Guests attended from Pointe aux Trembles, Beloeil, Waterville, Tomifobia, Sherbrooke, Knowlton, Oshawa, Ont., Newbury, Derby and Derby Line, Vt., Montreal, Rock Island and Stanstead.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Plastic Bread Bags

Are Emergency Boots

DEAR POLLY—Emergency boots for children playing in the snow can be made by using plastic bread bags. To make them more durable and not as slippery on the bottom, pull old stretchy nylon hose over the bags. Make mittens somewhat the same way by first covering the hands with warm socks, then with smaller plastic bags and pulling the nylons on and up as far as they will reach over their coat sleeves. This helps eliminate the nuisance of snow getting up sleeves and pants legs.

Expedite the drying of mittens and gloves which cannot go into the dryer by grasping the two ends of a wire coat hanger and squeezing as you force the ends upward. Invert mittens over these ends and hang in a warm place to dry.—MRS. J. E. H.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—We want to get a dog but cannot figure out a way for one to get in and out alone. Our only wood door is the front door. In our former home we just cut a small square out of a door, replaced the piece with hinges and the dog could come and go at will. Our present home is joined to the neighbor's with a common wall so all doors and windows are to the front and back and other doors are sliding glass ones. Does anyone know of a way to make a "dog entrance" with sliding glass doors?—LAVERNE

DEAR POLLY—In answer to Deloris' problem of cleaning mud off her white satin shoes, I suggest that she remove the dry mud very carefully and then sponge with cleaning fluid. Be sure all the loose dirt is off. When they are clean, dye them with white shoe dye and they will look like new.—MRS. M. E.

DEAR POLLY—An elderly person in our home was sick for about three months and she had difficulty drinking from a glass. We solved the problem by using a small jar with a hole in the lid just large enough for a straw to go through it. This worked for milk, water, juices and any liquids. The lid must fit tightly so the liquid does not leak. Cartons that milk shakes come in also work but, of course, do not last for long.—RUTH

In more ways than one

A recent column about parents volunteering to work in various school programs prompted a reader in Philadelphia to write: "My husband is a basketball coach for 14-year-old boys. Not only does he coach but he runs a taxi service for these boys. He drives them to practice, home from practice, to and from games. It takes two trips to deliver them each time."

"Although the boys' fathers have been asked to give rides, not one volunteer has ever appeared. None of the parents attend games. If a player has a grievance, however, my husband receives a prompt telephone call."

"I believe if more parents would take an interest in their children's activities, regardless of the strain on their personal lives, fewer teen-agers would lose respect for them."

Without knowing all the circumstances I can't give a guess about these parents. I do wonder if the boys are handicapped in some way. Most 14-year-olds could ride a public bus home from practice. Perhaps they live in a suburban area where there are no buses. Perhaps both parents are working in an effort to pay for these greener acres. Maybe the parents feel they purchased the coach and his free-time services along with their new split-levels.

Perhaps their sons have been in Little League and now the parents overreact to any kind of ball game. Perhaps all the parents are in hospitals and rest homes because they are part of that overworked, overorganized group called The Middle-Aged. Maybe they did so much chauffeuring during their children's elementary years that they can't face up to one more car pool.

It has been said that what we need in this country is a branch of medicine called Mediatrix. (For people too old for pediatrics and too young for geriatrics.)

To ascertain if you need mediatrix care, answer the following questions:

1. Do you sometimes secretly wonder whatever happened to sandlot ball?
2. Did you ever write an article including anecdotes about walking to school, walking to the swimming pool, walking to the library and have a magazine return it with a rejection slip that said, "Sorry, we don't print fiction"?
3. Did you collapse in a sobbing heap upon realizing that on one day alone you were scheduled to serve on the Community Chest block committee, the PTA membership drive, the college alumni fund dinner, the Wives of Concerned Businessmen's "Tea for Teens" seminar?
4. Were you ever so exhausted from hauling children to dancing class, piano lessons, first-aid instructions, Boy Scout meetings, and cheerleader practice that you were unable to attend your gourmet cooking class at the university extension?

Topknots make headlines

The topknot itself actually can land anywhere from the crown of the head to the nape of the neck, according to the February Seventeen. The basic requirement is shiny hair that's shoulder length or longer, which is twisted into the "knot" for a small-headed, sleek look.

The basic topknot sweeps all hair high on the crown. First, catch a ponytail atop your head; bend from the waist, brushing hair forward; then straighten up, gathering all hair in one place. Smooth sides, back and front, then secure with a covered elastic band. Brush tail smooth and hold it with one hand; twist loosely. Put the other hand's index finger in front of the band and wrap the twisted tail around it, guiding gently with your free fingers. Slip hairpins close to the bottom as you go around. Tuck ends under the base of the knot and pin. Secure stragglers with smaller pins.

Soften a topknot with the barest bangs and some fragile tendrils. Curl the tendrils with electric rollers.

A topknot at the nape can be shaped like a bow. Loop half the ponytail under and pin, repeat, securing ends over the first pin. Wrap with manmade braids or a ribbon.

Stage a sideshow by brushing all hair around to a pin-point above one ear. To make the knot, gather hair and twist half toward the temple. Wrap it under and around the other half and pin. Now twist the other and repeat, wrapping it in the opposite direction.

Temper your topknot to a twirl. Before catching the ponytail, make a half-inch part at each eye level and pull hair down. Then halve the ponytail, hold one section straight up from your head and wrap the other half around the bottom of it; pin all ends under. Spray the second tail and put fingers halfway between covered band and ends. Bring hair toward the front and over the wrapped portion. Pin it to your head at that midpoint. Hold the ends now and swing them up, back and into the center of the wrapped portion; pin securely. Now take hair left out of ponytail and curl into bouncy ringlets with electric rollers.

Hold the ends now and swing them up, back and into the center of the wrapped portion; pin securely. Now take hair left out of ponytail and curl into bouncy ringlets with electric rollers.

Hollywood Palace closes its doors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Hollywood Palace, television springboard for Raquel Welch, Dean Martin, the King Family and Phyllis Diller, closed its doors for the last time after Saturday's performance.

"It's been a good run," says Bing Crosby, host of the first show, the last and others in the ABC variety series now in its sixth year.

About 600 fans a week have crowded into an old, heart-of-Hollywood theatre for the Palace's melodic, sentimental or comic attractions.

Jimmy Durante sang Inka Dinka Doo with Mrs. Miller. Buster Keaton and Gloria Swanson, meeting onstage for the first time, did a skit. Ed Wynn, peddling his piano-bicycle, played "Tea for Two" while Eydie Gorme, riding on top, nearly fell off.

For the show's first two seasons Raquel Welch, previously unknown to network television, was the shapely "billboard girl", announcing next week's host.

What killed The Hollywood Palace?

Vanoff says switching the program from Saturday to Tuesday, for half a season in 1967, hurt its momentum. But it leaves the air with higher audience ratings than when this season started.

The final Hollywood Palace will be a potpourri of the best from 190 shows.

Half a loaf not enough

MONTREAL (CP) — Militant blacks may not be representative of Montreal's Negro community, "but they are part of a society that is going to be with us," a Negro historian said Thursday.

"Young blacks don't want half a loaf any more, they want treatment as human beings and they say they are going to get it, whether you like it or I like it," Roy States told a local service club.

Mr. States, district commander of the Royal Canadian Legion said: "The young blacks are saying to themselves that contemporary white society is decadent and dying. Why integrate with a dying society?"

He said he does not agree with the "new type of separatism" advocated by some militants but added, "There are 100,000,000 black people in North and South America you'll have to reckon with."

Mr. States described the Canadian black as a "split personality."

"You go merrily along your way until you bump into a situation that reminds you that you are a Negro."

Holy Trinity Church, Kirkdale, holds annual vestry meeting

KIRKDALE — The annual vestry meeting for Holy Trinity Church was held Jan. 25, following Evensong at the home of Mrs. Terrill. Rev. Gordon Peabody acted as chairman. Vestry clerk Mrs. S. Wear was nominated by Mr. Peabody and re-elected by acclamation. The minutes of the last vestry meeting and two special vestry meetings were approved. The members also signed the vestry book.

Business arising from the minutes was discussed and plans were made to redecorate and repair parts of the church buildings and property for 1971, that being the Centennial year for the church.

Mr. Peabody extended appreciation for the co-operation of the congregation and to those who helped make it a successful year.

He was pleased to say that the stained glass windows had been restored, the project having been completed.

The church financial report, given by secretary-treasurer Mrs. Terrill, showed a satisfactory balance.

The cemetery report, given by Mr. Archer Lyster, showed a good balance. He reported money will be needed to repair monuments that are falling or have fallen down, also a new fence is needed at the rear of the church, and poison oak is to be sprayed along fence.

A.C.W. report, given by the treasurer, Mrs. F. Riff, showed a busy and successful year for the small group, also that hall foundation was repaired and plans made for redecorating the interior this year are to be carried out. A healthy balance was shown from the financial report.

NEW OFFICERS

Mr. Peabody then took the chair for election of officers as follows: Rector's warden, Candish Bogie; people's warden, Stanley Wear; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. Terrill; cemetery warden, Archer Lyster; synod representative, Mrs. A. Nixon; sub representative, Mrs. E. Terrill; auditors, Kenneth Hodge and Mrs. P. Lyster.

Other matters were discussed and the meeting was closed with prayer by Mr. Peabody. Lunch was enjoyed.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

1-Waiting for the Sun

Let me say, first of all, that I advocate playing golf the year around. I realize that some golfers, and many golfers' wives, disagree with this opinion but, from my standpoint—a professional standpoint—it's as necessary as your going to work, even though you have a cold.

Maybe weather conditions just won't allow you to play 12 months a year. Our next 14 installments will deal, in part, with that problem. You will learn, among other things, how to build a cheap, effective, indoor driving range in your garage or basement. (It is my opinion that any golf is better than no golf.)

Although Florida and Southern California golfers have no such problems, many men find it difficult to dress comfortably for golf in the winter or early spring. We'll talk about that, too, and I'll give you some insights on how the pros deal with the problem.

Cold-weather playing conditions and how to cope with them also will be discussed, along with equipment maintenance.

2-The Shovel-Swing

One of the most inexpensive, effective ways to keep your "golf muscles" in condition during the winter can usually be found in most garages or tool sheds. It's the shovel.

My father got me started when there was a big snow and I couldn't get outside to practice. We went into our garage and he gave me this long-handled shovel with a spade-shaped blade. Then he told me to grip the handle like I would a golf club and take a complete swing.

The swing amounts to a slow-motion version of your normal golf swing, of course, but the main thing it accomplishes is keeping your muscles stretched and trim. You will also be surprised at how much lighter a golf club feels in the spring after a winter of swinging a shovel.

3-Indoor Practice

My garage is more to me than just a place to park my car. It is, among other things, my wintertime driving range. (It didn't cost very much, either.)

First, I took three old blankets and made a net, hanging them from the ceiling about six inches apart (see sketch) near the rear of the garage. The three blankets will absorb the impact of a ball hit by any club.

In front of the blankets, I have taped an old welcome mat from which I hit practice balls. I also bought a driving-range tee—the kind with the little rubber tube sticking up for a tee—so I can hit my driver, too.

Just don't put the net near windows.

AT TOP — Ron Thompson's Sherbrooke rink won the North Hatley Men's Bonselpiel last weekend, defeating Pete Cross' Border rink 6-3. Left to right in the presentation of the Whittaker Trophy are: Denis Kirby, lead, Ron Thompson, skip, Mike Allatt, third, Doug Martin, president of the North Hatley Curling Club, presenting the trophy, and Jim Ransenhansen, lead. Bill Black's Lennoxville rink came from behind to beat Roger Hebert's Magog rink 8-7 and win the consolation Mace Trophy. AT BOTTOM — Mr. Black's rink receiving the trophy, left to right, are: Jim Clarke, lead, Clem Mallalieu, second, Bill Black, skip, Nils Hoas, presenting the trophy on behalf of the club, and Don Patrick, third.

In the quarter finals of the Whittaker trophy, Mr. Thompson's rink edged clubmate J. G. Blanchard's rink 6-4, and Mr. Cross' foursome squeaked by Roger Chretien's Sherbrooke rink 7-6 in an extra end tussle. The quarter-finals of the Mace Trophy saw Mr. Hebert's team overcome John Johnston's North Hatley curlers 9-4, while Mr. Black's Lennoxville rink were in command all the way in sidelining Jim Atto's Sherbrooke team by a 7-4 score.

THE SHERBROOKE RECORD, TUES., FEB. 10, 1970 9

It's official: Andy enters GP racing

LONDON (AP) — One of motor racing's best unkept secrets has been officially confirmed—a new, important, transatlantic sponsorship in European style Grand Prix events.

The venture is by the American organization of STP Corp., which is backing three Formula One cars just off the drawing boards of the new British company called March Engineering.

One car has been bought by Andy Granatelli, president of STP, the gasoline and oil treatment specialists, for Italian born U.S. racing champion Mario Andretti.

The other two cars, to be driven by Chris Amon of New Zealand and Josef Siffert of Switzerland, will race as March factory entries.

The sponsorship comes as a shot in the arm for Grand Prix racing the future of which was beginning to look bleak because of mounting costs of staging the events and diminishing trade support.

LIKE STEWART CAR
The March racers backed by STP are identical to the car which the reigning world champion, Jackie Stewart of Scotland, will drive in 1970.

Stewart gained his crown in a French-British Matra Ford entered by Ken Tyrrell, a wealthy British racing enthusiast. Stewart elected to switch to the March car when the firm decided to put their own engines in the 1970 cars in place of the British Ford Cosworth power packs.

Although the makers were unheard of four months ago, five of the Grand Prix cars are now expected on the starting grid of most of the big races this year.

districts will participate. Cowansville Branch No. 99 is host for the event.

"It is not very often that we are privileged to host a Provincial event but with the help of all members, we are certain it will be a success," says Les Jordan, public relations officer.

Top entry for Magog bird bash

MAGOG — An invitation badminton tournament will be held at the Princess Elizabeth High School in Magog on Feb. 28 and March 1.

Some of the top racquet wielders in the province will be on hand and entries are expected from Montreal, Quebec, and the Eastern Townships, according to the host Magog club.

Play will get underway at 9 a.m. Saturday and the finals will be held Sunday afternoon.

There will be five events, men's singles, ladies' singles, men's doubles, ladies' doubles and mixed doubles. Those who lose in the first round will fall into a consolation event.

A strong entry is expected from the Immaculee Conception Club from Montreal which dominated the tournament last year.

From the Eastern Townships the entries will most likely come from Waterloo, University of Sherbrooke, Bishop's University, the regional schools, East Angus, and Magog.

E.T. men's doubles champions George Corbiere and Gordon Harmer from Magog who reached the finals last year will be together again as well as Bertrand Sevigny and Albert Cotterell who were runners-up in the E.T. last year and did well in the invitation tourney. Janet Tucker and Tom Wilkinson are expected to form a strong mixed doubles team again, and will be representing Waterloo.

Local players are asked to be on hand at 9 a.m. while out of town players are requested to be ready to play by 10 a.m. Saturday.

Entries should be sent one week prior to the tournament to George Corbiere, 350 St. Catherine St., Magog, Que.

Francois Robillard of Sherbrooke is expected to do well for the CGEP in singles and several unknown and unseeded players may cause a few upsets. This tournament is sanctioned by the Province of Quebec Badminton Association.

Lucien Lajoie and Pauline Lafreniere who made a clean sweep last year, winning three titles each are expected to be back representing the Immaculee Conception club from Montreal. Their coach Armand Jolicoeur says he will have a large entry again this year.

Spectators are welcome and there is no admission charge.

Reds down Blues in Mt. Orford ski test

MAGOG (Special) — Two Mt. Orford "Nancy Greene Little League" ski teams competed Sunday, when the Reds downed the Blues 153 to 72 in a two-course event.

Top scorer was Rob Glassford with a time of 51.3. Pierre Coulombe was second, Marc Nitolski third, and Pierre Rouleau fourth. The young skiers, ranging in age from eight to 14 showed the skill of professionals, as they took the slalom runs on the Oopik hill without hesitation, zooming through the 20-gate, 1,000-foot course at full speed. To date this winter, both the Orford Reds and Blues have been capturing the league events. The teams are coached by Mario and Nancy Podorizsach, Mt. Orford ski school directors.

Announcement of the joint plans of March Engineering and STP were made at the unveiling of the new cars at the Silverstone race circuit.

Andretti will not race exclusively in Grand Prix events. He will divide his track appearances between Grand Prix circuits and the United States.

His first 1970 Grand Prix race will be the South African Classic, part of the European style race circuit, on March 7.

NHL ROUNDUP

No stars, claim modest Rangers

An important part of New York Rangers' success in the National Hockey League this season, which currently has them leading the East Division, can be attributed to their team within a team led by centre Walt Tkaczuk.

Centring a line with veteran Dave Balon and rookie Bill Fairbairn on the wings, Tkaczuk has anchored the unit to 164 points—the most of any trio in the NHL.

"We're just that—a unity," says Tkaczuk. "None of us is a star by himself. We need each other to succeed."

Balon agrees: "You can see that against some of the West teams," he said. "With them, everybody is trying to do it by himself. Not us. We work together."

Balon, at 31 is the old man of the line. Tkaczuk, whose next point will be the 100th of his NHL career, is 22 and Fairbairn 23.

GOT SECOND TRY

General manager and coach Emile Francis brought Balon back to New York for a second go-round last season, trading three players to Minnesota North Stars to get him.

Dave killed penalties for the first half of last season before Francis put him on a line with Tkaczuk and Bob Nevin. The line clicked and Francis was ready to start this season with it intact. Then Nevin was hurt in the first game of the season, giving Fairbairn his chance.

"It took about seven games for us to get going," said Balon. "We started talking to each other on the ice, telling one another what we were doing. That helps a lot."

Tkaczuk, whose name is pronounced K-chook, started last year on a checking line and didn't get many scoring opportunities.

That's all changed now. Some people even pronounce his name properly although most still call him Tay-chuck.

"That's what my first coach called me," said Tkaczuk. "He said, 'that's your name from now on. The other is too tough to remember.'"

The coach's name? Steve Brklacich, a Ranger scout. "He had some nerve complaining with a name like that," laughed Walt.

The Rangers visit Los Angeles Kings in one of five scheduled games Wednesday night, seeking to extend their current record of 115 consecutive games without being shut out. Kings goalie Gerry Desjardins was the last to blank the Rangers—on Nov. 6, 1968.

The Rangers' record for most consecutive games without being shut out is 117. They set the mark in 1941-42, the last season they finished in first place.

Meanwhile, Montreal Canadiens prepare to renew their old rivalry with Toronto Maple Leafs. The game at the Forum will see the Canadiens going without left-winger John Ferguson who is in a Minneapolis hospital with a possible fractured cheekbone.

Doctors said Ferguson, who was hit in the face by a puck in a game against the North Stars Saturday, will not return to Montreal until a severely-swollen right eye improves.

Leafs goalie Bruce Gamble, who will be making his 25th consecutive start since Johnny Bower and Marv Edwards were sidelined with knee injuries, says he could use a rest.

With Edwards and Bower recovered but not yet in playing condition, Gamble faces a tough schedule with a game Thursday against the Flyers in Philadelphia, Saturday against the Flyers in Toronto and Sunday against the Black Hawks in Chicago.

Other games Wednesday night see Boston Bruins visiting St. Louis Blues, Pittsburgh Penguins at Chicago and Minnesota at Oakland against the Seals.
