Plane cartwheeled, inquest told

Fear, sorrow dominate Yellowknife inquest

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Tales of fear and sorrow are dominating a coroner's inquest called after one of the most controversial plane crashes in Arctic history.

An off-course plane piloted by Marten Hartwell cart-wheeled into a wooded slope Nov. 8, beginning an ordeal of death and suffering being revealed in a packed banquet room that has been turned into a courtroom for the inquest.

The inquest, attempting to find the reasons for the three deaths resulting from the crash, was told Thursday David Kootok, the 14-year-old Eskimo boy who survived the initial impact along with Mr. Hartwell, died of starvation after 23 days.

After the crash, David, who had never seen a forest before, wrote a letter to his parents.

"I will see you again in Spence Bay or in Heaven," he wrote. "I try to pray."

The boy, credited by the crippled pilot with saving his life by acting as his "legs," died with only lichens, spruce needles, leaves, part of a walnut, bark, wood and some artificial fibres in his stomach.

Their emergency rations had given out three days previously and both were almost too weak or sick to move.

ANKLES BROKEN

A statement read earlier at the inquest by an RCMP inspector who interviewed Mr. Hartwell said the pilot, suffering two broken ankles and a fractured kneecap, realized that the only way he could survive was by eating human flesh.

The inquest was told Thursday that one of the passengers, nurse Judith Hill, died in the crash from multiple skull fractures.

Miss Hill, 27, emigrated to Canada from Kingsbridge, England, two years ago and had been looking after David Kootok and the other passenger, Neeme Nulliyok. They were being taken to hospital in Yellowknife from Cambridge Bay, a distance of 500 miles.

A pathologist's report said Mrs. Nulliyok put on the plane in premature labor, likely died of a spinal fracture, five hours after the crash.

The boy, diagnosed as suffering from appendicitis, was put on the emergency flight, but the pathologist's report said an autopsy showed no trace of appendicitis. There was a "penetrating ulcer" in the boy's stomach which could have been mistaken for appendicitis.

Fourteen days after the crash, Mr. Hartwell, who changed his name from Leopold Johannes Herrmann after he emigrated to Canada from Germany, wrote a letter in German to his only son, Peer Herrmann. A translation of the letter was read at the inquest.

Mr. Hartwell was rescued Dec. 9 after a plane picked up the transmission from his portable rescue beacon. He crashed 180 miles off course.

Mr. Hartwell has not appeared at the inquest although he held a news conference in Edmonton Wednesday night.

His lawyer, J. C. Cavanagh, said attendance at the hearing would be too much of a strain for his client.

Crown Counsel William Trainor of the federal justice department said the pilot cannot be compelled to come despite a subpoena, since he is in Alberta and outside the jurisdiction of a Territorial inquest.

The jury passed on a list of questions for the pilot and the answers were entered in evidence by RCMP Inspector Stanley Venner, who spoke to Mr. Hartwell by telephone.

Mr. Hartwell was quoted as saying his trip from Cambridge Bay destined for Yellowknife was his first night flight over the Arctic barrens.

WANTED REPAIRS
The pilot, who was also quoted as saying he had asked his employer, Gateway Aviation Ltd. of Edmonton to fix some "unserviceable" navigational equipment in his plane, but added that this had not been done.

The inspector quoted Mr. Hartwell as saying the artificial-horizon indicator on the pilot's side of the plane was broken, although the one on the co-pilot's side functioned properly.

In addition, Mr. Hartwell was not satisfied with one of his radios on which reception was occasionally garbled.

Mr. Hartwell had been attempting to use the radio beacon at Contwoyto Lake, 250 miles south of Cambridge Bay, to help judge his position, but reception of this beacon faded out during his night-time flight.

John Brindle of Edmonton, regional superintendent of air regulations with the transport department, testified regulations cannot be waived even for a mercy flight.

He added, however, "... But an emergency is an emergency."

In legal terms, he said, department regulations require that pilots operating at night on Visual Flight Rules (VFR) within the area of "compass unreliability" must have a "gyroscopic direction indicator and a means of establishing direction not dependent on a magnetic course."

Mr. Hartwell was licensed only for VFR flying, in which the pilot must keep the ground in sight.

HAD INDICATOR

A department investigation determined the pilot had a gyroscopic direction indicator in his plane the night he crashed, said Mr. Brindle.

Regulations do not define what would be approved as "a means of establishing direction not dependent on a magnetic course," he said.

He did not believe, however, that the automatic direction finder would qualify since it would tell a pilot in which direction to travel, but not what course to take.

Meanwhile, in Toronto, the lawyer who quit the inquest earlier this week said Thursday he did not want to give the proceedings "an air of approval" by continuing.

James Karswick, retained by the Eskimo Brotherhood to represent the families of the two eskimo victims of the crash, said he decided to "call a spade a spade" and quit.

QUESTIONS RELAYED

Lawyers representing families of the victims have had their questions relayed to witnesses at the inquest by a senior justice department official.

The Eskimos "have no lawyer present in the courtroom and no one on the jury to represent them," said Mr. Karswick.

Inuit Tapirisat (Eskimo Brotherhood) said in Ottawa Thursday it plans to make representations to Justice Minister Otto Lang after the inquest.

"By being refused our right to participate, Inuit Tapirisat feels that the Inuit people are denied an opportunity to direct questions at the witnesses which might help reveal the truth of the events leading to and following the disaster." The Brotherhood said in a news release.

The selection of an all-white jury, although natives form the majority of the Northwest Territories, "must be protested as a complete lack of sensitivity to native participation on the part of presiding officials," the Brotherhood said.

FUN ON ICE — Stanstead College recently organized a masquerade on ice in line with their centennial celebrations. Some of the winners in the six- to eight-year age group are:

Theft attempt leads to shoot-out

PIGEON HILL, (JD) — They weren't potting clay ones here yesterday as Gary Budge and Irene Dion, two detectives from the Cowansville detachment of the Quebec Police Force, attempted to apprehend three bank robbers who had failed in an attempt on the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Bedford.

The chase erupted following a call that two men had forced their way into the bank at approximately 9:35 Thursday morning.

Bedford Police Chief Georges Perron noticed a suspicious car and began to investigate. The driver of the get-away car fired at Mr. Perron's car.

Mr. Perron suffered superficial wounds from flying glass. However, his aim held true as he wounded one of his would-be assailants in the thigh as they fled the bank.

The robbers had left Bedford when Budge and Dion met their car near a glade approximately 10 miles south of Bedford.

The policemen were in an unmarked car when Budge opened fire with his sidearm. The robbers returned with a burst from a sub-machine gun before their car careered into a ditch. They then fled into adjoining woods.

Members of the Cowansville detachment, assisted by other PPF squads, formed a cordon and narrowed the suspects' avenues of escape.

The shooting really began when the well armed robbers with three sub-machine guns, three 357 magnum pistols and one shotgun tried to shoot their way out. One of the robbers was wounded in the skull, another in the abdomen. A third is being detained in Cowansville for questioning by members of the armed robbery squad.

The wounded men are under close guard in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Montreal.

One policeman with 17 years seniority said he had never seen as many shots fired during his term of duty. Police sources said the robbers, as well as being well-armed, had an ample supply of food and bullet-proof vests when they were picked up.

It is alleged one of the suspects had rented a cottage near here recently.

Sources revealed there was no money taken from the bank and indicated the trio, as yet unidentified, were from Montreal.

A spokesman presumed all three are well known to the police although none of them carried any identification.

Poverty banished, Commons told

OTTAWA (CP) — On the basis of social improvements during the last two years, the federal government has "effectively banished poverty for persons over 65 years of age," Health Minister Marc Lalonde told the Commons Thursday.

The house was debating legislation to raise the basic old-age pension rate to $100 monthly from $82.88.

The April 1 increase will cost the government $300 million more than the $2.6 billion spent last year to finance the old-age pension plan.

Mr. Lalonde called the increase the largest in the history of the plan and said the government now must focus attention on other segments of society affected by poverty.

He was accused of overstatement by both Conservative and New Democratic spokesmen.

Welfare critics Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) and Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) both welcomed the pension increase but said it should have been higher.

STILL TOO LOW

Mr. Macquarrie said the basic rate, even with the increase, will still be $7 below the 1963 pension level in terms of purchasing power. However, he would support the increase as the best concession that could be hoped for from the Liberal government "as long as it clings to power."

Mr. Knowles said the NDP could claim full credit for the increase.

Had the Liberals not been reduced to a minority by the Oct. 30 election, pensioners would have been limited to the automatic increase made each year to offset the cost of inflation, he said.

Under the inflation formula, the pension was scheduled to be raised in March to $86.61. Because of this, Mr. Knowles said, the government is raising the pension only $13.39, not $17.12 as claimed by Mr. Lalonde.

Henri Latulippe (SC—Compton) expressed regret that the pension eligibility age, now 65, had not been lowered.

By lowering it to 60, he said, the government could have taken a significant step to help those in need and, at the same time, eased the pressing problem of unemployment in the country.

Appeal wins acquittal

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Vallieres was acquitted Thursday in Quebec Court of Appeal on a manslaughter charge in the death of a woman in a bomb explosion at a Montreal shoe factory.

A home-made bomb killed Therese Morin, a receptionist at the H. B. La Grenade shoe factory, in May, 1966.

The court ruled that circumstantial evidence offered by the Crown at Vallieres' trial did not warrant the guilty verdict.

The trial judge was also found at fault for allowing illegal evidence to be introduced and for directing the jury in favor of the Crown.

Mr. Justice Lucien Tremblay, Mr. Justice Jules Deschenes and Mr. Justice Jean Turgeon favored the acquittal. Mr. Justice George Montgomery was in favor of a new trial, while Mr. Justice G. R. W. Owen said the appeal should be dismissed.

NEW TRIAL AWARDED

Vallieres, 34-year-old Quebec nationalist writer, was found guilty of murder in April, 1968. He appealed and was granted a new trial by the Quebec Court of Appeal.

The second trial was on a manslaughter charge. Vallieres was found guilty and sentenced to 30 months in prison.

Razor-thin win may mean another election

DUBLIN (CP) — An unlikely coalition of right wingers and socialists has been elected in Ireland, but its razor-thin victory brought speculation today that another general election might soon be in the offing.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch, conceding the defeat of his Fianna Fail party after 16 years in power, although final results were still incomplete, expressed "apprehension" that mild-mannered Liam Cosgrave as prime minister could not cope with the problem of Northern Ireland as well as himself "because he does not have a united party behind him."

Cosgrave, leading Fine Gael which recently hammered together the coalition with the Labor party, remained confident however, saying "a majority is a majority and as long as it stays in line it doesn't matter if it is a big one or a small one."

Lynch, appearing weary and obviously disappointed as he went before television cameras in the wee hours today, said: "It now seems obvious the coalition will form the next government."

TAX CUTS OFFERED

Although only formed a few days after Lynch called an election three weeks ago, the coalition mounted its surprisingly effective campaign that succeeded in diverting voters attention from the issue of national security with its promise of a "new deal" offering greater pension and welfare benefits and tax cuts.

When vote-counting was suspended until later today Fianna Fail had elected 64 candidates while the coalition had 69, 51 by Fine Gael and 18 by labor—and was solidly leading in a majority of the remaining constituencies.

Two independents were also re-elected—Joseph Sheridan who in the past voted with Fianna Fail, and arch-republican Neil Blaney who was voted out of Fianna Fail when he criticized as too soft the government's attitude towards the North.

In the last general election in 1969

Lynch's party won 75 seats in the 144 seat Dail against 50 for Fine Gael, 18 Labor and one independent. Early today he accepted "the fact we are not likely to get more than 70 seats"—others suggested the total would be 69.

Pressed on whether there might not still be some slim hope, he said: "It looks like we're beaten—there's no use playing politics at this hour of the morning."

Throughout the campaign, he insisted that the coalition could not stick together under the pressure of the Ulster situation. Inevitably, he warned, the inbuilt ideological differences between Fine Gael's policies—close to those of Fianna Fail—and the softer view of the Labor party would split the coalition.

Eleven hostages released

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — The 11 persons held hostage for two days by members of the American Indian Movement (A.I.M.) were freed Thursday night after the militant Indians negotiated for more than two hours with South Dakota's two senators.

The freed hostages said they would stay in Wounded Knee because it is their home. Senators George McGovern and James Abourezk told a news conference. McGovern and Abourezk said they would continue to negotiate with A.I.M. leaders, who had asked to talk to the senators about Indian civil rights and treaties.

"They are going to construct a tepee in a field where the negotiations will be continued tonight," said McGovern.

"We went down to Wounded Knee to the Clive Guildersleeve home and talked to all 11 hostages," Abourezk said. "Although they are free to go, they don't want to leave because they consider Wounded Knee their home."

Guildersleeve and his wife Agnes, the operators of the trading post, were among the hostages.

"All 11 indicated they are free," said McGovern. "We offered to take them with us, but under the circumstances they preferred to stay there."

McGovern and Abourezk said the hostages had been released but were being escorted about the village by Indians. McGovern said some weapons were seen, "but they were not much in evidence."

The Indians have said they want an immediate Senate investigation of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and department of interior "for their handling of the Oglala Sioux Nation." They also asked for an investigation of what they said were violations of 371 Indian treaties.

Abolish exams council says

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial high school leaving exams should be abolished by June, 1974, and replaced by more student evaluation by individual schools, Quebec's superior council of education recommended Thursday.

In a 29-page report, the council said the exams fail to measure skill or progress in problem analysis, originality or creativity.

Provincial final exams must be passed in several academic subjects before a Quebec student is granted a high school leaving certificate. Certificates are granted in Quebec after grade 11.

Student evaluation "had the best chance to be fair" when done at the local board level, said the council, a body of leading education experts advising the minister of education.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB
Symptoms Are Varied

'Bursitis' Was Heart Attack

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lam.—I am writing in the hope that others may profit from my recent experience. My husband developed pain in his right shoulder, right upper arm, and right side of his chest bursitis. Over the next three days the pain became excruciating and finally was correctly diagnosed as a heart attack. I had always imagined a heart attack as a sudden dramatic collapse. I do not recall ever having read that it could come on gradually and on the right side. We generally think of the heart as being more on the left.

It may be helpful if you would comment on the various possible symptoms and also repeat that it is urgent to get to a physician, preferably a hospital, when the possibility of a heart attack exists. From talking with people since this happened, it seems that men particularly sometimes refuse to recognize the seriousness of the situation, continuing to suffer "heroically" while heart damage progresses.

Dear Reader — You've touched on a very important point. The symptoms of a heart attack are so varied that it is difficult even for our best heart specialists to make an early diagnosis. This is why laboratory aids such as an electrocardiogram and certain blood tests are often needed. Although we speak of a heart attack causing pain, that, too, is not really a good description. Sometimes it can be a discomfort or squeezing or aching feeling. It often causes a sensation of pressure or constriction immediately beneath the breast bone in the center of the chest. It can, however, radiate to either shoulder or into either arm. Pain or dull discomfort in the shoulder or arm caused by heart disease can occur without any chest pain at all.

Classically, the pain radiates down the outer aspect of the left arm into the ring and little fingers, although the discomfort need not extend that far. Pain or discomfort may also radiate into the jaw or into the pit of the stomach. Lots of deaths said to have been caused by "indigestion" really were caused by heart attacks. The pain or discomfort may be very mild, resembling a muscle ache or it can be severe, causing shock and collapse.

There are reasonable numbers of individuals who have painless heart attacks. I have seen several cases identified on routine retirement examinations in the military services in individuals whose symptoms were totally non-existent or so slight as to have been dismissed by the patient. A mild case of indigestion may really turn out to have been a symptom of a heart attack.

While I am strongly in favor of educating the public about the symptoms of a heart attack so that they can obtain help as soon as possible, I must also face the fact that this can't solve the problem. It certainly is true that the sooner the person with a heart attack gets to adequate medical facilities the more likely they will have a satisfactory recovery. In a study of how long people took after the onset of symptoms of a heart attack to seek medical advice, the group who took the longest was, you guessed it, the doctors. The very men best trained to recognize a heart attack were the slowest in getting help. Thus, knowing the symptoms alone doesn't answer the problem.

Considering ill-defined symptoms, no symptoms, and sudden death, the most logical approach is prevention. That is why I have continually placed so much emphasis on the importance of diet, exercise, avoiding cigarette smoking, and other measures to prevent heart attacks.

By Ann Landers

Semi-invalid finds mental cure

Dear Ann Landers: For years I never had a well day. I had colds, flu, infections—everything that came along. My illnesses were not imaginary. I hurt. My nose ran and I had a temperature. The skin rashes I picked up itched horribly. Moreover, I seemed to have frequent accidents. I cut myself, burned myself and got hideous black and blue marks. Last year I fell and fractured my shoulder. No sooner was I out of the cast than I fell again and broke an ankle.

Finally a friend told me that I should see a psychiatrist. I was insulted. How dare that person suggest that I was deranged? I ignored the suggestion until I got a splitting headache that lasted three days. I decided to make an appointment with a shrink.

I've had three months of therapy and haven't been sick one day. I now know that the body and mind are one and what goes on in the mind can have a tremendous effect on the body.

Please, Ann, tell those people who are always sick that unresolved problems, fear, hate, jealousy, insecurity and other upsetting emotions can cause physical illness. I know because they kept me a semi-invalid for years. — Free At Last

Dear Free: Congratulations. Too bad it took you so long to get the word. I've been a firm believer in that concept for years and it has paid off in terms of good health and extraordinary energy. (P.S. No boozing and no cigarettes can help, too.)

Dear Ann Landers: A young Catholic person died a few days ago and all the students in the school had a choice of either going to the church for the funeral or staying in school. The boy was a friend of mine, and although I am not a Catholic, I wanted to attend the church services.

I felt strange because I am unfamiliar with Catholic ritual. I didn't know if I should kneel to pray when the others did. We do not kneel in our church. Is it proper for a Protestant to receive Holy Communion in a Catholic church?

What should I have said to the bereaved family? I didn't know what to say so I just smiled. Then I realized that maybe that was improper.

Please answer these questions, Ann. I have no one else to turn to. — Jan's Friend

Dear Friend: When you don't know what to do, use common sense. You'll usually end up doing the right thing.

People who do not kneel in their own church should not kneel in another place of worship unless they want to. As for Holy Communion, or other personal participation in specific parts of the ritual, I feel you should follow the custom of the congregation you are visiting. Most Catholics would feel that their form of communion is meant for Catholics.

It was not a mistake to smile at the bereaved family. A smile need not indicate that something is funny. It can be a sign of friendship or encouragement. I'm sure it was appreciated.

Dear Ann Landers: I need to know if there is something wrong with my brother and his wife—or is it my husband and I who are a little strange?

For several years we lived in different parts of the country and seldom saw each other. Recently my brother and his wife moved to our city and we are becoming reacquainted.

Last night their 14-year-old son was leaving the house to go to a basketball game and he kissed both his mother and father goodbye. Does this promote homosexuality? We thought it mighty odd. Yes or no? — Wondering

Dear W.: Stop wondering. The answer is no. It promotes a warm, wholesome family relationship. Period.

Snowmobile Club meets

BOUNDARY — The Three Villages Snowmobile Club annual meeting was held in the Beebe Town hall. Ramsay Williams was re-elected as director and president for another two year term.

Arthur LaPenna was re-elected a director and elected vice-president. Others to be re-elected and elected as new directors were Bert Delisle, Gordon Archer, Keith Leney and Michel Gagne.

Since this club has been established two years ago, it has been most active. A review notes that trails have been made and are maintained to meet Baldwin's Pinnacle Club in the East, and westward the trails go to Georgeville. The Club house is used widely by all snowmobilers and there is always light refreshments available; also piped spring water a short distance from the club house.

Three emergency sleds have been built. One has been placed in the Rock Island fire hall, another in the Beebe fire hall and the third in the Club house.

While it is hoped they will not be used, they are available for any emergency, snowmobilers, skiers or otherwise.

A notice of motion was given to have the membership year from November 1 to November 1. This is to be voted on the March regular meeting of the Club.

It was voted to pay gas for people who drag the trails to help defray expenses.

William Parrish, the secretary, has some 500 stickers from the Quebec Federation of Snowmobilers to be used on snowmobiles and anyone wanting them may contact Mr. Parrish.

The next meeting will be March 13 at the Beebe Town hall.

Hooker given two months

TORONTO (CP) — Xaviera Hollander, author of the best-seller The Happy Hooker, will have at least two more months to wage her battle to stay in Canada.

Although handed a deportation order at an immigration hearing Monday, Miss Hollander filed for an appeal—which will take from two to six months—after posting a bond of $1,000.

Her lawyer, Robert Goldin, explained a deportation order against the Dutch-born author-ess was a direct result of her former life as a prostitute.

"She would have had no problem if she hadn't written her book," he said. "Her book is considered an admission of her being a member of a prohibited class."

Miss Hollander first ran afoul of the immigration department Feb. 1, arriving in Toronto from Mexico.

Although not allowed to work in Canada, Miss Hollander, 29, said she has no financial problems and showed a special immigration inquiry officer a Canadian bank account containing $10,000.

She now is receiving royalty cheques on a second book.

"This is going to cause a problem," she said. "My book will be coming out in Australia in May and I can't leave to be there until this is cleared up."

Strike-bound Sherbrooke fighting on 3 fronts

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE—Strikes on three fronts continued in Sherbrooke yesterday but at least one group showed signs of coming to an agreement.

University of Sherbrooke students, who have carried out sporadic strike action in the past few days, appeared to be willing to return to the classroom in the near future following a declaration made public yesterday by the university's administration.

On the other hand striking garage mechanics in the Eastern Townships stepped up their action yesterday in an attempt to bring the two-week-old strike to an end.

At Bruck Mills both sides remained at the impasse which existed when 1100 employees at plants in Sherbrooke, Cowansville and St. Jean started their strike nearly three weeks ago.

In a press release yesterday the University of Sherbrooke administration informed the students the University is willing to uphold the "status quo" as long as the students pay their fees within the school year.

The administration claimed it could not convince or even pressure the University of Quebec or the University of Montreal to change their positions concerning the payment of university fees.

Students at the University of Sherbrooke had gone out on strike to protest the attitude shown by the administrations of both the Quebec and Montreal universities concerning the payment of fees.

However, the University of Sherbrooke administration had previously agreed to work out a solution with its students. In the press release yesterday the university's administration said it was awaiting recommendations from the ad hoc committee which has been set up to examine the problem of school fees. The administration said it would not act before the committee has presented its recommendations.

The students at the university are to meet this morning to decide what action is to be taken. The general meeting, scheduled for 9:30 a.m., has also been called to discuss the administration's position.

At the last general meeting of students two weeks ago, the students decided to not go out on strike. However, different faculties have recently held individual meetings at which time some faculties have voted to strike.

GARAGE FRONT

On the garage front strikers yesterday closed many garages in Sherbrooke which had remained open since the strike began last week. The garages closed yesterday were situated on King Street West.

One of the strikers contacted soon after the Brouillard Garage was forced to close its doors yesterday said: "Garages which have remained open are picking up all the business which should have come to us."

The open garages have employees who are not attached to the same union as the striking garage workers.

The major stumbling block between the garage owners and their employees is the work week. Although the owners have agreed to most of the employees' demands they have been unwilling to grant the work-week sought by the employees.

The employees have asked for a 40-hour work week — request which the owners are willing to grant by the end of the new contract.

However, the men want to work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily with one hour off for lunch. The owners would like to see the garages open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In order to accomplish this the mechanics would have to work on a rotation basis with some coming in at odd times each day.

All other issues have been settled. The owners have offered a raise ranging from $1.35 to $1.62 an hour over the life of the next contract.

The union asked for a maximum of $1.63 an hour. Disputes over vacation and sick pay have been settled. One owner said yesterday that an agreement should come shortly.

The Bruck Mills situation is bleaker.

The union it would appear has asked for too much and the company, which lost more than $1 million last year, has been unable to lower the union's demands.

Some employees picketing in front of the Woodward street plant in Sherbrooke said yesterday they believe that the strike will be a long one.

CHAMPLAIN TWO PROGRAMS — Two additional technological programs will be added to the existing four now taught by Champlain Regional College at their Lennoxville campus. T.R. McGrath, campus director, speaking on behalf of Frederick Turley, Director-general of the college, has announced the introduction of a two-year pre-university fine arts program and a two-year secretarial science course that will be launched at Lennoxville with the fall semester. While fine arts will lead to a university program, secretarial science leads directly to the labor market and is designed to train executive secretaries.

Sherbrooke: Financially nowhere

"Ottawa has all the money, Quebec has all the power, Montreal has all the favours..."

And Sherbrooke has all the problems!"

SHERBROOKE (WM) — "How many times have we heard this maxim?" Serge Racine, director-general of the City of Sherbrooke, asked in the introduction of the monthly review of the city's finances.

Mr. Racine asserts that some time or other the authorities must give monetary aid to the city in order to resolve its problems. He claims that with the increased demands from the population at municipal levels, the municipalities must receive more aid from higher levels of government.

"According to the present formula for distribution of aid, small villages with fewer than 10,000 inhabitants have the right to all the grants imaginable while the towns with a medium population are most of the time not eligible for grants," Mr. Racine contends.

"Towns with great population density such as Montreal and Quebec, on the other hand, will not touch a sidewalk without federal or provincial aid," he added.

He presented as an example the provincial government's mini-budget of $100 million which has just been announced and which distributes large sums to Montreal, Quebec and the small villages but nothing for Sherbrooke.

"Apart from Quebec and Montreal, Sherbrooke is the most important city in the province," Mr. Racine asserted. "If we do not want to pay for the development of Montreal, Quebec and the little villages — which have almost no obligatory debts — we must work hard and claim our part."

Mr. Racine claims that because of the efforts of the City Council and the determination of Irenee Pelletier, the federal member of parliament, some attempts to get money for Sherbrooke had borne fruit.

He said the $150,000 awarded for projects in the city under the federal Local Initiatives Program would relieve the municipal budget a little.

"The next objective however, the grant to finance the industrial park, will be perhaps a question of $10 million," he added.

The question of Sherbrooke becoming a "special zone" in order to finance the industrial park and develop the city is still being discussed at the provincial and federal government level but no definite decisions has yet been reached.

School scene

Possible effects

If school bus owners serving the Catholic School Board suspend their service — as they have threatened if no agreement is reached — it could affect transportation in the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, director-general, Ian MacLeay reported at a recent meeting.

School bus owners who transport children to schools under the board have said they will maintain the service with the Protestant school board despite any decision to stop transportation for the Catholic school board.

"It is possible, however, that bus drivers will refuse to come to work specially to transport our children," Mr. MacLeay said. "In this case there will be an emergency plan which will mean adjusting timetables about 10 minutes so that all the children can be transported by our own buses."

A meeting of the Association of School Bus Owners is to be held in the near future to decide whether to suspend service to the Catholic School Board.

There is some concern among parents about students being marked absent from class even when they are taking part in other school activities. Frank Boushel, principal of Alexander Galt Regional High School reported.

It is felt that there should be some way of differentiating between the child who is deliberately missing classes and those who are not at class because they were taking part in some other school activity.

Commissioner Nelson asked if there was any way that the child could be indicated as absent from class but still at school.

Mr. Boushel admitted that while the system was not perfect, it indicated to the parents how many classes the child had missed in a certain subject. If the student is involved in a certain activity the parent is always advised so that they know certain classes will be missed, he reported.

An amendment to the bylaws of the school board specified when the board may adjourn the meeting to go into committee in private for discussion of a particular matter. Commissioner Joan Keys suggested an addition be made to the bylaw to conform to the Education Act which states that the board may go into committee for discussion of a personal nature such as complaints against teachers or discussion of pupils.

'Trial' opening soon

LENNOXVILLE (WM) — The operetta 'Trial by Jury' will be presented next week at Bishop's University Centennial Theatre by the Lennoxville Players.

'Trial by Jury', the first operetta written by Gilbert and Sullivan, concerns a breach-of-promise trial in which beautiful young Angelina sues young gay-blade Edwin. As might be expected, the proceedings end to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The operetta, which lasts only 40 minutes, will be followed by other selections from Gilbert and Sullivan.

The production, directed by Robin Allan with Harry Dutton as the musical director, is the sixth presentation Gilbert and Sullivan by the Lennoxville players. Thirty five players will be taking part in the presentation this year, which is sponsored by the Lennoxville Optimist Club.

Performances will be on March 8, 9 and 10. Reserved seats may be obtained from Clark's Pharmacy, Lennoxville; 569-3601. Reserved seats cost $2.50 and non-reserved seats are available for $2.00.

Handed 30 days for refusal to testify

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Paul Rollin, 49, was found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced to 30 days in jail Thursday after refusing to answer questions at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime.

Mr. Rollin, unemployed, told the inquiry just before it adjourned until March 20 that he refused to answer because the inquiry was "dishonest."

He asked the judge to put him in a cell alone, in a place where he would not be beaten up.

"I'm scared of those guys," he said of police. "They're real bulls."

He said police had beaten him up while questioning him in July, 1972, after arresting him and seizing his documents without a warrant.

Judge Brunet intervened several times during a shouting match between the witness and commission lawyer Louis Carrier, who said some of the remarks were not true.

"I was there," the lawyer said. "I was in the adjoining office."

The special 57-man squad conducting the investigation on organized crime has its offices in the provincial police headquarters.

Mr. Carrier said the witness was putting on a spectacle for the benefit of reporters.

Golden-age club given $7,500

MANSONVILLE (WM) — The Golden Age Club in Mansonville has received a federal government grant of $7,500 under the New Horizons program, it was announced recently.

The $7,500 is to be used to stimulate the meetings for the elderly population of the area by covering their cost of transportation to the drop-in centre.

Painting, dancing and handicraft classes will be given at the drop-in centre and recreational equipment put at the disposal of the elderly people, it was reported.

Moulton takes championship

LACONIA, N.H. — Richard Moulton of Center Harbour, N.H., won the world championship sled dog derby at Laconia, N.H. on Feb. 25.

This was a three-day event. Mr. Moulton's time for the three days was 3:38.09 which was just six seconds ahead of

$1 million granted for purification system

AYER'S CLIFF (WM) — A provincial government grant of more than $1 million has been given to the municipality of Ayer's Cliff to pay for a sewage treatment plant in the village.

Gordon Booth, Ayer's Cliff Mayor, said the project was now almost completed and that it would be in operation on June 1 this year.

The project covers a complete new sewage system for the central part of the village and a sewage treatment plant which purifies the sewage leading into the Tomifobia River.

"The plant will remove both coliform and nutrient pollutants and prevent algae from forming on the water," Mayor Booth explained.

"It will probably eliminate 40 per cent of the pollutants getting to Lake Massawippi."

The government grant of $1,175,800 will go toward financing the cost of this new sewage treatment plant and the new sewage system. The grant will be paid by Quebec over a period of 10 consecutive years with annual payments of $117,580.

The first payment will be received in June when the work is completed.

Marxist dreams

An angry debate is in progress within the British Labor party between proponents of militant union tactics and those who fear that militancy in the labor movement will wreck British democracy. The debate is of special interest to Canada since analogous pressures are being exerted in this country.

It began with the publication of a book by two Oxford Marxist economists, Andrew Glyn and Bob Sutcliffe. The book, British Capitalism, Workers and the Profit Squeeze, has demonstrated in a brilliant analysis that the increasingly militant labor union policy of seeking and getting higher and higher wages has led to a devastating profit squeeze within British industry.

International competition has prevented British industry from passing on the higher labor cost to the consumer and this has severely restricted capital formation, resulting in reduced investment, reduced growth and incurable unemployment.

A splendid result, say the two Marxists. The unions should now become even more militant and thus hasten the disintegration of the British economy and bring about a socialist revolution. The two authors argue that any increase in economic expansion would be accompanied by too slow a growth in real wages, since wage control would be the only way of obtaining sufficient profits for new capital formation.

Putting a halt to inflation by restraining wage demands is, therefore, no answer. Unions must push inflation by increasing militancy until the present system, "which has outlived its usefulness," collapses and a socialist economy can then build up what Marx called "the forces of production."

Mr. Glyn's views are fiercely opposed by social democrats within the party, men who argue that Mr. Glyn is an Old Etonian who can spin his theories and dream of a revolution from the comfortable safety of his middle-class background and a well-paid job. Wilfred Beckerman, professor of political economy at London University, who leads the moderates, says that, because of Britain's pitiful rate of growth caused by labor-union militancy, the working classes "are getting a lousy deal." Mr. Beckerman knows what he is talking about. He is the son of a tailor who endured long spells of unemployment.

Prof. Beckerman is appalled by the unemployment induced by union militancy and fears that the collapse of democracy could take a different path from the socialist millennium envisaged by Mr. Glyn. It could easily approximate the situation that arose in Europe after the end of the First World War when galloping inflation led to the collapse of democracy in a number of key countries. Mr. Beckerman is pessimistic about Britain's future. He believes that the rank and file of labor unionists are easily led by wild extremists who "are betraying the interests of the working class."

In this argument nobody has shown, so far, why the Marxist prescriptions, now applied in a number of formerly prosperous countries, have not worked out the way Marx anticipated. Perhaps Mr. Glyn and his fellow Marxists, in Britain and Canada, should be reminded of what a Prague student told a British journalist in the heady days of the Prague Spring of 1968: "You cannot impose socialism without terror, and in the end only the terror is left."

In the early 1930s the Communists rejoiced in Hitler's victory, in that Nazism was to hasten the demise of the Western democratic system and bring about the victory of "socialism." The Communists were not entirely wrong, but despite the 50 million dead caused by Hitler's war, the only beneficiaries today are Communist apparatchiks and Soviet generals.

The people as such are more oppressed than ever. If they were not, so many of them would not risk death every week in desperate attempts to leave Communist East Germany. However, facts have little bearing on dreams dreamt by comfortable university theoreticians.

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal La Presse: Henry Kissinger... is thinking about oil. Certainly, when he's travelling through China he thinks about the Chinese. But Mr. Kissinger also is interested in the oil field.

This proves at least one thing. The oil shortage... is not the product of someone's crazy imagination or an artificial preoccupation.

However, this shortage is not as dramatic as we might be tempted to assume. Some forecasts set 1985 as the year for a return to stability.

What seems to stand out after analysis of the situation in the United States is that the illness is not incurable. It could have been foreseen by more rigorous planning.

The United States still has oil resources at home and numerous sources of supply outside its borders. In fact, most of the large international oil companies are American.

The lack of a real energy policy, the wastage, the slowdown of development imposed by protectors of the environment and the belated use of nuclear energy can best explain the current worries.

The crisis has had repercussions on Canadian-American relations. With the announced intention to guarantee its domestic supply before providing for needs of its neighbor, Ottawa has decided to control the rate of crude oil exports.

Did the situation warrant such a harsh measure? The question is extremely difficult to answer.

What can be easily ascertained is that the decision by the Canadian energy department was met with skepticism in certain circles. There are skeptics in Canada; there are even more in American administration circles where the Canadian decision was met with obvious displeasure.

It can be seen that the snell of oil leads rapidly to political dens, small and large.

Under the circumstances Alberta, an oil producing province jealous of its prerogatives, has not concealed the fact that the controls imposed from the top were a source of annoyance. Do not natural resources belong to the provinces?

On the other hand, the circumstances favor the push of Western oil to the Montreal market, already supplied by Venezuela. But at what cost?

This is the question those aspiring to provide Quebec with an energy policy undoubtedly want to ask...
Guy Cormier Feb. 22.

Ottawa Le Droit: The last federal census revealed a proportional decrease of French-speaking people across Canada, except in British Columbia where there was an increase of one-tenth per cent.

It can not be denied that this is disturbing, but it should be added that it is not heartbreaking. The proportional setback is accompanied by an increase in absolute numbers.

Outside Quebec as well as in Quebec, it is established that there is constant assimilation of French-speaking people with the surrounding milieu, but it would be wrong to believe that the phenomenon is irreversible.

On the contrary, everything indicates that it can be slowed down... because of the judicial, psychological, cultural and political changes currently making themselves felt in Canada.

Vincent Prince, chief editorial writer at La Presse, in the last issue of the magazine of the Canadian Association of French-Language Education lists and comments on the reasons for hope... for the survival of French in and outside Quebec.

There are many reasons, but here are the four main ones:

"A more liberal education legislation... Quebec's pride... the federal policy on the official languages... the modernizing of French-language associations..."

As Mr. Prince writes, these factors... should in the long run have beneficial effects.

In Ontario and in all English-speaking provinces, governments are becoming more receptive and sympathetic to the hopes and desires of Francophones who need only to show proof of strength and energy finally to be treated as first-class citizens on the same footing as their English-speaking brothers.

Armed with strong legislative measures... French-Canadians have every reason to hope for better days everywhere in the country.

They need only to impose themselves... Marcel Gingas Feb. 22.

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: The least we can say is that Canadians and Quebecers may suffer from fiscal indignation during the next few days.

We had barely digested the financial data contained in John Turner's recent budget speech when Charles Drury, chairman of the treasury board, presented us with a dish of numbers... the federal spending budget.

However, our pains were not going to stop there. Raymond Garneau, finance minister in the Bourassa government, multiplied our discomforts... by revealing the general points of a $103-million supplementary budget.

At the rhythm things are going, we can ask ourselves if our governments do not consider taxpayers in the country as money-making machines.

Tuning in on children's minds

WASHINGTON — In the constant campaign to separate the customer from his cash, small children are now used as guinea pigs to find out how to whet their appetites and, through the children, to influence the buying habits of their parents.

Millions are spent on motivational research to stimulate youngsters, so they will pester their parents into buying advertised brands. A typical research group, describing its sophisticated operations, boasts:

"Our new offices have four large focus rooms, a complete laboratory, rooms with one-way mirrors for observing children, video tape and recording facilities, test kitchen, commercial viewing rooms, etc."

One outfit even uses moisture detectors, placed in contact with the children's hands, to measure their subconscious responses to advertising.

Explains another research group, which claims to have special insight on how to aim advertising at children: "Remember if it is a multichild family with a child in preschool, there is an awesomely greater influence on the mother than there would be in a family where there is a six-year-old just starting school."

Consumer advocate Robert Choate is asking the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the child-manipulation techniques as an unfair business practice. He also wants the Federal Communications Commission to investigate the possibility that the commercials, in their very preparation, violate the fairness doctrine, since few parents understand the sophistication of the ads aimed at their children.

Jack Anderson's
Washington Merry-go-round

"The average child," Choate tells us, "sees about 25,000 commercials a year and so spends four hours a week watching commercials, but this four hours is much more sophisticated and intrusive upon a child's mind than we had ever guessed."

The bizarre story can now be told of what happened in Havana after Pat Gray, the bullet-headed boss of the FBI, ordered his agents to shoot out the tires of a skyjacked Southern Airways jetliner last November in an attempt to keep it from taking off from Orlando, Fla.

The details were gathered by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., as part of his research on skyjacking legislation.

As he pieced together the story, FBI sharpshooters punctured all the tires except on the nose wheel. This enraged the sky pirates who shot copilot Billy Harloyd Johnson and held a grenade at the head of chief pilot William R. Haas.

Despite the flat tires, Haas was forced to attempt a takeoff. An "act of God," he told Murphy, provided an airpocket that lifted the crippled craft into the air just as the runway ran out.

In Havana, Cuba's mercurial dictator Fidel Castro heard the news and hurried down to the airport to direct the landing from the control tower. He ringed the area with combat troops, 27 ambulances and seven firetrucks. Thousands of Cubans also gathered to watch the drama unfold.

Haas miraculously brought the huge jet to a shuddering halt at the end of a long slide. "I thought we would wind up in a fire ball at the end of the runway," he said.

The skyjacker, meanwhile, piled out of the plane and raced in opposite directions for the nearby woods. They left behind $2 million in ransom, which they handed out to the passengers with abandon.

The air pirates didn't get far before they were collared by Fidel's finest. At first, they threatened the Cuban soldiers with hand grenades. Castro himself was close enough to the action to have been killed or injured. They were subdued, however, to the accompaniment of cheering Cubans.

Then the jubilant Castro grabbed the chief pilot, hugged him and lifted him into the air crying "Magnifico, magnifico!" Haas was driven to a Havana hotel in Castro's private jeep by Army aides.

Asked what would happen to the skyjacker, an aide said: "We don't need bandits in this country. These two will be put into a 4-by-4 prison cell for life."

A tragic Atlanta apartments-for-the-elderly fire, which cost the lives of 10 residents last fall, could have been avoided by the installation of a simple smoke detection device costing about $50 per apartment.

This will be charged at hearings, which Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., has scheduled this week into faulty nursing home construction. Housing experts, including ordained minister Richard L. Fullerton of nearby Smyrna, Ga., will testify that FHA financing has made the funding of old people's homes so complicated and expensive that cuts are made in construction, sometimes with tragic results.

Witnesses will blame the Baptist Towers fire in Atlanta partly on FHA officials who winked at their own regulations and permitted construction without modern fire protection equipment.

It will be alleged, for example, that the door knobs in Baptist Towers were small metal knobs difficult for the elderly to turn and not the levers recommended for nursing homes. The fire alarm was also so inadequate, it will be testified, that one resident who barely escaped with her life told rescuers she thought the warning siren was an alarm clock.

The FHA manual on property standards requires that buildings such as Baptist Towers "of eight or more stories having more than 15 living units per floor shall be equipped with an automatic fire detection system." The requirement, however, was waived for the Atlanta construction. Explained officials later: "We didn't have enough money for everything."

The devices, which could have saved the lives of the Atlanta victims, would have cost the contractors a total of $15,000, it will be charged.

Matter of fact
with Joseph Alsop

'Sirs, to the disposal!'

WASHINGTON — In the last weeks, two atmospheric developments have occurred that just could be ominous. There is some evidence that in the Soviet Union systematic guidance briefings of comrades have begun, of the type that took place after the "new line" of Nikita S. Khrushchev's famous secret speech attacking Josef Stalin.

In this case, however, the aim of the Soviet briefings appears to be re-emphasis of the unspeakable inequities of Communist China. In addition, the Soviet official publications — conspicuously including the armed forces' journal, Red Star — have been indulging in an anti-Chinese polemic of unusual severity.

A note of hysteria is beginning to be detectable. To cite a minor example, the factual reports from China that recently appeared in this space have caused this reporter to be denounced as a mere "tool" of China in both Pravda and Izvestia. Identical signed fulminations appeared in Pravda on Feb. 8 and in Izvestia on Feb. 9. Such a double anathema is an unheard-of honor for an aging foreign newspaperman.

Among the government's Soviet analysts, the above cited evidence is widely, no doubt rightly, regarded as "inconclusive." Yet the reality of the evidence itself is not contested. Only its meaning is in dispute.

Meanwhile, a reading can also be obtained from what Dr. Henry A. Kissinger brought back from Peking. Before the latest communique was published, the Chinese Nationalist ambassador in Washington, James C. H. Shen, was called to the White House to be warned of the new developments in the Peking-Washington relationship. Being warned, he is said to have remarked, bleakly:

"But you are then going to have full diplomatic relations with Peking, even although you will not exchange ambassadors!"

The ambassador's sad formula could not be dismissed. Here, moreover, the point is both simple and ugly. The Peking government has gone much further, and also much faster, than formerly seemed likely or even possible.

Only three months ago, the leaders in Peking were still saying it was "unthinkable" for mainland China to be represented in Washington as long as Taiwan was also represented here. Today, there are to be "liaison offices" in both Washington and Peking, amounting, as James Shen said, to full diplomatic relations minus ambassadors. It is evident, therefore, that Peking thinks some sort of confrontation with Moscow is approaching. Hence closer U.S. relations are desired immediately as an insurance policy.

As to the larger meanings of these facts, you can make of them what you please. For what that might be worth, this reporter would bet that if and when the Peking-Moscow confrontation comes, the end result will not be a war. But the danger is serious and it has to be recognized. It is like the kind of corner on a mountain road that prudent highway authorities carefully label, "dangerous corner ahead."

All these facts have a smaller meaning, meanwhile, which should not be overlooked any longer. The thoughtful public has been persistently misled for years on end. That fact has now been abundantly proved. Therefore it is time to say to the mileaders: "Sirs, be off to the garbage disposal; for you have been peddling garbage."

The garbage peddlers, in this case, have been the well intentioned, decent, high-minded men who have been forming almost all virtuous Americans' opinions about relations with China for years on end. These men are typified by one of the best of them, Harvard's Prof. John K. Fairbank. Prof. Fairbank has the standing of a pope in this particular academic-intellectual group.

After the first warmup of U.S.-China relations, Prof. Fairbank and his equally admirable partner, Prof. (and ex-ambassador) Edwin Reischauer, promulgated a remarkable doctrine. China, they said, was still mortally afraid of Japanese militarism. That story ended with the prime ministers of China and Japan clasped in a loving embrace. The Chinese leaders are too intelligent to fear a Japan with no guns. The Soviets, with quantities of guns and nuclear weapons on the Chinese border, are a bit different, however.

In the same manner, Prof. Fairbank and all his colleagues have been saying, year after year, that America's relations with the Taiwan government were an insuperable obstacle to normal relations with the Peking government. Prof. Fairbank was still talking gloomily about the Taiwan "obstacle" as recently as last July 5. So now look where we are!

It is disagreeable to name the names of fine scholars, but it is also important to know who makes a bit of sense.

Fossils shake Bible's story of creation

EDMONTON (CP) — Fossilized footprints in a Texas riverbed have led thousands of Albertans to ask education officials to include the biblical account of creation in school science classes.

A movement protesting the teaching of evolution as fact rather than theory and demanding equal time for the creationist viewpoint has aroused so many Bible-belt parents that a test case before the Alberta Supreme Court is a possibility.

The discontent has been mobilized through a series of rallies organized by the Alberta Committee for True Education headed by Rev. Neil Unruh of the northwestern Alberta village of Hythe.

In his tour, Rev. Unruh uses a film entitled "Footprints in stone" showing dinosaur tracks beside what appear to be human footprints in a rock layer under the Paluxy River in Texas.

The footprints, found more than 30 years ago but not investigated by creationists until recently, seem to contradict geological timetables which place 70 to 100 million years between dinosaurs and man.

SAY FORMS CO-EXISTED
The film says the discovery implies lower and higher forms of life co-existed. Evolutionary theory, on the other hand, holds that complex animals evolved from the lower.

Rev. Unruh, 34, a minister for the Christian Missionary Alliance of the Evangelical Missionary Society, said:

"We are not out to chase the Darwinian theory out of schools but we want to see teachers giving a more balanced presentation on the origins of man."

Rev. Unruh formed the committee for true education last October after his seven-year-old daughter came home from school with a textbook portraying a half-man, half-ape.

The text contended that this man actually existed when there is no scientific evidence to back it up," he said.

5,000 WANT CHANGE
The committee has sent petitions signed by almost 5,000 Albertans to Education Minister Lou Hyndman, requesting that the creationist perspective be presented in science classes with evolution.

The matter now is being reviewed by the education department's elementary and secondary curriculum board and Mr. Hyndman says the government intends to make a statement during the current sitting of the legislature.

Rev. Unruh said Mr. Hyndman had suggested that creationist theories be included in social studies classes under world religions, but "this would be worse than not including them at all."

Rev. Unruh said if the government acts inadequately a court case is possible. A spokesman for the Group of Concerned Teachers, composed of about 30 Edmonton science instructors, said the group is already collecting evidence to bring to court if necessary.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Surprises seem to come in pairs today. In your case, one may be pleasant, one less so. Bear up.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Your innate stubbornness aggravates a situation that could be cleared up quickly if you'd unbend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Events come up in pairs for the Gemini. This complicates the love life to some extent.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22): A void controversial subjects as you tend to get carried away and wind up in a real hassle.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21): "Anything can happen and does" was never more true than today. You won't know what to expect.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Make no commitments which might be burdensome at some future date. Watch money closely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Let others have their own ideas and philosophy so long as they don't insist on trying to influence you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Your serious side is to the fore and your friends are a little puzzled as they usually see you gay and laughing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): If you have a problem you can't resolve, ask for advice. It won't reflect on you; everyone needs help.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Get down to brass tacks. Say what you mean and mean what you say. Be prepared to back up your statements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A day when plans are made, changed, re-made as people tend to be wishy-washy and hard to pin down.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You have some reservations about idea, but go along with the crowd because you hate to say "No."

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Embarrassing situation makes you hesitant to attend get-togethers. Hold up your head and go!

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): A vindictive person could upset the status quo in your household. Don't be a patsy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You are stewing again about matters which are out of your control—a futile procedure at best.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22): Some bickering on the home front. Discard seems to be between the generations and hard to resolve.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21): A day when plans are made, changed, re-made as people tend to be wishy-washy and hard to pin down.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You have a better-than-average chance of getting a foothold in a door you've long wanted to enter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Some turbulence indicated, possibly in affairs of the heart. Health under improved aspects, however.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): A jealous individual can make life difficult for you. Try your best not to let your irritation show.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Nerves seem to be tied in knots due to frustration. Seek cause thru self-appraisal. Be honest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You are plagued by uncertainty as you have several alternatives. Peace of mind is hard to attain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): One of those days when you have so much to do you don't know where to begin—consequently you do nothing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Sidestep quarrelsome people in the neighborhood. If you take sides, you lose, no matter who else wins.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Strong planetary influences should boost your morale. A compliment from the boss won't hurt either!

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may have to pay the price for something you did on the spur of the moment without proper planning.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): An unexpected development may place you at a disadvantage, but only temporarily. Don't be discouraged.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22): Review what was done in the past in similar circumstances and see if you can improve your system.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21): A day when plans are made, changed, re-made as people tend to be wishy-washy and hard to pin down.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You'll be surprised at knowledge of others if you listen carefully to what they are really saying.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Keep finances on an even keel even the temptation to speculate is very strong under current influences.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't rush headlong into any sort of business transaction. The same advice holds for romantic affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You feel guilty because family or friends get on your nerves. It happens to all of us at times!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A proposition that sounds lucrative may be misleading. Weigh pros and cons and proceed carefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't antagonize others by your obstinate insistence on having your own way on all points.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Worry just for worry's sake is a waste of time, not to mention hard on the nerves! Keep calm.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jersey have returned home from three weeks holiday in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. They report that there was a 24-hour cold spell that came in from Georgia where there was a lot of snow and unusual weather, otherwise the weather during their holiday was excellent; on the way back home they saw many white and Canada Geese flying very low overhead in the State of Delaware.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Haddon, Lennoxville, recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence White for a day and while here they also called on Mr. and Mrs. Winston White.

Mr. Joe Charette, Dunkin, had the misfortune to break his ankle and is wished a speedy recovery.

Mr. Garnet Bouchard, Dunkin, was taken to the La Providence Hospital in Magog by Mr. Fred Vachon after suffering a heart attack. He is slowly improving and would appreciate cards and letters from everyone.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aiken were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fullerton, Dunkin.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wilkins, Highwater, accompanied Mr. Wilbur Fullerton, Dunkin, to North Troy, Vt.

The smart pill-box is making a big come-back in Britain, since this style is ideal for teaming with the trendy, Forties-style boxy jackets and the classically elegant outfits which are so popular at present. Here is "Bird's Nest," a demure Spring '73 hat by milliner Madame Emmy Gruder at London's House of Lachasse; it is swathed with navy silk tulle and veiling, and trimmed with birds in shades of red - with tiny diamante "eyes." The House of Lachasse has created a lively Spring '73 collection, with well-tailored suits and coats, and feminine day, afternoon and evening dresses. The emphasis throughout the collection is on classic styling updated with imagination and flair.

Ascot W.I.

Ascot Women's Institute held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. Gordon Sims in Sand Hill with Mrs. Monty Sewell presiding, opening with the Collect and the Hymn of all Nations. A tribute of silence was observed, due to the passing of a valued member in the person of Mrs. Robert S. Lipsey of Lennoxville.
The roll call was answered by naming a household task you dislike. Most remarkably enough many were the same.
Mrs. Frank Ingham read several thank you notes and Mrs. Ashley Hatcher, treasurer, gave the financial report.
Mrs. Lorne Butler drew attention to the agriculture outline to be followed for the year.
Mrs. William T. Pearson read a very interesting article regarding the work being done by Madame Laporte as acting judge in the courtroom for new Canadian Citizens, which also told of the interest shown by these people to become Canadians.

UCW meetings

STANBRIDGE EAST — The U.C.W. held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. Fairfield for an afternoon meeting on Feb. 14 with 16 members present.
The meeting was opened with a reading by Mrs. Karl Westcott and the Lord's prayer.
The minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report were read and approved. Dues were paid by those not present at the January meeting.
Twelve notes and six verbal thank-yous were received from those to whom cards and gifts had been sent during illness.
Mrs. Frank Corey reported on the stewards meeting concerning the Hillside Cemetery.
Mr. Howard Wright had made a donation of $1000.00 to the cemetery, the interest from which is to be used for the upkeep of the cemetery in perpetuity.
The United Church received last year $500.00 from the estate of Mr. Fred Laraway. They also have a $50.00 matured bond. It was decided that this be invested for the maintenance of the United Church. It is to be understood that from now on the Hillside Cemetery is part of and the responsibility of the Stanbridge East United Church. The meeting adjourned with the Mizpah, followed by lunch which included a birthday cake for Mrs. N. Boomhour who was that day celebrating her 80th birthday.

BEDFORD — A short business meeting of the UCW was held in the United Church hall on Thursday evening February 15 with a good attendance. It was agreed to donate $10.00 to the current C.S.C.F. appeal, also $82.00 the first quarter allocation to the M. and S. was voted to be remitted, also $10.00 to the Presbyterian welfare fund.
Miss Casey, welfare secretary reported having sent one blanket and some twenty knitted articles to MacDonald House, Montreal. Knitters are needed to make up articles to fill the work allocation for 1973. Children's sweaters, socks, etc., are much in demand.
It was announced that the annual Presbyterian meeting would be held in Montreal in St. James United Church on April 3.
A message from Mrs. Thomson of Abbotsford, regional vice-president, was received by phone that evening with hopes that some arrangement could be made for her to visit the Bedford group in the near future.
Plans for the World Day of Prayer, held in Wesley United Church this year on March 2, were discussed.
Following the business meeting, Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer kindly showed their slides and Mrs. Palmer's comments were very enjoyable. An exhibit of Taiwan handicrafts was on display and were most interesting.
Mrs. Percy, programme convenor thanked Mr. and Mrs. Palmer for their kindness in taking time to give some first hand information about the Asian Islands.
A social hour followed and refreshments were enjoyed. The next regular meeting of the U.C.W. will be held on the evening of March 15.

Carry On Club news

SHERBROOKE — The February meeting of the Carry On Club was held at the home of Mrs. F. Collins, Jacques Cartier Blvd. The President Mrs. F. Collins was in the Chair.
Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. Cassidy.
In the absence of the treasurer Mrs. Collins read the treasurer's report, showing a favourable bank balance.

Plans are being made for the Spring Tea to be held Wednesday, May 2 at St. Peter's Church Hall.
At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. B. Wilson and Mrs. M. Roberts.
The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. Armstrong, 177 Heneker street, Thursday, March 15.

Baby shower

SCOTSTOWN — On Monday evening, February 26, Mrs. Bill Belanger was the guest of honor at a baby shower at the home of Mrs. Joan Allaire, on Coleman Hill. Miss Mudy Pjrsons was the co-hostess.
It was a complete surprise for Mrs. Belanger, who, upon entering the house, was presented with a corsage of baby articles by Miss Parsons. She was seated at a card table laden with the most beautiful gifts, and a room full of friends.

As she opened the gifts they were passed around for all to admire. Following this the hostesses, assisted by some of the guests, served delicious refreshments.
Before leaving Mrs. Belanger expressed her sincere thanks to the 22 guests and the hostesses for the shower.

JOANNE GAIL RICHARDSON — nine-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richardson, of Birchton, and granddaughter of Mrs. Morris Smith, Bulwer, and Mr. Fred Hurd, Cookshire.

Service of Unity held Sunday

On Sexagesima Sunday night, February 25, a special "Service of Unity," adapted by the rector, was held in St. George's Church, Lennoxville, attended by United Anglican and Roman Catholic people from the town.
The scripture selections were read by Mr. Herbert Simons, convenor of St. George's Layreaders, and Father Lawrence Tierney, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, who also gave a brief sermon in French.

Dr. A. B. Lovelace, of the Lennoxville United Church, led a Litany of Penitence. Archdeacon Meade sang Evensong and gave a brief address.
St. George's Choir, under the director of music, Mrs. L.S. Pennington, sang the ferial responses and Gregorian Choir Office settings of the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis. They led the congregation in the singing of four familiar hymns, in alternating French and English verses.
There was a bilingual "Litany of Unity," led in turn by the three pastors, who gave the final benediction in unison.

Before the blessing, Gordon Bown, Jr., convenor of the servers of St. George's, read St. Francis' prayer of dedication and commitment.
After the service, all were invited to take refreshment in the parish hall, served by members of the women's societies of the three parishes.

WOMEN'S WORK

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billing announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Barbara, to Mr. Robert Dowd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dowd, all of Sherbrooke, Que. The marriage will take place May 12.

Myrtle Rebekah Lodge

LENNOXVILLE — The regular meeting of Myrtle Rebekah Lodge No. 28 was held in the Masonic Hall with a good attendance. The meeting was opened in ritual form with Sister Jessie Pursell, Noble Grand, presiding. A warm welcome was extended to all members.
Several members reported that favorable progress has been made by those who were ill. Sister Vada Cleveland stated that she had visited members in the Wales Home recently. Cards of cheer were signed to be sent to the shut-ins.

Correspondence read by the secretary, Sister Luella Brady, included thank-you notes for flowers and cards, an appeal from the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada, and information concerning the Grand Lodge Sessions to be held in Three Rivers, Quebec on May 25-26, 1973. A letter from Sister Doris McHarg, secretary of the Planning Board was read stating that the project chosen for this year was Health Aids for Needy Children. The objective of the Planning Board is $4,000.00. Two applications for membership by reinstatement were also read.

A donation of $50.00 was voted to the Planning Board and $10.00 to the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada.
Accident Insurance for Lodge members was discussed. The members were asked to decide whether they wished to have it or not by the next meeting.
The members were reminded of the Card Party sponsored by Unity Lodge on Thursday, March 1 at the Country Inn. The proceeds will be for Health aids for Needy Children. Plans are being made for the Rebekah Card Party on Wednesday evening, March 14.
Under the Good of the Order a letter from Sister Leona Moore, President of the IARA was read asking all members to try to get a new member. A 5 per cent gain in membership is the requested objective.
February is Educational Foundation month - the time when we think especially of our Youth. Sister Moore is making a special appeal for aid to this worthy cause.
The meeting was closed in form. During the social hour a questionnaire on the Ritual was answered by the members. Refreshments were then served by the hostesses, Sisters Margaret Wells, Ada Neeley and Evelyn Savage, assisted by Sister Mary Beattie.

He cashed his ace of clubs and ace of diamonds; led a diamond to dummy's king; played dummy's queen of hearts and discarded his last diamond.
West was on lead and had to either give Z a ruff and discard or lead a club with equally fatal results.
"It worked this time," said West, "but only because I held just two diamonds."
"Nonsense," said Z. "If you had another diamond or both other diamonds you would have set up a diamond trick in dummy for me if you led the suit."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Our old friend Z, the man who used to play all the auction bridge hands in the papers, is back at the club again after a long illness. He still doesn't know much about scientific bidding but his dummy play is the best.
He ruffed the heart lead; looked at dummy for a second and remarked, "I played this same hand in Milton Work's auction column back in 1927. It trumps break 2-2 I have a perfect safety play to make my contract."
He did play two rounds of trumps. Both opponents followed and he spread his hand.
"How do you play it?" asked West.
"Quickly and easily," was the reply.

What do you do now?

A—Pass. Your partner has clearly told you that he can't take the first or second diamond trick. You can't either.

EVES' APPLE TREE

ROSEMARY by Betty Chaisson
Fragrant rosemary is one of my favorite herbs. It's so accessible—on every spice rack—and throughout history women have discovered many satisfying uses of it.
If you want a new experience in facial steams, rosemary is delightful. Simply boil water, throw in a handful of rosemary leaves, place a towel over your head and spend several minutes steaming. Then splash your face with cold water.
But don't throw the rosemary water away. Put it in a jar and save it for a hair rinse. It smells clean and gives your hair body.
Want a tea that's good for your eyes, improves your memory, sharpens the senses and tastes good? Rosemary tea! Merely boil water and steep the leaves about 10 minutes. Also, oil of rosemary has been used to remove spots, marks or scars on the skin.
Rosemary also brings good luck and prevents witchcraft. Doctors in the middle ages considered it a disinfectant and to this day where the plant is plentiful, it is burned as an air purifier.

Scotstown social notes

Mrs. F.B. Mayhew 657-4747
Mrs. Colin Henderson returned home on February 24 after having spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henderson in Sherbrooke.

Mrs. John D. MacDonald recently spent a day with her mother and sister, Mrs. Kay Coates and Miss Sylvia Coates in Lennoxville.

When Mr. Harvey Parsons closed his Scotstown Clothing Store at the last of the year in the Town Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Aurele Paquette purchased his remaining stock and carried on in the Town Hall. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Paquette purchased Mrs. Alex MacLennan's building on Victoria St. They have added more merchandise and on February moved from the Town Hall to their new place. All are pleased that we still have a clothing store in town and wish them success in their undertaking.

Miss Barbara Gordon of Montreal spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W.K. Gordon.

Mr. John Vaudry of Lennoxville conducted the service in St. Andrew's United Church on February 25. He was accompanied by his friend Richard St. Dzier of Lennoxville who assisted Mr. Vaudry by reading one of the scripture lessons.

Three Villages 876-2083
Mr. L.E. Roberge has returned to his home in Rock Island after spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. Maurice Morin, Mr. Morin and family in Essex Jct., Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Majury, Stanstead, have left on a vacation motoring to points of interest in the Southern States and spending a few days in Florida. They will return home on March 12. In their absence Mrs. Majury's mother, Mrs. A. Bown of Lennoxville and Miss Judy Hatch of Tomfobia are staying with Miss Cindy Majury at the family home.

Miss Debra Keeler, Beloit, has been spending a week with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Norman Chamberlain, Stanstead.

Approximately 45 community men and women gathered in the hall of Our Lady of Mercy Parish Church on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 21 to attend the Friendship Card Club. Cards of the players choice was played at eleven tables. Mr. Dominic Roy won the door prize. Little refreshments were served by a committee in charge.

Mrs. Paul Tellier, Stanstead, has returned home after a 16 days tour to Florida where she visited Disneyland, Miami, spent a day in Hollywood, at Cypress Gardens and to Key West. Mr. Tellier will leave by plane on March 3 to spend a week in Miami.

Mrs. Beatrice Schoolcraft, Ayer's Cliff, was a visitor for a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Alger, Rock Island.

Mr. Jean Louis Dupont, Rock Island, has returned home after a week absence. Mr. Dupont spent four days in London, England on business, another three in Switzerland where he was joined by his father, brothers and sisters and other relatives from France. It has been 30 years since Mr. Dupont had seen his family residing in France.

A marriage of interest took place on Saturday, February 24, at the Congregational Church in Coventry, Vt., when Cheryl Jean, daughter of Mrs. Leona (Rollins) Alger and the late Carl Alger, of Orleans, and Richard Alan Holton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holton took place. The many friends of the bride from these communities extend her and her husband all good wishes.

John Getty of Beebe, R.R. Lake Shore, is the general chairman for the 1973 Canadian Red Cross Campaign.

Mr. and Mrs. Aime Pouliot, Derby Line, spent a few days at the home of their son, Mr. Normand Pouliot, Mrs. Pouliot and family in Barre, Vt. and also visited other relatives there.

Mrs. Alien Matheson and son Brian, Mrs. Sydney Wintle of Gould, Mrs. Maggie Foster and Mrs. Verna Loubier of St. George de Beauce, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Woolley.

Overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kelton MacKenzie were Mrs. Katherine Saino and son Robert of Longmeadow, Mass., and Miss Beverley Ragali of Boston, Mass., while here to attend the Bergeron-MacLeod wedding on February 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Herve Lotzette returned home on February 25 after spending two weeks in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. George Woolley of Windsor were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Woolley and visited Mr. and Mrs. John E. Nicholson.

Mr. Murdo Morrison of North Brattleboro, Vt., is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Fred MacLeod after arriving on February 24 to attend his niece Beverly MacLeod's marriage to Paul Bergeron and the reception held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney MacDonald of Thetford Mines and Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Gauthier of Bury were recently visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred MacLeod here for the Bergeron-MacLeod wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Dorothy McCormick of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Les MacLeod and Angus of Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Campbell visited Mrs. William Campbell and Mrs. D.A. Campbell on the weekend and also visited William Campbell who has been moved from the Hotel Dieu to the Medical Centre. Mr. John Campbell of Detroit, Mich., arrived on Saturday, Feb. 24, and is staying at the Campbell home, so he will be able to visit his brother William in the Medical Centre.

Mr. Martin Matheson returned to the St. Anne's Hospital in Ste. Anne de Bellevue on Feb. 26. He was accompanied by Mrs. Matheson who will stay with a friend for a while to be near her husband.

Rev. and Mrs. Ross Davidson and Anita spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Corriveau in St. Magloire.

Friends of Mrs. Rejean Lapointe are pleased that she returned home on February 22 from her stay in the hospital.

Only money

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A widower who says he has given away $170,000 in the last 10 years plans to endow a $400,000 animal hospital in memory of his wife.

"There's a lot of poor people who would take care of their pets if only prices weren't so high," said Irvin Rick. "Why should the people and the animals suffer if it's just a matter of money?"

"The money doesn't mean a damn thing to me," said the 55-year-old Rick.

He said he has placed $200,000 in trust to begin financing an animal hospital to be built somewhere in Baltimore.

St. James vestry meeting

HATLEY - The annual Vestry meeting of St. James Anglican Church was held in the Church Hall recently. There were twenty present and the Rector, the Rev. Ed. Schmitt presided, opening the meeting with prayer.

Bruce Sheldon was elected vestry clerk to replace James Pidduck who resigned after 28 years in office. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Pidduck for his many years of service.

The treasurer's report was passed out to all present and accepted but it was agreed by all that a separate report should be made for the Memorial Fund. It was decided to purchase a dozen new hymn books for use by the choir. A motion of gratitude and thanks was made to William Cutler for his great help during the past years, by Rev. Schmitt.

The budget assessment for mission work was accepted for the new year. Mr. Beaven Bowen was appointed Rector's warden by Rev. Schmitt to replace William Cutler who due to ill health resigned. George Hartwell was re-elected people's warden. Mr. James Hargrave volunteered to be delegate to Synod with George Hartwell as sub delegate.

The Anglican Church Women's report was given by Mrs. Wm. Cutler and showed a good and profitable year with all commitments made and a substantial balance on hand. The Sunday School report was submitted by Mrs. Dustin and read by Rev. Schmitt.

The cemetery report was given by the cemetery warden, Stanley Whitcomb. Work needs to be done in the Old North Church Cemetery and this was to be tended to by S. Whitcomb.

A letter was read from Rev. R. Smith concerning forming the Greater Parish of Coaticook Deane and it was agreed that more information was needed before reaching an agreement.

George Hartwell as people's warden gave a vote of thanks to all those who in any way helped with Church life during the past year.

The meeting was closed with prayer, refreshments served by the A.C.W. members and a social time followed.

Mr. Roy West of Fitch Bay is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yertaw.

Changing the face of old father time

Products Ltd features handless movement and sweep second hand; upper right - ball clock by Acrylic Products Ltd in six different case colours and four different face designs.

The days have long since gone when a clock or watch would have a plain, pale face with neat little black numerals and easily distinguishable hour and minute hands.

Today there is everything from indicators and lights to those calendar-like digital clocks. The use of Perspex has added a whole new dimension to both watches and clocks.

True, there are clocks and watches still made in the tradition mould. Perhaps the most interesting are those that illustrate not one but two of the industries for which Britain is well known - clocks and china.

SCALLOPED EDGES
Some of the prettiest are the delicate little Coalport clocks. Roughly circular in shape, they have curved and scalloped edges and stand on two small front "legs," with a third at the back.

Some are plain white with a little gilding, some delicately decorated with coloured flowers and gilding. They are exactly the shape (though the decoration is slightly different) of the clockholders that have been made by Coalport for the past 200 years.

The most common shape is probably the one modelled on that used by that great clockmaker of the 17th century Thomas Tompion. This squarish holder with projecting base and overhang and handle on the top is used both by Coalport and Wedgwood.

The Wedgwood pieces are in the famous Blue Jasper ware, with its famous Blue Jasper ware, with its white relief decoration. (Jasper ware, incidentally, first made in 1774, was preferred by Josiah Wedgwood, the firm's founder, over any other Wedgwood ware.)

Jasper ware also houses a clock modelled on those of a little later, by Thomas Moss. This time the relief decoration shows figures and foliage. Both clocks are also made in green Jasper Ware and both have eight day movements.

There could hardly be a greater contrast between these pretty traditional clocks and the new timepieces just brought out by Airmark, designed by Hulme and stand on two small front "legs," with a third at the back. Chadwick. Not surprisingly, they got their first showing at the London Design Centre.

The Airmark clocks, in matt black, look rather like sections of a tube, with one end rounded and the other straight-cut-across - this is where the clockface is.

The faces are in orange and red on a black background. One of the clocks has hands only and one has five-minute time divisions. There is a whole collection of these beautifully designed and elegant tabletop objects - a barometer, a combined thermometer - hygrometer, a table lighter and a desk tidy. They all match and all appear to stand on their sides (the ends are weighted and have a self-righting device).

LARGE NUMERALS
Rather along the same lines, "ball" clocks are becoming more and more popular. "Innovations" is a London shop full of beautiful and ingenious objects, from "adult toys" to clocks. Many of the nicest here are made by Acrylic Products, a firm which as its name suggests manufactures plastic objects.

Some have large, easy-to-see numerals and brilliantly coloured cases - ideal for a child's room - and some have a more sophisticated arrangement of moving rings printed with hour and minute numbers, so there is no need for hands of any sort.

Left: Coalport clock based on 17th century Thomas Tompion design. Centre: Wedgwood Green Jasper clock modelled on those of

But Hanoi preferred

Hanoi, Saigon: A tale of two cities

SAIGON (AP) — Most of those in the peacekeeping business who shuttle back and forth between the two Vietnamese capitals tend to agree that Hanoi comes across cleaner, cooler, less crowded.

First impressions record the bicycles, the flowers, the man-hole-cover air-raid shelters, the pontoon bridge next to the bombed-out Brouwer Bridge over the Red River.

Saigon's squalor, roaring motor bikes, bar girls in hot pants and leather miniskirts, seems centuries away.

"But for all of that there is something depressing about Hanoi," said a Canadian delegate to the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) who has lived in an (Eastern) European country. "It has the bleak look of any Communist city anywhere in the world."

"I can't say the people look unhappy, but they have those vacant faces that still haunt my memory."

Attache cases in hand, ICCS delegates make the trip from Saigon in a four-engine Boeing Stratocruiser that was old when the Vietnam war was young. The flight, including a two-hour refueling stop in Vientiane, Laos, takes nine hours. As all foreign visitors to Hanoi, the delegates are escorted everywhere and constantly coached on what sites may or may not be photographed. Their guides are attentive about pointing out bomb damage and examples of Socialist cleanliness and efficiency.

In Hanoi, there is no equivalent of Saigon's 11 p.m. curfew, but the streets are empty and lifeless within a few hours after sundown.

"Most of the city is still without electricity," said a Canadian who played bridge with his Polish counterparts by gas lantern.

A ranking American official, returning to Hanoi after an absence of more than 10 years, was unable to find a single new building that had gone up since his last visit. The city seemed locked inside the snapshots he had taken of it then.

ALWAYS CHANGING

"I can come back to Saigon after only being gone a month and there'll be another high-rise hotel on Tu Do Street," he remarked. One Polish delegate went from the faded red carpeting and white shutters of Saigon's Continental Palace Hotel to the faded red carpeting and green shutters of Hanoi's Continental Palace Hotel. Both were built by the French decades ago, and in former times they were under the same management.

"The oversized furniture in the rooms is identical right down to the gloomy heavy drapes," said the Pole. "The old French-speaking waiters in the dining terrace could be almost interchangeable."

"The big difference is in the young ones. In Saigon, they speak English. In Hanoi, they're apt to speak Russian now. Of course, the biggest difference is the absence of bar girls in Hanoi."

Learning disabilities campaign underway

The opening of a two-week financial campaign to raise $100,000 to forward the work of the Quebec Association for Children with Learning Disabilities was recently held.

Researchers estimate that 10-20 per cent of all school children have specific learning disabilities which require special attention so they can succeed in school and indeed in life. This means that there are at least two and perhaps as many as nine of these children in every classroom.

A learning disabled child is one of average or above average intelligence who has difficulty learning by normal teaching methods because of what appears to be inefficient functioning of the nervous system with the result that the processes involved in taking in or processing information are faulty.

These disorders manifest themselves in poor performance in one or several of the following areas: reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, speech, body coordination, work organization, listening, attention span and concept formation. Some of the terms commonly used to describe these disorders are dyslexia, hyperactivity, and minimal brain dysfunction. Learning disabled children are not "retarded," "dumb," "lazy" or "emotionally disturbed" as they are so frequently labelled by unaware parents and professionals. However, they may become severely emotionally upset when nothing is done to help them at an early age.

The aim of The Quebec Association for Children with Learning Disabilities is to educate the public, parents and professionals (teachers, doctors, psychologists, social workers, recreation workers, probation officers, judges, government officials) to recognize the problem, and to do something about it before the child has developed such academic, behavioural and social problems that he is in deep trouble in every facet of his life.

The QAQLD operates a library and information centre, a unique resource in Quebec Province. It distributes literature and information on every aspect of the learning disabilities field. It holds public meetings, circulates films, publishes newsletters, arranges information workshops and speakers and acts as a catalyst in the community by bringing together professionals in the field, and creates a priority for the use of school, social welfare and other public funds.

The QAQLD emphasizes the importance of early recognition and prevention by nursery school teachers, parents and pediatricians. The QAQLD local Chapters follow up these efforts with the development of special recreation and sport programs, local information meetings, volunteer training workshops and encouragement of local development of the special school services children with learning disabilities require.

Almost all of the work of the Association is carried out by volunteers. Membership in the Association has now reached 800. A full time administrative staff of two co-ordinates the program.

Mrs. Dougherty, Executive Director of the Association, said that "the realization of the enormous numbers of learning disabled kids in our midst has come only within the last ten years." She added that "it is important to know that these children can be helped, especially if recognized early enough, and that much progress has been made both in awareness of the size and the nature of the problem and what can be done about it."

Helene Beaulieu, 569-4366
Viviane Beaulieu, 567-2292.

Dear Sir:
I noticed your request for a poem to put in the paper pertaining to old age.
I hope the enclosed prayer-verse will be found suitable to print in the column.
Continued success with the column, which I am sure is very pleasing to many of the older people.
Sincerely,
D.R. Sherbrooke.

THE BEATITUDES FOR FRIENDS OF THE AGED

Blessed are they who understand
My faltering step and palsied hand.
Blessed are they who know that my ears today
Must strain to catch the things they say.
Blessed are they who looked away
When the coffee spilled on the cloth today.
Blessed are they who stopped with a smile
To have a chat for a little while.
Blessed are they who never say
"You've told that story twice today."
Blessed are they who make it known
That I'm loved, respected and not alone.
Blessed are they who know the way
To bring back memories of yesterday.
Blessed are they who ease the days
Of my journey home in loving ways.

A PENSIONER

I'm just an old age pensioner
Nearly four score year,
I like to think I'm needed
By those whom I hold dear.
My sight is getting dimmer
Can't see the printed page,
I wonder what's the matter,
Could it be my age?
My joints are full of trouble
Oh-times they creak and groan,
I'm full of aches and stiffness
In almost every bone.
My legs are weak and wobble
Sometimes I nearly fall,
Yes, I'm rather hard of hearing
In crowds can't hear at all,
My heart's becoming weaker
It flutters in my chest,
My tongue keeps a-wagging,
Nothing ever gives it rest.
As in the days of yore,
I must control its clacking
Or become a tiresome bore.
Today I'm feeling better
Getting things off my chest,
I'll stop all complaining,
Give my friends a needed rest.
In this world of trouble
Cheer up our lonely neighbours
With a friendly word or two.
The flight of time takes its toll
It's nature's plan you see
Grow old along with me
The best is yet to be.

LIFE

In Memoriam

NUTBROWN — In loving memory of our dear mother, Margaret, who passed away March 2, 1966.
God looked around his garden
And saw a vacant place
And then he looked upon the earth
And saw your tired face
He put his arms around you
And whispered, "Come and rest"
God's garden must be beautiful
Cause he only takes the best.
We miss you Mom and always will
Your vacant place no one can fill.

PROPRIETORS AND TENANTS

This notice applies to all houses already subjected to the Rental Board in the city of Sherbrooke, for all dwellings constructed before the 1st of April, 1968, and for which the rent legally in force on the 1st of January, 1968, was $125.00 per month or less, before the declaration of the Honourable Minister of Justice, on January 31st, 1973 in regard with houses not subjected to the said Rental Board.

All leases for lodgings, ending April 30th, 1973, or after, will automatically be prolonged until April 30th, 1974, unless one or the other of the parties opposes this automatic prolongation in the following manner:

1. A tenant who wishes to vacate the premises at the expiration of his lease must give his proprietor a written notice of his intention not later than March 31st, if his lease expires on April 30th, and not later than 30 days before its expiration if his lease expires after April 30th.
2. A tenant who does not wish the lease with his landlord to be prolonged on the same conditions (either because he wishes a reduction of the rent or a change in the conditions of rental) must apply to the Rental Administrator for a prolongation of his lease and a fixation of his rent at the latest March 31st, if his lease expires on April 30th, and not later than 30 days before its expiration if his lease expires after April 30th.
3. A proprietor who does not wish the lease with his tenant to be prolonged on the same conditions (either because he wishes to raise the rent or change the conditions of rental) must send his tenant a written notice of his intention not later than March 31st, if it concerns a lease ending on April 30th, and not later than 30 days before its expiration, in the case of a lease ending after April 30th.
4. A tenant who has received such a notice, mentioned in the previous paragraph, and who wishes to accept the new conditions from his proprietor, must do so in writing.
5. A tenant who does not wish to accept the new conditions from his proprietor must apply to the Rental Administrator for a prolongation of his lease and a fixation of his rent. The request for a prolongation of lease and fixation of rent must be made at the latest March 31st, if the notice from the proprietor was sent on or before March 20th, and within 10 days of this notice if it was sent after March 20th.

For additional information, please apply to the Rental Board of Sherbrooke.

Blues beat Bruins

Playoff battles produce upsets

The late-season scramble for National Hockey League playoff berths can be counted on to produce some unusual results—such as St. Louis Blues winning in Boston.

The Blues hadn't beaten the Bruins on Boston ice since Nov. 5, 1970, but Tuesday night they were under pressure to strengthen their hold on fourth spot in the West Division and did it with a 4-3 win over the defending Stanley Cup champions.

That gave the Blues a three-point edge over the idle fifth-place Pittsburgh Penguins and also pulled them to within two points of third-place Minnesota in the tight Western race.

Los Angeles Kings stayed in contention by shutting out Philadelphia Flyers 2-0. The win gave the Kings a season total of 59 points, just five behind St. Louis and tied with Atlanta Flames who skated to a 4-4 draw with Buffalo Sabres in the night's only other game.

Bobby Orr got his 19th but Blues goalie Wayne Stephenson shut out the rest of the Boston club.

Bob Plager and Garry Unger scored within 24 seconds of each other early in the third period to give St. Louis a 4-2 lead and Esposito's second goal was all that got by Stephenson after that.

The Blues' late stand was aided by a penalty to Boston's Ken Hodge whose stick was found to exceed the maximum blade measurement.

Goalie Ed Johnston, who shut out the Blues in their two previous visits to Boston this season, suffered the loss.

Rogation Vachon posted his third shutout of the season in stopping the Flyers at Philadelphia, while Frank St. Marseille and Bob Berry accounted for the Los Angeles scoring against Flyers reminder Doug Favell.

BREAK RECORD
 The Flyers picked up 36 minutes in penalties to break the league record for total penalty minutes in a season with 1,391. The previous mark of 1,371 was set by Vancouver Canucks in the 1970-71 season.

Buffalo had to come from behind a 3-1 Flames lead at Atlanta to gain the tie and almost won the contest but for the work of Atlanta goalie Dan Bouchard who stopped Gil Perreault on a spectacular last-minute rush.

Larry Mickey's goal at 6:41 of the third period tied the score, less than two minutes after Rick Martin scored his 33rd season goal for the Sabres.

No games were scheduled for tonight. League action resumes with seven games Saturday.

PLAYERS MOVE
 In the meantime, three players will be fitted with new uniforms. Gary Doak goes back to wearing a Boston jersey after he was traded from Detroit Thursday for Bruins forward Garnet Bailey.

Doak was a defenceman with the 1970 Stanley Cup champion Bruins team before being picked by Vancouver in the expansion draft. He was later traded to New York and then to Detroit.

Bailey has been a member of the Bruins since 1967 and has eight goals and 13 assists this season.

The other player to be fitted for new gear is Don Blackburn purchased Thursday by Minnesota North Stars from New York Islanders.

Karen can't believe it

BRATISLAVA (CP) — "I just can't believe it—it finally happened," said Karen Magnusen, who succeeded Thursday in her sixth attempt at the women's singles title in the world figure skating championships.

"It's taken a long time, but I finally made it and gosh I really have hit the jackpot," said the 20-year-old blonde from Vancouver as she toyed with the three gold medals hanging around her neck.

The medals represented her victories in the compulsory figures, compulsory short program and the over-all competition over long-time rival Janet Lynn of the United States.

Miss Magnusen went into Thursday's free skating program with an insurmountable lead over Miss Lynn who all but lost hope when she fell twice during Wednesday's short program.

NEVER HELD BACK
 But Miss Magnusen defied the temptation to skate a conservative program and instead put all her effort into a series of difficult jumps and spins.

"I didn't have time to think about the world title during my free skate," said the five-time Canadian champion.

"The thought never entered my mind. I went out there to skate with my heart. It's all so exciting. I still haven't got over it."

More recognition is likely to follow as Miss Magnusen goes on a world tour. She said she will be involved in skating exhibitions for the next month, including stops in Canada and Japan.

"I don't know what's going to happen yet," Miss Magnusen said of her future. "There's just lots of hard work ahead."

Miss Magnusen is the first Canadian to win the women's title since Petra Burka took it in 1965. Previously, Barbara Ann Scott brought the world title to Canada in 1947 and 1948.

In all, Canada now has won 12 world figure skating championships.

MADE DEBUT
 Overshadowed by Miss Magnusen's victory was the performance of 16-year-old Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa who finished 10th in her world-competition debut against a field of 28 skaters.

"I really wanted to make the top 10 but I didn't think I would," said Miss Nightingale, who beat Miss Magnusen in the free-skating section of the Canadian championships this year.

"I enjoyed all my skates and felt I had never performed better. It's been a great championship for me."

Miss Nightingale scored 325.61 points.

Miss Magnusen's first-ever appearance in a world championship was in 1967 at Vienna when she finished 12th.

CATHY IMPROVING
 Cathy Lee Irwin of Toronto, finishing 12th, was also happy with her first appearance in world competition.

"I feel I'm getting better all the time," said Miss Irwin, who scored 320.95 points.

"My approach is also improving. There's a lot goes into doing well in this game."

Miss Magnusen was rewarded with membership in the Canadian Sports Hall of Fame. The award was announced in a telegram from W. Harold Rea, chairman of the Hall of Fame in Toronto.

Phil Esposito scored his 41st and 42nd goals for the Bruins and Bobby Orr got his 19th but Blues goalie Wayne Stephenson shut out the rest of the Boston club.

Buffalo had to come from behind a 3-1 Flames lead at Atlanta to gain the tie and almost won the contest but for the work of Atlanta goalie Dan Bouchard who stopped Gil Perreault on a spectacular last-minute rush.

Larry Mickey's goal at 6:41 of the third period tied the score, less than two minutes after Rick Martin scored his 33rd season goal for the Sabres.

Saints drop Halos

Pressure is beginning to mount among teams battling for playoff berths in the World Hockey Association.

Minnesota Fighting Saints let their halos slip Thursday night as they tried to fight off a challenge from Los Angeles Sharks who had to weather some ugly incidents before emerging with a 4-1 victory.

In Thursday's other game, Ottawa Nationals moved to within two points of the fourth-place Philadelphia Blazers by repulsing New York Raiders 2-1.

Alton White, only Negro player in the WHA, was the target of some not-so-subtle abuse at St. Paul Minn., as he scored three goals to lead the Sharks to victory and a share of third place in the western division.

White's third goal was scored into an empty net after a player on the Minnesota bench threw his stick onto the ice. The Saints pulled their goalie for an extra attacker, giving White a clear shot on goal.

GOALIE BEANED
 The Sharks lost regular goalie George Gardner late in the third period when he was struck on the forehead by a hard shot. He was taken to hospital and was replaced by Russ Gillow.

Minnesota led 1-0 after the first period on a power play goal by Bob MacMillan. White and Fred Speck, a former Saint, scored for the Sharks in the second period and White slammed in two goals in the third.

Two teams return with trophies

By TERRY SCOTT
Record Reporter
 COWANSVILLE — Four minor hockey league teams from Cowansville made the trek to Burrillville, Thode Island, February 10-11, and two managed to return with silverware symbolic of their victory on American ice.

The event involved the second Can-Am tournament, with the Cowansville contingent returning a visit paid them last year by the Burrillville minor hockey squads. Vince Lovett, formerly a resident of the American town, is one of the tourney's co-ordinators from a Cowansville standpoint.

If one thing was proved during the two-day competition it was that the Cowansville minor hockey representatives are slightly superior at the pee-wee and midget levels, but inferior in the mosquito, and bantam divisions. Particularly, since last year's tournament produced the same result.

The Burrillville Mosquitos captured honors in this category when they whitewashed the Canada visitors 6-0 on Saturday. They continued the mastery during Sunday's encounter with a 5-2 decision. Sylvain Lepitre and Jean Sirois were the lone Cowansville marksmen.

Meanwhile, the highly touted Pee-Wees put Cowansville into the winners' circle, with a pair of squeakers over the host club.

Saturday, Yvan Tardif and Louis Haman notched a goal apiece to produce a 2-1 triumph and Sunday Michel Poitras' marker was the only one needed to claim a 1-0 blanking.

The Cowansville Bantams, routed on Saturday, 8-2, rebounded the next day to gain a 2-1 victory — far short of overtaking the Americans on a total points basis — used to decide a winner in case of a split in victories. Bernard Gaboriault sparked for the losers by firing all three of their weekend goals.

Cowansville's Midget representatives probably had the least strenuous task of anyone on the weekend as the power-laden youngsters demolished the Burrillville Midgets 9-1 on Saturday and settled for a 5-3 win on Sunday.

Richard Piette and Pierre Francis fired a pair of goals in the first game to pace the attack, while Andre Larose picked up two on Sunday to lead the offensive outburst.

In a pair of exhibition contests, the local Depression League Tornos, acting as chaperones on the trip, bounced the Burrillville Old Timers 9-2, before bowing out Sunday by a 4-3 margin.

The Can-Am series is expected to resume next year with the Americans heading back to Cowansville for a weekend of competition.

A FOND FAREWELL — Part of the group of boys from four Cowansville minor hockey teams bid a final goodbye to their American hosts before boarding buses back home. The two-day Burrillville tourney ranked as a resounding success and, judging from the happy faces, the youngsters can't wait until the goodwill series resumes next year.

Blue heads long holdout list

Vida Blue, fireballing Oakland lefthander whose bitter contract dispute with Athletics' owner Charles O. Finley brought intervention by the baseball commissioner last year, heads a list of about 100 major leaguers who have not signed to play this year.

They are listed officially as holdouts. Traditionally, the 23-year-old pitching ace, who joined the team late and had a dismal 6-10 season, is reported wanting a raise over his $63,000 contract of last year, which included $13,000 in bonus money.

ROSE WANTS RAISE
 Pete Rose, valuable outfielder of Cincinnati Reds, is seeking $120,000 compared with $107,000 last year. Bobby Murcer, New York Yankees' centre fielder, is striving to join the $100,000 club. There was a rash of signing Thursday. Brooks Robinson, Baltimore's third baseman, signed for a reported $105,000. Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins agreed to a $9,000 cut and accepted $96,000.

Rusty Staub, outfielder of New York Mets, announced that he had reached verbal agreement with general manager Bob Scheffing and would report to St. Petersburg, Fla., today to sign an agreement calling for $330,000 over a three-year period.

Finley, who returned to his Chicago business headquarters Thursday after a speaking engagement in Washington, said he planned to visit the Oakland training camp this weekend and indicated that he might talk with some of his dissatisfied athletes—including Blue—at that time.

He wouldn't say he was optimistic over reaching a quick agreement with Blue.

The gold-dust team: Over $1 million

NEW YORK (AP) — It would cost $1,480,000 a year to field baseball's Gold Dust team, a squad made up of the highest-paid players in the game according to position.

The signing of first baseman Dick Allen to a three-year, $675,000 contract by Chicago White Sox—baseball's biggest paycheck—emphasized the trend toward skyrocketing salaries in professional sports.

Here is baseball's new high-priced lineup, based on estimated and known paychecks for the 1973 season: First base—Dick Allen, White Sox, $225,000. Second base—Joe Morgan, Cincinnati Reds, $90,000. Third base—Brooks Robinson, Baltimore Orioles, $110,000. Shortstop—Luis Aparacio, Boston Red Sox, $100,000. Outfield—Hank Aaron, Atlanta Braves, $200,000; Carl Yastrzemski, Red Sox, $165,000; Willie Mays, New York Mets, $165,000; Catcher—Johnny Bench, Reds, $110,000. Pitchers—Steve Carlton, Philadelphia Phillies, $165,000; Bob Gibson, St. Louis Cardinals, $160,000.

BASKETBALL LEADS
 Although baseball has other players in the $100,000-plus bracket, the national pastime is still being upstaged by rival sports in the financial care of its athletes.

Pro basketball is the leader in this category with average salaries of the National Basketball Association figured at around $52,000. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is earning about $400,000 annually.

The National Hockey League fixes its average at $40,000 and the National Football League at around $33,000. Baseball's average is around $28,000.

In this age of sports affluence, a favorite parlor game is that of comparing present baseball salaries with that of Babe Ruth. The Babe, home run king of the 1920s, made $80,000 a year. He didn't pay any income tax and hamburger was 20 cents a pound.

The Babe was better off. He made $5,000 more than the

Manitoba, Sask. to meet in curling playoff

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Saskatchewan took 11 ends to dispose of Manitoba 7-5 in their final game of the Canadian women's curling championships Thursday night and set the title game into a playoff for the fourth time since 1968.

The previously unbeaten Manitoba rink and the Saskatchewan foursome wound up with 8-1 won-lost records and will tangle again in today's playoff scheduled for 8:30 a.m. EST.

But Saskatchewan skip, Vera Pezer of Saskatoon, said that had she been able to draw a narrow port with her second shot in the 10th end "it might have been over."

Manitoba's Joan Ingram had taken a 5-4 lead in the ninth and the Saskatchewan rink had last rock coming home. Miss Pezer succeeded in drawing the port with her first shot.

Miss Ingram's attempt, with her final rock, at a similar draw to close the port, wrecked on the front stones and left Miss Pezer with a draw around shot to count two and a win.

Curling challenge at Border

BORDER — Sunday afternoon, March 4, there will be a Curling Challenge at the Border Curling Club in Beebe. Two of the junior teams have challenged two of the senior teams for the Bull trophy.

Skips for the junior teams will be Gary Cooper and Henry Seguin and for the senior teams, Harold Ermslie and Peter Cross. Game time is 2:00 p.m.

Wilvaken, Stanstead cop medals

WILVAKEN-Stanstead (WV) — Two cross-country skiers from Ski Wilvaken and 10 from Stanstead College won gold medals in the Cross Country Ski Marathon from Lachute to Hull last weekend.

Gill Ross, Bishop's University professor, skiing with the Ski Wilvaken team, won a gold medal for covering 80 miles of the 100-mile course. Despite trouble with her knee, Louise Marcell, also with the Ski Wilvaken team, obtained a gold medal for skiing 70 miles.

The 20 skiers from Wilvaken, including the club owners, Dr. and Mrs. Willis, obtained a total of 14 bronze and two gold medals for their efforts in the Marathon.

The 20 boys from Stanstead College covered a total of 1,050 miles during the Marathon, teacher Anthony R. Eveleigh reported. The boys received 10 gold medals, two silver medals and three senior bronze medals.

Mr. Eveleigh, in charge of the cross-country ski program for the college, also succeeded in covering 60 miles and received a bronze medal for his fortitude.

The total number of miles covered by the 1,485 skiers who entered for the Marathon last weekend was 59,650, it was reported.

Galt unbeaten string continues

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Alexander Galt Regional High School sports teams drew their second unbeaten card in as many days. While Andre Breton, Gord MacKinnon, Barry Chan, Greg Goodsell, Jules Willcott, and Tim Clark each added a pin to their individual records.

Rick Laroche won by a pin and tied, Mike Leblond won and lost by pins and Fred Reed won by a default and a pin.

Alfred Fequet lost by a pin, Les Donahue lost by a decision and a pin, Ivan Wayne was defeated by a pin and Lloyd
