Elgin Presbyterian Church Observes 60th Anniversary

Special Services With Special Speakers Held on Sunday Evening

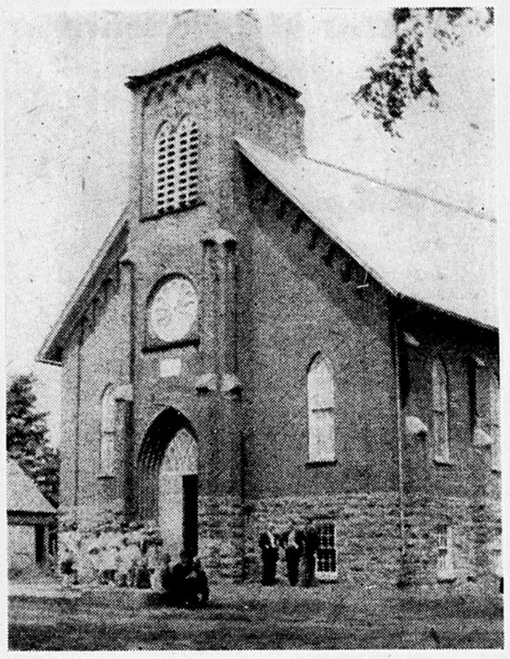
On Sunday evening, October 8th, at 8 o'clock, Elgin Presbyterian Church had a capacity congregation when neighbouring churches from Huntingdon, Athelstan, Ormstown, Rockburn and Kensington, joined them in the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of their present church building.

The guest speaker, the Reverend Richard E. Mumma, M.A., B.D., Professor of the New Testament Exegesis, Presbyterian College, Montreal, thrilled the large congregation with a most inspiring address on the theme, "Happiness is found in a Faith for Life." Throwing the Old Testament story of King David and Absalom (2 Sam. 18) in relief to his subject, he pointed out that happiness is not found by placing our faith in things, subject to change and decay.

"King David," he said, "had placed confidence and faith in his son, Absalom, who proved unworthy and found, not happiness but sorrow, grief and a broken heart." "Nor is happiness found at the end of the road," the speaker continued, "but by standing in the gate, amidst the things for which we strive, and recognizing in them the Purpose, Glory and Providence of the eternal God."

The history of the Elgin Church was given by the Rev. Dr. A. S. Reid, Clerk of the Presbytery of Montreal, who interestingly traced the history from its earliest days to the present. At the close of this historical review, the congregation stood and sang, "Faith of Our Fathers."

Rev. R. D. MacLean, Minister of St. Andrew's Church, Huntingdon, dedicated the new church furnishings, a magnificent lighting centre piece, donated by St. Mary's Presbyterian Church, Ontario, through the efforts of the Rev. W. Scott Duncan, a former minister of this church, who was ordained to the Christian ministry from Elgin, and a very beautiful fluorescent pulpit lamp, which was donated by the ladies of the Elgin congregation.



Elgin Church, the sixtieth anniversary of which was celebrated by the congregation on Sunday evening.

An anthem, "Glorify Him," was very effectively rendered by the choir.

The service was concluded by Mr. Howard G. Grace, Student Minister in charge of the congregation of Elgin and Athelstan. Mr. Grace welcomed the visiting guests and welcomed the visiting ministers and the main speaker.

Other hymns sung during the service were "O God Our Help in Ages Past", "O God of Bethel" and "Still on the Homeward Journey."

At the close of the service a friendly hour was held in the Sunday School Hall where visiting ministers and friends reminisced of the "Old Days."

Among those who brought words of greeting were Mr. Donald Rowat, Huntingdon, Professor Mumma, Rev. John Williams, minister of Ormstown and Rockburn and Rev. R. D. MacLean of Huntingdon.

The ladies of the congregation very capably enhanced the reunion by serving delicious refreshments.

Mr. Grace, Chairman of the Program, responded to the words of greeting and brought the hour to a close with the Mizpah Benediction.

Quebec Legislature Opens Nov. 8

Will Discuss Rimouski - Cabano Loan Plans

QUEBEC, (CP)—Quebec's first autumn legislature session since 1936 will open Nov. 8.

Premier Duplessis gave out the news of the early session-opening while the provincial cabinet met last week. At his weekly press conference, the Premier said it would not be a special session of the legislature but merely an early start at work by the two houses which usually meet in January.

Legislation to help the fire-swept towns of Rimouski and Cabano with their re-building is expected to come before the legislative assembly immediately.

This will authorize the lower St. Lawrence towns to make loans on which the provincial government will guarantee re-payment.

Private home-builders will finance their reconstruction through funds the loans will make available to their municipal authorities.

Premier Duplessis said that after the November session was announced rumors had run around Montreal and Quebec that the legislature planned to change the dates of forthcoming municipal elections in the two cities.

The government leader said these rumors are untrue.

He said the government has the power to call the legislature into session at any time events require.

The legislature will meet next month, deal with the Rimouski and Cabano bills, adjourn for the period of the Federal-Provincial conferences early in December and then meet again in January.

During his press conference, Premier Duplessis announced that work started Oct. 4 on the 360-mile rail line from Sept Iles, St. Lawrence north shore port, to iron ore deposits in Ungava.

Construction gangs are reported to be laying out materials and establishing camp sites for early work next spring.

Premier Duplessis said that along one-third of its length, the $100,000,000 railway project will "involve work of gigantic proportions, comparable to certain phases of the work done in the rockies when a rail line was built there."

MORE SOCIAL ILLS

WINNIPEG, (CP)—A two-year survey by the Council of Social Agencies shows that central Winnipeg has more social ills than any other part of the city. The report listed more broken homes, more illegitimacy, more juvenile delinquency, more adult crime, more bad housing, and less play space, in the central area.

Rev. R. D. MacLean, the guest speaker, was introduced. As the meeting was so close to Thanksgiving his subject was "Some Things to be Thankful For". He went on to name many little things that happen in our daily lives we could all be thankful for and said how we could cultivate optimistic spirit and not look on the gloomy side of things, concentrate on the good and not the bad. The trouble was we took the good things for granted. We should also be thankful we live in a country where we are free to vote as we wish. It was something to be thankful for when we had pleasant memories of our lives to look back on. Good books were another thing to be thankful for. These were only a few of the things to be thankful for. Mrs. Alex Robb thanked Mr. MacLean and said she was sure all would try to remember to be thankful for all the everyday things in their lives.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Fire Prevention Week Calls For Co-operation of All

Check Your Home and Buildings For Possible Fire Hazards

With Fire Prevention Week at hand, Chief L'Heureux, the Huntingdon Fire Department and numerous citizens of the town have been working hard to educate the public to some of the simple rules of safety. Posters have been put up in every section of town and a window display at Marchand's paints a vivid picture of the basic do's and don'ts of fire prevention.

The posters, which may be seen in store windows, on telephone poles, and in so many places that it is impossible to walk a yard without seeing one, illustrate plainly the following rules: 1. Locate and dispose of all oily rags. Check attic and cellar to be sure. 2. Have a fire extinguisher or several throughout the building available for immediate action. 3. Have electrical wiring checked for safety—and do it NOW! 5. Don't smoke in bed. 6. Send your clothes to the cleaners or use non-explosive cleaning fluid. 7. Use metal barrels for ashes.

The window of Marchand's furniture store illustrates exactly what not to do in the case of a fire. A man is shown smoking in bed; he has just fallen asleep and his cigarette is about to ignite the magazine at his side. Also in the room is a stove which looks like a replica of the 18th century. The stove door is open, there is crumpled paper on the floor just on the verge of catching fire, and nearby is a can labelled "Bang-up Coal Oil"; a very tempting combination for the fire department.

Included in Chief L'Heureux's campaign will be a special fire drill to be held on Thursday afternoon, a contest to take place at the schools and a special questionnaire and fire-prevention literature to be distributed by the Boy Scouts and the Girl Guides.

The above-mentioned contest is open to students of the local schools, who are asked to submit posters and drawings illustrating some phase of fire prevention. Prizes will be awarded by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile Chief L'Heureux intends to conduct a survey of Huntingdon with a view to uncovering fire hazards in Huntingdon. He will visit numerous homes and buildings in the town. He hopes that everyone will co-operate with his efforts to make Huntingdon one of the safest communities in Canada.

Recent Robberies in Town Herald Return of "Lone Wolf"

Suspect Detained Within a Few Hours After Discovery of Break-ins

On Friday morning news flashed around that three establishments in Town had been burglarized during the night. It is a long time since such news has been heard in Huntingdon, in fact it is almost two years ago since the series of robberies had this town buffaloed and the police were getting desperate to find the culprit. In some way the robberies on Thursday-Friday night had a familiar look about them. Do you remember "The Lone Wolf"? was asked. Looks like he is on the loose again.

Police Chief L'Heureux was informed of the robberies first, soon after 6 o'clock on Friday morning, word coming from the Chateau, just after the chef had arrived for the day's work. The break-in had occured at the Gai-Lounge, a glass had been taken out of the door and then the door opened. The thief had tried to open the doors of the lockers where the liquor is kept, he had taken the hinge off one door before he discovered the combination. He sampled some of the beverages, among them champagne. He discovered where the money was hidden and helped himself to most of it. He also supplied himself with cigarettes, apparently satisfied he left, and the disorder also. He got away with about $105. in cash. Another place visited was the office of Fawcett and Grant on Wellington Street and the third place was Popular Rug Co., not far away.

Entrance was gained to Fawcett and Grant by means of a skylight in the lunch room. The outside door had been tried, but the attempt apparently failed. Once inside the thief attempted to break into the safe. After cutting a hole through the top similar to the manner followed at the Gleaner Office about two years ago, papers and documents were taken out and strewn around. The combination was broken off the door and the floor was strewn with plaster from the top of the safe. Whether the thief was disturbed here, is not known, for he had only to have broken through a wooden petition in the safe to come to about $400 in cash. In any event, the cash was intact, but the safe was a mess. In going out he cut the Yale lock off the door with a hack saw and let himself out.

At Popular Rugs, he searched through the drawers and files and found a small sum of cash and made off with that. He left plenty of mess and confusion.

Chief L'Heureux eyed the three robberies and immediately had the suspicion that he had viewed similar work not too long ago. Later a tip-off came that a certain young man had been seen leaving Huntingdon that morning. This tied in with the Chief's suspicions. While waiting for the police from Montreal to arrive for investigations he did some phoning and managed to trace the person he had in mind to Montreal. While this was going on the Montreal investigators arrived in Huntingdon and started to work to check for finger prints and question the various people where the robberies had taken place. The suspect had been found and was questioned and seemed to have more money than one would naturally believe and some of it tallied with that which was lost.

If the public will cast its mind back two years and remember those other robberies they will remember they all turned out to have been done by a lone wolf, Lawrence Helm, who was sentenced to two years for his part in the crimes. These latest robberies had been traced again to this young man, and he has been detained. It is probable that before this newspaper is read that he will be formally charged and will appear in Valleyfield to answer to the charges. He was released from penitentiary about the middle of June this year, on parole, which expires in October.

The Montreal officers conducting the investigation were — G. Longpre, special squad and expert in finger prints, Bernard, together with the provincial district officer J. M. Rheault of Valleyfield.

NEW SHADE TREES

WINNIPEG, (CP)—A new kind of tree may soon join the elms and ash which predominate on Winnipeg streets. Park superintendent T. R. Hodgson wants to bring in a tall, umbrella shaped tree, with dark glossy leaves, called the hackberry. Its best qualification, he says, is that it's disease proof.

Fine Thanksgiving Weather Makes Holiday Active One

Churchgoers Make Harvest Contributions to Hospitals in District

For Huntingdon and the Chateauguay Valley, the Thanksgiving Day week-end was one of the most active in years. Special services were held in most of the churches on Sunday and the following day, nice weather combined with a revalued Canadian dollar, brought a stream of shoppers south of the border for a day of buying.

While the Dorval weather forecast predicted rain for Sunday and Monday, Thanksgiving day dawned crisp and clear. It was an ideal day for a motor trip through the red-tinted countryside or a drive over the breath-taking Adirondacks. The week-end forecast had proved wrong for the most part and more than one resident of the Chateauguay Valley could be found on a tour of the northern U.S. countryside.

On Sunday most churches in the district held thanksgiving day services. In many, however, the congregation did more than offer thanks for blessings of the best; they bestowed a few of their own. Generous gifts of food have been received by the local hospitals.

Finally the holiday afforded more than one housewife a chance to do some shopping. Merchants in Malone, for instance, on Saturday and Monday reported a near-record influx of economy minded Canadians. The fact that Americal dollars were now easier and less expensive to obtain meant that many shoppers, tired of the sky-rocketing price of coffee and many other items, were determined to do their buying south of the border.

While the Thanksgiving week-end, like any other holiday, brought its toll of traffic casualties in the rest of Canada, Huntingdon and the Chateauguay Valley had little trouble. One person, commenting upon the good behavior of holiday motorists, said that the absence of accidents in this district was no surprise to him. Huntingdon, he maintained, had enough examples of bad driving and automobile tragedies the rest of the time to more than make up for the Thanksgiving accident lull.

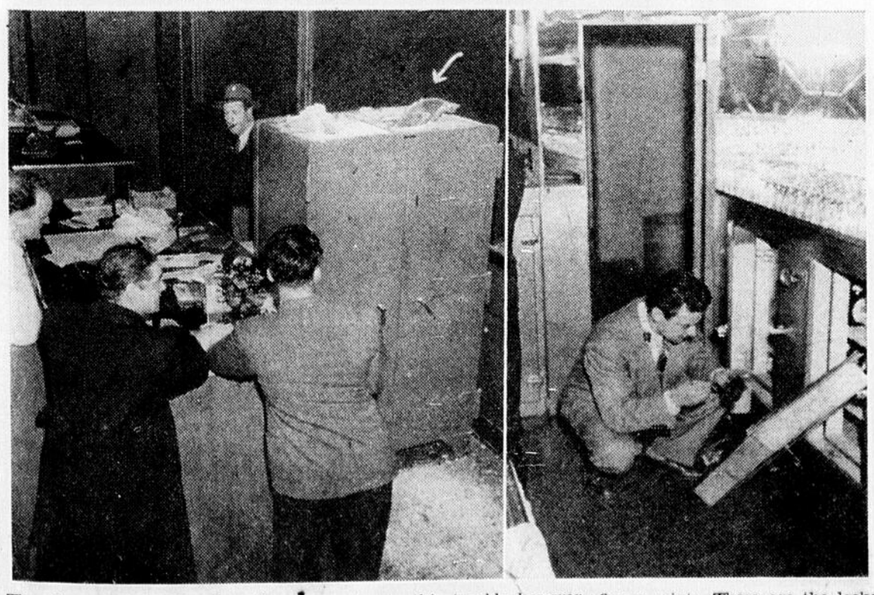
THREE PREMISES BURGLARIZED IN ONE NIGHT



The above photographs show the damage which was done by the thief who entered (on the left) Fawcett & Grant and opened the safe seen marked by arrow, at the top, by cutting a way through. The litter on the desk are papers which he threw out in his search for the cash which was just below. He need not have gone to this trouble however, for the safe was not locked. Some way in the effort to open the safe, the thief jammed the locks. The cash was intact and the thief got nothing for his trouble. On the right is seen the bar at the Gai-Lounge and the finger print expert is just searching for possible finger prints. These are the lockers where the liquor is kept and it will be noticed that the one door has been taken off the hinge. Those seen in the picture are police officials investigating the cases. Lawrence Helm has been detained in connection with the break-ins.

TAKE HEED—HELP TO PREVENT FIRES—DON'T TAKE THESE CHANCES

Above is a special display in observance of Fire Prevention Week which is this week—Oct. 8 to Oct. 14, and can be seen in the window of Marchand Freres, Chateauguay Street, Huntingdon. It was arranged through Fire Chief J. L'Heureux and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. If you study the picture you will soon see those things which should be safeguarded against. Smoking in bed is becoming an increasingly dangerous habit, 16,862 fires were caused last year by this one cause alone. It is hoped that all citizens will become fire conscious from these reminders and do all they can to prevent fires and guard against the hazards that may cause them.

New Type Corn Harvester Machine Demonstrated

DUNDEE—For several decades now all types of farm machinery have been slowly but surely replacing the old and laborious methods of doing tedious and strenuous farm work.

The farmers in Dundee and vicinity commenced using forage harvesters this year to replace the old method of filling silo and combines and hay presses have been in use for several years already but a new labor saver appeared on the scene on Saturday afternoon on the farm of Mr. W. S Smellie, who lives in St. Anicet but who gets his mail from a delivery in Dundee. Mr. Chas. Foisy of the Empire Garage came out from Huntingdon with a mechanical corn picker and husker and in a matter of approximately three hours, 1½ acres of ear corn had been plucked, husked, elevated into a wagon towed behind the outfit, hauled to the barn and stored in a convenient and suitable place. From watching the demonstration which commenced at 1 o'clock it would seem that such a machine operates with more human-like precision than any other type of farm machine so far evolved. Driven by the power take off from the tractor, the machine is hauled along the field and handles one row at a time. As the standing corn enters the throat of the picker the ears are pulled from the stalks cleanly and from there pass into a conveyor belt and rollers which rub off almost 100% of the husks. From there the husked corn passes up a conveyor belt into the trailer wagon which is pulled along behind. The machine is so efficient that no corn husks or stalks pass through with the husked corn but fall to the ground from a chute underneath. Looking over the picked rows the writer did not observe any unpicked ears, truly a tribute to man's ingenuity and inventiveness in an effort to do away with the old method of hand breaking and husking. In this connection, Mr. Smellie supplied us with some interesting data on the comparative length of time taken to harvest a good crop of ear corn by the new or the old method.

In 1944 he relates that he had about the same acreage of corn and that working alone he spent approximately a month of intermittent work to cut the field by hand and break off the ears. These had to be left to dry, picked up again by hand and stored in the barn to await the usual neighbourly corn husking-bee. Six years later the same acreage can be harvested and stored in a matter of a few hours with almost no hand labor involved. Mr. Smellie figures that he will have 75 or 80 bus. of shelled corn from the 1½ acres of planting and on which he did not expend much over $1.00 for seed, a variety known as No. 335 and which was planted May 25.

Several farmers witnessing the demonstration expressed the opinion that with such a machine available for doing the hard manual labor of corn picking in such a hurry more of them would be inclined to grow corn for seed and feed.

Dundee

DUNDEE — Mr. Stanley Arnold returned home last Saturday after a 3-weeks' vacation trip which took him as far as Victoria and Vancouver on Canada's West Coast. Mr. Arnold travelled entirely by train. Going west he went by C.P.R. and he made the return trip by Canadian National. En route he visited a cousin, Mr. Sykes, in Edmonton, and also stopped at Banff. In B.C. he visited two other cousins, one a Mrs. McCracken of Victoria and a Mrs. Gail, of Vancouver. Mr. Arnold intended to visit Seattle, Wash., but was unable to due to lack of time. However, he did go south into the U.S. in North Dakota expecting to visit another cousin. Unfortunately, his relatives had passed away in April of this year, unknown to family members in the East. Mr. Arnold says he enjoyed the trip very much. He is now back at work at his usual employment in the Canadian Customs at Trout River Lines.

On October 4th the Dundee W.I. held their meeting in the Community Hall. Guest speakers for the afternoon were Mrs. J. D. Lang, county president, and Mrs. Bernhardt, Huntingdon W.I. president. Mrs. Lang and Mrs. Bernhardt reported on the W.I. semi-annual meeting held in Ormstown the previous Saturday. Mrs. Lang told about receiving a Life Membership pin at this meeting and how agreeably surprised she had been.

Once again Mrs. Bernhardt had been able to attend the 5-day course at Macdonald College and this time she took up leatherwork. She showed samples of some of the beautiful work she had done. Along with the different crafts taught during this course there were lectures to attend on various subjects. The days were very long but Mrs. Bernhardt said she enjoyed them to the full.

Mrs. Thos. Stowell won the monthly household hint prize. She said to keep an old teapot, not in present use, from mildewing, put a lump of sugar into it.

Mrs. H. A. Cameron, convener for Education, showed a prize-winning picture of her small great-nephew and then read an article "Flight From High School". For Publicity, Mrs. A. H. Fraser read about how the W.I. collect originated.

At the close of the meeting a bountiful supper was served to the members and guests.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Rankin Feted on Wedding Anniversary

NEW ERIN — "Erin Haven", the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Rankin was the scene of a very pleasant surprise party Wednesday evening, Oct. 4th, as that date was their 20th wedding anniversary. The festivities started early, as Miss Lillian Rankin of Riverview Terrace gave a dinner in their honor — covers were laid for six. During their absence from home, neighbors, friends and relatives numbering one hundred and twenty-five assembled, and upon their return, they were greeted with music and singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Congratulations were then offered by all present and dancing began to excellent music furnished by The Milne Orchestra.

During the evening, Mr. Allan Hunter as Master of Ceremonies called the guests to order. Reverend W. S. Hatcher, in the name of all, presented Mr. and Mrs. Rankin with a purse and recalled their wedding day of twenty years ago, he remarked that this couple had worked hard, always in cooperation and that they had kept up the fine tradition of their parents and grand parents who had attended church regularly, expressing the hope that their children would follow their good example. J. G. Rennie, M.L.A., was then called upon and congratulated the couple he had known for many years. Mr. John Goodfellow and Mr. Elzear Girouard spoke also, extending good wishes. Mrs. Rankin, in a very appropriate manner, thanked all for their thoughtfulness. Mr. Rankin responded also, mentioning his surprise, as events of this kind are usually celebrated after twenty-five years. Delicious refreshments were served by a number of New Erin ladies who had attended to the decorations of the table as well. The piece de resistance was a two-tier cake, decorated in pink and white.

The immediate relatives who attended the celebration were: their two daughters, Misses Joan and Margaret Rankin; their sons, Masters Arthur and David; Mr. Rankin's sisters viz Miss Lillian Rankin, Huntingdon and Mrs. Evelyn Cooper with her daughters Lillian and Marjorie, her son, Raymond, Montreal, an uncle, Mr. John Goodfellow, Huntingdon.

To sum up this very delightful evening at "Erin Haven" we could not do better than quote the lines of our New Erin poet and writer, the late J. M. Feeny:

"There was plenty of room,
With music sublime,
And a floor that would tempt one
To dance every time."

Needless, to say all left, loud in their praise of the good-will, neighborly spirit and harmony that still prevails in picturesque New Erin home-land, also expressing the hope of returning to celebrate with Mr. and Mrs. Rankin, their Golden Wedding Day.

Mrs. C. L. Sparrow has returned home from Montreal where she was visiting relatives and friends.

Editorial Notes...

Traffic Lights Would Help Solve Problem

ABOUT two weeks ago The Gleaner in this column discussed the installation of traffic lights at points of danger in Huntingdon as a means to helping in the control of traffic. At the recent meeting of the Town Council the matter of traffic control was discussed. The two points under discussion were McCoy's corner and the intersection of Prince and Bouchette at the Post Office.

Several suggestions were made and one that concerned McCoy's corner was that Dalhousie Street be blocked off on Wednesday and Saturday nights so that no traffic from this direction could enter the five-road intersection. Upon some discussion it was felt that this would make a hardship on the stores that are located in this section and therefore the idea would not be feasible. Another was that no parking at all be allowed at this point so that a clear view can be maintained at all times. A further suggestion was that a warning light be installed at this point so that traffic would slow down. The intersection of Prince and Bouchette was pointed out as a particularly dangerous spot on account that numerous drivers of vehicles fail to stop at the stop signs. Many accidents of minor nature have already occurred there and one just as recently as the Saturday previous to the meeting. The fact that the stop sign is ignored at this point makes it hazardous for pedestrians trying to make the crossing, one of the Aldermen said. Another point under discussion was at Bouchette and Chateauguay near the Bank of Commerce.

The suggestion was made that a police officer be posted at the McCoy corner and one at the Post Office on Wednesday and Saturday nights in particular.

It still seems to us that a traffic light at these points would be the solution to the trouble and it would be easier to catch the offenders if they tried to run through the red light. Not only that, but the lights would be working all the time and require traffic to stop and go as required. This system has worked in other places for a number of years in a satisfactory manner, so why not here. The McCoy corner does present a problem as so many streets converge at this point, but a warning light demanding slow should help considerably. With a light, the driver would have to stop the required amount of time and thus the traffic with the go signal would be safe to proceed. As it is now, there is hesitancy on the part of drivers and sometimes each one decides to go at the same time. This also upsets the pedestrian and he is not sure whether to proceed across the road or not and sometimes comes to a bewildered halt right in the middle of the traffic. Some may say that this town is too small, but we say size is no way to measure, it is the need that should set the pace.

We strongly suggest that the police committee consider traffic lights as the right way to proceed in checking these danger points. It would be the least costly in the end.

The Joint Hospital Campaign

AS announced in the last issue of this newspaper, the Barrie Memorial Hospital and the Huntingdon County Hospital are holding a joint fund campaign in the western half of Huntingdon County. The Barrie Memorial Hospital as everyone knows is to be located on a new site in Ormstown and the new and enlarged building is rapidly nearing the opening date. This new hospital will place at the disposal of the citizens of Chateauguay Valley an institution capable of handling any case needing hospitalization. The Huntingdon County Hospital is filling a great need in Huntingdon County in many ways and the time has come when it is not large enough to handle all those who would make use of it.

When this hospital was first founded there were those who said and thought that it would not last long and would not serve any good purpose so close to Ormstown. That has been proved to be false long since. Many a person has been cared for at this hospital who would otherwise have had to go into the city at far greater expense. It could be used to still greater advantage if there were a few more rooms. To this end the idea of a Dr. Clouston Memorial Wing was put before the annual meeting. To date several people have subscribed toward this idea and in the very near future it is hoped that such a wing can be made an addition to the present building.

It is, or should be well known, that patients do not pay enough to keep the hospitals running. They must have other help by way of grants from the government and subscriptions or donations from the public. The cost of erecting and equipping the new Barrie Memorial Hospital for instance, has exceeded what was considered sufficient when the construction was first started. This has not been due to faulty calculations on the part of the officers, but to rapidly changing costs in labour and materials. While a good big grant was received and a subscription campaign raised a large sum, both are still insufficient to pay the total sum required. Being that Huntingdon had a hospital, the Ormstown Board decided not to spread their first campaign into this area. By agreement now, it has been decided to link the campaign for Huntingdon County Hospital and Barrie Memorial together and jointly canvass the people of Huntingdon County. But all will be allowed to designate to which they want to give, or whether the amount is to be shared between the two. Various amounts will give varying privileges at either or both institutions, so nothing will be lost by supporting this joint campaign.

The Board of Governors at both hospitals hope that the people of Huntingdon County do their very best to support them in this drive and so make it a success. It is to the benefit of every citizen to have good hospitals in this area just in case any one shouldever need it. We can only keep the hospitals operating, by giving our very best support, be it ever so much or ever so little.

No One Wants A Fire

WHILE much is done to prevent fires, a terrible toll is still taken each year by the fire demon. Some of the fires caused are through carelessness or taking no heed of possible hazards. This week is Fire Prevention Week and although we think it is misnamed, we believe that if proper notice is taken much can be done to prevent fires. If in one week we could prevent fires from occuring during the rest of the year, it would be a great work. We therefore think that the week should be known as Fire Precaution Week. It is urged upon us all during this week to check on chimneys, stove pipes, furnaces, attics, basements and so forth with the idea of cleaning away possible hazards to fire.

This is a very wise move for everyone to make as by checking on the possible hazards and their removal may be the means of preventing a fire. There are numbers of homes throughout the country which have an attic through which passes the chimney. In these attics are stored articles not generally in use and sometimes it becomes a place in which to store just plain junk. More often than not this stuff is not needed at all and would be better burned or destroyed in some way in the first instance. An old chimney or a stove pipe going through such an attic is oftentimes the cause of a serious fire. This is especially the case if the stove pipe or chimney is not kept properly cleaned and checked for imperfections. Basements are very often the replica of what we have described in attics and we believe the chances for fire here are even greater, under such conditions.

Starting the fire with coal oil or gasoline is another practice that should never be used. With plenty of paper and wood split to a reasonable size, any fire can be quickly started and with a degree of greater safety. If a coal fire is low, it is better to revive it with a few chips of wood than to pour on coal oil or gasoline or some other similar liquid. The oil does not always ignite right away and gases are caused which explode. Today there are a large number of fires caused by persons smoking in bed. It is not so much the fact that they smoke in bed, as that they fall asleep with a lighted cigarette in their mouth or between their fingers. This falls on the bed and in a short space of time has ignited the bedclothes.

All the practices mentioned can be guarded against, by not doing them. Forethought could be a great preventative. When working with dangerous and inflamable liquids, don't take chances and better still do not use them unless actually necessary to do so. Cleaning clothes today is not needed to be done in the home, it can be done for you at very little cost at any of the commercial cleaners. When high winds prevail, check your stoves and furnaces and above all keep the chimneys and pipes clean. Clean your chimneys and stove pipes before you start the fires for the winter. There are far too many chimney fires in this area during the winter months. Those burning wood should clean the chimneys and pipes more often.

No one wants a fire and if the proper steps are taken, the chances of having one are less likely. Take all the precautions possible, check on every possible hazard in the home, in the store or office, in the barn, or any other place that could possibly become a fire trap. Do not only do it during this week, make a practice of continually checking against the hazards of fire. Better to pay fire insurance and never use it---than to use it just once.

Rift in the War Clouds

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Every once in a while a little gleam of sunlight strikes through the black clouds of impending war that hang over the international situation, and it gives is at least momentary relief from the strain of fear of another world war, with all the certain horrors of the atomic bomb. It was with such relief that we read the announcement by Jacob Malik, the Soviet deputy foreign minister, that his government would pledge itself not to be the first to use the atomic bomb, and was prepared to talk peace.

The statement was made in reply to several questions put to Mr. Malik by the Maryland Peace Committee which has been distributing a "peace ballot" asking signers whether they favor outlawing the atomic weapons and a United States--Russian meeting to negotiate differences. The organizers of the ballot claim that they had nothing to do with the "Stockholm Peace Appeal", which has been denounced as a fraud, the purpose of which was to disarm the Western Nations of their chief weapon of defence in the event of an all-out Russian offensive in Europe.

Ever since the Soviet Government dropped the Iron Curtain it has been telling the Russian people that they are surrounded by enemies, that the statesmen of the United States and Britain are all warmongers, and that they are only waiting for an excuse to blast Russian cities with atomic bombs. The Russian people have had no means of judging the truth of these accusations. They were not told that the Western Nations had virtually disarmed themselves after the last war, and were in no military condition to wage an aggressive war against Russia or any other country nor that all that they wanted was to settle down to an era of peace in which they could recover from the last war and establish friendly relations among all the nations of the world. That was the sole purpose of the United Nations Organization, and what greater proof could there be of the sincerity of the United States toward that ideal than the establishment of the United Nations' headquarters at Lake Success?

If the United States had been looking for an excuse to use the atomic bomb against Russia they would have used it long ago, for both in Europe and Asia the Russians have given plenty of provocation. The invasion of South Korea was a challenge to the United States from Moscow. Nothing would have pleased the Soviets more than the use of atomic weapons in that conflict. The fact that those weapons were not used to shorten that war and save the lives of American soldiers is sufficient to prove that the United States have no intention of being the first to use the atomic bomb and precipitate a third world war. If the American people are now keyed-up for war against Russia it is because they have been goaded into it by Soviet aggression and the propaganda of hatred that has been broadcast not only to the Russian people but throughout the Far East. Washington has displayed the utmost restraint in the face of all that.

Now that the Korean war has been won by the combined forces of the Western Nations, the Soviet Government is apparently waking up to the fact that the Atlantic Pact means business. The rift in the clouds through which a little gleam of sunshine has come has been made by he utter defeat of the Red Armies in Korea. Mr. Malik's announcement that his government will not be the first to use atomic weapons, and is now in favor of a peaceful settlement of "differences", is a confession of fear. The would-be world dominators of Moscow have been striking fear into our hearts for the past five years, but the worm has turned, and they are, at least, beginning to be afraid. The men who sacrificed their lives in Korea will not have died in vain if they put the fear of God into the hearts of the men of the Kremlin. Let us hope that the fear will grow, and that it will be the beginning of wisdom and of real peace for the world.

Random Glimpses of The Past Taken From Gleaner Files

March 11,

We compile from recent government statistics, the following figures relating to our district. In the Huntingdon (Registry) office there were 697 documents registered of which 159 were mortgages and 267 changes of property; the fees were $1,022 and the office expenses $220. Of licenses there were granted--Shops, 57; Taverns, 54; Pedlars, 8.

March 18,

Notwithstanding the rough weather on Wednesday afternoon, which prevented a large attendance from a distance, the academy was well filled on the occasion of its Soiree for its benefit. Mr. Whyte occupied the chair and the programme which included vocal and instrumental music and a few chemical experiments by Dr. Shirriff was gone through in an orderly manner. The receipts, after paying expenses will be at least $150.

For intoxicating drink and tobacco it may be safely stated that the Dominion spends seventeen millions of dollars annually, enough to pay the expenses of its five parliaments, enough to build 600 miles of railroad, enough to make a macadamized road through every country. When a man buys a barrel of flour, he gets for his money that which he cannot do without---that which will enable him to work and thereby add to his own health and to that of the community. But when he pays his money for a barrel of whisky, he not only receives what is not a requisite of life but what is actually hurtful to him---what will incapacitate him for labour and thereby impoverish him. These seventeen million dollars would have been better to have been sunk in the St. Lawrence.

March 25,

BY THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH: Paris, March 19 --- The high court for the trial of Prince Pierre Napoleon Bonaparte for the murder of Victor Noir was convened at Tours yesterday. The Princess Bonaparte and their children have already arrived here. An enormous crowd of people collected around the railroad depot to see the distinguished visitors. The city is crowded with strangers.

April 1,

A report got into circulation that an accident had befallen the Agricultural Society's horse, Samson, and that he was either dead or dying. The report had no foundation whatever, no accident having occurred, and the animal being in his usual health.

The first of a series of entertainments given by the different companies of the 51st Batt., Hemmingford Rangers, for the purpose of procuring funds for a set of colours was held at Franklin Centre on Tuesday evening of last week. The bills of fare, both for the physical and intellectual tastes were good. There were patriotic songs for the loyal, sentimental for the romantic, and comic for the humorous. There were speeches for those who liked not music, and anecdotes for those who liked not speeches. The Durham String Band, as usual, played well. The comic songs of Mr. J. Rogers and Private Kirkland evoked repeated roars of laughter.

April 8,

We have had handed to us a phamphlet describing the mode of forming wooden railways. The common mode is to lay down wooden rails, generally maple, the same way as is done on iron railroads. Mr. Legge (the inventor) takes two long pieces of wood, grooved, and placing them together fills up the grooves with little blocks, the whole being securely fastened with pins. The advantage gained is that the blocks cannot warp; they stand wear and tear much better. The cost of this method is $1. a yard. If Mr. Legge can demonstrate practically that a substantial road can be built at this rate, we are sure his services will be in much request by the districts like our own.

April 15,

Another Fenian Alarm:

Most unexpectedly a despatch was received by Col. McEachern on Saturday evening last, ordering him to call out his battalion, the Huntingdon Borderers for active service. With much promptness word was sent to the Captains of the different companies and arrangements made for billeting the men in this village. Up to the time of our going to press there has been no relaxation in the precautions against a raid. The latest news from the states is up to 4 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon when word was received from Malone. Up till then no Fenians had arrived by railway, nor was there any perceptible movement among the members of the brotherhood.

April 23,

On Thursday, Sir John A. Macdonald made a remarkable speech in the House of Commons. He stated in terms most solemn, that the government believes the peace of the country to be in danger from the Fenians. He suggests no remedy and merely states that it is our duty to take precautions to defend ourselves. Perhaps, residing in Ottawa, he can afford to speak complacently but we can tell him in the name of the people of this frontier, that we have no relish for these recurring alarms with their consequent stoppage of trade and enterprise of every kind. To the rest of the country, these alarms may be startling to the nerves, but to us, who live in sight and hail of 45, they are simply ruinous. Let it once be known that this state of affairs is to become chronic and property near the frontier will depreciate and population will dwindle. The government of the United States is responsible for the acts of the Fenians within its bounds, and

Information about Travel Funds

New regulations covering travel funds were announced by the Minister of Finance on Wednesday, October 4th.

The main point to remember is that Canadian residents require Form H Permit to take out of Canada more than $50 U.S. or more than $100 of Canadian and U.S. currencies combined. Form H Permits will continue to be available at banks.

The regulation covering the use of Form H for the export of currency is a safeguard against the export of capital sums where such export would not be permitted through other channels.

Authority has been given to banks and other agents of the Foreign Exchange Control Board to approve applications for U.S. travel funds without reference to the Board for amounts up to:

1. $500 per trip for bona fide business travel.
2. $500 per person in the calendar year for other travel.
3. $2,000 Canadian per year, or its equivalent, for attendance during a full academic year at a university, college or boarding school in the United States.

Applications in excess of these amounts may be referred to the Board and will be approved for reasonable amounts, having regard to the duration of the proposed journeys.

Border Travel:—Individuals may obtain up to $50 U.S. in any calendar month for use on a trip to the United States where the applicant will not be taking out of Canada more than a total of $100, of which not more than $50 is in U.S. funds.

On Criticism

Every person, and particularly every business person, should know two things about criticism — how to give it and how to take it.

Neither is an easy art. We are likely to be very pert at criticizing others, and reluctant to accept their advice.

There are many kinds and degrees of criticism. The business man out of whose good judgment there comes a suggestion for a change in method of production, is displaying a constructive kind of criticism. The man in high position who finds relief from his personal worry by making continual complaints, and the executive who constantly finds fault with the office boy, are using a very low form of criticism.

Criticism can be used and met constructively or destructively. It can be the means by which men receiving it climb, or it can be used to bolster the critic's vanity.

Criticism in its highest sense means to learn the best that is known and thought in the world, and measuring things by that standard.

But let us look at the other kinds. Captious criticism takes note of trivial faults; its author is usually unduly exacting or perversely hard to please. Carping criticism implies a perverse picking of flaws. Cavilling criticism stresses the habit of raising petty objections. Censorious criticism means a tendency to be severely condemnatory of that which one does not like.

Ordinary faultfinding seems to indicate less background and experience than the word criticism implies. It is wholly concerned with tearing down and scolding.

There are several grades of criticism involved when we talk about art, literature and music. An essay which tells one's opinion about a work of art may be a critique, a review, a blurb or a puff.

In art, true criticism implies expert knowledge in the field, a clear standard of judgment, and a desire to evaluate —the work under consideration. A review permits less exhaustive or profound treatment, giving in general a summary of book contents and the impressions it produces on the reviewer. A blurb is a short fulsome essay, usually a publisher's description of a work, printed on the jacket of a book to advertise it. "Puff" became common in the eighteenth century to describe an unduly flattering account of a book, play, or work of art.

Silence is sometimes the severest criticism, not only in the world of literature and art but in the world of business.

How to Criticize

Perhaps the first lesson in learning to meet criticism is to learn how to criticize intelligently.

In its best sense, criticism implies an effort to see a thing clearly and truly, distinguishing the good from the bad in it, and seeing the whole of it fairly in its proper setting.

There are some hints about criticizing which can be observed by both business men and critics of literary works. Socrates observed a good principle: Before starting to criticize a person's actions, I stop and ask how I measure up beside him in the things which I criticize. Dale Carnegie suggests that we start with praise and honest appreciation, and, on occasion, call attention to people's shortcomings indirectly.

Criticism should have good manners and honesty, coupled with a sense of personal dignity, but it needs proportion, too. The objective should be appraised. All one's big guns should not be brought to bear in case of a minor peeve. It is not worth the same effort to capture a flock of sheep as to lay low a great army.

When the purpose of criticism is to reform what one believes to be a wrong, particular care is needed. Reform refers to two distinct individuals: self and somebody else. It usually means making over our neighbour's conduct to conform to our own ideas of conduct. In fact, many people seem to think that their duty to society consists in considering and deciding what other people ought to do. For A to sit down and think: "What shall I do?" is commonplace; but to decide what B ought to do is interesting, romantic, self-flattering, and public spirited all at once.

Even the most tolerant man has difficulty in refraining from being a bit irritated at the social superiority assumed by the habitual social critic. If you do not agree with the critic you are lacking in sensitiveness, and belong to the morally "great unwashed." If you tell him that to your way of thinking the grandest thing in the world a man can do is to educate himself, mind his own business, and take care of his family, you are said by the critic to be lacking in public spirit.

Another aggravating kind of criticism is the backhanded kind. The favourite word of these critics is "but". Their method goes something like this: "The author presents a thoughtful, high-calibre article, full of meat and inspiration, but . . . ." A good example is that of Sir Fretful Plagiary in Sheridan's play "The Critic". Sir Fretful says: "I say nothing — I take away from no man's merit — am hurt at no man's good fortune — I say nothing. But this I will say . . . ."

Philosophy of Criticism

There can be pleasure in criticism, both taking and receiving it. A talk between two men of similar taste, just and sympathetic, critical yet appreciative, is a high intellectual pleasure. Even if one is hurt in such an encounter, one learns.

No one really escapes criticism, and the more eminent one is the more criticism may be expected. That is a price one pays for holding a distinguished position. It is, as Addison said in his essay on "Censure", folly to think of escaping it and weakness to be affected by it. There is no defence but obscurity.

If you wish to avoid criticism, shun employers who are given to checking up the qualities of their workers; undertake only such duties as you can readily perform; always double check to make sure you are doing what other people want you to do. The man who consistently dodges criticism may be counted on as a business pigmy, but he may be happier so.

Who is a critic? Few of us will step out in answer to the invitation. The truth is that we are all critics. The woman who dislikes the cut of her neighbour's dress or the way she brings up her children is a critic. The man who calls an employee on to the carpet for neglect of business or who tunes out one radio programme in favour of another, is a critic. This woman and this man are discriminating according to their personal preferences, their individual standards.

This, of course, implies judging. There are some who say it is ridiculous for anyone to criticize the work or actions of another unless he has distinguished himself by his own performances, and others who say no one has any right to set himself up as a standard by which to judge others.

These two objections would seem to rule out all criticism whatsoever, but they really point only to a need for great discretion. Epictetus, the Roman philosopher of the first century, gave this sage advice: "Doth a man bathe himself quickly? Then say not wrongly; but quickly. Doth he drink much wine? Then say not wrongly, but much. For whence do you know if it were ill done till you have understood his opinion? Thus it shall not befall you to assent to any other things than those whereof you are truly and directly sensible."

The Written Word

Writing is made difficult by the fact that it is closest of all the fine arts to our ordinary experience. It bears the burden of the difficulty of communication of ideas in regard to the humdrum as well as the most exalted matters. Many a writer has bitten his pencil in two with his teeth, struggling with the shades of meanings of words, in despair of ever saying exactly what is in his mind. And a critic is sure to appear with the precise word needed.

Another hazard in writing, of the business kind as well as of the professional kind, is the lack of information in the reader's mind about the conditions surrounding the writer. A business man, for example, writes a letter, then he moves on to new experiences and to other letters on different topics. When a critic writes to tell what is wrong in the first letter, the business man has a feeling of irrelevance. Did I write that? How odd. Today the problem is altered, the circumstances aren't the same. How could so-and-so know the troubles I had that day?

Thoughtless critics see what is before them, and do not take the time or use their intelligence to assay what was written in the spirit of the person who wrote it. So, when you receive a letter of criticism it is well to remember that it was written in ignorance of the circumstances you know of — or it may simply have been written to give the writer a feeling of importance or lift him out of a sense of inadequacy.

The business man, or anyone else who writes things for people to read, should be under no delusion. He may have matured into self-reliance, self-criticism and self-understanding, but when he writes for others he invites their criticism, he exposes himself to it, and there is no escaping it.

What is Fair Criticism?

Fair criticism implies a desire on the part of the critic to judge with clarity and say with honesty what he believes to be true. His judgment will be based upon his own experiences, his disappointments, his burned fingers, and his beliefs. At the same time, he will make an effort to get the other fellow's point of view and take the gentle and indulgent side of most questions.

Particularly should the business executive see the good qualities in a man or a proposition before pronouncing on the bad features. Thomas Carlyle says truthfully in his essay on Burns: "The ship comes into harbour with shrouds and tackle damaged; the pilot is blameworthy; he has not been all-wise and all-powerful. But to know how blameworthy, tell us first whether his voyage has been round the globe, or only to Ramsgate and the Isle of Dogs."

Fair criticism does not judge without factual information. It considers the event on which it is to pass judgment in the light of these factors: what was said or done? What did the person mean to say or do? What was his reason for saying or doing it? What is the effect of what he said or did? Why do I object to it?

Fair criticism does not exaggerate. All but a few whimsical persons seem to be urged either to overstate things by one hundred per cent or to understate them by fifty per cent, in order to criticize them better. It does not constitute fair criticism of an opponent who seems rather dull to call him a "gibbering maniac." We must admit, if we are to be fair critics, that we resent a few little things which happen to irritate us more than we appreciate a great deal for which we ought to be grateful, and govern our criticism accordingly.

Fair criticism means taking every precaution to be correct. It is not so serious when a mistake causes only the doer to suffer, as when Lord Byron the critic thought "Childe Harold", the product of Lord Byron the author, was useless, and gave it away. But when a mistake involves a victim, that is serious.

Fair criticism does not include common gossip. Gossip may be merely friendly talking, or useless chatter, but it too often degenerates into mischievous comment on neighbours or business associates.

Good Criticism

Having told, then, about what is not fair criticism, it behooves us to consider the constructive quality of good criticism.

Our judgments should be positive, not shaken and carried away by casual commendation or censure of others. Knowledge, up-to-date and accurate, must be the critic's great concern for himself. His question about every case should be, not whether it is good or bad, but whether it is supported by facts.

The ideal critic would know the topic, he would de dispassionate in weighing the evidence, he would have ability to see clearly what follows from the facts, he would be willing to reconsider the facts, if that seemed advisable, and he would have courage to follow his thoughts through to the bitter end. He would not, in all this process, brush aside the help of advisors. He would

SOUP'S ON

Once the first frost has nipped the garden and the calendar shows us that October is here, the family will appreciate hot, satisfying soup for supper.

Soups using milk are one excellent way of adding extra milk to the diet of those adults who would not otherwise get their daily quota. If the cream soup has vegetables, this too helps in getting both children and adults to eat an extra portion of vegetables.

Thick chowder-type soups are an excellent hot supper dish for early fall days. Here are several recipes recommended by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Can. Department of Agriculture.

CORN CHOWDER

¼ cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
3 cups cubed, cooked potatoes
2 cups canned corn
4 cups liquid (water drained from potatoes and milk)
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Chopped parsley

Cook onion in butter until onions are slightly browned. Blend in flour. Add potatoes, corn, milk and potato water. Season with salt and pepper. Cook 3 to 5 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley before serving. Yield: six servings.

CHEESE AND ONION CREAM SOUP

2 tablespoons butter
1 cup thinly sliced onions
1½ tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
¾ cup grated medium Cheddar Cheese

Melt butter, add sliced onions and cook over direct heat, stirring constantly, until clear, about five minutes. Place over hot water, stir in flour and blend well. Add milk gradually and continue cooking, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add salt, pepper and grated cheese stirring until cheese is melted. Garnish with chopped parsley before serving. Yield: six servings.

PEA CHOWDER

2 tablespoons fat
1 medium onion, ½ cup minced
1½ cups boiling water
1 20-oz. can peas
2 cups diced raw potato
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon melted fat
3 cups hot milk

Melt fat in soup kettle, add onion and cook 5 minutes without browning. Add boiling water and liquid from peas. Bring to boil and add potatoes. Add seasonings. Boil 5 minutes, add peas and cook until potatoes are tender, about 10 minutes. Mix flour with melted fat, blend in hot milk. Add to vegetables and cook 3 minutes longer or until slightly thickened. Three slices of crisp bacon, cut in pieces or two or three cooked sausages or wieners, sliced, may be added, if desired. Yield: six servings.

After all is said and done, how does it taste in the cup? That is what counts!

Designed to keep pace with our fast-moving age, this new B. of M. branch with its special drive-in, bullet-proof wicket, will allow motorists to cash cheques or make deposits with the least possible delay —without leaving their cars or even opening their doors. A parking lot will be located at the rear of the building for customers with business to transact inside, and the whole property will be landscaped.

With this new office, the B. of M. is following the lead it took in establishing Canada's first drive-in bank in Vancouver last June.

Wedding

KEDDY-EDWARDS

Knox Church, Robson Street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, when Margaret Ferns, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colin B. Edwards of Covey Hill, Que., was united in marriage to Mr. Raymond Edwin Keddy, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Keddy of Hemmingford, Que. Rev. Wm. Holmes officiated. Miss Sheila Holmes sang "The Lord's Prayer", accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Emmett Cleland. Autumn flowers decorated the church.

Miss Audry Clark was the bride's only attendant. Mr. Leslie Keddy, brother of the groom, acted as best man; the ushers being Mr. Keith Edwards and Mr. Mac Edwards, brothers of the bride.

Mr. Colin B. Edwards gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of Skinner's white Bridal Satin, fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline, encircled by a bertha cuff with net insert, fitted bodice and long sleeves tapering to points over the hands. The full bouffant skirt sweeping into a short train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms and her bouquet was a cascade of Bouvardia and Briercliff Roses. The bride's only ornament was a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom.

The maid of honour wore a gown of shaded nylon marquisette over orchid taffeta, styled similar to that of the bride, with a picture hat of matching material; her bouquet was a cascade of yellow carnations.

Mrs. Colin B. Edwards, the bride's mother, wore a street length gown of deep brown velvet, with matching accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of Joanna Hill roses. Mrs. Walter A. Keddy, mother of the bridegroom was gowned in street-length wine crepe, with grey accessories. She wore a corsage bouquet of Talisman roses.

The reception was held at the United Church Hall, Hemmingford, where autumn flowers and foliage formed the decoration. Mr. Keddy and his bride left by motor for a wedding trip to New York City, Boston and other points in the U.S.A.

The bride wore for travelling, a cocoa brown suit and accessories, under a gold-tone top-coat with matching hat. Her corsage was a mauve orchid. The couple will reside in Hemmingford.

Letter To The Editor

Ormstown, Que.,
Oct. 9th, 1950

Editor Gleaner,
Dear Sir:—

The opening of the 1950 Farm Forum season reminds us that there has never been a time when Canadian agriculture needed to be more on the alert in safeguarding its interests. The spending of billions for defence has set in motion an inflationary movement that threatens the economic stability of the U.S., and is expected to make necessary some system of price and wage controls immediately following the Congressional elections in Nov.

Past experience shows that what the U.S. does in that direction will soon be followed by Canada.

Anticipating these controls, labour and industry in both countries are getting into as favourable a position as possible before the "freeze" comes. Take the action of the Milk Distributors for example. The price has been advanced one and two cents a quart, in all Canada's larger cities, without consulting anybody but themselves. This would mean that Montreal distributors (on a daily consumption of 6000 cans) have increased their profit margin by close to $20,000.00 per day or half a million in a 26 day shipping month.

This is pretty good going, and I imagine these gentlemen wouldn't care how quickly prices and wages are frozen on that basis. To bring this down to the individual shipper of 5 cans per day, the distributor made 41.60 additional profit in September, over what he made in August.

This is something for the Milk Producers to work on, and I hope they get quick action on it. I only mention it in connection with Farm Forums to illustrate how quickly we can lose a lot of money in a situation such as this, and how small the $1.50 annual membership fee is compared to these figures. Membership in a Farm Forum movement, supported by all the English speaking farmers of Quebec, would be cheap at $5.00 per year, if we consider all the group advantages we could obtain from an active, fully supported organization.

Don't you think that the feed situation in Canada, as affecting dairymen, needs some study? All the protein feeds on the market are controlled today by the mixers of so-called balanced rations, and they in turn are controlled by the big milling companies.

You have to buy their 16% mixtures or pay $90.00 per ton for oil-cake which at one time sold for $25.00. This is nothing short of a hold up, and discussion by farm groups and study of how to attack this problem is badly needed. Perhaps one solution would be for farmers to grow their own flax seed for a year or two, and make their own dairy mixture, leaving big business to hold their oil cake until they were ready to sell it at a reasonable figure. The discussion of this subject in hundreds of farm forum groups throughout eastern Canada would give the situation a lot of publicity and that is what these business combinations do not like.

Farm Forum discussion has already won a great deal for us, such as fairer and simpler methods of computing farm income for taxation purposes, cattle testing in certain areas where the government were allowing it to lapse, farm auto insurance on a group basis, and many other items of direct interest to the farmers' pocket-book.

We must work together to get these advantages. Our neighbour may not attend the same church, or vote on the same ticket in politics, but as a farmer his interests and yours are the same and both of you are losing by going your individual ways. If you do not already belong to a group, join at once and try to interest your friends in it. If you wish to organize a forum, write Jas. T. Davidson, Provincial Sec'y, Macdonald College, for literature and instructions on how to proceed. A small group of six to ten families is much better than a large one. A Rally of Huntingdon County groups will be held in the Huntingdon High School on Oct. 16th and a similar affair representing Chateauguay Forum, in the Ormstown High School, the following night, Oct. 17th. Attend both of these Rallies if possible. Special speakers have been arranged for.

Windstorm Causes Loss In Apple Orchards

FRANKLIN CENTRE—The windstorm last week caused a heavy loss to most of the farmers in this district who had not finished picking their McIntosh and Fameuse apples. The rain, followed by the intense heat, seemed to have loosened the apple stem as a very little touch knocked the apples down which the previous week had been hard to pick without breaking off the apple "spurs."

There has been a bumper apple crop in this district this year but a shortage of help in orchard and packing house has held up the work considerably. Some packing houses are working every other evening besides working a ten hour shift during the day. After the hard labour in connection with orchards for the past five or six months it seems a shame the workers could not reap a fair return for their labour.

There was no service Sunday morning in the United Church as Rev. E. Davis was substituting for Rev. C. L. Taylor, who, on account of illness, was unable to take charge of his services in Ormstown. A union service was held in the afternoon at the Gore United Church.

Mrs. Wm. Parham returned Saturday from a visit of a few weeks in the Ottawa district.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brown of Rosemount spent the week-end and holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Omar Harvey.

The Misses Alice and Florence Hunter, of Outremont, spent the week-end and Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rowe.

Little Charles Alfred, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Harvey, was christened at his home on Saturday evening by Rev. Ernest Davis.

Sunday guests at the Manning home were Mrs. Barnes of Montreal and the Misses Jessie and K. Christie of Covey Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McNiece, Mrs. Egbert Bruce, Mrs. E. M. Sharpe and Miss Dorothy Sharpe were Sunday guests of Mr. John and Miss Libbie Waddell, Covey Hill.

The Manning family attended the Keddy-Edwards wedding at Knox Church, Covey Hill, Saturday and the reception held in the United Church Hall, Hemmingford.

Sunday callers at the home of Mrs. Inez Brooks and son Merle, were Mr. and Mrs. Fuller and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, Jackie and Frances of Beauharnois, also Mr. Allister Neely and Miss Ella Neely of the Gore and Mrs. Hunter and grandson, Danny of Huntingdon,

Mrs. Farrell Lapres, Dannie and Nancy of Montreal are spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Leahy. Mr. Lapres spent the week-end and Thanksgiving Day at the same home.

Miss Winona Brooks took an airplane trip to New York City during her Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Goldie and daughter spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, Dundee.

The C.G.I.T. held their meeting after school, at the school house on Wednesday. For the devotional period a Thanksgiving service was conducted. A home nursing course will be started at their next meeting. In connection with this course, this group may consider themselves very fortunate in having as their leader, Mrs. James Manning, a registered nurse. Plans were also made to attend the Thursday evening session of the Sunday School Convention, in Ormstown. The rest of the time was spent in games and the meeting was dismissed in the usual C.G.I.T. form.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Curran and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Waddell of Montreal were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Bruce.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dickenson of Montreal, spent their holidays at the Dickenson home. His mother, Mrs. Charles Dickenson returned to her home here with them after spending the previous week in the city. Sunday guests at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McKinnon of Massena, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Pitt and their granddaughter, Carol Pitt of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. Smith, Sr., of Montreal were callers at the McNiece home on Sunday.

Mr. Ross Goldie of Aylmer, Que., spent his holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Goldie.

She was deeply interested and a generous supporter of the B. & F. Bible Society, and a lifelong member of the Rockburn Presbyterian Church, where the funeral service was held and was conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. W. Williams, assisted by Rev. Obituary

THE LATE JOHN D. CURRIE

The death occurred on Thursday, October 5th at Huntingdon, of John D. Currie at the age of 84 years.

He was born July 29th, 1866 at Delmont, Huntingdon County and was the eldest son of Duncan Currie and Catherine Livingstone who was a cousin of the missionary-explorer, David Livingstone. Duncan was the son of John Currie, a first settler of the district now known as Laguerre. The Livingstones were among the first settlers in Port Lewis, but all of this family now bearing the name are to be found in Ontario.

John Currie was engaged in butter and cheese manufacturing from boyhood, and served in many parts of the country before acquiring his own factories at St. Agnes and Dundee. His wife, Lillian McNicol, died in 1904, leaving him with three small children, Laura, Lyle and Stanley.

Mr. Currie was of a pleasant disposition. Those who knew him, best remember him happiest at his home in Dundee surrounded by his grandchildren. He was a strong man physically, and until a year ago, carried on his daily work in a manner to be expected of a much younger man.

The funeral was held at the home of his son, Lyle, at Dundee. The service was conducted by Rev. Thos. Knowles, assisted by Dr. J. B. Maclean and Rev. R. D. MacLean. Burial took place in the family plot at Zion Cemetery, Dundee.

The pall-bearers, old associates, were Robert Rolfe, Charles Smallman, Albert Armstrong, Gregor Leslie, William Fleming and Earl Gardiner. The floral pieces, tributes of respect from many friends and relatives, were very beautiful.

In 1909 Dr. J. B. Maclean conducted the funeral services of John Currie's mother, Catherine Livingstone, and has been very close to the family through these intervening years.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank Doctors Sutton and Davidson, also the nurses of the Barrie Memorial Hospital, Ormstown, and to my friends and relatives who visited me and sent fruit and cards during my stay in hospital.

To all who showed kindness to our father during his long illness, and to those who showed us sympathy at the time of his death, we wish to express our gratitude.

Laura Currie,
Lyle Currie,
Stanley Currie.

In Memoriam

GREENWAY — In fond and loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Frank A. Greenway, who passed away October 17th, 1944 —
"Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break but all in vain;
To have, to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never —
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving Day commemorates so much more than we are wont to table groaning with good things, like turkey and pumpkin pie. Thanksgiving gives us the opportunity to commune with ourselves and try to define the real meaning of the day. We can thank God for the beauty which surrounds us daily — the blue of the sky, the trees in their varied colors, the fragrance of flowers, the birds with their gay songs, the finished, plentiful harvest with which our community is so bountifully blessed. We can give thanks to God for a friendly smile, a firm hand-clasp, a cheery good morning, a good neighbor, our homes, our families, our privilege to enjoy good music, this wonderful country and primarily we can offer our thanks to God that we may rededicate ourselves anew to a life of Faithful Consecration.

Chateaugay, N.Y. Central School Has Splendid Assembly Program

By Mrs. Julia Harrica

CHATEAUGAY, N.Y.—The first assembly program of the 1950-51 year was presented in the high school auditorium on Sept. 28. This program was sponsored by the Assembly Committee under the direction of Mrs. Leona McCormick, faculty advisor.

Quite in keeping with the pride felt by all connected with the school, the first program presented the students of the school who had won distinction by their various activities during the summer. Joan Quinlin was announcer for the program.

Gary Bouchard told of the fun and benefit derived from the Boy Scout outing at Camp Bedford. John Hyland, James Ryan, Frank Ryan, and Herbert McCoy gave a very interesting narrative account of their trip to the Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, where they went as delegates from the local troop.

Claude Bisonette, Robert Tourville and Patrick Dwyer told of the experiences of the boys of the F.F.A. Club when they took part in cattle, and poultry judging contests at the Franklin County Fair and the New York State Fair. Claude won top honors in the contest at Syracuse against contestants from all over the state. He later went to Springfield, Mass. Here he was a member of the New York State team and competed with other state teams of the Eastern United States area. The New York State team took top honors at Springfield.

James Dwyer told of his experiences at the 4-H Camp at Long Lake. Clement Abbot and David Moore also attended this camp.

Charles Juntunen held the attention of his listeners when he described the trip he took from Chateaugay to Brunswick, Maine. He told of the Green Mountains of Vermont, the White Mountains of New Hampshire, and the beaches along the Atlantic Seaboard. His trip was made by hitch-hiking, and expenses for the venture did not exceed $7.00. Charles is a nature lover and an experienced woodsman. He is capable of mastering ordinary hardships, and life in the open is what he really enjoys.

Marion English wore the charming green chambray dress which won her blue ribbon award at the Franklin County Fair and a trip to the 4-H dress revue at the New York State Fair in Syracuse. She gave an account of her experiences at both exhibitions.

This unusual group of young people were an inspiration to all who heard them as they told of the fine experiences which they had had as a result of the efforts they made to excell in their extra-curricular activities. The program was well received and gave promise that the Assembly Committee was planning a fine series of programs for the school year.

George Douglas, Dick Cook, William Travers, Donald Carr, and Laureston Bushey are engaged in farming. They bid fair to be excellent exponents of this occupation as was shown by their high standing at Malone and Syracuse when they exhibited their skill in competitions at the Franklin County Fair and the New York State Fair.

Mary Cheyne is employed at the First National Bank in Chateaugay. Rhada Whalen has accepted a position at Shaw's Store in town. Arlene Hill is employed in Malone, Mary Woods is working at the Montgomery Ward Store in Albany. SENIOR PLAY WILL OFFER FINE ENTERTAINMENT

The members of the Senior Class are rehearsing steadily for the presentation of the comedy, "Mother Was a College Freshman". This dramatic performance will be given in the high school gymnasium of the Chateaugay Central School on Oct. 27. William Cullen, dramatic coach, is again directing the senior play and judging by past successes, the audience is sure to witness a fine performance.

Vincent Lopardo is Stage Manager. Irene Remillard is prompter. Charles Juntunen and Gerald Iby are in charge of advertising, and James Dwyer is publicity director, Henry Ryan, John Hill, Donald Johnson and Gordon Ryan will be in charge of procuring and handling the necessary stage furniture.

The plot of the play is concerned with the decision of a young, attractive widow to enroll in Pointer College as a freshman. Romance, hilarity and some slight pandemonium result as her daughter, the college dean, and the good looking zoology professor become involved in the situation.

The leading roles are handled by Joyce LaBare, Kate Jones, Gerald McDonald, and Paul Cook. Supporting roles, each decidedly worth while, are capably handled by John Hyland, Jean Patnode, David Moore, Rupert McCormick, Robert Ashfield, Joan Quinlin, Jean Perry, Rita Duheme, Betty Brown, Janet LePage and Genevieve Leach.

On Criticism...

retain a keen and lively consciousness of truth.

In making his criticism known, the ideal critic would have regard for the feelings of the other fellow. Courtesy is easily the best single quality to raise one — even a critic — above the crowd. Mrs. Thrale, biographer to Dr. Johnson, sounds the keynote when she says of her distinguished friend's disposal of someone whose work he did not like: "He undeceived him very gently indeed."

Charming ways are quick winners. When an end is sought, why browbeat and shout and storm if one can persuade? The critic who is judicial in his approach to the matter, bland in his manner of debate, and soft-spoken in his judgment, can be a far more forceful critic than the one who blusters.

The good critic will not force the person he criticizes too far. It is always good strategy to let the other fellow save his face.

About Meeting Criticism

If we are on the receiving end of criticism, we must school ourselves to rise above all that is petty and to accept and use what is worth while. There are times to fight back, but these must not be decided by inclination but by answering the question, after searching consideration of the criticism: Is it right?

The fatal blight that strikes some persons under criticism is to develop a feeling of persecution. Criticisms are not to be measured by the degree in which they hurt, nor by the motives of the critics, but by their rightness.

We have our individual "tender spots". We will take all manner of abuse in many sectors of our lives, but usually there is one where the least breath of criticism hurts. It was revealed at the Nuremberg trial of war criminals that Goering, number two Nazi, could accept calmly criticism of the murder of millions as a military or political expedient, but broke into anger when accused of lying.

One calming thought for most of us when subjected to criticism might be: he little knew my other vices, or he would not have mentioned only these.

Complaint Letters

No excuse is needed for paying some attention to the answering of business complaints, because every complaint is a criticism that must be met.

There is this difference between criticism and complaint: I may criticize you as a car driver because of your disregard of others' rights, but I complain of you when you drive over my lawn and upset my treasured flower urn.

Business men would rather receive complaints than have customers abandon them and trade elsewhere. Not all business houses subscribe to the slogan: "the customer is always right", but practically every one will say: "the customer is entitled to a fair deal".

When it becomes evident to a complaining customer that the business firm is trying to treat him fairly, he is likely to be won over to staunch support and vocal endorsement of the firm.

There are two ways of meeting a business complaint: (1) get angry, bristle and growl; (2) try to capitalize on the complaint.

The first is so obviously wrong that nothing need be said in detail about it. If you are in business, you know that growling never won an order, being angry never settled a dispute in your favour, and telling a man (in whatever circumlocution of language) that he is a fool never satisfied a complaint.

There are three principal points to think of in writing a good answer to a complaint:

(1) Make your critic feel that you are taking his complaint seriously;

(2. Go as far as you honestly can towards meeting the complaint;

(3) If the critic is quite wrong, be honest and sincere in answering him, in restrained and proper language. Ten to one he will accept your explanation.

A good answer to a complaint will always make it evident that the firm does not object to receiving complaints, but looks upon them as opportunities to serve customers. Never let the customer glean the idea that you are giving him the run-around. Suavity and soft soap may settle your correspondent's blood pressure, but they do not settle complaints.

A dishonest approach is bound to be detected. Far better go into the complaint in detail, show the facts, and go as far as you can toward meeting the customer's wishes. In some cases of complaint, even though the customer be wrong in his expectations of what the goods or services would do for him, there may be enough good-will derived from giving him the benefit of the doubt to more than compensate for the cost of settlement Whether allowing the claim or rejecting it, thank the customer for telling you about it.

If your firm is to blame, admit it in the first paragraph of your letter, frankly and with an expression of regret.

When the customer is at fault, show him that you have sifted the evidence thoroughly. Be sympathetic and understanding, without fawning. Tell him all the facts in the case, so that he will see without your saying it in so many words that he was wrong. Explain cheerfully, not grudgingly, what you intend to do, and give him suggestions which will save him from annoyance like this in the future.

There are, of course, chronic complainers. They carp about the service they get in street cars, trains, stores and banks. Nothing satisfies them; a conciliatory adjustment letter merely sets them off on another bout of complaint. There is not much of a constructive nature you can do in dealing with such people, but you must not allow them to make you callous, or drive you into snapping at all complaints.

Even Enemies Help Us

It is likely correct to say that we resent criticism because it might be true, or because it lowers our dignity. Yet it is because a criticism usually contains at least a grain of truth that it is valuable.

None of us is a small splinter of perfection in a forest of uncouth trees. Every sensible man knows that he is not perfect. The world is no place for models of perfection. Criticism is a good way to discover defective spots.

It is foolish to be so sensitive to unpleasant comment that we allow it to crush us, but at the same time we must not become so thick-skinned to any criticism that we do not even learn that others dislike the things we do or say or write.

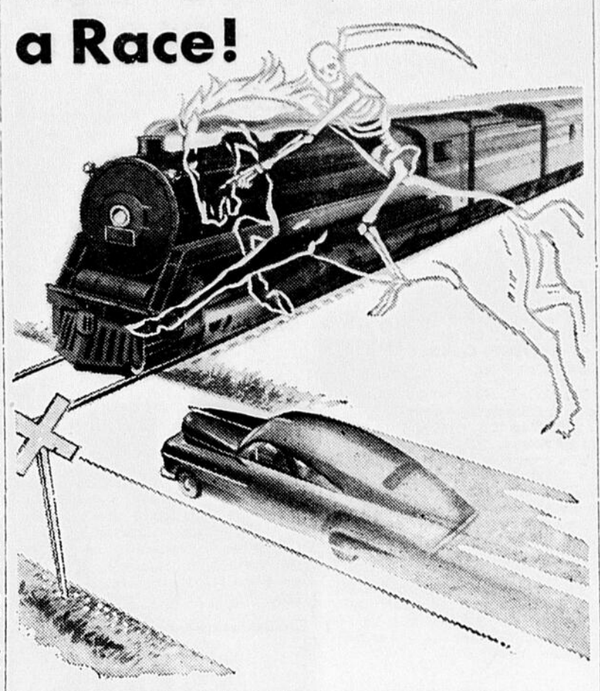
This is no time for a Race!



The man who uses criticism to get a clearer view of his conduct is the opposite of the man who goes around suspecting the motives of everybody. The second man wants to pick up the stones of criticism and throw them back; the first man knows that the stones that critics hurl may be used by him to build his monument.

Not often thought of, but nevertheless true, is the idea that the criticism of an enemy or a competitor may be more valuable than that of a friend and colleague. It doesn't matter if the critic is trying to compensate for his own inferiority by humiliating us. He may be trying to harm us, but he is really doing us a favour if we step up from criticism and not down. Even a crude blow may be effective if it gets us over an unwarranted self-satisfaction.

It is a dividend-returning attribute in an executive when he prefers censure, which is useful to him, to praise which deceives him. As the clown says in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night": "Marry, sir, they praise me and make an ass of me; now my foes tell me plainly I am an ass: so that by my foes, sir, I profit in the knowledge of myself".

There is, too, self-criticism. Like charity, criticism can sometimes make its best beginning at home. But it must not go too far. Introspection, the psychologists tell us, is good in moderation.

The man who makes a habit of selling himself short, of talking people out of paying him a compliment, is giving the world a false picture of himself. Friends may argue a little with him when he makes a disparaging remark about himself or his business, but the remark will stick. By and by even his best friends will gather the idea from his own attitude that he is pretty much of a second rater.

It's all very well to beware when all men speak well of you; it's a very good idea to welcome criticism; but don't go too far in writing yourself down.

—o—

Society could not exist without criticism. Discontent is the first step in the progress of a man or a nation. Criticism, of the constructive kind, accompanied by sensible suggestions for improvements, accelerates advancement.

Criticism is the essence of democracy. Rigid social systems like Communism will never tolerate it. As Robert Ayre remarks in an article in "Canadian Art": Once criticism gets its foot in the door, the walls of tyranny come tumbling down.

But all critics, whether social, business, art or personal, should look at all sides of a case before judging. They might have inscribed over their desks a few words from Burns' "To the Unco Guid":

Ye high, exalted, virtuous dames,
Tied up in godly laces,
Before ye gi'e poor Frailty names,
Suppose a change o'cases.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA by the Canadian Press

OTTAWA, -(CP)- Canada took drastic action by freeing its dollar, and the world is watching our greenback.

In world financial circles, many termed the move "courageous", and waited to see what would happen. So did the Canadian government. In a sense, it was a gamble, with the government betting that the Canadian dollar is good enough to hold its own against the much-vaunted U.S. bill.

During the war, a complex system of exchange rates was set up. For 11 years, the Canadian dollar has been set arbitrarily in value. The old procedure was to let the value of the dollar be determined by what world traders are willing to pay for it on open market, and it is to this procedure that Canada has reverted.

What Canada's dollar is worth depends on what other people in other countries think it is worth. And these people base their thoughts on what Canada's newsprint, gold, wheat, lumber, and other resources are worth on the world market.

Apparently, the people who really determine what the dollar is worth have a good deal of confidence in Canada, which is encouraging to the government and should also be encouraging to Canadians.

Sets Example.

Canada was able to free its dollar because its reserves of gold and U.S. dollars rose to an unprecedented $1,789,000,000 as of Sept. 30, after three years of "austerity" in restricting U. S. imports and clipping expenditures in the U. S.

The federal authorities hope that other countries will follow the lead and free their currencies also, so that world trading can get back to what some authorities describe as a more "realistic" basis. In any case, if the experiment fails, Canada can always clamp the "official" rate back on again.

Meanwhile, traders showed a wait-and-see confidence in the Canadian dollar. It went up to nearly 96 cents compared to the U. S. dollar against the old pegged rate of 90.9. Some sources in Washington and London thought that eventually it might even achieve a higher value than the U. S. dollar.

But even if the Canadian dollar steadies at only 95 cents in American funds, repercussions would be felt by every Canadian. It would mean that things we buy from the U. S. will be that much cheaper. Things we buy from Britain, or anywhere else, for that matter, will be a little cheaper if our dollar is higher. When we sell something to the U. S., we don't get as much in Canadian dollars as we did. But there is less difference between Canadian and U.S. dollars and we aren't so worried about it.

On this count, the government made it easier to go to the U.S. for short or long trips. The foreign exchange control board eased its restrictions on travel south of the border and the $150 a year formerly allowed Canadians for such purposes has been enlarged to include any "reasonable" amount.

Big Investment.

The freeing of the dollar came about partly because U. S. financiers figured the Canadian dollar was worth more than 90 cents. For this reason, and because they expected revaluation, they were starting to buy up our money.

This U. S. money invested in Canada was having an effect on our cost-of-living. Finance department officials say the "freeing" move will tend to stop the inflationary trend.

Meanwhile, the Canadian cost-of-living index was going up in August. Whether the September "baby budget" and the freeing of the dollar would save the situation would not be known for a month or two at least.

The cost-of-living index, at Sept. 1, stood at a new peak of 169.8. In August, it had climbed 1.3 points. This meant that it now costs 69.8 per cent more to live than it did in the base period, 1935-39. Higher prices for beef, pork, lard, coffee, sugar, butter and eggs were mainly responsible.

Trade Restrictions.

Meanwhile at Vancouver Trade Minister Howe said that the most severe of the sterling area's restrictions on Canadian trade may soon be ended. He told the Vancouver board of trade that while there is need to steer a cautious course through current international economic complications, the United Kingdom and other sterling countries have shown greater ability to earn dollars, easing the unbalance between the two great trading areas. At Ottawa officials indicated that the United States and Canada have recently been urging the United Kingdom that the cuts on purchases from dollar countries should be eased or eliminated in view of the improved reserves in the United Kingdom.

Navy Week.

The past week was navy week, and the navy was in a good position to celebrate. It had three destroyers---the Sioux, Cayuga and Athabaskan--in the Korean theatre. All were seeing front-line duty, and the men of the Athabaskan made several landings and got into the thick of things themselves.

Apart from that, the Navy had a chance to report that its air arm is here to stay. The R.C.N. tried the air arm as an experiment with the borrowing of the aircraft carrier, Warrior, and a couple of years later, exchanged the Warrior for the Magnificent.

The "Maggie" now is on anti-sub duties with the Royal Navy in northern British waters, and, along with two destroyers, is studying the latest in anti-sub warfare. The word this week was that the four-year-old arm is here to stay.

The Naval air arm still hasn't got a name, and it is still run by U.K. and U.S. experts on loan from their own forces. But the 18,000-ton carrier, its four flying squadrons and its shore base at Dartmouth, N.S., along with its 1,100 men, is celebrating navy week because naval air is here to stay in Canada.

The President, Mr. Brims and the other members of the committee expressed themselves as being in the highest degree satisfied with the condition of the horse and gave Mr. Muir credit for the care he had taken of him. The horse was placed on the scales, when it was found he weighed 1,680 lbs., a great weight for a colt which is only four years old this month. The transfer of the horse to other quarters was postponed for a few days.

CHEVROLET

GIVES YOU MORE AND COSTS YOU LESS

LOW FIRST COST

Hard facts, not fancy phrases, determine any car's value. Study the market carefully, feature by feature and value by value. Then compare the Chevrolet price tag with that of any comparable car. You'll find beyond doubt that this impressive, powerful, six-passenger automobile is the value-leader by far!

CHEVROLET

ECONOMICAL OPERATION

For all the power you want when you want it, with consistently economical fuel consumption, there's no better engine than the highly-improved Chevrolet valve-in-head, with its ultra-efficient new carburetor. And that's not all! Many thousands of enthusiastic owners will testify that Chevrolet needs less maintenance, less servicing than any comparable car.

COMPLETE DEPENDABILITY

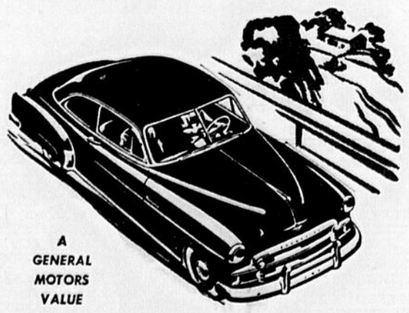
Built for Canadian driving requirements, reflecting its superior craftsmanship in every detail, Chevrolet is further backed by a nationwide organization of skilled service and maintenance specialists. No wonder it is renowned for delivering dependable, trouble-free performance under all conditions!

BRILLIANT PERFORMANCE

Just get behind the wheel of a Chevrolet, and you'll soon know the meaning of brilliant performance. In city traffic, on busy highways, on rough back roads, Chevrolet has the edge on all its rivals. And it stays at the peak of its performance,—mile after mile, month after month.

GREATER ROOMINESS

There's hip-room, head-room, leg-room and room to spare for six adult passengers in a Chevrolet. The big doors swing wide to let you in and out without undue stooping or crouching. And the bigger, more capacious trunk has ample room for all your luggage—and your passengers', too!



A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

• It's best in its class for styling, for performance, for comfort and for operating economies — yet it costs far less than any comparable car. That's why Chevrolet is first in value!

Let the record speak for itself! In a recent impartial survey conducted among thousands of motorists, Chevrolet proved to be in greater popular demand than any other car.

No wonder Canadians buy more Chevrolets than any other make of car. They know that Chevrolet, built and proved in Canada for Canadians, is unequalled at its price for comfort, safety, lasting beauty and all-round dependability.

HIGH REPUTATION

Here's convincing proof that throughout years, Chevrolet has earned a reputation for unwavering excellence! In a recently conducted coast-to-coast survey, an overwhelming majority of motorists named Reputation as the most compelling reason for Chevrolet's popularity.

MODERN STYLING

In every detail, the new Chevrolet is in the very forefront of the style parade. Those flowing, graceful lines radiate quality from every angle. And don't forget — its consistently advanced styling is one reason why Chevrolet is tops for trade-in value.

GREATER SAFETY

From the blueprint stage onward, built-in safety factors are an integral component of every Chevrolet. The immensely strong box girder steel frame . . . the exclusive Certi-Safe hydraulic brakes for quick, controlled stopping . . the ample reserve of power in the valve-in-head engine—all these and many other Chevrolet features are designed for your protection.

HIGH TRADE-IN-VALUE

Records prove that used car buyers as well as new car buyers consistently favor Chevrolet over other cars. That's because Chevrolet is first in the low-price field with all the qualities of much higher priced cars, and also because it's renowned for dependable, year-in, year-out performance.

Chateaugay, N.Y. News

of late September and early October, the weather has been such as to lure everyone away from work and out into the open. In answer to this call, the highways are busy with cars going to and fro, as young and old take time out to enjoy to the full this mild season before the coming of the harsher days of late autumn.

Indian Summer is, of course, characterized by hazy horizons, the smell of burning leaves, calm unruffled surfaces on lake and pond, and a final splash of gorgeous color as Mother Nature in one last gesture of generosity displays a pageant breath-taking in its beauty. It is as if in an attempt to protect the earth from the onslaught of winter, she spreads her Paisley shawl abroad upon the land. Interwoven in the shawl are the clear, pure yellows; delicate browns; soft rosy hues; splashes of crimson and red-violet; and lingering still are a few pale greens mixed with the somber hues of evergreens. Close to the water's edge the hazy air makes an indigo band to offset the duplicate pictures where hillside and hillside-reflection accentuate each other. Far off where the colors fade in the distance the undulating outlines of the mountains stand in purple masses against the pearl gray sky. The sun no longer beats down in unbridled strength, but subdued and quiescent lights up the scene. Where a few flowers linger the busy bee flits in a last search for nectar and a faint hum can still be heard, but the birds that made the summer vocal with their calls, are seemingly departed, and only a lone hawk flies through the sleepy air.

To one who would meditate upon the scene before him, there is cause for contentment, and cause for personal appraisal. The bold, gray rocks will stand steady against the recurrent wash of the waves; the willow that dips its fronds into the cool lake waters, will revive with the coming spring and lend its grace to another summer; the tall evergreens will stand erect against the blasts of winter winds; and the slender trunks of the birch trees will appear again against the forest green. In answer to an unchallenged summons, the birds will return and make the woods gay with their music. What then, of man? Will he pursue his way as His Maker intended, or will he debauch what is given him and make an evil thing of what could have been truly noble? Will the mountains shudder and crumble when hit by an atom bomb? Will man-made fire destroy the forest and all its innocent denizens? Will the fragrant air become a death-trap with its poisonous gases? Or will men stop before it is too late, and remake their theory of progress? And so the observer ponders the fate of the world in this critical period of 1950.

And then, helpless alone to mold the world to his desire, he turns his thoughts inward upon himself. How long will he be allowed to participate in the annual pageant of Indian Summer? How close is his Book of Life to its final chapter? Will he have still another year to do the work which he alone can do, or must he use each remaining day to its utmost measure? When like the garnered grain, his active days are ended, will this world of which he has been a part, be a better place for his having lived?

To one observer, this departing season in its final fling of Indian Summer, is a time to pause, to reflect, and to plan seriously for the days that lie ahead.

McCaig Family Has Enjoyable Trip in Maritimes

ST. LOUIS DE GONZAGUE — Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCaig and family, of Valleyfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie McCaig of St. Louis Louis de Gonzague, recently returned from a two-weeks' vacation in the Maritimes. En route, they passed through Rimouski and saw the results of the disastrous fire there earlier this year. At Moncton, N.B., they saw the famous Magnetic Hill and also called on Mr. Edson McWhinnie, formerly of Allan's Corners and now on the staff of the Moncton Transcript. Although Edson was a very busy chap he took time off, which they appreciated very much, to show them the printing presses and explain how the long blank rolls of paper were printed on both sides, cut, folded and pressed ready for the mail, all in one operation.

While in Nova Scotia they spent a day viewing the sights of Halifax Harbour; it's size may be gained from the fact that as many as three hundred ships at anchor have been counted at one time. Probably one of the most interesting days they had while there was a drive to Canso. Canso, situated as it is on the most southerly point of the province, is where the cables first arrive from across the Atlantic. It is the oldest town of the province and also the largest fishing port. Through the kindness of Mr. Ferguson (manager of R. E. Jamieson Ltd.) they were shown through the entire plant; although the actual processing wasn't in operation at the time of their visit, it nevertheless proved very interesting. The cod, which is their biggest catch, is salted for three weeks before shipping; all other fish, of which there is quite a variety, are tinned or, as in the case of fillets, wrapped in special paper and boxed ready for the grocery shelf, right in the plant. The cold storage room, which has a capacity of holding several tons of fish, is kept at a steady temperature of 22° below zero. The men get so accustomed to the cold that they work in that temperature in their shirt sleeves and enjoy it. Fish does not not comprise the only export; this season as much as forty tons of blueberries were readied for shipment at one time.

Homeward bound, they spent a very pleasant half-hour with The Reverend Mr. Watson and family at Pictou, N.S. Mr. Watson was formerly a minister at North Georgetown for a number of years.

Although both deer and moose are plentiful in the forests of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, they only saw one doe and two fawn.

The season is somewhat later than ours in this locale as there remained considerable grain in stook. Road-building seems to be the order of the day as every province is at it in a big way. Returning home through the State of Maine and travelling approximately three thousand miles they report a very enjoyable trip.

Trout River
