N. Korean premier warns war 'at any moment'

TOKYO (AP) — North Korean Premier Kim Il-sung was quoted Thursday as saying recent developments show a war may break out "at any moment" in Korea and ordered his army and people to strengthen combat preparations.

The official North Korean Central news agency, monitored here, said Kim made the statement at a banquet marking the 20th anniversary of the Red Army.

The agency said Kim also referred to the crisis resulting from North Korea's seizure of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo, and warned that if the United States should continue to try to solve it by means of threat and blackmail it will get nothing.

Kim was quoted as saying: "All the recent developments show that a war may break out again at any moment in our country by U.S. imperialism. All the officers and men of the people's army, worker-peasant militiamen and the entire people should further heighten revolutionary vigilance against the aggressive machinations and possible war provocation by the U.S. imperialists and firmly guard their post maintaining a mobilized posture at all times."

Kim's statement followed an order issued by Defence Minister Gen. Kim Chang Bong urging the North Korean army to build up "full combat readiness," the defence minister warned that the Pueblo incident "vividly shows how recklessly" the United States is "scheming to ignite a new war in Korea."

Kim asserted that "the U.S. imperialists' manoeuvrings for the provocation of a new war in Korea have already reached a grave stage."

He said United States and South Korea "are taking a war posture and openly declared that they would invade the northern half of the republic."

Referring to seizure of the Pueblo Jan. 23, Kim said the Pueblo's "intrusion into our territorial waters is a gangster-like piratic act, a flagrant encroachment upon the sovereign state and a link in the chain of premeditated manoeuvrings of the U.S. imperialists for unleashing a new war in Korea."

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defence Minister Andrei A. Grechko has accused the United States of using "threats and pressure" against North Korea, but said U.S. policies will be "abortive."

Records were changed brutality probe told

MONTREAL — An expert witnesses' disclosure that police records have been altered and possibly forged yesterday added a Perry Mason touch to the three-week-old Boomhower police brutality case.

Police handwriting expert Dr. Rosario Lafontaine yesterday told Quebec's royal commission on justice that key time figures in a QPP constable's diary "have definitely been erased and altered" and possibly forged.

Dr. Lafontaine's testimony was the latest surprise in the commission's investigation of events surrounding the arrest of bank robber Karl Boomhower.

Boomhower claims that two QPP officers gave him a third degree in the basement of the Cowansville jail following his arrest on March 10, 1966.

The two accused officers, Sgt. Jean Noiseux and Const.

Maurice Roy, say they never touched Boomhower and were not in the Cowansville jail when the alleged beating took place.

Efforts to establish the two officers' whereabouts during that afternoon have ended in a maze of contradictory testimony. Records kept by the officers and their colleagues have yielded as many contradictions as the verbal testimony.

Yesterday the commission examined a diary kept by Const. Guy Gaboriault of the QPP which showed that Sgt. Noiseux and Const. Roy were not at the jail when the beating took place.

Dr. Lafontaine, however, revealed that a microscopic examination of the diary showed that the figures giving the constables an iron-clad alibi were "erased and altered."

Another examination is underway to determine whether the corrections were made by Const. Gaboriault or whether another hand doctored his diary.

After Dr. Lafontaine's disclosures, the commission called on Const. Leo Jette, who drove Sgt. Noiseux and Const. Roy during the day of Boomhower's arrest.

Obviously nervous, Const. Jette repeated his colleagues' story down to the last detail.

Under pressure from commission counsel Jacques Coderre and commissioner Harry Gould Const. Jette hedged, backtracked and completely forgot some events of the crucial hours.

When Mr. Coderre asked him if Sgt. Noiseux had helped him draft a sworn statement of the day's events, Const. Jette replied: "No ...

I don't understand what you mean ... Could be ... I can't answer that question."

Pressed further, Const. Jette became silent.

"Mr. Jette," said Commissioner Gould, "you have a very, very strange memory."

Since the Boomhower hearing began, a witness has died minutes after testifying, another has fainted twice in the box, three QPP officers have talked of an abdominal operation of which there is no medical record and contradictory alibis have been exchanged at a rate that would delight any thriller writer.

The hearing resumes this morning with the cross examination of Const. Jette. The commission is also expected to receive a detailed scientific report on the mysterious alterations in Const. Gaboriault's diary.

Negro student killed in clash with police

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP) — Negro students exchanged gunfire with police Thursday night in the fourth night of violence on two adjacent college campuses. Three Negro teen-agers were killed and more than 40 persons wounded.

The shooting incidents came during a drive by students from the two predominantly Negro schools to break the segregation barrier at the All-Star bowling lanes.

Henry Smith, 18, a student at South Carolina State College, died several hours after a barrage of gunfire broke out between students and police on a small slope bordering the State campus. One student was reported in critical condition.

Sam Hammon, 18, was killed in the shooting and Delano Middleton, 17, an Orangeburg high school student, died about an hour later.

Chief J. P. Strom of the state law enforcement division said Cleveland Sellers, 25, South Carolina co-ordinator for the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee, was arrested and charged with inciting to riot and placed under $50,000 bond. Sellers was hit in the left arm by a shotgun pellet during the fray but was not seriously wounded. After questioning by Orangeburg police, Sellers was taken to the state penitentiary at Columbia 45 miles away.

en by Armand Fontaine, 59, of Asbestos.

The accident occurred three miles outside of Richmond on the Richmond to Windsor highway.

Troops landed

SAIGON — (AP) — Helicopters landed US troops on Saigon's racetrack today to help rout die-hard Viet Cong forces as the North Vietnamese increased pressure against Da Nang and more North Vietnamese tanks were reported sighted near Khe Sanh.

Heavy fighting was reported across South Vietnam's northern sector, with 321 North Vietnamese and 67 US troops killed Thursday, most of them in battles around Khe Sanh and Da Nang and in Hue. Another 170 Americans were wounded.

Constitution dialogue kept open

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson has moved to keep the constitutional dialogue alive on Parliament Hill in the wake of this negotiations with provincial premiers this week.

Reporting to the House on the conference, Mr. Pearson suggested the special one-day Commons debate might be held next week and a parliamentary committee could get down to work before the present session ends, probably next month.

The Commons mood was generally one of satisfaction and optimism on results of the federal-provincial talks, although A. B. Patterson, acting Social Credit leader, echoed reservations of the Social Credit premiers of British Columbia and Alberta.

David Fulton (Kamloops), the Conservatives' constitutional expert, said credit was due to Mr. Pearson for his part in calling the conference and his conduct as chairman.

Mr. Fulton said the conference had a significant measure of success. The degree of unanimity of language rights was "remarkable and encouraging."

But on the other hand, little more than a preliminary statement of position had been accomplished on the division of constitutional power and on regional economic differences.

"Clearly, too, the width of the gap between two of the positions was also demonstrated."

David Lewis (NDP—York South) said Mr. Pearson had shown "wit, wisdom and flexibility" in presiding over the conference.

Both Mr. Fulton and Mr. Lewis also praised Premier Robarts of Ontario for calling last November's Confederation of Tomorrow conference.

The two joined in calling for a parliamentary committee and in saluting the fact the federal-provincial conference had been held mainly in public.

Mr. Fulton said the same policy should be followed by the parliamentary committee. There was no immediate response, but Mr. Pearson in a later exchange said he hoped television cameras could be introduced to Parliament through the committees.

Least enthusiastic assessment of the conference came from Mr. Patterson, who suggested that some people are looking at the prospects through rose-tinted glasses and are not facing the issues realistically.

He said the obstacles ahead are very real, particularly on proposed amendments to the constitution.

Past attempts to repatriate the constitution had failed, "and if this essential first step is impossible of achievement, the consideration of further steps is somewhat premature."

Mr. Pearson confined his statement mainly to a factual report on the work of the conference, summing it up as a "very good first step" in federal-provincial consideration of constitutional reform.

Under questioning later, he promised serious consideration to requests that the Yukon and Northwest Territories be brought into future consultations. And he said he hoped Indians and Eskimos could be "associated in an appropriate way" with the process.

Tories clash on bilingualism

OTTAWA (CP) — An assault on bilingualism by Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) drew a swift and passionate reply in the Commons Thursday night from another Conservative, Theogene Ricard (St. Hyacinthe-Bagot).

Equally swift was a statement outside the House by Finance Minister Sharp that he had not connected a $340,000,000 drain on reserves in January with a speech Jan. 25 by Arthur Smith, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, favoring a floating rate of exchange for the Canadian dollar.

Although Mr. Sharp crisply rebuked the council chairman for the speech, he said later in a telephone interview that he had not linked the drain on reserves with the Smith remarks on the dollar.

The Canadian dollar now is pegged at 92.5 cents in relation to the U.S. dollar and Mr. Sharp said the government intends to keep it that way.

Later Thursday, Dr. Smith issued a statement expressing doubt that his Jan. 25 remarks could be linked to the reserve losses "especially since there were press reports and various indications of significant speculation against the Canadian dollar at various times during the month."

Dr. Smith also said his remarks on a floating exchange rate "were made in a theoretical discussion ... and should not be interpreted as a recommendation for a flexible exchange rate at the present time."

EXPANDS USAGE

Later the Commons passed a bill to broaden the investment base of the exchange fund and to extend the use of nickel in coinage.

The Horner-Ricard clash came when Mr. Horner called a government bill to print statutes in English and French, in the same volume, an irritant and "another demand" of the type that would drive Western Canada out of Confederation.

The Alberta MP, developing a position taken earlier by Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona) and Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke) said the measure was "a mere aspirin" that would not satisfy Quebec. He also described it as separatism on the instalment plan and asked where such demands would end.

Mr. Ricard said that if Mr. Horner felt the dual-language printing was an irritant, "I would like to see you come to Quebec factories and see all the signs in English when the employees are French-speaking."

The Quebec MP, a minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet and a staunch front-bench lieutenant, apologized for letting his emotions get out of hand, but added:

"I really think the measure before the House is fair. It is a step in the right direction for French Canadians."

CHIDES CRITIC

The speech drew applause from all sides. It was followed up by Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra), who held up a copy of the bilingual Quebec statutes and said he couldn't see anything wrong with them.

Judge fines motorcyclist $100 for dangerous driving

An 18-year-old St. Adolphe man was fined $100 by Judge Benoit Turmel in court of sessions yesterday and had his permit to drive a motorcycle suspended for six months.

Jean Roch Breton was found guilty of a charge of dangerous driving.

The incident occurred August 13, 1967, on the Marlette to Weedon highway at approximately 2:15 p.m.

Testifying for the Crown, Raymond Poulin of the QPP said he was driving along the highway with his wife.

He said he was travelling at about 55 to 60 miles per hour.

He testified that suddenly a young man, whom he knew, flew out from behind him on his motorcycle passing the QPP agent's own car and another ahead of him. Constable Poulin said there was a young girl on the back of the motorcycle.

He testified that the young man on the motorcycle had passed him on a solid double line and near the top of a hill.

He said the accused could not possibly have seen anything ahead of him as he was only a number of feet away from the top of the hill.

"When I reached the top of the hill," he said, "I watched the accused move out in an attempt to pass three more cars at once."

He said instead of passing the second car he moved up beside it and slowed down to the same speed as the car.

He said Breton was driving along the white line right beside the car and that two of his friends, also driving motorcycles, were also driving along the white line with him.

The constable's wife then took the stand and corroborated her husband's story.

Taking the stand Breton testified he passed the constable and his wife at about 60 miles per hour and that he could see clearly ahead of him.

He testified he knew it was Constable Poulin's car but that he was not speeding and continued to pass the second car.

He testified that he did not know it was a solid double line.

He said the reason he did not pass the three cars he attempted to pass following his encounter with Constable Poulin was that the second car would not let him back into the left lane and he was forced to slow down.

Defense lawyer Raynald Frechette, during his summation, told Judge Turmel that his client had not driven dangerously.

He said anybody who passes a policeman while driving his car automatically slows down to about 20 miles per hour.

It's natural, he said, because nobody wants a ticket.

He said he could not believe his client would do these things right in front of a policeman.

Judge Turmel, in rendering his decision, said the young man passed two cars on the way up a hill which is dangerous enough.

He said the youth passed the cars on a solid double-line and told the court he did not notice what type of line it was.

New slate of officers is elected at annual meeting of St. George's Church

The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church, Lennoxville, last Sunday, elected three lay delegates to the Synod along with three alternates, and appointed two churchwardens for 1968.

Plans this year call for a slightly new "wrinkle" as there will be a greater attempt made for fellowship and "visiting."

A Sunday supper was served following the meeting, under the planning of St. Monica's and St. George's Guild members, Anglican Church Women, AYC and AYPAs.

The Senior Choir, Junior Choir, and the AYPAs Pulpit Singers, provided an interesting program of songs and instrumental numbers.

The meeting was closed with a hymn sing and an Eventide Service.

Following are the highlights of the meeting:

There were 91 members registered.

Outgoing rector's warden Cecil Dougherty was thanked by Archdeacon Matthews for his tremendous help during the past 2 years. The new slate of officers which was adopted during the meeting consisted of James Dugan as rector's warden; people's warden, Dan Patridge (to complete the second year of his 2-year term); parish council, for 1 year, G. McKindsey, P. Yeandel, L. Bennett, H. Derek; for 2 years, R. Bishop, G. Robinson, E. Hobbs, G. Frost; for 3 years, C. Beaudreau, F. Berry, R. Nichol, L. Hewitt. Lay delegates to Synod, K. G. Herring, H. A. Simons, L. M. Watson; Alternates, C. Dougherty, R. Atto, H. W. Woolerton; auditors, H. M. Moffatt, H. Barter; vestry clerk, Mrs. C. Belding.

Printed copies of the annual report for 1967 were distributed to members and the presidents of the many organizations in the church gave verbal reports of their activities during the past year.

Robert Nichol, chairman of the every member visitation and canvass committee gave a brief on recent achievements and took the opportunity to express his gratitude to the many participants.

Following the report from the Anglican World Missions by Herbert Simons, chairman, Miss Erica Bell and Lynn Ross, students of Bishop's University, outlined their experiences during the summer of 1967 for this worthwhile organization, Miss Bell serving in a work camp in East Africa and Mr. Ross in a school in Antigua, West Indies.

It has long been the hope of the welfare division of the Anglican Church Women that a home might be established in this area for senior citizens and the chronically ill. In this regard Archdeacon Matthews informed those present that a committee was now organized to investigate the suitability of a building that might be available for this purpose.

D. Patridge, people's warden, spoke appreciatively of the rector's inspirational support during the past year, and thanked Mr. Dougherty for his great contribution as rector's warden as well as in his many other offices. Tribute was paid by Mr. Simons to Mrs. T. Matthews for all the help rendered behind the scenes as well as on the scene. Archdeacon Matthews expressed gratitude for the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. N. Carver, as well as Ian Barber, a divinity student.

As the business meeting came to a close Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Aird were introduced and welcomed as guests from the United Church, and Mr. Aird addressed those present, conveying best wishes from Rev. A. B. Lovelace and the United Church, and expressing the hope for continued progress toward church union.

The meeting closed with prayer.

Leaves on trip to Togo

The director of the Lennoxville Experimental Farm, Paul-Emile Sylvestre, will be off Sunday evening for a four-week trip to Togo.

Mr. Sylvestre will be accompanied to the African country by Dr. Laurent Charette, Chairman of Animal Husbandry at Laval University.

While there, the two Canadians will be studying the prospects of the establishment of a national cattle ranch in Togo. The men are being sent by the External Aid division of the External Affairs department.

Mr. Sylvestre and Dr. Charette will fly immediately to Paris, France, Sunday, to accumulate more information on their project.

From Paris they will fly to Accra, capital city of Ghana, before travelling to Lome, Togo.

Gets a month in jail for purse snatching

A 19-year-old Sherbrooke man was sentenced by Judge Benoit Turmel in court of sessions yesterday to one month in jail on two charges of purse snatching.

Andre Poirier pleaded guilty to stealing a purse owned by A. Dallaire containing $25.

He also pleaded guilty to stealing a purse owned by Mrs. Joyce Ouellette which contained $20.

The incidents occurred on Feb. 3 in Sherbrooke.

Judge Turmel, before handing down the sentence, asked the youth if he had learned anything since his last conviction.

Judge Turmel said the court was lenient and gave him a suspended sentence on similar theft charges last December.

Poirier was ordered to post a $500 bond to keep the peace for two years on the latest conviction.

His arrest and Claude Lupien of the Richmond detachment of the QPP, who made the arrest.

Germain Charland, 30, of Asbestos was found not guilty by Judge Benoit Turmel when he appeared in court of sessions on a charge of impaired driving.

Conference provides basis for new accord

If anyone was foolish enough to believe that this week's federal-provincial conference in Ottawa would produce full agreement for the solution of Canada's problems in the constitutional and linguistic field he was deservedly disappointed by the results.

The problems are too complex and have been too long-standing for any group of men no matter how smart and how filled with goodwill to bring about complete harmony within three days.

The greatest reason for satisfaction is that the federal and provincial leaders were able to agree on the concept that overnight solution was impossible and that any agreement satisfactory to all parties would require weeks, months and even years of study.

Realizing this situation they adopted the only course available to logical men — to set up a permanent organization charred with reviewing the issues at stake and propose effective means for their solution.

Important progress was made in one direction — and to a surprising extent — the recognition of the French fact in Canadian life by Premiers of the English-speaking provinces.

Even Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson expressed moderate surprise at the extent to which many of the Premiers were willing to go in an effort to assure the French minorities in their provinces would receive the same privileges accorded the English-speaking minorities in Quebec.

Obviously the extension of linguistic rights is not the complete answer to all the problems, especially the demands for "special status" for Quebec.

But the fact that important progress was made in this direction strengthens the position of the moderate leaders in this province.

They can point out that the responsible people of the other provinces now appreciate the problems of the people of Quebec and can argue that given a little time, with a spirit of give and take, the other difficulties can be surmounted.

The conference did not give everybody everything they wanted, but it did give that thing so essential for a final agreement — time.

Judging from recent absenteeism in the shop, the doctor who gave the flu shots is a mighty poor marksman.

Conference ill-timed

Probably one of the greatest problems faced by this week's federal-provincial conference on constitutional problems was its timing.

Not that February has any disabilities as a conference month under ordinary circumstances but February, 1968 — and March, 1968, for that matter — have particular disadvantages for such a gathering.

These results from the decision of Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson to step down from the leadership of the Liberal party and to vacate the Prime Minister's office as soon as possible after the new Liberal chief is selected April 6.

Undoubtedly this situation has created concern among many participants in the talks as to the validity of any obligations the federal government may have assumed as a result of the Ottawa talks.

The Ottawa case was argued largely by the Prime Minister and Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

The unsettling factor is that any obligation the Prime Minister may have assumed are binding only for the two months he continues in office and his successor may feel free to alter the decisions when he assumes office.

And uncertainty also prevails as to the position of Mr. Trudeau.

He has not officially entered the Liberal leadership fight but there is a feeling that he may make the plunge later this week and many of his statements have been those of a contender for public office seeking to improve his image across the country.

Should he contest the party leadership and be defeated, it is very possible that he might not find favor with the newly-elected leader and may be dropped from the new government, in which case any commitments he may have made would also be invalid.

Then there is the question of the policy that may be adopted at the party convention, which could hamper the new Prime Minister in applying conference decisions.

If your children never, never, NEVER misbehave, they're better at concealing monkey business than most of the kids.

Germany abandoned the EST African colony of Kamerun 52 years ago today—in 1916—after a campaign lasting since the beginning of the First World War by mixed Allied troops. Britain and France took over territory under a League of Nations mandate and it still remained divided after its independence.

1955—The AFL and CIO agreed to merge after a 20-year rivalry.

Levesque wants to leave Canada with dignity

By JOSEPH MacSWEENE

MONTREAL (CP) — The way Rene Levesque tells it, his proposed political parting of Quebec from Canada could be an exercise in statecraft and dignity—he wants no "crazy breakup."

Magic-maker with French-Canadian crowds, Mr. Levesque is no slouch in English, either, when he expounds his plan for a sovereign Quebec retaining a mainly economic links with the remaining nine provinces of Canada.

The five-foot-six former Quebec cabinet minister is busy preparing himself—and as many others as he can reach—for what he hails as an inevitable stroke of destiny.

Mr. Levesque, 45, denies any personal animosity toward English-Canadians but maintains that French-Canadians collectively have been handed the neck of the chicken so often that the truth of the relationship between the linguistic groups is clear.

The apostle of nationalism deploys skills gained as a radio-television commentator and in the political arena where he rocketed to No. 2 position in Jean Lesage's former provincial Liberal government within two years of entering politics.

STIRS EMOTION

Scourge of the status quo, this restless, questing, passionately-committed figure from Quebec's not-so-quiet revolution captured widespread newspaper coverage long before he announced his present program for Quebec sovereignty within a sort of Canadian common market.

First of three

One dramatist portraying a lovers' quarrel shows the English-speaking girl gritting to her French-language partner: "Separatist! Rene Levesque!" Ask any Montrealese, "what's Rene up to now?"—he'll know you mean Levesque though there are thousands of Renes.

Whether spoken with affection, dismissed with a smile or spat with distaste, the name of Rene Levesque evokes more emotion in Quebec than that of any other politician.

It's been that way ever since Mr. Lesage and his L'equipe du Tonnerre (thunderbolt team) led Quebec on a breath-taking ride of change from 1960 until they were in turn defeated by the Union Nationale in 1966.

Mr. Levesque contends that the program of Mouvement Soverainete - Association, which he founded last November, is a logical development of the Liberal election slogan "Maitres chez nous"—masters in our own house.

"But if we can keep Ralphy in here until Easter, just think what we'll achieve!"

French Canada says:

Sask. demands show restraint, perhaps just too much restraint

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal Le Devoir: At the start of the year Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan admitted that biculturalism was far from being a "fait accompli" in his province and that it was time to start teaching French in schools. Apparently, our compatriots out there decided to take him up on his word without delay. This would explain the brief the French-Canadian Cultural Association of Saskatchewan recently presented to the premier in which it calls for the gradual establishment of a French or bilingual school system in that part of the country. . . .

We say that our Saskatchewan compatriots aren't even asking to be put on the same level as the English-speaking minority in Quebec. . . . It's good that (they) take account of the surroundings in which they are destined to live and earn a living. . . .

They only want to use French 100 per cent as a language of instruction in kindergarten and the first grade. In the second and third years they would accept up to 15 per cent English. Then it would be 20 to 40 per cent from the fourth to sixth grade. That would go to 60 per cent in the last three years of secondary school. . . .

To be frank, we figure it would have been preferable for the first six grades to be entirely or almost entirely in French. When English surrounds you, that isn't the language that should be given top priority. It's necessary to be totally immersed in French. . . .

In our opinion, if the French culture is to triumph the accent should be placed almost completely on French at the primary school level. Otherwise, English will take over quickly and even the atmosphere of the class or school will be English.

This said, you will understand that we approve of the brief 100 per cent . . . (It doesn't ask for the impossible. It takes into account the geographic situation of our people there, of their dispersion, of existing institutions, etc.)

It doesn't call for establishment of a French normal school for that province, but rather suggests that the three Prairie provinces together endow a common institution to serve all three. Finally, the French-Canadian Cultural Association has foreseen a transition period before actually realizing its goal so as not to provoke any major dislocation in the school system of that province.—Vincent Prince (Feb. 3)

Quebec Le Soleil: The desire to create a federal capital which would truly reflect the image of our two cultures is well on the way to solution. The federal, Quebec and Ontario governments, which will work jointly on the shaping of the new face of the capital and its surrounding area, have just reached agreement in principle on the subject. Let us hope that this tripartite co-operation will be really effective, that it will lead to the establishment in the federal capital and its surroundings of a climate in which Canadians of both languages will be proud to recognize one another because it will be the reflection of our two cultures.

The most radical project would have been purely and simply to create a federal district by joining the cities of Ottawa and Hull. Quebec and Ontario . . . could have ceded part of their jurisdiction over the two cities to the central government. . . .

But jurisdictional conflicts being what they are and nationalism remaining a ticklish matter, the three governments fell back on a less radical formula. . . .

There is no longer any question of an Ottawa-Hull federal district, but of a "federal capital region;" words matter little here, it is reality that counts. In order to arrive at the planned changes, the three governments decided to establish a preparatory committee on the federal capital. . . . Thus, the two provinces will participate on an equal footing with the federal government in the realization and the administration of the project.

Bygone days

TEN YEARS AGO

HUNTINGVILLE—The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Aldrich with Mrs. E. Aldrich assisting.

The president Mrs. M. Sewell, was in the chair. The treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $59.40 in the cash box. The sunshine convener, Mrs. H. Aldrich, reported packing 130 candy bags for Christmas as well as 12 boxes. Three gifts and 15 cards had been sent.

Work convener, Mrs. P. Jomphe, reported on dances and the recent card party which netted $13.45.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

The gaily decorated Lawrence School Gymnasium was the scene of a very delightful Valentine Dance, sponsored by the Home and School Group of the West Ward.

Arrangements for the dance were undertaken by social committee with Gordon Wilcox as convener. This committee is to be congratulated on their excellent work towards making the evening a success both financially and socially.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The monthly meeting of the Lennoxville Women's Association was held in the ladies' parlor of the Scott Hall, with a good attendance of members and visitors who were welcomed by the president, Mrs. R. W. S. Nutbrown.

Mrs. Elsie Smith conducted the worship service. Various items of business relative to the work of the society were discussed. Letters from sick and shut-ins, expressing thanks for flowers and plants, were read by Secretary, Mrs. W. Lane.

The hostesses were: Mrs. T. Majury, Mrs. A. Parsons, Mrs. E. A. Ward, Mrs. C. E. Sterling and Mrs. Elsie R. Smith.

PLANS NEW PARTY

Brisk and cordial, the wispy politician moved away from his staff of three and greeted a reporter at his Montreal north-end office, a converted dwelling. This is his headquarters in Laurier constituency he still represents in the Quebec legislature as an independent after quitting the Liberal party.

Mr. Levesque who has published a manifesto and a book, Option Quebec, setting out the "basic political direction" of the movement, said he hopes to found a new political party after Easter, with a convention possible by April 21.

Option Quebec sold 50,000 copies in three weeks. The author-politician made a typical appearance, late as usual, at a reception to autograph copies—coat-tails flying, shoulders shrugging apologies, wit flashing. Plans were made for an English edition of the book whose early sales compared with those of Les Insolescences du Frere Untel, all-time best-seller in Quebec. Les Insolescences, a devastating feature of the Quiet Revolution, went to 118,000 but took three months to reach 50,000.

Separatist groups rejoiced when he came their way, imparting to them added stature though he speaks of Quebec sovereignty, not separatism.

Answering a question, he said his sovereignty-association movement might act as a catalyst for such groups and a consensus was being sought,

Drastic reassessments

Viet Cong forces have not lost yet

By FREDERICK NOSSAL
SAIGON — (TNS) — The colossal Communist offensive

last week will inevitably lead to drastic political and military reassessments of the south-east Asia situation in Washington.

President Lyndon Johnson has called the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacks on towns and cities a military failure.

This is dangerous oversimplification.

Communist forces are still in control of territory in and around Saigon, Hue, Dalat, My Tho and other urban areas.

And although nearly 13,000 Communists have been killed as against 933 on the other side, Asian diplomats here were impressed by the sudden well-organized Communist push.

For it demonstrates that the Communist side has the ability to infiltrate and attack even the best guarded installations and bases in South Vietnam almost at will.

It also shows that despite their unparalleled losses during the past two years, Communists still seem to have the ability to recruit troops and guerrillas from the Vietnamese countryside in large numbers.

The Viet Cong I saw sprawled in the red dust of a village road near the northern base of Da Nang were not young boys. They were men of between 20 and 40.

The same was true of the Communist soldiers who infiltrated Bien Hoa and Saigon.

After losses in fierce battles, the Communists can go into the countryside to replenish their forces, using a mixture of terrorism, social pressure, propaganda and persuasion to recruit new guerrillas.

Infiltration from North Vietnam is also a major factor, which is why President Nguyen Van Thieu and General Westmoreland are against a bombing pause of any kind.

The great battle for South Vietnam is also a grim lesson for the Communists. It has taught everyone from ordinary guerrillas and North Vietnamese regulars to cadres and policymakers that it is dangerous to have too much faith in their own troops.

Washington will now have to decide its policies not only for tomorrow but for the next two years and for the 1970s.

Some US officers in Vietnam believe that the American taxpayer can meet the cost of the war at its present level almost indefinitely.

They also point out privately that the US casualties, around 200 men killed each week, is bearable for a super power of 200,000,000 and that this is the kind of sacrifice the US will have to bear if it is to retain the leadership of the western world.

US opinion, however, is divided — not only back home but also right here in Vietnam.

Some of the more thoughtful diplomats and officers serving with the US military assistance command in South Vietnam say last week has proved beyond all doubt that Washington must tone down the degree of its commitment to the Saigon government.

They argue that the present US force of about 500,000 men; 2,600 jet bombers, fighters, transports and other fixed wing aircraft; 2,500 helicopters, 540 tanks; 1,500 mortars and 1,200 cannon has grown too rapidly and is now unwieldy.

The situation in Saigon is calmer today but most shops in the downtown area remain shut.

Military flights have resumed out of Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport but US personnel are still under orders not to go into the streets without armed escorts. Snipers are active in many of Saigon's suburbs and in the Chinese quarter of Cholon.

Gen. Westmoreland, US commander, reaffirmed his belief that the attacks were a prelude to a "go-for-broke" attack on the major base at Khe Sanh.

Allied headquarters said Communist forces were in partial control of three important provincial capitals — Kontum and Ban Me Thuot in the central highlands north of Saigon and Venh Long in the rice bowl of the Mekong Delta.

The Viet Cong spread rumors in Saigon that the US was considering a deal to end the fighting. US Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and President Thieu went on the radio to deny the rumors.

Thieu, in his broadcast, announced that military and political news would be censored in all Saigon newspapers. He said martial law would continue.

The Viet Cong, he added, had been thoroughly defeated.

W. Shefford businessmen protest tax

WEST SHEFFORD — Dissatisfaction with the very considerable increase in the business tax in West Shefford was registered at a meeting of the majority of merchants and businessmen held in the West Shefford school on Monday night, and a letter protesting the increased tax from $35 a year to $70 and $105 was prepared and signed by those present.

It was pointed out in the letter that the tax was larger than any similar tax imposed in any of the neighboring municipalities whose population was many times greater than that of West Shefford. The business tax, in effect a licence, had also been charged for part of the year which had already been dealt with.

Before the incorporation of Bromont, West Shefford benefited from the steady trade with the farming community which had been displaced by the new enterprise and the business community feels that this lost revenue has not in any great degree been replaced by the newcomers in Bromont, most of whom are weekend residents only. The merchants feel strongly that the unwarranted increase in the business tax is not justified on the grounds of increased business.

By L. A. KEARNS
(Record Correspondent)

In the case of the only hotel in West Shefford this has been conspicuous. In addition to the provincial liquor tax, the hotel-keeper is assessed a business tax of $150 a year and a garbage removal tax of $100 a year, although his revenue has declined through the opening of several liquor outlets in Bromont.

The only restaurant in West Shefford is assessed $50 for its licence and $50 a year for garbage removal. All business establishments pay $25 a year tax for garbage removal.

On Tuesday night, February

6, the Bromont Council rooms were packed with more than 100 taxpayers who had come, most of them for the first time, to the council meeting. The letter protesting the tax increase was presented to Mayor Germain Desourdy and Councillors Duquette, Lagullette and Buck who were present, and was read by the temporary acting secretary, the former secretary, Conrad Charbonneau, having resigned.

It was a very lively and interesting meeting, and after some discussion the Mayor promised that the whole matter of the business tax would be considered at an early date, and that meanwhile no interest or penalty for delayed payment would be exacted.

Among other questions brought up at the meeting was the date of the election for the new council which has been holding office for the more than four years that the town of Bromont has been incorporated by a special private bill and had been given special powers.

Mayor Desourdy, asked if an election would be held in November of this year, assured those present that there would be an election in November, and that the voters' list would be prepared by September and posted.

He explained that the special status granted to the Bromont Council under the private bill which brought about its creation, permitted the absence of councillors from meetings where otherwise under the ordinary municipal practice, they would be disqualified.

The presence of so many taxpayers and electors at this meeting of the Bromont Council in such imposing numbers, even if some were activated mainly by self-interest, seemed a heartening sign of greater interest in municipal affairs.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Angina Pectoris May Be Warning

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—Can a man who has angina pectoris live to be very old? How much exercise can he take? Would being overweight add to his risk?

A—Angina pectoris is a warning that coronary insufficiency may develop. If the warning is heeded and if you carry one of the quick-acting nitrates with you at all times, you may outlive your doctor.

Moderate exercise, such as walking and swimming, is recommended but should be stopped immediately at the first sign of discomfort in the chest. Learn to gauge the amount of exercise you can take without it causing pain or fatigue. Being overweight would definitely add to the risk of more serious heart trouble.

Q—I have angina pectoris and am taking Peritrate twice a day. Does it have any bad side effects?

A—Side effects are rare but in some persons this drug causes mild headaches. It should not be taken by anyone who has glaucoma.

Q—I have had two attacks of what my doctor calls coronary vasospasm and am taking nitrates, dicumol and Librium. Will I have to take these drugs indefinitely? What is the normal prothrombin time?

A—Coronary vasospasm is another term for angina pectoris. The nitrates will prevent or relieve the spasms and can be taken indefinitely. The dicumol is an anticoagulant. Most doctors prescribe it for six months to three years, then stop it. Librium is a tranquilizer which you should not let yourself become dependent on. The normal prothrombin time is 11 to 16 seconds.

Q—About five years ago, I had my first attack of chest pain and difficulty breathing. My doctor told me to hold a nitroglycerin tablet under my tongue for these attacks. What causes the pain and will the attacks go away in time?

A—Your symptoms suggest angina pectoris. The pain is caused by a spasmodic cutting off of the oxygen supply to your heart. You feel the same type of pain in your arm when your doctor pumps up his blood pressure machine. Angina pectoris does not usually disappear spontaneously, but with proper treatment the attacks can be controlled.

Q—My mother has angina pectoris. A small white pill under her tongue will stop the attack. If I should get a similar attack would it be all right to take one of her pills before the doctor arrives?

A—No, not until your doctor can make a definite diagnosis. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

TREASURER'S REPORT

M. S. McCaw, in his report as treasurer, said that the church needed a budget of $13,000 at least. The past year had been very satisfactory and the bank loan was paid off. It was felt that the personal method of subscriptions, instead of the every man's campaign, in force for some years, had proved very successful as over $10,000 had been received in this manner.

The following donations were made: $100 to the Nesbitt Residence; $100 to the Montreal Diocesan College; $100 to the Montreal Churchman and the apportionment of $1,750 was accepted for missions.

The report for the CWY was given by the president, Miss Margaret Cockerline. She reported a very busy year, as it was during 1967 that the church societies had joined, under the name of the St. James Church Anglican Women. Due to Miss Cockerline's efforts $260 was raised through the sale of Expo 67 tickets, $1,350 had been given to the church wardens, main source of income was the monthly collection, which amounted to $1,026.

The report of the ACW, of which Mrs. John Ewing was president, showed that the apportionment of $355 had been met. In addition $90.15 had been given to diocesan funds, with $70.50 sent for care of adopted child in Hong Kong. Sale of church calendars was $41.40. Sources of income were two rummage sales, $570.56 and tea collections of $30.50.

Mrs. Harry Jones, organist, reported that choir members had made two out-of-town trips to attend concerts, one the Elgar Choir at Cowansville, the other at Granby. Carol singing around the town had been held at Christmas, which netted $47.39. Bank balance is $241.

Expenditures from the Morgan fund was $200.66, leaving a bank balance of $534.23. Among expenditures from the building fund was the purchase of a church carpet, $863.30 and installation of aluminum windows at rectory, $492.

Mrs. D. Leney, president of the Altar Guild, stated that there were 18 members, who looked after the upkeep of the altar and flowers. Mrs. Leney expressed appreciation to Mrs. Roy Cook for her work in looking after the floral arrangements on the altar.

The rector expressed thanks to the young boys of the servers group, who are most faithful in the attendance and in the performance of their duties.

The rector closed the meeting with prayer.

Mersey haunts lose the Mersey sound

By CAROL KENNEDY

LIVERPOOL, England (CP) — It was as much of a shock as finding a pin-striped stockbroker at a hippies' love-in.

There we were, a trio of eager Commonwealth reporters, combing the back streets of Liverpool in search of the Mersey beat; some authentic sleazy basement cave where we might find a sound to rock the world in tomorrow's pop charts.

Directed by a helpful Liverpool youth who recommended the Chequers as "different," we found our way to an ill-lit, cobbled lane lined with warehouses. A red lamp cast a sinister glow over the black door in the blank-faced building.

We rapped on the door. It opened a crack, speak-a-style—and our ears quivered as down the stairs and into the dockland night floated the duet, debutante tones of Julie Andrews trilling the title song from Thoroughly Modern Millie.

Things certainly ain't what they used to be in the beat clubs at Liverpool. Wall-to-wall carpets, ornamental ironwork around the bar and soft romantic lighting give the visitor the feeling he might be anywhere from Chelsea to Park Avenue—anywhere except the boisterous Lancashire port that revolutionized pop music: only six years ago.

Even the Mersey beat seems to have disappeared into the murky river that gave it its name. At the Chequers, Julie Andrews on the hi-fi was followed by the Hill-siders a close-cropped, country-western trio beating out chunky rhythm straight from Nashville, Tenn., and a haunting folk-song by Canadian Gordon Lightfoot.

WHISKY LIKE KEROSENE

The customers, nattily-dressed men in their 20s and girls in conservative mini-dresses, sipped their drinks sedately on black leather banquettes and danced with an absorbed and precise footwork on a floor of colored glass, lit from beneath. The lights over the dance-floor were switched off from time to time, just like any college hop of 20 years ago.

GUESTS OF HONOR AT THE BALL — Mayor Armand Nadeau and Mrs. Nadeau will be among the honored guests attending the Valentine Ball, sponsored by the Quebec Music Festivals Inc. on Saturday evening, at the LeBaron Motel. Proceeds of the evening will be used in a scholarship fund for young musicians of the Eastern Townships.

Skiing in Scotland

Scottish hills which formerly resounded only with skirling bagpipes, this year are echoing with the yells of skiers.

The three main Scottish skiing centres are the Cairngorm Mountains, Glencoe and Glen-shee. In the haunts of the Macphersons, Macdonalds and Fergusons, ski resorts, chair-lifts and towns have gone up like magic.

The Cairngorm area, a 40,000 acre nature reserve, probably offers the best skiing in Britain. The slopes of this range may be reached from any of the numerous towns and villages along the River Spey. (Off-season the river water gives that special flavor to many a good bottle of Scotch whisky and is home to thousands of the world's finest salmon).

The hotels run ski schools staffed by experts from Britain, Norway, Austria and Switzerland.

Biggest development is at Aviemore, where an all-the-year-round holiday centre opened in December 1966. This $7,000,000 centre has two hotels, inexpensive chalets, a heated swimming pool, ice rink, dance hall, cinema, bowling alley, bars, shops and a dry ski-slope. It had 600,000 visitors last year.

Another new hotel — 113-bed-room Coylumbidge, opened a year before the Aviemore Centre. On the road to the car park at 2,500 feet, a lodge, the White Lady Shieling, provides meals for 300 people. Skiers can take their equipment into the building.

Nearby is the lower station of the Cairngorm chair-lift. It takes seven minutes to whisk skiers up to 4,000 feet. From the top station, several runs provide a variety of standards of skiing. The most popular and straight forward takes you directly down the slopes of the White Lady and back to the Shieling. There are a number of gentle nursery slopes for beginners within a few hundred yards of the Shieling. There are several tow-ropes, including one of 2,200 feet, another of 1,720 feet.

Glencoe, beautiful and yet forbidding, was Britain's first major skiing centre. The T-bar tow on the 3,500 foot Meall a' Bhuidh was installed in 1956. A chair-lift was added five years later.

There is a wide variety of accommodation, ranging from good hotels to guest houses and farms.

There are numerous other centres. The more adventurous explore Ben Lawers, in Perthshire. Slopes on the two lesser peaks, Ben Ghlas and Meall Coraich, are among the best in Scotland.

The official ski-season runs from mid-December to May. There is no set pattern of snow-falls. Often it is possible to ski from mid-December to May. British Rail offers concessions which make skiing in Scotland an economic proposition. There is a 20 per cent reduction on return fares from any station in England, Wales, Scotland or Belfast to 13 stations in the winter sports area.

The great advantage of Scottish skiing is the low cost. Accommodation costs as little as $22 a week a week (even less in a youth hostel). Luxury rooms run to $45 per week. The Aviemore Centre's chalets, with four bunks to each comfortable room, cost only $2.65 per head per night.

SHORT AND SWEET FOR SPRING — The pretty girl look is the theme of this dress modelled in a lively fashion-plus-song-and-dance show presented at the Garment Salesmen Ontario Market in Toronto. Dress, by Junior Flair, Montreal, is in crisp cotton textured orlon acrylic, and is an example of clothes to be seen in retail stores across Canada in the coming season.

A Novel Way to Use Partial Spools of Thread

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—During many years of sewing I have accumulated many half-used spools of thread. They take up space waiting to be used for basting or small jobs. With the use of the new, wild, crazy prints I have found I can use one color on the bobbin and another on the spool. Yesterday, while making a dress of blue, green and yellow Paisley print where any of the colors could have been used, I chose blue leftover thread for the bobbin and green leftover thread for the spool on the machine. No one would ever guess which color would be right and, in the meantime, I am finally using up some of that extra thread.—MRS. R. J. H.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am a 14-year-old who enjoys painting very much but have one problem with which I need help. While my paintings are drying, dust collects on them. Is there a way to prevent this or to remove the dust?—JUDY

DEAR POLLY—Most baby boy's suits come with plastic linings so I want to tell the reader who has trouble ironing them about the way I have the best luck. I first place a thick terry cloth washcloth inside the pants between the layers of plastic. I use a steam iron, but that is not necessary, and turn it to the cotton setting and quickly press them on the outside. A good-quality spray starch also helps press them neatly and quickly without danger of melting the plastic.

The Pointer given for using measuring spoons to give medicine to a small child does sound like a good idea. Another method I have found to be successful is to use a large plastic medicine dropper. I saved several from liquid vitamins given to the children when they were babies. I measure the correct dosage into a small glass or draw it up into the dropper from a spoon. This eliminates spills and, if the medicine is distasteful, it can be placed back and to the side of the child's mouth where it is swallowed without much taste or spitting.—BONNIE

DEAR POLLY—Chiffon scarves and mantillas get very wrinkled when kept folded in a drawer. I solved this by wrapping mine around the empty roll in a waxed paper or foil box, return it to the box and then put in a drawer. The box is easy to find when in a hurry and there are no exasperating wrinkles.—LAUNA

DEAR POLLY—I have curtains that tie back but would not stay together at the center top so I sewed a regular hook and eye on them—the hook on one curtain top and the eye on the other. For heavier draperies one could use a heavy-duty hook and eye.—NITA

Ways and means of cutting costs where they won't show

If you're bound and determined to balance the budget why not begin cutting costs where they won't show... with your cleaning paraphernalia. There are a number of ways you can do it. When your cake of bath or hand soap has dwindled to the point where it's about to be replaced by a nice new plump one, don't throw the fragment out. Sliver it up on your grater and store it in a mason jar. Add boiling water and the resulting soap jelly is fine for washing dishes, lingerie, the car... anything that calls for a soft touch. A second jarful of soap jelly can be turned into a vigorous cleaner by the mere addition of a half cup of salt soda concentrated. Use this for laundry in place of soap or detergent. Use it for washing floors, the garbage pail... anything that calls for action.

You can make your own bleach, too. You've heard your grandmother speak of javelle water. Well that's bleach and here's how to make it. Mix a pound of sal soda with a quart of boiling water in a non-aluminum pan. Mix a half pound of chloride of lime (available in drugstores) with two quarts of cold water in another pan. Let the two sit for a while and then pour both in a bottle. Use it as you would a regular bought bleach.

Sal soda performs well dry as a cleaning powder, too.

Hand care for the new you

We're thinking spring, and now is the time to prepare hands for when it arrives. Wintery days, outdoor sports and dshwashing can add up to unsightly red hands.

Chapped, cut or blemished hands require careful drying, and applications of an antiseptic cream.

Every woman can have beautiful hands, whether she is a busy housewife or career girl. All it takes to have well-shaped nails and hands that are pleasing to look at is 20 minutes a week.

Few women have either the time or the money for a professional manicure so here is the how-to for home care.

The first requisite for a manicure is privacy. (Who wants an audience for a beauty treatment?) Spread out within easy reach, a clean towel, a small bowl of soapy water, a buffer, an emery board, polish remover, absorbent cotton, your manicure equipment, and this season's latest look in nail polish: delicate, frosty colors, no harsh reds or deep pinks.

Now shape your nails, starting with the left hand little finger. Aim for graceful, oval-shaped nails, and file each one from corner to corner, going from left to right, then right to left, holding your emery board at a 45 degree angle to the nail. Leave the sides of the nail to grow out. This will make your nails look longer and wear better. Once the shaping is finished, dip your left hand into the warm, soapy water to allow the cuticles to soften before pushing them gently back with a cotton-tipped orange stick, or with a towel.

Now clean under your nails and repeat the whole procedure on your right hand.

The most intriguing part of a manicure is the application of the polish, and for this you need a steady hand.

Polish lasts longer and chips less if you use a base coat under it. Base coat is colorless but it does protect your nails, and nail polish adheres to it more firmly than to nail alone.

Start applying on the little finger of the left hand. This minimizes the risk of smudging your work. Use long, sweeping strokes and allow to dry before applying the nail polish.

Apply the polish lightly and quickly, using sweeping strokes from the base of the nail to its tip. Divide each nail into three parts. It will look better if applied to the sides of the nail first, then the middle.

A clear top coat brushed over the colored nail polish, acts as a sealer and protects

Cook fresh asparagus quickly

Modern methods of transportation and food processing have done marvels in extending the season of fresh fruits and vegetables.

But nothing will ever take the place of our own Canadian asparagus, grown right here and cooked as fast as it's possible to get it from the fields to our kitchens.

Some people can make a meal of fresh-cut, fresh cooked asparagus — and that's not really difficult to understand!

But even better, to my mind, is asparagus served with a favorite meat — or folded into an omelet — or covered with creamy cheese sauce and served with crisp bacon.

Though frozen asparagus does n't quite compare with fresh-cut, fresh cooked asparagus, if you have access to really fresh asparagus it will be well worth while to freeze some for later use.

Select only young, tender spears. Process as quickly as possible after gathering.

Cut stalks to an even 6-inch length and wash thoroughly in good, cold water. Sort for size.

If the asparagus was gathered after a driving rain, it may be necessary to wash in warm water to assure removing all sand. Then rinse quickly in cold water.

Blanch by placing in a basket and immersing no more than 1 pound at a time in 4 quarts boiling water. Blanch stalks up to 3/4 inch for 3 minutes, larger stalks for 4 minutes. Cool quickly in ice water and pack neatly in rectangular cartons.

Close cartons, overwrap and seal overwrap. Label. Freeze immediately at zero degrees or colder. May be stored as long as 8 to 12 months, but quality gradually deteriorates during storage.

Social service worker visits Charities group DANVILLE — A general assembly of Federated Charities was held in the Church Hall of St. Augustine's Church on Jan. 29 with representatives from the majority of the participating groups present, as well as Miss L. Lavergne, Asbestos, of the Family and Social Service office.

Minutes of the last meeting, in both French and English, were approved and copies given to those attending.

Paul Pomerleau, treasurer, presented the financial statement for the past year, showing 69 cases received assistance seven cases having the funds administered; 15 cases for emergency food, oil, clothing or drugs. Clothing was given to some 35 cases; 56 Christmas baskets distributed, included some 200 gifts for children, as well as four other cases where only gifts were given.

During the year a total of $1309.62 was administered to needy families as well as $1,376.03 for other cases, including $765.78 for Christmas baskets and gifts. All cases have been given a number for confidential reasons.

As most of the funds to date have been raised either by general canvass or by donations from groups, companies and individuals, it was proposed that the Town of Danville and the Town of Shipton be approached to supplement the funds.

Mrs. N. Dufour, in charge of clothing, said that they had made quilt tops but required lining material. Also, it was pointed out, that buttons removed from garments not usable, had been placed on cards and were on sale at the Nearly New Shop the proceeds to be used for wool to knit mittens.

Several case histories were reviewed and one more case was accepted for administration of funds. Problems involved in some cases were discussed and suggestions made by Miss Lavergne as to how best to meet these problems.

The next meeting will be held on March 18 at 8 p.m.

The lady members of the group served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Amateur show at Sawyerville decided success

SAWYERVILLE — The amateur program put on in the Sawyerville High School on Feb. 3, in connection with Carnival Week was a decided success. A large crowd was present to enjoy the singing, musical numbers, skits, magic tricks and a short play. All numbers were well received and showed a great deal of talent in this area.

During intermission popcorn was sold by Grade Eleven students.

A ham, which had been donated and sold by Chinese auction to the benefit of the Sportsmen Association, was won by one of the Duchesses, Miss Judy Grapes.

Thanks were expressed to Lionel Hurd and Gilles Fontaine, who were in charge of the program and to Zepherin Rousseau, master of ceremonies, who introduced the Duchesses, the Misses Ginette Gendron, Judy Grapes and Lise Dion.

Le Bonhomme was present also, as were some clowns, to make fun for all.

Mayor L. R. French welcomed everyone in English and French, at the beginning of the program.

chief of police, said he was driving with his family to Lake Aylmer when he noticed an accident.

The accident occurred outside of Asbestos, on the Asbestos to Richmond highway. He said when he got out of his car to help Charland, the accused swore at him and he smelled of liquor.

Two large beer bottles, one empty and one nearly empty were found in the car.

Denis Rousseau, of the Richmond QPP testified there were three vehicles involved in the accident.

He said the accused swore at him and told him the other two persons involved were terrible drivers.

Testifying for the defense, his sister, Mrs. E. Boisvert, said she went to the scene of the accident to try to help her brother.

She testified her brother was not drunk and that he never drinks while driving his car.

She said he was extremely nervous but that he did not refuse an alcohol test.

She said he became annoyed when the police wanted to take him to the hospital.

The accused sustained a cut to the left side of his head in the accident.

Other witnesses testifying for the defense said they did not think he was drunk but that he was extremely nervous.

Also produced was a doctor's report which stated the accused's tests showed that he was 8 points under the figure which represents intoxication.

Defense lawyer Laurent Dube told Judge Turmel there was no agreement in the testimony given by witnesses for the Crown.

He said no one saw the accident and the accused was not impaired.

Judge Turmel agreed and threw the case out.

Country notebook

By WALKER RILEY
Macdonald College

The Computer has done it again. Information on dairy cow performance in the province of Quebec that never before has been available, is now in hand. Summaries of characteristics of the 143 herds with a full year of testing on the Dairy Herd Analysis Service were completed during the past week.

In three years of writing "Country Notebook," I have not had information any more valuable to pass on. The Average Cow in these 143 herds weighs 1,139 lbs. She is in milk 81 per cent of the time, produces 10,008 lbs. milk worth $491, containing 370 lbs. fat, 323 lbs. protein, and 489 lbs. lactose. After deducting feed costs, this milk was worth $294. Per hundredweight, feed costs were $1.99, and it took .91 hours work to produce it. She was fed 3,060 lbs. meal during the year, 3 tons of succulent feeds, and 2.3 tons hay. The average herd contained 33 cows and the average worker turned out 238,000 lbs. of milk.

But more valuable than the averages are the ranges of these figures. For this analysis the 143 herds were divided into five 20 per cent groups, while looking at each trait separately. Calculated this way, production per cow ranged from 7, 249 lbs. to 12,442 lbs. and value of the milk from $357 to $615. Feed costs varied from $1.64 per cwt. to $2.45, and labour per cwt. from .51 hours to 1.62 hours. Succulents fed ranged from a third of a ton in the lowest group to 5.7 tons; hay from 1.35 tons to 3.32 tons, and meal from 1,860 lbs. to 4,370 lbs. The smallest herds had 20 cows and the largest 52 cows. Weight of the cows ranged from 9,480 lbs. to 1,277 lbs. in the 20 per cent group of heaviest cows.

But what are the characteristics of the most profitable herds? Are they the big herds or the little ones? The ones where meal was fed heavy or the ones which skimmed on feed? Large cows or small? Is it better to feed silage or hay?

On the 21 pages of figures before me, some facts stand out loud and clear. Very definitely, success is associated with high production per cow, whether measured in pounds milk, pounds protein, or pounds fat. Comparing the top group of herds averaging 12,442 lbs. with the bottom 20 per cent which averaged 7,249 lbs., the top herds turned out $600 worth of milk per cow, compared with $377. After deducting feed costs, this milk was worth $363 compared with $220. Feed costs per cwt. for the top producers were $1.09; for the bottom $2.20. It took .71 hours for the one group to produce 100 lbs. milk, the other took 1.32 hours. In the high producing herds, each worker turned out 281,000 lbs. milk; in the bottom group, 170,000 lbs.

In the top producing herds, 3,910 lbs. meal, 3.28 tons succulents, and 2.34 tons hay were fed on the average. In the bottom group, 2,150 lbs. meal, 2.33 tons silage, and 2.07 tons hay.

Looking at it from the standpoint of lowest feed costs, the 20 per cent group which had feed costs of $1.64 per cwt. milk, received 2,500 lbs. meal per year compared with 3,210 lbs. for the herds in which the feed cost $2.45. Rate of roughage feed was exactly the same for both groups, and it did not appear to make any difference if it were fed as hay or silage. But obviously, the quality of these feed made a difference; the higher the percentage of energy in the ration from either roughage, the cheaper the feed costs per cwt. milk.

But do you have to be big to be good? The answer is No. Average production in the twenty-cow herds was 9,590 lbs. The large, 52-cow herds were only slightly ahead with 10,653 lbs. Feed costs were 8 cents per cwt. milk less in the small herds. But they lost out on labour. In small herds it took 1.37 hours per cwt., while they had it down to .73 hours in the big herds.

The message in these first-year DHAS summaries is quite clear. Get Good Before You Get Big. It is easy to see you are better off with 20 good, heavy producing, well-fed cows than with 33 less productive ones, poorly fed.

We are waiting for the comparison between Holsteins, Ayrshires, and the Jerseys to come from the computer later this week. On the day I publish those figures, I will get ready to run.

Five dates to mark on your calendar. The Salon of Agriculture is Thursday, February 8, to Sunday, February 11. Corn Day, at the Ormstown Regional School, organized by the Protestant Land Settlement Board is Thursday, February 8. The February meeting of the Lachute section of the Quebec Farmers Association is February 14, with "Crop Insurance, What it can do for you, and how to use it," as the topic. College Royal is Friday, February 24 and Saturday afternoon February 25 of this year.

Do-it-yourself

Marble is durable, but it needs care

By MR. FIX

Marble is hard and durable but not so impervious to staining as you might think. And don't let its hardness fool you. It is a porous material and stains that are not cleaned immediately will penetrate beyond the surface.

Marble window sills and table tops need care to maintain their beauty. The trick is to keep them clean. Wipe up immediately materials that will stain.

When stains do occur, it is necessary to remove the stain and then restore the polish to the marble.

Determine the type of stain and learn the cleaning materials that will remove it.

Greasy stains are those caused by any greasy or oily substance—butter, oil, milk, cream, oily foods, etc. Wash quickly with ammonia and water will generally remove such stains. If the stain has been there awhile it may remain even after this cleaning.

To remove, apply a paste solvent. Use powdered whiting which you can get at most paint and hardware stores. Dry-cleaning fluid, gasoline and acetone are among the solvents that will work. Use all of them with caution. Make a paste, apply to the spot and leave for several hours. You may have to add fluid occasionally since this works only when moist.

Stains from tea, coffee, tobacco and the dyes in paper and fabric are called organic stains. If caught quickly rinsing with water may be enough. If the organic stain persists, apply a paste of whiting and hydrogen peroxide and add a few drops of ammonia.

Paste solutions should be removed when completely dry. The residue should be washed away with plenty of hot water. Polish by rubbing briskly with a dry rag.

Sometimes, if a stain is left too long, it will begin to eat into the marble. Some substances will etch the surface immediately. These include acid-containing food and drink such as fruit juices, wine, vinegar and salad dressings.

Wash with clear water and bleach out the rest of the stain with one of the pastes described above. With the stain gone there still will be the problem of restoring the polish to the marble.

Most hardware stores and dealers who handle marble carry a polishing compound especially made for marble.

Keep marble free of stains.

Your Garden Headquarters

Yellow adds contrast to the garden colors

By JOHN BRADSHAW

During the past few years there has been an increase in the use of white flowers by the home gardener. Why this has happened is hard to understand.

A quantity of white blooms actually detracts from the beauty of the garden, rather than adding to it as most people hope. A few clumps of white flowers can be effectively used for contrast and to provide cut blooms, but their use should be restricted.

The liberal use of yellow blooms provides the garden with a great deal of its beauty. Fortunately for us, a large group of annuals, perennials, biennials and flowering shrubs and trees have yellow - colored blooms. There's even a spreading type of evergreen with distinctively yellow colored needles.

Much of the yellow color needed in the garden comes from the tall, intermediate and dwarf varieties of marigolds, which together with zinnias are the most easily grown from seed of all annuals.

Until the introduction of the Climax strain of marigolds most of the tall growing kinds were late in coming to bloom and the back of the border suffered in July and on into early August. The Climax group is not only earlier, but is the best of the tall - growing, giant - flowered marigolds.

Correctly grown the almost globular blooms measure up to five inches in diameter and three inches deep. While of giant size, the fully double flowers have unusual grace and charm. The satiny petals are slightly ruffled and frilled and have a faint honey scent.

Sturdy plants grow two to two and a half feet tall and carry an abundance of flowers. All of them are large and carried on long, strong cutting stems from late July until frost.

In the Climax group there are three excellent yellow-colored varieties: Primrose, a lovely soft primrose shade; Golden Climax, a cheerful golden yellow; and Yellow Climax, a delightful clear bright yellow.

Last year, David Burpee introduced a fabulous dwarf marigold called Yellow Nugget. The Nugget is the first dwarf species hybrid marigold. They're a cross between a tall-growing American marigold (formerly called African) and a dwarf French marigold, maintaining many of the good points of both, and creating an entirely new kind of marigold.

From the French they get dwarfness (12 inches tall), and from the American they get larger flowers (two inches across). As a species hybrid they are sterile, a tremendous advantage to gardeners because it makes the plants ever-blooming.

Yellow Nugget is biologically incapable of making seeds. When a plant produces blooms which fail to go to seed, it tries again and again. Blooms begin five weeks from seeding and continue until a killing frost occurs in late September or early October.

Yellow Nugget has double, carnation-like flowers so bright and cheerful they add a gay touch wherever they're grown and they're virtually free of insects and diseases.

Marigolds originally come from New Mexico and Arizona and south to Argentina. Our dwarf marigolds have all come from an original wild species found growing in Mexico and called Tagetes. This is an exceptionally fine marigold for the front of the border, foundation planting or in pockets in the rock garden.

In seed catalogues you'll find it either listed as Tagetes or as Dwarf Signet Marigold. Free flowering dwarf plants grow 10 inches tall and have a fine lacy foliage. Each plant produces of small golden-orange blooms at the one time.

Jacques Monette and Bill Dupre team up to dump Drummondville 5-2, fifth straight win

Jacques Monette, Sherbrooke's veteran goalie, came through with another big job last evening at the Sports Palace and the Sherbrooke Beavers pulled out with a 5-2 victory over the Drummondville Eagles before 2,478 fans.

Monette looked after the blocking duties and did another outstanding performance in holding the fast-stepping Eagles to just two goals. He was terrific, especially in the final minutes of the second period with Gaston Bouchard in the sinbin. The Eagles did everything but get the puck in the net. He robbed them of three goals during the last two minutes of the game.

While Monette was attending to his duties Bill Dupre, the Beavers' shifty little centre, came through with a two goal performance. Gaston Bouchard

Rene Pepin and Gilles Cartier potted the others. For the Eagles, Andre Lagueur and Jean-Claude Garneau picked up the markers.

The line of Dupre, Pepin and Cartier accounted for four goals to pace the attack. Captain Rene Pepin picked up three assists besides scoring a goal. The tilt got off to a slow pace with Maltais and Eastman getting thumbed off just after the start. A minute later they were joined by Despard and Jean Therrien. Nothing happened during their absence although Lee Hardy came close.

Pierre Lepage, who was having a hard time, went off and the Eagles tossed four forwards but Gordie Haworth was the only one to test Monette. Monette got hit on the wrist but he returned after a few minutes. Gaston Bouchard potted the first marker when he lifted a hopper over Cyr's pad to dent the twine.

Bouchard and Begin went off and a minute later Bob Eastman got the nod for slashing. Bill Dupre was at the right spot as he tipped in a double shot from Georges Roy and Rene Pepin from the edge of the crease.

Andre Lagueur finished off a nice passing play with Bob Eastman and Jean Therrien. It came just before the end of the frame. The middle session opened with a real bang and the fans were treated to a little extra with two short bouts on the card.

Andre Despard tangled with Jean Therrien and after the contestants were separated Despard squared off against Bob Eastman. All four drew majors with Despard getting an automatic 10 minute misconduct. It cooled things off and the players settled down a little.

Lionel Robidas dumped a long pass to Bill Dupre who got behind the defense, looked up and saw Pepin standing uncovered and hoisted a perfect pass and the veteran captain made no mistake. Begin went off a few seconds later but the Beavers couldn't get organized with the two-man advantage.

Garneau potted the Eagles' second and final marker when he snared a passout from Hurtubise behind his own net. Monette had no chance on the shot. Bouchard got thumbed off and it was at this stage that Monette came through with his big saves. He did everything to block the Eagles and just plainly robbed them. When he got caught out of position the Eagles missed the open net.

The final period opened and Garneau went off for cross-checking. A few seconds later playing-coach Jean Therrien got a misconduct for voicing his opinion after running into the referee. Cartier deflected a shot from Rene Pepin which Cyr had no chance on.

Bill Dupre potted his second goal when he rounded the defense and cutting across in front fired for the short corner catching Cyr out of position. It was the final tally of the game and came with only two and a half minutes left. Pierre Lepage got in alone but Cyr made the save.

Urpo Ylonen standout, Finns win 5-2

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — The players of Canada's national hockey team may have trouble spelling his name, a Finn named Y-L-O-N-E-N, but they'll not forget him for a long, long time.

It was Urpo Ylonen's night as he led Finland to a 5-2 victory over Canada in the Olympic championship tournament. The 24-year-old goalie and his teammates pulled off the biggest upset in international hockey since 1954 when Russia won the world title on its first try, beating Toronto East York 7-2.

The Canadian defeat was all the more shocking because it was the first time a Canadian team had ever lost to Finland in Olympic and world competition. The over-confident Canadians found themselves on the losing end 2-0 with almost 13 minutes gone in the first period, and then panic set in as Ylonen got hotter and hotter as the game progressed.

DISTRACTING MASK

Wearing an orange face mask, Ylonen took everything the Canadians threw at him—and it was plenty.

"The harder we tried, the worse we got," said Canadian coach Jackie McLeod.

It was an almost unbelievable reversal of form for the Finns. Only two nights earlier, they looked like rinky-dinks when the Russians clobbered them 8-0, and Ylonen let in all the goals.

The loss for Canada in the eight-country tournament came at the hands of a team that had to qualify to get into the top group.

And with it virtually went Canada's chances for a gold medal after four years of experimentation and hard work involving national teams.

The Canadians had to work hard to win their opener Tuesday against West Germany 6-1. Today, the Nationals play East Germany.

RUSKIES RAMPAGE

The champion Russians, who are training harder than ever, beat the East Germans 10-0 in the Olympics four years ago and here they have done it again 9-0.

Russia and Czechoslovakia, 5-1 winner over West Germany in Thursday's only other championship contest, are tied for first place. The Russians and Czechs have two wins and four points each. Sweden, Canada and Finland are in a three-way tie for third place, each with a win and two points. The Swedes, of course, have a game in hand. They beat the United States 4-3 Wednesday night.

Today's schedule (times EST):

7 a.m.—Sweden vs. West Germany

10:30 a.m.—Russia vs. U.S.A.

3 p.m.—Canada vs. East Germany

The Czechs now loom as the team the Russians must beat to retain the title they won at Innsbruck, Austria, in 1964. The two countries meet at 3 p.m. EST next Thursday, Feb. 15.

Canada and Russia clash in the final game of the tournament at 2:30 p.m. EST Saturday, Feb. 17.

"My team was prepared," said Gustav Bubnik, the Czech born coach of the Finnish squad. Bubnik learned his hockey Canadian-style, when Czech teams were coached by Canadians, mainly in the early post-war years.

SKIING

in the Townships

By Charles Catchpugh

When ski centers start planning "end of season" events, you can be certain we've passed the halfway mark. At North Hatley, a gala event is scheduled for March 2 and 3, when a two-day carnival is to be held. The center's Christmas Mini Camp members, their Go-Go School trainees, the area instructors, ticket holders and North Hatley's Race Team will all participate, and according to Ray Fortier it will be a party really worth attending.

THIS WEEKEND

One of the East's most challenging events will take place Glen Ellen, Waitsfield, Vermont this Saturday, when competitors shall be able to pile up their FIS points. Sunday the area hosts the New England Inter-scholastic Ski Conference Giant Slalom, sponsored by Brown University.

SKIING RECORD

At Jackson Hole in Wyoming, five Jackson Hole skiers are claiming the world's marathon ski record today after having skied a total of 103,375 vertical feet in a single day.

Four Jackson Hole ski instructors and the Wyoming resort's 41-year-old mountain manager left for the top of Rendezvous Peak at 8 a.m., 4,135 vertical feet above the valley floor, and completed a total of 25 trips before 4 p.m.

WHAT'S LACKING?

Since writing my column this winter, I have been confronted several times with suggestions that I mention ski centres should have special evening activities over weekends for the young people skiing their resorts. Some ET areas have nearby social and sporting activities, but none of the areas actively organize and sponsor young people's entertainment.

I'm offering this idea as a means to keeping more young people skiing our region, and at the same time I'm catering to the requests for a plea on the part of those boys and girls who have been talking to me.

ADAMS MEMORIAL

The Mt. Orford Ski Club will again play host for the annual Adams Memorial Ski Races to be run February 24 and 25. Considered one of the top four events held in Eastern Canada each winter, the races will consist of a slalom off the famous 45, and either a downhill or giant slalom run on Mt. Orford's Three Creeks trail.

LOCK 'EM FRIENDS

Just a word of warning to skiers who must leave their skis on cars. The light-fingered ski snatchers start their work about this time each year. One way to make sure thieves don't nab your skis, bindings and poles, is to lock your ski racks, and if there isn't a locking device on your carrier, take your equipment indoors with you when you expect to leave your belongings outside for any extended length of time.
